shall only be effective in calendar years during which the legislature fails to enact legislation granting cost-of-living adjustments, unless in the legislation granting a cost-of-living adjustment, the legislature specifically authorized the aforementioned systems to amend the respective retirement systems to provide an additional cost-of-living adjustment to retirees or survivors of retired public employees of particular systems, funds, and plans set forth in this Subsection.

E. Notwithstanding any other provision of law to the contrary, commencing at the end of the retirement system's 1985-1986 fiscal year, unless thereafter specifically provided for by the legislature, any public retirement or pension system, fund, or plan covered by this Section shall not provide a cost-of-living increase during any fiscal year until the lapse of at least one-half of the fiscal year, and unless the actuary for the system and the legislative auditor certify that the funded ratio of the system, fund, or plan as of the end of the previous fiscal year equals or exceeds the target ratio as of that date for that system, fund, or plan. If the legislative auditor disagrees with the determination of the system's actuary, the matter shall be determined by majority vote of the Louisiana Public Retirement Systems' Actuarial Committee. For purposes of this Subsection, the funded ratio and target ratio are as defined below:

AMENDMENT NO. 3

On page 1, after line 17, add the following:

"(c)(i) Notwithstanding the provisions of Subparagraph (a) of this Paragraph, an insurer with an A. M. Best rating of A-minus or better providing excess workers' compensation coverage to more than one employer shall be entitled to satisfy all of the initial and renewal certification requirements for self-insurer status and security obligations of all its insureds to the office of workers' compensation, by depositing and maintaining with the office a single surety bond, or other acceptable security as determined by the office, in an amount equal to the greater of:

(aa) The aggregate average workers' compensation losses incurred over the most recent three-year period multiplied by one hundred fifty percent; or

(bb) The total amount of unpaid workers' compensation reserves at the time of the annual review of all self-insurers secured by the single security multiplied by one hundred fifty percent.

(ii) For those employers that have not been in business for at least three calendar years, the single security provided for under this Subparagraph shall be increased for each such employer by the greater of three hundred thousand dollars or three times the estimated annual loss fund for the next year.

(iii) The security deposited by an insurer under this Subparagraph shall serve to secure the obligations of its self-insured employers only for those years in which they were provided excess coverage by that one particular insurer.

(d)(i) The insurer shall satisfy the self-insurer requirements of its insured employers under Subparagraph A(3)(c) above by submitting to the office of workers' compensation written notification of excess workers' compensation coverage, the insured's workers' compensation losses incurred over the most recent three-year period and the insured's total unpaid workers' compensation reserves. For those employers that have not been in business for at least three calendar years, the insurer shall submit written notification of excess coverage and the employers estimated annual loss fund for the next year.

(ii) Upon the insurer's supplying the information contained in Item A(3)(d)(i) to determine the appropriate security as required by Subparagraph A(3)(c), the employer shall be deemed a self-insurer under R.S. 23:1168 A(3)(c). The insurer shall thereafter provide the information contained in Item A(3)(d)(i) once per year at the time of the annual review of all self-insurers secured by the single security provided for in Subparagraph A(3)(c).

D.(1) If for any reason there is a default by the self-insured employer in the payment of compensation to an injured employee, the security posted with the director shall be forfeited, and in the case of a surety bond, the director may institute suit on such bond. All proceeds shall be retained by the director for payment to such claimants as may be entitled to receive compensation from said employer. The director may pay these funds on a periodic basis. In the event that the amount of the bond is insufficient to meet all of the outstanding claims, he may allocate them to particular claimants pro rata.

(2) In the event an employer operating as a self-insurer pursuant to Subparagraph A(3)(c) of this Section becomes insolvent or otherwise defaults on his workers' compensation obligations, the office shall demand that the excess insurer deposit a separate surety bond or other security equal to the amount of security attributable to the defaulting employer in the most recent calculation of the single security on deposit with the office. If the separate surety bond or other security is not deposited with the office within ten business days of demand, the entire single security on deposit shall be forfeited until the additional security is deposited. Upon depositing the separate security required by this Subparagraph, the excess insurer shall be entitled to reduce the existing single security on deposit by the amount of the separate security."

On motion of Rep. Murray, the amendments were adopted.

Rep. Donelon moved the final passage of the bill, as amended.
