CALL TO ORDER

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The Louisiana Constitutional Convention will now come to order. The invocation will be pronounced by the Most Reverend Philip M. Hannan, Archbishop of New Orleans. Archbishop Hannan.

PRAYER

Archbishop Hannan In the name of the Father and the Son and the Holy Spirit. Oh, God, our Father, and source of all justice, pour down Your blessing on those who participate in this Constitutional Convention. May Your presence abide in us as we fashion the basic law of this state. May our work merit the praise of the Psalmist, "Happy the nation whose God is Yahweh, the people He has chosen for His heritage." Make us mindful that our dignity and rights protected by our law derived from You Whose image we are and make us remember that our laws must honor equally that image of You in every man. Under Your guidance and grace may we make of this state one family, under God, whose deepest concern is for the neediest and whose goal is the reign of charity. Led on by Your light may the efforts of this convention forward in this state Your Kingdom, whose motive is charity, whose law is justice, and whose life is love. Yahweh, let Your love rest on us, as our hope rests in You. Amen.

PRESENTATION OF COLORS AND NATIONAL ANTHEM

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The presentation of the colors will be made by the United States Marine Corps Color Guard. This presentation will be followed immediately by the National Anthem rendered by Mrs. Frances Marsh, Associate professor of Music, Southern University, Baton Rouge. She will be accompanied on the organ by Mr. Melvin Ballard and the delegates will remain standing at this time. Let the color guard advance.

Mrs. Marsh [Anthem]

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The Color Guard will retire the colors. We will now have a prayer by the Reverend Dr. Scott Tatum, Pastor, Broadmoor Baptist Church, Shreveport.

PRAYER

Dr. Tatum Let us pray. Almighty God, our heavenly Father, Father of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ, we thank You for the privilege of worship. In this moment we worship You because of Your greatness, because of Your righteousness, because of Your love and because of Your mercy. Deliver us from the folly of thinking that prayers are made by ministers to be heard by man. Give us the faith to know that almighty God is listening even now, not only to the words spoken by this man, but to the thoughts that are in the minds of every person who is here. We pray to delegate under the writing of a constitution. We pray that we shall not think that we ourselves are wise enough to write a constitution for our state, but that we might ask God to work through us as His mind becomes the mind of the delegates. We dedicate these men and women unto You. May they pray not only now but may they pray daily until the constitution they have in this constitution God would have us to have. We pray for this great state of ours. We pray for its citizens, we pray for its officers. We ask that God will give unto us some little part in the advancement of God's kingdom. Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done, in earth, in Louisiana, now as it is in Heaven. In the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The delegates will please be seated. The next item on the program is the roll call of delegates by the Honorable Wade O. Martin, Jr., Secretary of State. When your name is called, please respond, rise, and come in front of the rostrum for the administration of the oath to the delegates. Secretary Martin.

ROLL CALL

Secretary Martin Mr. Chairman, members of the Constitutional Convention, roll call is as follows: [7 Journal 1-3]

One hundred percent attendance, Mr. Chairman. I would like to say in conclusion and very briefly, Mr. Temporary Chairman and the other officers who will be elected today, to all the delegates who are here assembled for this important event my sincere congratulations and thanks to Governor Edwin Edwards, the members of the Legislature, and everyone who had anything to do with this important forward step in the future of Louisiana, our sincere thanks and appreciation. Thank you, Mr. Temporary Chairman.

ADMINISTRATION OF OATH OF OFFICE

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The delegates will please raise their right hand and repeat after me. I hereby solemnly swear that I will support the constitution and laws of the United States; that I will well and faithfully perform all duties as a member of this convention, and that I will observe and obey the limitation of authority contained in the Act under which this convention has assembled. So help me God. The delegates may now be seated.

Governor Edwards, members of the clergy, and distinguished delegates of this convention, today, January 5th, nineteen hundred and seventy-three, is a historic day in Louisiana. After more than a half century under the same framework of government, you begin today in a new year to write a new constitution. In a larger sense, however, you write more than the bare phrases of organic law. You write history, for in the new constitution must be distilled the social and economic life of our great people, a people whose rich diversities of culture have been celebrated in song and story. You have been chosen to serve here because of your competence to do the work before us. In a very true sense you write not for yourselves alone, but as representatives of all the people. I congratulate you on your selection as members of this body. Like the delegates in earlier state conventions, you face problems that seem to defy solution. As the late Dr. Owen, a legal authority once noted, "Our present constitution falls short in several major respects. Because of its length, it poses problems in ascertaining basic policy. It embodies defects in governmental structure. Finally, but no less important, it has spawned an abuse of the amending process by placing upon the people the impossible burden of acting upon a multitude of amendments, some of statewide concern, some of local application only." Your work involves more than merely transferring the law from one book to another to shorten a constitution. It also involves a creative process. Your goal will be to create a new framework of government, consistent, and sound; government that is responsive to the needs of the people. No better guidelines can be found than those inscribed in the preamble that all Americans hold dear, "to establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity." As your temporary chairman, my duty as the law is to preside until you elect a permanent chairman. I will do my very best to facilitate your work. I have reviewed the biography of each of you. No greater assemblage [assemblage] of intellect has ever been achieved in the history of the state of Louisiana. But the ultimate success of this convention requires more than intellect. It also requires spirit. A spirit that will free the convention of the turmoil of discordant factions and the intrusion of partisan interests. Your proceedings must be conducted with decorum, dignity and above all, a genuine concern for the welfare of the people. In such an atmosphere a full and informed debate can truly test the soundness of each provision. These deliberations can and must produce a constitution that will merit the approval of the people. This then is your twofold challenge: deliberations that inspire public confidence, and a worthy constitution. The eyes of all Louisianians will be upon you as you respond to this challenge. My sincere wish is that your efforts will redound to the welfare, happiness and prosperity of all of our people. Thank you.

The next prayer will be delivered by Dr. Lester W. Roubey, Rabbi, Temple B'nai Israel, Baton Rouge. Rabbi Roubey.

PRAYER

Rabbi Roubey Gathered in Thy sight, O Lord, in this vast and blessed commonwealth, men and women have gathered for a noble and a significant task. They seek above all to enrich through their deliberations the lives and fortunes of every man, to enrich life not only for the individual but for our common weal that each may grow, may prosper, and yet not disturb or infringe on the rights and privileges of his fellow man. Thou has taught us, O Lord, that man is created in Thy divine image. Therefore, within each of us resides that spark of divinity which brings us into being, that from the Creator and Source of all life. If human life be thus sanctified, then the delegates here gathered to design a mode of living for the citizens of our state must view their appointed tasks as one touched by more than a modicum of sanctity. The writers of scripture first saw that the peace security of the community would demand a social compact which would call for personal sacrifices for the common good. The first laws of right and wrong, of liability and privilege, of property and possession found their formulation in that book of books, our Holy Bible. There too the concept of brotherhood found its loftiest yet simple expression in the words, "Love thy neighbor as get thyself." We therefore pray, O Father, that the delegates of this convention keep constantly in their sights and in their minds and in their hearts the knowledge that the first great corpus of human law found expression in holy writ. And from it have been derived all laws which guard and protect and succor all man. The delegates here assembled take their place in a direct line of descent from those who first formulated the social regulations of an ancient day. May the work of this convention, then, O Lord, ever be blessed, be blessed by a spirit of service to human kind and by a spirit of dedication to the welfare of all. Amen.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The delegates will please be seated. The Louisiana official song, "Give Me Louisiana," written by Doralea Fontaine will now be rendered by Mr. Melvin Ballard at the organ.

Mr. Melvin Ballard [Give Me Louisiana]

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Once in a great while, a man with a new vision appears upon the political scene in Louisiana. Moved by a strong impulse for leadership, he struggles upward from humble surroundings until he reaches a pinnacle of government in our state. Such a man is our official speaker for today. City councilman, state senator, congressman, governor, each in turn has held his attention. And I have the high privilege of presenting to you the esteemed governor of our great state, Edwin W. Edwards. Governor Edwards.

Governor Edwards Thank you. Please be seated. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, may I first thank the members of the arrangements committee responsible for arranging this auditorium, the facilities and the properties that will be available to you for your use during the convention. This day and this year will long be remembered by all of us. More than that, it will be remembered by our children and their children, who will be the ultimate evaluators of your labors, your labors, your labors—I repeat, not mine, your labors. They will acclaim or condemn the product of the work which you will be doing in the days that lie ahead. You have been given at long last the massive and magnificent opportunity to determine whether Louisianians yet unborn shall continue to exist under an archaic and obsolete constitution, not suited to times new and less suited to future times, or as the desired alternative, whether our lives and theirs are to be enriched and ennobled [ennobled] by a document of character suited to the needs and the hopes and the aspirations of a changing society. On Sunday, December 31, 1972, in its lead editorial, entitled Louisiana At the Brink of a Great Moment, the Shreveport Times incisively and cogently commented on this convention. In full agreement with that publication's observations, I quote, "Today Louisiana stands at the brink of great moment...the beginning of its first Constitutional Convention in a half century. We are at the cradle of fragile opportunity that only rarely comes to a people...Such a time requires the best in people. And it demands that...common persons be uncommon and above the normal prejudices of life for the course of their convention. It is an exciting challenge that faces these men and women. Their task is to sift through all of the special interests that will shout for individual attention and speak for a document that will speak for the common good and bind this state under an extraordinary law that will provide for the challenges of both today and tomorrow".

So as we here today meet in solemn convocation at the very threshold of this great challenge, may we pause briefly for a few moments to reason why we have come to this point in the history of our state.

In the 160 eventful and turbulent years since the admission of Louisiana to the Union, our forebears adopted 9 different state constitutions. This alone demonstrates that errors of conception have been inherent in our failures of the past. True, our state has managed to rock and roll and get along under its present constitution for more than a half a century. But in the past fifty-one years it has been infested and infested by cancerous, strangling, misunderstood amendments, no less than 536 times. It now contains in excess of a quarter-million words, more than ten times the average of the other 49 states: And whatever its original merit, it has now become the principal impediment to progressive reform in Louisiana.

In a letter to Thomas Jefferson's biographer, Lord Macaulay, Reilly charged that the federal constitution was "all sail and no anchor". Who would deny that as of now, Louisiana's embattled constitution is all anchor and no sail, for it impedes us from moving and affords us none of the benefits of the natural events which would make it possible to capture some of the glory now escaping us. Those who have studied our government, and its proliferating constitution and provisions of the constitution, are unanimously [unanimously] of the opinion that our constitution involves unnecessary detail which seriously hampers local and state government. Instead of being brief, explicit and reasonably concise in its provisions, it is a mass of complexity and confusion. Recurrent changes made it impractical if not impossible to publish a current copy.

In 1954 the Legislature directed the Secretary of State to print an official document. When published it contained over 700 pages, exclusive of an index which required 126 pages to guide to its various positions. If you fashion, and the electors of this state adopt, a modern and clear and well-prepared instrument, the need for constant and recurring change will no longer exist. That in itself is sufficient reason for having you in convention during this year 700, but it is also fair to state flatly that except in those instances where the amendments concern purely local matters in which some of us happen to be personally involved or where the amendments involve highly controversial matters which have provoked expression or opinion by leading public figures or by the media, the public seldom becomes knowledgeable on the subject matter of proposals submitted to it for approval or rejection. Indeed, despite the admitted merit of recently proposed changes few want to compound or add to the confusion in the virtually unreadable document and amendment after amendment in the last eight years has gone down to defeat.

Another related objection to our present constitution may be directed to those detailed provisions of purely local application and concern. What can be more unreasonable than to require the people of the entire state to vote on matters which concern only a restricted locality or an isolated area, yet our constitution is replete with unnecessary and involved details exclusively appropriate to local governments. Despite all of these justified criticisms and many more it is appalling to me that yet an appreciable number of people still oppose the confection of a new organic law. Therein will be the problem that we will be facing in the year ahead. The asserted grounds for our position usually conceal from consideration the selfish interests of those individuals and groups who inspire, nurture [nurture] and sponsor such opposition. For there are some individuals and groups who enjoy special benefits, rights and privileges which are completely to their satisfaction in the constitution but may not be in the public interest. They will demand that the constitution continue in its present unsatisfactory condition, admitting that as a document it fails to serve its purpose, but so concerned about their own interests protected by its umbrella they are fearful to effect a change. To them, let the message be clear. If that which concerns you is right and decent and holy, it will continue to have public support and will not be violated. If the other way, if it is not right or proper, then not only does it not deserve public support, but even less it does not deserve to be in the basic document of our constitution.

As a further example of what should not be in the constitution, let me discuss briefly a "for insure" in Article XI (A) which states many pages of great detail relating to the collection of a one cent per gallon tax on gasoline and motor fuel. The subject matter of the entire article would be better out of the constitution and in the statute or by regulation. This absurd and ridiculous state to which our constitution has been brought by repeated tinkering processes illustrates what I refer to. Listen to this as I quote verbatim from a provision of the constitution of the state of Louisiana. "Tractor fuel or distillate base stock shall have a plus 10 minimum sable color, to which shall be added two grams per hundred gallons of base stock of green dye, such as petrol green 31 and petrol green 32, as manufactured by Patent Chemical Oil-1-1, or a product of equivalent color, or a product of equivalent color, as made by American Aniline Products, or their equivalents." Do you know what that means? Does anybody know what it means? Doesn't everybody know it doesn't belong in the constitution? This is an example of what I refer to much material in the constitution which does not belong there, creates problems for the people and creates a desire and therefore rebel against it and want to insulate themselves from its use. By definition, ladies and gentlemen, a constitution is a formal written document assuring and protecting the rights and the liberties of the people and defining and limiting the powers of government. Our document has so far departed from these simple and basic purposes that it can no longer be considered to conform to this definition. The New Orleans Times-Picayune has recently noted that the late John J. Parker, Chief Judge of the U.S. Court of Appeal, has described well the purpose of a state constitution. "Its purpose," he said, "is two-fold: (1) to protect the rights of the individual from the encroachment of the state, and (2) to provide a framework of government for the state and its subdivisions. It is not the function of a constitution to deal with temporary conditions, but to lay down general principles of government which must be observed amidst changing conditions. It follows then, that a constitution should not contain elaborate legislative provisions, but should lay down briefly and clearly the fundamental principles upon which government shall proceed, leaving to the people's representatives to apply these principles through legislation as conditions arise."

Thus the ultimate purpose of the constitution and this convention must be designed to provide better government for the entire state and its people. To our critics and sceptics [skeptics] may I say that this convention will operate in no vacuum. Its product will face the ultimate democratic test, its deliberations will be open to the public, and people will know what is going on day by day. It will subsequently be submitted to the people for approval. If the work is good, it will be adopted. If it is bad, it will be rejected. There is here, in my opinion, involved a test of our faith in democratic government. Those who question the integrity and ability of this convention, doubt the integrity and ability of the people to govern themselves. Those who assail the good faith of the delegates to this convention attack the very processes, the principles and the ideals under which we live and in which we profess a belief. In short, your coming experience of framing this new constitution will involve a contest between fear and faith, fear of the loss of selfish advantages, fear of adverse political influences as opposed to faith in the principles of democratic government and trust in the people of our state.

During the pre-convention days, there was some observations printed and spoken suggesting an undercurrent of dissension and discord. But is not our state diverse enough, the convention independent enough that every delegate has people to govern themselves. As we approach the first days of deliberation, let us then proclaim that there is no need in this convention for insolence, intemperance or a lack of political manners. May I caution you to resist the temptation to respond in kind to the wild and whirling words of those opposed to reform. Patiently consider all points of view and then judge and decide in the best interest of all. Just a hundred years ago, John Stuart Mill wrote on the pursuit of truth, saying, "There is always hope when people are forced to listen to both sides; it is only when they attend one only that errors harden into prejudices."

Two years ago when I finally concluded to leave the United States Congress, I made a firm resolve to do all within my power to become Governor of Louisiana and as chief goal of that magnificent venture to do what I could to provide a new constitution for our state. I knew as you do that our state would continue to cringe and recoil from a system of creeping constitutionalism, in the people of Louisiana select as their chief executive one of those totally committed to reform and change and improvement of a system of government, festering from sores which encrust the body of our organic law. More recently there has been a hue and cry from some sources suggesting that the work of the convention should be insulated totally and completely from both the office and the person of the governor.

May I say, no citizen, anywhere, regardless of his walk or call in life should be insulated from this convention. All citizens are involved in the truest sense of the word. I do not intend to abdicate my responsibility, nor the call that I think was given to me by the people of Louisiana in a long gubernatorial election. I am determined to respond to the mandate for constitutional change. Flashing across your inward eye, "What does he mean by that? What is that fellow trying to tell us?" Very simply this: in a thousand places, small groups and large from the seeming elements of some of our metropolitan areas across the marshlands of South Louisiana and to the hills of North Louisiana for eighteen months, I met, counselled and spoke with leaders of industry, captains of finance, representatives of labor, working men and women, farmers, fishermen, musicians, students, everyone who would listen to me. During that long period of time, divorced from the other pursuits of normal living, little by little and on every effort that I could make, I began to plow into the thinking of people concerned, the need for a constitution, because I had witnessed twenty-five fruitless years of efforts by others to write a new constitution in one of five different ways, and without success. I publicly committed myself to the concept of a convention, and I proudly claim chief responsibility for the passage of the act by an independent legislature which brought you into convention today, that idea and the knowledge that it was the proper thing to do and in fulfillment of a commitment made by me to the people of Louisiana and endorsed by them in a hard fought election.

That was only part of the constitutional change that I preached and talked about. There was a second stage. I argued publicly that a new system of government was needed in Louisiana. I preached about how bad things were. You want to know something? One of the most shocking things that developed to me three days after I became governor was that I was very right; things were bad. And they are going to continue to be bad and it's going to be increasingly difficult to govern this state under the system that we now have. What am I saying? I feel a commitment to the people of this state then to do what I am doing in connection with a systems change that I talked about in an election before all the people for eighteen months; not something that I just yesterday decided that I would move with, or not something that a group of people together, got together in a room and decided we're going to try this, but rather a systems change that I talked about publicly for eighteen months, and I think has the support of the people in Louisiana.

Therefore, in fulfillment again of that commitment at an appropriate time, I intend to offer for consideration by this convention suggestions as to how I think government in Louisiana on a state level can be restructured. It will be placed in your hands and subject to your consideration. I will gladly talk to you together or individually about it, but I will make no effort to sell it to you. I do not know one of you that I think I, or anybody else that I know of, can dictate to you. And which of you, in response to the question, say you are subservient to the thinking or wishes of any other human being? None. Well, then look around you for a brief second and get to know these people here assembled with you. And ask of yourself which of them do you think would blindly follow the leadership or dictates of someone else. And I warrant not one of you can come up with one name. What we are saying then is that you are here assembled as men and women of good will and, as the Justice has said, well trained and well prepared to do a good job, and all that I intend to do is to fulfill my commitment to the people of the state by offering for consideration to this convention a systems change in our government for your consideration. When that is over with and considered by you, then to the extent that I think appropriate, I will try with you to help sell the ultimate document which you will hammer out in your deliberations --not I.

I appreciate the opportunity of speaking with you this morning. It will be the last time that I do so. We will leave from this moment for the same goal but by separate routes. You will be a conventioneer working on hammering out a new constitution. I am going to go about the business of being the Governor of Louisiana and trying to do the best job that I can. I leave you with the thought that I am here to serve you. You did not come here to serve me, and that you and I together came here to serve the people of Louisiana. I am forty-five years old. I have spent the last nineteen years of my life serving in public life in all levels of government. This is the single most important, proudest moment of my life, because I think it affords all of us the unquestioned opportunity to make the greatest contribution to the future of our state. I congratulate you on your selection or election as a delegate. I leave you with the belief that I, for one, and I think the majority of the people of Louisiana are totally convinced that you possess the ability, the intelligence, the dedication and the desire to serve them and yourselves by granting for this and their consideration the kind of document which will bring to this state the change, the improvement, and the reform we all so desperately seek. I wish you well.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Thank you, Governor Edwards, for this helpful and inspiring address. At this time, I'd like to afford our distinguished platform guests an opportunity to leave the platform, if they wish. They are, of course, welcome to remain for the business session and remain seated on the platform, but if any of you would like to leave at this point, you may feel free to do so.

Delegates of the convention, please resume your seats for the transaction of business. The convention will now come to order.

At this time I recognize Mr. Wade O. Martin, Jr., Secretary of State, for official business.

Mr. Martin Mr. Chairman and delegates, I request at this time that the record showing the official roll call which was taken at the opening of this convention be filed on record with this convention. I ask, in addition, that the records show that the Secretary of State has officially filed certificates verifying the election and appointment of all the delegates whose names have been called at the time that the roll call was taken. Thank you.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Gentlemen, we now come to the initial convention business, organization of the convention under its call. A number of delegates have come forward and requested to be recognized. Their names have been taken by the temporary secretary. Is there anyone who has a motion that would like to come forward at this time? Senator De Blieux, have you placed your name here? Thank you very kindly.

Mr. Kean I did not give my name to the Secretary because I will only want to make a motion in the event that the convention in its wisdom decides to proceed with the election of a permanent Chairman as its first order of business.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Your name will be inscribed for the contingent motion. A contingent motion. Alright, Pat Juneau, Lafayette.

Point of Information

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, I am not sure who is recorded on the list. Would you read for us the names on the list so there won't be any confusion about that?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders I will read it for you. Delegate Mack Abicham—Delegate J. De Blieux, Delegate Woody Jenkins, Delegate Tom Staggs—Alright, Pat, Delegate Pat Juneau, Delegate Shady Wall, the contingent motion. Alright, alright.

Point of Information

Rev. Alexander Mr. Chairman, Delegate Alexander, point of information.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Yes, Rev. Avery Alexander of New Orleans.

Rev. Alexander My information is that in the event one does not choose to place his name on the list now...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders You may rise after these are called. Alright, please come forward.

Mr. Alario John Alario. I have a resolution to offer, Mr. Chairman.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, John Alario, I have your name down here. Alright. At this time in accordance with the alphabetical listing of those who have indicated they have motions, I recognize Delegate Mack Abraham for a motion or resolution.

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTION

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, delegates, it seems the most logical thing for us to do is first of all adopt a set of rules by which we would govern ourselves be in order to effect our organization which will determine the officers we have and how we will organize. So in order to accomplish this, I offer the following resolution. I move that the convention will adopt the following resolution.

READING OF THE RESOLUTION

Mr. Abraham BE IT RESOLVED that this Constitutional Convention adopt its permanent rules of procedure as its first order of business before electing its permanent chairman and executive committee, in accordance with the provisions in Act 2 of 1972, and that a rules committee is hereby established, this committee to be comprised of sixteen delegates to be elected as follows: 1. Immediately following the adoption of this resolution the temporary chairman shall recess the Convention and direct the delegates to immediately meet in separate caucus by Congressional District (each elect one delegate participating in the caucus according to the residence established for his election as a delegate and each appointed delegate participating according to his present residence for voting purposes) and to elect from their number two delegates from each Congressional District, said election to take place in the LSU Assembly Center and to be completed prior to the Convention finally adjourning on January 5, 1973.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the aforementioned caucus by Congressional District be conducted at specific locations within the LSU Assembly Center to be designated by the temporary chairman.

BE IT RESOLVED that as soon as each caucus has completed such election, it shall advise the temporary chairman, and when all members of the committee have been elected, the temporary chairman shall reconvene the Convention to announce the names of the members of the Committee.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Convention will then stand in recess and immediately following the commencement of such recess the committee shall meet and select from among their number a chairman who will preside over their deliberations, they shall also select a place for their meetings and shall be authorized to employ such secretarial and clerical assistance as may be required for such purposes.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the committee shall complete a typewritten or printed draft of the proposed rules as promptly as possible, and in any event no later than Wednesday, January 10, 1973.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that on or before Thursday, January 11, 1973 the committee will send a xerox or printed copy of the proposed rules to each delegate by U. S. mail.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Convention will re-assemble at 10:00 a.m. Monday, January 15, 1973, to begin consideration of the rules of organization and procedure: that the committee provided for by this resolution shall thereupon be disbanded and no longer function, except that the chairman of the committee, or a member designated by him in his absence, will present individually the proposed rules to the Convention, together with a brief explanation of such rules, and that the rules will be individually voted on by the Convention.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that Robert's Rules of Order Revised shall be referred to as authority for guidance as temporary rules of the Convention to apply until such time as permanent rules are adopted. I further move that this resolution be made a permanent part of the record of this Convention and that a roll call vote be taken and recorded.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, now gentlemen, you have heard the reading of the resolution and the Chair states at this time that until an expression is obtained from this group, the chairman will follow the Robert's Rules of Order. Is there a second to the motion? Alright, who made the second? Alright, seconded by Senator J. D. De Bliueux, Baton Rouge.

Are you ready for the discussion? The proponent of course, will have the right to open and close. The proponent has made a statement of the resolution, so it is now in order, I think, to recognize those who oppose this resolution. If you would like to speak, the delegate is recognized.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, at this time, I would like to, if I am in order, Mr. Chairman, to offer a substitute motion that we would go by the following procedure.

The procedure will be as follows: 1. Election of a permanent chairman. 2. Election of a rules committee in the following manner: The delegates who reside in the eight Congressional Districts of Louisiana shall comprise eight separate committees who shall caucus separately and elect from among their number two members to serve on the rules committee. Each Congressional District committee shall report the result of such election from the adoption of this resolution. The rules committee shall be composed of 16 members, three being two from each Congressional District. The rules committee shall meet and formulate a draft of the rules of procedure and order of this convention and report thereon at 10:00 a.m. Thursday, January 11. The Convention shall consider the report at that time and order for this Convention by a majority vote. This Convention shall then take up such other business as may be decided by its members.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Gentlemen, you have heard the reading of the substitute motion. Is there a second? Alright, seconded by Representative Dorothy Taylor. The discussion will now occur on the substitute motion. Pat Juneau, delegate from Lafayette. Yes, if you please.

Mr. Juneau Please, Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer a substitute motion to that motion, to the last motion that was seconded.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, the second offer of a substitute is in order. Proceed. Just a moment, Representative Jenkins, if you would. Go ahead and present your substitute.

Point of Order

Mr. Perez My point of order, sir, is that a substitute motion is not in order to a substitute motion under the Robert's Rules of Order, or as I understand the Robert's Rules of Order, and I know not under any of the legislative processes in this state.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, Delegate Perez, just one moment, let me confer with my assistants. The point of order is overruled and we will proceed with the second substitute motion. Representative Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Temporary Chairman, I would like to propose as a point of order that the first substitute motion was out of order because the first item that was put before the Convention was not a motion at all, but a resolution; and, thus, a substitute motion would not be in order to take the place of a resolution.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, the point has been stated. The point is that the first substitute motion was out of order. The point was not raised at that time, however, the Chair construes the first offering as being an offering of a motion rather than a resolution. Proceed.

Mr. Juneau Thank you, Mr. Chairman. The motion and/or resolution is submitted by myself, Patrick Juneau, Delegate, District No. 43, and Calvin C. Fayard, Jr., Delegate from District No. 71. Mr. Chairman, the motion or resolution reads as follows:

BE IT RESOLVED that a Temporary Committee of Rules and Resolutions be established for the purpose of preparing a proposed set of rules to be submitted to the convention for its consideration.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions be composed of seventeen members, two from each of the eight Congressional Districts and one member to be elected by the convention delegates as a whole, who shall serve as Chairman of the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the election of the Chairman of the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions be held as the next order of business of this convention.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that immediately after the election of the Chairman of the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions, the Convention shall recess for a period of one hour during which time the delegates in each of the eight Congressional Districts shall caucus in separate groups and elect from their group...and elect from their group two delegates who shall serve on the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that upon the expiration of the one hour recess the Temporary Chairman shall reconvene the convention to announce the names of the members of the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions will prepare a set of rules and mail a copy of said rules to all of the delegates no later than 12:00 a.m. on January 10, 1973.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that the Convention reconvene on January 15, 1973 at 10:00 a.m. and that the Temporary Committee on Rules and Resolutions submit its proposed rules to the Convention at that time for consideration.

We further move that this resolution and/or motion be made a permanent part of the record of this Convention and that a roll call vote be taken and recorded.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, now you've filed a copy with the Secretary.

Mr. Juneau I will so file it.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, is there a second to the Juneau substitute motion? The delegate is recognized and has seconded the motion. The discussion will recur first upon the second substitute. The Chair will recognize the proponent first to make the preliminary discussion. Dr. Asseff, hold yours until we act on these and we will take it up as an original motion. I have your name on the list. Dr. Asseff says that he has a motion that he would like to combine with this one. Dr. Asseff, I have you on the list as a contingent. As a courtesy to the Chair will you defer your until I call on you just a little bit later on? Thank you, Dr. Emmett Asseff, De Soto Parish. Alright, proceed with the debate.

Explanation

Mr. Pat Juneau I would like for the record to record that I am standing next to the microphone. Mr. Chairman and delegates, very simply what the resolution that Mr. Fayard and I have proposed does this. I think it substantially contains the language of the other two resolutions with regard to the adoption of the Rules Committee, and the net effect is that you will have a Rules Committee composed of sixteen people, seventeen people, sixteen of whom will be elected from the caucuses within the Congressional District then the Delegates as a whole will elect a chairman. It will...and the resolution provides that it will occur in that order. And the reason why I did it, I think it is crucially important, at least it is to myself and Mr. Fayard, that we adopt at this time the...or select the individuals who are going to...going to the difficult task of drafting the rules of this Convention. I have purposely, and so has Mr. Fayard, omitted, deleted, or whatever word you want to use any reference whatsoever to whether or not you want to elect a chairman today or whether you want to elect a chairman after the rules are openly passed. I think the fact is apparently a controversial issue which I don't think should kill a crucial part of this Convention which is the rules. I don't know of that much opposition to it. I would like to see the substitute motion passed, then if you want to get in a controversy with the other ones, file a separate motion for anything you want to do and the Chairman can take it up in that order. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Abraham Mack Abraham, District 35. When you talk about Chairman, in your resolution, you were talking about electing a Chairman of the Rules Committee or a Chairman of the Convention, Pat?

Mr. Juneau Specifically the Chairman of the Rules Committee, solely.

Mr. Abraham Chairman of the Rules Committee. And that Chairman would be elected after the committee members were elected as the next order of business? I think, now, when you said just then if you specifically omitted the election of the Chairman, what...

Mr. Juneau Any reference to the Chairman of this Convention as is contemplated by Act 2 of the Legislature.

Mr. Abraham So, if I understand your resolution correctly, you are saying elect the sixteen member Rules Committee we come back and we elect a Rules Committee chairman.

Mr. Juneau No sir, no sir. You elect the chairman at large for the Rules Committee only. You then...

Mr. Abraham Before or after the committee?

Mr. Juneau Initially, that is the first thing you do. Then you go into a recess within the Congressional District, select your two members, report back, the Chairman would then announce who the sixteen members were and you would have your Rules Committee.

Mr. Abraham So the only difference between your resolution and mine, in effect, is the election of the Rules Committee chairman?

Mr. Juneau There is a big difference between mine and the other two resolutions. I don't say anything about the Chairman of the Convention.

Mr. Abraham Well, neither do I. Neither does mine.

Mr. Juneau Read the first paragraph; I think it does.

Mr. Abraham Oh, I see. Alright, alright.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Juneau, do you have a copy of your resolution with you? We've had about three resolutions introduced; I've heard a lot of them explained, and when I read them, I didn't necessarily agree with the explanation I had heard. I was wondering if there would be a copy available for us, where we would at least have a chance to look at it.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Captain Harwood, would you get the staff to duplicate the resolution and pass it out to all of the members?

Mr. Rayburn Do you have any objection to maybe furnishing us with a copy of all resolutions, because if we continue in the procedure we've just adopted where you can substitute a substitute, we might be substituting tomorrow night. I never could get by with that in the Legislature, but it looks like that is the track we are on today. So, if you can substitute a substitute we'll be here all day, substituting resolutions. I would like to suggest that everybody who has a resolution, Mr. Acting Chairman, present it at this time, and to give us a few moments to analyze them, so we will at least know what we are talking about.

Recess

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, if it is in order, and as I understand it, it would be within order of the rules, I would like to change the dates upon the second page of the resolution, wherein it will say that the...Oh, excuse me; I thought they had handed them out.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The copies...is the last one...Alright, proceed, Mr. Juneau, Sponsor: Capt. Harwood, take this copy to Mr. Champagne.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders If you still have your cats, I think he can explain the content very thoroughly to you.

Point of Order

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, point of order. I believe you stated that these are not amendable.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders They can be changed by the sponsor only, not amendable by another delegate of the Convention. Proceed, Mr. Juneau.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, as I indicated, the only change which was made was on the second page, instead of the Temporary Committee mailing the copies on the tenth, they would be mailed on the ninth, and then in the second to the last paragraph, the Convention would reconvene on the twelfth, which is a Friday, instead of the fifteenth, which is a Monday.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Does the second consent to that change?

Mr. Juneau Yes, sir, he does.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, proceed with your explanation.

Mr. Juneau Very simply, Mr. Chairman, the contents of this resolution in words and substance are substantially the same as the initial two resolutions that were introduced. More specifically, all, all this resolution does is establish a Temporary Rules Committee function of which would be to draft proposed rules for the consideration of this Convention. The composition of this committee would be two delegates from each of the Congressional Districts and as written would be one more delegate which would give the odd number of seventeen which according to the way we have the motion or resolution drafted be elected by the delegation as a whole. It further provides that what would occur that this committee would...you would limit your caucuses; you would report back as to whom your selection of the two people were, that you would then have in your committee at that time. The next thing that occurs is that subsequently your rules committee is going to meet... come up with a proposed draft of the rules to be mailed out no later than 12:00 noon, January 9, 1973. The Convention will reconvene then on January 12, 1973. In closing, now I would like to say, this resolution and or motion has nothing whatsoever to do with the election of a chairman of this Convention.

Questions

Mr. Duval Mr. Juneau, I merely want to establish one thing to make sure that I understand your motion. As I understand your motion, is it implicit in it that it will be the first order of business taken up by this Convention?

Mr. Juneau According to the way the motion or resolution was drafted, the first order of business at the conclusion of voting on this would be the election of the chairman, as a whole, then you would immediately go, as the next order of business, into your caucus who would then, after a one hour period, report back to the Chairman.

Mr. Duval And it implies that your motion will be considered before any other thing comes up before the Convention. Is that correct?

Mr. Juneau It doesn't imply it, it states it.

Mr. Perez The proposed resolution reads near the end of the bottom of the page that the Convention shall recess for a period of one hour during which time, "the delegate", it should be "delegates" plural, "from each of the eight Congressional Districts, who reside in each of the eight Congressional Districts shall caucus and insert the words "in separate groups".

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Is that change acceptable?

Mr. Juneau I would make that change.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The mover and the second? Alright, it is accepted. John Alario is recognized.

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I offer the first amendments to the original motion, and at this time, I would like to request that you go along with Mr. Juneau's resolution and we go ahead and vote on that one. I don't think that it would be in order at this time to withdraw that second one, would it, Mr. Chairman?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The vote will automatically occur on the second substitute, so no withdrawal is necessary.

Mr. Alario Alright, sir, I just ask that we go ahead with the business of this Convention in establishing our Rules Committee as Mr. Juneau has set forth and ask that you would support his resolution.

Mr. Conino I am Joe Conino from Jefferson. I would like to ask the mover here, Mr. Pat Juneau, if he would extend the time from the mailing to the time that we had convened, because the mail has been awfully slow lately, and I think that we need the additional time; probably give us two or three more days from the ninth to the twelfth. I can vouch that I probably wouldn't even receive this thing by the time I should take action on it.

Mr. Juneau Yes, it was a lot of discussion during the recess, but I don't have any particular...

1st Days Proceedings—January 5, 1973

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Could they be delivered by messenger?

Mr. Juneau That would be fine, your Honor. I would be glad to not use the words "to amend" but make the motion to read "deliver." Would that be sufficient?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright. The delegate from Winnfield, Louisiana, Terry Reeves.

Mr. Reeves Pat, I have one question in reference to the Temporary Committee. We are, according to the resolution, it is a Temporary Rules Committee, however, we are, their job will be to adopt permanent rules. Could we change this to instead of Temporary to Permanent or just leave out the word Temporary?

Mr. Juneau As I read the resolution, it says that the Temporary Committee on Rules and Regulations will prepare a set of rules; I didn't specify it one way or the other. I think it's implicit that they will prepare rules and call it what you may, and it will be submitted to the delegates. Then at such time when the delegates accept or reject, that's when it will become permanent. I think it covers it adequately like it is. I don't have any particular objection.

Mr. Reeves But it is a permanent committee. That's what I am getting to.

Mr. Juneau No, the contemplation of this committee at the conclusion of its submission to the Convention, it's a dissolved committee. There is nothing left. That's right.

Motion

Mr. Grave Mr. Chairman, I rise simply for the purpose of moving the previous question. I think that the resolution is clear, it doesn't require extended debate, and would ask that the previous question be ordered.

[Motion seconded. Previous question ordered. Record vote ordered. Resolution adopted: 72-60.]

Nomination of Chairman of Temporary Rules Committee

Mr. Duval I would like to make a motion that Mr. Tom Stagg be named as Chairman of the Rules Committee.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright. The motion offered by Delegate Juneau having been adopted, it is now in order to elect a chairman of the Rules Committee. The name Tom Stagg has been submitted. Senator De Blieux, Baton Rouge.

Mr. De Blieux Senator De Blieux from District 68; I would like to second that nomination.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Gentlemen, are there any other nominations for this position? Alright, moved by John [Louis] Riecke of New Orleans that the nomination is closed. Is there a second? Seconded by Reeves, Winnfield. Are you ready for the question? A point of information has been made. The delegate has requested information as to who has been nominated. The nominee is Mr. Tom Stagg, Shreveport, Louisiana. Are you ready for the question? All in favor of the election by acclamation, please say "Aye." All opposed "No." And I wish to congratulate you, Mr. Stagg. Would you come forward if you have any announcements to make?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Juneau substitute resolution requests that now there take place a caucus of the eight Congressional Districts for the purpose of electing two men from each Congressional or two women...two people from each Congressional District, and as the chairperson of the Rules Committee, I would like to notify in advance anyone who is elected from his district should notify those who are voting upon that nominee that this Committee will go into session this day, tonight, after the adjournment of this meeting, at a meeting room in the Prince Murat Motel, and that we will stay in session until we have produced, with some sleep, until we have produced a proposed set of rules to bring back to this Convention.

[Recess in Congressional District Caucuses to elect rules committee members.]

Rules Committee Members

[Journal 5]

Motion

Mr. Kean Mr. Temporary Chairman, I would like at this time to move that the next order of business of this Convention be the election of the permanent chairman, who may not be the Chairman of the Temporary Rules Committee. That election should occur prior to the adjournment of this inaugural meeting of the Convention. I add that if that carries, Mr. Chairman, I would then have an ancillary motion to make in connection with it.

[Seconded by Mr. Grave.]

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I am opposed to this particular motion, and the reason I am opposed to it because I certainly think that we ought to have the rules and regulations under which we are going to operate. These rules and regulations which we adopt should contain some sort of rule by which we elect not only our chairman, but our other officers at the time. I think that we ought to define the duties and responsibilities of all of our officers in our rules and regulations before we elect the officers to these respected positions. We should not elect part of our officers and then leave the rest hanging in the fire in the event somebody makes the argument that we can elect a chairman now and the other officers at a later date. And it will give, since this is the first time that we have really gotten together, I think it will give us a much better chance to acquaint ourselves with the abilities of these various people who should be the officers of this Convention over the weekend and particularly during the period of time that we argue out the rules and come here and debate the issues. It is much better that we know how we are going to operate, what rules the presiding officer: that is, the permanent chairman will be operating under at the time that we elect our respective officers to, for this Convention. I just think that that is the order that we ought to proceed. Let's decide how we are going to do it, and when we are going to do it, rather than doing it piecemeal, haphazard now without going about it in a regular orderly manner in doing this. And for that particular reason, I am opposed to this motion. And I ask you to reject this motion now, and let us elect our officers after we know what is going to be the duty and responsibilities of all of our officers, and how the Executive Committee is going to be set up, how we are going to determine the members of our Executive Committee, and so forth and so on down the line. That is the orderly way which I think that we ought to proceed.

Further Discussion

Dr. [Mr.] Asseff First, Mr. Chairman, I think that the Convention should recognize that there are a number of delegates from the Northern part of the state. Though we have spent most of my life in Baton Rouge, it is going to be extremely difficult for us to come and go at the whim of the Convention. I do not think that it is fair to us. We have to make reservations. I made reservations for a few days. I am expected to cover five hundred miles by a flip of the penny. And it seems to me that this Convention should continue in session until it has finished the duties imposed upon it by us. I am tired of the procedure we have followed. It has been nothing but rush here, rush there. Let's do this, let's do that. I wish to say to you that the final analysis, the people of the state of Louisiana will stand in judgement of this Convention. At this particular moment, the people of Louisiana are not very happy. I am well-known throughout the state of Louisiana, and if we fail to proceed in an orderly fashion and to the job imposed upon us, we will work a long time, but we will find the Constitution rejected. My people, I know, are not enthusiastic. The people of this general area are not. I urge you to think upon that very seriously. We do have... we may go down in history; our names may be added to the greats of the state. If we fail to proceed properly, we may go down in infamy. And I, for one, am serving notice on the Convention now that I for one, if you fail to adopt the proper procedures—elect a chairman, let's us continue and get our work done, divide into committees—if you fail to do so, I assure you that I shall travel the breadth of this state in opposition to the Constitution whatever it may be. I may fail, but I don't think that we are doing justice to anybody. At this time, I would like to carry out what Senator De Blieux has said, by a substitute resolution.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, read the substitute resolution.

Substitute Motion

Dr. [Mr.] Asseff To establish a nominating committee and determine its membership and duties...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Read into the microphone...

Dr. [Mr.] Asseff WHEREAS, several delegates are interested in being chairman of the Convention, which position will hold great prestige and power, and

WHEREAS, the persons selected may determine the success or failure of the Convention, and the assembly will be large and most delegates will be unknown to each other, and

WHEREAS, great care should be exercised in filling this important position, so that we will select not only a well qualified person, but also one who has the confidence of the people of this state, and

WHEREAS, this cannot be done by motion from the floor, and additionally, all should be given an opportunity to be heard.

THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED, by the Louisiana Constitutional Convention that there is hereby established a nominating committee to be composed of two members from each Congressional District to be selected by the delegates thereof, and two to be selected by the appointed delegates from among their number.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that if an elected delegate represents a district with portions in more than one Congressional District, if that has happened, he shall meet with the Congressional District in which most of the population of his district resides.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that each Congressional District and the appointed delegates shall caucus after adjournment and select their representatives on the committee and shall submit them to the Convention at twelve noon Saturday, January 6, 1973.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the nominating committee shall submit its recommendations for chairman and vice-chairman the day following the adoption of the rules by this Convention.

[Substitute motion tabled.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of Mr. Kean's resolution. We have a great job to do confronting us, and I think that we might as well go ahead today and elect a chairman and get started to work. Any organization has got to have a head. Any ox team has got to have a lead ox. Any automobile has got to have a driver. Any airplane has got to have a pilot. And as far as my good friend, Emmett Asseff, wanting to get a nominating committee, well I think I am my nominating committee. I know who I am going to vote for, and I think most of you do. If there is somebody who might aspire to be chairman of this Convention, I think all those that have aspired for that high office has contacted us. I have been contacted a little myself. Don't know about you people. But I think that we know what we are going to do. I think that we have got a big job to do, and I suggest that we adopt the resolution, elect a chairman, and go to work.

Further Discussion

Rev. Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have one particular fear in this Convention. Someone has read the question about special interests. I have one special interest, yes. That is the 36 million people of the State of Louisiana. I just came out of a meeting a few minutes ago of the First Congressional District and I saw what could happen. I saw three factions in operation. Candidates who were nominated are all good, able men. We have three able citizens of the State of Louisiana from whom I have received correspondence, and all of whom seem to possess all the traits and characteristics necessary to do a good job. However, if we drag this thing on, whether it's a day, two days or ten days, a month, it means that this Convention will be divided and polarized into factions, because the followers of each candidate will then become a little faction and thereby bring in dissension. The Rules Committee has already been selected, so we have no problem there. I, therefore, support the motion to elect a chairman immediately.

Motion

Mr. Duval Fellow delegates, before I am prepared to vote on the motion I personally would like to know whether it is going to be by open ballot or secret ballot. Therefore at this time, I propose a substitute motion that the... that the motion... that the vote be by secret ballot.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The substitute is not necessary. A motion to vote by secret ballot is now in order, or by written ballot.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Fellow delegates, all of us are gathered today for the remainder of this year for one purpose and that is to bring a new constitution to the people of our state, so that they might ratify this. I believe that it is going to be a serious mistake on our part if we begin today by voting in secret. I think everybody and every citizen throughout this state deserves to know how the delegate that is representing him votes on every particular issue. If we begin to meet in smoke-filled back rooms, we might as well go home today. The people of this state are not going to go for this type of thing. I think every vote, beginning with this one, needs to be an open vote and recorded as such.

Point of Information

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, before Mr. O'Neill comes up, just in order that there is no question about it, the motion that Mr. Duval... is an amendment to my motion. As a matter of fact, Mr. Duval's motion as made is the ancillary motion that I reserve the right to make. I think it should be voted on separately, and therefore I will not accept it as an amendment to my...

1st Days Proceedings—January 5, 1973

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The mover has declined to accept the amendment, therefore the amendment will have to be voted on separately.

Ruling of the Chair

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The Chair rules that the amendment is now before the house for discussion; that is, that the main motion be amended to provide for a written or a secret ballot.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, I believe the author refused to accept the amendment.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders That is correct, and therefore it has to be voted on by the Convention.

Mr. O'Neill Whether or not we are accepting his...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders That is the reason it has to be voted on, because the mover would not accept it. Are you ready for the vote or do you want to express your...

Point of Information

Mr. O'Neill Will you please state the exact thing that we are voting on?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The motion for amendment as to the main motion that the vote, when taken on the election of the chairman be by written or secret ballot. Do you desire to state your position on the amendment?

Mr. O'Neill Yes, sir, I do at this time, now that the motion has been stated.

Further Discussion

Mr. O'Neill Yes, sir. You talk about smoke-filled rooms and I wonder just how many of us have come from smoke-filled rooms. I saw something moving; I saw the same factions that Reverend Alexander saw. And I saw how they tried to pack the Rules Committee. Morally I am opposed to a secret ballot. I have stated both publicly who I am supporting for chairman, and I have no objections at this time to a secret ballot. If I remember, the House of Representatives voted on a secret ballot for Speaker of the House, if I am correct. Now, I couldn't find the roll call for those votes, but I know that it passed, and I know the majority of the Representatives voted for it. I think that the undue pressure being influenced at this time is something that we should all guard against. I will support a secret ballot, and I believe that a secret ballot will carry.

Further Discussion

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman, I would rise to support a secret ballot if the amendment is put. However, if I had an order, I would support the position that Senator De Blieux has stated that the original motion, even with its amendment is premature at this time, and if I am in order, I would like to set up a substitute motion that no action looking to the election of chairman or any other permanent officers of the Convention be taken, until there has been a full report of the Rules Committee and rules have been adopted.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Your motion is to the effect that the entire subject matter be tabled...

Substitute Motion

Mr. Leigh No, sir, I am moving a substitute to the original motion with its proposed amendment that the no action be taken secret or otherwise until the Rules Committee has reported and the rules have been adopted, and the positions of the officials--the permanent officials of the Convention--have been defined and their responsibilities determined. And I would like to move as a substitute... I would like to move that as a substitute for the original motion with its amendments.

Point of Order

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, as a point of order, I think until the amendment is voted on and decided, we will not know what we are voting to substitute on.

Ruling of the Chair

Hon. Joe W. Sanders I believe that the point is well-taken and the chair rules that the substitute will not be received at this time. If you will defer that, Delegate Leigh, we will first vote on the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I am speaking on the amendment to Mr. Kean's motion from the chairman. That is that the vote be taken by a written or secret ballot. We are all human beings subject to human weaknesses, prejudices, bias and so forth. If we are going to be successful in this Convention we have to take into consideration for the weaknesses of human nature and we cannot avoid them as much as we might hope to and want to, because they are going to be there in many instances subconsciously. I would absolutely hate to see the work that we do here not approved by the people of this state. I don't know of any greater honor to have come to me in my entire life than to have been selected a delegate to this Convention. But it will be a vain honor if what we do this day and throughout this year is not approved by the people. I am not in favor of having secret votes on a lot of stuff. I think it ought to be open. But when it comes to a case like this, to where personalities are involved, we ought to be able to vote our conscience in that particular issue so as to avoid some cases of feelings or determination in who's going to be elected and put on a particular committee or who as chairman of this Convention is going to appoint to subcommittees, and so forth and so on because of the fact that one person did not vote for him, and he was reminded him of that. He has a choice of becoming a member of the people. And one of us did not place on that committee. It possibly would have been a little bit better because that person did not support him for election. It can be that way for, not only for the chairman but for the vice chairman, the secretary and others that we have to vote upon. And I am going to ask you, let's try to avoid as much personalities as we possibly can, and use our good conscience by supporting a written ballot for our officers and I would say our officers, only. Now you know that I am not saying this to try to cover up my vote, because I have already publicly made known who I want to vote for for chairman. But in order not to put anybody on the spot in the Convention, the way they can feel like that they can vote their own good conscience. I support the voting in election of our officers and only our officers by a secret ballot, so that each one can vote his conscience as to who would do the best job. And that is the way we have got to get out to convince the people of this state that we really mean business. And we have an independent vote as Mr. O'Neill said, the House Speaker was elected by secret ballot and we also elected the President Pro-Tempore of the Senate by secret ballot.

Further Discussion

Rev. Landrum Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, as some of you will remember in the Judge's chamber, Judge Hanlin, it was my position at that time if we are going to have an open Convention, then there should be no secret ballot. I fall to see how we can win the confidence of the people if we are going to start doing things in secret. I don't care about the smoke-filled room. I will talk with any of you in a smoke-filled room. I am not concerned about what you think either about how I vote, because I am going to vote my conviction and I want everybody to see.

You told the people that you were for them. And you shouldn't be ashamed to vote your conviction, and let your conviction be known. You should not have to hide behind closed doors or secret ballot in order to vote your convictions. We have to start this thing off right, and I think that it would be a terrible mistake to start it off in secret balloting.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chehardy I would just to this honorable body and I as well as Senator De Blieux, as an assessor, as an attorney, consider it one of the great honors of my life that I am going to participate in this Convention. But I do sincerely believe that rather than showing strength by stepping behind a blind, or a closed or a hidden ballot, we are going to bring much more eminence to this group, we are going to bring much more respect to our group by, from its very inception, doing everything in the open. And if a man is chosen for any position who does not suit you, or myself, or some other member this is a time to test our mettle and all of us rally together behind whoever is elected. But I believe that it would be the greatest sign of weakness to start off this Convention on a mode of secrecy, when it pertains to the men who are going to be our guiding light, our pilot, our steering wheel of the next year. And I, for one, am against anything secretive taking place in this Convention. I for one, as Reverend Landrum said, I want to vote my conviction in every case. And I want to vote it openly, and if we fear to say who we are for for an elected office, what is going to happen when the crucial test comes? The important element of this Convention is going to come before us and the pressure groups begin to work and put their efforts against our best efforts on behalf of the people of this state. And I sincerely urge that we have no secrecy throughout this Convention, that we keep it an open book. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, honorable delegates of this Convention, you know I am amazed at some people that they get up here and speak and they are so great. They are so great. They are strong enough to vote their convictions and tell everybody. I just wonder which one of us out there that they think are so weak that we can't vote our convictions? Now, all these fellows get up here and says, "You know who I'm for, I'll tell you, but I want other people to be able to vote their convictions." Now, I don't know who he's talking about or they are talking about; I don't know which one of you he's saying out there is so weak, or he says he's not. So if any of you are so weak that you want to vote in secret ballot, you come up here. I'll agree to let you vote in secret ballot. But I don't want somebody else to come up here and says, "I'm strong and you are weak." Then we've heard about pressure. Of course, we can expect that. There's always those charges. Why doesn't somebody who's put pressure? Who has put pressure? Oh, I've done a little lobbying, but I didn't call that pressure. I don't have any pressure to put. But if someone is so immature and inexperienced that they can't stand the pressure, or if they can't stand what's come to this point, or they, I don't know who they are that can't vote their convictions. If it's over your head that was running you got up and says, "When I get down there I am going to put your business out in the public". I am going to vote my conviction so just anyone who is so inexperienced and immature that they talk about pressure, they haven't seen anything yet. It's not pressure, it's just the lobby of the people's business. It's just the lobbying of the people's business. And that's part of it. In fact the business of people that lobby many times give you information that you couldn't get from any other source. Of course, sometimes that information they give you can't get from any other source is not correct either, so you go to weed that out. But, what I am going to say is this. Let's have an open Convention. Let's don't get up here and say that some of you out there are too weak. And I am going to stand up here and I am going to vote my convictions, but you are too weak. If, if you, if you can vote your convictions, let's vote them out and let everybody else let somebody else speak for you. If you are not strong enough to vote your convictions though, just line up and say that you want to vote in a secret ballot, because you are not strong enough to have your convictions fully exposed, and we'll vote to give you that right. Otherwise, let's have an open Convention and let's have everything out in the open. Thank you.

Mr. Thompson Mr. Chairman, I think everybody has made up their mind. We're just delaying this thing. So I move for the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Duval The amendment is that the vote, in the event that the resolution to vote for chairman is passed, it will be by secret or written ballot. I would like to say this, I don't think it's a matter of strength or weakness. I think it's a matter of right. The people of...the...as I appreciate it...merely as the proponent of the amendment, I think that I have the right to close.

I think that the people of this state are certainly looking for an uncontrolled Convention. I ask you, what is wrong with each delegate intelligently sitting down and deliberating and voting his own conscience by written ballot? I think most of you are quite aware that the written ballot is one of the hallmarks of our democratic form of government. A written ballot, of course, is what prevents totalitarian forms of government. I am sure there would be no repercussions. I am sure whoever is elected chairman is going to be wise and not vindictive. But I think that as a matter form, as a matter of right, as a matter of setting his conviction off right. And I don't think that anybody is going to think it's cloak and daggers if we all vote for our own-elected public officials by secret ballot. I think that it is certainly less controlled if one is allowed to deliberate without any fear of repercussions whether that be immature, unfounded or weak. Still the element exists and I don't think that it is an indictment for anybody. I think that it's perutile to class it in terms of strength and weakness. I think that we should class it in terms of control and uncontrol. What, I ask, is more uncontrolled than a written ballot? Nothing. And that's what this public wants. Uncontrolled, that's what they want. I guarantee that.

Question

Mr. Tapper Mr. Duval, of course, I am against your amendment, your motion. But, let me ask you this. Don't you think you have a better chance? This being such an important issue before this Convention that we should take it up in a separate resolution, a separate motion rather than as an amendment to the original resolution?

Rolling of the Chair

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, the Chair rules that the question is out of order at this time. The question has been called for, and the vote will recur on the amendment. That is, that is the main amendment, the main motion is adopted to elect the chairman this afternoon that the vote be taken by written or secret ballot. All in favor of the ...

1st Days Proceedings—January 5, 1973

Mr. Abraham Mr. Temporary Chairman and members of the delegation, this is just a play on words, but I think it is very important. On this amendment the phrase "written or secret ballot" I think...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Commas around the "or secret" which means that they are one and the same thing. Just understand there are commas, there are commas in there.

Mr. Abraham Well, if the sponsor would suggest that we just drop the "or" and let it read "written secret ballot".

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Well, that's what he meant. That's what he meant. The roll call has been requested. Is there a second to that motion? All-right.

Point of Order

Mr. Perez It was my impression from the way the question was stated that both matters were being taken up at one time. I want to be sure that we understand that the only thing that we are taking up at this time is the question of the secret ballot.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders That's right. The point is well-taken. The only thing on which you will vote will be the amendment to make the ballot, when and if it does occur a secret ballot. Are you ready for the question? And the vote will be by roll call. Mr. Secretary of State, you will call the roll of the delegates.

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham Do I understand that on this particular vote a yes vote means that you are for a secret ballot and a no means that you are not for a secret ballot?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders A yes vote is in favor of the amendment for a secret ballot. A no vote is against a secret ballot. Proceed with the roll call, Mr. Secretary of State.

[Roll call vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 45-87.]

Substitute Motion

Mr. Leigh I would like to offer as a substitute to the main motion that no action be taken by this Convention looking to the election of permanent officers, until the rules of the Convention have been submitted, decided upon, debated and adopted.

Point of Information

Mr. Avant I would ask that the Chair please state briefly the original motion to which there is already, according to my understanding, a substitute on the floor.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, now there is a motion that as a substitute to the main motion that the election of the chairman be postponed until after the rules are adopted. Now that substitute motion has not as yet received a second. Alright, there is a second by Senator De Blieux.

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman, my motion includes all offices, permanent offices of the Convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I've sat here very patiently and very quietly. At each time I was called on to vote, I had one objective or one goal in mind that to vote in such a way that we could tell this Convention to the people of the state of Louisiana. As two old time-honored and time-tried sayings that keeps coming into my mind that is that the first impression is always the most important and most lasting. And the other is that to make haste slowly. First I was inclined to be in favor of voting on the permanent chairman this afternoon. But as time went on and I thought more about it, again the public, the people of the State of Louisiana came to my mind. If we were to lose any time by not casting this vote this afternoon, or if we were going to lose a lot of time, I should say that would be an important consideration to take into account. But, whether we vote on a permanent chairman this afternoon or not, we at this Convention are not going to lose five minutes' time, because until we come back next week and hear the report of the Permanent Rules Committee and vote on that, no action will be taken by this Convention one way or the other. So, in all good conscience, I felt it my duty and responsibility, to get up here and say that I think as far as selling this Constitution to the people of the state of Louisiana, they will feel a lot better about it, if we go home and wait until after the rules are submitted to the Constitution and acted on by before we vote on a permanent chairman. And I may say this, I daresay that not five people in this Convention have not already made up their minds who they are going to vote for chairman. And this delay, it's not a delay, is not going to help or hamper the chances of those gentlemen who have made known their candidacy for this office.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, I speak in opposition to the substitute motion for the same reason that the gentleman preceding me spoke in favor of it. That is, there are not five people in here that have not made up their minds exactly who they are going to vote for the chairman. That was best exemplified by the vote that we just completed on the question of the secret ballot. It was overwhelmingly in favor of an open ballot. Those voting for an open ballot not only know who they are going to vote for, they don't care who knows about it. So if that be the case, then I submit to you why not elect the chairman? The chairman is the man whose chief primary duty, whatever his other duties may be, will be to keep the order of the Convention and to promote the upholding of the rules that are adopted by this Convention. We've got a tremendous committee that's going out to work on these rules. Let's elect a chairman so that he can work with this committee in formulating these rules and come back to us. Now, the objection to that, I have heard discussed today is this: where he's going to tell them what to put in the rules. Now does that really stand up on close examination? What in the world is anyone going to tell, for instance, Tom Stagg who's a Republican and as far as I know not subject to threats or any way, shape or form from the ruling party in this state? What is anyone going to tell the overwhelming majority of the people who have been submitted as members of the Temporary Rules Committee who for the most part are not even public officeholders? How are you going to threaten them? With what? That doesn't really hold up. And I think we've faced in his speech this morning is one of confidence versus fear. I've got confidence that we are going to do the right thing and that includes the chairman that we elect. I say, let's get on with it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, fellow members, I happen to be on the Rules Committee, but I would like to join with my friend, colleague, Mr. Burns, in stating I think we ought to wait a while to elect our chairman. I voted to have open ballot. I think I know how am going to vote, but I don't see any reason to have everything done today, appoint the Rules Committee, I think, has been done. I say, I feel like we ought to wait a while—maybe next week to give everybody an opportunity to talk to the different candidates. Let's don't rush this thing. I say, if we start off today and that's what I'm interested in, I have no--some of you may have--I have no further political ambitions. All I want to see is a good Constitution written and adopted, and I think the people are watching us today. I don't want to see us railroad anything. I say, let's wait till next week to elect a chairman.

Further Discussion

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Chairman and delegates, before we convened today there was a lot of discussion about this one point, and it became apparent in my eyes that a number of delegates felt that today was not the day to elect a permanent chairman, not because we were in favor of any one candidate, but, simply, because it is not the correct procedure. The State of Louisiana has asked us to draw up rules and regulations to guide this state, and yet, we want to go about in an improper way of conducting this Convention. Just now when you retired to your respective Congressional Districts, what was the first thing you did? Eddie LeBreton headed ours and the first thing he kept saying was we've got to get our guidelines straight. We have to get our procedure foot straight. You've got to do that here before we elect a permanent chairman. You've got to make that clear. It was said earlier, as I quote, "I don't want to fly by the seat." A pilot has to know the rules and regulations. "Every car has a driver." That's correct and that driver knows the rules and regulations. A man that submits himself for chairman should know the rules and procedures. I ask you not to waive today. If you elect a permanent chairman, where do we stop, because if you've noticed a little brochure prepared for you, that little brochure given to everyone--it was prepared for us--and I'll read it to you. It says, "After we establish and create substantive and procedural committees, as the delegates may deem appropriate, elect from their number a chairman, a vice-chairman, and such other officers as they deem necessary, elect an executive committee and take such other actions as they may deem necessary to effect a permanent chairman to organize the Convention. At this time we are not ready to proceed with their business. My group elected me to the Rules of Procedure Committee. Let us establish those rules of procedure before we go on. I submit to you if we elect a chairman today, does a plurality or majority rule? What if there is a tie vote? How is that tie vote broken? Who would break it? There are a number of questions that the Rules of Procedure Committee should answer before one can elect a permanent chairman. Gentlemen, don't make this mistake today, please. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes McKinley High School...thank you, Judge Sanders. What I'm, I would like to say is I can't see any way that this Convention will suffer with the able-bodied Republican you say we have elected and you have two people from each district to carry on. I can't see no particular way that this Convention can suffer from now until the time. And the next order of business could be the permanent chairman. And I would like to remind the Chairman that I didn't bring any lunch with me today and if there are any provisions for adjourning this Convention...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders I understand Lawrence Chardy is going to treat the entire convention to a dinner. Alright, Delegate John [Louis] Riecke, New Orleans.

Further Discussion

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, my name is Louis Riecke. Thank you. I...this will only take one second. I want to point out to you what Delegate Gauthier said that if we don't have rules when we elect a chairman...there are four candidates vying for this office. How are you going to rule the majority or a plurality wins the chairmanship? How are you going to do that if you don't have rules? So I submit that we ought to wait until we get the rules, before we vote on the officers.

[Previous question railroad.]

Closing

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I really have very little to add to what has already been said. I think we'll make a tragic mistake if we go hastily about the business of electing a chairman at this time. I think, as Mr. Gauthier has pointed out, the rules should be adopted. We should have the ground rules by which all of our officers, as well as the chairman, should be elected before we go forward with it and I think that in order to better our image before the State of Louisiana, I think we should make haste slowly. I think I'm quoting Mr. Burns in that, but we are not going to lose any time. We can elect our officers after the rules have been adopted. They are going to have to be adopted and thrashed out anyhow and the officers can be elected after that time. And I think that we will reflect a far better image before the people of this state if we make haste slowly at this time and adopt and elect our officers after the rules have been thrashed out and decided. I ask your support for...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The vote will recur on the substitute motion, that is that the election of the chairman will be deferred until after the rules are adopted. The Chair will call the Secretary of State to make a roll call vote in favor of the substitute motion; that is to defer the election of chairman until after the rules are adopted. A no is for the immediate election of a chairman. Mr. Secretary of State, Wade O. Martin, will come forward.

Personal Privilege

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I'd just like to make this observation. I notice that there have been a number of motions for the previous question. As you well know and understand, the previous question when it's once called and voted for cuts off debate; that is, you deprive somebody who may have wanted to speak on a question, the right to do so. Now I know that I probably abuse the privileges speaking on a number of issues, but I always remember something that I like to call it winning shoes on the streets in Columbia, when I was about twelve or thirteen years of age. One Saturday while I was doing that, there was a couple of farmers not too far from me, and I wasn't paying too much attention to them because I was trying to earn a dime if I possibly could by getting a nickel tip. But I did hear one make this statement to the other, and I doubt if either one of them had over a third grade education. One said, "Well, my Pa told me Son, if somebody wants to tell you something stop and listen to him, because the craziest fool in the world can't talk fifteen minutes without saying something worthwhile hearing." If this is going to be an open Convention, we have got to give rank and privilege to every delegate to have his say-so before this Convention. What Mr. Burns stated a few minutes ago I think is very appropo, and we want to start off here on the basis that it's going to be an open Convention. If this is going to be a railroaded Convention, you know and I know what's going to happen to the Constitution that we draft regarding how we'll be run. I'm going to ask you, please, let's let it be an open Convention. I know it gets tired and boroesome sometimes for somebody to go on, and if I think that anybody is filibustering and just fillbustering a question, I certainly would be willing to go along with the previous question. But, let's don't start out at least on our first day here of cutting off debate too quick and letting somebody have their rightful say as a delegate of this Convention. I just want to throw that out to you for thought because whatever impression the public gets of this Convention, this state may determine whether or not we are successful or a failure.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The main motion now on the floor is to proceed with the election of a permanent chairman forthwith. You have heard the debates on the substitute motions. Are you ready for the question on the main motion?

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman, the motion I made was to the effect that the next order of business of this Convention would be the election of a permanent chairman, who may not be the chairman of the Temporary Rules Committee, which election shall proceed prior to the adjournment of this inaugural meeting of the Convention. I would like to say to the delegates just briefly, because I think that all that needs to be said on this question has been stated, that Senator Rayburn and I voted together today twice which is a rather unusual situation. Secondly, it pains me greatly to be on the opposite side of this question from my good friend, Tommy Leigh. However, I came here today feeling that, if we could adopt a procedure by which we had an independent Rules Committee capable of drafting rules for further consideration of this Convention, that this was the most important item of business before this group. I thought that once that had been done and accomplished it was important for us to proceed without further delay in the selection of the person who would head up this Convention for the rest of its term, because I believe it needs to have a head. I'm frank to admit that I'm not committed to anyone. I frankly don't know who I'll vote for based on who's nominated. I'm not engaged in trying to run any railroad. I simply feel that we need to have a head of this body so that we can proceed with our business in an orderly fashion. I move under the circumstances, Mr. Chairman, the adoption of the motion.

[Motion adopted.]

Motion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman and delegates to the Convention, many of us missed breakfast this morning and certainly most all of us missed lunch. We're tired right now and I think before we go into the consideration of electing our permanent chairman, we should recess so that we can have something to eat, and so I would like to move that we recess until 7:00 p.m.

[Motion rejected.]

Point of Information

Mr. Schmitt I have a question. Would the chair please explain the procedure? Will it be nominating speeches and seconding speeches? Will the chair please tell us the procedure which the chair will entertain?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The chair will, unless the Convention decrees otherwise, the chair will allow one nominating speech and one second for each candidate--very brief nominate and second.

Point of Order

Mr. Champagne We just decided we wouldn't recess. I want to know if everybody here thinks they can spend the next two hours here? Are you, sir, limiting these speeches to a reasonable amount? Are you going to say five minutes, ten minutes, an hour, or how much?

Hon. Joe W. Sanders A motion would be in order at this time.

Motion

Mr. Champagne Well, I move that nobody be given any longer than ten minutes to express his position, since we seem to be in a hurry, and I think three minutes on the rest of the speakers.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, as a substitute I would move that each nominating speech in behalf of any candidate be limited to five minutes, that there be one seconding speech not to exceed two minutes.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Would you cover in your motion the method of calculating the vote if more than two candidates are nominated?

Mr. Gravel Well, I'd be glad to do that and add that, additionally, that in order to be elected chairman that a person must receive a majority of the votes of the delegation, and that, if necessary, there'd be a runoff.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Is that the votes cast or the entire membership?

Mr. Gravel The votes cast in the election. I think everybody is going to vote.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders You have heard the motion. The motion is that each of the two nominating speeches be limited to five minutes and that the chairman be elected by a majority of the votes cast. Is there a second? Second by Delegate Chehardy, Gretna. Delegate Stovall is recognized.

Reverend Stovall I would like to substitute ten minutes for a nominating speech rather than five.

Mr. Gravel Reverend Stovall, if you will permit me, I want to apologize for doing this this way, but Mr. Triche and one other gentleman just pointed out to me that it is necessary under the statutes that the chairman be elected by a majority of the elected in number of the elected delegates.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Alright, is that amendment accepted by Chehardy, the seconder? The amendment is accepted. Majority of the elected delegates...majority of the delegates.

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman, as a point of information, is there any provision in Robert's Rules of Order for a runoff or for elimination or...

Hon. Joe W. Sanders That was the motion. That the election be by a majority of the delegates which requires a runoff. The two getting the highest votes have to run it off. That's right. Delegate Chris Roy, Alexandria.

Mr. Roy I'd like to amend the motion of Mr. Camille Gravel to allow two seconding speeches of three minutes each, not just one. I think that we ought to, with this thing this serious, we ought to have two seconding speeches.

[Motion adopted as amended.]

Nominations

Mr. Dennerly I'll start from the beginning. Justice Sanders and fellow delegates, we are indeed one hundred thirty-two fortunate individuals. We start today with an unblemished record like newborn babes in that tangled forest known as the 19c1 Constitution, as amended, with the full confidence of the people of this state that we can extricate them from this wilderness and bring forth a sensible document to become the basic, organic law of this state. Each one of us is confident that we can intelligently fulfill the charge placed upon us by Act 2 of 1972. We know we can do this. We have the ability and the courage to do it. We are a diverse body of individuals, truly representative of the people of Louisiana. In our deliberations we will prove to the voters that their confidence was not misplaced. One year from today we will present to the Governor a new Constitution, which we have hammered out in a Democratic manner, one which all of us can claim a hand in having written. One which the voting public can confidently vote for, because we will have retained their confidence by meeting in an open convention and by fully considering their suggestions made at open hearings. Many of us at this Convention have never before been referred to as redactors. Well, we will be so referred to now. One of these days a court will formally refer to us as the redactors of the 1973 Constitution. Then your grandchildren can refer to you as "you old redactor, you." But to be called redactors, we will need a chairman. I am mindful of the sentiments that have been expressed concerning the need to select as a chairman, a man whose integrity and qualifications are beyond question. We have such a man among our delegates, one who has proved himself an independent and impartial chairman of a body as diverse as ours. His management experience in this field is without equal in the entire State of Louisiana. As our first truly permanent act, we delegates should do no less than to elect the best qualified among us as our chairman. I have the honor to place in nomination for the position as Chairman of this Convention the very best doggone redactor of Bienville and Jackson Parishes, the delegate from the First District Number 10, the Honorable E.L. "Bubba" Henry of Jonesboro.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Will the delegate who is to second the nomination please come forward? The time allotted in the motion of the Convention was three minutes.

Mr. Lanier Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman. Gentlemen, I had the pleasure of attending the Louisiana State University Law School with Bubba Henry. Bubba was very active in our school affairs. He was on our little intramural football team, but at that time it was obvious to me that he possessed qualities of excellence. I think if you will review his conduct as the Speaker of our House of Representatives here in Louisiana, you will see that these qualities have come forth. I am not a member of the House of Representatives, myself, but when this election came up, I made inquiries of people from my district and other districts, who I wanted to be in the House, to see how they fit about the way that Bubba did his job. Almost to the man, I was told that it was fantastic, that he accomplished things in our House of Representatives that some people thought were impossible. We have a very difficult task to accomplish here. We are going to need to all unite no matter what your political feeling or philosophy is. We are going to need to work together for what's in the best interest of the State of Louisiana. I feel that Bubba can unite us and lead us along the path to do that which we need to do which is the ultimate passage of a modern Constitution to bring our state into the twenty-first century. For this reason, I urge your favorable consideration of Bubba Henry. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I proudly rise to second the nomination of E.L. Henry from Jonesboro. I do so, because I think that this Convention is going to need strong leadership. I've watched the men in the House of Representatives provide strong leadership. I rise to second his nomination because I believe that this Convention is going to need courageous leadership. I've watched E.L. Henry face the hard questions and exercise the courage and the leadership to move Louisiana forward. Therefore, I believe that he is going to be courageous enough to provide the strong and dynamic leadership necessary to bring forth a great, and dynamic, and creative document. So, I proudly second the nomination of E.L. Henry from Jonesboro and ask your vote for this great Louisianian.

Nomination

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, what we do here today and what we do here in Baton Rouge for the next three hundred and sixty-four or five days is going to weigh heavily upon the people of this state, the children, grandchildren, and for posterity, if the people approve our actions. I have no doubt that any one of the candidates that have been mentioned as chairman could do an outstanding job as chairman of the Convention. But there is a little bit more involved than just being chairman of the Convention. We have to think about the people of which 200, 2,000,000 of them will have the right to pass upon what we do. They are not going to be in this chamber or in the chamber where we sit during our deliberations, or in the chamber where we hold our committee meetings to judge the action of each and every one of us. They are going to have to rely upon what they see in the news media, what they see in the television, what they hear on the radio or what they can read in the newspaper. If they have an idea that we have put out [our] best foot forward and have done a good job because of what they have seen, what they have heard, and what they have read, we may have a real good chance of going down in history as having done something for the state of Louisiana. But regardless of the document that we may adopt and regardless of how good the chairman may have performed in keeping order, and decorum, and so forth, and so on if the people get the idea that this was another controlled Convention, and another three-ring circus, as has been said of our Legislature in times past, our Constitution could reach the state of Louisiana of our Constitutional amendments that have been proposed. Now, I ask you, let's not think about personalities in this case. Let's think about the people of the state, their children, their grandchildren, their great-grandchildren. And I don't believe that we can get off on a better step than having someone that is recognized all over the whole state of Louisiana as being a capable administrator, a capable legal scholar, a capable judge and one that is capable of submitting the image we ought to have in order to get our work approved. I offer to you the name of the Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the State of Louisiana, a person who was born in Opelousas on September 23, 1920, educated in the schools of this state and just to give you an idea of his ability to preside, he has been Chairman of the Louisiana Commission on the Aging, Chairman of the Louisiana Judiciary Commission, Chairman of the conference of Court of Appeal Judges, Chairman of the Appellate Judges Conference, American Bar Association, an organization of eight hundred appellate judges, he has been Commander of the Vile Platte American Legion, President of Vile Platte's Junior Chamber of Commerce, Chairman of Evangeline Parish Boy Scout District and I could go on and on and name the various organizations in which he has headed, not only being an active member, but actually the chairman or the president of organizations, which show that he has recognized him for having that ability. I ask you let's not look at personalities. Let's look at the best image we can put forth for the state of Louisiana. Let's don't go about this in making it look like we are railroadng anybody. I think that if we can do that we can show our real independence and the people will recognize that that independence and the people will recognize that that we do. I place in nomination for chairman of this Convention, Judge Albert Tate, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Louisiana, who has held that position, without opposition since his election in 1970.

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it is an honor to rise following Mr. DeBlieux's speech in support and to second the nomination of the Honorable Justice Albert Tate, Jr., and I want to tell you that I am a very biased person, I am from Ville Platte and as you just heard, Judge Tate is from Ville Platte. In fact, he still votes there. I feel like a word which was just mentioned, a railroad, railroading of the Convention. I just calculated on the pros and cons of the election of the chairman today or postponing it. Now, maybe I shouldn't bring it up at this time, but I feel like there is a railroad job being done to this Convention at the present time. My figures show that out of the twenty-seven appointed members, twenty-three of them voted the same way. Out of the elected members of the Legislature twenty-one of twenty-five voted the same way and I feel like this is some indication of the unity. I'm not saying somebody is trying to control us. I see a unity here which may or may not be good for this Convention. What I am trying to say is that you have an opportunity to elect as your chairman a person who I think will not be controlled by any faction. He is a justice of the Louisiana Supreme Court. He has no political ambition, henceforth, I don't think this man can be controlled. I don't think that there will be a railroad job at this Convention, if you elect him. I would very much appreciate if every one of you here studied carefully the names in the hall and you remember the people who voted for you whenever you cast your ballot. Think what the people want. They do not want a controlled Convention. They told me, do not let the Legislature run it. Do not let the Governor run it. And you think seriously about who you want as your chairman, because the sentiment if we--if there's any indication that it is being controlled, the sentiment of the people will be to cast their vote against the Constitution. Just remember that when you vote. And I second the nomination of the Honorable Justice Albert Tate, Jr. Thank you very much.

Mr. Conroy I am David Conroy of Metairie and I have the great honor of seconding the nomination of Judge Albert Tate, Jr. I think this Convention and the people of the state of Louisiana are most fortunate to have such outstanding men seeking the Chairmanship of this Convention, but more than leadership is necessary. The Chairman of this Convention must have the full confidence of the people of the state of Louisiana. Judge Tate is unique in occupying a position in which he is as free as possible of outside pressures and control. And he could bring to this Convention the greatest possible independence. An independence which I firmly believe is essential for the ultimate success of this Convention. I strongly urge your vote for Judge Tate.

Nomination

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, there are a great deal of us who feel that the only way that we can write a Constitution that is going to be acceptable to and acceptable by the people of this state is to elect a person who will let the Convention. There are questions here today whether we are or are not. There are those of us who feel that the qualifications of the chairman, of course we don't know what his job is yet, but we feel that the qualifications of the Chairman of this Convention is not to be a person who will run our Convention for us, but to be a person who will let the independent delegates from all across this state run their own Convention. And I feel pleasure and pride that I can name to you a man who has pledged to do these things. If you will allow me, I wish to place the name of Senator Louis Lambert in nomination for the Chairman of this Convention.

Mr. Fayard In case most of you don't know me, and I say that you have no reason to know me, my name is Calvin Fayard. I represent the people of District 71. I am the coauthor on this bill that was passed with Pat Juneau earlier. I coauthored that bill for one reason. I thought it was the best thing for the Convention. The best thing for the people of our state. I am seconding the nomination of Louis Lambert, Delegate LaBaret, as I know him, because also, I think that he is the best person for the state and for the Convention. As my normal manner would have it, I prepared and sent a letter to my fellow delegates a couple of days ago, and I was a little bit late. I am sure most of you did not get it. But in this letter I outlined my reasons for supporting Delegate Lambert for this position. Number one, there has been a lot of talk about independence, about railroad jobs, about the feeling of the Convention as having to put forth the idea and the image of an independent in order to get it passed for the public. I am new in politics. I've learned a lot here today. I would imagine that by the time that I go home a year from now, I will be aged quite a bit. However, I think that we still have the opportunity to elect a man who can do the job as an independent, who can reflect the proper image of this Convention to the public. My primary concern is that we elect a chairman who is a chairman in name, but is not a chairman of anything else. In his own mind, he places this Convention first and foremost. I realize that we have other qualified people for this position. It is hard for me to make up my mind, much harder than most of you-all, I would say, because the other candidates for the chairmanship I know. I know Representative Henry, Justice Tate taught me in Law School, Jim Dennis is a very good friend of mine. However, I believe that we have to lay this aside, and elect a man who can reflect the image that we want reflected to the public, so a year from now we can go back to our people, and say you elected me to do a job, I've done the job, now please ratify it. Please vote for Senator Lambert as chairman.

Mr. Mire Justice Sanders, fellow delegates it is indeed a pleasure for me to rise and endorse Senator Lambert. Senator Lambert is from my Parish, he ran in Ascension, and in St. James, and in Livingston Parish. He ran as an independent candidate, he was elected there as a delegate to the Convention. Again ran as a delegate to the Convention independently and was elected without opposition. This young man has stood out as a young man in our community to do something for the people of our area. He's one that looks to do for somebody instead of them to do for him. I am most happy to second Senator Lambert's nomination and I wish you would consider him very seriously. Thank you.

Nomination

Rev. Stovall J.L. Stovall, elected delegate from the 79th District, Metairie, Jefferson Parish. It is my happy privilege at this time to present in nomination before you a person who is eminently qualified to serve as chairman of this group. He was an honor student at LSU and has had experience in three places of government: the Legislative, the Judiciary, and the Executive. And even more than this he has deeply committed to constitutional revision. This is indicated in the fact that he served in the Legislature, he introduced legislation to bring about the Convention of this kind, and also, he was the author of the bill for constitutional revision in the Legislature in 1970. He then served as a member and coordinator of that committee in order to present constitutional reform through the Legislature. It might be of some interest to you to know that he introduced legislation to elect as chairman of that Constitutional Revision Committee, instead of the political powers at that time felt that the Speaker of the House would be more suitable to serve as Chairman of the Constitutional Revision Committee. However, the Chairman, I mean the Speaker of the House was not able to do his regular duties plus this tremendous additional responsibility, and they turned to Jim

1st Days Proceedings—January 5, 1973

Dennis as coordinator of the Constitutional Revision Committee in order that he might bring together and serve ex officio on all the committees. This is to say that Jim Dennis has been through what we are about and what we will be about during this entire year. That is, he has handled all of the details of revising the Constitution. He's been the committee to it, and he has the basic philosophy that we need in order to move forward in the way in which we should. I think that we should keep in mind that during the next year there will be a regular session of the Louisiana Legislature. There may be special sessions of the Legislature. And also I will assume that this body will present to the Legislature a substantial amount of material of all kinds. All of this is to say that we need people in the Legislature and workers there who will assume their full responsibilities. At the same time we need a person who can give full time to this Constitutional Convention, and I submit to you that District Judge Jim Dennis of Monroe, elected delegate from District 16, is the person who can do that. He will give to us a people's Convention. And I think all the people of this state feel that they have a part in the kind of leadership that he will give to us. Thank you.

Mrs. Corne Mr. Chairman, I am Delegate Heloise Corne from the First District. I am pleased to have I am standing to second the nomination of Judge Dennis. This Convention has heard very many of his qualifications and I wish to speak about my personal observations of Judge Dennis. I have observed this young man at his work in the Legislature. I have known very many of his friends, and he has been a person who I can do that for many years now. And when you get somebody from Lafayette to second the nomination of somebody from Monroe, you can say there is no sectionalism left in this state. I have observed, as I said, Mr. Judge Dennis at his work. I find him to be a gentleman with great integrity, with sincerity. I know that, if elected to this Convention, he will preside with decorum and prestige. I think we need a man of the qualifications of Judge Dennis and, for this, I would ask this Convention to consider the voting for Judge Dennis. I thank you.

Mr. Arnette I am a delegate from Jennings, Louisiana. My name is Greg Arnette. I am pretty new to the politics and pretty new to the politics, especially, in Louisiana and everything. But I would like to second the nomination of Judge Dennis for three specific reasons. There are three things mentioned by most of you nominating and seconding delegates who came up here. The first one that was mentioned was image. What kind of image will we portray? I think with Judge Dennis we don't have any worry there. He's independent; he's been recommended highly; he's competent, and he is definitely honest. Second thing is experience. This man is experienced in all three phases of government: the Executive, the Judiciary, and the Legislative. He is an ex-Legislator, so he knows the workings of the Legislature. He knows how the Legislature operates and I think he would be a very competent chairman with this respect. The second thing is that, since he is experienced in the Judiciary, he would know how to maintain order, how to know the inner workings of the Judiciary, also. The next thing is that he is also now presently unconnected. He is an independent candidate. He is a judge at the present time. I think that this would qualify him even further. The last thing that was mentioned was time. I think that this is a major consideration, also. And the consideration I think--since Judge Dennis can give full time--I think this ought to be a major consideration in electing him. I would appreciate it if each and every one of you would vote for Judge Dennis.

Mr. Abraham I am one of the delegates, one of the five who has not decided who I am going to vote for yet. And I would ask for a moment for some prayerful consideration so that I may deliberate as to who I might vote for chairman.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders Your request is well taken, Delegate Abraham, and the prayers of all the Convention will be with you. Please, privilege, Delegate Asseff, Mansfield, Louisiana.

Dr. [Mr.] Asseff I wish to inform the delegates that I shall refuse to vote on two grounds. I do not know any of the candidates; I really do not. I have not met one of the candidates until today. I have nothing for nor against anybody else to know them. I don't and I refuse to vote unless I vote intelligently. Those of you that know the candidates may do that. I am not criticizing you. I am simply saying I cannot, and if also Mr. Chairman, remember this: my only desire is to please my constituents of District 7. And that I have done. I really don't care to guess what anybody else has done. And, therefore, my second reason is a formal protest for not giving us ample time to learn the candidates and to proceed properly.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders The Secretary of State will call the roll of the delegates, and I believe that I requested the tellers' committee to come forward at this time and you can answer your vote from the podium. The tellers' committee... Walter I. Lanier, Thomas Casey, J.D. De Blieux, David Conroy, Richard Kilbourne, Pat Juneau, Mary Wisham, Harmon Drew, Greg Arnette, come forward and you can vote from the rostrum.

[Roll Call: Henry-B; Lambert-18; Tate-17; Dennis-151.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Lambert Honorable Mr. Justice, delegates, I would like to say this: It was a wonderful experience to have had the opportunity to campaign among all the delegates and I will say this; I enjoyed it very much. I am looking forward to working with all of you during the coming six months or year or whatever time limit we find ourselves here. I think it's imperative at this time that we should all, as citizens of this state and delegates to this Convention, stand together, work together, work to make the state of Louisiana a state that has the best Constitution in this country. I ask those of you who are kind enough to vote for me: it is time to lend your support to "Bubba" Henry. He is a fine man. At this time, I would like to ask that--or move, rather--that E.L. "Bubba" Henry be made our Chairman by acclamation.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Dennis Mr. Sanders, I would like to make a second to that motion; but, before I do, I would like to take advantage at this moment to say again what I said to some of you in Baton Rouge, at the breakfast meeting awhile back, that I consider this the greatest honor, privilege of my lifetime, even though I wasn't elected chairman. To just be a delegate is to serve with you in this chance of a lifetime for all of us to give this state the kind of new modern Constitution that we absolutely need in order for this state to progress. I would like to say just a few personal remarks about our new Chairman, before I second the motion. I've known "Bubba" for over ten years. We were in law school together and we served four years in the Legislature. Now back in the last Legislature, the Constitutional Revision wasn't as popular an idea as it is today. It was very hard to get started and, as you know, I introduced some bills; but what wasn't said in the campaigning was that "Bubba" Henry was one of the coauthors of all of my bills, and I would like to be fair and say that Tom Casey,

1st Days Proceedings—January 5, 1973

Ken Leithman--and I hope I'm not leaving out other members--Conway LeBlue, probably, too. But "Bubba" was a coauthor on all of these bills. And he fought the Constitutional Revision along with me and I know that he, along with a lot of us, received a lot of pressure, to pull back. But he never did, and for that reason, I would like to dispel any of this talk about "Bubba" being controlled. I think he is an independent man; I think he will be an independent Chairman. I saw him withstand pressure somewhat to the pressures that are going to be brought upon us in this Convention. He has withstood them with flying colors. And I know he is going to do that as Chairman, so I ask you to all close ranks and let's forge all this campaign talk. Let's get behind our Chairman, because he is a good Chairman, and write the best darn Constitution that the country has ever seen. Mr. Chief Justice, I would like to second the motion.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Tate My brother delegates and sister delegates--delegate persons, I should say--it was a great pleasure to have been elected; I don't say appointed. It seems to have been a little issue awhile back, selected to serve with you elected delegates about two weeks ago; and since then, I have been very much and deeply impressed with the sincerity and concern of all of you gentlemen and women. I join with my other also rans in congratulating the Convention on the choice of an excellent and strong presiding officer: a man of character, integrity and independence. And I join, also with them, in looking forward to working with you to make the best possible Constitution, to submit to the people of this state, that we can all throughout sincerity and concern of all of our endeavors, to do so very much for the pleasure of having had the chance to participate as I did in the recent processes. Thank you so much.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Justice, fellow delegates, I don't have a speech prepared. It is an extreme honor and a privilege to be elected Chairman of this Constitutional Convention. Many things have been said in the past few weeks when we were getting ready to get to this Convention; and I realize that, when we are doing things with people, things are said. I felt like it was important that today we get the politics of the personalities out of the way so that we could proceed with the issues that we are going to be faced with during the days of this Convention. We are somewhat, I guess, in many respects, like the balloon "Mission Impossible" when he gets that little tape and he says, "Your assignment, should you decide to accept it." Well, we said we wanted an assignment. We haven't accepted the assignment yet because we haven't gone to work. But there are going to be a lot of people, just like that man on that tape said, "We are not going to say anything for you or do anything with you if you get caught." We are going to have our problems during this Convention. But I believe with all my heart and with all my mind that Almighty God has given each one of us something that we can contribute to this Convention, something that we can contribute to the people of our state. I believe that, and I believe that that's why we are here. I believe that if we are the best that's in us to do those things that we are most capable of doing, then we'll come up with a document that you and I can go home with and tell our people, "This is good and we've done a good job and we want you to accept this document." Everybody is not gifted, as J. Denson Smith used to say, to be a piccolo player. You got to have some trumpet players, got to have some of all of us. Somebody said: It looks like to me some nitwits are elected to that Convention. Well, that's probably right, but there are a lot of nitwits in the public and they deserve to be represented here. I don't have any quarrel with that, do you? I am elected and I am your Chairman. I don't... I thought I knew who was going to vote for me; I don't know who didn't vote for me; and I don't know whether there were any switches. I don't care. I got enough votes to do what I set out to do with your help. I am your Convention Chairman. I have made no deals, and you probably won't believe that, and I really don't care. I am glad to be here to do one thing: that's what I told those people in good old Bienville and Jackson Parishes, and Ward Six and Seven of Ouachita, that I'd do, and that is to represent them at this Convention. I am going to do my best, and I believe that you are, too. To Louis and Jim Dennis or Judge Dennis, Judge Tate, I feel glad that we had a race. I am glad to be glad because of the way it turned out. But I am glad, and I think it was good; and, Jim, you know the time or two I tried to talk you into getting out. Well, I'm glad you didn't. But I don't think we have any problems. Just like Louis said awhile ago, now we take it from here; we go to work on the document that the people have made. The manner in which we conduct ourselves during this Convention is going to be awfully important and some of you won't like me that much when it's over, as you might now, because you-all are going to write the rules, and you-all are going to adopt the rules; and, brethren and sisters, we are going to live with them. We are going to have decorum, if that's what you want. We are going to have order, and nobody is going to be overbearing 'cause you-all are writing the rules and you-all have elected me to preside. That's what I intend to do. I thank you for honoring me with this, and I hope that in the end you won't be disappointed. I didn't write a speech. I scribbled down one or two words and that's about all. I thought I didn't write a speech, but I am trying to tell you how I feel, and feeling is what I am doing right now, because there has been a whole lot of feeling up to this point. I guess it's time for us to start thinking now, so this is going to conclude my remarks and the Chair will entertain any further motions. Mr. Casey is recognized that we are going to start making a list. I'll get you next, Reverend Landrum, Mr. Stagg, Mr. O'Neill. Wait a minute, let me get these names down. Mr. Lanier, Mr. Lowe, and I hope you-all are not going to talk a long time. Mr. Tobias and gentlemen, I am going to try to get these names as good as I can, and ladies, Mr. Womack, Reverend Alexander; I think it will be easier to take those who are not raising their hands. Mr. Wall.

Proceed, Mr. Casey.

Motion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and members to the Louisiana Constitutional Convention, I would like to move that this Convention officially express its most sincere thanks for an extremely outstanding job done by our Acting Chairman, Joe W. Sanders, Associate Justice, Supreme Court of Louisiana, and the Honorable Wade D. Martin, Jr., who acted as our Secretary today. I would like this motion to become a part of our official journals and minutes of the Constitutional Convention, and I would like to request also that, when this motion is adopted, that we give these gentlemen a standing thanks and ovation for a job well done.

Mr. Henry You heard the motion of Delegate Casey to which Mr. Clehardy seconded.

Is there any discussion?

Are you ready for the...?

Mr. De Blieux moves to amend the motion and include GSRI.

Do you accept the amendment?

Any objection?

No objection, so ordered.

Are you ready for the question?

If no objection, the previous question is ordered.

Therefore, as many of you who are in favor of the motion will say, "Yes." Those opposed will say, "No."

We don't have a voting machine; I've already lost.

Those who are in favor of the motion will vote "Yes." Those opposed vote "No."

Of course, the motion carries and Justice Sanders... At this time I think it would be appropriate for Justice Sanders, we have a gavel here, which in appreciation for your putting up with all of our comments today, the Convention wants to present to you, which will at the appropriate time be inscribed as a memento for you on this--what we hope will be --a historical occasion.

Hon. Joe W. Sanders I want to thank you, Mr. Chairman, and all the delegates of this Convention for this very fine gavel that will be inscribed for me as a memorial to this very pleasant occasion.

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I want to bat in a clean-up position for just a minute. The resolution by Mr. Alario which was then subjected to a substitute --by I think, Mr. Abraham--the substitute by Mr. Abraham had listed in it that Robert's Rules of Order shall be referred to as the authority for guidance to the Temporary Rules. Then the motion was further substituted by the motion of Pat Juneau which was then adopted, and the Juneau Resolution did not have language in it concerning Robert's Rules of Order. I move to the Chair a resolution simply stated that this Convention will...

"BE IT RESOLVED, by this Convention that the latest revision of Robert's Rules of Order be adopted as the temporary parliamentary rules for the conduct of the business of this Convention and that any committees of this Convention, pending the adoption of permanent rules of procedure"...

[Motion adopted.]

Mr. Stagg At this time to those, I hope, hard-working members of the Rules Committee at the adjournment of this meeting--if you would check your watch, the members of the Rules Committee--thirty minutes following adjournment of the meeting in this hall, the Rules Committee will assemble in House Room of the Prince Murat Motel for a short meeting. Then at 9:00 tomorrow morning, the Rules Committee will commence work either in that room or some other room at the Prince Murat, notices of which will be at the desk. I would like to invite all those delegates who have suggestions to bring to the Rules Committee, please let me know or come to the 9:00 session on Saturday morning, tomorrow, and let us have the benefit of your views of items or matters of your concern that ought to be included in the Rules of Procedure. We do invite the participation of all the delegates in the process of devolving these rules, not necessarily only in the debate which will follow next week. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

[Adjournment to 10:00 a.m.,
Friday, January 12, 1973.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

PRAYER

Mr. Stovall ... as we continue with this task that has been given to us, we pause to ask for Your Leadership. Give to each of us open minds, a willingness to decide issues on the basis of their merit, and give to us Your guidance that we might have a better future for our state. May Your presence be with all who are in need and be with us in our deliberations. In the name of Christ, we pray. Amen.

NATIONAL ANTHEM

ROLL CALL

[119 delegates present and a quorum.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen. I hope that you will accept this in the spirit in which it is being given. I will go into a little detail, because I appeared before a committee in good faith, only to be told that I was doing it--being sweet--to get something. Well, I assure you, I am not sweet to get anything. That's just not in my nature. I am about to do something that I rarely if ever have done before. I hope that anyone who has done anything to offend any member of this Convention--and some of you have--too, will do the same thing, and clear the air before we begin work on what will be the toughest job that ever faced a group of people. I am not doing it to gain popularity in District 7, for District 7 will support me, nor am I doing it for committee assignment. I'm not taking anything; nor am I owing it because of the cold shoulders I have received. I am doing it because it is my duty to help you help remove division. I don't want to be the cause of any division in the Convention, and because a good constitution means that much to me, for you properly it will herald a new era for Louisiana. I spoke in an hour and a half of discussion, which I regret. We have a rough job before us, and it will take all the skill and ingenuity of all of us to fashion a new Constitution that the people will approve. And if we are to sell it to them, there must be as little division as possible. Our heads will be bloody enough over the issues, without controversy over other matters. Though I represent District 7, and am accountable only to that district, I always will vote my convictions and for what I feel is right and proper and in the best interest of Louisiana. I will do that even though I have political ambitions, and my vote may end my political career. Though the Lord in His infinite wisdom may close the door even if my vote is wrong. Some of you said I could have attended the Governor's reception and learned the candidates. Believe me, I could not, and the Governor accepted my explanation. It was my duty to accept his cordial invitation, but I had no alternative but to decline. I should not have said, I will oppose the new Constitution and will campaign again for an. Some of you said I have said it. I will work closely with you and will do whatever assignment I receive no matter what it is, in the... to the best of my ability. And will make every effort to work out mutually acceptable provisions for all of us and to the people, whose confidence and support we need. I face a dilemma that few of you do. My position on state and local government, on a constitution, is in a notebook of thousands of former college students, and they are constantly reminding me of what to do. If I am convinced that the proposed Constitution is in the best interest of the state, I will support it, and will campaign for it. Again, I am sorry for having said otherwise. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Dr. Asseff and certainly your remarks will be well taken by the delegates to the convention.

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise to make a memorial resolution.

WHEREAS, a tragedy has taken place in New Orleans, Louisiana, the effects of which have gone beyond that city, affecting the state and the nation.

WHEREAS, all the people of Louisiana, black as well as white, deplore this senseless action.

WHEREAS, this Convention is meeting to write a Constitution, which will guarantee the civil rights of all of its citizens, under the rule of law.

WHEREAS, to maintain civilization and order, the individual policeman remains also a swine of defense.

BE IT RESOLVED that the Louisiana Constitutional Convention publicly deplore the above mentioned incident.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that as its first course order of business, before considering the rules we stand for a minute of silence in memory of Deputy Police Superintendent Louis Sirco, Patrolman Paul Persigo, Patrolman Phil Coleman, Cadet Albert Harrell.

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that the Louisiana Constitutional Convention endorses the Tragedy Fund, which is a legitimate fund-raising activity composed of a broad spectrum of citizens of all races and faiths and crossing organizational lines, intended to raise funds for the families of the deceased, which Fund has been endorsed by Mayor Moon Landrieu, Mayor of New Orleans.

The coauthor of this memorial are delegates: Thomas Velazquez, District 97, and former New Orleans Police Chief Joseph I. Giarrusso, Sr., District 98.

And

All delegates that wish to sign will be accepted as equal coauthors. I move for your acceptance.

Point of Order

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I am certainly in favor of this resolution, but we have our hands full and we will for the next year. Many other similar instances I'm afraid may happen; something of other types; and if we get off and adopt, we are not an official legislative body. If we get off and take up resolutions and memorials of this type; we are going to have our hands full because things are happening so fast nowadays. We'll be memorializing the Federal Government, the President and everything. And as I say, I am one thousand percent for this, but I don't think that we should each day come up with something of this type to interfere with the deliberations that we have in which I think will take all of our time. I would like to raise that point. Is it a material matter before this Convention of something of this type? I know of nothing that would be better but, if we start and opened the door each day, we are going to have things of this type. And I would like to raise a point of order if that is in order at this time.

Mr. Henry Surely, Mr. Stinson, your point is well-taken. We are operating without any particular rules of procedure at this time, and I think, that in as much as there appears to be no serious objections to this resolution, that perhaps we can go ahead and dispose of this at this time after which we are going to proceed with the other business of the convention, if you will allow us that latitude.

Mr. Henry We are going to have to take care of some business at this time that is perhaps questionable insofar as what we as delegates to the convention did or did not do last week, and I think you are familiar with the propositions on the oath, which we, the convention delegates, took on last

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Friday. In the interest of an abundance of caution, we have checked with the attorney general, Attorney General Guste, has advised us through a written opinion, that as a precautionary matter, that we as delegates should, in addition to the oath we took last Friday, take the oath which is contained in the constitution, just in case someone might question it at some later time. So if there is no serious objection, we have the Secretary of State, Wade O. Martin, present with us today to administer the additional oath. I am going to ask that the Clerk call the roll and that we proceed in the same manner in which we did on last Friday--that you come to the front and stand and then the oath will be administered. Mr. Clerk, will you call the roll?

[Roll Call: Oath of Office administered to delegates as prescribed by Article XIX, Section 1 Louisiana Constitution 1921.]

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

Mr. Poynter. A resolution by Mr. Abraham.
"BE IT RESOLVED that the delegates to the Louisiana Constitutional Convention do hereby reenact, reaffirm, and adopt as their own and, as the act of the convention, every act taken at the meeting of elected delegates held on January 5, 1973, including but not limited to the roll call of delegates, the swearing of delegates and all other acts taken by said delegates as members of the Louisiana Constitutional Convention from that time to the present."

[Previous Question ordered. Resolution adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter. The Constitutional Convention of Louisiana Of 1973, Committee Resolution No. 1, by Mr. Stagg, on behalf of the Temporary Rules Committee.

A Resolution to provide for the standing rules of the Constitutional Convention. May I point out at this time that extra copies of the proposed rules in the format as they were transmitted to you are available at this time. I'll have pages deliver them to anyone who doesn't have a copy. If you will raise your hand, a page will bring you a copy.

Mr. Henry. If one of the pages will bring Mr. Velazquez and Mr. Riecke, Mr. Rachal, Mr. Asseff, Mr. Leigh, Mr. Chehardy...gentlemen, just stand up so the pages can see you, please. Pages, let's get those rules out right quick like, please. Mr. Stagg, before you begin your explanation, if you will allow me to point out that we do have secretaries where are the secretaries? Mr. Clerk, I thought they were over here. There're secretaries over here in the area of the coffee counter that will prepare any amendments which you desire to perhaps make to the rules. The Chair will insist that we proceed with allowing Mr. Stagg to explain his resolution and the rules insofar as he deems it necessary. If you desire to amend the initial resolution, you should prepare a written amendment. One of the secretaries will help you in the preparation of the amendment. These amendments will be considered by the body as they are submitted to us. We are not going to take them in any particular order. It's first come first served; so, Mr. Stagg, when you get ready. Let me say this too, insofar as the procedure that we'll use, I don't claim to be an authority on Robert's Rules of Order. We are going to proceed along the lines of Robert's Rules of Order, insofar as it will not hamstring the activities that I think you and I want to establish in adopting these rules. We will be as fair and impartial as we are capable of being, and we will ask you not to get too technical insofar as Robert's Rules of Order are concerned because I think we'll find that it's all going to work out the way you want it to anyway. Mr.

Stagg proceed.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg. Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it is the belief of your Committee on Rules that the best way to proceed with the expeditious adoption of these rules is to do it on one rule at a time. If there is no significant debate, change, or amendment to be offered to a particular rule, it would be well if we could find that out as early as possible after the number and title of the rule has been announced. If there are amendments and they are brought to the chair to be read, then I presume that the chair will conduct the debate and discussion on the rules. I would hope that if an explanation of the reasons why a particular rule was adopted by the Rules Committee as impartially as I possibly can, I will explain to the delegates why the Rules Committee came to the conclusion that they did. I'd like to say at the outset that we met your deadline, barely. It was a great committee, when you consider that seventeen relative strangers sat down in a room together for a total of twenty-eight actual sessions, followed by several hours of homework because the chairman did give each of the members of the committee homework to do when we were not in session, particularly the review of rules of other states' Constitutional Conventions, to find, if possible, rules we should consider to adopt. We sought to reflect what we perceived to be the attitude of the delegates of this Convention toward the diversity of power of this Convention. To the extent that we met that perceived objective I trust that it will be shared by the members of this Convention. We do not wish to be cast in the position of having to defend to you what we did. We simply will wish to explain it to you, and the final decision on how these rules will read is, of course, the duty of the delegates to this convention. We did depart from the rule or the language of Act 2, which stated several powers to be employed by the Executive Committee. We looked at the Executive Committee as being one to be concerned with the administration of the convention, an Executive Committee that could meet around a table at lunch, and decide, and adopt within that smaller group the administrative details of the Convention. We thought we were reflecting the opinions of the delegates, when a committee exactly like that that wrote the rules, that is elected from the congressional districts, would name the delegates or assign the delegates to the various committees. In a further effort to achieve an absolutely democratic system will provide that the committee would in turn select a chairman and a vice chairman and a secretary of their committee, feeling that this, then, would more closely reflect the feelings of the delegates as to who shall actually be entrusted with and shall manage the business of the convention, which is to write a new Constitution. We do have a few amendments as to style where we omitted the title of a rule, where we fail to capitalize a "c" in the word "Convention." We do have one rule that in the process of final typing was omitted, and it will be offered as a committee amendment. And, Mr. Chairman, with those few preliminary remarks on behalf of the Committee on Rules, we move the adoption of Rule No. 1 as written.

[Rule adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Stagg. Mr. Chairman, with the idea that we could be home by noon, I move the adoption of Rule No. 2 as presented in the Committee Report.

[Rule adopted without objection.]

Point of Information

Mr. Stagg. Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the delegates, might I ask the Chair, if this record of voting on the rules is to be followed, would you make a significant pause between the word without objection and then the falling of the gavel?

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, I think that I am proceeding in the way that should proceed, and I'm certainly giving the delegates ample opportunity to raise any objection. You just proceed with handling the resolutions. I'll handle the decorum of the chamber. Proceed.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I have heard you operate in the House of Representatives, and that only is the reason for my remark.

Mr. Henry Yes, sir, you have no fear, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Rules moves the adoption of Rule No. 3.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, and Mr. Stagg, and members of the convention, I think this possibly is the proper time to raise this point. We refer throughout the rules that the roll call and votes and majorities and so forth, but I don't find anything that says who will officially tally the votes. The reason I ask that is with a few years' experience I found out that you vote on something and someone says the vote is totaled wrong. You waste thirty minutes and change and call another vote and hardly change the results. I think it should be tied down as who is the official tally committee or something.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, do you wish to elaborate on this...

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, if the Delegate from Bossier Parish has an amendment that would name anybody, anyone to announce the vote—we concede it to be the duty of the Chairman to control the roll call and the announcement of the results in this...

Mr. Stinson It was called to my attention under Rule No. 22. The duties of the Secretary, Subsection F, says "exercise responsibility for roll calls of the delegates." Now possibly as an amendment, we could put it there. I didn't realize, I had overlooked that provision. We could at that time possibly, but it should be definitely set down as to what is the official count on all measures that come before this house.

Mr. Stagg With leave of the Chair and of the convention, may we request that Mr. Stinson have prepared and at the Chair by the time we reach Rule No. 22, a perfecting amendment in writing?

Mr. Henry I think that would be appropriate. You don't wish then to adopt Rule No. 3 at this time, Mr. Stagg?

Mr. Stagg I move the adoption of Rule No. 3.

Mr. Henry Will you yield to the gentleman's question, Mr. Stagg?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir. Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Rules was concerned that those—a listing of those who were absent—would by implication be a listing of all those who were present, except those who were listed as absent.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to make the same point that Senator Rayburn made. As you well know, some people are only inclined to remember what they see. And I think that if you are going to print the names of the absentees in the Journal that certainly the names of those present ought to be placed in the Journal, too.

Motion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, I would move that the Chair so instruct Mr. Stinson, or Delegate Stinson, as he draws the resolution that you have previously referred to, that he include in that resolution both present and absent.

Mr. Henry Mr. Womack, I certainly hope that whoever is drawing the appropriate amendment to these resolutions will do that, but I don't have any authority to instruct anybody in their amendments so, if you would collaborate, I would appreciate you all resolving this apparent problem.

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, I so move, then, that the secretary, instructed to draw that amendment, include both present and absent in the amendment on Rule No. 22, when it is presented.

Mr. Henry Let's pass over your motion; and we will have an amendment to ratify that, Mr. Womack, if that would satisfy you. We are going to get bogged down into procedure otherwise.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, it is in the nature of a perfecting amendment, and it could easily be handled, if the Chair would permit us to then again refer to Rule No. 3. I cannot, on my feet, other than to suggest the insertion of two or three words to cover this, and it would be better done by someone at their seat. Mr. Keen, as vice chairman of the Rules Committee, has served the committee very well, by that kind of perfecting amendment, as we went through our adoption of our rules originally, and I'd like the leave to ask Mr. Keen to come to the microphone, if he would.

Amendment

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I move that on page 2, line 2 after the word "names" that there be added the following: "of all those present and," so that it would read, "enter the names of all those present and all absentees upon the Journal."

Mr. Henry Do you have that in writing, Mr. Keen, or can the Clerk assist?

Mr. Poynter I'll prepare the appropriate amendment up here, Mr. Keen.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg In the nature of an amendment to be inserted on page 2 in line 2, after the word "names" insert "of all those present and" and that the...I join in the adoption or in the moving of that amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of Rule No. 3 as amended.

[Rule adopted without objection.]

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move that Rule No. 4 be adopted as presented.

Question

Mr. Denny I would ask the Chairman of the Rules Committee if it is necessary to include in line 16 the words "appointed for that purpose" in view of the fact that Rule 26 (B) and Rule 6 provide for more than one sergeant at arms.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Denny, I don't believe that that language does violence to the language included under the duties of the sergeant at arms; it merely places him in this place in the rules to say who shall do it.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Point of Information

Mr. Guldry Mr. Speaker, would we be asking too much if we asked the Clerk to read each one of these before we go on to...

Mr. Henry We will request that the Clerk read the rule if no one has any objection henceforth.
Mr. Clerk, will you read the Rule No. 4?

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 4. Quorum Calls. A quorum call may be demanded by any delegate during any session of the convention. When, upon such call, it is found that less than a quorum is present, the Chairman shall order the doors of the convention closed and direct the Secretary to call the roll of the convention and to note the names of the absentees. After such roll call, the names of the absentees shall again be called and those for whose absence no excuse or an insufficient excuse is made, may, by order of a majority of the delegates present, be sent for, taken into custody by the sergeant at arms or by his assistants appointed for the purpose, and brought to the floor of the convention.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, I am wondering who will make the decision of whether you have valid excuse or not. Will the entire delegation make it? Will a committee make it? Who will make that decision of whether your excuse is valid or not valid?

Mr. Stagg If the Senator would read in Rule No. 5, the following rule, where a delegate shall absent himself from the convention without first obtaining leave.

Mr. Rayburn Let's refer back to the one we are now talking about. It says here "the names of the absentees shall again be called and those for whose absence has no excuse"...Now who is going to determine the excuse? Or an insufficient excuse? Who's going to determine whether it's sufficient? That is my point.

Mr. Stagg Thank you, Mr. Rayburn... Senator Rayburn. In answer to your question, I think the issue of an insufficient excuse would, by the Chairman, be asked of the Convention.

Mr. Rayburn I know, but maybe I think it should be another way. We're thinking now. I'm trying to find out what will be the best final ruling on it. Who will...I might have an excuse, Mr. Stagg, that I think it's legitimate. The Chairman might not agree with me, and then they're going to send over there and pick me up, if they can find me. And who's going to decide whether my excuse is a valid excuse or not? Now that's the only point I'm trying to make.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I wish for the discussion to be...we may get a little more the feeling of the sense of the delegates if...

Mr. Henry I had agreed to recognize Mr. Conroy. I will get you next, Mr. Keane. Then, we'll take you, Senator De Bieux.

Mr. Conroy I had assumed that Rule No. 34 vested that authority in the Chairman, because it says "a delegate may be excused from attendance of daily session only with leave from the Chairman."

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Conroy.

Further Discussion

Mr. Keane Mr. Conroy has made the same point that I wished to make. If you look at Rule No. 34, Rule No. 34 relates to absence from a daily session; in which case, the person who desires to be absent has to obtain leave from the Chairman. Rule No. 5 dealing with absence from the convention service envisions some length of absence, longer than a daily session, in which case it would be necessary to obtain leave of the convention for that extended absence. It seems to me that pretty well covers the rule. If you are going to be gone for one day, you get it from the Chairman. If you are going to be gone for some extended period of time, or some illness for some extended period of time, you request leave of the convention and it is obtained. I think that if we are going to get into an argument about who thinks it's a good excuse or not a good excuse, and some delegate thinks he can be excused for a purpose that the Chairman doesn't agree to, then we are just going to have a chaotic situation. It seems to me that daily absence has to be approved by the Chairman. That's the way it is in any other office or convention or body of this kind. I suggest that the other rules amply take care of the point Mr. Rayburn has raised.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Bieux Mr. Chairman, what Senator Rayburn was concerned with and I myself am somewhat concerned with is just who's going to pass on this excuse? Now, of course, it says after or following those words that by a majority of delegates they can send for him, but I do think that maybe sometimes we ought to leave it to the delegates as to whether or not they want to accept the excuse or not and then do they want to send for him. They might not like his excuse, but they still might be willing to not go to the expense of sending somebody after him. I really think that ought to be in the hands of the convention as to who's going to be sent for and who isn't. So that is...and you have to do it based on the excuse. I would let me just say this: Somebody might present an excuse that might be thoroughly acceptable to you, but it may not be acceptable to the majority of the delegates. We ought to have a determination whether or not that who's going to make that decision, because another thing is they might present an excuse that might not be acceptable to you. You might want the delegates to respond for him and the delegates may not want to respond to that.

Mr. Henry It will have to be a good voting delegate before I send for him; I'll assure you that, Senator De Bieux. It appears to the Chairman that this is set out and explained in Rule No. 5--if you'll allow me to comment--because it says "No delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention without first obtaining leave of the convention." And this is putting the entire burden on the backs of the delegates of this convention. But you all proceed and argue this as long as you will.

Question

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Stagg, I'd like to ask a question of you. It appears to me that this rule could be construed as compulsory attendance for all the delegates. Most of us here were elected to be here, want to be here, and I just wonder if there is any necessity for compulsory attendance?

Mr. Stagg It was the feeling of the Rules Committee, after having read the rules of twenty-one other states' conventions, after talking about it among ourselves, that if a delegate was consistently absent from the convention, that he would not be elected to come to this convention for the purpose of writing a new constitution, that there ought to be some process by which the convention itself could obtain enough members, in view of large absences or consistent absences that the convention ought to have the machinery to keep this convention moving. We have a deadline, January 4, 1974. We will be in session beginning July 5. These sessions will be rewarding and productive, if the attendance is what we all expect it to be, but if that attendance is not, the Convention ought to have the machinery to bring its members back in for the purpose of attending business.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren To the Convention and our Chairman, I am wondering that since the power to give us excuses is our Chairman, would he give us some guidelines as to what he would accept. If we say we are ill, do we need a doctor's certificate, for one example? I think that he could clear up some of this if he would give us some guidelines as to what he thought would be a reasonable excuse for us as delegates.

Mr. Henry Mrs. Warren, the only light that I can shed on this is that it appears to me that if Rule No. 5 is adopted, then the entire Convention will determine whether or not a delegate should be excused for a requested absence. If that is not the case, the only thing that I can tell you is that I would try to use as much discretion as I am capable of using in determining whether a person should be excused from repeated absences to this Convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I think it also should be pointed out that the Rule No. 4 concerns the quorum call. And when do you need a quorum call? You need a quorum call when we are in session debating and voting on matters or proposals and parts of the constitution. And if you are in session presenting a proposal in which he has a good interest, noting the absence of a quorum—which would prevent the adoption of any report or any work to go into the constitution—noting the absence of a quorum, this is the machinery of a quorum call, and if it is necessary to send for some delegates in order to achieve a quorum. How else will the Convention be in session? How else will the Convention manage its business? We are concerned with Rule No. 4. The title of that rule is Quorum Call; that will cause the Convention to be able to proceed to its business. If sixty-six people are in the room, no votes can be taken, if a note is made of the absence of a quorum. What machinery do we have? It's provided in Rule No. 4.

Question

Mr. Casey Mr. Stagg, I understand really there are two areas of quorum calls: one as described in Rule No. 3, which is the Roll Call, and the other described in Rule No. 4, Quorum Call. Now the wording in the first sentence of Rule No. 4, "A quorum call may be demanded by any delegate during any session of the Convention," implies that a quorum call setting forth the type of disciplinary action that can be taken under Rule No. 4 can be taken only for a quorum call during the session, and does not cover necessary disciplinary action in order to summon the necessary amount of delegates to have a quorum upon opening a session as required in Rule No. 3. So in Rule No. 3, if you do not have a quorum after the roll call is taken, what is the remedy in order to obtain a quorum, if you have more absences than those present?

Mr. Stagg In Rule No. 6, "at any time the Convention is in session, whether upon first convening of the day's session or any time after the hour has arrived to which the Convention stood adjourned, the Chairman is authorized to send the sergeant at arms to any and all delegates as a majority of such delegates present shall agree." So in Rule No. 6 you have the opening roll call machinery that you asked about.

Point of Information

Mr. O'Neill It appears to me at this point that, by a simple insertion in line 13 after the word absence, I've put this there "the majority of the delegates find no excuse". I think this would be in the sense the Chairman desires this rule to be taken in and I think this would clear up any intentions on the part of anyone to pass on whether a delegate has a sufficient excuse or not. If there is no objection to this, I offer this as an amendment. We could clear this up and we could keep moving.

Mr. Henry Mr. O'Neill, if you do offer an amendment, we request...do you have a written amendment?

Mr. Poynter I'll prepare it if you'll show me the language...

Mr. Henry We'll prepare it so that we can have the amendment in writing, please. Mr. Hayes, I'll put you on the list. Mr. Avant, while you are coming, I'll ask the members of the news media on my right...we've had some complaints from this side of the convention that those lights are bothering them. If you're not taping or shooting all the time, could you turn those lights off until you need them, please? I would appreciate it. Proceed.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I speak for the adoption of this rule as written. I think it's simply a practical matter. I think you have to indulge in certain assumptions. First, I assume that every delegate to this convention wants to be here. He's going to be here if he can. If something develops that he can't be here, he's going to try to get in touch with the Chairman and get an excuse as contemplated. But this rule protects, I think as it is written, anyone who for some reason is unable to get a legal excuse or be preexcused or for some reason he is just not here. Now first, I think you are going to have to assume that anybody in that situation is going to tell some other delegate why he is not here. And the protection that is in this rule that before you can send for that man, the majority of the people who are here have not to vote and say, to the Chairman, "Go get him." Now I don't think anybody here is going to do that, unless they have already been convinced by things that have happened before, that this man is just taking French leave and not doing what he is supposed to do. I know there are certain delegates, here this morning, who are not here, and we don't know why they are not here. But I am sure that they all have very good reason for not being here. So I think that this rule as written provides plenty of protection for everybody concerned—both for the convention, so that it may carry on its business in an orderly fashion, and also for a delegate who, because of unforeseen circumstances, just isn't able to make it and isn't able to be free or arrange an excuse with the Chairman. So I don't think that this needs any amendments. I think it addresses itself to the good sense of this body, in which I have the complete confidence.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Mr. Avant, I'm wondering, we are talking here about the majority of the delegates deciding whether or not to send for someone who does not have sufficient excuse. Suppose someone is ill in the hospital and can't be contacted by this body, to the Chairman. Are we going to send for him also? I think it's a little vague.

Mr. Avant The only thing I can say, Mr. Tapper, is this: I'd just have to tell you what I'd do if somebody wasn't here and nobody on the floor could offer any reason as to why he's not here. I would say, "Don't go get him. We'll find out later why he's not here." Then I'd say, "You'll me once, shame on you; fool me twice, shame on me."

Mr. Tapper I understand and I agree with you. Mr. Avant, but we are saying here that we have the right to do it the first time without giving him that opportunity to make the first mistake, and this is wherein I disagree with this particular rule.

Mr. Avant Well, I just think that I have enough confidence in this body to think that they're not going to go and, by force of arms, grab a delegate and bring him in here at the first occasion when he is not able to be here.

Mr. Drew Mr. Avant, is it not your understanding that under Rule No. 4, taken in light of Rule No. 5 and Rule No. 6, that this would apply when those who had answered that opening roll call have wandered off the floor of the house at the time the quorum call was made?

Mr. Avant I would think it would apply in that situation. It would also apply when we first get here and had the quorum call. I think it would apply in both situations.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, I'd like to make a few brief points, some of which have been previously alluded to. First of all, this rule does deal with a quorum call. It's necessary to have a quorum to conduct any business. I don't know of any deliberative assembly, whether Constitutional Convention, legislative, or otherwise, that doesn't have some means of impelling a quorum. Otherwise, you can't conduct any business. I think you've got to have a rule to do this. Secondly, this rule will be seldom needed, and I don't think we should agonize over situations that are highly unlikely at best, such as getting someone out of the hospital. Thirdly, these rules, if they prove unworkable in any particular, can be changed by this Convention anytime, and we will have a Permanent Rules Committee. I think it would be a mistake for us to try to get overly technical, unless the rules that are presented to us today have some major defect that is obvious. Finally, I think that the rules which allow, which throw the major burden of accepting excuses for absences on the Chairman, will serve well in that most of these issues will never have to reach the Convention floor at all. The Chairman will handle most of these situations.

Questions

Mr. Hayes I was wondering if we couldn't combine Rules Nos. 4, 5, and 6 together to cut down on the bulkiness of the rules. If this is an example of what the constitution itself is going to be like, then we are starting off with a pretty long document. I looked at the rules and there are a lot of things that look like they are duplicating themselves here. Looks like Rules No. 4, 5, and 6 are just repeating the same thing over and over. Rule No. 6, I can't see; Rule No. 6 seems to be a subset of Rule No. 4. I would like for, maybe, Mr. Stagg to explain if there is any difference. I wanted to ask the Chairman one question, while I'm here, based on his experience. What does he expect the expected attendance of, say, one hundred and thirty-two people? What would you expect the attendance to be of a group this size?

Mr. Stagg On a daily basis?

Mr. Hayes On a daily basis, average attendance.

Mr. Stagg I have no way of knowing. That's why we have these rules.

Mr. Hayes Based on the experience that you might already have, say with the Legislature.

Mr. Stagg I would expect, with a group with the dedication that these one hundred and thirty-two people have, that it will be rare that more than four or five out of that group would be absent for illness or for any other purpose.

Mr. Hayes Then, if that be the case, I had already drawn up--while they had passed No. 2, I opposed, for raising the quorum from sixty-seven; I don't know if it's too late to bring that back--I had already drawn up the amendment, but it was doing it while you were voting on it.

Mr. Stagg Well, I just want you to know that, as the Chairman of the Rules Committee, I will take my position on reporting the rules over to the Vice-Chairman, Mr. Kean, in order to oppose your amendment. A majority of a deliberative body all over the nation--in the House of Representatives here, in the Senate here--a majority of the members constitutes a quorum. If your interests need to be protected or if there is an item on the floor that you have particular interest in, I believe you'll be here and that a quorum likewise will always be here. But, we are on the subject of Rule No. 4. Rule No. 4 perceives only the situation where the convention is in session. We have been in session for hours. Let's say it's nine o'clock at night or six o'clock in the evening and people want to go get coffee or supper and the floor is suddenly, during the debate, without a quorum. Then a delegate can note the absence of a quorum to the Chairman, produce a quorum call, and the sergeant at arms will go in the immediate vicinity and find enough delegates to restore sixty-seven delegates to the floor for conduct of business. That's what Article IV that we are on is all about. I'm not...I don't wish to...I'm merely presenting the committee report. That's why we did it.

Mr. Guidry Mr. Stagg, doesn't this rule pretty much follow the rules of the House of Representatives right now?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mr. Guidry, it does. And of the Senate.

Mr. Guidry And it works beautifully and has for many years, and I've seen at times when we didn't have a quorum, we did have to send a state police to pick them up and bring them in and there's no problem. It's very workable, and I've never seen it be any major catastrophe. I think this is good as is.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Guidry, I appreciate your remark. We've been on this subject for seventeen minutes and it is simply...

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. O'Neill to Committee Resolution No. 1, offered by Mr. Stagg, amending the original resolution. Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 13, immediately after the word "absence" and before the words "no excuse" insert the following: "the majority of the delegates find".

Explanation

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, I offer this so that we can get on with our business, simply to get this rule adopted, and let's just keep moving.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, as I understand this amendment, if you've got an excuse from the Chairman or you had an excuse previously from the convention, and you thought you were home free, and you were not here, then a majority of the delegates could decide you didn't have an excuse, and it seems to me you'd just have a situation you couldn't live with. I think the rule as originally recommended by the committee is a good rule, and I think we ought to move on with it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, I'd like my friend just stated here, Mr. Kean.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

I think we ought to go on with the...turn down this amendment, because we that are on the Rules Committee have gone over these things very carefully. I know some of them you are going to object to, but right now I think you're nitpicking on these technical things. I think it should be left to the discretion of the Chairman, not to the members, on this particular thing. It's worked in other...we've gone over a lot of other states...twenty other states. This system has worked and I feel like we ought to go on with the work of the convention, and quit nitpicking on these technicalities.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette I oppose Mr. O'Neill's amendment for the simple reason that this amendment is better addressed to Rule No. 34, which gives the Chairman the ability to say who has an excuse and who doesn't. The Chairman can always be overruled by the convention. This is also in the rules. I don't think we need an amendment to Rule No. 4 anywhere. I think we ought to adopt it just as it is.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 5. Absence from the Convention Service. No delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention without first obtaining leave of the convention. A majority of delegates may prescribe penalties for the nonattendance of delegates.

Questions

Mr. Alario Mr. Stagg, I'm vitally interested in this last sentence in Rule No. 5. It says, "A majority of delegates may prescribe penalties for the nonattendance of delegates." And that sounds fine to me, if you are in the majority. But I'm wondering just how far this convention, or majority of those delegates here, can prescribe penalties. What does that mean? Can they...can a majority get together and say you no longer hold this seat in this convention now, so that provides a vacancy? Could they mean by penalty that, "Well, since you haven't been attending, I am sending you to six months in jail"? Or are we going to line you up and put bamboo shoots under your fingernails now, or strap you to a post and whip you? What do we mean by prescribing penalties? I think if we are here to write a constitution to protect the right of people, we certainly should be trying to protect the rights of ourselves.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Alario, I am used to listening to some colorful language, having sat with twenty... with seventeen colorful people for the hours that we went through these rules. We did not specify the nature of the penalties, believing, as a committee, that a committee composed of thirty and thirty-two of our fellow citizens were not going to put bamboo shoots under anybody's fingernails; nor does this convention, under those circumstances, have the power of calling a delegate's seat vacant, whether a temporary majority or by any other means other than those set forth in the rules. The penalties for nonattendance would be, for instance, to deny a delegate the privilege of the floor for a period of one day or some other similar type of penalty which would be within reason and within the power of the delegates of this convention. It's simply a means to make sure that your convention has its delegates in position, in order to forward the work of this convention in writing a new constitution. There simply has to be some method by which the delegates can have a convention to be in existence. And I'd like to ask if Mr. Poynter would hand me a copy of the rules of the House of Representatives of Louisiana, Containing a similar rule.

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman and Mr. Stagg, I have no objection to your rule, but I merely wanted to point out that I think it's rather ambiguous. It says, "for permission to leave the convention", and I didn't know whether you want to consider--what do you mean by leaving the convention? When we are in session, when we are not in session. Examples: we have rules in the House, I believe, read something like you can't leave the state of Louisiana while we are in session, without permission. And I just wanted to be sure that no delegate got himself in trouble. If he wants to go to Europe for two or three weeks, is he violating this rule? I just merely wanted to bring that to your attention.

Mr. Stagg I thank you, gentlemen, for the comments. The basic idea of the rule is, as I stated, that it will permit the body to continue in its work. I would say that also it is a constitutional prerogative of this convention to prescribe some penalty for nonattendance. Mr. Chairman, I have...

Mr. Conroy Along the lines of the question of Mr. LeBreton, I wondered whether this rule applied only during the time that the convention is actually in session: that is, now, and then again when we resume activity in July, and not in the interim?

Mr. Stagg I would think that it would provide for, exactly as it says: if a delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention. The convention will reassemble in July, on July 5; between now and July 5, the convention will not be in session. The statute does not permit it. And only on July 5 will a matter like this occur that a man should absent himself from the service of the convention. And in answer to Mr. LeBreton: Without having first obtained leave of the convention, if a man's wife becomes critically ill or, if one of his children has been injured in an accident and he feels that it is his duty to be at the bedside of his wife or with his child, he should be permitted to obtain permission for whatever number of days that he believes the situation will entail, rather than, on a daily basis, you ask to be excused from attendance. I think the rule is self-explanatory, and I do also point out to you that the rules of the Louisiana House give that House the power to compel the attendance of its absent members in House Rule No. 36.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Stagg, I'm wondering if there isn't somewhat...a little bit of conflict here. As I read Rule No. 5, it says "convention service." Now I know that these rules provide for the holding of committee meetings outside of convention sessions. I had interpreted the convention service to include service outside of committee sessions, when the convention may not be in session. Now if under Rule No. 5 you've got to have the consent of the convention for a leave of absence, how do you hold that to be in line with Rule No. 34 which says that the Chairman can grant an excuse for nonattendance at any convention session? There seems to be a service out of inconsistency in that regard. I think that possibly that we ought to have a rule for the committee meetings when they are held outside the convention sessions, and also a rule for attendance at convention sessions, because then if you get an excuse from attending a committee meeting, you ought to have the approval of the chairman of the committee and not the convention itself. I just wondered about that because this doesn't say "convention session." It says "convention service." And that makes a little bit of difference in interpretation, in my idea. Maybe I'm wrong about that.

Mr. Stagg Mr. De Blieux, I'd like to point out to you, if I can find time in a short length of time, that there is a rule under the committee section which allows each committee...Rule No. 57, The Rules of the Convention. No, that's not it. We have a rule under the committee section that permits a committee to adopt rules of its own, and I would think that the committee chairman and the committee that you're a member of could adopt a rule about excuses from presence at committee sessions. If some member of the Rules Committee will sing out the number of that rule in which we allow a committee to have its own rules, you will note that that is covered. Rule No. 57 is one of them, but there is another one that specifically states that a committee may have rules of its own.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I see no objection to the requirement that no delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention without first obtaining leave of the convention. Although we do find a lot of fault--maybe not fault--but I oppose a majority of this convention being able to prescribe penalties, when those penalties...the limits of those penalties are not outlined in these rules. This means that you could...if you decided that you didn't like the excuse that someone gave, by majority of this convention, you could say that he is no longer a delegate to this convention. That's one of the extremes. And of course, I know, it's been said before and I agree with that...I don't believe that a majority of us here would do such a thing. But under this rule, we could if we wanted to. And I think we're going too far afield, when we're telling the people who elect delegates that they can't do anything. A majority of us could take any action we deem fit and proper at any given time against any delegate because we don't agree with the excuse that he's given for missing functions of this convention. For that reason, I rise in opposition, unless this rule is amended to take the penalty clause off by majority. I rise in opposition to Rule No. 4. I would like to offer an amendment to take the last sentence out.

Delegate Keane in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, and members of the committee are just now reaching Rule No. 5. It is my suggestion, in these rules that do not strike at the very heart of this convention, that where the question is more or less marginal, that we give the Rules Committee the Benefit of the doubt, rather than assume all sorts of conditions and situations that are very, very unlikely to develop. In the event that they should develop, we can always come back and amend that particular rule and take care of that particular situation. But I implore you almost that let's not pick out every little bit of technicality or anything you bring up that could possibly happen, because we'll always have an opportunity to come back and correct that situation that we assume now might develop and chances are will never develop.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Tapper to Committee Resolution No. 1 by Mr. Stagg, amending the original resolution, Amendment No. 1, on page 2, line 20, immediately after the word and punctuation "convention," strike out the remainder of the line and strike out lines 21 and 22 in their entirety. Is that not the sense of your amendment, Mr. Tapper?

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we discussed this at some considerable length in the Rules Committee, and it was the consensus of the Rules Committee that the convention could not pass, in effect, an ex post facto law punishing a member after it had occurred. We left...we prescribed no penalties because we don't think it is going to be necessary to do it. If it should become necessary in the future to prescribe penalties because of continued absences of the delegates, the convention could then prescribe penalty for future absences or transgressions. And I oppose the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I would like to emphasize Mr. Burn's remarks. We have been here an hour; we're on Rule No. 5; we're arguing about details, and we appointed a good Rules Committee. They did a magnificent job, I think. And here we are trying to tear this thing apart, before we ever get into the real meat of what we are going to have to do. Now we've got a year to do a lot of work, and if we spend all of our time doing what we are today, nitpicking on minor details...I'm not worried about what's going to happen in the way of the convention prescribing penalties for me if I'm absent or anything like that, because I think we are all adults and I think that we can all decide what we need to do and what we don't need to do. And I'd like to get this thing moving, and I urge you: let's quit nitpicking and tearing these minor details apart, and let's move on with this session and I move the previous question.

Question

Mr. Womack Mr. Abraham, wouldn't you agree, that whether you leave this in or whether you take it out, that any member of this convention could introduce a resolution at any time censuring any other member of this Constitution and that we are wasting a lot of time for nothing?

Mr. Abraham Correct me if I'm wrong, Mr. Womack, but isn't there a rule like this in the Constitution that you have any worry about it? Then why are we worrying about it now? I move the previous question.

Point of Order

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates to the Convention, as I appreciate Robert's Rules of Order, which we are operating on at this time...I'd like for a ruling of the Chair to determine whether or not a delegate can get up and speak in opposition to an amendment and move the previous question at the same time. I think he's out of order.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Keane The parliamentarian, the temporary parliamentarian, says the motion is always in order and, therefore, the vote will occur on the motion for a previous question.

Appeal from Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Stinson Mr. Acting Chairman, I wish to appeal the rule of the Chair. I don't know who's keeping that list up there, but from the first I stood up and asked to be recognized and never was. I don't know whether I'm on the list or not. But there are several things I think are very important there that haven't even been discussed. If we're going to railroad this, I'll just move the adoption of all the rules in glob and go home.

Mr. Keane Mr. Stinson, you rose to appeal to the Chair. You are now speaking on the motion.

Mr. Stinson No, sir, I rose some time before, and I'm giving my reasons to objecting to the ruling of the Chair.

Mr. Keane Your appeal to the ruling of the Chair is out of order.

Mr. Stinson You can't rule me out of order; you've got to have the body vote.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Point of Information

Mr. Avant On a point of information, Mr. Chairman, I understood the Chairman to say that it took a two-thirds vote to move the previous question. Now my question is this...I rise for a question. We are proceeding under Robert's Rules of Order, as I understand it.

Mr. Kean That's correct.

Mr. Avant And I'm not sure if that is recorded in Robert's...

Mr. Kean That's what the Clerk, our temporary parliamentarian, advised me.

Mr. Poynter I have a copy. Page twenty-four, the motion takes two-thirds present and voting.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, apparently it's too late to get out from under the steamroller. But my motion was to appeal the ruling and it should have been an affirmative vote for my motion, and you changed it and I personally didn't realize you were changing it. The vote affirmative would have been to overrule the Chair. Negative would have been, in effect, sustaining the Chair. And it's a parliamentary procedure. You did not state the question correctly.

Mr. Kean Mr. Stinson, it is my appreciation that the motion to overrule the Chair is put in the affirmative to the group. And the move is to sustain the Chair, and I now wish to move forward to the motion of the previous question.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Closing

Mr. Tapper I didn't...I didn't intend to come here to nit-pick and as someone said before--I don't know whether he is going to vote for my amendment or not--I said, "We're really in trouble with this type of steamroller, we're really in trouble." I want to commend the Rules Committee, because I think also, they've done a wonderful job and this may be the only rule that I will approach this rostrum on. However, I would not have approached this rostrum if I had not thought that this was one of the more serious ones of the entire set of rules. And I reiterate what I said before--if a majority of this convention can mete out any type of penalty for any member of this convention, then I don't think--I know--we've started off on the wrong foot. Why couldn't we prescribe the limits of the penalty that can be imposed by the majority of this convention? Sixty-seven members of this convention can impose any type of penalty they so desire. Certainly we don't intend...we hope to except sixty-seven members to be rational and not to try to do anything beyond the reasonable. But why put it in the rule giving sixty-seven members that right? Why should we not prescribe the limits of the penalty that can be meted out by the majority of this convention? And I urge your adoption of my amendment and, hopefully, another amendment will be proposed to limit the type of penalties that we can prescribe. I don't believe the people of this state want a majority sitting here to tell them that someone they elected to this convention hall is no longer a delegate here. Thank you.

[Amendment accepted: 65-70.]

Point of Information

Mr. Lowe Mr. Chairman and delegates to this convention, it occurred to me that we are adopting rules and, in the process of adopting rules, we haven't even decided how we can change them. I am sure that the Chairman of the Rules Committee has his plan for adopting these rules and I don't intend to try to change his plans, but I would like to suggest to him that many of us may feel a little differently about certain items that aren't substantive, if we know that these rules can be changed later in a certain way. By the time we get down to Rule No. 84, which deals with rule changes, we will have adopted the majority of our rules without, in effect, knowing what it will take to change them. So the matter of suggestion, I would certainly like to vote on the rest of the rules after we've decided what it will take to change the rules.

Mr. Henry Well, at the appropriate time, and this is not the appropriate time, Mr. Lowe, you may make such a motion to the convention, but you would be out of order at this time.

Amendment

Mr. Stinson I do not have it prepared. It is only the deletion of one word. You notice, it says without...no delegate shall absent himself from the convention without first obtaining leave of the convention. I feel that the word "first" should be deleted, because we had three, or two or three, today that were absent. They could not have obtained leave of the convention because if you look at Chapter VI on the transaction of daily business, the first thing is roll call. You call the roll; therefore, they could not get leave of this convention until they're already an absentee. I would like to move that we delete the word, "first".

Questions

Mr. Velazquez While you are correct in saying that a roll call can't be interrupted, am I not right in assuming that a roll call can be supplemented by a statement as was done today by, I believe, Representative Jenkins? Would this not then give the total picture on the representation present?

Mr. Stinson Well, I can foresee that we'll have a lot of this to come up during, if we leave very often. And mine would take care of...would not require the necessity of doing that. Legally, I don't think that you could supplement it because, as I say when you call the session, the first thing is roll call and you cannot interrupt it. A man technically is already absent before he gets his leave. In case of sickness, if we adjourn...before we adjourn today, I couldn't ask for a leave of absence for sickness tomorrow, when I don't know whether I am going to be sick or not. So, I think that the deletion of the word "first" would cure it, and we wouldn't have any problems of possibly trying to correct the roll call.

Mr. Velazquez Would you not then say that, since the roll call is part of the book of proceedings and not the book of proceedings is part of the roll call, that this is already covered?

Mr. Stinson No, I don't think so. The first thing is the roll call. Even before we have the prayer. Then you're technically already absent. If you did that, the first thing we know there would be a man maybe absent last week to come and say, "Well, John Jones was absent a week ago; we'd like to give him a leave of absence now." I think it's best just to delete this one word. I think it would be the cure-all.

Mr. Velazquez If Delegate Jones had a good excuse a week ago, it's still a good excuse today.

Mr. Stinson But, Delegate Jones should have given that excuse a week ago. If you start dropping back week after week, you're going to find a lot of paperwork and problems, and I think this would cure it.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Velazquez The exact amount of paperwork and problems is not as important as giving Delegate justice. I do give Delegate Jones justice requires excessive paperwork, give him all the paper he needs.

Mr. Stinson I agree with you and my amendment would do just what you want. If they are, without obtaining leave of the convention, which would take care of your problem...This says he first has to get leave of the convention before he can be absent. I say that what you want would be served by my amendment.

Mr. Velazquez I feel that what I want is served in the rules as already written.

Mr. Stinson Well, that's a matter of opinion and I'm sure you're right in your contention, and I think in mine that it should be this way, too. I'd like to move the adoption, if no further questions...

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: "iva vo-e."]

Questions

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman, at this time I share Senator De Blieux's concern and I ask the question: The rule as submitted after amendment provides that no delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention...without first obtaining leave of the convention...without obtaining leave of the convention. I ask is there any provision in the rule by which leave of the convention can be obtained by a delegate who absents himself from a committee meeting or other service of the convention, when the convention itself is not in order?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Leigh, in answer to your question, the committees are empowered by these rules to adopt their own committee rules which will be in force and effect while the committee sessions of this convention are the rule, or what's going on, rather than the convention itself. And the committee, each committee, may adopt such a rule as you suggest for its own operation.

Mr. Leigh Do I understand that the committee rules can supersede the convention rules?

Mr. Stagg If they are not in opposition to the rules of this convention...That's also covered in a future rule. I hope that everybody, if you have not already read these rules, will do so as the day proceeds. But the language...I mean the answers to several of the questions that have occurred are in later sections of the rules, and I urge the delegates to read these rules. They were put seventy-two hours in advance in order that you could do so.

Mr. Leigh I've read the rules, Mr. Stagg, but I still inquire as to whether a rule by a committee which provides some different procedure would not be in conflict with the rules as adopted by the convention? And I am concerned about the matter.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Leigh, my only reply to you, sir, is that the committees could not adopt rules that were in opposition to the rules of the convention, and it certainly would be normal to expect that any rule would be in complete harmony with these rules.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champaigne My only reason, Mr. Chairman, for coming up here is because many of us are committed to a new and shorter constitution. If we're going to take this long to decide on a few rules, that I have questions about that probably some of us didn't read fully, then I don't know how long we're going to be here. In other words, I want to point out to you, that one of the faults of the present constitution is that you can speak for hours and hours and words and words and pages and pages and not cover every eventuality. And I feel that, if we don't try not to cover every eventuality in this thing, then it's going to take us years to get these rules. And I would just implore upon you, if possible, to try to resolve this thing a little faster. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Chairman and delegates, I realize that we have numerous amendments to Rule No. 5, but in order that we may clarify this rule, I would like to make one more amendment. If you'll notice, the first line reads, "no delegate shall absent himself from service of the convention without first obtaining leave of the convention." I'd like to add the words, "while in session at the convention" so the amendment would read "no delegate shall absent himself from service of the convention while in session, without first obtaining leave of the convention."

Mr. Henry Mr. Bergeron. Is your amendment in writing, Mr. Bergeron?

Mr. Poynter I'll put it in writing, Mr. Bergeron.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, in Rule No. 34, which had to do with the daily sessions of the convention, it states that a delegate may be excused from attendance at daily sessions, only with leave from the Chairman, and no delegate shall be compensated for the day on which he is absent from the convention session. The daily excuse is in Rule No. 34. The excuse that we have under debate now has to do with an extended absence, requiring leave of a different variety. So the question is, do you think that the Rules Committee took purview of: One for an extended absence and the other, that is, the absence from convention service. The other in Rule No. 34 has to do with a daily or a much shorter range of absence. And I think that that would cover the objection of the gentleman.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think that this pertains to absences other than a daily absence. If it's more than one day, we should say that. And I further say that since this says service of the convention it could be to any committee meeting or any other thing that the delegate may be called upon to perform. I'd like to say this with reference to these rules: These rules are about just as important as anything we're going to do. I don't want to filibuster these rules. I don't want to nit-pick them or anything else like that. I know we can change them from time to time, but they are going to provide for the orderly manner in which we are going to go about the adoption of a constitution. And we want to be sure that we have down here the way we are going to proceed and the order in which we should proceed to do our business, so that we can understand them and the Chairman can understand them because it is going to be his duty and responsibility to enforce them. We ought to know what we are doing and not adopt rules which will be inconsistent with each other. However, I call your attention again that this says with leave of the convention. Rule No. 34 says that the Chairman can relieve a delegate from attending any daily session. And I still say that they are inconsistent with each other. Now if we are going to let the Chairman grant the excuses, let's say that. And if we are going to let somebody else do it, let's say that and stand at that. Let's don't have inconsistent rules, because it's going to be mighty hard for the Chairman to enforce.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Bergeron]... on page 2, immediately after the word "convention" delete the period. This is on line 20, page 2. Line 20, immediately after the word "convention" delete the period and insert the following: "while in session."

Closing

Mr. Bergeron Ladies and gentlemen, I would like to say in closing on this that, as Senator De Bieux has brought out, Rule No. 34 covers daily sessions, whereas Rule No. 5--we could be in the service of the convention for the next year. So this specifically clarifies the issue, and I ask that you'd please support it.

Point of Information

Mr. Derbes I'm Jim Derbes from New Orleans--my point of order, if I understand from listening to the Clerk read the proposed amendment, that the new language was inserted, from the Clerk's reading, at the end of the sentence and it should appear after the first word. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Bergeron The amendment should be read "no delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention while in session, without first obtaining leave of the convention."

Mr. Henry Is that the manner in which you read the...?

Mr. Poynter No, it's not. It should read, correctly. On page 2, line 19, immediately after the word "convention" insert the words "while in session".

[Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I rise to offer an amendment because I think, if we adopt Rule No. 5 as it reads right now, that means that anytime somebody has to be absent from this convention, he's going to have to have a vote of the whole convention, whereas Rule No. 34 says that you can be excused from attendance from a daily session with leave from the Chairman. I think there's no way we can have it both ways. So I would like to offer an amendment that would state as follows: "Leave of the convention for absence from a daily session may be obtained by obtaining leave from the Chairman, as set out in Rule No. 34."

Mr. Henry Gentlemen, these amendments do need to be in writing. Can you whip him out an amendment there, Mr. Clerk? Can you write an amendment for him?

Mr. Poynter I'd be happy to. He's going to hand me the language.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham I would like to say this: that Mr. Burson's amendment, in trying to do something so it will not be in conflict with Rule No. 34, that we can do this just as well by not having Rule No. 5 at all; so I don't know where we are heading here.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Burson The only point that I wanted to make was--and the reason I made the amendment was--the general language in Rule No. 5, as it would remain after the amendments that we have accepted, it seems to me, would require a vote of the whole convention anytime somebody wanted to be absent from a daily session, which I think is cumbersome and unworkable and also in direct contradiction with proposed Rule No. 34.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amending the original resolution, Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Burson]. On page 2, immediately after the word--this is line 20 this time--immediately after the word and punctuation "convention," add the following: "Leave for absence from a daily session may be obtained from the Chairman as provided in Rule No. 34."

[Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, is there now in order a motion to adopt Rule No. 5 as amended?

Mr. Henry Absolutely, yes, sir.

[Rule reread with proposed amendments.]

Mr. Poynter As I appreciate it, with the four amendments it would read as follows: "No delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention while in session without obtaining leave of the convention. Leave for absence from a daily session may be obtained from the Chairman as provided in Rule No. 34."

Point of Order

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I was under the impression when it was approved that it read, "no delegate shall absent himself from the service of the convention without obtaining leave of the convention while the convention is in session," which is different from the way he reads it now.

Mr. Henry Mr. Clerk, that's not correct, according to the Clerk, Mr. Kean. Gentlemen, I realize that the Chair is giving you a great deal of latitude, but I believe that this is necessary in adopting these rules in our deliberations; so if you will, bear with me.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, as the amendment... as the rule now reads, after the adoption of the amendments, how could I obtain leave? If I understand or was listening correctly, if the convention is in session, I have got to get their permission, and then before I can leave, I've also got to get the Chairman's permission--if I understood the way they read the rule, as it now stands amended.

Mr. Stagg As I understand it, Senator Rayburn, that while the convention is in session, something similar to that which was done this morning by Representative Jenkins on behalf of Wellborn Jack, who is at home sick in bed, and leave of the convention to excuse his absence was asked.

Mr. Rayburn Could we have it read again, slowly?

[Rule reread as amended. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Recess

[Adjournment: no delegates present and a question.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 6. Absent Delegates. At any time the convention is in session, whether upon first convening of the day's session or anytime after the hour has arrived to which the convention stood adjourned, the Chairman is authorized to send the sergeant at arms for any or all absent delegates, as the majority of such delegates present shall agree.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes I object to Rule No. 6 because it repeats Rule No. 4. It's really a subset of Rule No. 4, and again it would appear that we would try to streamline the rules, if it's an indication of what we are going to do for the constitution.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Temporary Committee on Rules, we move the adoption of Rule No. 7.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 7. Expenses of Compelling Attendance. Any expenses involved in compelling the presence of an absent delegate shall be borne by such delegate, unless such excuse of nonattendance has been made as a majority of a quorum shall judge sufficient, in which case the expense shall be paid out of the appropriated funds to the convention.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Temporary Rules Committee moves the adoption of Rule No. 8. Admission to the Floor.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 8. Persons Admitted. No person shall be admitted on the convention floor while the convention is in session or during the period five minutes before the time set for the convening of each session or the period five minutes after the adjournment of each session, except that delegates and members of the convention staff may remain on the floor. Representatives of the news media shall be admitted to the floor as provided in Rule No. 11. Written messages may be delivered to the delegates by a sergeant at arms from persons outside the restricted area. The convention floor, for purposes of these rules, is defined as the entire enclosed seating area of the delegates.

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Temporary Rules Committee moves the adoption of Rule No. 9, except that a committee amendment that the word "convention" in line 3 should have a capital C rather than a lower case c; and with that amendment, we move its adoption.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Mr. Stagg In line 14, the word "convention" floor is there. That "convention" should have a beginning capital "C".

Mr. Henry It is a technical amendment, Mr. Denery.

[Rule adopted as amended: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Temporary Rules Committee moves the adoption of Rule No. 10 with a technical amendment in line 17 that the word "convention floor"--"convention" should have a capital "C".

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 10. Special Permission. Special permission to sit on the convention floor may be granted by the Chairman of the convention to visiting officials of other states or of the United States or of foreign countries.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Question

Mr. Segura I just wanted to ask and suggest that we might not add the State of Louisiana in there.

Mr. Stagg It was the considered opinion, Mr. Segura, of the Rules Committee that the convention floor would not be open to the officials of the State of Louisiana, and this rule is taken from other similar rules--including those of the Louisiana House and Senate--and the floor of this convention is for the delegates. And when there is an honored visitor from out of the state who would be here for the purpose of observing our convention, he would be allowed the privilege of the floor and no other.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the Rules Committee...on behalf of the Rules Committee, I move the adoption of Rule No. 11 on News Media.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 11 News Media. A designated place in the convention hall shall be provided for the news media, who shall have free access thereto. Accreditation of members of the press, and of members of any news media, for admission shall be administered by the Chairman. No member of the press or of any news media shall conduct any interview with a delegate on the convention floor while the convention is in session.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 12. Administration of Rules. The Chairman of the Convention shall provide for the administration of the rules governing admission to the convention as provided herein.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Temporary Rules Committee, we move the adoption of Rule No. 13.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 13. Regulation of Convention Area. The Chairman shall have the regulation and control of such parts of the convention hall and its passage, or any other places of general assembly as are or may be set apart for the use of the convention, its officers and employees.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 14. Restrictions on Non-delegates. No motion shall be deemed in order to admit any person not a delegate to the convention floor to present any petition, memorial, or address, or to read the same.

Mr. Stagg I move its adoption.

Questions

Mrs. Taylor Does this mean...does this mean that the governor of the state will not be allowed to address the convention?

Mr. Stagg That is exactly what it means, Mrs. Taylor. We will be operating as a convention and, many times, when a speaker or a technical expert or some other person whose testimony is desired by the entirety of the convention, the way you do that parliamentarywise is that the convention will resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole, while in a Committee of the Whole, as a committee, this convention--and the same people that you see sitting in the room will be sitting as a Committee of the Whole, and such things would be in order parliamentarywise--but while the convention is in its deliberations, the rule against any other person reading or presenting a speech to the convention is the nature of the rule and the reason for it.

Mr. Triche I'm doing the best I can, Mr. Chairman. I'd like to ask Mr. Stagg a question and, particularly, with regard to your answer to Mrs. Taylor's question. Rule No. 65, in regard to the Committee of the Whole, says that in the Committee of the Whole the rules of procedure adopted by the convention shall apply. That seems to indicate to me that I should be allowed to stand in the Committee of the Whole to invite outside speakers to speak before the convention. I know that the convention wants to be unfettered and free in its deliberations, and I can foresee that there are going to be some times when the convention will want to invite not only the governor, but possibly the treasurer, the collector of revenue, and other persons. I'd like to have it clear that this would be allowed in the rule as contemplated by the committee in regards to the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Triche, on behalf of the Temporary Rules Committee, we may respectfully request that you prepare and send to the Chair a perfecting amendment on that section entitled Committee of the Whole?

Mr. Burson Mr. Stagg, I have a question. Isn't it true that this rule, as any other rule of the convention, could be suspended if special circumstances arose that would warrant it?

Mr. Stagg There is no question but what that these rules can be suspended anytime the convention, in voting a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules to permit any such thing to occur, particularly as suggested by Representative Taylor.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, am I correct in thinking that, probably, if our constituents--you know I ran and told the people I was going to represent them? If I vote for this motion, they can't even come on this floor. They can't be heard if they want to appear. They can't say anything, if I adopt this motion. Can we go in a Committee of the Whole and hear someone who likes to appear before a body or committee, or will this keep us from doing this?

Mr. Stagg Senator Rayburn, I believe that either under a suspension of the rules or in the Committee of the Whole, if there was someone that the convention wished to hear speak and this rule would be the prevention of it, that there are two devices by which this rule could be relaxed, but it would require a vote of the convention to decide whether they wanted to hear one of your constituents or not.

Mr. Rayburn The rule now reads "No motion shall be deemed in order to admit any person not a delegate"...and certainly I don't know all the answers, and I don't think you do either.

Mr. Stagg You are absolutely right.

Mr. Rayburn "...to the convention floor," and I don't want to be placed in a position for some of my people back home saying I voted for a motion that they couldn't even come to the floor or couldn't even address this convention. And that is my worry.

Mr. Stagg Well, Mr. Rayburn, I think the rule clearly states, just exactly as you read it, that unless there was a motion before this convention to suspend the rules--and that takes a two-thirds vote--or if it were in the Committee of the Whole, that then, only under those circumstances, could a person not a delegate to the convention present any petition, memorial, or address, or read the thing; and that's the effect of the rule.

Mr. Duvall You had mentioned that a two-thirds vote was required to suspend the rules. Am I not correct that the rules conflict that a majority of the delegates to the convention can suspend these rules and, in that way, of course, persons could come to the floor? Is that correct, sir?

Mr. Henry That's Rule No. 85.

Mr. Stagg You're right. One or more rules may be suspended. Look at this: "one or more rules may be suspended for a specified purpose by an affirmative vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting or a majority of the delegates of the convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number."

Mr. [A.] Jackson Mr. Stagg, did I understand that we can relax this particular provision by suspension of the rules? But it is my appreciation--and I'll be corrected if I'm wrong--that, in order to suspend the rules, you're going to have a motion to suspend the rules. Yet, it's still in Rule No. 14 that says that no motion shall be deemed in order to suspend the rules. Like, for example, I may want to move to suspend the rules...ask the leave of the convention to suspend the rules--to allow the attorney general to speak, but I am just wondering, under Rule No. 14, since the language itself suggested that no motion shall...

Mr. Stagg That language, Mr. Jackson, in my opinion and in the opinion of the Temporary Rules Committee, when we discussed this, a general motion brought up by a member in order to allow the attorney general would not be in order. But a motion to suspend the rules to permit that would be in order. And that would require two-thirds of the people present and voting or a majority of the delegates to the convention, whichever is the lesser number.

Mr. Jackson But that's the interpretation of the Rules Committee in the intent.

Mr. Stagg That's the intention of the rule, Mr. Jackson; yes, sir.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, we are here today, in my opinion, for one of the greatest undertakings that we've had in many years. Why I'm here, I really don't know. Senator Blair spent the night with me last night and I asked him this morning; I said, "I've been in political office, if I serve this term, thirty-two years. How did you make this mistake, I'll never know. Have you got any idea?" But I think, in adopting these rules and the procedure of this convention, we should be real cautious. We are the people's delegate, not our own delegate. We don't have all the answers and we never will have. And I know how to get around this rule if I want to, but then snuff dipper and tobacco chasers back home don't know. And for that Times-Picayune to carry an article in the morning that I voted for a rule that would prevent them from coming on this floor or coming to see me, in my opinion, is bad. I am their representative. We spent almost a half a day on rules, worried about what we're going to do with those that didn't want to come. Didn't want to come, what're we going to? We're going to assess them, send the police after them, drag them up, bring them up. You know how I feel about that? Some of you that ran this office, if you don't want to come, we'd be better off without you. Why worry about how to get them here? You might not want them after you got them. Have you ever thought of that? You might... I remember one time I had one of the best friends I had in the Senate say, "If you need me, send after me." Well, I needed him. Got a trooper, sent to the hotel, got him out of bed, held the committee up until we got him dressed. He walked in and said, "Vote me No." And that is a true story. So I say this: the people sent us here. In my opinion, this is not the delegate's convention: this is the people's convention. If you're going to try to hamstring and restrict, at the beginning, who can come here and make their views known, who can be heard here, you are going to defeat this thing before we get it started. And you remember and you believe what I've told you. And I think time will bear me out. We are here to serve the people of this state. We are here to do what they think needs to be done, not what you and I... And the only way we're going to know how they feel on issues is to listen to them and hear from them. And I know we can go in a Committee of the Whole. We can hear the attorney general; we can hear the governor; or we can hear other people; but I'd hate to see us go so far as to where the people back home think that we know everything, that we are coming here and we going to solve all the problems without even allowing them a chance to be consulted or to be heard. And you can adopt all the rules you want to. They are no better than the enforcement, just like a law. And I hope that we don't get too streamlined. May I say that we will leave the people back home thinking that we are coming over here and we're going to do something without even allowing them to have an opportunity to come confer with us, come up here before us, come let us know their views, counsel with us, and help us. And I'm going to ask you to proceed with caution with these strenuous rules where nobody can appear on the floor unless you are a delegate. Well, I tell you what, when you was running for this office, you wanted to get everybody to come and listen to you, and you better remember that.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Burson]. On page 4, line 2, after the words "shall be deemed in order" add the words "except a motion to suspend the rules on a motion to go into a Committee of the Whole".

Mr. Burson is this to read "the Committee of the Whole?"

Explanation

Mr. Burson This is just for purposes of clarification. The debate has already brought out that it was the intent of the committee that this rule as well as any other rule could be suspended and that we could move into a Committee of the Whole to hear whomever we wished. But in order to allay any fears that any of the delegates might have that this was not plain enough, I am simply suggesting that we insert language to make it plain.

[Amendment reread.]

Question

Mr. Blair Mr. Burson, what is your vote on suspending the rules?

Mr. Burson The vote on suspending the rules as I understand it from the subsequent rule in the book says... or a majority of the delegates, whichever is the lesser number". The majority of the delegates being sixty-seven, I would interpret that to mean that sixty-seven votes could suspend the rules at any time.

[Previous question order of Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [As Mr. Triche]. On page 4, at the end of line 4, delete the period ".," and add the following: "except in the Committee of the Whole as may be provided by the convention in accordance with Rule No. 65."

Explanation

Mr. Triche I move the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Speaker. As I appreciate the gentleman from St. Landry's amendment, it addresses itself to clearing up the language about when a motion shall be in order, and frankly, in my judgment, a motion to suspend the rules is always in order and a motion to resolve into a Committee of the Whole would always be in order, except in special circumstances. But it doesn't clear up the language that once we are in the Committee of the Whole, then no motion shall be in order to admit a delegate to the floor, the convention floor, because the rules on the Committee of the Whole say that when we're in the Committee of the Whole the rules of the convention apply. And we have to go back to Rule No. 14 and apply Rule No. 14, so we get ourselves caught in a position where we're never going to be, by majority vote of this convention, allowed to admit persons to address the convention, except when we suspend the rules. And I suggest to you that suspension, the availability of suspension of rules is not enough protection, because you are going to find, I think, that there are some delegates here who are, as a matter of policy, going to rarely vote to suspend the rules. So you put a harsh limitation on the person or delegate when you tell them you can do this if you can get a suspension of the rules. So I think if you adopt this amendment, it will provide then that no motion will be in order to all our people to address the convention, except when you're in the Committee of the Whole. When we get to the rules on the Committee of the Whole, I think to spell it out, we ought to offer another amendment to spell it out clearly that when we are in the Committee of the Whole, a majority of the delegates of this convention can invite people to address the convention in order to present petitions and memorials and so forth.

Question

Mr. Stinson Mr. Triche, when we are in the Committee of the Whole as you say, usually in advance you know who's going to be the speaker and what's the subject and so forth. Is there any limitation on how many can come in? We may be in committee the whole day... hear from one man, Governor Edwards or someone like that, or anyone, and then we will open the door of what will be as many coming in as want to. The Committee of the Whole is not actually in session. Will there be any danger under your amendment on that? We may anticipate two or three speakers and end up with fifty.

Mr. Triche Of course, Mr. Stinson, when we're in the Committee of the Whole, the majority of the delegates present in the Committee of the Whole control the action of the committee, except as otherwise specified by the rules. And when we get to the rules on the Committee of the Whole, I want to propose or ask someone else to propose an amendment which will allow the Committee of the Whole to invite speakers to speak before the committee and to invite them to present petitions and memorials or whatever the convention would like. All of that is to be controlled by a majority of the delegates present, when the committee sits as a Committee of the Whole. Now it may be that we'll want to allow only one speaker. It may be that we'll want several. That's going to address itself to the committee and be determined by those voting in the Committee of the Whole.

Mr. Henry I think, gentlemen, if it might help-- the rules, the proposed rules, do provide that when you go into the Committee of the Whole, that the purpose for going into the Committee of the Whole must be stated at that time, and if we adopt that rule, I think it might clear up any concern that you have now.

[Amendment reread. Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Point of Order

Mr. Stagg Has the motion to insert language after the word "order" in line 2 been adopted?

Mr. Henry Yes, it has.

Question

Mr. Roy Mr. Stagg, this may be an obvious question, I'm not sure, but I was impressed by Senator Rayburn and I want to ask one thing about it. Looks like we've all been talking about or assuming that someone will address the convention. I'm wondering if the rule as it is amended and may be adopted would prevent anyone from offering a petition to any one of us on the floor. Or does it mean that a citizen will not be allowed to offer a formal petition for action by this Constitutional Convention?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Roy, in answering your question: I listened very carefully to Mr. Rayburn and I did not agree with some of what he said that when a citizen of this state wishes to make a presentation of a position or an issue in this convention, certainly such a person, a citizen of this state, would be welcome. We are contemplating in these rules a number of committees that will be concerned with the substance of this constitution, and that these committees will be in session both before July 5, as well as afterwards, to which committees, will be invited and impleaded and treated that the citizens of this state bring to the attention of the committee members matters concerned with this constitution. What this rule means is that a person with a petition cannot walk down those steps, who's not a delegate, walk out onto the floor, come to this microphone and present his petition to this body. It would have to be done by a person who is a delegate to this convention.

[Previous question ordered. Rule reread as amended.]

Closing

Mr. Stagg The rule as amended, Mr. Chairman, has been adopted in this body by the vote that we have just heard, and there is nothing else that the Committee on Rules can add to it at this time.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Temporary Committee on Rules, we move the adoption of Rule No. 15.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 15. Open Meetings. All meetings of the convention shall be open to the public and the news media.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Roemer]. On page 4, at the beginning of line 6, after the portion of the word "tion" and before the word "shall" insert the following: "including committee meetings".

Explanation

Mr. Roemer The amendment simply includes the words on Rule No. 15 to read as follows: "all meetings of the convention, including committee meetings, shall be open to the public and the news media." I think the intent of Rule No. 15 was just that. I would like for the language to read just that. In line with my idea, as most of you have expressed, that our salvation in this endeavor is acceptance of our actions by the public. I think that that acceptance will stem from two things: our personal integrity and the work of the diligent press. It is to that end that I offer this amendment and move its adoption.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Roemer, if you will look at Rule No. 58, you will find the requirement that all committee hearings shall be open to the public. I think that what you've offered is within keeping with the desire of the Rules Committee. We simply had it over in the section dealing with committee hearings.

Mr. Roemer Agreed. I still offer it for this present Rule No. 15.

Mr. Velazquez I wish to ask the question of someone. In Rule No. 56, on page 17, line 30, it states: "the various articles of the proposed draft of the constitution shall be prepared under the direction and supervision of the respective substantive committees. That, in conjunction, with Rule No. 58 on page 18, line 14 and following "all committee hearings shall be publicized, shall be open to the public, and may be recorded verbatim, including the testimony of those wishing to be heard. Do you not feel that these two rules in conjunction give us the significant public input and allow the public who have petitions and who have ideas which might help the constitution to make their point known?"

Mr. Roemer Yes. When in conjunction with the changes, as proposed, to Rule No. 15.

Mr. Triche Mr. Roemer, and I may be addressing the question to the wrong person, but I'd like to get your opinion and maybe we can stimulate some discussion on it. There may come a time when the Executive Committee which is charged under the law with the responsibility of assembling a research staff, will want to meet in executive session when it discusses the personalities of the persons who are to make up the research staff. I think we may find in that exceptional circumstance that it'd be beneficial to allow the Executive Committee for that particular purpose only, to meet in executive session. Now, I wonder if you could tell us what the further rules of the convention provide, the further proposed rules, Rule No. 58 and so on, the other rules that pertain to committee hearings not being closed. Does the other rule, together with this rule amended by you, provide or prohibit the Executive Committee from meeting in executive session when it considers the personalities of the persons who will make up the research staff?

Mr. Roemer Rule Nos. 56 and 58 as now stated refer to substantive committees, so therefore don't exclude your executive session. My inclusion does not refer only to substantive committees but refers to all, including the Executive Committee. Now you might wish to amend...

Mr. Triche As I appreciate your amendment if it's adopted as proposed by you, this will prohibit the Executive Committee from meeting in executive session for a limited purpose of considering the staff.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Roemer Exactly. If you so wish, you need to add further language, but mine does not provide for executive session. I do not intend to have such sessions.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Point of Information

Mr. Stovall The question might be directed to you, Mr. Chairman. As open to the public, if there are representatives from our various districts who might be in the audience as spectators, and they desire to speak with one of us, are the pages and ushers instructed to send word to us or bring word to us that we might go back and speak with them?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir, they certainly are.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Jenkins] On page 4, line 6, after the word, portion of the word, "and", insert the words, "including all meetings of committees and subcommittees,".

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman and delegates of the convention, this amendment is basically the same as Mr. Roemer's although it does include subcommittees in addition. The reason that I offer it: I think that we should consider very seriously the fact that the public ought to be able to attend every committee meeting and subcommittee meeting, regardless of whether there is a hearing held. And in addition, I think that on this important matter, all of us ought to be recorded, according to our thoughts on it. Therefore, I offer for the adoption of this amendment, and I ask that a roll call vote be taken.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think the subject matter before us is one of the most important matters that has to do with the passage of this Constitutional Convention. And I say that from personal experience, having headed a Constitutional Convention workshop in Florida. The state of California, the state of Florida, stated that their open meetings, particularly the committee meetings, was one of the reasons that they were able to, in Florida's case, sell their entire package to the citizens of that state. In California, when they moved all around the state, they didn't get the coverage as they did in the Capital, so they lost the second half of their convention. The point being that the public wants to know what we're doing in committee and subcommittee meetings. I guess I don't know the speaker well enough, because I had an amendment written out and I wanted to get my amendment in and therefore I am very proud of the gentleman who put in the amendment, though it was defeated, and now the amendment that's before us. I can't urge you enough and nothing that I can say is strong enough language to urge you to support this amendment. I realize that there may be some people with the Executive Committee, some committee of officers, if we have one and so forth. There may be a reason why they might want to meet in executive session. That will be their problem, whoever is on that meeting. But the sum and substance of what we are talking about, is what's going to go into the constitution and I want to be sure that we're not talking about who we're going to hire and why we want to hire them and who wants this job and why they want this job. That's not really of any tremendous importance in front of us. What's in front of us is this convention that we're writing. And if we're going to pass what we're writing and propose to the Governor and public and the Legislature, it's going to have to be in one hundred percent open meetings. And I just really lean on you and ask you to consider that, and I'd like to see this amendment passed wholeheartedly, one hundred percent, without objection. Because it will show the public our intent to have all committee meetings and all subcommittee meetings open to them. And I'm certain there will be many times when there won't be anybody there, but at times we will have said to the public, "You have the right to come to our meeting, you have the right to come to our committee meeting, you have the right to come to our subcommittee meeting." And I realize that in sections 56, 57, and 58 under committee meetings, why there is some possible difference in the rules in front of us now. Therefore I see a reason to clear it up, so there can be no question of what is before us. It was my definition that what's before us did not include committee meetings, because we are talking about the convention as a whole, one by one by one subject, and there's the section of subcommittee meetings. So I think it belongs right here and hopefully we'll pass the other section when we get to it.

Point of Order

Mr. Womack Mr. Speaker, fellow delegates, as I understand it, with the exception of adding the word "subcommittee", this is exactly the same amendment that was just defeated by the convention. And the point of order that I want to raise is: would I be in order to ask for a division of the question to see that this portion that we had just killed could not be brought back in another form in a substitute added to another technical amendment?

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Henry Mr. Womack, I think that's a constitutional limitation considering the same issue time and time again on the Legislature, which does not apply to the delegates of this convention at this time. So I think that...I think that Mr. LeBreton...Mr. Jenkins' amendment would be in order.

Questions

Mr. Perez Mr. LeBreton, do you realize that the chapter which we are now dealing with deals with the convention floor and that we have a Rule No. 58 which deals with committee meetings and then later on there are provisions with regard to subcommittees which shall do the same thing, the same procedures with respect to committee hearings and wouldn't it be more appropriate to amend the section Rule No. 58 in order to have orderly rules instead of sticking something into Rule No. 15, which really belongs in No. 58?

Mr. LeBreton Well, Mr. Perez, I covered that in my talk by saying that I understood in sections 56, 57 and 58 it went on the committees, but I didn't want to have any delegate have the opinion that this rule would prevail over another section and if the parliamentarian wishes to tell me that this in no way can outlaw having a public subcommittee and committee meetings open, that's all I want, sir. I certainly am not trying to be technical over one section against the other. I have only one point, ladies and gentlemen, and that is to see that the convention, the committee meetings and the subcommittee meetings are open. And, Mr. Chairman, if that's your interpretation then you word's good enough for me, and I rise in behalf of Mr. Jenkins' amendment, I don't have one myself, but I just want to be sure that we're in there and if they are there, then whatever the ruling is from there on as long as we accomplish these three points.

Mr. Lambert Mr. LeBreton, you're familiar in the last session of the Legislature; we, the Legislature, adopted a revised statute Title 42, Section 7, which was a public notice act. I think this is what you have been talking about all this time. Just for what it's worth, I have an amendment prepared that would insert the public notice act and apply to everything that the convention does. And I am going to introduce it shortly, as soon as I am recognized.

Mr. LeBreton And that would cover the three points I'm referring to.

Mr. Lambert I'd cover everything.

Mr. LeBreton Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg I'm speaking on Mr. Jenkins' amendment and I rise in opposition to it. You may quarrel with your Rules Committee about the way these rules are spaced out in your book, but we wrote what we thought was an orderly set of rules and we watched for these things and we gave ourselves notes that when you get to committee hearings, remember notice; when you get to subcommittee hearings, remember that they should be public and open like committees. And in Rule No. 15 we were talking there about the convention, when we got to Rule No. 58, prompted by the notes we wrote to ourselves, we stated "all committee hearings shall be publicized, shall be open to the public and may be recorded verbatim." Then when we got to the rules on subcommittees, where it properly ought to appear, in Rule No. 63, it says very clearly "all rules applicable to committees shall be applicable to subcommittees." And therefore under that interpretation of these rules, no subcommittee can meet without its being publicized and without its being open to the public. And this then is still an orderly document without having nit-picked, put in it here, there and yonder willy-nilly, and Mr. Chairman, I, on a personal point, not for the Committee on Rules, do wish to speak in opposition to Mr. Jenkins' amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Gentlemen, it doesn't appear that any of us are in disagreement at all that we want all of our hearings to be open, all of our meetings to be open. But what we've been doing here is simply debating semantics. And when you say that a committee is a committee, it's part of the convention. We say that the convention is going to be open, well, so are the committees going to be open. And the subcommittee is a committee, I don't care what you call it. Suppose you have a sub-subcommittee, are we going to put in sub-subcommittees? You see, we're simply debating semantics. So, when you say a committee, it includes all types of committees. And in this rule where it says, "No committee shall sit during sessions of the convention," this means this is part of the work of the convention. This convention, to me, doesn't mean that we all have to be sitting here. Committees are part of this convention. So, let's get off the semantics and get on with the substance of the rules.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, as a member of the Rules Committee, I suggested in the Rules Committee exactly what has been argued here on the floor. The reason I brought up the question before Mr. Roemer was to indicate to this group that the Rules Committee has no intention in their recommendation of these rules to have any secret sessions. I would propose that when we get to the section on committees, change the word "hearing" or "hearings"—it's in Section 58, I think it is, whichever one it is, to "committee meetings" and I think then we can get to the issue and logical order. And I'd like to now move the previous question on this...

[Previous question deferred.]

Closing

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, my interest in offering this amendment was to clear up a point on page 18 at the top of the page. In the section titled "Committee Hearings" it deals with the fact that committee hearings would be open to the public, but it did not mention that all meetings of committees would be open to the public. Of course, every time you have a committee meeting, you would not necessarily have a committee hearing. However, after conferring with the Chairman and the Vice-Chairman of the Rules Committee, they have agreed that at the time we reach that section that deals with those rules regarding committee hearings, they will support amendments to change that word from "committee hearings" to "committee meetings", so that all committee meetings would be open to the public. And so, because of that agreement, I would like to withdraw my amendment with the understanding that we will offer additional amendments at that time to cover this same subject matter.

[Amendment withdrawn. Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Lambert, Mr. Wall, Mr. Brown, Mr. Giarrusso, Guarisco, Mr. Anzalone, Mr. Fayard. Amendment No. 1, on page 4, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following: "Rule No. 15.1. Public Notice. The provisions of R.S. 42:7, Statute Title 42, Section 7, shall be applicable to all meetings of this Constitutional Convention, all meetings of its committees, subcommittees, all proceedings, hearings, and other related activities."

Explanation

Mr. Lambert Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this creates a new section entitled "Public Notice" and what it does, it incorporates into the convention's activities whether it be the convention meeting as a whole, whether it be a meeting of a committee or subcommittee, public hearing, any other proceeding or related activity of the convention, a Legislative Act that was adopted the last session of the legislature. And what this says, in order to save time, I'm going to read it to you real quick. "Revised Statutes 42:7 Fixed Time and Place of Regular Meetings, Notice of Special Meetings, The Constitutional Convention--I've inserted the word Constitutional Convention in place of all such councils, police juries, governing bodies, boards or authorities--shall fix the time and place of regular meetings and in the event of deviation from the fixed time or place of meetings, or in the event of special meetings, advance public notice shall be given by legible notices posted on the bulletin board or other prominent place at the domicile and place at which the meeting is to be held, if different from the domicile of the council, police jury, governing body, board or authority calling such meeting, and by such other means as are consistent with circumstances. In the case of a special meeting or of a change in the time or location of a regular meeting, the presiding officer of the meeting of the public body shall give the news media which have requested notice by telephone, by telephoning the body, and addresses, notice of the times and places of such meetings at least two hours prior to said meeting, except in cases of dire emergency. The notice to be given of special meetings or changes in time or location of a regular meeting may be given by telephone or telegram, provided that any news media which has equidistant notice shall be conclusively presumed to have consented to payment of charges for the telephone call, or telegram providing the notice. What this amendment does, it incorporates this statute and makes it applicable to all meetings of this convention. This was adopted in the last session of the legislature.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

I think there was probably no opposition to it. If there are no questions, I ask for final passage.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Mr. Lambert would you turn to Rule No. 62 in your rule book, and tell me does not what you suggest...

Mr. Lambert No sir, it doesn't. The heading as I see it says "Notice of Committee Meetings." This amendment incorporates the meeting of the convention as a whole, committee meetings, subcommittee meetings, all proceedings, hearings or other related activities. That's one of the reasons for putting this special section in. I've heard a lot of people talk about...that's why I think we have some amendments breaking it down into subcommittees, committees, etc. I think this covers everything, and that was the purpose of the section. It may duplicate in some areas, but I think it covers the entire convention's activities.

Mr. Stagg The question is not does it duplicate it, but does it not supersede or find itself in conflict with the language appearing in Rule No. 62?

Mr. Lambert In what way?

Mr. Stagg "This committee hearing shall not be scheduled less than four days from the date of the notice to the secretary. This rule shall apply when the convention is not in session," and then we have a Rule B, which will be presented in Rule No. 62 about committee sessions while the Constitutional Convention is in session and how it may be called. Are you engrafting onto this rule a Legislative Act which is or will be in conflict with this? And if you are—I think you might be—should you not also pen language to your motion to say that if any other rule of this convention be in conflict herewith that this rule shall apply. We've got to have some saving language. We tried to cover all the facts you just said in Rule No. 62 A and B.

Mr. Lambert I agree with you, Mr. Stagg, that there possibly could here, and my main objection here is to make sure that we don't omit anything. And I think this covers everything. The amendment that I have introduced, hopefully, may not, but in a case where it may supersede, maybe you're right. Maybe some language should be incorporated.

Mr. Stagg Without that language I can see a hopeless conflict between one section of the rules and the other, because they just may not agree with each other.

Mr. Lambert Well, I agree with you, but I can simply say this. I think this may...and I know the committee did an excellent job, and I'm not being critical at all. I'm doing this in a constructive way. I think this doesn't leave out anything, I don't believe. It was studied very carefully in the last session, and I think the reason that this was introduced was due to the fact that I think there were some meetings that were being held by some public bodies where I think some news media had not been notified, and this was the purpose of this act.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Lambert, I would be put in the unfortunate position of having to vote against your amendment, which I think is a good amendment, unless you put language in there along the lines that Mr. Stagg is talking about, because if not, we'll end up in a hopeless problem of having absolute conflict in the rules. Don't you think...

Mr. Lambert I agree with you and I'm willing to entertain an amendment at this time to do that, Mr. Juneau, if you...

Mr. Stagg Mr. Lambert, we will be some time before we get to Rule No. 62, which covers this problem, and would it not be appropriate to ask that you take Rule No. 62 and read it very carefully and then append or amend to it the language concerning the public notice act at that point in the rules.

Mr. Lambert I have no objection to doing that.

Mr. Henry You going to withdraw the amendment at this time, Senator?

Mr. Lambert In the interest in moving the body along, I will do that and I would like to, when we get to Rule 62, I'm going to have it prepared.

Mr. Henry We will recognize you for that purpose at that time, Senator.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Temporary Committee on Rules, we move the adoption of Rule No. 16.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 16. Convention Officers. The officers of the convention shall be a Chairman, who shall be Chairman of the Convention, a First Vice-Chairman, three Vice-Chairmen, a Secretary and a Treasurer. These officers shall constitute the Executive Committee of the convention, shall be delegates to the convention, and shall each be elected in separate elections by a majority vote of all of the delegates of the convention.

Mr. Stagg I move its adoption, Mr. Chairman.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Reeves and Mr. Roemer to Committee Resolution No. 1 by Mr. Stagg. Amendment No. 1, on page 4, line 13, strike out the word "constitute" and insert in lieu thereof "be members of".

Explanation

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman, delegates, I offer the amendment to Rule No. 16 which substitutes for the word "constitute" "shall be members of." The sentence to read, beginning at line 13, "These officers shall be members of the Executive Committee of the convention, etc. etc." I give this amendment with the following background: I was elected on August 19th to represent District 9, which is the rural part of Bossier and Webster Parish. Living on a cotton farm and not being an attorney, I sometimes feel at a loss with the give-and-take of hot air in these conventions. However, I disagree with the following rules as are related to the Executive Committee, which will limit that committee only to these officers here in Rule No. 16, i.e. will be my subsequent purpose to offer an amendment which will expand the Executive Committee to include one delegate selected from each Congressional District to make that body a total membership of fifteen, eight of which represent the people as a whole, seven of whom are these elected officers. In order to do that secondary amendment, I have to submit this amendment, which in effect changes the Executive Committee from a body of seven, hopefully, to a body of fifteen.

Question

Mr. Duval Mr. Roemer, since you've given us the benefit of that background explanation, would you tell me, do you envision that we will still retain the Committee on Committees which will do the selection of committees in addition to this Executive Committee?

Mr. Roemer Yes, my personal preference is not to change a word of the duties of the Executive Committee, neither to expand or contract, rather to keep the Committee on Committees. I'm adding members, not changing rules, in regard to their duties.

Further Discussion

Mr. Reeves I, too, would like to change the wording thereof to be members of the Executive Committee. I differ with Mr. Roemer on the selection of the Executive Committee. I feel there should be two persons from each Congressional District. But we can work that out as we get into the Rule No. 18. But I do feel that it is necessary to change Rule No. 16 to read as we have amended "These officers shall be members of the Executive Committee" because if it is as is, "shall constitute", it would mean a closed committee of only the officers and, if you feel very strongly like I do, and I feel very, very strongly on this that the Executive Committee should be members of Congressional Districts--representative of Congressional Districts--as well as officers of the Convention.

Point of Order

Mr. O'Neill I'd like at this time to ask Terry if he would yield to a member of the Rules Committee to explain the reasoning behind this rule as it is set up. I think it's appropriate at this time. I feel not strongly either way, but I think we should have the benefit of their reasoning at this point.

Mr. Henry The Speaker does not have the prerogative to yield the floor.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, we are at the point I thought we'd be at before lunch, and it is beginning to be the crux of the rules which we have offered to this convention. The Rules Committee sought to diversify the power of this convention. It was felt by the members of the committee that that reflected the will of the majority of the delegates. When we decided whether an Executive Committee would be a large unwieldy body or a smaller, more compact group which could act as the administrative body of the convention, we had--we set aside all of the rest of our work at the time--we went into who shall be the officers and where the committee structure would arise from; we went into the whole field of how this convention would operate in order to get to the point of concluding what the officers should be. And having arrived at a balanced structure, we felt that a small Executive Committee, one which could meet around a table and have lunch together, one that could meet on the call of the Chairman readily, one that would not be beset with absences or with quorum problems, would be the preferable one for the business of this convention. Its duties, the Executive Committee duties, that we will get to shortly--when you read them in the rule on the Executive Committee duties you'll note that they are entirely administrative, as set out in the first paragraph under A of Rule No. 18. A maximum representation of the Executive Committee is possible under the rule as it was presented, for minority members and for women, out of a seven man group. The substantive committees are where the action is going to be in this convention. That's where most all of the work is going to occur and that was where we felt the emphasis should be, that once the committee assignments were completed, the ordinary administration of this convention could well be carried on by, if you will, a Board of Directors of a reasonable size and reasonably constituted as a reflection of the membership of the delegation of the convention. The Executive Committee isn't going to write the constitution, but the Executive Committee is going to see to it who is employed, they will see to it as to what materials are purchased and the budget and the other finance and administrative details; where the physical arrangements are going to be made for this convention to meet on a regular basis; they are going to arrange for the purchase and rental of equipment and supplies and services; they are going to be working on the question of printing and related administrative matters. That alludes to what we thought at the time this was under debate would be the kind of Executive Committee that could attend properly to the administrative details of the convention. One of the delegates pointed out that at one time, when an Executive Committee of twenty or more was under consideration, that at fifty dollars a day, it would cause a thousand dollars worth of expense every time the Executive Committee called a meeting, and perhaps that the same work could be done more efficiently by a smaller body, i.e. seven people: the Chairman, four Vice-Chairmen, the Secretary and the Treasurer. It was for that reason that the duties of the Executive Committee were made those of an Administrative Board, whose duty it was to administer to the fiscal and physical and other needs of the Convention. This Convention and would have as its greatest advantage, the ease of its membership gathering together and the rapidity at which it could be called into session, attend to its business, and go on to other matters. For that reason, Mr. Chairman, the Temporary Rules Committee came out with a small Executive Committee, a more representative area-wide committee, for the kind of convention committees in the Committee on Committees, and then a traffic cop committee called the Coordinating Committee that would resolve disputes as may occur between or among the substantive committees. This, in effect, decentralizes the power of this convention and places it in the hands of the delegates to this convention, where the Temporary Rules Committee thought it properly ought to be.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'll be very brief, but I did want to add my support to this amendment. I think about the only reason, and I think the only sufficient reason, that I would have for supporting this amendment would be in keeping with, what I think, could very well be the theme of this convention, which would be to keep the people in the convention through us, we the delegates. We have shown that attitude by the choosing of the selection of the Rules Committee. I thought it was extremely democratic in the way that we chose the Rules Committee. And if we continue acting in that manner in choosing the rest of the committees for this convention, I am sure that we will make a great step forward in achieving the respect and the confidence of the people for the days ahead in our work. Now, if we allow at least one member of each Congressional District on this committee, that will again insure the fact that the people will be represented. Now, it is possible under the seven officers that will be elected to constitute this Executive Committee, that they can come from one, two, or three Congressional Districts, thereby eliminating the balance of the eight. So, let's not risk this situation. Let's make sure that every Congressional District will be represented on each and every committee provided or necessary for this convention. So I ask you to seriously consider this amendment and let's make sure that every Congressional District is represented by a delegate--elected delegate--if not an officer. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Fulco, I am beginning to see what I consider a dangerous trend. I wish to see balance in this convention between the Executive Committee, the Committee on Committees, and the Coordinating Committee. I also want to state I firmly believe in equitable representation and an extension of the size of the Executive Committee, but at this time I wish to ask you: "Are you in favor of destroying the Committee on Committees and putting their function into the Executive Committee?"

Mr. Fulco No, I am not opposed to that. That doesn't matter particularly with me. I have no objection to the Committee on Committees.

Mr. Velazquez Excuse me, I asked were you in favor of it? I didn't ask if you were opposed to it.

Mr. Fulco I just said that I have no objection. That doesn't mean that I favor it or oppose it; I have no fixed opinion on it at this time. It's immaterial to me and, when the time comes to consider it, I more than likely will favor it.

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, Mr. Roemer, and Mr. Reeves have suggested that perhaps it would be more conducive to orderly proceedings and in forming the judgment of the convention if, out of order, we took up the duties of the Executive Committee in Rule No. 18 and then come back to the constitution of the Executive Committee under Rule No. 16.

Mr. Henry The gentleman has withdrawn his amendment.

Mr. Stagg And now, Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw the committee's motion to adopt Rule No. 16 and ask that we take up Rule No. 18, out of order.

Mr. Henry You move to take...to skip over Rule No. 17 at the same time? Do I understand...

Mr. Stagg That is correct, sir, and go immediately to the consideration of the duties of the Executive Committee under Rule No. 18.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, I don't really concur. I'd like to know who the Executive Committee is before I vote to give them all these powers. Maybe after I know who they are, I would give them more powers; maybe after I learn them, I'd want to decrease their powers. But I don't think we should give a committee powers when we at this moment don't know who's going to be on the committee. I just don't think it's right to bypass establishing a committee and then substituting the powers. I'd like to know...

Mr. Stagg Mr. Rayburn, may I reply that's somewhat the way the Rules Committee in its deliberations finally arrived at this conclusion was by deciding what the duties of some of these officers were, what the duties of the Executive Committee were, and then we came back to the paragraph on officers and named the officers as the Executive Committee. But we don't know that that was the most perfect way of doing it. It was the way seventeen of us went about our work in trying to give to the convention a set of rules that clearly delineated the authority of the various bodies of the convention, and we first had to arrive at what those powers were; then we arrived how they were to be exercised. When Mr. Roemer withdrew his motion, he withdrew it simply for the purpose of allowing the convention to consider whether or not it would not be better to take up the duties of the Executive Committee and then go back to establishing the type of body, just the officers or the offices as augmented, would properly be the Executive Committee. And in view of his request that we attempt to do that, that's why this parliamentary device was adopted.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, the point I'm trying to make: If I feel that each Congressional District in this state is represented on the Executive Committee I think that will have a bearing on my vote as to what powers I give them. If I think some two or three Vice-Presidents are going to have all those powers, I think that will have a bearing on how much power I want them to have. And that's my reason for raising the point.

Mr. Gravel Mr. Stagg, it seems to me that in connection with the matter under discussion that it would be appropriate and proper to consider both Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 18 together. My question, sir, is whether you would be willing, as the proponent of the resolution, to request a suspension of the rules to consider them together and, as a preliminary portion of that consideration, a determination of the structure of the Executive Committee be made. I think that would...if you are willing to do that, it would permit an orderly procedure in this matter.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Gravel, I don't really have an objection to that. I am on my feet simply out of a feeling that Mr. Roemer...and Mr. Reeves stated awhile ago he feels very strongly about his position. Well, the Rules Committee in three hours of debate felt very strongly about the same thing, and they came back to this convention with a set of rules that decentralized the operating power of the convention and, if you can, in the suspension of the rules as you have suggested, take up the duties to be given the Executive Committee and then how it shall be constituted. If you'd be willing to do it in that order, I certainly agree that a suspension of the rules would be in order.

Mr. Gravel No, my question was would you be willing to do it in the opposite order—first consider the composition of the Executive Committee; once that composition is determined, then the determinations can be made with respect to the officers and the functions and duties of the Executive Committee. It seems to me that's where we are hung up.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Gravel, you know we started with Rule No. 16 as the pending order. And then there was an amendment seeking to broaden its membership. And it was suggested by those delegates seeking to broaden its membership that it might be more conducive to orderly discussion if we assigned the duties first. And if the rules are suspended, I will ask the Chair if it's in order to proceed with the duties first and then how it shall be constituted.

Mr. Gravel That...doesn't that fail to cover Senator Rayburn's very pertinent observation that he doesn't want to start delineating duties until he knows the composition of the Executive Committee?

Mr. Stagg Yes, it does contravene the views of Senator Rayburn.

Mr. Gravel I just rise to ask you the question whether you would be willing, as the proponent of the resolution, to recommend that we consider Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 18 together and that the initial determination be made as to the composition of the Executive Committee?

Mr. Stagg Let me be...as some other public figures have been noted to say, let me make myself very clear. If you note that as the Chairman of the Rules Committee, Temporary Rules Committee, I moved the adoption of Rule No. 16 in the order in which it numerically appeared, I cannot have any objection to moving in that same direction again; but if I do, then Mr. Roemer is going to seek the floor and Mr. Reeves is going to seek the floor and make an amendment to change its composition, just as they did when it was the pending order of business.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Henry It would be out of order at this time.

Mr. Burson Mr. Stagg, in your original introduction and motion that we adopt Rule No. 16, as I understood it, you moved that we would approve in effect an Executive Committee which would be constituted of those officers named in Rule No. 16. So, that if we voted on Rule No. 16, as you originally moved it, we would at one and the same time determine at that time who the Executive Committee was going to be. Is that correct?

Mr. Stagg That's correct.

Mr. Burson So that if we did that, then we would know who is going to be on the committee and we would know when we got down below, whether we would want a Committee on Committees to be other than those officers that are suggested, or whether we would not want a Committee on Committees. For instance, if the amendment as proposed had been accepted with members from each Constitutional... from each Congressional District on it, then perhaps we would not need a Committee on Committees. Would that be correct?

Mr. Stagg That is correct, sir.

Mr. Reeves Point of information, please. Let me explain what we were trying to do.

Mr. Henry Wait, wait, Mr. Reeves. I am not trying to cut you off. We've been allowing a whole lot of latitude, simply because we don't have any rules under which to operate, and I think it would be...it's gone a little far to let you elaborate now. You might go ahead and put that to Mr. Stagg and go ahead and make your little statement and follow it up, I guess, with "did you know?" but let's try to proceed as orderly as is practical here under the lack of rules, which we are trying to do.

Mr. Reeves Yes, sir. I'm sorry. We were trying to...Mr. Stagg, do you agree, that we were trying to establish first of all the members of...whether the Executive Committee would be officers, or they would be made up of other members of the convention. We were not getting into whether the Executive Committee would take the responsibilities of the Committee on Committees, etc, or any other duties. So, we were simply making one statement that "These officers shall be members of", rather than "constitute."

Mr. Stagg It does state your position very well, Mr. Reeves.

Point of Information

Mr. Stovall Before I ask him the question, I'd like to ask you where are we in terms of parliamentary procedure at the present time? Are we considering Rule No. 18 or are we simply considering whether or not we are going to consider it?

Mr. Henry There is a motion on the floor which has not even had the opportunity to be seconded yet, Reverend Stovall, because of the questions which have been asked of Mr. Stagg. But there is a motion on the floor, as I appreciate the procedure, to skip over Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 17 and discuss the adoption of Rule No. 18, which motion is in order.

Point of Information

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, if it's in order, I would like to second that motion and would like to speak very briefly to it.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stovall, you are out of order because I recognized you, not for a motion, but for what I thought was a question. If you don't have a question, then Mr. Stovall does. I have agreed to recognize Mr. Wall for the floor. I put you on number two to speak on the main motion.

Mr. Roy Mr. Stagg, since we have to get at everything, would you be willing to yield or permit the consideration of an amendment to Rule No. 16 and at the same time a consideration of an amendment to Rule No. 18, as I am now presenting to you, and deliberate on this issue?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Roy, on behalf of the Temporary Committee on Rules, I would like to answer your question by saying that what we are seeking to do is to adopt a rule suggesting to the convention that its Executive Committee be a small, workable body. And if your amendment expands it to sixteen more people or makes it a committee of twenty-three people, then the Rules Committee, having debated this very thoroughly, would object.

Point of Order

Mr. Avant The point of order, Mr. Chairman, is, as I understood your statement a moment ago, our position is that a motion has been made and has had no second. Now as I understand the rules of order, all of this discussion is out of order.

Mr. Henry Mr. Avant, if you will observe what has been going on, really, it's not supposed to have been a discussion. Again, the Chairman is allowing a great deal of leeway. These have been questions and we're going to get to the point right after this on whether or not this motion that Mr. Stagg made is going to get a second or if it's going to die for lack of a second. We're fixing to move, one way or the other.

Mr. Avant That's what I want to do, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Henry Your point is certainly well taken and I do appreciate it, Mr. Avant.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, there is a question in many people's mind about the composition of the Executive Committee and who's going to be represented and how that representation will be, so I think that what we need to do is to proceed in the most orderly manner to satisfy the people that have those questions in their mind. And that does not necessarily mean that we proceed exactly as the Rules Committee in every instance has recommended so, therefore, I make a substitute motion at this time that we proceed to Rule No. 18 and if this Rule No. 18 takes up the question in mind...wait a minute...a substitute motion that we consider Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 18 in conjunction.

Mr. Henry Under Robert's Rules of Order in this situation I think the substitute motion, if he can get a second, will be in order, Mr. Smith.

Mr. Wall That we consider Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 18 in conjunction. And I send up amendments, if you...

Mr. Henry You have to get your motion seconded.

Mr. Wall Alright, do I have a second?

Mr. Henry Mr. Wall, makes a substitute motion to consider Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 18 at the same time, to which there is a second.

Questions

Mr. Juneau If you were to jointly discuss these issues together, it seems to me that the question...you still have to vote on them, one in order, or the other, so I don't see what bringing them up together does.

Mr. Wall Mr. Juneau, it brings up the opportunity for the people to vote on specific issues, if there is a question in their mind of how the Executive Committee is going to be composed. And it just so happens that Rule No. 16 and Rule No. 17 are interlocking.

Mr. Juneau Point of information. Which rule do we vote on first, even if we discuss them together?

Mr. Wall We are discussing them together and, if we discuss them together, we can offer amendments that actually relate to both rules in one amendment if you are discussing them together. And I ask your favorable consideration. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, the important thing under consideration here is what the duties of this group are going to be. Any time you create a political body the most important thing to consider is what its function is going to be. If we were going to set up local city councils it would be for certain designated purposes, and then we would decide how many members we are going to have on it. If we're trying to set up a court system, we'd designate certain purposes in line with the Judicial Branch of government, then we would determine how many people and of what nature to carry out these functions. The importance of the Executive Committee to this convention is to fulfill certain functions. Until we know what those functions are, it's irrelevant to talk about the size. If we give them very few duties, you may only need to have a small number of people on it. If we give them large and extensive duties, it may be that we'd need a large number of people. But we need to find out, first of all, what their duties and responsibilities are going to be, and then, and only then, can we talk about how many people should be involved.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson The point that I attempted to make—very awkwardly, with a question awhile ago—was in essence that point that Senator Rayburn has made, that I feel that the members of the convention would vote differently on the powers that were to be given to the proposed Executive Committee depending on who's on it. That is to say, if it's only going to be composed of a Chairman, a First Vice-Chairman, three Vice-Chairmen, a Secretary, and a Treasurer, as it's written and proposed to us by the Temporary Rules Committee, then I personally would feel that the power of that Executive Committee should be limited to certain... by no more than those powers that are in proposed Rule No. 18. However, if the membership of the Executive Committee were expanded beyond those officers, as suggested, then perhaps they might be able to serve the same function as the Committee on Committees can make committee assignments. I would not want just the seven officers to be making committee assignments. I would not vote for that, but if the Executive Committee consisted of those seven plus two people from each Congressional District, then I might want to turn over to them the power to make the committee assignments because, as I understand it, the Committee on Committees would be made up of two members from each Congressional District, anyway. We might have included, in effect, the proposed Committee on Committees in the Executive Committee. So, I would tend to believe that probably you would to take both of these things up at the same time.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Well, I definitely believe that we ought to consider the powers of the Executive Committee first, and the reason for this is basically, if you know what... if you know what the powers of the Executive Committee are, you will know what representation you need on this particular committee. If they are expansive powers, you need an expansive committee; if they are limited powers, you need a limited committee. This is very obvious to me. It seems you need to decide the size of the committee from what the committee does. If the committee has unlimited powers to do many, many different things, then you ought to have representation—one member from each Congressional District wouldn't be enough; I would vote for two. But, if the powers are limited to the powers that are enumerated in the proposed rule—and I don't go ahead, these were unanimously voted on by the delegates who were in the Temporary Rules Committee—if these powers are limited to these particular powers, you don't need this big expansive Executive Committee. And I think we need to vote on that and decide what the powers are going to be before we decide how much representation we need.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Fellow delegates, as set up in the rules by the Rules Committee, the Executive Committee is very administrative in its nature. The Committee on Committees was set up. I just want to point out to some of you, I think something is working out here where the Committee on Committees is pretty soon going to be eliminated, and unless somebody can tell me just which one of these motions is going to be voted on, this talk I heard about they're going to combine them and they're going to vote them, this cannot be done. You're and I go ahead, one or the other, and I think somebody's about to pull the wool over our eyes, if you don't watch it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, it's a basic principle of administration or architecture, of almost any field, that function determines form. Now, if we vote down the substitute motion by Mr. Shady Wall and then go along with Mr. Stagg, then we're following the general principle of function determining form. Should you go out here to Perry Segura and ask him to build you a building, you would say I set up a particularly particular kind in mind. You don't say, "Perry, build me a building," and then determine what the function is going to be, and it seems to me that this is the key point at the present time. Let's determine the function and then get on with the business of form. And this means that we would vote against the amendment presented by Mr. Wall and proceed with the amendment as proposed by Mr. Stagg. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and members of this convention and fellow Americans, I think it would be horrible to say that we have a family of all the delegates here and then say we're going to cut some of them off from the dinner table. If any here that had more in his family than the designated number by the Rules Committee, would you say they couldn't have dinner because it's not a workable thing? I'm gonna ask you to consider two representatives from each Congressional District and I'd like to say to you, I'm not in the running for anything. I don't want to be on the Executive Committee because I want to work with the people in my area and let them know what's going on in the convention, so I don't want to be with you all the time. But I'm going to ask you in the interest of justice and the interest of the people that you will give me a fair shake and give two from each Congressional District. I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to oppose Mr. Wall's substitute. I do so because I think we're at the very crux of our deliberations with respect to the organization and future functioning of this convention. Mr. Stagg has already pointed out in his explanation of the Rules Committee recommendation, that that recommendation is a design to decentralize the power of this convention. We felt that if we had an all-powerful Executive Committee with the power not only to run the convention but to select the committees of the convention, then the rest of us might as well go home and wait for the call of the Executive Committee to perform whatever function they might desire to hand out to us from time to time. It was the feeling of the Rules Committee that the very heart of this convention had to be the substantive committees who would work on the new sections and articles and parts of the Constitution, and that it was essential in the selection of those committees that we have a democratic process by which the members would be named. It was... it was our feeling that if we provided a democratic process by which the committees were selected... we've done a good deal of talk here about representation from Congressional Districts. The Committee on Committees provides that representation; it consists of two delegates from each Congressional District together with the Chairman. And if we are in accord with the feeling of the functioning of this convention has to be in the substantive committees and that's where we want to have democratic representation, then the approach adopted by the Rules Committee, in my opinion, is correct. It provides a means by which democratic representation can be injected into the selection of the committees and the committee membership. We felt that if we separated that authority from the Executive Committee, we then did away with this powerful Executive Committee that's going to run the convention for the benefit of all of us who've been elected to participate in it. And we gave to that Executive Committee limited power and, once we gave it limited power, there was no longer any need for an all-powerful unwieldy Executive Committee to function. And I think Reverend Stovall has put his finger right on it. If we are going to now vote to broaden the duties of the Executive Committee to include the appointment of committee members, then I, too, would stand here and say we've got to have broader representation on the Executive Committee. On the other hand, if we're going to leave the functioning of the Executive Committee as it is, in my opinion there's no good reason that can be advanced by any delegate here for increasing the size of that committee. I say, for that reason, we need to reach the crux of the issue, decide whether or not we wish to leave the Executive Committee with limited authority as the Rules Committee has proposed, have the Committee on Committees democratically elected to select the members of the various committees, and those committees select their own chairman. And I think that if we follow that procedure we're gonna have a democratic convention. If we don't we're going to have a convention dictated to by an Executive Committee all too powerful for our own purposes. For that reason I say to this committee, this convention, I oppose Representative Wall's substitute motion and ask that you support the motion made by Mr. Stagg in order that we can get to Rule No. 18 and get this matter behind us.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Keam, do you not feel that this trend to expansion of the Executive Committee is an attempt to destroy the continuity of the Committee on Committees and, therefore, destroy the attempt by the Rules Committee to decentralize the power and keep it in the hands of the delegates?

Mr. Keam I deeply feel that way, Mr. Velazquez.

Mr. Velazquez Thank you very much, Mr. Keam.

Mr. Denney Mr. Keam, answer to Mr. Velazquez' question, you stated that an enlargement of the Executive Committee by eight or sixteen, as the case may be would tend to remove the powers of the Committee on Committees. Now, I, for one, am not in favor of changing the... I'm in favor of the Committee on Committees' motion that the Rules Committee has adopted, but I do believe that even with the so-called limited powers that you have given to the Executive Committee, you overlook the fact that the Executive Committee has the power to hire all the staff in this convention. And one of the most important things, to my way of thinking, in the development of this convention is to have a good staff, and I question whether or not we shouldn't have a larger Executive Committee, if only for the purpose of determining who a good staff should consist of.

Mr. Keam As I understood Mr. Velazquez's question, he asked me whether or not I thought the effort to enlarge the Executive Committee would lead to doing away with the Committee on Committees and put in the hands of the Executive Committee the authority to name the members of the substantive committees, and I told him that I did. And I do feel that way.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention... will you lower this thing a little bit, please; I'm standing as tall as I can and I'm having a little difficulty. Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it seems to me that we are embroiled in a procedural question, and the decision that we ought to make, and we ought to make with some celerity, and then get on with the business of the convention. I rise in favor of Mr. Wall's motion. Mr. Wall's motion makes sense to me. Obviously there is going to be some contest over what the makeup of the Executive Committee should be, and what its powers, duties and functions should be. Mr. Wall suggests that we can consider those two rules, Rules 18 and 16 together, for the purpose of debate and discussion. So that when we get to the floor, when we proceed to that point after we dispose of Mr. Wall's motion, we will be able to address our debate both to the powers, duties, functions and responsibilities of the Executive Committee and also to the makeup of the Executive Committee. That seems to be a logical way to approach it. We can debate it all at one time and none of us need fear about voting for powers and duties and responsibilities of an Executive Committee until we know what the makeup is, or vice versa. And if we adopt Mr. Wall's motion to proceed in that order, we can discuss for the purposes of debate, the makeup of the committee and its duties and functions. When we get to the point of voting, it's entirely in order for any of us to move for a division of the question, and we can vote separately. It seems to me that when we vote separately, we'd be in a position to vote more intelligently if we have had discussion of the amendments on what the makeup of the committee is going to be and what its duties and functions are going to be. That way nobody need fear that we put the cart before the horse; nobody need fear that amendments are going to come after they've noted on the makeup of the committee, to illustrate... after they've voted what the makeup of the committee is going to be. Nobody need fear that the responsibilities of the committee are going to be contrary to what they thought they would be at the time they voted on the makeup of the committee. So, in my judgment, Mr. Wall's approach to it makes a great deal of sense, and I think we ought to decide that issue now. I would urge that we should adopt Mr. Wall's motion so that we could debate both of these rules at one time and divide the question and vote on the amendments separately. And if there's no further discussion, I'd like...

Mr. Henry There is... there is further discussion. Mr. Triche, and I'd ask that you not make such a motion at this time.

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

[Motion withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Rachal Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman and delegates, it seems to me that this gets more confusing all the time, but it seems that there are a number of things on which we agree, and I, in an effort to move us along, I would like to suggest that, since it seems rather widely accepted that there be an expansion of the Executive Committee, that we simply consider moving on the officers by accepting the amendment that the officers shall be members of the Executive Committee. Whereby, we could dispense with Rule No. 16 and then under Executive Committee consider both membership of the committee, as well as its duties, which can be discussed together in a more logical fashion. Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I would offer a substitute motion to the substitute motion to that effect; that we dispense with Rule No. 16 with the amendment... I think that passed already... that the officers shall be members of the Executive Committee and then we can... let's see, I don't know. Well I suppose I'll appeal, then, we defeat the substitute motion, which calls for discussion of Rules No. 16 and 18 together, so that we might dispense with Rule No. 16 in that fashion and then take up the Executive Committee and consider together the Executive Committee's membership and duties which will be more logical and avoid confusion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it seems to me that we are in a position of shadowboxing. Nobody has thrown a blow yet. Very simply, I think the thing is blown out of proportion. I was on the Rules Committee, you know, with the fourteen thousand Rules Committee. I will have to tell you in all candor, if we were to take a vote right now I don't think there would be any question that approximately eighty to ninety percent of the delegates to this convention would probably vote to expand the Executive Committee by one or two members. I don't think there's any question about that, so we maybe, we're talking about two different things. Secondly, what that being the case and if that's the sole motive for talking about who's going to be on the Executive Committee, let's go ahead and get to the issue and decide do you want to or do you not want to expand the duties of the Executive Committee. If the proponents of the substitute motion would get up here and tell me we don't plan to propose to expand those duties and they would go with two members, I'd say fine. I'd vote for it. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman and delegates, I feel like, Pat, we are doing a lot of shadowboxing here. The substitute motion to do discuss the two rules together. Well we've already pretty well hashed over Rule No. 16, so to me the substitute motion can very simply be answered. Well, let's get on to Rule No. 18. And then when we hash over Rule No. 18, then we can come back, as Mr. Triche says, and have separate votes on which one we want to vote on first. But I see no need for the substitute motion because we already discussed one of them. Well, let's go on to Rule No. 18; then we can decide which rule we want to vote on first.

[Previous Questions ordered.]

Point of Information

Mr. Gravel Is the Chair at this time going to state the previous question? I believe I'm a little bit lost, exactly what the question is that we are voting on. Because I don't believe that there was a second to Mr. Rachal's motion.

Mr. Henry Mr. Rachal did not make a motion.

Mr. Gravel I thought he had.

Mr. Henry No, sir. I will restate the question, but I am going to let Mr. Wall close, I believe, before we do that, because we going to have to get back to it anyway. Mr. Wall, do you want to close? Let her rip. No sir, Mr. Wall, please just proceed to close right now, please. No sir, I recognize you to close. We've got a motion under very serious debate.

Closing

Mr. Wall Well, a very serious debate. Ladies and gentlemen, I can't say it under personal privilege, the Speaker may call me out of order, but you know, I am reminded today: the Speaker called me down when I was walking around, then all of a sudden, he told me I was out of order, sit down. And I remembered what he said last week after he was nominated and elected our Chairman. He said, "I don't know who voted for me, and I don't know who voted against me." I thought he was telling a fib then. Either he was telling the truth or he's got a damn short memory.

Mr. Henry Does that complete your remarks, Mr. Wall?

Mr. Wall No, sir.

Mr. Henry You've almost exceeded your time and certainly your welcome. Proceed.

Mr. Wall Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, let me point out to you: we gave a job to the Rules Committee to bring a document up here for us to work from. They were to present an instrument that we would take and then we would work according to what, from that basic document, that we could have for the rules for the next convention, and the best making. Just happen that Rule No. 16 deals with officers, and it says that they shall be the Executive Committee. Rule No. 18 deals with the Executive Committee. And at this point, I'd like to point out that I'm not a candidate for a Vice-Chairman or Secretary or Treasurer, will not be a candidate, will not accept, if I'm elected. I'm not a candidate for the Executive Committee from the Congressional District if you add one or two, will not accept if I'm elected. So I'm not up here trying to get to be on the Executive Committee or trying to be an officer of this convention. I'm up here trying to move this convention forward. So the Rules Committee set up Rule No. 16 that deals with officers; they set up Rule No. 18 that deals with the Executive Committee. Now for us to properly consider these two, with some proposed changes, we need to consider them together. You know I was amazed at Reverend Stovall. You know I've heard lots of preachers get up in the pulpit and they would start talking something about the Lord's work, and they were just dumb as hell. And when he started talking about architects today, I could tell he didn't know what he was talking about. He was talking about the way these things...

Mr. Henry Mr. Wall, Mr. Wall, let's confine your remarks.

Mr. Wall Ladies and gentlemen, I'm trying to move the convention forward. If we go ahead and consider these two rules at one time, we will move forward. This is the way for us to move forward with this convention and do what needs to be done. And I ask a favorable vote. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Mr. Wall, Mr. Stagg has moved that we skip over Rule Nos. 16 and 17 and consider the adoption of Rule No. 18, taking it out of its regular order. This motion was seconded by Reverend Stovall, to which a substitute motion was made by Mr. Wall, that we consider the adoption of Rule Nos. 16 and 18 at the same time, which substitute motion was seconded by Mrs. Taylor and therefore the vote will occur first on the substitute motion.

[Substitute Motion rejected; viva voce.]

Point of Information

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, would you like... may I suggest to the Chair that the Secretary read Rule No. 18 and then I would like the time to discuss it.

Mr. Henry Actually we need to adopt your motion. First, Mr. Stagg.

Motion

Mr. Stagg Alright, sir. I move that Rule No. 18 be now taken up by the convention.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Point of Order

Mr. Lambert Mr. Chairman, under the rules we're operating on, can you make a substitute to the original motion, now?

Mr. Henry No sir, Mr. Lambert.

Mr. Lambert Under Robert's Rules of Order?

Mr. Henry I don't believe that it would be in order at this time.

Mr. Lambert Don't believe? How about giving us a clear answer.

Mr. Henry I'll say no, it's out of order at this time.

Are you ready for the question?

[Motion adopted; viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 18. Duties. The Executive Committee shall:

A. Employ a research director, research assistants, secretarial and/or clerical personnel and such other employees as it deems necessary, in accordance with provisions of Act 2 of the 1972 Regular Session. The Executive Committee shall be a committee on administration, which shall consider research materials and personnel, convention budget and finance and other administrative details, facilities and physical arrangements for the convention, for committee hearings and for the staff, outside grants and assistance to the convention, purchases and rental of equipment, supplies and services, printing and related matters.

B. Assist the Chairman of the convention in the assignment of delegates to their seats.

C. Serve as the executive board of the convention in all matters requiring official sanction.

D. Assist the Chairman of the convention in his capacity as supervisor of the research staff of the convention.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I think that the comments that have been made back and forth by the various speakers at this podium, have clearly defined the issue, that the Rules Committee has hopefully designed to the pleasure of the majority of the delegates the machinery by which this convention can be operated and be operated more effectively by the participation of the delegates in the management of the affairs of the delegates other than the day-to-day administrative housekeeping matters. For that reason, the duties of the Executive Committee set forth in Rule No. 18 were made those of an administrative committee. And it is in light of that design, carefully thought out and considered by the Rules Committee, that we can suggest to the convention that the duties of the Executive Committee be as those are set forth in Rule No. 18, subsections A, B, C, and D. And we move the adoption of the resolution.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Roy] on page 4 at the end of line 28, strike out the colon and add the following--page 4, line 28, after the colon: "be composed of the officers of the convention and sixteen delegates, with two delegates to be elected from each Congressional District, in which they resided at the time of qualification or appointment. Such voting shall be in separate congressional caucuses. The Executive Committee shall elect from its membership a chairman and such other officers as it deems necessary. The Executive Committee, in addition to such duties as are prescribed by law or hereinafter set forth in these Rules, shall:"

Point of Order

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman, I submit that the amendment is not germane to the rule. The rule deals with the duties of the Executive Committee and the amendment deals with the composition of the committee. Therefore I object to the amendment.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Henry I think the amendment is in order, Mr. Keen, because I think that since the rules are not adopted, he can amend the rules or propose rules to do whatever he will.

Explanation

Mr. Roy Delegates to the convention, I think without going into a lot of discussion, this amendment merely seeks to adopt and ratify what Mr. Juneau said might be an issue and what everyone seems to want. That is, two delegates from each Congressional District to be elected by a caucus of that district to serve on the Executive Committee. I think that the Executive Committee, as now constituted, is too little, as contemplated by Rule No. 16. And for those who have been arguing about whether we should have function before form, I'd like to know why we have Rule No. 16 ahead of Rule No. 18 in the first place if you want to argue the way in which the rules go. I just think the... let me say this... I think the Temporary Rules Committee has done a great job. I think they are fine people, and I think that they did exactly what they were supposed to do--get the temporary rules out. That doesn't mean I want to be bound by them, and it doesn't mean that any time anybody asks anything about a rule, that they should be so sensitive. I think this is a good amendment, and I move for the adoption of it.

Questions

Mr. Jenkins Chris, as I understand your motion, we could defeat it and still come back when we consider Rule No. 16 and consider the possibility of expansion of the Executive Committee. Is that not correct?

Mr. Roy Certainly, you always can consider it at any other time. I think it's most relevant at this particular time, because I think that's what the convention wants to move on.

Mr. Jenkins The reason I asked it, it seems as though our entire discussion for the last forty-five minutes or an hour has been to go ahead and consider the functions first, which your amendment now would have us turn back again and reverse. So, couldn't we very well still do what we just voted to do by rejecting your amendment and then considering Rule No. 16, and considering the existence of your amendment?

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Roy I was in the minority in voting against that function form and I think it is out of place, and I think my amendment is timely at this time.

Delegate Kean in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Duval Fellow delegates, I speak against the amendment for the following reasons: I think the heart and soul of this convention is its committees. The committees, the substantive committees, are going to be responsible for the drafting of the constitution. And I might remind all you delegates this is the reason that we are here, to draft a new constitution for the citizens of Louisiana. Therefore, I think that the heart of these rules is the Coordinating Committee. The Coordinating Committee, I think, achieves a delicate balance and a very fine distribution of power in a most democratic and efficient way. The Coordinating Committee is democratically elected and selects the committees which we are going to be appointed. And these committees, as I said, really are what we want representation on. Everybody seems to want representation on the Executive Committee. But what is the Executive Committee but a large mass of people who are not going to be writing this Constitution? And, therefore, I think that we should place our emphasis on the committees. If you have an Executive Committee which contemplates the appointment of committees, you've got twenty some odd people and after they appoint committees, do they all meet to buy pencils? Do they all meet to housekeep? What are they going to do? We have all this representation, and after...and let's assume the Executive Committee appoints committees, what do they do after it serves that function, which can be done very expeditiously, then you have a large unwieldy Executive Committee of twenty some odd people sitting here meeting to do housekeeping, which is totally ridiculous. We should, we should keep in mind again that we want representation on the committees. And this is quite crucial and very important to this convention.

Question

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Duval, don't you feel that part of our problem is a semantical one in that since this committee has the title Executive Committee, everybody assumes that it is a real Executive Committee rather than an administrative committee?

Fr. Duval I think that is quite a valid point. By the mere word "Executive" it implies certain powers that may not be necessary for this convention.

Further Discussion

Fr. Arnette I have to agree with Representative Jenkins that his point he brought up was very valid. We just voted to take up Rule No. 18 first, because Rule No. 18 is duties, duties of the Executive Committee. The reason we decided to take it up first was so we could decide the duties first. If we wanted to decide the makeup of the Executive Committee, we would have gone with Rule No. 16 first, so I think we can go on and take Rule No. 18 as Rule No. 18 is. It is the duties. If we wanted to expand the duties, duties, let's do it in proper perspective. Let's do it in the time when it is due. Let's do it when we consider Rule No. 16. It is very simple. This is the way we contemplated doing it by the way we just voted. Let's take up Rule No. 18 first and not Rule No. 16. So let's do decide what the duties are. Let's defer to this amendment the duties. Once we define the duties, we can decide how big we have to expand this Executive Committee. We might want to expand it to three members from every Congressional District or four or five or one or whatever you want. But let's do it in the proper time.

Point of Information

Mr. Lanier Mr. Chairman, I believe that we are at a very critical stage of our debate here, and I would like to direct this question to yourself and our Secretary. I would like to have the benefit of the text of Mr. Roy's proposal, for me to review. I have the text of the proposal of the Rules Committee and I think it would be important to all of the delegates to have the text of both, in order to properly deliberate this and make a wise and intelligent decision. So, I would like to request that copies of this be made available to us, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Kean The Secretary tells me that he does not have sufficient facilities to duplicate copies for all members of the convention. Would you like to have it read, again? The Secretary will read the amendment.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman, I oppose the amendment both as to its timing and its content. I agree with those previous speakers who said that the debate in the last hour was for naught if this amendment is allowed. I also agree with those speakers who feel that two additional members from each Congressional District would make the Executive Committee too large. However, I would like to speak for the next minute and a half, not about those two erroneous aspects of this amendment, but rather the fact that I disagree with those who come before us and say the Executive Committee as presently constituted in these Rules is not powerful. It is powerful. I point a couple of things out to you. First of all, they have the right to hire and to fire our staff. We know the staff is going to be important to the success of our convention. Some of our delegates have mentioned the fact that we might expend up to two million dollars in this project. As I see it, this Executive Committee would administer those funds. I refer you to Rule No. 18, Part C on page 5: "The Executive Committee serves as the executive board of the convention in all matters requiring official sanction." To me that makes this committee the summit for this whole convention. All aspects that find no other home go here. So I personally disagree with those of you who say the Executive Committee has no power. I think it has a great deal of power. I will admit that perhaps it does not have those powers as laid down in Act 2, but it certainly has the powers that we have here in these rules. So I make this stand—personally, I think it should be expanded to include geographical representation. I think two per Congressional District is too many.

Questions

Mr. Roy Mr. Roemer, isn't it a fact that the reason we're dealing with Rule No. 18 is because the Chairman of the Temporary Rules Committee is the person who moved to disregard Rule No. 16 and go on to Rule No. 18 and we acquiesced in it? Isn't that the reason? Aren't we on Rule No. 18 right now for that reason?

Mr. Roemer His statement, if I remember incorrectly, was and, as he presented the argument to us, that the duties should come before the constitution of that particular committee. I agree with that.

Mr. Roy He asked for Rule No. 18 to be considered before Rule No. 16, didn't he?

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Roemer Yes. Rule No. 18 is labeled "Duties" as I read it.

Mr. Roy You don't agree that just 'cause we allowed him to do that that do you agree it should be taken up at that time, do you?

Mr. Roemer We have that right. I don't argue with your right, I just argue with your logic.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, just about five minutes ago, you apparently voted overwhelmingly to defeat a substitute motion by Mr. Wall, which would have allowed the consideration of both Rules 16 and 18 at the same time. Now, I submit to you, unless you have changed your mind in the last five minutes, there is no way you can with clear conscience support Mr. Roy's substitute motion for this is nothing more than a political maneuver to have you do what you just voted you did not want to do. I urge you to vote against the Roy substitute motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Reeves I would like to speak in favor of Mr. Roy's amendment. I am not...first of all let me clear this--I'm not talking for anyone other than the people of my particular representative district and the Fifth Congressional District. I feel very strongly that the Fifth Congressional District should be represented on the Executive Committee. I don't care about their duties--if it is pencil picking up, that's wonderful; let's be represented. I feel very strongly that some of the blacks should be represented. Everyone in the entire state of Louisiana should be very strong, I feel, on the Executive Committee. I feel very strongly that two from each congressional district will give those people this representation. I feel that it is necessary for the actual living of this convention and what goes on in the future for two people from each Congressional District to be represented and Mr. Stag's remarks a few hours ago, I think now in reference to the Executive Committee meeting at lunches and so on and so forth, as far as I'm concerned, that could be simply eliminated by having a bigger table and more chairs. I don't care what their duties are and I very strongly feel this--whatever they are if they're going to be the Committee on Committees--I'm not debating this. This is not the purpose of my getting up here. I don't care if it is or if it isn't; however, I feel that we need to be represented. We, meaning the people of the state of Louisiana, particularly in my case, the people of the Twenty-second Representative District, all the way from the corner of Caldwell Parish to the corner of Winn Parish, I feel very strongly the people need to be represented, and that means everyone. And I will support Mr. Roy's amendment, not because it is Mr. Chris Roy that made it or that Camille Gravel is his law partner or whomever it happened to be. I feel strongly that this needs to be approved. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Stovall Mr. Reeves, do you understand that if we vote this amendment down, that after that vote and we deal with the Executive Committee's function, that then we will come back and deal with who is going to be a member of it. Do you understand?

Mr. Reeves Yes, sir, I understand that completely, and again, I don't care.

Mr. Stovall Well, we will deal with the basic content, the membership of the Executive Committee at a later point when we deal with Rule No. 16.

Mr. Reeves Again, I understand and I'm quite aware that we...some members want to deal first of all into the duties and responsibilities and how many hours we are going to meet and who's going to get paid and every little minute thing that happens to be occurring in people's minds, and I have questions to this effect. Yes, I do have questions. But, again, I feel let's set up an organization of the Executive Committee, two persons per Congressional District. It's very simple. That means that there are going to be two people on the Executive Committee per Congressional District, that's sixteen, plus the officers. If they're going to be discussing the budget, which I agree with Mr. Roemer is going to be tremendous--three hundred thousand dollars is not going to even start this convention, two million dollars may not even handle it. And I agree also that we are going to be, the Executive Committee, dealing with many problems; however, if they are minute or great, I don't care. And I cannot reiterate this enough. I feel that this is the time and point to get into the consistency of the Executive Committee, who's going to be on it. And when there, let's drop on down into the duties. But I think there will be no problem.

Point of Information

Mr. Denney Mr. Chairman, this question may be more properly directed to you. Is the Chair aware of any other proposed amendments to this rule at this time?

Mr. Henry I am advised by the Clerk that we have several other amendments at this time.

Mr. Denney Then before we vote on this, could we learn what the other amendments are?

Mr. Henry They haven't been offered. You could come up here and look at them, Mr. Denney, but it would be procedurally out of order. Of course, a lot of other things we've done today have been procedurally out of order.

Questions

Mr. Champagne I want to first say that I apologize for coming up here so often because I really don't like people who do that. But I think here we have something of great issue. In other words, do you think, sir, that possibly under the guise of representatives from each district, that there is something more at hand here than just getting twelve people, sixteen people on this committee since their duties are administrative only?

Mr. Reeves I don't know. I'm not aware and there haven't been any votes to that effect. There could be; there may not be. But again, I simply say that it doesn't matter to me. I'm going to vote for that two people per Congressional District.

Mr. Champagne Are you aware, sir, that there are some motions being circulated such as to do away with the Committee on Committees?

Mr. Reeves I am aware of that.

Mr. Champagne Then I point out to you that possibly there is some slight possibility that...in other words by getting this committee that possibly they are wanting to take away from you, the delegates, the authority that you have been given so graciously in these rules, by simply telling you that under the guise of representatives from each district, they're selling you a bill of goods. That's all I have to say.

Mr. Reeves I'll answer that question, Mr. Champagne, by simply saying, again, I am not aware of any supposedly underground effort to take over this convention, or whatever the idea is, I don't know. But, again, whatever we are going to be discussing in the Executive Committee as far as I'm concerned is immaterial to the fact that if we have two persons per Congressional District, it will be taken care of. I don't care what they are going to be discussing. I keep saying, I keep repeating myself and I realize that you are tired of hearing it, but again, it's immaterial to me. I feel very strongly that we could just eliminate this situation.

Mr. Duval Mr. Reeves, let me see if I understand your position. Is it your position that the Executive Committee, notwithstanding the appointment of committees, that the Executive Committee's duties are so important that we should have representation?

Mr. Reeves Yes, I do.

Mr. Duval And is it your position that we could still have a Committee on Committees to do the appointment of the committees?

Mr. Reeves Yes, that's immaterial to me. I'm not debating that at the present time, Stan.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Reeves, as I understand these proposed rules, Rule No. 16 which was passed over would have been the officers of the convention and where I think it would be proper to place the makeup of the Executive Committee. Now, as I understand the amendment that's being proposed here, doesn't that constitute merely the makeup of the Executive Committee, rather than the duties and functions of the Executive Committee as set out in Rule No. 18, which we are considering now? Wouldn't you be a whole lot better proposing your amendment to Rule No. 16 rather than to Rule No. 18?

Mr. Reeves I understand your question quite well, and I accept that probably in Rule No. 16 you do get into that, but as far as I'm concerned, the Temporary Rules Committee was as such. It was temporary, and there's nothing sacred about what they did. You can move and place in Rule No. 18 the functions of the Chairman, if you wanted to. That's immaterial as far as I am concerned.

Mr. De Blieux I don't say that you are out of order; that's not my claim. The only question is that if we are going to have convention officers, shouldn't we specify our convention officers, that we are going to use Rule No. 16 for that purpose, rather than trying to mix up the makeup of the Executive Committee in Rule No. 18? Shouldn't you...if we are going to have the duties in Rule No. 18, don't you think we would have better rules by letting it go that way, confining Rule No. 18 to its duties rather than to its makeup?

Mr. Reeves I don't feel so. I think we can go ahead and take care of it in Rule No. 18. And again, I think we are debating a minor point. Again, in answer to Senator De Blieux's question, I'll accept that possibly we could put it up in Rule No. 16, but I see no need for it. Why not take care of it in Rule No. 18? It's been proposed here and I'm for it and our original amendment that Mr. Roemer and I had would have shown that the officers would be members thereof and it would have necessarily taken care of itself in Rule No. 18. And I feel that when you are talking about the Executive Committee, you need to be talking about the consistency thereof of the Executive Committee.

Mr. Stinson I preface my question. I have no objection to two from each Congressional District, but I'd like to ask this question, also, even though I agree with Senator De Blieux. I have no objection to duplication that will hasten. Do you also have an amendment to Rule No. 16, though, to put in what you are putting in Rule No. 18?

Mr. Reeves Yes, sir.

Mr. Stinson Well, fine; that answers my question. If you didn't, it would be a conflict between the two. You don't want to go to court if you can stay out of it. You do have such a resolution?

Mr. Reeves Yes, sir. We would put the amendment we had originally, back in--

Mr. Stinson Thank you.

Mr. Reeves "Shall be members of".

Further Discussion

Mr. Gauthier Gentlemen, it seems apparent at this time...we've just listened to an hour and forty-five minutes of discussion and this has convinced me, and I was leaning toward spreading or increasing the size of the Executive Board, but this has just embedded in my mind the importance of keeping that Executive Board to the number it is now. I submit to you first of all that the amendment is not timely; this isn't the place to take it up. And secondly, that increasing the size to twenty-three, and I direct your attention to page 5 D, "Assist the Chairman of the convention in his capacity as supervisor of the Research Staff of the convention." We're going to really do that Research Staff in. We're going to give them twenty-three bosses to answer to, and it's going to take them about two hours to get through each day's instructions with twenty-three bosses. We're going to make it, not only make it unwieldy--just inoperative, period. First of all, it's not a timely place to take it up; we're trying to get to the functions. Second of all, I don't think we should increase the size of this Executive Board at all. A lot has been brought up about the powers of hiring. We've provided for four Vice-Presidents; we're going to elect seven officers. This is going to give you some geographical representation. These seven people are capable of hiring, but that's not their only duty; it doesn't stop there. It goes much further--to administrative, to renting things, to daily tasks, where even people can do it effectively. You increase the size to fifteen or twenty-three and you've got an unwieldy committee that cannot function adequately. We need at this convention to have an Executive Board that can function quickly and adequately.

Mr. Henry Mr. Gauthier, pardon me for interrupting. That light looks like it might fall, up there. If you people sitting there would move. I don't know if that's an indication of something. You-all might move away from that. We're going to get somebody to check it out. I don't think it will bother anybody. It's the first light. I think if Mrs. Warren and that group will move I think the rest of you'll will be safe. It depends on how you vote as to what happens on that, I'm sure. Proceed, Mr. Gauthier.

Mr. Gauthier Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I think the light falling will conclude my talk.

Question

Mr. Roy Mr. Gauthier, do you admit that the word under capital letter D in Rule No. 18, "assist" the Chairman who is the supervisor, has nothing whatsoever and cannot in any way imply that the Executive Committee will be the boss of the staff?

Mr. Gauthier No, I don't, Mr. Roy, 'cause if they are assisting the Chairman, they can assume duties. You're going to give that power to twenty-three people and how they assist determines what they determine in their minds means "assist."

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that we move to expedite matters, I am going to move to withdraw my amendment and later substitute it in Rule No. 16.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Avant to Rule No. 16. On page 5, between lines 10 and 11 insert the following: "E. Any other provision in these rules to the contrary notwithstanding, the Executive Committee may, when performing the duties assigned to it in this rule, meet in executive session, but no committee action shall be taken while in executive session."

Explanation

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as was pointed out by Mr. Stagg, a principle part of the duties of the Executive Committee--and this has nothing to do with how it is constituted; I'm not making any reference now to how it is constituted--but a principle part of its duties will be the employment of personnel. Now, it goes without saying, that in the employment of personnel it will be necessary to discuss perhaps on many, many occasions personalities, character, suspected flaws in character and personality--things which are very important for the Executive Committee to consider in the hiring of personnel, but things which by their very nature cannot be discussed in an open meeting. For this reason, and I think it's self-explanatory and requires no extended discussion, I think that it is only proper and in fact is absolutely necessary that this committee, when it is attempting to come to some decision on those types of things, be permitted to hold those discussions in executive session. And I have provided in my amendment, however, that no action of the committee as such can be taken in such executive session. So, those are the reasons for this amendment. I think that they are very obvious, and I ask the adoption of this amendment.

[Amendment reread.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Speaker, members of the convention, I had planned to take the floor on a point of personal privilege earlier to discuss this, not knowing at that time an amendment would be offered. I'm appearing now in favor of this amendment for the simple reason that the employment, the interview for prospective employment, and the discharge, if there be any, of personnel is something that should not be aired and it was not the intent to start with in the public advertising law that it would cover this field. I feel that the digging into the personal life, habits, accusations, rumors and so forth of any prospective employee is something which should be taken up by an Executive Committee in the discussion of the employee, and then the action taken in public. And I'm very firm in this belief. There could be rumors circulating that any member in here whose son or daughter who had a job might be of a character that wasn't worthy. And I would hate to see the news media come in and start digging into a public hearing as to why that individual wasn't employed or why they saw fit to discharge an individual because they had reason to believe that that individual has some black marks. I just feel that the action of this type of committee should be taken in executive session and their discussion of the character and qualifications of prospective employees is not a matter to be aired at an advertised meeting, to be given out as a public release. So I'd urge the adoption of this amendment.

Question

Mr. Stagg Mr. Womack, would you believe, or would you agree that if this proposed amendment which says "when performing the duties assigned to it in this rule" if there was an added language "with respect to personnel matters, meet in executive session," would you think that that would be a perfecting amendment that would make it say exactly what I think the mover probably intended?

Mr. Womack I think it would, yes.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, ever since the first one of us started campaigning last summer and it continued on up until this afternoon, I think one of the most outstanding themes or policies of this convention is going to be an open, wide open, convention and the public would know and be a party to anything that was done from this convention floor or in any of the committees. It has been by experience in life that once you set a rule or establish a precedent, if you let down the barriers in one instance, you open the doors wide for continuation of that policy--or that exception, rather. I don't think there should be any exception made at the Executive Committee meetings or private meetings with reference to the Executive Committee, especially when it comes to the employment of research assistants or any other employee that this convention may have occasion to employ. I think that any applicant whose past record or life is not open to the searchlight of publicity or open to examination, perhaps shouldn't be employed by this convention. And I think that if you let this down with the perfect record that we have made up to this point with reference to our open meetings and the public being taken in on everything that we do, if you let down in this one instance, you are going to destroy everything that we've done with reference to gaining the public's confidence as to our openness in this convention's activities.

Point of Information

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Chairman, what is the legal liability of the convention if information got to the public on an individual who applied for a job, which had an effect of decreasing his availability for other positions?

Mr. Henry Tom, you got to realize I'm a Chairman; I can't be a judge. I don't think that it would be in our interest for me to comment on something like that. I think that we'll just have to use some real sound discretion, which I'm sure that at the appropriate time, the committee will.

Mr. Velazquez Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Silverberg Mr. Stagg, I figured that I had to get up here, too. I have this question, ladies and gentlemen, do we envision that the Executive Committee will carry out its interviewing, its discussion with the employer of the capabilities and the responsibilities in closed session, because we must realize in our interviewing that we will be talking about the personalities and the background. Are we going to do that in closed session? Do you envision this will happen?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Silverberg, I have to admit that I had only shortly discussed this with the mover of it, whose intention was that the only time the Executive Committee would not be meeting in open session was when it would be talking about the personalities and the capabilities of potential and then present employees and that such employees' relations problems would not be discussed by the Executive Committee out in the open, in order to prevent damage to the reputations of the reputations of people who might be charged with something or who might not have the capabilities that they offer this convention, to the service of this convention. And to save embarrassment to these people of such decisions by the Chair to hire or not to hire would be done outside of the purview of the open convention.

Mr. Silverberg Well, then, I have one other question. Will you hire or fire in open session?

2nd Days Proceedings—January 12, 1973

Mr. Stagg You will hire...the motion to hire individuals and to fire individuals would be the kind of thing that the motion goes on to say, "but no committee action shall be taken while in executive session." That the discussions would be, but the actions of the committee would be in open session.

Mr. Silverberg Well, then, Mr. Stagg, don't you think that you'll be defeating the purpose of an executive session and an executive session would be useless because you will have immediately destroyed the image of anybody you dismiss or do not hire, for instance.

Mr. Stagg Well, I don't believe so, Mr. Silverberg. It might come to that, but I do personally doubt it.

Point of Information

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, when we are at this stage of the game, would it be appropriate for me to ask the Chair how much longer the convention will have to occupy these premises on this date?

Mr. Henry Well, unless the members know how to square dance we [are] going to have to get out about six o'clock, because there is a square dance starting in here shortly thereafter.

Mr. Stagg In other words, we will have to clear this chamber at about six o'clock?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir.

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman, the question is more properly directed to the proponent of the amendment. I would like to know if this amendment would...is intended to also exclude delegates from the executive sessions of the Executive Committee who may wish to appear before the committee and voice either a suggestion as to the hiring of an individual or suggestions as to staff positions that may be open for hiring? No, what I want to know is, am I excluded from this executive session, as a delegate of this convention?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Fayard, I did not author this amendment. I sought recognition for the purpose of discussing it with the man who moved it. And I cannot answer your question.

Mr. Fayard Would it be in order to ask the mover to answer the question?

Mr. Stagg I would yield for the purpose of letting the mover answer the question.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, you can't yield but I think that it would not in all probability keep members of the...delegates to the convention from attending any meeting, irrespective of what type it was insofar as the convention is concerned. Were you going [going] to withdraw your amendment? There is some rumor to that effect and there's not any point in us dilly-dallying back and forth if that is going to be the case, Mr. Avant.

Mr. Avant I have advised the Clerk that I will withdraw the amendment and will resubmit it by adding the words, following the word "rule" in the amendment, "with respect to personnel matters."

Mr. Henry Now is that the way? Again I realize we are out of order, but that's the...do you have that amendment prepared, Mr. Clerk?

Mr. Poynter I do, Mr. Chairman.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The previous amendment being withdrawn, amendment would now read: Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Avant]. On page 5, at the same place, between lines 10 and 11 insert the following: "E. Any other provision in these rules to the contrary notwithstanding, the Executive Committee may, when performing the duties assigned to it in this rule with respect to personnel matters, meet in executive session, but no committee action shall be taken while in executive session."

Question

Mr. Weiss I think it's significant that the delegates should be able to answer this question. I ask Mr. Stagg, how many members of the thirty-five researchers will be selected by the Executive Committee, according to provisions of Act 2 of the 1972 Legislature?

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, you don't have the floor, but go ahead now because you are going to have to answer the question in some point in time. Proceed.

Mr. Stagg I would think that all of the members of the executive staff, the Director of Research, and the fourteen research assistants. The Act itself sets up that there shall be four research supervisors who are deans of the Law School and that also there'll be six members of the House and five members of the Senate who'll be appointed by the Governor. So we are talking about fifteen in the Act 2...we'll be talking about fifteen members of the research staff.

[Amendment reread. Previous question ordered. Roll call vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 85-63.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Rayburn and Mr. Fayard amending original resolution as follows: On page 5, between lines 10 and 11 insert the following: "F. Any delegate may attend any executive session held by the Executive Committee or any other committee."

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. President, fellow delegates--Mr. Chairman, rather--since you just adopted the amendment providing for executive sessions, I feel that this amendment is necessary. And the reason I say that, I have served in the Legislature many years ago where they would not allow a member of the Legislature in executive session. Senator De Blieux and I with a bill several years ago corrected that. These amendments simply say that any delegate of this convention can attend any executive session, regardless of what committee it may be. And I move the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Gravel sends up amendments, amending the original resolution. Amendment No. 1, on page 5, between the lines 10 and 11 add the following: Now section "G. Perform such additional duties as may be directed or prescribed by the convention."

Explanation

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is just an additional provision that would authorize this convention to direct and authorize the Executive Committee to perform any additional duties that the convention determines should be performed in the future. This should be, I think, noncontroversial because the proposed rule is restricted to the things that are outlined in detail in the rules. This would just give the convention authority, which I think it already has, but I believe we should spell it out to give to the Executive Committee such additional direction and prescribe such additional duties as the convention may decide to do.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce. Previous Question ordered on Rule No. 18.]

Closing

Mr. Staggs I wish to proceed to the vote and get on with the business of the convention.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Henry Under the original motion of Mr. Staggs, we will now, I believe, proceed back to Rule No. 16. Is that not correct, Mr. Staggs?

Mr. Staggs Mr. Chairman, on behalf of the Temporary Rules, Temporary Rules...oh, boy...Temporary Committee on Rules, I move the adoption of Rule No. 16.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 16. Convention Officers. The officers of the convention shall be a Chairman, who shall be Chairman of the convention, a First Vice-Chairman, three Vice-Chairmen, a Secretary and a Treasurer. These officers shall constitute the Executive Committee of the convention, shall be delegates to the convention, and shall each be elected in separate elections by a majority vote of all of the delegates of the convention.

Mr. Staggs Mr. Chairman, I move its passage.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Leigh to Convention Resolution No. 1 by Delegate Staggs, amending the original resolution. Amendment No. 1. On page 4, line 13, after the word "officers" and before the word "shall" insert the following: ", together with a representative from any Congressional District not otherwise represented thereon, to be elected by caucus of the members of the Congressional District involved."

Explanation

Mr. Leigh Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, The purpose of this amendment is to insure that every Congressional District will have a representative on the Executive Committee. I think we have labored the point that this is a public convention and in the state that everyone should be represented. With seven officers enumerated in the rule as submitted, there must be one, at least one, Congressional District which would have no representative on the Executive Committee. Assuming all seven came from the same Congressional District, there could be as many as seven Congressional Districts not represented on the Executive Committee. It seems to me the entire state should be represented on the Executive Committee. And the purpose of this amendment is to insure that every Congressional District will be represented, so that if a Congressional District is not represented by one of the officers on the Executive Committee, then it will have a member on the Executive Committee which member will be elected by a caucus of the delegates from the Congressional District involved. And I ask support of the amendment.

Point of Order

Mr. Roy Can the Chair entertain a substitute amendment to that?

Mr. Henry No sir, if you have another amendment

...you know, if you have an amendment you have to offer them in the form of an amendment, but no substitute amendment to the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I really don't object to Mr. Leigh's motion, except in one particular... and that is, he wants a caucus of the Congressional District to select that representative. Now since we didn't have a caucus to elect a Chairman, and according to the rules, we're not going to have a caucus to elect a First Vice-Chairman and three Vice-Chairmen, and Secretary and the Treasurer. It's alright to let him limit it to the Congressional District, but I think that the whole convention should have the right to pass upon that member from that Congressional District, the same way as the others. It looks to me like we are favoring that particular Congressional District that way. Now maybe you might not want to go that route, but I think that the whole convention, since they are going to select the other officers at large from the whole delegation, that we ought to have something to say about the representatives from the Congressional Districts, if we are going to choose one from a representative district. That's all I want to point out.

Point of Order

Mr. LeBreton In the event that this amendment was adopted, and then we had a further amendment changing the committee again, is it not true that the last amendment passed would prevail?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir, the way it is finally adopted. The manner in which the rule is finally adopted would prevail, Mr. LeBreton.

Mr. LeBreton Thank you.

Mr. Henry Yes, sir.

Point of Information

Mr. [A.] Landry Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates and lady delegates, as I read the act under which this Constitutional Convention was called, I was wondering whether or not under Section 2, Paragraph 3 where it says "elect from among their number an Executive Committee, the membership of which shall be determined by the delegates, which shall include among its members a Chairman, a Vice-Chairman of the convention." I'm just wondering whether or not if we elected strictly by Congressional District, whether or not we would be in violation of that particular act?

Mr. Henry I don't think you need have any fear in that connection, Ambrose.

Mr. Leigh I will accept an amendment to my amendment.

Mr. Henry Mr. Leigh, I'm sure that you would, but under the method which we are proceeding under, you can't accept an amendment to your amendment. If it is adopted, then it can be further amended insofar as the rule is concerned, but we are not allowing amendments to amendments.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and members of the committee...or the convention, rather...I can visualize what could happen if you adopt this amendment. Suppose we get three vice-presidents from the same Congressional District, and then get our Chairman from the same—I'm just using that—or Secretary or Treasurer. After all, I came here to represent my people. I'm in the Sixth Congressional District, and I love everybody in it; of course, I love those I represent in the far section a little better. I'd hate to see us do something here that would pit the metropolitan area against the rural area of this state, where they could not, or would not, have representation. And I hope that you go along with an amendment that was read here earlier, where you will have two members of the Executive Committee from each congressional district elected by the members of that district--just like you elected the Rules Committee. Then you would have representation from all sections of the state. And if I understand the amendments that are now before us, in the event that you have a congressional district does not get a vice-president, Secretary or Treasurer, then you would name one for the Executive Committee from your congressional district, but it does not say that if you get three, you got to give up one or two of them to kinda equalize it. It don't say a thing about that; not a thing. Just says if we can't get in, they'll just let us come by, just pass through, us country folks. Just to keep you from being completely whitewashed, we're going to give you one; if you can get three or four, that's your good luck. I hope that don't happen. I hope, and they've said a lot about a big committee, but if you're going to operate on a big committee, Brother Stovall, let's forty-five of us go home, Oseba, it's a pretty big one. Ain't it pretty big? We had an awful hard time getting together here with this huge committee we've got. But I haven't seen nobody ready to leave yet. They say that we'll have at least twenty members on all the little subcommittees. Pretty big, ain't it, but we don't need but four or five on the Executive Committee. I say to you, I hope we come up with a plan that will give every section of this state representation. I feel like they're entitled to that. And I hope that you will adopt amendments that will assure that.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Leigh Gentlemen, I simply want to say that the Executive Committee's duties as we have voted them in Rule No. 18 are largely administrative. I think that every section of the state should be represented on the Executive Committee, but whether we have one representative or three or even seven for any particular district, I see no reason why that should affect the workings of the committee. It seems to me that if we provide the Executive Committee shall have at least one representative from each congressional district, then we have provided representation for the public. I ask you to vote for my amendment.

Amendments

Mr. Doynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Roemer]. On page 4, immediately after line 17, insert the following: "The Executive Committee membership shall consist of the officers of the convention and one member elected from each Congressional District within a caucus of same to be held subsequent to the adoption of these rules." Amendment No. 2. On page 4, at the end of line 13, strike out the word "constitute" and insert in lieu thereof "shall be members of".

Explanation

Mr. Roemer Yes. The amendment pertains to the Executive Committee; it deals not at all with the Committee on Committees. I want to make that point first. I don't change any powers of the Executive Committee; I only purport to change its membership. I increase it by one member selected from each congressional district by that delegation...one. The major point that I want to make is that I'm in sympathy with all efforts to expand the Executive Committee, because I disagree with those of us who would say that the Executive Committee has no power. I think it has many powers and consequently needs direct representation from each of the congressional districts. I only differ with those amendments prior to this and those that might come after who would have us expand it by a greater number than one per district. One per district gives us the geographical spread yet does not make the committee so large as to make it cumbersome. That is my only point. I think it provides representation yet does it concisely.

Question

Mr. Roy Mr. Roemer, since the convention just overwhelmingly beat the last amendment, which provided for only one delegate to be elected from each congressional district, and since I have my amendment up there which calls for two, essentially the one I withdrew under Rule No. 18, would you agree to let the convention take it up and see if it will pass?

Mr. Roemer Well, I would agree to that, Chris, because I am in sympathy of your aim to expand it, however, I disagree with your point that we overwhelmingly defeated the last motion because it had one delegate from each district. I think we overwhelmingly defeated the last amendment because it did not provide for one additional delegate from each district. That's all I'm trying to do. Now if no one agrees with me, that's fine. Vote against my amendment, but I would like to offer it as I submitted it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham I would like to speak in favor of the amendment. It's getting close to adjournment time and I just think that this is an excellent compromise. We've had some people who say we do not want to expand the Executive Committee. We've had a group that says, "Yes, we want to expand it by two people from each Congressional District." So I think this would be a real unifying effort on our part if we would compromise on this issue here.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes There's been a whole lot said about just one, one from a district, but I think you have to keep in mind that you have to kinda satisfy the people at the Convention and I guess you have to try to satisfy the people back home, because we don't have sovereign power as we think we have. You do have to consider the people back home, in passing the Constitutional Convention. And the more people I believe that we could have on the Executive Committee, the more votes we would have for passing this document once we get it in some form in which we can present it to the people. So I wouldn't be for restricting the document to a majority of the people here would like to have more than one person to represent them from a district.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, several times today, particularly in this discussion, members have come up and said that twenty-three delegates to compose an Executive Committee would be too large. I ask you what is wrong with having all segments of life of the people of Louisiana represented on the Executive Committee, to perform those functions that are necessary to run this convention, and to bring the document forward. I ask you, what's wrong in having minorities represented? Well, this would be virtually eliminated if we go with one from each congressional district. If you go with one from each congressional district, you begin to split this state apart. You begin right away to throw the Metropolitan New Orleans area into a turmoil. They will be pitted against each other, because of the way the first...because of the way the Second and Third Congressional Districts are so apportioned. With two from each district, we can accomplish the means and work out this compromise the gentleman just before, or right before the other one talked of. We need to have all segments of the people of this state represented. And the only way we are going to do that is to try to come to some means and some agreement that will do this. I ask that you would defeat this amendment and help support the next one which comes right above, right next, that will help to give the representation that is needed on this committee.

Questions

Mr. Duval Representative Alario, do I take it that you would also envision us having a Committee on Committees as well as the Executive Committee you propose? And that the Executive Committee would be confined to the duties as set forth in the adopted Rule No. 18?

Mr. Alario It would be to my feeling, my personal feeling...of course this would be entirely up to the delegates...that the Executive Committee would absorb the duties of the Committee on Committees, mainly because they are elected by the same process as we are talking about electing these people. If you're surely, these same people would probably be elected to this committee and perform the same duties.

Mr. Duval Then, I may ask you, if you want representation, don't you think that you'd get a good division of power and more of a broad base of representation if you had two committees, the Executive Committee performing the functions set forth in Rule No. 18, and the Committee on Committees performing its function?

Mr. Alario The only problem there, of course, is that then we're getting into the same people probably serving on the same two committees. And then, why not do it all at the same time?

Mr. Duval Of course they would be separate and distinct.

Mr. Alario They would be separate and distinct, but you're talking about possibly out of sixteen people, fourteen of these would be both on the Executive Committee and on this Committee on Committees.

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Alario, you have referred to combining the Executive Committee with the Committee on Committees, which is a snake we have been trying to avoid for a long time. Now you seem to think that this would result in the same people being elected to both groups. Do you really feel that the delegates to this convention and the leadership of the people of Louisiana is so poor and so few, that we don't have enough good men to staff a Committee on Committees and an Executive Committee, both on a two per congressional district basis? Do you have so little regard for the delegates of this convention that you feel we don't have at least four good men in every congressional group?

Mr. Alario Mr. Velazquez, I believe we have as much as twenty-five or thirty good men in each congressional district. The issue is not the point. The point is what are the politics in that particular congressional district. It's fine with me, if that's what the delegates want to do is elect four. Fine, just as long as we have proper representation and a cross section. My objection is that we don't have the representation with only one from each congressional district.

Mr. Velazquez I'd like to say that I do agree with you on that point. I look upon the key to this as being not numbers, but balance. It is necessary that we have a Committee on Committees based on two per congressional district and I'd be willing, if you were to accept that concept, to go along with also having two from each congressional district on the Executive Committee. The point I'm trying to make is that we are not so short of skilled delegates that we have to elect the same people to the Committee on Committees as we elect to the Executive Committee. This is the only point I'm trying to make. Balance is the word, not numbers.

Mr. Alario Well, of course, this next amendment that comes up provides for two from each. The Executive Committee, to my knowledge, doesn't.

Mr. Henry Mr. Alario, confine yourself to...we don't even know whether there will be a next amendment or not. So confine yourself to your amendment.

Mr. Alario It doesn't necessarily mean that we are going to knock out the Committee on Committees. That would be up to the delegates again on the very next ballot.

Further Discussion

Mr. [J.] Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in opposition to the present amendment. On Senator Rayburn's mention of representation he was concerned about the representation that's based on geographical location. I, too, am concerned about that. I would also like to suggest that as Representative Alario has mentioned, that there are other segments and other considerations that we should take into hand before voting on this amendment--the fact that we do have females here; the fact that we do have minorities here; the fact that geographical representation will be a factor. And on those grounds, particularly on the fact that as the congressional districts are so set up now, that if this process continues to be the main criteria for representation, at least balanced representation, I am very much concerned, as I said before the Executive Committee. And I'm particularly concerned about your making an inclusion, but at least make it fair, whereby the potentials of the minorities, females, and geographical representation can be shown on the Executive Committee. And as this amendment is being proposed by Mr. Roemer, as this amendment is being presented, it denies and sort of perpetuates the sort of conditions that basically the minorities and people from various geographical areas are concerned about. And with that concern, I ask that you vote this amendment down and give some very serious consideration to laws accepting two from each Congressional District.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rose earlier because we started at 2:15 to discuss Rule No. 16. And it was felt very strongly we couldn't decide on that without discussing Rule No. 18. And as we discuss both of those rules, there are undercurrents and concerns about Rule No. 52, which has to do with the Committee on Committees. I have listened to the arguments of both sides, and I really can't see what's so sacred about the Committee on Committees, especially when it gets referred to as being undercut or eliminated or them trying to take something away from it. Actually in talking about increasing the Executive Committee, two from each district, the same thing which Rule No. 52 calls for, we seem to feel--I get--that the Committee on Committees is even more important than a continuing membership on the Executive Committee. As I read the rule, the Committee on Committees will decide on who will have membership on various committees. Beyond that, it seems to me there is no other function for the Committee on Committees. We talk about electing two from each congressional district on the Committee on Committee which duty could be assumed by the Executive Committee. We could continue to have the two representatives from each congressional district remaining on the Executive Committee. Now there are those who say that the Executive Committee doesn't have that much to do. But I sincerely feel that C. under the duties under the Executive Committee is quite a sleeper, and I would like to feel that there would be broader representation. Therefore, I feel that that current amendment before the house of one delegate from each is an insufficient number, an inadequate kind of representation, and I would appreciate hearing from the membership what is so sacred about the Committee on Committees that we must continue to debate the present issue.

Question

Mr. Velazquez Do you think that if the Committee on Committees serves no purpose whatsoever, is of no value, and has no effect, how come everybody wants to put it? Now neither Matthew, Mark, Luke nor John was appointed to the Rules Committee; human beings were elected to the Rules Committee. And they were put together to set up a balanced document which would be fair to all the citizens of the state of Louisiana, to all the delegates of this convention and which would be fair to our esteemed Chairman. One of the criteria that we always took was: let's not ever put our Chairman in an embarrassing position. My... I will restate my question: does the speaker feel that if something is useless, why is everybody jumping on it?

Mr. Rachal I'd be happy. I did not in any way mean to suggest that the Committee on Committees was useless. In fact, I want to... this is not a part of the amendment, Mr. Chairman, but in answering the question, I'll have to give my personal opinion. I feel that the Committee on Committees is very important. However, I am not doing away with their duties. I think it should become a part of the Executive Committee. I think the strength in that argument is that we will not have gone through the motions of electing two representatives for each congressional district, only to have one who will be on committees and who no longer function. I think it will be more important if we spend our time to elect those two representatives. Let them assume those same duties on the Executive Committee as a subcommittee if necessary. That can be debated. But then they remain on the Executive Committee to continue to represent their congressional district.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson The point I would like to make is that we have here all sorts of interest groups. Geographical representation is historically part of our tradition. Now when we talk less parish representative for each congressional district, I only ask those of you who come from the congressional districts of Metropolitan area of New Orleans, which is a relatively compact area, to remember that those of us from the Eighth Congressional District come from a district with fourteen parishes in it and where we talk the way from Alexandria down to Napoleonville. And for us to choose one member from that congressional district is by definition going to leave an awful lot of people unrepresented. I served on a parish school board. There are many members here who have served on school boards, police juries and other local governments. You know that people will fall out even over ward representation, much less parish representation. I would say we have a much better chance to have adequate representation for all of the legitimate interests of this convention rather than token representation, if we expand the Executive Committee to more than the one per congressional district as suggested. I have changed my mind on this point. I started out today believing that we should have a very small committee, as suggested by the Temporary Committee on Rules. I have changed my mind primarily because I have heard such strong, obviously earnest opinions to the contrary today and I think it's the overwhelming feeling of this convention that we want a wider representation.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise in opposition to the amendment, not in its construction but in the fact that it does not, in my judgment, provide what I consider to be adequate representation for the public at large on the Executive Committee. You look at the duties spelled out now, that have been adopted so far by this convention, as to the Executive Committee. You find that they have more than adequate duties right now to justify at least two from each congressional district. Assuming that we have problems of politics in the various congressional districts--you have urban vs. renewal, you have the element of race, you have the element of sex, all taken into consideration--it is my judgment that we would be far better off if we were to expand it to at least two per congressional district rather than as proposed under the present amendment. Therefore I rise in opposition to the proposed amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Reeves First of all, let me apologize for being up here again, but I do feel strongly in this matter. I also would like to apologize for the late hour. I will limit my remarks to only two items, two or three. One of those items is in reference to the number of people, proponents and others who have stated that the Executive Committee is not going to need to be a large body, due to what its going to be working with. What I feel is that we need at least two persons on the Executive Committee for the reason that we do have a lot of work to be done in the Executive Committee. The budget is one thing that needs to be taken care of for the budget, as far as I'm concerned, and as far as the people in the Twenty-Second Representative District is concerned, is their business. This is not my money they're spending, this is not your money that we are going to be spending. This money is the great state of Louisiana's money and that means that my Mama and all those folks who voted for me and those people that didn't vote for me, that's whose money we got to be worrying about. And the Executive Committee needs to take into consideration the people in Winn Parish, the people in Caldwell Parish, the people in LaSalle Parish and all the folks in the Fifth Congressional District, and I don't feel that one person from the Fifth Congressional District is enough representation on the Executive Committee. The second thing I would like to take care of is this: we have heard a number of people get involved with the Committee on Committees and there was a bit of discussion in reference to Representative Alario's remarks. I simply see this as a subterfuge. I'm not worried about the Committee on Committees at the present time, as far as I would... in reference to the Committee on Committees, there has been a lot of discussion. I think my discussion at the present time is out of order to be discussing the Committee on Committees; I think it was before. It is immaterial, it's not even part of the discussion. My book, says on page 16 we discuss Committee on Committees at the present time, I'm on page 4. That means I'd better either sit down, because I'm on the wrong page, or I'd better do what I'm supposed to do on page 4. So I'm going to talk on page 4, which is the consistency, of what the Executive Committee is made of. And I feel very strongly that Mr. Roemer's amendment needs to be voted down for the reason of this: I feel we need at least two folks on the Executive Committee per congressional district. I feel that one is not enough, and I cannot reiterate it enough. I feel that one person is just simply very few and not enough. Our Fifth Congressional District is very large, probably the largest in the entire state of Louisiana. The blacks can't be represented; me as a young person can't be represented. I'm not a politician, or I will put it this way, I may have grown up in politics and been a politician, but I'm not a big politician. The only office I've ever held in my life is a member of the Democratic Executive Committee in Winnfield, or Winn Parish, and this particular position I hold now. And I cannot accept that this convention is controlled, or there is an attempt to control it. And I simply feel, again, that we, if you are for the people of the state of Louisiana and if you told the folks in your district that you were going to represent them, Baby, you'd better vote number one down, as far as one person per congressional district, 'cause you're not representing the people that you agreed that you were going to be representing; you're representing only one person. If you agree that we need more representation per congressional district, and if you told your people, if you told your people in your heart that you were going to represent them, and those are the people that really count, then you're going to vote for two per congressional district. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Roemer I'll only close briefly by saying that the rhetorical overkill of this convention is amazing. We had a succession of some eleven speakers who all agreed one with the other. The number eleventh one sounded like the first one. I might address a few remarks to their statements. First of all, as regards the infighting in Orleans, it was suggested that if we only take one from each congressional district, we would pit one part of New Orleans against another. My suggestion might be if we elect two members from each congressional district, we might pit two parts of New Orleans against each other. I think they are doomed to be pitted. My meaning and intent was simply this: we all agree the committee needs to be expanded. My purpose in expanding it by one is to get statewide representation, not by two, so thereby the committee will be of size enough that the administration of a convention can be handled. The administration of a convention can be handled. And that is the job of the Executive Committee, the administration of a convention. One person gives us statewide representation, yet makes it small enough to do just that.

Saturday, January 13, 1973

PRAYER

Mr. De Blieux Our Father, we ask Your blessing upon us today in our deliberation for all state officials and all others who are holding positions of leadership. Let all of our actions this day be in Thy service and not the least embarrassing to You. We ask this in our Saviour's name. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

ROLL CALL

[122 delegates present and a quorum.]

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

RESOLUTIONS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Henry The Chair now recognizes Mr. Stag to proceed with the adoption of the rules. I believe that we were on Rule No. 16, if I'm incorrect, correct me, Mr. Clerk. There has been a motion by Mr. Stag for the adoption of Rule No. 16, and we were in the process at adjournment yesterday afternoon on considering amendments.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Committee Resolution amending Committee Resolution No. 1, amending the original resolution as follows: Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Roy], on page 4, line 13 immediately after the period strike out the remainder of the line in its entirety. Amendment No. 2. On page 4, strike out lines 14 through 17 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "There shall be an Executive Committee which shall be composed of the officers of the Convention and sixteen delegates, with two delegates to be elected from each Congressional District in which they resided at the time of qualification or appointment. Such voting shall be in separate congressional caucuses. The Executive Committee shall elect from itself a Chairman and such other officers as it deems necessary. The Executive Committee shall have such duties as are prescribed by law or hereinafter set forth in these Rules."

Explanation

Mr. Roy Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I think yesterday evening right before we adjourned that we were about to get to this amendment which I believe most of the Convention supports. Let me say this morning, quite frankly, that yesterday, I contemplated that we would do away with the Committee on Committees and make it a part of the Executive Committee. When speaking with several of the other delegates and realizing that most people are very much interested in assuring as much participation of all people and all segments as possible, and realizing that the best way to get a true Convention and make up of this committee, I thought and I will tell you right now, that I'm opposed to doing away with the Committee on Committees. I'm for leaving that intact and I think this particular amendment should be passed as is at this particular moment.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Roy, I have prepared and have submitted to the Clerk this morning an amendment to this Rule No. 16, which would provide that no member of the Executive Committee other than the Chairman, may serve on the Committee on Committees. Do I understand your statement here today to be that you would support that amendment?

Mr. Roy I certainly would.

Mr. Juneau I want to thank you for staying up until two o'clock and accepting that, Mr. Roy. The question that I have Mr. Roy, I noticed in your amendment you said from the Executive Committee that they can elect their own Chairman. I think we've stripped Chairman Henry as far as we can strip him. It seems to me that in the duties of the Chairman we've contemplated that he's the Chief Executive Officer of this Convention, and I'm willing to give him that much. Don't you think that would be good?

Mr. Roy Yes, I think it would. I move to amend that particular portion that Mr. Juneau is talking about, so as to allow the Chairman of the Convention to serve as Chairman of the Executive Committee.

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with corrections.]

Questions

Mr. Perez My question is whether you would be agreeable to an amendment which would provide the following would add to your amendment, provided that the Executive Committee shall not serve as the Committee on Committees?

Mr. Roy I would agree to that. I think that Mr. Kean's particular question went to that, didn't it? So unless it's just going to take up time, I agree in principle with that.

Mr. Drew Mr. Roy, as I understand your amendment, you would delete the last part of line 13 and all of line 14 through 17, is that correct?

Mr. Roy Yes, sir.

Mr. Drew Are you not in effect deleting the requirement that the officers be delegates and the provisions for the election of officers, when you delete those four and a half lines?

Mr. Roy I don't believe, because the provision says that the delegates, the people on the committee will be delegates to be elected from each Congressional District.

Mr. Drew But, you are leaving out the means of electing the officers is what I'm saying, as provided in the present Rule No. 16. They'll be elected in each separate... in separate elections by a majority vote of all the delegates of the Convention. Would you leave that clause?

Mr. Roy Yes, I would be in favor of leaving this clause.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Roy, do I understand that Mr. Perez's statement, because the part of your amendment...

Mr. Roy I said I was in favor of that in principle, but I thought that Mr. Kean's amendment that he would later submit covered that position.

Mr. Stovall Couldn't we include both in the amendment? I'm not trying to amend your amendment. I'm simply asking you to accept it and make it a part of your amendment.

Mr. Roy I would accept it.

Mr. Stovall He would accept it, but would you add that? Give those words to the secretary, and it all becomes a part... we have one vote.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux ... that sixteen people as a result every time that Executive Committee meets is going to increase the cost of this Convention by eight hundred dollars. That's not a large sum. It depends upon how often they meet. I don't know whether or not the twenty-three people that would be on the Executive Committee can do a lot more than it could do. But there is one thing that I am particularly concerned with and that is by our actions, are we going to gain greater confidence of the people of this state by putting on eight more, that is, sixteen more people on the Executive Committee who, in my opinion, won't do any more good than the seven that we have that we will select. If they are going to be an administrative committee, administrative or works economically, because I think as it has been seen in the past, the people are more afraid of what we are going to do to their pocketbooks than what we are going to do to their personal liberties. Now, I just want to stress that particular point. The more I look at these rules, although I had impressions to start with, the more I'm convinced that this Rules Committee did a little better job than I thought they did. I know they worked hard at it because I was there part of the time, and I heard part of the discussion. There are a few things that I think that maybe we ought to kinda check on—maybe do a little bit different. Some of the things that they might have missed, but overall they did a pretty good job, and I think it was an independent job. I hope that we can make this Convention look at least lead the public to the conclusion that this Convention is an open, independent Convention, and that we are going to be working in their interest rather than our interest or somebody else's. I think, and I just ask you, let's don't go cluttering up our Executive Committee with a lot of additional people, which I don't think we need.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Mr. De Blieux, do you believe that democracy is greater served by decreasing the number of representatives of the people?

Mr. De Blieux It depends on what those people do after they are selected, Mr. Velazquez. That's the point. I've known a lot of people that can still be undemocratic in their actions and some few people can be more democratic. It all depends upon the individual.

Mr. Velazquez Do you not think that the people of the state would be more conducive to approving the final draft of this Constitution, if they thought that they had significant representation on every level of the Convention, rather than decreasing the size or keeping the size of the Executive Board at a smaller number which might not end up being representative of all discordant interest in the state?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Velazquez, I can go along with increasing the Executive Committee to insure that every Congressional District can have at least one representative. But, I think that when you put it beyond that point, you are stretching it a little bit too far. I don't know that two additional people would be any better than three additional people from each Congressional District. If you...why not put the whole Convention on the Executive Committee, if you want to be sure that everybody is represented.

Mr. Velazquez Well, I'll be very happy to go along with three, but I think that two is a nice, workable number.

Mr. De Blieux Well, I just think that the more people you get, sometimes the harder it is to reach a reasonable, qualified decision.

Mr. LeBlieu Senator De Blieux, I don't know if this is correct, but I had understood that the opening day session out at LSU cost $20,000. Part of that was for rent of the building out there. My question was if that is true, how could you criticize the fact that $500,000 additional for each meeting would be unjustifiable?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. LeBlieu, I had nothing to do with making the arrangements with LSU. I don't know how much it cost. But, I can tell you one of the things that I have been concerned with, because I know in talking to the people that they are very much concerned with how we spend our money. Maybe it was wrong to hold that session out there and spend that much money if we could have found some other place to do it. I don't know. But, there is one thing that I do know—that the people are going to be watching our actions very carefully—and I just want to be sure that what we do here today and what we do in the future that it will be acceptable by the people, because this is going to take a lot of time and effort on most all of our part. I would certainly hate to waste the time and effort that we put into this and have it rejected, because of some little small sum like this. If we can assure that this will not jeopardize our confidence, that is the people's confidence in us and our actions, I would be willing to spend ten times that much, if it would do good. But we ought to watch what we do and be sure that we don't do anything which the people can criticize us for doing, just because it might be to the advantage and the disposition of some of the delegates.

Mr. Leithman Senator De Blieux, one of your comments in the objections was the money. And it comes to mind the Constitutional elections that we've had down through the years, and I'm not familiar with what the statewide cost is, but I know what it is in a parish such as the size of Jefferson. It's enormous. I think with an expenditure of moneys for committee meetings, I think we're being shortsighted, because I feel with a good Constitution, properly written, I think in the long run, this $800.00 committee meeting will actually mean nothing. Do you agree with that? Do you not agree with that, Senator?

Mr. De Blieux I agree with you on that, Representative Leithman. I'd say this. That it's not the amount of money that disturbs me in this respect. But it is whether or not it is necessary expenditure of money. We don't know that we are doing something that the people as a whole can benefit from. And my opinion, from the way I read the rules, the way that they are presently set up, that the seven man Executive Committee can do the job which will only cost whenever they meet and they are going to have a lot of work to do and a lot of meetings to attend to if they do their job right it's only going to cost us $350,000 at the time that they meet. In fact of the business, it will cost less than that because as you well know, our Chairman has said...has said that since he is the Speaker of the House he will not be on a per diem. But if we go and load up the Executive Committee just to give somebody else some position, and increase our costs, every time they meet, over a period of time that is going to be pointed out by somebody that doesn't like the idea. You can bet your bottom dollar on that. And we've had some pretty close elections in this state, and I just want to be sure we don't lose the confidence of the people by some little small action like this, other than on some big issue that we might be engaged in. And I tell you this. An election in the state right now costs pretty close to...statewide election, a million dollars.

Mr. Leithman And, Senator, you touched on another point that I'm glad you did regarding the public confidence and what have you. And of course, I'm here representing the people of my parish as you are. We have some 350,000 people. The way, with one per Congressional District, it is very apparent that the second largest parish in the state would have no representation on its Executive Committee. I think the people would be a lot at this time by parish, the 350,000 people, with strong emotions if they are not represented on something so important as an Executive Committee. And of course, the point that I'm trying to make is that we are trying to get a good Constitution together, but also we are trying to get every big group and every segment of the state behind the ratification. And I think my parish will look at this with very, very down eyes, really, if we did not have any representation on such an important committee. Do you agree on the ratification and pleasing the people back home, sir?

Mr. De Blieux That's why I am concerned with more than anything is pleasing the people back home about this. But I can say this that there will be a lot of parishes that won't have representation on the Executive Committee, even if this amendment is passed.

Mr. Smith Do you perceive of the Executive Committee having two primary functions that of being a nuts and bolts type of daily administration function as well as that of being a watchdog committee to watch the spending of funds and so forth?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, I do. They will have a very important function. Yes, I agree.

Mr. Smith Can't some of the duties as far as the daily administration of this work be delegated to the staff or to someone else?

Mr. De Blieux I think the Executive Committee can perform that function better and they will have the overall say of how we operate. Now, that's why I believe that a small Executive Committee could do a much better job than a large one could.

Mr. Smith Isn't it true that as a watchdog committee function, couldn't they meet periodically, say once every two weeks or once a month?

Mr. De Blieux To be perfectly frank and honest with you, I don't contemplate the Executive Committee being, you might say, a periodical meeting Executive Committee. They are going to be in session very numerous times. They are going to have to, to perform their functions.

Mr. Smith You don't think that this small extra cost is worth the money, so that the people of the state might have fair and adequate representation on this committee, which you say is going to be a very important committee?

Mr. De Blieux I just think that you are broadening the Executive Committee to where that they may lose confidence in it because of the numerous times that they will have to meet and because of the large number of people that will be recalled in the session.

Mr. Flory What, in your judgment, do the people of this state consider to be most sacred, adequate representation or the mere expenditure of an additional $800.00, when the Executive Committee, who is charged with the responsibility of administering the affairs of this Convention during recess and the supervision of the staff, etc. What do you think that the people would consider most sacred to them, adequate representation or $800.00 dollars?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Flory, in my dealing with the public in trying to sample and find out a public opinion, as I stated a few minutes ago, I think they want fair representation, but they want it at economical prices. They are a lot more concerned as to how we spend their money than anything else I know of.

Mr. Guidry Senator De Blieux, I realize you want to see the money and I'm all for it. I'm just sitting back here and figuring out since you've been at the mike and for what it costs us to work for seven hours a day, you have just cost me forty-five dollars so far. Do you realize that?

Mr. Henry Let's proceed orderly, ladies and gentlemen. Mr. Guidry.

Mr. De Blieux Representative Guidry, I would say that you and I both are going to cost the state a lot more than that forty-five dollars before we are through with this Convention.

Mr. J. Jackson Senator, you know I can understand your concern about finances, but let me suggest to you that in the act that provided for the Constitution for the calling of this Convention and the composition of this Convention, you know, we could have very well said that 105 representative districts could have represented every parish within the state. And yet and still we added, not considering cost, we added an additional twenty-seven delegates to cover the major interests in concern throughout the state. So I think that ... you know cost should be considered, but I think that there has been a precedent set forth by the appointment of twenty-seven delegates who also receive the fifty-seven dollars. We could have as a matter of logic and as a matter of representation just went along with a hundred and five representative districts.

Mr. De Blieux Representative Jackson, I agree with the appointment of the twenty-seven delegates. I think that was okay. And I might say this, it's not the amount of this additional expense that I am complaining about. It's what I would consider the unnecessary expenditure of this fund. We do not need these additional representatives on the Executive Committee. If they are talking about the committees that are going to do the substantive work, Mr. Chairman. What I started to say in answer to Representative Jackson's question, it is not the particular amount here that I am concerned here with. It's what I would consider the unnecessary additional expenditure. And those little things sometimes which can cause the loss of public confidence, rather than maybe some big expenditure sometimes. Those are the ones that get the most publicity. And I just want to emphasize to you again, that we have got to maintain public confidence. Now if this was to have represented upon individual committees, substantive committees, who are going to do the work of this Convention, yes; certainly, I think every segment of our society ought to be represented on those committees. But for the Executive Committee that's unnecessary to add sixteen people to it. I just don't think we ought to do it.

Mr. Reeves Senator De Blieux, I've enjoyed your remarks very much, but would you consider asking for the previous question, please, sir?

Mr. Henry Mr. Reeves, you are out of order even making such a suggestion. Please, sir, there are a lot of other people who want to get their licks in on this, too. There are eleven people on this list at this point in time. Now you can make the motion, Mr. De Blieux, but in the interest of fair play...

Mr. De Blieux No, Mr. Chairman, if there are no other questions, I'll yield the floor.

Mr. Henry I thought you'd understand it that way. Thank you.

Mr. Warren Senator De Blieux, at one time I thought it was finance that you were concerned about. Then you said it's not. Then you said that the governor appointed twenty-seven delegates and you thought that was nice. I have no objection if it. I feel that they are a part of this Convention as much as we that ran and were elected. But, in the same time, do you think that each delegate, a hundred and five districts could have represented, they bring anything else that was designated by the Governor. That would have cut back on some of the expense. Is it really expense? I would really like to know what is the reason that you are against the representation of two delegates from each representative Congressional District.

Mr. DeBlieux The, what I'm concerned about is lack of public confidence, because I don't think we need those additional representatives on the Executive Committee.

Mrs. Warren Public confidence, Senator DeBlieux, is one thing. Are you thinking about the people from the district that you are representing, or are you thinking about the people from all over the state? I represent one representative district which includes white and black. I intend to represent them all and I'm not even interested in an executive position, because it's going to keep me from having the contact that I will want to have with all of the people from my district. So, I am looking for public confidence, too, and they are expecting me to come back and tell them something.

Mr. DeBlieux Mrs. Warren, I'm concerned about the people throughout the whole State of Louisiana. I think if we are going to take the vote of all the people in the state, that is going to be subject to them to ratify this Constitution. And so I want to be sure that when it goes to the polls, we will have that confidence in our work to whether they want to vote favorably for it.

Mrs. Warren One more question. In the final analysis when this document is finished will it be the Executive Board that is going to sell it or are you-all going to expect for the people from the representative districts to get out there and pound the beat and say this is good.

Mr. DeBlieux Mrs. Warren, that job is going to depend not only on the Executive Committee but all of us to do that job, as well as other people outside this Convention that have confidence in us.

Delegate Kean in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm going to speak very briefly. I'm not, I don't get up on this floor much, about once a day. I'm probably in the minority. I've been in it quite a bit in the last sixteen years when I was in the Legislature; I'm used to it. But I always believe in getting up and speaking for what I believe in and speaking my convictions, whether you agree with me or not. I was on the Rules Committees. I'm not sensitive if you-all don't go along with everything, but on this particular issue, we gave a lot of thought to the composition and the duties of the members of this committee. I should be on it and I'm in favor of keeping it like it is; I see no reason whatsoever of increasing it, political reasons, two from each Congressional District. The duties don't call for a large committee. I think it would be unwieldy, not necessary. Do you realize that we will have one-fifth of the members of this Convention on this committee? Those about the expense, it'll be fifty dollars a day. That's not too much in doing the work of the committee, but they'll meet quite often. Somebody said they'll divide themselves into sub-committees, but we have no reason to know that. When you go to hiring the personnel, you're going to have a chaotic condition, having twenty-three bosses. And anyhow, I think after probably this committee, after it is made sixteen or twenty-three, which it probably will be, they'll ask for more power. We worked hard on this particular section, and I feel like it ought to stay like it is, and not be increased anymore to twenty-three members. Just so every district would have somebody on it; the duties don't call for it. We have a committee on Committees; that's where the work is going to take place. I say, let's quit this political thing, trying to increase it just for political reasons. A lot of you-all have political motivations, I have none. I'm not seeking any other office. I'm here today to do my duty for the year, to try to write a good Constitution, one that the people will accept. If we're going to fool around here and talk about the composition we want, our district in order to have that district, which is not of any necessity of it for the duties involved, I say, let's go ahead now and let's do it like it is and add sixteen more members for what reason I don't know.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman, members of the Constitutional Convention, I rise very much in favor of Mr. Roy's amendment. I think that this amendment will give the people of our great state full representation on the committee that will be the steering committee; the committee that will work throughout the Convention. By this amendment, we do many things; among them will be to take care of the minorities. I hope that the minority interest, whether it be black or any other minority interest will be fully taken care of in the Committee. That the matter of female representation on the committee will be taken of. That the appointed people as well as the elected people will be taken care of on the Executive Committee; and certainly geographically North and South, East and West will be taken care of. I thoroughly agree that the Committee on Committees should stay in the Rules, however, when their work is completed, the committee's work is finished. This will be true with the Rules Committee, but it certainly will show the public, the citizens of this great state, that this Convention has been most fair, because they are electing the people from the Rules Committee, the Committee on Committees on the Executive Committee. Each Congressional District elects their own representation. By gosh, I think that that should remove any doubt that this was a controlled or stacked Convention. Certainly we couldn't be fairer than going to the people in the district and asking them to give us, the delegates, the Convention, who do we want from the Second Congressional District, such as in my case? I therefore say to you in conclusion that I think this is the fairest way that we can see that everybody is represented. Remove the image of being controlled and with that we can go forward. I congratulate Mr. Roy on a good set of amendments.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Chairman and delegates, I had a number of things in mind to say, but on my way up, Mr. Guidry reminded me not to cost the state forty-five dollars, so I will limit my remarks. But I would like to say, that I wholeheartedly support this amendment to the Executive Committee, whereby we would elect two persons from each Congressional District. Why...because I truly believe that this is the only way that we are going to get equal representation. As Mr. Jackson stated earlier that according to the act that provided for this Constitution, one hundred and five persons were elected, and to take care of those persons who were not elected to represent all factions, appointments were provided. And I think in this case after electing the seven officers, that we ought to think in terms of other persons who will not be represented by those seven officers. You know, I used to think that we held the distinction of being labeled as minorities, but I hear that today that you know, and other things, joining that group. I've heard so many identify themselves as minorities. And I think it's important that all minority groups be represented. I'm talking about youth. And if we elect seven persons; can you assure young Louisianians that they will be represented in that number of seven? Can we assure the black community that they have been represented in that number seven? Can you assure women across the state that they, too, have been represented in that number seven? Likewise, the appointed and elected delegates, North Louisiana and South Louisiana, but I say if you allow us the opportunity to elect two from each Congressional District, that the persons who are concerned about the final passage of this Constitution will consider all factions and make sure that we do have equal representation. And I urge that each of you who are concerned about the future of Louisiana; that each of you who are concerned about the passage of the Constitution; that I think in terms not only of the money that it's going to cost the state, but more so of equal representation. I urge the passage of this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to the amendment by Mr. Roy. I realize full-well the importance that those delegates supporting the Roy amendment have placed upon membership on the Executive Committee. I also feel very strongly that far, far greater stress ought to be placed on the Chairman and the membership of the substantive committees, whose duty it will be to prepare language for the amendment in the later stages of this Convention. Beginning next week, this is where the action will be in this Constitutional Convention in the work of the substantive committees; and for the next six months this will be true. Later in this session, an amendment will be offered that the members of the Executive Committee will not be serving as chairman of a substantive committee. This, I don't believe, has been considered by the proponents of the Roy amendment. I don't know where else to go, except back to the debates in the Rules Committee, where we sought very sincerely to produce a balance of the power of the delegates of this Convention to disperse it as widely among the delegates as possible. I hope the action on this Roy amendment, whether it is voted up or down, I express the hope while I am on my feet that this will break the logjam that we have met this morning and in yesterday's session. We have the rest of these eighty-eight rules to consider and I would hope that we would not have to recess this Convention in order that I or anyone else want to watch the Redskins beat Miami will be able to do so.

Further Discussion

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, you've heard a great deal this morning concerning the two members from the Congressional Districts being on an Executive Committee. Now, regardless of whether you realize it or not, or whether you want to admit it or not, there are divisions in this state. Now for years and years you've heard of North vs. the South. We in the Florida Parishes never got into that, and then now you come to us to your Congressional Districts. I would like to assure that most of you—all realize that we have divisions within our Congressional Districts, too. Now there are those from the country and those from the city. We feel like that we from the country are entitled to just as much representation on any committee that this Convention has, whether it be to buy issue paper or what. There are those and here is a map of the Congressional Districts of the state that you could look at at your convenience. There are Congressional Districts in this state that run almost the breadth and length of this state. Is one person from one end of a Congressional District going to be able to adequately represent or to satisfy, I should say, the people from the other end of that Congressional District? I think we can do a much, much better job by having at least two. Now, if we start having one person from each Congressional District now, what are we going to do when we get into the committees to write this Constitution and then we are going to say, "Are we going to exclude somebody from Congressional Districts?" I would submit to you that the proper thing to do is to begin now to give each and every person as much as possible, representation in this state on any committee that we have to insure the passage of this Constitution once it is written. Now, I'm not from Jefferson Parish, but I understand that Jefferson Parish is situated in three separate Congressional Districts. Now I don't know how much, how you-all feel about the passage of this thing, but I certainly want Jefferson Parish to vote for it and I don't want Jefferson Parish to be excluded from anything. Neither do I want Tangipahoa Parish to be excluded from anything, and I'm from Tangipahoa Parish.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes Mr. Chairman, I've heard a lot about the, well, say such statements as cost I hope will not be used to scare the Convention. I'm probably sitting back there between two men now who might, no doubt, finance the Convention. I haven't asked them yet, but I believe they would if we run short of money. But we have such committees as small as the little...the Education Committee here, the Superboard with fifteen people on it. We have fifteen people on the Superboard in the State Department of Education. We have approximately sixteen people on the LSU Board and the CA Board here have fifty-one on it, people. And we're talking about writing a state Constitution for the state of Louisiana, we are afraid that if we get more than seven, it won't pass. Now that was a compromise, we ran into this problem, I believe, well, I was here, but they ran into this problem in writing the Constitution for the United State of America. That's why we have a House that we don't need, and I don't suppose we need the Senate, because we have the House of Representatives representing all the districts, I couldn't see any...really any good need for the Senate, cause they don't really represent anybody. Then there must be a compromise, otherwise they wouldn't exist; so, now it seems to be a division, there seems to be a division. The division here is that some people want two people, some people want seven; so, it looks like there's going to have to be a compromise.

People are going to continue to come up to the mike. So the compromise, and I want to tell you, you probably can find out the way to go. I would like to go whatever way that I believe that we can get the Constitution passed at the polls. I'm not up here trying to run for any office or anything. My problem is can we pass it at the polls? That's where I believe I'd be protected. Now, it appears that everybody seems to want to pass this back at the polls, once they leave here. Not just getting elected to office and getting your name in the paper. Alright, if we can get it passed back at the polls by getting two for each district, then, I'm for that. Now, everybody from each district, say, we favor two delegates from each poll, then I favor the amendment where you have two from each of our district. Then when we met in our Sixth District, it seems it was the unanimous consent from the group there there's enough people in the Baton Rouge district virtually to eliminate the rural district altogether. First thing they decided is they are going to let the rural district be represented. And I don't think the person from the rural district was even opposed by anybody. This went on and they appointed somebody in their district. And then there was a runoff between the persons from the Baton Rouge area. So I think everybody wants to be...district representation...everybody should be represented from every district that there was to be represented from. And so there should be a compromise at this point, so we can move on. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Thompson I don't know whether it's significant or not, but this is the first time I've come to the microphone for anything. I tell you, when I look at the Fifth District of which I am a representative from that district, and find out we have about fifteen, sixteen, or seventeen parishes; without looking at that map, I know it's in excess of fifteen; I wonder how in the world we are going to sell to my people back home, by having one representative or maybe not one representative at all, if you go back to the old seven. Well, I'm sorry, the Chairman's from my district, so that couldn't be. But it could be for some other districts that's not the Fifth District. So it looks like to me and I wholeheartedly support the endorsement of having two from each district on this Executive Committee. I probably have a feeling further down the line that it might be a good idea on these committees that we are going to have that we could at least have two from each district, so the people would feel like when they go to the polls and vote for this Constitutional Convention a year from now that they are not being left out, that their wishes are being considered, and that they are being a part of it. I don't think the $800.00 a day is near as much as it could be to spend a million and a half or two million dollars in a Convention and then not have the people sold on it and vote it down. We'd be two million dollars in the hole. Senator De Bleuex, I think, you'd better think about that rather than something else. I think that there's been enough debate and there's one or two behind me. I know Mr. Riecke would like to move for the previous question, so with the permission of those behind me, I think we've had enough debate on it. I would like to move for the previous question, Mr. Speaker.

[Motion for Previous Question rejected:
viva voce.]

Closing

Mr. Roy Vote for the amendment. Let me just say one thing about this money matter and this committee being so unwieldy. I foresee that it is going to be broken down into subcommittees and anybody that was elected to this Convention can come here and make money on fifty dollars a day, is going to have a heck of a time doing it. Everybody that I've talked to since the beginning, all for the first meetings I attended, all with different socials want to get involved. They've been sincere about this matter; the only way we can assure effective representation and involvement of everybody in here and give them an honest chance, is to have two on this committee, elected by the delegates from the representative districts of this state, the Congressional representative Districts, and two later by the Committee on Committees. And I don't see any point in saying anything else about this matter.

[Motion for Rerod. Amendment adopted:
22-7.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Proposed by Mr. Roy to the original resolution. On page 4, in Convention Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Mr. Roy and adopted by the Convention January 13, 1973, in the sentence which reads "The officers of the Convention shall be elected in separate elections by a majority vote of all of the delegates of the convention" strike out the words "in separate elections" and after such sentence add the following:

"The Chairman, First Vice-Chairman, Secretary, and Treasurer shall be elected in separate elections. The three Vice-Chairmen shall be elected together in a single election. No delegate shall be nominated for more than one such Vice-Chairmanship. Election shall be by majority vote of those present and voting with each delegate entitled to vote for three nominees. In the event one or more Vice-Chairmen are not elected on the first ballot, the Chairman shall call such additional runoff elections to be conducted as are necessary until three delegates have received, respectively, a majority of the votes cast. In any such runoff election, the two candidates not elected, receiving the highest number of votes for each remaining unfilled seat, shall be placed in the runoff election. All such elections shall be by open paper ballot or by delegate roll call, in the discretion of the Chairman."

Explanation

Mr. Roy The purpose of this amendment is to insure that we don't have a particular person starting out and running at one level and, every time he or she is defeated, that person then jumping up and running at the next level, continuously on down. I think that the Chairman--which is really out of the picture, because of Mr. Henry's election already--but with a First Vice-Chairman, or what I think of as a statutory Vice-Chairman, that is the one that the act provides for--that that particular person and the Secretary and Treasurer be elected separately. Then since we have, in a sense, three coequal Vice-Chairmen, if you will, I think everybody who's interested should qualify and we should get that over with in a single election contest: that is, a single contest for one, rather than a person running for one Vice-Chairman. Then we all vote on that, and there's a runoff between two, and then we finally elect one. That person may be defeated or some of the candidates who ran in that jump in the next race and run for the second Vice Chairman. We go through the same routine again, and we do it on three separate occasions. I think that way it insures that we do things more orderly and that we make up our minds more efficiently and go forward with the Convention.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter First one amendment [By Mr. Roy]: on page 4, in Convention Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Mr. Roy, adopted by the Convention on January 13, 1973. In the sentence "The officers of the Convention shall be elected in separate elections by a majority vote of all the delegates of the Convention." Strike out the words "in separate elections" and after such sentence add the following:

"The Chairman, First Vice Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer shall be elected in separate elections." "Thereafter, the three Vice Chairmen shall be elected together in a single election" and here is the primary insertion: "In separate divisions designated alphabetically and each candidate shall declare for which division he or she is a candidate." I'll repeat that sentence. "The three Vice Chairmen shall be elected together in a single election from separate divisions designated alphabetically and each candidate shall declare for which division he or she is a candidate. No delegate shall be nominated for more than one such Vice Chairmanship. Election shall be by majority vote of those present and voting with each delegate entitled to vote for three nominees. In the event, one or more Vice Chairmen are not elected on the first ballot, the Chairman shall cause such additional runoff elections to be conducted as are necessary until three delegates have received respectively, a majority of the votes cast. In any such runoff election, the two candidates not elected, receiving the highest number of votes for each remaining unfilled seat, shall be placed in the runoff election. All such elections shall be by open paper ballot or by delegate roll call, in the discretion of the Chairman."

Explanation

Mr. Roy Essentially the amendment was brought up by several of the delegates who came up and pointed out that we had no provision for the order in which these elections were to occur. So the word "thereafter" was inserted to make sure that we were going to elect these Vice Chairmen, after we elected the First Vice Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer. The rest of the sentence as amended was to insure that these divisions, these candidates would not run in a one big pot on each separate occasion. That is, you would not have one, you would not have a bunch of people running for Vice Chairman and us having to vote on it and then later another one running for the next time for Second Vice Chairman and maybe some of the losers there in getting in that race. So we felt that it would be similar to judges being elected from Judicial Districts or divisions, thereby allowing the candidate to choose which division he sought and then have the Convention as a whole to vote on them in separate divisions. And that was the purpose of allowing the candidates to choose its division and also to make sure that we not run everybody in one big pot every time.

Questions

Mr. Newton Just to clarify the sense of your amendment. Would it be possible to amend to preclude a defeated candidate for First Vice Chairman from running for one of the other three Vice Chairmanships?

Mr. Roy No, I don't think it says that. It says that, it says that we first of all elect the first Vice Chairman, then we elect the other three Vice Chairmen and it says that none shall run who, unless he be nominated for Vice Chairmanship, not first Vice Chairmanship. My interpretation of it is that it would not preclude a person who ran for First Vice Chairmanship and was defeated from being nominated to one of these "lesser" Vice Chairmanships.

Mr. Derbes We discussed your proposed amendment at the recess and I believe that the amendment as read by the Clerk does not include the sentence which you and I discussed in the recess, namely the sentence at the end of the amendment as it appears in the xerox copies to which the elections for First Vice Chairman and the election thereafter shall occur before the elections for the general Vice Chairman.

Mr. Roy Mr. Derbes, I changed it after we talked, just to add the word "thereafter" before the three Vice Presidents. In other words, in the second paragraph if you insert "thereafter" it automatically means that we will elect the top slate of officers first.

Mr. Derbes I missed the word. Thank you.

Mr. Burns Mr. Roy, now that we have provided for two sixteen member committees would you consider or entertain the suggestion to do away with the three Vice Chairmen altogether?

Mr. Roy No.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment, because I think we are taking away a right to vote here in trying to elect two Vice Chairmen at one time. Each person has to declare. There are many good people here who, I am sure, would like to serve as the Vice Chairman, and by having to run in districts as such, you wind up with two parties of people being elected, but maybe there are two good people in the same district who should serve as Vice Chairman. By electing Vice Chairmen separately, say that there is a real good candidate in the first election for the first position of one of the Vice Chairmanships, what's wrong with allowing that man to run again, if he wants to, for either the second or the third Vice Chairman position might be influenced by whoever is elected in the first Vice Chairmanship. So I am in opposition to this amendment.

Question

Mr. Velazquez I take it you are not in favor of winner take all. I think that you are trying to say that we should accept loser take all.

Mr. Abraham I don't think I'm trying to say that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'll make this very brief, but I think this is pertinent because we are talking about two different things. We are talking about the method by which you elect them and the numbers. I thought this would be a pertinent observation. In the state of Arkansas there is a Chairman and four Vice Chairmen. In Hawaii, there was a Chairman and five Vice Chairmen or presidents, however you want to call them. In Illinois, there was a Chairman and three Vice Chairmen. In Maryland, there was a Chairman and two Vice Chairmen. In Michigan, there was a Chairman and Vice Chairmen. In Mexico, there was a Chairman and four Vice Chairmen. In Pennsylvania, there was a Chairman and two Vice Chairmen. The concept is not that bad, I wanted to make that observation.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I regret to have to rise in opposition to this amendment proposed by Mr. Roy from Alexandria. I note that Mr. Roy just advanced and proposed an amendment which was adopted almost unanimously by this Convention and had in it a clause which provided all officers to be elected in separate amendment, excuse me, separate elections. I also note when I read Mr. Roy's initial amendment that that clause requiring separate elections for all officers was penciled by hand, and I presume his hand. I presume it was deliberately done and I presume it was offered to this Convention with the idea that the amendment proposed by an Executive Committee and the election of officers in separate single elections. And then I see right after that Mr. Roy says what I did was a mistake. I've not changed my mind and I ask myself why. And I suggest you ask yourselves why. Why now, after the Rules Committee suggested rules to us calling for separate elections? Why now, after this Convention five minutes ago almost unanimously elected an amendment which also called for the election of officers by separate amendment? Why now do we have a change of attitude? I'm hearing that the election of three Vice Presidents is not important. I'm hearing in the back of the hall that some of us here who just want the honor and dignity of service, that we are being brought around among three fine ladies and gentlemen of this Convention. I've got too much regard about how they do it, because it's not that important. That's not true. And that's the biggest fallacy, the argument advanced in favor of this amendment. The three Vice Presidents had one singular important duty to serve on the Executive Committee. Now let's get down to facts. After being here talking about the function of the Executive Committee which we are discussing. The Executive Committee in spite of the rules of this Convention have the important statutory function described in the act which called this Convention. And that is to assist in a Research Staff of who will write the proposed Constitution and present it to this Convention after we adjourn now and reconvene on July 5th. The most important thing that we do now is to make up the Executive Committee who has that all important function of assembling that Research Staff. And I suggest to you that it's very important that we elect as Vice Chairman the person of the Convention, because they're going to serve on the Executive Committee. And it's very important how we go about electing Vice Chairman. Nobody in this Convention Hall is a novice in the processes of election. And there's none of you here who aren't politicians. Just disabuse your mind to that thought. And you know what it's all about. You know what it's all about, when you provide for the election by sections, when you provide for the election of three officers at one time. You don't have to have tickets. If you haven't ridden on one, you've probably voted for one several times. You know all about tickets, and that's what this is all about. And I suggest to you that if we are going to have an open, independent Convention, one that isn't dictated to, one that keeps its options open so it can go in the direction of the will of the majority. We ought to elect our officers in that fashion. And I ask you to vote this amendment down.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I rise to speak in favor of the amendment as it has been proposed. It is not unprecedented in the political life of our state. In fact during the last session of the Legislature, there was legislation passed by the House of Representatives and by the Senate that's now the law of the state. Police Jurisdiction School Boards have to elect members where there are multi-member districts by divisions just as is proposed in this amendment. And I think that the rationale behind that act is a good one and applies here. And it is this that you pick your opponent. That you don't have one man who begins to run in the first election and continues to run further down the line, until finally he becomes the third choice. At the beginning you decide which position do I want. There's been a lot of talk in this Convention about minority representation and I dare say, although I don't pretend to speak for the gentlemen and ladies that are here, that those members of obvious minorities in this Convention are well aware of the fact that their best chance to elect a Vice Chairman will be in doing it by divisions. And I am certain, although the gentlemen did not say so, that this is another unspoken premise behind proposing electing the three Vice Chairmen in separate divisions. I think certainly that the number of Vice Chairmen proposed, three is good. I noted in my remarks that he said the state of Illinois. I noted that Mr. Juneau stated that the state of Illinois and the state of Michigan had three Vice Chairmen. I think this is notable in that these are two of the states that successfully passed a new Constitution. Certainly one of the objectives in selecting the officers of this Convention should be to give a wide distribution of representation to all the groups represented in this Convention and the official officers of the Convention. Because you know as well as I do that no matter what the group is, when you go back home to try to sell this document, let's take the issue of race, since actually that's one of the things we are talking about. Twenty-two percent of the last time I say the statistics, of the electorate of this state are black. Now, if we are going to ask the members of this Convention who belong to that group to go back home and sell this to their people, I think as a practical matter we are going to have a better chance to do so, if they have from their group an officer in this Convention, because it's one thing to be one of the crowd and it's one thing to be on the Executive Committee. The vote of this Convention on the Executive Committee shows the importance that is given to the Executive Committee by this Convention. And an officer of this Convention is ex officio, a member of the Executive Committee. And let's please keep that in mind. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Abraham Mr. Burson, I share your concern for representation, but don't you feel that the intent of the Rules Committee in setting up three Vice Chairmanships was in order to provide for this representation of various groups and don't you feel that it is a sense of this Convention that regardless of how, we'll have our elections? We're going to try to do this type of thing.

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, I do think that Mr. Roy's amendment is an improvement on what the Rules Committee has proposed by establishing a separate division. I think that's significant. I think that's necessary.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Roy I want to say a couple of things. One in defense of myself. I don't share Mr. Triche's sagacity, having never been a public official. This being the first time I've ever been here. So I don't know all these fine points of amending rules and what have you and substituting amendments while I'm up here trying to get the pulse of you delegates. If you'll recall, we called a recess and we kept penciling in on the first amendment how the, what the Rule No. 16 would be composed of. And I plead guilty in that's what Mr. Triche wants to hear. I plead guilty to not having the best and most articulate rule that could have been drawn. But I don't plead guilty to any signer that he's trying to insinuate about me. First of all, if you'll look, if you remember the last sentence of Rule No. 16 as amended said simply the officers of the Convention shall be delegates to the Convention and shall each be elected in separate elections by a majority vote of all the delegates of the Convention. Two things to say about that. Obviously, it should have maybe read "shall be elected in a separate election by a majority vote," meaning in an election different from the elections that wherein you will elect from the Convention the people to serve on the Executive Committee. That's the first thing. The second thing that can be said about the particular rule is that there was no chronology set forth for the election of what officers we were talking about, other than officers. Now the present amendment is in a lot more detail. First of all it sets forth the Chairman, Vice Chairman, Secretary and Treasurer shall be elected in a separate election and shall be elected before the three Vice Chairmen. Now one final statement with respect to choosing the people who you want to elect as Vice Chairmen. Surely it's argumentative. We can go both ways and you can argue Mr. Abraham's way and you can argue Mr. Burson's which I prefer. I have in my mind my own feeling that the best way to adequately insure the best chance for this Convention to elect a black Vice Chairman is through this amendment. But the other thing that I think is extremely important is that when, in your deliberations, you're going to decide whom you want to represent you as Vice Chairman, if they all have to qualify in the same time for separate divisions. Then and there you can consider how you will vote on your three different people. Because if you have a makeup of a certain number of people that you like the three different divisions you know who your candidates are; you know how you will vote. The other way is just a guess as to how you will vote in the final analysis. If everybody is allowed to run for Vice Chairman on three separate occasions, in the end, you may not have a person whom you think should have been elected and should have been represented, and representing you. If you make them run in divisions, it is the best possible way for you to decide as you see the three divisions and their candidates, you can decide how you are going to vote in each of the divisions a heck of a lot better than you could if you elected one in just a general pot election. That's all I have to say.

Questions

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Roy, there seems to be a few questions going around as to the divisions. I believe I know the answer, but I think maybe you ought to explain briefly about how the divisions will be set up, not necessarily geographical lines per se.

Mr. Roy Well, I think the amendment provides simply that I would take it, since it is in alphabetical order, that the Chairman will designate the divisions A, B, and C, for Vice Chairmanships. And then, the candidates who are interested in running in them will so state. One might say I am a candidate for Division A. And at that time whoever thinks they would like to take that candidate on will ask his friend if he chooses to nominate him for that particular Vice Chairmanship. Then Division B would be brought up; the same thing, Division C. And then, that's what I'm saying, at that particular time you, the Convention can go by the majority view, exactly or the best chance, the best composition of the Vice Chairmanship that you want. It will affect the way you vote in the three different divisions.

Mr. DeBlieux Mr. Roy, wouldn't it be more logical rather than having Vice Presidents A, B, and C that we have second, third and fourth Vice Presidents?

Mr. Roy Well, I don't think so, because I think automatically people ascribe some type of numerical significance or superiority of three different positions. I think that A, B, and C is the best way at best we're going about something that's really not that important.

[Amendment rejected: 52-58.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Weiss Perhaps this is the time to bring forth the motion for lunch, but I'd like to make a comment which I think most appropriate at this time, because of Representative Triche's comments. And I take exception to the situation that a politician is equated with political compromise. Political compromise is the decision to vote with the apparent majority without a thorough comprehension of the reasonable results of group action. A political delegate, which I hope this Convention consists of is one whom the news media has equated with the political virgins and is one who does not accept compromise, but has faith, rather than fear, in the individual in a group decision. Numbers have never overcome fears. Economic abuses bankrupt the state and society. I think this is something we should all consider. I would like to feel that we are politicians, but at the same time have different feelings about compromise. I move that we go to lunch.

Recess

[Quorum call: 126 members present and a quorum.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Kean to the resolution.

On page 4, immediately following the portion of the sentence which reads "nor shall the Executive Committee serve as the Committee on Committees"--it was added by Convention Floor Amendment No. 2 proposed by Mr. Roy and adopted by the Convention on January 13, 1973--insert the following: "The Executive Committee may divide itself into subcommittees and assign to any such subcommittee any duty or duties of the Executive Committee."

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, there was some discussion this morning about the size of the Executive Committee and the necessity of the full committee meetings in order to carry out its duties. It seems to me that there ought to be some means by which the committee could divide itself into subcommittees, and it may even be implicit in the fact that such a committee exists. However, in order to make it abundantly clear that the Executive Committee would have this right, in its discretion, and be able to... some of its... all of its functions to subcommittees, I offer the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Tapper My question is this. I'm wondering if this amendment is germane to this particular rule. Rather should it be, should we amend Rule No. 18 to provide this? Rule No. 18 sets up the Executive Committee and Rule No. 16 as I understand it, sets up the officers of the Convention. And I was just wondering if it wouldn't be better attached to Rule No. 18?

Mr. Kean Well, Mr. Tapper, the only reason I brought it up here is that Rule No. 16 now designates the Executive Committee beyond the officers of the Convention as originally envisioned by the rule. And under the circumstances I would think that it could go here just as well under Rule No. 18.

Mr. Schmitt Does Rule No. 55 pertain to this matter? I think the Convention shall have authority to create other committees including special advisory committees as it deems necessary and all substantive committees may create such subcommittees as each deems necessary, provided that all such subcommittees shall be created only by a majority vote of the creating body. Does that take care of that problem?

Mr. Kean No, I don't think it does, Mr. Schmitt, because that rule goes to the creation of committees, additional committees by the Convention and subcommittees by the substantive committees and the Executive Committee is not a substantive committee.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates to the Convention, I rise in opposition to the proposed amendment. My opposition is based upon the position that I took on Mr. Roy's amendment in that we ought to have an Executive Committee broad enough to give adequate representation to this Convention and the public at large. I can foresee by this amendment through the use of delegated powers by the Executive Committee to a subcommittee, no limitation of power and a complete dilution of the problem that we attempted to solve by Mr. Roy's amendment. And I simply think that a majority of the Executive Committee could name those subcommittees, excluding, if you will, those that we attempted to put on the Executive Committee by giving broad representation to the minorities. Those based upon sex discrimination, urban versus rural, so that we are right back where we started originally. And I beg you to consider this amendment in the light in which I rise, in opposition. In that you are fixing to dilute what you have already adopted by an overwhelming majority of the Convention. So I ask you to defeat the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns The amendment makes sense with me in this respect. Some of the speakers this morning have been talking about and stressing economy in the cost of the operation of this Convention. It would seem to me that under the amendment just proposed that we could certainly save the taxpayers of the state of Louisiana and at the same time win over their confidence that in that respect by adopting this amendment, because if the Executive Committee has certain things to come before it, before it, that adapts themselves to certain different fields, it would certainly be an economy move to have subcommittees to meet instead of the entire committee to take care of those particular problems. And so I would suggest to the Convention that they consider this amendment in favorable light on that basis.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I think if you look at Rule No. 63, which applies to all subcommittees of which the subcommittees of the Executive Committee would be such. I think it answers the question, the point that Mr. Flory has made as well as answering the question of how you would create the committee and by what vote. Rule No. 63 dealing with the subcommittees says a committee by the affirmative vote of the majority of its members may provide for the appointment by the committee Chairman of subcommittees composed of members of the committee. Reports of subcommittees shall be considered by the entire committee, before any committee recommends any action thereon to the Convention. All rules applicable to the committee shall be applicable to subcommittees. It seems to me that affords ample safeguard against the point that Mr. Flory has made.

Questions

Mr. Tapper I have two questions, Mr. Chairman. Number one in light of Rule No. 65, is your amendment really necessary?

Mr. Kean Rule No. 65 is dealing with the Committee as a whole.

Mr. Tapper The second question is this. Isn't it a fact that under your amendment if adopted, the Executive Committee could by majority vote select that majority to run that Executive Committee and handle all of the business of that committee and exclude the minority? Is that not correct?

Mr. Kean Mr. Tapper, I've been around on the fringe of politics for a good while and I've always been told that if you get a majority of anything you're going to run it.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Kean, I assume you served on the Rules Committee?

Mr. Kean Yes, sir.

Mr. Rayburn Did you propose this while the Rules Committee was meeting?

Mr. Kean No.

Mr. Rayburn Did you feel it was covered in Rule No. 63?

Mr. Kean The reason I didn't propose it when the Rules Committee was meeting, Senator Rayburn, is because we were dealing then with a small Executive Committee of seven members and I didn't think it was necessary.

Mr. Rayburn Do you think that Rule No. 63 will cover what you are trying to do and if you do, what is the purpose of your amendment?

Mr. Kean It would make it clear that the Executive Committee would have the right to divide itself into subcommittees and carry out the functions through those subcommittees. I tried to make it abundantly clear that the committee had this right to avoid the expense factor that Senator De Blieux spoke to at length this morning.

Mr. Rayburn Well, I don't think that would...that would clear up Senator De Blieux's objection, but doesn't Rule No. 63 cover the exact same thing for any committee that you are attempting to do just with the Executive Committee?

Mr. Kean I would just prefer, Senator, to have it abundantly clear that this applies to the Executive Committee.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Kean, I concur completely in the thrust of what you are trying to do. May I ask you, may this not be a better solution that in Rule No. 63 to make it abundantly clear that we just add when we talk about a committee and say and subcommittee and executive committee? That would take care of the whole thing and keep it in context with the rules. If there is an objection, let me know.

Mr. Kean Well, I don't really, I don't think the objection is the way you put it. The objection, I do appreciate it was more to the substance of the proposal. And I would like to suggest that we adopt it and give the Executive Committee that authority, leave no question about it and I don't think it's really a great problem.

Mr. Arnette As I see it, Mr. Kean, the basic difference between Rule No. 63 and your proposed amendment is that under Rule No. 63 no action can be taken by the subcommittee. But under your amendment the Executive Committee could take action through a subcommittee only. Is that correct?

Mr. Kean I think the report of the subcommittee in order to be considered by the Convention would have to be recommended back to the entire committee as Rule No. 63 provides. On the other hand, housekeeping tasks could be assigned to the subcommittee.

Mr. Arnette Don't you think this needs to be made abundantly clear that the subcommittees would not have the power to make decisions for the entire Executive Committee?

Mr. Kean I have no objection to that being provided, no, sir.

Mr. Avant I wonder if you would be willing to recast your motion, so as to incorporate therein the provisions of Rule No. 63 with respect to this Executive Committee. So as to guarantee that every member of this Executive Committee will be on at least one of the subcommittees and also to make it abundantly clear by recasting it so that the provisions of Rule No. 63 would say that the reports of subcommittees shall be considered by the entire committee, before any committee recommends any action thereon by the Convention. To make it abundantly clear that that provision is applicable to the Executive Committee and its subcommittees.

Mr. Kean I think Rule No. 63 is applicable and insofar as your first suggestion, Mr. Avant, is concerned, I'm not willing to change my amendment to accomplish that. I think the Executive Committee ought to have the right to place people on the subcommittee as they think are necessary to carry out the assigned duties.

Mr. Avant In other words, all I correct in understanding then, that you want your amendment to stand, you're offering to stand so that this Executive Committee can exclude some of its members from any subcommittee, if that is their wish.

Mr. Kean I don't want the Executive Committee to exclude anybody. I want the Executive Committee to have the privilege and discretion to establish its subcommittees with such members as it may see fit to put on it by a majority vote of that committee.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Mr. Avant And that would though, give them the right if they so saw fit to exclude certain members of the Executive Committee from any subcommittee, as your motion stands now. Would it not?

Mr. Keen I don't view it that way, Mr. Avant.

Mr. Avant Well, maybe you and I don't read the same language.

Mr. Keen That wouldn't be the first time.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Keen, there is a question by Senator Rayburn awhile ago that the Executive Committee couldn't do that same thing under Rule No. 63. I just want to ask you, as I read Rule No. 63 that the committee can authorize as Chairman to appoint members to a subcommittee. But under the amendment that you propose here, the whole entire Executive Committee must vote to set up these subcommittee and the members. Isn't that the difference, so therefore the majority of the Executive Committee is going to control who serves on each subcommittee? Is that correct?

Mr. Keen That's right, and I think they would.

[Amendment rejected: 54-63. Rule reread as amended. Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 17, Convention Employees. A. Chief Clerk and the other members shall be employed by the Chairman of the Convention subject to the approval of a majority vote of the entire Convention; they shall not be delegates to the Convention. B. All other employees, necessary to aid the Convention, shall be employed by the Executive Committee of the Convention in accordance with Act 2 of the 1972 Regular Session.

Question

Mr. O'Neill My point, Mr. Stagg, would you please explain what the Rules Committee envisions the salary setup of these people? Will the Chairman decide the salary? Will the Executive Committee decide the salary? Would you please clarify that for me?

Mr. Stagg Mr. O'Neill, it is the understanding that the Executive Committee will employ the employees of the Convention and that they shall set the salaries in the budget of the Convention and such other administrative details.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 19 applies to the Chairman. Rule No. 19, Duties. The Chairman shall be the presiding officer and the Chief Executive Officer of the Convention, and as such, Chairman of the Executive Committee. He shall:

- A. Preside at sessions of the Convention and exercise the usual powers and perform the usual duties of a presiding officer;
- B. Preserve order and decorum;
- C. Speak to points of order, and subject to an appeal to the Convention, decide all points of order;
- D. Confine delegates in debate to the question, prevent personal reflections, and determine the order of recognition when two or more delegates rise at the same time;
- E. Designate the First Vice Chairman to preside in his absence and establish the order of the Vice Chairmen to preside in the absence of the Chairman and the First Vice Chairman;
- F. Name a delegate to preside as Chairman on

- G. Assign, with the assistance of the Executive Committee, the delegates to their seats, according to Congressional Districts;
- H. At the request of at least twenty-seven delegates, a recorded yea and nay vote shall be ordered by the Chairman;
- I. Sign all official documents of the Convention attested by the Secretary;
- J. Make corrections of the official Journal of the Convention, if necessary, attested by the Secretary with notification of any substantive changes being made to the Convention at large;
- K. Direct the Convention in its official activities, including naming delegates to perform duties connected with the business of the Convention;
- L. Not engage in debate when sitting as Chairman, nor shall he vote on appeals from his rulings;
- M. Maintain general control of the Convention Hall, its environs, and all rooms set apart for use of the Convention;
- N. Sign all warrants and/or checks;
- O. Supervise the Convention staff, provided that he may delegate certain of this function to members of the staff;
- P. On his own initiative or at the direction of the Convention appoint such special committees as may be necessary to perform special functions.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amending the original resolution as follows: Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Casey]. On page 5, line 30... on page 5, line 30, after the word "seats" delete the comma "," and in lieu thereof insert a period "." and delete the remainder of line 30. Amendment No. 2. On page 5, delete all of line 31.

Explanation

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and members of the Convention, the only effect of this amendment which is very simple gives to the Chairman of the Convention and to the Executive Committee the determination of the method of seating in the Convention rather than being seated by Congressional Districts. Personally, I would just like to sit by delegate districts. Sit where you please. I thought it worked out very well on yesterday at the Convention Center where everybody just walked in, first come, first serve, sit where you want. There was no confusion, difficulty or unhappiness at all with the seating arrangement that has been said of New Orleans, and New Orleans is a problem in many areas, and I even hate to mention that it connection with seating, but unfortunately New Orleans comprises a large portion of the First and Second Congressional District. And I think it is unfortunate that the people in New Orleans and in the areas of other areas such as Shreveport that you are required to have to sit with your own delegation. I think the most important thing that we can do in this Convention other than coming up with an acceptable document for the people is that we can get to know each other better. That we can work with each other. That the people in New Orleans can work well with Shreveport or Acadia Parish or Evangeline and one of the things that I would like to do is be able to sit with the people that I'm glad to work with, sit where I want to... So I think, I think we are causing problems, particularly in a city of New Orleans where I don't think the people from New Orleans should be identified as a block. When we vote, I know I want to vote individually, and I think that everybody else wants to vote, too. So I think really in the area of voting, if we ever have a standing vote, everybody might observe well, New Orleans is voting this way. I think you lose your individuality. It's been said on many occasions in the Legislature and in the Convention it's going to be said, I think it's about time that the city of New Orleans becomes a part of the rest of the state. And I think this is a good start.

Questions

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Casey, if we ever find us a place where we're going to meet for more than two days in succession, are we all fixing our seats where we are comfortable, would you mind that being the permanent seating of the Convention or is that the intent of your amendment?

Mr. Casey I have no personal preference on how the Executive Committee or the Chairman of the Convention would determine our seating. Personally, I think it ought to be just on a first come, first served basis. If you walk in wherever we are going to meet and you sit down and just be happy with wherever you are sitting. And I think that would be the appropriate way of doing it. If anybody wants to come late to the Convention and sit in the last seat that's available, that's their problem. If you want a good seat, get there early.

Mr. Guidry Mr. Casey, I'm thoroughly in accord with your amendment. I really like it, but I want to ask you a question which you may be able to answer. Do you think we'll keep on being like cycles and move day to day or do you think we'll finally, finally find a permanent home one of these days? Where we can find a seat where we might like to rest for the rest of the Convention.

Mr. Casey Well, Mr. Guidry, I thought the physical arrangements were excellent yesterday. I'd personally be satisfied with the physical and good arrangements can be made in the House Chamber, itself, I have no opposition to that. I think it would be fine for us to find a permanent home, however, Senator De Blieux has observed that this discussion is costing the state some money, so we ought to terminate it, sir.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Dennerly. Amendment No. 1. On page 6, line 13 delete the words "and/or checks". On page 6, line 13, delete the words "and/or checks". Amendment No. 2. On page 8, delete line 10 in its entirety.

Amendment No. 3. On page 9 between lines 1 and 2, add the following Rule 25.1 to read as follows: Page 9 between lines 1 and 2, the following language would be inserted as a new rule 25.1 to read as follows: Rule 25.1. number 25.1) or out of Checks. All checks shall be signed by the Chairman or the First Vice Chairman and by the treasurer or the Chief Clerk.

Explanation

Mr. Dennerly Section B of Act 2 of 1972 provides that any funds appropriated should be withdrawn from the state treasury in accordance with warrants signed by the Chairman of the Convention and all checks for the disbursement of funds shall be signed by the Chairman and the Vice Chairman of the Convention, or by the Chairman or Vice Chairman and such other persons as shall be designated by the Convention. The purpose of my amendment is merely to clarify the situation so as to conform with the rule and permit either the Chairman or the Vice Chairman, plus the Treasurer and the Chief Clerk to sign checks. I believe you will all agree that if we have to have two people sign checks, we ought to have four people authorized in case any one of the original two (1) or out of town or something. It is basically a technical amendment, and therefore I set it up so that it amends three different sections at the same time.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Is the Chief Clerk referred to in the amendment as a delegate?

Mr. Dennerly No, it's the Chief Clerk that is referred to in the Rules as one of the employees of the Convention.

Mr. Bollinger Don't you think, in my opinion at least, would it be in your opinion that the other authorized signature that would be coauthorized with the Treasurer should be possibly a delegate or an officer?

Mr. Dennerly I would have no objection to that, Mr. Bollinger, but I just did this because I thought it was the convenient thing to do, because the Chief Clerk usually is around.

Mr. Burson I understand the reason of your amendment to conform it to the law, but would you consent to withdraw that part that relates to a rule that has yet to be considered? I don't see parliamentarily how we could put an amendment to something that's not before the body.

Mr. Dennerly I yield to the Chairman and the Parliamentarian on that, Mr. Burson.

Mr. Henry Inasmuch as this is technical in nature, and inasmuch as we did advance out of our regular order yesterday, I think that at the same time under these circumstances it would be appropriate just for clarity to go ahead and if the body determines to act on this amendment at this time.

Mr. Newton Mr. Dennerly, may I see a copy of your amendment, just a second? You are striking out, you are striking out the word "and/or checks". Now does this leave it so that the Chairman only signs warrants?

Mr. Dennerly No, the Chairman signs warrants and the Vice Chairman signs them.

Mr. Newton But, the Chairman doesn't sign checks? Now isn't it conceivable...

Mr. Dennerly Excuse me, but the amendment to the addition of the Rules No. 25.1 says all checks shall be signed by the Chairman or the First Vice Chairman and by the Treasurer or the Chief Clerk. So it provides for two signatures, either that of the Chairman or the First Vice Chairman and either that of the Treasurer or the Chief Clerk.

Mr. Newton The point I'm making is there a provision in the Act for private funds? I don't know where they are going to come from, but conceivably they could come so that we would be receiving funds from other than from the state treasury. And that's why the words in the rule as originally put in there were put in in those terms. And I don't want to defeat the purpose of that.

[Amendments reread. Previous question ordered. Amendments adopted: visa voce. Previous question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: visa voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 20 pertains to the First Vice Chairman. Rule No. 20. Duties. That First Vice Chairman shall serve as First Vice Chairman of the Convention, and as such, shall:

- A. Preside as acting Convention Chairman, when requested to do so by the Convention Chairman, or in the absence or inability of the Chairman to serve;
- B. Serve as a member of the Executive Committee of the Convention, and carry out such other duties as are assigned by the Chairman.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

- C. Serve as an ex officio member of the Committee on Rules, Credentials, Ethics, and Schedules, but shall have no vote and shall not be counted for the purpose of obtaining a quorum.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. De Blieux] on page 6, line 30, after the word "vote" and before the word "and" insert the word "therein". Amendment No. 2, on page 6, line 31, after the word "quorum" and before the period "." insert the word "thereof".

Explanation

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, this is just a little technical amendment for clarification to be sure that we're only excluding the Chairman from being counted in that committee meeting, because the provision now stands does not make that clear and we want to be sure that the Vice Chairman has a vote otherwise.

[Amendments reread. Previous Question ordered. Amendments adopted: viva voce. Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, you'll note that on page 5 in the middle of the page the beginning of the duties of the Chairman, there is an interlined word, eleven, saying the Chairman is a title. In line 19 on page 6, there is a title, First Vice Chairman. In line 32 between 31 and 32 there is no title as a technical committee amendment. May we ask and I move that we insert the word "Vice Chairman" in the middle of the page as a style correction?

[Technical Amendment adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 21. Vice Chairman. The Vice Chairman shall:

- A. Preside in the absence of the Chairman and the First Vice Chairman in the order established by the Chairman as provided in Rule No. 19E;
- B. Serve as members of the Executive Committee and carry out such duties as are assigned by the Chairman.
- C. The Chairman shall designate First Vice Chairman to serve ex officio on each of the three remaining procedural committees. No Vice Chairman shall have a vote on the committee to which he is assigned and shall not be counted for the purpose of obtaining a quorum.

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the deletion of the word in the title following the words "Rule No. 21". Take out "Vice Chairman" at that point and insert the word "Duties" to make it conform with the other parts of this rule, otherwise I move its adoption.

[Technical Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Poynter said First Vice Chairman in line 3 and that was a mistake. I wanted to clarify that point.

Mr. Henry Mighty fine. Thank you, sir.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, Mr. De Blieux added as a style to make it conform with previous adoption that the word "thereof" appear after "quorum" in line 7.

[Technical Amendment adopted: viva voce. Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Secretary. Rule No. 22. Duties.

The Secretary shall:

- A. Exercise responsibility for the accuracy of the Convention Journal of Proceedings, and the daily publication and distribution of the Journal;
- B. Keep a verbatim written record and a sound recording of all proceedings of the Convention and of the Committee of the Whole;
- C. Prepare a daily calendar of business and notices of schedules of all committee meetings;
- D. Receive, reproduce, number and distribute all resolutions, delegate and committee proposals;
- E. Read to the Convention all proposals, resolutions, petitions, memorials and communications;
- F. Exercise responsibility for roll calls of the delegates;
- G. Attest where necessary all official documents of the Convention;
- H. Preserve and safeguard all original copies of official documents and be responsible for the preservation of all proceedings of the Convention and its committees, and see that all records are properly preserved in archives of the state;
- I. Serve as a member of the Executive Committee;
- J. Perform such other duties as may be designated by the Chairman or the Executive Committee.

Questions

Mr. Womack Mr. Stagg, the only thing I would like to do at this time is to point out to the committee the wording there where it is required under, I believe, B, on line 13, keep a verbatim written record of the entire proceedings all the way through. I just wanted to point out to the Convention at this time, that you will quit talking about the peanuts that Senator De Blieux discussed and you are going to be talking about the money in that phrase right there.

Mr. Derbes Mr. Stagg, I understand that if the Journal of proceedings is roughed up and sent to the Legislative Journal. That the notices of committee meetings will not occur through the Journal, while the Convention is not in session. In other words, what I'm concerned about is how do I, as a delegate, who is on one committee know when other committees are meeting? I would like the Secretary required to notify or to distribute schedules of all committee meetings to all delegates.

Mr. Stagg Would you please refer to Rule No. 62 on notice of committee meetings and bring up a perfecting amendment at that time and it would be in order, I think?

Mr. Burson Mr. Stagg, I made a note in my book yesterday that someone had raised a question about on roll calls reporting the results of the votes. Would it be safe to assume that keeping a verbatim written record of the Convention would include keeping a result of all the votes?

Mr. Stagg I would presume that if there was a verbatim record and a sound recording that a recordation record would be of all votes somewhere in the archives of the Convention.

Mr. Avant Mr. Stagg, I rise on the same subject that Mr. Womack rose on, and I refer you to Section E of this rule where you refer to keeping a verbatim written record of all proceedings of the Convention and of the Committee as a Whole. I understand that the Journal for the House of Representatives cost $2,000.00 dollars a day and it's not a verbatim written record and you and I are both attorneys and I think that the cost of depositions right now is two dollars per page for an original and one copy.

And my question is, do you have any idea or figure at all that you can give this Convention as to what it would cost the state to provide a verbatim written record of all proceedings of this Convention and of the Committee as a whole?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Avant, in the Rules Committee this same discussion was held. There were several points of view expressed. One of those points of view was that as you know, when questions of Constitutional law and rights are concerned the courts pay attention to legislative history of the formation of the Constitutional Document. It was the opinion of some of the members of the Rules Committee, there were two in the Committee who are Legislators. I think the last time I heard them discuss it, they thought that it would take maybe four secretaries on hand at twenty dollars a day, take twenty-five dollars a day for the pay of those four secretaries or a hundred dollars a day to transcribe the proceedings of the Convention. There were no counter-arguments to the fact that it was of historical and legal significance to have the proceedings of the Convention in a form of a written record and that is now reflected in the language of Subparagraph B.

Mr. Avant Well, Mr. Stagg, are you telling me that it can be done for approximately a hundred dollars per day?

Mr. Stagg No, Mr. Avant, I'm not. I reflected it as being that kind of conversation which took place in the debates in the Rules Committee, and that's why I am up here. To say why the delegates did it. And that's why they did it cause they thought they could do it for a hundred dollars a day and more than that they thought that it was needed as a historical record of the proceedings of the Convention.

Mr. Avant Well, I say this that I agree with you wholeheartedly, it is most needed, if it can be done for a hundred dollars a day. It is well worth it, but I have serious doubts that it can be done anywhere near a hundred dollars a day.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, if we're going to keep these records recorded and written, who will have control of them? Could somebody who wanted to nit-pick them come and ask for the records and take them out and pick them to pieces? Who would have control of the records?

Mr. Stagg Under the section that we are discussing, Mr. Rayburn, the duties of the Secretary and in Subparagraph H, it is stated that the secretary shall preserve and safeguard all original copies of the Convention documents. I say that these things.

Mr. Henry Wait just a minute, Mr. Stagg. Mr. Stagg, pardon me. There are numerous delegates complaining about not being able to hear. Please hold down the conversation, especially behind the mic. There are some of you talking like a bunch of blackbirds back there. Please hold it down. Proceed. No offense, Mrs. Taylor, it looks like some snowbirds back there, too. Proceed. Proceed, gentlemen, let's hold down the noise, seriously. Gentlemen and ladies. Proceed.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, in their provision as to what control the Secretary would have of these records or if I had fifteen of my constituents that wrote for a complete record and also a complete transcript of all the proceedings of this Convention, would they be entitled to have them mailed to them or sent to them? This things going pretty good right now. We having a little trouble among ourselves and I'm just curious as to what's going to happen when the public starts picking at it. Would they be entitled to get a copy of those records, a copy of that tape, anybody that wrote in and asked for it? What safeguard does the Secretary have as to what disposition he or she will make of these records in the event someone wants a complete copy of all the proceedings on any particular day of proceedings of this Convention?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Rayburn, never having been a member of a Constitutional Convention I don't know the answer to that. I know that when the Secretary is charged with safeguarding them as his duty, that I think it would lie with the Executive Committee to decide whether a copy of a sound recording would be at the cost of the person applying for it or that a transcript would be at the cost of the person desiring it, if it's xeroxed at ten cents a page, then that would be established as the cost to somebody who wanted a copy. But I don't know the answer to your question.

Mr. Rayburn I know, but do you think we need to put that safeguard in there where any one wanting it would at least have to pay the cost of it? We have that now in our driver's license application. Some attorneys or some insurance company wants some information. They pay the cost of that information, and I don't want to see this Convention get placed in the predicament of where some of our constituents would write in or call in I would like a copy of the proceedings of the entire Convention on such and such a day, and we have no provisions to write in and give it to them we're in trouble. But I think we should have some safeguard to protect ourselves because the cost could really be tremendous or we could be placed in a position if we don't give it to them of looking a little bad. That is the only thing I'm trying...

Mr. Stagg Senator Blair points out that under Rule No. 64, all written records and reports of the Convention shall be subject to the provisions of the Public Records Act.

Mr. Rayburn The Public Records Act, I don't think makes any provision for paying for any records. I think they're paying for an individual could come and see them, if he so desires. And I'm sure if that is true that would take care of what I'm concerned about.

Mr. Flory Mr. Stagg, assuming the cost to operate T...but once you transcribe verbatim the previous day's proceedings, who then is going to proofread against the tape in a test to the validity of the typed verbatim report? I know as you do even in depositions, court reporters and so forth make mistakes in transcribing, so who is going to, when it goes before the court, to get the legislative history on questions of constitutional law, will attest to the validity of the verbatim report?

Mr. Stagg I think that would be the duty of the Secretary of the Convention, Mr. Flory.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Stagg, I'm a little concerned over the duty of the Secretary to tally the vote on any issue that comes up. You know in the Legislature, you can see how you vote and we've had some close votes here with the standing and so forth. If it's one person who's going to have the say-so for marking down whether you vote yea or nay, do you think that's safeguard enough on important issues that I foresee in the future that will come up and will be very controversial?

Mr. Stagg On the yeas and nays, Mr. Stinson, I think the verbatim sound recording could then be played back. You could hear yourself answer the roll or any one else's vote, you question?

Mr. Stinson Thank you. And you think that will take care of the necessary precautions?

Mr. Stagg I do, sir.

Mr. Stinson Don't you think in the case of

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Mr. LeBreton and a few of us, it might take two cameras instead of one?

Mr. Staggs We're going to rename you Mr. Leprechaun.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. LeBreton, I've made one editorial change on that, if you'd like to look at it. Amendment proposed by Mr. LeBreton to Committee Resolution No. 1 by Mr. Staggs, amending the original resolution. Amendment No. 1. On page 7, line 13, delete the words "a verbatim written record and". (A) would then read or, "we're trying to follow "keep a sound recording of all proceedings of the Convention and of the Committee as a whole."

Explanation

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman, Mr. Staggs and members of the Convention, having read every word of the duties of the Secretary, there are many safeguards to keep a record of what we're doing. Now, in addition to that, when you say to me keep a verbatim written record, that would mean that somebody would have to take down every word that was uttered from the time we convened till we adjourned. I never have heard of that in any body such as this. Legislative duplication, trying to do it. Sound recording seems to duplicate a verbatim written record, you have a record on the tape. I can conceive that maybe the tape would break or maybe the battery would run out or something of that sort, that would just be up to the person who operated the machine. It seems to me that we have a complete duplication. I don't know. I guess one of the most important points I'm making in asking you to remove these six words is that I would think the cost would be just tremendous to have every word. You think of every word that we said yesterday between ten and six. I don't know how many millions of words that would be and how many words have we issued today since nine o'clock this morning. And just wonder if it's necessary. I certainly want to have a complete record as much as anyone does, and I see the justification. I'll have had the experience to understand it, but I don't think that the first six words would be necessary. I think a sound recording would be the answer to all extra precautions. Usually that isn't done, but usually (C) and (D) and so on would be sufficient to keep a record of what we do. So I ask that my amendment be accepted on the basis of (A) to duplication and (B) the cost would be just out of this world.

Further Discussion

Mr. DeBlieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I don't anticipate that we will be recording and putting in each daily journal what transpired verbatim the preceding day. If this is the sense of the rule that the written record will be preserved at the end of the Convention, whatever method you use, I don't think it's going to run into the tremendous expense that Senator Rayburn and Representative LeBreton referred to. But I can say this, probably if we had a written record, verbatim record of the Convention of the states in the year 1787, we probably could have saved a lot of expenses as it has taken the Supreme Court to interpret what that Constitution meant. I hope that the Constitution that we adopt as a result of this Convention will last that long. And I hope that we won't have as many court decisions trying to find out what we meant because of the document we adopted. I think this can be very helpful in that extent. You know you can waste money. You can waste it by dribbles, like I was speaking about a few minutes ago when you enlarged the Executive Committee. Or you can waste it in big lumps. It's not the amount that's important; to a large extent is what you spend it for. And I think that this particular time that if you spent money to keep a record of what went on and what was said with reference to each one of these provisions that it might be worth a lot, lot more to the public in general than what we've spent on the Executive Committee.

Question

Mr. Blair Senator DeBlieux, in order to defray the expenses of, you know, it's going to be a very expensive thing, would you be willing to let us charge back to each one that comes up here about ten cents a word in order to pay for this?

Mr. DeBlieux Well, Senator Blair that's the same category which I spoke awhile ago about the Executive Committee. It's not how long it takes you to say it, it's what you said here whether or not it's important.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman and delegates to the Convention, there are two publications that are contemplated by these rules. The first would be a daily journal. It would be the minutes of what transpires that would be placed on your desk the following day. The other is this verbatim written record. It would not be published every day and placed on your desk. It would not be printed in all likelihood. It would simply be typed up and at the end of the Convention, bound. A few copies would be made available and it would be available to the general public to come in and Xerox or copy in any manner they chose. And the expense involved in doing this would not be great at all. It would cost the people that took the shorthand and then check it against the tape, once it was typed up. I contemplate three or four or five people involved. I think it would run no more than one or two hundred dollars a day, nothing like the cost of printing the journal, which in the House runs, I understand, more than two thousand dollars a day, but which I hope will not be approached anything like that. Now, the importance of this to me is not the cost. I think it would cost us some money, only a small fraction, though, of the total Convention expenses. For every day we meet, we're talking about sixty-six hundred dollars just per diem for members of the Convention. The cost of keeping this transcript would be minuscule compared to the total cost of the Convention. But the importance is that it would provide hopefully for generations to come with the spirit and feeling of what we're doing at this Convention. The few words that we're putting down in the document only tell part of the story. I don't care how precise you are in writing something; it can be interpreted in many ways. And what is said in the debate on this floor--not in things like rules, but when we get to the substance of this Convention--can be all important in future court decisions. It can mean, literally, millions of dollars in the long run in court decisions compared to probably a few thousand spent in this Convention and, more important, not simply from dollars and cents, but from the standpoint for the rights and liberties of our people. It could mean all of those things. Now, keeping a transcript is not uncommon. Most Constitutional Conventions do. The U.S. Congress does everyday. The state legislatures normally don't because what transpires in the state legislature is not of enduring importance. They pass highly technical measures, not short, brief, concise documents like, hopefully, we can pass. Now a tape is not sufficient. Someone who wants to refer to a sound recording would have to listen to lengthy periods in order to find something of relevance. That is not the way you want to find something when you're doing research. You need a bound volume micrographed, xeroxed, or something that you can turn through that will be indexed that you can find the background for. I think this would be very important to the people of the state. It would not be costly, and it would give us a permanent record of what transpires here.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Delegate Rayburn in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy To the Convention, I'm in favor of the amendment of Representative LeBreton. First of all—and I'm not saying this just because I happen to be an attorney—but I've been in a bunch of cases where you just, with even court reporters there, you run into a world of problems and trouble finding out exactly what was said verbatim. I think that what could be done with the sound recording as Representative LeBreton suggested is to do away with a lot of unnecessary expense. How in the world are you going to...and how are you going to index all of the thousands of words we're going to say? What are you going to say? Are you going to index something like Dick Guidry's comment this morning about forty-nine dollars a minute? That doesn't belong in a verbatim transcript and stuff. I haven't found that the courts are overly excited about looking into the past history of acts, and I think if an attorney is interested in citing something to a court, then it's very easy under Rule 22--under part G of that Rule No. 22--for the attorney to ask the Secretary to the Convention to have transcribed, and there's going to be a world of conflict as to exactly what was said. Did the man say read or read or what have you? But in any event, you could attest to whatever somebody wants, charge them for it, and send it up when it's needed. There's no need from day to day to transcribe a verbatim record, whether you do it the next day or six weeks after. There's just no need for it, and if you're going to do it at the expense, I don't see the need for it immediately like it's been suggested. What the courts need, the attorneys can furnish. I'm for the amendment. I think we ought to adopt the amendment.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Roy, in listening to your proposal--I respect what you are saying--but what becomes of the recorded transcript to the proceedings, once the Convention has disbanded? In other words, in 1985, I as an attorney write for a written transcript of these proceedings. Who is going to then transcribe the proceedings and make them available to me?

Mr. Roy Well, I think under the Public Records Act under that rule, it provides that this will be a Public Records Act that somebody could be authorized to transcribe that particular section which you wanted and attest to it. I'm just opposed to the concept of a verbatim record being later typed up. I just don't think it makes sense.

Mr. O'Neill As I understand the Public Records Act, its access to information, not certification that the information is correct. Are you familiar with the Public Records Act?

Mr. Roy Not to that extent, but I think if it's a public record that it would have to be certified as a true and correct copy of a public record.

Mr. O'Neill By whom?

Mr. Roy By whoever is in charge of the records.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette I was on the Rules Committee and we brought out, practically all the points that have been brought out here, but the main reason that we decided to keep a verbatim written record was for probably four or five specific reasons. First of all, it would not be a deposition type form, it would not cost a dollar or two a page or three dollars a page or anything like this. It would just be a typed copy of what the tape said. Now the second thing is, it's very necessary for future use in law suit purposes for interpretation of the Constitution. I'm sure everyone understands this is a very important point to consider. The third point is, we went through our homework on the Rules Committee and went through twenty-one other sets of rules to Constitutional Conventions held throughout the last twenty years. In the twenty-one of them, as far as we found, every one of them had a verbatim written record of the proceedings. The next point is, that whoever wants a copy of this transcript and the part that they want, will have to request it and pay for the part that they do want. Now, as Mr. Roy brought out, well if someone wants a specific section, I think it's better if someone would ask for that specific section of the tape. Well, this would be alright if everyone would just want certain sections, but what's going to happen is there are going to be so many different people wanting sections and so many sections that overlap. It would be much easier to have one master copy and just let people copy what they wanted out of this. The entire document verbatim would just let the people take out of it what they wanted, which in the long run would probably be much cheaper than to having these people come in and wanting certain sections and overlapping sections. But these are the main points that I wanted to bring out. Probably not so important is that every other Constitutional Convention for the last twenty years did have a verbatim written record of all the proceedings.

Questions

Mr. Juneau Mr. Arnette, I have a question for you. I discussed this matter with Justice Tate, because this is who it would affect, the Supreme Court, and a verbatim record isn't a necessary thing to have. I think that for the future of the court and the state of Louisiana, my question is this: as I read on line 14 it says, "all proceedings," I proceed to me contemplates committees, subcommittees and everything else. That means all proceedings, procedural and everything else and I think that it would be at the point of being ridiculous. Don't you think that maybe a solution to that would be that we change, possibly change the word "proceedings" to "sessions" and the only verbatim record we would have transcribed then would be the recorded verbatim full sessions. It would eliminate all this redundant stuff we might have in procedural committees.

Mr. Arnette Well, in other words, as I understand your question, you're afraid that we are going to have to copy all the proceedings of the committees, also. Now as the Rule No. 22 is written, the (B) part says proceedings of the Convention and of the Committee as a Whole. As Rule No. 22 Section B, is written, it contemplates proceedings of the Convention and the Committee as a Whole. The verbatim written record of the committee is covered in another section on committees. I can't remember what it is right now, but it contemplates that this committee may have a verbatim record. But it does not require it. Now this is covered by this other section. It's 58(A) if you want to look at it in your rules. I think that's correct.

Mr. DeBlieux Mr. Arnette, as the result of having this record made like this, is it possible that the copies that will be made for the exhibit will be sold, will probably bring in more revenue than what the record would cost to make?

Mr. Arnette Now, this is a possibility. You could have it maybe at ten or fifteen cents a page, according to what the xerox copy would cost. But this is not what I'm concerned with. What I'm concerned with is exactly that we need a verbatim written copy. Another point that has been brought to my attention since I've been up here, is that tapes will deteriorate after a period of time, say twenty or thirty or forty years; and hopefully this Constitution and interpretation of it will be questioned for a longer period of time than twenty, thirty or forty years. And a written copy would not.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Arnette There is one other thing I'd like to bring out that's also a very important point, besides the deterioration of the tapes, there is a possibility that since tapes do break, they need to be spliced, and splicing you can leave out words. I suppose sometimes words would be garbled because of the splice and it could be possible that certain tapes could be recorded over. That a significant portion of the proceedings that will be very vital to later interpretations would be lost in this manner. So thinking that we should go along with twenty-one other states have done in their Constitutional Conventions, I think we ought to have written verbatim records.

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I don't want to belabor the point and go on forever. I think that the proceedings of the Convention are of enough historical significance to justify keeping a record. There are other good reasons, particularly dealing with questions before the Supreme Court of Constitutional interpretation. In this article provides an orderly means of transcribing it, of having it attested to by the Secretary and the President of which was set out in another rule. Now I would be perfectly willing to limit the broad language of this article, and restrict it by some means as to the substantive debate on the proposals before the Convention. Or even leave it to the discretion of the Executive Committee what portions are going to be transcribed. But I think that we need this provision in here at least to the substantive debate on proposals before the Convention and I urge the defeat of the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think the answer to this thing is in the rule itself. I rise in favor of Mr. LeBreton's amendment. I agree with everything that's been said about the importance of having a record of this proceeding, if what we finally confer here becomes a Constitution of this state. If it does not, then I don't think anybody could care less what we said here, if the people don't adopt our final product. Now, if you will go on down in this rule and read Section 8 thereof, you will see that part of the duties of the Secretary are to see that all records are properly preserved in the Archives of this state. Now, my understanding this tape recording machine over there is recording this on triplicate tape. So there's going to be three tapes. They will be placed in the Archives of this state. Then, if what we have come up with becomes the Constitution of this state, it would be a simple matter for the Legislature to pass an act that those tapes be transcribed and printed and placed in the public libraries of the state. But what in the world do we need a day by day verbatim transcript of all of the words that are flowing here for? It's just an absolute waste of money, I respectfully submit, and I urge you to adopt Mr. LeBreton's amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. O'Neill James Madison spent hours upon hours at night transcribing notes of the Constitutional Convention that was held back in 1780's. He sat up every night, all night transcribing word for word to the best of his memory, which was very good, the exact proceedings, the exact words which were said during the debate. These debates were closed to the public, of course, and the record was needed. Justice Holmes of the Supreme Court later read all of these things while making his decisions on the Supreme Court, and I'm sure all of you lawyers here recognize Justice Holmes is a very distinguished Jurist. It strikes close to home, my being a law student, that a verbatim record would be an excellent means of preserving the work of this Convention. I personally would purchase a copy of this verbatim record, if the Constitution were passed or defeated. I think it's important enough that you consider this and that you defeat this amendment so that we can have a verbatim record of these proceedings.

Questions

Mr. Roy Did James Madison transcribe all the comments about Benjamin Franklin's gout and stuff like that or did he transcribe the debate on the substantive issues that went to the Constitution?

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Madison made some very amusing comments in his writings, and he caught the jokes, too.

Mr. Roy Then you think that what Mr. Jack Avant has suggested is out of order at this time and we can't wait and let the state archivist keep all this and if it's passed, then let it be transcribed at that time?

Mr. O'Neill I question the expense of transcribing at that time. I think we should do it now, while we have the opportunity to do it while we are in session. I think the sense of a lot of the things would be lost.

Mr. Stinson Mr. O'Neill, isn't it so that if we don't keep a record of this type in future litigation there is a possibility with all due deference to the paper, that a newspaper will be introduced as what takes place here instead of the actual record of the proceedings?

Mr. O'Neill You never know.

Mr. Stinson And also isn't it a fact that a tape can be changed or deleted or such as that, and you can only...a certification of tape would be that this is a tape and not a certification. This is the actual proceedings, isn't that correct?

Mr. O'Neill Yes, sir.

Mr. Champagne Is it not true that this record verbatim would give us every detail that takes part in this Convention? Is that right?

Mr. O'Neill As I understand, it would give us the details of the Convention in full session. That's my understanding.

Mr. Champagne Then I would suggest possibly that this would be a wonderful opportunity for some of these people who come up here very often to hear just what they said. Is it not?

Mr. O'Neill If they care to that much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I'm just adjusting my brief remarks to the value of the importance in comparison to the cost of transcribing verbatim the proceedings of this Convention that will lead up to our finished product. If the finished product is not sufficient in itself it will fall. But as far as the transcription verbatim of our proceedings here and everything that is going on and all the talk of being any help to the Supreme Court in twenty, or thirty, or forty years in the future, as far as I'm concerned, I think it would be better if the Supreme Court didn't have the availability of all the things that are going on here. And rather be decided in the basis of our finished product, though we've never been told what the cost for a verbatim transcription, but if it's anything like the suggestion, I would certainly say without fear of contradiction that it's not worth it.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: viva voce.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'll only take a few minutes, because I think there's been some misunderstanding from the beginning of this discussion. If you notice in Section (A) referring to the official journal that it shall be placed on our desks daily, but there is nothing in this section that says that the verbatim record shall be placed on our desk daily. It can be typed up at any time. I will not yield now, Mr. Tapper. It can be typed up at any time and I do think that we need the record. We need verbatim record that can be certified to, and when this Convention is dissolved and there are no further officers, there's no one to certify it. I think that the three hundred and fifty thousand dollar appropriation for this Convention is so unreal that maybe it has caused us to appear to be a little over thrifty. If we were in session fifty more days, we would be out of funds. So, don't look for three hundred and fifty thousand dollars to cover the cost of it. This is not a daily record, but it is a permanent record that will be of great need in the future. I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Mr. Drew, of course I agree with everything you've said. Isn't it fact that by simple majority we can change the rules of this Convention at any time? And isn't it a fact that that if we, that we should try this and see how costly it's going to be, and if it's so important to have. And if it's going to be that costly as we proceed in the first few days can't we then go back to amend these rules to provide that we should not have it.

Mr. Drew I don't think that we can determine in the first few days, Mr. Tapper. That's the point I'm making. It may be that the Legislative Council later on after the Convention starts its regular proceedings, the Legislative Council would have available secretaries who could start transcribing these sound recordings. It is not something that we would expect tomorrow of what we did today. But the purpose of this section is to preserve a record of these proceedings and that we need. And I sincerely urge that you defeat this amendment, so that the public will have the benefit of that public record that could be certified to. Thank you.

Mr. Munson Harmon, when we speak of the proceedings of the Convention, what do you envision this to be? Do you envision it to cover subcommittees, Executive Committees or just when we're in open session of the Convention?

Mr. Drew Mr. Munson, we made quite a bit in the Committee, the Rules Committee, over capitalizing and not capitalizing Convention. And I think it is capitalizing here which it would be the proceedings of the Convention and as a whole, not subcommittees or committees. There's another provision that deals with committees.

Mr. Munson Well, rather than just a capital letter, don't you think it should be spelled out that we are talking about Rules of the Convention while in full session, rather than meetings of the—I know it's covered in Rule No. 58, on committees and subcommittees. But don't you think it would be better to spell it out here that we're only talking about proceedings of the Convention, when we come back here on July 5th?

Mr. Drew I would have no objections, although I think as written, when it says Convention and Committee as a whole, it would be hard to interpret it to cover except the full sessions of this Convention and the Committee as a whole.

Mr. Jenkins Harmon, isn't this whole question of whether committee meetings shall be recorded verbatim, taken care of in Rule No. 58, which says that they may be recorded verbatim, but does not require that they be recorded verbatim?

Mr. Drew That is correct, Mr. Jenkins. Whether committee recordings or testimonies are recorded or not is up to the committee. And I think that provision would further clarify what is written here that we are speaking of nothing but the full sessions of the Convention and the Committee as a whole.

Motion

Mr. Singletary Mr. Chairman, I favor this, I favor a--I favor a verbatim written record, however, since the question of expense has been raised, would a motion to table all matters dealing with Section (B) of Rule No. 72, until we can find out exactly what it would cost, be in order?

Mr. Henry The motion to table would be in order, however, I don't know what better position we would be in to determine the cost of it, Mr. Singletary.

Mr. Singletary Okay, I withdraw my motion.

[Motion withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Schmitt I'd like to oppose this amendment. Approximately a week ago, I spoke to a former assistant Louisiana attorney general who was in this position for thirteen years. He's presently a judge in Orleans Parish, and his one request was that whatever we do, for God's sake, please prepare a written transcript of all the proceedings so that the intent of the Convention will be known by the attorney general's office, as well as by the courts. I appreciate, during the time in which he served as an assistant Louisiana attorney general, many questions were presented to Jack Gremillion's office, and they had nothing to rely upon. As you know, it's one of the functions of that office to provide written opinions to certain agencies as to what the interpretation of laws and statutes, as well as the Constitution, are. Therefore, he implored me to make this one request. I brought it out through someone else in the committee meeting, and I request that you consider this at this present time and that you defeat the amendment. I would also state, however, that I believe that you could leave a certain amount of this to the discretion either of the Executive Committee or to the Chair as to what aspects should be transcribed verbatim in that certain motions--perhaps, the motion to adjourn or motion to recess--certain other types of motions might not be considered to have the amount of relevance necessary in order that we extend the funds to have them transcribed.

[Previous Question Withdrawn.]

Closing

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman, Mr. Stagg, member of the Convention, I am sorry that my idea caused so much of a problem. However, I want you to know I'm deeply sincere in what I'm saying. One, I question the wisdom of verbatim; but, two, I strongly force the question of cost against what the value is. Now, in Section (B) that we are discussing of Rule No. 72 against Rule No. 58, I say to you, in my opinion--and I'm not a lawyer--that (B) and 58 contradict themselves as to whether or not committees or subcommittees may or shall be recorded. Certainly, that would be a tremendous difference in cost. I'm for keeping a record, but not a verbatim record. Now, in answer to what my friend and colleague in the House of Representatives said about the fact that this may not be needed daily or it may be typed, year after the Convention adjourns, I again tell you that, having read Rule No. 22 from top to bottom and bottom to top, I don't see where anyone can say how often that's going to be written, how soon it's going to be written. I could conceive that the session would require it to be on our desks every morning. There's certainly nothing in here that forbids that. So I tell you that the cost on this could be unbelievable. I am told that the eighty pages that was taken in testimony of Southern University cost seven thousand, five hundred dollars; almost a hundred dollars a page was the cost. Now, I can't prove that to you, but I've been told that by one of the members in this room. And I promised not to use the name. So, I--when I tell you that I'm afraid of the cost--I'm coming before you very humbly as a member of the Appropriations Committee and say to you: You've got to consider the cost against the value. And if my figure are anywhere near right, I'll say to you--and stick my neck out--that if we have three hundred and fifty thousand dollars to run this Convention, about half of it's going to go for this. I rest my case, Mr. Speaker.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Juneau to the resolution. Amendment No. 1, on page 7, line 14, delete the word "proceedings" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sessions".

Explanation

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, I agree one hundred percent with Mr. Drew as what we intended, but I just want to make darn sure that we understand it. It's apparent we have a lot of technical people here and I hate to wait a year later and somebody jumps and says, "I don't care what you say, I want it transcribed". What this does mean is when we're in full session of the Committee as a whole, that will be transcribed. When we have a committee hearing or a subcommittee hearing, then you go to Rule No. 5B and that controls it. I just want to clarify that and that's all this amendment does.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Point of Order

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman, is it possible after we conclude this rule, voting on this Rule No. 22, that on subsequent rules that the Chair will ask if there are any objections to the rule and if not, that we may be able to suspend the voting on each of the rules in order to save time?

Mr. Henry Well, we could do that, but we're not wasting much time on the vote, Mr. Fulco?

Mr. Fulco I just thought, I asked the question because it has been done many times in the Legislature. And I thought that it might just speed up the process. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Thank you for your suggestion, Mr. Fulco.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. LeBreton amending the resolution as follows: Amendment No. 1. On page 7, line 14 after the word "a" and before the word "written" delete the word

"verbatim". Delete the word "verbatim".

Explanation

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I heard the chorus, but I still think the word "verbatim" is unnecessary and again with the cost. As one member said to me, "Does that mean that if we discuss adjournment for forty-five minutes that's going to be," and of course it would be. And everything else that is said. I see no objection. It's probably good to have a written record, but again I say that a verbatim record is every word that is said from the time we convene till we adjourn, and I just wonder if that is necessary. I for one don't think that it is. Therefore, I offer the amendment.

Question

Mr. Burson There's been a good deal of discussion about the use of the written record in legal proceedings, and I don't see it treated in this specific rule. It may be in some other that I haven't noticed, but will the written record be certified as the written record of the Convention by the Secretary? Because otherwise, we might...

Mr. Stagg In Paragraph (G), Mr. Burson, it says that the Secretary shall attest when necessary to all official documents of the Convention. And a verbatim written record would certainly be one of those documents.

I move the adoption of Rule No. 22, Mr. Chairman.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 23. Delegation of Secretary's Duties to Chief Clerk. Except for certification of official acts, documents and vouchers, and service on the Executive Committee, the secretary may delegate his duties to the Chief Clerk, subject to the supervision by the Secretary.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 24. Duties Pertaining to the Treasurer. The Treasurer shall:

- A. Exercise responsibility for the accuracy of the Convention's financial records and the monthly distribution of financial statements to the delegates of the Convention;
- B. Cosign, with the Convention Chairman, all warrants and/or checks; and that has been amended now, Mr. Journal Clerk, could I have that amendment? I'll go back.
- C. Serve as custodian of all Convention financial records;
- D. Assist in the preparation of the Convention's budget;
- E. File quarterly audits and final audit of financial records with the State Treasurer, Clerk of the House of Representatives and Secretary of the Senate;
- F. Make financial records of the Convention available for audit to the Louisiana Legislative Auditor quarterly and at the end of the Convention;
- G. Serve as a member of the Executive Committee, and carry out such other duties as maybe assigned by the Chairman.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I wish to point out that in line 10 there has been a previous amendment adopted striking "and or/checks".

Mr. Poynter That is correct.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Chief Clerk. Rule No. 25. Duties. The Chief Clerk shall:

- A. Shall not be a delegate to the Convention.
- B. Shall perform general administrative duties of the Convention subject to supervision of the Chairman, and when he assumes the duties of the Secretary as provided in Rules No. 22, he shall do so under the supervision of the Secretary;
- C. Shall be answerable to the entire Convention for faithful execution of his duties and the smooth functioning of the Convention in assembly as a deliberative body;
- D. Shall serve as Parliamentarian of the Convention and shall be advisor and counsel to the Chairman and committee chairman on all matters of parliamentary procedure; however, all parliamentary rulings shall be the responsibility of and shall be made by the Chairman.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of Rule No. 25 with a technical amendment that in line 34, "chairman" should "chairmen".

Mr. Poynter It's a new rule that's been inserted, but it's not part of this, it's Rule No. 25.1.

Mr. Henry Do you offer that as a technical amendment?

Mr. Stagg I do, sir.

[Technical Amendment adopted without objection.]

Questions

Mr. Arnette Mr. Stagg, would it be possible for another technical amendment at the end of line 1 on page 9 to add "the Chairman of the Convention" then add "or committee chairmen" at the end of line 1, after "Chairman" and before the period, "or committee chairmen"?

Mr. Stagg Do you offer that as a technical amendment, sir?

Mr. Henry He doesn't have the floor. He asked you a question, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, in answer to Mr. Arnette, I would like to move a technical amendment to add after the word "Chairman" in line 1 the words "and committee chairmen".

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, did you mean "committee chairmen in committee"? Is that the way you meant to amend it?

Mr. Stagg That's what the amendment means, sir.

Mr. Henry As long as we all understand one another.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, earlier "that he shall be the advisor and counsel to the Chairman," and that's yourself, "and committee chairmen".

Mr. Henry Yes, sir, I understand.

[Technical Amendment adopted without objection. Previous question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I take it as being factual that the language of Mr. Donnelly added 25.1 will appear in this place in the rules as finally printed?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir.

Mr. Stagg ...with a new numbering system?

Mr. Henry That's correct, sir.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "The Sergeant At Arms. Rule No. 26.

Duties. The Sergeant At Arms shall:

- A. Attend the Convention during its sitting, to execute commands as directed to him by the Chairman, including signing for and delivery of correspondence addressed to the delegates;
- B. Maintain order in the Convention Hall and execute Rules of the Convention concerning admission to the floor;
- C. Maintain order at committee hearings and assist committee chairmen in their duties;
- D. Exercise supervisory control over his assistants, subject to direction of the Chairman.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, there is an amendment in the nature of a committee amendment, Rule No. 26.1, and that amendment has been moved to the Chair.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Stagg. Amendment No. 1. On page 9, between lines 12 and 13, add the following: Rule No. 26.1. Vacancies. If a vacancy occurs in the office of Chairman, the first Vice-Chairman shall temporarily preside until the Convention elects a Chairman to fill the office in the same manner in which the officer was first elected.

If a vacancy occurs in the office of any of the Vice-Chairmen or in the office of the Secretary or Treasurer, the Chairman shall appoint a delegate to exercise the powers of that vacant office until the Convention fills the vacancy in the same manner in which the officer was first elected.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, it was the intention of the Rules Committee, in its deliberations, to have a rule on vacancies. The omission was discovered by Mr. Kean and the committee, on behalf of the committee, I offer a committee amendment to establish how vacancies in the officers of the Convention shall be filled.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Chapter 3. Delegates. Rule No. 27. Delegate's Oath. No delegate shall be qualified to serve unless and until he has taken the prescribed oath.

Question

Mr. Tobias Mr. Stagg, is it not true that we should amend this...make a technical amendment to this rule to provide delegates' oaths at the first in line 15 and also at the end of the sentence in line 17?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Tobias, if all of the delegates to the Convention here present and serving, except those who are absent and ill, have taken two oaths and I would suppose that it should be a technical amendment offered for the prescribed oaths to be taken by our absent delegates, who have not yet taken the oath and any delegate who replaced delegates to this Convention at a later date, would have to take the same oaths as taken by the delegates who are here. And I move the adoption of a technical amendment to pluralize the word "oath" in the title and at the end of line 17.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 28. Recognition in Debate. When any delegate desires to speak in debate or present any matter to the Convention, he shall rise and address himself to the Chair. He shall not speak until recognized, and when recognized he shall confine himself to the question under debate.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 29. If any delegate, in speaking or otherwise, transgresses the rules of the Convention, the Chairman shall call the delegate to order; in which case the delegate shall sit down and shall not proceed without leave of the Chairman or the Convention.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 30. Limits on Debate. Delegates shall not speak more than once to the same question, nor more than fifteen minutes without leave of the Convention, unless the delegate is the mover, proposer or introducer of the matter pending, in which case, either the delegate and/or his designees shall be permitted to speak in reply, but not until every delegate choosing to speak shall have spoken, except where the previous question or the previous question on the entire subject matter has been ordered. When the previous question has been ordered, the mover, proposer or introducer shall nonetheless have the right to speak or reply as provided in Article 76. The time for reply shall not exceed a total of fifteen minutes.

Questions

Mr. Burson Mr. Stagg, it's been apparent that many delegates, including myself, have been engaging in debate under the guise of asking questions and I don't see anything in these rules that say, or any subsequent rules that covers the matter of asking questions and whether that's going to be allocated to fifteen minutes or not. As I read this this is only debate. Is that correct?

Mr. Stagg You'll find, Mr. Burson, that when this Convention gets into the deliberative phase and that Chairman is standing at the chair, when your fifteen minutes begins to click, if you then yield to somebody else for a question you are going to lose some of your fifteen minutes and you won't be so cavalier about it as we've been today.

Mr. Denney Mr. Stagg, is the use of the plural word "designees" on line 33 delegates?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mr. Denney, when a delegate is permitted to close, and he has or wishes to have indicated to the body, that his views are shared by several people and he has fifteen minutes in which to reply, it is possible for the proposer to divide his time and ask that the closing remarks be made by one, two, three or more delegates in honor and still would honor the time division.

Mr. Denney Mr. Stagg, under those circumstances, would you be good enough to mark in your book that Rule No. 76 (A) refers to delegate in that instance in the singular, so that there was a...

Mr. Stagg I thank the gentleman and I will make certain that when we get to that point we will be careful to include it.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Point of Information

Mr. Kean Now that Rule No. 30 has been adopted, is it now in effect?

Mr. Henry I'd like to say that it is, but I don't think that it is and I'll tell you why, because we are adopting a resolution from the Rules Committee. And I think that it would be improper for the Chair to so rule that that beautiful rule is in effect at this time. If the body were to insist, I would be glad to preside in that manner.

Motion

Mr. Kean My motion is that in light of the fact that we have now adopted Rule No. 30 as part of Resolution No. 1, that we now declare that Rule No. 30 is to be implemented by the Chairman with respect to the debate on the remainder of the rules to come before the body this afternoon or until they are completed.

Questions

Mr. Leithman Mr. Kean, would it not be probably safer for us to maybe adopt Rule No. 1 through 30 in view of we have some provisions for the absence of the Chairman and things of this nature, and just at random, but rather than picking out Rule No. 30, it seems to me, perhaps we could go one to thirty. Would that be not in order?

Mr. Kean I have no objection to that Mr. Leithman, I just simply feel that if we can implement Rule No. 30 with respect to the remainder of the debate, that we can move this thing along much more rapidly than we have in the past.

Mr. Triche Mr. Kean, no sir, I have no objections to limiting the debate to fifteen minutes on each rule, however, but to propose it before the body the adoption of a resolution. And if we adopt Rule No. 30 temporarily to apply would that then mean that we are entitled to debate these rules for only fifteen minutes per person? Debate the entire resolution?

Mr. Kean I think that would be correct.

Mr. Triche Then what you're saying then if we adopt your motion is that Mr. Stagg will be allowed to talk fifteen more minutes on these entire rules, or rule by rule?

Mr. Roy Mine is more in the way of a point of information. I'm for your motion, Mr. Kean, but I'm wondering about Rule No. 76, because part of Rule No. 30 is referred to Rule No. 76 and we haven't adopted it yet. Should we maybe adopt Rule No. 76?

Point of Order

Mr. Tapper I agree with your proposal, but I question whether or not this may in some way cause some legal problems in the future. Wouldn't it be better if instead of adopting this rule before we complete all of the rules... wouldn't it be better if we took a vote of the delegates on their feeling as to whether or not the Chairman could invoke the particular limitation rather than take one of these rules out of this resolution and adopt it? I'm thinking of the legality of it later on.

Mr. Henry Inasmuch that this is apparently a point of order, Mr. Kean, if you will allow me, Mr. Kean had asked if it would be possible to proceed under that rule? It was my ruling, inasmuch, Mr. Tapper, as we are considering a resolution in its entirety that such a motion would be improper, but that he would be in order to suggest that we proceed under such a ruling as is provided in the rules. So I think that resolves your problem.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

Mr. O'Neill I agree with your motion, Mr. Keen, but I question the validity of it at this time, because there's no provision that we've adopted yet to suspend rules, in case we find that we'd like to extend debate on this. And I find that that's a problem, too. It seems like this motion has run into a lot of problems.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 31. Prohibited Behavior. Appeals from any ruling of the Chairman shall be affirmatively put, and to overrule the Chairman, shall require the same vote required to suspend the rules. (See Rule No. 85.)

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 33. Answering Roll Calls. Every delegate must answer his or her roll call if being taken, and answers to roll calls from other locations on the Convention floor shall not be counted.

Questions

Mr. Tobias Mr. Stagg, does this include roll call votes for when we arrive at the Convention, in other words, the initial roll call to see who is present?

Mr. Stagg I would presume that the rule means exactly that, when a roll call is being taken.

Mr. Tobias Would you be willing to amend the rule to provide for that one particular instance?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Tobias, I would do it in courtesy to you. As a committee member, I cannot and I won't.

Mr. Womack Mr. Stagg, would this roll call here be one that you would normally assume would be also an opening roll call or is there a distinction here between roll call and an opening roll call? The reason I ask the question is if you have an opening roll call and you're not permitted one to answer and at no other time would be permitted to answer that, maybe in another section an individual who wasn't at his desk at that particular time would be deprived of his pay for that day. We may need a clarification.

Mr. Stagg I think, Mr. Womack, the comment that you have made and that Mr. Tobias has made are excellent comments on the rules, however in the Rules Committee, I think what we had in mind was the same kind of disorder that has taken place on the answering of the roll and the various other times during the Convention. The opening roll call has been answered from all over the room, and I think that's adequate, but when a vote is being taken on a critical issue, this Rules Committee rule, that was the kind of roll call the Rules Committee had in mind.

Mr. Tobias I withdraw my objection.

Mr. Landry Mr. Stagg, is it true that the roll call is covered in Rule No. 3?

Mr. Stagg Yes sir, Mr. Landry, it is.

Mr. Weiss Hopefully, Mr. Stagg, we may have an electronic means of voting and roll calls. If that's the case, wouldn't it be necessary to be at your seat at the time to call, according to the first motion or rule that we passed number three.

Mr. Stagg That was the remark that was just made by the previous speaker. And if this Convention be so fortunate as to vote by roll call, then I'm sure that the then permanent Rules Committee would have several amendments to the rules of the Convention to cover the use of the electronic voting machine.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 34. Absence from Daily Session. A delegate may be excused from attendance at daily sessions only with leave from the Chairman, and no delegate shall be compensated for a day on which he is absent from Convention sessions.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 35. Vacancies. By a vote of at least two-thirds of the delegates at the Convention, the seat of a delegate may be declared vacant by the Convention, if the delegate has been absent for at least fifteen unexcused, consecutive, opening roll calls. In the event of the death of, or written resignation by a delegate, the seat may be immediately declared vacant by the Chairman. The Chairman shall notify the Governor of any vacancy.

Questions

Mr. Burns Mr. Stagg, did the committee look into the legality of this rule with reference to giving the Convention the legal authority to declare a man's seat vacant? As I understand it, the delegate to this Convention is a duly elected official and I was just wondering whether we have that legal authority or not?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Burns, we did not ask the opinion of any legal authority. It was a group of seventeen delegates writing rules and we figured that if a man or woman was not in his seat or at the opening roll call on fifteen unexcused absences, on fifteen unexcused consecutive opening roll calls, that he had abandoned his seat in this Convention and that measures should be taken so that his District would be represented in this Convention.

Mr. Burns I'm not questioning the... your action in providing that. I'm just questioning the legality of it.

Mr. Stagg If it ever occurs, Mr. Burns, I think we'll face that legality.

Mr. Brown Mr. Stagg, it is your intention to define opening roll call as that roll call that begins each day; in other words, if we recess for lunch and come back, is that a roll call? You might have eight or nine roll calls in a day. One roll call a day, is that your interpretation of that particular point?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Senator Brown.

Mr. Brown Mr. Stagg, what happens if you're fifteen minutes late and miss the opening roll call? Does that mean that you have absented yourself from that entire day and that's counted against you as such?

Mr. Stagg No, Senator Brown, I think the roll call provision under Rule No. 3, the delegate who came in late goes to the desk of the Secretary and asks to be marked present. And that's all he's required to do in any parliamentary body.

Motion

Mr. Blair Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'd like to make a motion that we temporarily pass this. Obviously we are not going to finish all these rules today. And let us get a legal opinion on this, because I think this could cause some real static down the ways. I make the motion that we temporarily pass this and check on the legality of it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette When the Rules Committee was considering this particular rule, we looked at Act 2, and Act 2 provides that any seat may be declared vacant if there is an inability or an unwillingness to serve on the part of any delegate. Now the act left it open as to how the Convention would declare this vacancy. And we decided that an equitable type situation would be this as provided in Rule No. 35, fifteen consecutive unexcused roll call misses. And it seems to me, not being a legal scholar or Supreme Court justice, or anything else, but it seems to me that this would be a way and a legal way of providing such vacancies. And for anyone else who has anything to say about it, come on up. But I see no point tabling the motion at this time. Let's get the rules adopted.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I want to agree with the previous speaker. I don't think it's necessary to pass over this particular rule at this particular time. I have some questions in my mind to, with reference to the legality of this particular rule. But this may not ever come into being, and I think that whenever it does, whenever we do declare some delegate's seat vacant because he's been absent without leave, without excuse or something of that sort, the courts are going to pass on it anyway, and I think that will be the time to get out legal decision. I don't think we have to worry about it now. So I say that we just go on ahead and adopt the rules and wait for that time.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Blair Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want to make it perfectly clear that I'm not trying to table this. All I asked for was to temporarily pass it. You know we're not going to finish all the rules today, and I think we could just save a lot of time by checking on the legality now where there wouldn't be any question. I ask that we temporarily pass it up until we can check that.

Explanation

Ms. Zervigon The reason I submitted this amendment is that I would like to have at my house and ready for me to read as much as possible of the work that's been done by the committees for the Convention before the July 5th date when we re-assemble to consider them as the first proposals.

3rd Days Proceedings—January 13, 1973

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory]. On page 12, line 3, delete the period " and this would precede the sentence added by Ms. Zervignon's amendment. Delete the period "." following the word "designee" and add the following: "and shall bear the signatures of a majority of the members of the committee." The additional language, immediately following the word "designee" and before the sentence added by the amendment proposed by Ms. Zervignon and adopted "and shall bear the signatures of a majority of the members of the committee."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, this is a technical amendment to delete the period " and this" important in view of the fact that we have provided in this proposed rule that the Chairman may introduce a committee proposal in his name or the name of his designee. I have served on many governmental and civic commissions and committees in drafting legislation, agreeing in consensus as to what it ought to be in and of itself, and the legislation was finally drafted, it did not necessarily reflect a majority opinion. What this does is assure this Convention that if a committee proposal is introduced, it must bear the signature of a majority of the committee members who have read the final draft and does in fact represent a majority view of that committee in the way of a proposal. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Flory, Mr. Flory under Rule No. 60, provides all proposals submitted to a substantive committee shall be reported from that committee indicating committee action provided that a majority of the committee membership present and voting must approve the committee report. As I appreciate your proposed amendment you would change that rule as applies to all committees.

Mr. Flory We are talking about here is a majority. If you spell out that majority of that committee shall make the report, Mr. Kean, we'll take care of Rule No. 60 when we get there, if it is the desire of the Convention. But if a committee proposal is to be introduced in the name of a committee, let's assume for example that there are eighteen or nineteen members on the committee. Ten constitutes a majority, then ten people ought to sign that rather than having six people, if six would constitute a quorum, six would be a majority of the quorum present. If we're going to have a committee proposal, it's my judgment that we ought to have a majority of that committee supporting that proposal. And it ought to reflect the consensus of majority of that committee. And that's the sense of my amendment. I urge you to adopt it.

Mr. Perez Mr. Flory, would you be agreeable to an amendment which would provide that there would be a majority in accordance with Rule No. 60 and then when we get to that particular rule, we will decide whether or not a majority of all 11 of the members of the committee or a majority of those voting would be required to vote the matter favorably so that we would have consistency in our rules? In other words when we take up Rule No. 60, we will then determine whether or not we need a majority of the total members of the committee or a majority of those voting, and at that time we could determine what a majority means. So that if you would be agreeable to amending your amendment, so that it would provide that a majority as provided in Rule No. 60, would you be agreeable to that?

Mr. Flory Of course I would have no objection, Mr. Perez, to amending it to that extend; however, I think you're only delaying the pain. The decision has to be made insofar as whether you're going to reflect in a committee proposal the consensus of a majority of a committee or whether or not you're going to do it in the majority of a quorum present. It was my understanding in the Rules Committee, I may be incorrect, and I am not trying to speak for the Rules Committee, but when this was under discussion that a committee proposal should at least reflect a majority opinion of that committee. Now, the only thing I'm trying to do is to assure in the drafting of a proposal, when it comes before this Convention for final passage as a committee proposal, I want to know whether it reflects a majority opinion of that committee or whether it reflects a majority of the quorum that was present at the time that that proposal was heard. I think we ought to be assured that it reflects a majority opinion of the membership of that committee.

Mr. Duval Mr. Flory, I, looking in Rule No. 39, and want to ask you what your interpretation of it is. Rule No. 39 which we recently adopted says, "a proposal may be introduced by a delegate or delegates or by a committee on behalf of the majority of its membership."

Mr. Flory That was the purpose of my amendment, was to clarify Rule No. 39, Mr. Duval, in spelling out that we would know as delegates to the Convention when it appeared in the Journal that it contained a majority of the signatures of the membership of that committee. Yes, sir, this lies directly with Rule No. 39.

Mr. Roy Mr. Flory, in keeping with your argument, isn't it a fact that what Mr. Kean and them are talking about under Rule No. 60 applies only to substantive committees and there are going to be four procedural committees that may be very important to your point?

Mr. Flory That is absolutely correct and particularly if you adopt what is proposed here in the way of the procedural committee.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, as I understand that, particularly this Rule No. 40 that we are adopting now, that means that all proposals submitted by delegates will have to be introduced, that is there's no prefiling or anything of that sort, will have to be introduced after July the fifth, 1973. That all of the committee proposals which will automatically be the first matters of the Convention will be, you might say, prefiled, they would have to be in order for us to get them out as the amendment we've just adopted by June 22nd. And then we can come to the Convention with our own proposals after we've read the other proposals for changes and submit our own proposals to the Convention. I think that's the sense of that rule, and I just wanted to be sure I understood it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Question

Mr. Guidry Mr. Stagg, I don't see any provisions for minority proposals on here. I do see a provision in Rule 60 on substantive committees but how about on a procedural committee? Are you entitled to a minority report, a minority proposal?

Mr. Stagg In paragraph sixty I know or I have heard, Mr. Guidry, that there will be an amendment when we get the Rule No. 60 to strike out the word "substantive" in line 6 which would be curative of the question you have raised.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Doynter Rule No. 41. Form of Proposals. Delegate proposals shall be distinguished from committee proposals and all proposals shall be separately numbered. All proposals shall be introduced or submitted in eight copies. All proposals must be typed, double spaced on 8-1/2 by 14 inch paper in a type face with excellent reproduction qualities. A margin of one inch on the left and right side and at the top and bottom shall be preserved. The lines on each page shall be numbered consecutively from top to bottom at the left margin, and the left typing margin shall be two spaces to the right of the line numbers. Pages commencing with page two shall be numbered at the top center of the page. The original of all proposals shall remain in the custody of the Convention. The Secretary shall, as soon as any proposal is printed, place it on the desks of the delegates. The caption of each proposal shall be substantially in the following form:
Constitutional Convention of Louisiana of 1973
-----PROPOSAL-----
(Committee or Delegate) (Number) Introduced by (Name of Delegate or Committee Chairman)
Each proposal shall also contain a short title stating concisely the general nature of its subject matter.

PRAYER

Mr. Stovall ... name for the creation and preservation and all the blessings of this life. We are grateful that we can come here today to this responsibility with renewed physical strength and we pray that we might come with clear minds and with generous spirits to work together in order to move forward in our state, for all that will help all of our people to find true fulfillment in life. We pray that You will give to each of us a spirit of understanding and consideration and guide us in our deliberations. May Your blessings be with all who are in need and be with us at this time. In the name of Christ we pray, Amen.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

RESOLUTIONS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 42. Deadline on Proposals. No proposals may be introduced by delegates after the first sixty days following July 5, 1973; committee proposals, however, may be introduced at any time, provided rules governing procedures for adoption are followed. Amendments to proposals may be offered anytime.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Avant]. On page 12, line 29, following the word "delegates" insert the words "or committees". Amendment No. 2. On page 12, line 30, delete the semicolon ";" and in lieu thereof insert a period "." and delete the remainder of line 30. Amendment No. 3. On page 13, delete line 31. Amendment No. 4. On page 12, line 32, delete the language "for adoption are followed".

Explanation

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to place a deadline of sixty days following July 5, 1973, which would be approximately September the fifth, on all proposals. Now, the reason for that is that: We will at that time have approximately one hundred and twenty days within which to complete the work of this Convention. I do not believe that if we are allowed up until the very last day through committees to submit entirely new proposals to this Convention that we will be able to complete the work that we have to accomplish within the time allotted. Now, an amendment to a proposal may be offered at any time. Also a substitute, if I understand these rules, may be offered at any time. Furthermore, if in the fading days of this Convention, some brilliant ideas come forth that all of a sudden is going to precipitate the solution to what has heretofore been a logjam, we can suspend the rules. But, if we are going to allow committees up until the very last day of this Convention to come in with entirely new proposals, I believe we're going to hamstring ourselves and seriously interfere with our ability to accomplish what we are here to accomplish, and that is the reason for this amendment. I think that we can be protected. We have many ways in which we can be protected in the event something comes up at the last minute that we just have to consider. But, to throw it wide open for completely new proposals which could not be covered by an amendment or a substitute up until the last day, I think would be unwise. For that reason, I ask you to adopt this amendment.

Question

Mr. Tapper Just a question, if the speaker doesn't mind. I'd like to ask on line 29, where it says "after the first sixty days," I was wondering if the Chairman of the Rules Committee wouldn't consent to change that by amendment to the first... after the sixtieth day, following July 5, 1973. I don't know whether it makes a big difference or not, but it seems a little confusing to me.

Mr. Stagg I think that means the same thing, Mr. Tapper; I really do. I've no strong feelings one way or the other, just so long as on the sixtieth day after July the fifth it's understood there'd be no new proposals.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Stagg [Poynter] Rule No. 43. Printing. Each proposal introduced shall be immediately printed and distributed to the delegates and shall be available to the general public and other interested parties. No final action may be taken on any proposals until printed copies have been distributed to the delegates for at least forty-eight hours.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, this seemed to the Rules Committee to be a better way of having the proposals be moved to the delegates so that every delegate upon the beginning of the discussion and debate on the proposals will have had the opportunity to at least two days, forty-eight hours, prior reading and study time during which to propose amendments or substitutes.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 44. Order of Processing. The order of Convention procedure in processing each proposal shall be as follows:

- A. Introduction, which shall constitute the first reading.
 - B. Committee referrals: Committee Proposals shall be referred to the Committee offering the proposal. Delegate proposals shall be referred by the Chairman of the Convention to the appropriate committee based on the subject matter of the proposal. The Chairman shall announce his referral to the delegates and if no objection is raised, the proposal shall be referred to the committee designated by the Chairman; if objection is raised, the referral shall be made by the Convention. Referrals shall be made the day following introduction. Committee referrals shall commence the second reading.
 - C. Committee reports.
 - D. Consideration of and voting on the substantive committee report by delegates in general assembly.
 - E. If recommended, reconsideration by substantive committee or Committee of the Whole.
 - F. Reference to Committee on Style and Drafting.
 - G. Enrolment, which shall complete the second reading.
 - H. Third Reading and final passage.
 - I. Enrolment.
 - J. Referral to Committee on Style and Drafting.
 - K. Convention approval of final styling.
 - L. Final enrolment.
- Each of the three required readings shall occur on three different days.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mr. Chairman. If it is appropriate to note that what was sought by the Rules Committee was that no proposal could be rammed through the Convention by having first and second or second and third readings occur on the same Convention day, and that a more orderly way of going about it was considered by the Rules Committee, to require that the bill be considered and read on three different days during the deliberation of the Convention.

Question

Mr. Flory Mr. Stagg, just as a matter of information, I would like to ask your views as regards line 26, which is F and line 30 which is J. It appears that you have two referrals to the Committee on Style and Drafting. Was it the intent of the Rules Committee that the Style and Drafting Committee would style it in proper form prior... that is, upon a committee recommendation to the Convention? This is the way it appears here in my interpretation.

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir. It was hoped that the Style Committee would get the bills and have a chance to style it and to number it, and after it has been amended or otherwise dealt with, between the second and third readings that again the Style Committee could have a look at it. I might say in passing, Mr. Chairman, that the language in F, Committee on Style and Drafting, a technical amendment on raising to initial capitals the Committee on Style and Drafting in line F, or in Item F on line 26. A matter of style only, sir.

[Technical amendment adopted without objection.]

Questions

Mr. Gravel Mr. Stagg, on line 19, the word "commence", should that not be "constitute"? Wasn't that the intention of the rule that the committee referral would constitute the second reading just as the introduction constituted the first reading as set forth in A? I don't know if I quite understand what is meant by "committee referral shall commence the second reading."

Mr. Stagg I think the probable appropriate word would have been "to constitute". I don't know how that got past us, but I believe that the way it should read.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, I don't think the appropriate word would have been "constitute."

Mr. Stagg We had advice from Mr. Poynter when we were concerned with these orders of processing, and I believe that it was Mr. Poynter's suggestion that when you commence the second reading it is done by committee referral and not constitute. That was the suggestion from our parliamentary adviser.

Mr. Gravel I still don't understand it. It seems to me what you are saying is that the introduction...

Mr. Henry Mr. Gravel, I believe that if you'll read that rule more carefully, you'll find that it is absolutely clear and accurate insofar as the procedure of the Convention is concerned.

Mr. Gravel Well, then I don't understand what is meant in line 8, "introduction which shall constitute the first reading."

Mr. Stagg Well, the committee referral commences the reading of it, but you'll not down in "Engrossment" under C--"which shall complete the second reading"--in other words, it's not to go past a reconsideration. It has to be first reconsidered by the delegates under D, and then if recommitted, reconsidered by the committee, then back to the Committee on Style, and then engrossment which completes the second reading of the proposal. The commencement of it is with the committee referral.

Mr. Gravel I understand. Thank you very much.

Mr. Stagg Yes sir.

Mr. Henry Mr. Gravel, I think you find yourself somewhat in the situation that Mr. Jenkins did one day as Mr. Triche said "Well, I can read it for you, but I can't understand it for you."

Mr. Arnette In line 14 and line 17 was Chairman intended to be capitalized, meaning the Chairman of the Convention, or should this be the person that was presiding that particular day?

Mr. Stagg It would be the person presiding as Chairman of the Convention on that day. Do you propose, Mr. Arnette, that we reduce those capital "C's" to "c" so that anybody who was presiding could make this referral?

Mr. Arnette That's my question.

Mr. Stagg I think your question is well taken.

Mr. Burson Purely for informational purposes--these are technical terms, and I don't really know what you mean--what in line 27 under "C" does the word "Engrossment" mean?

Mr. Stagg Engrossment is a legislative term of art, and it means when you engross a bill you have included a bill with all of its amendments complete and reprinted so that the delegates will have before them in toto the pending proposals.

Mr. Burson And in the same vein in line 29, "I," the word "Enrollment".

Mr. Stagg Enrollment is the bill is then enrolled into the Constitutional document as the last step, or the next to the last step, to its completion of the work on it by the members of the Convention.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 45. Order of Proposals. When a proposal is up for third reading and final passage, it shall be read, debated, and acted upon separately by sections. Each section shall be considered a separate question for the purpose of "limits on debate" provided for in Rule No. 30.

Question

Mr. Burson When the term "sections" is used here, are you referring to the sections of the different articles to be proposed in the new Constitution?

Mr. Stagg Very definitely. It was felt that if someone presented... if a committee presented a proposed article to the Constitution, that it ought to be able to be debated in each of its parts, rather than as a whole document with fifteen minutes limited to each speaker.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 46. Amendments. Amendments shall be submitted in writing, and a copy of every such amendment shall be distributed to each delegate before a vote occurs thereon.

Questions

Mr. Schmitt Would you consider adding after amendments, "except technical amendments"?

Mr. Staggs No sir, we considered that amendments, inserting commas and semicolons and this kind of thing would occur, but it was the feeling of the committee that since we are keeping a close record on every part of the document, that if you had a technical amendment, it would be in writing.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Staggs, I'm assuming from a procedural standpoint that every amendment that we submit or every amendment submitted by any delegate of this committee has to be reproduced and given to each delegate before we can act on that amendment, regardless of what the substance does? For instance just a change of word, are we going to have to reproduce and submit it to each delegate of this Convention? That's what the amendment does?

Mr. Staggs That's correct, sir.

Mr. Nunez Then the Rules Committee didn't feel like this would hamper the proceedings of the committee at all?

Mr. Staggs To the extent that it hampered it, that was considered, but the overwhelming view of it was that you're going to be voting on some very technical amendments, some of which may have the ability to change the substance of the article, and that every delegate ought to have before him when he votes on the final Constitutional Document, and on the parts of it, that it should be in writing.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 47. Style and Drafting. When all proposals have been processed, the entirety of those adopted shall be sent to the Committee on Style and Drafting for orderly arrangement in the new proposed Constitution. The end that the document shall be properly coordinated and uniform in style, and such final draft must be approved by a majority of the delegates to the Convention.

Questions

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Staggs, I noticed in the reading of this you say "when all proposals have been processed"—noticing that clause in the first sentence—"the entirety of those adopted shall be sent to the Committee on Style and Drafting for orderly arrangement." Now, as I read this and understand this, it means to say that we've got to wait until all the proposals have been processed before the Committee on Style and Drafting would get them. Now, that's not the content that I think was referred to in, I believe, Rule No. 44, which is the one which we've just previously adopted a little bit earlier. I would think that it might be better that these proposals as they are processed—not all—that is, don't know how you interpret it, but I think that we have to make it read so that, as the proposals are processed, then those that have been adopted will be sent to committees because we can't wait until all of them have been adopted before we send them to the Committee on Style and Drafting.

Mr. Staggs Well, what I think we are referring to here, Senator, is that there is under Rule No. 44 an order of processing which causes the bill to be studied by the Committee on Style and Drafting midway in the proposal—midway in its processing—and then when all of the proposals have been processed, the entirety of them are going to be in the hands of the Committee on Style and Drafting for the purpose of arranging them within the body of a new Constitution. And that, I think, is the intent and purpose of this particular article, and in the final draft, at the end of our work, the final draft in all of its parts must be approved by a majority of the delegates to the Convention.

Mr. De Blieux Well, that kind of clarifies it to me, 'cause I just didn't understand that I didn't want to have to wait 'till we had finished all the proposals before the Committee on Style and Drafting would get them.

Mr. Staggs Correct, sir.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 48. Distribution. For the purpose of these rules "distribution" shall mean that a copy of any document is placed on the desk or chair of each delegate.

Explanation

Mr. Staggs Mr. Chairman, we were—at the time this rule was under consideration—did not know in what place or in what kind of room the Convention would be meeting, and events of the last several days have shown that it has been in different places and under different circumstances. It was also proposed that among other meeting places that one of them under consideration had only auditorium type seating, so it was an abundance...out of an abundance of precaution that the Rules Committee put the language in "on the desk or chair of each delegate" to cover whatever eventually was before us at the time the Convention is in final deliberative situation.

Explanation

Mr. Staggs Mr. Chairman [...] or if between two committees there is a dispute over subject matter or jurisdiction that we provided a Coordinating Committee which would be composed of the Chairman and the First Vice-Chairman of the Convention and the chairman of the respective subcommittees, and the duty of that Coordinating Committee, when we get to it, will be to be sort of a traffic cop to help in the event that two different subject matter problems are being viewed by the two different committees; and, hopefully, these matters can be resolved by the Coordinating Committee. There are as many different ways to divide these committees, perhaps, as there are delegates. The Rules Committee decided on this arrangement, and I'm presenting it and have moved its adoption as being one good way that the work of this Convention can be divided into what the Rules Committee felt was the proper number of substantive committees for the use of this Convention. I move its adoption.

Mr. Henry The gentleman now moves the adoption of the rule, which I think has already been seconded. Now, gentlemen, it looks like a lot of you have questions, but we have a series of amendments, so if you'll allow us to go ahead and proceed with the amendments, then we'll allow Mr. Staggs to speak to the rule itself and recognize you people to speak from the floor. I think it would probably be in the best interest of time to go ahead and see what these amendments do. It may resolve some of your questions or some of your comments. So, Mr. Clerk, if you will, who sends up the first set of amendments?

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1, proposed by Mr. Silverberg.

On page 15, lines 15 and 16, delete the words "Board of Regents for Higher Education." On page 15, lines 15 and 16, delete the words "Board of Regents for Higher Education."

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Silverberg Yes, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I urge your favorable consideration of this amendment because I believe the words "Board of Regents for Higher Education" are superfluous and restrictive and should be removed from the sentence. The Committee on Education and Welfare is adequately instructed on its responsibilities by the remaining language. If the words "Board of Regents for Higher Education" are to be included in the rule, then we must assume that the Rules Committee intended the remaining language "Public Education" to include only primary and secondary education. If this is so, then certainly the committee should be instructed to also consider the LSU Board of Supervisors, the Louisiana State Board of Education, the Coordinating Council for Higher Education, and the State Superintendent of Education's office. The language also fails to charge the committee to specifically consider the vocational and technical training of our young people beyond the secondary education level. The specialized field of junior colleges is also not mentioned in the language. If we, the Louisianians, I believe when we speak of public education--well, when we speak of public education, we mean all education--that we offer it through our tax supported public schools, including our primary and secondary and university level institutions. I urge your favorable consideration. Thank you.

Point of Order

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, in view of the fact that we are getting ready to discuss--and perhaps have amendments to, or questions on some eight committees--if possible, I would suggest that we take them up for the purpose of discussion and amendments in the order in which they appear, rather than skip from one to the other and get them all mixed up and intermingled. I think that in the interest of clarity and time-saving, if we could do that, it would save a lot of time. It would confine our discussion to one committee at a time, rather than jumping back and forth.

Mr. Henry Mr. Burns, I think that your point is certainly well taken, and while we had decided that we would proceed on the amendments in the order in which they were handed up, I think that you've got a better suggestion. As far as it is practical, Mr. Clerk, I will ask you, after we dispose of this amendment--since he's already explained it--that we proceed in the order in which the committees are listed, if we can, Mr. Clerk.

Point of Order

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, we have just adopted Rule No. 66, which requires that a copy of every amendment be distributed to each delegate before a vote occurs thereon. It is my suggestion at this time that, even though these rules have not yet been formally adopted, that because of the grave importance of the designation of these committees--and apparently there will be several suggestions and recommendations--that a copy of every such proposed amendment be distributed to all of the delegates.

Mr. Henry Mr. Perez, your point is well taken. The problem is the reproduction equipment is not here right now and will be here later on this afternoon. So, we'll just have to make shift and do the best that we can.

Further Discussion

Mr. Leithman Mr. Chairman and members of the delegation, I rise in opposition to my good friend, Mr. Silverberg's, amendment; and I'll try to explain in just a few minutes a very broad picture of education here in the state. Mr. Silverberg felt that the many scopes of education were left out in the charge by the procedural rules. I question this, and this is one item that I want to touch on briefly. I feel that this is not in the charge and that public education is inclusive. It's inclusive of school bus drivers, of our lunch programs, and retirement systems for our educators. None of this was mentioned, but it is included because we have here--and I'll touch on how this came to be--this is every constitutional factor that relates to education in any way, all of which is included in these volumes of education. So, nothing has been left out in terms of any segment of our educational system. I have a resolution which will come up in a minute--gentlemen, I would not prefer to yield at this time; I will yield later. I have a resolution that I planned to offer at a later time in the proper order, which will make an amendment to this; however, it will include and pull out of Rule No. 7, Mr. Silverberg, all of education. It will have public education, our higher education, special ed., career education, in one committee for handling. This has been prepared and offered, and I feel personally that this is the way it should be, and this is not only my personal viewpoint, but, gentlemen, we have recently done away with all of the education committees here in the Legislature. We have one model joint legislative committee. We feel it's a good committee--people knowledgeable in education--and they have taken it upon themselves, the entire responsibility, of coordinating the professional staff with the Legislature in the direction of education. This joint committee just today passed a resolution that public education and higher education be handled as a one-item committee here in the Convention. So, gentlemen, I ask that we not adopt this because I feel that Mr. Silverberg has good reason to offer this resolution, but I feel that we should not separate education. I think if we separate it, all of education should be taken out; all of education should be handled as one item. We included in there education, which is about thirty-six percent, if I remember, of our total state budget; health and welfare, another big item--the big three items--and the other third is our highways, which is not included. So, really we're talking about almost two-thirds of our budget, right under this one committee hearing, and I just think it's too much for us to cope with. So, gentlemen, I will ask that you reject this, and I do hope that you see fit to include all of education as a single committee at a later adoption period in this program.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Kenny, is it my understanding that your amendment, which you propose to propose at a later time will add a ninth committee to deal with education?

Mr. Leithman It will add a ninth committee to be designated as 7 and 7A, but in essence you will have a ninth committee, and it will deal with all segments of education in the state under one committee--higher, special ed., career education, secondary and elementary.

Mr. Tapper Would you consider in preparing your amendment--I assume you have it prepared already--but would you look it over and instead of designating public education, higher education, etc., etc., would you consider using the word "education" so that it would cover everything--public, higher education, private education and everything else--instead of going into details because, when you do that, you may leave something out. Would you consider just using the word "education, period"?

Mr. Leithman Well, if you think it's necessary, I certainly have no objection to doing that. I don't think it's necessary, but I would certainly do that. 'Cause all I want to do is really include all of education under this.

Mr. De Blieux Of course, Mr. Leithman, the question you answered for Representative Tapper has just about given me the answer which I was seeking with reference to this, because I certainly think that this committee should consider education and all of its fields. Now, I don't know about separating it from the other affairs, but I'm with you on that it shall consider all education. Now, as I take it, just lifting out the words "Board of Regents for Higher Education" will not change the functions of the committee whatsoever. You can be your bottom dog and the committee is going to consider some sort of a Coordinating Committee or Regent for Higher Education. Whatever you want to call it, it's going to be considered by the committee which considers education. But I just wondered what harm would we do, if we lift out of this particular section the words which Mr. Silverberg has attempted to do, that is, a Board of Regents for Higher Education. Also, if we just lift out the word "public" so that we'd consider all education, you might say, in every one of its facets.

Mr. Leithman I agree with you.

Mr. Silverberg I don't think that we have any difference in context or in ideas, but I do think that we have a possibility that your resolution or your amendment might not pass. I'm quite concerned over the fact that we have a directive included in a rule and the directive is very, very restrictive. When we speak of the Board of Regents for Higher Education, as you well know, we're speaking of something that won't take place until 1974, if then. If your resolution doesn't pass, what happens to us?

Mr. Leithman Well, I don't see any problem if my resolution does not pass. Education will be handled--all segments of education, higher education as well as the profession, will be handled along with welfare, labor and industry, civil service, and all of these other segments--so it will be handled, and I don't think any great jeopardy will be done. Well, Mr. Silverberg, one, I want to just touch on this: when you mentioned dividing the word about the Board of Regents, I think the planning people--I don't know; I can't really read their minds--but I think they picked this title up off of a bill, and I personally handled the bill in the House, and that was the name, the title of the bill, for higher education. I think, really, they just picked up that Board of Regents for Higher Education and offered that piece of legislation. But I don't see any harm if my bill does not pass; it just merely means that you are going to be handling so much of the state's budget in one committee. Any other questions, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Fontenot I assume that you intention, by getting up here and voting against Mr. Silverberg's amendment... you are--let me ask you--are you intending to separate this number seven committee into two committees--one to consider the welfare and consumer affairs, civil service, labor and industry--and then again proposing that a committee number nine study education? Is that the intent of your...?

Mr. Leithman Basically, yes. What I plan to do is have 7 and 7-A. Seven would deal totally with education, all segments--higher education, public education, school bus drivers--the whole realm of education. Then 7-A or 7-B, whichever I have on the resolution, will cover the remaining aspects of that paragraph.

There's no other questions, Mr. Speaker?

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Fellow delegates, I rise in support of Mr. Silverberg's amendment because, as the attorney sometimes says, the words "Board of Regents" is leading the witness. I would like to eliminate it, and I would suggest all education. I feel that if you do go along and not adopt this amendment, and you go along as the other speaker mentioned, then you're opening the door to have the same number of committees that the Constitutional Convention in 1921 was killed by. On the point that he mentioned that we would have experts on this committee, being a man of many interests, I submit that you don't want all the experts on the committee to which they may appear to belong. You certainly don't want Legislators on the Legislative Committee completely. You don't want judges on the Judiciary Committee completely. You don't want only educators on the Education Committee. You need people of different interests because, even though it's two-thirds of the budget of the State of Louisiana, the educators themselves do not pay the budget. What I'm telling you is, if you go along and go along on this trend, that you get one for education, one for welfare, and one for relief, one for this and one for that, you'd better hold this thing down to eight committees. It's well represented; it's varied; and it covers it completely, and I repeat to you once again that please observe the amendment that Mr. Silverberg made. Let's consider education complete, because there's some segments of the education that twenty years from now won't even be mentioned on this committee. It's changing times, and you're writing the Constitution for all times. You want all points of education, not only public, but insofar as it deals with private or any other means. But, please, let's not start adding on additional committees, as it seems to be the public opinion of some people here, because the people here divide this thing up to the point that people of many interests cannot be on any.

Further Discussion

Mr. Newton Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment but I will in defense of Rule No. 49. I was a member of the Temporary Rules Committee, and I don't stand here to tell you that Rule No. 49 is perfect. I don't say it's going to satisfy everybody. There are fifty separate areas of consideration named in this rule. Now, if we start adding and everybody wants to debate everyone of them or shift it or switch it, then we could be here all night on that one rule. We thought that we set out with broad areas that the Convention could get its teeth into and start to work. I'd like to point out that, by the rules already adopted, any committee of this Convention can consider any other area it wants to. The Committee on the Judiciary could, if it so saw fit, take the Rules Committee's mandate. This is something that's just broad to get our teeth into and get started, and I'd like to see it stay like it is. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Silverberg Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it looks like I opened up a whole can of worms; didn't I? However, as I see it, there's a probability or possibility that we will keep our eight committees. All I've done is recommend that we limit the language of this rule and, incidentally, we point out that the Rules Committee has made some minor errors in the compilation of these very excellent set of rules, and it would seem to me that as the rule is now written, it should be very obvious that we are limited to a particular area of education. I think by the elimination of those few words "Board Regents for Higher Education" we have covered the whole spectrum of education in Louisiana. Some of my fellow delegates have come to me and suggested that we drop the word "public," and I would have a good amendment. I did not choose to do that deliberately. I think that the area in which this committee will work that it will be limited to public education. I say that we won't--if I happen to be on this committee, or any of you are on this committee--that you won't consider private and other areas of education. But, in the final analysis we are concerned with public education. I urge your adoption of this amendment.

[Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter These are amendments pronounced by Mr. Denny to amend the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 14, strike out lines 30 through 33 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "C. Committee on the Executive Department, which shall consider the offices comprising the Executive Department, reorganization, state civil service, term of the governor and other elected officials of the Executive Department, and impeachment;"

Amendment No. 2. On page 15, strike out lines 6 through 9 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following--on page 15, delete lines 6 through 9 and insert in lieu thereof this--"5. Committee on Local and Parochial Government, which shall consider local and parochial government, home rule, special districts, consolidation of government, intergovernmental cooperation and parochial and municipal civil service."

Amendment No. 3. On page 15, line 16, strike out the words "civil service". Page 15, line 16, strike out the words "civil service."

Explanation

Mr. Denny Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, first may I congratulate the Rules Committee on limiting the number of committees to eight. I think that's very sound. The purpose of my amendments are to remove civil service from the Committee on Education and to put it back under civil service into state civil service and parochial and municipal civil service and put that subject in the respective committees. The reason for this is that civil service is far more than just a civil service commission; it is a department of personnel within each of these branches of government. It seems to me that the Executive Branch of the government and the committee which considers the Executive Branch should consider state civil service, that the Committee on Local and Parochial Government should consider Local and Parochial Civil Service insofar as they affect the operation of these two fields of government. I realize that the Coordinating Committee would be able to accomplish this, but it would be awkward if you had civil service on under Education and Welfare, and then you had to have a joint meeting of three separate committees to consider the effect of civil service on the state executive as well as on the parochial and municipal. It is for this reason that I have removed it...I suggest the removal of it from Committee No. 7 and the inclusion of each of these in the proper committees.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment, and I base my opposition upon the history of civil service--the purpose of civil service has always been to give protection to the state local municipal parochial employees in this state, to take it out of the realm of politics. It is my judgment that civil service has no place whatsoever in the Committee on the Executive Department. I believe that the Rules Committee has outlined in excellent fashion those subject matters to be considered by the eight substantive committees. I would not want Municipal and Parochial Civil Service to be inserted in Subsection Five because I think the matter of civil service ought to be consolidated into one section or article of the constitution.

What's good for the state employees ought to be, in the way of protection, good for municipal and parochial employees of this state adapted to local and municipal and parochial adaptation. Let me say, if I might, in looking at Subsection Seven, the comments that have been made up to this moment in regard to the division of subject matters in Subsection Seven: What is more appropriate in the way of civil service to leave in Subsection Seven with the rights of employees? This is what you are talking about. There is nothing else, basically, in the constitution with reference to rights of employees, except your provisions of civil service. Now I think that Subsection Seven is ideal in the way that the Temporary Rules Committee has had it. I've had my disagreement with some of the things that the Temporary Rules Committee has submitted in the way of detail. But, I submit to you that great consideration was given into the development of the subject matter and breaking it down into the eight substantive committees, as we now have it proposed before us. I would beg you not--not to divide the civil service. Don't put it in the Executive Department. It has no place in being considered with the powers of the Executive. That was the purpose originally of placing the employees of this state and the local governments under civil service: is to give them the protection that they need. I beg you, in all justice, to defeat this amendment.

Delegate K.D. Kilpatrick in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I have no strong feeling about where civil service should be as regards to state employees, but I do have very strong feelings that anything in the new Constitution that we write which is going to affect local, parochial, municipal governments should be considered by the committee that is considering those matters relating to local government. I think the reasons for that are all too obvious in the recent history of this state that our local governments have in many cases been hamstringed by action taken on the state level that they have had no part in formulating or dealing with at all. They had to accept something as fait accompli which, in many cases, visited a grave financial burden on the cities without the means wherewith to meet these additional burdens. I do not think that the Committee on Parochial Municipal Government should be deprived of the opportunity to consider any civil service proposition that will affect those governments. For that reason I speak in favor of the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham While I have no quarrel with what Mr. Burson has said as to local government having a say-so on affairs that affect them, I can't help but agree with Mr. Flory that we should keep civil service all as one package, because what we are talking about here in Section Seven is the Committee on Education and Welfare and civil service is a part of the public welfare. There is nothing to prevent the Committee on Local and Parochial Government from presenting to the Committee on Education and Welfare its views and thoughts on civil service as how it affects them. I am sure--and I think Mr. Flory touched on this a little bit--but I would think as it has been said by any member of the Rules Committee or the Chairman of the Rules Committee who would consent to take the floor to explain their reasoning as to why it was grouped this way. I am in favor of grouping it this way because it deals with the welfare of the public, but maybe we can put a stop to some of the controversy if they will explain to us as to why they did it this particular way, and we would better understand their reasoning.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, in answer to the question

by Mr. Abraham, and in part in answer to some of the things said also by Mr. Flory and by Mr. Burson, we have attempted to balance the work load of eight different committees. We got down now to a discussion of philosophy as to what kind of constitution are we going to present to the people. If we are going to present a hundred thousand words or two hundred thousand words, then perhaps some of these committee structures could be enlarged. So, we are at a crossroads of sorts here. What is the considered opinion of the delegates in this room that our finished product will look like? Will it be a catalogue, a compendium exhaustively treating with every branch of government and every area of government responsibility; or is the new constitution going to be one with very infrequent amendments, a basic statement of law and structure of government; or are we going to write another catalogue like 1921? That is what the committee structure is about. Now we get to the work load of Subcommittee No. 7. There is not going to be a large number of pages on public education. There really isn't in the present Constitution. There's not going to be a great huge amount of language on consumer affairs. This is not a legislative document we are going to draft. It's going to be a general statement of principles of government. On Education and Welfare, if those were the only two subjects to be in the purview of Subcommittee No. 7, their work would certainly not be balanced with that of the Committee on the Executive or on the Legislative or on the Judiciary. So, for that reason, we added to Education and Welfare two or three pretty sticky points, so that their work load would equal out with the other seven committees: For instance, consumer affairs, a new and larger item of governmental interest in recent years, civil service, labor and industry, seeking there a balance between contending economic forces within the same subject matter. We would not want to see this committee if it had the lion's share on it, to have eighteen people previously associated with education. I don't believe that would be what would be a balanced committee on the subject of education. Nor would I like to see it overwhelmingly loaded with people whose business and personal associations have been in the field of welfare, or in the field of education, or in industry. We sought, by this committee structure and this outline of subject matters, to divide the areas of the new constitution evenly as possible in our concept so that the new constitutional document works. The drafting of the document would make one subcommittee about as busy as another; and to the extent that we succeeded by dividing some of these areas, that is the explanation of the reason for the placement of these subject matter areas where you or some of you may think they don't really belong. It was an effort by the Rules Committee to divide the work of the eight separate committees, and that's how these subject matters were switched around and changed around by the Temporary Rules Committee.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, it looks like we are going to get into the merits of some of the items that's coming up anyhow. It was envisioned by any of us on the Rules Committee, and probably a lot of others, that there would be any number of overlapping subjects, overlapping articles in the constitution. Some of them are covered in as many as three or four articles that might well be assigned. It was our opinion that this would be considered probably by one or two more committees, because of us were affected, and that the chairman of those committees would get together and quite possibly hold joint hearings on these items where there was an overlapping. Now, if you are going to start out and say that we are going to have a constitution, with one thing in mind and that's brevity, then we need about a hundred words. If we are going to look at a constitution from the standpoint of my interpretation of it, we are looking for a constitution that gives the greatest amount of protection to the individuals of this state--the property owners and everybody else--but the greatest amount of leeway and flexibility to the local and state local government. And when I go back and check and, even though there's many, many pages involved in civil service in the constitution that has never been amended, and if every other act or every other section of the constitution of this state was like civil service, there would not have been an amendment submitted in the last eighteen years. Now I'll give you a little something to think about. There is more votes tied to fouling up civil service in the State of Louisiana than any other item of it, and I defy anybody to successfully contradict it. If you don't think so, somewhere down the line you're not in touch with the rank and file of civil service employees. There's only about fifty thousand of them. When you add all of the other, and the fact that you've got many, many working people in it, I think we better take a second look before we start attempting to make civil service a football in this convention and turn a good portion of our attention to where the real problems are, and that's the problem of the operation of local government and the problems of reducing the multitude of amendments that has been submitted to the people over a period of years which certainly has confused the issue. Thank you.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Denny I would point out with regard to my good friend, Mr. Flory's statements that civil service goes far beyond protection of the employees. In my opinion, the prime purpose of civil service is to have a merit system for the State of Louisiana and for the various local, parochial, and municipal governments. So it seems to me that it is very important to find out what the executive branches of these forms of government have to say about it. Now, as far as Mr. Stano's statement, I do not comprehend that every committee is going to consider an article which covers everything in that committee. It seems to me that the committee can study it, but may recommend that the article go somewhere else in the constitution. And in many situations, it is quite logical; for instance, in Rule No. 49.2 the Committee on the Executive Department is to study the term of the governor and other elected officials. Well, there are many elected officials in this state who are not in the Executive Department; and, presumably, this method of dividing, in the rules, is to comprehend that each committee is to recommend where in the constitution the ultimate article will go. I strongly urge that you adopt this amendment.

[Amendments resumed: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Guarisco to the resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 14--page 14--line 27, immediately following "powers," insert the following: ", concepts and principles of government,".

Explanation

Mr. Guarisco Ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, the reason why I brought this amendment up--I may be nit-picking about it--but I think that this particular committee should not be harassed by what is written in, or what we are already used to. For example, we here in this Convention may--and here in Louisiana in 1973--may develop what might turn out to be a new concept of government. We are proceeding that if a man only saw squares, he may have never contemplated the wheel. So, I think that this committee should be free to maybe find a new branch of government, or what have you, and they should be free to do this. Therefore, I urge the adoption of the amendment. For an example: distribution of powers—we may eliminate a power; we may add powers, but I think there's a presumption that we're only going to have three branches of government and distribute them in three different areas. So, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment reread.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Duval Fellow delegates, I just thought at this point it might be a good idea to perhaps clear up the language under the committees. This language—I don't think the Rules intended this language to be exclusive. It is merely a guideline as is a budget. I don't think any committee is going to be bound by the language of this article. I think if we attempted to outline everything specifically and definitely, we'd be here all year trying to do that. What we must understand is that each committee is going to be basically autonomous and to try to work together with the other committees—but, the general concept being that this language is merely a guideline to the Convention and does not preclude any committee from going off into a peripheral area, and not specifically itemized, under the article setting up the committees. I wish you'd consider this. Therefore, keep that in mind when you vote, please. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I'd simply like to ask a question of the maker of this amendment. It seems to me that certainly we can consider these concepts and principles, but it seems to me that we are trying to make a textbook out of a Constitution. As I understand it, the particular article—if that's what it would be—would deal with the rights of individuals as they should be stated. If we are to include in it the concepts and principles of government, we are beginning again to lengthen the Constitution and, to me, make it a textbook rather than a Constitution per se, as I understand the Constitution.

Mr. Duval I might point out I didn't make that amendment.

Mr. Rachal Oh, I'm sorry. I thought I was first... The reason I asked the speaker the question because, as I heard him defending it before, including this terminology, it just seemed to me that it was out of place.

Mr. Duval My remarks may not have been clear enough. I was speaking against the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Denney. Amendment No. 1. On page 15, delete lines 2 through 5 and insert in lieu thereof the following: "4. Committee on Judiciary, which shall consider the judiciary, tenure, selection and removal of judges, the Department of Justice, district attorneys, sheriffs, constables, clerks of court, parish recorders, parish registrars and coroners;"

Explanation

Mr. Denney The purpose of the amendment is to include the removal of judges, primarily. It may be the tenure is sufficiently broad to cover that, but it seemed to me that we ought to have a specific provision to permit the Committee on Judiciary to consider removal of judges as well as their selection. The addition of the other words, the words "constables," to follow "sheriff," and the words "parish recorder" and "parish registrars" is primarily made because we have those animals in New Orleans. Now, it may well be that we won't have them in New Orleans after the Constitution is adopted. But I would certainly think that they should be considered by the Committee on Judiciary. We have a constable of the first city court who has the same general types of duties as does the sheriff, so I think we should consider that office. Our parish registrar and recorders are independent elected officials.

Questions

Mr. Kilbourne I only wish to ask if justices of the peace should not also be included in there?

Mr. Denney If you consider that a justice of the peace is not comprehended under the term "judiciary," I would assume they should.

Mr. Kilbourne Well, everything else is mentioned but justices of the peace, and I just wondered if it wouldn't be proper to include justices of the peace.

Mr. Bel Mr. Denney, I'd like to ask: Would you include in that city marshalls?

Mr. Denney No, I didn't include that in there.

Mr. Bel Would you?

Mr. Denney Well, I don't think I can amend my own amendment.

Mr. Henry We've got one amendment, gentlemen, which is under consideration, which does not include such a provision. Now, if Mr. Denney wants to withdraw his amendment at this time, certainly that would be in order, or further amendments can be submitted at the appropriate time. But we don't amend the amendments.

Mr. Bel I'll go on and send up amendments.

Mr. Roy Mr. Denney, under No. 5 of that particular rule, Committee on Local and Parochial Government, wouldn't city marshalls and other public officials of a local and parochial nature be covered there, and we don't have to go into justices of the peace and these other specific problems that are being raised?

Mr. Denney I would think that may very well be correct, Mr. Roy.

Mr. De Bieux Mr. Denney, I'd just like to ask you this question. What language in this particular rule or in these rules would prohibit that committee from considering these other officials which you have mentioned?

Mr. Denney Inclusion unius est exclusio alterius. That means if you include one thing, it excludes the other.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Delegates, I would simply like to deplore the addition of all of these words to these rules. These are a set of rules which are a guideline and these committees, I would hope, would have enough discretion to be able to look at all these different things. If we keep adding words simply to include this person or that person, or that job or this job, we're going to wind up with a set of rules just like the Constitution as it is today. I don't see any need for having to add all of these little things, because you see what's happened now: Because he wants to add three people to it, somebody else wants to add another job, and then you're going to have another job. We'll be here for six months just adding words to these rules, and these are simply rules for us to work by.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Leithman. Amendment No. 1. On page 15, strike out lines 14 through 17 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "7. Committee on Education, which shall consider all the facets of education in the state; and 7. (A) Committee on Welfare, which shall consider health and welfare, consumer affairs, civil service, labor and industry; and".

Explanation

Mr. Leithman Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we touched briefly, moments ago, on this resolution. I have changed the original resolution, at the request of many of you, which would include all facets of education. We eliminated the word "public". In accord with the vote for Mr. Silverberg, I have eliminated the phrase "Board of Regents of Higher Education". The intent being: all facets of education would be included separately. There were other people that asked "What about public institutions?" So I included the word "health" in 7 (A). I broadened welfare to include health and welfare; so, basically, what I'm trying to do here is to keep the children, the students, apart from other facets of this committee hearing. You will hear, in committee, in various P.A. groups, you will hear the teachers' organizations. You'll hear school-bus drivers, retirement representatives. You will go into career education, retarded schools, special schools, not to mention our universities and colleges. This will be a massive undertaking, and I think one committee should be set aside to handle such a important segment of the state; that being, education. I'll yield to questions.

Question

Mr. Avant Mr. Leithman, I would like to read this because I couldn't follow it too well. My question was I understand that what you contemplate is two separate and distinct committees. In other words, there will be one committee that will be the Committee on Education, and then the remainder--or, substantially, the remainder of what is then the proposed seven--will be another committee with two chairmen, so we have nine committees instead of eight committees.

Mr. Leithman That is exactly correct.

Mr. Avant I wanted to be sure I understood it.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Bliueux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I rise in opposition to this amendment because what this will do, it'll add another committee. I think we can accomplish the same thing, in a way, by subcommittees which have already been authorized by the rules we have adopted so far. I see nothing wrong with the committees that have been set up by the Rules Committee. I see nothing with the exact number of the rules that have been set up by the Rules Committee: that is, will be considered by each committee. I do question the fact that the Rules Committee did not designate a definite number of people to be on each of these committees. I noticed that in Rule No. 53 there said from ten to twenty. Now, I don't think we can adopt a rule like that. We've got to set out the exact number of people that would be on each committee. But I think that with a smaller number of committees that we have, if we'll keep to that number of eight, it will allow enough representation from the various segments of our society and the various areas of our state to where everybody can get in their two cents. I think that that's what we should have. I've served in the legislature a long time, and I know that sometimes you can have committees running out of your ears. As a result of that, I've found myself quite certain, trying to make three committees at the same identical time. I don't want this Convention to get in that type of situation. If we can limit the number of committees, hold the number down small, and limit the number of committees which the members will serve on, I believe we can do a much, much better job, because I feel quite certain, there are a number of the members of this Convention will probably like to appear before some committee, sometimes, which they may not be a member of. And, if you have a lot of committees meeting, you're going to find yourself in a very difficult position, sometimes, in making those committee meetings that you would like to make. So, as a result of my observation of this particular amendment, I would suggest that we vote down this particular amendment and stay with the eight that we've got and utilize our subcommittees to divide up the subject matters, which can be taken care of. Now I can see it, if we have a committee of, say, fifteen on the Education and Welfare, that it might be very easy say a committee of seven of those that will consider nothing but education at some particular time and maybe the rest of them consider something else; but, at least, the whole committee will have to pass on it. I think we'll get a much, much better Constitution that way than trying to have a committee for every subject matter that we may discuss during this Convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Silverberg Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in support of Representative Leithman's amendment. I'm quite sure we're all aware of the amount of work that will be in the completion of these rules and the intent of the Rules Committee to limit the number of committees that we'd have so that all of us could participate. However, there is one thing that the Rules Committee couldn't do, nor can any other committee: sit here or stand here and tell us how much work will be involved in the final completion of the few pages that will go into the new Constitution. In my hand here eight type-written pages which are the result of about four and a half months--or, possibly, two hundred and fifty hours--of intensive work in a committee of sixteen who have researched all facets of higher education with the hope that it could come up with something that would be better than Act 732, which will take effect in January of 1974, unless this Convention comes up with something better. As you now know, the Board of Regents would take effect then. Many of us feel that this is an imperfect act, although the intent is good. I think that, in order to accomplish the objectives that have been set forth not only by the Rules Committee, but in order to fulfill the desires of the people throughout this state, that it be our responsibility to give everyone, as well as the delegates to this Convention, an opportunity to participate in depth. I can assure you that if we adopt the ten to twenty-man or women committee that we don't have enough people to staff the particular committee, in which we are referring to, unless we divide it. Thank you, and I urge your support for a favorable adoption of this.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I speak in opposition to the amendment for the reason that I believe that the amendment that, because so much of the state budget is devoted to education that we need a separate committee, is spurious for this reason: We are not here to confect a state budget, but a Constitution. The copy of the Constitution that I have here in my hand contains Article XII on public education, twenty-one pages framed. Now there are other allusions to public education in the Constitution, but the main article dealing with public education in the present Constitution is twenty-one pages out of the seven hundred-odd pages in the present Constitution. I think it is obvious, therefore, that if we create a separate Committee on Education, that their tendency would probably be to lengthen this twenty-one pages that we have, rather than to decrease it. I imagine that ninety percent of you here ran on the same platform that I did--that we were going to cut down the size of the Constitution. I submit to you that, if you vote for an amendment creating a separate Committee on Education, you're going to be doing the opposite of the platform that you ran on.

Further Discussion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I rise to speak in opposition to the amendment. I think that public education is directly related to the other areas that you have already included on this committee. Since this is the first time I've had the occasion to speak to this gathering, I would like to add my compliments to the tremendous job that the Rules Committee has done for this Convention. But, certainly, welfare and, certainly, labor and industry are a definite part of education; and, when we start talking about all of the different segments of education being included in the Constitution, I would hope that one of the things that we don't write into the Constitution is provisions dealing with special education and PTA's and all the other matters, that we develop a Constitution that will give some protection to public education in this state, and that we provide a broad general outline of the duties and the responsibilities of this government to provide certain types of education. We are trying, by this amendment, in my opinion, really to isolate education as far as possible in this state, and I think it is directly connected with the areas that it has on the committee. I request that you vote against this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Champagne I just want to clarify a question in my mind. You are against this amendment; is that right, sir?

Mr. Aertker Yes, I am.

Mr. Champagne And would you...are you superintendent of education in one of these parishes?

Mr. Aertker East Baton Rouge, yes.

Mr. Champagne That's the point I wanted to put.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment, and I'm going to give you some of my own personal observations concerning this particular issue we are facing now. I also commend the Rules Committee on its work in proposing eight substantive committees, but I feel that Delegate Leithman's proposal is a good one. My own personal feeling is that the Departments of Education, Welfare, Commerce, Affairs and Civil Service, Labor and Industry--I think it's just too broad and just too big for somewhere around sixteen or eighteen to twenty people to handle. I don't feel like subcommittees could handle it either. I think it would actually take one whole committee to handle public education, all facets of education. This is my own personal opinion. I rise, like I said, in support of the amendment, and I think one more committee is not going to hurt that much. Of course, I see the tendency to maybe start breaking up every committee and adding on new ones, but I'm not for adding on many new committees. But I think--in this particular instance--I think it's a good idea. I think we ought to do it. So I suggest that everybody support our amendment.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Corne Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, delegates, I rise in opposition to the proposed amendment. I don't like to see education isolated. I think educators and the departments of education--the different departments of education--are very much concerned with welfare, with civil service, with labor, and other facets of government. I think that the Rules Committee has done a very good job of assigning these eight different committees, and I do not feel that we should add any more. I thank you.

Questions

Mr. Silverberg I want to ask this question of Mr. Aertker. I ask it of you also. We are all familiar with Rule No. 53 which limits the size of each of the substantive committees. Do you think that twenty people, which is the maximum we could have on this committee, is an adequate number to serve the Constitutional Convention and do the job that we will be assigned, if we happen to be assigned to this committee?

Mrs. Corne Yes, sir; I believe that the people who would be assigned to this committee would naturally be people who would wish to be on the committee and who would be very much interested in the work of the committee. I feel that these people, if legislative, would realize that many of the issues are clear-cut issues. And I do think that the Rules Committee has done a good job, and I do think that a twenty-member committee could do the job of this.

Mr. Silverberg This is no reflection on the Rules Committee, but are you familiar with the size of the Coordinating Council for Higher Education?

Mrs. Corne Yes, sir, I am.

Mr. Silverberg It's a large committee.

Mrs. Corne Very.

Mr. Silverberg Are you familiar with how many years it took this Council to put together a program that just is beginning to reach into education? Are you familiar with the size of the education committees in the House and the Senate or the Joint Legislative Committee on Higher Education? They are large committees from which I can understand; is that correct?

Mrs. Corne Yes sir. I also realize that there is a lot of background information that can be gotten--very good information that can be gotten--from these people--these committees.

Mr. Silverberg Well, in other words, you're positive that we can get the job done with the size of the committee.

Mrs. Corne Yes, sir, I feel that way.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Leithman Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to just touch on a couple of items. Firstly, Mr. De Blieux mentioned a couple of things here. I think the magic number set in the Rules Committee is not necessarily binding. I think if the Rules Committee were to come up with the number twelve, we would have had the same arguments. I am certainly in agreement with fewer committees; however, I don't think the magic number eight is of any consequence. Mr. De Blieux mentioned that he's been in the legislature for many years, and he indicated that--or I received the indication that--this was a desirable way of handling this matter, and I've got to take issue because I have here a resolution by every legislator that is now and has been keenly interested in education. They have a resolution here--the chairman of both committees, vice-chairmen of both committees, people that have been active in the Southern Regional Education Conferences, every phase and every conference of education. This is a resolution signed by those people, submitting to you that the children and education be handled separately in this Convention. I've got to compliment Mr. Silverberg on his study of the LSU report. I think it indicates just how this should be handled. Mr. Burson, I've got to apologize. I misled you, Mr. Burson, on the state budget. I did not give the state budget as any basis; apparently, I didn't make myself clear. The dollar certainly isn't a basis for our breaking this committee up. I merely tried to indicate to you the basic scope that education has--and, I think, related to the moneys expended--but I certainly didn't want to mislead you and indicate that education, because of money, should be handled. It is because the future of Louisiana is in education. Number two, you may have twenty-one pages, but in my research, these are the volumes in our Constitution that relate to education. Each page here is an education item, and it's not twenty-one pages. So, gentlemen, I just feel that in something so definite as a revision of our Constitution, we certainly must look into and listen to the people around the state--special education, our careers--and I'm not going to go over and over. Our university people will be wanting to appear before you. This would take literally months and months, and I've been through it. And on that basis, I ask that you handle education separately from the other facets that appear in your rules. Thank you for your attention.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter The next set of amendments, taking them in order as they would arrive within the rule, are sent up by Mr. Tapper, amending the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1.
On page 14, at the end of line 29--page 14, end of line 29--delete the semicolon ";" and add the following:

" , and any other subject deemed appropriate by said committee."

Explanation

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the amendment simply does what I think Mr. Staggs said the Rules Committee intended to do, and that is that to divide...it doesn't add any committees; it leaves the number of committees at eight, but what it does is to allow you, as a member of any one of these eight committees, to go into any other subject that the committee by majority vote deems appropriate. Now what that means to me is this. I want to commend the Rules Committee, also, on a wonderful job that they have done. I think they had a real tough time in trying to title these committees and also in specifying under those titles that these committees would study. However, the word "shall" in each committee designation or explanation to me means--or it may mean--that these are the only things that can be considered by these respective committees. And the only thing that my amendment will do is to authorize these committees to go into--well, let's say in the case of the Judiciary, which does not talk about justices of the peace or constables; I think that there was an amendment here about constables or somebody else--in this event, the respective committee could go into that particular phase of the present Constitution. They could also go into other phases. There was an amendment proposed by someone else to the effect that we should not be considering only those things that are in the Constitution, but possibly those things that are not in the Constitution--maybe like taking one of the departments out, which I'm not saying we should do that. We should have the right, as the Convention of the people, to go into other matters, matters other than are in the present Constitution. And I'll ask your favorable support of my amendment.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Tapper, don't you believe that unless you put some safeguards on this amendment that you might have various committees duplicating studies? I mean, you say "or any other matter the committee desires." Well, you could have several committees taking up the same subject matter, if you don't have some provisions on your amendment to eliminate that or to prevent that from happening?

Mr. Tapper It's very possible, Senator Rayburn, and I think that's the reason the Rules Committee went into the Coordinating Committee principle. But the Coordinating Committee, in my understanding, could have only ten members. If we adopt another rule, which is coming up a little later, that our committees will have from ten to twenty members, and six members who don't want to go into anything else that is in this Constitution, other than what's in this Constitution, could very likely say, "Well, we're not going to allow any other committee to go into anything else, if they happen to get on the Coordinating Committee. If we do, it could be broad and it could have some duplication, but I think that every member of this Convention should be authorized, and every committee should be authorized, to go into whatever subject they deem necessary. Because, remember, we're only going to be on one committee apiece. Now, suppose you are on a committee that is studying the judiciary, but you have something that you want in judiciary or you think should or should not be in the judiciary. Now, of course, you can introduce a resolution--or a proposal, rather--and that will be sent to this Committee on the Judiciary, but you will not be a member of that committee." Your proposal could be killed in that committee, and when it gets to the floor of this house, you'd have a hard time overruling that committee.

Mr. Velazquez First, as a member of the Rules Committee, I'd like to thank you for your suggestion; however, we felt that we...do you feel that we covered this sufficiently and all the pertinent balance in line 21, on page 15--"other provisions that may not be covered by the areas of responsibility shown above may be assigned by the Coordinating Committee to the appropriate substantive committee"--and on page 17, line 16, and following, "The Coordinating Committee shall consider any issues regarding omissions, overlap, and/or conflict which might arise concerning the jurisdiction of any substantive committee or on any subject matter, call joint meetings of any substantive committee for the purpose of discussing any omissions, overlap and/or conflict which might arise and make recommendations to the respective substantive committees as the possible resolution thereof?"

Mr. Tapper No sir, I do not think the problem that I'm presenting to you is covered by that. That's the Coordinating Committee which could have only ten members on it, if we adopt the following resolution forthcoming, which means that six members who may not want to go into anything else other than what is in the present Constitution could say that they are not going to delegate this authority to any particular substantive committee.

Mr. Velazquez We also have a stipulation that, when something goes before a committee, it must make a decision. There's no way that they could just bottle up the point that you would raise to them.

Mr. Tapper I understand that too, but I don't think that addresses itself to the problem that I am presenting to you. The problem I'm presenting to you is this: I would like to see every member of this delegation, or this Convention, be able to propose any subject before a committee. You know, we also have adopted a rule which says that a committee can make proposals. Now, if a committee cannot go into any other area than is specified under the particular committee heading, then how can that committee make any proposals in that area other than that which is specified? I don't think it's covered by the Coordinating Committee. The Coordinating Committee could be composed of people who don't want to go any further than we want to go.

Mr. Perez Mr. Tapper, would you be agreeable to adding to your amendment, which reads, "and any other subject matter deemed appropriate by said committee"--add the following words: "under the general descriptive name of such committee" so that on the Committee on the Judiciary, any matters which the Judiciary Committee would consider to be under their jurisdiction, they could properly consider, but not consider a matter, for instance, on education or welfare. Would you be agreeable to such an amendment?

Mr. Tapper I don't think that would do what I want it to do, Chalin, but maybe a subsequent amendment can be proposed to that effect. My initial intention of proposing the amendment is to allow... it's my understanding the Rules Committee decided that we should not have too many committees. They decided that eight was a fairly good number because of the number of delegates to the Convention. Each delegate should be on one of these committees, and only one of these substantive committees. I feel that the Rules Committee felt that they had to divide these committees into eight different areas. But I don't think that the Rules Committee and others in this Convention feel that if you're on the Judiciary that you should not be able to go into the area of education or the area of the executive or the legislative. And really, my intent is not so much--and I thank you for your suggestion. Maybe, if this one doesn't pass as it is--because this one is broader than the one you suggested--if it doesn't pass as it is, I would like to offer the other amendment. But I believe that we should have this amendment adopted.

Mr. Avant Mr. Tapper, do you think that the amendment which you offer is not just permissive, but that it actually invites and encourages these committees to be running off in all and any direction that they want to?

Mr. Tapper I don't think it does that, Mr. Avant, but if it does, I'm glad that proposed it because that is exactly what we're here for.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Tapper, besides the fact that it makes it permissive on the part of the committee, wouldn't you say that, in effect, it negates Rule No. 44--which I assume we've adopted--that says that when it comes to the matter of referrals, I can envision a situation whereby, you know, we have to refer information, refer a proposal to a certain committee. And if this Convention decides that it goes to one committee over another, your rule would still then allow that committee to be very permissive and say: well, we recognize what the Convention did, but we want to go into that area; we want to deal with that particular subject itself. So, in effect, it does negate Rule No. 44--if not negate, at least poses some very serious problems in terms of how do we refer certain matters to substantive committees. Wouldn't you say?

Mr. Tapper I don't think it negates it, Mr. Jackson, but I do believe that it may affect it, somewhat, to this extent that the committee members on either of the eight committees, or any of the eight committees, will be able to go into other matters than are specified in the language under that particular heading.

Mr. Burton Mr. Tapper, isn't it true that under the rule that Representative Jackson just alluded to, if I had a delegate proposal that was assigned to one committee and I thought it should be assigned to another, that I could object and ask the Convention to have it assigned to the committee I thought it should go to?

Mr. Tapper Yes, sir, the Convention could by majority vote, as I understand it, send it to... the committee that the convention wants to send it to.

Mr. Burton Don't you think that this proposal then, in the rule that we have already adopted, would cover to a great extent the problem that you're raising with your proposed amendment?

Mr. Tapper No, I don't think it would, because the committee itself can submit a proposal, and I'm trying to deal with the situation where the committee would like to go into another area.

Mr. Duval Mr. Tapper, is it your understanding that the rules setting up the Coordinating Committee did not give the Coordinating Committee directive power, merely suggestive power. Do you understand that as being what the rule says?

Mr. Tapper I think you're right, Mr. Duval.

Mr. Duval Thank you, sir. And do you see anything in these rules which would preclude a committee from suggesting something that may not be specifically germane to the article creating it?

Mr. Tapper I see the word "shall"; yes sir, I do; and that word "shall" bothers me.

Mr. Duval Do you see anything else which might preclude it, since the Coordinating Committee can only suggest?

Mr. Tapper No, you're talking about the Coordinating Committee suggesting something in addition to what is listed under these particular topics. And the word "shall" in there means to me--I may be incorrect--but the word means to me that this is all they can go into.

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Tapper, I'm a little bit concerned as to what do you mean when you say "shall go into the subject matter." What do you have reference to? Are you planning to have a committee, several committees, reporting out different subject matter, or are you planning to have a committee consider the question and refer it to the appropriate committee as determined by the rules?

Mr. Tapper Well, I'm not really planning anything, Mr. Sutherland, but by my amendment, I hope to accomplish this: that any committee can go into subjects that are not listed in under those titles, and whether they submit them to other committees or whether they submit a proposal to the Convention by the committee would be left up to the majority of that committee.

I move for adoption of my amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Delegates to the Convention, I rise in opposition to this particular amendment. I don't think it's necessary. I think that with reading Rule No. 39, which allows a majority of the committee to introduce any type of resolution, along with Rule No. 42, which allows the committee to introduce a resolution even after sixty days, along with all the other issues brought out by Representative Jackson, what have you, that we're just engaging in a lot of discussion for nothing. I think that the committee--the appointment committee, rather--can be overruled by the Convention as a whole. I don't think there's anything to worry about. I think anything that's germane to any subject can be brought up; and, with due respect to the other people who want to talk, if they are in opposition to this amendment, I'd like to ask them to let me move the previous question at this particular time.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: ave voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Schmitt to the committee resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 4--14, excuse me--line 26, immediately after the word "consider" and before the word "the" insert the following: "all areas affecting the Bill of Rights and Elections, and shall consider that area not limited to, the following specific areas:"

Amendment No. 2. On page 14, at the end of line 29, delete the semicolon ";" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "notwithstanding any other rules to the contrary there shall be seven--teen members of the Committee on Bill of Rights and Elections."

Explanation

Mr. Schmitt Mr. Speaker, I'd like to withdraw Amendment No. 2 at this time.

[Amendment No. 2 withdrawn.]

Mr. Schmitt I prepared this amendment because I believe it states specifically what the intent of the Committee on Rules was during that hearing. Specifically, it says it shall consider all of those areas which are specifically enumerated. Therefore, there won't be any major areas which will be left out. However, if [if] there are other areas in which the committee deems that it's necessary that it enter, then it has the right to go into these areas. I feel that this would bring about the desires of the committee and would satisfy Mr. Perez's objection to the prior amendment. I believe it would.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I started to get up just now--tried to--and speak on Mr. Tapper's amendment, but this is just as good an opportunity to express my views or concepts of the wording of these eight different committees. I think that if we could all agree on--not because I think it--but, if we could all get this concept in mind, it would shorten the future discussions on these particular eight amendments. In other words, as I understand it, the different duties under the different committees are more permissive, but not restrictive. In other words, I think it could be almost humanly impossible to set forth in detail everything that that particular committee is going to consider during their deliberations between now and July 5. I think this is comparable to a budget that's drawn up in businesses and corporations. While it's true it sets forth every amount for that particular item for the coming year, but yet you're not restricted to it; it's merely a directive. I think that that would be different--the wording of these different committees consist of. I believe as a matter of fact, that you could have gotten by just with the designation and the name of each committee, because that's descriptive in itself. But, I just don't think it's necessary to be amending every one of these committees' duties by saying that something was left out of it, because I don't think that limits their authority in any manner whatsoever. I could not go quite as far as Mr. Tapper's amendment went; but, yet, if it would obtain this purpose, I would have voted for it. But I do think that that should be left to the discretion of each committee. In other words, I don't think a Committee on Education would take it on themselves to go so far afield as to fix the term of or the election method of electing judges, but I think that anything within the concept or the general authority of that particular committee, that they should have the right to take it up without being it set forth in detail.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Schmitt I believe that this amendment--and I'm prepared to introduce other ones as we get to the different committees--would clear up any types of problems as to what areas a committee has the authority to enter. It's not extremely restrictive, but it also allows them to go into other related areas in their particular field. As an example, the Bill of Rights and Elections states: "all areas affecting the Bill of Rights and Elections"; therefore, if there is some section which is specifically let out and if Mr. Staag's interpretation is correct, according to the way it is enacted right now, it'd be more limiting. I don't think it should be that limiting.

[Amendment No. 1 reread. Amendment No. 1 rejected: ave voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Kilbourne. Amendment No. 1. On page 15, line 4, immediately after "clerks of court" insert the following: ", and justices of the peace".

Explanation

Mr. Kilbourne Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I thought perhaps the justices of the peace was omitted by oversight in consideration by the Judiciary Committee. The office of the justice of the peace is not so much used, I don't think, in urban areas; but, in the country, they still perform necessary and important functions. The justice of the peace is definitely a judicial officer. He can render a judgment just as good as any judge on civil matters up to a hundred dollars. In criminal matters, he's the committing magistrate; he can issue an arrest warrant for any crime from murder on down. He can fix bonds in any crime not necessarily punishable by hard labor. Quite often, in the rural areas, why it takes quite a load off the country judges. I think it would be a mistake not to give some consideration to this office.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Fayard to Committee Resolution No. 1 by Mr. Staag. Amendment No. 1. On page 15, line 15, immediately after the word "consider" and before the word "education" delete the word "public". Page 15, line 15, delete the word "public".

Explanation

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I realize there may be some objection to this amendment, but my intention is solely to let this committee consider any aspects of education. It's my feeling that if we leave the word "public education" in the rule, as it is now written, we may possibly delete several items which could come up which this committee should consider. Number one, perhaps the special schools or educational clinics, accreditation of private institutions; or the public or Convention may interpret this to mean that we are--this committee--is to consider only lower schools or secondary education. I'm merely putting this in here, throwing it out for some discussion. I ask the members and the delegates to pose any questions they wish to have and make any comments they wish to make on this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1. On page 15, line 16, after the comma ",", delete the word "labor" and on page 15, line 17, delete the words "and industry".
Amendment No. 2. On page 14, line 29, delete the semicolon ";" and add the following--this is on page 14, line 29--", labor and industry";.

Explanation

Mr. Lennox Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, mine is what I believe to be somewhat of an innocent amendment. I have the honor of having been appointed as a delegate to this Convention, representing industry. As you will note, labor and industry is tucked away under the general category of Committee on Education and Welfare. I submit to you that there are at least a hundred delegates better qualified to serve on the Committee of Education and Welfare than I. But, as the committee is now structured, I'm obliged to request service on the Committee on Education and Welfare. I do not believe that what I proposed does violence to the work of the Rules Committee, and I ask your support.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates to the Convention, as Mr. Lennox was appointed to represent industry, so was I appointed to represent labor. I hope our division doesn't signify the future of this Convention, insofar as issues are concerned. However, I must stand in opposition to his amendment, insofar as labor is concerned, and I'd ask you to leave those matters relating to labor, as such, as proposed by the Temporary Committee on Rules. And I ask you to vote down this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Mr. Flory, I can respect your stand. I'd like to know the reasons for it, if you don't mind.

Mr. Flory I believe that the committee that has been proposed by the Temporary Rules Committee in considering education, health, welfare, civil service, and so forth, relate more to employees than does where the Section 1 as to where Mr. Lennox has proposed to put it. I believe that the interest of the working people of this state lies more closely tied in a line with those other issues to be discussed in Subsection 7, 8, or whichever.

Mr. Bollinger You don't feel that the Bill of Rights would protect these laborers' interests and also, as well, industries' interests--as well as welfare?

Mr. Flory I have no knowledge as to who shall be or will be on any of the committees. And at this point, it's a matter of principle and as to where they, I consider, the most issues that will concern the employees of this state will be considered, and I suggest to you that that is in the field of health, education, welfare, civil service, and those issues directly related to the benefits and rights of the employees of this state.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Lennox Ladies and gentlemen, I'd appreciate your support and vote.
Thank you.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1. On page 15, between lines 20 and 21, insert the following language: On page 15, between lines 20 and 21 "notwithstanding the above, the committees may consider any related matters without limitation."

Explanation

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Chairman, what I'm trying to do with this amendment is to take care of some of the objections that were raised previously that the committees may feel they're limited by the subject matter that is expressed in the committees. This is to eliminate that and let them go into any related matters connected with the subject matter.

Further Discussion

Mr. Conroy I would like to speak in favor of the proposed amendment. A short while ago when we had a recess, in conversations throughout the floor, everyone seemed to agree that the specific enumeration of certain areas--the different committees--did not preclude other committees from getting into those areas if they related to the functions of that committee. The rules don't specifically so state. I don't know why they don't state, and it seems to me that it is incumbent upon this group to adopt Mr. Sutherland's recommendation and specify in the rules that nothing in this precludes the committees from getting into these other areas.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman and members of the Convention, delegates, I rise in favor of this amendment. This amendment will allow you, no matter what committee you're on, to go into any area that is not specifically set forth in that particular committee description, although comes under fore--like justice of the peace, constable, etc.--and that it wouldn't allow you to go all over the Constitution, and it wouldn't allow you, necessarily to...well you would have no duplication, as such, that the amendment that I proposed might very well have had. I support the amendment; I think this is what all of us would like to have done. We don't want to be restricted under the title, and I don't think the Rules Committee meant it to be that way. I would urge your support of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Nunez to Committee Resolution No. 1, by Mr. Stagg, amending the original resolution.

On page 15, line 22, immediately after the words "may be" strike out the word "assigned" and insert in lieu thereof "recommended for consideration".

Explanation

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and members of the Convention, very possibly the changing of the word

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

"assigned" to "recommended for consideration" would clear up some of the problems that a lot of the delegates seem to have when it comes to what subjects of consideration you can have under the eight general categories. It also clears up some of the language in the future rule which would be on page 17, which says "the Coordinating Committee shall recommend"--or "may recommend"; and it puts the same language in Rule No. 8: "they may recommend for consideration. So it does two things. It clears up the language of the two different rules here, and it also allows that subjects that were considered not to be covered can be recommended by the Coordinating Committee, which would take some basic powers away from the Coordinating Committee. And I think that the Rules Committee certainly has done a wonderful job; but just changing this one word, I think, would help these rules out considerably.

Questions

Mr. Womack Senator Nunez, if we go along with the word "recommend", then you polices--suppose they decide they don't want it or somebody decides that they shouldn't have it--who's going to have the final say--?

Mr. Nunez I think it would go back to the committee that is under that category.

Mr. Stagg Senator Nunez, you recognize that there is a slight difference between the language that appears in line 22 and the language that appears under Rule No. 54, when it sets forth the duties of the Coordinating Committee. In the last two lines of the section on Coordinating Committee, it says "and to make recommendations to the respective substantive committees as to possible resolution thereof." What you amendment asks--if I understand it, sir--is that the word "assigned," in line 22, be changed to "recommended". Is that correct? Would you be as willing to suggest that the word "assigned" that's in rule... on line 22, in subsection--bottom of this rule we are studying--that we go over to Rule No. 54 and change the word "recommended" in line 22 to assigned? Would that please you to be consistent? What you are seeking, as I understand your amendment, is consistency. And it would be just as consistent to change "recommended" in Rule No. 54 to "assigned", as it would to change "assigned" to "recommended" in the current rule.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Stagg, when we get to Rule No. 64...

Mr. Stagg 54.

Mr. Nunez ...54, if you want to go ahead and do that, I think the Convention will hear it at that time. Right now, I'm amending Rule No. 49, and I think that "recommended" is a much better word than "assigned" in that particular language.

Mr. Stagg Then you would then look forward to an amendment at Rule No. 54?

Thank you, Mr. Nunez.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I don't want to get the cart before the horse, but I'm like Senator Nunez. I was disturbed by an apparent conflict, in my mind, between Rule No. 54 and this provision in the rule that we now have under consideration, because Rule No. 54 speaks of the Coordinating Committee making recommendations as to these conflicts. Yet, this rule says that they may assign to the appropriate committee certain matters. Now, like I say, I don't want to get the cart before the horse, but I had sent up an amendment--which hadn't come up yet--which would make it clear that, when the Convention is not in session, then this Coordinating Committee may make these assignments; but that when the Convention is in session, that then these conflicts would be resolved by the Convention. And I just wanted to bring that to your attention as a possible resolution of what does appear to be an apparent conflict in these rules.

Further Discussion

Mr. Keen Mr. Chairman and members of the Convention, there is no conflict between the provisions of Rule No. 49, with respect to the work of the Coordinating Committee, and the provisions of Rule No. 54. As I appreciate it, and as I understood it when we drafted this language, the provisions on line 21, 22, and 23 of page 15 were designed to cover a situation where there had been no assignment of a particular area of responsibility. And under those circumstances, an assignment--just no assignment having been made--the Committee on Committees, the Coordinating Committee, would have the right to make an assignment of that particular material. On the other hand, where there were conflicts and overlap involved, then under Rule No. 54 it was intended that the Coordinating Committee would only make recommendations with respect to resolution of those particular areas. And under those circumstances it seems to me that the language of the two rules are consistent and ought to be left as they are.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the Convention, certainly there seems to be some conflict as far as what a delegate or what can be considered under these eight categories of rules. Can we, for instance, under the judiciary and pick out and consider Justices of the peace, which is covered under that article in the Constitution? There is some question as to whether you can or not. There is some question as to whether the language that is used in line 22 of the provision, that may not be covered by the areas of responsibility shown, may be assigned by the Coordinating Committee, whether they dictate to you as a committee, make assignments that maybe you don't want. And I don't think you should have that type of authority. So, I think if we change "assigned" to "recommended" that we'd be clearing up the language in the rules, and I think we'd be giving a little leeway to what a lot of people have tried to do here today and maybe have gone too far. So I'd certainly appreciate your vote and consideration on the amendment.

[Amendment rejected: via vote.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Avant to the resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 15, line 22, between the words "and" and "be" insert the following: ", when the Convention is not in session."

Motion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in view of Mr. Keen's explanation, I withdraw the amendment I offered.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Tapper to Committee Resolution 1 by Mr. Stagg, amending the original resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 4, at the end of line 9, delete the semicolon ";" and add the following: ", and any other subject matter deemed appropriate by said committee under the title above." The similar amendment follows on page 14, line 33; 15, line 1; page 15, line 5; page 15, line 9; page 15, line 11; line 13, rather--page 15, line 17; and 15, line 23.

Explanation

Mr. Tapper Just briefly, I can sense the feeling of the Convention; however, this would allow the particular committee to go into matters that are not specifically set forth in the definition of the committee that would ordinarily come under the title--like the judiciary; they could go into justices of the peace, constables, etc.; and under education, they could go under private education; they could go into other facets of education, welfare, and what have you. This would not broaden it to the point where they could go--where the Education Committee could go--into the Judiciary or vice-versa. This would allow the committee to decide whether or not they want to go into these areas, rather than the Coordinating Committee. I urge your favorable passage.

Questions

Mr. Fontenot Is it your interpretation that, unless your language is added, that these committees cannot go into this subject matter, or is your language necessary? Is that your interpretation?

Mr. Tapper That's correct. That's my interpretation, because the word "shall" disturbs me--that they "shall" consider this and so--and that it's limited. Now there are other areas under the same topic that are in the constitution that are not specified here. There are other areas that they may want to go into under the judiciary or under education or under agriculture that are not specifically set forth in the explanation under the title. The only thing I want to do is give them the authority to go into other areas under their respective titles only, and not go into any other area that another committee is dealing with.

Mr. Fontenot So, as I take your interpretation, in other words, like in committee no. 4, if... because of the word "shall" included, then this committee will not be able to go into justices of the peace. Is that correct?

Mr. Tapper The way I understand it, unless the Coordinating Committee comes back and recommends to them to go into that, yes. The way it's worded now in my opinion, they cannot go into it, unless... it's recommended to them by the Coordinating Committee. The committee itself, on the Judiciary, could not go into it.

[Previous question ~~replied~~. Amendment rejected: viva voce. Previous question ordered ~~in the Rule~~.]

Questions

Mr. Nunez Mr. Stagg, I think that an assurance on your part to the members of this committee that have a feeling there are matters under these eight broad titles that we cannot cover, and there is a line that they can be covered, I think there are important titles in the Constitution that are being left out, if we can't cover them, and I think we should resolve it here. I am assuming, if you give the assurance that you feel that they are covered and we can take up the titles in there that some of us want in there and some of us feel that should be there and they rightfully should be, then I guess we'd go ahead and pass it. I vote for it, but as it stands now, it looks like there are areas of consideration that the various committees would not be able to take up. Now, whether that's going to lie in the Coordinating Council, the Coordinating Committee, to come and tell them they can do it or not, I think it should be under the jurisdiction of that committee if it's in the Constitution, if it's in the Judiciary--which is the one that seems to be used most often--and they want to talk about justices of the peace, which is in the Constitution, they should be able to cover it; don't you agree?

Mr. Stagg In answer to your question, Senator Nunez, it was the opinion of the Rules Committee that in the rule where, if a delegate wanted a proposal to go to a particular committee and the chairman sent it somewhere else, that then the Convention could be appealed to by that delegate to make an assignment. Then we came down to the purpose of writing up eight general committees. We could have spent five pages in these rules, by making an exhaustive compendium of every possible Constitutional subject matter, and made these rules even longer than they are. Rather than to do that, we put, in the last paragraph of these rules, a cover paragraph that the provisions that may not be covered by the areas of responsibility shown above may be assigned by the Coordinating Committee. That's the second line of defense that a delegate has. If he asks for a particular assignment of his proposal and the Chairman won't give it to him, then he can ask the Convention to give it to him. If he fails to do that and wants to take it to the Coordinating Committee, then the Coordinating Committee is open to him to request an assignment of an area of responsibility or subject matter not covered. Then, if that fails and there becomes a disagreement between a delegate and the committee chairman, or a delegate and the Convention Chairman, and two or more of these committees disagree about subject matter, then we erected a Coordinating Committee to act as an umpire to decide and to recommend coverage of all of these things. We do not wish a single piece of proposed Constitutional subject matter to be without a committee to go to. That is the purpose of the rules as drawn.

Mr. Nunez That's what I'm trying to establish, and there seemed to be quite a bit of discussion that that was not the case. Evidentially, it is.

Mr. Stagg I think if you listened to the votes as they went around the room, Senator, the rest of the delegates who voted on each of these amendments seemed to be satisfied that there was a place that every proposal could go, and I hope and trust that that is the way it will be.

Mr. Tapper Mr. Stagg, if your answer to Senator Nunez is correct, I'd like to know why do you oppose, or did you oppose, the amendment which provided that the committee can go into anything that is under the subject to the title above? This doesn't broaden it too wide, but it does allow the respective members on these committees to decide whether or not there's an area under that particular title into which they can go. Why the opposition to that? I don't understand that.

Mr. Stagg I voted against it, sir, and I would again if it comes up again, because I just didn't think it was a necessary amendment.

Mr. LeBlue Mr. Stagg, as I pointed out to you a few minutes ago, it appears that the second paragraph--or, rather, line 21 through 23 on page 15--applies only to Section B and not the preceding seven articles. And I just wondered if maybe this shouldn't be straightened out before we go too much farther?

Mr. Stagg May I ask you a question back, sir? Would you be satisfied if I asked that the second Convention to place in line 21, before the word "other" the arabic numeral [numeral] 9--then, therefore, to separate it entirely from the rest of it? If you would think that would be conducive to greater explanation, I'll ask leave of the Convention to permit the placing of the number 9 at the beginning of line 21.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, this is somewhat a little out of the order. Now would you mind running by the rest of us what you-all just did?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I tried to answer Mr.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

LeBleu's comment. He seems to think that we should separate these last three lines which are a paragraph designed to cover all eight committees. He says its being snuggled up under 8 in the printed text might leave you the impression that it only applied to Subparagraph 8. And in answer to his question, which I yielded to do, I asked him back would it make him feel that it was clearer, and more declaratory of the purpose of the rule, to merely add to line 21 a number 9. So it made this a separate paragraph--numbered separate paragraph--under Rule No. 49...

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, I appreciate what you're attempting to do. Let me just get Mr. Poynter to point out what is involved in these little changes back and forth that seem so easy to make. Mr. Poynter.

Mr. Poynter Well, those little changes are rather complicated for the desk to keep up but in this case, Mr. Stagg, this rule begins "the following substantive committees are hereby created: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5." I don't think the addition of 9 is the solution here. I think that would tend to indicate that you are talking about another committee there.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman--if I may speak, sir--if you'll notice the punctuation of Rule No. 49, each individual committee's assigned suggested area of coverage is ended by a semicolon. When you get to the end of Rule No. 8, we very consciously placed a period to end it. Then we started a new paragraph. Mr. LeBleu asked how better we could separate the last three lines. I'm not suggesting...

Mr. Henry Well, well, I don't think we're arguing about, you know, anything that's that important. I believe you're right. I think it would be nice if we'd caught it, but we're in the process of the procedure where the previous question has been moved, where you're closing, and we just can't back up that far. We've allowed a lot of leeway, but I think that's unnecessary. Does that conclude your remarks, sir?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mr. Chairman:

Point of Order

Mr. Tapper I think Mr. LeBleu raised a very good point. I, for one--and I think every member of this Convention--would like to know what is the interpretation now. Does this provision, this second paragraph, apply only to Paragraph 8, or the Committee on Natural Resources and Environment, or does it apply to all of the committees?

Mr. Henry Mr. Tapper, I don't think you need have any concern over the point of order that you just raised. And as much as I don't think that there is anything that needs to be done at this particular point in time, I think we may as well go ahead and vote on the adoption of the rule.

Mr. Stagg, do you have any other remarks that you would like to...

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I want everybody to understand that the fact that the Rules Committee understands the way this was written was 'cause they lived with it for three days. And I understand when a delegate who has not been through the process of this writing of all these rules could see that second sight is always best. I would like to alleviate the problem. There are two very simple...if there was a Committee on Style in the Chair, instead of the Committee on Rules, it could easily be suggested that Rule No. 49 be divided into Paragraphs A and B--and put A in line 24 on the previous page and B at the beginning of line 21--and that would segregate the rule and make it perfectly clear.

Mr. Henry You know we're not going to segregate much of anything at this Convention, Mr. Stagg.

I tell you, if it will make you folks happy--I mean, I don't think there is any problem--but if it will make you all happy, we'll stick an A and B in there on the side to resolve the problem.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 50. Procedural Committees. The following procedural committees are hereby created:

- 1) Committee on Rules, Credentials, Ethics and Schedules, which shall consider rules, credentials of delegates, questions of ethics, press and employees, schedules, calendar, agenda, and shall consider all questions on any procedural disputes referred to it by the Chairman or by the convention;
- 2) Committee on Style and Drafting, which shall have control over literary style, consistency, arrangement, and numbering. The committee shall have authority to rephrase or to regroup proposed language, but shall have no authority to change the sense or purpose of any proposal referred to it; and
- 3) Committee on Legislative Liaison and Transitional Measures, which shall maintain liaison with the legislative branch and the Louisiana Law Institute and provide for coordination of the transition of subject matter from the Constitution to the appropriate statute law.
- 4) Committee on Public Information, which shall consider and implement measures to inform the people of the activities, proceedings, recommendations, and activities of the Convention. It shall plan and implement the report to be given to the voters of Louisiana on the result of the Convention's work, and shall direct the efforts to obtain approval of the new Constitution and the form and manner of presentation.

Explanation and Amendments

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman and members of the Convention, I would like to offer three technical amendments. The first being on page 16, line 1, delete the word "and" after the semicolon. On page 16, line 6, insert a semicolon ";". Instead of the period after the word "law" and add the word "and." And on page 16, line 6, delete the word "statutes", so it would read merely "to the appropriate law." It's been pointed out that there are regulations such as civil service rules which have the effect of law, that there are home rule charters which have the effect of law, and perhaps other devices which have the effect of law merely outside of the statutes. And under the circumstances, the deletion of the word "statutes" would be appropriate so that the committee could coordinate the transition of the subject matter from the Constitution to the appropriate law. If that included a regulation or a home rule charter or the like, it would have the authority to supervise that particular transition. The Rules Committee, in proposing these four procedural committees attempted to cover procedural matters which were likely to come before the Convention and divide them into areas of responsibility that would, in effect, make these procedural committees important committees. The first Committee on Rules will obviously be an important committee to coordinate not only questions of rules, but the other matters covered by the rule with respect to that particular committee. The Committee on Style and Drafting has been referred to previously and is obviously a necessary committee for the work of the Convention. In connection with the Committee on Legislative Liaison and Transitional Measures, we need to maintain liaison with the legislative branch which includes the Legislative Council, in the opinion of the committee, the Law Institute, and to take whatever steps are necessary to coordinate transition of subject materials from the Constitution to appropriate law. And lastly, the Committee on Public Information, which I believe is an important committee in bringing out the recommendations and bringing matters before the voters of the state necessary to the final adoption of a new proposed Constitution. And under the circumstances, I move the adoption of the rule as amended.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Question

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the question I want to raise is that--since under item 4, there's a proposal there to where you're taking responsibility of taking the final passage and seeing that it's steered on to the adoption by the public, without knowing what we're going to adopt and what we're going to present--the floor might be open...the Chair might be open for volunteers for that position at this time.

Mr. Kean As I pointed out, Mr. Womack, I think the Committee on Public Information is going to be extremely important. It is not designed that that committee would take over the function of the Convention in explaining the new Constitution to the people of the state. But it would plan how we would go about doing it and take necessary steps to implement a public information program.

[Technical amendments adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mrs. Zervigon to Committee Resolution, amending the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1.

On page 16, line 1, after the word "it" delete the remainder of the line and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Where a proposal referred to inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted on favorably by the Convention, the committee shall at the third reading (Rule 44H) so notify the Convention of that inconsistency or conflict and wait upon its instructions."

Explanation

Ms. Zervigon Mr. Clerk, there's a typographical error in the amendment. I meant it to read "Where a proposal referred to it is inconsistent." The words "it" and "is" belong between "to" and "inconsistent."

Mr. Poynter I follow you.

Ms. Zervigon Make that on your copy. The purpose of this amendment is to clarify the intent of the Rules Committee about the activities of the Committee on Style and Drafting. The phrase on page 15, line 32, says that "the Committee on Style and Drafting shall have control over literary style and consistency," etc. I don't think that, if in our five month's deliberation we pass these that are inconsistent or in conflict, the Rules Committee meant that the Committee on Style and Drafting must dictate to us which one of those we really meant to say. And, therefore, I offer this amendment so that they can refer it back to the Convention floor and say: "You've passed these two inconsistent things; which do you prefer, or shall we put them on the ballot as alternatives? And we of the Convention can decide."

[Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Mr. Flory, amending the original resolution, reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 51, line 26, following the word "Credentials," delete the comma, ",", and insert in lieu thereof the word "and". Amendment No. 2. On page 15, line 26, delete the words "and schedules". Amendment No. 3. On page 15, line 28, delete the words "schedules, calendar.". Amendment No. 4. On page 15, line 29, delete the word "agenda".

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates to the Convention, while I consider this to be a technical amendment, let me assure you that it has some important impact, insofar as the orderly procedure of the Convention as is to be operated on the report of committees in the consideration of various proposals. As I interpret this rule, this would give the power to the Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Ethics, the power to set a schedule of the Convention, the calendar, and the agenda. I do not believe that this Convention wise if it adopted this procedure--and let me say to you that as in all legislative bodies to my knowledge, except the national Congress, when a bill or a proposal is reported by committee, it is considered by the overall body in its numerical order, according to the order of the day. I would not want to see any committee--whether it be substantive, procedural, or otherwise--with the power that I consider contained in this proposed rule here. Take for an example, unless you are a member of the Rules Committee or in favor with the Rules Committee, it's quite possible--and I say only possible--that your proposal would never be set on the calendar until the very last week, the last day of the Convention. And it's my judgment in order for every delegate to have the same identical treatment that his proposal, when it is reported by committee or when committee proposals are reported, that they be considered in the regular numerical order in which they are reported by committee, unless this Convention should decide otherwise in which they could set them special order, they say to consider special matters. But I think it's a judgment that this Convention itself ought to make, not a subcommittee of this Convention. Again I say to you that I think it's technical in nature, but it does have some mechanical effect as far as to the future operation...the mechanics of the operation of this Convention, and I think you ought to give serious consideration that each of your delegates ought to be treated the same way in consideration of your proposal, once it's reported by committee, as is done in the Louisiana Legislature and other deliberative bodies. I ask for the adoption of the amendments.

Question

Mr. Burson When you said "except the national Congress," Mr. Flory, weren't you referring to the fact that the Rules Committee...the House of Representatives is often referred to as having dictatorial power in what reaches the floor of the House?

Mr. Flory They not only have the power to tell you what reaches the floor, but they have the power to tell you in what manner it shall appear before the floor and as to whether or not it can be amended and in what fashion. This is the thing that I was trying to avoid.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, the word "schedules" which appears in the designation of the committee and in the body of the committee assignment is not designed to deal with any schedule of the Convention. There will be schedules, which will have to be attached to the proposed Constitution, which will say in some instances that a bond issue issued pursuant to a certain prior Constitutional provision is still to be in full force and effect. What the word "schedules" is referring to is not to a schedule of meetings or schedule of the Convention, but to "schedules" which would be attached to the proposed Constitution and which would have to be attached in order to safeguard and protect prior action by the legislature under the prior Constitution. It's a device that's followed in all Constitutional matters. It was done in the prior Constitution and would have to be done here. That's what the word "schedules" is talking about. Insofar as the reference to calendar is concerned, the daily business of the Convention proceeds in accordance with Rule No. 66. As I envision it, that sets forth the manner in which matters would be taken up by the Convention, and this is simply a means by which this committee can consider possible conflicts or changes and make recommendations to the Convention if and as necessary. Under the circumstances, I don't see any problem with the assignment of the material to the committee and, certainly, in the case of the schedules which have been listed, that should be retained because someone has to accept that responsibility.

Question

Ms. Zervigon Mr. Kean, you're a lawyer and I'm not, but I understood that schedules, as you just interpreted, should be considered by the Committee for Legislative Liaison and Transitional Matters, and since the word "schedule" is included in the rule that we are now discussing with the words "calendar" and "agenda", I understood that it meant scheduling, as to times, things to be considered by the Convention or its committees.

Mr. Kean That was not my interpretation of it. As I understand the transitional matters, that's going to be material which you are going to actually take out of the Constitution and put in the statutory material. As far as schedules are concerned, they are items which you attach to the Constitution either by way of explanation or by protection for those items which are not being carried over either in the Constitution or by some legislative action.

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, I too am not a lawyer, but I can only tell you how I read the King's English. When you talk about schedules in the same sentence with calendar and agenda, you are talking about the order or priorities in which matters will be discussed and considered and disposed of before this Convention. Now, I have no quarrel with Mr. Kean insofar as what he's talking about in making reference to that somewhere later on and clarifying it in legal terminology. But when you're talking about schedules here, calendar and agenda, I want you to be very cautious. You're yielding your right as an individual delegate to determine when your matter shall be heard by this Convention. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Point of Order

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman, I'm having trouble keeping up with some of these amendments, and whenever the proposer comes up here and it is being read one time--and just now you kind of closed on it real fast--if I missed it the first time, which I assume a lot of other people are missing it, missing the first reading of it now--maybe I'm the only one, I don't think I am--but there wasn't a second reading of it, and I really didn't know exactly what the exact words were left out or added. I wish you would maybe go a little bit slower or read it a second time upon the final passage. You're just going a little bit too fast, Mr. Chairman. I wish somehow or other you could correct that.

Mr. Heery Thank you, Mr. Fontenot, and your point is well taken. I apologize. I have been trying to proceed as slowly as possible, and we have not had a practice of reading it again; but, perhaps, that is a wise idea. We will proceed accordingly.

[Previous Question ordered: Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Poynter, Page 15, line 28, immediately after "ethics" and before the word "and" delete the word "press" and insert in lieu thereof the words "news media".

Explanation

Mr. Colten I almost hesitate to discuss it after all the confusion, but it's a self-obvious change expanding the word "press" to the word "news media". That's all it is.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce. Previous Question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 51. Appointment of Committees. The selection of delegates to serve on the substantive and procedural committees shall be determined as follows: Within twenty-four hours after the adoption of these rules by the Convention, each delegate shall submit in writing to the Convention the committee or committees in order of preference to which he or she desires to be appointed.

A Committee on Committees shall select from among said delegates the delegates to serve on each committee after giving due consideration to the preference of each delegate and, based on the qualifications, experience, and residence of each delegate, so as to provide as nearly as possible a fair and balanced representation on each committee of this Convention.

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I think the rule itself is explanatory. It simply provides a means by which the Committee on Committees, which is set forth in Rule No. 52, would proceed with the designation of the membership of the substantive and procedural committees, taking into consideration the expressed interests of the delegates to serve on a particular committee as well as the qualifications, experience, and residence of each of the delegates in order to provide--both from the standpoint of experience and background, as well as from a geographical standpoint--fair and balanced representation on each committee of the Convention.

Questions

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Kean, as I read this rule, I don't see any provision...I have a copy of the committee preference sheet, and I don't have any place on this committee preference sheet to choose a procedural committee. Now, where in these rules--maybe I overlooked it or something--could you tell me where I have a choice or preference on one of these procedural committees?

Mr. Kean As I recall it, the rules provides that each member of the Convention shall--at least one--shall serve on at least one substantive committee. And I think that we would need to broaden the preference sheet in order to give you an opportunity to express a preference on the procedural committee, since the appointment of the committees would be the same for both substantive and procedural committees.

Mr. Fontenot So, as I take it, in other words, is somebody going to pass out a new preference sheet giving us a preference on the procedural committees, also?

Mr. Kean We can do that, yes sir.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Mr. Burns Mr. Keane, the second paragraph, "within twenty-four hours after the adoption of these rules by the Convention, each delegate shall submit in writing to the Convention the committee or committees in order of preference to which he or she desires to be appointed"--does that mean that you have an open period of twenty-four hours that the delegates have in which to file their preference? In other words, if one came in at the twenty-third hour, he couldn't be shut off?

Mr. Keane That is correct, sir. As I appreciate the rule, Mr. Burns, it was to expedite the turning in of preference sheets with respect to the delegate preference for committee, and to give some period of time within which they'd have an opportunity to consider the committee or committees they might wish to serve on, taking into consideration as far as the Rules Committee was concerned that there might be some changes in the committees that were listed in the recommended rules from those that actually exist in the rules as adopted. We wanted to have some period of time after the final adoption of the rules within which you could submit your preference.

Mr. Burns In other words, that wouldn't delay or retard the proceedings of this Convention?

Mr. Keane Yes, in a way it would. It would. It's entirely possible, at the rate we're going, Mr. Burns, that we'll spend about twenty-four hours after the adoption of these rules in the election of officers. And under the circumstances, I don't believe this would unnecessarily retard the work of the Convention.

Mr. Alexander Assuming that more than enough persons would attempt to serve on a particular committee--and I understand from this rule that the Committee on Committees then would reassign these persons. Now, suppose an individual is arbitrarily reassigned to a committee on which he does not want to serve and is not appointed to a committee on which he does wish to serve?

Mr. Keane The individual may have the right to appeal to the Committee on Committees for reassignment. But, obviously everyone is not going to be able to have a committee assignment of his first preference or even perhaps his second preference. It will be the responsibility of the Committee on Committees to take into consideration the preference stated by the delegates and to attempt to equitably pass out the committee assignments. But this would be a resolution that would have to be made by the Committee on Committees. And I don't see how we can handle it on any other basis.

Mr. Alexander Would it be the prerogative of the individual members of the committees to swap positions on committees--or swap committees, rather.

Mr. Keane There's nothing in the rules that would prevent that. I think you may have to clear it through the Committee on Committees just in order to avoid duplication.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Keane, since it seems that probably we will need some new sheets--since there was no provision or no space made for the procedural committees--would it also be in order that on this sheet some provision be made that that individual indicate from which Congressional District he resides so that it might help, since location is one of the things that's being considered.

Mr. Keane Yes, we would be glad to do that. We'd be glad to try to get together a new preference sheet which would contain that information as well.

Mr. Henry We've already put it together, Mr. Keane.

Mr. Keane We'll put it together and have it for you in the morning. I think we'll probably be here tomorrow.

Mr. Roy Mr. Keane, I'm in favor of this rule, generally, but it appears that you're talking about...is it that, within twenty-four hours after the adoption of these rules, we must submit in writing to the Convention what preferences we have?

Mr. Keane That's correct.

Mr. Roy Have you all taken into consideration that after the adoption of these rules we've got certain officers to elect who are not eligible to serve on these particular substantive committees and, therefore, we may not be able to do this within the twenty-four hours?

Mr. Keane At this point, there's no prohibition against any of the officers serving on either substantive or procedural committees. The only prohibition is against a member of the Executive Committee, or the Executive Committee as a whole, acting with respect to the Committee on Committees so that officers at this point, unless there's some amendment offered, would have the same right as any other delegate to serve on a substantive or procedural committee.

Mr. Roemer Mr. Keane, you yourself brought out the importance of the procedural committees. My question relates to Rule No. 51 as in conjunction with Rule No. 53--Rule No. 53 limiting our service of any one person to one substantive committee: As I understand the rule vis-a-vis procedural committees, the following rule applies: that is, each of us has the possibility of serving on zero, one, two, three, or four procedural committees. Is that correct?

Mr. Keane That's the way I understand the rule, Mr. Roemer. The only restriction in Rule No. 53 with respect to service is that each delegate, except the Convention Chairman, shall serve on at least one and only one substantive committee so that a delegate could serve on three procedural committees or, if the Committee on Committees so determines, he could serve on none. I think if there's any change to be made with respect to that, that it ought to occur in the consideration of Rule No. 53 rather than Rule No. 51.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Ms. Zervigon to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 16, beginning with line 23, delete the following after the word "Committee": "after giving due consideration to the preference of each delegate and based on" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "based primarily on the preference of each delegate and giving due consideration to".

Explanation

Ms. Zervigon It's my opinion that the primary thing to be considered in the committee assignment ought to be the preference of the delegates. I understand that we need committees balanced with skills and experience and various areas of the state represented, but I think the preferences of the delegates ought to be the primary consideration. Mr. Jenkins brought up before the Rules Committee a very valid point that we don't want committees made up only of experts in any one field or another--a Judiciary Committee made up only of lawyers, if other people are willing to serve on that committee. I can't tell you how I hesitate to come before you one more time and press my luck, but I really hope that you'll favorably consider this amendment.

[Amendment substituted, Amendment proposed, Amendment adopted, Amendment adopted in the Rule.]

Closing

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I think the amendment, the rule as amended, is self-explanatory. I move its adoption as amended.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Kean May it please the Convention, we've discussed the Committee on Committees at some length heretofore. It's designed to create a separate committee which will have the responsibility of making substantive and procedural committee assignments in an effort to give Congressional participation. It is provided that the committee would be composed of the chairman and sixteen delegates, with two delegates to be elected from each Congressional District, voting in separate caucuses. I move the adoption of the rule.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 52. Committee on Committees. The Committee on Committees shall be composed of the Chairman of the Convention, who shall be chairman of the Committee on Committees, and sixteen delegates, with two delegates to be elected from each Congressional District by the delegates voting in the Congressional District in which they resided at the time of qualification or appointment. Such voting shall be in separate caucuses.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Conino to the resolution as follows:
Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 1, immediately after the word "separate" strike out the word "caucuses" and insert in lieu thereof the word "caucuses", correctly spelled. Amendment No. 2. On page 17, between lines 1 and 2, add the following: "No member of the Committee on Committees shall be elected a chairman or a vice-chairman of a substantive or procedural committee." "No member of the Committee on Committees shall be elected a chairman or a vice-chairman of a substantive or procedural committee."

Explanation

Mr. Conino Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I was a member of the Committee, the Rules Committee, and the philosophy and the theory behind our thinking was that no particular person or group of persons should be in the position to take control of the Convention or any part of it. So, as a consequence of this, I devised this amendment which states very briefly that no member of the Committee on Committees, which will have the ultimate authority of choosing who is to be on any particular committee, can he himself or herself then be in a position to, at a later date, control the committee or control the actions of the committee so that they might choose a procedural or substantive committee. This is in keeping with the whole theory behind the Rules Committee.

Question

Mr. Kean Mr. Conino, would it be your opinion that a delegate in a Congressional caucus would have the right to decline to serve on the Committee on Committees by election of his delegates in that caucus?

Mr. Conino Would he have the right to decline to serve on the Committee on Committees? Yes.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chehardy Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I just wanted to say this about the amendment. I believe that it furthers, so Mr. Conino has pointed out, the concept of distribution of power and the assurance that there will be a limitation of power among those placed on the more important committees. And I, for one, am supporting it and certainly urge the support of all of you in the hope of helping to keep this whole process the ultra in democracy. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I rise in support of this amendment. I think this is in the spirit of the Convention. This would prevent a member, serving on the Committee on Committees, from making any type of proposal to any member, that he's going to appoint, to vote for him for chairman. I support this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Delegates to the Convention, I rise in opposition to this particular amendment. I just don't see the reality of anybody on the Committee on Committees, which body is going to be elected by separate caucuses, being able to take a sixteen-member committee and stack it so that he later can become chairman or vice-chairman of a substantive committee. That's number 1. I think we're getting to the point where some people, who may be very well qualified, are going to be penalized from serving on one of your more important, maybe most important, committees, the Committee on Committees, just because he may like to also chair a substantive committee. Now, how in the world this particular individual, if he seeks both--and certainly you can't knock him for it if he's competent and qualified--how he can stack everyone in the Committee on Committees to appoint certain people who by preference can designate which committee--substantive committee--they want, then stack it in such a way as to assure himself a chairmanship or vice-chairmanship, I'd like to know. If he can do it, I think he ought to be able to be a chairman or vice-chairman and probably just president of the whole works here.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nomack Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, I haven't asked one individual to vote for me for any position. In fact, I didn't ask anybody to vote for me before I came down here. I think that we can go far enough to get just a little bit of independence and a little bit of democracy in this. I'm assuming that when you start out with a Committee on Committees, that each delegation in their caucus will choose what, in their opinion, is one of the better men that they have in the area if we're going to classify ourselves. When you do that, you have automatically eliminated a sizable portion of the top flight men that you have in the entire Convention from taking part in the most important thing that the Convention has, and that is the chairman of the substantive committees. I think that, before we start eliminating people from holding the position of the chairmanship of the substantive committees, I think possibly we ought to say that we take those people and choose them first, by some means, and then get to the lesser offices--the lesser offices down the line being the Committee on Committees or the Executive Committee. I can foresee the possibility of a subcommittee only having two or three people that wants to take the time, wants to devote the work, that is willing to push what it takes to organize and have good substantive committee hearings, that might also be the choice of the caucus to have as their delegates to choose the membership. I'm going to vote against this, and I can just see that the bad in it, no doubt, in my opinion, outweighs the good. Yes, I'll answer a question, if that's what it's for.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'll make my remarks very brief. I'd like to lay before you, for your consideration, three considerations--three problems. Number one: from the seventh district, I'm not, I don't want to be, and I'm not going to be a member of the Executive Committee. I don't want to be, and I'm not submitting to be, a member of the Nominating Committee, so let's clear that board. Number two: I voted to expand the Executive Committee to give representation across the whole State. I think sooner or later that we are going to have to come to the realization, once we get through with all the technicalities, that we've got to write a Constitution. When we get down to that point, gentlemen, you're going to have to have qualified people to do it. Now, the area of expertise is going to start getting narrow. I think we have gone to the ultimate in having a member of the Rules Committee, did everything humanly possible to assure that the power structure of this Convention was diffused to the delegates. I think we have done that. We have got a system. We have Committees on Committees. We have had caucuses to draw these rules. I think--don't forget that--I think that was an excellent indication of what you can expect. The point that I'm making: we have, in my own humble opinion, gone to the ultimate of extremes in providing diffusion. I think you're going to make a drastic mistake, if you tell the people that you're going to elect on these two committees that you can't serve as a chairman or vice-chairman. We're going to see people bailing out of the ship wondering in which way they're going to go. And I think that you're going to exclude--I don't know who it is--but you could exclude the possibility of an excellent person, serving in a capacity, that's going to have to write this thing. So, I rise in opposition and tell you that I think that we have done the ultimate and hope that you reject this amendment. Thank you very much.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I don't believe any delegate is stronger in favor of spreading out the authority of the Convention. We have attempted to do that in the Rules Committee. But here we are talking about one of the most important committees, but with a short life. Once these committees are completed, the Committee on Committees self-destructs. That's the end of its duty. I don't think that we should impose this restriction, because it is so very important that we have some of the best men and women in the Convention on the Committee of Committees. It would, to me, be just as sensible to say, because I served on the Temporary Rules Committee, that I was not eligible to serve on any committee. It's the same logic. I urge you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I would... at the time I seconded this amendment I didn't know that I'd have the help of Mr. Chehardy. I guess it's one of the few times that maybe we'll be on the same side, because I'm not a fixer, now, in the past, we have been on different sides. So I'd like to point out this thing, this matter, to you. As has been said, this committee, of course, will be of short duration. But I can tell you, now, there is no committee, not even the Executive Committee or any other committee, that will have as much effect upon writing this Constitution as this Committee on Committees, because this committee is going to select the people who are going to serve on each committee. At the present time in these rules, we don't even know how many people will be on these committees. And a cordiality to the way I read this, it's going to be left to the Committee on Committees to decide whether they're going to have five people, ten people, twenty people, or twenty-five people on any committee. And if this Rules Committee... the Committee on Committees is going to be made up of sixteen people with a chairman, there just might be the possibility that one or two or maybe three of these people can take people on committees so that they can stack the chairmanships of these respective committees. Now, I think they might be able to do it, even in spite of the fact that we have a rule in here. They may not be a candidate for the chairmanship themselves, but at least there's not near as much incentive of working for somebody else sometimes as there is in working for yourself. And I just don't think we ought to take the possibility of having any committee stacked for the purpose of promoting any one particular individual for chairman or vice-chairman. Yes, I'd like to be chairman of a committee, but I think that my chances are a great deal better if I'm elected. If I'm elected, fine and good. If I'm not elected by the members of the committee, it's okay. But I don't want to get on the Committee on Committees so that I can select those people who will vote for me for chairmanship. That's not the way we ought to write this Constitution. And I think as a result of this, that possibly it would be better off if we did not let the Rules... that is, Committee on Committees serve as chairman of a substantive committee. I don't mind the procedural committees, but substantive committees are the ones who are going to be writing the proposals. I think that's a little bit different. I would let them serve as chairmen, but not as chairman, and rather that be the most important function. And I think we ought to limit it to the fact that they should not serve as chairmen of the substantive committees. Therefore, I support the amendment. I hope you will do so too so that we can show the public that we're going to have an unstacked, cooperative, working, independent Convention. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, delegates, while I appreciate the intent of this amendment and I think it's well taken, I think there is a degree that we can go to which just really goes beyond reason. In all our deliberations, you feel this air of suspicion about these various delegates and people. Somewhere along the line here, we're going to have to put aside our suspicions. We're going to have to have a little trust in each other. The Committee on Committees is a real important committee. It's very important. It's got to select the best people it can and place them on these various substantive committees. But if I want to be on a particular substantive committee and I have hopes, possibly, of being elected a committee chairman--which I'm not giving consideration to at this time--then this is going to drive me away from wanting to serve on the Committee on Committees. And we're going to have to have some people in here who want to work, who are willing to work, who've got the time to do a lot of this work. This is going to be a lot of work on all of us. But if we put too many restrictions on ourselves, where if I'm on a temporary committee--and I agree with Mr. Drew; I want to point out that this committee is only a temporary committee; it's going to serve just for a short period of time--well, you're in effect telling me or telling everyone else: well, your job is done. I may as well go home, 'cause I can't do any more good down here. I appreciate what the Convention is trying to do. I think that we've gone a long way towards distributing jobs and things like that, but I think we've reached a point now where we're just going too far. And I think we ought to call a halt to it right now, and I would have to oppose... I ask you to oppose this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Duval To make myself clear from the beginning, I'm in opposition to the amendment and I don't find it redundant. I incorporate the remarks of all persons who have spoken in opposition to the amendment. I'd like to make this one other point. I think that I can reasonably last my vote at any time at any place, also, that that operation has certainly not been the byword of this Convention. It's just the opposite. I don't think anybody who tries to coerce anything is going to get anywhere in the Convention. And I don't think we have any fear of the Committee on Committees even attempting to stack it so that they elect a chairman. And I'd like to point out this: when I'm on a committee, on a substantive committee, I want to vote for whom I want to vote for on this committee. I don't want other people to tell me that I can't vote for this person. I think each of us thinks that we have a reasonable amount of discretion. Therefore, we should be able to exercise this discretion, using our own intelligence and our own sense of fair play in voting for the chairman of the committees we're on. The committees will elect their own chairmen, and they should elect whomever they damn well please.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot I rise in support of this amendment. I think it's a good idea to spread our power around a little bit. I think we haven't gone too far yet. As a matter of fact, I think the other day--and getting back to what he said--he wanted to vote for anybody he wanted to, and there's no possible way you can stack the committees and everything. The other day we were all called politicians and, if you remember correctly, Pappy Triche told us that. And if you look at those sixteen people and if they're all sixteen politicians, there always is a possibility that they can stack committees for friends or for themselves. Don't tell me there's no way, because there is a way, if we're all politicians. Now, I would like to ask the proposer of this amendment if he would also like to perhaps--call it a friendly amendment--would he also include members of the Executive Committee not serving as the chairman or vice-chairman on the substantive committee.

Mr. Henry Mr. Conino, you can't answer the question because Mr. Fontenot has the floor, and that would have to be made as a point of order, Mr. Fontenot, by a separate amendment. It cannot be incorporated in this amendment. If he desires to do so, he can withdraw his amendment and introduce such an amendment at the appropriate time to that effect. But he can't amend the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I'm going to start off with my disclaimers first. I don't want to be on the Committee on Committees or on the Executive Committee or a committee chairman. I might like to be a co-chairman or sub-chairman or a secretary but, seriously, the amendment, as I understand it, would exclude sixteen people from being committee chairmen. And I think that the problem that has been raised, justifiably so, by some speakers that we might be excluding would go into committee chairmen would be largely resolved by the fact that if we pass this amendment, those people who want to be committee chairman will not make themselves candidates for the Committee on Committees. So this will mean that the Committee on Committees will be composed, then, of sixteen people plus the chairman, who not only are not going to be committee chairmen but didn't want to be committee chairmen in the first place. Apparently there are those among us that feel that this would be a desirable thing, and I think that certainly it is something that could not harm us, since we'd have a hundred and fifteen people left by--well, that should be a hundred fourteen, by excluding the chairman--left who would be potential committee chairmen. And I really find it hard to believe that out of a hundred and fourteen delegates to this Convention--all of whom, upon reading their biographies, seem to be eminently capable--that we couldn't find eight good committee chairmen.

(Questions)

Mr. Womack I want to be sure that I understand your thinking and proposal that we eliminate the Committee on Committees from holding one of the other positions--that we also eliminate the Executive Committee from that. So, that's sixteen and twenty-three is thirty-nine, and they can't hold either the chairman or vice-chairman, so we have eliminated at that seventy-eight people from those positions. I wanted to be sure my calculation was right.

Mr. Burson No, sir, that's incorrect. I'm speaking on the amendment to prevent the people who are on the Committee on Committees from serving as committee chairmen. As I understand it, that's what this amendment is about. If that were expanded to include those on the Executive Committee, I would oppose it because I would agree with you that that would be going too far.

Mr. Duval My question is somewhat related to Mr. Womack's. I merely wanted to understand your thinking. Why should the Executive Committee be able to do it if the Committee on Committees can't? Don't you think conceptually you're being inconsistent?

Mr. Burson Not at all. The Executive Committee won't have anything to do with appointing the membership of the committees who, if we adopt the subsequent rule, will elect the chairmen, whereas the Committee on Committees will be appointing members of that committee who will elect the chairman of the committee. So I think there's a great deal of difference.

Mr. Duval So, you don't think the Executive Committee's influence is such that they could have any influence on any other matter that they shouldn't be on committees?

Mr. Burson I don't object to influence as such by an individual delegate. As I understand the spirit behind this amendment, it is to the effect that let's take the committee that's going to appoint the committee members out of the running for chairman of the committees so that we'll remove any question about whether maybe John Doe, as a member of the Committee on Committees, saw to it that ten of his good friends got to be members of the committee so that they could elect him chairman. That's the limited purpose that I'm speaking for.

Further Discussion

Mr. Guarisco I also agree with Mr. Chehardy that the adoption of the amendment is the only democratic way. The first day we met on January 5, Governor Edwards stood before us and he said, "This is the greatest collection of intellect that we've ever had at a Constitutional Convention in this state." Now, three days later, we've got a hundred and sixteen nitwits. You're going to now say that there are only eight or sixteen brains in this whole operation and everybody else is not talented? I don't think so. This amendment does not prevent a member of the Committee on Committees from being a member of a substantive committee. And if he's so talented, he'll get his work across. He'll let them know what he wants done. He doesn't have to be chairman. But the possible abuse of him being a member of the Committee on Committees, and what he may be able to do insofar as whom they serve, is certainly...his ability to be chairman is subservient to an individual delegate's right to serve on a substantive committee of his choice and whatever his talents...wherever his talents may lie. So I think it's the only democratic way. The first day we came up here, I've heard people come to the stand insofar as they were sent here by God to write this Constitution. Well, He's not going to write it; we're going to write it. So, adopt the amendment.

Further Discussion

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I can remember the first day of the Convention our chairman said that even a nitwit needed some representation. I'd like to say this to you; this is something that I heard many years ago and it has really stuck with me. It says like this: self-praise is the most scandalous, but it's a poor dog who won't wag his own tail. I am just a housewife, but I'd like for this delegation to know that I am qualified to be a chairman of a committee. I'm not seeking one, but I do believe that each delegate that was elected or appointed should have the right to participate in this Convention fully. And if they are going to do it, they must have a chance to come in. If one delegate is going to have all the power, or one or two delegates is going to have all the power, then we might as well go home. I will say, at this point, that I am speaking in favor that these delegates that are on the Committee on Committees will not have the power to be a chairman of a committee. And I even go to the Executive Board Committee cause, in many experiences over many years, I am not so naive to believe—even though I am not a seasoned politician, I have been a politician for many years, and I think everybody should be—the one person would stand up and say I'm not interested in this. And I'm not going to tell you a story; but, if anybody would like for me to tell you why I believe it, come to me after the Convention and I'm going to tell you a little story about the rattlesnake and the bull, and I think you all will be convinced. Thank you very much.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Conino Fellow delegates, if you enact this amendment, you will have done as much as you possibly can in diffusing the power of this Convention. You will know, in your heart, that there's no particular party, no particular group, no individual who will be able to control this Convention. There are probably other factors that you could take into consideration, but this is your first step. We have a hundred and thirty-two good delegates in here and, if you eliminate sixteen from serving as committee chairman or vice-chairman of a procedural or substantive committee, I feel sure that you have the balance of a hundred and sixteen that you can choose on. This is a free Convention. If you have the ambition of being a chairman of a substantive or procedural committee, just refrain from serving on the Committee on Committees. This up to now is our most important committee. There will be others where more of the action is, but this is it, and I urge you to adopt this amendment.

[Amendments reread. Roll call vote ordered. Amendments adopted: 64-57. Previous question ordered in the Rules. Roll call vote ordered. Roll adopted. [Singing.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 53. Service on Committees. Each substantive and procedural committee shall be composed of at least ten delegates and no more than twenty. Each delegate except the Convention Chairman shall serve on at least one and only one substantive committee. Each committee shall elect a chairman, vice-chairman, and such other officers as the committee deems necessary.

The Chairman of the Convention, shall be ex officio a member of all substantive committees, but shall have no vote and shall not be counted for the purpose of obtaining a quorum.

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, this particular rule was designed to give the Committee on Committees some leeway in establishing the number of the delegates to serve on any particular substantive and procedural committee, rather than establishing an arbitrary figure of sixteen or seventeen, or what might be any other number you want to establish, and come out with even numbers. The purpose there was, if there were some committees which would perhaps require a larger number of delegates to serve on that committee than others; then under those circumstances, the Committee on Committees ought to have the right to establish those numbers without restriction but within certain bounds. Secondly, it was the aim of the Rules Committee that every delegate would serve on at least, but not more than, one substantive committee. Insofar as the procedural committees are concerned, it was the feeling of the Rules Committee that there should be greater flexibility on those particular committees in order to get the benefit of as many persons who might have expertise in the particular area which was the responsibility of the procedural committee. The committees would elect a chairman, vice-chairman, and such other officers with the restriction now imposed under the prior rule. The Chairman of the Convention would be ex officio a member of all substantive committees in order to provide proper liaison. As you may recall, we provided that the first vice-chairman and the three vice-chairmen would likewise be ex officio members of the procedural committees, thus giving a liaison at that layer of leadership with those particular committees. I'd be glad to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman, anyone may ask.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Brown to the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 4, immediately after the words "not more than" strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof "thirty".

Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 4, immediately before the word "each" insert the following: "The Committee on Committees shall determine the size of each substantive and procedural committee within such limitations."

Amendment No. 3. On page 17, line 6, immediately after the word "committee" and before the word "each" insert the following: "No delegate shall serve on more than two committees of any nature excluding the Committee on Committees and the Executive Committee".

Explanation

Mr. Brown Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think the amendments are self-explanatory. In amendment No. 1, we're increasing the number, that we can move to, from twenty to thirty. I agree with many of the delegates who have spoken to date saying that we can't get carried away in the number of committees that we have. If you let... we create two or three more, where do you stop? It gets out of hand. In this particular case, however, I think we've got several substantive committees where we've got a tremendous amount of work to do. Take the Finance and Taxation Committee; you take our committee—we had so much debate regarding education and the civil service. I think in instances such as that, especially when we have a lot of talented people amongst this group who can lend support, we ought to be able to have a little more flexibility. I'm not saying all our committees should be numbered thirty. I'm saying that the Committee on Committees should have the discretion to go to twenty-five, twenty-four, twenty-five. I personally feel that some of the smaller committees may only be ten or twelve members. So, I would like to give the Committee on Committees the authority to look at the people involved, see where the preferences lie, and then if we need twenty-four, twenty-five men, men or women, give them the discretion. Amendment No. 2 merely gives the authority to the Committee on Committees to determine what the size shall be. This is merely an amendment to give that authority because right now the rules do not state who shall determine that size. This merely says that the Committee on Committees will make that determination. There's nothing in the rules that says this at the present time, so I personally desire a little more explicitly what's already in the rules. In other words I think it says that you should only serve on one substantive committee. Now, Mr. Roemer raised the question, can you serve on all four procedural committees? This merely says that you can only serve on two. So I think that none of them make any drastic changes with the exception of raising from twenty to thirty. I hope you'll go along with me on these amendments.

Further Discussion

Reverend Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, I've been analyzing these amendments, and it appeared to me that they make sense. I've been looking at Rule No. 49, I think, which authorizes the committees, standing committees. I find that I'm assuming that the delegates in these committees will break up into subcommittees. If they do, for example, in Subsection No. 2, there are only four subtopics. But in Subsection No. 6, there are eleven subtopics. Now, assuming that this Committee on Revenue, Finance and Taxation would contain possibly two persons on each subcommittee, you would need at least twenty-two people. So, I'm asking the delegates to vote for this amendment. Thank you.

Deleante Lambert in the Chair

Motion

Mr. Perez I ask for a division of the question primarily to determine whether or not we decide to go from twenty to thirty members for each committee, but the more important question is to whether or not any delegate may serve on more than one substantive committee; so that you have two questions which should be divided--the size of the committee and whether or not a delegate may serve on more than one substantive committee. I ask a division of the question.

Point of Order

Mr. Lambert I ask the Clerk whether or not it can be divided.

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman,--Acting Chairman, the question can be divided as between all three amendments, if the gentleman desires, or between Amendment No. 1 and consolidated Amendment Nos. 2 and 3. Mr. Perez, how would you like the question divided, sir? All three separately?

Mr. Perez I ask for a division of the question on all three amendments.

Mr. Poynter It may be so divided, Mr. Acting Chairman.

Mr. Lambert The Chair orders that the amendment... the question be so divided. And we ask the Clerk to read Amendment No. 1.

[Amendment No. 1 rec'd.]

Mr. De Blieux I believe, Mr. Chairman, there may be a typographical error in the page of that amendment. The Secretary has been reading "7" and it should be "17," I believe, so that there'll be no error, whenever the amendments are finally printed up.

Mr. Poynter You're referring to page 17, Senator? That's my mistake. The amendment is correctly drawn. Thank you.

Motion

Mr. Brown Mr. Chairman, because of the fact there is some confusion and I understand there's another amendment up to make it more clear--I'd like to withdraw Amendment No. 3.

[Amendment 1 rec'd.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Thompson, amending the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 6, after the words "least one" delete the words "and only one".

Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 8, after "necessary"... "Not less than two delegates from each Congressional District shall be appointed to each substantive committee.

Explanation

Mr. Thompson Fellow delegates, since we've raised this committee to thirty, and since each of the eight Congressional Districts have less than one percent deviation by number, I think that the people whom we are going to have to take this back home to, to get it passed, would be better represented if they had two from each Congressional District on each of these committees. This will give you sixteen members to the committee and, of course, you still have fourteen more in which you can raise it on up to thirty. Some of these committees are going to need to be thirty; I don't think all of them will need to be thirty. But you'd at least have representation back home for each of these committees. I urge a favorable vote. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Abraham Mr. Thompson, doing what you want to do, do you realize that if you've got eight substantive committees and one hundred and thirty-two delegates, that's an average of seventeen people per committee? And if we're going to have to have at least sixteen on a committee, that automatically fixes the number of the committee--the number of people on the committee.

Mr. Thompson Not necessarily so.

Mr. Abraham If two people have to be on each committee from each Congressional District, that's sixteen on a committee. And if we've got eight substantive committees into a hundred and thirty-two, that's seventeen people.

Mr. Thompson You still have sixteen that can be from each Congressional District--two from each Congressional District. How do you think you're going to be amply represented in each Congressional District? Some of them may not have any.

Mr. Abraham I realize what you're trying to do, but the fact that we've increased the number to thirty and the fact that we have a restriction that you can only serve on one substantive committee means you cannot have any...

Mr. Thompson Two.

Mr. Abraham That amendment has not been passed yet.

Mr. Thompson Wasn't that amendment passed on two? What are you doing is we changed it from where you couldn't be on one--that you can be on two. This is part of it.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Thompson, I don't know whether I talked to you about it or not, but before we got to this particular rule--Rule No. 53--I had proposed an amendment that would have selected two people from each Congressional District to serve on the eight committees. I was informed by, I feel like good authority, that some of the congressional committees would not have enough people to serve on the eight committees if you put two on each committee from each Congressional District. And for that particular reason, I withdrew my amendment in favor of the one we just previously adopted that would expand the committees and allow two people--I mean a delegate to serve on two committees--so that we could have better representation that way because, otherwise, if you limit the delegates to one member--that is, to eight committees from the eight Congressional Districts--you would not have enough people in all the districts to serve and place two people on each committee.

Mr. Lambert What is your question, Senator De Blieux?

Mr. De Blieux I just wanted to ask him if he realized that; so, therefore, his amendment would not be practical for that particular reason.

Mr. Thompson May I change the "shall"--there seems to be so much flak about the "shall"--to "may"?

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Point of Order

Mr. Champagne I think, perhaps, there's some confusion. I don't recall having voted on any amendment which increased this thing to one--as it stands now, it's one and not more than one on each substantive committee--I don't recall having voted on anything to change that. I would suggest, if we may, just read it as it stands at the moment.

Mr. Henry Mr. Champagne, that's more in the form of a point of information. When I left the Chair, the Brown amendment had just--just hold on, Mr. Thompson, please--the Brown amendments had just been submitted.

Mr. Clerk, what portion, if any, of the Brown amendment was adopted?

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, Delegate Perez asked for a division of the question. Amendment No. 1, which increased the maximum committee size from twenty to thirty, was adopted. Amendment No. 2, which provided that the Committee on Committees shall determine the size of each substantive committee--substantive and procedural committee--was adopted, and Senator Brown withdrew Amendment No. 3, which would have provided "No delegate shall serve on more than two committees of any nature."

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Thompson]. On page 17, line 6, after the words "least one" delete the words "and only one". Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 8, after the word and punctuation "necessary," add the following: "Not less than two delegates from each Congressional District may be appointed to each substantive committee."

Explanation

Mr. Thompson What this does is it changes the "shall" to "may" and makes it permissive to have two on each substantive committee from each of the eight Congressional Districts. And it changes a further reading that you shall not serve on but one to where that you can serve on more than one.

Questions

Mr. Duval Mr. Thompson, are you aware now that the rule, as it presently stands, provides that a delegate can only be on one substantive committee? Are you aware of that sir?

Mr. Thompson This is changing this.

Mr. Duval Is your intention to allow delegates to serve on more than one substantive committee?

Mr. Thompson Yes, sir.

Mr. Duval And don't you think, then, that one delegate could be on eight substantive committees?

And don't you think that wouldn't be very workable?

Mr. Thompson You have an amendment limiting it to two that's already been adopted.

Mr. Duval I'm afraid not, sir. I thought I'd like to ask you if you realize that it hadn't been adopted.

Mr. Thompson Well, you can draw one up for that if you'd like.

Mr. Duval No, sir, I don't.

Mr. Womack Mr. Thompson, I want to clear up one thing: that the word "shall" and "may" means absolutely nothing when you say "two shall" and, then, when you say "not less than two may." You still are leaving it "shall." That's the point that I want to try to clear up.

Mr. Thompson "Shall" and "may" are two different meanings, Representative Womack.

Mr. Womack The point I'm trying to get at, though, is when you say "not less than two may be," then that's automatically "two must be"--whether you say "two shall" or "two not." But, when you say "not less than two," then you go right back to the positive approach on it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Staggs Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose the amendment by the gentleman from Colfax. The whole thrust of Rule No. 53 was that every delegate in this Convention was going to serve on a substantive committee--at least one and only one--and we left the question open as to whether a delegate could or could not additionally serve on a procedural committee, if he desired to ask for service on one additional or two additional committees concerning with procedure. The whole heart of what Mr. Thompson has proposed completely, totally changes the thrust of the rule as presented by the Rules Committee. It was the conscious feeling by the Temporary Rules Committee that one committee assignment of a substantive nature, involving committee hearings in all parts of the state, involving the writing of very important sections of the Constitution, where a delegate might become completely expert in that part of the Constitutional drafting that is our job to do, was all most of the members of the Convention could in conscience take on. What Mr. Thompson is seeking is to completely turn that language around and allow committee assignments to be made for a delegate to serve on not just one substantive committee, but at least two. Now, I don't believe this is a good amendment, and I certainly do hope that the delegates to the Convention will agree with the Temporary Rules Committee. No matter what further amendment is offered, about service also on a procedural committee, I would not feel so strongly about it. But I feel very strongly that every delegate ought to serve on just one and only one substantive committee. I urge the defeat of the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Delegates to the Convention, I can't tell you how strongly I oppose this amendment. There's one basic reason I oppose this amendment is because it was offered--or the amendment wasn't offered, but this particular rule was offered--with the idea in mind that everyone would be equal and serve on one substantive committee. There would not be any favorite few that would serve on two. So, if we accept this amendment, we have one or two...we are on the horns of one...on the dilemma that, if we have two and everybody serves on two committees, our committees are at least thirty-two delegates in size, or thirty-four delegates in size, which is a ridiculous size for many of these committees. The other point is that we have some people serving on two substantive committees and others serving on one, which is not a fair situation. I think the only fair way to have this Convention run is to have each delegate serving on one substantive committee and only one substantive committee, since these will be the parts of the Convention that are actually going to write this Constitution. Like I say, I can't tell you how strongly I feel about this because I just don't want to see part of these delegates being the favored few that end up on two substantive committees.

Mr. Henry I think we have a technical breakdown on our amendment.

If everyone else that I have on the list will pass just for a few minutes, Mr. Thompson is going to withdraw his amendments and resubmit some amendments.

Motion

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, members, I wish to move that we reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 1, by Senator Brown, was passed or adopted. That's the one increasing from twenty to thirty.

Mr. Henry Right now, we're in the process of trying to get rid of Mr. Thompson's amendments.

Mr. Stinson I understood it was withdrawn.

Mr. Henry Well, we're sort of having to go around by Laura's house because these people are not drawing these amendments right. Once we get through with these rules of procedure, ladies and gentlemen, we're not going to act like this. We're going to follow the rules. Mr. Stinson, if you will, I'll recognize you in a minute. Let me get this confusion out of the way. Then we'll attempt to take up some more, please. Now, I'm trying to be nice, and I'm trying to be patient, and I'm trying for us to get the job done; but there is no sense in the way we're operating right now. Now if you've got a set of amendments--and, Mr. Thompson, I'm not talking to you specifically, but we've done this, and I've let us set a precedent, and it's my fault--there ought to be some way where, by and large, we can get these amendments right. I realize that you folks are not familiar with this type of procedure, but when we have an amendment up here, there's more to it than just saying "O.K. I'm going to change it," because we are trying to proceed orderly. This is confusing our desk; it's confusing the Clerk; and you know it's confusing me. So, Mr. Thompson withdraws the amendment. Now, Mr. Thompson, if you would, get one of these fellows over here to help you prepare your amendment, because I think we're going to have an abundance of time to go ahead and reconsider them.

Mr. Stinson, I now...the Chair recognizes you.

Motion

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, members of the Convention, my motion is that we reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 1--that was the division, the first amendment by Senator Brown--was passed by this body. That amendment increased, permissively, from twenty to thirty. And, I think, since then, most people didn't realize what we were doing, and that, if they limited one assignment--if we got thirty on eight--that's two hundred and forty, if I figure correctly. So, I'd like to reconsider the vote by which that amendment was adopted.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stinson now moves to reconsider the vote by which the amendment to increase the size of committees--am I right, Mr. Stinson--was adopted.

Mr. Stinson Yes, sir. Members, as I said, it is an impossibility under the other rules; and also, as Mr. Munson would like to explain, financially there's an additional hardship.

We're worrying about finances. We know that we can't get by with the money that's been appropriated and, if we increase this, we've got the per diem and any other expenses that might come in connection with it. Also, one of the major things is that a thirty-member committee is too large; it's too unwieldy. You can't operate, I don't think, in that much--especially if they said if we travel over the state for hearings and such as that. I think that we should be given another opportunity to consider this. I'd like to urge that we vote it down and leave it as it is--at twenty as the maximum number.

Point of Order

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman, I don't know if I got lost somewhere in all of the discussion, but it seems like the motion at hand is the motion to reconsider; we haven't voted whether we want to reconsider or not. Mr. Stinson is talking about whether we should change twenty to thirty. I think, if I remember correctly, Robert's Rules of Order states that the motion to reconsider takes a two-thirds vote. I don't really remember.

Mr. Henry You are incorrect, Mr. Fontenot, and the motion is debatable.

Mr. Fontenot Excuse me. Are we voting to reconsider...are we discussing reconsideration of it?

Mr. Henry The motion is to reconsider the vote by which part one of the Brown amendment was adopted, Mr. Fontenot.

Mr. Fontenot I don't remember voting on whether to reconsider or not.

Mr. Henry We have not voted on it, Mr. Fontenot. We are discussing that now. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Mr. Stinson, I appreciate your interest in the finances of this Convention; however, I fail to see how this Convention or the Committee on Committees could possibly, or would possibly, place thirty members on each of the eight committees. I think the purpose of Senator Brown's amendment was to allow the Committee on Committees--in the case of a special instance on a special committee where it was deemed that twenty would not be a sufficient number to carry on its business--the committee could expand the special committee past the point of twenty. I don't think it's at all possible or probable that the Committee on Committees would deem necessary to make more than one--or, if so, more than two--committees have a membership of more than twenty.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Bollinger, I appreciate your remarks, but I never have some things that you thought would never happen do happen. And if there is an amendment, later on, saying that you can serve on any number of committees, on all eight, I'm afraid the people--you know, we give in to pressure sometime and, if everybody wants to serve on all the committees, and you can be thirty to a committee--I'm afraid it will get out of hand, financially and control, and also as to the results of this Convention. So, I'd like to urge that let's reconsider this and leave it at twenty, as was drawn up originally by the Rules Committee. I think it would be the best results if this is done. Thank you.

Mr. Champagne I have a question here. I want to see if we understand this thing the same. In other words, as it is now, there's no possibility of getting thirty on all, because it's ten to thirty. Do you foresee in this some attempt to possibly further cloud the picture by saying that you can be on more than one committee?

Mr. Stinson Yes, sir, I think it's going to be the next amendment that's going to be offered.

4th Days Proceedings—January 16, 1973

Mr. Champagne Fine.

Mr. Stinson I think that's the one that's being prepared now.

Mr. Schmitt At the present situation right now, assuming that there's one person per substantive committee, wouldn't this restrict it to being a hundred and thirty-two people on the total number of substantive committees, no matter how many you have on each one? Whether you've got ten or thirty, your total could not be any greater than a hundred and thirty-two. Is this correct?

Mr. Stinson It possibly would be worked out that way, unless there's an amendment later on, or some different interpretation. But, therefore, if what you say is correct, therefore, we don't need the thirty. It should be left at twenty as a maximum.

Mr. Schmitt Would you consider reconsidering at some later time, if this amendment is passed, the one of which you are speaking?

Mr. Stinson I still personally would be opposed to it, but if you don't reconsider it now, your right to reconsider might be taken away from you later on--parliamentary procedurally.

Mr. Schmitt Is it your opinion that the Committee on Education and Welfare could not use thirty members to serve on various subcommittees on that committee?

Mr. Stinson Well, if I were on that committee--and I think it'll be my second choice, the importance of it--I think that you should not divide into subcommittees. I think the committee as a whole, the entire group, should be present. And I don't think there's going to be overburden if you have one just on education that's tied into the other. It may be, but I think that it would be important enough that we should serve on all--no delegation of subcommittees.

Mr. Schmitt In other words, you conceive of a group of twenty people traveling around the state at the state's expense to hear the various views throughout the state?

Mr. Stinson Not necessarily. But they would not have to travel in twenties, they could reduce it. But I can envision, if you increase it to thirty, you're going to have thirty traveling around.

Mr. Schmitt If they're reducing it, wouldn't that be to a certain extent a subcommittee? Is it your contention that the twenty people, a maximum, which could possibly serve on the Committee on Education and Welfare would be traveling around the state as the committee of the whole and have the hearings across the entire State of Louisiana, and it would not be broken down into subcommittees?

Mr. Stinson I don't envision too much traveling around. I think that the mountain should be brought to Mohammed. Let people travel here if they want to appear before the committee. But, it would be the same problem and more of a problem if we had thirty instead of twenty. It would be a third again as to the expense and cost.

Mr. Schmitt You mean with reference to as an example...

Mr. Henry Gentlemen, we're just getting absolutely away from the motion to reconsider. Now, I've allowed as much latitude as I intend to allow. Confine your questions and your remarks to the motion to reconsider, please.

Mr. Schmitt Mr. Speaker, I had considered it to be confined to that area.

Mr. Henry Well, the chair seems to have found you're going a little astray, Mr. Schmitt. Do a better job, please.

Mr. Schmitt Assuming that the rules remain the same and that there's only one man per substantive committee, it wouldn't make any difference whether there were ten members on each substantive committee or up to a max of thirty.

Mr. Stinson Well in answer to that, therefore, we don't need thirty; twenty would be adequate.

Mr. Denny Mr. Stinson, don't you think that in view of Ms. Zervignon's amendment which provides that the Committee on Committees shall select, based primarily upon the preference of each delegate, would almost automatically require thirty on each committee?

Mr. Stinson No, sir, I don't think it would.

Mr. Womack Mr. Stinson, I'm going to ask you a question--and when I get through, you'll understand it--that by the time you put each member of this delegation on two committees, then at least half of the functioning committees can never get a quorum because, if they're going to meet at the same time, then you can't be two places, so you choose the one you want so you've got at least a fifty percent absenteeism at every quorum call, if they're balanced out. Now, if you have enough that choose the important committee, then the other one that they're on will never get a quorum. Don't you understand?

Mr. Stinson The answer to your question is yes.

Mr. Henry Now, gentlemen, it's alright with me on this if you want to debate the merits or demerits of the amendment itself. I think that we would be much better off to proceed to determine whether or not we're going to reconsider it or not, before getting into the merits of the amendment itself. And I would ask you to use your wise discretion in making your remarks accordingly.

The Chair recognizes Mr. Alphonse Jackson.

Further Discussion

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I rise in opposition to the motion to reconsider the vote on Senator Brown's amendment. I think that this body was in order when it considered the amendment, and I think that we considered it long. And I think that we made a wise decision. I'd simply like to point out that the amendment is not imposing a requirement that there be thirty members on each committee. I think we're simply dealing with a serious problem that we have, and that is the problem of trying to provide broad representation for some of the considerations that we have in terms of writing this Constitution. I think it's important that we have the latitude to have the kind of expertise and broad representation that's needed, so I would ask you to vote down the motion to reconsider this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, Mr. Jackson made my point, so that's all I have to say.

Further Discussion

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, you mentioned earlier that you would prefer that we not discuss the merit of the thing, when we consider reconsidering it, but since the man who made that motion discussed the demerits of what we passed before, I think I ought to be permitted to go into the merits of the one we passed before, if you don't mind. This resolution that we passed before--and I'm speaking against the motion to reconsider--this resolution we passed before simply permits up to thirty. It does not restrict the Committee on Committees in their appointment of a committee. Now there's a lot of people who sent...everybody of us sent in preference sheets. There's a lot of us that might want to be on some particular committee because we feel we particularly are qualified for that. It's going to be--I'll tell you right now--with a limitation of twenty, there's going to be a lot of delegates that are going to be disappointed because they didn't get their preferences on these committees. This simply permits thirty. Now, I know you can't, you know you can't, appoint two hundred and forty people, when you only have a hundred and seventeen that are eligible. But some of these committees are so important, and some of them are going to require such extensive hearings. For example, one of the committees is the Committee on Education and Welfare. It's divided into six categories, and each and every one of those categories are going to take extensive hearings, in my judgment, and take an awful lot of time of our committee. For example, Education--can't you envision that when that comes up that you're going to have school teachers' delegations. You're going to have educators; you're going to have all kinds of hearings that are going to take committees' time. Welfare--you're going to have extensive hearings on Welfare. It's an important subject. Consumer affairs, civil service, labor, industry. Now if you only permit twenty on this committee, this means that if you divide it evenly in those seven categories, you can only appoint about three people who have a knowledge of the subject. So you divide it into subcommittees, and the rules provide that you can divide it into subcommittees. Is the whole committee going to sit in on every one of those hearings? I don't believe that it's physically possible for you to do this unless you give up your business and your home and spend the rest of your time for a year up here. I think we ought to remove the restriction of twenty and leave the Committee on Committees to handle it. They're not going to appoint two hundred and forty people because they aren't there. They are going to use good, common sense and appoint larger members, larger quantities, on committees that require them and less on the others. Thank you very much.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, I have no further argument. I'll leave it up to the committee.

ROLL CALL

[Roll call delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Burns Let us pray:

Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the privilege of allowing us to be participants in the most momentous event that has occurred in the history of modern Louisiana. We pray as we meet here daily that we be under the guidance and direction of Thy Holy Spirit so that whatever we do will meet with Thy divine approval and with the approval of the citizens of the State of Louisiana. We pray further, Father, that Thou would give us a continuing feeling of fellowship so that, no matter how warm the debate or how hot the argument, we will always have a high regard one for the other, and never let us allow personalities to enter in our deliberations or our procedures. Finally, Father, we would ask that as we meet here that we have your richest blessings on our families. We ask all these things in the name of our Savior and Redeemer, Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

RESOLUTIONS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Henry Mr. Kean, are you going to take it up this morning?

We were in the process of consideration Rule 53 at adjournment yesterday evening. At that time, I believe, Mr. Kean had offered a motion for the adoption of the rule, which motion had received a second.

Amendments

Mr. Boynter Amendments sent up by Mr. Avant, amending the original resolution as follows:

On page 17, line 6, delete the words "only one" and in lieu thereof substitute "not more than two".

Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 6, delete the word "committee" and in lieu thereof substitute the word "committees".

Explanation

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to simply change the provision in this rule as provided for by the temporary Rules Committee so as to permit a single delegate to serve on two substantive committees instead of only one substantive committee. It does not affect the requirement that every delegate shall serve on at least one substantive committee. So, if this amendment is adopted, then every delegate will still serve on at least one substantive committee and may serve on not more than two substantive committees. Now, the reason for this amendment being offered is this--first, I want to make the usual disclaimer; I'm not a candidate for anything, not going to accept anything--out, it is my humble opinion that there are a number of people who are delegate to this convention who, because of their experience, their background, and their training, can make a very valuable contribution to the work of this convention in more than one particular field. Now, I realize that there has to be a limit on the number of committees on which one person can serve, simply because of the very mathematics of the thing. But, I'm not going to point my finger at any particular individual, but I think if you will look around you that you will probably agree that there are a number of people who are delegates to this convention who, for one reason or another, are very well qualified to be of great assistance to this convention in its work if they were permitted to serve on two of its substantive committees. I think that that is something that is going to have to address itself to the sound discretion of the Committee on Committees to determine, first, whether or not such individuals have the time and the willingness to serve on two such committees. If you have an individual who, in the sound discretion of that committee, they feel can make a contribution on two committees of a substantial nature to the ultimate success of this convention, and the individual that they have in mind is in a position to make that contribution, then I think that we should not deprive ourselves and deprive the people of this state of the opportunity to receive the benefit of that contribution. That's simply the purpose of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Avant, don't you accept the premise that every substantive committee will have an extensive workload?

Mr. Avant Yes sir.

Mr. Velazquez Do you accept the premise that we don't just have a handful of people here...

Don't you accept the premise that we have a large number of people here who are knowledgeable enough to make a valuable contribution to several committees?

Mr. Avant Yes.

Mr. Velazquez Then, don't you have enough respect for the great number of delegates--all of whom are knowledgeable enough to serve on several committees and make a valuable contribution--but you are going to sit here and set out one or two people as the chiefs, the most knowledgeable people in the State of Louisiana, and say that they and they alone are the ones that should serve on two substantive committees?

Mr. Avant To sir, I'm not going to make any such decision at all. But, I am perfectly willing to leave that decision to the sound discretion of the Committee on Committees.

Mr. Velazquez Since we are making room in our schedules for those people, from all over the State of Louisiana, who are knowledgeable and who wish to testify before committees to come before those committees, don't we have a sufficient mechanism not to have to have two people--or one person, rather--serving on two substantive committees and putting this additional workload on them so that they only do a half reputable job on each of the substantive committees?

Mr. Avant I'm sorry, Mr. Velazquez; I didn't understand that question.

Mr. Velazquez The point I'm trying to make is that if you take a good man, even an extremely good man, and you try to bend him between two committees, you have only a half effective job on each committee; and, therefore, the committee and the convention is the loser and not the gainer by his vast experience.

Mr. Avant That was a wasteful question, I take it. That was a statement.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I speak in opposition to this amendment. The idea which apparently motivated the Rules Committee was that each one of us was going to serve on a committee with which we would work and work during the next six months in the attempt to come up with an ideal draft proposal for a new constitution when we meet again in July. Now, all of us here at this convention have other duties: to our families, to our businesses, to our professions. It's going to be asking a great deal of anyone to serve as he should on one substantive committee. The ideal will be to realize something with the problems of the particular area of the committee that we're serving on. Anyone who has done legal writing—and there are many here—know that it is harder to reduce a problem than it is to write a great deal about it. It's a lot easier to write a long brief and ramble all over the lot than it is to boil the point down to something succinct, which is what we're aiming to do here. It's also a lot easier to write one brief, if you have the leisure or the other people in your law firm give you the time to really wear out a point, than it is to try to write three briefs on three different legal questions at the same time. I think even the most exceptional person at this convention would find that he is spreading himself too thin if he tries to tackle, at one and the same time, for instance, the tremendous volume of material in the constitution on local and parochial government and the tremendous volume of material under the judiciary section. I don't believe it's humanly possible to do a good job on both. Mr. Womack raised the problem of a quorum, yesterday. If two committees were meeting on the same day, you would go to one committee meeting and you would not go to another one. You can't serve two masters effectively. If the Chairman assigns you work on one committee, he will expect you to have that work completed by the next time that committee meets. He will not expect you to be absent, meeting with another committee to the widespread expertise of this convention. I agree there are people here that can make contributions to more than one committee. But, I submit that the way for them to make that contribution is not to be a member of two committees, but simply to submit those proposals that they have to a committee other than the one in which they made a mass of delegate proposal and by means of testimony before the other committees in which they have an interest. Also, I can envision someone who might have the leisure to do it serving on two committees at one and the same time working, let us say, to aggrandize the power of the Executive Branch of government on the Executive Committee and to diminish the power of the Legislative Branch on the Legislative Committee, if he's serving on both committees at the same time. I think, in other words, that we may be giving an individual wider latitude than we would want to in writing the total document of the constitution. Finally, I would make the point that the successful constitutional conventions in recent history as far as I can see in reviewing those rules that we were given by G.S.R.I., has, in the main, permitted delegates to serve on one substantive committee. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Alario Mr. Burson, yesterday the delegates passed an amendment to Rule No. 53 which says that "committees shall not contain more than thirty members," so that don't you think, mathematically, that we might just put the Committee on Committees in a bind if, for instance, we have enough delegates who are interested in three committees, which would make up to thirty, and that's ninety of them used up right there to be... which would leave five committees left and only forty-two delegates to split up, you see? The problem here might be that we would put the Committee on Committees in such a bind as to not be able to place people on the committee that they are particularly interested in or in which their interests might lie in.

Mr. Burson Mr. Alario, as I understood the gravamen of Senator Brown's argument when he presented that amendment, it was to the effect that he was not suggesting that all the committees should have thirty members, that the minimum of ten might well apply to most committees, but that there might be a few committees that would require a larger number, and he wanted to leave a wider latitude.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'm going to have to start off my talk, here, with an apology that I'll probably repeat some of the arguments that I made yesterday. But, if delegates would quit bringing up the same thing day after day, I would not have to repeat my remarks.

The first thing I have to say about this particular proposal is in general when the Rules Committee met, they envisioned the idea of one hundred and thirty-one members of this convention, each serving on one committee. We left it up to the Committee on Committees to decide which committees would be more important and which ones would have more members. But, we did not envision at any time that there would be more than one hundred and thirty-one positions on the total of eight committees. If we accept this amendment proposed by Mr. Avant, as I said yesterday, we're on the horns of a dilemma. On the one horn, if we want to have everyone serve on two committees, then we have a definite problem because we're going to have to increase the size of our committees to thirty-two or thirty-three members each. This is entirely unworkable. So, therefore, on the other horn of the dilemma is that we have some people—some favored few—some people who are in with the powers that be on the Committee on Committees that are going to be serving on two committees and some other people that are not in with the powers on the Committee on Committees will be just serving on one committee. Now, to me, to me, to me, this might be an equitable thing to do, but to me, it is entirely inequitable. We came here all equal as delegates. The appointed delegates and the elected delegates all came here equally. I think that we should go into these committees equally. I think we should each serve on one. This would bring the size of the committees down to a reasonable number—say, at the most, probably twenty-three or twenty-four in the largest committee and probably twelve or thirteen or fourteen in the smallest committee. But, this is up to the Committee on Committees to decide which ones and how many people are on each committee. I don't think we're going to put them in any bind whatsoever. I don't think there's any chance they can be put in a bind. If they want to be... if they want thirty members on one committee, they're just going to have to cut down the other ones a heck of a lot. But, I think this is up to them to decide. But, the point I want to make very clear is: I don't want any delegate in here shortchanged. I don't want any delegate shortchanged in representing his district or his area of the state. I think everyone ought to have a right to be on as many committees as everyone else. Now, this is substantive committees. Now, we come up to another problem. If everyone is allowed, or if some people are allowed, to serve on two substantive committees, as been proposed, then we run into another problem because we have set no limit on the amount of procedural committees that a delegate may serve on. So, conceptually it's possible for one delegate to serve on two substantive committees, if this amendment proposed is passed, plus four procedural committees, plus, possibly be on the Executive Committee and the Committee on Committees and could have possibly been a member of the Temporary Rules Committee. So, this is quite a burden to put on someone. Of course, I don't envision this ever happening, but the point I want to make very, very clear is I want everyone to be equal going into these committees and everyone have equal representation on these committees. That's all I have to say.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I, too, don't want to get up here and be redundant, but I feel compelled to speak on this particular issue because, ladies and gentlemen, in my humble opinion this is the most crucial issue that I have voted on in this very convention. I served on the Rules Committee; I went with the concept of expanding. I think that's good. You didn't change the concept of what we were trying to do. What we are talking about in this particular provision, though, is whether you're going to allow for a diffusion or the possibility of a stacking situation in this convention. You can mathematically do it any way you want to add it. The end result is that if you do this, you have theoretically created a situation which allows for a stacking problem. I submit to you that if you vote that way, I find that you will be hard pressed to say that your previous votes were consistent when you voted on the concept of diffusion and expanding of these various committees. I was against the thirty rule--expand to thirty--because I knew what was right behind it, and just exactly what was going to occur. The writing is on the wall. I'd like to make this one other point: the point is made that we want to have a situation where, if you have someone that is expertise in general areas that we could appeal to be useful in two committees. Well, nobody is concluding that. These rules specifically state that you can come and testify and afford whatever expertise advice you want to the committee. I'm not talking about that, and let's divide that issue. What we are talking about is the ability to vote, and that's where all the action is. When you put two people--conceivably two people--on a committee, you've created that additional vote, and that's where you run into problems. I think that we have gone to a great length to divide the division of powers amongst these eight committees. I think when you equitably put one person on each committee, you have done that. You have equitably distributed the power; you've created a Merit Award. And if you want to, for lack of a better term, a one vote concept; each delegate has one vote. So, in closing, I can't stress this enough; I haven't felt more strongly than this one issue. If you vote for this amendment, you might as well pitch out all of the other amendments because you've completely destroyed the thrust of what we are talking about. I've voted the way I've voted to exist, which heretofore we have tried to prevent, is certain people--and I'm including everybody in that category, and I don't mean...that's not directed at anyone--but you have created a situation where certain select people can be on a committee that maybe you're not, and there's where your vote is going to come up. Thank you very much.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Roemer Well, I speak in total opposition to the amendment and its concept. I found in the last few days that many times I've bowed to the wisdom of the Rules Committee and I'm in the same position this morning. I think I had three things in my mind when they limited us to one substantive committee. Those three things are: the fact that they felt a deep need to divide the responsibility for the creation of this document equally among us all. Secondly, I think that they were trying to reduce the chance of alliances that spill out of one committee and trap into a trap. If we allow this multi-committee concept to pass. Thirdly, I think they tried, and with good reason, to keep an eye on the fact that many of us overload ourselves by our own self-importance. There are some of us I find here who feel that we know as much as any body in the state, not just with the affairs of one committee, but with the affairs of several. I'm not in that position. I find myself like, perhaps, some of you, who know little about anything in regard to these committees. But, for my protection as well as for those who seem to know everything, I think we should limit our endeavors to one, and only one substantive committee. I might say that I have an amendment that will follow in a few minutes which puts the same limitations on procedural committees that I speak now in favor of on substantive committees. My final comment would be that those who used the thirty numbers game per committee are totally in error. There is no requirement that we have thirty men and women per committee; we have that right. There is no requirement. There's no argument that can be based on numbers in favor of this amendment. I hope we vote it down.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I will take just a very short period of your time because I think there has been adequate argument presented to you to vote this amendment down. But, if I did not feel so strongly in opposition, I wouldn't be taking up your time today. I just want to bring up one thing. The general consensus of this entire convention from the first day through the Temporary Rules Committee, and through proceedings up until this morning, have been that we wanted authority spread out and diversified. Frankly, up to this point, we have done an excellent job of carrying that out. If you vote for this amendment, you will, in fact, do away with all of the good things you have done up until this time. I strongly urge you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would like to suggest to Mr. Drew that if he would like to vote for this amendment and let me propose one which I think is somewhat of a compromise between what he has and what, in the rule that we presently have of not making any changes at all. I can see, if you are going to have some of the committees that are going to have membership in excess of, I would say, fifteen, you are necessarily going to have to have some of the committees which would have less than that number if you use all of the delegates on the substantive committees because, if you consider, that sixteen delegates on each committee would give you a total of a hundred and twenty-eight members on the substantive committees. When you vary more than that, you're going to use more than one substantive committee. I don't believe on more than one committee unless you have some committees with less than that number. Since yesterday we upped the number that could be a member of a substantive committee to thirty--we may not even have one committee that has thirty on it--that necessarily means you're going to have to have some committees with less. So, my proposal is that no person serve...in fact the business to let you know how it reads, I'd like for you to follow along with me and see if you don't like this a little bit better. That is, if you'll turn to page 17 and look at line 6, strike out the words "least one" and insert in lieu thereof--and also strike out the words "any number of" and insert in lieu thereof the following language: "substantive committee, but not more than two committees of any kind," which means that each individual delegate would serve on at least one substantive committee. He may serve on as many as two, but if he serves on two substantive committees, he will not serve on any other substantive committee. If he serves on a substantive committee, he can only serve on one procedural committee. In other words, it limits the delegates to at least two committees. I tell you this, if you get more than two committees, that you're servinn on, you're going to find yourself in difficulty in the handling of this convention. Now, as you well know, all the chairmen will have to serve on the Coordinating Committee. I don't think a chairman should serve on any other committee other than the committee in which he's chairman of and the Coordinating Committee. He's going to have enough to do with that alone without trying to serve on any other committee. Do believe this would be a proper compromise between what Mr. Avant has suggested and what has been argued against his amendment. So, I'd like to prevail upon Mr. Avant, if he would, to accept my amendment in lieu of the one which he has proposed.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman, and members of the committee, I'm sorry I've been absent. I've had a terrible case of the flu and I'm delighted I can be back with you now. I rise to talk against this amendment. I'll try to be as brief as I can. This Constitutional Convention is supposed to be completely devoid of politics. The governor in his talk the first day pointed that out. Now, sometimes I speak pretty rough and right to the point, but it's nothing personal--anything I say--because I speak for or against bills and amendments, and things like that, and not individuals. This amendment is politics; I term it a voting power amendment. Now, I don't care how smart any delegate is here, if he is on two substantive committees, he is not going to render near as good service to the people of Louisiana as if he's on one committee. These committees can meet various places. For instance he could be on two committees; one would be meeting in Shreveport at the same time the other one he's on is meeting in New Orleans. Now, I very much oppose this. I believe that under the theory of this amendment that I would probably be qualified as well as most people, to serve on the Judiciary Committee--for one I'd be practicing law, civil and criminal, for forty years. I'd probably be as well qualified as most people who serve on the committee in regard to the legislature. I served twenty-four years in the House. I'd be as qualified on the Executive because I've learned that from the other, too. Now, I would not be as effective in helping the people. Now, I learned this long ago. Before I came to the House in 1940, I was fortunate in being kin to the late Pike Hall who had served in the Senate and to Cecil Morgan--and I learned a lot. I was one of the few men that stated I wanted to serve on one committee and that was Judiciary A. I did serve on it for twenty-four years. They did; but, because legislatures are different from the convention, I'm allowed to serve on others. But, I found that by being on one main committee, Judiciary, I attended more committee meetings of other House committees and Senate committees than anybody in the House of Representatives, to my knowledge. Now, here, this number eight committee--substantive committees--happens to be exactly the one I had succeeded--in meetings up in Shreveport. If you have those eight and you want to speak for others, you should do it. You could speak before...if you're on one committee--you're knowledgeable and interested--you could go speak before seven different ones; be very effective helping the people. You'd be devoid of politics and you wouldn't have that two votes. Now, as to the suggestion by Senator De Bieux's amendment, I'm not going to be in favor of amending this amendment. I say, let's stop this creeping politics that's trying to slither in the door. Now, I happened to be the one that named that business "snake bills" in the legislature--Mr. Ford Stinson kids me a lot--but here is creeping politics, like the snake; kill him before he gets on the front porch. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne I would have remained seated if I was really as convinced as I think I am that we don't intend to compromise this measure in the least. We intend to defeat it overwhelmingly. My reason for making that statement is: as the rule is written and as it has been written by the Committee on Committees and has been amended to thirty, there is no problem whatsoever to the Committee on Committees to do an excellent job. There was at one time a movement to do away with this Committee on Committees. They failed in that, and now they propose to you to water down those powers so that again the Committee on Committees--your committee--would amount to nothing. I see here that this is not a question on whether he's out on first or out on third; this is a question of the whole ball game. I see it, if you don't defeat this amendment and these compromises, that you will have dealt indeed a mortal blow to this convention. As suggested by the man who proposed this change, he asks...he said something about looking around and I looked around and I have not found...I have indeed looked around; I have seen very, very much talent. I am greatly impressed with the talent that is present; but I have not seen anyone when they walked in the room cause the lights to blink, or anybody to stoop and scrape because they walked in. I want to tell you now that I am reminded simply in plain language of a little story I heard many years ago--and this man was not a very well educated man, but a good man--and he said, "you know you're a nice looking bird." He says--you have some fine new feathers, but always remember and never forget, you're not the only chicken in the coop."

Further Discussion

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman, Delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I have heard many discussions during this convention about defusing powers. A previous speaker stated, that this, in effect... this amendment, rather, would restrict power into the hands of a few. I feel just the opposite. For example, as I stated yesterday if the Committee on Committees is going to be restricted, if we're going to defeat this amendment, and take away from that committee the right to be inflexible enough to vary the numbers on the committees because as we look at the committees created in Rule No. 49, I think, we find that the subtopics vary greatly; to the extent that some of the committees, I think, could work very well with eight or ten members; whereas, others would need twenty or twenty-five. Now, I say to you that there are men in this convention who do possess some unusual expertise. Let me give you this example--and I'm not saying this because this man is from the City of New Orleans--but I know a man by the name of Moise Denery, who has had considerable experience in developing material of this sort. He has worked on the Charter of the City of New Orleans. I know that there are others, but they're not running out of our ears here. It means that a man like that could advise more than one committee. It means that he could serve on two of these committees, and I'm sure there are others. Primarily, the delegates here run from one end of the spectrum to the other. There are some of us here who have ideas, who are going to argue on principles. But, there are others who possess the expertise who are technicians. Now, when I say technicians, I mean those persons who have had experience along the Rules lines. I call upon you, and beg of you to vote this amendment and not to revert the Committee on Committees and put them in this kind of a legal straightjacket. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Guarisco Fellow delegate, I likewise rise in opposition to the amendment. This proposal reminds me of the George Orwell book on totalitarianism I think called Animal Farm and to paraphrase that particular book there was a section that said, "all delegates are equal, but some delegates are more equal than others." I think if we take that position, then we're going to emasculate the intent of the Rules Committee, if the intent of this convention. If you can sit here and say that a person who wants to contribute, and who has talent, and able to contribute is going to take a little boy attitude and refuse to make his contribution because "he can't vote" then he shouldn't be here. So, I likewise ask that you vote against the amendment.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this morning I seem to be more confused than I ever was about the convention. From the beginning I thought this was supposed to be delegates representing people. Now, I see this morning that you're supposed to be qualified. I think the only thing the act says is that you would live in a certain area, and run from the area, and let your people decide whether you were qualified to be a delegate. I don't think and I'm going to accept--Reverend Avery Alexander mentioned one person, I don't think anybody should be singled out as their expertise. I think everybody here has some expertise and I'm not downing anybody, am against the amendment because I think that everybody should have a fair share of being on a committee. When I ran I said to the people that I want to be your spokesman. You cannot speak for people unless you know what they want. I think one of the things that we're getting confused, when we become a representative of the people, we have to die to our own self-interest and become representatives of the people. This is something I'm seeing hard to believe. I heard Mr. Jenkins mention a little story--and I'm not going to try to tell it, because I think she's the only one--but that made me think more and more about when people are trying to get what they want, it's all nice and glory, but when they get it, I'm sorry, we made it. So, I am going against this amendment. I am a delegate. I want my fair share. I'm not going to stop for anything less.

Motion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates--looks like I messed up things here--I think we've heard enough on this particular question. I served on this committee...that Rules Committee. We discussed this pro and con for several days. I was in the legislature, too, where we had no more than twenty people on a committee. I think if you serve on more than one committee you can't do it efficiently. I feel like that we've all heard about as much as we need to. I think they've made up their mind and we just keep going over and over the same thing. So, I'd like to now, Mr. Chairman, to move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, comment was made by one of the speakers that this amendment, if it's adopted, would reduce the Committee on Committees to zero. I can't follow that logic. It certainly does not. How that statement was made about the powers that be. Well, you are the powers that be. You are going to elect this Committee on Committees. You are going to have to approve the final product of any substantive committee. You are the powers that be. The final product of this convention is going to be approved by you; and then, the people, hopefully. This is not any kind of a power play. It's a very simple, little proposition. I think Mr. Jack made my point better than I could make it. It's simply this: that if in the wisdom of this Committee on Committees that you are to elect, with two people from each congressional district, there is an individual or individuals that that committee feels could make a contribution to our work by serving on two committees, they have the right to ask him to do so. He has the right to do so, if he is in agreement with the committee's idea. Now, they don't have to do it; they may not do it. But, far from being something that is going to strip the Committee on Committees down to zero, it is just the opposite. I think there are many, many areas in this constitution that are highly technical, that ninety percent of the lawyers in this state don't have any idea what these provisions in this present constitution that we have, all the ramifications of them. I say that, if we put this Committee on Committees in a straightjacket where they don't have any discretion, that we're going to make a mistake. I close by saying that this is not a power play, and I'm not running for nothing, and won't accept nothing. I leave it to the wisdom of this body.

[Amendments rejected: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Senator De Bliux sends up amendments as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 11 after the word "vote" and before the word "and" insert the word "therein".

Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 12 after the word "quorum" and before the period, insert the word "thereof".

Explanation

Mr. De Bliux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is just one of those very technical technical amendments, for clarification, so to be sure that we're only talking about the chairman insofar as his attendance for the committee meeting, and not otherwise--that he still has a vote otherwise.

[Amendment reread. Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Roemer to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 6, delete the period "." and insert in lieu thereof the following: "and may serve on no more than one procedural committee".

Explanation

Mr. Roemer Yes, Mr. Chairman. My brief amendment is designed to put the same limitations on procedural committees that we just ratified as to substantive committees: that is, that no one delegate may serve on more than one procedural committee. Also notice that it is so worded that there is no requirement, in my amendment to the Committee on Committees, to place each delegate on a procedural committee. There is a requirement, of course, in Rule No. 53 that we all are placed on at least one substantive committee. I make the point that I have no such requirement in my amendment as to procedural committees. The reason I don't have the requirement is for two. One, the procedural committees, by the nature of their activities, I think, can function, perhaps better, without a large number of people. With only four procedural committees, if we were each required to have a procedural committee assignment, four divided into a hundred and thirty--John, your arithmetic might be better than mine--but that is in excess of thirty members per committee. I think that's too large. The second reason that I don't require that we each serve on one procedural committee is that some of us do not wish to serve on a procedural committee. That is my amendment, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous question twice. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Burrow amending the original resolution as follows:

On page 17, between lines 8 and 9, insert the following:--would be designated as another paragraph-- "The Chairman of the convention shall designate the date and the place of the original meeting of each committee, at which committee officers are to be elected and each committee member is to be notified in person or by certified mail of such designation."

Explanation

Mr. Burson First of all, may I ask the Clerk to add the word "meeting" after "at which committee"--"meeting"?

Mr. Poynter Fine, Mr. Burson.

Mr. Burson The purpose of this amendment is, really, just for housekeeping. I noted, in looking over the rules, apparently everyone is in agreement that the committees should elect their own chairmen. That being the case, somebody's got to call the first meeting at which the officers are to be elected; so that's the only reason for this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Conroy]. In the same place, page 17, line 8, after the word "necessary," it would add the following: "No delegate serving on the Executive Committee shall serve as Chairman or Vice-Chairman of any substantive committee."

Explanation

Mr. Conroy Fellow delegates, our efforts to date have been to assure that control of this convention be effectively diffused and left with no group. An essential part of this diffusion is to have the Executive Committee and the Coordinating Committee as two separate committees. This amendment is to ensure that these two important committees of this convention--the Executive Committee and the Coordinating Committee--be retained as separate committees. If it was not apparent before, it was certainly apparent from yesterday's discussion that there will be no permanent permanent committee--the Executive Committee, the Coordinating Committee. Under the proposed rules, the Coordinating Committee is comprised of the chairman of the substantive committees, and the Coordinating Committee is the body which acts as the traffic cop on which committee studies what matter. There were a number of delegates here who were vitally concerned with which substantive committee studies which matter. The importance of the functions must be obvious from the debates yesterday when these questions were discussed at some length. When the Executive Committee was discussed earlier in this convention, it was described as purely an administrative or house-keeping committee; but, if you permit the members of the Executive Committee to serve as chairmen of a substantive committee and thereby serve as a Coordinating Committee, you will have fused into one the Coordinating Committee and the Executive Committee, and you will have placed real control of this convention--and, more importantly, real control of the product of this convention, of the substance of the constitution--in one small group. I think it vitally important that this fusion of the two entities not be permitted, and that's the purpose of this amendment. There are a hundred and thirty-two delegates to this convention; there are twenty-three on the Executive Committee, sixteen on the Committee on Committees. That's thirty-nine. That leaves ninety-three qualified delegates from whom we can pick sixteen to serve as chairmen of the substantive committees and vice-chairmen of the substantive committees.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Would you say that your amendment is basically an attempt to continue the balance that the Rules Committee attempted to write into the rules at their initial setting?

Mr. Conroy Yes.

Mr. Velazquez And, do you feel that, by your amendment, you are preventing the Executive Committee and the Coordinating Committee from being identical?

Mr. Conroy Yes.

Mr. Velazquez Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Brown Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment offered by Mr. Conroy. I think, as Mrs. Warren said when she got up here yesterday, we have an awful lot of talent amongst the delegates to this convention. As Mr. Conroy just mentioned, we have some ninety-three delegates to choose from to be chairmen and vice-chairmen of these very important committees. Since we only have eight substantive committees, allowing a chairman of a committee of a substantive nature to serve on the Executive Committee, I would agree wholeheartedly with Mr. Conroy it would concentrate way too much power. I think this is an excellent opportunity for us to diffuse and show real independence, and I wholeheartedly support the amendment of Mr. Conroy to eliminate a member from being on the Executive Committee and also being a chairman or a vice-chairman of this convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm appalled at some of the actions that we continue to do here. I think in that we say, "Let us diffuse the power." I don't know what power we're talking about. Since I've been at this convention, I haven't seen a more independent-thinking body assembled anywhere, and I'm proud to be a part of that body. That's the way it should be. We're here to make up our own minds and then do what we think is right. But, every time the committee comes up, somebody tries to make a bonehead out of politics. Every time there's an argument or something, that's exactly what they say: It's politics; it's power. I think if we keep passing these type of restrictions--where you tie yourself down and say that a man can't serve on the Executive Committee, so he can't be chairman of this one or that one; if he serves on the Committee on Committees, he can't be chairman or vice-chairman--pretty soon, we're going to eliminate it down to where there are only five or six people in this whole convention hall that'll be able to serve as chairman on anything. I wonder what the next action will be to tie it down. You still have the power in the hands of the committees themselves to elect a chairman and vice-chairman. I don't see where your problem is going to come. I think there are many, many good, qualified people--or a hundred and thirty-two of them that I can think of--who could serve as chairman or vice-chairman of these committees. I don't think you ought to keep tying yourself down, as is being proposed here. Therefore, I support the amendment offered by my good friend from Metairie.

Further Discussion

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as a member of the Rules Committee and speaking in the spirit in which the Rules Committee worked, I rise in support of this amendment. The Rules Committee tried to effectively diffuse the responsibility. I agree with Mr. Alario: That's this bit about power. Power to the people, power this, power that. I don't think that's the intent. We're trying to diffuse the responsibility. We have a hundred and thirty-two capable people. Let's spread out that responsibility. Let's give each delegate a chance to perform with a degree of responsibility and not overload any one delegate. Based on that principle, and if you think back on your vote, if you voted against a person serving on two substantive committees, then you're in that philosophy of spreading out the responsibility--giving each delegate an adequate charge to perform. Based on this reasoning, I ask you to vote for this amendment. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Cannon Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I speak in opposition to this amendment, and I'd just like to point out--I'm not going to get up here and talk too many times--but I'd just like to say that, when you do a little simple mathematics, your odds of having your Executive Committee and your Coordinating Committee the same is one out of two-fifty-six. That's having total similarity. The odds are only one out of one-twenty-eight that you're going to have half similarity. I think who I am speaking for is the substantive committees that are not yet formed. Give them the leeway, give them the right to choose whoever they want to as chairman or vice-chairman. That's their business. That's where the independence and the real work of this convention is going to come from. I think it's the responsibility of this body to give to these substantive committees the right and the power to choose their own chairman and vice-chairmen with no strings. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson My mother's told me many times in my life that too much of any good thing is enough, and I think we've reached that point with this amendment. I have supported every measure that would diffuse the power of the convention up until this point, but I think at this point that we have sufficient safeguards built-in that anybody who could take over or control this convention at this point would be a political genius of a magnitude. We have just set about passing a rule--or are setting about passing a rule--where the committees will elect their own chairman. We have prohibited a member of the Committee on Committees from serving as a chairman, and the rationale of that amendment--and I supported it--was we didn't want a member of the Committee on Committees to put his brothers-in-law or his close friends on the committee so they could elect him chairman. But, the members of the Executive Committee will have nothing whatsoever to say about who will serve on the various committees. Therefore, there is no opportunity--and not the wildest chance that they could stack a committee to see to it that that committee would elect a member of the Executive Committee chairman. Let's remember we're here to write a constitution like the U. S. Constitution, and the reason why the U. S. Constitution was necessary was because the Articles of Confederation, which it supplanted, had diffused power so much that nobody could make a decision. Let's not make that same mistake.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment, and I'm not going to talk about the power issue. I think we have diffused the power enough. The only point that I really consider, in this particular instance, is I am afraid that, if a member is on the Executive Committee, he can also be a member of a substantive committee; he can be a member of a procedural committee; and, if he is elected a chairman of one of these, then he is automatically a member of the Coordinating Committee. Now, I'm sure you realize that being a chairman of a substantive committee is probably going to be the most...the hardest job at this convention--keeping up. It's going to be the full-time job, I feel, and I feel like if a member is on the Executive Committee--and then on two other committees and on the Coordinating Committee--I feel like a chairman will not have the opportunity to do his best at being a chairman. That's why I feel like there's too much work, so I feel like we should keep a member from the Executive Committee from being a chairman because he will not be able to devote his full time to being chairman of his committee. This is why I rise in support of the amendment. At this time, I would like to call the previous question.

Closing

Mr. Conroy Very briefly, in reply to Mr. Alario, I simply say that this is designed to ensure the independence which he says he has found in the convention so far. In reply to Mr. Cannon, I would like to remind him that two members of the Coordinating Committee are already members of the Executive Committee; that is, the Chairman of this convention and the Vice-chairman of this convention are already members of the Coordinating Committee. You don't need very many more to be able to control that committee. In reply to Mr. Burson, I frankly do not follow his logic. This is the first time we get to the actual substance of the constitution and the possible control of it through the substantive committees and Coordinating Committee. I think that this is vitally important to the independence of this convention to adopt this amendment, and I urge its adoption, and I request a roll call vote.

[Roll call vote ordered. Amendment reread. Amendment adopted: 55-49.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed Mr. De Bliex to the resolution as follows:
The Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 6, after the words "I strike out" strike out the words "and substitute one substantive committee," and substitute in lieu thereof the following: "substantive committee but not more than two committees of any kind."

Explanation

Mr. De Bliex Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, in explanation of my amendment, I want to give the Committee on Committees a little bit more authority. It seems as if we've taken away quite a bit of their authority insofar as their ability to name people to committees, etc., etc., and, possible, the committees themselves in deciding who's going to be chairman and vice-chairman. Yesterday, we passed an amendment that allows our committees to be up to as many as thirty people. I have a feeling that there may be three or four--or, maybe, as many as ten--delegates that might have to be assigned to more than one committee in order to make up the necessary numbers on the respective committees. If you don't do this, you will not be able to reach anything like thirty members of any committee; and, yet, that amendment was approved yesterday. Now, I don't want to spread it out to where everybody is serving on a lot of committees, and I want to be sure that nobody serves on more than two committees of any kind. There are some of the committees which you will not need very many members, of I know; but, so that the Committee on Committees can properly organize this convention into the proper committees it must have to perform the duties and responsibilities that we have been elected and appointed to do, I'm just asking for this leeway--that the Committee on Committees will be allowed to appoint some people on more than one substantive committee--but, in no case will it be more than two committees serve on more than two committees. I think that that's in line with what we have previously adopted, and I just think that you're going to have some difficulty that might cause us to have to come back and suspend some of our rule in order to get the proper working committees, if we don't do that; and it's going to be mighty late whenever we adjourn here and find out that we can't do that. Now, they don't have to, but this just give them the leeway to do so if they see fit to do it. So, I just ask you to concur in this amendment so that we won't find ourselves stymied and not be able to operate.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Questions

Mr. Juneau Senator De Blieux, we just had about an hour and a half of debate. Aren't we talking about the same thing? In essence, what you're saying—you want to come back and say we can have two substantive committees. That's possible under your amendment; isn't that correct?

Mr. De Blieux This is a little bit different in, before, that you could serve on two substantive committees; you could serve on as many as procedural committees as you could get appointed to. This particular, no member, can serve on more than two committees of any kind.

Mr. Juneau Can you serve on two substantive committees according to your amendment? That's my question. Yes or no?

Mr. De Blieux You could; yes. I think it's going to be necessary that a few of the delegates do serve on more than one substantive committee, or else you will not be able to properly organize the convention. That's my point.

Mr. Velazquez With all due respect, Senator, I'm beginning to feel like I'm repeating myself again. Don't you feel that you've already covered the point that one man can't serve two masters? Even the most original of us and the most talented of us can only do a certain amount of work. Since the substantive committees are where the greatest proportion of the work... Since the substantive committees are where the great work is going to be done, don't you think it's unfair to force to have a person overwork himself on two committees and, therefore, not do an effective job on either one?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Velazquez, I agree with you in that principle. I certainly don't want to see any delegate in this convention appointed to more committees than he can possibly serve on and do the job. That's why I had the limitation that he could serve on only two committees of any kind. It wouldn't make any difference whether it's a procedural committee or whether it was a substantive committee—that he could not serve on more than two committees. But, so that the Committee on Committees could properly organize the committees, that they would be asked to make appoint a very few delegates. They don't have to, but if they're organizing these committees and getting the proper number of the committees, the number on each committee—they decide that they may have to appoint five or ten delegates on more than one committee, they would be able to do so. Under our present rules, as they are written now, they can't do that. As a result of that, you might find some of these committees being a whole lot smaller than what you want them to be, with a lot less representation on them from the areas which we are supposed to represent, if we're going to get representation from all over the state on the committees.

Mr. Velazquez Senator, I think that rules the representation in all the committees as they're already set up. I say, I wish I could go along with you on this, but I feel I'm going to have to go against it. Thank you anyway, though, for your explanation.

Mr. De Blieux Well, it's just something I think the Committee on Committees is going to have a problem whenever they start trying to fix it up; that's just pointed out to you for what it might be worth.

Mr. Dennery Senator De Blieux, are all of the members of this convention likely to be members of the Committee of the Whole?

Mr. De Blieux That could be true, but that's not where the proposals are going to be made up in the Committee of the Whole; they are going to be made up before we get to that point.

Mr. Dennery My question is asked because you say that if you can serve on... you have to serve on at least one substantive committee, but you can't serve on more than two committees of any kind. Therefore, if a man has served on the Rules Committee or if he is elected to the Committee on Committees, or if he is elected to the Executive Committee, that would limit him to one substantive committee period; is that correct?

Mr. De Blieux That's correct. If the person is on the Executive Committee, he can only serve on one substantive committee, they are...

Mr. Dennery And, he can't serve on any procedural committee?

Mr. De Blieux And, he could not serve on any procedural committee.

Mr. Dennery Thank you.

Mr. De Blieux If you've got so many limitations in this that as a result of that, your Committee on Committees is going to find themselves in a very serious difficulty. I want to warn you and tell you that. I suggest you rush out and see what I'm telling you when the Committee on Committees starts trying to form these committees.

Mr. J. Jackson Senator, do you realize that the effect of your amendment would also exclude the Chairman in some cases where he served ex officio in committees from, you know, being a participant in those committees? In addition, do you realize that the effect of your amendment also limits the amount of people who will possibly serve on some of the essential procedural committees?

Mr. De Blieux No, this would not exclude the Chairman because he's automatically an ex officio member of all committees; this will not affect him whatsoever. As it stands now when according to the previous amendments that we have had to this, your procedural committees and your substantive committees, too, you can only serve on one of each. I tell you that you are going to have serious difficulty in making up this convention whenever you start trying to form your procedural committees and your procedural committees with that limitation.

Mr. J. Jackson Right. Well, on the last rule, just let me push that a little further to say that, for instance, if I served on the Executive Committee and for some reason I'm appointed to the Tax Committee; I could not serve on any procedural committees?

Mr. De Blieux That would be correct in my amendment; that's right.

Mr. J. Jackson And, basically, under the present limitations that we have now on the rules on committees, that to a large degree makes assignments to procedural committees almost nonexistent.

Mr. De Blieux Not necessarily so, no, because it will just mean that people on the Executive Committee couldn't serve on the procedural committees, they would be serving on the substantive committees but not on the procedural committees and vice versa to keep from loading down delegates.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, just one short question because I think this point is important. Example, I would argue that the Committee on Committees will begin to appoint people based on, one, the substance of this committee and reflecting upon, if their participation on the Executive Committee, the Coordinating Committee, the Committee on Committees. Once they finished that, I would assume that most delegates will probably be assigned to two committees. Your language says very clearly that no person can serve on any more than any two committees which, in effect, means that the Committee on Committees is going to have a very serious problem in terms of manpower to assign people to procedural committees because you are going to be exhausting, in my opinion, you are going to be exhausting your appointments to substantial committees. In fact, that you've got three other committees where people are going to be appointed first, before even being considered for procedural committees.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Jackson, if I understand you now, you are saying that under the present rules, a person can serve on more than two committees. Now, I don't believe that under the present rules that's possible, because a person can only serve on one procedural committee, and he can only serve on one substantive committee. That's my very point to where we are going to have some difficulty because you are limiting the number of appointments that the Committee on Committees can make, and they are going to have some difficulties.

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Mr. Cannon Thank you. I've raised the question as to whether or not the Committee on Rules which is composed of some very capable people serving on one substantive committee. Here, let's take a hypothetical situation for let's say, Mr. Kean and Mr. Stagg, these would be excellent members on the Committee on Style and Drafting. Here you would deny... this amendment would deny the convention their expertise in this area of style and drafting; I mean, is this the intent of your motion?

Mr. De Blieux Well, as I stated, probably if they were to be members of the executive Committee, and members of the substantive committee, and members on the Committee on Style and Drafting it will be because then they would be serving on three committees.

Mr. Cannon That's not my question. I'm talking about the Rules Committee which drew up the proposed set of rules, that's one committee, they serve on one substantive committee. Then, this would also deny the convention their expertise on such a committee such as Style and Drafting; I'm using these two examples, these two competent men.

Mr. De Blieux No, because the Committee on Rules would really... that's a temporary committee and would go out of existence whenever we finished adopting the rules.

Mr. Anzalone Senator De Blieux, you have spoken for the possible difficulties that the Committee on Committees is going to have in the appointment of these delegates. Would you not think it would be more proper that if the Committee on Committees should come up with this problem that it would be they who should come back to this convention with something that would resolve it, rather than us trying to resolve it here before the difficulty is actually presented?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Anzalone, that's the very reason why I proposed this amendment at this particular time because whenever we get these rules adopted and we elect our officers, we are going to adjourn until July 3, 1973. There is no way that I know legally to bring this convention back to being to change any rules until that date, and it will be entirely too late to reform these committees after that time.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to say this very briefly. I just want to tell you one more time that if we do not adopt this rule, the Committee on Committees are going to have difficulty putting together these committees like you have already voted. We will not have any chance to change it. Now, it's up to you if you want to go ahead and vote this down. But, I just warned you and don't say that whatever occasion arises, I didn't tell you so.

Questions

Mr. Flory Mr. De Blieux, I'm not clear on your amendment and I have two questions. One is a matter of mathematics, if the Committee on Committees decided that two committees... substantive committees needed thirty members on each committee and the rules already provide a minimum of ten members on each committee, if I figure it correctly, that means that the other six committees could have no more than twelve members per committee; is that correct?

Mr. De Blieux That's absolutely correct. That's one of the points I'm talking about.

Mr. Flory All right. Now, the second question. In your amendment, and I haven't seen it, do you include in the not more than two committees the Executive Committee, the Committee on Committees, or the Coordinating Committee as a limitation insofar as allowing a delegate to serve on no more than two committees?

Mr. De Blieux That's right. I included all the committees, all the committees of the convention, of course, this will not include the Rules Committee could take those out of existence whenever we finish adopting the rules. That's the reason for that because if you had more... if you only have two or three committees that have more than twenty members on it, you are not going to have... you are going to have other committees that are not going to have as many as ten on them sometimes; I just point that out to you now for what your... you all can handle it as you want.

Mr. Womack Senator De Blieux, I'm trying to figure out what good it would do me to be on two committees, one meeting in New Orleans this morning at 10:00 and one meeting in Baton Rouge at 10:00 this morning. Would not, that in effect, make it pretty hard some times to have a quorum on these committees?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Womack, this amendment will not force you to serve on two committees unless probably you wanted to serve on two committees. I don't think we would have that many. But, I do think that somebody is going to have to serve on more than one committee in order to have the reasonable representation on all of these committees if you have any committee that has an excess of twenty members. I'm just trying to point that out to you from a mathematical standpoint. I have served on committees that don't have more than eight members on them.

Mr. Womack Senator, I'm not going to get into mathematics because when you get to counting that high, you kind of leave me. But, isn't this really the same amendment that was brought in the front door and this delegation threw it out the side door; it was brought back in at the side door and they threw it out at the back door?

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Womack, Mr. Avant's amendment, I thought, gave you such leeway; this one doesn't give that much leeway. I think it will help the Committee on Committees, that's all.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

[Amendment rescinded.]

Point of Order

Mr. Abraham I just want to be sure that the way that this particular sentence would read...this rule would read now is that each delegate except the Convention Chairman shall serve on at least one, but not more than two substantive committees and may serve on no more than one procedural committee.

Mr. Leithman Let me interrupt you there. Mr. Clerk, would you read it one more time please?

Mr. Poynter That would be correct because of the previous amendment offered by Mr. Roemer and adopted by this convention today that additional language would follow.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce. Previous question ordered on the Rule. Rule reread. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Point of Information

Mr. Weiss I understand that the Chairman on one of the amendments was to call the first meeting of the Committee on Committees, was that under Rule No. 53; it was not reported by the Clerk?

Mr. Poynter Correct as read, I believe.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 54. Coordinating Committee. The Coordinating Committee shall be composed of the Chairman and First Vice-Chairman of the Convention, and the chairmen of the respective substantive committees. The Coordinating Committee shall consider any issues regarding omissions, overlap and/or conflict which might arise concerning the jurisdiction of any substantive committee or any subject matter; call joint meetings of any substantive committee for the purpose of discussing any omissions, overlap and/or conflict which might arise and make recommendations to the respective substantive committees as to possible resolution thereof."

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, this committee has been referred to as a "Traffic Cop Committee" and it would be designed to consider and resolve...or assist in resolving overlaps in conflicts. I believe Mr. Juneau has an amendment which he proposes to offer which would delete the word "omissions" in lines 17 and 21 so that Rule No. 54, as thus amended, would be compatible with the provisions of [Rule No. J 40-B on page 15 wherein that same committee is authorized to assign material which has not been covered by the areas of responsibility under the respective substantive committee. It was the feeling of the Rules Committee that such a "Traffic Cop Committee" would be essential to assist in ironing out overlaps in conflicts between or among the substantive committees to provide a means by which they could call joint meetings of those committees to discuss the issues. In general, to try to bring about an orderly consideration of the material assigned to each of the substantive committees. I move the adoption of the rule.

Question

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Chairman, delegate, Mr. Kean, on page 17, line 19 by the words "any subject matter," do the temporary Rules Committee mean subject matter pertaining to the substantive committees or was it the intent of the temporary Rules Committee to allow the Coordinating Committee to consider subject matter pertaining to the procedural committees, also?

Mr. Kean No. As I appreciate the action of the Rules Committee with respect to the Coordinating Committees, the work of that committee related directly to the substantive committees in area of responsibility assigned to those committees.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Juneau to the resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 17 after the word "regarding" and before the word "overlap" delete the word and punctuation "omissions."

Amendment No. 2--is the same amendment. On page 17, line 21 deleting the word and punctuation "omissions."

Explanation

Mr. Juneau Mr. Kean adequately covered the point, Mr. Chairman. Again, the only point is that it just resolves the conflict between the section we just previously passed. In that connection, I move for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Perez Mr. Juneau, your suggested change gives me one problem and that is the question as to who decides whether or not there is, in fact, an omission in the designation of the various categories in which the respective committees can undertake to write the provisions of the constitution? Does the Coordinating Committee decide or does the particular substantive committee decide whether there is, in fact, an omission?

Mr. Juneau According to the language, Mr. Perez, that I think we have here on page 15, line 21 through line 23, it would be my interpretation that that would indicate that the Coordinating Committee would have the authority under that language to assign those areas not previously...or covered in the previous language.

Mr. Perez Well, don't you think that that could create a dangerous precedent by giving the Coordinating Committee the determination over each of the various committees as to whether they may or may not take up a particular subject matter?

Mr. Juneau I think if...we had this discussed at length, as you well know in the Rules Committee. I think we arrived at the conclusion. Again, we got to the problem of how much importance or emphasis you wanted to put on any particular committee. We decided to defer to some extent the responsibility of the Coordinating Committee, that does, not give them the power to take away from any particular group...consideration of any item. I would, therefore, think that the language would not preclude necessarily the consideration by any other committee of something even though it was assigned; I don't read it that way.

Mr. Perez Well, don't you think if you omit these two words there is a possibility that these rules might be interpreted to give the Coordinating Committee the total authority over these other committees with respect to what their omissions may be and you might run into a difference of opinion between the particular substantive committee and the Coordinating Committee as to whether it is or is not, in fact, omitted?

Mr. Juneau Well, in answer to that, Mr. Perez, is I think the greater danger is being in the obvious conflict that in Rule No. 54 if we leave it as it is now, that the only thing that the substantive committee on the one hand could do would be to recommend regarding omissions which would be, in my opinion, in direct contrast with what we have on page 15 which says, "they can assign those areas not covered." I don't know how else to resolve the problem.

Mr. Perez Well, my suggestion to you, sir, if you leave it like it is, we have solved the problem from the standpoint that the respective committees would not be precluded from taking up a matter which they felt was within their jurisdiction. But, if you omit these words, there is a possibility of an interpretation that these particular committees may not be able to take up such matters as would be assigned by the Coordinating Committee to another committee.

Mr. Juneau I have no quarrel with the thrust of what you are saying, Mr. Perez. May be that might address itself to some other language. I see the point that you're making. I don't know if the animal may not be greater than the... or the problem greater than the animal that we started with. I personally don't view that as a problem. I just wanted to resolve the conflict which does exist.

Mr. Duval Mr. Juneau, don't you feel that the only way that really an omission would come up if there were a delegate proposal, perhaps, covering some area in the constitution not covered in the committees and the titles on the committees? If there were a delegate proposal it had to be referred, wouldn't that be the way it would basically come up by a delegate proposal?

Mr. Juneau Basically, but I could conceive of an area that could come up, I'm sure there are thousands of them that we have listed here that could come up in committees but probably would come up in the delegate proposal. I want to emphasize and answer that question. The intent of the Rules Committee, and I know for me personally, was not to give any really sting on the part of the Coordinating Committee; it was purely as a "Traffic Cop" to direct these things as a forum for discussion of these various items. I certainly would oppose any interpretation and subsequently in this convention to that regard.

Mr. Singletary Pat, could this thing be resolved by changing the word "recommendations" in line 22 to "assignments"?

Mr. Juneau I'll answer that question personally by an unequivocal note because what you have then done, if you make that language, you have created the most powerful committee in this convention. You have then determined that that very committee can shelf whatever it wants to shelf any particular piece of proposed legislature; this we discussed at length. My own personal theory was that the idea was to give it a forum so these people could discuss. Let's don't give them the authority to pull and take away, that was the thrust of why we didn't want to do that.

Mr. Burns As I read this Rule No. 54, Coordinating Committee, they have no actual power to do anything; do they?

Mr. Juneau That's right, sir; we just wanted to create a forum, that's correct.

Mr. Burns I noticed first that they "shall consider" and lower down in the article "recommend"; but, they have no power whatsoever.

Mr. Juneau That's correct, isn't it, Mr.

Kelly? That's correct, Mr. Burns.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mrs. Zervigon to the resolution as follows:

On page 17, beginning with line 13 and following through to line 16, delete the first sentence and substitute in lieu thereof the following:

"The Coordinating Committee shall be composed of the Chairman of the Convention, or in his absence a vice-chairman designated by him and the Chairmen and Vice-Chairmen of all substantive committees."

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon I suggested this amendment in the Rules Committee when they were meeting. They had objection to it because they thought that it made the Coordinating Committee too large to be workable and that's the reason that I put language in here that meant that the Vice-Chairman of the Convention didn't have to attend every meeting of the Coordinating Committee. But, I did think it was important to open the Coordinating Committee to the chairman and vice-chairman of all substantive committees for several reasons. In the first place, the thrust of many of our amendments to the rules and of the rules that we have adopted has been to open the convention floor participation by all. It seems to me that to have chairman and vice-chairman gives us a better chance of having representation of all different categories and geographic areas that are represented at this convention. In addition to that, it means that when the Coordinating Committee discusses and makes its recommendations considering assignment of subject matter, there will always be someone there from each substantive committee who has heard all the deliberations of the substantive committee as well as all the deliberations of the Coordinating Committee. Should the chairman of a substantive committee not be able to attend one of the Coordinating Committee meetings, his or her vice-chairman will have heard all of the deliberations of both committees and need not be filled in on anything. That's all I have to say, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Shannon sends up the following amendment:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 15, immediately after the word "Chairman" and before the words "of the" insert the words "and Vice-Chairman".

Explanation

Mr. Shannon Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment is very simple. It is in some ways like the one that we just defeated here, but I feel that we have been talking in the past here about representation, and I feel that this will give us more representation on this committee. This is a most important committee, and it will refer to substantive committees those things that are not covered specifically in the outline as we have already approved. This would increase the committee from ten members to eighteen members. I believe in our past discussion here on previous committees that it came up on this floor, the fact that six would be a quorum of this ten-man committee, ten-man or woman committee, and four people could direct anything. This would increase the committee to eighteen, which would require a quorum of ten people and then would move up to where six; we would have the advantage of four or six people. The potential dangers there that things could be referred to other committees on a very minor vote. So, I ask your adoption of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter A single amendment proposed by Mr. Conroy as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, at the end of line 23, delete the period "." and insert the following: "and shall assure that each provision of the Constitution of 1921, as amended, shall have been considered by at least one substantive committee."

Explanation

Mr. Conroy Our ultimate purpose is to write a new constitution, but we cannot forget that we do have a constitution at the present time, and regardless of how some of us may feel about the manner in which that constitution is put together, everything in it was put there for some purpose. Many of the people in this state, many of your constituents are concerned about preserving some of the rights and protections that exist in that constitution. The provisions that exist in that constitution were put there deliberately. They were put there either by a convention of this sort, or by a vote of the two-thirds of the legislature, and passed by a vote of the majority of the people. The purpose of this amendment is simply to make certain that somebody, namely, the Coordinating Committee, makes sure that everything in the present constitution is at least considered by, at least one substantive committee, and that something that's in there doesn't somehow drop through the slot.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Bergeron to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 17, line 9, immediately after the word "matter" and before the word "call" insert the following: "pertaining to substantive committees".

Explanation

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Chairman, delegates, before when I asked the question of Mr. Kean, if it was the job of the coordinating committee to consider issues only on the substantive committees he said that was correct. That was the intent of the Temporary Rules Committee. By inserting this I feel it would just clarify the issue and state clearly that the Coordinating Committee concerns issues pertaining to the substantive committees.

Questions

Mr. Perez It was impossible for me to understand the amendment because of the fact that the way the Clerk read it, the amendment was on line 9, and line 9 is in Rule 53, which has already been adopted.

Mr. Poynter Nineteen, Mr. Perez. If I said 9, I was incorrect.

Mr. Perez Could you give it to us again, then, please so we can know what it says?

Mr. Poynter Certainly.

On page 17, line 19, immediately after the word "matter" and before the word "call" insert the following: "pertaining to the substantive committees".

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce. Previous Question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 55. Other Committees. The Convention shall have authority to create other committees, including special advisory committees, as it deems necessary, and all substantive committees may create such subcommittees as each deems necessary, provided that all such subcommittees shall be created only by a majority vote of the creating body.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Dennyery]. On page 17, at the end of line 26, delete the portion of the word "sub-".

Amendment No. 2. On page 17, line 27, delete the portion of the word "stantive". So, it would delete the word "substantive".

Explanation

Mr. Dennyery The amendment is merely to permit the procedural committees to have subcommittees.

Questions

Mr. Flory Mr. Dennyery, aren't you in effect negating the action taken by this convention the other day when the issue came before the convention to allow the Executive Committee to create subcommittees, and that was defeated soundly by this convention? The terminology you used as I understand your trying to include procedural committees, but I think by the use of the word "committees" what you're doing is then going back to the original issue considered by this convention as far as the Executive Committee was concerned.

Mr. Dennyery I don't believe so, sir because this says that the convention has that authority. It's not given to the committee. It says that the convention shall have the authority to create subcommittees.

Mr. Flory Well, what I'm saying is that they shall be created by only a majority vote of the creating body and what you're doing is allowing the committees up here to do that, if I read it correctly.

Mr. Dennyery Well, that's not the way I read it, Mr. Flory.

Mr. Poynter I'll just tell you what it does. It deletes the word "substantive" which appears on line 26 and 27, portion of the word at the end of line 26, and the beginning of the line, line 27. Just deletes the single word "substantive."

Mr. Arnette Well, my question was, wasn't this properly handled in the following rule, Rule No. 63, which relates to any committee which may by a majority vote of its members have subcommittees? Wouldn't this solve the problem?

Mr. Denny Well, this was done merely to remove the conflict which apparently existed because this one limited it to substantive committee, this particular rule, 55; therefore, it was in conflict with the rule to which you referred, and I think this would clarify the conflict. Mr. Chairman, in view of Mr. Flory's question, may I withdraw that amendment and substitute another one?

Mr. Henry You may withdraw your amendment at this time.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 106 members present and a quorum.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like that Mr. Riecke come up just a minute, if you please. Mr. Riecke, would you come up here?

Mr. Riecke, one of my dedications in life has been to help my fellow man anywhere I could without limitations of geographical area, and it's been apparent to the many of us in the convention that at times you've had little trouble getting recognition, and I want to at this time present to you a flag that might assist you a little bit in getting recognition.

Mr. Riecke May I say a word?

Mr. Henry Certainly, Mr. Riecke.

Mr. Riecke I just want to say that there was some question last night as to whether the delegates at this convention were intellectuals or nitwits. Since you voted the way I asked you to last night, I want you to know that I think you're all intellectuals. Thank you.

Mr. Henry I think it should be pointed out that that is a flag of hunter orange, a color which is very close to the heart of Mr. Womack.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. J. Jackson]. On page 17, line 24, after the words "the convention" and before the word "shall" insert the following: ", by a majority vote of the delegates present in voting".

Explanation

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is basically a technical amendment. In Rule No. 55 it provides that a majority vote of the creating body as it relates to subcommittees, although I think it's assumed that any additional committees would be created by a majority vote of the convention, I wanted to insert this for clarification.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment reread and adopted: viva voce.]

Point of Order

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, as I understood the amendment, that applies to all committees, and if you have a committee meeting that decided they wanted a subcommittee, would we have to call the entire membership of this convention back in order to get their approval?

Mr. Henry It's the appreciation of the Chairman that that would not be necessary under the rules as amended, Senator. I don't believe that would be necessary under the rule as amended.

Mr. Rayburn May I ask the Clerk to read it very slowly. If you remember in the beginning of the amendment, it applies to the convention, but it later specifies what the various committees can do by dividing into subcommittees.

Mr. Henry We'll ask the Clerk, then, to reread it, the rule as amended.

Mr. Poynter As amended by Mr. Jackson's amendment, Rule No. 55 would now read as follows:

Rule No. 55. Other Committees. The Convention, by a majority vote of the delegates present and voting, shall have authority to create other committees, including special advisory committees, as it deems necessary, and all substantive committees may create such subcommittees as each deems necessary, provided that all such substantive committees shall be created only by a majority vote of the creating body.

Mr. Henry Senator, does that resolve your problem, answer your question?

Why do you rise, Mr. Abraham?

Read it again, Mr. Poynter.

Mr. Poynter Well, it's all one sentence. Do you mean the last clause, Mr. Stagg, is that what I misread?

"...provided that all such subcommittees shall be created only by a majority vote of the creating body."

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory and Mr. Avant]. On page 17, line 27, immediately after the portion of the word, "substantive" and before the word "committees" insert the words "and procedural".

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, as you recall, I questioned Mr. Denny on his motion prior to lunch. It was my feeling at that time by taking out the word "substantive" you were getting back into an issue that had already been decided by the convention as a whole, and I didn't want to see any extended debate again on that particular issue. The reason I have included, I should say, instead of deleting the word "substantive" add the words "or procedural." I do that for two reasons: one, not to get into the previous question already decided by this convention; secondly, that I don't believe that this convention ought to let the Committee on Committees divide into subcommittees because I think it was the sense of the creation of the Committee on Committees for broad representation as a deliberative group to come up with the committee appointments, the numbers on that committee, etc. By deleting "substantive" I think that's what you'd be doing also is allowing the Committee on Committees to dissolve into subcommittees. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Denny Mr. Flory, would you be satisfied if the word "advisory" were inserted between the words "such" and "subcommittees" on line 27 of page 17, and the deletion of the word "substantive" as I have originally suggested?

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. Flory Mr. Denney, I would prefer what I have proposed here for the reasons that I have stated in that I would not want to see the Committee on Committees break down into subcommittees, and one subcommittee, for example, take up the appointment of, let's say, the Committee on Bill of Rights, just as an example. I just think it would be better if we hold it to substantive or parochial...I mean, or procedural.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Flory, if your amendment were adopted would that preclude the Executive Committee of the convention from having, for instance, a subcommittee of six or eight people, charged with interviewing some of the hundreds of people who've applied for work to reduce it down to a usable numbers to be considered by the whole Executive Committee, would your proposal prevent the Executive Committee of this convention from using a subcommittee for the purpose of interviewing employees?

Mr. Flory My amendment would not, Mr. Stagg, and particularly in light of the rule on page 20, Rule No. 63, where a committee by the affirmative vote of the majority of its members may provide for the appointment by the Committee Chairman of subcommittee composed of members of the committee. They could have those subcommittees, but I think they would have to come back to the overall Executive Committee for any final action. I do not believe that my amendment precludes advisory committees as such on the Executive Committee.

Mr. Stagg Thank you very much.

[Amendment reread. Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce. Previous question ordered on the Rule.]

Mr. Henry You have the right to close, Mr. Keane, and would you yield to a question from Senator De Blieux?

Mr. Keane Yes, sir.

Questions

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Keane, I think this question was touched on before, but I'm not exactly clear about it. I notice at the end of the sentence, you use the words "creating body." Now, all of these committees are created by the convention itself. I'm just wondering whether or not that you could say that no subcommittee, even though the previous rule says that the substantive committee and the procedural committees may create subcommittees, then you go and say "provided that all" and usually my interpretation of provided, that takes care of this situation wherein it refers back. "Provided that all such subcommittees shall be created only by a majority vote of the creating body." Now, I think that possibly that word "body" may need clarification there as whether or not you're going to need the active support of the convention as a whole to create a subcommittee or whether or not the committee itself can create it because as it stands right now, since all these committees are created by the convention itself, we might run into the question there as to whether or not a subcommittee can be created by anything other than the convention itself. I'd just like to have that stated clearly in the record as to how you mean that.

Mr. Keane Mr. De Blieux, as I understand this rule, divided into two parts, separated by the comma after "necessary," the first part is talking about the convention, and I think Mr. Jackson's amendment is clarified what it would take in order to create a special committee, advisory committee of the convention. The second part is talking about the right of substantive and procedural committees to create subcommittees, and I take the word "creating body" in the last part of the sentence to refer to such substantive or procedural committee as may be creating a subcommittee.

Mr. De Blieux Now, I was...just like they asked, wouldn't it be much clearer to give the interpretation which you use if we change the word "creating body" to "creating committee"?

Mr. Keane In line with Mr. De Blieux's suggestion, I offer as a technical amendment the change of the word "body" in line 29...

Mr. Henry Well, now, Mr. Keane, gentlemen, I'm not trying to be impossible, but we're to the point now that we all ought to go begin learning--and Mr. Keane, I'm not criticizing you; I know you understand this--when we need to amend these bills or these resolutions we ought to try to begin to start using some form of procedure, because when we get here this summer, we're going to have to use procedure. Now, Mr. Keane...

Mr. Keane I withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Henry You understand, but let me explain this for the edification and enjoyment of maybe some of the other delegates who don't understand it. A gentleman has a right to present a motion, an amendment. That gentleman or lady has the right to explain what is in the proposal. We then allow a period of debate if the delegates want to debate it. The proposer or the mover does not have the option to speak and cannot be questioned at just your leisure. You understand this, please. The only time after the mover has explained the question that the mover can speak again is if the previous question has been moved. Then, the mover has the opportunity to close on the debate. Once he's closing, we cannot offer amendments, we cannot make technical amendments. We must proceed orderly. I know that this is all new to you, but we've gone through it and I would request that you give it your very particular attention.

Pardon me, Mr. Keane, for that little lecture. I know you understood it, though, and I'm doing it for your benefit.

Closing

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 56. Proposals. The various articles of the proposed draft of a constitution shall be prepared under the direction and supervision of the respective substantive committees. The research staff shall be assigned to the respective committees by the Chairman of the Convention after consultation with the chairman of the committee to which the staff will be assigned.

I have no amendments at this time to this rule, Mr. Chairman.

Explanation

Mr. Keane Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, it was the considered opinion of the Rules Committee that the drafts or the proposals with respect to the various sections of the new constitution should be prepared under the direction and supervision of the respective substantive committees with the aid of an assigned staff, research staff, to each such substantive committee. It was the feeling of the Rules Committee that this was essential insofar as the new constitution was concerned, and the work that would be required to bring it into being. It is contrary to the assumption that the constitution, or the proposed constitution, would be drafted by a research staff and then presented to us for consideration on July 5. The thrust of this proposal is that the substantive committees will work between now and July 5 together with the research staff and with their assistants to bring about the proposals that would be presented to the convention in due course.

I move the adoption of the rule.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 57. Quorum and Rules of Committees. A majority of any committee constitutes a quorum, but the question of the presence of a quorum of a committee may not be raised on the consideration of a proposal before the convention unless the question has been raised before the committee. The rules of the convention shall be observed in all committees as far as may be applicable, and if applicable, may not be suspended."

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, you have a technical amendment to offer?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mr. Chairman, that in line 2 instead of just "committee hearings," the title properly ought to read "committee meetings and hearings."

[Technical Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The amendment [by Mr. Stagg] would read as follows:

"On page 18, line 10, after the period "." add the following:

"Any committee may adopt its own rules of procedure. No committee rule shall conflict with the rules of the convention, except that any committee may establish a different rule with respect to limits on debate."

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, in further rules that we will be getting to this afternoon, it is stated that all rules applicable to committee shall be applicable to subcommittees. It was felt that in our adoption of Rule No. 30, yesterday, we made a fifteen minute limit on statements and speeches, and that perhaps in the operation of the committee system that that would be, perhaps, considered an inordinate amount of time for subcommittee hearings and subcommittee testimony and that if a committee wished to adopt a rule for lesser speech length, it would be in violation of the rules of the convention. Therefore, this rule was offered-- this amendment was offered--in order to permit a committee or subcommittee to have a different rule on the limits of debate should it desire to do so. That's the purpose of the amendment.

[Amendment reread. Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Mr. Flory as follows:

On page 18, line 4, insert a period "." following the word "quorum" and delete the remainder of line 4.

Amendment No. 2. On page 18, delete lines 5 and 6 in their entirety.

Amendment No. 3. On page 18, line 7, delete the language "the question has been raised before the committee."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, I raise this question in the way of an amendment, and let me explain to you the problem, as I see it. I don't believe that this was the intent of the Rules Committee in any way, but there is a strong possibility that, let's say, that a committee had thirteen members; six people were present, which is not a quorum. The public was there to be heard, left because of the lack of a quorum, and then some action was taken by the committee, after that, in a minority. Unless someone was present at that moment and raised the question of a quorum, that question could not be raised any further down the road. In other words, it could come before this convention and have been reported by a minority of the committee and the question of a quorum present at the committee meeting could not be raised on the floor of the convention. I just suggest to you that we delete this language. I've discussed it with Mr. Stagg, and I don't intend to speak for him, but I do believe that he recognizes that there is that possibility. I would ask that in your wisdom you consider the deletion of that language to prevent that from happening.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Mr. Flory, I believe that in your presentation of this amendment you suggested that it would be possible under ordinary proceedings before committees, as in the legislature that when the committee assembled according to its schedule and its notices, that not a quorum would be present. Do you consider that this convention may possibly have committees that would operate without a quorum and do present to this floor matters adopted by less than a quorum when I think you, yourself, proposed a rule earlier in these proceedings where every proposal from a committee would have to be signed by at least a majority of that committee before it could come back to the convention?

Mr. Flory Let me take your question in parts, Mr. Stagg. First, I don't suggest that any delegate here would intentionally report a bill with the lack of a quorum present. That's not the purpose of my discussion at all. The amendment offered the other day that you refer to was for the introduction of committee proposals, that committee proposals would require the signatures of a majority of the committee members so that it would reflect, when it reaches the floor of the convention, the views of the majority of that committee. I don't believe there's any contradiction.

Mr. Stagg Well, I can't see the distinction here that the presence of a quorum would not be... in other words, what we seek in this rule to do, Mr. Flory, is to cause the matters which are brought to the floor of the convention to be debatable upon their merits and not that the committee's action which sent it to the floor would be open by debates on the merits of the committee itself. In other words, this rule makes the lack of a quorum be brought up only in the presence of the committee at the committee hearing, else the work of the committee presented to the floor would not be open to that charge. I believe it to be a good rule.

Mr. Flory Mr. Stagg, perhaps we're not communicating; I thought we were. A committee once it's heard a proposal, makes a recommendation to this convention for its action in the form of favorable, or unfavorable, without action with a recommendation to recommit. All I'm saying to you is that the question of a quorum being present at the time that that decision was made we want to...I'm trying to assure the convention that we will know that a quorum was present, and that if we find out when the measure is before us with a report favorably recommended by that committee, and we find out when it hits the floor that there was not a quorum, I think any delegate here who has that knowledge ought to be able to rise and say there was not a quorum present when this was considered by that committee and ask that it be recommitted to that committee for consideration by a quorum being present at the committee. That's the purpose of my discussion, solely. I have no other motive in mind whatsoever.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Flory, this is primarily for my education, but if I understand you correctly, if there is not a quorum at a committee meeting, do you mean that a member of the committee cannot come back later before the committee and say, "Look, you all took action at this last meeting and there was not a quorum present," and could not declare that action null and void?

Mr. Flory If you leave the language in there, that's exactly what it says.

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Flory, do you envision that any committee of this convention would dare take action before the public and before the media without having a quorum present?

Mr. Flory Mr. Velazquez, I think I've already answered that. I don't suggest that anyone here would do it deliberately. I just know from experience this has happened in legislative deliberative bodies where a quorum was present on occasion and--let's say the thirteen member committee; seven members were present--for whatever reason, one of the members left during the time of the discussion, action was taken not realizing that a quorum did not exist at that moment. I only say to you that if that should be the case at a later time, you, as a delegate, find that out, you ought to be able to raise the question that a quorum was not present when that issue was decided and ask that it be recommitted for further discussion. That's the sole purpose.

Mr. Velazquez Then, shouldn't you be making a motion to the effect that a quorum call be made prior to each vote on the committee rather than the form that your present amendment is taking, the complete deletion of this statement?

Mr. Flory No. I think there are further rules in here, Mr. Velazquez, that require a majority vote, once a quorum is present. That's no problem as far as I'm concerned.

Mr. Velazquez Well, doesn't that answer that you just gave take care of this problem without the need for this amendment?

Mr. Flory Personally, I don't believe so.

Mr. Kean Mr. Flory, I just want to see if we're thinking alike on this. It would be unusual if we did.

Mr. Flory I'm not opposed to it.

Mr. Kean Because I don't want to unduly complicate the deliberations of the convention. But, suppose we had a situation where a quorum was present to start the committee meeting. Then, some left so that at the time the committee considered the matter there was not a quorum present. But, before that proposal was reported to the convention, a majority of the committee members signed that proposal, as your prior rule would require them to do so. Under those circumstances, even with the majority of the committee members having signed the proposal, could an objection be made on the floor that at the time the proposal was considered by the committee a quorum was not present?

Mr. Flory No sir, Mr. Kean, I think there's perhaps, some misunderstanding about the amendment that was placed on earlier. It referred solely to committee proposals. It did not refer to committee actions. As you know from your experience, "the round robin has been outlawed," so to speak, in our legislative body. It does not refer...I do not believe that you could have a quorum and a member leave and then a roll call vote be taken and be less than a quorum present and then report action on that. Now, if they came back and there was a quorum present at that time, certainly, they could do that. I don't want to complicate the rules either. I thought I was trying to clear it up.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Flory, without your amendment, isn't it true that under this rule the very people who might want to raise an objection, namely, the absent committee members, would not be able to object once the proposal came to the floor?

Mr. Flory Absolutely correct.

Mr. Schmitt Without this amendment, doesn't this effectively allow a proxy voting for the person who had left?

Mr. Flory No, sir, and if it does, I'll tell you one thing, I'll pull it down real quick.

Mr. Schmitt No, I don't mean your amendment. I mean the way it is right now.

Mr. Flory No. I don't believe that it recognizes proxy voting.

Mr. Schmitt Well, if one person left, wouldn't it be true if less than a majority voted on it and yet a quorum is necessary, then wouldn't that person be voting even though he wasn't there? He'd have to sign it subsequently.

Mr. Flory Someone would. Let me place it...put it in that...Well, it would be the secretary or reported in that fashion, through error or whatever.

[Previous vote again ordered. An amendment adopted: viva voce. Previous amendment ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 58. A. Public Hearings, Records. "No committee shall sit during sessions of the convention or of the Committee of the Whole without special leave of a majority of the convention delegates present and voting. All committee hearings shall be publicized, shall be open to the public, and may be recorded verbatim, including the testimony of those wishing to be heard. Minutes of the committee meetings shall be recorded. All committees shall, and are hereby authorized to, hold public hearings either as a committee or through a designated subcommittee, said hearings to be conducted at such localities throughout the state as the committee may designate.

B. Appearance of Delegates or Witnesses. Any person wishing to be heard before a committee shall have a right to be heard subject to the rules of that committee.

C. Committees and subcommittees may take testimony under oath or affirmation, and the chairman of any committee or subcommittee is authorized to administer the oath.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, as a first matter, in Subsection C, beginning on page 26, a matter of style and a technical amendment. The other two subsections have titles. We wish to suggest as an amendment the word "Testimony" be inserted after the letter "C" in order that this section also will have a title, mainly that it is on the subject of testimony.

[Technical Amendment adopted without objection.]

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Stagg, do the rules make any provision for a committee to subpoena witnesses to appear before the various committees?

Mr. Stagg No, Senator Rayburn, we did not provide for subpoena power principally because that power was not given to this convention in the statute which brought it into existence.

Mr. Rayburn It does not prohibit a committee from contacting some person that they might like and ask them to appear before the committee? I notice it only spells out those wishing to appear. Suppose a committee would like for someone to appear. Does it prohibit them from asking them to appear?

Mr. Stagg No, sir. I think everything in the rules and the conversations that have been met at this stand encourage a committee chairman to bring to the committee all facets of thought and belief on the subject matter under discussion, and that all witnesses giving or having valuable testimony to give would be encouraged by the chairman to come and present his views. I would hope that's the way these committees would operate.

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Stagg, there has been previous discussion considering recorded verbatim the proceedings of this... of the convention and the committees. Now, I want to clear something up. If I'm on a substantive committee and there's some testimony being given and I want recorded and maybe somebody else doesn't want it recorded, the word here, "may be recorded verbatim," what was the intent of the committee? Would you explain that? Who has the final say-so whether something is going to be recorded or not?

Mr. Stagg I would think it would be the province of the members of the committee or subcommittee before which the testimony was being given could, in advance of the meeting, by arrangements with the members of the committee, have a recording machine placed in the hall, similar to the one we have at this side table over here, so that a tape recording would be available of what was said in the subcommittee or the committee. If a delegate... if the committee did not choose to follow that procedure, I don't think it would be amiss for the delegate who wanted to do so to furnish his own machine.

Mr. Burns Mr. Stagg, on line 18 it reads: "All committees shall, and are hereby authorized to hold public hearings," etc. Don't you think those first three... "shall" should be eliminated--"All committees are hereby authorized to"? That word being mandatory, it gives the impression that these committees have to hold public hearings whether it is the occasion or not.

Mr. Stagg Well, Mr. Burns, that's exactly what the committee felt it was saying when it drew that rule that way.

Mr. Burns But, don't you think that it would be a little clearer that "All committees are hereby authorized to hold public hearings"?

Mr. Stagg The rule directs the committees to hold public hearings. It does not leave it discretionary with the committee.

Mr. Burns In other words, even though there's no necessity for a public hearing?

Mr. Stagg That's correct, sir.

Mr. Burns What would they take up if there was no necessity for it? They'd hold a public hearing for what purpose?

Mr. Stagg The drawing of the constitution has been said to be the most important work afoot in this state at this time. As the committees are appointed and go to work, it is the feeling of the Rules Committee, and I think of the convention, that the committees of this convention will hold public hearings to get the public's input into their committee sessions before they do any extensive drafting of the constitution. That's why we passed at a previous rule that the committees and their research staffs would work together before July 5. It was the feeling of the Rules Committee, Mr. Burns, that the only way the public is going to feel that it had a part in writing this constitution would be through the method of holding public hearings, and these rules mandate that the committees "shall hold public hearings" to get the public's views on everything that's in the committees purview.

Mr. Burns I'm wholeheartedly in accord with that. Then, as I understand it, this has in mind the holding of public hearings throughout the state even before the proposals are worked up by the research staff.

Mr. Stagg Exactly.

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Stagg, did you give us the benefit of the thinking of the temporary Rules Committee as regards the power of subpoena? And, should this convention desire said power, how would we go about getting it?

Mr. Stagg The committee, when it got to this portion of its work, looked to see if, perhaps, the committees would have the power to subpoena a witness, and we felt that if that power was not specified in Act 2 of 1972 that, then, the committee would be without power to do so. To answer your question, it would be necessary that the legislature, in its next session, consider matters concerning perfecting Act 2 of 1973; and, if the legislature, in its wisdom thought that the committees of the Constitutional Convention should have subpoena power, then the legislature would have to pass an act which would permit us to do so.

Mr. Anzalone Then, if we were to introduce a proposal to the convention at this time, asking that the rule that we adopt give us subpoena power, it would be something that would have to be ratified by the legislature and, at the present time, be useless?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir, it would. The better procedure, perhaps, would be to have the legislature work its wisdom on the question; and then, if permitted by the legislature, that then when the convention came back into session in July, the convention could then amend these rules by adopting the subpoena power if the legislature sees fit to furnish it.

Mr. Anzalone Thank you, sir.

Mr. Roy Mr. Stagg, I'm in favor of this rule, but I notice under Rule No. 62 that we're talking about public meetings, that the only way that the public, actually, can be notified is if a person files with the secretary a request that he be informed. I'm worried about the public like you are, and it just appears to me that we ought to maybe have a subp that would be put in the local newspaper or something like that. Wouldn't you agree?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Roy, I agree with you wholeheartedly, and I note that, in the pending amendments to Rule No. 62, there will be an amendment proposed by Mr. De Blieux that the news media of the area where the committee meeting is being held--the news media of that area shall be notified of pendency of a committee meeting, and I believe that will cure it.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Kean to Committee Resolution No. 1 by Mr. Stagg:

Amendment No. 1...this actually affects two rules, doesn't it, Mr. Kean?

Amendment No. 1. On page 18, line 15, delete the words "meetings" and insert the words "meetings and hearings".

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, the language on page 15 originally read "all committee hearings shall be publicized, shall be open to the public," etc. In our earlier discussion, it was brought out that we wanted not only the hearings, but the meetings, to be publicized and open to the public, and this amendment would provide for that and is in keeping with the prior amendment that we made to the subtitle on line 2, which now reads "committee meetings and hearings." That does not affect the right that we gave the Executive Committee to consider personnel matters in executive session, if they desired to do so in their discretion, because, if you recall, the language with respect to the Executive Committee said that any other provision of the rules to the contrary notwithstanding, so that this requirement with respect to "all committee meetings and hearings shall be publicized and shall be open to the public" would apply to all other committees, other than the Executive Committee acting under the specific authority in personnel matters.

Mr. Poynter On page 18, line 15...Correct the amendment to delete the word "hearings" rather than the word "meetings".

Then on page 18, line 15, delete the word "hearings"--rather than the word "meetings"--and insert the words "meetings and hearings".

[Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Ms. Zervigon: On page 18, after line 28 and before line 29, add the following: "D. Any person not a delegate appearing before a committee or subcommittee shall identify himself by name and address and shall state whether or not he is representing any other person or interest."

Mr. Henry Is it "himself" or Ms. Zervigon's amendment?

Ms. Zervigon That's a misprint. It should be "himself or herself."

Explanation

Ms. Zervigon I think the amendment is self-explanatory. I think it's just easier for us when we're sitting in the committee to know exactly to whom we are listening and whether this person is speaking for a group of people or only for him- or herself.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I rise in support of this amendment. Like so many others have stated, I think the Rules Committee has done a most commendable job on these rules, and I think this Rule No. 58 is no exception to that. However, I think a good rule can be improved some by assuring the members of these committees that they will know who is appearing before this committee, what connection he has; and they can determine whether or not, by these questions, that this person is knowledgeable on the subject. They have a right to know that; they need to know that to know whether or not his testimony can influence their judgment. I urge you to consider this amendment.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment adopted: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Champagne to the resolution:

On page 18, line 18, immediately after the period "." and before the word "All" insert the following: "It shall be the responsibility of these committees to translate to the English language all expressions of fact made other than in the English language at no additional cost to the convention."

Amendment No. 2. On page 16, line 22, at the end of the line, add the following: "This shall not be interpreted as to prevent a delegate from meeting with his district at no additional cost to the convention for the express purpose of setting and expressing views or opinions of any portion of the constitution."

Explanation

Mr. Champagne There's a typographical error on Amendment No. 2. That's "meeting within his district." I have--and, perhaps, you have in your district--many people who, because of reasons within or beyond their control, are not fluent in the English language. I have in my district many French-speaking people and some Italians who speak very little English. Since we are selling this constitution to the people, I don't want to miss one bet and have them feel that, though they may not exercise this privilege, that they are free and welcome indeed to come before these hearings and to express themselves in their own language, their wishes because it's needless for me to point out to you they most certainly will vote on the issue, and we want to have all the friends we can voting on this new constitution. "At no additional cost to the convention"--I simply add that so that no free spender comes along and says, "Now, we need an interpreter." On the second amendment, I want to give you an example to illustrate my point: Just this last Saturday, we had an election in St. Landry Parish in which many of the local organizations endorsed three proposals for a new tax. It was endorsed by many of the bodies of the parish, including the police jury--and whatever you have. The things were certainly needed; the improvements were needed; but, on Saturday, they were defeated three-to-one, two-to-one, and somewhere in between. I'm disappointed, we hadn't reached all the people and convinced them. If you think--or, if I think--that we are going to have some few hearings within the state--or many hearings at the larger places--and we shall have, in most cases, those same people who supported this tax coming up and expressing, in an intellectual way, why we should have this constitution and then sell it to the people, this is beyond our understanding. If we are to sell this constitution to the people, it must be done at a grass roots level because there simply are not enough intellectuals in this state to adopt a new constitution. Those are the people who we must sell this thing to in every barbershop, every bar, every store, everyplace that men and women and children will listen to us to understand why we need a new constitution. We must make a concerted effort to convey to these people that, if Louisiana is to progress as it should--if we, as men, women, and children, are to blossom to our full anticipation of greatness--that there is something in this constitution for all people. You must sell it not as something for a small group of people, but you must convince these people at the grass roots level that, indeed, if they are to prosper, this is their means of doing so, and we shall have here a reason and an explanation why these people are included in this voting for this constitution. I am sure that all of you here realize full well that you would not be here if you were not interested in this constitution. I simply point this out and put it and emphasize it just a little more because I feel that it is necessary, to convince all people, that we must show an interest in their adoption of this constitution, and I urge you to support these amendments.

Questions

Mr. Shannon Mr. Champagne, if I read your proposal correctly, you are advocating--people that cannot speak English--that it be interpreted, and they pay for this themselves?

Mr. Champagne No, sir. If I'm on that committee, I'll take care of that, sir. There'll be people on these committees that'll take care of that. In other words, I'm saying that the state not pay for it. I'm saying that the people on those committees will take care of it; or, if these people wish to speak, then they would come forth, and we will--these committees--it will be their responsibilities to get someone who will explain their views to the committee, if he wants to be recorded. In other words, if they wish it to be recorded.

Mr. Shannon Are these people voters that you're talking about?

Mr. Champagne They most certainly are, sir. You don't have to read and write, in this state, to vote.

Mr. Shannon But, yet, you want someone to pay to interpret their views?

Mr. Champagne I don't want anybody to pay, sir. I say that nobody pay to interpret the views. I just say that it's the responsibility of the committee to arrange for an interpretation of this. I was told, in talking about it to a person who had written the constitution, that this is normal; that, in other words, in a court, if the person doesn't speak English, usually the judge does the interpretation for him. I don't think any of these people will come in great numbers, but it's simply a question that--as we were pointed out by Mr. Triche--we are politicians; and, if you're a politician selling this thing, you want to be sure that you don't leave any possibilities of anybody saying: The big shots met, and they didn't include me.

Mr. Shannon I understand that, but the point

I'm trying to make is: Are we going to have an interpreter on every committee, whereas it would not cost the state or someone else some money?

Mr. Champagne I specifically put that in there--that an interpreter was not necessary; that I feel that in localities in which people speak Italian--for instance, in one section of my district that I have the mayor who speaks Italian fluently, and I'll arrange for that if I was there or, if he'll be available and he will interpret the views of these people. He'll gladly do this because he is also a politician.

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and members of the delegation, on page 4, line 35, you have "administrative details." We're talking about the state, and now I'm thinking about a little story, once, said: "Well, who is the state? Who is Uncle Sam?" We are Uncle Sam, or we are the State of Louisiana. Since we have an executive board, I feel that the executive board should take care of having these people...interpret their language so we can understand what they mean. After all, the real citizen of Louisiana is the voter. I think the executive board should take care of that in their administrative staff. Do you feel that way?

Mr. Champagne I really have no argument on that point. The point that I was trying to bring out is that I was very much concerned about these people because I had many of them vote for me, and that's why I'm here--because they sent me. The thing is I don't feel that, necessarily, you have to have people all over the state as interpreters because in very few instances you're going to have this happen. I just wanted to save the state some money, if possible, and say that we would arrange it--the committee would arrange it. I feel that if it becomes a problem, then we can take it up with the Executive Committee, and they'll be liberal enough to take it in part. I didn't want to raise the question. In other words, I am in favor of labor, ladies and gentlemen, and I don't want to raise the question of cutting somebody out of a job; but all I'm saying is that didn't know that I was going to raise this problem, but I want to take care of those people, very definitely.

Mr. Hayes Mr. Champagne, do you think we have enough French-speaking people to have extra copies of the constitution reproduced for your section, in particular?

Mr. Champagne I don't think so, Mr. Hayes. I think that most of these people that I'm concerned about have friends who can read the English language, and they'd be glad to interpret it. I don't think they want to get too involved, but I can give you an example, for instance, that many, many, many of these people, and since I'm for office, I'm concerned, for instance, that every elector in this state be given a number from here on out because I had too many people complain, "I just can't read that name"--if you had a number. So, this is the kind of things that I want to give them the opportunity, if they want to express themselves, to come forth and express themselves.

Mr. Hayes Mr. Champagne, why is it you want the people to pay for this material and not the state?

Mr. Champagne No, I don't want the people to pay for it.

Mr. Hayes Why is it you want the state to...I mean...you said you wanted to pay for it yourself. Why?

Mr. Champagne Well, really, it doesn't matter to me, except that I think this will be very limited; there will be very few of them. In other words, I was simply saying: not these people, but the committee as a group. In other words, if this committee appears anywhere in St.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Landry Parish or neighborhood, I'd be glad to act as their interpreter. You see?

Mr. Hayes Well, don't you think it would be better to put it in a language that they can read themselves?

Mr. Champagne I don't think these people are capable of reading the French language. They're only capable of speaking it.

Mr. Hayes Well, isn't it true that you have people who can't even read the English language, or any kind of language as far as that's concerned?

Mr. Champagne Well, that's true.

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Champagne, I'm substantially in agreement with you. My only problem is one of mechanism. Would you consider withdrawing your amendment and, when we get to No. 62, try to do it in the form of differences in languages in committee meetings, using other media other than the English language media? Could you make your proposal that way instead of this particular way, which doesn't seem to be very well structured as far as getting a supply of free interpreters?

Mr. Champagne Well, sir, I thought at the time this was the right place to put it, and I would like to let it stand here. I think that, in other words, this is the place for it. I think that this is the point because I just wanted to get this before the convention. It was probably the last opportunity I had to express the need for us to get to the grass roots of the people.

Mr. Arnette Mr. Champagne, wouldn't it be a little bit better, possibly, if these people that want to present their views--and I have a great portion of French-speaking people in my area also--would it possibly be better if they would supply their own interpreter, and this would solve quite a few problems. Say, if besides French, some Italians or any other group of people that don't speak the English language would supply their own interpreter, wouldn't this possibly be better?

Mr. Champagne Really, I'm sure they would be willing to. The main thing I wanted to get to them is I don't want to have them feel left out. I heard so many times, in my place of business: They think they're going to push something on us in that center or this center, or that; but they want to remember that I'm going to vote when I get home.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I'm in accord with the intent of Mr. Champagne's amendment, but the thing that disturbs me is, the way it reads, it says: "It shall be the responsibility of these committees to translate to English all expressions of fact made other than in the English language at no additional cost to the convention." As I read it, we're putting a responsibility on the committee that affords them no means by which they can discharge the responsibility. I don't have any objection to the basic intent that he has of giving these persons an opportunity to appear and have their language or their facts translated, but to leave it this way is to put a responsibility on the committee that they have no way of discharging. I think, as written, it's not a good amendment. It might be possible to withdraw it and take it up later and give some thought to a better way of expressing it; but, the way it's written, it just puts an impossible task on the committees and makes it their responsibility with no means at all to carry it out. I would object to it in the form in which it's written.

Questions

Mr. Stovall Mr. Kean, isn't it true that any committee would be able to do the thing that Mr. Champagne wants accomplished here, even though it were not written into the rules of procedure?

Mr. Kean It would certainly be my understanding that a committee could do that and would have a right to apply to the Executive Committee for funds with which to employ an interpreter. But, as I read the amendment, it would say that it's "at no additional cost to the convention," so you don't even have the opportunity to do that under this amendment.

Mr. Stovall Isn't it the purpose of rules of procedure to lay out general guidelines, rather than to give complete details as to how everything shall be accomplished?

Mr. Kean That's my understanding of the rules, and that was the guideline that the Rules Committee used in discussing it.

Mr. Stovall Should we not then proceed, recognizing that these committees and other groups will have the reasonable approach to take care of situations like Mr. Champagne is trying to accomplish here, rather than trying to detail every item?

Mr. Kean I would like to see us do that very much, Reverend Stovall.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Champagne I just want to straighten out one little thing. Reverend Stovall said--and I agree with him--that in most instances--in fact, many, many times I've been up here--and let's not spell it out, and so forth and so on, but I thought that this was the last opportunity. In other words, since I had heard so much expressions, so much concern of being on this committee or that committee and this committee and how many we can get to here, it occurred to me, primarily, that many of us were losing sight of the fact that we were indeed forgetting the people back home that sent us here to write this constitution. It was just one means of refreshing our memory that that is the purpose we're here. Now, I didn't want to make a big deal over this "at no additional cost," etc. I'm conservative of nature, and that's coming out. That's what's coming out of the issue, but I think that it's worthwhile; I think that, if you vote for this thing you're simply putting a few more words; and I think that I'm entitled to a dollar and a dime of the state's money to speak just a little longer for all of those many, many people sitting out there who sent you and I as delegates to this convention. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Arnette I'd just like to make this quick, and maybe this could solve a few problems. In the same place of your amendment, would you be willing, possibly, to withdraw your amendment and change it to the following language: "Anyone wishing to be heard in a language other than the English language shall supply his own interpreter?"

Mr. Champagne I don't think so. Let's vote on this one, and then let's make another one. It won't hurt me if you kill it.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Sawyer Amendment proposed by Mr. Schmitt to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 18, line 16, delete the word "may" in recording verbatim" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "shall keep a sound recording and may keep a verbatim written record".

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Schmitt This amendment requires a tape recording of all meetings and hearings, and the cost of these tape recordings will be quite minimal when compared to the costs of the salaries of the members of the committees meeting at that time. The cost could, perhaps, run a dollar or two dollars per hour, which would be quite miniscule. Secondly, it allows the committees to review testimony of subcommittees and, also, allows them to hear the testimony as spoken by the witnesses at the time they spoke it, rather than someone else's interpretation of that testimony. Third, it allows any members of the convention to review the testimony of experts who have spoken before any committee or subcommittee. Fourth, it provides a source of materials for research of any issue by the convention at some later time and, if necessary, can be transcribed in written form at some future point in time.

I feel that the cost of this will be very small. The amount of benefit will be very large. Mr. Stagg, throughout the proceedings in which we attempted to learn what the convention business was going to be out of his own personal expense, maintained a tape recording of all sessions. The cost of this is extremely small, but the benefit to us during our sessions beginning in July and subsequent to that would be astronomical. Assuming that there was an expert witness who spoke upon an area which at the time would not seem important, this information would be lost to the convention unless it was in some type of a permanent form. I'm suggesting that this be in the form of tapes. I'm also suggesting that the committees and subcommittees have the right to keep a verbatim record which is presently allowed under the rule as it is presently stated.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to oppose this amendment. As you recall, I think on yesterday, when we debated this very issue at length and it was during that discussion that it was distinctly understood, I'm sure it was, that the committee meetings and subcommittee meetings from the requirement that the proceedings be recorded and preserved verbatim, that that amendment passed by a very, very narrow vote. Now, I don't know whether you realize it or not as to the magnitude that this could assume. If we have eight committees going around the state and possibly many subcommittees growing out of that eight committees going around the state holding public hearings and taking testimony from citizens and witnesses, if we are going to bring that back in and provide that all of those hearings be recorded verbatim, the cost would just be unbearable. I certainly hope that the delegates to this convention will stand by their vote of yesterday and just confine the recordings and the preservation of the proceedings and testimony of this convention to the convention meetings itself and not add the additional requirement, and more cost than I would say recording the proceedings of the convention itself would be caused by the amendment that is now before the convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burton I want to speak against the amendment. It's been observed that if this country perishes, it will probably be not from defeat by an enemy on the field of battle but because we will be buried in paper. I think that this is what is anticipated in this amendment. If we record verbatim every statement of everyone that appears before every one of our eight committees, then certainly we will be setting up a situation where we will have to have eight complete sets of sound recordings with a mike for each committee member and a mike for each witness to speak into and supposedly a secretary to type up the results of all of this. Now, I realize that he says "keep a sound recording and may keep a verbatim written record." The rule as it's proposed leaves the question open that you can record what you think is worth recording and, what may not be worth recording, you don't have to record or you don't have to record anything at all. The purpose of the committee system is to separate and divide the labors of this convention. I don't want to go back and review everything that everyone else on all of the other seven committees had to hear to arrive at the committee reports that they will issue to this convention, and I don't think any of you do either. So, if we don't want to do that, of what ultimate value would this verbatim recording be? It can't be used as evidence in court because it's of no ultimate import. For instance, if somebody comes before the Committee on Education and says that they think that we ought to abolish two or three state universities, and the committee rejects this, and it never comes to the floor of the convention, so even though the person that proposes this might have a nice eight or nine page prepared statement to show why we ought to do it, wouldn't it be a great waste of the taxpayers' money and a great waste of time on the part of secretarial help and even a great waste of even tape on tape recording to put it down? There is no reason to preserve that kind of information that's superfluous and unnecessary.

[Previous Question Reread.]

Closing

Mr. Schmitt The cost of the recording equipment and so forth when amortized over the number of hours in which it was used would not be that large. I do feel that it would be very important that we have the right to go back and to review certain testimony. Perhaps, those who are sitting on the committee at the time when they are hearing the testimony might not be interested in those particular points. They might not feel that those are relevant to the issues or germane to their subject area. But, perhaps, there is someone else who's been denied the right to be on that committee who might feel differently. Why can't he call upon this body of information? Why can't he utilize these sources of information to help prepare his position? I don't believe that anyone's views should be excluded. I don't think that the costs are going to astronomical, as others have said. As an example, if you have one four-hour hearing, the cost of your tape might run six dollars; you might have heard forty or fifty people speak on that time. As anyone who is familiar with this type of equipment knows, can be marked off as to what section this person has spoken on and it can be easily gotten to by anyone who's interested in what that person has said. This information will be very vital. I believe we will save the time of the convention as a whole if it is preserved. I move for its adoption.

[Amendment rejected unanimously.]

Amendment

Mr. Pointer Amendment No. 1 [Previous Amendment]. On page 18, line 17, after the word "punctuation" heard," and before the word "minutes" insert the following:

"Anyone wishing to be heard in a language other than the English language shall supply his own interpreter."

Explanation

Mr. Annette This is basically the same thing that Mr. Champagne offered a while ago. But, I think it's phrased a little bit better and doesn't put the burden on the committee to supply the interpreter. I also agree that we need to make it clear that people are welcome to be heard in any language other than the English language and it will help us in selling this. That's all my remarks. I don't think we need much debate on it. I think we just need to vote on it.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Lanier Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment provides that anyone wishing to be heard in a language other than the English language shall supply his own interpreter. Now, in my particular district in Lafourche Parish we have people that speak French. In the other districts around our area we have the same thing. I see absolutely no reason whatsoever to treat these people any differently than anybody else. If they have something to say to a committee of this convention or to this convention, then the cost of transcribing what these people have to say should be taken care of by the convention. I see no reason whatsoever to make a special category for people who are unable to speak the English language through fault that is not their own. I violently oppose this proposition. We should welcome these people to come. We should take care of the expense to do it. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment reread and rejected: viva voce.]

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of the rule as amended.

Questions

Mr. Champagne Mr. Stagg, just so I might know, if one of these French speaking individuals should ask me is he welcome to come before this committee, just what should I tell him?

Mr. Stagg Tell him that you would be most happy for him to come to any meeting, hearing of any committee, anywhere in the state and he would be welcome and would be heard.

Mr. Champagne And, if he says, "You know I can't express myself well in the English language," what should I tell him?

Mr. Stagg Tell him that if he cannot express himself in English that the committee would welcome his remarks in French and there would be a member of the committee who would help the other members of the committee understand his remarks.

Mr. Champagne That's what I had intended. Now, let me ask you one more question, if I may. Do I understand as far as my Amendment No. 2 had been proposed—in other words, there is no problem if I conduct a separate meeting within my district? In other words, I would not be accused of trying to circumvent the wishes of this committee? In other words, of this convention; is that right? In other words, I have this right?

Mr. Stagg I would think so. The delegates who live in the Fourth Congressional District have already had a public meeting at which all public officials were invited to come and give preliminary thoughts to the delegates from the Fourth Congressional District. Such a meeting was held in the Shreveport City Hall and it would be your prerogative to do it any time you wanted to, in my opinion.

Mr. Champagne In other words, you feel that it is the wishes of the convention that we do bring this constitutional proposal to the people at all levels, at all places throughout this state?

Mr. Stagg That is correct, sir.

Mr. Champagne Thank you.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Roy]. On page 18, line 17, immediately after the word "heard," and before the word "Minutes" insert the following: "Provided, however, that any delegate shall have the right to have his views recorded."

Explanation

Mr. Roy This just clearly allows you as a delegate on a committee to have your views on any matter before it recorded without having to get a majority of the committee agree to it. It goes not further than the recording; there is no problem about having to transcribe it. I think it may be essential in a few cases and maybe that you may have some people who have seen you about a particular matter and that you may want to be able to show them at a later time that you, in fact, brought up that problem, that you expressed yourself, and it may be interesting to other people anyway. So, that's all it is for.

Questions

Mr. Avant Mr. Roy, is it the intent of your amendment that the committee shall have the responsibility of supplying the recording equipment so that any delegate who speaks may be recorded or is it the intent that the delegate if he wishes to be recorded has the responsibility of seeing to it that there is something there to record it?

Mr. Roy Well, that's a pretty tough question, Jack. I read Rule 40, 58, generally, and it can mean that apparently the committee will have available recording equipment because it provides that the committee may do so on its own. I don't think the delegate should have to supply it, but if he would, if it takes that, I think that a person ought to be able to stand on what he believes and have it recorded if he chooses, and that's all it's for.

Mr. Avant Well, the reason I asked that question, it says that they "may be recorded verbatim", and a particular committee may decide that they don't want to do that and they are not going to have any facilities to record it. Is it your intent that then, under those circumstances, you could bring your own?

Mr. Roy Yes.

Mr. Avant But, it's not your intent to require the committee to supply the recording equipment for you?

Mr. Roy Wait a second. No, I have to take that back. I'm assuming that since this rule reads like it does that each committee will have recording equipment; am I wrong on that?

Mr. Avant Well, how...

Mr. Henry Wait just a minute, gentlemen.

Mr. Roy, you are in the process—you have the floor and you answer the questions; please, don't ask any.

Mr. Roy My answer to that is that I believe the committee...each committee should have recording equipment because it's nonsensical to have Rule No. 58 if, at the time a majority of the committee says they want the committee hearing recorded, somebody says "Well, we don't have recording equipment." It doesn't make any sense. So, I think that the sense of Rule No. 58 is that each committee will have recording equipment and any one delegate will have the right to have his views recorded for whatever reason he chooses.

Mr. Avant I see. So, it's your interpretation of that sentence in Rule No. 58 "All committee meetings and hearings shall be publicized, shall be open to the public and may be recorded verbatim" is a mandate to every committee to have the equipment there to record it.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. Roy Should a delegate want it or should the majority of the committee vote to record the entire proceedings.

Mr. Kelly Chris, I think I understand your...the purpose of this amendment. But, however, if I understand the rules completely, it says "Minutes of the committee meetings shall be recorded." Now, if you want a particular position shown by yourself within that committee hearing or meeting, couldn't you request that a minute entry be made of your feelings which would also give you a permanent record at that time in that proceeding?

Mr. Roy I don't know the answer to that; maybe some other person does. I thought of minutes as being that the secretary of the committee would subsequently write or record what occurred that day. Now, if it can be done like that, that's fine. All I'm wanting is the right of the delegate to be able to have his views recorded. If you want to call it a minute entry and have it done that way, that's fine with me. I just want...but the rest of the committee doesn't indicate that. It looks like that the only way you can have anything recorded verbatim is if a majority of the committee votes to do so. I'm just worried about whether your suggestion would work. If it works, it's fine. I just think we ought to be in a position to be able to defend what position we took either for ourselves or for somebody else, some special interest group that wanted something brought up and wanted to know how you voted on it, what you said about it.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Roy, I don't think too highly of your amendment, and I'm asking this question. If you feel very strongly that the views you have brought to that committee should be recorded somewhere, why is it that you could not have the chairman of the committee a typed out text of your remarks fully documented and ask that committee chairman to have your remarks placed in the minutes of the committee? The onus would then be upon you to go to the trouble to have your statement typed up and presented to the committee in that orderly fashion.

Mr. Roy Well, I think that begs the question. There would be a lot of times that something that I would think and write about prior to attending the committee meeting would be changed as a result of questions and things that were brought up. I'm going to be...when I express myself at a committee meeting, I want that expression at that time to be recorded and not something that I may have typed up that may not be relevant at the time. I don't think we, as delegates, should have the onus of going to so much trouble to get our views expressed. I don't see where it can amount to much in money or anything else to say "Flick on the recorder, I want to..." Well, I've answered Mr. Stagg's question. I don't think that we, as delegates, should have the onus of going around and typing up a bunch of stuff; some people don't have secretaries, and I don't see the utility in that.

[Previous question on order of Amendment rejected; viva voce. Previous question ordered on the rule.]

Mr. Henry You have the right to close, Mr. Stagg. Would you yield to a question from Reverend Landrum?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir, Mr. Chairman, I will.

Questions

Mr. Landrum Tell me something. Do you think, to the best of your knowledge, that there are citizens and there are people in the State of Louisiana that do not understand the English language? What I want to know from you: To the best of your ability, are there people in Louisiana that do not understand the English language when it is heard?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir. There are people in Louisiana who native tongue is other than English.

Mr. Landrum And they are citizens of this state?

Mr. Stagg That is correct, sir.

Mr. Landrum Now, don't you think as taxpaying people in the State of Louisiana, then they should have a right to know what is in their constitution?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir, I do think that.

Mr. Landrum Well, why is it that you find...

Mr. Stagg I have no proposed any such amendment, Reverend Landrum. There were gentlemen here who proposed such amendments and they were resoundingly defeated on the floor. I did not take the floor to object to them; I don't think I can be called upon to answer your question since I'm not responsible for the votes of this body.

[Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 59. Calling of Committees and Agenda. Each committee shall meet at the call of its chairman, who shall also set its agenda. One-third of the members of a committee may in writing request the chairman to call a meeting of that committee, and, upon his failure to do so within forty-eight hours not including Saturdays, Sundays, and legal holidays, a majority of the members of the committee shall have the right to call a meeting of the committee and set its agenda and place of meeting under the appropriate notice requirements. Each proposal referred to a committee must appear on the committee's agenda at least once."

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the purpose of this rule is simply to further the work of this convention. If members of the committee think that a meeting is required under any circumstances and the chairman does not agree that a meeting is required or necessary, then members of the committee itself may after having requested the chairman to call it, if he does not do so, then the members of the committee can call the committee into hearings...into session over the opposition of its chairman.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Avant to the resolution as follows:
Amendment No. 1. On page 18, line 31, following the word "agenda" delete the period '.' and insert the following: ", subject to the approval of a majority of the committee."

Explanation

Mr. Avant The purpose of...Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to give a majority of the committee control over the agenda. Now, the way I read this rule, if the chairman set an agenda and it wasn't agreeable with the majority of the committee, there is nothing they could do about it. Furthermore, if he didn't call a meeting and you went through this procedure and they wrote him and then he called a meeting. They still wouldn't have the right to set the agenda because it's only if they ask him to call a meeting and he doesn't call the meeting, that then they can call it and set the agenda. The purpose of this amendment is to simply give the majority of the committee control over the agenda if the chairman is not operating the committee, as to its agenda, in accordance with the wishes of the majority of the committee.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment read and adopted: 64-44. Previous Question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 60. Reports. All proposals submitted to a substantive committee shall be reported from that committee indicating committee action provided that a majority of the committee membership present and voting must approve the committee report; a minority report may also be made by any member of a substantive committee."

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I think the rule is self-explanatory; I move it's adoption.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment as follows:

Amendment No. 1. By Mr. Poynter. On page 19, line 6, after the word "substantive" add the words "or procedural"

Amendment No. 2. On page 19, between lines 10 and 11, add the following:

"No resolution, petition, memorial or proposal shall be reported by a committee unless a public hearing on the measure first has been held by the committee. No committee shall report a measure to the Convention pursuant to a procedure, referred to as a "round robin."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, you will recall on two different occasions upon amendments that have been adopted, the question has arisen whether or not the mere signature of a majority of the committee would constitute that committee's report. There was some confusion as to whether or not the prior amendment adopted referred only to committee proposals as such, which I'm sure that it did. But, I was asked by a number of you to clarify the point as far as "round robins" are concerned. Those of you familiar with the legislative process, this has been taken word for word, and adapted to the convention, from the rules of the Senate. What it does is basically this: Many times in the past it's been possible toward the end of a session to come down and circulate a petition, and report that to the members of the committee just asking them to sign that, reporting a measure out favorably; it's been done and it's been called a "round robin." This prohibits that and just says that you have to have a public hearing and that "round robins" are prohibited. I don't believe there is any objection to it.

Questions

Mr. Burson Do I understand you to mean that each and every constitutional provision, section, or article that would come out of a committee would have to have a separate public hearing thereon, giving, for example, that we shall have a governor heading the Executive Department? Is that really necessary?

Mr. Flory Mr. Burson, it is my understanding that the purpose of the convention was to let the public participate in a drafting of the new constitution, and I believe it's provided elsewhere that for public hearings that all committee meetings shall be open to the public, etc. Yes, I would say that every measure heard by a substantive or procedural committee and reported to this convention floor would have to have a public hearing.

I think that's inherent in the rules, all the way through.

Mr. Burson You're saying "public hearing" as distinguished from "public committee meeting" for consideration.

Mr. Flory No. That's one and the same thing. The hearing constitutes the meeting because you have to have the quorum before you can have the hearing.

Mr. Burson What I want to understand is that you're saying you've got to have a hearing where you take testimony on that particular item as distinguished from just a public committee meeting where maybe nobody wants to give testimony on it. That's what I'm trying to find out.

Mr. Flory No, sir. All this says is that if a committee's considering a proposal, the public has the right to be heard. They don't have to be heard if no one appears. But, if they have the hearing, the public has a right to be heard.

Mr. Burson That's what I wanted to know.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendments read. Amendments adopted: viva voce. Previous Question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 61. Form of Reports. The Chairman of a substantive committee shall write after each proposal or resolution only the words "reported favorably," "reported unfavorably," "reported with amendments," "reported without action," "reported without action with recommendation that it be recommitted to the Committee on _____," "reported by substitute," as the case may be, which report shall be signed by the chairman. Should amendments be proposed, such amendment or amendments shall be written on a separate paper, original and two copies, numbered consecutively, and attached to the proposal or resolution, and under no circumstances shall words or sentences be interlined on the body of the measure, and the same be marked while in possession of committee.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Triche Mr. Stagg, I notice in Rule No. 60, as the reference to minority report, then in Rule No. 61 which sets out what the committee report shall be, there's no reference to minority report. What I'd like to know is, what significance will a minority report have, and can you illustrate for us how it would work? I'm concerned with the mechanics of it. If a proposal comes out of the committee and is reported favorably, then we move and so advance it to third reading and so forth, when we do consider a minority report which may report it unfavorably, when would the minority report be considered, and which reports would take preference? How would the minority report reach the floor of the convention?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Triche, don't go away. On usual parliamentary procedures when a committee report is rendered, and a minority report is rendered at the same time as the majority report, the Chair would consider that the minority report is a substitute to the committee report and handle it in that fashion. That is my understanding of the way deliberative bodies such as this one operate.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Stagg, this deals with proposals that are reported out of committee. Where we say here, "should amendments be proposed, such amendments and so forth, shall be attached," I assume. I take it to mean that this means amendments that are approved by the committee, and not just any amendment that might be submitted to the committee. Is that correct?

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. Stagg That's correct, sir.

Mr. Drew Mr. Stagg, I questioned your explanation awhile ago that a minority report would be considered a substitute report.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Drew, it was my understanding that in the Louisiana House of Representatives, when a committee's minority report accompanies the majority report to the floor, that it is considered as a substitute to the majority report.

Mr. Drew I was under the impression you said it would be handled by the committee. Did you mean by the convention?

Mr. Stagg By the convention, sir.

Mr. Drew Another question, Mr. Stagg. I believe we adopted an amendment requiring the majority of the committee to sign committee reports; in this case, we say only "Chairman." Should we not amend it to comply with the other amendments?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Drew, it's possible that we should. Would you find that for me, and we'll look at it together?

[Previous Question ordered on the Rule.
Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 62. Notice of Committee Meetings. A. No committee meetings may be held unless notice thereof is given in the following manner: The chairman of the committee or the members of the committee calling the meeting shall notify the Secretary of the Convention of the time, date, and place of the committee meeting. Within twenty-four hours thereafter the Secretary shall mail notices of such meeting to all members of the committee, all persons who have filed written requests for notice with the Secretary, and to all members of the Convention who have introduced proposals on the subject matter to be considered. The committee hearing shall not be scheduled less than four days from the date of notice to the Secretary. This rule shall apply only when the convention is not in session.

B. Committee and subcommittee meetings while the Convention is in session may be called by the chairman or by a majority of the convention members upon twenty-four hour notice given by announcement from the floor of the Convention and by posting the notice thereof on a designated bulletin board in the vicinity of the floor of the Convention at least twenty-four hours before such meeting.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, in reviewing these rules by the committee during the recesses, a member of the committee suggested an amendment in the way of a technical amendment in that we have in line 4, it was suggested that the word "call"...

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, do you have the technical amendment drawn?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir, in my hand.

Mr. Henry Well, would you hand it up to the Clerk, please, sir?

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Stagg]. On page 20, line 4, immediately after the word "meetings" and before the word "while" insert the word called.

Amendment No. 2. On page 20, line 6, immediately after the words "of the" and before the words "members" strike out the word "Convention" and insert in lieu thereof "committee".

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, it's a technical amendment to cure an oversight by the Rules Committee... the language was unclear about what meetings, and it simply says, "the meetings called while the convention is in session" and it was an error to say "by the majority of the members of the convention." It was erroneous. It should have said "committee members" and those are the corrections that are attempted to be supplied by the technical amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment read. Technical Amendments adopted: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Stagg]. On page 19, line 28, immediately after the word "or" and before the words "the members"--page 19, line 28, after the word "or" and before the words "the members" insert the words "one of".
Amendment No. 2. On page 19, line 28, immediately after the word "meeting" and before the word "shall" insert the following: "under the authority of Rule 59".

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, this simply ties the language down as to the calling of those meetings, and we did in No. 59 allow members of the committee, when the chairman wouldn't call it, or didn't call it, the members of the committee could call the meeting, and the sentence would now read "The chairman of the committee or one of the members of the committee calling the meeting under the authority of Rule 59 shall notify the Secretary of the Convention," etc. It merely strengthens the language and tightens it down.

[Previous Question ordered. Technical amendments adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. De Blieux. Amendment No. 1. On page 19, line 33 after the comma ",", following the word "Secretary" and before the word "and" add the following: "the news media of the area where the committee meeting is being held."

Explanation

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, I think we have already agreed that we wanted to give as much public notice and publicity to these committees as possible. This just assures that everyone is notified by the news media so that they will know that this meeting is being held. I think it's good public relations that we let the news media know when we're having a meeting.

Questions

Mr. Keen Senator, I understand the purport of your amendment, and I'm in accord with giving the news media as much notice as we can concerning our meetings. But, suppose we go into an area, and for one reason or another, the committee doesn't have full information about all of the news media, and we overlook one of the members of the news media, do you consider that the failure to give notice to that particular member of the news media would have some effect upon the validity of the committee action?

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. De Blieux I don't anticipate that, Mr. Kean. Of course, I think that it's going to be...we're going to have to have the cooperation of the news media in letting us know who's operating in any particular area, and might want notice. They can do that under the request because anyone requesting notice is entitled to receive it. I think that they'll give us the cooperation in letting us know who should be notified in any area where the committee's going to meet.

Mr. Womack Senator De Blieux, my question is that if I understood the amendment, it's the news media in the area where the committee meeting would be heard; is that right, or would be held?

Mr. De Blieux That's correct, Rep. Womack.

Mr. Womack Suppose, then, that you're having a committee meeting in Baton Rouge, in the area that would most likely be affected, would be affected most would be southwest Louisiana or Lafayette and Lake Charles area, and giving it to the news media in Baton Rouge might not necessarily serve the purpose. I just wonder if we've given a broad enough definition to the news media, or maybe we should define "news media" as the capitol press, and assuming then that when you give it to the capitol press, that it will cover, that releases will cover the state.

Mr. De Blieux As I understand it, the Associated Press and the United Press all have wires to each of the news agencies throughout the state, and I think if they give it to both of those, it'd be sufficient because they would get publicity throughout the state.

Mr. Womack By the same token, Senator, if you were holding a meeting in Winnsboro, you would be required to give it to the first in town which might not come out and be printed until three or four days after the meeting was held. This is the question I raise.

Mr. De Blieux Well, that's true, but that's the situation. We'll be glad when you all get daily papers up there.

Mr. Tobias Senator De Blieux, is it not true that the Committee on Public Information is charged with this? I refer specifically to Rule No. 5D, which provides that the Committee on Public Information is supposed to inform the public as to the activities of the convention, and is not the meeting of the committees one of these activities? In other words, isn't your proposal nothing but redundancy?

Mr. De Blieux I don't anticipate that because the chairman is the one that's going to be responsible for calling the meetings, and I think that either he can notify the committee who in turn is going to notify the newspapers, or else he should notify the newspapers and the other news media in the area. Now, I think that the Committee on Publicity would be of great assistance to the secretary of the convention or the secretary of the committee by furnishing him the list of all the news media in the particular area where a committee's going to be held.

Mr. Tobias Is not the proper procedure to have the chairman of the committee inform the committee on public information, and proceed by that method rather than any other?

Mr. De Blieux Well, I think it might be advisable to do that in addition to what I have requested, but we just want to be sure that nobody's left out because they didn't get notice of the meeting.

Mr. Silverberg Perhaps I misunderstood you, Senator, but did I understand you to mean that sufficient notice would be accepted if you were giving these news releases to the Associated Press and the United Press in Baton Rouge?

Mr. De Blieux No, what I was saying, Mr. Silverberg, that if you give notice to the Associated Press, and the United Press, most likely it would reach all of the news media in the state because I believe that practically everything that disseminates, that is every kind of a vehicle you have that disseminates news has a subscription to one or the other or both of those outlets.

Mr. Silverberg Well, Senator De Blieux, I don't think...are you familiar with the makeup of the press in the State of Louisiana, if we're going to limit ourselves to the press? Let me tell you that...are you familiar with the fact there are a hundred and twenty some-odd newspapers in the State of Louisiana, and only a small handful have a lease wire such as Associated Press and United Press?

Mr. De Blieux I'm not in the newspaper field, but I am acquainted with some of the reporters that give me trouble every once in a while whenever I say something wrong, but I think that...that is, I don't know how you would do it otherwise in giving notice that way to...maybe, the capitol press or something of that sort.

That's where the Committee on Publicity can come in handy by letting the chairman know or the secretary know in which area that they have papers that may not have connections with other news media in the state as to where they can get these notices. I think that if they would file their notices or addresses, or wires or whatever they want with the secretary that then they could be assured of getting notices of these meetings that would be held in their area.

Mr. Silverberg Are you familiar with the fact that Louisiana Press Association is domiciled in Baton Rouge out at the University?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, I am.

Mr. Silverberg Are you familiar with the fact that the press of this state is very, very anxious to cooperate with this convention, and would be delighted to have the Press Association facilities used for notices of this type?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, I am, and that's the reason for my amendment because I know the press wants to cooperate with us and therefore, we want to cooperate with the press by being assured that they get these notices of these meetings.

Mr. Silverberg My whole point in asking this question is: Would you think that we can do a better job by using a facility that's statewide for notification, than just using the press as an area?

Mr. De Blieux Well, I don't know, Mr. Silverberg. I could not say that, but I do think that the people in the particular area where the committee's being held most likely would be those that would attend the committee hearing, and for that particular reason, they certainly ought to just receive notice of that through their local news media.

Point of Order

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman, is this not out of order? As I read this, this amendment by Senator De Blieux should be well taken care of under the Committee on Public Information which is a procedural committee and this particular rule is directed more to delegates. So, I would ask that you consider this out of order and ask that you rescind that, Senator De Blieux. Your request, it will be taken care of under the...

Mr. Henry I think that the amendment's in order. I can't guarantee that it'll pass, Dr. Weiss. But, I don't think there's anything wrong with the offerinn of the amendment at this time.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I hesitate to rise in opposition to the amendment because it is somewhat like the one Mr. Champagne had up here. If you vote against it, you're against people making their views known in a language other than the English language. If you vote against this, you're against the news media, and that's not good these days. My part is that if you weighed the provisions of the rule, you will find that the secretary has an obligation under the rule to mail notices of such meetings to all members of the committee, all persons who have filed written requests for notice with the secretary and all members of the convention who have introduced proposals on the subject matter to be considered. Now, that's an affirmative obligation on the secretary that I think he can discharge. He knows who the members of the committee are. He knows the persons who have filed written requests for notice, and he knows who the persons are who have introduced proposals on the time for the hearing. But, for the secretary to have the obligation of notifying all the news media in the area in which the hearing is going to be held is an impossible responsibility because I don't even know what the news media consists of in many areas. We are simply imposing again upon an officer of the convention, just as we would again with the committee of the convention an impossible responsibility. Now, if the news media in an area wants to be notified or if the Press Association generally wants to be notified, all they've got to do is file a request with the secretary, and they get the notice. The failure to get that notice, in my opinion, would invalidate the committee action. But, when you give the secretary some responsibility to give notice to the news media, I think we're giving him a responsibility again that's impossible to discharge, and I would oppose the amendment for that reason and no other.

Questions

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Kean, is it your understanding of this rule that any portion of the news media that would request notification of these committee meetings would have to file one and only one request of that notice with the Secretary of the Convention?

Mr. Kean That would be my opinion, Mr. Anzalone, and all that the AP or whoever the United Press is these days, and Mr. Silverberg, for his newspaper, would file a request with the Secretary saying that we wish to be notified of all committee meetings and I think then, the Secretary has the information that he can use in discharging the duty that's imposed on him under this particular rule. Otherwise, he's at a loss as to how to comply, so I think we put at issue the validity of our hearing.

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Kean, would you yield to one more question?

So, that conceivably speaking on the first day, after these rules were adopted, any news media that wants notice of any committee meeting subsequent to that day would only have to file one and one request only.

Mr. Kean That's my understanding of the rule; yes, Sir.

[Previous Question answered.]

Closing

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I don't think it's going to be such a difficult job, and I think that we want the full cooperation of the press--and I know they want to cooperate with us--we should attempt to cooperate with them. All the members of the news media throughout the state are available; they are available to us; they're available to the chairman or the secretary of these committees, and that's not hard for us to learn who they are and where they are, and what area they cover. So, I just ask for your little cooperation in trying to help them in doing their job that we expect them to do. That's all this amendment would do.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mrs. Zervigon to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 19, line 29, after the word and punctuation "date," and before the word "and" insert the word "place".

Amendment No. 2. On page 19, line 30, before the words "of the committee meeting," delete the word "place" and insert in lieu thereof the word "agenda".

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon The effect of this amendment is that when the notices are sent out giving day, time, and place, they also include the agenda. Then, anyone wishing to testify before the committee will know what the committee is considering, and can better decide whether or not he or she wants to appear.

[Amendments reread. Previous Question ordered. Amendments adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mrs. Zervigon to the resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 20, delete lines 2 through 10 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof, the following:

Mrs. Zervigon has another amendment she'd prefer at this time. Also on page 20, line 1, after the words "four days" in line 1, delete the remainder of the line and insert in lieu thereof ", not counting Saturdays, Sundays and holidays, after the mailing of the notices by the secretary."

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon I just didn't want you all to get tired of seeing me, and have my further amendment just...jeopardize this amendment. The effect of this amendment would be that anyone who's taken the time to notify the secretary that he or she is interested in being informed of committee meetings would receive a timely notice. I was a little worried that four days after the notice had been handed to the secretary including Sundays, holidays, and Saturdays, would not be adequate notice to those who had expressed enough interest to request that their names be given to the secretary.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn If you place a notice on a Thursday or a Friday in the post office, and that means we've got till four days, excluding Saturday and Sunday, we've got Monday and Tuesday. So, it would be six or seven days we have to get the notice. In my area, the mail comes to your destination on a Saturday. It might not be delivered Monday, but all the mail you receive Saturday or Sunday is delivered Monday morning. Now, you are preventing a committee from meeting for a period of six days, if this amendment is adopted; is that not true?

Mrs. Zervigon That's true. Since we have now only 11 days for committee meetings without the convention being in session and five months thereafter for committee meetings when the convention is in session, I don't see this as a real hold up to our activities. It isn't as if we are like the legislature where everything must be done in thirty to sixty days. I think we have time to consider everything and to let the people, that we've let know that we want here, know when we are available to hear them and let them come and address us on the subject in which they are interested.

Mr. Rayburn Would a telephone message relieve the questions you have?

Ms. Zervigon To those who filed their names on the list?

Mr. Rayburn Yes.

Ms. Zervigon If it would not overburden the secretary, I'd be glad to withdraw this and send up and [an] amendment to that effect. The problem with that is we don't know how many people whose names are going to be on the list.

Mr. Rayburn Well, I still object, I want the floor.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm a little concerned about a lot of things we've done since we've been here, primarily the cost of this convention. The reason I'm deeply concerned, I'm Chairman of the Finance Committee and the Budget Committee. If we continue in the pace that we've been going, we're going to spend the initial allocation trying to adopt some rules to operate under. We've got to take all this... everything everybody says we've got to transcribe it; we've got to take it verbatim. We've got to send out special notices; we've got to send them out. Now, a four day period is unknown to me as a member of the legislature. All the provisions I know of is a twenty-four hour notice. Now, if you exclude Saturdays and Sundays, you're talking about a six day period. If we are going to do everything that some of you said we're going to do--and you might here. The keep you away six days--you won't have time to perform your duties. Every notice we send out you've got to wait six days if you send it out on a Friday before you convene. I think you should think of that. I think you should think of what you're going to extend the cost of this convention meeting. You're looking at one that's got to provide the money, and I guess I'm a politician. I've been running for office for thirty-two years, if I live out this term. Thanks to the Lord I've been successful. I don't know how you people got appointed; I think I know, but I don't want to embarrass you. I've served under about five or six governors. They got elected in a political arena just like you came here. The keep you to this mike and say they're nonpolitical--oh no, that's a dirty word, a "politician". Well, I guess I'm a politician. I guess Representative Triche is a politician. I don't know how you got here; you qualified and you ran just like I ran for the office I got, unless you got appointed. Now, if you got appointed, I think we're going a little know a little about politics or you wouldn't be here. I love the Governor--Edwards; think he's a fine man. But, he got to be governor of this state by a majority vote of the people of this state. You can call him a politician or statesman or anything you want to call him. But, I think we're going a little too far in this convention with technicalities. I think we're going a little too far with commas and semicolons--and I'm no educated man. What little education I got, I got it through the hard knocks of life. I got it with the snuff dippers and tobacco chewers and those people, Mr. Champagne, you were talking about. I think we're going a little too far. We're trying to streamline this convention or we're trying to over and above the average thoughts of the people that are going to have to approve what we do. Let me say this, if I wanted to defeat whatever you do here, all I'd have to do is get up and say it costs two hundred thousand dollars for you to adopt some rules to operate under. You ever thought of that? Fifty dollars a day for everybody here--we've been here how many days now young lady? I don't know I'm so confused; I really don't know. I think we've been here three, or four or five. Would you believe that we have spent the dollars that we have spent trying to operate or adopt some procedures or rules to operate under? This could have all been mailed out to us like we done in the legislature. Come over there and you either adopt it or reject it in one day and you've had it or not had it. You know you win or lose.

Now, you nonpoliticians don't know what I'm talking about. If we conti ue at the rate we're going, Brother Stovall,--and I admire you, don't always agree with you--and you too, Mr. Perez--we're going to use at least half the money we've got to make our studies and our deliberations trying to figure out what kind of rules we're going to operate under. Now, we've got to send out a notice--could be six days before you meet. Well, if grandma gets in trouble she calls a doctor, immediately. We've got a law in this state that says a twenty-four hour notice. I think that's adequate; I've heard no complaint. I've been in public office for twenty-eight years. The only trouble I get is because we meet, because they wonder what you're going to do to them next. There ain't nobody worried about when you meet get them notified. They would rather you wouldn't meet if you want to know the truth about it, because everytime you meet you do a little something. Now, you've got to have a six day notice before you meet--six days, believe me--if we adopt this amendment. I just think that somewhere down the line we're going to be like them railroads, TOP, LOOK, AND LISTEN--if you don't do that a train might hit you. Well, if we don't do that, the people are going to hit us, and you can believe what I'm telling you. Here we are; we came here as a bunch of people that knew what we wanted to do when we ran. We told the people that. I ran; I didn't get appointed--didn't want to be appointed--I might be asked to do it. So, there's nothing to you know. So, I decided to run, and I'm here. But, I want to say this, and I'm fixing to close, we'd better look back and look over what we're doing.

We've done some things here that's unheard of to me as far as procedure, as far as recording, as far as committee meetings, and I've had it. I'm not looking for nothing. A lot of you eager beavers that have just come here the first time, I'm for you. I want you to have some of the things I've had. I've won and I've lost. I've had it upside, downside, in the middle and without. I know it from any angle you can talk about. Served under about six governors--been with some of them, been against a lot of them. So, there's nothing you can do for me; there's no glory you can put on my head because I've had a little of all of it. If some of you people that want to be on two or three committees, I'll give you my proxy, if we can get an amendment passed where you can have a proxy, because I'm looking for nothing.

I want to do a good job for the people of this state. I want to submit a constitution that's simple where them snuff dippers and them toba lo chewers and those French people--Mr. Champagne that you're so deeply interested in--can read and understand or get somebody like Mr. Champagne to read it to them. I'm a Baptist, I married a Catholic--and I carry a little something in the back of my car most of you don't carry--I'll meet along with all of them. I'm really not everybody's sweetheart and nobody's gal, somewhere down the line I join up and walk with them, you know. But, there's a lot of people that wants to be everybody's sweetheart and nobody's gal. Those days are gone.

Mr. Henry Senator, you've about exceeded your time, sir.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Mr. Rayburn Okay. Well, I'm fixing...I'm closing. But, I'm going to say this,--and I hadn't been to this microphone many times, I believe this is the second time I've been here to say something, I've asked a few questions--and my grandmother told me when I was a young boy, says, "son, in your endeavors in life don't talk too much; somebody might ask you to explain what you're talking about." That's why I don't talk too much. I hadn't been up here near as much as Mr. Burns, and he represents the same area I do. But, I think you should be cautious; I think you should really evaluate what you're doing because I've got to carry your fight in the legislature, and this little measly three hundred or something thousand dollars we've got I'm afraid won't apt the rules because we... every amendment I see it costs money. Then everybody that runs for office says we don't want to spend no more money; we're going to economize; we're going to save you money. I just... in closing, let me leave that one thought with you, and listen: I've got nothing against this fine lady. I think I voted for every proposal that she's had, she's won more of them than I do. I don't think it's right to say that you have got to give people at least six-days' notice before you meet. Listen, I got engaged on less than a six-days' notice. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes I agree that we probably don't need the six days. We probably could use a faster method say like the telephone or the state police like we did before to get something...to get out a notice, if we have to get out one. But, I would suppose that we...that the hundred and five delegates probably spent more money campaigning to get down here in the legislature than I do. I would suppose that the delegates who are here to write the constitution spent more than the legislature allowed for us after we got here to write it. So, I'm in hopes that no one will use the fact that we don't have any money to write the constitution as a threat for not doing or for not giving people the opportunity to express themselves like they have come here to do. Everyone has probably spent more money than the state would probably reimburse them to get here to write it. It is my hopes that they'll have the freedom to do that without the threat of funds. It's often heard that there is a threat...there is a shortage--I'm sure that the three hundred and fifty thousand won't be enough to write the constitution--we'll go until it runs out, and if there is no more, I guess we'll have to close and go in. But, at the same time I'd like to see everybody do the very best job they can, if it takes it all to write the rules, so we just do that. We'll write the rules and we can stop it there. Sure thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, as a nonpolitician I want to stand here and help support Senator "Sixty" Rayburn in his objection to the amendment. We discussed this--the Rules Committee--quite a period of time from the particularly the hampering of the committees in calling their various meetings. Keep in mind the fact that generally we propose that there will not only be committee meetings, but subcommittee meetings all over the state and we wanted to provide a procedure whereby adequate notice could be given to people, but at the same time, not provide such a long period of time from the time that you decide to have a meeting until the time that the meeting is actually held. So let me read to you the important part of this rule as it now stands. "The Chairman of the committee shall notify the secretary of the convention of the time, date, and place for the committee hearing. Within twenty-four hours or after, the secretary shall mail out the notices of such meetings to all members. The committee hearings shall not be scheduled less than four days from the date of delivery to the secretary. In order to be sure that ample opportunity we given to be able to deliver the matter through the mail giving a three day notice." Let me just close by saying that I've heard a lot of people come up here and say to us, "you fellows on the Rules Committee did a wonderful job, but..." and it's hardly a rule has gone by which has not had substantial amendments. I was hoping that when we passed the more important rules which have already been adopted that we might move along a little more quickly. As Senator Rayburn has said, these meetings are costing us an awful lot of money; we can always change these rules when we come back in July if they are not completely to the liking of the people here. It just seems to me that all of us should try to see if we can't move the proceedings forward more rapidly.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Bileux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, let me say what I was going to say, I think, very briefly; let me tell you this: there'd be no more expense in giving the notice for four-days' than giving a notice for six-days'. No more time. No more expense of money other than the time. I don't know of anything that would be worse than somebody who has notified the committee that he or she wants to be heard, and then because of a holiday or something like that, not have notice and then you have your hearing, you adopt your proposals and then present him--and this individual says I gave them notice; they didn't tell me about them; and, therefore, I didn't have a chance to have my say. You've got a built-in opposition to this constitution right off the start of that. Let me tell you this--I'll answer you Mr. Perez, in this regard--this rule is for the committee hearings that will be held prior to July. After July we will not need this procedure; there's another procedure in effect. I think we need all the help and good graces of the people of the state we can get. I don't think giving them notice that we're going to have a meeting--time and notice--is bad for the relations. I'm going to ask you to go along and vote for the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Ms. Zervion In the interest of saving the convention money I'll just keep my remarks brief, and say that I have objected to the twenty-four limit because when you find out at four o'clock that you need to be in Baton Rouge for eight in the morning to appear before a committee hearing or your views won't be heard, it's very difficult to get a baby-sitter for the morning and get up here. I hope you'll favorably consider this provision.

[Amendments withheld: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Ms. Zervion]. On page 20, delete lines 2 through 10 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "When the Convention is in session there shall be, in addition to the above notice, further notice given by announcement of date, time, place, and agenda of the committee meeting from the floor of the Convention and by posting of same on a designated bulletin board in the vicinity of the Convention floor. A committee may call an emergency meeting obtaining consent of the Convention by a majority vote of those present and by giving forty-eight hours notice as described above."

Explanation

Ms. Zervion This amendment speaks to my same

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

concern. I want us to be able to hear the citizen lobbyists who have expressed an interest in coming to speak to us. There are several citizen groups that I know of that are doing research right now that will be of value to us; the League of Women Voters, the Junior Chamber of Commerce--just to name two. It's very difficult to get your affairs in order and get up here on twenty-four hours' notice. There is no provision as I understand it for mail notice while we're in session. I'd just like to be able to hear all of these folks while we're in session as well as before we convene in July.

Mr. Henry Lady sends up amendments and moves the adoption of the same.

Now, I'd just like for you to read that one more time, Mr. Clerk, because I'm not sure I understand it. If I appreciate what it said, and I know I'm not supposed to comment like this, but it appears to me we're going to have to give about four days' notice on this one, Ms. Zervignon, before we can have a committee hearing while we're in session. I may misunderstand it...I just...I think we should read it again.

[Amendment reread.]

Mr. Henry Now, Ms. Zervignon, if you will allow me the opportunity to comment here, and I'm not trying to kill your amendment, but we're going to assure that there's an abundance of notice on these. I think that you really might hamstring the working of the Convention when you put that forty-eight hour proposition. Now, the Clerk and I just looked at this a minute ago, and there is the possibility it would even require four days when you read all of the rules together on calling such a meeting. I'm not trying to take advantage of you, but I don't think that's what you want to do, is it? You want...

Ms. Zervignon What I want to accomplish is when the committees are working smoothly and logically and have their work planned out, they may give four days' notice. If they find an emergency arises, by the consent of the Convention they could give forty-eight hours. If you want me to withdraw it, submit it...

Mr. Henry No, ma'am, Ms. Zervignon. I have exceeded my latitude, and I apologize to you for it. But, I just wanted to make sure that I understood it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kilpatrick Mr. Chairman, members of this Committee, this is in essence the same thing that the previous amendment said; this is a bad amendment. It would take four days to get all of us here. In the legislature we post these bills on the bulletin board, the press, the T.V. picks it up, and we only have twenty-four hours for a lot of people to come to Baton Rouge to talk about certain things that they are interested in. We don't need all this time. The Rules Committee has adequately gone over this. I've heard the word "nit-picking" and other words here in this auditorium. I feel like it's time for us to move on with these rules that the temporary Rules Committee has placed before us. We've spent a lot of time here; you are all capable men and women; otherwise, you wouldn't be here. Now, each man here could come up here and through a technicality could challenge any sentence, or paragraph, or rule, that has been presented to this body by this temporary Rules Committee. I think that we're doing some things here that would hurt this convention; we don't need all this time. I ask you to defeat this bill and let's go on with this adoption of these rules and regulations and let's move this convention on along--it's five o'clock here now. I think it's time for us to start really reading these and, when we do have our amendments to come up here, let's have them so that we won't be challenging something that's not going to be workable in this Constitutional Convention. We're going to have to sell this to the people--and as Senator Rayburn said--this convention is drawing out here into a long, lengthy, expensive session because of these people coming up here to this mike and taking a lot of time. I've been up here the first time. I could have been up here like many of you, a hundred times to challenge different things that were said in these temporary rules. Most of them were defeated. But, let's get on with sowing and let's defeat this one. I thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Ms. Zervignon The point I wanted to make is that this is not a legislative session; this is a Constitutional Convention. We have more time to plan out our work, more time to consider things. The document that we're supposed to write is supposed to last a hundred years. We want to make certain that the people who we have invited to speak have time to get their affairs in order and address us. If anyone has a substitute proposal that would accomplish this, I would be glad to withdraw it and submit their proposals, but I'm afraid that twenty-four hours' notice is not adequate for people who are not paid lobbyists or delegates to the convention. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

[Amendment reread and rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. De Blieux]. On page 20, line 8 after the word "hereof" add the following: "together with an agenda of the matters to be heard."

Explanation

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, this is just to let the people and the members of the committee and other people know what's going to come up before the committee when the Convention is in session, and you post a notice of the meeting. I don't see much reason for posting a notice that a committee is going to meet unless you can tell the people what it's going to meet about. I've been in legislative committee meetings in which a committee meeting was held, and somebody wants to be heard on a bill and then after you call a bill the chairman says well, I've told somebody else they're going to be heard on that bill next week; we won't hear it today. You attend the meeting; people outside the convention will be attending meetings without knowing what's going to come before the committee. This is just to let the chairman and the committee members post their agenda whenever they post a notice of the meeting. That's all it's about, so the public can be informed. I think we've got to take the public into confidence.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Senator De Blieux, would this apply to any amendment or anything that might come up that some member of the committee might offer to something that had been advertised? If there was an amendment, it might change the structure of the original procedure or the original act? Would your amendment apply to that?

Mr. De Blieux No, Senator Rayburn, this is just a subject matter that's going to be heard at that particular time. As you well know, that these committees will be hearing various proposals on a lot of subject matters, and this just allows the committee or requires the committee to post the subject matter which will be taken up at the committee meeting. We certainly can't take into consideration every amendment which might be offered.

Mr. Rayburn It does not prevent the committee from taking up any amendment that might change the subject matter?

Mr. De Blieux Not at all.

Mr. LeBreton Senator, with reference to details of your amendment, would it be possible to discuss something that was not on the agenda?

Mr. De Blieux Representative LeBreton, I don't believe in hiding things from the people. I think you ought to let them know what you're going to discuss. That's the only purpose of it. If you're going to not post your agenda and not let them know what it is, yes, it's possible for you to take up matters that wouldn't be listed that way. But, I don't think we ought to do it.

Mr. LeBreton What do you conceive that we'll have? Subject matters—like we'll take up something with reference to Judiciary or would it pin point the matter? I'm a little lost as to what you mean by putting on your agenda.

Mr. De Blieux Well, at this particular time you're going to have numerous proposals. You're going to have resolutions that they're going to be referred to the committee for action and hearing. This is why the convention is actually in hearing; this is not the committees outside of the convention we're speaking about now. So, therefore, you have a proposal; you'll list on your agenda Proposal No. so-and-so by the Committee will be heard. Or Proposal No. so-and-so by Representative LeBreton will be heard. Resolution No. so-and-so will be heard. That's the only thing you have to be required to do is just post your agenda that the matters that are going to come up.

Mr. LeBreton Well, I don't know whether your idea is good or bad, but the only thought that occurred to me that it could be hamstringing the committee so much that they couldn't get their work done, or we will be putting so much on the agenda that maybe we wouldn't get to it. In other words, I could conceive as a committee chairman—saying well, gee, I don't know whether this bill is going to take thirty minutes or two hours, so I'll put twenty matters on just to be sure and get my work done. I think this is just another matter of hamstringing the committee. Let the committees run, you know, the way a good committee should be run.

Mr. Henry Mr. LeBreton, please sir, ask your questions rather than making a statement please.

Mr. LeBreton My question is that I think that we're just going to hamstring the committee by making them put an agenda.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. LeBreton, one of the things we have to be assured of that we're not running this convention for the benefit of the delegates. We're going to have to run this convention for the benefit of the public. I'm thinking about giving the public a chance to be heard.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 69. Privileged Motions. When a question is under debate, no motion shall be received except:

1. To fix the time to which to adjourn.
2. To adjourn.
3. To take a recess.
4. To call for the Orders of the Day.
5. To lay on the table.
6. For a call of the Convention.
7. To limit debate.
8. To move the previous question on the entire subject matter.
9. To move the previous question.
10. To postpone to a day certain.
11. To commit, refer, or recommit.
12. To amend.
13. To postpone indefinitely.

The motions listed in this rule shall take precedence in the order in which they stand arranged. All of them shall be decided by the affirmative vote of a majority of those present and voting, except that a motion for the previous question and the previous question on the entire subject matter shall require a vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting, and a motion to postpone indefinitely requires the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates to the convention. When a recess is taken while a question is pending, consideration of such question shall be resumed when the convention reassembles, unless it determines otherwise. No motion to postpone to a day certain, or to commit, having been decided by the convention, shall again be in order on the same day or at the same stage of the question. Whenever a proposal is being considered and a motion is then made, either to postpone indefinitely or to commit, any pending amendments to the proposal shall first be in order before any vote is taken on any such motion."

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Rayburn and Mr. Finn to the resolution: Amendment No. 1. On page 22, line 26, after the word "voting," and before the words "a motion" strike out the words "except that";

Amendment No. 2. On page 22, line 28, after the words "vote of" strike out the words "two-thirds" and insert in lieu thereof the words "a majority".

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, you've just heard some thirteen procedural suggestions made by the Rules Committee. My amendments simply say in one of the suggestions that we scratch the "two-thirds vote" for a previous question motion and leave that to a majority vote. That's the only instance I see where they require a two-thirds vote. I don't know how many of you got a two-thirds vote to come here, but I wasn't quite that fortunate. I almost made it, but it wasn't quite two-thirds. I believe in the democratic form of government. I believe in the majority rule. I think you believe in that. That's the democratic process that I have known from babyhood, childhood, to manhood. I can see with all the commotion that we have here where a minority group could keep us here time and time again when we didn't need to be here. I think that we should strike the "two-thirds" out and insert in lieu thereof--and that's what this amendment does--that "a majority" vote shall prevail. Maybe you don't agree with me, I don't know. But, I know how you got here--all you that ran--and I know how I got here. If they would have had a two-thirds vote, some of you might not have made it--some of us, let me say, might not have made it. I have heard no valid reasons from the Rules Committee as to why with thirteen rules they propose that on the previous question we had to have a two-thirds vote. We've been here several days and that rule has not been in order, and the previous question has been offered most often. I'm a great believer in a majority rule. I know a few two-thirds rules that we've got in this state that's got us in trouble. If we're going to go by a two-thirds rule, let's say you've got to get two-thirds of the vote to come here--which I know is not right, and you know is not right. I'm not trying to cut off any delegates and shut me up here. If I can't convince you--a majority of you--I'll never ask for two-thirds or one-third or a minority to let me continue to speak, 'cause if I can't convince a majority, I need to sit down anyway.
I move the adoption of the amendment.

Question

Mr. Burson Senator Rayburn, am I correct in understanding the purpose of your amendment's to prevent one more than one-third of this convention from filibustering and continuing debate?

Mr. Rayburn That is the purpose of my amendment, Mr. Burson. You are exactly right.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Mr. Chairman and delegates, I just have a few points I'd like to make on this particular motion, this particular amendment. I'd like to point out that I'm emphatically opposed to this amendment for several reasons. All these reasons were brought out at the Rules Committee meeting, and we decided to accept this "two-thirds" vote of the delegates to require that...two-thirds vote required to cut off debate. Some of these reasons--of course, I can't put my reasons as well as Senator Rayburn. Some of those heretofore a nonpolitician; I guess I'm a politician now, so maybe I'd better learn how to put myself a little bit better. But, one of the main things that we need to consider here is this constitution is intended to last a long time. But, before we have a constitution that's going to last a long time, we need to have this thing passed at the polls. The way we ran pass this particular constitution at the polls, is give the minority at this convention a chance to be heard. This is one of the main considerations of not letting a majority cut off debate. Before someone can come up here and shut off debate, I think it should require a two-thirds vote because, perhaps, there is sometimes that maybe three or four votes would be the majority to cut off debate... We need a two-thirds vote required because if a majority could cut off debate, perhaps if debate were not cut off this majority would have voted the other way or would decide to vote the other way if they would hear the other side. But, the present way that we are conducting business, and I'm sure it will be conducted this way at the convention is that people will be recognized in the order that they raise their hand and that the Chairman sees them. Now, it could happen that six or seven people speaking on the same side of one issue could be heard; people would get tired of listening to it and vote for the previous question 'cause they haven't heard any opposition. Well, I think this opposition ought to have a chance to be heard. This is the main thrust of what the Rules Committee did this time. In another way, I think that these people that are at this convention, most of them are not legislators. The legislature and the legislators don't vote for the previous question very often, and the reason they don't is because they know that if they cut off somebody now, they might get cut off later on. But, there are people here, that the Chairman sees, that are legislators and they don't have this particular fear at this time. So, they would be more inclined to vote for the previous question. So, I say we need this little additional safeguard of a two-thirds vote required. Now, there are other safeguards to prevent lengthy debate. An example of that is the fifteen minute limitation on speaking limits to the debate in its entirety. You can move to limit debate to, say, three hours on a particular issue, if you wish. All these things can be done, but I think the minority should have a right to be heard.

5th Days Proceedings—January 17, 1973

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Roy Mr. Annette, I understand your position, but isn't it a fact that when the temporary Rules Committee first met that everybody on it was generally afraid of the thought and the words that would go into that this convention was going to be a stacked convention, and that's the reason that you all had that two-thirds rule, and it really isn't necessary at this time because of all the built-in protection that has not been put on the convention and that we don't really need a two-thirds amendment vote?

Mr. Annette Well, Mr. Roy, if I felt that way, that this two-thirds vote wasn't needed, I wouldn't be up here talking for a two-thirds vote being needed.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Annette, Senator Rayburn suggested that any delegate should be able to convince this body that he should be able to be heard before the vote on whether to cut off debate. But, isn't it correct that when someone makes a motion for the previous question no debate is in order, so that no one can even be heard on the issue of whether or not he should be allowed to talk on that particular issue?

Mr. Annette Mr. Jenkins, of course, you're right. The Senator made his point very clear that he would probably convince anyone if he got a chance to talk. Well, I'll agree. I think someone here could convince the majority if he got a chance to talk. But, the thing about it is he wouldn't get a chance to talk. When you move the previous question, there's no debate. You just sit up there and you vote whether you want to vote on cutting off debate or not. I think that particular two-thirds vote is necessary to give everyone a chance to try to convince the majority.

Mr. Roy You realize, Mr. Annette, that what you are creating is a name when you combine it with Rule 85 when you move to suspend the rules. It takes only two-thirds of those present and voting or a majority of the delegates, whichever is the lesser number, so all you do is move to suspend the rules?

Mr. Annette It's possible that you could go the route. Of course, there are some people that want to amend that particular rule on suspending the rules. So, we might not end up with that same particular rule on suspending the rules.

Mr. Schmitt Isn't it true that Robert's Rules of Order, under which we've been acting up to the present time, uses the two-thirds vote in this particular instance and not the one-half as the amendment?

Mr. Annette Mr. Schmitt, you're exactly right on that, and that's one point I forgot to bring on in my initial address, that we haven't had any trouble with having a two-thirds vote. When the majority or when the sense of the convention was to cut off debate, we haven't had any problem getting a two-thirds vote. The previous question has only failed, say, two or three times out of the ten or twelve times it's been proposed. So, I think we've been doing all right with a two-thirds vote, and I think we need to keep it.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would want to caution you about the amendment as proposed by Senator Rayburn. I think that if this convention is going to succeed in terms of getting full discussion from all viewpoints on the subject matter being discussed, that we ought to at least not make it such an easy winner, such an easy fare, to move the previous question. I would suggest that you that it's as Mr. Jenkins has said, it's not a debatable issue. That is a technique that is used to, one, not only limit debate on an amendment, but you're talking about on the entire subject matter. You're also talking about postponing indefinitely, which means that it's going to require tremendous effort and votes on your part to suspend the rules to get a reconsideration. I think that this is the substance, this is the meat of this whole convention. Will everybody have the opportunity to express themselves? I'm not suggesting that this rule was basically put in to protect minorities and blacks. I'm suggesting that the Rules Committee, in their wisdom, put this rule in to allow every delegate--no matter what his viewpoint is--to express himself. I would caution you very seriously that before you vote that you give some deep consideration to this amendment. I would also say that when you do vote on this matter that remember, it is a non-debatable issue, and that it does not allow and it limits tremendously, and it can be used in any way as to cut off not only discussion, as I said beforehand, on a particular amendment, but I'm talking about on the whole proposition. In that light, I seriously rise and ask that you defeat this amendment.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Representative Jackson, don't you think that in voting against the amendment we take a stand to let all views be heard--the views of the majority as well as the views of the minority--the views of all sections of the State?

Mr. J. Jackson I'll let Mr. Velazquez

Mr. Velazquez Thank you very much, Mr. Jackson.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womeck Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I want to explain how the Subcommittee on Committees happened to so wisely adopt this rule. The subcommittee voted by a majority vote against the two-thirds. I guess I'm the culprit. About the time we had everything done--all the work done--and it was just a matter of wrapping up and putting the final touch to it, I left when probably I shouldn't have and went on to a prior commitment--I don't remember now, I believe late Sunday night or whenever it might have been, but anytime, it was at a late hour--assuming that the final touch was going to be put. If you had had a two-thirds rule for reconsideration, it would never have been reconsidered. One of the young men who pushed so hard for it, that was convinced that you needed by all means a two-thirds, came and told me, he said, "I have completely changed my position and my idea." After having served not quite as long as Senator Rayburn, but in my fifth administration in the House, I have found that about twenty or twenty-five percent of the people are against shutting off debate, I don't care what you're debating. Just say that basically I have a philosophy that everybody ought to be able to talk as long as they want to talk. So, if you get a simple majority to cut off debate, there is a good odds that you've got at least an eighty percent majority of those that have made up their mind. I think nothing in the world could be more convincing that maybe a simple majority is all you need to cut off debate, than the process we've gone through here in the adoption of these rules. We've only used--or will have within the next few minutes--roughly eight hundred and sixty-five thousand feet of tape. I remember very well that the Mafia Committee used roughly five million feet of tape. Like this, it was very important because the Judges, the Supreme Court, the Pope, Chairman of the Baptist Convention, everybody else was going to have to look at that tape in the future. That tape has been locked up in the legislative auditor's office--that some five million feet--since the day of the adjournment of the Mafia Committee. Until this time, nobody has ever looked at it yet. So, I'm just telling you that some of the things that we are convinced are so holy may not be quite as important. I think in the essence of moving on, that if you get a simple majority, you've already got a two-thirds or a three fourths, and there's a number of times when the delegates to a committee, a subcommittee, or convention are going to be convinced that their mind is made up beyond any question. They are going to be ready to vote "cause there's going to be enough people to say that, what he said a while ago, "I'm not going to shut off debate, because if I shut off debate on him, I'll be the victim of shutting off debate tomorrow." There's a fair chance if you get twenty-five percent to shut off debate you've got enough to overwhelmingly carry the side that the shutting off debate was on. This not being able to shut off debate has cost us many, many hours of work in the House that we wouldn't have had. It's cost, to a great extent, two or three hundred bills not to get final action in the last regular session of the legislature. What I'm saying to you now, I don't want to shut off anything that's worthwhile; nobody else wants to. I go back to what I mentioned to the speaker a while ago, it's his job to maintain order. It's your job as a speaker to maintain attention. In your debating, if you're offering something that you can capture the attention of the delegates, and you're contributing something to the issue at hand, I don't think you'll ever have a problem with the simple majority in an attempt to cut off debate. Thank you.

ROLL CALL

[117 Members present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Warren Let us all bow our heads; as we come in his own way pray. Father in heaven, as we each today, a long day that appears to be hectic... I spent many hours with the Lord last night and I didn't know I was going to be called to pray... I'm asking You, Heavenly Father, that to find us and every one of us here that our hearts may deal with each other as we would have each other deal with us. Let us be brothers and sisters in love. Let us think about the unborn generations that will have to live with this constitution. Let no man, no woman come in here and believe that he should stop anyone from having a vote. I'm going to pray and ask You, Heavenly Father, to find us and keep us; then and many other blessings I ask in the name of Jesus and for his sake. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

RESOLUTIONS ON FINAL PASSAGE

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Mr. Rayburn and Mr. Ginn to Rule No. 69.

Amendment No. 1. On page 22, line 26, after the word "voting" and before the words "a motion" strike out the words "except that"

Amendment No. 2. On page 22, line 28, after the words "vote of" strike out the word "two-thirds" and insert in lieu thereof the words "a majority".

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, these amendments simply strike out the two-thirds vote and insert in lieu thereof "a majority." I believe the Rules Committee came up with some thirteen motions that could be made if we adopt the rules. This is the only one that I noticed that requires a two-thirds vote. Personally, I cannot see any need for a two-thirds vote; maybe you can, but I cannot. I can see, however, where a two-thirds if it's left in the rules could cause us to stay here hour after hour when we really... it really wouldn't be necessary. So, that's my purpose of the amendments. I think they are good amendments; you may differ with me. But, certainly that's why we are here. I can see where if I wanted to prolong this I would try to get me four or five people and get their name on the list and we'd just keep on talking. I've seen that done before, knowing all the time we didn't have a chance and we were going to get beat, but just trying to confuse the matter. I think a majority vote is a democratic way of doing things and that's why I offered the amendments.

Further Discussion

Mr. DeBlieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I oppose this amendment and I would like to tell you the reasons why I'm opposed to it. There is a difference between the rules we adopted here and the rules we have in the legislature. In the Senate, which Senator Rayburn and I served in, we do not have any limitation on debate; you have to vote for a limitation. Here every delegate is limited to fifteen minutes and that can only be extended by a vote of this convention. Therefore, there is no possibility of absolutely filibustering something to death, as we see it. But, I can certainly see this, that if you get three or four people on one side of an issue with the last one agreeing to ask for the previous question and the other side not having been heard, you can certainly cut off your opposition. We should have a a free convention. We should have a convention in which everyone is allowed to speak his piece. Let me tell you one of the biggest dangers in this. Suppose you want to get the floor to offer an amendment. If somebody calls for the previous question before you have had a chance to offer your amendment, which may make a lot of difference in the subject matter as whether or not it's approved or rejected, you will not have a chance if somebody asks for the previous question previous to the time that you wanted the floor. Now, I've been serving in that legislature a long, long time. I don't believe I've ever tried to keep somebody from having their say. I might not agree with them. I might not want to hear what they say. But, certainly I think they have as much right to be heard as I do. I'll fight as long as I possibly can for their right to say it. I just think if we are going to have a free, open convention and after all let's remember this, ladies and gentlemen, in the legislature we can correct the errors and mistakes we make from year to year. But, if we adopt the type of constitution which I think that we will adopt, it may be a long, long time, much longer than this fifty years, before we have another constitutional convention. So, let's be careful and try to not make waste with haste but put down something that will last us a long, long time by carefully considering and hearing everybody's viewpoints on it before we come to a conclusion. I do not think that two-thirds vote necessary to cut off debate is too much to ask of the convention delegates. So, I ask you, let's reject this amendment and keep the two-thirds rule. We are not going to kill anything with a two-thirds rule, I can tell you that right now.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if I had been called yesterday before adjournment to speak on this subject, I would have passed because I thought maybe it might have made us all feel good to have heard somebody say "pass," and not come up and take up unnecessarily so, the valuable time of this convention. I think everyone should come before the microphone and express his or her views concerning any rule that we are considering at this time. But, I think like some of the other speakers before me have expressed, that a lot of us come up unnecessarily and sometimes too often. We have kept score on the appearance of some of the delegates before this microphone in some of the days that have passed. We have found that some have come up as many as ten times in one day. I think that is all right. I think they also have a perfect right to. But, I think we should also consider the other delegates of this convention. We should be considerate of the fact that they too have a sincere and genuine interest in this convention. They, too, would like to come to the mike but they don't feel that they have anything that is extremely important and effective insofar as the rule is concerned and, therefore, prefer not to come up. Now, I don't intend to take up too much of your time but I have wanted to say that regarding this rule in particular that we don't want to cut off anybody from debate. But, if we allow what has existed thus far in this convention to continue in the future, there is no telling how long it will take to write a constitution for the people of this state. We have had long sessions and none necessarily so. But, if we didn't have a rule that would allow us to cut off debate by a simple majority, there is a possibility that there is no telling how long it would take us to conclude the work of this convention. So, I, therefore, appeal to you to strike out the two-thirds rule if you're present and let's go with the simple majority. Let's be considerate of each other. Let's realize that the Rules Committee prepared these rules with several days here we are in the third week and we are not yet completed with our work in the rules. So, let's be considerate of each other. Let's appreciate the work that the Rules Committee has done and let's try to confine ourselves to the necessity of speaking to this microphone to discuss the rule. Let's vote for a majority cutoff in debate. Thank you.

Further Discussion

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, there is much merit in the arguments of the proponents of this amendment to reduce this vote to a majority vote. I can see there is merit in that. I have one point to make though in opposition to this amendment. First, I think that we are entitled to full discussion of all questions. But, the basic reason that I was the major proponent of this in committee, and it was by a divided vote in that committee, is the public image that we may give; we've heard a lot about it ever since the beginning of this convention. If this gag rule is permitted to operate with a simple majority and not allow the public of Louisiana to see full discussion on both sides of the question, it could easily be the factor that would reject the entire proposal. I urge you to defeat it. Let's show the public that we are going to give them the benefit of everybody's opinion. Thank you.

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson I'm sure in that box score that Mr. Fulco has been keeping, I'm probably one of the leaders. So, you may be surprised that I'm up here to speak in favor of the limitation on debate. So, if things continue the way they are going, I would probably be getting cut off more than just about anybody. My reasons are basically that if this were the best of all possible worlds and we had five years to work on writing a new constitution, we could afford to talk until everybody was out of breath. But, we have got a year's time in which to do this work, and I think many processes of learning and discussion which will be going on other than the floor of the convention. We should all be doing homework, reading in the areas of interest. We'll have committee meetings where people can have their say. As you know, we've had many, many informal discussions in the hotel over dinner and these will continue. So, the floor of the convention and the debate process is the only means for exchanging information. It's been brought out that we do have a limitation on debate of fifteen minutes per person. But, do you realize that an interest group that wanted to stall this convention, if it would organize only thirty-two people with fifteen minutes apiece, that would take eight hours of debate? Do you all realize that we've got in Rule No. 85 the right given and I have an amendment which I hope will change that, but I don't know whether it will yet—under Rule No. 85 we allow anyone to ask for reconsideration of any measure even if he voted on the losing side so that theoretically if the measure were defeated, let's say, by a vote of ninety to thirty that as soon as it were defeated somebody on the losing side could get a thirty—could get up here and move for reconsideration. You'll remember when Mr. Stinson moved for reconsideration the other day the Chairman pointed out to us that the motion for reconsideration is debatable. You can debate the merits of the matter that's under reconsideration. So, theoretically and very possibly we could be debating an issue that the overwhelming majority of this convention had already decided two or three different times, at fifteen minutes a man. The only way we could cut off debate would be by a two-thirds vote. I submit to you that it may off at the end down in the dog days in September, November and December make it impossible for us to finish our work. After all, it is not a debating society, it is a constitutional convention. I think that the public is likely to be as concerned about those of us that take too much time talking as they are about not having the full discussion and debate. I think a lot of that full public discussion I'm going to occur in our committees. I'll just close by referring to the argument on minority rights which I probably the strongest argument that's been advanced on keeping this thing at two-thirds. But, I would remind you that you will all recall some years ago hearing a great deal on faith and belief about a minority of authors members in the United States Senate that managed to thwart the will of the overwhelming majority of the House of Representatives and of the Senate for years on the question of the passage of Civil Rights Acts by filibustering. Please, let's not have that same kind of thwarting of the will of the majority to go on in this convention, by interminable debate.

Further Discussion

Mr. Ginn Ladies and gentlemen, the purpose of this amendment is not necessarily to suppress debate or prevent amendments at all because I feel our Chairman has been exerting leadership and he's been very cooperative. He keeps a list of those of these amendments, and I don't think we have that fear of ignoring someone's amendment. We have been using the majority vote in this very convention; we've been using it. You out there have been voting for it. Robert's Rules of Order, page 111, says Congress uses it. Mason's Manual, page 235, says that legislative bodies and governmental bodies use it. The Louisiana House uses the majority; you that are representatives have voted for it. Senators here have voted for it in the Louisiana Senate. So, I feel we ought to use it here in this convention. One comment was that there is a difference between the previous question on pending matter and on the entire subject matter. Then, if you'll read our rules I don't feel that we have a fear of affecting an entire article because Rule No. 45, pages 13 and 14 provide for a section by section consideration. I would like to concur with Mr. Burson; I believe in rights for everyone. But, do you also think it's right for a minority to thwart the wishes of the majority of this convention? Do you think that a handful of men can stop the purposes of the rest of the gentlemen and ladies here? I would think that the majority are losing some of their rights. One of the main reasons is that after we deliberate for a long time, you hear both sides two or three times, we waste time, we're wasting the taxpayers money—down here—you've heard a lot of talk about money—our minds are already made up, we know how we're going to vote, so why waste time? I appreciate your consideration.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Don't you feel that the best method for what was initially a minority opinion to become a majority opinion is through open debate and through consideration of all the issues rather than having a shutoff in debate?

Mr. Ginn Well, considering the shut off, a majority can also prevent it—the previous question—not only pass it. But, everyone is getting their chance to speak; Bubba is calling on them; the Clerk is keeping the list up there; I don't think we have that fear.

Mr. Velazquez Do you really think that we have a concrete majority here or do we have a changing majority? I've noticed many of these votes and it seems to me that the majority isn't always the same people.

Mr. Ginn Well, that's true; that proves that we have an independent convention.

Mr. Velazquez Wouldn't you say that if you want to keep it independent, then you have to continue to keep the two-thirds rule?

Mr. Ginn No, I don't.

Mr. Velazquez I can't see how you say you want to hear everyone's opinion; you want to hear all sides. But, once you reach a point where a certain number of people have spoken, you want to cut off debate entirely.

Mr. Ginn Well, there you go again. If the majority wishes to not have the previous question, they can vote accordingly.

Mr. Velazquez Then you must believe then that a majority is concrete; that the people who comprise the majority on a point today will necessarily be a majority on the point ten minutes from now.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Ginn That may be true.

Mr. Velazquez Haven't you noticed a trend that we tend to either vote yes or no here in hopes that when a series of questions are brought before the body, the body will vote yes for a period of time? Then, there will be a break and the body will vote no. Then, there will be a break and the body will vote yes. But, the body very seldom alternates between yes and no.

Mr. Ginn Well, that may be concerning different issues.

Mr. Velazquez It seems to me...wouldn't you say that the issue point is somewhat different from the concrete majority point?

Mr. Ginn Well, that's one of the main purposes that I'm supporting the previous question, if you follow my line of thinking.

Mr. Velazquez I believe...do you believe that following your line of thinking you should necessarily come to the conclusion that you've come to?

Mr. Ginn Well, I'd appreciate your support.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, I want to bring out one or two points. First, I want to mention that I'm for this amendment. I don't think we need a two-thirds rule in this instance. Now, this is not like a legislature. We are going to do all the committee work and everybody is going to have the results before...beginning July 5, the convention is going to take all the material from the eight committees. Now, if any place you'd need the two-thirds, it would be a legislature, not here. In the legislature unless you are on a committee, you don't see that bill till it hits the floor, couple of days after it comes out of the committee. But, here, all the constitutional work is going to be finished by the committees before July 5 when the convention really gets underway. If you've done your homework, you're going to be familiar with this material that the convention is going to finally pass on. You are not going to listen to as many speakers. You are going to have your decision made up probably in lots of things, because you have heard the experts at these meetings of the committees because we're just eight committees in all. If you do your homework, you should know all the material that's passed on; you're an entirely different position. Now, if it was just the opposite, that this work would come out of the committees and two days later this convention took up that work, I would want a two-thirds because I would not have had time to study it. I would immediately say, we can't correct our errors like where you have two Houses in the legislature. But, we are not in that position. So, let's consider the position we are in. I hope you've followed the argument. Eight committees will do all the work for the whole new constitution and prior to July 5th, when the whole constitutional convention gets to work, you are going to have plenty of time to do your homework, to go over it. So, you don't need any two-thirds. A simple [sic] majority is the proper thing to cut off further debate. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, delegates of the Convention, again today I rise in opposition to the amendment as proposed. I'd still like to bring to your attention that the matter of moving the previous question is often known as a device to rally, to a large extent, to cut off debate. The sad part about it--and the part that concerns me about it-- is that it's a nondebatable item. You don't even have a chance to debate the merits of either moving the previous question, or of determining what happens when a speaker--that the previous question will be based upon the merit of the person up here speaking, rather than on the content of what he's trying to get over to the body. Another thing I'd like to point out is that there are fifteen-minute limitations as been proposed by the Rules Committee, which offers as a device to bring extending long debating on the part of delegates. I would also like to mention that, on yesterday, it got to a point they were kind of tired and it was getting kind of late, and there were some very good amendments, in the estimation of some of the delegates, that the previous question was moved and that we have about four amendments right off the bat because a few say "I move the previous question." I'd like for you to reflect upon that in one of those rules--I believe that's Rule No. 69--it shows the precedence of certain motions. In your Rules Committee, you'll find throughout some conventions that the question...that the point of moving the previous question was so dominant that there was great consideration as to whether it was going to be the risk of order. As Senator De Bieux has said, if someone wants to draw an amendment that you want to put to a bill, the previous question--which is nondebatable--has precedence over a motion to amend. I'd also like to suggest that, you know, we talk about the taxpayers' money. Granted, I'm in the legislature, and we do operate on a simple majority, but I also say that I have seen times--and that to some of the statements that have been made--I have seen times where the previous question has been used as a technique to limit the debate because, if you had your votes counted, you'd just run with it. I'd also like to point out that, in the legislature also, we can come back next year. If our bill was killed by the previous question--over the previous question or entire session order--and is postponed indefinitely, I can come back next year and reintroduce it. We cannot come back to this convention next year and reintroduce a matter which is of great importance. With those factors in mind, I suggest that I do realize that it's a double-edged sword. But those persons who are concerned that a minority may control the convention--and I think I speak for those persons who are concerned that it may be the black delegates of this convention could hold up the majority will--I am suggesting to you that that's numerically impossible; in fact, that there are only twelve here at this convention. I would also suggest that, when we talk about minority in the sense of the two-thirds votes, we're talking about people who have different viewpoints and that that minority is not confined to the fact of that whether I'm a black delegate or not. I would say that, in closing, that I would ask that this convention give some careful consideration because, as I mentioned, there are certain things in the rules that will limit tremendously anybody sitting up here and excessively debating over and over again. I think you can only speak to the question once, and you can only speak fifteen minutes; so it's almost impossible for someone to get up here and debate so that the two-thirds vote, as I construe it by being present at the Rules Committee, was to be a device whereby we would ensure that all viewpoints would be represented. With that, Mr. Chairman, I again acknowledge my opposition to the amendment as proposed. I assume there were some questions.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Can you see a "gag" rule ever allowing complete revelation of all the facts?

Mr. J. Jackson If I understand your question...if I can understand your question--and I want to seriously suggest that when I respond to your question, I respond to it out of my experience and not out of what I believe--that, while I do have the feeling, which is nondebatable like a previous question, that this is a vote to gag a convention, it does not mean that I'm not talking about negative--it's a gag rule.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

constructive debate on any particular issue.

Mr. Leithman Representative Jackson, it's difficult to put this in a question form, but you mentioned about the minority, and I listened with interest because I certainly believe that, when that word was used here previously, there's no doubt in my mind that a minority reflected upon a small group of people opposing an issue. I don't think it was a black-white...

Mr. J. Jackson Right. I'm not suggesting that it was, but I really feel that when we talk about a minority, we're talking about viewpoints.

Mr. Leithman So, my question is this: Do you realize that we could get thirty people on a minority stand and put these thirty people on the stand to be heard; and with each going his full period of time, do you realize we could be talking about as much as one hundred and twenty-five hours? I think just a few thirty people wouldn't be difficult to come by, and I think a hundred and twenty-five hours could literally kill any and all items that come up. Do you realize this?

Mr. J. Jackson I realize that, but I only suggest to you that that's like a, you know, like a two-edge sword. You know, I recognize that. It's like a two-edge sword. So, I'm suggesting that I would rather see that, if there was some sort of motion to allow at least--once the previous question is raised--at least allow the number of people--a limited number of people--to speak after the previous question, then that'll be D. K. But, as it stands right now, that a simple majority--and I guess it's a fear I have, Representative Leithman; and, if the will of the convention is so that we, that we stick with the simple majority, then as far as I'm concerned, you know, you know, I'm bound to go along with those rules. But, I want everyone to be very cognizant of the fact that this is a very crucial issue. It addresses itself, primarily, to the heart of what we're all about, in the terms of discussion--constructive and positive discussion. I think that, when we vote on this, that ought to look at the previous question, rather than looking at it in the sake of that a minority can stop it. I'm particularly interested in the opportunity for all viewpoints to be heard.

Mr. Duval Representative Jackson, isn't it true that, by a motion to limit debate, you can limit debate on a particular matter to a specific limit of time--a half an hour or an hour--so that, actually, the points made by thirty-some-odd people controlling this is actually quite fallacious; isn't that true?

Mr. J. Jackson That's right because, in order of precedence set up under Rule No. 59, you do have a rule that precedes the previous question by limiting debate so that, you know, when its opponents stand up about it's going to provide for excessive discussion, I got to disagree with it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, the thing that has impressed me most out of this entire convention is the sincerity of the delegates. I don't think, from the judgment I've made of everybody here, that there is one person who doesn't want to do a good job. We've taken this set of rules; it's a very small book, double-spaced; it is prepared by a very excellent committee that did an excellent job. I think this book could have been taken care of, we could have adopted these rules as they were; and we could have worked with them. They were workable. But, we've spent five days--and we're still not through with these rules--on something that was already good. Now, I don't know if you've ever seen the volumes of the constitution as it stands today, it's a lot more than this could look like there are a lot more proposals. If you take all the proposals that will be submitted--not only the proposals that were adopted--if you take all of these proposals, you could fill a library. What I'm asking you to do is let's not see the forest for the trees. We could spend so much time on one issue that is not going to pass, that is not popular, that we could miss some time that we could spend on some good issues. I appeal to the ones who spoke against this because I know they were sincere; and if you are sincere please let's give every issue that's going to be proposed to this Constitutional Convention a chance to pass. I ask you to please vote favorable on this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss Delegate Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to discuss the very important issue of the previous question. It seems that the best minds in this convention are split on the matter. Those favoring the one-half vote point out matters of expediency--save you time and money--as reflected by their distinguished and articulate Delegate Rayburn. That we not limit debate is one of the desires of the convention as a whole, but by limiting it to some degree would be helpful, and we should have no fear that it would be limited too much, they say. That great son of Louisiana from Jonesboro, Delegate Chairman Henry, is and will be very patient. Even now, I'd consider him saintly; but later, he will have to produce and abide by the decision of this body and stick to the rules. Committee meetings and hearings throughout the state will allow full investigation. There seems little doubt about that. Minority reports will accompany these full committee reports. Apparently, all segments of our great state will be heard, so why the issue? Surely, this is a procedural line, and the state is simply one-half or two-thirds... I propose that the real confusion at this issue is the reasoning by the reasonable in the comparison of these being-adopted procedural rules with legislative procedural rules. Let us clearly set forth that legislators legislate; we delegates will constitute. No one here needs to remind that we must separate the basic constitutional law from statutory or legislative law. It seems the rules of this game--the conventional procedural rules--are reflected by the citizens of the state through us and demand change. This mandate to change, to me, goes particularly to all of us delegates. It's time we removed the old politician concept--working in a specific legislative, political arena--to recognize all of us, whether elected or appointed, city or state officials, legislators or nonlegislators, professional politicians or non-professional politicians, and are here on an equal footing and want to remain so. Let us address one another as delegates, delegated to meet our responsibilities to the people of our state. Governor Edwards, in addressing us, has asked we reflect faith, not fear. Faith comes from security. The safeguard to that security rests in knowing we have the best rules to go by. The most widely used American procedural rules, Robert's Rules of Order, requires two-thirds vote to be approved to move the previous question. One-half vote can stop a debate. We can vote, by a majority, to limit the debate. It is up to us to adopt these rules, not necessarily of expediency--and, particularly, legislative expediency--but those that this convention will go by. Perhaps, Delegate Rayburn and his supporters and I are, as the weather forecaster would say, not too far apart--just two percent. He might favor expediency fifty-one percent and reason forty-nine percent. I favor reason fifty-one percent and expediency forty-nine percent. The compromise of the political process may be close this time, but I have faith that the God-given reason will prevail and the convention will vote to favor the two-third requirement. Delegate Chairman Henry, in closing, I move the previous question on a two-thirds vote.

Mr. Henry That's, in itself, a rare opportunity that an individual gets to move the previous question on the previous question.

Is there a second to the motion?

Mr. Silverberg seconds the motion on the previous question.

Therefore, as many of you in favor of the previous question say aye; opposed, no.

The motion fails.

Why do you rise, Mrs. Warren?

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Point of Order

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'd like to apologize to the Chairman for standing back there screaming, but I've learned one thing since I've been here: that you gotta scream or else you're going to get left. I wanted to speak...

Mr. Henry State your point, please.

Mrs. Warren My point was I wanted to speak against the amendment.

Mr. Henry All right, Mrs. Warren, I have your name on the list, and the motion was defeated. But, when these motions are made, there's nothing that the Chair can do except allow the delegates to vote on them. I have Mr. Roy on the list; Mr. Stagg on the list, Mrs. Warren on the list, Mr. Roemer on the list, Mr. Arnette on the list, and Mr. Schmitt on the list; and they will be recognized if the previous question is not ordered, but I cannot take people out of their normal order of recognition. Thank you.

Proceed, Mr. Roy.

Mr. Roy In the spirit of ecumenism, I have a motion coming up--a resolution--to make Chairman Henry a Catholic so that we might make him a saint. But, in any event...

Mr. Henry Let's proceed orderly, Mr. Roy.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy I'd like to speak for the amendment of Senator Rayburn. Robert's Rules of Order, incidentally, is the best set of orders to govern first houses, Masonic lodges, Kiwanis, and other things like that. It is the prescribed set of rules to govern legislative bodies--be they a state legislature or a constitutional convention. If it were, and if they were used, you'd never have any constitutions and, probably, never any legislation. I was opposed to the concept of the substantive committees, as you so wisely designated, writing most of the provisions in the constitution. My opinion was that the professional staff should be an integrated unit, and the substantive committees should give it some direction, but you chose to have the substantive committees write the constitution. This means that there will be innumerable hearings all over the State of Louisiana with respect to what the people of this state feel should go into the constitution. That is an essential difference, then and now, from what we're doing here today, where we had a temporary Rules Committee write some rules; and, yet, with this two-thirds vote that we have, we've been here for five days, and we still haven't got our rules. Now, you can just imagine, the number of these various substantive hearings throughout the State of Louisiana, us getting involved, from July 5 on, in a discussion about something that the Chairman and Vice Chairman and, maybe, the entire committee--substantive committee--may have endorsed unanimously and, as a result of some fellows in the minority deciding to insist on the right to speak ad nauseam on the proposition, us never getting a two-thirds vote to go ahead and vote on the substantive matter at hand. That's one of the main reasons I'm for the amendment. My record here so far indicates that I should be on the other side. I'm apparently in the minority in everything that I say, so I should be one of the folks who's for putting the windjammers; but I don't think I was elected to come down here and require that people get this tough, continuously, on something and prevent the majority from moving forward with what we should do, and that is, getting down to writing a constitution for the people of Louisiana to ratify or reject. Rule 85 provides that you might suspend the majority to suspend--any and every rule that this convention will adopt at this time. If a subject matter is as important that we feel that unlimited discussion should be utilized, then before we get into it, we can suspend the rules and require a two-thirds vote to close or to call the previous question. But, that doesn't mean that every time some non-controversial article comes up and a one-third-plus-one number of people decide they want to continue talking about it, that we shouldn't be able to vote on it. Finally, there's always the problem and there's always the wrath of the right of if we do something wrong--and we're bound to do something wrong because we're all a bunch of human beings here--that we can reconsider what was done wrong. If, after we close the debate on an article and we adopt it and, later, we find out we shouldn't have, then we can change it. But, if you assume that everyone here is conscientious, then those who are for closing the debate and getting on with the task of writing this constitution are in good faith, we can protect against anything that we do wrong. For that reason, I now move that we consider the previous question and vote on it and vote on the amendment.

[Motion for Previous Question rejected: viva voce.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I hope all of you realize that this is one of the crunch points that we will be debating throughout this whole rules session. I rise to speak, not as a delegate of the Rules Committee, but as a delegate who came to Baton Rouge with a firm conviction that in every deliberative body, full and unlimited debate--giving all of the views of all of the people an opportunity to be heard--would be more appropriate; so it is with some trepidation that I rise in opposition to a resolution or an amendment offered by Senator Rayburn and by Mr. Ginn. As the rule will read, if it is adopted, it will state that a majority of the delegates present and voting can move the previous question. I'd like to point out to you that we adopted, earlier, a rule that stated that sixty-seven people constitute a quorum for the conduct of the business of this convention. If a quorum were present, then the 140 delegates--thirty-four delegates--could cut off debate. The Rules Committee itself was closely divided on the question of the previous question. We used the two-thirds vote very sparingly; we employed it in the previous question to the end that unlimited debate would be the order; we used it in Rule No. 85 concerning the suspension of the rules; and we used it in Rule No. 82 where consent is given for changing the special order of the business of the convention. So, it does appear, in these rules, in a number of places where it was felt by the Rules Committee that two-thirds was the appropriate figure. In others of these rules, particularly in Rule No. 85, we used a slightly different formula. In Rule No. 85, we said that it should take a vote to suspend the rules for a specified purpose, two-thirds of the delegates present and voting, or a majority of the delegates to the convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number. That's a less stringent rule than the two-thirds and, probably, a more workable one on behalf of those of you who think it should be less than a two-thirds vote. If the Chairman would permit it, I have asked the secretarial force on the other side of the hall to prepare a substitute motion--and I considered that the floor would be available for a substitute motion--and the purpose of my substitute motion would be to state the language in line 28 and line 49, where the words appear: shall require a vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting. Having stricken that language, the rule would then read: except that a motion for the previous question and the previous question on the entire subject matter and a motion to postpone indefinitely shall require the affirmative vote of a majority of all the delegates to the convention; i.e., in any circumstance, it would take only sixty-seven people to shut off debate. That is a more palatable figure to me than the figure of thirty-four delegates empowered to do it if a bare quorum of the convention was present. Mr. Chairman, I move the substitute motion—that the language I read be removed from the rule in lines 29 and 30 so that a motion for the previous question would require an affirmative vote of the majority of all of the delegates to the convention.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, I stand amazed at your failure to realize that we cannot accept amendments to amendments in this...we haven't up to this point, Mr. Stagg. We would do it under Robert's Rules of Order, but we have a strange blend of a type of procedure that we're trying to proceed by, and we just cannot begin to start accepting amendments to amendments in a deliberative body of this type. I would love to accommodate you, but I just think we're going to really—well, for lack of a better word—confuse the situation more than it is right now. So, I'm going to rule that such a motion would not be in order, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I have worked, and we have worked, for these several days under Henry's rules of order, and they have proved quite successful. If the Chair rules that a substitute motion to the Rayburn amendment is out of order, then I shall certainly abide by the wishes of the Chairman and the ruling of the Chairman; but I shall, if the Rayburn motion is defeated, suggest to the convention that a better rule would be a majority of those delegates to the convention—sixty-seven being the number—can cut off debate.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Stagg.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I stand here because I remember our Chairman saying that when we get our rules we're going to have to live with them, and I intend to live with them. I'm going to make this statement, and you can underline it and you can underscore it and even can repeat it: I am not worried about money. I am about the poorest delegate that is here. I would rather give up a day's pay and have a chance to speak my mind for the people whom I represent than to have the money. I'm interested in every delegate here having a voice. I thought that two-thirds would assure that. If I could be assured that the delegates that have proposed this amendment to cut off debate would be willing to relinquish their time in favor of other delegates to have a chance, then I vote wholeheartedly with the majority. Otherwise, I would have to be against the amendment for a majority because I would like for every delegate here, and I want you to say, you can close your eyes and forget about what color I am because I am not a minority. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm Roemer, District 9, Bossier and Webster Parishes. I speak in opposition to the amendment for a couple of quite simple reasons. It has mainly to do with the arguments as presented by the advocates of the amendment. I like the people, and I like those people, my mind has been changed by debate. Believe it or not, some of the things said on this stand have changed my simple mind. Unlike the people that advocate the majority rule, I, from that farm in Bossier Parish, believe that the only thing we had to give is our debate, is the expression of our ideas. All of this so-called expense, and what we do in the House and what we do in the Senate begins to weigh heavily on my mind, and my soul begins to grow weary with the talk of it. They talk about the right of the majority. What right of the majority is violated by listening to people speak—their precious time? If they didn't want the job, they shouldn't have run for it. If they didn't want the job, they shouldn't have accepted the appointment. What precious rights do the majority have that the minority's going to kill by talking on an issue? I submit, none, except their precious time. One further argument presented by the advocates of this motion is the mathematics involved. Some man much cleverer than I, and with a lot more experience, has submitted for our acceptance the simple premise that there's always twenty to twenty-five percent of the people who will not vote to cut off debate. That is a clever half-truth. What he failed to tell us is there's always twenty to twenty-five percent of the people who are always ready to cut off debate. How many times have I heard from that seat yonder the statement, "Buddy, why don't you go up and ask for the previous question? We're tired of this." I mean after the first speaker—"We're tired of this. My mind is made up." How many times have I heard that? So, don't be fooled by the oft-stated mathematics of this body, about the fact that twenty to twenty-five percent of the people are always opposed to cutting off debate, therefore, we need the majority rule. That is completely in error if we use our common sense and realize there are as many, if not more, who are always willing to cut off debate, regardless of the merits of the situation. My mind is made up: I represent, too, the minorities here. There are not many cotton farmers here. I, too, represent the minorities here. I'm talking about the black people; I'm talking about the nonlawyers; I'm talking about the nonlegislators; I'm talking about the people who are truly independent. I'm talking about the people who are willing to give their time, by God, all of it, if that's what it takes. Now, I was elected on Aug. 19. I had a tough fight. I had a guy who spent a lot of money against me. He had a lot of things to use against me. But, I knocked on every door, and I talked to every farmer, and they're all rednecks, and they're eighty-five percent of them white, and I had a lot of reason not to run for this. But, I sold them on one idea, and that is that I don't know much, but I'm going to give everything I've got; and I expect the same of each one of you. If it takes us all year to listen to somebody's ideas, then I'm willing to give it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Annette Mr. Chairman and delegates, I feel very strongly about this issue, and I don't feel I can put it as eloquently as many people have put it before me. But, I would like to make a few points very clear before we decide this question. First, we talked about public image. The public image of this constitution and what comes out of this convention is going to be all-important. I think that all phases and all segments of this convention need to be heard, if we are to have the proper public image. This is an all-important thing, whether we come up with a good document or a bad document. At the polls, it's going to make a lot of difference if it passes whether that person's ideas were heard, whether that person's delegate got a chance to talk on a particular subject. It's going to make a lot of difference to a lot of people. The next thing is, I'd like to point out, we haven't had any trouble with the two-thirds vote that's required to move the question and the question of Robert's Rules of Order. The only time we've had trouble with it is right here during this debate. That's because so many people feel so very strongly about this that they don't want to cut off debate on this particular issue, and I think this is the way it ought to be. We should not cut off debate until the people we need to be heard on this particular issue. It's been brought out that in the legislature we use the majority vote. Well, that's fine for the legislature, but we aren't the legislature. There are two basic differences here. We aren't professional politicians. It's been said we are politicians, and I agree with that. But, most of us here, it's our first time, or probably our second, possibly, time in politics, and we don't know the ins and the outs. We don't know that when you vote to shut off debate it's going to bother somebody and hurt somebody's feelings, and the next day the person's going to vote against shutting off debate. The Senate and the House have learned this, and that's why you had so many people that won't shut off debate no matter what. But, here we don't have that situation. We have people overly willing to shut off debate. The next thing that's been pointed out by Mr. Stagg is that that...well, I said this isn't the legislature --and I agree that this isn't the legislature. The thing about this that's so different from the legislature is, we don't have two houses. If we shut off debate and pass a bad bill in one house right here, we don't have another house to send this debate to and to kill that bad bill or that bad proposal. When it pass something here, and we reconsider it and lay it on the table, it's going to take a two-thirds vote to take that back off the table. So, in that way, you could have a bare thirty-three percent thwarting the whole will of the majority. There was a bad proposal passed; we passed it, but debate was cut off, and now we can't reconsider it. We're stuck with it, ladies and gentlemen; we are stuck with it. The next thing Mr. Jack brought out--I hate to just refer to Mr. Jack--but a couple of things in his talk kind of interested me greatly. Another one was that all proposals would be entered by July 5, and we would have a chance to read all these proposals and talk about these proposals. I think about them. This isn't true, ladies and gentlemen; just look at Rule No. 42. "Any proposal may be admitted by a committee or any individual delegate up until sixty days after July 5." We won't have time to consider these things beforehand. There will be proposals just brought up off the floor. We need to talk about these things. This is a very vital thing that everyone ought to hear in their debate and they ought to listen to it because I'm no mental giant, and my mind is changed by debate. My mind can be greatly changed two or three times during a single debate. It depends on what is brought out by the particular speakers. Now we have other, we have other safeguards against filibuster. I think we have a limit on our debate. We can move to limit debate to one hour, two hours, three hours, or whatever we choose. The next point is that we have a fifteen minute limit on each speaker. Another point is that one speaker...each speaker cannot speak more than once on each particular issue. All these things are safeguards against filibuster. Now, this morning we had a meeting of the Temporary Rules Committee, and we were discussing a particular rule and whether to propose it as a rule to the convention. We said, "Wait, let's take out the bible here", referring to the Illinois set of rules. It's got to be kind of a joke in the Temporary Rules Committee because it was probably the basis of our set of rules because the Illinois Convention worked. The Illinois Convention was the most successful convention in the past twenty-five years in this country, and we took many rules from them. But, people have been saying we've been going slow. We haven't been going slow. The Illinois Rules of Procedure took fourteen solid days of debate and argument, and their body wasn't even half our size. They considered the ins and the outs of everything. They worked on it to what they thought was perfection, and everyone's griping about us meeting for five days on rules! I think if we'd meet possibly ten or twelve or fourteen, that might be too much; but, five or six days, that's not too long. I think what we think is a perfect set of rules. I think we ought to have the opportunity to debate all these rules and later on to debate all the proposals that are introduced to the convention. Senator Rayburn, when he introduced his amendment, made a very valid point, and I have to agree with him on this. If we have a chance to do a little talk, I can convince the majority of the delegates of this convention. Now, I don't know whether he's right or wrong, and I don't know whether he can do it. But, if you vote to shut off debate and move the previous question, that not only shuts off debate on the previous question--whether it ought to be adopted or not--but the fact that if it is passed--that particular argument that is on the floor of the House--no one else gets a chance to talk. I would hate to see Senator Rayburn cut out of his chance to convince the majority by his own amendment. So, I definitely think we ought to keep this two-thirds vote. Now, Mr. Segurs brought out a valid point when he said that most of us are sincere. I believe that; I believe that almost all are sincere. He said, "Let's give each proposal a chance to pass." He believes that the sincerity of the delegates will let each proposal have a chance to pass. Well, I say--a little amendment of my own--let's debate each and then give it a chance to pass. I think that's what we're here for. I think everyone needs to be heard on these things, and I think if every delegate is sincere on letting everyone be heard, that's a small matter, requiring a two-thirds vote instead of a majority vote. It's just a little insurance on this sincerity, and I think we need it. Thank you, ladies and gentlemen.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Question

Mr. Burns: Mr. Arnette, inasmuch as you have the floor, will you please ask the delegates if they'll pay particular attention to all of this argument on Rule No. 69 because Mr. Stagg said the same question about coming in Rules No. 82, and 85, so we won't have to consume all this time, and hear these same arguments again on exactly the same question?

Mr. Arnette: Well, Mr. Burns, you have a very valid point, and that's why I think we're taking quite a bit of time on this particular question, because it not only affects this rule, but it affects several others, and whichever way the vote goes here, the vote's going to go the same way on these other issues. Someone was talking about, "Well, we're taking so much time on this one particular rule, this one particular question", but, once we get finished with this, we're home free until we get down to the double or others at the very end that are kind of sticky again. But, I think that we definitely need to talk about this because it does affect the workings of the convention for the rest of the time we're going to be here and I definitely think this two-thirds vote is definitely needed. So, I think we ought to vote to defeat this amendment by Senator Rayburn, and go ahead and have a two-thirds vote to shut off debate. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Schmitt: I'm against the amendment. Initially, I was afraid of the friends of the Chairman. However, up to the present time Mr. Henry has leaned over backwards to be fair to many of us who are novices and not familiar with the rules of procedure. I think he's done a fine job, and as fine a job as anyone could have done. The Chairman cannot refuse, however, to cut off debate if the motion to move the previous question is made. This cannot be debated. Any delegate with a majority can then cut off all amendments. There are other means of limiting debate, and I believe that these should be considered, rather than this harsh rule. The motion to limit debate is also undebatable, and can be obtained by a simple majority vote. I request that you vote against the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nunez: Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Mr. Henry, no doubt, should propose a change in the rules before I discuss what is my position on this amendment. That we should have "Delegate Nunez" or "Delegate Rayburn," or "Delegate what

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Have You" because I think you put me at a distinct disadvantage when you call me Senator or Representative.

Mr. Henry I think it was a distinct disadvantage when you left the House, but proceed.

Mr. Nunez I say that that's very unfortunate because I think that--someone put it very well--I think everyone here is sincere and if I come up here and am in favor of an amendment, I'm not in favor of it because it works in the legislature; I'm in favor of it because I think it should be that way, and I think if we look at the mathematics, just the pure and simple mathematics of what we're talking about, maybe we can change some of our minds--and I hope we can--because when you talk about two-thirds of the delegates present or two-thirds of the delegates of the convention, like Mr. Staggs is going to propose--which I think will also be a bad amendment, we're going to need eighty-eight members if my mathematics serves me right. Now, the final document that we're going to send to the people of this state to vote on, we can pass it with sixty-seven delegates voting on it. Sixty-seven delegates can continually vote on every proposal we submit, and that document will go to the people that we're going to need eighty-eight of us to stop someone from speaking. I don't think that we should have the fears that a lot of people are expressing that this is going to be used to stop minority groups or the people who are in a minority, and I'm assuming that when I say, "minority groups", I mean that if you're in a voting minority, that you can be shut off from continued debate. I don't think that's going to be the case at all. I think if there's a proposal that's presented that deserves consideration, that deserves debate, and that has the interest of this body, debate won't be cut off; debate won't be cut off. But, I think it's a simple safeguard that we're not going to. Senator De Blieux mentioned the fact that the legislature comes back year after year after year, and we're only going to be here one year. I submit to him that I think he's incorrect. I think we're going to be here more than a year if we allow two-thirds rule to cut off debate. So, I would ask you just to simply consider the basic mathematics of what you're doing, and the logic of a simple majority being able to pass this document, which is what we will need. Sixty-seven of us can send this document to the people, good, bad, or indifferent. That's what it's going to take, but it's going to take eighty-eight of us to stop anybody from talking when sixty-seven of us feel that it isn't necessary that debate continue. So, consider that, and I think in consideration of that, you would possibly change your mind if you are convinced that two-thirds of us should be allowed to continue debate. I'll yield, Mr. De Blieux.

Questions

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Nunez, I call your attention to the words in the provision that it says "present and voting." That means that those present must vote on the issue before you can determine the percentage that will have to call for the previous question. Now, I ask you, isn't it possible that you could have, maybe a hundred and twenty people present, and if only a seventy-five percent of them vote on the issue, that you could close debate by only...need only thirty-one votes to do that?

Mr. Nunez I think you're right. On the other hand, I think that forty-four of us or one-third of us can continue debate. I don't think the other rules will be a safeguard because when we talk about debate, we're talking about debating each issue as it comes up. I think as long as you can have one-third of the members here that would not want to vote on an issue, then you're having a smaller group than it takes to pass it, if there be a majority of sixty-seven to pass an issue.

Mr. De Blieux So, therefore, then, your calculation of eighty-eight votes is not necessarily accurate, is it, because you can cut off debate if you just have one more than anybody else on the question, of those that actually participate in voting on the issue, and as you have seen it here, right here in this own convention, isn't it true that we have a lot of times that a lot of people don't vote on an issue? Now, isn't that the biggest fear that we have in using the rule of majority rather than the two-thirds of those present and voting? Now, if you want to make it to where that Mr. Staggs has suggested that we have at least sixty-seven, that sounds a lot more reasonable because if you don't have sixty-seven votes, you can't pass it anyway.

Mr. Nunez What's your question, Senator?

Mr. De Blieux I'm just asking you, don't you see that...isn't it true that you can cut off debate with a whole lot less than the eighty-eight which you've been referring to? You can cut off debate, just so you have one more than the other side, even if you don't have but twenty people vote on it, because they may not vote on it.

Mr. Nunez Senator, in my few days here at this convention I've got a lot of confidence and a lot of faith in that we've had excellent attendance, and I'm assuming that you understand the mathematics of what I propose, that we will continue to have excellent attendance, and I don't think we've...we've had very little absenteeism, and as long as we continue to have this excellent attendance and consider that the majority percent of the delegates are here, it would take eighty-eight to cut off debate. I ask you to consider those proposals and think about it when you vote because you could put this convention into a lot of time, more than it would take to normally debate the issue, and give a fifty-one percent of the sixty-seven votes the opportunity to cut off debate. Thank you.

Mr. Segura Senator Nunez, I'm asking you this question because of your experience in having served in the House of Representatives and in the Senate. If ever there's a good proposal on the floor, isn't it very often that someone will vote to cut off debate, if it's a good issue?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Segura, I had one strike against me when you called me Senator. When you told them that I served in the House also, I think you gave me two. I have never voted to cut off debate. I have never voted to cut off debate, but I think the problem might be somewhat different. I think it's been brought out here that there's a different operation in the legislature than what we have here in this convention. Certainly, I think there's merit to that argument. But, I agree with you. I think as we work along that many people--and I think if the Chairman would address the policy, I would like to tell us, to tell us that there are so many people waiting to speak. There are so many people waiting to speak. I think someone has an amendment to that effect, and there are so many more amendments that we have to adopt or that are presented. I think that out of courtesy this group would extend the courtesy to those people that want to speak. That's been my experience. That's the question you asked me, and another question you asked is, would I cut off debate? No, I would never cut off debate if I thought there was an issue to be presented to the body that deserved additional debate and a lot of people wanted to speak on it.

Mr. Segura O.K. My next question is, in this law that was passed by the legislature creating... in the law creating this Constitutional Convention, is there an unlimited amount of time in order for us to work and to present this constitution, or do we have a limited amount of time?

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Nunez My appreciation is that we have a limited amount of time.

Mr. Segura Well, then, I ask you, if we have a limited amount of time and we allow as much debate on issues that will undoubtedly not pass, will it not, maybe, limit us to consider good proposals that should be presented to the people?

Mr. Nunez Yes, I guess you could say that, but I think we have enough time, and I think we have enough...

Mr. Segura ...not give us enough time to be able to consider every proposal that's going to be presented to us because we only have a limited amount of time to serve in this constitution.

Mr. Nunez That is correct.

Further Discussion

Mr. E. J. Landry This will be the first appearance of a minority. If there is a minority in this room at this time, I am it. There's only one of you in here in the category that I represent, but out there, probably listening to me now or looking at the newspaper later, will be many school children thinking about what it is I'm agreeing with at this time. I'm glad that we have people like young Roemer who said that he didn't know much, but the longer I listened to him, the more I realized he knows plenty. Young Roemer and Mrs. Warren have spoken to the issue. Really and truly, gentlemen of this convention, if there ever was a crucial point, this is it. This is the crux of what it's all about. Now, I've listened carefully; I haven't spoken; I haven't been in any bull sessions, and I think the reason why we don't always get the right answer is that we have so many people in bull sessions who are not listening to all sides of the question. I've been tremendously impressed from the very beginning with the fact that people have been allowed to express the minority opinion. Now, yesterday I was crushed. Really and truly, if you had taken a vote yesterday, after Senator Rayburn said that we had lost and had the privilege of doing what we are doing today because you were tired; you were weary; and you were hammered by Senator Rayburn. I've always felt it a privilege to oppose the power structure, and if there ever was power, it was exhibited yesterday when Senator Rayburn almost threatened us with the purse. Now, that should never happen. That should never happen. I'm going to ask you to let me win my first one. I want the minority, including me, to have this privilege. The two-thirds rule is a good one, ladies and gentlemen, and I ask you to keep it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kelly Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise as a member of the Temporary Committee on Rules. I have not been up here a great deal because I really don't think it's the place of the Temporary Rules Committee members to necessarily fight or... or advocate against any of these rules which have been prepared. I've spoken willing to sit back and listen and vote. On this particular issue, the primary thing that I want the convention to understand is, that this was one of the most controversial issues that arose within the Temporary Rules Committee. Quite frankly, the amendment which is before you right now by Senator Rayburn was, so to speak, the law of the land here for about a day and a half. That was our rule; that rule was adopted. Then all of a sudden late... it was brought back up for reconsideration and our dear friend, Mr. Womack, who had a previous engagement was gone and the rule was changed. Now, it could well be that Senator Rayburn's amendment would have been the rule here today. The proponents of the rule as it stands now would have been the proponents of an amendment here today. This thing bears serious thought--very serious thought.

I'm convinced in my own mind that if the Temporary Rules Committee was polled again--and I might add that we did not bring this issue to this morning in our meeting at nine o'clock--but if this issue was raised again I am thoroughly convinced that the two-thirds limitations set forth in the rule as it stands now would not even be adopted in the Temporary Rules Committee.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman and delegates, I think we have beat this poor dog enough. I realize the theory of some of the people that when you've got a full convention it takes a lot of votes in order to cut off debate. On the other hand, when you've got a small number of people, it doesn't take a whole lot to cut off debate. So, in an effort to compromise this issue, I would suggest this, that we reject the proposed amendment, and I will offer a substitute motion which will make this language the same as it is in Rule No. 85, wherein it will read, "to move the previous question shall require a vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting or a majority of the delegates to the Convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number." I offer this in the way of a compromise.

Motion

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I am not one of those who rush up to this microphone to speak on every issue that comes before you. I thought very seriously before I raised my hand to speak on this issue today, because I do recognize the political maneuvers when a group of people can get up here and talk on a subject until you're so tired you don't want to hear anyone as one of my fellow delegates has already indicated to me and is willing to do anything to shut them up. Now, what bothers me is that if somebody has an issue that they want to do and can get the order of the floor and ten, twelve, fifteen or thirty of them speak on this issue before the other side has a chance they jump up and move to cut off debate. I am surprised that the men who I've seen take up more time with this convention get up here and take their time, time and time again and then stand up here and move the previous question after they're finished saying what they want to say. This bothers me. I want to see this convention open. I want to hear discussion. I think we have additional ways of cutting off debate if you so desire, and if a majority decides to do it. Why can we not limit debate to two, or three, or five, or ten people speaking on a particular issue; both the opponents and the proponents and give each side a chance to make their positions known? I have sat here and listened until I'm so tired I'm ready to do almost any action and this is bad. This is exactly what some people would love to have happen, to have you get so tired that you let them put anything through that they want. I think this is a dangerous thing that we're being asked to consider right now; I think there are other methods. To test that, Mr. Speaker, I would like to move that the debate be limited to two speakers on each side after I have finished. Is such a motion in order, Mr. Speaker?

Mr. Henry The motion is in order.

Point of Order

Mr. Tapper Was the delegate right in bounds for a motion or to speak on the subject?

Mr. Henry He can do either one, Mr. Tapper, you're familiar enough with the Rules of Procedure to understand that, I'm sure.

Questions

Mr. Champagne I just wanted to know if you're talking about the rest of the rules or if you're talking about the whole convention?

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Sutherland Rest of this rule.

Mr. Champagne The rest of this rule?

Mr. Sutherland Right.

Mr. Champagne Fine.

Mr. Sutherland What I'm doing Mr. Champagne is checking to see whether or not we have a rule to cut off debate.

Mr. Henry The gentleman has moved that only two speakers for the opponents, two for the proponents be allowed on the remainder of this amendment as I appreciate it, is that correct?

Mr. Sutherland That's correct.

Mr. Henry To which objection is urged.

[Motion to limit debate to two additional speakers for each side adopted. Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I do not have my hammer that you just heard about. If there's any delegate that thinks that I said anything yesterday that offended anyone, I here and now apologize. But, I would like to say this, I have not been to this microphone too much, but as long as I am a delegate, as long as I can attend this convention, if I deem it necessary that I be heard if I can get recognized, I'll be here. I would hate to see the time come when I could not stand before this body and discuss the cost of this convention. I discussed it when we appropriated the money to finance it in the legislature. I certainly have not, and never will, attempt to threaten anyone. There's not a person in this Chamber that I've asked to vote for this amendment. If there is, I wish you would raise your hand. I have not positive have. I know I have with nobody. I just don't believe in one-third having control. I did mention minorities, if I offended anyone when I said that; I'm sorry. I was speaking of a minority of farmers, labor, industry and many other facets of our government that could be a minority. That's what when I used the word "minority" I had reference to. I just feel like that fifty-one percent of these delegates should have control. The Rules Committee even killed this thing I'm told on two different occasions, and the only reason it's before you now is because one of their members was not present and they brought it up again. That's why it's here. In closing, I want to say I think you have witnessed a good example of how I know I have. I've convinced a one of you how you're going to vote; I doubt if any speaker that's been here has convinced you; I think you had your mind made up. I move the adoption of the amendments and let your conscience be your guide as to how you vote.

[Roll "all vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 64-59.]

Recess

[Quorum call: No members present and a quorum.]

Point of Order

Mr. Roy Since we met at the Bellemont last week and we passed a particular rule that Mr. Kean didn't move that we adopt and follow for the rest of the time, and since we have just passed this rule on cutting off debate by moving to the previous question by a simple majority, I'm wondering if we can apply this same reasoning that was applied before and let's go with that rule at this particular time?

Mr. Henry No, sir it's not been adopted. The rules...we're still debating that rule, Mr. Roy.

Mr. Roy The amendment that passed, that rule is not adopted yet?

Mr. Henry No, sir.

Mr. Roy Oh, excuse me, I'm sorry.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments are offered up by Mr. Jenkins as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 22, line 21, after the period "...", insert the following:

"Before calling for the vote on the previous question or on the previous question on the entire subject matter, the Chairman shall announce the names of those delegates who have requested to speak and shall state the number of amendments or motions which are still pending."

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I want to first of all say this is not a rehash of the issue that we just voted on. This is an entirely different question. The point that's being raised here is this: you know, so often someone will move the previous question; the Chairman may ask is there any objection and one member may object. Since it is not debatable at that point, the delegates then have no information as to how many members have requested to speak or have offered amendments or motions. The Chairman announce this or it may not under the rules as they are written as it is now. The motion simply would provide that when someone makes a motion for the previous question or for the previous question on the entire subject matter that the Chairman would announce the names of those who have already requested to be allowed to speak on this question and also will announce the number of amendments or motions that are pending. In this manner we can more accurately judge whether or not it's appropriate at the particular time to vote to order the previous question. So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: voice vote.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Mr. Stovall sends up the following amendments:

Amendment No. 1. On page 22, line 24, following the words "stand arranged" add the following: "and opponents of motions shall be recognized to speak alternately."

Amendment No. 2. On page 27, line 24, following the words "All of" delete the word "them" and insert in lieu thereof the word "motions".

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Ladies and gentlemen, this simply means that we'll have one speaker on a motion to speak for a motion and then one against. The reason for this is that on several occasions we have had six, eight or ten speakers who've been either for or against a given point of view. The other reason for it is that if a person who is for an issue is speaking, we'll know that he is for it. It is for that reason that I think this is a good motion. It guarantees that both sides will be heard on a given issue. I think this is especially important because we passed Mr. Rayburn's amendment. The other point is, that issues of the motion will be presented to the convention early in the debate rather than having a dozen persons speak, say on the same side, and then important information is presented on the other side. I think it means also that our discussion will be more concise, more to the point, inasmuch as the pro and con has been set before the convention. Now, I realize that we are like the Egyptian Mummy, "we're pressed for time." But, I think it will be worthwhile to take just a couple of moments to adopt this kind of motion.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Questions

Mr. Champagne This would be fine if you have equal numbers, but what I'm worried about now is you may not be prolonging the thing simply because if you have ten against and one for, in other words, you might have to start recruiting people for it, you see. That was my question. I also think it puts a problem on the people...

Mr. Henry Now, wait, wait, Mr. Champagne. If you want to speak, we'll recognize you. Otherwise, ask your question and take your seat, please.

Mr. Stovall The motion does not require that there be an equal number of speakers on both sides. It simply means that as long as there are persons on both sides that there will be alternating between the pro and the con.

Mr. Champagne Do you think...
Can I ask two questions?

Mr. Henry Proceed.

Mr. Champagne Do you think that there's a possibility that this would put an extra burden on these people up here, because I just noticed he was looking for an amendment, there, and he had a problem there? Don't you think this may put a little extra burden?

Mr. Stovall No, I think that when a person stands to have the floor they can simply hold up a thumb meaning they're for it, and another thumb, you know, meaning that they're against it. The only trouble with this is it might create a little confusion among some of our leaders who are trying to tell some of the people how to vote. But, maybe they'll find some other signals.

Mr. Blair Reverend Stovall, who would...how would you select who would speak for or against, and would it be in numbers? Suppose five wanted to speak for or five against. Would it be first come or would you have to get together and caucus, or what?

Mr. Stovall There would be no form of selection. It would be a matter of their getting the recognition of the Chair, and then being recognized by the Chair at the time that he might need either a pro or a con.

Mr. Alario Reverend Stovall, I've seen many a time where--and I'm going to end it with the question, but I need to make this statement first--where a discussion is going on on the floor and then right when the issue comes out, a delegate might be for or against it, and then after he hears some of the discussion, then he changes his mind. What are we going to do in that case where you stand up and tell the Chairman you're for it, and then after a while you get to thinking about this thing and then you're not against it? Then you're... what's going to happen in that case?

Mr. Stovall The man would simply change his mind--He could change his position with the speaker, if he so desired.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, you know, fair play is great. Equal Justice is great. But, there's no such thing as absolute justice--no place in the world--from the time you were a little kid, your mother and father, the way they treated you or the way they treated your sister and brother. There's no such thing as absolute justice, and this type of regimentation is just completely out of order. It's just unreal. You know, I'm just wondering if Reverend Stovall gives the devil equal time on Sunday, and if he takes both sides. You know, some of us, Pappy Triche back here and Sixty Rayburn, they can take either side. With this type of regimentation, they may change their mind before they get up here, so I'm going to ask you to vote down this amendment because, really, I know Reverend Stovall has fair play in mind, but this would do more to abuse justice and fair play than leaving the discretion to the speaker and to the other delegates. If there's no further...no one else to speak, I'll move the previous question, but I'll withdraw it if anyone objects.

[Previous Question Withdrawn. Amendments Rejected: None.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter To amend the original resolution as follows:

Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Bollinger]. On page 22, line 27, immediately after the partial word "tion" and before the words "the previous" strike out the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof a comma.

Amendment No. 2. On page 22, strike out line 28 in its entirety.

Amendment No. 3. On page 22, line 29, at the beginning of the line strike out the words "present and voting" and at the end of the line add the word "shall".

Amendment No. 4. On page 22, line 30, at the beginning of the line strike out the word "requires" and insert in lieu thereof the word " requisite".

Amendment No. 5. On page 22, line 30, after the words "vote of" strike out the remainder of the line and insert the following:

"two-thirds of the delegates present and voting or a majority of delegates to the convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number"

Amendment No. 6. On page 22, line 31, at the beginning of the line, strike out the following: "to the convention."

Motion

Mr. Duval I'd like to make a motion to limit debate on this matter to twenty minutes with two proponents allowed five minutes each and then two opponents allowed five minutes each.

Point of Information

Mr. Avant I would request, if it's in order, Mr. Chairman, that the Clerk read the section now, as amended, because there were numerous amendments, and I just can't follow it.

[Clerk reads section.]

Point of Order

Mr. Burson Without trying to be hypertechnical, insofar as that proposed amendment would make... put "two-third" back in as regards to the previous question, didn't we really decide that matter when we voted on the Rayburn amendment?

Mr. Henry I think that there is some substantial difference in the amendment itself, Mr. Burson.

[Motion rejected. Debate resumed.]

Explanation

Mr. Bollinger Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I don't feel that the amendment that Senator

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Rayburn, that Delegate Rayburn, proposed and was adopted reflects the entire or the majority of the convention's ideas. Many of the people have come to me and other delegates and said that they were voting in favor of Senator Rayburn's amendment for the simple reason that they were told that this amendment would follow later and would so-call amend the previous amendment. This amendment simply says that if you ask the entire convention, or the majority, or a lot of people here for the convention that the simple majority or basically the simple majority will rule, or the majority of the delegates, excuse me, the majority of the delegates will rule. But, if you would have a smaller number of delegates, a considerable amount less--possibly a quorum--that it would take two-thirds of the delegates present and voting to cease debate or to call a question on an entire subject matter or on a question of the matter at hand. I hope this is not discussed too much at length. I think we've just about beat this dog into the ground. However, I think it is important enough because the vote was only five difference, and I know of some people who have come to me, as I said before, and said that they voted in favor of the prior amendment because they felt that this amendment would follow.

Questions

Mr. Munson Mr. Bollinger, didn't you make, in your amendment, one other change from the way the rules read now? A motion to postpone indefinitely requires the affirmative vote of a majority of all delegates to the convention. Didn't you change that to two-thirds, also?

Mr. Bollinger It would possibly be two-thirds if there was a, say, just a quorum present. Well, this would require the hundred percent of those present and voting--the way it's stated now--to do this. The way my amendment would change it would be that two-thirds of the people present and voting could do this.

Mr. Munson In other words, it would still take either a majority of all delegates to the convention or two-thirds of those present and voting?

Mr. Bollinger "Whichever constitutes the lesser number," that's correct.

Mr. Alario Mr. Bollinger, just to clear it up for me, then, under your proposal, it would be necessary to have one hundred percent attendance in order for the majority to carry. Is that right?

Mr. Bollinger No, it would not.

Mr. Alario Well, where...I thought you said that...

Mr. Bollinger It's very simple, Mr. Alario. If you had, say, what we have presently today, then you take that figure and take two-thirds or a majority of the entire convention, whichever constitutes the lesser number, would be the number required.

Mr. Alario All right, then. Wouldn't always the majority of the convention be sixty-seven?

Mr. Bollinger Yes.

Mr. Alario All right, then, when you don't have anything else...I see what you're getting at.

Mr. Bollinger You understand?

Mr. Henry Your five minutes are up, Mr. Bollinger.

Mr. Bollinger Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I hesitate to rise in opposition to this proposed amendment, but I feel compelled to do so in the spirit of expediting the work of this convention. I don't believe that it was ever intended that this convention be used as a forum for political office. I think we have a job to do, an obligation to write a new constitution that guarantees those things to the public of this state that they want guaranteed. I do not believe that any small number should control this convention, and God knows I've always been for protecting the rights of the minority. I've been in the majority all my life, economicwise and otherwise. But, having had some experience in deliberative bodies, I know how this can be abused. What you're talking about here, as we go down the road--September, October, November, or even during vacation period during the summer--you're going to find that you're going to have a short horse, for one reason or another. We've got some seventeen delegates absent now for, I'm sure, legitimate reasons. So, what you're talking about is still a two-thirds majority. I ask you not to adopt this amendment. Don't hamstring the work of this convention, and let's proceed. We've already disposed of this issue once today, we spent all morning on it. I think the basic question has been decided, and I ask you to reject this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Burson Mr. Flory, is it your understanding that under this proposed amendment that the only time that a majority could shut off debate would be if we had perfect attendance, that is that sixty-seven would be a majority if we had all one hundred and thirty-two delegates here? But, otherwise, that sixty-seven would be way more than the majority if we had less than perfect attendance.

Mr. Flory That's correct. As I appreciate the amendment, it says "two-thirds of those present and voting or sixty-seven votes, whichever is the lesser number."

Mr. Schmitt I don't know if my mathematics is right, but it seems like two-thirds of a hundred would be around sixty-six or sixty-seven.

Mr. Flory Sixty-eight votes. Sixty-seven votes.

Mr. Schmitt Therefore, it would only be in that instance in which there would be less than a hundred people present. Would that be correct the way it worked out?

Mr. Flory Well, if...assuming that there are a hundred delegates present and the two-thirds rule or the sixty-seven votes would apply, then, of course, you would still be having the two-thirds rule apply.

Mr. Schmitt But, if you had a hundred and twenty then your sixty-seven votes would...

Mr. Flory That's correct. That's correct. But, what I'm saying is we decided the question already this morning after hours of debate on the majority of those present and voting.

Mr. Newton Mr. Flory, are you tired of whipping a dead horse?

Mr. Flory Well, I'm not a horseman, but I think this issue has had considerable debate.

Mr. Newton Are you ready to get on with the business of the convention?

Mr. Flory Yes, indeed.

Mr. Newton Thank you, sir.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Bollinger Mr. Chairman, delegates, Mr. Flory, I think, is misinformed. The two-thirds rule would be the lesser number any time the convention has less than one hundred present. Thus, the majority of the people here would be...and the two-thirds rule is that if a hundred people are here today and this amendment was adopted, then either two-thirds of the people present and voting or a majority of the delegates would be able to rule on a previous question. This would be sixty-seven in either case.

I move your adoption.

Question

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Bollinger, does not your amendment strike out the amendment that was adopted just prior to recess for lunch, and does it not go further and provide even beyond that amendment and says that the two-thirds vote shall apply on a motion to table? Does it not go far beyond the amendment that we just...

Mr. Bollinger Yes, it does.

Mr. Rayburn Thank you.

[Amendments rejected: by standing vote.
Rule reread. Previous Question ordered on the Rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 70. Motions Not Debatable. A motion to adjourn is always in order except when a motion to fix the time to which to adjourn, or a motion to amend the calendar and agenda is pending. A motion to adjourn, a motion to lay on the table, a motion for recess pending the consideration of other business and all matters relating to questions of order shall be decided without debate."

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted:
viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 71. Withdrawal. Any motion may be withdrawn by the mover at any time before decision, amendment or ordering of the yeas and nays, except a motion to reconsider, which may not be withdrawn without consent of the convention."

I have no amendments at this time, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted:
viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of Rule No. 72, and there is a technical amendment. In line 21, insert a "t" in front of the word "hereto" so that the word reads "thereto."

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "The motion shall be presented in the following manner:

No motion listed in Rule No. 69 need be in writing. Where a motion is in writing, the delegate shall attach his or her name thereto before it is received by the Chairman or read by the Secretary, or before it is debated, if debate is in order.

B. No motion need be seconded."

Questions

Mr. Avatt Mr. Stagg, would you explain something to me, please, sir? One of the motions in Rule No. 69 is: "to amend." Now, it was my understanding--and I just want to be clarified--does this mean that a motion to amend a proposal need not be in writing?

Mr. Stagg No, Mr. Avatt, it does not mean that. If it does say that, it's in error.

Mr. Avatt Well, I want to make sure on that before...if you could enlighten me. I'm asking for enlightenment.

Mr. Stagg Is there not another rule, Mr. Avatt, where we have specified that amendments, etc., shall be in writing? If so, there is a conflict, and you are correct in pointing it out.

Mr. Avatt Well, I thought there was another such rule and that there might be a conflict. I'm asking you...

Mr. Henry Mr. Avatt, if I can clear up your problem, this does refer to the precedence of motions, etc., in the Rule No. 69 which are oral motions, and certainly would not be construed by the Chair in any wise to involve amendments, etc.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, with the leave of the Chair, I should ask the Clerk to insert the word in the line 19, "no motion except to amend, listed in Rule No. 69 need be in writing." That would take care of Mr. Avatt's problem.

Mr. Henry Let's let the Clerk comment on that, if you will.

Mr. Poynter I think if you will look at Rule No. 46 it provides that "amendments shall be submitted in writing and a copy of every such amendment be distributed," etc., Rule No. 46 on page 14.

Mr. Stagg, the motion to amend would refer, if you had a motion pending for example, to adjourn at ten o'clock and someone moved to amend it to nine o'clock, you would require that in writing. I believe Rule No. 46 deals specifically with amendments as opposed to the motion to amend.

Mr. Stagg If Mr. Avatt is satisfied with that explanation, I certainly am. That's as I understood it in the beginning.

[Previous Question Ordered on the Rule.
Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 73. Motion for reconsideration. Any member may move for a reconsideration of any question at the same session of the convention or the next succeeding session. The Committee on Style and Drafting may move for reconsideration on any subsequent day, if one session day's notice of its intention to do so is given in writing to the Secretary and is entered upon the Journal. A motion to reconsider shall be taken up in its regular order and shall be decided upon by a majority vote of those members present and voting.

A motion to reconsider shall not be renewed on the same day."

I do have amendments, Mr. Chairman.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [to Mr. Stagg]. On page 23 in Rule No. 73, after the words "Motion for Reconsideration," strike out the remainder of line 25 and all of lines 26 and 27--strike out the remainder of line 25 after the caption and all of lines 26 and 27--and add the following sentence: "Any member who voted on the prevailing side of the question may move for a reconsideration of any question at the same session of the convention or the next succeeding session."

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Burson I had seriously considered withdrawing this amendment, although I drafted it a couple of days ago. But, on reconsideration of my decision, I thought that I would simply present the arguments as briefly as I could to you that I think are involved in here. Then, the convention can decide and either reject the amendment or decide that it's not necessary. As I understand it normally and Robert's Rules of Order says, and I would quote here, that this requirement, that is, "to require that the person making the motion to reconsider have voted on the prevailing side is a protection against its dilatory use by defeated--minority, understand well here refers to those that had the lesser number of votes--especially when the motion is debatable and the minority is large enough to prevent adoption of the previous question." Now, that objection is somewhat alleviated by the fact that we've adopted this majority rule. But, I would only point out to you that the motion for reconsideration is itself a debatable motion. As the Chairman ruled earlier when Mr. Stinson made a motion to reconsider, you can debate again the merits of what you're asking to be reconsidered. So, that it would be possible, and I understand that there's some future amendments that may meet this objection. But, as I read this rule right now other than the two day requirement, it would be possible to bring up for reconsideration any number of times, something that had been resoundingly defeated without changing a single person's mind about the question. I really wonder about the wisdom of saying that suppose a proposal loses 80-20. If you haven't convinced at least one of the eighty to change his vote, why reconsider it because you're just going to wind up with the same vote over again, and you may be wasting a great deal of time.

Now, I understand that it's legislative strategy when you see you're losing to go up and change your vote so you can be on the prevailing side and come back. But, I hope that--and I understand there is an amendment that is going to be coming up to do this--that we set some limits on this reconsideration because it's no secret that in the legislative history of the State of Louisiana that there have been important bills in the legislature that were voted on on Friday. Then, when the motion to reconsider came up on Monday, thirty or forty votes had changed for various reasons. I, for one, would like to see these issues decided. We are going to have a whole lot of committee work done. Most of the things that we are going to be discussing are going to be well discussed in committee and well drafted. Plus, they are going to have three readings here and they are going to be submitted to the Committee on Style and Drafting. I just wonder if we should't put something on the business of reconsideration and that's why I proposed this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Mr. Burson, it is true under these rules, as written, a member could signal the Chair or the Clerk to change his vote to the prevailing side and then move for reconsideration; is that not true?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, as I understand the rules; yes.

Mr. Duval Mr. Burson, we did a good deal of discussing about this at the Rules Committee. It was our interpretation that the motion to reconsider could only be made once, that is, either the day... on the day that the matter was decided or on the following session. So, I don't think it would go on ad nauseam. But, would you object to Mr. Poynter, perhaps, who assisted us in discussing this, to perhaps help us in explaining the rule.

Mr. Burson Not at all, I just want to have it well understood.

Mr. Duval Mr. Clerk, if you would give us the benefit?

Mr. Poynter I don't want to go too far on this because I don't know how strong the feelings are on it. This is a rather liberal rule for reconsideration. Most houses of legislatures do require something similar to Mr. Burson's amendment that you be on the "prevailing side." The prevailing side is alternatively construed in many cases. The Senate has one concept of what the prevailing side is; namely, that is the side, whatever the vote requirements are going to be, that lost. The House has a somewhat different interpretation of the prevailing side. This rule, as I appreciate it, is a rule similar to one adopted and utilized by the Illinois Constitutional Convention. It allows any delegate to move for reconsideration on the same day or the next session day and also, allows if there has been no motion... previous motion for reconsideration, your committing on Style and Drafting on one day's notice to make it; it is a somewhat liberal rule for reconsideration. Do you think that's enough explanation, Mr. Duval?

Certainly, the motion for reconsideration can be made once. Then, under this rule, it could be taken in its regular order. If you will go back and consult the order of the day which you have adopted previously or tentatively adopted, you will find that it is the last item, I believe without looking, Item No. 11 of the Morning Hour. So, once a motion for reconsideration has been made it would, in essence, lie over one day and appear before you on the next session day. The question would be whether you do or do not wish to vote to reconsider the particular item.

Mr. Kean Mr. Burson, I just happen to have a copy of Mason's Legislative Manual in which it reads and I quote as follows: "where it is required by rule that the motion can be made only by a member who voted on the prevailing side, then the purpose of the motion is largely frustrated by a member of the minority voting on the prevailing side or changing his vote to that side in order to qualify him to move to reconsider." Would you agree with that statement, sir?

Mr. Burson I'm sure that's true from what I've seen in the past. However, it seems to me that we ought to at least make them go to the trouble of doing that rather than adopt that requirement; they wouldn't even have to go that far.

Mr. Kean Well, in light of the explanation given by the Clerk, which is extremely confusing as to what constitutes the prevailing side dependent upon an issue. Do I issue Do I issue, it would be preferable to leave the rule as it is, where any person can make a motion to reconsider, when by changing his vote, he could regularly defeat the sense of your amendment in any event?

Mr. Burson I'm sure worried about the fact, Mr. Kean, in answer to that, that the language of this rule is so broad; for instance, "any question"--may move for a reconsideration of any question." Now, "any question"--it doesn't say "any proposal"--which, to me, leaves open that you could ask innumerable reconsiderations of amendments--for instance, that had been resoundingly defeated--to proposals as well as proposals themselves. I'd just like to see it limited a little, from the liberality that the Clerk expressed that we have here

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Mr. Abraham Mr. Burson, I appreciate what you are trying to do. But, don't you think that we would actually wind up with more confusion, and more discussion, and more controversy in trying to determine what would be the prevailing side or trying to determine under what manner that a person is able to change his vote? If we went alone with them, we would probably be adding to the confusion. Don't you think we would be better off just to leave it as it is and depend upon the sense of the convention to prevent someone from bringing a motion for reconsideration all the time?

Mr. Burson Well, I've recognized the validity of that argument except that in most cases I think you will be voting either to accept or reject something. It would be my interpretation that whoever wins is the one who prevails in that instance.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Burson, have you read in Rule No. 74 the mild form of clincher motion which has been supplied by the Rules Committee wherein it is provided that if someone moves to reconsider, that then could be followed by a motion to lay the motion to reconsider on the table and it would take a vote of two-thirds of the delegates to take it off the table. You can clincher matters in these conventions; they can't be allowed endlessly to be carried out ad nauseam. We do have a clincher motion which directly follows this rule. Would you not consider that that would be the answer to your discomfort with the way we drew the mild form in reconsideration?

Mr. Burson Mr. Stagg, I don't think that that quite gets to it, because I still am afraid that you can come back and ask for reconsideration. In other words, the clincher motion, as I appreciate it, might be successful and it might not, because the motion to table requires an extraordinary majority, whereas the motion to reconsider does not; it requires only a simple majority. I think the motion to... the clincher motion that you are referring to requires what, a two-thirds...

Mr. Stagg The motion to table can occur by the vote of a majority of the delegates. A motion to take it off the table requires a two-thirds vote of the convention.

Mr. Burson In that event, that certainly does answer part of the objection that I've raised; I'll have to say that.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Johnny Jackson. Amendment No. 1. On page 23, line 29, immediately after the word "on" and before the word "any" insert the following: "any matter which is in the purview of said committee's functions on".

Explanation

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, basically what this amendment does is just clarify that for the Committee on Styling and Drafting, that if the question of reconsideration comes up, it has to be raised based on the functions as outlined in Rule No. 50 of the Committee on Styling and Drafting. All it does is further clarify that, so that you would not have a committee to reconsider matters to attempt to bring it before debate again, that if it is reconsidered, it's only reconsidered on things like numbering, styling and technical provisions rather than leaving it open, as I understand it to be in the proposed rule.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm afraid this amendment because I think that this particular provision in our rules and regulations possibly can save us from making some very extreme errors sometimes, particularly upon duplication and inconsistency of provisions which may have been adopted; it's possible only the Drafting and Style Committee would be able to catch. I would favor leaving it just like it is for the particular reason that they can maybe save us from some of our errors. We don't have another time, another body to catch the errors that might be made after we have once made them. It's our final chance to check on what we have done. If we find out that we have made an error, to reconsider it and go back and change it. After it's passed the rules of the Drafting Committee, we are out of luck then. Now, I just suggest at this particular time, leave it where the Drafting and Styling Committee can check anything like that. I'm sure we will have to pass upon what they do; we are not going to let them abuse the privilege.

Question

Mr. Stovall Senator De Blieux, isn't that exactly what Mr. Jackson just said, that this would be used only for the purpose of eliminating duplications and so forth?

Mr. De Blieux No, that's not what I understood. You see, the Style and Drafting Committee as it presently stands right now, they can only make changes in the lettering or the arrangement of the words; they cannot change the substance. Now, if there's a chance to call it to our attention, by reconsideration, of where we have made an error in something we have sent them. Now, under Mr. Jackson's amendment, as I understand it, they would not have that right and privilege to do that. They can only ask for reconsideration in case where we have misplaced a comma or something of that sort. It's got to be something that's not pertaining to the substance matter of the convention. I think that we ought to leave this here just so that we have a chance, the convention is going to have to pass on it anyway, so we can catch any errors we might have made.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I can appreciate Senator De Blieux's concern. All this amendment just basically does, it says that it's still within the purview of the Committee on Styling to raise questions of consideration. I'm saying that as it is so stated in the proposed rule that we're discussing, it leaves it very open as to what they can do. All my amendment says is that, you know, whatever we say they can do in Rule No. 50, the one that would be applicable in this rule for reconsideration. On that, I close, Mr. Chairman.

[Amendment rejected: viva voce.]

Mr. Stagg I move the adoption of Rule No. 73, Mr. Chairman.

Question

Mr. Conroy In some of these discussions which I've heard, there's been some inconsistency in what is meant by the word "session" in the first sentence of Rule No. 73. Would you explain what is meant by the word "session"?

Mr. Stagg Yes, sir, Mr. Conroy. When this convention is convened for the purpose of debating the proposals by committees and proposals by delegates for language in the new constitution-- when this convention opens its business, say, on Monday morning at 10:00, and a matter is taken up and voted on, the next day, Tuesday, would be the next session of the convention. A session would be for a day's business. So, if you were going to reconsider, you would have... to move on the same day the matter was voted or you would have to do so on the next succeeding day's session, or you could not thereafter move for reconsideration; that's the nature of the motion.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Conroy Thank you, very much.

[Previous Question ordered on the Rule.
Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 74. Motion to Call from the Table. A motion which has been laid on the table shall be called from the table only by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the delegates to the convention."

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted:
viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 75. Division of a Question. Any delegate may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it includes propositions which are so distinct in substance that, when one is removed or deferred, a substantive proposition remains for the decision of the convention. A motion to strike out and insert shall not be subject to division within the meaning of this rule. No section of a proposal may be divided. The limits on debate as set forth in Rule No. 30 of these rules shall apply to the debate on each division of the question."

Amendments

Mr. Poynter The gentleman [Mr. Stagg] sends up amendments.

On page 24, line 11, delete the word "No".

Amendment No. 2. On page 24, line 12, delete the words "section of a proposal may be divided."

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, it was brought to the attention of several members of the Rules Committee by delegates here that the division of a proposal, the rules that no section could be divided, might cause us to have some considerations before this body a piece of legislative or constitutional business that had two or three separate provisions. Perhaps, it was felt that two of them were good and one was not and in order to vote on it, you would have to take the good with the bad. The part of the rule which precedes it, which where they are distinct propositions, where one can be removed or deferred takes precedence over the section...over that part of it that says, "No section of a proposal may be divided." The Rules Committee met this morning at 9:00. We reconsidered this Rule No. 75 and it was the judgment of the Temporary Rules Committee that the suggestion that this amendment be adopted be brought to the attention of the convention and for that reason, the amendment was moved to delete the words, "No section of a proposal may be divided."

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, if you would—I just got back in the Chair—and if you would run through that explanation just one more time, I would appreciate it.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, a number of delegates—one, Mr. Avant, and some others—brought to the attention of the Rules Committee members that the rule section, second sentence from the end, would perhaps face the delegates with a dilemma when a proposal in the new constitution had several paragraphs or several thoughts within a single proposal and that if it could not be divided, you would be maybe forced to vote for a proposition that had some bad things in it you didn't want to vote for. But because it was presented as a single proposal, this would stop you from dividing it. That, being brought to the attention of the Rules Committee, we met this morning to reconsider our action in putting this rule in here. It was the unanimous view of the members of the Rules Committee—and there were fourteen members present—that this item should be eliminated and that's why the motion was made in the name of the Temporary Rules Committee.

Mr. Henry Realizing that I'm again exercising my discretion, couldn't you accomplish the same thing that you're setting out to accomplish by this...with this rule, by an amendment deleting what is objectionable, insofar as the issue is concerned, Mr. Stagg? All I'm basing my question on is what limited experience I've had in the legislature on such matters, because when you have a bill that comes up for a final passage in the legislature and there is some question that you might lose the bill, you amend out that portion; you resolve that by amendment rather than handling it in the manner in which you're suggesting it. I just wonder about the advisability.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, it was felt to be inconsistent with the first sentence which reads "Any delegate may call for a division of the question, which shall be divided if it includes propositions which are so distinct in substance that, when one is removed or deferred, a substantive proposition remains for the decision of the convention." If a question can be so divided because it would stand on its own bottom, then the further provision that a section could be divided was a glaring inconsistency.

Mr. Henry would you yield to a question from Mr. Avant?

Mr. Stagg Gladly, and it was on your suggestion that the Rules Committee took this matter up.

Questions

Mr. Avant Mr. Stagg, wouldn't it be true that under this rule that if whatever committee is charged, for example, with writing an article to go into the constitution, say, on the Judiciary and they brought it in in this fashion, Article III, the Judicial Department, Section 1, there will be thus and such courts and they will have thus and such jurisdiction? All right, Section 2, Selection, Tenure and Salary of Judges. All right, they say judges shall be selected in thus and such a manner; their terms of office shall be thus and such years; and they shall be paid in thus and such a fashion. All of those three things are in one section of that proposal. A delegate agreed with the method of selection; he agreed with the method by which they were going to be paid; but, he didn't agree with the tenure. Under this rule, as it's written, he could not move for a division of the question so that each one of those three items would be voted on separately?

Mr. Stagg That's what we felt, Mr. Avant, that it was inconsistent with the previous part of the rule as read.

Mr. Avant He would have to take, would he not, sir, the part that he didn't agree with in order to get the part that he did agree with?

Mr. Stagg That is correct, sir.

Mr. Avant And that's the reason for this amendment?

Mr. Stagg That is correct.

Mr. Kean Mr. Stagg, in light of the comment by the Chairman, it seems to me on further reflection that to delete this sentence from this rule could lead us into a real morass of trying to handle a division of a section, particularly, which can be done by amendments to the section and reach the same point. Under the circumstances, do you think it would be in order to withdraw the amendment so that we can proceed with the adoption of the rule?

Mr. Stagg Mr. Kean, I'm--if you don't leave, I want to parley with you--believe that what... it can be done under these circumstances and when Mr. Avant proposed his question of salary, tenure and term of judges that if you were offended by one of those three sections of that proposal, you could move to amend it, either to amend it out or to change the manner of it, or in another fashion protect yourself against voting on an unwarranted part of such a proposal. It was therefore, to be done either of two ways: by amendment or by allowing a section of the proposal to be divided. To the extent that the members of the Temporary Rules Committee would agree, then I would withdraw the motion because it was done by the Temporary Rules Committee this morning.

I would like to ask that the members...any member of the Temporary Rules Committee object to my withdrawing the amendment?

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg would like to know, and rightfully so, if any member of the Temporary Rules Committee would object to his withdrawing the amendment at this time?

Are you on the Rules Committee, Mr. De Blieux? Would you have a seat just a minute and let us resolve this, please?

All right, sir, Mr. Stagg, what is your...

Mr. Stagg Did any member of the Rules Committee rise to object, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. Henry No member has objected, sir.

Mr. Stagg Then I would be persuaded by the Chairman to withdraw the amendment.

Mr. Henry Thank you, sir.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Point of Order

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, if I'm in order, I'd like to propose the same amendment which was proposed by the Rules Committee. I'd like to explain my reasons why.

Mr. Henry Well, I'll tell you what--just take Mr. Stagg's name off and put Senator De Blieux's name on and we'll--Senator De Blieux sends up amendments, Mr. Clerk.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter It would delete in the rule the language on line 11 and 12 "no section of a proposal may be divided".

Explanation

Mr. De Blieux Now, if I may, Mr. Chairman and Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to explain why I think that this is a very good and appropriate amendment. This situation is going to arise when somebody presents an amendment to a proposal. To give you an example of what I'm speaking about, I take the very copy of it to be ineffective. It means, if somebody proposed that type of an amendment to the act, and you didn't like one of those sections in there, you couldn't... you'd have to vote against the whole business when you liked three out of the four. Now, this particular provision would allow you whenever something comes up to take out the bad and leave in the good. You don't have to accept the bad with the good in order to get something you want. Now, this really is only going to come up on amendments and you cannot propose an amendment to an amendment; I just want to call that to your attention. You vote on amendments one at a time after... according to what they're advocating by not having this in the rules, you've got to adopt the amendment first and then come back with a second amendment and debate the whole matter all over again before you can take out that bad portion which you don't want. If there's enough people there that want that bad portion in, it's going to make it kind of difficult for you to get it out after a prolonged debate. I think it's going to shorten our period of time. Let us go through in an orderly procedure, if we take this amendment and adopt it here, and you don't have to separate those you don't want to separate now, because it's going to be up to the convention as to whether or not they want to divide the question anytime, anyway.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in all due deference to Mr. Chairman and to the other distinguished delegates who've advocated the amendment process protect a delegate in this instance, I beg to differ. The reason that I want this amendment and urge you to support it is simply this: as I understand this rule, if a proposition can be divided then any delegate has the right to demand that it shall be divided. But, you do not have an unqualified right to offer amendments as you learned earlier when we had all this discussion on the previous question. Now, I may be caught in this situation. I may have an amendment that I want to offer, and I may be down the line, or for one reason or another the previous question is ordered, and I'm then in the position of having to vote either against three good propositions in order to vote against one bad one, or else vote for one bad one in order to vote for three good ones. I think that it just makes sense as this rule says, particularly when you get into proposals which are going to be the substance of the constitution, that if the question can be divided that that if any delegate requests it, it shall be divided. The amendment process does not give you that protection. I urge that you support this amendment.

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 76. Previous Question. A. Previous question. This undebatable motion is applicable only to the pending amendment, or amendments, if more than one amendment is under discussion; and it shall be admitted when ordered by a favorable vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting, and when carried its effect shall be to put an end to the debate and bring the Convention to a vote on the pending amendments only, without prejudice to further debate on, or subsequent to, the amendment to the main question. If there has been any discussion on the amendments, the proponent, or a delegate designated by him, shall have the right to close, even after the previous question is ordered, which closing speech shall be limited to fifteen minutes.

B. Previous question on the entire subject matter. It shall be admitted when ordered by a favorable vote of two-thirds of the delegates present and voting, and when carried, its effect shall be to put an end to all debate, and bring the Convention to a direct vote--

1) Upon the pending amendment and so on back to the first amendment offered.

2) Upon amendment reported by a committee, if any, and,

3) Upon the main question. But in all questions

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Involving length of time, amounts of interest, questions of quantity, and similar questions, such questions involving the longest time, the largest interest or quantity shall be put first regardless of the order in which motions, amendments or substitutes may have been made.

On a motion for the previous question on the entire subject matter, and prior to the ordering of the same, a call of the Convention shall be in order; but after the Convention shall have ordered such motion no call shall be in order prior to the decision of the main question on a motion for the previous question on the entire subject matter, there shall be no debate. All incidental questions of order, arising after a motion is made for the previous question on the entire subject matter and pending such motion, shall be decided whether on appeal or otherwise, without debate. After a call for the previous question on the entire subject matter has been sustained, the question shall be put in determined order as above, without debate on either amendment or motion. The motion provided that the proponents of the amendments and measure, or a delegate designated by him, shall respectively have the right to close the debate after the previous question on the entire subject matter is ordered, which closing speech shall be limited to a total of fifteen minutes."

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Kean amending the Original Resolution.

Amendment No. 1. On page 24, line 19 after the word "vote" delete the remainder of line 19 and insert in lieu thereof the following: "as provided in Rule 69."

Amendment No. 2. On page 24, line 20 delete the word "voting".

Amendment No. 3. On page 24, line 25, delete the "a" before the word "delegate" and change the word "delegate" to "delegates".

Amendment No. 4. On page 24, line 32 after the word "Convention" and before the word "to" add the words "or any committees".

Amendment No. 5. On page 25, line 22, delete the "a" and change the word "delegate" to "delegates".

Amendment No. 6. On page 25, line 25, correctly spell the word--incorrectly spell--"speeches" so as to read "speeches"--correctly spelled.

Explanation

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman there should be one additional amendment which would be designated "Amendment No. 4" and renumbering those after that as Amendments Nos. 5, 6, and 7, so that on page 24, line 29, you would delete the word "of" and on line 30, delete the words "two-thirds of the delegates present and voting" and insert "as provided in Rule 69." Amendment No. 1 and Amendment No. 4 accords with the action previously taken in Rule 69 to require a majority of those present and voting for the purpose of the previous question. The others are simply technical amendments to provide in one instance, the word "delegates" instead of "delegate", another instance, to make certain that the previous question rule would apply to committees as well as the convention.

Mr. Stagg The other amendment is to correct the spelling of the word "speeches".

[Previous question ordered. Motion adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Duval, amending the Original Resolution.

On page 25, between line 7 and 8 add the following: "(4) The motion for the previous question and the previous question on the entire subject matter shall, during the consideration of any proposal, extend only to the individual section under discussion in accordance with Rule No. 45."

Explanation

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is merely a clarification amendment. I'm sure that our rules as written, would be interpreted as to not allow the previous question on the entire subject matter to be moved on a...let us for an example, let's assume a constitutional article was proposed with ten sections and after discussing two sections, the previous question on the entire subject matter would be moved. I think under Rule No. 45 this could not be done because we are obliged to take each matter up, section by section. But, I think since the Chairman...it's the Chairman's duty to interpret these rules, we should make them as clear as possible and this would avoid any possible argument on the matter in the event that it would come up. So, I urge the adoption of the amendment.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Stagg]. On page 26, line 11, after the words "divided, the" and before the words "of the" delete the word "decision" and insert in lieu thereof the word "vote".

Explanation

Mr. Stagg It was simply that "decision" of the Chairman was not the proper word to use when actually what we meant was that the "vote" of the Chairman shall be taken and it much more simplifies it if you say exactly what you mean.

Question

Mr. Burson Would you just explain for the benefit of those of us that are not use to the terms "Special Order of the day, etc." what the significance is here requiring the two-thirds vote, whether this means--this is only for the purposes of deviating or what?

Mr. Stagg It is the purpose that the...under Rule No. 66, Mr. Burson, the daily order of business, the Morning Hour and the Regular Order of the day are set in the rules with particularity as to what must precede another item. In order for there to be a matter to be made the Special Order for tomorrow or for next Monday, which would take it out of its normal order on the day when it occurs, the delegate might have a proposal that you would be getting in the way of and extended debate would occur, and his proposal would never be heard until further in the week when he had already got a prime position on the orders of the day you seek to disrupt the order of the day by Special Order. It was deemed by the Rules Committee that that should not occur without two-thirds of the delegates present and voting.

Mr. Stagg Sends up technical amendments.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mr. Stagg]. On page 27, line 4, after the words "require a" and before the word "vote" insert the following "favorable".

Explanation

Mr. Chairman we misspelled the word "therefor" and put an "e" on it which was erroneous. In the next to last sentence, "for passage shall require a vote of the majority of the delegates." It's a vote of a favorable...it's "favorable vote" of a majority of the delegates--it's really a Style change because we've used "favorable vote" in other places.

Reading of the Rule

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Arnette]. On page 27, line 8, after the word "of" delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 9 and 10 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "a majority of the delegates to the Convention."--on page 27, line 8, after the word "of" delete the remainder of the line, delete all of lines 9 and 10 and insert in lieu thereof the words "a majority of the delegates to the Convention."

Explanation

Mr. Arnette Well, the purpose of this amendment is to--I'm not trying to open the same can of worms about the two-thirds vote or anything like this about a previous question; this is something entirely different--and there are three or four basic reasons for this change. First of all, if we keep the present rule as it stands, a two-thirds vote or a majority of the Convention, whichever is a lesser number, the rules of this Convention could be suspended if there is a bare quorum present by forty-seven persons. These same forty-seven persons could pass whatever they want to pass by the suspension of the rules; they could even pass an entire constitution. Now, we don't have the safeguards of the Senate and the House that the constitution provides for them. The present law in the Constitution of the State of Louisiana provides that it takes a vote of fifty-three of the House of Representatives or a majority of the Senate--I forget what the majority of the Senate is at the moment--but it requires that vote for any bill to become law. But, we don't have this built-in safeguard in the constitution, so there could be parts of the constitution passed. They could be taken out of consideration. They could be laid on the table by these forty-seven people and it could get passed--if what the majority of the delegates of the Convention want--and then we could not take this off the table except with a two-thirds vote. So, I think, it's imperative that we keep at least a majority of the votes...a majority of the delegates to the constitution required to pass any proposal before this House. I would have any question if there's any question in anyone's mind about this. But, I think it's very important that we have this safeguard. I also think that since the that since we need to have a set of rules that is fairly stable, that we should at least require a majority vote of the constitution before we can suspend them on any one day.

Questions

Mr. Burson Without intending to defeat your motion at all, I wanted to ask you, Mr. Arnette, if you had noticed—and I did because I asked some people about it—that in Rule No. 81, regarding recording the vote, that it says that "no article shall be declared passed unless a majority of all the delegates to the convention shall have voted in favor of the passage of same," so that I think that maybe what you're talking about in the rules of the...that the constitution providing for in the House and the Senate is also provided in our rules for this convention, too.

Mr. Arnette Mr. Burson, you're exactly right. It is provided in our rules in Rule No. 81. But, this rule, like any other rule, may be suspended. This is what worries me. We could suspend this rule which requires a majority of the convention to pass every proposal, and there could, perhaps, be a rule after they suspend this rule and, say, "Look, it only takes a vote of forty for any proposal to pass." This is what worries me. I don't envision it happening, and I hope it doesn't happen, but I think we ought to make a rule to take care of this eventuality.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Arnette, if you say that rule can be suspended which calls for a majority, why couldn't the rule which you are putting in the amendment also be suspended? So, I don't think you're going to be accomplishing anything that way.

Mr. Arnette Well, the rule to suspend the rules is the only way that you may suspend the rules. Therefore, it cannot be suspended until the rules are suspended. So, you can't suspend the rules until you get the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates to the convention.

Mr. Flory Mr. Arnette, do you realize that with the amendment that you have proposed, assuming that there are a hundred people present, that the normal reason for a suspension of the rules is if you're in the Regular Order of the Day under consideration of matters and you want to suspend the rules in order to revert to the morning hour for the purpose of introduction of Resolutions, Petitions, Memorials, etc., that if there are only a hundred people present that it would require sixty-seven votes in order to move back and forth in order for the desk to do the work that they have to do? Do you realize that?

Mr. Arnette Well, I may be mistaken, but I think we have another rule that provides for a change in the daily order by a majority vote of those present. I don't have it here with me at this particular time, but we have passed such a rule, I'm fairly sure.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Arnette In closing I just want to say that I think this is very important that we do have this provision in there that no less than a majority could suspend the rule of this convention for the reasons I stated before, because I don't want anything passed by anything less than a majority of this convention. I think it would hurt our credibility at the polls, and I don't think that we need to have this adverse publicity or anything like this or any provision passed by less than a majority that would hurt us at the polls. This is my main consideration.

[Amendments rejected: viva voce. Previous question ordered on the rule. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 86. Consideration of Proposals without Committee Recommendation. After one day's notice the convention, on a motion passed by the affirmative vote of a majority of the delegates present and voting, may require a committee to return, with or without recommendation, any proposal referred to the committee."

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 87. Notice. Whenever notice is required to be given by these rules, the following rules shall constitute notice:

(A) If the convention is in session, an announcement made by the Secretary in open session shall constitute notice for all purposes.

(B) If the convention is not in session, the Secretary shall give notice to the delegates by U.S. Mail, certified, postage prepaid. The date of mailing said notice shall constitute the date of the notice for all purposes under these rules."

I have no amendments, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Stinson Mr. Stagg, nowadays, you know, our mail is rather terrible. You don't have any time there in which you are given notice. I know when we got the copies of the rules, a week later I got the telegram that was mailed to me to see if I had gotten the rules. Now, this doesn't have any time element. Don't you think there should be some precaution taken to be sure that we will get the...There's no delay at all.

Mr. Stagg Well, it's required, Mr. Stinson, to be sent by certified mail, and we trust that that provision of not just eight cent stamps on it but that it must be certified will probably gain you the receipt of that mail maybe a little quicker than you would under normal circumstances.

Mr. Stinson I could foresee where it might even delay it. I'd rather mine not be certified. You have to pick it up, maybe, in person. It looks like there should be some precaution because...on there. From here to Shreveport or out in the country from Shreveport it takes sometimes three days to get mail up there, at least.

Mr. Stagg Well, Mr. Stinson, I think the committee felt that the most reasonable notice given and capable of being given by the Secretary was to put it in the mail. We can't be using the State Police every time we need a notice and the weather is bad.

[Previous question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Rule

Mr. Poynter "Rule No. 88. Authority. On any question of order and parliamentary practice, when these rules are silent or inexplicit, Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure shall be considered authority."

Question

Mr. Tobias Mr. Stagg, why did the Rules Committee choose Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure rather than Robert's Rules of Order?

Mr. Stagg You may not believe this, Mr. Tobias, but after we had argued the rules for some twenty-eight hours and we were prepared to suggest that Robert's Rules of Order would cover places where these rules were silent, we sought advice from legislative members of our...members of our committee who were in the legislature, we sought advice from Mr. Poynter, we sought advice from delegates who were present at the Rules Committee hearings, and the general trend of the advice, sir, was that Robert's Rules of Order were particularly designed for conventions of social organizations, for Kiwanis Clubs, for Lions Clubs, for other than legislative and governmental deliberative bodies. It was felt that Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedure is a manual designed particularly for parliamentary bodies, constitutional conventions and state legislatures and that for that reason only, Mason's Manual was felt to be a superior source of legislative information, parliamentary debate than would be Robert's Rules of Order. The committee also made it its business to recommend to the Chair that at all times during the deliberations of this convention, multiple copies of Mason's Manual will be present in whatever room it is we are deliberating so that the members could have access to it.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move to adopt Rule No. 89, which reads as follows: "In all correspondence, news releases, memoranda and other similar writings, it shall be permissible to refer to the Constitutional Convention of 1973 by the abbreviation 'C.C./'73.'" I move its adoption.

[Previous Question ordered. Rule adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, there is one additional rule concerning the power of the Chairman to call this convention back into session, if necessary, prior to July 5. I think that motion or resolution was forwarded to the Chair by Mr. Womack.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 offered by Mr. Womack to the resolution: On page 27, line 32 add the following:

"CHAPTER 7,

Interim Meetings

Rule No. 90. Interim Meetings of the Convention. The Chairman, with the approval of the Executive Committee, may reconvene the convention."

Explanation

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, It's the feeling of a number of members that there was a void and that not knowing who might raise a constitutional question that needed to be clarified prior to a legislative session or something of that kind, that we needed a rule in there giving the authority for the reconvening of the convention prior to July 5, or at any other time there deemed a necessity. So, I'd urge the adoption.

Questions

Mr. Gravel Mr. Womack, I'm not opposed to the reasoning behind your resolution, but I do have some serious concern about whether we are not directly violating the provisions of Act 2 of 1972. I refer, particularly, to the provision that requires that after completing organizational activities, the convention shall adjourn until July 5, 1973, which appears to me to be a mandatory provision in the law. Now, don't you feel that your resolution is in direct conflict with this provision in the law...of the statutes?

Mr. Womack Mr. Gravel, that is quite apparent, but by the same token, if it becomes absolutely necessary that that be done, then we can go back and amend it and ratify what had been done which, I think, is a procedure that would give us an out on it. I speak in particular...let me give you this for an example: there has been a constitutional question raised, and one of the alternatives to the settlement of a possible constitutional question would be the convention itself take certain action which would be a corrective measure. But, if there's no provisions for calling the convention into session, then I don't know whether you could do it or not. So, it was felt by a number of us that this should be included in there and then if we have trouble with it, we could ratify it by a House resolution.

Mr. Gravel Well, I don't agree with you that... The point I'm asking is that if this is a convention of the law, and you seem to agree that it is, couldn't we accomplish your purpose by making some provision at this time for the convention to reconvene upon the call of the Chairman and the Executive Committee as a Committee of the Whole, which I think probably would be within the authorization of the statutes? I think your resolution is in conflict--direct, clear conflict--with the law. It's in conflict with the oath that we've taken, and I believe that what you want to do can be handled, but not in this manner.

Mr. Womack What you're trying to say is that if we would add the words "into a Committee of the Whole" you think we could do the same thing by that and eliminate the conflict?

Mr. Gravel That's a possibility. I hadn't thought it out too much, but that would be the only possible way that I think we could do it and not violate the statutes.

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, would you declare a standing at ease for about three, four or five minutes and...

Mr. Henry I was just fixing to suggest that if... You're going to withdraw these for the moment?

Mr. Womack Yes, I'll withdraw.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it is the opinion of our key legal counsel that when we once adjourn that there is no provisions for calling this convention back into session however imperative it might be as you move on. So, instead of a proposal which would allow the reconvening at the apparent close of the urgent business, we plan to propose that we recess until a day certain, which legally and technically will leave the Chairman of the convention in a position to call us back to complete the work that we had left undone; and that portion of the word we'd left undone would be that portion of urgent things that come up that is imperative that it be taken care of in order to see that the functions of the convention are carried out with the...within the duties and responsibilities that we have. At this time, we don't propose any amendment. We propose only that you understand that at the close of the... or at the apparent close of the urgent business that we have, that we will recess, and that motion is the one that will be on the floor, or this afternoon, or tonight or whenever the time might be. Thank you.

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, the pending order of business before the convention is Committee Resolution No. 1, entered by the Temporary Committee on Rules. On behalf of that committee, I move the adoption of the rules as variously amended.

Point of Information

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, I guess rather than a question to Mr. Stagg, this would be a point of information from the Chair.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

If we adopt these rules, would we be then in a position to consider the resolutions today--those resolutions that have already been filed?

Mr. Henry Mr. Triche, your point is well taken. If we adopt these rules in their entirety with this motion, we will have to suspend the rules to give consideration to any of these resolutions until next July.

Point of Information

Mr. Weiss May we request of either Mr. Stagg or the Chair that we allow the resolutions currently pending to be considered today after the conclusion of this vote?

Mr. Henry Well, now, it's not going to be up to Mr. Stagg. He's a very congenial and agreeable fellow, Dr. Weiss, but it's just not that easy. Now, you see, we've spent over a week hammering out a set of rules of procedure, and I think that once we adopt these rules that we should proceed according to the rules that we have adopted. Now, the position that we will be in if this motion to go ahead and adopt all the rules as amended is adopted, then the resolutions will be introduced. They will be read. The delegate who introduces the resolution can make motion to suspend the rules for the purpose of considering the adoption of the resolution on today. If we get a two-thirds vote to suspend the rules, then certainly we can consider the resolution at that time. But, Mr. Stagg does not have nor would he take the prerogative of saying that he will allow us to introduce and go ahead and debate these resolutions, because it's not Mr. Stagg's ball game; it's mine and yours and his, you see.

Point of Information

Mr. Weiss The point of information is the question to you, Delegate Chairman, is how should we handle this matter at the completion of this vote when we hopefully will accept these rules and then go on from that point? What would you suggest?

Mr. Henry I would... You know, I don't want to act like I'm controlling this convention, Dr. Weiss.

Mr. Weiss This is a point of information, Delegate Chairman. You're certainly not controlling the convention.

Mr. Henry I think that we should go ahead and adopt the rules, and then take your chances on suspending the rules, personally.

Mr. Weiss Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Committee Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Mr. Henry At this time, I think it would be most appropriate for those of us as delegates to express our deep appreciation, Mr. Stagg. I don't usually do this for Republicans, but you have done a splendid job, you and your committee, and I think all of those of us here at the convention are indebted to you. I'd ask that every delegate stand up and give them a round of applause.

Be seated; let's do a great ovation.

Are there resolutions, Mr. Clerk?
I think the first order of business, perhaps, at this point should be inasmuch as the rules provide that the Chairman of the Convention can appoint a Clerk and a Sergeant-at-Arms, I would like to state that my choice for Clerk--and I'm sure this will come as a great surprise--is David Poynter, who we're getting for a real bargain. He has agreed to serve the convention at no cost to the convention at all. He reluctantly agreed to do that after I explained it to him the other night. No, I'm serious.

I would like to recommend the name of R.L. "Duke" Barrios to serve as Sergeant-at-Arms for the convention.

Mrs. Taylor.

Motion

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Convention Chairman and fellow delegates, it is indeed a privilege for me to move that we approve the appointment of Mr. David Poynter as Chief Clerk of this convention. I'm sure you will have to agree with me that Mr. David Poynter has shown his capabilities as Acting Clerk, and I hereby move that we do approve his appointment as Chief Clerk.

[Previous Question ordered. Appointment of Chief Clerk approved by acclamation.]

Motion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I move that the convention approve the appointment of Mr. Barrios to be the Sergeant-at-Arms of this convention.

[Previous Question ordered. Appointment of Sergeant-at-Arms approved: viva voce.]

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

Mr. Poynter With the indulgence of the convention, I would like to postpone assigning permanent numbers to these delegate resolutions as there were a number of resolutions offered up the first day that you convened. With your approval, I will temporarily, rather than number them, call them Resolution A, B, etc., and when all the records are examined, we can remember them according to the number of introduction.
Mr. Chairman, will that be appropriate?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir. That's in order, Mr. Poynter.

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution No. A (for a temporary purpose) is introduced by Dr. Weiss: A resolution relative to the use of existing Louisiana Hospital Television Network Facilities by the Louisiana Constitutional Convention of 1973, acting through its committees.

Mr. Henry Dr. Weiss, what's your pleasure? Do you want to attempt to consider it?

Mr. Weiss With your permission, Mr. Chairman, I would like to present it and allow the delegates to make that decision.

[Motion to suspend the rules to consider the Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Explanation

Mr. Weiss Thank you, Delegate Chairman and fellow delegates. Louisiana has unusual capabilities and facilities that are available to this 1973 Constitutional Convention. Thanks to the foresight of a few of our citizens and public officials, this state is the first in the nation and in the world to have in operation a statewide closed-circuit conference television network. It is currently used five days a week by medical and paramedical personnel in ten major areas of our state: Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Lafayette, Lake Charles, Monroe, New Orleans, Shreveport, Greenwell Springs, Jackson and Mandeville. Through this facility, our constitution a statewide closed-committee meetings and/or hearings could be held without the necessity of all parties journeying to one location. At the same time, our interested constituents could sit in on some four thousand seats on any hearing by merely going to the viewing and broadcast station at the local or nearby hospital. For example, from 2 to 4 p.m. on Friday afternoon, members of any given committee--or for that matter they could meet at night--could meet through audiovisual means at the ten locations cited. Two-way audio communication is possible at all stations with the Chairman moderating the discussion from Baton Rouge or New Orleans television studios. Many authorities consider that television is the most important discovery since the printing press. Learning has been reported to be eighty percent visual and twenty percent auditory, and we have the means of educating and involving the citizens of Louisiana as no other citizenry has been involved in the history of the world in the formation of their own constitution. Louisiana has the ability to bring this convention into the twenty-first century. Therefore, I propose the following resolution.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Reading of the Resolution
[1 Journal 52]

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Dr. Weiss, do you have any idea as to what we could be talking about in dollars and cents?

Mr. Weiss Yes, I do.

Mr. Rayburn Would you mind giving us the benefit of that knowledge?

Mr. Weiss I specifically stated the two to five o'clock p.m. hour because there would be no charge for that facility. In the event the Constitutional Convention so desires, it would be approximately a hundred dollars an hour on hours, say, between five and nine; for four hours, it would be four hundred dollars, roughly, to operate this facility in the manner in which you said.

Mr. Rayburn Then it would be left up to the committee, I guess, using it, whether they wanted to keep it till nine o'clock or later if they so desired.

Mr. Weiss Well, that depends upon the Executive Committee, and I believe the Louisiana Hospital Television Network and their cameramen and the people who run the facility.

Mr. Rayburn From two to five that equipment and the personnel is now idle?

Mr. Weiss That's correct; and as a matter of fact, the cables are twenty-four hour operations.

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir. Thank you, doctor.

Mr. Gravel I have two questions, Dr. Weiss, which concern me. First, doesn't this, in effect, make our convention and our committee operations somewhat subject to whatever schedule may be determined in the future by the Louisiana Educational Television Authority? As I read your resolution, it would make us have to accommodate to the schedules that might be determined during the times that we might be deliberating; isn't that correct?

Mr. Weiss Well, yes and no. First, it would appear that way, but this operation is run by the State of Louisiana from our governor, I understand, on down. Therefore, any request made of Mr. Stanley, the Administrator, would of course have to be taken into consideration by the governor and the other authorities above him.

Mr. Gravel But, doesn't this resolution specifically say that we shall not conflict with the regular closed circuit programming of said network?

Mr. Weiss That is correct.

Mr. Gravel Then, we would be subservient or subordinate, so to speak, to the scheduling that the network might make.

Mr. Weiss Not unless the administrator was instructed otherwise.

Mr. Gravel That second question that I asked is this: have you, Doctor, been able to talk with the people connected with the Louisiana Education Television Authority, Director of Hospitals, and the head of the Health Rehabilitation Services Department to determine their ideas as to the feasibility and cost in scheduling problems that might be involved here?

Mr. Weiss The scheduling and the feasibility has been worked out as asked by Delegate Rayburn. I think there would be three hours without question at no charge to this convention. If they so desired other hours through the Executive Committee's request, that would have to be worked out. The cost would be approximately a hundred dollars per hour on the time that was made available to this convention and its committees.

Mr. Gravel My question, I believe, was whether--let me put it more specifically--whether you've discussed this, for example, with Dr. Vidrine with the Department of Health, Social Rehabilitation Services, with Mr. Sweeney with the Department of Hospitals, and with the officials of the Louisiana Educational Authority with respect to the feasibility of the entire concept.

Mr. Weiss I did not go in between. I went as low and as high as you could go, so to speak. The administrator, Mr. Stanley, agrees that we can handle it. The lieutenant governor, in speaking with him, also felt the same way.

Mr. Bollinger Dr. Weiss, in this resolution, it in no way requires the committee to use these facilities; does it?

Mr. Weiss That is correct.

Mr. Bollinger Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I'm not going to get into the merits or demerits of this resolution. I do want to point out to you, if you will turn to your rules now and look at the Procedural Committee No. 4, they have been assigned by the adoption of the rules to handle these kind of things, and it would look to me like that it would be in order at this time that this proposed resolution be referred to that committee and let the proper committee handle it. I would like to see the convention do that, and let's get ourselves in a habit of following the rules that we have and let the proper committees handle the proper things; and Dr., I do think that that's where this belongs; and if, if you would have no objection, or no serious objection, I would like at this time to move that we do refer it to that committee and let them attempt to work it out. I think that is in keeping with the intent of our rules. So, at this time, Mr. Chairman, I would so move.

[Substitute Motion to Refer to Adopt Resolution A on the Committee on Public Information.]

Point of Information

Mr. Schmitt Is it possible to refer something to a committee where there are no existing members of that committee?

Mr. Henry Under the rules, yes, sir, it's very possible.

Point of Information

Mr. Weiss This is a procedural matter, Mr. Chairman. I'd like you to clarify it for me. I presented this resolution in the substance of the discussion of the procedure on rules, thinking that this would be more appropriate and was advised to keep it until the end of the acceptance of this procedural document. I do believe, however, that the convention, at least, should act in this regard, one way or the other, certainly turning it over to the proper subcommittees or committees. But, if the convention is to use these facilities its first few months, I think some action might be taken, and I'm caught in between procedure in this regard. I'd like to know, if this motion passes, will this necessarily delay the use of these facilities that could be most helpful in the coming months, prior to our meeting here in July?

Mr. Henry Dr. Weiss, I think I was the one that suggested that you wait. I thought you were going to introduce it as a rule, and if I gave you some bad information, which I'm very capable and consistent to do, then I apologize to you. If Mr. Womack's submission does pass at this time, your resolution will be referred to Procedural Committee No. 4, which is Public Information, in which event, that committee will not be able to report that resolution back to the full body until we convene again, which probably will be in July.

Mr. Weiss Therefore, these facilities would not be in use before then. Is that correct?

Mr. Henry That's correct.

Mr. Weiss Well, I must have been misinformed on procedure because I would like to see this facility used by all committees before that time. I would speak against the amendment.

Point of Information

Mr. Denny Mr. Chairman, if this matter is referred to Procedural Committee No. 4, will that prohibit the Executive Committee, for example, from negotiating with these state agencies for the use of these facilities if they become desirable during that period?

Mr. Henry If the Executive Committee in its infinite wisdom determines that such a proposition as this was advisable, I would imagine that the Executive Committee could set in motion the mechanics to go ahead and get this on the road to recovery, Mr. Denny.

Mr. Denny Thank you, sir.

Point of Information

Mr. Silverberg Mr. Chairman, am I to understand that the committee, or Procedural Committee No. 4, will not go into operation until July 5?

Mr. Henry No, sir, not at all. That wasn't what I said, Mr. Silverberg.

Mr. Silverberg Well, I misunderstood you, and I would like some clarification of it, please, sir.

Mr. Henry What I was pointing out to Dr. Weiss is simply that under the rules of procedure which you have adopted, if this resolution is committed to a committee that that committee will not be able to make its report back to the convention until July; don't you see? It will make its report to the convention. The convention will then make its determination, which in all probability will be in July.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman and delegates of the convention, I rise in opposition to the motion by my good friend, Mr. Womack. If we commit this resolution, we're going to in effect kill it, and we'll have to take it up when we come back in July. The purpose of the resolution is simply to request the Louisiana Department of Hospitals, which has a closed circuit television network available for our use now, request that that authority make its facilities available. It requests the Louisiana Television Authority, which is another agency that has these facilities available, it requests that the agency make those facilities available to the convention. There's no requirement that they be used by the convention. There's no requirement that anybody spend any money in the use of these facilities. It also provides that these facilities shall be used when and if determined by the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee will determine when these facilities will be used, and if it's done in committee work, it will be done at the request of the chairman of the respective committees. Now, it just seems to me, ladies and gentlemen, that we have available to us for the use of the citizenry of this state a tremendous network available to disseminate information about the deliberations of this convention to the people of this state. It's available to us. It's available to us at a modest cost. There's no requirement that we spend a crying dime on it. We're simply asking that these people make the facilities available, that the agency make the facilities available; and if the Executive Committee decides that these facilities should be used, they would be used; if the chairman of the committees decides they shall be used, they'll be used. So, it seems like we've got a good bargain available to us, and we ought to take the advantage and opportunity of it. We ought to seek to take the advantage of these facilities now because I believe it's contemplated that we're going to hold hearings throughout the state, and our committees are going to meet between now and July and it would be advisable to think, when these committees are meeting if these facilities are available, and if the agencies involved have the funds to put them on, that they can be in a position then to channel our meetings through their television facilities and disseminate that information far and wide throughout the length and breadth of this state. It would be a good thing that we ought to do. For that reason, I would ask that you not commit Dr. Weiss's resolution, but that you take it up now on its merits and make a decision whether you want to use these facilities now or not.

Questions

Mr. Womack Mr. Triche, would you agree that the wording in the Committee No. 4, that I made a motion to refer to, says that they consider and take the necessary action? That's question No. 1. Question No. 2, doesn't the act that set up this Constitutional Convention, if you will look on under Paragraph (f), and I'll read it to you and ask if you don't realize it, "the convention also shall have full authority to use the facilities and services of any board, commission, department, agency of the state, or any political subdivision," and it goes on. Don't you think that sufficiently covers it? Now, the third question is then, that in view of these, if you still don't think that it is sufficient to give leeway enough to protect it, don't you realize that our motion will be to recess tomorrow, and that we will be reconvened within the next two to three weeks, and it could be taken up at that time, if it was deemed necessary?

Mr. Triche No. That provides that services of state agencies that it be made available to this convention. Of course, to take advantage of the agencies and the services of the agencies, the convention has to make a determination for the use of those facilities. That's what this resolution seeks to do. It seeks to request the Hospital Authority and the Louisiana Television Authority to make their services available, such services as they are.

Mr. Womack Mr. Triche, do you realize that sooner or later this convention is going to have to consider those resolutions and only those resolutions that are pertinent, and when I mean pertinent, I mean directly pertinent to the business of this convention? I comment on that question by further stating that each time you introduce a resolution of any kind and print it and run it through the files, you're looking at some three hundred, three hundred and fifty dollars. I'm also looking at the fact that all of these elements of excessive expenditure...

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, isn't that an awfully funny question?

Mr. Womack Mr. Triche, I got my lesson from you. You taught me. If that's an unusual question, I had a good teacher. But, don't you think that sooner or later we're going to have to get down to where we're looking at the final product and the analysis of the final product by the voting public? The answer probably is no.

Mr. Triche No, Mr. Womack. This resolution is in the nature of an organization resolution, and this is an organization session, and I think it's entirely in order, and I think it's entirely proper at this time if we want to use those television facilities to disseminate information throughout the state on the subject of this convention, that we make the request for those facilities now.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise to support the amendment, not because I want to kill the resolution. In fact, I think that it registers a tremendous opportunity, and certainly in agreeing with the proponent of the resolution, it will bring us into the twenty-first century. My supporting the motion is not to kill it. However, a number of things stated by Mr. Triche about the availability of the facilities and the absence of cost, I do not see in the resolution. It would be wise that we need to refer this to an appropriate body to determine the feasibility of this operation. Whereas, Mr. Triche mentioned that there were no costs, Dr. Weiss had mentioned that it would cost a hundred dollars an hour after five in the evening. The scheduling problems, which committees will take precedence over other matters, these matters need to be referred to the appropriate committee; I think it's the Public Information Committee, so that it might be implemented. As was suggested by the person who preceded me, this is within the purview of the Public Information Committee, as I understand it, to implement and to institute methods by whereby information would be gotten to the citizens. Another fact which needs to be considered is what is the budget... what will be the budgets of the respective committees so that they might determine how many hours at a hundred dollars that they can afford to have these programs aired; or if additional funds are necessary, how will we get them? So, I rise in support of the motion... or the amendment, rather, not to kill the resolution, but rather to try to assure that the resolution will be implemented and that it will be successful and used for the benefit of the people of this state. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, I would like to have a point clarified. A while ago I understood you to say the Procedural Committee No. 4 on Public Information would not be able to report back to the convention until July, which may be true. But, as I read Procedural Committee No. 4, it says... member of that committee to implement measures, to inform the people in the acts, and procedures," etc. Well, as I understand this, there is nothing to prevent the Committee on Information to take whatever actions it wants to between now and July to publicize our actions. It, on its own, could implement this television service if it wanted to; could it not? Don't they have the latitude to do whatever they need to do between now and July to disseminate this information?

Mr. Henry You'd better run that by me again, Sir. I'm sorry.

Mr. Abraham Well, what I'm asking is, this says that the Committee on Public Information shall consider and implement measures to inform the people on the actions, procedures, recommendations, and activities of the convention. Doesn't this authorize the Committee on Education to do whatever it needs to do between now and July, or during the next year, to disseminate information; and doesn't this give the committee authority, in effect, that if it wants to activate this type of television network or go to the health authority or whomever it may be that they could do this type of thing and set this up with various committees or whomever they wanted?

Mr. Henry Not at all, Mr. Abraham, any more than it would give the Committee on the Bill of Rights the authority to draw up what it thinks is best and just approve it without coming back to the full body of the convention. No, Sir. There's no need of having a convention if you're going to let your committees have the ultimate decision and say-so.

Mr. Abraham Well, I would beg to disagree with the Chair because this committee, then, cannot do anything unless it comes back to the full convention and gets its permission to publish information in the paper, or whatever it may be.

Mr. Henry Well, if you're telling me that it's your appreciation—and I could be wrong—but, if you're telling me it's your appreciation that this Committee on Public Information can just go to work, then you're telling me they can use the public relations firm and agree to pay them fifty thousand dollars a month or a year, and that we've just got to like it or lump it, Mr. Abraham; and it's just not my understanding that that's what that committee can do.

[Previous question referred to the Subcommittee on the Bill of Rights, Executive Mission reported: viva voce.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Denney Mr. Chairman, delegates, I rise in support of the resolution offered by Dr. Weiss. I happen to be the chairman of the Louisiana Educational Television Authority, and I can assure you that this convention can gain great benefits from the use of the facilities of both the Authority and the Hospital Television Network. The cost... the state is presently paying twenty-seven thousand dollars a month for the lines that the Hospital Authority is using, and those lines are only used approximately half the day. I think this convention could get great benefit from the use of those lines, not only insofar as the public is concerned, but even more importantly during the early stages of this convention as far as the various committees themselves are concerned. For example, if a committee were to meet in one of the cities in Louisiana and a question arose which required some technical knowledge which was not available at that point, the committee could utilize the facilities of this network to get the expertise at one of the two main studios in Baton Rouge or New Orleans, and within a day or so, telecast this around the state so that each one of the delegates who is a member of that committee could go to the nearest hospital and listen to the explanation given by the expert. I think it's a very desirable thing for this convention to be authorized or to authorize its Executive Committee to request the services of these other state agencies.

Further Discussion

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, I've listened for several days on practically every delegate here say how they wanted to keep the public informed, how they wanted open meetings, and I can't imagine a greater facility to keep the public informed than this offer of Dr. Weiss and the Hospital Association. I speak in favor of the motion, and I think here's something that isn't going to cost us anything. If we need extra time in the prime hours for television, that would seem to me to be a question for the Finance Committee or the Executive Committee to decide, and I think it's a facility for the Publicity Committee that we ought to grab right now, and for that reason, I move the previous Question, Mr. Chairman.

[Motion for Previous Question rejected: viva voce.]

Point of Information

Mr. Kean Do I understand under the rules that if I wanted to offer an amendment to this resolution that it would have to be in writing and distributed to every member of the convention before it could be considered?

Mr. Henry That's my appreciation of the rules, yes, sir.

Mr. Kean I don't want to offer it.

Mr. Henry Mr. Newton. That's one reason that it might not turn out to be such a bad rule.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Newton I think maybe we can solve the problem here. I would like to make a substitute motion at this time that the resolution be referred to the Executive Committee for its consideration and for such action as it may deem appropriate.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss I object to that amendment, or substitute motion, and I'm sorry this created such havoc. If everyone is in favor of this, the Executive Committee in the resolution is authorized to handle the matter. So, I think this amendment is redundant and would request that you retract that amendment.

[Previous question ordered. Substitute Motion rejected: viva voce. Previous Question ordered on the Motion. Motion rejected: viva voce. Previous question ordered on the Resolution. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution temporarily numbered "B," introduced by Mr. Derbes. A RESOLUTION to adopt the following standing rule of the Constitutional Convention. Rule No. [It would appropriately be numbered] A. Advocates Defined. At this time, unless the Chairman desires, I won't read it. It further provides for the registration of advocates.

[Resolution read. Time over under the rules.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution temporary numbered "C," introduced by Mr. Roy, Mr. Gauthier and Mr. Dennis. A resolution provided with respect to expressing the appreciation of the convention to Chief Justice Hamlin.

Mr. Henry Read the Resolution.

[Amendment read by title. Motion approved. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Amendment

Mr. Henry Mr. Triche now sends up amendment. This amendment will provide that every delegate to the convention will serve as a coauthor on the resolution unless there is anybody who objects.

[Amendment adopted with viva voce.]

Explanation

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is a resolution as you've heard which simply commends and conveys our appreciation to Chief Justice Hamlin for his efforts preparatory to the beginning of the convention and before he stepped aside and designated Justice Sanders to convene us on January 5th. I ask for final passage.

[Previous Question ordered. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution number temporarily "D," introduced by Mr. Jenkins. A resolution provide with respect to the purchase of printing, materials, supplies, equipment and services, except employment, and provide further with respect thereto.

[Rules suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, let me first point out a couple of typographical errors on line 11, the last word should be "offered." On line 14, after the word "heretofore" we should have the word "been" included. Now, the purpose of this resolution really is to insure efficiency and economy in the operation of the business of the convention. It seems advisable that we should have our contracts let strictly by a bid to the lower responsible bidder rather than having the possibility of allocations be made that we adopted... agreed to contracts on some other basis other than what is the lowest responsible bidder. I would think it would contribute to our economy of the convention, certainly to the public image of the convention. The second part with regard to lines 13, 14, and 15 specifically refers to certain contracts which may have been made by the State of Louisiana which might be interpreted as referring to us but should not be, such as, the printing contract for the state printer. We have a very limited budget for conducting the operations of this convention. If, for example, the Journal which we are to prepare cost us two thousand dollars a day, we soon won't have enough money to operate on. So, it seems advisable that we ask for bids to be submitted on substantial items such as this so that we can get the lowest responsible bid and save as much money as possible for the people of the state. So, I urge the adoption of this resolution.

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Duval Representative Jenkins, would not this convention be subject to the Public Bid law of Louisiana?

Mr. Jenkins Stan, I don't think we would be. There is no indication that an autonomous body such as this would be. I certainly don't think so; that's why I proposed this particular resolution.

Mr. Duval Have you researched the point on the Public Bid Law or not because I really don't know either, and I'm curious?

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

Mr. Jenkins No, frankly, I haven't. I think we are sort of dealing with an unusual situation here dealing with the Constitutional Convention.

Mr. Silverberg Mr. Jenkins, I have two questions. In the main body of your resolution, "Printing the figure five hundred dollars which could be changed or would you agree to change it to a thousand dollars and you would be within the Public Bid Law, if I'm not mistaken, for printing and supplies? Are you familiar with the length of time that it would take to advertise sealed bids if we follow the public bidding regulations or the prohibitions for...against?"

Mr. Jenkins First, Mr. Silverberg, I would have no objection to raising that amount to a thousand dollars. Secondly, I believe the length of time involved for, in the Public Bid Law, may be a little bit too lengthy for some of our purposes and that's why I wanted to open it up a little broader than that.

Mr. Silverberg Thank you. My second question is: I need a little explanation of the "BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED". This is not a prohibition against using any of the state contract where we could get a much better price for some of the materials we might have to purchase; is it?

Mr. Jenkins No, sir, not at all. I think we would be able to take advantage of such agreement but we would not be necessarily bound by them.

Mr. Silverberg Thank you.

Mr. Flory Mr. Jenkins, I'm not an attorney, but I believe if you will look at Title 38, Section 2211, you'll find that we are subject to the public bidding procedures. Secondly, I think this convention is covered by the Central Purchasing Act already. So that if the state contract where we have a contract, let say, for the purchase of paper, I don't believe that we have the authority to negate that contract that the state may have already let out to bids on and have accepted the most responsible lowest bidder. So, I think, really, that what we ought to do is to research this a little further before we act on it because I wouldn't want to take any position to try to nullify a legitimate, legal and binding contract that may exist under the Central Purchasing or under the Public Bidding statutes already in existence.

Mr. Jenkins Well, Mr. Flory asked me privately if I might want to wait until tomorrow so that we could research this further. I have no objection, assuming we are going to be in session tomorrow. So, if that is the understanding of the Chairman that we will be in session...

Mr. Leithman We will be in tomorrow.

Mr. Jenkins I would ask to return this to the calendar and reconsider it at that time.

[Resolution returned to the calendar subject to be read without objection.]

Reading of the Resolution by Title Only

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution number "E" temporarily so designated introduced by Dr. Asseff.

A resolution to urge public and private employers in Louisiana to give preference in their employment practices to disabled veterans.

[Rules suspended to consider the Resolution at this time. Resolution read.]

Explanation

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, delegates, this resolution is submitted on behalf of the State Organization of Veterans of Foreign Wars. It simply calls a serious employment problem of our disabled veterans to the attention of the public and urges public and private employers to give them preference in their employment practices; it's simply an urge and request.

[Previous question ordered. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Constitutional Convention of 1973, Delegate Resolution Number, temporarily lettered "F" introduced by Mr. Avant.

A resolution...

I'll read you the one line, perhaps you would want to suspend your rules and adopt it...two lines.

BE IT RESOLVED that no resolution, memorial or petition be in order unless it is germane to the business of this Convention as such.

[Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Avant Gentlemen, I don't want to hurt anybody's feelings. I don't want to offend anyone. I'm for motherhood. I'm against sin. But, I am seriously concerned about the affairs of this convention. This is a very simply line and a half resolution; it says "BE IT RESOLVED that no resolution, memorial or petition be in order unless it is germane to the business of this Convention as such." I rest my case.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I rise very much in favor of this. In fact, I was trying to get the floor before Mr. Avant's resolution came up. I did not want to object to Brother Asseff's resolution because I'm a disabled veteran myself—that's not funny, that's the truth. But, I really think it would be a tremendous mistake for one year for us to be passing resolutions about who wins the World Series, or champion box fighter, or sending the Tigers to California to swim in a tank. You know, we get all of these things in the House, you know, everybody who has a hero at home; we resolve and do every kind of thing. But, I just think it's out of order. I don't think it's dignified sufficiently to enter the halls of this convention. We've passed one, but let's close the door there. I strongly urge you to make this unanimous. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Stinson Mr. LeBreton, we're concerned over in this part, two questions. Was it the Spanish-American War or the War Between the States?

Mr. LeBreton Well, it's the Spanish-American War; my mother's name was Juarez.

Mr. Stinson Next, was your disability mental or physically?

Mr. LeBreton Mentally, obviously. How do you think I got elected?

[Previous question ordered. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Resolution by Title Only

Mr. Poynter Louisiana Constitutional Convention, 1973, Delegate Resolution Number, temporarily designated "G" by Mr. Shannon.

A resolution to commend and express the appreciation of this convention to all persons, groups and organization for assistance during the organizational part of the convention.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

[Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time. Resolution read in full.]

Explanation

Mr. Shannon Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, there are quite a few people that have worked hard during this convention, during the organizational period that has received no additional compensation other than the positions which they held. I would like to express to them our appreciation for their services rendered during this time. I urge approval of this resolution. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Resolution adopted: viva voce.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Constitutional Convention of 1973, Delegate Resolution "H" introduced by Mr. Guarisco.

I believe this resolution is being passed out at this time; is that right?

A resolution to direct the Chairman and the Executive Committee of the 1973 Constitutional Convention to furnish each delegate with stationery under the Convention letterhead containing the delegate's name and committee assignment and any office held by a delegate.

[Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Guarisco As I think it's obvious, a necessary resolution, that when this convention recesses that we have in our possession some means of corresponding with our constituents or any other official agencies and so forth in the state under some official designation, in the same manner as the House of Representatives and the Senate does in the state. The official stationery will, as I understand, if it's used and it would be uniform and it will be a form of something like you had on the front of your proposed rules booklet with the C.C./73 in color. As you see in my resolution, it will include your name, your committee assignment, and any office that you may have. Now, I'll ask, if it's proper, that you add to my resolution at line 21 "any"--and put between "any" and "office"...or convention. It would say, "any convention office held by a delegate," that keeps someone from putting, maybe he's a Senator, or Representative, or some other administrative, or executive office that he may have; I don't think that would be proper in the convention.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter I'll draw it up here. I believe it reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Guarisco]. On page 1, line 21, immediately after the words "and any" and before the word "office" insert the word "Convention". Would that be correct?

Mr. Guarisco That's correct.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Mr. Guarisco One other thing, after I got this resolution printed, I guess there's no way now for me to make any more amendments. But I thought that we might have other designations like a card, or a license plate, or a sticker for your automobile, and red light and sirens.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Guarisco, don't you think that you would be better if you put a limitation on the amount of stationery? We, in the legislature, order up to a thousand letterheads and envelopes and the cost of that per member of the legislature is roughly fifty something dollars. So, if your resolution is going to pass, I wish you would consider putting some type of limitation on it, whereby maybe some person would come in there and order far more than they would ever need and that would be about the only thing you would use it for, I think. I think it should have some type of limitation; I'm wondering if you would consider it's because with a thousand letterheads and envelopes roughly for this membership, you are talking about six thousand five hundred dollars... over six thousand dollars. So, if someone went in there and said, "Get me five thousand letterheads or get me four thousand letters," I don't know what the cost might be.

Mr. Guarisco I agree with you, Senator Rayburn; that might be covered by leaving it within the sound discretion of the Executive Committee. I don't think that we are going to have anybody that's going to make that kind of request.

Mr. Shannon My question is: What have you figured... what the cost would be of this? I don't believe you touched on it with Senator Rayburn's question, but not directly.

Mr. Guarisco Well, no, I have not found out what the cost may be. But, I think that it's done for the legislature, House of Representatives; it's done for the Senate. I don't think this Constitutional Convention should be treated in any less manner.

Mr. Shannon But, you do not know anything within any bound of reasons what the cost would be?

Mr. Guarisco Of course, I don't.

Mr. Champagne Don't you possibly think that this would be a matter for the Executive Committee?

Mr. Guarisco Mr. Champagne, I think it's a matter for the Executive Committee; it's just the question of authorizing them to do so. I think we have to give them authority; they may not be able to do this without us giving the authority.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Guarisco, if I read this resolution, it does not authorize, it directs the Chairman. "d-i-r-e-c-t."

Mr. Guarisco We will get it done.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I don't see anything wrong with this resolution in this respect, not as far as we, as delegates, are concerned and perhaps it would be more convenient to use such letterhead that this resolution calls for. But, I think it's another form of bringing this convention and the purpose of it to the mind of the people, to keep it before them in the distribution and the reception of letters throughout the state. I don't know what it is but it's something that carries a little authority or a little dignity when you see a letter that a person has received with the great seal of the State of Louisiana or the United States; it sets it apart from just average correspondence. I would certainly think that there should be a limitation placed on the number of letterheads that each delegate could receive during this coming year, say, five hundred. So, the cost wouldn't be excessive or that wouldn't be an item. But, from strictly from the standpoint we're talking about having television programs all over the state. I think the more that we can do on a high dignified plane to keep this convention and its purposes before the public during this coming year, the more chance we have of getting their final approval next year when it goes before them for their adoption.

6th Days Proceedings—January 18, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Guarisco I just feel exactly what Delegate Burns said is that it's a necessary thing to keep this convention before the public; it's very dignified. I think it's very necessary. I can think of plenty of people I'm going to write to. So, I move that this resolution be adopted.

[Resolution adopted; viva voce. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Constitutional Convention of 1973, Delegate Resolution "1"; there is not a copy of this one on your desk. I'm advised by the author, he's going to ask to suspend the rules and consider it without copies being distributed; he wasn't able to do it. He claims it's very noncontroversial in nature. Introduced by Mr. Arnette, Sutherland and all delegates on behalf of all delegates to the convention.

A resolution to commend Justice Sanders.

ROLL CALL

[121 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Landrum Our Father in heaven, we thank Thee this morning for all Thy many blessings, for watching over us all night long, enabling us to rise this morning with a reasonable portion of health and strength enclosed in our right minds. Gracious Master, we thank Thee for this gathering this morning, and we pray, O Lord, that Thou wouldst bless us in such a way that we may do the things that are pleasing in Thy sight, that the people of this state may be benefited by what we do here today. Bless the officers and every delegate; bless their families. Bless those who are present here. These blessings we pray and ask in the name of Thy son, Jesus, and for His sake. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution No. J is introduced by Mr. Dennis:

A resolution to provide with respect to the functioning of the committees of the Constitutional Convention of 1973.

[Resolution read in full and Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this resolution would simply make explicit that which I believe is already implicit in the rules. It would direct the committees to begin to work immediately and authorize them to expend funds in furtherance of their work under the supervision and administration of the Executive Committee. I feel that it would be good to pass this resolution so that that would remove all doubt that we are going to go to work immediately and that the money will be spent under the supervision of the Executive Committee.

I ask for final passage of the resolution.

[Previous Question ordered. Resolution reread in full. Resolution adopted without objection.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. LeBreton Mr. Chairman and delegates, I would like to say a few words from a point of personal privilege, as I understand our rules. I want to talk before we get too far away from the rules that we've adopted, and I would like, particularly, to address myself to the people that attempted to amend the committee rules--subcommittee rules. I think it's the desire of every delegate--I know it's the desire of our Chairman--that the committees will all be run in the way that you will be proud of. But, it wasn't supposed to try and tie devotion into minute details like affecting the committees. I think the Rules Committee did a great job, and I think they were right in writing the rules the way they did, rather than try and say you had to give so many days, or the majority of the committee would pick the agenda and things that I think belong to the Chairman and belong to the committee, and belong to the committee at the time. I think there will be things that would prevail in the committees before July, and then there will be a shift of effecting matters pertaining to the work that the committee has to do. I think it's just impossible to tie a lot of minute rules and say you've not to publish so many days and you've not to put out an agenda, and you can only speak on those matters, and you've got to do this and you've got to do that, etc. I had the idea that maybe some people thought, the delegates--and I wasn't too particularly interested in that as I was the impression that the press got and then the good citizens of our state, because I think it's important that they realize that it's every delegate's desire to run an open committee, advance notice, subject matter, and as we meet, why, various committees that have different problems, I'm sure, will make up the rules. I'm sure that Bubba Henry will do something like he did when he was elected Speaker of the House. The committee chairman met and they made up a set of rules for the committees to follow. But, they made up a practical set of rules. They made up a set of rules that would be a guideline, and they weren't mandatory, and you weren't breaking a rule or you weren't offending anybody if for some reason you did something else.

All sort of things keep you from doing in a minute way what would make you break a rule. I think the judgement of this delegation was great. I wanted to compliment the people, but I didn't want anybody to think that the committees wouldn't be run properly. I feel certain, having talked to the Chairman, that everybody has the idea of running our committee in the way that you'll be proud of. I think each member of the committee would want his committee to be well thought of. But, I think it would have been wrong if we adopted this, and I didn't want that to change anybody's attitude, particularly the press and the public. So, it's in that vein that I come before you and say, one, to compliment the Rules Committee and, two, to compliment the delegates, and three, to say that we all have nothing but a fine committee meeting every time we meet. Thank you.

RESOLUTIONS ON SECOND READING AND REFERRAL

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Morning Hour No. 1. Resolutions on Second Reading and Referral.

Delegate Resolution B. introduced by Mr. Derbes: A resolution to adopt a rule with respect to registration of advocates.

The gentleman, I believe, moves for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of the consideration of the adoption of the resolution at this time.

[Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Derbes Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, unfortunately, I wasn't able to be here yesterday. I understand that a copy of this resolution was provided to each of you. If any of you do not have a copy of the resolution, I believe we could probably get one for you.

Basically, the resolution attempts to do--and before going any further I'll read it to you--First, the resolution defines advocates, as follows: "An advocate is any person not a delegate to the Constitutional Convention who is the representative for compensation and/or reimbursement of expenses of any other person, or any partnership, committee, association, corporation or other organization, or of any division, subdivision or agency of the State of Louisiana, its parishes or municipalities, to advocate passage or defeat of proposals of or to otherwise influence the work of the Convention, its delegates, committees, or subcommittees. Before advocating passage or defeat of proposals of, and before attempting to influence the work of the convention, its committees, subcommittees or delegates, the advocate shall file a registration statement setting forth his or her name and address, the name and address of the person or entity by whom the advocate is employed, and the name and address of the person or entity whose interest the advocate will advocate."

It provides for a method of registration.

"Registration of advocates shall be by oath or affirmation before an officer authorized by law to administer oaths [in other words, a notary public] or before the chairman of any committee or subcommittee as provided in Rule No. 5E. Whenever there occurs a change in the facts stated in the registration statement, the advocate shall file a revised statement. The Secretary of the Convention shall maintain for inspection by the public and by the delegates of this convention a list of all advocates and their affiliations.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Finally, the prohibition.

"Any person who has commenced the activities of an advocate without prior registration as herein required shall, upon resolution of the committees or subcommittees of the convention, be denied the privilege of addressing that respective committee or subcommittee. Any advocate who has falsified his or her registration statement shall be reported to the Executive Committee, and upon resolution of that committee, referred to an appropriate law enforcement officer for prosecution for the crime of false swearing."

Ladies and gentlemen, it's my opinion that we have made axiomatic the characterization of this convention as independent. We have opened it up to public scrutiny, and we are attempting by creation of our committees and by the procedures that we've included in the rules to keep the public well informed of all of the activities of this convention. A very important part of the activities of this convention will be the influence brought to bear on its delegates, its committees and subcommittees, but various persons who are interested in the outcome of this convention, I'm certainly not opposed to this influence; it's part of free expression, and it's part of the democratic process. I merely want to identify the persons who seek to influence the convention, those persons who are classically termed "lobbyists" but whom I call in this particular resolution, "advocates." This resolution simply states that before commencing activities, the individual shall file a registration statement. This resolution does what existing legislation in Bill No. 764 of the 1972 Louisiana Legislature did for that body, only this particular resolution is slightly less onerous as far as the responsibilities of the lobbyists are concerned. We do not seek to identify those people who seek to influence the convention. The prohibitions that are defined in the act, in my opinion, are basically legal. I believe that in order for us to encourage and in fact require a lobbyist to register before commencing his activities, we must have some prohibition. In this particular instance, if the lobbyist does not register, he may be giving up, at the majority vote of a committee or subcommittee, the right to address that committee or subcommittee. But, nevertheless, the discretion for that lies with the committee or subcommittee. Finally, if, in swearing an oath, the advocate falsifies the oath when the oath is before a notary public or when the oath is before an official of this convention who is authorized to administer oaths, that person may be committing a crime against the State of Louisiana. We are not undertaking to prosecute him for that crime; we are merely referring him to the proper law enforcement officer. This resolution does not have the force of legislation. If it did and if it could, we could prescribe a criminal penalty the way the 1972 Louisiana Legislature did. Since we do not have legislative authority, I merely attempted to do, in the format of the rules, an essentially administrative task to regulate, identify and provide a public record of advocates.

I'll now yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Kelly Mr. Derbes, am I to understand your resolution that if my good sheriff from Natchitoches Parish or the mayor of Natchitoches decides to come down here and, even though he is not being paid, per se, he is reimbursed for his expenses of coming down here to appear before a committee or before the Committee of the Whole, say, is he going to be required to file one of these advocate affidavits?

Mr. Derbes If he represents himself, no. If he represents the sheriff's organization or the office of the sheriff, or if he represents any other association or corporation, yes.

Mr. Kelly Am I to understand, then, that even if the sheriff is down here just representing the sheriff's office, so to speak, you're going to require him to register as an advocate or a lobbyist, in plain words?

Mr. Derbes Yes. But, let me point out to you that the registration can occur at the time the committee meeting occurs. That is, when the sheriff appears, there will be forms available. All he has to do is fill them out, and he's completed all the requirements.

Mr. Kelly Do you not think that this, perhaps, is covered in the previous rules which were adopted, and I believe Mrs. Zervigon is the one that had the amendment, which requires anyone speaking before a committee to declare their name, address and whom they are speaking for, and if they are advocating for any person aside from themselves?

Mr. Derbes No, I do not, and I'll tell you why. First, this particular provision provides a public record of the identity of all people who seek to influence the convention. Second, it is effective at the time the influencing begins. In other words, if the influencing begins five or six months prior to the committee meetings, the person who seeks to do the influencing must register at that time. Mrs. Zervigon's amendment, as I understand it, is operable only with respect to committee meetings.

Mr. Kelly All right, sir. Then, one other question and back to the sheriff's situation. Are you going to delete or exclude from the provisions within your resolution delegates here at this convention?

Mr. Derbes I have already done so.

Mr. Kelly That is done so. All right. Now, I pose a question for you. Let's suppose that one of the sheriffs who are delegates to this convention appear before a committee in behalf of the Sheriffs' Association of the State of Louisiana. Will he then be deemed an advocate, or will the exclusion regarding his representing a district as a delegate prevail there?

Mr. Derbes When he is nominated, a delegate... when he holds the office of delegate, regardless of his affiliations and regardless of his relationship with any other body, he is exempt from the provisions of this resolution.

Mr. Munson Mr. Derbes, I don't believe what you read just now in the description of an advocate is the same that's in the copy that I have. Am I right? Didn't you say "except delegates"? I don't have that in my copy.

Mr. Derbes That's correct. That's why I went to the trouble of reading it when the Clerk invited me to speak for it, and it had not been read. I realized that I had made an oversight in not exempting delegates. The resolution, as it now stands, does exempt delegates.

Mr. Munson Let me ask you one more question, Mr. Derbes. Wasn't this matter brought up before the Temporary Committee on Rules yesterday and was it not tabled because they felt there were sufficient safeguards already in the rules?

Mr. Derbes I must apologize for having been in New Orleans to try a lawsuit yesterday and unable to participate in the meeting, and I can't speak for the Rules Committee. But, if somebody would care to speak for the Rules Committee and question me along the lines of this resolution, I'd be glad to answer. I can't speak for the Rules Committee, and I don't know what happened.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Derbes, do you not think that it is essential that a definite mechanism for spelling out affiliations of all persons appearing before committee and subcommittees be decided upon as soon as possible?

Mr. Derbes Mr. Velazquez, I think your question goes to the very heart of my resolution, and I would answer categorically, yes.

Mr. Velazquez Do you think anyone would be ashamed of giving his name, his address, and his affiliation before speaking before a public body?

Mr. Derbes I can't imagine why he should be. This very same provision operates with respect to the...both Houses of the Louisiana Legislature and has criminal penalties for violation thereof. This very same procedure has operated in the Maryland and Pennsylvania Constitutional Conventions, and as I understand it, in many other constitutional conventions in the United States in the last two decades.

Mr. Velazquez Is it not a true civic service to all of our citizens to clearly record the affiliation of all speakers?

Mr. Derbes I feel that this is the principal difference between...one of the principal differences between my resolution and Mrs. Zervignon's amendment, and that is that this resolution provides a ready record of the affiliations of all people who seek to influence the convention, and that record is open to public inspection and inspection by the delegates.

Mr. Velazquez Is this an attempt to decrease citizen participation?

Mr. Derbes No. I don't consider it an attempt to decrease citizen participation. If somebody would show me how it is, I would be the first person to withdraw it. That is the one thing I am certainly trying not to do, but I...and that is to decrease citizen participation. I am, however, wanting to record...

Mr. Derbes In one way this actually, in my opinion, increases citizen participation because it lets other people know who is speaking to these various committees and subcommittees and what influence is being brought to bear on this convention. We certainly don't seek to publish this in the Journal or to disseminate it to the news media, but it's nevertheless available for public inspection. In my opinion, it could very well increase citizen participation.

Mr. Velazquez Thank you very much, Mr. Derbes.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I rise in opposition to the resolution as it stands at the moment. Let me call to your attention the fact that not only myself but those that I represent not only supported the position, the act that was passed in the legislature relative to this subject, but we supported a far more stringent measure than was adopted. But, let me call your attention to the specific resolution now before you. Two points: (1) Contained in line 7, where it says "reimbursement of expenses,"--let's take the case where someone works for a company, a union, or whoever it may be. He's furnished an automobile and a credit card. He comes down to testify before a committee. He's not reimbursed for his expenses. He's not paid anything in addition to his normal salary. As I appreciate the resolution, he is not required to register. Secondly--and this is the important part that I do not believe that the gentleman intends to do--line 13, 14, and 15--and I want you to read it very carefully--where it says "before attempting to influence the work of the convention," etc., "or delegates." What that says to me is simply this:

that if someone talks to you as an individual delegate about their position individually or some group that he may represent their thinking, as an individual delegate, then he has to have already registered as an advocate before he can even mail you a letter stating his position, before he can discuss it with you individually; and this is the thing I do not believe that the gentleman has, or at least, attempted to do. By that measure I believe what you're doing with this resolution is discouraging public participation. I would ask, if it stays in this form, that we reject it at this time.

Further Discussion

Mr. Lennox Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this may not happen again during the forthcoming year. Mr. Flory has covered every point I would have raised opposing this resolution. Thank you.

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Substitute Motion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I'm in accord with the purpose of this resolution. I'm in accord with what Mr. Derbes would like to do with respect to it. But, it seems to me that in its present form it raises a number of very disturbing questions, and I think it would have the effect that Mr. Flory ascribes to it. I think it is a matter that we ought to have action on. I think it's a matter which we ought to have carefully studied and a proper rule adopted; and when that study is done, I would like to offer a substitute motion that this resolution be referred to the Procedural Committee on Rules and Credentials, and that that committee be authorized to study the subject matter of the resolution and to adopt at its earliest possible time, an appropriate resolution governing the registration of lobbyists. I would like to offer this resolution to the Procedural Committee on Rules with authorization in that committee to proceed to study the matter and adopt a proposal for our further use in this convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Speaker and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to oppose Mr. Kean's substitute motion that this bill be...this resolution be referred to the committee. Of course, in addition thereto, I rise in support of Mr. Derbes' resolution. I think there's a critical need for registration of lobbyists. No, there is no need for registration of the citizenry of this state, those of the citizenry that want to appear before the convention and make their views known; there's no need for that. They're welcome. They're invited. The convention is open. Committee hearings are going to be open. Everybody's going to be invited to appear. We're going to take down verbatim what's said. We're going to transcribe it and publicize it and let it rise if. We can invite everybody to participate and there's no need for registration there. But, I submit to you, there is critical need for registration of those people who travel throughout this state soliciting money and raising funds for the purpose of coming to this convention and advocating the views of special interests, and there's a need for it. We can't do it any other way. Wrong with Mr. Derbes' resolution, it's not strong enough. How in the world is this resolution going to hamstring the convention when all a man has to do if he comes here for money or for reimbursement of expenses and it's got to be that way; otherwise, all compensation will be classified as expenses, and nobody will register. Who if it's only one thing wrong who come here for compensation and how is this going to hamstring any group that's in the legitimate business of lobbying before this convention when all they have to do is tell the Clerk, "I'm Mr. So and so, and I represent XYZ?"

What this resolution ought to say, it ought to make them tell this convention how much money they've raised, who's contributed, and how they're going to spend it. We're not suggesting that you go that far because some of you don't feel as strongly about this business of legitimate lobbying interests as others of us do. But, all this does is require that they register. So, you and I and Mr. John Q. Public, and Mr. Average Everyday Citizen can know who's before this convention advocating positions of special interests. I think it's important that we do it now because the convention is going to recess now. We've already adopted a resolution directing that our committees meet forthwith and get on with the business of this convention. So, before any committee has time to report, we're going to be, throughout the length and breadth of this state, holding hearings and inviting people to appear, and I believe you me, the delegates, the lobbyists, however you call them are going to be there because they're here today. They were here the day before we met, and they're going to be with us everyday and at every committee meeting. I don't say that there's anything sinister with that.

I think you're going to find, those of you who serve for the first time in a deliberative body that you're going to welcome the views of the lobbyists; you're going to seek them out; you'll want to know; it's important that you know the attitudes and the philosophies of the special interests that they represent. Those are the legitimate lobbyists. Those are the people who are welcome here. I suggest to you that any man in this state and any organization in this state who is going to raise funds to present their views before this convention ought to have no objection to telling us who they are. We ought to do it now. We ought to do it before we get on to any serious deliberations. I remember one time I ran into a very dear friend of mine who holds a minor public office in the country, and he says, "I got into a deliberative body of my organization, and they want us all to put up twenty-five dollars apiece because the legislature's going to meet and we want to advance some legislation for our organization, changing the jurisdiction of our office, raising the pay," or something like that. He said, "What do you think I ought to do? I never could understand why in the world a group of people in this state had to put twenty-five dollars apiece to send somebody to Baton Rouge to advance their views. When we got to putting the pencil to it and got to figuring out how much money would be involved in the twenty-five dollars that was put up--both of us--we just couldn't agree that that money was raised to send a man to Baton Rouge simply to present their views. Now, that's the other side of the coin. That's the bad, evil, sinister side of the coin, and I don't want anybody to get the impression that I don't think lobbyists... that I think lobbyists ought to not be here. We'll welcome them here."

To repeat what I said just a minute ago, you're going to be asking for the views of all the organizations for the protection of this group, protection of the delegates to this convention, and the protection of the people of this state, all groups who raise money, pay compensation to have their views expressed before this convention ought to register.

Further Discussion

Mr. Derbes I'm just speaking only to Mr. Kean's substitute motion. We've considered many very important matters in our twenty-six or twenty-seven hours of deliberations on these rules. It seems to me that we are all quite familiar with the issues raised by my resolution. I think the resolution is well-drawn. I respect the disagreements that I've heard on the substance of the resolution. But, I believe we can make a decision now whether to adopt it as it stands or reject it as it stands; and I see no reason at this point to refer it to committee. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm one of the new and naive delegates to this convention, and I appreciate the motion presented here by Mr. Werbes and commented upon by the others, particularly Mr. Kean's motion and others who appreciate the very intricate details of such a resolution. I would like to say, however, that I, with the rest of you, am not lazy and will be very busy this coming year, particularly with personal, professional, and family matters, as well as the committees that we will have to run. The deliberations we will make here after July. I am not an expert speaker, and we have had those before us who are, display their wares, and there's no question that they do a beautiful job. I would like the privilege of having these experts in the lobbying line labeled so that I know how expert they are and are labeled to be given their time. I would like the privilege of knowing that they have had many, many hours of training and discipline in other studies that the individual citizen that I will listen to, has not, and perhaps cannot express himself as well as I'm trying to express myself to you today. I hope that I make myself clear that I favor Mr. Derbes' motion overwhelmingly, and would suggest that we pass it and defeat Mr. Kean's amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I, too, stand before you in favor of Mr. Derbes' proposal and I think you would do well to vote to substitute. I don't see any problem with asking those, as Mr. Triche has pointed out, that go around this state corraling small groups of individuals, small professions, and ask them for funds and to give, or imply, the impression that these citizens and these individuals of the state, that possibly some of their money is being brought to the attention to be windmilled out among some of the delegates.

We've talked a lot about the image that we have to present here and to sell this constitution to the people. I've seen it happen just as Mr. Triche has pointed out. A friend of mine back home told me in a small profession where there's some three hundred throughout the state they were asked to put up a hundred dollars apiece to go before the legislature so that their profession would be protected or licensed, and they wanted to know where that money was spent. What happens is a promoter goes around and tells them that he can influence members of the legislature or maybe in this case, members of this convention with the alliance dollar. That presents a problem to us. I don't think Mr. Derbes' resolution would in any way hinder any private citizen from coming before this body or this committee to speak. His resolution does not set out that purpose. It set out to protect us as individuals and to protect all the citizens of this state. I think you've heard a lot of discussion on this at this point. If I'm not one of you, I would like to call for the previous question on the entire subject matter, unless someone else has something to add.

Mr. Leithman Mr. Alario, we do have one more.

[Withdrawn in the previous debate and withdrawn.]

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Alario, let me say this before I ask my question. I'm certainly for all lobbyists registering, but I read the resolution and I'm quite concerned, who would you define as a lobbyist? It also includes in here if anyone has contributed even your expenses; I'm concerned if a little cattle organization in the parish of Washington, two or three of them got together and they paid their expenses, they bought their gas and oil to come over here and attend this convention, would they be classified as a lobbyist and would they have to register? Further, if the League of Women Voters in my parish, if they decide to come over here and their own association paid their expenses above their gas, would they be declared as a lobbyist and have to register? I ran up on an amendment on small, independent organizations that I know about in my particular parish. I certainly don't want to do anything that would put them in a category of a professional lobbyist. If there's any way that we could straighten this thing out, I'd like to see it straightened out because I'm really for the lobbyists registering, but I don't think if someone would pay your expenses over here, they should be classified as a lobbyist, and I'm wondering how you interpret this language in here.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Mr. Alario Senator Rayburn, as I appreciate the resolution as offered by Mr. Derbes, it'd be a simple matter for those who have been reimbursed by expenses, and that's got to be put in because the big lobbyists are going to try to bypass this stipulation unless that is put into it. It'd be a simple matter of having the forms available to that committee and just to fill out that necessary information right there on the spot. I don't see any big red tape involved in this. If there were a tremendous amount of red tape or any amount of red tape involved here, then certainly I would be against any proposal that might hurt the individual citizen or those who would represent small groups as we're talking about here.

Mr. Rayburn Do you think if we could say "any paid lobbyist" that that would help remove the things that I see could happen? I'm just trying to really define the "lobbyist" and I hate to see every little person put in the category of a lobbyist or think they're appearing here as a lobbyist when, maybe, they're appearing here as a representation from some various community and they do not want to be classified as a lobbyist. Now, that's my only objection because a lobbyist in some people's mind is kind of like a legislator. It's a dirty word.

Mr. Alario Well, of course, we're trying to define here a difference between pay and those who might get by the description of pay by listing it as expense, and I think that's the purpose of having it in the resolution.

Mr. Leithman Gentlemen, it's a hairline fact here, but we are speaking to the substitute motion. I realize it's very difficult to divide, but keep that in mind that we are speaking on a substitute motion for committee hearing now.

Mr. Champagne My question is this: do you feel that before this committee or whatever it might be that these individuals that'll be on this committee are probably informed as to who is a lobbyist and who's not, and I... to offer an example, as I watched the people, the delegates here, I had some of my friends say, "Well, now, you see, that fellow is such, and this fellow is the other. He represents this and he represents that." Now, since they are so well informed, do you think there's a possibility that the members of these committees would indeed know these people as they came before the committees?

Mr. Alario I don't know here I can guarantee that every member in this convention hall would know every lobbyist that's running around this capital city. Certainly, some are more well-known than others who are professional lobbyists and have been in the business for a number of years. I think you're probably going to see a lot more hitting this area.

Mr. Champagne I have an example, and this worries me a lot. In other words, there's no question in my mind that the intention of the resolution and so forth, is very difficult. But the question I had is for a simple question. Yesterday, two people bought lunch for me, and I'm wondering, since they do represent an organization, would they have had to be... would they have had to be registered as lobbyists?

Mr. Alario If they were trying to influence you in any way, yes, they would have to be registered as lobbyists.

Mr. Champagne In other words, the decision would be up to me as to whether they were trying to influence me or not?

Mr. Alario The decision would be if they are trying to influence you in any way, shape, or form, then it would be their obligation and also yours, if you see fit, to bring this before the proper authorities.

Mr. Champagne This is what I'm particularly worried about. The question is, in other words, I belong to a number of organizations, and on some of those there's no question, of course, I as a delegate, have not covered. But, am I not placing other people who are not delegates at a disadvantage, perhaps?

Mr. Alario May be true.

Mr. Velazquez On the substitute motion, Mr. Alario, do you think it would do any good for us to postpone a decision on this until July?

Mr. Alario No, sir, I don't. Your committees, as I appreciate it, are going to begin meeting shortly.

Mr. Velazquez Doesn't this particular resolution not say "lobbyist" but say "advocate"?

Mr. Alario It does.

Mr. Velazquez Do you think that any small, independent, legitimate groups would be afraid to be known as advocates?

Mr. Alario No, I don't think so.

Mr. Velazquez Thank you very much.

Mr. Alario You're welcome.

Mr. Weiss Don't you think that in answer to some of the questions that have been presented that the delegate who receives the name of Mr. Jones or Mr. Smith, and Mr. Jones representing the Atchafalaya Water Basin's Engineering Society will be able to distinguish between the influence of his group and the amount that they, no doubt, had to pay to get him to Baton Rouge or wherever he may have to go, and the Louisiana Sheriff's Association, or the Louisiana State Medical Society, or other organizations of that magnitude? Don't you feel that the delegates could distinguish between the two?

Mr. Alario Yes, sir. I think so.

Mr. Silverberg Delegate Alario, I appreciate the oratory of Representative Triche. But, to be consistent, don't you think that the delegates should be included in this because we do have some lobbyist input from the delegates here; don't we?

Mr. Alario Well, of course, all your delegates are registered. Everybody knows their biographical information and the things that they're interested in. I think that information is already set forth.

Mr. Silverberg Well, there are twenty-seven of us who were appointed and fifteen of us who were appointed at large. In what respect am I listed as an advocate of any pressure group?

Mr. Alario I don't know if you're listed as any pressure group. I think there's enough information or rap sheet on each of us to probably tell you that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'll make these remarks very brief and confine it, if I can, to the subject matter before the floor. I said I wasn't going to talk anymore after Rule No. 53, and the only reason I'm talking is because I don't like to be put in a position of being against motherhood, and that's what you're trying to do to me. What I'm telling you is this: We considered this yesterday thoroughly and completely in the Rules Committee, and to the person, everyone agreed no one whatsoever had any objections concerning the registration of lobbyists. But, gentlemen, you're going to tell me that I should... vote on a bill which I, in my opinion, is ill-prepared for what you're trying to do, and putting me in a position to do that or saying you're against lobbyists. That's not the issue because I'm for registering, but this is not the vehicle, gentlemen. Let me give you an example: We have a subcommittee in Lafayette Louisiana for example, which would be my hometown, and some people from Breaux Bridge, Louisiana, would want to attend, and they would have three Kiwanis groups in that area, St. Martin Parish, get together and reimburse Mr. Smith's expenses to come to Lafayette, how is he going to attend when he doesn't know that he had to register with the secretary of state? Gentlemen, this is just poorly prepared in that regard. I don't mean in the sense of draftsmanship, but it doesn't accomplish what you're trying to do. I'm telling you, don't try... I think it's wrong to identify people you're for or against because that's not the issue. The question is, what's before the floor, and in that regard, one of the subcommittee met with Mr. Keen what we did was put in committee, let it come up with a proper bill and I would act on it accordingly.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Duval Mr. Juneau, didn't you feel it was the intention of the entire Rules Committee that we should have some rule on the registration of Lobbyists?

Mr. Juneau Absolutely.

Mr. Duval And didn't you feel that it was the intention of the Rules Committee that because of the various, perhaps, hiatuses in this particular resolution that a procedural committee could draft it, and draft it so that it actually had some effect and merit; don't you think so?

Mr. Juneau Unquestionable.

Mr. Duval From the statements that have been made, isn't it conceivable that we'll be meeting here before July again?

Mr. Juneau I would anticipate without the next week.

Mr. Duval Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Speaker, fellow delegates, you know, it's up to the Speaker to maintain order; it's up to the individuals down here to maintain your attention. I would hope that within about the next one minute I can maintain your attention. This is, as I have seen in the past, in my opinion, another case to where you accept prostitution or be branded as being against motherhood. I want to read you just exactly what this says, and I'm always plagued with definitions. "Before advocating passage or defeat of proposals of and before attempting to influence the work of the convention." The final document is going to be the work of this convention. If anyone up and down the street would attempt to influence the passage of this convention which is the work of the convention, if anyone attempts to defeat the final document, he is attempting to influence the work of the convention. Then, the next thing that comes up is where would he lobby; how far-reaching would it be; who all would have charges filed against him; and what position would the district attorney and the local judiciary take as to the degree of guilt that you would have? It was the feeling of the Subcommittee on Rules as has been stated up here before, we felt that there's nothing wrong with a professional lobbyist-- if you could define "professional"--of registering. There's nothing wrong with knowing who an individual is speaking for. He may say that he's a professional lobbyist for Humble Oil Co., but I'm not speaking for Humble today; I'm speaking for myself, and I don't register in that case." This thing is very loosely written.

I just don't see how that you can take the document you have here and determine the final degree of guilt that an individual would have. On the other hand, I can see some fine individual, or some lady representing a local organization, coming to Baton Rouge, feeling that there was no reason for the lobby. In fact, if someone comes with her that's a member of the organization and buys the lunch, I don't know if she wouldn't be guilty under this because that would be a portion of her expenses. How far you can construe it, I don't know. You can shake your head. I don't know what you could construe, but then to come back and for me as a member to advise the lady that, "Since, in our opinion, or the opinion of seven out of thirteen of this subcommittee, you have not registered as a lobbyist, and you will not be permitted to talk before this body"; you're going to have to look for somebody other than Lantz Womack to tell them that.

What I want to leave with you is, I have no objection to the registering of lobbyists, but I want a more concrete document than this is before you attempt to start out with a lobby registration bill. I think it would be very fitting to go along with Mr. Keen's suggestion that this go to committee and let it be ironed out and come out with something that I think all of us would be proud of... at least, a major portion of us would be proud of. So, I would urge you to support Mr. Keen's motion and send this to committee and let them work the bugs out of it, and come up with the proper amendments and come up with a document that would tend to do what we're trying to do. One last statement, when you start culling down the lobbyists, you're saying that you are afraid to some extent that a lobbyist might unduly influence a member of this convention. Either my appraisals of this convention is wrong, or there's not an individual in here that can be unduly influenced.

Never in my life have I seen a more--and I use the word with great respect--arrogantly independent group than we have here, and I think it's the greatest thing in the world that could happen to this state because if we're going to write a document, no better group of people could do it than that. But, let me call to your attention, what you're interested in is what the individual has to say and what light he can shed on the subject matter, and not who he represents because it matters little who he represents. If he brings up something constructive, he can represent anybody in the world to me, and it's good. If he brings up something that's bad, he can represent anybody in the world and it's still bad. So, to me it matters little who the man represents, whether he represents anybody or not. It's what he has to say and what he has to contribute that might be of value in improving what we have on the constitution for the people of this state that I'm interested in. Mr. Chairman, if someone has a question, I'd be happy to answer it.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Womack, are you familiar with Act 764 of the 1972 Louisiana legislature which prescribes and defines lobbying and prescribes penalties for failure to register?

Mr. Womack You're talking about the act that the House governs itself by?

Mr. Derbes Yes; it's not a rule of the House but it's an act of both of the Senate and of the House which defines lobbying and requires registration.

Mr. Womack I would say I'm reasonably familiar.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

I probably couldn't quote it like I could the probable.

Mr. Derbes Well, let me read it to you and familiarize you with it. The act says "Any...

Mr. Henry Mr. Derbes, it's alright to ask a question but let's make sure...I've allowed a lot of discretion and latitude so far, but let's confine these questions to legitimate questions.

Mr. Derbes Well, Mr. Womack, are you aware that the act of the 1972 legislature defines lobbying as follows: "Any person who shall engage himself for pay or for any consideration for the purpose of attempting to influence the passage or defeat of any legislation by the legislature shall before doing anything in furtherance of such objects, register with the Clerk of the House of Representatives and the Secretary of the Senate." Are you familiar with that, Mr. Womack?

Mr. Womack I sure am.

Mr. Derbes Do you see any substantial difference between the provisions of my resolution and the sentence that I just read to you?

Mr. Womack In answer, I see a lot of difference because to attempt to influence the workings of this convention could be not a legislative act; it could not be this body; it could not be a subcommittee; it may be back home when an individual speaks to a Rotary Club and says "I think because of this, this, this, and this you should or you should not vote for it." Then, he would be attempting to influence the works of this convention. We don't have that in the legislature; that is the major difference; and that's the part that I so violently object to and the language in this proposal.

Mr. Derbes Mr. Womack, are you aware then my proposal states that before advocating passage or defeat of proposals and before attempting to influence the work of the convention, you are aware of that phrase?

Mr. Womack The work of the convention is also the final document that is submitted to the people. This is the thing I'm trying to point out: yes.

Mr. Derbes And, you are now aware, Mr. Womack, are you not that the provisions of the 1972 Legislative Act regarding lobbying in the legislature are essentially similar to, if not exactly identical with the provisions of my resolution, with the exception of the fact that my resolution regulates the convention and not the legislature?

Mr. Womack Your resolution goes on back home, though, where a simple act in the legislature, it doesn't go back home.

Mr. Burns Mr. Womack, I've been sitting out there thinking of our old friend Mark Twain when he said, "Everybody talks about the weather, but they don't do anything about it." As I listen to the succession of speakers coming up here speaking in opposition to this bill, isn't there something we sitting out there can do about it or take some action at this time?

Mr. Womack Well, there's something--there's a motion here that the delegation is going to have to do something about; in fact, there is a motion and a substitute. All I'm saying is I would hope that the substitute motion would be carried, put it in a committee and then technicality and wording would be cleared up--nobody has any basic objection to what we normally call a professional lobbyist registering, I have no objection whatever.

Mr. Stovall Delegate Womack, are you familiar with the saying "Straining a gnat and swallowing a camel"?

Mr. Womack Yes, sir, Brother Stovall. I'm also familiar with one phrase we hear quite often on weekends that "A very, very small sin could send you to hell;" you know?

Mr. Stovall That's exactly what I'm talking about. Are you not kind of hung up on a technicality here and if you go along with this technicality, you destroy something which is very vital and significant?

Mr. Womack Brother Stovall, the technicality can be corrected in a committee and the vital document you talk about can be not only protected, but can be improved.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Womack, isn't this a way of making legitimate lobbying and advocating? Isn't this a way of giving dignity and status to the advocates and lobbyists who might come our way?

Mr. Womack Or course, as you know, definitions of dignity and all of these other words that you have used carry different meanings to different people. I think you can still have a very dignified lobbying bill without the loose language that's in this one and without lobbying a person. I don't look at an act that could cause a criminal charge to be filed against one of the finer citizens we have in the country, whoever it might be, over technicalities; I don't call that minor.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Womack, don't you feel that the only person who's going to be carried and the question here might be a person who would misuse the privilege that would be given to them? Don't you feel that basically this is the way of saying to lobbyists and advocates, "We love you, we want you, but, we simply want you to indicate who you are as you come in"?

Mr. Womack By the same token, it is my opinion that somewhere down the line there could possibly be one individual that was very much disturbed about the final document and would be in position to file charges and could be in the position to prosecute on those charges.

Mr. Henry Don't you gentlemen realize that neither one of you all are convincing the other one of anything and you are wasting our time? Proceed.

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Womack, I want to ask if you could maybe repeat a bit for some of us who don't understand too well the provisions of the legislature in protecting themselves as well as the public in the field of lobbying. What in the world is the reason for the act that was passed by the legislature? What is the purpose of it? Why is it that you people in the legislature wanted that basic establishment in the law? What is the purpose behind it?

Mr. Womack The purpose of it is to be sure that it is clear that there is nothing undue, added, or anything else. The one word I'm hung up on or the one phrase here is that before attempting to influence the work of the convention--and what I'm saying is this: That the work of this convention will be the final document. The individual back home and it could be you, that thinks that you have a good document. You get out and go to talking for it, you could be attempting to influence somebody. If you have a district attorney that's got something against you, that really wants to prosecute, he could file a charge under this--this is the thing. I'm not against lobbyists. I'm for it. I vote for the legislation. But, if you go back and I have repeatedly said, we're still for the lobbying; none of us have objected to it. All we say is it get the technicality in it to where the laymen at home we are trying to give a protective constitution to has a protection against criminal procedure over technicalities.

Mr. E. J. Landry One more simple question. Do you think basically that the people in this state even those who are not lobbyists are defined as such would object to filling out the forms and establishing the fact that they are there to advocate, if they know that by so doing they are protecting themselves?

Mr. Womack If every individual down the street knew it before he made his statements and before anything was filed against him and he did it; I don't think there would be any problem. But, the individual that would go before the local civic groups and speak, then after it was all over find that he had been charged with this could have a problem and be innocent. The newspapers could pick it up and he could have a lot of trouble over nothing. All I'm trying to say is let's protect the innocent people and let the guilty ones, the ones we are trying to get at; let them go ahead and register. I'm not advocating abolishing. All I'm saying is let's put it in the committee and clean up and be sure that the document we come out with is good.

Mr. E. J. Landry Thank you. I think you have helped me and others.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I have to rise in opposition to the substitute motion. I would like to take issue with Mr. Womack's interpretation of the wording "before advocating passage or defeat of proposals of" and "before attempting to influence the work of the convention." It seems like this phrase has given Mr. Womack some trouble. As I have gone to Law School and I have been taught to interpret different phrases in a reasonable interpretation--and I think Mr. Derbes had intended--for a reasonable interpretation of this sentence to not cover the situation that Mr. Womack is talking about. I don't think...if you read the rest of this sentence "influence the work of the convention, its committees, subcommittees, or delegates." My interpretation is not over the situation as an average every day individual walking down the street saying "Vote against the constitution; vote for it; vote because of this, because of that." My interpretation, I think, is a reasonable interpretation does not cover the average individual in this particular case. I think a reasonable interpretation which would cover the case and the people who come before the convention while we are in deliberative body or before its committees, before its subcommittees are talking to individual delegates when the delegates know that they represent a certain interest group. I don't think this particular sentence covers the average individual. This is my point I'm trying to make. Therefore, I really don't think that if we send it to a committee that we are going to have enough time and the committees...I mean, it may just drag in a committee for a couple of months. We may not have anything at all if we don't adopt it here today. Therefore, I will speak against the substitute motion. At this time, I would like to call the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered on the Substitute Motion.]

Closing

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, the discussion on this resolution particularly drafted as it is somewhat reminds me of the bumper stickers that you see sometimes that says "Outlaw guns" and the only people who have guns are outlaws. If we adopt this resolution, we're not going to particularly affect the so-called lobbyist. We are simply going to hamstring people who have the legitimate right to speak to us and ought not have to register in order to do so.

If you look at this resolution, it provides that an advocate is any person who is the representative for compensation of any division, subdivision, or agency of the State of Louisiana. Now, if I understand that language, then every mayor, every sheriff every police mayor, every school board member, every clerk of court, every alderman, every district attorney would have to file a registration with this convention before they could call any of us up and talk to us on the telephone about some matter that might be pending before the convention and affect their particular political office. I simply think that we need to approach this problem sensibly. I don't think that those of us who feel that it ought to be approached sensibly ought to be branded as prolobbyists. I took the same position with the amendment offered by Mr. De Bileux about giving news media notice of committee hearings or the position taken by my friends--I thought about imposing on committees the responsibility of translating at no cost to this convention. I simply think that these are matters that we need to look at, they are on a sensible basis and then come up with some answer to it that's going to cope with the problem without hamstringing people who ought to have a right to talk to us without the necessity of signing this sworn affidavit that says they have some interest in doing so.

You could have twenty-five ladies of the League of Women Voters around the state who want to come before the convention and committee hearing and would have their expenses reimbursed. Under this resolution, they couldn't speak to the committee until they had the sworn affidavit that they were representing the League of Women Voters. If by chance they happen to start talking about the Garden Club, they would be prosecuted for false swearing. Now, I think under the circumstances it's only reasonable to send this matter to the Rules Committee where it can be ironed out or we can come up with a resolution that's going to solve the problem; then, we can proceed with our business in an orderly fashion. In the meantime, we don't suffer any loss.

Mrs. Zervigon offered an amendment as part of the rules that anybody who appears before a committee has got to identify himself and the interest he represents. Under the circumstances, the committees have an ample opportunity to find out just who this individual, that individual is going to be representing, as we want to get him on the oath in order to do it or the chairman of the committee has a right to put him under oath for that purpose. So, I think that in the interim we are amply protected. So, it would give us an opportunity to come up with something that would be significant and would get to the real problem. Under the circumstances, I think it should be properly referred to the Committee on Rules.

Questions

Mr. Munson Mr. Kean, is it your feeling that in all probability within the next few weeks this constitutional issue will be called back into session and in the meantime rather than having to wait until July for any solution to this problem, that the Committee on Rules and Procedures can study this and come up with a workable proposition to present to the convention in just a few weeks?

Mr. Kean It would be my feeling that it's an important enough matter to do just that, Mr. Munson.

Mr. Silverberg Delegate Kean, don't you envision the manner that this resolution is drafted that every newspaper editor or every newspaper publisher, every newspaper owner, every radio station manager, every radio station owner who will participate in the final output of whether we buy or don't buy this constitution will have to register?

Mr. Kean Under the wording of the resolution, it certainly would, Mr. Silverberg. I could list you a string of them, I just gave you a few.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Kean, in Washington Parish we have a Coon Hunter's Association, which I am a member. At the last meeting we had thirty-eight dollars in the treasury. There's been a lot of pros and cons about outlawing coons. Now, if someone would present something in this convention to outlaw coons and we had five of our six...we'll say six of our coon hunters wanted to come over here and our association paid their expenses over here, would all six of them have to register or could one register and talk for the other five?

Mr. Kean I think that if any of those five came over for the purpose of attempting to influence the work of the convention, all of them would have to register—all coon hunters.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Kean, don't you think that Senator Rayburn is straining at a coon and swallowing a camel?

Mr. Kean I'd prefer not to answer that question. I don't know what Senator Rayburn is capable of.

[Substitute Motion adopted: viva voce.
Motion to reconsider tabled.]

RESOLUTIONS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Mr. Jenkins, now moves to call from the calendar Delegate Resolution, temporarily designated "D" on the calendar.

[Rules Suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins This resolution is the one that was brought up yesterday regarding bidding on all materials and supplies which the convention may purchase; it also has to do with a statement by this convention that we do not recognize as binding on this convention any contracts of printing, materials, services, supplies, or equipment which may have been made by the State of Louisiana. I have amendments that I will offer up in just a moment which will really bring this resolution in accord with the Public Contract Law of the state. I would like to do that at this time before further discussing the resolution.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 7, delete the words "five hundred dollars" and insert in lieu thereof the words "one thousand dollars".
Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 12, after the word "bid" delete the semicolon ";" insert a comma "," and the following "all in accord with the Public Contract Law of the state;"

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins The purpose, as I said, is to bring the resolution in accord with the Public Contract Law of the state and provide statutes to Title 38.

Question

Mr. Tobias Mr. Jenkins, the second paragraph of your resolution concerning not making any contract entered into heretofore binding upon this convention. I'm concerned about this. I think it may be unconstitutional under Act 2 since we cannot really impair the...any contract rights and also under the United States Constitution. I would like you to explain how we can get around this if you want to?

Mr. Henry Mr. Tobias, is this on the amendments or the resolution itself?

Mr. Tobias The resolution.

Mr. Henry Well, let's wait. We are on the adoption of amendments, if you'll hold with us just one minute, please, sir?

[Amendment adopted with the explanation.]

Questions

Mr. Tobias I won't repeat what I just said. But, I would like to know how we can invalidate a contract which is perfectly valid and binding on both parties under our law?

Mr. Jenkins Well, certainly, we can't do that, Max, and that's not the purpose of this resolution. The purpose of this resolution is to clarify the point that any contracts which may have been entered into by other agencies or other departments of the State of Louisiana, cannot and do not bind this convention. As an example, we are not a part of the Executive Branch of government, or the Judicial Branch, or the Legislative. No contract entered into by them can possibly be binding on us and that simply states this. If you look in the revised statutes in Title 38 under Section 2211, it deals with the letting of contracts. If you deal with Title 43 in Section 1, it talks about state printing; it says "All administrative boards, commissions, departments, agencies, institutions, and offices within the Executive Branch of the state government shall purchase all requirements of printing and engraving through a central purchasing agency. Now, you notice that limits it to the Executive Branch of government.

There is another provision dealing with the printing of the Journal of the House and Senate and gives the House and the Senate the authority to engage in printing contracts for the House and the Senate. But, nowhere is there any authority which might bind this convention given to any of these various agencies. Certainly, no constitutional convention, to my knowledge, has ever been bound in any way by the acts of other state agencies. It's important for some reason that I'm going to explain that we recognize this fact at this point.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Jenkins, I disagree with your interpretation simply because it appears to me that you are trying to invalidate by saying that this convention repudiates a valid contract that has been entered into by this state. I don't think this convention has that power. I don't think we should get into any conflict with an act or an action by any agency of this state; that's all.

Mr. Jenkins Well, of course, that's not what this does, Max, and let me give you an example. As an example, the state legislature through the Division of Printing and Engraving contracted with TUM Corporation, the printers. This contract says that this company shall print the Official Journal for the House and Senate. There is also a provision in this contract that says "and the Official Journal for any Constitutional Convention which might be held." I've been informed by representatives of that company that they intend to enforce this contract on us. Now, certainly, there is no reason for us to abridge or invalidate any contract that may have been made by some other party. The only point is, this contract has not been made with us and does not bind us. There is no way under the law or under any interpretation of the law by any court that the legislature can enforce this contract and bind us any more than the Executive Department can enter into a contract and bind us, because we are not subservient to nor superior to the Executive Branch of government, the Legislature Branch, or the Judicial; we are something different, sui generis. It's important that we recognize that fact right now, at least we would be bound in the future by other supposed contracts that might bind us. Now, let me tell you what's going to happen if we are bound by that contract entered into by the legislature. Our Official Journal is going to cost us more than two thousand dollars a day to print because that's how much the legislature pays. If we let for a hundred and fifty days between the legislature and the first of the year, we would be paying three hundred thousand dollars just to print our Journals. That's why it's so important for us to recognize right now the fact that these contracts do not bind us; they might bind the legislature; they might bind someone else, but they cannot bind us.

Now, if you look at past interpretation, for instance, in the Illinois convention, the Illinois Constitutional Convention asked the attorney general of the State of Illinois how far outside the scope of the creating act it could go. The attorney general of that state said, "The Illinois Constitutional Convention was autonomous, independent, not bound by any of the formalities and procedures that a normal state agency would be." I'm not suggesting that we even need to go that far here. But, what I am suggesting is that no contract entered into by some other branch of government can be imposed on us because we are not subservient to any of those branches of government. If we pursue a different path, here is what we might be faced with--let's not. The governor might enter into a contract obligating us to do something, or the legislature might enter into a contract, or somebody else; where is it going to end? Who can bind us and to what extent? Well, the answer is nobody can. We need to recognize that point right now before we start purchasing materials; before we start spending more money than we have to spend. In the case of this Official Journal, I assure you it can be one for two, or three, to four hundred dollars a day at the most, we need not be caught in a political bind which has been created by things that have happened in the past with regard to the purchase of our printing. So, that's why it's so important to adopt this resolution at this time as it is written. I urge its passage.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Delegate Leithman in the Chair

Mr. Duval Representative Jenkins, as I understand your resolution, you're not attempting to impair any preexisting contracts? Are you merely asserting the right of this convention to enter into contract on its own as it is a separate entity?

Mr. Jenkins Well, that's one part of it, certainly. It's also saying that "no contracts entered into are binding on us," no preexisting contracts are binding on us. They may be perfectly valid contracts binding on the parties, but we are not parties to them.

Mr. Duval Thank you.

Mr. LeBreton Woody, I understood you to say that you would have the Journal printed for three or four hundred dollars a day rather than two thousand; did I understand you correctly?

Mr. Jenkins Yes, sir.

Mr. LeBreton Well, what assurance do you have that you could have it printed and the time, work at night, which I understand is a big part of the cost against what we are paying. What assurance could you give us?

Mr. Jenkins Well, the assurance that I have is my experience in the newspaper publishing business dealing in this town, for example. I know that it can be done for that price. I know it can be done that quickly. So, I have to cite through my own personal experience. Certainly, if any company wants to bid on our printing, they would be allowed to do so under this resolution. If the company who does the state printing is the low bidder on this particular job, they could do that. But, it would not oblige us to go along with any particular firm.

Mr. LeBreton It's hard to believe...it's hard for me to believe that the House of Representatives are wasting fifteen hundred dollars a day; and, I, just for one, don't believe it. Let me ask you another question: Where are we getting our money from to run this convention?

Mr. Jenkins Well, it's hard for me to believe, too, that the legislature is wasting that kind of money. But, I can assure you, Eddie, that it is. Now, we are getting our money through an appropriation from the state legislature; they created us. But, we are not subservient to the legislature. I think if you read the court decisions, you'll see that's the case and they certainly cannot enter into contracts for us.

Mr. LeBreton Well, Gulf South Research, I understand, did some work for us with the hope of being paid. Are these one of the things that you are shooting at?

Mr. Jenkins No, sir, that really would not be relevant. I think as regards to any work that Gulf South Research Institute did for us, we are going to have to ratify any sort of contracts that were entered into if we are going to pay the bill. But, I don't even know that that's the intent that we pay the bill on Gulf South Research's effort. This is going to have to be determined, I think, by the Executive Committee. But, this doesn't bear on that I don't believe at all.

Mr. LeBreton I would have thought--and this is the question--that what you are talking about, the general things we are discussing will alter the Executive Committee. I'm not a candidate for the Executive Committee, but I did think that the details of these things must be, for example, I didn't know we had such a contract; there may be other things that we don't know about. My question is that there's a...voting when you don't all that exist. I would think, and ask you if you don't think this belongs to the Executive Committee?

Mr. Jenkins Eddie, I think the Executive Committee will have to deal with the details of this. But, if you notice, this is only about fifteen lines long; it's not a detailed resolution that states the general principle that our purchasing shall be done by bidding; that's the first thing. The second thing is that no other agency, or institution, or department in the State of Louisiana can bind us contractually, that we are independent, autonomous and our contracts are going to be entered into on our own.

Mr. LeBreton Just wisely because somewhere in our rules it says that we can call on the other departments of the state to do things for us. I just don't see that these two things go together, Woody.

Mr. Munson Mr. Jenkins, as you will recall, you and I discussed this yesterday afternoon, and I suggested at that time that you discuss your resolution with Mr. Charles Roemer in the Division of Administration. As you know, I also discussed it with Mr. Roemer. I got the impression from talking to Mr. Roemer--you talked to him later, however, but I got the impression in talking to Mr. Roemer that we didn't need in his opinion--and I could be wrong--that we didn't need this resolution, that it was his feeling that by using the State Central Purchasing Act through the Division of Administration we could actually save this convention money rather than take bids on it ourselves. My question is, did you get the same impression, or am I correct in my assumption?

Mr. Jenkins Bob, I don't believe so. What Mr. Roemer said was that we could, he believes, make advantage of Central Purchasing--which that would allow us to do, I believe, in accord with the Public Contract Law of the state, insofar as it deals with independent contracts. The only thing is, there is another contract with the State of Louisiana through the legislature saying that we might be bound for some printing contract. It seems important that we repudiate that here and now, and that we discuss contracts which may be made by other institutions, organizations or officials, which are not subject to our control. Mr. Roemer's--let me say this too about what Mr. Roemer said--he stated last night in my discussion with him that his Division of Administration has been making every effort to save money in printing and to try to get around this particular contract as much as they could--taking over as much of the printing as they could through the state printing office themselves--because they found that they could do it much cheaper themselves. They said also they'd be glad to do this official Journal for us if they could, legally. They were only concerned about the size of the thing—they can't print newspaper size—but could print something like this. This would allow us to employ them rather than be bound by some other agreement.

Mr. Munson It is my impression that your resolution would state that we would take bids on anything over a thousand dollars that we wanted to purchase, which would prohibit us from using Central Purchasing. That's my feeling at this time; am I correct? We would not be allowed to use Central Purchasing even if we wanted to, and even if we could save money by that method, if we adopt this resolution.

Mr. Jenkins I think normally that would be true. But, the only way we could buy printing through Central Purchasing is if we went through this particular contract that we're talking about, because that's how the printing is done by the state, through that particular contract.

Mr. Triche Mr. Jenkins, one question, if you will, because you've made some statements here that are rather startling to me. It's my understanding that the legislature's contracts are put out on public bid now, and I understand there's only one private business that has ever bid on it. I understand that this is so because that's a rather specialized and technical type of printing that not many people are available to do, or have the facilities to do. To illustrate, we meet in the legislature sometimes at ten or eleven o'clock at night and the Journal has to be printed and on our desks the next morning. There are not many people in the business available to do that. I was under the impression that the legislature's printing was put out on public bids, but that's not correct. My point is, whether or no—that's correct. Also, I'd like you to explain to me what background information you have, which allows you to make the statements that you know it is costing us two thousand dollars now and that maybe we could get it done for four or five hundred dollars. Nobody in this convention, I believe, wants to spend two thousand dollars for printing that can be gotten for two or three hundred dollars. You know, I'd like to inform you I have that those things would be available to us?

Mr. Jenkins Well, as to the cost now—I've gotten my information from Mr. Poynter, the Clerk of the House, who's given me the approximate cost of printing the Journal. I questioned at length the representative of T.J.M., who never would give me a precise figure on the average cost of printing the Journal. Apparently, those figures are caught up in contracts that are very difficult to state explicitly, but Mr. Poynter has told me the approximate amount that we spend everyday for printing in the House. Now, as to who can do the job, I know this, there are three or four firms right here in Baton Rouge, not counting those in New Orleans and other areas that could do this work, and that I'm sure would be glad to bid on this work if they could bid on this specific job. It can be done, it's not a big task at all. I'll give you an example, I know of one firm that if we prepared our copy—camera ready—for offset printing could produce us say two to three copies of a sixteen page tabloid newspaper for about a hundred and fifty dollars. Now, that's once it's camera ready—naturally it'd cost us something to get it camera ready—but it can be done much cheaper. I think it ought to be done much cheaper. We don't have the money to spend the sort of funds that the legislature spends to print the official Journal. So, I think, it's imperative that we take this action.

Mr. Triche What is the difference in the procedure which you propose in your resolution for letting out these contracts by bid and the procedure now used by the legislature to let its contract for printing out by bid? Now, I think, apparently you agree with me that the legislature now lets its contracts for printing out by bid. What's the difference between what the legislature has done and what you propose to do in this resolution?

Mr. Jenkins Well, the difference is this, that we would be allowed to let our own contracts and would not be bound by any contract which the legislature may have entered into.

Mr. Triche Well, now I gather what you're proposing to do is that this convention do what the legislature has done in the past.

Mr. Jenkins Well, let me say this, I understand that the reason this particular firm has been the only bidder is because the specifications involved with all state printing are so large and so vast that they're the only ones that can bid on this large a job for the entire state system. This is not true at all for a particular job like the printing of our Journal or the printing of our proposals. There are many businesses which could bid on such a proposal. This would allow us to go individually and buy things in that manner.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if it's in order, I would move that Mr. Jenkins's resolution be referred to the Executive Committee, that the Executive Committee be instructed to seek the advice of the attorney general with respect to this matter and do whatever he says the law requires us to do.

Question

Mr. Jenkins Now, Jack, your motion, I believe, was to refer it to the Executive Committee and then to allow them to do whatever the attorney general advised them they could do under the law?

Mr. Avant My motion was to refer it to the Executive Committee with instructions to seek an opinion from the attorney general as to what we are legally required to do, and do whatever the law requires us to do, Mr. Jenkins. My reason for that is, that I don't think that is within our prerogative. You have mentioned the point that we're not the Executive Branch of the Government, we're not the Legislative Branch of the Government, and we darn sure aren't the Judicial Branch of the Government. I think it ill behooves us to be saying that we do not recognize ourselves as being bound by some contract that was legally entered into. Now, whether it applies to us or not, I don't know. But, I don't think it's our prerogative to determine that. I think that we have an attorney general who's a constitutional officer of this state whose duty it is to advise the Executive Committee of this convention on what the law is. I don't know of any other source that we can go to, and I think that's what we ought to do.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Jenkins Well, my question is this. If your motion is simply to commit this resolution to the Executive Committee, I'm going to have to object to it. Now, if your proposal is to commit it to the Executive Committee and to empower the Executive Committee to do what the attorney general says they are legally empowered to do in order to get the best possible contract that we can in accord with this resolution, I'll have no objection to that.

Mr. Avant Well, that's my motion.

Mr. Jenkins But, I'll believe, under our rules you will have to put that in writing, and I'd like to see the form of your writing and when you...

Mr. Avant Well, it's a motion to commit, which I understand doesn't have to be in writing.

Mr. Henry You're absolutely correct.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Come forward and state your point, sir.

Point of Order

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, as I understood it, this was more than a motion to commit. It was a motion to commit with instructions to the committee to do certain things.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Henry Well, I think, such a motion is out of order, and the only part we're going to consider is the part to commit it.

Mr. Avant Well, I limit the motion to commit it to the Executive Committee, and I sincerely pray that they do what I advise. But, that's not a part of the motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Well, it seems that the entire discussion thus far on this particular resolution and this particular amendment has missed the boat. It seems like all the discussion is centered around one thing, printing of the journal. This is not all we're concerned with with this resolution; we're concerned with the spending of money by this convention in any manner. I think the only way we can responsibly spend money is through a bid system. Now, this particular resolution does not make specific recommendations as to how this bid system will operate. It leaves that up to the Executive Committee. All this does is to agree in principle to having a bid system. As Mr. Jenkins pointed out, we don't know if we're bound by the public bid system act—I don't know exactly what the statute number of it is—but we're not or we might not be bound by this. All this resolution does is have us agree in principle to having a bid system. Now a lot has been said by a lot of people here about saving money and saving time and things of this nature. If we plan on saving money and running this convention as economically as we possibly can, the only thing we can do is accept Mr. Jenkins' resolution, because it does commit our Executive Committee and this convention to a bid system. Now, this does not have anything to do with figures on the journal and how you can get it printed cheaper possibly by another contract. This is everything, and all of the money that this Constitutional Convention is going to spend. I think this is very, very important that we do commit ourselves to such a responsible way of spending money. If we don't have such a system for spending money on a public bid type system, and we vote to just let the Executive Committee spend the money as they so choose, then we can have them accept any contract that they want to accept, no matter how much money it costs this state. This seems to me a very irresponsible thing for this convention to do. So, I think, we need to accept Mr. Jenkins' resolution and start spending money responsibly. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I feel that this is a matter for the Executive Committee to handle. It's something that they've got the time to look into and to handle it, and I think they will handle it in the way that it's best for us. If I am in order, I'd like to move the question.

[Previous Question ordered: Substitute Motion adopted: viva voce.]

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution No. K by Mr. T. A. Casey:

A resolution to commend and express the appreciation of the Convention to the Honorable Wade D. Martin, Jr., Secretary of State, for his valuable contributions to the Louisiana...

[Rules suspended to consider the Resolution at this time.]

Amendment

Mr. Henry Would you like to offer up an amendment so that every delegate could be made a coauthor?

Mr. Casey I do, Mr. Chairman.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Resolution adopted without objection. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to proceed with election of officers as provided in Act 7 of the 1972 Regular Session and the Standing Rules of the Convention adopted without objection.]

Mr. Henry The Chair will now entertain motions--let me give you the game plan as to how I propose that we do this--we will elect...take your seats, ladies and gentlemen, take your seats. We will proceed first to elect the Statutory Vice-Chairman. We will then elect in order the remaining Vice-Chairmen. We will then elect a Secretary, then the Treasurer. We will adjourn for the caucuses so that the congressional districts can elect their membership to the Committee on Committees and the Executive Committee, hopefully, as quickly and as rapidly as we have done this. We seem to have cleared up all of the business and we will adjourn or recess until some future time. The Chair now announces that we will entertain nominations for the Statutory Vice-Chairman. We will allow one nominating speech of approximately three minutes and two seconding speeches of two minutes.

Point of Information

Mr. Fontenot I thought that we were going to elect the First Vice-Chairman, then the Secretary and Treasurer, then the three Vice-Chairmen. Seems like in the interpretation of the rules that was the understanding.

Mr. Henry That amendment was not passed, Mr. Fontenot.

Are there any nominations for the Statutory Vice-Chairman?

Mr. Burson.

Nominations for Statutory Vice Chairman

Mr. Burson I nominate Mrs. Ruth Loyd Miller. The woman I nominate is uniquely qualified by background, education, and experience for the high office of First Vice-Chairwoman of this convention. Her background blends the life experiences of north and south Louisiana. She was reared in Caddo Parish and Madison Parish. She has spent her adult life in Jennings, in Jefferson Davis Parish in southwest Louisiana. Educationally, she has a degree from L.S.U. in speech. She did special studies in sociology, race relations and Christian Religious philosophy at Blue Ridge College in North Carolina, and Union Theological Seminary, New York City. She is the wife of the Honorable Minos D. Miller, Jr., Judge of the Third Circuit Court of Appeal. She is the mother of three children and is a grandmother. This fifty year old woman has during her lifetime, seen and suffered through the torments and turmoil of seeing her husband missing in action in World War II confined to a prisoner of war camp in Japan. As Wordsworth put it, "They also serve who only stand and wait". While her husband was so confined, Mrs. Miller went to law school so that she might support her family. When her husband fortunately returned, she left law school and worked as an editorial assistant, L.S.U. News Bureau, while Judge Miller finished law school. After the torments and torments of wartime were over, she returned to Jennings to raise her family. She continued to mature and grow intellectually into the knowledgeable, strongminded and diversely talented woman I nominate today. By studying on her own, she taught herself the law and passed the Louisiana Bar examination. She has also done community service as president of the Board of

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Supervisors of Elections for her parish. She has chaired the Planning Commission for the city of Jennings, in Jefferson Davis Parish. She is an accomplished public speaker and newspaper writer. She could articulate the objectives of this convention to the many friends that she made across the state as the campaign manager of her husband's successful twenty-one parish race for Court of Appeal. Now, writing the constitution is penultimately a work of language. Mrs. Miller is a scholar of the English language, who is presently completing editing the editions of three new books on Shakespeare that will be published this year. She's a lawyer; she's a good and a good community leader, but most of all she has the intangible qualities of character that we need in this office. She's strong-minded and tough-minded, but not domineering. With all of her skills in language she has not deluged you with comments at the mike. But, I'll tell you when the crunch comes, and the important issues are there, you will hear from her at that time. She's had the patience to sit and pay attention to the rest of us that like to talk. I know that if you elect her to this high office that she will continue to give each and everyone of us that kind of attention and patience. Her whole life and character epitomizes good government. This new constitution is so important to her that when she was appointed to delegate to this convention, she resigned her position as the first woman ever to serve on the Louisiana Mineral Board in order that she might devote this entire year of her life to her duties as a delegate to this convention. Now, we hope to write a document not for the hours, but for the ages. I ask you to enlist the aid of this state's most talented woman, Ruth Miller, as First Vice-Chairwoman of this convention. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Is there a second to the nomination? Is there a seconding speech?
Pardon me, Mr. Arnette, I didn't see you. You'll have to borrow that man's flag.

Mr. Arnette Yes, I'm going to have to have Louie loan me his flag.
It's with great pleasure that I come up here to nominate or to second the nomination of Ruth Miller. I just have a couple of words to say about her. First of all, I'm from her home town. I know her well, and I know that she is a talented woman. The people in her home town who also know her end all around the parish and all around the state for that matter, know that she is qualified, and that she will do a job that you will be very pleased with. Thank you very much.

Mr. Henry Is there a further second to the nomination of Mrs. Miller?

Mr. Badeaux It is indeed an honor for me to second the nomination of Mrs. Ruth Miller. I had never met Mrs. Ruth Miller before joining fellow delegates over here at the beginning of last week. But, she has impressed me very much. From my conversation with other delegates, I take it that she has impressed many of you also. Again, I say it's an honor to second the nomination of Mrs. Ruth Miller. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Are there further nominations for the Statutory Vice-Chairman?

Mr. Alphonse Jackson is recognized.

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this Constitutional Convention, I think that we all recognize that we are going to need courageous, and diligent, and strong leadership to provide for the people of this state a document that will lead us into a decade of freedom and dignity and security for all of the people of this state. When I look about this convention, in deference to all of the fine ladies that we have here, I think there is such a man and his name is Thomas Staggs from Shreveport, Louisiana. I've watched him in my community work as a leader, as a planner, as a lawyer, as an individual who is concerned about all of the people of that community and all of the people of this state, and all of the people of this nation of ours. He's gone forth throughout our community making a difference. He's gone forth throughout this state exercising. He has not depleted this nation his genius because he has served us well. I don't always agree with Tom Staggs, but I always say that a man is entitled to one mistake--and his mistake is that he's a Republican--but we won't hold that against him. I don't agree with him, but I respect him. I respect him a man of conviction, I respect him as a man of courage, I respect him as a man of wisdom. You've watched him serve as our Chairman of the Temporary Rules Committee and you know him to be a courageous man with the kind of spirit that will enable us to write a document that will serve us well. His presence is commanding. He's a tall man--tall not only in terms of physical stature, but tall in terms of spirit, in terms of knowledge, in terms of wisdom. So, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I'm delighted and honored to place in nomination my friend and a great leader, a lawyer, a businessman, and a planner, as the next Vice-President of this Constitutional Convention, Mr. Thomas Staggs.

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I proudly rise today to second the nomination of Thomas Staggs as our First Vice-Chairman. Emotion aside, quotas be damned, independence be exalted, Thomas Staggs fits the job. A man more eloquent than I, early in this convention said that we should consider function before form--function before form--and I agree. The first Vice-Chairman will fill in the absence of our competent Chairman. We need a person, be it man or woman, black or white, firm, equitable, knowledgeable and compelling. Fortunately for us, we have that person in our midst. I second the nomination of Thomas Staggs.

Mr. Bollinger Fellow delegates, it is also my honor to second Delegate Jackson's nomination of Thomas Staggs for First Vice-Chairman of this Constitutional Convention. The press has given us the impression--which I think we all appreciate--that this convention is one of independence. What better time is it than now to show our independence? The election of this First Vice-Chairman can do just this. We have an excellently qualified man to fill the office. If we elect Tom Staggs, which I'm sure we will, there will be no doubt in anyone's mind that the number two spot in this convention is filled with one of independence, not associated with the administration in any way. Tom Staggs has been a leader in his party. He has served as national committeeman; he has served on procedural committees at a national level. He is excellently qualified to be the First Vice-Chairman of this convention. I also say that he has, as has been stated before, shown his ability to govern and control and execute leadership in his stance as Chairman of the temporary Rules Committee. At this time, I second his nomination as First Vice-Chairman of the Constitutional Convention of 1973.

Mr. Henry Are there further nominations for the Statutory Vice-Chairman?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Perkins.

Miss Perkins Ladies and gentlemen, I come before you to submit into nomination the name of an individual who can not only represent you, but can advance the spirit of this convention. My selection was based on concern for this convention. As a delegate from the home parish of Governor Edwards, I'm certainly not here to fight the administration or anyone else. When I feel the administration is right, I'll be with them; however, I object to a handpicked slate of candidates or the outwitting of this convention, and this is the reason that I stand before you. Possibly, I am naive in politics. I probably need my head examined for being up here. But, ever since I was a little girl, I was taught there comes a time that you either are a man or a woman or you're not. Well, unfortunately, my day of reckoning is here. Maybe it's a little earlier than I would have liked to have seen it, but I am going to stand up and be counted. There have been many commitments made in reference to this position. I don't have to inform you of that; you are as aware of it as I am. But, let me say this: As delegates, any commitments you may have, let's not forget that we had one commitment before we had any commitments in this convention. That was a commitment to our people to come here and vote the way we thought was in the best interest of the convention—to stand on our own two feet, not to wheel and deal, but stand for principle on what was right. I ask you to consider those people at this time. You know, I'd like to take something by reference: the human eye is a mighty beautiful thing; it's the light of the world, as long as it functions with the rest of your body. If you take that eye and remove it from the body, it becomes harsh and ugly; it's of no use. Well, it's the same thing, ladies and gentlemen, with "I the individual." If "I the individual" functions with the body, for that body, in assistance with that body, then it's helpful to that body. If you take it out, about what "I" can get and what "I" can do, then it becomes something harsh too. I would like to say this: that we're making sure that all minorities are represented in these offices. We're taking care of the women, and we're taking care of the blacks; but, ladies and gentlemen, we forgot one minority: the people, the independent people that put you here to do a job in their best interest. If the reporters ask you, all of us are in the position that we can't say very much. Well, as they say, I'm letting it all hang-out right now. It's going to take guts to cast an independent vote. I know that. But, that's what I'm asking you to have in guts. If we don't have it now, we are going to perish for power that does not add anything, simply by letting them convince us that it does exist. I now, ladies and gentlemen, submit into nomination, for Vice-Chairman of this convention, Miss Lynn Perkins. It has taken guts for me to get up and submit my own name into nomination. I could have found someone, in case any of you are worried about it, to submit my name for me—but I chose to do it in this manner. I'm going to ask you to please consider me for this position. It may seem egotistical to submit my own name into nomination, but I can assure you it is done with the greatest of humility. I would like to say this, in closing: I have stood up for what I think is right. At work, I can be defeated and, possibly, the professional politicians can make me look foolish—which I'm sure they may attempt to do—but my personal pride, ladies and gentlemen, is a small price to pay for my own self-respect, a small price to pay for the dignity of this convention, and a small price to pay to restore the confidence of the people of Louisiana. With this, I humbly solicit your support, and I would like to say this: if this short skirt fools you, I think you found out where the guts are. I'll tell you this: We may have to work together, but that doesn't mean the atmosphere has to be unpleasant, so I don't think my skirts have anything to do with it. I'd like to say this too, in closing: You may question my ability to run this convention, I am the Vice-Chairman. Ladies and gentlemen, keeping order and decorum in this convention will be very simple compared to what I have just done. Please, I humbly solicit your support. Thank you for your attention.

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, when I came here this morning I didn't know I was going to happen. I met Miss Lynn Perkins in Lafayette. I want to say to you she impressed me very much. I don't know anybody at this convention very much. I have to depend on the inner man, and I'm going to tell you it takes guts, and I'll also tell you I got guts. I take very great pride in seconding the nomination of Miss Lynn Perkins as the First Vice-Chairman of this convention. She's a young woman that I feel that will go places. I usually push young people, and it is a great thing to push people. I have never pushed myself, and what happens to me, ladies and gentlemen, is not important; but what happens to this convention and what happens to the future generation of this state concerns me very much. With these few words, I take great pleasure in seconding the nomination of Miss Lynn Perkins.

Mr. O'Neill I stand before you today to second the nomination of Lynn Perkins. She deserves your consideration as a colleague and as a friend. Lynn did not ask, nor did she expect, to be handed this position on a silver platter. She very simply offered herself to this convention as a young, independent woman. I admire her for her courage, and, at this moment, I ask you to admire her too. Experience is gained through hard work and participation, not simply through years. Experience—Lynn has done as much towards the organization of this convention as any delegate. She attended each of the pre-convention meetings. She was selected as a member of the Temporary Rules Committee and was elected as that body's secretary. Lynn is a practicing attorney. She has served as secretary and vice-president and currently as president of the Avoyelles Parish Bar Association. She has been the Chairman of the L.S.U. Alumni Fund in her parish, and she was voted as the Outstanding Young Woman of America in 1971. Lynn is a woman who can handle this convention in the exemplary manner of Chairman Henry. She has a strong personality, and her ability to get along with everyone is a precious asset. I very strongly feel that the First Vice-Chairman should be a competent presiding officer. I support and second this nomination, not because I oppose any candidate. Were it up to me, every person in this convention would have a prestigious title. Rather, I support Lynn because of her tenacity and independence. It seems that everyone has made a deal to get a vote. I'll support me for the Executive Committee if you'll support me for Vice-Chairman. Or, you can be a Vice-Chairman because you're a sacred cow, and this is India. Well, Lynn and I struck a deal. In return for my seconding her nomination, I get to take her to dinner tonight, and that's a better deal than any of you all have. Senator Rayburn has a speech about everybody's sweetheart and nobody's gal. Well, Lynn's a sweetheart to all of us, but she does want to be our gal. I second her nomination in hopes that you'll see fit to do just this.

[Motion to close nominations adopted without objection. Roll call voice ordered. Delegate Miller-76; Delegate Stage-25; Delegate Perkins-22. Delegate Miller elected Statutory Vice Chairman.]

Mr. Henry Delegates, please take your seats. I recognize, jointly, Delegate Stage and Delegate Perkins.

Mr. Stage Mr. Chairman, on behalf of myself and Miss Perkins, we wish to move that the nomination and the election of Mrs. Miller be made unanimous.

Mr. Henry Is there objection?
—Without objection, so ordered.
Miss Perkins.

Miss Perkins Yes, sir. Thank you. On behalf of Mr. Stage and myself, we offer to Mrs. Miller our public congratulations and assure her of our support and cooperation in any way that we may be needed. Thank you.

Mr. Henry And, congratulations, Mrs. Miller. The floor will now be open for nominations for a Vice-Chairman.
Delegate Dennis.

Nomination for Vice Chairman

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to place in nomination for the office of Vice-Chairman of this convention the name of Tom Casey. The Vice-Chairmanship, as you know, is an important office, not only from the standpoint of its legal duties—such as presiding in the absence of the Chairman, serving on the Executive Committee and the procedural committees, and performing such other duties as assigned by the Chairman—but, perhaps, even more important is the duty that the Vice-Chairman has to provide leadership within the convention as well as acting as an ambassador to the public. We need for this office a man of ability, of mature judgment, and one who is held in high respect both by the delegates and the citizens of our state. I believe Tom Casey can fill this need in a superb manner. Although I have only known Tom for about five years, I have served through many long, hard, and eventful sessions of the legislature with him. When he entered the legislature, he was already a successful attorney, active in community affairs. I saw him develop from a freshman legislator into one of the most capable, effective leaders within the House of Representatives, handling legislation of the greatest magnitude for our state. But, what was most significant to me was that Tom attained his stature without sacrificing any of the qualities in him that I most admire. He is honest; he is sincere; he tries hard to understand the concerns of others. He votes his conscience even when the issues are politically dangerous; and, as a result, during his tenure in the legislature, he has worked diligently for constitutional revision and for governmental reform. These qualities and his unquestioned ability have earned him deep respect both within the legislature and throughout our state. Our goal here is to write a good constitution and to convince our citizens to adopt it. I believe that the talents of Tom Casey can help us tremendously in writing a good document, and I know that his widely held reputation for sincerity and honesty could prove to be essential in winning the acceptance of that document by our people. Therefore, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it is a very high honor and a great personal pleasure for me to place in nomination for Vice-Chairman of this convention the name of Delegate Tom Casey of New Orleans. I urge each of you to support this excellent man for this important office. Thank you very much.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise to second the nomination of Tom Casey. To be very honest with you, before this convention, I did not know Tom Casey personally. On the other hand, I did have the opportunity to know him through many other people, and I can say, without exception, that the reputation that he has in the community that I live in is one of excellence. They have told me that he is a person who is honest, who is sincere, who is dedicated, and who is a person of high character. I have met Tom Casey during the course of these deliberations, and what I have heard has been confirmed. I like Tom Casey; I like what he stands for; I like the way he presents himself; I like the way he listens to people. I think that it's crucially important that we have someone of this caliber and of this stature and this background to serve in the capacity as Vice-Chairman—who, in my opinion, will be so important to sell the ultimate document to the people. I am personally confident that Tom Casey will serve this convention well, and I humbly submit his name to you for your consideration for one of the Vice-Chairmanships of this convention. Thank you very much.

Mrs. Soniat Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to second the nomination of Mr. Thomas A. Casey. He is a man that I feel, due to his many activities in the city of New Orleans, will be able to fulfill the job as one of the Vice Chairmen of this convention. At the present time, he is president of the Jesuit High School Parent Club. He has also been president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce of New Orleans as well as a past president of the Ursuline Academy Advisory Council and membership in many other civic and social organizations in the city of New Orleans. For this reason, I feel that he will be a capable Vice Chairman, and I hope that you will vote for him as Vice Chairman.

[Motion to close nominations dropped without objection. Motion to vote for Tom Casey by acclamation adopted without objection.]

Nomination for Vice Chairman

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to place the name of Reverend Avery Alexander in nomination for Vice Chairman. Reverend Alexander received his educational training at Gilbert Academy in New Orleans, with further training and special courses at Tulane and other local universities, also, the Y.M.C.A. School of Commerce and Union Baptist Theological Seminary. In 1972, Reverend Alexander was elected to the State Central Committee, also as a delegate to the National Democratic Convention. He also serves as a member of the Welfare Board of the city of New Orleans. Some of Reverend Alexander's organizational affiliations are: Second Baptist Church of New Orleans, Inter-denominational Alliance, Southern Christian Leadership Conference, International Longshoremen Association Local 1419, and organizer of voter registration throughout the State of Louisiana. Reverend Alexander has served his constituency and the people of this state for many years, giving hope to all citizens to participate fully in the affairs of government in their community and their state. Reverend Alexander's herculean efforts are models and courage, determination and deep faith in the integrity of all people in Louisiana. These demonstrations of courage and unswerving faith in the great future of this state makes him worthy of your serious consideration and your vote as a Vice Chairman of this constitutional convention. I humbly solicit your support for Reverend Avery Alexander as a Vice Chairman. Thank you.

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it is a signal honor for me to be here among you as a delegate. It really is a great obligation of this body, and it's even a greater honor, though, that I have the privilege of seconding the nomination of Reverend Alexander. He's a man that has served the people; he has served the Lord by serving the people. He's served both black and white people. He has kept the faith. The constitution that we have today has many parts of it that discriminate against black people, but this gentleman, he has told his people that the Lord will not put a cross on you any heavier than you can bear. All of us agree that black people have had a heavy cross to bear, but this man kept the faith of his people, and they knew that someday that this would change. This man has been like a Rock of Gibraltar in this convention. You've seen him sitting there studying, listening, and he's going to be that way all the way through. We need this man in leadership because he can give both white and black people leadership. We're going to need his type of leadership, and a man that has the trust of the best sort of a people—so that we can pass this document that we finish with. It's a great honor that I have a part in nominating Reverend Alexander as Vice Chairman of this convention. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Reverend..Delegate Wall. Reverend Alexander said you quit meddling and started preaching on that one.

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I asked for this privilege to come up here and second the nomination of Reverend Alexander. Usually, nominating speeches and seconding speeches are made by people who have known the candidate for either a number of years or a number of years. My support of Reverend Alexander is based solely on his reputation as I know it, and on my observation of him in the past two or three weeks. He has impressed me as being a man of sound judgment of listening more than talking, and in that process of taking in everything that has gone on in this convention. When we first started off into session, Reverend Alexander asked some of the most practical and sound and sensible questions that I heard any delegate at the convention ask. It impressed me so that if he will recall, I asked him one morning, I said, "Reverend, why don't you get up there and ask some more of your questions," because I actually would get more out of the answers to his questions than I did out of some of the speeches or some of the debate. I think that this convention will be helped in a large measure by having a Vice Chairman of Reverend Alexander's stature, and I therefore take pleasure and consider it an honor to second the nomination of Reverend Alexander for Vice Chairman of this convention.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

[Motion to close the Nominations and elect Delegate Alexander by acclamation adopted without objection.]

Nomination for Vice Chairman

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman--remember that you may have to drive through Livingston Parish one of these days--and fellow delegates, get this convention card. Look me up on our accomplishments thus far. We have exhibited independence; we have exhibited intelligence; and we have exhibited an image of the type of body that I am proud to belong to. In the selection of Vice Chairman, there are many of us that are very well qualified. However, we must seek out a few individuals who have exhibited to this convention the desire to serve in more than just the capacity of delegate. This individual must be willing to give of himself for a least one year. This individual will have many added responsibilities and duties. I cannot say that I have known most of you before coming to this convention, so I've had to make my judgment based on your actions. There's one person among us who is watched, and although I have not shared with all of the time, I think that he is very well qualified. I think that he is the kind of man that this convention needs as a Vice Chairman. It is with pride that I place the name of Delegate Chris Roy into nomination for the office of Vice Chairman. I cannot say that I have known Delegate Roy as well as my life, and as a matter of fact, I've had before me, I've disagreed many times. He's called me a maverick; he's called me an independent. I consider that a privilege. However, Mr. Roy has the ability to seize issues, to put them before this body and to give us a choice, to give us a voice. He was born and reared in Marksville. He is thirty-six years old. He's married and the father of four children. He graduated from L.S.U. Law School and he served as First Deputy Clerk for the Third Circuit Court of Appeal. He is now a practicing attorney in Alexandria. He's presently on the Board of Governors of the Louisiana State Bar Association for the Eighth Congressional District. He has served his country in the National Guard for a period of ten years. In my personal, humble opinion, I feel that he deserves your support and your vote. I ask you to join with me in casting a ballot for Mr. Chris Roy as Vice Chairman of this great convention.

Mr. Kelly Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to second the nomination of the extremely capable gentleman in our midst, Mr. Chris Roy. I, unlike Mr. Fayard, can say that I have known Mr. Roy for a number of years, now. You might say we're from the same part of the country. I like to many times judge a man among his peers. Mr. Roy is a practicing attorney in Alexandria, Louisiana, and I would add that has one of the most favorable reputations as a practicing attorney in our area. I might add that to me Mr. Roy represents people. He is a man though possibly new in politics, has been involved for many years now with representing the true interests of individual human beings. This speaks well for any man, regardless of his profession, faith, etc. He, in my opinion, was the author of the most important substantive or substantive amendment that came before this convention while we were trying to adopt our rules, which further illustrates his yearning and his desire to fully and finally represent the people. I think you will refer to the amendment regarding the Executive Committee. Mr. Roy was the author of that bill which gave us full and true representation of all people throughout the state for this convention. I earnestly solicit your support for this candidate.

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Chairman's distinguished ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to second the nomination of Mr. Chris Roy. In the time we've been together, I have had the privilege and pleasure of associating and working with Mr. Roy. This man has captured my respect and he's captured my admiration. Like myself, Mr. Roy has not previously held a political office. But, I find Mr. Roy to be a man who not only shows his ability and willingness to work, but he is working for the benefit of his people--for the benefit of all people in Louisiana. This is important. We need a man such as Mr. Roy who is capable and who does not fear the thought of getting up and speaking his mind, who has the ability to say what he feels in the best interest of his people. Mr. Roy is quite capable of handling this position, the position for which I am asking you to support him for. In closing, I humbly solicit your consideration and your support for Mr. Roy, and I'm sure that you will find him, as I have found him, to be a man we can depend on and to be a man that we can trust when we need him.

[Motion to close the Nominations and elect Delegate Roy by acclamation adopted without objection.]

Nominations for Secretary

Mr. Kilpatrick Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to place in nomination for office of secretary of this convention the name of Moise Denery. The secretary is one of the most important officers in this convention. He will be charged with keeping the records of this convention. We need a man for this office of mature judgment and ability, a man who is held in high esteem and respect by the delegates of this convention and the citizens of our state. I believe Moise Denery can fill this need in an orderly manner. Moise Denery is honest, independent, efficient and qualified for this position. It is my pleasure at this time to submit to you the name of Moise Denery as secretary, and I urge you to support him for this very important office. Thank you.

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it is a real privilege for me to rise to second the nomination of a man, a warm friend, whom I have known for many years. A man whose ability, whose integrity, whose competence, whose independence, I think, is above question. We have seen Mr. Denery on the floor of this convention and he has had occasion to see to know and, I hope, at least from my point of view, to admire his actions here. Mr. Denery is a competent lawyer, competent businessman, a competent public leader. I proudly second his nomination and ask your support for his candidacy. Thank you very much.

Mr. Cowen Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to second the nomination of Moise Denery as secretary of this convention. Mr. Denery, besides being an outstanding attorney in New Orleans, sits on the Editorial Advisory Board of the Times Picayune; he is Chairman of the Louisiana Educational Television Authority. These are among many other activities that he has. I've been at the adjoining desk to Mr. Denery for several days now, and his honesty, as I see it, his sincerity, maturity and intelligence and his dedication to what this convention stands for and is attempting to do impresses me. I feel that his capabilities are full, and they are complete. It is said by the editor of the State's Item that if General Hastings were looking for someone to pick the ideal delegate, they would have to pick Mr. Denery. I am very proud; it is an honor for me to second the nomination of Moise Denery as secretary of this constitutional convention.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, fellow members of the 1973 Constitutional Convention, it is with pleasure that I come before you today to place in nomination the name of an outstanding young man. He's known to all of you; he's especially known, liked and has been elected by his constituency here in Baton Rouge. I would like to place in nomination the name of State Representative Louis "Woody" Jenkins. I would like to give some of his accomplishments that have been bestowed upon him in his short twenty-six years. First, he was elected president of his student body at Istrouma High School his senior year—eighteen hundred. He was valedictorian of his five hundred member senior class. He is especially qualified in that he has a Bachelor of Arts degree in Journalism from Louisiana State University. He has a Juris Doctorate Degree in Law from Louisiana State University. Among the other accomplishments, he is a former radio newscaster for WLCS, a former television announcer for WAFB-TV. He is the former editor and publisher of his own North Baton Rouge Journal or weekly journal here in Baton Rouge. He has been honored by the Louisiana Press Association as an outstanding editor and writer. He is the owner of an advertising agency. He is the second youngest member of the Louisiana Legislature, having been elected in 1972 in the first primary over four opponents, receiving sixty-six percent of the vote. One of the most outstanding things, I think, is after serving one session in the Legislature, he then submitted himself to be elected to this honorable group. Those that he has served for one session in the legislature overwhelmingly elected him still as their voice and their speaker. He won in the first primary over several opponents that he had for that. When you've served one session in the legislature, you usually will want to wait maybe three years before you go back to account. His people said, "You represent us well." He is also a member of the Democratic State Central Committee. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention this last time. He was chairman on the Commission of Constitutional Revision of the democratic party in Louisiana. He's also on the Board of Directors of the East Baton Rouge Democratic Party. He's served in many other many civic outstanding duties: Chairman of the March of Dimes for East Baton Rouge Parish; he's National Chairman of the American Bar Association of Law Students; he's on the Board of Directors of the North Baton Rouge Lions Club. There are many other accomplishments, but this is not a retirement speech that I'm making. Usually, with those accomplishments it's when someone has reached an ancient age of some of the rest of us and is retiring, not when they are on the brink of what I predict as an outstanding future. Woody Jenkins is offering himself as, what I term as, a thankless job. The secretary is the workhorse of this group. We are going to depend on him and call on him for more than any of the others. He is the behind-the-scenes worker. It's my thought that certainly the secretary of this group which meets and sits in Baton Rouge should be from Baton Rouge. No other elected official is from this area. There are two from New Orleans, already... ..and then there's a lot of people. Besides the honor of serving on this group, I've served in the State Democratic Party, I've served twenty-four years in the legislature, and I do not know of one person in that time that I have met and known that I would recommend above this young man. I offer his name for one that is courageous, energetic, fair and impartial... We owe it to the people here and to this young man, and I urge that you cast your vote for him for this workhorse... for the public, but it will be a most appreciated job...

Due to a malfunction in the taping, a portion of the proceedings were not recorded. The Official Journal on this date reflects that Delegates Roemer and Warren recorded the nomination of Mr. Jenkins as Secretary of the Convention. Mr. Keon moved that nominations cease. Mr. Henry requested the Clerk to call the roll.

[Referred to be ordered. Delegate Deberry-69: Delegate Jenkins-55. Delegate Denney elected Secretary.]

Mr. Henry The Chair recognizes Mr. Jenkins

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates of the convention, I'd like to move to make the vote unanimous and urge our cooperation with Mr. Denney in every possible way.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Jenkins.

Without objection, so ordered, and congratulations, Mr. Denney.

The Chair will now accept nominations for treasurer of the convention.

Mr. O'Neill, did you have a nomination?

Nominations For Treasurer

Mr. O'Neill Buddy Roemer quoted from my favorite poet a short while ago. The poem he quoted does mean a lot, and I continue with that poem because it personally means a great deal to me.

"An evening traveller, long I stood, and looked down one as far as I could."
It's a helpless feeling to stand here and to know that your voice won't be heard, your advice won't be taken; but you stand here anyway. I stand here to nominate a man who first put us together at his home. He and his lovely wife invited us all, entertained us, and I think that he typifies the spirit of this convention. Just one traveller all alone, and I think it's time that we extend our hand down the road. When I nominate Mr. Chatelain as treasurer, I feel like I'm nominating my father for something. He reminds me of my father in a great many respects; and I feel this close to Mr. Chatelain. I ask you for your help; and, though I won't receive it, I ask anyway.

Mr. Conroy It is my really great honor to second the nomination of E. J. Chatelain as Treasurer of this convention. I think we can all take pride in what we have accomplished so far in this convention. I think that the tone of independence was set in the Rules of Procedure, which we adopted. I think that the existence of independence was confirmed by the vote in the last election which you just went through. That tone and mood of independence, I think, was greatly begun and fostered by Mr. E. J. Chatelain early in this procedure when he invited all of the then-elected delegates to this convention to Lafayette to exchange views and to begin the formulation of what has now become this Constitutional Convention. I think we owe him a great deal, a great debt of gratitude for his foresight in having brought us together to begin the discussions which have led to the accomplishments which have been achieved here in this convention in the past few days. It is difficult to recount all of Mr. Chatelain's individual accomplishments. He is an outstanding and successful businessman in Lafayette. He has been president of the Lafayette Kiwanis Club, president of the Lafayette Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the Lafayette Planning and Zoning Commission. He would bring to this convention the knowledge and wisdom and good sound financial judgment that we will need. Many of us have discussed and been upset by the amount of money which may be allowed us and the difficulties which we may encounter. I feel confident that we have Mr. Chatelain as our treasurer that our worries would be much less in that regard. I second the nomination of Mr. Chatelain and urge you to vote for him. Thank you.

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, it gives me a great deal of pleasure to second the nomination of E. J. Chatelain. He's the type of individual that I think this convention needs. He met with us or called a meeting in Lafayette, which a number of you attended, met with us in New Orleans and in Baton Rouge, individuals working toward soundly established goals. A philosophy was built from these needs, that philosophy being to have an independent convention and to diversify the responsibilities to give each delegate a chance to participate in this convention. E. J. symbolizes that independence in the spreading of that responsibility. He is very capable of handling his share, and I do hope you'll give him your consideration. Thank you.

Vice Chairman Roy in the Chair

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, although this is the last office that we will elect in a separate election, I think it is, nonetheless, one of the more important officers of this convention. As I envision it, the duties of a treasurer of this organization we not only require a man with experience and background in finance and accounting, but it will require a man who has a feel for public response and who has the ability to gain public support for our efforts. He should have a voice for government and he should have a technical knowledge of the requirements of governmental financing. He should be, above all, a good man and a man of integrity. I believe that my colleague and my personal friend of long standing, Delegate Herman "Monday" Lowe, has these capacities, and I'm privileged to rise to nominate him for the position of Treasurer. I believe that Monday is eminently qualified for this position for many reasons. He's a man of independence, and I know this to be so because I know Monday Lowe. He's a man of qualification. He suggested to the Rules Committee the need for the office of Treasurer in order to promote public trust and confidence in the work of the convention. He's a practicing certified public accountant in the city of Port Allen. He's a senior partner of a firm of certified public accountants with offices in Baton Rouge, Port Allen, and Plaquemine, giving him wide contact with the public of this area. He has been many times recognized by his profession. He is a past president of the Baton Rouge Chapter of Certified Public Accountants and a past member of the Accounting Board of the Society of Louisiana Certified Public Accountants. He has received awards in 1960 and 1970, as the CPA Distinguished Service Award, given by the Louisiana CPA Association. He has had national recognition as a member of the Legislative Action Committee of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants. In addition to his professional activities in which he has gained the respect of those who work in his chosen field, Monday has given of his time and effort in government on all levels. He's served as a part-time city clerk for the city of Port Allen. He's served as assistant secretary and treasurer of the Police Jury for the parish of West Baton Rouge. He served as a member of the state legislature from 1966 to 1968, and I might mention here that he voluntarily retired from that position, and the reason I know he did is because he hid out for the two weeks prior to the qualifying time so that we couldn't find him to make him run again. He was a member of the Louisiana Constitutional Revision Commission. He's been a special lecturer at Louisiana State University in the accounting department. He's a director of the Bank of Baton Rouge, West Baton Rouge, and he's been active in community affairs through the United Givers, the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts, the American Legion, the Knights of Columbus, to mention but a few. He's been active in his school activities. He's past president of the Home and School Association. So you can see that gentlemen of this convention, that we need a strong, qualified, treasurer to insure not only the proper handling of the finances of this convention, but to inspire the confidence of the people. For these reasons and because I believe he's a man of unquestioned integrity, a man willing to give of his time and effort in the interest of good government at all levels, I am privileged to nominate Herman "Monday" Lowe for the position of Treasurer of this convention.

Mr. Homack Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, it would be repetitious to quote any more of the achievements, the honors of recognition that have been bestowed on Mr. Lowe, but I will only say this: When I came to the legislature, returned in 1964, I found sitting next to me Monday Lowe. For four years I counseled as legislation was presented and debated with Monday Lowe, served on committees with him, without taking anything away from anyone else, I would have to say that there has never been a finer gentleman; in my opinion, there's never been a more capable individual. When Monday Lowe came before the Temporary Rules Committee, we hadn't given a lot of consideration to this office. One of the reasons we hadn't given much consideration was that the other conventions that we had read after and had information on to use as guidelines to study and take that information that was applicable or more applicable to Louisiana and use it, those didn't have it. Monday Lowe convinced that committed beyond any question that it was imperative that we have this office. The more I thought about it, the more I convinced I am that the handling of the money and the handling of the money by one of the recognized certified public accountants of our state who has been honored many times, could do nothing but elevate the actions of this convention in the eyes of the public. Based on the great respect and admiration that I have for Monday Lowe, I hereby give it an endorsement and I duty to second the nomination of Monday Lowe. Thank you.

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates to this convention, I proudly rise to second the nomination of Herman "Monday" Lowe. Monday Lowe is a man that I believe possesses unique ability and his tremendous ability to listen, disagree on the merit, and yet his great capacity to never become disagreeable. I know of no one more qualified to attest to his independence for it was on many, many occasions as a member of the legislature that I went to him and he voted contrary to the desires that I had and the people that I represent had at that time. I found him to be a man of public servant basing his decisions upon merit and solely that. The Rock of Gibraltar has been mentioned here this morning, and I guess I could best close by saying to you: Should you share my views and elect this man a Treasurer, who's dedicated to the public fisc of this state, that the Rock of Gibraltar would slide into the Mediterranean before this would bring discredit or do anything that would destroy the faith and trust that you would place in him in this high office.

[Notice to close nominations adopted without objection. Roll Call vote ordered. Delegate Lowe—"I: Delegate Chatelain—49. Delegate Lowe elected Treasurer.]

Mr. Roy The Chair recognizes Delegate Chatelain.

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I, too, want to join in wishing Mr. Monday the best of luck, and I move that we elect him by commission. Thank you.

Mr. Roy Without objection, so ordered.
Mr. Lowe. Congratulations.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Homack Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, in reviewing the act that was passed by the legislature, there was no mention of mileage for delegates attending the convention, or subcommittees, or other official business. I would like, at this time, to suggest that each of you keep an accurate account of your mileage in a similar manner that we do in the legislature, and I've explained it to you that when you come to the legislature for a session, you're allowed one round trip per week. If you come down for a Monday and Tuesday meeting, you'll get mileage. If you're called back Friday and Saturday, you get additional mileage. But, under no circumstances do you get mileage for two, three or four or five consecutive days. You only get the one trip. I don't know that it will be worth anything. But, it is my plan to proceed in the session of the legislature with concurrent resolution or whatever is necessary to see that the delegates to this convention receive the mileage which, in my opinion, they are due. Take, for example, a trip to New Orleans from the extreme northwestern part of the state, the delegate would have to travel a good many miles by car, catch a plane to New Orleans and catch it back; if he had a two-day meeting, his plane fare is roughly eighty dollars. There's no way for him to break even. He starts out operating at a loss. I think that giving the mileage would be a manner in which it would let every delegate serve with a reasonable degree of equality as far as economics is concerned. I only suggest that you keep this for record because it is my plan to introduce such legislation that will correct this, what I think is an inequity. Thank you.

7th Days Proceedings—January 19, 1973

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Womack.

If there are no serious objections inasmuch as the next order of business would be the caucuses of the various congressional districts, the Chair is going to suggest that we recess until 3:15. This will give the delegates time to eat and time to caucus. Now, insofar as the caucuses are concerned... well, you can caucus now; I'm just trying to determine where we're going to let you caucus. First District can meet up here in the dark corner on the right, I suppose. The Second District meets in the center, and the Third District, on the left; and the Third and the Fourth and the Fifth across in front down here; Sixth, Seventh can meet over on this side of the hall; and the Eighth over here. Now, you people in the various caucuses need to decide before 3:15 what you're going to do about your representation on the Committee on Committees and the Executive Committee. I would ask that all... would like to announce that all of the elected officers have been requested to assemble right down here. I think the news media want to take your pictures.

Mr. Kean, why do you rise, sir?

Motion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I think most of the congressional districts have pretty well got their business in order. I'd like to move that we recess for thirty minutes and come back and finish our business so everybody can go home.

Mr. Henry Is there any serious objection to a recess of thirty minutes?

Without objection, we'll stand at ease for thirty minutes.

Thank you, Mr. Kean.

Recess

[Appointments to Executive Committee and Committee on Committees, 1 Journal #8]

Announcements

Mr. Henry Is there any other business with the exception of announcements that should come before the convention at this time? In that event, proceed to announcements.

The Chair would like to announce that the Executive Committee will meet at 10:00 A.M. sharp Tuesday morning. Please be at the Speaker's office, and we will tell you where we are going to meet from there. We will probably meet in one of the committee rooms in the Capitol building unless you determine otherwise. We will begin our deliberations on two mornings of taking care of the business of the Executive Committee. The Committee on Committees will meet at 10:00 A.M. Wednesday morning, the same schedule, to meet at the Speaker's office for information as to where the committee will actually meet. That committee will probably be in for the balance of next week or until the work is completed.

I would like to announce that he will have each member or delegate provided within the next week or as quickly as we can get the Legislative Council to prepare a set of the rules as amended and adopted by the convention.

I would like to say that insofar as your preference sheets on the committees are concerned, if you prefer a procedural committee over a substantive committee, you should let us know, in the meantime, which is whether a substantive committee or a procedural committee is your first preference. I apologize for not making that announcement sooner.

Are there other announcements?

Then, Mr. Clerk, is the calendar clear?

The Chair now recognizes Mr. Womack for a motion.

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I now move that the convention recess until 4:00 P.M. Tuesday, the thirtieth day of January. You will be notified where the reconvening after the recess will be.

Mr. Henry The gentleman moves that the convention now recess until 4:00 on January 30.

Point of Information

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman, I might be out of order, but I was going to refer back to the Executive Committee's report and ask if it's possible that the committee could meet one hour later and accommodate those who have to come far from North Louisiana and make it a little bit more convenient for us-- that's 11:00.

Mr. Henry Mr. Fulco, that will be fine with the Chair, but I find when we don't start committee meetings until about 11:00, we get here and work for a few minutes and recess for too long for lunch and don't work enough in the afternoon.

Mr. Fulco Well, thank you so much and we'll forget about it; but, I wish we could give that consideration.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Fulco. We will talk about it at the Executive Committee, Mr. Fulco.

Point of Information

Mr. Dennis Would you suggest the agenda you anticipated at that time, and how long we will be here on the thirtieth of January?

Mr. Henry Mr. Dennis, it's hard to anticipate what the agenda might be at this time. But, inasmuch as that's the day... the last day of the orientation conference which is to be provided by the League of Women Voters, this would afford the convention the opportunity of taking care of any, perhaps necessary, final business prior to July.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Lowe Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just want to say that I know many of you are going home not aware of what the finances of this convention look like. I know that you will be getting questions from your constituents back at home. I want you to know that, as promised, I shall do everything to keep you well informed. I hope that working with the Executive Committee that I will be able to send you... we will be able to send you shortly enough information that will answer all of your questions and all of the questions that your constituents back home have.

ROLL CALL

[106 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Alexander Most holy and everlasting God, we come at this hour in the day to begin our deliberations again and as we come we pray that Your presence will go with us, guide us and help us. May whatever we do redound to Thine honor and glory. May our problems be solved in a way that will be consistent with Thy teachings. Thy love, Thy humility. Bless us, guide us and keep us both individually and collectively in the name of Jesus, we pray. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

Personal Privilege

Mrs. Brien This is just a little poem we maybe should plant deep in our hearts. Once there was a gardener. He decided that the world would be better if a beautiful garden were planted. A garden everyone would enjoy and share. This man was blessed with a warm, loving heart as well as a brilliant mind. He took a packet of unusual seeds one day, brightly marked on the packets the words faith, truth, honesty, integrity, but, the loveliest seed he planted was marked love. With his people, he chose a fertile plot of ground and, with tender care, prepared the soil for planting. With intense determination they planted the seed and with loving care they tended the garden. Soon with the water of life and the brilliant energy of the sun of belief, the plants came up and the garden grew and grew. The plants became bright in color and the heavenly scent permeated the entire world. Faith, truth, honesty and integrity flourished. More decided gardeners joined the lovely gardener. Seeds were taken to other acres of the nation and the fantastic gardens grew across the face of the land. The most enchanting flower in the garden was love and giving and receiving. The wonderful gardener who is now sharing a beautiful harvest should be you and you and you. Please stand. Let us pray. Dear God, our heavenly Father, please bless all of us with the quality of this gardener so with faith, truth, honesty and integrity will we complete a good constitution for the people of Louisiana. Give the people faith in us and in our work. We ask this in Your most beloved Son, Jesus Christ. Amen.

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

PETITIONS, MEMORIALS, AND COMMUNICATIONS

[Journal 78-79]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mrs. Miller and fellow delegates to the convention, I'm going to this morning ask for personal privilege or this afternoon which is something that I will not indulge in, I don't believe, too frequently during the efforts of this convention but, I wanted to take the opportunity just for a few minutes this morning to discuss with you some of my thoughts as we begin the second leg of the working of this constitutional convention. Many people have called our efforts here the most important political event which has taken place in Louisiana in the past half century and I think that there are very few people who would disagree with that statement. After we met here in January this past year to begin hammering out the rules wherein we could proceed, we spent the remaining six months of the year dissecting the old constitution and getting ready to prepare parts of a new constitutional document. The period of time which we spent in the last six months I believe has been a period of education and of research and of incite and of enlightenment for all of us. I think that it is pointed out to each of us the complexity of the problem with which we are faced and at the same time that solutions to complex problems are not always easily arrived at. The volume of work which we have undertaken has been staggering, as well as the hours of work which we have put in in committee work these past six months. To date, we have spent a total of 25,344 man hours--I guess I should say--person hours because there are ladies in the convention, but we spent a great deal of time trying to dissect, trying to pick apart the bones of the old constitution so that we could prepare and present sections and prepare articles for a new document to be submitted to our people. To assist you, and to execute your directives, and your desires, the staff of the convention has worked many long and many hard hours, a total I believe, of 31,628 hours often long into the night and long into the weekend as you yourselves have worked during the past six months. Thus, we have devoted approximately 57,000 working hours towards a new constitution for the people of this great state of ours. The results of our labors I hope are not entirely evidenced by the reams of paper which you have been getting and will be getting which constitutes proposals to the new convention. The real results I hope are much broader and are contained in the increased insight which you and I have gained and thanks to the excellent coverage of our labors by the news media that the people of the state of Louisiana have gained into the present constitution and our ideas of what should perhaps be in a new constitution, our concepts and the way they should be implemented and formulated. Since today our work schedule will no decrease. Likely the opposite is going to occur, but while our work schedule will not decrease, I think our work is going to have take on a new dimension beginning today because while much of the committee work still remains to be done soon our attitude is going to have to shift from that area of specialization and committee work which will be chosen to begin to looking at a constitutional convention. However, narrow our previous study and our previous thinking may have been, we must now and it must--our thinking must begin to now encompass an integrated concept of a unitary body of organic law; however equivocal our positions and our thoughts may have been before we have now got to start deciding and we have got to begin to act. However firm we have been prior today in our convictions we have got to realize that as of today we must begin convincing not ten and not twenty but 132 whatever our thoughts and whatever our actions beginning today we have got to start the direct effort to write a new constitution to propose to the people of this state of ours. While I don't want to sound excessively presumptuous or overly scornful, I would like to give you some of my thoughts and some of my ideas as to what we have got to do if we are to accomplish the effort which we set out to do. I am deeply concerned with the substantive issues that are going to be presented at this convention, but at the same time I am equally concerned with our thoughts and our attitudes during the existence of this convention. I hold firm to the belief that in all matters of human endeavor not only do the ends not justify the means, but moreover the means usually become the ends. So I am convinced that our attitudes, our approaches, our tenor and our mood during the coming six months will in effect surely become the proposed constitution. As I am able to formulate this constitution in an area or with an air of distrust for one another if we formulate it with a narrow self-serving important issues as the most important concern which we have in this convention then surely we are going to frame a narrow self-serving document which is distrustful of government by the people and which will in turn be distrusted and ultimately rejected by the people when it is submitted to them. We have worked so far in a spirit of independence and of freedom that specter of control which you and I feared for so long has not ever materialized during this convention. We have been independent, and we have free in our thinking--we have a right to take pride in the freedom of spirit attitude which we have adopted at this convention. I submit to you that no one, no group, no self interest is going to control our efforts. I suppose that I have never been associated with a group of people who were so often and so frequently committing themselves to being above politics and to shunning even the very appearance of any form of compromise. I expect no less of myself--partisan parochialism has no place in this convention. The constitution I believe must be a statement of principle and not a corruption of it. Unfortunately, the reverse of this conviction I don't believe has been sufficiently articulated because while intolerance and arrogance have no place in this constitution a little simple humanity and humility has a great deal of room I believe here. This constitution is not going to be exactly as 132 of us would have it to be anymore than it is going to be exactly like of 3.6 million people in the state of Louisiana would have it to be. Compromise and tolerance of the majority view of others I submit to you is not a sign of weakness or moral bankruptcy. I think it's the critical realization that makes human society functional and I think it's that element that separates the citizen from the hermit. If you think that compromise is a sign of mediocrity, I suggest you remember that that federalism under which we exist in the federal government now was the result of the greatest compromise that existed during that constitutional convention in Philadelphia in 1787. Recall that that was an entirely new form of government then, born out of need and born out of necessity and yet disliked by Mr. Hamilton's who wanted a unitary system of government and by Mr. Randolph's who wanted to maintain the form of confederation then in existence. I'm not much on reading the quotes of other people but if you'll allow me just a little more time, I would like to read you the quote of that 1787 long hair Ben Franklin when he signed the constitution that was adopted at that time. I don't think I do not entirely approve of this constitution at present but sir I'm not sure that I shall never approve of it. For having lived long, I have experienced many instances of being obliged, by better information or fuller consideration, to change opinions even on important subjects, which I once thought right, but found to be otherwise. These sentiments, sir, I agree to this constitution with all its faults, if they are such, because I think a general government necessary for us. I doubt, too, whether any other convention we may obtain might be able to make a better constitution; for, when you assemble a number of men, and I suppose women, to have the advantage of their joint wisdom, you inevitably assemble with these people all their prejudices, their passions, their errors of opinion, their local interests, and their selfish views. From such an assembly can a perfect production be expected? It therefore astonishes me, sir, to find this system approaching so near to perfection as it does; and I think it will astonish our enemies who are waiting with confidence to hear that our councils are confounded. Thus, thank sir, to this constitution because I expect no better and because I am not sure that it is not the best. The opinions I have had of its errors I sacrifice to the public good."

Our document, if it is going to be worthy at all, I submit to you will not be a cure-all for the ills of the state of Louisiana. If the document is worthy I think it will provide the people of this state with the mechanics if they have the industry and the desire to face up to the ills of society. I recall reading some months ago a report of the committee on the legislative powers and functions of this convention and I was rather amused because they were concerning themselves with the problem of legislative reapportionment. I think, frankly, did reject the proposal that was submitted but they came up with a solution for legislative reapportionment which was a three-phase 1973 solution. What this would have done if it had been adopted, would have provided ten separate constitutional time limitations on the legislature, the Supreme Court and the attorney general of this state. The legislative committee, I believe, in rejecting 1973 Cadillac, was correct, because our job is to draw a road map for the people of this state and not to draw a constitution. And, while we are formulating the road map for the people of the state of Louisiana, let's realize that it is not just a road map for us, but it is going to be a map, hopefully, for people for years to come. It's going to be carefully scrutinized and effectively expanded by judges and by lawyers and my scholars and by professors and yes, by even politicians and where there are loopholes the loopholes are going to be plugged and where there is indecision, decision will be had and where there is vagueness, there will be as many opinions as there are people who are affected by the vagueness and it will finally turn out that the Supreme Court will have written as much of this document as you and I have written.

Since I've already offended the legislative committee rather than speaking on another committee I'll stay with the same group Senator. Presently they are recommending to this body that the legislature be allowed to meet a number of legislative days and I quote "legislative days" and a longer calendar period than we have heretofore been allowed to meet. My question is this: is a Legislative Day? Is it a day when both Houses of the legislature meet, if we in fact decide again on a bicameral legislature? Is it a day when one house of the legislature is going to meet or is it a day when one committee or some of the committees of the legislature might meet? If you can't find a lawsuit or two in that confusion, I'll suggest to you there is a country lawyer from Jonesboro who'll believe I can.

I've suggested what our attitudes I think and what our approaches should be and that they will shape this constitution and perhaps you are interested and so forth what my attitude is and so far as the roll as chairman of this convention. You may recall, the back of my neck when I was talking about the rules of procedure for the convention I said "go ahead and get it out of your system, because once the rules are adopted they are going to be your rules and we are going to live by these rules." Well, that time has come. The rules have been adopted and while we have successfully managed to keep from being controlled from outside I think the time has come when we are going to have to start controlling ourselves within. We will adhere to the rules. The rules will be enforced and we will move along because we have a deadline that we are going to have to meet. You might recall at the same time that we adopted Mason's Manual of Legislative Procedures to guide us in areas where the rules are silent. In that connection I'd like to cite or state a quotation that is contained in Mason's Manual relative to rules and forms of procedure. "The great purpose of all rules and forms is to serve the will of the assembly rather than to restrain it; to facilitate and not to obstruct the expression of the deliberate sense." I conceive that my responsibility as entrusted by you to facilitate your deliberation of the deliberations of this convention. Equitable and impartial adherence to the rule I believe will insure us that the deliberate sense of this convention will not be obstructed; such is and such will be my goal. In a different line, let me say that I am going to be suggesting from time to time perhaps from day to day work schedules, periods of the government and facilitate approaches which will effect the workings of this convention. I am going to do this after I consult with you, your officers, your chairmen and the clerk of this convention. I'm going to do this so that I'll have the best advice I possibly can to make the recommendations which I think will be necessary to effect the goals of the convention. I further want to tell you that it is my desire to facilitate your individual and your collective views during the workings of the convention. I'll make myself available to you as far as it is humanly possible, to discuss with you and to meet with you relative to matters of your particular concern.

10th Days Proceedings—July 5, 1973

While I wish to assure you that my personal views in so far as substantive issues during the convention will never wane, my primary concern is going to be to assure on behalf of you, and on behalf of the people of the state of Louisiana that the deliberate sense of this convention will be expressed in a document worthy of the peoples' consideration in 1974. We must now proceed to write a new constitution. There's a great deal of work to do--so let's go to work. Thank you.

ROLL CALL

[15 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mrs. Warren Will each and everyone bow your heads and in your own way thank God for sparing us all to come back a second day and thank God for helping all of our people who have had tragedies in our state and across this land and pray for this convention and let us all pray for Father in heaven as we come we humbly beg of you to guide us and to keep us, keep us in unity and harmony as far as possible. Let us all disagree and respect the rights of one to disagree and let us stay in harmony. Bless the leaders, our executive board and all in the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

[J Journal 133]

Mr. Henry In as much as there has been a number of questions asked relative to the procedure of the convention, the proceedings, the processing of the resolutions and bills, I'll ask that our clerk take a few minutes today to explain to you the manner in which we will technically proceed in so far as rules or resolutions and proposals are concerned and so at this time David if you will, go ahead with your remarks to the delegates, please.

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, a number of people had asked me just procedurally how do I go about doing various things and what am I suppose to expect. As the first thing I had mentioned I'll try to keep it brief, but I do want to answer some of the questions at least that you'll apparently been asking the Chairman and me.

On Roll Call, opening quorum call is first to establish a quorum, however, the opening roll call will also indicate those delegates which are present in attendance during the plenary session. As a result, particularly because of the elevation that we are forced to work in here, if you do come a little bit late, when asked for you to check in with the journal clerk sits in my right, just let us know that you are here sometime during the day so you will be recorded and I think I've taken care of a couple of people that the journal [...] today when in fact they were just merely not here for opening roll call and were here before you adjourned yesterday.

As far as the procedure itself, when you are ready to introduce a committee proposal you can give that directly to me or to the committee clerks, the desk clerks, seated to my left—I think it might be appropriate since many of you may not know these people, some of you will know some of them, at least to introduce them to people to you. To my left is the person who will serve in essence as the hopper, the endorsement clerk and assistant clerk Mr. Ed Hardin; to his left is Mr. Gene Limar which we are very fortunate to have with us and these gentlemen will be, if you've got a bill whether its an hour or two before session or during session even if we are not in that order of business you have some proposals you want to introduce if you will bring the sufficient copies which the staff has probably prepared for you -- eight copies to introduce--hand it to those gentlemen and they'll take care of the procedural business and you won't have to worry about that. To my right, Mr. Wayne Hays from Ruston, Louisiana has been journal clerk for,

I don't know what 27 years Wayne, something like that, the House of Representatives will be the journal clerk for the convention. We are very pleased to have Mr. Sam Bonnette to his right who has also worked for the House for many years who will be our calendar clerk and to his right is Mr. Richard Broussard who will be their assistants during the convention.

I guess I should talk a few minutes about what you should expect--we will in a few moments be referring most of those matters introduced yesterday to some other committee. So it's the question emerged in the first committee today--a committee can take no action with respect to any proposal or resolution which has not as yet been referred to it even if you actually prepared that proposal yourself in your committee. It is conceivable, though I would certainly think unlikely, that this convention could vote to send any proposal to any other committee. As you know when you are ready for referrals, the chair will refer it to the appropriate committee of this convention under the rules. If any of you object to that ruling, for any reason you have the right to object and move that that proposal or that resolution be otherwise referred to some other committee. So it's the prerogative of this convention to decide where an instrument introduced in it is going to be referred. Hence it would be extremely inappropriate for any committee to expect that a resolution introduced today because it deals with rules will therefore go to rules and you can take action on it. You've got to wait until you physically have got that instrument in your hand by way of referral. As far as your committee meetings I might remind you that the committee meetings are required to be announced from the chair presently 24 hours ahead of time, together with an agenda to assist particularly the committee chairman. We have had prepared a set of forms [...] as the committee chairman I'll pass them out to make sure they are distributed to you which you can merely fill out Mr. Chairman. The Committee on _____ sends up the following notice that the committee on _____ will meet at a certain time and certain day in the place and please if you will allow me, I'll assign committee rooms and we'll try to utilize the committee rooms, we have available as much as possible in the least expensive to the convention and -- or Ed or some of the other desk members, can indicate to you--will try to keep you all basically meeting consistently after you get going good in the same committee room and respectfully submitted. Additionally, the rules require that this be posted on a bulletin board or some such, in a conspicuous place and we are having that prepared now and if you will just simply fill these out and turn them in at the desk when we come into session each day we'll procedurally take care of the fact that your committees' notices are posted and I'll make the announcement, read your notice that you prepared so that we will comply with the rules with respect to announcing your committee meetings. When you start asking questions that have come up--What is it that you're doing? Of course you still have the right for the first 60 days to formulate proposals or resolutions for introduction as a committee, in other words a committee resolution or proposal. However, I would think probably from now on most of your work will begin to concentrate on the bills that have been previously introduced. For example, the committees' reports today contain their recommendation to you with respect to three resolutions that were introduced yesterday. As a result of this kind of activity, the ball game changes a little bit. First of all, what you will be doing is not adopting something to be formulated in the future, your recommendation. You will move to report that instrument favorably, report it unfavorably, or you may choose, in your own wisdom, to offer amendments to it. In which case, if you subsequently vote to recommend it in essence favorably, you would report it with amendments.

Note that all of your action on anything introduced must be by way of amendment. When an instrument has been introduced and referred to your committee it is not in your hands other than with respect to a recommendation, you can't say--as a committee well, I don't like this let's change it and start marking up the bill. You do not have that prerogative as a committee. The convention has that prerogative. As a whole you may wish to recommend amendments. In which case, as this one came today, the convention as a whole will vote on whether they will accept those amendments. It's generally a rather proforma kinda process but nonetheless the gentlemen will move the adoption of the proposed committee amendments. It's the prerogative of you as a whole to decide whether it will amended as proposed by a committee.

Your report, as such, will not be adopted. The convention will take some action with respect to it if it's reported unfavorably. Certainly a motion would be on the floor--a typical motion to withdraw that instrument from the files of the convention and the convention in essence taking a disposition reflective of your action. If you report favorably it will be engrossed and then under our special rules referred to Style and Drafting unless it is a resolution in which case it would pass on straight to third reading. I think it's rather essential that you note the difference between the types of things that you will be reporting which are in part vary to a very great extent from what you've been doing heretofore in part. When you have completed it, and instructions have been prepared, your secretary will prepare a committee report on Prepared Forms. Your secretary will prepare for you on behalf of your committee a report which will indicate the instruments and what recommendation that you have taken with respect to them and are limited to the recommendations contained in the rules. You may remember that you have the right, if you wish, to a minority report which is a very brief thing which instead of Committee Resolution No. 4 reported favorably or 6 reported favorably it might be reported favorably with a minority report attached. The minority report might be that recommendation should be reported unfavorably. And so when the gentlemen moves to engross the measure and pass it to its third reading a substitute, if it was insisted on, could lie to withdraw that resolution from the files of the convention, if you choose to utilize that process. Normally the committee reports unless there is suspension of the rules, are to be read by Mr. Stovall's committee report, once for your information. The next day you will take action with respect to it. You will move to engross and pass or what not. I understand Mr. Stovall indicates, since he considers these measures rather important, he is going to ask for a rule suspension momentarily and for you to consider suspending the rules to consider adopting two of these resolutions at least at the present time today but it would take a rule suspension to do that. Normally, they would lie over. Tomorrow you would engross and pass on the next reading and then on the subsequent legislative day, whatever day that might be, they would be on the agenda for third reading and final passage. The only other thing that perhaps you may be interested in is when you are on final passage remember that, no matter how badly you thought the committee acted, any one of you has the right to prepare a floor amendment to that measure doing anything that you want to do to it. Remember that amendments must be in writing. You have your staff at the convention. There are three or four members of the staff to your left behind the petition which will prepare amendments for you. If it is a quick rush basis, Mrs. Duncan and several other members of the staff are located in offices I am sure you are aware of back up the hall in the Treaty Room. Certainly you would want to cooperate with them as much as possible. If you know today that you want to prepare an amendment for something that may not come up in a week, but you know exactly what you want to do, give your staff a break. Go talk to them. Say this is what I want to do and prepare it. Don't forget that the rules, unless you suspend them or change them, are going to require that every delegate has a copy of that, which means that you will have to have the staff make 132 copies of it. Don't worry about passing them out. If you go through the staff, they will prepare the copies and we'll have the Pages pass them out for you. In terms of time preparation some of you who have been in the legislature formerly are aware that you can prepare the bills in the last second, but don't forget you have got to give that xerox machine, or whatever it is, time to print 132 copies of it, so let that affect the time consideration you give to preparing a floor amendment. On proposals, as distinguished from resolutions, be aware that you will be debating those section by section. When we get perhaps the Bill of Rights Article or the Legislative Article the first thing you will consider is Section 1 and you will go section by section. All the limits on debate and all the requisite parliamentary motions will apply to that section. If someone moves the previous question on the entire subject matter and Section 1 is under discussion in essence what you will be moving is the previous question on Section 1 not on Section 1 through 18. I remember the Bill of Rights Committee telling me how many sections you have. I think right now it is around 16 or 18. All your motions, your limits on debate--fifteen minutes per delegate with the right for the author of it to close on the measure. All of these limitations will apply section by section. Thereafter proposals will again go back to Style and Drafting. They may propose further technical amendments to you for your consideration. Style and Drafting, as you are aware, like any other committee can only propose. No matter how good or bad the ideas, they all may only propose to you by way of amendment, and the convention as a whole must pass it. I think one of the most important things to realize is that the committee has no function other than to initiate legislation but with respect to legislation introduced they may only propose. It will be 132 of you assembled together here that will decide whether you will approve their amendments, whether you will take a favorable action towards their recommendation, but it is the convention that decides and not a committee. I hope that you touch on a few of the things that certainly I want you to know that the gentlemen on this stage, including myself, are here to serve you at any time with answering questions or anything else that you do have or that we can be of any kind of assistance to you with. Unless someone has something else, Mr. Chairman, that you want me to talk about.

Personal Privilege

Mrs. Warren Mr. Stagg has official rules and they are very easy and he has suggested to me that I ask Mr. Poynter to give me a copy so I can put them in a folder. I thought it would be good that every delegate would have a copy where they could turn it and flip to it at their convenience. The rules that I have are wearing out and coming apart. If it is in order I would like to ask, or is it necessary for me to make a motion, that each delegate would receive the official rules that they could put into a folder.

Mr. Henry I think that each delegate has already received the official rules, but we are going to reprint those rules in a form that will be easier to carry around than that, Mrs. Warren. In just a few days we will have the complete set of convention rules so that every delegate will have a better set to carry around. Thank you.

[Rules suspended to consider report from Committee on Rules, Credentials, and Ethics. Committee Resolution 4 adopted without a recorded vote.]

Mr. Poynter Delegate Resolution No. 23 by Mr. O'Neill et al. A resolution amending Rules 3 and 36 of the Standing Rules to provide greater independence of delegate voting. The resolution comes from the Committee on Rules, Credentials and Ethics, reported unfavorably.

Motion

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg moves that the resolution be withdrawn from the files of the house. Is there objection? Delegate De Blieux.

Substitute Motion

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, I would like to make a substitute motion that the resolution be passed to a third reading. This resolution has to do with the voting. The proposal is that the vote will not be disclosed until every member has voted on the matter to be taken up or voted on at that particular time. In other words you will push your button and then when everybody has voted then how the member have voted will be disclosed. I was not present at the Rules Committee, I got there a little bit late and was not present when this matter came up, but I understood there was some objection to it. I just feel like that if we could do this to where everybody will not know how the other people have voted until after the individual delegate has cast his vote, that we will have a little bit better perspective and we will not have sheep voting in this—that is following the leader. There will be an independent vote of every delegate as to how he feels at the moment on the particular question. I would therefore ask that you advance this matter so it can be brought up and argued out tomorrow. In the meantime I'm going to try to see a little bit to you if I can as to the information or how that we can fix the voting board to do this at a minimum of expense. I heard that the objection to it this morning was the cost of expense and time in changing. I don't feel that it's going to cost all that much. I think we can do it very easily and if necessary I believe there is enough of us delegates here that feel the same way I feel about it and if necessary that we might be willing to make a contribution toward that expense to do that. I just feel like we will have a much better constitution, as a result of that effort, rather than just voting like sheep because somebody else had voted that way. We see how the other people voted we want to be with the majority etc. So therefore as a substitute motion, Mr. Chairman, I move that the resolution be advanced for a third reading.

Further Discussion

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, members of the convention. Delegate Corne, Thistlewaite [Thistlewaite and myself are not here to obstruct the convention in any manner or form. Back when the lids were let out on the voting machines for this constitutional convention, we were unable to put in our words because we really didn't realize how things were being set up and this was to no one's fault. The Executive Committee decided this and although we could have been there we weren't. Because we didn't understand at the time the importance that we felt that this particular machine had and how we could make it more effective for the delegates. There have been several arguments raised, many of which I believe have no substance. People argue that you're having a secret ballot this way. Well, there's no secret ballot. All we want to do is put a curtain over the machine so that the chairmen operate and the votes will be exposed once they have all been put into the machine. The argument of expense -- it won't cost very much to do this. It's just simply a matter of procedure. We should have been aware at the time that they were doing this that we had a chance to change it but we really didn't, and we apologize for that. Let me say this. The editorials in this morning's Morning Advocate points up the difference of not having a voting machine in this manner, and the matter of individual conscience. I think this substitute motion would go a long way in furthering the individual's right to protect his vote and to not to be led. I think that in my opinion it also facilitates the delegates paying attention to what they are doing. Rather than looking up at the machine and seeing how the rest of the delegates have voted, each individual delegate will have to sit down and pay attention to what he is doing. I think that these are the favorable aspects of the motion and any arguments to the contrary are without substance. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, members of the convention. Probably a number of people will tell you that if you vote for this resolution you will be voting to say that we're not independent or that we can't vote for ourselves. I don't think that's true. I want to relate to you some experiences I've had in the legislature to demonstrate why this particular rule is needed--this rule that you will not be able to see any of the votes cast until the voting is completed. Last year in 1972 I was amazed at what I considered the keying off on the voting machine of certain members of the legislature after another member had voted. It seemed to me some members would watch how another member would vote and then vote in accord with the way he voted. I had a lot of suspicions that way and finally one day a vote came up where it pretty well confirmed it. What happened was on this particular proposal before the legislature, all the votes cast were green. Then suddenly one member decided all of a sudden that he had made a mistake and so he switched to red. Suddenly, about ten members switched their lights to red and these were about the ten members on the board. Apparently this person decided then that he had made a mistake so he switched back to green and all ten people switched to green. And then to top it off, he finally realized he was right in the first place and switched so he switched to red and all ten people switched back to red. That might indicate what we're talking about. There was an editorial in the Morning Advocate this morning pertaining to the subject and I want to read an excerpt from it because I think it's important. Here's what the Morning Advocate said about this proposal this morning. The decision is a situation in which the people in fact that the question never should have arisen. The tally should not be recorded until all votes are cast. The results of the reverse procedure were witnessed all too often at the East Baton Rouge Parish City Council meetings here in Baton Rouge and at the Parish School Board meetings before these bodied in voting machines. You could almost track the mental gymnastics of the Councilmen and school board members during the voting process as the bold ones who already had their minds made up said yea or nay and the faltering ones were calculating whether they would wind up on the winning side or not. The end result was, and I'm still quoting it, "the vote as it is reported still gives the feeling of each elected official. More often than not it reflected political ploy. Councilmen would privately admit that they were against this or that project but voted for it because they didn't want to be caught on the losing side. This is bad enough for a local government. But when decisions are made affecting a larger group it becomes intolerable. It would be completely unacceptable in the case of a constitutional convention, which will make decisions that could affect the future of every citizen of Louisiana. Each delegate must be required to vote his conscience without knowing in advance what the end result of the overall voting will be. In this manner will the public get a true performance from the delegates. We should demand of them in drafting a new constitution for the state of Louisiana." Another important reason we need this rule is that from time to time we will be voting on what will be considered routing matters. We will get to talking and we won't be really familiar with the vote that is coming up. So we might look up at the board and if we don't know what we're doing we'll vote all green or we will ask the person sitting next to us, "Is this anything? No, go on and vote for it." and he'll vote for it. Last year in the Louisiana House of Representatives we passed a ten million dollar tax like that--House Bill 616. There was not a nay vote on the board and then suddenly we realized what had occurred and we managed later on during the session to, through parliamentary devices, make sure that it was not an accident because we had not been watching our business as closely as we should. It is human nature sometimes, particularly when proceedings get long and dull, to let your mind wander and not always know what is up for a vote until you've cast your vote. We would not be casting an unknowing vote in that way. Find out more about the vote before we cast. I think that's what would be much more

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Intelligent. This can be done with a minimum of expense by installation of a curtain if an electronic device would be more than we would like to spend. It is important. I think that the decision we make on this will make a difference in some of the votes we cast. I think if we pass this resolution, it will enable us to do many instances, a more intelligent and informed vote. I urge you to give this resolution a favorable report.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, members of the committee I stand to oppose the motion by Senator De Bieux to bring this matter up for further discussion. Your Executive Committee has looked into this matter at the time they were going to purchase this voting machine. At that time I remember the discussion with the gentlemen who were making proposals, there were some three at the time, and we were trying to write specifications so that we could put this out on bids. We made some mistakes. I have already sat in the House of Representatives and for some reason or other pushed my button the wrong way. In instance, just made a simple mistake and it can happen to you on this same convention floor. If you need to sit down at your desk and look at your light and vote the way you want to. This proposal was referred to your committee. I have already sat down, I am told, by some 11-2 vote. Now if two committees looked at this proposal, have already studied it and decided it is not in the best interest of the committee as a whole, I ask that you would defeat Senator De Bieux's motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kilpatrick Mr. Henry, members of the constitutional convention, delegates, I stand to oppose this amendment. We started off with an open concept on this constitutional convention. We had open meetings throughout this great state of Louisiana invited our people here all over this state to come to our meetings to show them we didn't have anything to hide. Here we have a proposal or an amendment here and we are going to hide our vote up here. We are ashamed of the way are going to vote. We have been... it has been indicated here that some of these delegates here would not vote their conviction. We are all here, duly elected as a free and independent body and I don't think there is a man here or a woman here in this convention hall that would vote because somebody else voted a certain way. I haven't seen this happen heretofore, and I don't think that this amendment has the merit that Mr. De Bieux proposes that it should have here. Our theme song down here would be "Who's Behind the Closed Black Curtains" and this thing was proposed and passed. All the delegates are independent. We don't need to hide our vote here, and it doesn't matter how you vote. I just want this body to be free and independent and open and aboveboard. This has been turned down by the committee already by an 11-2 vote which Representative Alario pointed out to you. Now I stand to oppose this amendment and ask you to do likewise. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall I really think this is an issue that doesn't need much to be said about it. I want to agree with one of the proponents of this that the other side has no substance. There are some arguments on both sides when you are dealing with the human element and what the human may do, but I don't think there is any question that this convention will be better off. The decisions we come to will be better if we go ahead and let the board stand with the lights reflecting everyone's vote as it has already been installed. So, I am going to ask you to reject Senator De Bieux's proposal. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, I came here under the assumption that this convention was to modernize our present constitution, our system of government, and not take a backward step. With that thought in mind, I cannot help but think of our earliest law making body of court which was known as the Sanhedrin. Back in old biblical times I think it was composed of 72 members and they had an iron-clad rule that in voting on the enactment of any laws, that they had to start with the youngest member of the body and proceed on to the oldest member on the theory that by so doing, the younger members would not be influenced by the vote of the old veterans with more experienced members. I don't think we want to go back to any such system. I don't think we want to have any reflection on one delegate being influenced by how another delegate has voted. We are mature men and men here. Each have our own individual responsibility. I see no reason from changing the method or mode of voting that the legislature in this state and other states follow. I therefore ask that Senator De Bieux's amendment, proposal be rejected.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want to rise to oppose the substitute motion. I have all the respect in the world for the Advocate, the Morning Advocate. I think they have a right to express their views just like each and every one of us has. I feel that each individual member of this convention has the right to express his views on any motion that is before this convention. I don't... while I may differ with the individual, I certainly have respect for his rights to his views. I believe, though, that we are making a terrible mistake in particularly setting a tone for this convention at such an early date. I believe by adopting such a substitute motion we would perhaps create in the minds of the people the public an attitude of distress, an attitude of suspicion. I think that we are also creating by this motion or the purpose of this motion, a feeling of distress and disrespect for ourselves. I sincerely hope that as far as the public is concerned that they will realize that today we are demonstrating to them that we are honestly and conscientiously as well as sincerely trying to work to give the people of our state a good constitution. No doubt that is the purpose in the minds of every individual in this assembly today. Now, if we put a curtain over the names on the voting board, on the board, what will naturally be the attitude of a stranger in the state of Louisiana viewing that board? What will the people of Louisiana think? What is wrong with the delegates at this convention? Are they distrustful of each other? Are they suspicious of each other? If anyone wants to follow an example that's already been said by a vote on the board, that's that member's or that delegates' prerogative. If you happen to miss the point in a debate on a certain issue but you have confidence in a member in this convention, you could very easily and rightfully and justifiably so look upon that name and see how that person in whom you have this confidence voted and you will have the satisfaction of feeling that you have voted conscientiously, the way he voted. You saw how he voted so you voted accordingly. Now if you have any other motion and you want to vote for it, you will reason like somebody else voted, that is all your prerogative. Now on the other hand, who are you accountable to. You are not accountable to me. I don't care, but you are accountable to the people in your district. Naturally you are going to be conscientious about your vote. You are going to be sincere. You are going to be in this convention, you think it is in the interest of the people that you represent, and if I see Mr. Smith's name on that board voting yes and I failed to get the point or did not get the full benefit of the debate, I'm going to vote like Mr. Smith voted because I have respect and confidence in him. Therefore I feel that it is an advantage to the members here to have the open and lit board upon each issue. I feel that way about it and I hope you respect that fact because I respect your views. Thank you.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to Mr. De Bliieux's substitute motion to engross or pass the third reading. Let me call to your attention the singular circumstance that is proposed resolution. After the machine is closed it would still allow delegates to change their votes after the machine has been opened to where you could determine how everybody else voted. All you are doing is a delaying process to allow the switching after the ones that have voted and who have not accomplished the purpose of the resolution, and I would ask that you reject Mr. De Bliieux's motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. I've got a little misgiving about the wording. If you look on line 28, it says after the votes are displayed, the presiding officer shall immediately recognize persons desiring to change or record their votes before announcing the decision. I wonder how many times we are going to count and recount, go back, readjust before we announce. We are going to run a poll, then we are going to look and count and tally up and say well how are we getting along and I don't believe by the time we get to the vote against it, but if they need me, I'll vote for it. If I've ever seen a horse swapping deal when there wasn't any horse to swap, I think that's it. I want to comment on one thing. A few minutes ago a member said that on one particular bill in the legislature, one man changed, ten changed, that one changed back, people changed back, then one changed again, he receded then changed again. I went 15 years without missing a day of the sessions but I guess that was one of the days I missed that I didn't know about. I haven't seen that happen yet. I think sometimes these conditions are magnified. I see nothing wrong with that board. If you are not going to show the board, then let's save the money and have two boards, one for the machine and one to put it up there and get it back. In fact, the delegates on that side can't see anybody's name up there anyhow. I think I can find mine because I'm right down about the bottom, about where I belong. But I just can't imagine the idea of blanketing it out, let everybody vote, then opening it up and see how everybody voted, and then let's go back and go to following whoever our leader is. There's a lot of fields I'm not knowledgeable in and I readily admit it. The field of journalism is one of them. If something up here is affecting the field of journalism, I'm interested in John Thistlewaite's opinion. I'm interested in how he voted, and if that's a vote that I'm not knowledgeable about, knowledgeable about and I have seen occasions when most of the speakers were not too knowledgeable about it and the individual that probably had the broadest knowledge had no comments to make, it would be worth something to me to know how he felt about it and it would be worth something to me in case my mind wasn't made up to see how that individual voted. Some 10 or 12 years ago I was asked about voting for a particular bill 15-20 pages long and I told them I didn't know, let me see the bill. Let me find out a little about it. He handed me the bill, I looked at it and said I'll vote for it. He said now isn't that a [...] of a note. He looked at it one second, it's twenty pages long and you changed your mind. He said that figure up on it did make up my mind, because Ed Lancaster from Madison Parish was the lead author on it. His name never appeared on a bad bill. Not the years I knew him and that's a lot of years. So, it's worth something to me to see how delegates vote on issues that come up. There are going to be many issues here that many of you will have your mind set on. You could go either way. About like one of our school teachers at home, I'll [...] a very good friend of mine and when they integrated, they came by and asked a little boy about his teachers. He said "well I have one black one, I have one white one and I've got one that can go either way." In this particular case there's going to be a lot of these issues, where you as an individual can go either way because your knowledge is not there. There could be some people in here they could want to follow. I can think of any number of people in here that their position on it would make up my mind because they are knowledgeable in the field, so I'm certainly going to vote against it and urge you to take a second look at it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, delegates, I'm a member of the rules committee and at that time, I did not vote. I abstained. Since then, I would like to make one statement which should just about explain how I feel about it. Judge ye not, that ye be not judged for what beggars ye judge, ye shall be judged. I would not like to be judged by what somebody else did on the school board in Baton Rouge which is a great reflection on those people. I don't think any other delegate would like to be judged that way. So for that reason, I am opposed to this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. De Bliieux Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I just want to make a few observations in reply to some of the statements that have been made from the podium here. First thing I would like to say with reference to Delegate Alario's statement about voting in error, if you've made an error, you've got a chance to see it and make a correction. I think that's the way it works in the language that occurs on lines 28 and 29 of the proposed resolution and that I also might say in answer to Mr. Flory's question with reference to changing your vote. That is, this is not a blind vote in the sense of the word. It means you don't know how the other fellow has voted until after the vote has been recorded on the machine, it's not displayed and then if anybody wants to change his vote, he's got a right to do so. You don't have to look to see how somebody else has voted before you cast your vote. In other words, I think it will have the effect of making delegates pay a little more attention to what's going on. That might be good if you want to follow the lead of somebody else to see how he votes. I tell you, insofar as what Mr. Fulco said about wanting to see how Mr. Smith voted before he cast his vote, I don't believe I was sent to this convention to give somebody my proxy by theory, you might say. That is, I had to watch and see how somebody else voted before I could make up my mind how to vote. As far as I am concerned, I believe I've got enough of you already to know that actually I believe I can vote without having to see how somebody else votes on an issue, and it doesn't make any difference whether you've got a hundred and thirty green ones up there and I feel like it's bad, I'm going to put my red one there. But we all have our times in which we are influenced by what goes on around us and sometimes we don't want to be considered as being on the wrong side. Sometimes the issue may be a little bit close. Sometimes we will look at the voting machine and see that there are a few more red ones or a few more green ones and we will vote that way, when actually deep down in our hearts we feel that the opposite viewpoint would be the better position to take. I am going to help but feel like that when it's all over with that if we voted first and then found out how the other fellows voted afterwards that we would have a better constitution when we finished it up. I think we are going to have a good constitution whether you vote openly or whether you vote blindly on the machine. I don't do anything to do any detriment to the basic laws of the state of Louisiana but I do think we could make some improvements and I would venture to say that if this resolution fails that during the time of this convention and during the time of argument and during the time of debate there is not a single member here that during that particular time would not feel somewhat that he could have carried his point if everybody could have voted without knowing how the other fellow voted first. I just give that to you for what it is. I think that what Mr. Burns said, although he said it in opposition to the resolution, about the way that the Sanhedrin took the goat, that it had good merit to it. They did not want to be too much influenced by what they considered the older members, and there are people that have a tendency to look to see how they voted before we will make up our minds on the issue. It may be good, it may be bad, but I do think we ought to exercise our individual knowledge, our individual considerations, our individual consciences on these matters before casting our vote. Now, I can't help but think that Mr. Fulco's statement with reference to some stranger in here looking up there and not knowing how the people voted, he is going to be able to see it. He can sit out there in that audience and look at that board when the voting machine is opened, he is going to know how every delegate voted on this, so it is not a closed vote. It is just a vote that will be your vote, an independent vote, and not that of your neighbor or some other person which you might see and you want to take his judgment rather than what you know. Furthermore, it will keep somebody from roaming around and then after they see how the vote is going, to cast their vote rather than paying attention to what's going on. I just ask you that I think, without prolonging the issue because I think we are still going to come out all right regardless of how it goes, that we would do better if we could vote first and then find out how our other delegates voted than waiting to see how the delegates voted before we cast our own. That's the way our city council down here votes and they do fairly well. They push their machines and then after everybody has voted, then the vote is reflected upon the voting board. I know it can work, I know it has worked, and that's why I would like to see us consider it. And so I ask you in all good spirit and conscience, let's try it and let's see if we can't make some real progress and I believe those of you here who are opposed to it now, if we would do it, would feel like we have made a step in the right direction and ask you to go along with it. Thank you very much, Mr. Chairman.

INTRODUCTION OF PROPOSALS [I Journal 134]

[Rules Suspended to revert to Introduction of Resolutions.]

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS [I Journal 135]

RESOLUTIONS ON SECOND READING AND REFERRAL [I Journal 136]

[Rules suspended to Poynter Delegate Introduction No. 4.]

Explanation

Mr. Brown. Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, there are six living delegates to the 1921 constitution, six who still alive today and I thought it might be in order for this convention to recognize them, calling on their advice, if they have such advice, and sending the best wishes of this convention to them with the hopes that future (constitutional) conventions might also find a few of us still living and might want to reciprocate by doing the same thing for us. If there are no questions, I would ask for adoption of this resolution.

Questions

Mr. Wall. Senator Brown, I see that one of these delegates name is Dale and if I remember correctly that lovely wife of yours is named Dale. Now, any connection there?

Mr. Brown. I will be glad to explain that Representative Wall. You know, we all make sacrifices to come down to this convention and my wife's first name is Dale and named after her grandfather who happens to be my senior law partner. Now, I'm not home practicing law too much right now and I thought since I couldn't contribute too much to my business that maybe a little best wishes back home would suffice to carry on, to get me through the next six months. So, that's my explanation.

Mr. Wall. Delegate Brown, isn't there a little closer relationship than just senior law partner?

Mr. Brown. Like I say, it is my wife's grandfather, too, one of the six living delegates who are still here. I might also call your attention that former Governor Sam Jones is also one of the six living delegates. There are six who are still living out of, I don't recall how many there were back in that time but that's been some fifty-two years ago. I hope we have more than six of us still living when we bring up another constitutional convention whenever it comes about.

PROPOSALS ON SECOND READING AND REFERRAL [I Journal 134-136]

RESOLUTIONS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Committee Resolution No. 4 adopted from the calendar.]

Mr. Poynter. Committee Resolution No. 4, by Mr. Stovall; a resolution introduced by Mr. Stovall on behalf of Committee on Rules, Credentials and Ethics; a resolution relative to amending the standing rules of the convention to provide for regulation of lobbying before the constitutional convention. It comes from the committee on rules, credentials and ethics reported with amendments.

Committee Amendments

Mr. Poynter. The amendments read as follows, Delegate DeBlieux, on page 2, line 32, after the word "proposition" and before the word "nor" insert the words "nor any delegate." Yes sir, on page 2, line 32, after the word "proposition" and the semi-colon thereafter, and before the word "nor" insert the words "nor to any delegate". It excludes the delegates from application under the rule.

[Quorum Call: 12 delegates present and a quorum.]

Explanation

Mr. Stovall. The amendment which the rules committee approved and has reported favorably is simply this. The provisions of this rule shall not apply to any person who merely appears before a committee of the convention in support of or in opposition to a proposition nor to any public official acting in his official capacity nor to any delegate. In other words, the original rule which you have does not include the words "nor to any delegate". And the fact that the rules committee inserted these words means that a person can speak with you personally and seek to influence your vote concerning any matter relating to the convention and he is not affected by the rule of this resolution. It simply makes clear that individuals can speak to you as a delegate without coming under this rule which is before us. Senator Rayburn asked me just a moment ago if someone from Boalusa could come and talk to him and whether or not they would have to register and I said under the proposed amendment which has been approved, no, absolutely not.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

[Committee amendments adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, first of all, I would like to apologize that the printed resolution was not in your book. It was my understanding that it would be there, but possibly because of printing difficulties it was not included and that is the reason for the delay in its being placed on your desk. This resolution deals with the question of lobbyists registering and was originally presented before the convention at an earlier date. At that time it was felt that the resolution was not in proper form, that it could go again before the rules committee. The resolution was improved upon, was presented to the rules committee, and the resolution which presently is before you is the one which has been discussed rather thoroughly and is now before you for consideration. This lobbying resolution is patterned after the lobbying resolution which governs the House and Senate and we patterned it after that as closely as we could. Let me remind you that most legislative bodies have a rule similar to this provision. If you will turn to page 2, you will get the essence of the resolution which in effect says any person who engages himself for pay or for any consideration to influence matters before this convention, shall register with the clerk, shall file in writing under oath his name and address and the group that he represents. This file will be kept by the secretary of the convention. A list of these persons will be made available to the members of the convention. The persons who are registering as lobbyists will pay a ten dollar fee which shall be paid by the clerk and the costs of publishing the booklet and identification badge. Please note that the resolution does not apply to persons who merely appear before a committee of the convention or before a delegate of this convention or to a public official who is acting in keeping with his official capacity. Nor, does it apply to the newspaper and the media personnel. Please note on page 3 that persons who are registered according to this rule shall be issued an identification badge and shall wear it when engaged in the activity regulated by this rule. There is a mild penalty for persons who violate the rule. A hearing will be held if there is a violation and after a presentation of the facts before the convention and a decision by the committee, persons who violate the rule would then be subject to dismissal or inability to participate in the functions of this convention. In conclusion, let me say that it seems to me that this resolution serves two important purposes: Number one, it gives dignity and recognition to the lobbyists. Representative Womack said a moment ago that he is not an expert in many fields. He needs information from other sources. There will be lobbyists, persons who are specialists in different areas of information, which will be helpful and of value to many of us who are serving on this convention. This is a means of registering these people, of letting all of us know who they are, and if we feel the need of their expert information, we can turn to them for their help and their guidance. This I think is the first and most important purpose. Secondly, it gives to us some protection from abuses which some lobbyists might seek to perpetuate. This simply gives to us information concerning who they are and who they represent. I feel that this very simple resolution will be a service to the lobbyists to be sure, but it will be a protection to those of us who are members of the convention, and I encourage your favorable consideration.

Questions

Mr. Duval Reverend Stovall, so that myself and some of the other delegates can understand the basic intention of the Rules Committee in this proposal

...this resolution, I'd like to ask you a couple of questions. The first question is, on the second page under "C-1" do not you modify the word person as defined in the first page under "B", persons to whom applicable because, and "B", you say it's applicable to anyone who in any manner whatsoever directly or indirectly solicits, collects or receives money or anything of value to be used. I'm talking about lines 28 through 33 defining persons to whom applicable. You say, "to be used to aid in the passage or defeat of any proposition by the convention." Then you modify the definition, the definition of the definition of person under "C-1" because it only applies to persons who are compensated or receive pay. Therefore, under that modification, someone could receive a hundred thousand dollars not for his own use but merely for the use to spend for other reasons other than his own use and they would not have to register because of the modification of "B", of "C-1." Do you understand my question? Do you see a contradiction?

Mr. Stovall No, I don't, Mr. Duval.

Mr. Duval Could you tell me why? Alright. One other question.

If a group of...under this, if a group of, let's say, Jaycees from Terrebonne Parish wanted to come up here and they received a mileage compensation from their club, would that be under this provision? Would they have to register as lobbyists or advocates?

Mr. Stovall Yes.

Mr. Duval Thank you.

Mr. O'Neill Delegate Stovall, this question is more directed towards the chairman and the clerk of our convention in regard to the badge requirement. I'd like to know what kind of badge you could produce or the ten dollar fee and just tell us a little bit about these badges because if it's going to be anything, any major production or anything, I'd like to find out about it because I think it's kind of "Mickey Mouse" in a way. Could one of you give us some information on that?

Mr. Stovall Delegate O'Neill, as soon as the parliamentary procedure will permit, there will be an amendment and I would like for us to consider those amendments at the present time which I think will serve as an answer to the questions which you have raised.

Mr. O'Neill Thank you, Reverend Stovall.

Mr. Brown Reverend, in terms of the violations and the penalties thereto, do you think that we as delegates can list specific penalties, in other words staying away from the convention as a whole? In light of the fact that the bill that authorized this convention stated that all citizens shall have free access to this convention. Can we legislate what we are trying to do in terms of the violations?

Mr. Stovall Yes, I think that this convention would have the right to fulfill the penalty which is presented herein.

Mr. Brown Even though the bill setting this thing up says that you have free access to the convention, any person, any citizen can...

Well, Reverend, I definitely disagree with you. Let me ask you this. On page 3, this is not permissive legislation. This says that the convention shall instruct the Sergeant-of-Arms to deny. The penalties are set out and this convention has no say-so over it whatsoever. Don't you think we might give the convention a little bit more flexibility in giving them the permission to do this rather than ordering the convention to instruct these penalties? Do you think the "shall" should stay in there on page 3, line 32? Or do you think it's necessary that this resolution from this convention to definitely impose these penalties?

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Do you think that's necessary?

Mr. Stovall I think these are very moral penalties, Senator Brown. And I think that in order to have a lobbying resolution which has any meaning it needs to have a penalty and certainly this convention has the power to do what it deems necessary for the orderly procedure of the convention.

Mr. Brown Alright, one more question. On line 35, page 3. "This convention can order that any lobbyists cannot have any rapport or say any word or do anything with any individual delegate." As I read this, what this means on page 3, line 35, this convention could order anyone who is deemed to be a lobbyist, that they can't come talk to me. And as a consequence, I can't talk to them. What I'm saying is, if I am interested in some information, if I want some background information, if this penalty is imposed, I can't go talk to this lobbyist, he can't go talk to me by order of the convention. You think it's right for this convention to order, to put me in the situation that I can't converse with any lobbyist who comes under this provision?

Mr. Stovall Senator Brown, line 35 on page 3 refers to persons who might violate the earlier rules of this provision.

Mr. Brown I would agree with you. But it still lets the convention order that person not to have any liaison with me as an individual delegate, is that correct?

Mr. Stovall If he has acted against the rules of the convention, that would be the intent of this rule.

Mr. Brown Well, would you entertain an amendment to delete the words, "or delegates," so that I would have the right to talk to anybody I wanted to and get any information that I wanted to as a delegate. In other words, would you entertain letting me delete the words, "or delegate."

Mr. Stovall Senator Brown, earlier we added the words delegate to make it crystal clear that any individual can talk with you as an individual delegate without registering as a lobby. The reference to which you are making is on page 3, and that has to do with a lobbyist who has violated the rules of this provision. If you desire to make an amendment, that's your privilege concerning any matter relating to this if you so desire.

Point of Information

Mr. Brown In terms of an amendment, now, we have a rule that says that these amendments have to be given out to everyone. But if I understand it correctly, does that mean that...is the chair going to let us sit here for thirty minutes while I prepare an amendment to delete a word or what's the procedure in terms, I'm asking that an amendment be prepared right now, but I understand that it has to be sent upstairs, be Xeroxed, be...

Mr. Henry Delegate Brown, I think that you will have ample time to have your amendment prepared because we already have at least two sets of amendments and I understand that they might be controversial so I believe that you will have time to have your amendments prepared and circulated to the delegates.

Mr. Brown Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Nunez Reverend Stovall, rather than go to the lengthy procedure of registering them, giving them a badge and etc., I understand the House has a complete list of lobbyists, has a complete brochure on them, portfolio, whatever they do, and etc. Why don't we request the Speaker or the Clerk just to bring that list over here? I think there's a hundred and some odd of them and if anybody wants to know who's lobbying, I don't think they are going to be any different from those who lobby the legislature and there will probably be a lot less. Why don't we just request, and may I suggest to you, request the Speaker or the Clerk of the convention... the requests that the House furnish their list of lobbyists to the convention. Put it up here on the front so anybody who wants to look at it has the right to come look at it unless maybe you want some of the delegates to register as lobbyists. But I am talking about the regular lobbyists.

Mr. Stovall Senator Nunez, this Constitutional Convention is an independent group and these are rules provisioned to govern our work here together. Now I think that this is an appropriate thing for us to do as a Convention. What you all do in the Senate and in the House of Representatives is your business and...but this is a different set up. I'm certain that any of these will be the same persons, but it simply means that they will register here and provide the necessary information.

Mr. Nunez Reverend, I certainly didn't mean to infer that we adopt House... I don't think the Senate has that, but I just merely suggested since the data is available now, and it's probably sitting over there not being used, that we prevail upon the...the people who have it just to bring it forth and allow us to use it, rather than going through a lengthy procedure of having them pay a registration fee, getting them a badge and all these other things you have in here. Now I think we can do essentially what you want to do without going through the procedures by just prevailing upon existing, as we have in the past in this convention.

Mr. Stovall Thank you, Senator Nunez.

Mr. Roy Delegate Stovall, I'm like Delegate Brown, I'm a little concerned with the fact that it looks like the mandatory word, "shall," used in line 32 of page 3 makes it imperative that the Sergeant at Arms deny the...violate any regulated activities. Lines 27 through 30 seem to imply, though, that this would be only after the committee would make its recommendation with respect to any penalty. Therefore, it seems that it would be in order, or you should maybe allow an amendment to change the word "shall" to "may" of line 32, which would be consistent with what the committee would do. Am I correct in that?

Mr. Stovall Delegate Roy, you may prepare amendment with that effect, you may want to check with Senator Brown concerning it.

Mr. Roy Well suppose, let me ask you this. Suppose the committee does not recommend a penalty to be imposed, yet in lines 31 and 32 you have the mandatory language, "shall," but if you find the person was guilty of violating, that there must be an imposition of a penalty and the two don't seem to jing with me and all I'm trying to do is to make it the sense of this rule that the committee's recommendations be given out or and that would be mandatory. I mean the Sergeant-at-Arms would have no choice once the committee would so move. Isn't that right?

Mr. Stovall I would think so.

Mr. Roy And you still wouldn't allow "may" to be inserted?

Mr. Stovall Yes, I would if you would...you...

Mr. Henry The gentleman has exceeded his time.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments have been distributed in accordance with the rules of the convention. Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Stovall] on page 2 amending the original resolution. Amendment No. 1 on page 2, line 26 after the number, quote, "to delete the remainder of line 26 in its entirety and delete delete line 27 in its entirety, and beginning of line 28 delete the following, quote, "ing of the booklet and identification badges," end quote. I'm not sure what kind of copy that gentlemen... ladies and gentlemen have in front of you, that copy may have been retyped with committee amendments. It may not be the original in which case the lines would not coincide. Amendment No. 2, on page 3, delete lines 10 through 13 in their entirety.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Stagg If the delegates would please refer to that language beginning at the beginning of section 2 on page 2, on my copy it's lines 26, 27, and 28. It is the purpose of the amendment to eliminate those lines which require the paying of a fee and of the wearing of a badge.

On page 3, lines 10, 11, 12 and 13, require the issuance of an identification badge to be worn at all times when engaged in activities regulated by this rule and it is the purpose of the amendment to do away with the necessity of the paying of the fee but also the necessity of a lobbyist wearing... after we have been here... believe all of us will become swayed to those who are talking to you. If you wonder about someone there will be a book at the desk with the pictures and a resume of who they are and who they represent. I think the wearing of a badge simply by all lobbyists would be a demeaning thing to men who are professionals in the best sense of the word and from whom the members and delegates of this convention can possibly learn a great deal. If the badge provision is not removed, then I have a further suggestion to the delegates and to the Chairman of the convention that the badge be made in the shape of a small cow bell emblazoned "CC/73 Lobbyists," and that the clapper of that bell be made out of fresh garlic so you can see them night or day.

Question

Mr. Leithman Mr. Stagg, I agree with part of your... my original question was this that I thought the amendment was drawn incorrectly and that it removed the registration fee which I think is an excellent idea because we do have to take a bit of additional cost involved with the book and additional help to handle the registration and I certainly don't think any of the lobbyists would object to the ten dollar fee and I don't know Mr. Stovall's, Delegate Stovall's intent, but my question is that did you all the sponsors of the, of this resolution intend to remove the ten dollar fee, in fact?

Mr. Stagg We voted on this same amendment in committee this morning and that amendment failed in committee and the reason for the amendment being on the floor now is that I believe that the payment of the fee and the wearing of the badge can be dispensed with. A three ring notebook cost about one dollar and a half and the resumes can be required to be on a form furnished by the convention, three hole punched and all the lobbyist has got to furnish is a resume and a photograph, and I don't think it would require a ten dollar fee for that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette I would like to speak against the amendment for several reasons. First of all, we met in committee and discussed this particular issue... it was actually suggested by a couple of lobbyists that they do wear badges. One reason was they could get a little free extra advertisement because everybody would know who they were and you would see the name on there and you would see everything about them and it would help them out a little bit. Also, if any lobbyist is above board, he should be proud to say who he represents.

The second thing about wearing a badge and the reason it would be good, is because of the policing efforts. You can always tell who somebody is registered or not by the fact whether they are going to come up to you and talk to you... they do have a badge on at that particular time. If they don't, you have to assume that they are not registered.

The third thing is, and I think this is the purpose of all lobbyist registration, is that the delegates will know who they are talking to and whom they represent, and I think this is the main thing that any lobbyist registration goes to. If you don't know who you are talking to and who they represent, there is no point in having lobbyists registered at all. So if you are going to knock this out, you might as well vote against the entire lobbyist provision because it is totally meaningless once you knock out any wearing of badges or anything like this sort to identify the people.

There are also several other things that have been talked about being possibly amended, but I'll rest my remarks with those later on. But I definitely think if we are going to have any teeth in this at all, we definitely need to keep the provision about wearing some sort of identification.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren I'm rising to speak because I am asking the amendment... If you notice, I have my badge on, a delegate to this convention, and I'm not ashamed of it. I would like to see the lobbyists with badges on, not that I'm afraid of them, and I don't think anybody else in here is afraid of them. But it would be nice to know who you are speaking to without having to ask them, "Who are you?"... because many of them would like to speak to maybe me and they'd like to know who I am when they approach me. I think it is good. I attended the AFL-CIO Convention and I have at my house a badge that they pinned on me saying I was a guest. I saw people that were members of the AFL-CIO Convention and they had their badges on which helped me to identify them. I'm not worrying about what they are going to do to me or what I'm going to do to them. I'm going to say what I'm going to say, and I'm going to make up my mind regardless of what they say if I feel it's good, it's good. If I don't, it's not. So I would like to see a badge and I'd also like to see all the delegates with a badge on so when I approach them, I will be able to call them by their names.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Madam Chairman and members of the convention. I'm in favor of this amendment. I've been listening to these talks. The people that oppose this amendment when they talk about lobbyists, they sound like they are talking about people they distrust, people with sinister motives and the like. I cannot say about lobbyists in every state in the Union, but beginning in 1940, my first experience with lobbyist in Louisiana as a member of our legislature has been one of fine cooperation, furnishing information to educating members of the legislature. Let me tell you something. In 1940, there was no Public Affairs Research, there was no Governmental Bureau, there was no Legislative Council and the only way a member of the Louisiana Legislature learned about legislation was what he or she could dig out plus lobbyists. I don't want to say names, but you know the history of this and since have had fine, upright men and women lobbyists and I think to draw a distinction against them by saying they should be labeled is making fourth, fifth class citizens out of them and is ridicule. If they should have the badge on them, why shouldn't the newspaper man, why shouldn't everyone of you, why shouldn't anybody that asks for information and I'm mixed emotions as to whether at this stage, and I'm going to hear more, I'm going to vote for anything in this bill. We haven't had a Constitutional Convention in fifty one years and I want everybody in this state and from out of the state that has property here in Louisiana, or an interest or stock in a company and plenty of working minors have stock in a company and they've got to be represented by someone, whether it's a lobbyist or otherwise. And I want everybody to be heard from and I don't know about all these penalties, but I do know that no reflector should be drawn against the lobbyists. We couldn't have operated as well as we did in that legislature from 1940 and prior thereto up till we had a Legislative Council unless we had had lobbyists and always good lobbyists. Now I'm for this amendment and I hope you will be for it and if you... that's a good example of downgrading people that I've heard he already drew a stringer came in here and had listened to the prior talks, he couldn't have helped but feel a resentment of some of you against lobbyists.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Derbes Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in support of the original proposal, certainly in support of the tenor of the original proposal and also in support of the amendment. I'd like to call your attention to the fact that unless the amendment carries, that those who, your constituency and my constituency who come here and who merely have their expenses paid, will be required to wear a badge and to pay a ten dollar registration fee. I frankly don't think that's necessary. All I would like to see is disclosure. I think what if this resolution as amended accomplishes disclosure, provides an official record so that we know who we are dealing with when we deal with a lobbyist and for whom that lobbyist is working, I think that that's really all that is necessary.

Finally, I prepared an amendment to the penalties portion of the present resolution which will merely provide that upon majority vote of the Executive Committee, a person who violates these provisions may be denied access, I shouldn't say access, may be denied the opportunity to speak to any of the committees of this convention. That will supplant the present penalty provision. I frankly don't think that you can tell a person that he cannot speak to a delegate of this convention, whether he violates these provisions or not. I think that's an abridgement of the First Amendment of the United States Constitution and I don't think it's enforceable. We have a certain problem with enforcement, we have a certain problem with registration. Of course we're going to affect a certain small number of people that we would prefer not to affect because the only way we can get a representative registration of all persons whom we seek to identify is to pass a fairly broad provision. I think this provision is that type of provision. It merely identifies the agency relationship where somebody is working for someone else for compensation or for something of value in order to influence the product of this convention.

So I commend to your attention the original resolution. I believe that the amendment is well-founded and I support it as my amendment which will somewhat modify or substantially modify the penalty provisions is available for distribution. I think the entire body of the proposal as amended will be very acceptable and that we can all vote for it without fear of adversely affecting any of the little folk back home who merely want to speak to us personally or to our committees and who are not being remunerated in any way. So I thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Madam Chairman and delegates, I rise in support of the amendment and I'd like to elaborate on my reasons why. This convention has grown to great extent to involve the public of this state in the drafting of a new constitution and the ultimate ratification, thereof. They formed a co-operative committee to go all over this state and to hear the testimony of the citizens of this state in the drafting of the proposed constitution. And here we by resolution, amendment to the rules of the proposal to make it more difficult for them now to come before this convention and be heard when the action is to be finally taken by this convention. I have no fear whatsoever of the registration. I think it's perhaps wise that you require registration. But I don't think by registration you ought to prohibit the people from testifying or speaking to the delegates of this convention as to what their views are on the various issues to come before the convention.

Senator Rayburn, let me call your attention to one provision I think that you asked a question of someone about, someone from Bogalusa coming to discuss with you something coming before the convention. I suggest to you if their gasoline was paid for, if their meal was paid for, they would have to pay the ten dollars and have to have the badge on before they could testify or before they could speak to you about anything in the convention. Now, it does say that it doesn't cover those people who appear before, merely appear before a committee, but if they speak to you before that committee session starts, or if they speak to you after that committee session ends, then they have to pay the ten dollars and register.

And I suggest to you that the mere wearing of a badge and paying ten dollars is not going to tell us, or influence us, as to what we ought to do in this convention. I have no hesitancy whatsoever if someone wants to speak to me about an issue in this convention, asking them who they are? Who they represent? If I don't know. Then if I have questions as to whether or not they are telling me the truth, I don't have to listen to them if I don't want to, anyway.

Secondly, there is no way you can enforce what's proposed here. None whatsoever. I don't believe that this convention is a legislative body in that they have the right to penalize the citizens of this state when they appear before the convention. And I would ask that you support the amendment and adopt it, and if adopted, then proceed to clean up the rest of the resolution.

I yield any question, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Delegate Flory, being you left the main topic of the amendment, I want to ask you a question on something you said.

In referring to Senator Rayburn's Bogalusa friends coming up here, in my understanding the amendment which the convention adopted prior to this, added in line 32 on page 2, the words, "no delegates," which would eliminate what you said which would be here. In other words, a person could talk to you or a committee. They could talk to you before or after a committee meeting and not come under this rule. And you said that it wouldn't and maybe I misunderstood what you were saying. Could you clarify this?

Mr. Flory I believe that if he spoke to Senator Rayburn prior to the beginning of the meeting, that he would be covered. I think this exempts the delegates who are lobbyists, perhaps, from registration by the amendment put on in committee. I think that was the purpose of the amendment.

Mr. Bollinger Well, I beg to differ with you. But if that is your opinion, that is fine.

Mr. Flory To carry that a little farther, I don't... if you are going to require the lobbyists to register as I said in committee this morning, I think it might be wise if the delegates themselves, all of us, were required to wear a badge and who we represent. Might not be a bad idea.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Madam Chairman and fellow delegates, I don't know about you, but I have yet to be approached by any lobbyists and maybe they figured that they just don't need to for... or I don't understand what they would want. I am opposed. I am for the amendments. I don't believe that we should have to have the League of Women Voters and whatever other parties contact us and maybe take us out to dinner after registering as a lobbyist. After all, if he can influence us one way or the other under the technical language of this provision, they would have to.

I am opposed to having lobbyists be as Delegate Jack says, some type of second-class citizen. I think if we are going to do anything, we maybe ought to hood them instead of just making them wear badges something like these peregrine falcons. If you want to get ridiculous about the matter, maybe we could only have them wear their badges in places where if they were going to influence you, it would be under the influence of some alcoholic beverage. But that's not what lobbyists do. Lobbyists serve a very useful purpose. Anybody who is at this convention who is not going to bother to know who the lobbyists are, and whom they represent when it is required that they register, that is if you have to rely on some type of badge being presented to you to know what's going on, I think you are remiss in your duties to the Constitutional Convention as well as to you constituents.

One last thing I want to make obvious is that no lobbyist, if he is worth his salt is going to bother to lie to you. He may lie one time, but that is it because he's got a job to do and the only way he can do it is to be honest and above board. Anyone who would come to me and lead you for any reason, you know would never be able to come back to you. So these fellows are professionals, they have in my opinion, a very high standard and code of ethics, they are very intelligent, most of them, and they try to do a good job.

With all those reasons, I now move the previous question on the amendments.

[Previous Question ordered: 72-43. Amendment adopted: 91-21. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Point of Order

Mr. Fontenot I don't recall the exact time when the reading of the amendment was made this particular time, but right at the last vote, I would appreciate it, and I don't remember if the rules stated this or not, but at the very last vote, if you read it one more time, I think the rules provide for it, that I have heard the original proposal, then all these amendments and I agree that I don't remember what happened, but I think that the rules require that it be read the last time right before the final tally. Am I correct, Mr. Chairman?

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Henry I don't recall such a provision as that, Mr. Fontenot, but we will check that and usually as a matter of information to the convention we will do that, but we are trying to learn to preside and we probably made a mistake there, but if it caused any inconvenience, we will try to rectify that in the future. Thank you, sir.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman, and members of the convention, I don't know what other amendments are coming up, or what they may do, but I do want to go on record now as being opposed to the proposal or to the resolution. I think this is the wrong way in which to start the convention. I believe that there is no way that we can word such a resolution or a proposal, that would not hinder the ability of some portions, some people of this state from coming to this convention and voicing their opinions. If this proposal is designed to in any way either control or regulate the professional lobbyists, I think it is a waste of time. I agree that we need them here, and I do not want to cast any aspersions against any lobbying group in this state. I think that they all have a vital interest in this constitution, and they are going to do the best that they can to portray the image of the people they represent. The people that I am concerned about are the Boy Scout, as some of you know, and the League of Women Voters, other organizations throughout this state that may not be able to comply, or may not know what they have to do to comply with the rule that is proposed here. It may be that this rule may be lightened up a little and explained a little more with the amendments that are coming hereafter. However, I do not believe that this is the way in this convention. I do not believe that the people expect us to have it here. I believe that the people expect us to vote our own minds after we have heard our constituents. I believe that we should allow our constituents as much freedom here in the halls of this convention for the next six months, that we should allow them to speak in, that no matter what amendments are adopted, I urge you to please reject this resolution, and let's keep this a wide open convention. This is the first one in 52 years. Let us not shut the door to any citizen of this state or any group of citizens. Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I just wanted to ask and beg of you, to very sprightly use the motion for previous question and the motion to table. As all of you know by now, each one of those motions are not subject to debate and automatic cut off anybody else from being heard upon the motion. I know I have seen too many times, not necessarily in this convention, but in other meetings that I have been present, that a person will get up and he will have his say about the motion that is pending on the floor and as soon as he has got through saying his piece, then he immediately asks for the previous question. This is very unfair to the other members. I hope that no delegate will come to the mike and be very repetitious on a subject matter, particularly whenever he feels that his remarks will not be heard and he will not be able to change anybody's mind or opinion upon a matter that may be under discussion. But in all good grace, politeness and courtesy, let's don't try to cut off the other fellow from having his say about it because sometimes we may learn something that may change our opinion on an issue, and I would hope that this would be an open, complete convention to where that we can have a full and open discussion on all matters without trying to cut the other fellow off after we have had our say. For that particular reason, I just ask for fair play on all issues and as long as somebody wants to be heard, let's don't ask for the previous question. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am a little concerned about some of the language I read on page 3 of this resolution. Where it says that reports and statements under oath, "All reports and statements required under this rule shall be made under oath before an author authorized by law to administer oaths." I am just wondering if we have some club, some teacher's association, some Lyons Club, coon hunter's association or likewise to appear before us, are we going to have to put each and every one of them under oath before they make any statement or before they address any committee or address this convention. I would like for the author of the resolution to more or less elaborate on this when he does get recognized or when he closes, because I don't believe that you or I want to place everybody under oath and swear everybody in that might want to appear before our committee hearings, or might want to say something to some delegate. Maybe that is the way you want to do it. I see no objection to lobbyists registering. I am glad that we took the fee out and took the badge away, but I do. I am concerned over saying that persons who would like to appear before this convention or before our various committees would have to be placed under oath if they only made a report or made a statement. I don't think that is the proper procedure.

Further Discussion

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Mr. Kilpatrick Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, here again we have a resolution that comes before us that limits the environment of people in this convention. Some of my friends that live up there in the northern hills of Union Parish don't read these newspapers like a lot of you have down here. Now we have one little paper up there. It couldn't print all the things that go on up here. You could throw it out and read it from front to back before it hit the ground. Get these people down here that want to talk to us about the Severance Tax, and they want to talk to us about the Timber Tax. It is going to scare a lot of people to death to even come down here and talk to us. First thing you know, you are going to get that delegate in trouble and you are going to get us here and the people who are coming down here to talk to them in trouble. Now this thing is closing the doors in this hall here, to people who want to be heard, and people who need to be heard. It behooves us, as delegates, to listen to everyone who wants to come down here and make a statement to a delegate, to talk with us, to plead with us, to talk about something that is his own personal interest. It doesn't mean that a delegate is going to be able to talk with these people and listen to the views of the people from the deepest part of this state to the northern rolling hills from the west coast to the west part of our state over to the Mississippi River. I don't think this thing is correct, I don't think this resolution has any merit to it. We have gutted the bill, it is a bad, bad amendment on this thing. You all are going to ask somebody from the Jaycees come down here to talk to us, and you are going to put this man in a very embarrassing position. He is going to accept a little gasoline to come down here that is given to him by the Jaycee organization. That man is going to be in trouble when he gets here because he doesn't know to register and half of your delegates that come down here, are not going to go back home and tell these people what is going to happen here on this very resolution here, that we have here in front of us. I told Brother Stovall, I can't understand why we have to attack these good people who are down here who have been here for years, and put them in an embarrassing position to make them register, put them under oath and create a lot of hard problems on these people who need to talk to us. But this is a problem, it is that poor devil that comes down here that doesn't know about these rules and regulations that we are trying to impose upon these people. This is a bad resolution. I ask you to vote against it.

Amendment

Mr. Pointer Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Nunez], on page 4, line 5, insert the following, "G All lobbyists currently registered with the Clerk of the House, the President of the Senate, the Louisiana Legislature for the year 1973 shall not be required to reregister with the Clerk of the Constitutional Convention; such lobbyists shall be required to pay any fees imposed upon lobbyists under the rules.

Explanation

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this simply does what I was explaining to Mr. Stovall before. It allows us to go ahead and utilize the present registration. Why make the current statutes or the current resolution passed by the House of Representatives, provide, that all lobbyists shall register currently every year. They should have a current registration. They shall pay fees. If you are ever going over there, there is a complete statute, a complete book on what they do and how they, who they work for, and etc. So, why should we go through the expense, and it is an expense, by the way, and I will tell you later that the work that we have did as a subcommittee on printing, the printing of this convention is costing considerably. Nobody has looked into how much this would cost the convention, but I am sure it is going to cost a lot; and all I am trying to do with this resolution or this amendment is not to duplicate what you have already done, what the state has already done, and I ask you to adopt it just in case the resolution is adopted, if you have a lobbyists that is registered with the state, we utilize that material that he has already provided for the state. He is already registered. He is meeting state law, he meeting the requirements, why make him register again. The information is available to us, we just request it from the Chairman. I think it is a sensible thing to do. I don't think we should make 104 men register, or women, or children, or what have you, if, in fact, they already are registered to lobby in this state. I think this convention is part of the state and I just think we can utilize what we presently have, and if you do have an inkling to vote for the amendment, or for the resolution to make lobbyists register, this is just saving us a lot of time and it is saving a lot of money and it is saving lobbyists a lot of time.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Nunez, as I read the proposal as amended, the only thing that a lobbyist will be required to do is fill out a form. Do you agree?

Mr. Nunez Well that would be a form he wouldn't have to fill out. If you mean the amendments that were passed here where he doesn't have to wear a button or he doesn't have to wear identification or he doesn't pay a fee...

Mr. Derbes Right. Is that your understanding? That all he has to do is fill out a form under the proposal, as amended.

Mr. Nunez I don't know what the form would consist of. The form that they have, that the now have, is quite extensive. It would probably be a lot better to utilize that form and utilize the material that they have there than just... What do you mean fill out a form? His name and address?

Mr. Derbes Well, I assume you have read the proposal, and the proposal merely sets forth, I believe it uses the word, a resume, of his affiliation, of the compensation that he receives, his name and address.

Mr. Nunez Well, what do you consider a resume? The resume they have on them now is quite extensive and if you can utilize something that you already have, why require them to do it again. Why require lobbyists to go through, and why print it all up again if we have it already printed? You can just add additions to what you now have. Just trying to make it where this convention doesn't go into elaborate process of registering 104-105, I think there is in the state registered now, from my information, there are now that many registered and let's say that there are 15-20 that want to register. You would just add to the present situation. I see no reason why we shouldn't adopt something and utilize the present information.

Mr. Derbes I realize that you are trying to make it easier for the state, but I wonder if you are not also trying to make it a little too easy for the lobbyists, and I frankly think that if this constitutional convention is important, that it should be sufficiently important that each of the individual lobbyists will merely fill out a form which will be compiled and made a part of the existing records of this convention. Don't you agree?

Mr. Nunez No I don't, because I don't know what you set up in the form will be a complete resume or a resume. I don't know they are going to have in a resume. I do know what they now have, they are required to register, and my amendment just simply utilizes what you presently have in the form of lobby registration and allows them, allows the convention or allows whoever is going to handle it to go ahead and utilize that lobbyist who is currently registered under state law. See nothing wrong with it, I think it is a good amendment.

Mr. Derbes In case you, to clarify for the moment, it simply says, a resume including all details with respect to the names and addresses of the person, group, or persons, or organizations whose interest he represents including the kind of business in which each is engaged. The resume shall be filed with the clerk before engaging in the activities described in this rule. It would seem to me that if, that this convention being the most important political event in the history of this state in the last fifty years, should be sufficiently important that we could ask each individual lobbyist to fill out a form, and I frankly don't understand why you feel differently.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Mr. Nunez As I said before, gentlemen, and ladies of the convention, I believe that the lobbyists that are now registered should be allowed to submit their, or allow the clerk or the chairman to gather those registrations, they are currently registered under state law, under state statute on the provisions of the House and the Senate. Those registrations are valid registrations, they have to register every year. Let me tell you, they are quite extensive. You will probably get a lot more information than you get from this resume. I think they would be good registrations and I don't think you would get so many of them that are registered as lobbyists for the state that would register as lobbyists for the convention. As I have said before, if you are inclined to adopt this whole resolution where lobbyists have to register, I think you would be saving the convention some money and I think you would be speeding up the process where the registrations would probably be readily available to the convention a lot faster than going through the whole procedure of allowing... They even have pictures of them over there, you can see who you are talking to. I think that is a good idea. We might as well go all the way if we are going to allow them to register anyway.

Mr. Shannon Delegate Nunez, under your amendment here, would it not put back the fees upon the lobbyists which we, by prior amendment to this, we have eliminated for registration in the last sentence here?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Shannon, the amendment, as you know the amending procedure is about 45 minutes behind in the actual proceedings. The amendment was being drafted when the fee was still in. The way I read this, "Such lobbyists shall be required to pay any fee opposed upon lobbyists under the rules." Now if the rule doesn't oppose the fee on lobbyists, then they won't they won't be required to pay any. That would be my understanding of it.

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention, if there are no further questions then I would ask that you adopt this amendment, I think it is a good amendment, I think it is a time saving amendment, and more important, I think it is a money saving amendment. I think it is going to save this convention. I don't know how much it's going to take to compile and print the amount of material that the lobbyist would have. If it is already compiled, if it is already printed, if we already have a brochure on them, why not utilize it. Why not utilize what you presently have? So I ask you to adopt the amendment.

Mr. Casey Mr. Nunez, the question I have is just one of mechanics. Is the... First of all, under the law, the lobbyist information that must be kept by the House and by the Senate, apparently must be maintained in those chambers by the Clerk of the House, and I understand also the Secretary of the Senate rather than the President of the Senate. Under the law, my understanding is that the lobbyist information in the form must be kept in those legislative chambers. My appreciation of the lobbyist registration for this convention, I would think would require that that information be available to the delegates while we are in session, in this chamber. This just happens to be the chamber we are meeting in, instead of a legislative chamber. Do you think that if we adopted your amendment that therefore, that information pertaining to lobbyists would then not be available to the delegates because that information should be here where the delegates are meeting.

Mr. Nunez Representative Casey, if I thought that I wouldn't have introduced the resolution, or introduced the amendment. If I thought that very simply by registering with the state, they wouldn't have to register with the convention, my whole purpose of the resolution was to utilize the same information that is presently being utilized by the state, and I think it is public record and it is over there and I think that we can get that record just like we get all the others. I think just a simple request of the Clerk or the Chairman would provide those records for us, and if I felt that by passing this amendment it would deprive the convention, deprive the delegates of those that are preregistered, certainly I wouldn't introduce it.

Mr. Casey But Mr. Nunez, my problem is one of mechanics that the law requires that it be... those records be kept in the custody of the Clerk of the House and the Secretary of the Senate. The mechanics require that they be kept there and I do not believe, or do you agree, that these gentlemen could not release those documents to the custody of the convention and be brought here.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Casey, our appreciation of the problem is somewhat different. Certainly they are to be kept in the House chambers and the Senate chambers for the very reason you just mentioned here, for the House members and the Senate members or anybody else to go view them. They are public records, but there are also copies of those public records that could be kept over here, and that is my only point in the whole thing for the amendment. They must be kept over there because that is where they are being utilized.

I think it is a good amendment and I think it is going to save the convention a lot of time and a lot of expenses, so I ask you to adopt the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, as an individual, I see nothing wrong with Senator Nunez's amendment. I feel we should vote on it, enough of you like it, we'll keep it, if not, we will reject it. The only problem which I see is that there may be some persons who are registered as lobbyists in the House or Senate, who might not choose to be registered as lobbyists here in this convention. But other than that reservation, I certainly have no objections, provided those records there would be made available to us at the convention here.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Reverend Stovall, this is a... you are the sponsor of this resolution, are you not?

Mr. Stovall Mr. Tapper, I am Chairman of the Rules Committee. A resolution on lobbying was presented to this convention, soon after we convened, and it was referred to the Rules Committee and as Chairman of the Rules Committee I am returning this to us for consideration.

Mr. Tapper I understand that, and the reason I wanted to clear it up is before I ask this question. I wanted to make sure you were very familiar with the resolution. Is it not a fact... I think, did you know that there is a consensus of opinion of the delegates here that the best way of referring in the resolution, that the referral is to here in this particular chamber, and here at the convention. But isn't it a fact that this resolution is all inclusive and also includes lobbying back home in our particular districts where there is a meeting, let's say of the League of Women Voters, or the Kiwanis Club, or the Lions Club, or any other club. Isn't it a fact that this also applies at that stage of lobbying, not only here in Baton Rouge and in the convention hall. Isn't that a fact?

Mr. Stovall The point of order, Mr. Chairman, the thing that is before us now is Mr. Nunez's amendment and not the resolution, at the moment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Derbes I am reminded of the joke where a fellow said...where a fellow...I am reminded of the story where the fellow was telling a joke to a friend and after a good bit of time he said, well, to make a long story short, and his friend said, well, too late. Well I don't want to take up too much of your time, except I hate to see Mr. Nunez's proposal go up with opposition on discussion. I simply have the following feeling, that this convention is important enough that we should require, if we are going to require any registration, we should require individual lobbyists to fill out one simple form which this convention has promulgated. It is just as simple as that. I don't think we...I think probably as much money will be saved the state had Mr. Nunez's amendment not been proposed as will be saved the state if Mr. Nunez amendment is adopted. It is a simple matter of filling out a few forms, and nothing more. We will have a complete file with individual access by all the delegates. To me it is very simple. I would urge you to defeat the amendment. Had the original proposal not been amended to delete registration fees and delete badges, I think Mr. Nunez's proposal would indeed be well taken, but in fact the original proposal has been amended, and based on the amendment, I see no undue hardship involved in asking each individual lobbyist to fill out a form.

Question

Mr. J. Jackson On your point of concern of Senator Nunez's amendment, what happens in the case of a particular lobbyist is not registered with the House of Representatives and the Senate, do you know would we have access to that information here in the constitution?

Mr. Derbes I can only imagine what Mr. Nunez would say in response, and that is that the provisions would operate with respect to his registration here, but I believe your point is well taken.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the convention, ladies of the convention, certainly it is a...the question that was asked if a lobbyist is not registered, he would be required to register. It just says all lobbyists who are currently registered with the state. I thought I had a good, simple amendment, and let me tell you something about saving, saving money, saving money. I don't know what it is going to cost to compile this. I really don't. I don't think that any of us do. I do know, as the chairman of a Sub-Committee for Printing, that we started looking into the printing of that official journal, it cost the state or it cost this convention considerably, and after considerable negotiations, we got that cost cut down to one-third of its present cost. And if you look at that journal on your table, the official journal of this convention, it is presently being printed at about one-third it would have been printed had we not looked into it. I am not saying it is a lot of money, but there are costs involved, and I am just asking you to take advantage of an existing law that lobbyists shall register with the state. And as I explained to some of the delegates back there, it is quite a comprehensive registration. Much more so than I am sure you are going to ask of them. And if you look at the number of lobbyists registered in this state today, I am sure you will realize that there is not many left to register to this convention, and all you will be doing is transferring those records, and bringing them over here. And that is all and very simply I was trying to do. I'm not trying to make it easy for lobbyists, I'm not trying to keep lobbyists from registering, I'm not trying to keep lobbyists from paying a $10 fee, I just saw, Mr. Derbes, an opportunity to try to streamline something and to get it in a form that I think that the convention can live with. And that is what I did, and I hope you go along with it. It is a good amendment. It is a good amendment, we get the books, they are already registered and bring it over here, and tomorrow you can pay a $10 fee, who is registered and who isn't, if that is what you want to do. I ask you people who are going to vote against the amendment, or vote for it, regardless of which way, to adopt this amendment because it will save you a lot of time, it will save money, and it will streamline the operations of fooling with registered lobbyists that are already registered. I would say they are all registered. I would say all you'd have to do would be to get those records and bring them over here and say these are the registered lobbyists for the convention. And I would say that you would save yourself, myself, the convention some time and some money. That is all I am trying to do, gentlemen and ladies of...delegates, and I wish you would go along with the amendment. There is nothing sinister about it. I don't know if the lobbyists are for it or against it. I'm sure they are for it because they are registered already. Why should they have to register again. Why should you make them go through the same procedure again. Why should you go through the cost of doing it again. Think of this. It is a very simple amendment.

Questions

Mr. Triche Senator, under your amendment, if lobbyists registered with the legislature to represent corporation "A", and he is registered and lobbying for that group, but he gets another client and he comes before the convention to represent company "B", under your resolution he would not...under your amendment, he would not have to reregister and make that disclosure. Would he?

Mr. Nunez All lobbyists currently registered with the Clerk of the House and the President of the Senate shall not be required to reregister with the Clerk of the Constitutional Convention. I would say that yes, if a lobbyist is not registered as a lobbyist, as a lobbyist, that he would not have to register. Now what are you...let me ask you...let me elaborate on that a little bit. Suppose they register as lobbyist "A".

Mr. Triche You want to let me have a little of your closing time, Senator?

Mr. Nunez Yes, I will be glad to, Representative. If under the convention he registers a lobbyist "A" and company "B" comes before the convention to lobby for them, does he have to reregister for company "B"? I think a lobbyist is a lobbyist. I think once he registers, he is registered as a lobbyist. Let me tell you, you are not going to have any difficulty finding out who the lobbyists are around here. When you have something that affects a lobbyist, he is going to tell you. When you are voting against him, he is going to get in touch with you. When he wants to tell you something, he is going to let you know it, and it is going to be very simple. The fact that he is lobbying for an oil company when he should be lobbying for the teachers or he is lobbying for a chemical company when he should be lobbying for the Boy Scouts, I think it would be sort of superfluous. He is lobbying. Now, if you want him to register every category that he lobbys in, maybe we can amend it to that extent. You are not going to do it under this resolution that you adopted, from my understanding. But if he changes jobs or someone comes to him and says he must reregister or he must get another job, well he would have to reregister.

Mr. De Bileux Mr. Nunez, Mr. Triche has got me in a dilemma now.

Mr. Henry That wasn't hard.

Mr. De Blieux I agree with you on that. But I am just wondering now the way you all are talking about if he is register for group "A" or registered for group "B", does that mean that whenever you talk to one of these lobbyists you can't discuss anything with him except those groups that he is registered for?

Mr. Nunez Senator, if you trying to prohibit a Lobbyist or prohibit a delegate from listening, I don't quite understand your question. If you want me to prohibit a delegate from listening to a lobbyist, if he wants to talk about, about the, about the cost of rice in the rice fields of south Louisiana, and he just happens to mention that I also have an interest in the oil business, the I don't think... I don't see how you can effectively do that. I just think that once they register, they will be registered as lobbyists. Senator, you have seen the files over there, they are comprehensive and extensive files. I don't think you are going to be able to do any better, and I thought I had a real simple, good amendment that we could adopt and have the lobbyists registered already. So, I don't think some of the problems you are bring up... I think they are real problems, and maybe we ought to go back and change the law. I have thought about it, but I think if... when they register if they have to re-register we will just require them to re-register. All you are doing is getting that information. So, Mr. Chairman, if there are no further questions, I move the adoption of the amendment, please.

[Amendment rejected: 45-69. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 94 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Derbes], on page 3, delete lines 31 through 35 both inclusive in their entirety, and on page 4 delete lines 1 through 4 both inclusive in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Upon a majority vote, the Executive Committee shall deny to anyone who violates the provisions of the rule, the privilege of addressing any committee of this convention for a period of time to be established by the Executive Committee."

Explanation

Mr. Derbes Ladies and gentlemen, in order to make the entire proposal more acceptable to this convention, I felt that this amendment would be in order. It is my opinion, as an attorney, that we cannot tell a lobbyist or much less a convicted felon that he cannot speak to us individually. That is a right, I believe, protected under the constitution of the United States and under the constitution of the State of Louisiana. I do believe that we have the right to deny a person the privilege of addressing a committee of this convention, and, therefore, I modify the original proposal to simply state that the entire penalty for violation of these provisions shall be within the discretion of the Executive Committee and in its discretion the Executive Committee upon the finding of a violation, may deny an individual the right to address a committee of this convention for a time period to be established within the discretion of the Executive Committee. This has a great deal of flexibility, a great deal of discretion on the part of your Executive Committee. It is suggestive language rather than mandatory language, and I believe that this amendment will make the ultimate acceptance of the entire proposal more acceptable to the convention. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman, I rise to oppose this proposed amendment. I think the members of this convention can speak for themselves. This turns over to the Executive Committee the right to punish any violators and it gives an awful lot of authority. And it says that the Executive Committee can by majority vote make this punishment of depriving a lobbyist, or anyone else that comes under it, set such a period of time as they may think fit. They might make the period of time the whole length of the convention and as I recall to begin with, in Act 2 of 1972 when the legislature set up this convention, it provided that everybody was going to have access to these committee meetings and to talk to people. This thing just gets more confusing and complicated as we add each amendment. I hope you will vote down this floor amendment. The only reason I can be for this bill or proposal that is before us on registration is because I don't think the public would get to read the entire proposal and would figure there should be some regulation. Now I think the regulation is all right now that we have taken out about badges and leave it like it is. I have talked to lots of people on it: members that are delegates as well as others. When we mete out punishment that might deprive a person from appearing before a committee, I as a delegate who was elected by the people, and the same goes for those who are elected by the people, I think we should have a sayso and not just the Executive Committee. I want you to read this amendment closely. It has no limit on the penalty. It is a bad amendment and I hope you will vote against it.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment rejected: 11-70. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Mr. Flory to Committee Resolution No. 4 by Mr. Stovall. Amendment No. 1, on page 1, line 25, after the convention, insert a period and delete the remainder of the line and delete line 26 in its entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, what the amendment does, is on page 1 in the proposed resolution it says in the definition of proposition, it includes in that definition the following "and includes any other matter which possibly may become the subject of action by the convention." I propose to delete that language in that a person coming to the convention visiting, discussing theoretically some issue which possibly may be subject to the action of the convention. I ask you in all good judgment how could that person determine what could become subject to action by this convention. I see that it serves no useful purpose and would ask that you delete that language.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would like to request that we hear some discussion on this from the committee who heard this and the people who are responsible for drafting this resolution as to why the language was put in "and includes any other matters which may possibly become a subject of action by the convention." It seems to me that if the convention fails to adopt, as well as what the convention adopts, is a consideration for lobbyists, and something that they address themselves to. The lobbyists may be very successful by keeping certain proposals from being drafted and introduced in the convention. Their influence on the convention may be more substantial than that regarding the action of the convention to take some action. So it seems to me that the proposal as written makes sense and it ought to stand that way but I frankly prefer to hear from the people that drafted the resolution and see what is that is what they had in mind, because that is what I read into it and I think as originally drafted, Delegate Flory, it ought to stand that way.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, I just say in conclusion that if you want to require the registration of a person appearing before the convention, or discusses specific subjects, fine; but, to say theoretically that he is discussing something that may become a subject before this convention I think is too broad, I think where you define it as a proposal, resolution, amendments, even nomination of officers and other matters pending or proposed in the convention is broad enough and it should be left at that and not include something could possibly come before this and I would ask for the adoption of the amendments.

[Amendment adopted: 53-52. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, as I understand it on page 3, in Section F, the provision is still in there saying that for violation of this provision the Sargeant-at-arms may be instructed to prohibit any person from speaking with a delegate for any given period of time. I am going to vote against this entire resolution because I think it is useless, I think it serves no useful purpose at all. We have it in the legislature and it serves no useful purpose there. I don't think I accomplished one single thing there. I don't think it will serve any purpose here or accomplish anything here except to deceive the public to a certain extent into thinking that we are doing something good. If someone attempts to bribe someone, that is a violation of law. If they attempt to unduly influence anyone, that can be penalized by law. But, I'm not for things that are showcased as real accomplishments. The comment I want to make about this Section F is I just want to make it clear that as a delegate I reserve the right to speak to anyone at any time about anything that I choose, and if this convention should at any time say that a person can not speak to me, I will not abide by that. I will speak to anyone about anything at anytime that I choose. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Tapper Woody, in line with your statement and your position, don't you believe that even though this convention would have passed this resolution that any one of us could delegate or any citizen of this state could go into any court and have that court determine that this resolution is inoperative and that anyone can speak to any one of us and any one of us can speak to any citizen of this state. Don't you believe that this is just window dressing and that it will have no effect whatsoever if a citizen or a delegate goes to court and asks the court to allow them to speak to one another.

Mr. Jenkins I hope you are right from a legal standpoint. The danger I see is the fact that it may chill the right of people to speak to us and appear before us. I think legally it probably is enforceable, but it will certainly have that chilling effect and that is where it is dangerous when we want to have an open convention.

Point of Information

Mr. Weiss The delegate who introduced this, Rev. Stovall, said that he thought this would be inoperative. Some of the delegates here presenting their opinion say it would not be. Would Delegate Stovall please elaborate on it and can we get an opinion of some more authoritative nature.

Mr. Henry Delegate Stovall will have the opportunity to close after the previous question is ordered, Dr. Weiss, and at that time I am sure he will accept and answer any questions.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Senator Brown. Amendment No. 1, on page 3, line 32, after the word "convention" delete the remainder of the line and insert in lieu thereof the word "may." Amendment No. 2, on page 3, line 34, after the word "meeting" and before the word "convention", insert the word "or". Amendment No. 3, page 3, line 35, after the word session and before the words "for" delete the comma and delete the words "or delegate". Amendment No. 4, page 4, line 2, after the portion of the word "tor" and before the words "be denied" delete the word "shall" and insert "may". Amendment No. 5, page 4, line 2, after the word "meetings" delete the remainder of the line, at the beginning of line 3, delete the word "delegates" and insert in lieu thereof the following "and sessions".

Explanation

Mr. Brown Does everyone have a copy of the amendment? Have they been passed out? This does two things. First of all, on page 3, it makes the provision of penalties permanent and up to the convention. As it reads now as you will notice on page 3, line 31, the language is that for the first violation of the provisions of this rule, the convention shall instruct the Sargeant-at-arms and goes on to talk about what penalties may be levied. This merely changes the shall to may. It is up to us. It is up to the convention to decide if the violation is so severe that we shall impose some penalties. I would hate for the fact that someone happens to lose their badge one day and gets caught talking to one of us and one of the delegates complains about it, and before you know it the guy is thrown out of the convention for two weeks. I think that we as a convention certainly have some judgment to see that there are no abuses and so the discretionary factor of changing shall to may. Number two, the second thing it does is to delete the provision of the single delegate provision. If we so censure someone in line with what Mr. Jenkins says, it still allows you, as a delegate, to talk to anybody you want to. As the provision reads now, if a particular lobbyist was brought under this provision and penalties imposed, then you and I as delegates wouldn't be allowed to talk to him. He couldn't talk to us. If you had a particular question about something that delegate was interested in, you couldn't talk to him. It simply deletes the single delegate provision and allows you to talk to anybody you want to talk to as a delegate. Two things, permissive legislation allows you as a delegate to talk to anyone you want to. If there are no questions, I ask for adoption of this amendment.

[Previous question ordered.] Amendment adopted without objection.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the only thing in the world this convention can do is to control the internal activities of this convention. On the bottom of page 2 and the top of page 3, they have specifically exempted certain of the news media, the press and the publishers of periodicals. Television is not excluded. I wonder what would happen, and this is just another one of the bad bills that is drawn up, if the television news analyst comes up and in presenting a full day's session in one and one-half minutes, covering the highlights of the day they do it, they do it with a certain group of people thought was a very slanted approach. They are not registered, I would assume the next action would be to remove the cameras from the halls. Maybe not, I don't know. Then in another section here, it indicates that a lobbyist, if he does rea-ister, has the right to come before this convention and address it, which he doesn't have...I would think he would have. When I look at an issue of this kind, the first thing I want to know is what good it can do, and the second thing is to look at what harm it can do. If you stay in the political field and you don't look at politics realistically you are kidding yourself. You could carry that statement a good bit farther. You are almost an idiot. I don't know what registration could do towards changing anything in the world that would come before this convention. As for the right now, there is not a lot of opposition to a constitutional convention. Maybe nobody has commented on it any, no opposition has started yet. You can rest assured it is going to be there. I wonder what advantage we would have to come up with a set of rules that could exclude a layman back home from coming down with part of his expenses paid, and not being registered; you say well nobody has been excluded, they could be under this. If they were presenting a side that someone on that committee objected to I think the question would be raised and I think the individual delegate who didn't raise a question would not be representing the particular group that he was supposed to represent properly, if he didn't raise the question. So, if it became my job, as a delegate, to weigh what conceivable good can be accomplished by this and then weigh what conceivable bad could be accomplished by it. The bad angle is that it could be used by a fast talker at the last stages in television programs before the election on the adoption of this proposed constitution and I can tell you now, the only question that I can ask more questions that there is no answer for and can make more statements that you can't cover up, he can make more of them in one ten-minute television program than you can cover up in a month if you had every night, because the further you go the worse you'll get. And, don't kid yourself. I am here because I hope we can put together a movement that we can support and that we can get the public to adopt. I do believe that any document we support will have a certain amount of organized opposition. Beyond any question, it is going to have some organized opposition. There is a good bit of the work of the committees that is going to have organized opposition in the convention, because primarily the committees are on the protective side of the committee that they chose to be on. That is the reason they chose to be there. You would find in education, a vast majority of the educators wanted on the education committee. Same thing in agriculture. Naturally, when you come out with a proposal in the committee, it is primarily going to phase and favor that particular profession. Quite possibly, when the other delegates get through with it, they might not see it quite like the professionals in that field saw it. When you get ready to submit it to the people they are not going to see it quite like this. The individual at home that you are not going to hear about is going to be a whispering campaign and they will ask if you have been down to see the convention and he said why go, I'm not registered. I can't talk before them. Here are the rules that came out in the paper, and don't think they are not going to carry it. Putting this in the rules is just about like the buttons on a little male pig. They are there, but what good are they? You can put this in there. I just can't conceive of a good or anything it is going to contribute. I am not worried about the AFL-CIO, the Louisiana Retailers, they are already registered, they are going to register. They probably would be doing them a favor. They can walk around with their card. They can show where they are. The internal lobbyists who are here, that there is no reason for, well, I think a little more concerned about them. Quite possibly may be found joining some of them. You are not going to get at those. The professionals are here, they are willing to be registered. The only thing I can see that the adoption of this rule can do would be to give the opposition to our final document a little more to talk about. While I am here, I will cover one more thing. When we were here last,

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

I expressed an intent, I was very sincere in it, that I would put a resolution in the legislature authorizing the delegates to this convention. I still think it should have been done but the powers that be, including a unanimous vote of the Executive Committee when they were in session, they voted unanimously against it. Why, they everyone thought it was in line, nothing wrong with a person being paid, they felt that down the line it could be detrimental towards the final adoption of the work that we do here. I told Chairman Henry when that approach came up that I had no alternative other than to back up because if that is the straw that broke the camel's back, I would go to my grave regretting it and I feel that way about anything else that we do that the weighted side could do far more harm than the good it could do and certainly I see this rule as one of those. I went through a session of the legislature, a thirty day session, the last regular four-year term, of which we spent twenty-seven days adopting the rules for one particular member who didn't return to that house and we got rules adopted to suit him, he never did get to use them. We have been not going to change in a month and still haven't come up with a set of rules. A pretty good story could be written on that. What I am trying to say is that if we have something constructive, I think it would be well to consider it. I think it is well that we discuss these things, but I can see more harm in it than I can good.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Fellow Delegates and Chairman, I agree essentially with everything Delegate Jenkins said and with what Delegate Womack said, however, we have finally come to the point where we have got to make a decision on whether lobbyists will be registered. I am not afraid of going forward, we are going to have to go with some type of proposition. In deference to the concern of Woody and Delegate Womack, I really think that under Section E, page 3 of the resolution, there is adequate protection for those people that I am really concerned about, namely, the little citizen who comes down here and decides to talk in the legislature about his travel expenses; the League of Women Voters, the League on the Humanities, and what have you. I think it is implicit that only a delegate, under Section E, may file a formal charge pertaining to some improper conduct on the part of a person. I would think that using our discretion that we would not be worried about those people who come down and don't read newspapers and accidentally or intentionally talk to us about some things that are very close to them personally or professionally. Then the provision provides further, and especially since Delegate Brown's amendments, that the committee will hold a hearing and determine what, if any, penalty will be imposed. Now, I know that we can talk about the fact that we are giving the committee an opportunity or the fact that we have any such proposal with reference to lobbyists may end up where somebody's constitutional rights were being violated, however we have been talking about the lobbyists issue for a long time, the newspapers have picked it up, and I'm afraid that if the public feels that the legislature has deemed it in its wisdom to have a provision pertaining to lobbyists, that we have no alternative. Although, like I say philosophically I don't see the need for it and personally I would never be worried about. Going on with respect to the protection that the rule or the resolution does in fact provide, it says that the committee may make such recommendations as it may deem it to be imposed and then, under F, there is even an additional protective feature to be given to the little person who accidentally or intentionally does something that violates this rule. It says that the convention may on our own decide what we are going to do about it. For those reasons, the reasons that we finally come down to the issue of whether we should have a lobbyist provision or not, we have discussed it, we've got it as fully protective as possible. I urge you to vote for the resolution as a whole. Thank you.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette I definitely agree with the two previous speakers in one particularly thing. That is, I am against this resolution. I'll make it very short and sweet. The reason I am against this resolution is because it no longer does anything. It no longer accomplishes any purpose. It has been amended out of existence to do anything useful whatsoever, and that is why I am against it. I don't think we ought to make the people of Louisiana think that we are actually passing something that is going to regulate lobbying when it doesn't do anything at all in effect. That is why I am against it.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Shannon sends up amendments as follows: Amendment No. 1, page 2, line 5, immediately after the word "pay" delete the remainder of the line. Page 2, line 6, at the beginning of the line before the words "for the" strike out the words "any consideration".

Explanation

Mr. Shannon Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I am putting this in for the poor man. I, myself, am puzzled about what "for any consideration" can be construed as. Mr. Rayburn talked at one time before this convention about his coon hunters' club that he was in and they might give him some gasoline to come down here and lobby for the coon hunters. That is my interpretation for other considerations, so I would ask of you in this convention to accept this amendment. All it does is take out the words or for any consideration because that can cover a multitude of sins and it leaves it "for any person who shall engage himself for pay for the purpose of influencing legislation, and I urge your acceptance of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Delegate Shannon, I don't disagree with you, I am just curious about the amendment. It says immediately after the word "pay" delete the remainder of the line. Then all you would be deleting would be the words "or for".

Mr. Shannon Correct. Amendment No. 2, on line 6, at the beginning of the line, before the words "for the" strike out the words "any consideration".

Mr. Derbes I see. Thank you.

Mr. Alario Mr. Shannon, I am not in objection to your amendment. I am just wondering if it covers enough. On page 1, it says "persons to whom applicable" and your amendments do not apply to page 1. It says "the provisions of this rule shall apply to any person who by himself or through any agent or employer or other person in any manner whatsoever directly or indirectly solicits, collects or receives money or any other thing of value to be used principally..." I am wondering if your amendments would cover that particular section also.

Mr. Shannon Mr. Alario, I think it would but I am not sure legally.

Mr. Alario Of course, I guess you could come back with an amendment right after this and cover that section also and if your amendment passes, then I think we need to address ourselves to that area.

[Previous Question Answered. Amendment adopted: 85-14. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question Answered on the Resolution. Record votes divided.]

Closing

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I appreciate your patience in dealing with this resolution. I am grateful for your serious consideration. I think that in many ways you have improved the document. I think that possibly in others you have weakened it, but I feel that this resolution will serve a very useful purpose for the convention and in the state. I think it is clear to us that this resolution does not exclude anyone. Instead, it encourages persons throughout our state to express their views to us and also it lets persons who have expert knowledge of different subjects know that we will be open to them and we show them the courtesy of asking them to register and these names of the ones who register will be distributed to all members of this convention so that all of us will have this information of people who are interested in these different items. I think that Senators Tappes, Kilpatrick, Representatives Jenkins and Womack have not found the lobbying resolution under which they work in the Senate and the House limiting to them, and certainly it is no reason to assume that if we have a lobbying resolution here that it will limit our procedure and what we do. I think this resolution will protect the convention if there should be those who might misuse the lobbying privilege which is extended to them. It is not all that any of us might ask for but I think it will be a witness to our state that we are an open convention, we want to hear from different ones and at the same time we do want to have this form of registration. I encourage your affirmative approval of the resolution.

Questions

Mr. Stovall I am rather inclined to feel that we have discussed it adequately.

Mr. Duval Rev. Stovall, just wanted to point out --ask you a few questions and perhaps clear up something in mind. Alright, we have adopted some amendments here. One amendment says it has to be on a matter pending before the convention, therefore, you can lobby your eyeballs out to get something in that nobody's proposed. Don't you think that's rather inconsistent? That's one question.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Duval, when that amendment was before the convention you should have come at that time and had discussed it at length with whoever presented the amendment.

Mr. Duval I take it your answer is yes.

Mr. Stovall The matter with which we are dealing at this time is not those amendments.

Mr. Duval Yes sir, and finally another question, you say now you have to be paid, therefore, if you are not paid, you can spend millions of dollars around that you're not receiving and still not come under this provision. Is that correct also?

Mr. Stovall Mr. Duval, you are a distinguished attorney from Houma, Louisiana and I'm sure you are very capable of interpreting this matter.

Mr. Duval And finally sir, Don't you think that this convention should adopt things that make sense and are not so--so cluttered with inconsistencies as to set a very dangerous precedent by adopting something that is so non-sensical and full of nonsequiturs--don't you agree.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Duval, have you quit beating your wife?

Mr. Nunez Rev. Stovall, it just occurred to me that there are a number of--of delegates that are now registered as lobbyists. What would be their status under your resolution. They are not delegates, but they are currently lobbyist. They lobby for particular groups of people. What would be their status under this resolution. Would they have to register, or would they just be a delegate and be allowed to lobby for their particular interest of the particular group that they are registered to lobby for now.

11th Days Proceedings—July 6, 1973

Mr. Stovall Mr. Nunez, you too are a distinguished attorney and I think you could answer your own question. I think the answer is quite obvious that any member of this delegation is at liberty to speak with other delegates about matters of concern to him.

Mr. Nunez Thank you for the distinguishedness, but I'm not a distinguished attorney. I'll take the distinguish but leave the attorney off.

Mr. Henry They didn't make you an attorney one time--that was a Judge they were going to make you, wasn't it?

Mr. Nunez You make me a lot of things, Mr. Speaker. I got something we'll make you in a little while. I got a little present for you. Did you understand my question because there are a number of people here that do lobby--registered lobbyists and they will be delegates--they are delegates as elected delegates maybe some are appointed. I really don't know.

Mr. Stovall I understand your question Sen. Nunez, and I answered in the affirmative that these persons have the right to contact different delegates as they see fit.

ROLL CALL

[122 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. De Blieux Let us bow our heads. Our heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the privilege of gathering here, considering what our state needs are, developing them to our best ability. We ask that Thou wisdom come with us, that we do our jobs in the light that you would have us to do it to the best of our ability, our understanding and with Your help. We ask all of this in Jesus name. Amen.

INTRODUCTION OF RESOLUTIONS

[I Journal 141]

[Rules suspended to allow consideration of resolutions.]

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the purpose of this resolution is to change the requirement of the permanent rules which were adopted which called for the signatures of the majority of the committee presenting the report, and this resolution simply calls for the names of the majority of the members of the committee in order to present it before the convention. It changes the word signatures to names.

Questions

Mr. Alario Reverend Stovall could you tell me what the necessity for requiring delegates to sign was? As I understand it now our present procedure is that the committee would refer it out favorably or unfavorably. When they refer it out favorably it means there is a majority vote of the delegates. What is the necessity of having people sign it?

Mr. Stovall Mr. Alario, the permanent rules called for signatures and a majority of the rules committee felt that if that requirement was there that it would create difficulty in many cases of getting the majority of the signatures and they felt that this should be entered as a substitute.

Mr. Flory First, I'd like to know if copies of this resolution are available to the delegates, but directly to Reverend Stovall, did I understand him to say this him committee recommended this?

Mr. Stovall Yes, sir.

Mr. Flory At what meeting?

Mr. Stovall At the meeting which was held about two weeks ago at which you were not present, Mr. Flory.

Mr. Flory I never did get a copy of it. I think as a delegate I was supposed to have gotten a copy of what the committee recommendations were. Is that not true, Mr. Stovall?

Mr. Stovall That's true and the reason you did not get a copy was that the staff, in going through the minutes, somehow overlooked this particular resolution, and they did not send out copies of this particular resolution to all members of the Rules Committee. But the rule was properly processed through the committee at its regular meeting.

Mr. Brown Reverend Stovall, do I understand this is an amendment to a previous rule we adopted. Is that correct?

Mr. Stovall It's a change to a previous rule,

Senator Brown.

Mr. Brown So this isn't really an amendment. Has it been passed out to the delegates? I've got my rules but I don't have what you're trying to do here [...].

Mr. Stovall It has not been passed out. Actually I did not know that the Chairman was going to call for a Suspension of the Rules in order for us to deal with this matter today.

Mr. Henry It was my understanding that inasmuch as it was basically technical in nature, that it was the desire of the committee to suspend the rules and that under a Suspension of the Rules you suspend all the rules and there would be no requirement for placing it on your desk. Now if this is going to get to be a controversial issue, perhaps it should be referred back to the committee. But under a Suspension of the Rules, the placing it on your desk, now Mr. Thistlewaite pointing out that he's got a copy of it back there at his desk. But even if you did not have one, if the rules were suspended, then of course that rule would be suspended at the same time.

Mr. Stovall It's a very simple matter and I certainly feel that we could vote on it at the present time. It is simply a technical change. If there is any question about it, I certainly would be happy for it to be referred back to the committee but it seems to me that it's so simple, that it's merely a technical matter and it is something which I would feel that we could vote on at the present time and get out of the way.

[Resolution reread.]

Questions

Mr. Lambert Reverend Stovall, I'd like to ask you if this is not correct, correct me if I'm wrong, that we agreed in this convention that each delegate is to have a copy of whatever is being proposed prior to the time it's proposed? Is this a rule that we're going to follow from now or not?

Mr. Stovall This is a rule which we will follow, Senator Lambert. There was a motion for the Suspension of the Rules in order to deal with this technical amendment. Now if you feel strongly about this I think your motion would be to refer it to the Rules Committee.

Mr. Lambert Well I don't, my point is not whether or not I feel that strongly about it. My point is a precedent that are going to set. We are either going to have a copy on our desk or we're not because this is going to happen continuously and on and on and on and that's the point I'm concerned about. But I think it would be wise if you would not object, I would like to see you withdraw it and refer it back to the committee.

[Motion to refer resolution to committee on Rules, credentials and discipline adopted without objection.]

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

[I Journal 141]

[Motion to suspend rules to consider Committee Report.]

Point of Information

Miss Zervigon Well may I express a Personal Privilege feeling about this, or at least ask a question about what we are doing, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. Henry Well, let me explain what has taken place—As you know, last week when we adjourned, we had hoped that we would be able to begin our proceedings by considering the legislative articles which the legislative Committee has been dealing with for the last several months. It was the feeling of Senator Blair and the members of that committee that they were not sufficiently through with their work. That they had a few more changes that they wanted to make and consequently the feeling of Mr. Stagg and the members of the Executive Committee that perhaps they were in a better position to begin deliberating their work. The purpose of the Suspension of the Rules for considering the report at this time as to allow us to expedite the enrolling of the bill so that we can begin considering, tomorrow, if it is the wish of this body, to deliberate the article on the executive branch. Now if we don't suspend the rules today, then tomorrow we would consider the report, the report would lie over until tomorrow. Tomorrow we would consider the report, then we wouldn't be able to do anything tomorrow because the, unless we suspended the rules tomorrow. We need to adopt the technical or do whatever we are going to do with the technical amendments that were put on or suggested by the committees this morning so that the bill or the resolution can be properly enrolled over the night and placed on your desk so that we can, if you desire, begin deliberating this tomorrow. Now that's the purpose of the Suspension of the Rules.

12th Days Proceedings—July 11, 1973

Miss Zervinn And what would the procedure be tomorrow morning?

Mr. Henry The procedure tomorrow would begin to discuss the article on the executive branch of government.

[Motion to suspend rules adopted: 80-18.]

Point of Information

Mr. Jenkins A point of information, Mr. Chairman. I am a little bit concerned. I spent the whole weekend preparing for the legislative article and now I find out that they have to take it to the Executive Department tomorrow. I'm concerned. How do we know what to depend on when we get these general instructions about what we are going to discuss next?

Mr. Henry Well, Mr. Jenkins, in view of the circumstances I know that you must be frustrated, and I certainly share your frustration at this particular point. I think once we get into the workings of this convention and get through with all of the confusion that we are having to go through insofar as complying with the rules, that we will be able to anticipate what we are going to consider and when we are going to consider it, but we have got to get through with all of this business that we are going through with right now and get down to work and that's the direction that I hope we are beginning to move toward.

[Committee Report read.]

Mr. Henry Mr. Stagg, I think that you would do well to come explain the committee's amendments.

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman and delegates of the convention, at its meeting this morning, the Committee on the Executive Department considered Committee Proposal No. 4, which you will find in your binder on your desk, and I would sincerely request that each of you now refer to the printed version of the bill CC1054, Committee Proposal No. 4.

All of the amendments that we took up this morning were in the nature of technical amendments. These amendments will be printed into the committee proposal tonight and a clean copy containing these amendments will be at your desk in the morning. We did not, we did not at our meeting today, complete consideration of the last three pages of our report and the Committee on the Executive Department is meeting at 9 o'clock in the morning for the purpose of the last three pages of our report.

Amendment No. 1 on page 1, line 14 in order to be stylistically correct, the word department was changed [...]

Point of Order

Mr. Perez I know that we are going very far afield in these matters when the delegates' rules strictly provide that we are to be provided with a copy of the amendments on our desk before we move. I did not rise earlier, but in my judgment we are beginning to steamroll something which should not be steamrolled. This is a matter which should have our serious deliberation. We came here prepared to go into the legislative matter, now we are being given the matter on the Executive Department, now we are being told that we are going to have an amendment without us even seeing the amendments and we are told they are technical and my point of order is that I call upon the Chairman or the party proposing the amendments to provide us with those amendments before we proceed. To put them on our desk.

Mr. Henry Mr. Perez, the rules provide that in case of floor amendments, the delegates are required to have copies of the floor amendments placed on their desk. The amendments which Mr. Stagg are explaining now are amendments recommended by the committee. There is no rule that those amendments be placed on the desk of the members. The amendments are, they are all and completely technical in nature, and we can go ahead and let them lie over and we can have them printed and we can put them on your desk tomorrow, if that's what the delegates want. It makes no difference to me. It makes no difference to me at all, but I think it's rather foolish for us to come here today and work about five more minutes so that we can come in tomorrow and work about five more minutes and then go home. Now, we are complying with the rules after the rules were suspended to advance the committee report, so that we could consider that. We are complying strictly with the rules at this point, Mr. Perez.

Mr. Perez I ask what rule it is that you refer to that says [...]

Mr. Henry It is the absence of the rule as a matter of fact. There is no rule that committee amendments must be placed on members' desks.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Blair Mr. Chairman, we could have done the same thing, but we chose to wait and get all of our amendments, get them printed and all so everyone would see what we have decided on, and my point is this, I think we would start this convention much, much better if we had these things before us and it would only take one day to do it. We recessed in our committee at the present time to go back and consider other amendments, but when we come with ours on the floor, we want you to see everything that's in it.

Point of Information

Mr. Flory Wouldn't it be advisable, even in the absence of a rule to take the amendments that have been reported by the committee, recess for five minutes to allow for the xeroxing of those amendments so that each delegate could have a copy to follow those amendments along with the printed bill to be sure that they are only technical in nature.

Mr. Henry Mr. Flory, I personally think that your point is well taken. Inasmuch as the members' desk, and of course the bill, the amendments have not been adopted and the bill certainly hasn't been enrolled, so if there is no objection, we will take a 20 minute recess and I will ask the Clerk to xerox these committee amendments so that the members might have them on their desk.

Recess

[Lullam Call: 108 members present and 1498 present.]

Notice

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, inasmuch as the Committee on the Executive Department was not able to get to the provisions in its hearing this morning on the subjects of Oual Office Holding, Reorganization and Impachments and, inasmuch as if this bill is on the floor today for amendment it is out of the hands of the committee under the rules and it is on behalf of the Committee on the Executive Department that I ask the convention and I so move that the bill on the Executive Department be recommitted to the Committee for further action.

Mr. Henry Now, in that connection inasmuch as there has been some concern and I think, rightfully so, the fact that many of the delegates spent their time in the last few days studying the article on Legislative Powers and Procedure that perhaps we would do well to take that article up first. Therefore, if this motion passes what will be suggested to you by me, is that the Legislative Committee which plans to meet upon adjournment this afternoon meet this afternoon into the night and tomorrow to bring to us its committee report tomorrow afternoon. That committee at that time will ask you, although you will be supplied with a copy on your desk of their amendments, to suspend the rules in order that we might advance the article and begin considering it on Friday morning. This will give us a full day of committee hearings for all committees tomorrow. It will not cause us to lose any time insofar as the full convention is concerned because we can begin meeting early on Friday morning. And that's the purpose and the intent I think of Mr. Stagg's motion.

[Motion to recommit adopted without objection.]

Point of Information

Mr. Lambert I would like to know and maybe I should know, but I don't what are the rules regulating the dissemination of various materials to the desks of each delegate. I have about four or five things that have been dropped on my desk recently—who authorizes I'd just like to know.

Mr. Henry Senator there's no rule authorizing it nor is there a rule prohibiting it to my knowledge.

Mr. Lambert In other words, anyone can put anything on the floor--

Mr. Henry That might be something worthy of the consideration of the Committee on Rules--

Mr. Lambert It concerns me a little bit because I just would like to know who put it there. You know if--cause I don't know it confuses me somewhat--I'd just like to know if it's going to be passed out maybe--its further

Mr. Henry And apparently xeroxed at the state's cost.

Mr. Lambert Well, that's what I'd like to know. I mean I don't know who handed--

Mr. Henry I have [...] inquiry into the same question about the same matter and going to discuss it with Delegate Stovall the possibility of some action taken along those lines.

Mr. Lambert Thank you.

PROPOSALS ON SECOND READING AND REFERRAL

[1 J. Journal 143]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Newton Mr. Chairman, I am very much concerned about these things that are being passed out. If these things are being printed at the constitutional convention's expense I think we've got about a hundred dollars worth of this stuff passed out already. Considering the printing cost and the time of these girls to do it and come around here and pass it around and I strongly recommend that the Rules Committee get together and put a stop to it.

Mr. Henry Delegate Stovall has just advised me that the Rules Committee is going to take this under consideration immediately.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, I'd just like to make the point that I did ask the page who she worked for and she said she worked for us and I asked her where this material was printed and she says in our office, so I don't know maybe that's all we've got to do.

Mr. Henry If it was printed, it was printed at the request of some delegate. I agree with you that it is quite expensive and quite unnecessary, but again, there is nothing to prevent it--nothing that approves of it and Mr. Stovall is going to make some recommendation here I think just momentarily.

Motion

Mr. Stovall Members of the convention I make a motion that the staff be enjoined to abstain from printing or distributing this material until the Rules Committee can act on it and give the staff and the convention some guidance concerning the matter.

Questions

Mr. Brown Does this motion mean--Mr. Stovall--Reverend--any material? Like if I've got something that I happen to have printed back home can I have it passed out--cause I want to do so.

Mr. Stovall This would restrict the passing out of material until the Rules Committee can act upon the matter.

Mr. Brown Any material? [...] Rev. why can't you limit this to this material--material printed on the machines here. I think that's the point--everyone is concerned about isn't it?

Mr. Stovall This would exclude materials which tends to propagandize it would not include official documents which need to be distributed to the delegates.

Mr. Brown I was going to say anything--what if I want to send something out here I think you all are going to meet pretty quick but--can't we limit it to what is printed on the machine of the convention.

Mr. Chehardy I want to particularly object to all this material of the Times Picayune being photographed and distributed around.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Stovall, your motion goes to an excess as usual. I would suggest that perhaps our staff be required simply to put the name of the delegate who asked that such printed material be passed out.

Now I had an editorial passed out the other day which I thought was germane to the discussion, and I'm not ashamed to say that I had it passed out. So, perhaps instructions to the staff that the delegates name be required on all material passed out would be more in keeping with what this convention feels like doing.

Mr. Stovall Mr. O'Neill, the motion is that the staff be restricted on matters of this kind until the Rules Committee can act accordingly.

Point of Information

12th Days Proceedings—July 11, 1973

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, I just rise as a point of information to ask a question to Reverend Stovall in the purpose of his motion. I think he'd intend to prohibit the distribution of this kind of material, but I certainly don't want him to preclude the staff from xeroxing copies of proposals or things that might be proposed by a delegate or something to that effect. I think we could take care of this without all this hullabaloo between now and tomorrow.

Mr. Henry I think your point is well taken and I think we can instruct the xerox people on the manner in which it could be taken care of until such time as the Rules Committee adopted any rule it needed to adopt, but we've got the motion before us, and Senator Rayburn, you are recognized.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I don't know if you know how costly printing is or not. We have been told in the Legislature that a simple resolution, one page long, costs approximately three hundred dollars. Now I certainly want every delegate to have all the material he or she might want printed or xeroxed pertaining to some subject matter that they might be interested in. But I don't think we can afford to let anybody come in here and print anything they want to and have the pages distributed on our desk and have the staff to take the time of producing it for them, and I think the motion is most timely and I think the Rules Committee should adopt some procedure as to how this will be handled in the past because this can be real expensive. And when they go to tallying up how much we cost for being down here, I don't want none of this by my name.

Question

Mr. Burns Mr. Rayburn, under the authority supposedly just because you are a delegate as Mr. O'Neill suggested just now, do you think that carries with it the right for a delegate to bring here and have articles from newspapers reproduced and spread over the desk of the delegates?

Mr. Rayburn Well, Mr. Burns, I'm a member of the old school and I guess it might be right with some of these good government guys but we can't do this in the legislature and get by with it. Now this might be a good government move. I don't know. But it's one I've never enjoyed in twenty-four years in public office.

Further Discussion

Mr. Landrum Mr. Chairman, I fail to see what is so obnoxious about the editorials from throughout the state. I think it should be rather helpful to delegates more than detrimental. Certainly it may be costly. But after all, we are supposed to be doing a job here and all the information we can get our hands on would be helpful. And I certainly welcome these editorials.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot I like editorials, also. But I don't like editorials to be put on our desk at the state's expense. I'm in favor that this motion--I think we ought to get on and let the Rules Committee come up with a suggestion. I therefore move the previous question.

[Previous question ordered: 73-17, Motion adj. ptd.: 105-15.]

Point of Information

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman, I just wondered if procedure that we are following is maybe not going to waste a lot of our time. As I understand it, each delegate would have an opportunity to offer any proposal as a floor amendment. If we take these proposals and refer them to a committee hearing, even if their committee rejects them, that delegate must still have the opportunity to present that proposal as a floor amendment and I just wonder if we are not duplicating some of our efforts and maybe save a little time if we have the Rules Committee consider dispensing of the hearing of these proposals in committee and hear them as a committee as a whole.

Mr. Henry Mr. LeBleu, until such time as we were to change the rules of procedure of the convention we are going to have to proceed in this manner. Of course, any resolution to the contrary would certainly be given due consideration, I'm certain. But we are locked in by the rules to this point.

Point of Information

Mr. Conroy I have point of information and procedure. In each of the committees, as we consider parts of the constitution, I understand we will do with the proposal tomorrow, we had before us on committees the provisions of the present constitution and ultimately, when we were finished the work of the committee, the committee had not only a proposal but also a schedule of what happened to the present provisions in the constitution. As I gather, tomorrow we will begin final consideration of the Legislative Committee proposal and I wonder whether the delegates will have available to them, this same sort of data and information. Will we be able to see what is in the present constitution and will we be able to see what has happened to those provisions other than what is in the proposal itself?

Mr. Henry I am trying to find out myself whether that information is going to be available.

There have been no plans to my knowledge, Mr. Conroy, to provide that information at this time. I think we could request that the staff provide us with basically the same information that the committees have had in their considerations, if that would...

Mr. Conroy I assume it would take a while for the committees...

Mr. Henry Excuse me, Mr. Poynter says that it was reported in the Journal. That all of that information which was contained in your report, is contained in the Journal which you received. Perhaps that would suffice insofar as the information that you are concerned with.

Mr. Conroy No, that is not the information I am concerned with. The information I am concerned with is, are the actual copies of the present constitution, the material in the present constitution which were considered by the Legislative Powers Committee and whether we would be able to see what changes are being made, how they would work out, and what disposition was made of those sections.

Mr. Henry No provision has been made for supplying that information insofar as each delegate is concerned, Mr. Conroy.

Mr. Conroy Well, I don't recall that any motion was made for the committees, themselves, to be provided with this information, and I would hope that the staff could provide it, because I don't see...

Mr. Henry We will attempt to provide it. I don't know what the mechanics of it are going to be, but we will attempt to have that information on your desk in the morning, Sir.

Mr. Poynter Delegate proposal No. 7 by Delegate Burns, a proposal making provisions for gambling, features on agricultural products and lotteries and necessary provisions with respect thereto.

Mr. Henry Should be referred to Committee on Revenue, Finance and Taxation. Under the rules.

Is there objection?

You object, Delegate Stovall? And what is your motion, then? Come to the mike, please sir.

Motion

Mr. Stovall It would seem to me, Mr. Chairman, that that should be referred to Education and Welfare.

Mr. Henry Well, certainly you can make that motion if you want to make that motion, but under the rules, now this is to prohibit lottery and it doesn't say what, and I'm sure a fellow could get an education if he bought a lottery ticket and it didn't pay off. But I don't see any way in the world, of course you have the opportunity to make that motion. But I want to clarify the reason that I referred it to the committee.

Why do you rise, Senator Rayburn?

The motion is to refer it to Education.

Point of Information

Mr. Rayburn I understand one committee has already heard this proposal. If they have, I would just suggest that it go back from whence it came.

Mr. Henry Well, I'm not sure, Senator, which committee has heard it and you might elaborate a little if you have because all I'm trying to...

Mr. Rayburn Legislative committee headed by Senator Blair has heard this proposal already.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, as the introducer of that proposal, I already know it has been through... has been discussed by the Legislative Committee and I certainly object to going back to there. I prefer that it go to the Judiciary Committee, but if it is the ruling of the chair that it goes to the Committee on Revenue and Taxation, that is acceptable to me. PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee proposal No. 3, introduced by Delegate Blair, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Legislative Powers and Functions and Delegates Casey, Fayard, Fulco, Ginn, Juneau, Kilpatrick, Landrum, LeBreton and O'Neill. A proposal making provision for the Legislative Branch of government, impeachment and removal of officials and necessary provisions with respect, thereto.

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Section 1. A. The legislative power of the state is vested in a legislature consisting of a Senate and House of Representatives.

B. The legislature shall be a continuous body during the term for which its members are elected.

Explanation

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to take this by section, by subsection, that is.

Section 1. Subsection 4. Legislature power of the state is vested in a legislature consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives which is substantially the same as the Constitution is today. It vests the legislative power of the state in two bodies one entitled Senate, the other House of Representatives, as distinguished between the form of government of having only one legislative body. And if it is in order, I would like to request that any questions that any delegate may have on this subsection be asked at this time before we get into Subsection B.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Delegate Conroy, Landrum, Newton, Schmitt and Zervigon.

The Committee Proposal No. 3, by Delegate Blair and others amending the reprinted proposal as re-engrossed as follows.

Amendment No. 1 on page 1, line 16, after the word, quote, "Senate", delete the remainder of the line and delete line 17 in its entirety and insert in lieu, thereof, the following, quote, "composed of one Senator elected from each senatorial district and a House of Representatives composed of one representative elected from each representative district."

Explanation

Mr. Conroy The purpose of this amendment is to provide for single-member, Senatorial and House of Representatives districts. Throughout this Constitutional Convention, we will be faced with decisions to make about increasing the functions and powers of the legislature. I think that we start off then in an appropriate point to determine how that legislature is to be elected. I lived in a single member district for a while, and then found that as the population increased we got additional representatives and they were elected parish-wide. I think that at one point Jefferson Parish had four parish-wide elected representatives. I don't believe that you have a direct voice into the legislature if you have to go to four people to represent you. I don't have a voice only if you can go to one person and say you are my representative. And this is what I want, and this is what I believe, and I think that if we are to have a truly responsible legislature, then we should have single-member districts, and assure that we have single-member districts in the constitution so that when we send this constitution to the people and ask them to vote on this constitution, we will at least have assured them that they will have a continuing voice in government through the single-member district.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Questions

Mr. Abraham Mr. Conroy, I am not in disagreement with what your amendment, but would'n't this be handled better in the article dealing with elections?

Mr. Conroy I think that one will be proposed in the article dealing with elections that would deal with all public bodies. However, I don't want to run the risk of getting to that point and then finding that there is some quarrel as to whether it should apply only to the House of Representatives, only to the Senate, rather than to local governing entities. So that at this point I want to make sure that at least we have the legislature elected by single-member districts.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Conroy, what I am thinking of is that at the present time, and I might preface my question with this statement so you'd know where I stand, that I was one of those members who supported a single-member district in our legislature before the court decreed us to introduce legislation to that effect. So you know that I am in favor of the single-member district and I would not want to abolish them as they are now constituted.

But, don't you realize that we might come to a situation, maybe some ten or fifteen years from now when it might be desirable to have a multiple district because of the make-up and composition of the vote at that particular time?

Now if we insert this particular provision in the constitution, don't you realize that we would not be able to do that?

Mr. Conroy I think that the single-member district is so important that if you are going to deny people in an area the right to have a single representative that you should submit that to those people. So I would intend not to delegate the authority of the legislators throughout the state to have the right to change the representation from another area of the state. The way this article is written, the legislature would have the right to decide that in one particular area there would be a multi-member district without the vote of the people in that district, without any voice whatsoever from the people in that particular area.

Mr. LeBlau Mr. Conroy, no mention is made as to the number of seats in the House or the number of seats in the Senate which would reflect the number of districts. I just wondered if this was considered in some other section.

Mr. Conroy Yes, it is.

Mr. Roy Mr. Conroy, hasn't the Supreme Court of the United States recently allowed much, much wider latitude in the percentage of vote difference and said that on Senatorial Districts you could go by old, established lines and would your amendment necessarily preclude the legislature from re-establishing Senatorial Districts on more the parish, maybe, boundary line as opposed to single member districts.

Mr. Conroy Mine was to have single-member districts. If a parish is large enough to have several senators or more than one senator, then they can be divided up within that parish. But I don't think that we should look to the Federal Courts, the United States Supreme Court or U.S. District Court for guidance or determination as to how we think that the legislature should be composed. And I think that the single-member district is desirable and I don't think we should wait on the court to decide whether it is or isn't in any particular instance.

Mr. Roy Well, I don't necessarily agree with that, but the question is, isn't it a matter of fact that for years before we did arrange Senatorial Districts on some type of geographical boundary and does your amendment preclude that from occurring, notwithstanding the Supreme Court has lately said it will tolerate that.

Mr. Conroy It would not preclude using geographical boundaries. It would preclude electing more than one senator from the same district. Yes, it would preclude that.

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Delegate Conroy, wouldn't you also say that with single member districts, legislators would be more accountable to their constituents based on the fact that in multi-member districts where there are two or three persons representing one geographical area, it's very difficult to tie one individual down to responsibility.

Mr. Conroy Definitely.

Mrs. Taylor Thank you.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Conroy, I agree that the concept in this year, 1973, is a good concept. But aren't you, by your amendment mandating to the people in year 1980 and year 2000 how they should elect their legislator?

Mr. Conroy I am saying, that before you change from single-member districts, you go back to the people and ask them, do they want to change it? That's what I'm saying. If it's sufficiently desirable to change it, you won't have any trouble getting it changed. But I think that it's sufficiently important to have a responsive legislature that you assure the people in the constitution that they have a responsive legislature.

Now...

Mr. Juneau In other words, you would require a Constitutional amendment. That would be your intent?

Mr. Conroy Yes, so that the people would have a chance to decide whether they wanted to be represented in some other fashion. That's absolutely correct.

Mr. Kean Mr. Conroy, I'm a little confused about your reference to the senatorial district and each representative district. Do you intend to offer a further amendment which is going to define those particular districts? Or is it something you leave to the legislature?

Mr. Conroy They are already...the provisions on those are elsewhere in the article as proposed by the Legislative Powers Committee.

Mr. Kean This provision contains the specific delineation of the district.

Mr. Conroy Not a specific...it lets the legislature decide where the districts will be. But this simply requires that each district will have one representative or one senator. But the legislature could draw the lines.

Mr. Kean Under your proposal, the legislature, through the establishment of senatorial districts and representative districts could completely abandon parish lines as they presently do.

Mr. Conroy I don't recall how that part of the proposal by the Legislative Parish [Powers] Committee reads. But that is not before us now. This is just simply a question of whether there will be one representative and one senator from each district.

Mr. Lambert Mr. Conroy, I would like to ask you this. You may have answered it. Maybe I missed it.

Basically, what you are doing here with this amendment is more or less adopting a general concept, am I not correct, of the single-member district planing it in the constitution, you are not fixing the lines as they stand at this time, but you are leaving that authority to future legislatures to set up the single-member district, but you are just proposing the general concept be put in the constitution that you have a single-member district. Is that right?

Mr. Conroy That is correct.

Mr. Lambert Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, the Committee on the Legislature on many occasions discussed the subject matter of single-member districts. And on about three or four occasions, cast votes on this subject matter. And much discussion was held in committee on single-member districts.

As a member of that committee, individually I opposed the move to require the legislature to serve in single-member districts largely from the viewpoint of maintaining in our constitution for the future, the versatility and flexibility that a real working constitution ought to have. Now many of the arguments for single-member districts are certainly valid. And I would venture a guess at this time that the members of the legislature, individually, had no desire or wish to return to the multi-member districts. I have served myself under both systems. I have served in a two-member district and I am now serving in a single-member district. I had no great difficulty serving in a two-member district. However, my preference, individually at this time, I am very well satisfied. With my district, it's the method of a system that is certainly operating very well.

The main argument against that I wish to advance at this time is the future. I do believe that a good constitution, and one advanced in this argument in the committee meetings on the legislature, and I guess I'm a bug on the subject matter because I have attempted in every section that we are going to consider to as far as possible, require that many things be provided by law rather than here in the convention legislating and detailing and itemizing each and every facet pertaining to the legislature.

And that's my main argument: That for the future, in 1980 or the year 2000, it is possible that in some few circumstances, in some areas of the state, multi-member districts may be desirable for the benefit of the people serving in those areas. You have areas that are split geographically that I could envision may be best served by two people—two representatives or two senators.

So gentlemen, I would urge you to defeat the amendment, to maintain the flexibility that the present provision allows.

Questions

Mr. Derbes I understand your position, but it seems to me that the argument for dual member districts would be primarily in the nature of political compromises to existing public officials rather than to promote disclosure and full accountability to the public. In other words, I can't imagine why, if you somehow determine that any given area requires representation by two rather than one, that you simply don't redraw the district boundaries and have two districts rather than one district.

Mr. Casey Far be it from me to discount the thought that at some time in the future there could be some political compromise, and I would venture to say that before this convention is over, there'll be many political compromises made here before the next six months ends. But that's a part of the democratic process and I have no argument with that, and I think it's a great, wonderful system. And if compromise in the future dictates that possibly in some individual circumstances a two member district may be deemed best, I have no doubt that we offer it for the purpose of political compromise. My purpose is that for the purpose of the best interest of people in a certain area, I would suggest that it should be available, if necessary. So I don't discount your argument, it could happen.

Mr. Derbes My point is that that type of decision to change a single-member district to a multi-member district would invariably be made to protect the vested political interests of people in government rather than to promote the accountability of public officials to the public. That's my point.

Mr. Casey I think you're making an assumption which could or could not be true and you are precluding a situation, the facts and circumstances we have no idea of at this time. There are many situations that will be offered in this constitution which will offer in the future, political compromise by public officials. I don't condone necessarily that thought, but it still could happen. My main point is, let's stay flexible and let's stay versatile and I think this vote on this subject matter is important because I feel very strongly that throughout this constitution, we should offer to the people a real working, flexible, versatile document, and I think this is a good vote to see how the convention is going to go.

Further Discussion

Mr. Landrum Fellow delegates, somehow my name got to be co-author rather than the author. This particular amendment, I put it before the committee twice and now I appear to be wrong. Well I need your help now. I disagree very much with Mr. Casey. Whether for today or years to come, when you force a person to vote for more than one person against their will, then it's wrong. I believe that if an individual wants to vote for me, then he should not have to be compelled to vote for someone else. Dr, we'll turn it around. If someone wants to vote for anybody else then he should not be compelled to vote for me, and that's what happened with this multi concept when you have more than one person. Now I have been a victim of it. I ran for office once and I got in a run-off and in that run-off I was the only black in the run-off with three white opponents. No white opponent wanted to support me, fearing of losing white support. Yet, black people who would vote for me or white people who would vote for me, only that vote didn't count. Now I don't see how we can justify that type of thing. You are forcing people to vote for somebody that they don't really want to vote for. I believe that if we would allow an individual to vote for me or against me, that's that individual prerogative to vote either way he so desires, and that's the way I think we should try to keep it that way, and really this is what I believe is the true errors about why some people have objection about it. It gives people a chance, it gives black a chance to have better representation. It gives females a chance to have better representation. It gives young people a chance to have better representation, and this is what our government is all about. It is that the people would be better represented. For this reason I urge you to support this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Bieux Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, my statement is identically the same as that made by Delegate Casey. I think that you ought to allow some flexibility. I certainly do not want to change a single-member district at this time. I can't see any need for changing them, I like the way it's set up, but however I don't think we ought to tie this down in the constitution to where if our government is all ever arise we can't do it. I can visualize some situations in which it might be desirable to have one or more multiple districts, and if you put this into the constitution, it would prohibit that from being done without an amendment of the constitution and I certainly think you ought to leave it flexible so that we could change it if the situation would change it. I don't want to change it now, but let's let the Legislature have the prerogative to do it if it becomes necessary to do it in order to get proper representation in Legislature.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Questions

Mrs. Warren Senator De Blieux, if I'm quoting you, you said situations or more that would arise. Can you see any of those situations arising right now? You say you could see it and I would like for you to explain what you see. If you see now, right now, where we are going to need to go back to the multiple districts then tell us about it. That's all.

Mr. De Blieux One situation where you can have that is an increase in population to a certain extent to where that there would be most difficult to make a division in that district for a single-member district. I can recognize that that might be a possibility, particularly whenever you have got, you might say natural boundaries to an extent that would prohibit you from having a single-member district that would be fairly representative, where that the portion of a district would lie on two sides of a river, or something like that. Where that one side would have a lot more population than that of the other side, I can also realize that it might be a situation which you might want to polarize a particular area so that the people in that particular district would be, have no, you might say, real voice in the elective body after they are elected from that district. I can see those situations which you might want to change it a little bit for that, to give them a little bit more influence in voicing the Legislature. I can visualize several instances which it might be desirable to have a multiple district or two or three, but I certainly am in favor of the single-member districts at this time and I want to keep it that way until the need arises for changing it.

Mr. Alexander Senator De Blieux, is it not a fact that under the basic concept of reapportionment, that if that mythical district to which you refer increases in size, that the reapportionment will be based on the total population of the state, and not that single district. Is that not a fact? And secondly, are you trying to do something that in the event the courts ever say that you can go back to multiple districts they would be in a position to do it? Is that what you're trying to do?

Mr. De Blieux No. No. Not necessarily because I'm definitely, Reverend Alexander, I'm definitely in favor of the single-member districts as presently constituted, and I can't say that I see any need at the present time for changes regardless of what the Supreme Court may say. But, based upon our particular situation here in our state, if we should ever want to create a multi-member district, I think we ought to have the privilege of doing so.

Mr. Alexander Now the first question on reapportionment. Isn't it not a state wide thing and not based on one district? Only the boundaries of that larger district would be retracted and drawn in and it may become two districts or one and one-half or one and one-tenth. Isn't that a fact?

Mr. De Blieux That could be, but when you start changing lines and you are changing voters and so forth, you do upset the political climate to a large extent and I like to be in a position to minimize that as much as we possibly can.

Mr. LeBlieu Senator De Blieux, since the Congress has one House apportioned on population, the other House apportioned on factors other than population, would you give the reason why the court says that the two Houses of the Louisiana Legislature must reapportion on single-member districts rather than pattern after the Federal Congress.

Mr. De Blieux Yes, I think I can Delegate LeBlieu. The, when the states formed the Constitution of the United States, they also put in the provision that each state shall be guaranteed a republican form of government. Now that is not the Republican Party, but the representative form. And as a result of that provision in, I think it's Article 6 of the Constitution, it means that the state shall have a representative form of government and if they are going to be represented, then it must be equal representation. Otherwise they would be in violation of the 14th Amendment to the Constitution.

Further Discussion

Mr. Newton In view of the number of speakers yet to come, I'll try to be very brief. I have voted consistently for as much flexibility in this constitution as I think we can possibly get, and I think we ought to have a lot of flexibility in the Legislature. I have a proposed amendment to the next section coming up here which would provide maximum flexibility. However, I believe there are many reasons which override the question of flexibility in this question of single-member districts. I just want to point out two of them. Where you have a single-member district, there's no buck passing. That Representative or that Senator represents you, and he can't say well I got to get out of here so and so and so and see how they're going to go and then you never hear from him. You either get an answer or you don't get an answer, and you know how he stands or whether he has a stand or not and you can determine that very quickly. I'd like to make one other point. This is possibly the only place in this constitution that we can do anything to solve one of the horrible problems that we have had in this state, and that is the problem of the amount of campaign spending. Where you are running in a small, compact single-member district it is definitely less expensive and you know what that means, I hope it means better government for the people of the state of Louisiana. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, fellow members of this convention, I rise in support of this amendment and I do so because I believe it is in the interest of the people of this state that we maintain the concept of single-member districts in this constitution. That we place it in the constitution that we will submit to the people of this state. Now I am all for flexibility. I believe in it, I think it is a concept that we ought to remember and one that ought to guide us, but when we talk about the important branch of government that is before us this morning, we are really talking about that branch of government that is an extension of the people. This is the way that people are heard. This is the way that the feelings and the desires and the wills of individuals get to Baton Rouge by way of the members of the Legislature. Now I think that the only justification for government is the fact that it ought to serve people, and it ought to serve people well. I think there is no question that single-member districts enable government to serve people better, and therefore I think that it is important as a concept, to place it in the constitution that we will submit to the individuals of this state. Now I also believe that single-member districts are important because it helps to democratize the legislature, and I think that all we want to remove all of the incumbencies of the past that have failed to enable the Legislature to represent the individuals and to reflect the will of the people back home across this state. I think people are better represented because we have single-member districts. Somebody has suggested that there might be when we were talking about this, that we have multi-member districts. I cannot envision Louisiana taking such a giant step backward, and I believe that the concept of multi-member districts would be a giant step backward, and I would urge the members of this convention to vote against any backward step and to vote to approve this amendment because it democratizes the government of this state and it enables government to serve the people of this state in the fashion that it has not been able to do so. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Further Discussion

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. McDaniel Fellow delegates, I also rise to support this amendment. As one of the representatives from a dwindling minority in this state, and that's the rural areas, I think here you are looking at a fundamental policy question that we are going to determine early. Are we going to look at this constitution as a protection for the people or the flexibility of the document? Now I wouldn't attempt to debate with a lot of you people with your legal training, but I think that this is a fundamental thing as I see it. I think you are looking here at this thing that's been alluded to of accountability. You take in an area such as mine and the trends and population. This thing of size of area or two or more people from a district. Your size gets to be such a problem. We've seen in the past and what has happened when large rural areas are thrown in with relatively small urban areas. We sometimes see both of our representatives, neighbors within a block, and then vast areas that are left out. I think when you've got one Senator or one Representative, that you can put the finger on him. I think you are more accountable or you can make him more accountable to the people he represents. And this is actually all that I ask. I believe with this provision, we can keep this thing more responsive to the area that the person is representing. I urge approval of this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, I will make my remarks very brief. I want to state to you the issue is not whether or not you favor single-member districts. Before the Legislative Committee, as I recall, I think there was a unanimous feeling that we all favored single-member districts. That's not the question. What we are talking about is whether or not the test that you want to put in today is going to be the division of the future. I think this is a good indication of what we are going to encounter for the next six months. Are we going to write a viable, flexible document, or are we going to start getting into locking in specific provisions. It seems to me that it is a little bit hard and presumptive in 1973 to predict what the population and status of this state will be in year 2000. As you know, we are now dealing in the areas of condominiums, apartment complexes, high rise apartments. I guess you could get into the situation where conceivably you could divide an apartment on the sixth floor. Everybody on the sixth floor belongs to district 43, everybody below is 44. The point is it's presumptive, I feel at this time, to project into the future what may be, and I think it's bad and it would be an erroneous argument to say that if we don't like it in year 2000, it can come back for constitutional amendment. The one mandate we have, is to write a document that we don't have to go back every five, six, ten or fifteen years and get an amendment, and for that reason I oppose the amendment as introduced. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Fellow delegates, I speak in support of the amendment which is offered. The issue is not whether we favor single-member districts. The issue as it is in the whole question of reapportionment, one of equal protection of the laws under the 14th Amendment of the United States Constitution. Single-member districts do a number of things. They greatly reduce the opportunities for gerrymandering in a reapportionment, and if we put this amendment in the constitution, we will constitutionally decrease the opportunities for gerrymandering significantly. This will guarantee that in the future when we reapportion, that those who come from rural or sparsely settled areas, whether the piney woods of north Louisiana or from the prairie area that I represent, we'll know that they will have at least one Senator or at least one Representative to represent them. The sparsely settled rural areas of this state have suffered more than any one else because of reapportionment. Now I agree with reapportionment. I think it is fair and I think it's just, but we've got some large districts such as the one I represent. It's 45 miles from end to the other and if you do not guarantee single-member districts, I can envision, as Mr. McDaniel said, that you would have a large rural area combined with a city area and you might have a district where you had two or three Representatives or Senators all coming from a city, having no connection with the rural area but, being in the Legislature representing that rural area. I submit to you that this would be a denial of equal protection of the laws to the individuals in that rural area. I would also like to echo the sentiments that Mr. Newton had, that single-member districts, more than any other device, reduce the impact of big money on elections. They also reduce interest group influence because what you have, essentially, is a vote of people for a man who is their neighbor, and whom they know, and I urge you to vote in support of this amendment. I think it is a principle that is too important to be left to mere legislation.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Taylor Mr. Chairman, and convention delegates, I certainly rise also in support of this amendment for single-member districts. You know some of the arguments that I have been listening to this morning, are basically some of the arguments that I heard when the Legislature was called upon to reapportion. I think in '70 or '71. We are all aware of what the rural problems are in those areas who elect single-member districts. We know that when we allow multi-member districts that we cannot really tie our representatives down to their responsibilities. I know in the case in the New Orleans area there were about three state Representatives living within a range or maybe three or four blocks. It was very difficult for persons in those areas who elect single-member districts to really tie their representatives down. Some of you have mentioned flexibility of the Legislature, to create single-member districts if it was necessary. Yes, the Legislature did have the flexibility to create single-member districts, but I ask you, did they do it? The answer is no. They came up with a reapportionment plan again with multi-member districts and multi-member districts certainly does not allow minorities to be represented. And when I speak in terms of minorities, I'm not talking only of black residents, but I am talking in terms of farmers, persons who live in rural sections. Because of their population in the rural areas, they ought to have representation in the Legislature as well as those of us who are from the city. I certainly hope that you will listen very clearly to the argument, and will think in terms of moving our state forward through this new constitution by allowing representation of all people in the Legislature. I certainly urge your support in this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Planchard Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it seems to me that this is probably one of the most important tasks we will have to determine from here on. I definitely, I can state from the beginning, I am for a single-member district. The reason is, and for it is because I come from an area which before the single-member district idea came along, we had no representation. I come from a rural area and we were overpowered by the urban area. All of the representation came from within one city of our particular parish. This is wrong. You've got to get the people involved in the political process and this is the only way to do this, and that's the very thing. I think that any of you who have noted that in running for the office that you ran for, or whether you were a Representative or a Senator or a delegate to this convention, there were many, many more people who were involved in the political process because they had an opportunity to be elected. Before this, when you did not have the single-member districts, you had to be among the favored few or you had to have unlimited resources before you began to run for office. This is too important now, to try to go back to the multi-member district as we had before. This is the opportunity to set it out not only for ourselves, but for the future because I feel that it is better to have it set out as far as being pliable in the constitution, it is just as pliable. There's no problem there. We're talking about anything that has to be changed, we're talking about the change in the next twenty years. Well if we can't set up an amendment process for twenty years from now, we may as well not have an amendment process at all in the constitution. I don't want to labor on this thing too much, but I want to remind you of one thing and I want to leave you with this thought, how many of you as delegates right now would be sitting where you are, if it were not for the single-member districts? And I think that this speaks for itself, and I think that this is cause enough to put it in the constitution and assure everybody of representation all over the state of Louisiana. Thank you very much.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise in support of the amendment. I believe that some of our constitutional safeguards ought to be locked up and not be flexible. One of the previous speakers stated that we are at a point in this convention this morning, where directions will be established. I agree. The present single-member district system has met with widespread public approval in Louisiana. This is reflected in the increasing public support of the Legislature. In this new constitution we'll have a number of opportunities to strengthen the legislative branch, which we think it badly will need, to be a co-equal branch of state government. A favorable vote on this amendment will serve to buttress public support for a stronger Legislature with powers equal to those possessed by the executive branch. I have the enthusiastic support of the amendment, and I urge you to vote in favor of it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I believe the Constitution should be a good amendment. I think it will set up the precedent in this state to allow a poor man to seek political office, particularly that of the Legislature. I come from a very large parish. We're proud of two single member districts. We elected six Representatives parish wide. During that election, all six were elected by the courthouse gang. All six were elected by the political machine in power at the time. Not one independent had a chance to run in the parish with 350 residents in it because he didn't have the funds to be elected to run a campaign at that magnitude. The west bank of Jefferson, prior to single-member districts, because the east bank over populated us, had the greatest number of registered voters, we never had a Representative. Single-member districts came along, we were entitled to three, shared another with Orleans Parish, shared another with Plaquemine Parish and shared another one with Lafourche Parish. Had we all had to run parish wide, no doubt in my mind, again they would have all come from one side of the river, the heaviest populated area. There are those who tell me in my parish now, that we're actually your side of the river is going to have the greatest number of population, and I don't doubt that, but I don't think it's going to be right either, for us to have them all on that side. At the time we had six Representatives representing our parish. I don't think they even knew where the city of Westwego was. When we'd ask them to help us with a project in our area, we'd ask one of them, he'd say well, I'll look into it and talk with the other six. Now with single-member districts the man that represents that area, and he's got to answer to those people of that area, and to do his job. Can you imagine what it would take in my parish now, to seek office? We have eleven Representatives. How could an independent candidate, how could one not tied into the political machines get elected? I think this is good to put in the constitution. I think it's going to protect for the future and allow a poor man of modest means to be elected to the office of Representative or Senator.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham I am very much in favor of single-member districts and I have heard some of the people who are opposed to this particular amendment, state that they are worried about what may happen in the future or that they wanted this flexibility in here, but they are in favor of single-member districts. Now the reason many people are in favor of single-member districts is because you've had fifty years of multi-member districts. Everybody likes the system as it is now, and I think we ought to give another shot of fifty years of single-member districts. The thing is this, that if the people of this state are in favor of single-member districts now, and if the people of this convention are in favor of single-member districts, when the situation arises in the future, twenty, thirty or forty years from now, where it looks like it's our advantage to go to a different type of district, then I think that this should be brought to the people and let the people vote on this type of thing. Ince this is real important to the people and I am not concerned about locking this thing into the constitution. I think it should be locked in because it's a real good issue with people right now. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Abraham, if it was thought that a single-member district would be desirable in a certain portion, we may say like Orleans Parish, do you think the people of Shreveport or Alexandria or Baton Rouge would be knowledgeable enough to know whether or not that particular area would be better served by a multi-member district, because we would have to change the constitution to allow that if we just had one multi member district.

Mr. Abraham I would answer that in this way, that you would not leave this up to a local option, that we will not want to get back into the position we are in now where one part of the state is operating under one set of rules and another part under another set of rules. Either it's going to be single-member across the state or it's going to be multi-member across the state.

Mr. De Blieux Well, certainly you wouldn't want all multi-member districts. I can certainly see that that's not desirable, but you might have just one particular area, that it might be better served if you had more than one Representative or more than one Senator from that particular area. But in order to get that one district, under this proposal here that we have before us, we'd have to have an amendment which would have to be voted on by all the people of the state, regardless of where they may reside, and what I'm saying to you is even though that would pertain only to Orleans Parish if it was there where the district wanted to be, where we wanted to create the district. The people of Shreveport or Baton Rouge [...] Now under that situation, don't you understand that wouldn't it be necessary that the people of Orleans Parish vote on it before you could permit that particular district, even though it would only be a local matter.

Mr. Abraham I understand it, but I think that's as it should be. The people of the whole state should vote on it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fontenot Fellow delegates, at the present time Article 3, Section 5 of our Constitution, which we were elected here to rewrite, provides for multi-parish districts. The only reason we don't have multi-parish districts at the present time, is because the United States Supreme Court said it violates the one man one vote requirement of the U.S. Constitution and a protection clause. I'm in favor of this amendment because it sets up a policy decision that the people in this state are going to have to live with from now on. It sets up single-member districts. Without this amendment, it doesn't necessarily require single-member districts. It gives the authority of the legislature if they wanted to try to set up multi-parish districts. I don't want to give the Legislature the power to do this. Now the U.S. Supreme Court, if the Legislature tried to do it, would probably knock it out. But I don't want to see that possibility and I don't want to see more court litigation, so I just as soon vote for the policy that we are going to live with single-member districts. I would appreciate everybody here voting for this amendment. Being from a rural area, we just cannot survive if we go back to the multi-parish district policy, and Mr. Chairman, I'm going to move the previous question unless there is a list of names so long that I might withdraw my motion. But at this time I move the previous question.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

[Motion for the Previous Question withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne I'll be very brief. It's clear, it's concise, the issue here is the single-member district so strong that it is so demanding that it deserves to be locked into the constitution. I judge that it is that type of issue. I want it in the constitution and I hope you agree to this same philosophy.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman, and members of the Committee, I certainly rise in support of the amendment and at this time, without further ado, I move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered: 97-18.]

Closing

Mr. Conroy We are here to write a constitution for the people of the state of Louisiana. Not a constitution just for the Legislature of the state of Louisiana, for all the people. Many studies have been made about the problem of multi-member and single-member districts and I'm going to quote from one, it was made of Legislatures generally. It says: "The first thing a citizen must know before he can hold his Representative accountable is precisely who his Representative is, and before he can know who Representative is, he has to have one, not two or three, but one. It's the basis of my proposed amendment and I urge you to vote in favor of it."

[Record vote ordered. Amendment reread and adopted: 89-32. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is sent up Delegate Alexander. The amendment is proposed by Delegate Alexander. Amendment No. 1 on page 1, delete lines 15 through 17, both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Section 1. The Legislature shall be composed of a single chamber consisting of one member to represent each legislative district".

Explanation

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman, delegates, the basic concept discussed here, of course, is the unicameral legislature. This is the first amendment and there will be many additional amendments offered to implement the whole question. Under the provisions of the unicameral legislature, first each legislature now represents 34,000 plus persons, under this concept the combined membership of both the House and the Senate would be 144 single-member districts, reducing the constituency of each legislator from 34,000 plus to 25,000 plus. What would this do? First, it would make it possible, as has been pointed out in previous arguments here today, for people of little means, for persons who are not able to campaign extensively over wide areas, to run and be elected, because the expense of running for office would be much smaller. In addition, it would guarantee at least permit representation from many groups that are not represented in the legislature now; women, for example, and other groups, labor is another group, possibly religious groups and of course racial and ethnic groups could be represented. May I point out to you, especially those of you from rural areas of the state, that some years ago the state of Louisiana was dominated by rural areas, but the pendulum is swinging back and that condition is reversing itself. Southern, major urban areas of the state of Louisiana where the population will be concentrated, eventually will control the state, and under the dual legislative system that we have now it means that it will be almost impossible for anybody who lives in the rural section of a small parish to be elected to the legislature. I say to you by reducing the constituency of each legislator it would make representation possible to everybody. Then it would bring the legislator and the constituency closer together. It would permit the citizen to have direct access to his legislator. It would prevent buck passing. The member of the House would not be in a position to say go see your Senator and vice-versa. So I appeal to you as delegates who are elected most of you, the overwhelming number of you, from single member districts and I reiterate you would not be here, most of you, because most of you are here as I, I hope and you would not be here if you had had to run from multi-districts. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I yield for questions.

Questions

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Alexander, how many members do you envision would be involved in this unicameral type legislature?

Mr. Alexander 144

Mr. Anzalone Where are we going to put them?

Mr. Alexander Well, you know there are some problems with everything you do. We didn't know where we were going to put this convention but we are here. Now, it would be an easy matter to extend the walls of the House and convert the Senate chamber to private offices for members of the legislature.

Mr. Anzalone Thank you, Sir.

Mr. De Blieux Rev. Alexander, do you realize how many mistakes the Senate catches that the House makes, that we had to correct their bills when we get them that way?

Mr. Alexander Well, everybody makes mistakes and, of course, I think we have made a mistake for the last fifty years with the bicameral legislature, but I have subsequent amendments and of course the legislature, through statute, could set up a system which I would propose that a bill when passed by the single legislature would lay over for 15 days, during which time committee hearings could be held all over again, everyone who is vigilant could ask questions, make amendments and the bill then would go before the unicameral legislature for the second time to be finally passed.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and members of the committee, the concept of a unicameral legislature was considered by the Committee on the Legislature and, as I recall, did not receive favorable consideration except possibly from one or two delegates, but we did discuss the concept, a memorandum was prepared by our research staff, we did interview witnesses who advanced the theory of a unicameral legislature, thoroughly discussed the subject in our committee, and it was the decision of a large majority of the members of the committee that we adhere to the principle of a bicameral legislature for some very potent reasons. As a member of the legislature, I have had occasion to observe thoroughly the legislative process and I believe the present process and the manner in which we operate at this time, and the time limits under which we operate, and the fact that we are only in session temporarily, and the fact that we have volumes of legislation and during the 1972 session of the legislature we considered approximately 3,000 pieces of legislation during a sixty day period, and apparently we are going to retain the type of limitation that we have, that we will be limited to "x" number of days in session for a certain period of time. For these types of reasons and the limitation of time, it is certainly quite important that we retain the concept of a bicameral legislature if nothing else and for no other reason other than the system of checks and balances that we now have. Under the system of a House and a Senate, as you well know, you have committee meetings in both the House and the Senate to consider the legislation, and the legislation is then considered on the floor of each chamber. Through this process you at least amend extensively, if necessary, those matters that will become law and we hope on many, many occasions, and I would hope on many more occasions that we do, that we would finally kill legislation that could be detrimental to our citizens. The theory of checks and balances is quite important because the process moves so fast and so rapidly that it is difficult for the individual legislator to honestly study and analyze each piece of legislation, so the checks and balances are quite important under the system that we have at this time. The House is the watchdog for the Senate and the Senate is the watchdog for the House, in trying to cure or kill that legislation which rightfully should be amended or killed. I think that the system we have gives for proper and more thorough consideration rather than just one body might do it. There is only one state, as you may or may not know, as far as I know that has the unicameral system, the state of Nebraska. Up to this point, I have heard no one really rave about the system that they have. I would urge that you defeat this amendment.

[Previous Question order'd.]

Closing

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman, I will close briefly. I have heard the objections raised by Mr. Casey and actually the objections have all been answered. The system as proposed in the amendment would not affect the checks and balance system as we know it in the state at all, because a bill as passed by the unicameral legislature would lay over for 15 days during which time any discussion, committee meetings, additional hearings, could be held, and I say to you that this is a good system despite the fact that it is untried and I know that man has a tendency to oppose that which he knows very little. I am asking you not to do that in this instance and I am asking you to move this state into the twentieth century and let's go with this amendment. Thank you.

[Amendment revo ved; 7-115. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. Henry There are amendments to Subsection B, so we would ask you to explain that if you will, Mr. Fayard.

Explanation

Mr. Fayard Subsection B reads--it says the following: "The legislature shall be a continuous body during the term for which its members are elected." I would ask the delegates to refer to the Eleventh Day's Proceedings in the Official Journal of the Convention. On page 5 of those proceedings, you will see comments underneath this subsection. The term "continuous body" is new, however, it does not mean continuous session. It merely clarifies the fact that the legislators take office and they do remain in office and that the legislature can function throughout the year, from term to term instead of from adjournment sine die to adjournment sine die. It further means that it eliminates the necessity for the creation of, say, interim committees, that is necessary now to meet in between sessions, and further, that the legislature could only meet in actual session as permitted by Section 2 which will follow. As stated before, this does not mean that the legislature will be in continuous session throughout the year. It can adjourn, come back into session, extraordinary session, or what have you. If you will look a little bit ahead into Section 2, this is where we get into the session, both annual and extraordinary. We debated this language at length, there was quite a bit of research on it, and the reason for the language is to make clear that the legislature holds its office and is functioning throughout the year and not just when it is meeting in session. We feel that this clarifies the problems which have arisen in the past and we would ask that you vote in favor of this subsection.

Questions

Mr. Flory Mr. Fayard, you say that you gave a definition of what a continuous body is but isn't that in truth and in fact only some interpretation given to the word continuous. Isn't it possible that there may be other interpretations of what is meant by the term continuous body?

Mr. Fayard Mr. Flory, you are correct. But, you will note that we say continuous body and not continuous session, and I think that the following article will clarify that meaning, the article on sessions.

Mr. Flory Isn't it true though that under the term "continuous body" committees could meet during the year and actually consider for final action bills by that committee?

Mr. Flory Mr. Flory, we interpret it to mean that committees could meet, could hold hearings, under the rules provided by the legislature, but no final action could be taken unless the legislature was in session.

Mr. Flory Assuming though that that is not adopted in that fashion, then what does it mean?

Mr. Fayard What do you refer to in not being adopted in that fashion?

Mr. Flory With the restrictions placed in Section 2.

Mr. Fayard As it is presently proposed, we limit that. My personal opinion and the opinion of the committee, is that committees could not take final action on matters even if Section 2 was amended and not adopted in the present fashion.

Mr. Triche Mr. Fayard, could you explain to us what the purpose of this section is?

Mr. Fayard Mr. Triche, I believe the comment that is written underneath Subsection B explains it better than I could go into it today.

Mr. Triche I wonder if you would read that comment for me, please. I am not privileged to have a copy of it.

Mr. Fayard The comment says, in essence, as follows: "The term 'continuous body' means that the legislature is a viable and ongoing body for the duration of each of the four year terms of its members rather than a year to year body. As you know, the legislature presently acts as a body only when convened in actual session and all orders, resolutions and proceedings cease at the end of the session unless otherwise extended. Under this provision, the legislature would be able to pass resolutions or take action that would extend from session to session throughout the year and not just in session. It is my interpretation of this article it eliminates many problems which may have arisen in the past. I do not have personal experience of this.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Triche I just wonder if you could give us some examples of some of those problems.

Mr. Fayard The fact that you now have to establish interim committees during a regular session for them to function outside of the session of the legislature. That, I think, is one of the primary problems that we have run into. Under this, the committees could be merely appointed and they could meet to take action.

Mr. Leigh I am not clear as to what this does in addition to what we can do at the present time. Can't committees of the legislature meet at the present time when the legislature is not in session? Don't we have interim committees that meet?

Mr. Fayard We have on our comment that we feel that it would do four very important things which the legislature may or may not do now and which may be subject to controversy or perhaps judicial interpretation. This would provide for the prefiling of bills without any question. It would provide for the formal introduction of bills prior to the convening in regular or extended session of the legislature. It would further provide for the assignment of such bills to the committees without any problems being brought up under our second section that we are going to come up with if the legislature would come into session for five days and then go home for 15 days, during this period of time these bills could be referred to committee without actual legislative action being taken on it. It would further provide for the pre-session committee hearings and the determination of reports.

Mr. Leigh Can't they do that at the present time? Can't these committees meet? You are not proposing that you can prefile a bill in the middle of the--between sessions, when the legislature is not in session, are you?

Mr. Fayard This amendment does not propose that. This amendment gives more flexibility, in my opinion, to the legislature to allow it to determine what rules it would want to operate under without the question of judicial interpretation or someone raising the objection of, say, the legislature is not in session, we cannot do that, we can only function while we are in session.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Fayard, this can be construed, and correct me if I am wrong, that committee action can be taken on bills throughout the year, correct?

Mr. Fayard Well of course, it could be construed to that effect if the legislature would so provide.

Mr. O'Neill Is it true, Mr. Fayard, that the Legislative Committee rejected a proposal, in line with this, that public hearings be required at all committee sessions?

Mr. Fayard We rejected a proposal to place language requiring public hearings in the constitution. I think, under the present rules that public hearings are required by the legislature.

Mr. O'Neill So, by passing this and not requiring public hearings in the constitution, it is very conceivable that committee action could be taken on bills without a public hearing. Am I correct?

Mr. Fayard Mr. O'Neill, there is quite a bit of language that we cannot include in the constitution to safeguard every article. We would leave this to the discretion of the legislature. By not passing this, it would still be possible for the legislature to act without a public hearing.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Fayard, would this in effect provide, could it be construed to provide for year round legislature?

Mr. Fayard No. I disagree.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Fayard, if this Section 1B were to pass, would this allow committee meetings to be conducted for extended periods, perhaps unnecessarily? For example, 250 days a year for which time the committee members would receive per diem.

Mr. Fayard It would be possible for committee meetings to be held at the discretion of the legislature and within the rules of the legislature. However, other provisions that we have set forth the salary and what compensation the legislature should receive.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Fayard, it is my understanding that in a session of the legislature, if this is accepted, that the session of 1974 would never end. Suppose that a bill had passed the House, gone to the Senate, and approved by the senate committee and returned to the calendar, at the end of the session no action was taken, but the next year, when you met, the Senate could go ahead and call it up for passage without any committee hearings, without ever returning it to the House and vote and pass it and it would become law?

Mr. Fayard Delegate Stinson, it is not the intention of the committee for this term to mean that, however, this has been brought to our attention and we do have an amendment I think that is in the hopper that will clarify this language. We at no time intended to mean that and that is why we distinguished between the term of continuous session and continuous body.

Mr. Stinson In other words, using the rather rude expression, unless something is done, a bill would be dead at any time after it has been killed in any house, would it?

Mr. Fayard That is not my opinion of the meaning of the term but because of the objections that have been raised, we do have an amendment to try to clarify that for you.

Mr. Jenkins Calvin, I am concerned about whether or not, in fact, not only this provision, but other provisions when read in connection with this one, will, in fact, provide for a continuous session of the legislature. I want to ask you this question, if you will look on page 2 of the proposal, line 10, it provides that the legislature may be convened at other times by the Governor or shall be convened upon the written request of a majority of the elected members of each house. This, of course, being the provision with regard to special sessions. Now, unlike the present law, there is a requirement here that only a majority of the members need to call a special session, whereas the present law provides for two-thirds vote. And also, under the present law, it provides in the case of fiscal or budgetary sessions that there must be a thirty day delay before or after any budgetary session before a special session could be called. My question is, isn't it true that under the totality of these provisions, the legislature, at the end of a regular session, could simply by majority vote, vote to go into a special session for thirty days and at the end of that period vote by majority vote to go into another special session and, in effect, have a continuous meeting of the legislature throughout the year?

Mr. Fayard Woody, I would agree with you that there is a possibility that the legislature, in its wisdom, would so desire a special session that they could meet in special session right now pretty much year round on some item or the other, but the insertion of the words continuous body would not aid, or abet, nor hinder this.

Mr. Jenkins But, you will admit then that read in with other provisions of the constitution, that a simple majority of the legislature could keep the legislature in continuous session.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Fayard I would admit only that there would be a possibility that special sessions could be called but not because of the fact that this term would be read in conjunction with the other sections that we have provided.

Mr. Roy Delegate Fayard, if, as you pointed out, this section apparently is redundant because the legislature may do exactly what this seems to provide for and has caused a lot of trouble, why not just delete the entire matter?

Mr. Fayard Delegate Roy, it is not redundant. It allows the legislature more flexibility in the operation of its committees and carrying on business outside of regular sessions. It may be redundant insofar as extraordinary sessions are concerned but I don't believe that it is...

Mr. Roy Can't they do that right now?

Mr. Fayard Not necessarily. On some items, they can not.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment proposed by Delegate Flory to Committee Proposal No. 3 by Mr. Blair. Amend the reprinted as engrossed proposal as follows: Amendment No. 1, on page 1, delete lines 18 and 19 in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, the amendment purports to take out the entire language as it refers to a continuous body. I offer the amendment in the spirit that I do not want to confuse Judge Tate when this matter reaches the Supreme Court for review. I don't believe that the word "continuous" body could mean very easily that there could be a 365 day session each year. I don't think that is what was intended by the committee. I submit to you that it is ambiguous, that it has no place in the constitution, and would allow for brevity in the constitution by the deletion of these two lines in the proposal, and I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, I realize that those who have expressed opposition thus far are certainly sincere in their comments, but I do honestly have a feeling that the objections that might be expressed by many of the members could come from the fact that possibly we really don't thoroughly understand the concept of the wording "continuous session" and I think Rev. Alexander certainly very nicely expressed that thought about being opposed to something because it may be something new or because we don't understand it, when he expressed his comments on the concept of the unicameral legislature, and I have to admit that I am somewhat conventional and traditional and maybe some of my hesitations against thoughts of that type would come from the fact that it is something new or that I did not understand it. But, I think that perhaps some of our objections are there. Here, again, we are trying to give to the legislature of our state, that will serve our people, the method and the tools of maintaining or achieving the versatility and flexibility that our people deserve from our legislature. Now, granted, you as delegates are going to have to place, if you wish, if it is your thought, a certain amount of trust in these bodies. I have heard it said many, many times that the legislature is becoming better all the time and I am the first to admit that on many occasions it does not create the best image of the people that it properly deserves or that it should have. But, I think we are going to have to be trail blazers and try to give to the tools of our legislative body the ability to properly function. One objection was raised that would this not permit the committees to meet 365 days out of the year and receive per diem. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, that can be done right now by a simple concurrent resolution establishing our committees and permitting them to function throughout the year, if that is the desire of the legislature. But, you know and I know that the legislature, I hope and I hope you agree, is composed of good citizens, representative citizens, who want to do a good, intelligent job and they are not going to do something like that, we want to give them the authority and the time that you are a continuous body, that once you elect your speaker or your presiding officer in the Senate, that those gentlemen are elected for four years and not just for one year. That those committees, the standing committees of the House and Senate that you establish, are established for four years and not just for one year. That if the legislature, in its wisdom, deems it advisable to hold committee hearings on legislation which may be introduced and considered at future sessions of the legislature, that it may be done during the year in the interest of perfecting legislation and I tried to comment on that before, that the problem we have now is the volume of legislation which is considered in only a sixty-day period that the limitation of time prohibits us from doing a thorough, intelligent job that we should. This would provide the mechanics to our committees to thoroughly study, perfect and submit to sessions of the legislature, good, intelligently, well thought out legislation. Now, for those who fear the thought of a continuous legislative session for 365 days of the year, we look to Section 2, which very clearly, to me and I hope to you, limits the length of the regular session. And I would also refer to you ladies and gentlemen a provision contained on—since I last looked at it, it must have been amended out. There is a provision referring to the method of considering legislation and bill by the legislature which requires that a bill be read three times in each house, that a bill be considered and reported by a committee of the House and be considered and reported by a committee of the Senate. Things will not be railroad because of this modern concept that we are advancing here. We hope to have and maintain and slow up, if possible, the legislative process for considering legislation and making it even better and more thorough and more modern. Gentlemen, I urge you to retain the concept of a continuous body.

Questions

Mr. Conroy Mr. Casey, you are absolutely right that my fear of this is that I do not understand it and I listened to what you just said and I still do not understand what this particular provision would do that the legislature at the present time can not do.

Mr. Casey I would like, first of all, to refer you—and every member did receive a copy of the Official Journal from Friday, July 6, 1973, which on page 5 contains explanatory comments of the words "continuous body" so I would first like to refer you to that. Secondly, and I may be taking advantage of your question in answer to other objections by saying, and this was brought up by I think Mr. Stinson, that his fear is that legislation which is retained in committee at the end of a session, or on the calendar, and then at the next session would automatically pop up and be considered in whatever status it is in at that time, removed from the calendar and immediately acted upon. Mr. Perez has an amendment at the Clerk's desk at this time which I am wholehearted agreement with which solves that problem and would require that from one session to the next legislation must be reintroduced. I know that I'm not giving you a satisfactory answer.

Mr. Conroy I read that section, but my question still is, what does this do that the Legislature could not do if you didn't have these two lines

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Casey I think what it does, is merely confirm more so than grant additional powers. It confirms the fact that we hope, as we are acting today, that our Speaker is elected for four years and we hope that standing committees can meet during the off times when the Legislature is not in session and properly make studies and make recommendations and things of that type. We hope that that's legal.

All I am saying is this would confirm in effect what we are attempting to do today--modernizing our Legislature and reforming the method of handling legislation that we have at this time and really giving it the thorough study that it deserves

Mr. Conroy Mr. Casey, just to clear my own mind on something, if the Flory amendment was defeated, and your committee would support then the Perez amendment which would be tied onto line 19 which is what we really want---

Mr. Casey I would hate to say that my committee does because I don't want to speak for my committee, but I have spoken to fifty percent of them and nobody is against it.

I have not spoken to the ten members of my committee so all I can say is that individually, that those that I have spoken to are wholeheartedly in favor of his amendment and I would strongly urge that you adopt his amendment.

Vice-Chairman Miller in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham I am in favor of the language as proposed by the Committee on Legislative Branch. I understand the intent of it, I think it is good. I think it would do a lot towards strengthening the position of the Legislature. Now, prior to this convention, I heard many people talk about--we've got to make a Legislature more responsive. We have got to make them more responsible to the people, we have got to make them assume the duties they are supposed to be doing. We have got to eliminate the restrictions we have placed on the Legislature. All of this type of thing and I think this is a move to do this, if we feel many of the Twenty-One Constitution is too restrictive, then let us get back away from that. Let us give them the authority, the power they need in order to exercise their duties.

Now, Section 2 is going to take care of the manner in which they will hold their regular sessions and if we are worried about them meeting down here all year long with per diem and this type of thing--the proposal on page 3 where the legislature shall be compensated by annual salary is going to take care of that, so I don't think that there is any real fear about them being down here too long.

They, themselves, are going to want to fix their annual session. The people of the state want regular sessions there is no question about that and I think most of the members of the committee want this, so I don't think that the legislature is just going to go hog wild and say we are going to do everything we want to do, but this does give them the flexibility to run their business as it should be.

Now, if we believe, in a representative form of government and I do believe in this, then somewhere down the road we are going to have to trust our elected officials and I see a change in the legislature during the past few years and I think they merit our trust. Now, let us get away from the feeling of the Twenty-One Constitution where we don't trust anybody and do everything we can to tie these peoples' hands.

And I strongly urge the rejection of the amendment and adoption of the language as presented by the Committee on the Legislative Branch.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Madam Chairman and fellow delegates, to me this is one of the worst offerings that I have seen.

Under this proposal of continuous committee meetings, any special interest group--let us just take labor on one side and industry on another. With a pro-labor committee, they could harass industry with continuous bills in a committee 365 days in the year.

Or, you can turn it around the other way with a continuous committee--a pro-industry committee could harass labor 365 days in a year. I have heard it said in the past, that the people are lucky they don't get as much government as they pay for anyhow. And probably one of the breaks is--is the advantage of being able to go home. I think as time goes on, the legislature needs to go home--they need a rest, the public needs a rest.

And then let us look back at our ability, those of us that is pushing--the adopting of a constitutional convention. If I was fighting it I think this would be all the fodder I would need.

I can ask more questions about this and what-ifs in one day than anyone of you can answer in a month. And what good is it going to do? Absolutely nothing.

We are going to give them a chance to be here--we're going to give them a chance to have bills--we're going to give them a chance for continuous meetings--we're going to give them a chance for continuous introduction of bills. I just can't see it.

We wind up with 3,000 bills, we push them through. About three-fourths of them is correct in something you're going to do in the past. You may say you need more time you just don't need this in the constitution. So, I urge the defeat of it.

Point of Information

Mr. Jack Madam Chairman, as I understand now we are talking for or against Mr. Flory's amendment. Isn't that correct?

Mrs. Miller That is correct.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack All right.

I want to state that I am for this amendment. Now, the language we are knocking out here is B.

The legislature shall be a continuous body during the term for which its members are elected.

I talked to about twenty-five people out here and asked them if they knew what that meant. I don't know exactly and none of them. And all of them promised when they ran for this position as a delegate they are going to do their best to come up with a constitution that the laymen and everybody could understand. None of those understand. I do know from listening to the author of this Section B that it will allow, according to him, committee amendments all year around, twelve months a year, but that there will not be any change by the whole legislature unless he says under Section 2 there is a regular or special session. But let me tell you, it is bad enough to be deviled with taxes every year. Under the present constitution, the thirty day session you can't have them, but it is going to be unbearable if all year long--year in and year out continuously you can be deviled and bothered by tax legislation before committees. Now, whether they vote it or don't, they can be meeting and you can't be prepared to oppose bills that are bad for a committee twelve months out of the year.

This is a bad kind of thing and it is--a thing that may go away beyond anything we can think of right now.

Now, a man in favor of this, says trust the legislature. I was in it 24 years ladies and gentlemen and I have always heard that. When I was a member I was afraid of things; I heard one man say before a committee--someone asked him, what do you want this legislature to do for you? He said in all due respect Mr. Chairman, I am not concerned with what they are going to do for me, I am wondering what they are going to do to me. Now that is the thing that happens regularly.

This to me is going to even be going further than Congress in being in some kind of committee meetings all year around. I don't know some people might like further per diems. There is all kind of type-things, but Louisiana is not a big enough state yet to have rules, constitution---everything for a legislature to do like the Congress of the United States to be going on, and on. And, incidently, I think Congress of the United States has got too many meetings, itself. So I hope you will vote for Mr. Flory's floor amendment and delete those lines which read "the legislature shall be a continuous body during the time for which its members are elected."

Thank you.

Question

Mr. Womack Mr. Stinson, the question I wanted asked---you realize that when I was speaking as against this proposal being in the constitution I was speaking in support of this amendment.

Mr. Stinson Yes, I did, Mr. Womack and I am hoping all the others did too because I know how persuasive you always are in your arguments. You are for this amendment and against the regular proposals.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stinson Members of the convention, what concerns me--if this amendment is not adopted--is, that we are going to have to then elect and revert to professional legislators.

No businessman, unless he is a foolish businessman, can annually give up his business and come and serve in the legislature. This continuous meetings continuous--if it hadn't been it wouldn't be used. If you are businessman of any type, lawyer, (that's a bad word to use in most cases) no lawyer can give up his legal business and come down here annually, continuously, unless he expects to get something out of being here. It is too great a temptation.

Many of us have single law offices and if we leave our office 365 days a year we are not going to have an office to return to--unless it is just to hang your hat in.

I think that when you are not a professional legislator and you are close to the people. As Mr. Womack's remarks were--"you need to be at home" so you can tell you something about what their wishes are and I still believe in the old adage that "the least government the best governed. We are not supposed to be herded around like sheep, continuously.

The promoter of this original amendment said that the hands of the legislature had been tied because some matters that came up during the time that we were not in session. There have always been plenty of interim committees that consider anything that may come up.

We don't have to be in session to consider those things. I think that it has been very operative in the past and in the future it can be just as well under our present law. And I would like to urge you to let us vote for this amendment and leave it like it is so the people will not be regimented and continuously harassed by what the legislature might do.

Some legislatures are fine, but there have been some legislatures that were not fine and I am sure in the next fifty years we will have some legislatures that will not have the confidence of the people. And if you are in session that long, and you want to be re-elected, the best way not to be is---be in Baton Rouge all the time and someone at home says---well here is Ford Stinson---well he is in Baton Rouge as usual, he stays down there. He moved down there.

So you better vote and let us vote for this amendment and leave it like it is. I think it has worked remarkably well in the past.

Question

Mr. Weiss Delegate Stinson, do you think the people of Louisiana, if Section 1-B were to pass, can afford that type of legislation?

Continuous body.

Mr. Stinson Well Dr. Weiss, I don't know whether you refer as to the salaries and per diem and mileage or as to whether they can afford to have done to them what might be done, but the answer to both, would be I do not think that they can afford.

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Madam Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I can about sense the mood of this convention and about predict the outcome of the vote on Mr. Flory's amendment. But, I just can't let this pass, without letting you hear from the country precinct, from Plattenville.

Now here we are, at it again, all of the evils of this state has been brought about by that legislature. All of the problems we have--people just sit home and wring their hands and knit their brows and worry about what that horrible legislature is going to do to them. The taxes that we are going to put on Mr. Jack and the per diems we are going to take out of the state coffers the horrible things that we are going to do to this state. Well let me remind you gentlemen, the legislature is the representative of the people of this state and as we are a convention of the people in Baton Rouge assembled, the legislature is a session of the people of this state assembled and the legislature is as responsible as the constitution will allow it to be and it is as loyal and is as faithful and devoted to this state as the people want it to be.

Now, make up your mind. How loyal and devoted and responsible do you want your legislature to be? Now do you want it to be a part-time Saturday night legislature--or do you want it to be dedicated, fulltime professional. You want it to be dedicated to the business back home or do you want it to be dedicated to the government of this state.

I have served in the legislature quite some time and I know a little bit something about passing taxes, Mr. Jack.

If tax proposals passed by the legislature were introduced in pre-session filing months in advance of the legislature and if the Ways and Means Committee and the Finance Committee in the House and the Senate held public hearings on those tax measures weeks in advance of the session, I can guarantee you there would be no taxes passed in this state except as those wanted by the people of this state.

And I think the same thing would be true to every other proposal adopted by the legislature. The point I make--the point I try to make--the problem with our legislature, ladies and gentlemen, is that it does not have enough time. It is not a continuous body. It meets for sixty days every other year, and for the first fifteen days we introduce proposals and the next forty-five days we have got to get them passed. And we handle in that short length of time thousands of bills. That is the trouble, and the same thing with the odd session years where we handle the general appropriation bill. We consider sixty, seventy, eighty schedules--we spend over two billion dollars and we do it in thirty days' deliberation. And in addition to that, we handle hundreds of bills in thirty days. I would suggest to you that is the problem. That is why we have an anti-legislature syndrome in this state.

That is why whenever we consider the legislature meeting people worry about the per diem--poppycock--what man is going to sell this state out for fifty dollars a day. What man or woman among you, raise your hand and none of you here, and I don't believe there are any in the state--would sell this state down for fifty dollars a day per diem. That is foolishness. Let us throw off the legislature syndrome that we have. That the evils in this state are brought about by our legislature. Let us throw off the fear of the legislature and make it the responsible body that represents the people of this state, that is as it should be.

Now continuous body to meet. Not continuous because the constitutional proposals in Article 3 in my judgment set it out very plain and very clearly.

The legislature can enact laws only when it is in session.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

It shall be in session certain prescribed days. Continuous body, to comment, --tells you very clearly does not mean continuous session. So that we cannot enact laws except when we are in session. Continuous body means, however, that when your legislature adjourns sine die at the end of a regular session it is not defunct--it is not dead, dead until the next year. And that is what the law is today.

Continuous body means, that when the legislature adjourns sine die that we still have a legislature that will perform functions outside of the session and will function until the next session. Now what are those functions.

Prescribed rules for itself, to regulate the conduct and activity of its members out of session.

Its committees will have and be able to hold hearings not as directed by officers of the legislature, but as directed by the rules of the various -- two respective bodies of the legislature. Those committees will be able to subpoena regular session and be able to hold hearings, will be able to study proposals, will be able to have the advice and input of competent staff and be able to draft intelligent legislation that can be attested to and examined by the citizens before the next session of the legislature.

In my judgment, it will allow the legislature to get itself ready for the next regular session and will not--and will be able to avoid the logjam of business and bills that we find ourselves confronted with every session.

This is good, gentlemen. I ask you not to be stumped into killing it because you have not considered it enough.

If we want to make our legislature responsible, and if we want it to function as the people of the state, I believe, want it to then we ought to provide it with tools with which to work and I think this is certainly one of those tools.

I hear the complaint all over the state every year. The legislature is controlled by the Governor. We haven't had an independent legislature in years and people think that is evil. If the legislature is controlled by the Governor, gentlemen, and I am not willing to take that indictment but, if it is, it is because your legislature does not have the time to study intensely enough the proposals that it considers. And many, many times, the legislature votes on a proposal with tongue in cheek with the attitude well, if there is a mistake the Governor will catch it and veto it. That is the position you put your legislature in unless you give it the tools to work with. This is one of the tools, it is not going to be abused. No man worth his salt is going to come to Baton Rouge to rape the state for fifty dollars a day only. The committees are not going to search ways and means to oppress the people of this state when the legislature is not in session. Quite the contrary, The committees are going to search ways and means to better govern this state and gentlemen, I implore you--reconsider your decision and vote this amendment down.

Questions

Mr. Stinson Mr. Triche, you understood that the remarks I made and most of the other speakers were not in criticism of the present or past legislatures, but only expressing grave concern over what the future legislature would be if this is enacted. Not the amendment as proposed. (You understood that didn't you).

Mr. Triche No, I didn't, but I stand corrected.

Mr. Stinson We did not in any way criticize you--

Mr. Anzalone Pappy, could you foresee that in this constitutional convention we are going to take up about as many proposals in six months that the legislature has been forced to do year after year in thirty or sixty days.

Mr. Triche I think we are going to take up a great deal less.

The legislature wouldn't have had the time to depend on Article I--Section A for example that we spent.

This constitutional convention in six months can take up a great deal less business.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Madam Chairman and delegates to the convention, I must say that initially I was going to vote for the amendment until Delegate Triche spoke.

I felt all along that the work of the committee should be given first priority in anything that is close in my mind. In the future I will go along with what the committee has done because they have heard most of the testimony and I know how much we went through on my committee and I know what all you other gentlemen and ladies went through.

I came here with the idea after having talked with many people that I would support an independent legislature. That I would do everything in my power to ensure the independence of the legislature because I felt that the executive branch was too powerful. And that if we once had the opportunity to take some of the powers away from the executive branch and parcel it out to the legislature and make a more independent body out of it we would be a lot better and so would our citizens.

And I think Mr. Triche has made me see that. And like I say, I was against it until he spoke. But I am for an independent legislature. And if the hearings become abusive that have been prognosticated to some extent by others here, then you know.... good and well those legislators are going to be on the carpet, they are going to make for themselves and they are going to be voted out and the voters will take whatever action is necessary.

I don't anticipate reasonable men calling committee meetings to harass and intimidate any particular group in our society.

But that is the price we pay. That is the chance we take if we are going to make for an independent legislature. I urge you to vote against the amendment and to vote for the proposition.

Further Discussion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and delegates to this convention, I listened very attentively to Pappy Triche and his remarks were well founded and well taken. The only problem however, is the fact that there are some unanswered questions with respect to the legislature being a continuing body.

One of the problems that bothers me a great deal --- I will have an amendment to take care of in the event that the matter stays on the floor, but there are other problems that bother me particularly with respect to final committee consideration of bills. So that bills might be reported favorably or unfavorably by a particular committee out of the session of the legislature or prior to the beginning of a session. It bothers me very much. I would like very much to see this matter recommitment. I also take the position that in this particular matter, is defeated at this time, that the legislative committee could come back with a proposal at a later time to better define the meaning of a continuing body and therefore, I am constrained to vote against the particular--or rather vote for this amendment and against the proposal as it is now in its present posture.

I would like very much to see a proposal which would give the authority to the legislature to hold hearings year around. To have standing committees, I think it is a good concept, but unfortunately, I do not believe that there are sufficient limitations upon the proposal as it now stands.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Previous Question Announced.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, a great deal has been said at this microphone this morning about having faith in the legislature.

Recess

Mr. Triche elaborated a great deal about that. Mr. Casey didn't speak too directly on the amendment but I, for one, have always had great faith in the legislature. I have said this repeatedly throughout this state. While I might disagree with them over issues, I have never questioned their integrity, their motive and I think what they ultimately attempted to do.

It was mentioned about there ought to be a continuous body. When I asked Mr. Fayard originally in his interpretation of what continuous body meant he said that you could not take committee action on legislation on interim period. Someone then subsequently asked him the same question. He said that you could. I merely use the illustration to point out to you the difference in interpretation of the word 'continuous'.

Now, Mr. Casey elaborated to the point that the logjam created in the legislature by the number of bills that are introduced. I submit to you that in 1968 in the regular session there were a total of 527 bills introduced in the Senate—279 of which were introduced in the first five days.

In the House there 1520 bills, 566 introduced in the first five days and so on--until 1972 402 of the 852 bills in the Senate were introduced in the first five days. And likewise, about a third in the House.

My point in this is, who controls when a bill is introduced? It's the members of the legislature. And if they wait until the last day that's their problem. Not the public's! They control when the bills are introduced within a prescribed period of time in the existing constitution.

Yes, the legislature has plenary powers and the constitution ought to take away from the legislature. That doesn't take away from the integrity of the legislature, it just merely tells the public of this state who the constitution is supposed to guarantee their rights. That they know what is going to happen when the legislature meets and when they are going to meet.

Mr. Triche said if they heard three or four weeks prior to a session to take care. Bear in mind that the legislature controls again when the bills are introduced. You think an author of a tax bill is going to present a bill three weeks prior to the session. I'll let you use your own judgment.

The point was made I think by Mr. Roy, that the number of measures will be considered by this convention in a six month period in contrast to what the legislature does in considering approximately 2000 bills each regular session.

I submit to you that the legislature has proposed in this committee's report is purported to meet every year. How many times is the constitutional convention going to meet? We haven't met for the last fifty-two years so that you can come back next year and change what the legislature does if the public doesn't like what the legislature did the prior year.

There is a proposal in this recommendation for a fulltime annual salary of the legislature. I support that concept. That they ought to be adequately compensated. I am not worried about how many days they draw per diem--not at all. And I too don't believe that a member of the legislature would sell this state down for fifty dollars a day or fifty million dollars a day, Mr. Triche.

So I support the annual salary concept. Let the legislature be in office for four years but let the public know what their responsibilities are as a legislature and what they can consider that they will be in session. If you want it to be a year-around legislature, say so in the proposal. Don't come through the back door and say that they are going to be a continuous body. If you want a 365 a day legislature--say so.

I see no reason for the word 'continuous body' in this proposal. I think it is superfluous and is ambiguous and I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Quorum called: 85 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Perez and Mr. Kilpatrick]. On page 1, line 19, delete the period, quote period, and add the following. Quote, comma, provided that bills and resolutions not finally passed by both houses in any session of the legislature shall be automatically withdrawn from its files.

Explanation

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and delegates, if you will recall when I rose earlier, one of the problems I had with regard to the subsection of Section B which provided that the legislature be a continuous body, it might be construed that bills of the legislature introduced in one session of the legislature and not finally acted upon might be carried over into the next session of the legislature, and it may, for instance, have been introduced in the House, passed in the House and then gone to the Senate and may have stayed in the Senate Committee and then in the next session of the legislature, it would only be necessary to pick the bill up in the Senate and then proceed with the bill. It is the present procedure, and I think should be maintained, that any bills which are not finally acted on should be killed in that particular session and if the particular member of the legislature wants to reintroduce that bill, of course he can do so in the next session.

I move for favorable passage of the amendment.

Mr. Blair I just...we have no objection to this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Weiss What about questions before committees? Does this include those matters held over from month to month and year to year?

Mr. Perez No, the way the amendment is prepared, it says, "provided that bills and resolutions not finally passed by both houses." That means that if it may be in the committee, it may be before one of the houses, no matter what the posture of the bill is at the time, that at the end of the session if it has not been finally passed by both houses, it should be automatically withdrawn from the files of the legislature.

Mr. Roy Delegate Perez, I'm for your amendment. I just don't like the language very much of "shall be automatically." I was wondering if we could insert, maybe, and I hate to use my terminology because I am using a Latin phrase that has, as you know, a meaning, but "or ipso facto withdrawn from its files." Anything but "shall automatically be..." I just don't like "shall automatically".

Mr. Perez I have no pride of authorship in these words except that I have asked quite a number of delegates, including members of the legislature for better wording, and I couldn't find any and I am not so sure that "ipso facto" is any better than "automatically".

Mr. Roy What about just "in the session of the legislature are withdrawn from its files." Just do away with "shall be automatically" and just "are withdrawn."

Mr. Perez Well, the question was raised that when is it withdrawn from the files, and that's the reason that the word "automatically" was inserted to make it clear that it would happen without any action on anyone's part.

If Style and Drafting eventually comes up with a better word, I'd be glad to accept.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 47-73. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Perez, maybe the clerk could answer this better. I just think "withdrawn from the files" might pertain to House bills. Is there a term used in the Senate, "suspended indefinitely?" And would this apply in this case?

Mr. Henry They withdraw it from the files of the Senate when they are Senate bills. We withdraw them from the files of the House, then if they are Senate bills, we indefinitely postpone and vice versa, I believe.

Question

Mr. Tate Mr. Perez, as far as the wording goes there probably might be a better word, but you envisage that to be the sort of function that Style and Drafting might perform if it can find a word that would suit the delegates?

Mr. Perez Judge, as long as it does not change the meaning, I am sure that Style and Drafting might polish it up a little.

Mr. Tate Alright. O.K.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted; 89-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments submitted by Mr. O'Neill to Committee Proposal No. 3 by Delegate Blair Amendment No. 1 goes to the reprinted bill, page 1 at the end of line 19, add the following, quote, "no committee of the legislature may take final action on any bill or resolution except during a session of the legislature," end quote.

Explanation

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I apologize for the delay. My amendment was put upstairs during lunch and I apologize for the delay and its not being sent down.

As the amendment reads, "no final committee action can be taken on any bill except during a session of the legislature."

The language we previously adopted about continuous session, continuous sessions, tracts [tracks] the Florida Constitution. Many of you legislators will remember Senator Pettigrew from Florida who spoke at your orientation session. He came and he told us that in Florida, under the language which we have adopted, that a committee can have a bill referred to it at any time during the year. It can take final action on a bill, reported favorably, etc.

Now what this does and what it would do in Florida, and how it works is that the bill is reported into the House or into the Senate and it's not referred back to the committee. It goes straight to the floor.

Now, what this amendment will do and what the effect it is intended to have is, that the committee can take no final action. When it comes back to the floor of the House it must be resubmitted to a committee for final action. This will allow the public, anyone who is interested in the bill, to go to the legislature, and be able to meet with that committee during the session when they know that the legislature is here. Not any time during the year when just any committee is meeting.

I think that this is what most of us would favor-- that no final action can be taken. It is not currently stated in the legislative article as we have it. No final committee action can be taken during the interim between our introductory session and the full session. That's all that it says. So please don't be confused about language that seems to tract [track] us in our own proposal. I think that this measure has what we would want it to do, and I think what you would want it to do, and I move for favorable passage.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. O'Neill, if we have committees of the legislature decide they want to adopt a resolution directed to some state agency, would this amendment prevent them from doing that unless we were in session? I see you make no references to whether it has the effect of law or not. I know of many resolutions that many committees, after making ...having a long deliberation, have adopted and passed on to the various state agencies, their feelings or their findings and what they think. I think the should look into during the time and while the legislature was not in session. Would this amendment prevent that?

Mr. O'Neill No, sir, I do not think that it will, and that is not the intent of it, Senator.

Mr. Rayburn If I read the language right, Mr. O'Neill, I think it will do that. Maybe I am wrong.

Mr. Dennery Mr. O'Neill, you said that it tracts [tracks] the language. Actually, it doesn't. Is there a reason for using "vote" in one place and "final action" in another place?

Mr. O'Neill I'm sorry, Mr. Dennery, I can't hear you.

Mr. Dennery In your amendment, you said that "no committee may take final action." But in the committee report it says "no committee shall take a vote with respect to any bill during the interim period. Is there a reason for the difference?"

Mr. O'Neill No, Mr. Dennery, when I requested the amendment to be drawn, I didn't ask for it to attract [track] any certain particular language and I don't believe that there is supposed to be any difference.

Mr. Dennery Well, is there a distinction in your mind between take action, final action, and the word "vote"?

Mr. O'Neill No, sir. None in my mind. I would suppose that Style and Drafting could take care of an inconsistency such as this.

Mr. Abraham Gary, you made the statement that this would allow a bill to come, say, directly to the floor. Is that true? Because how would it get to the committee to begin with? Because the previous amendment we adopted said that all bills are wiped from the files at the end of the session, then how would this committee get a bill in the interim period that would go directly to the floor?

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Abraham, in Florida where they ...whose language we have tracted [tracked] in a continuous session, a bill may be introduced at any time during any part of the year. Now, the bill come into the legislature and the speaker, not during a session, you know, just whenever it comes in, he refers it to a committee, and, in Florida, the committee takes action on it however it pleases. Now, we could have gone this route that you are asking the question about.

We could have prohibited any bill being introduced in the committee except during the session and, I'm not sure that's what we want to do. What my intention is is that no final action be taken on it.

Mr. Abraham Alright, the other question then. What is wrong with taking final action, if necessary?

Mr. O'Neill Because, Delegate Abraham, if you have an interest in the bill, then nowhere, not in any fashion, are you given an opportunity to know when the bill is coming up into a committee.

Therefore, any public hearing that the committee may have you may not be informed about it. If you are not informed, you cannot appear before the committee. If you can appear before the committee, they do not know your views, and if final action is taken by a committee, then it goes straight to the floor moving for favorable passage.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Not unless you can get the legislature to allow you on the floor to address the entire legislature, you have no voice in the process.

Mr. Alario Delegate O'Neill, would you have any objections to inserting in your resolution where you say "any bill or resolution", would you have any objection to inserting in there "having effect of law"? I am concerned that, just as Senator Rayburn is, possibly maybe the, take for example the Legislative Budget Committee may want to direct certain agencies in certain economy moves and according to this as you have it written now, it may not allow us to do just that. I was wondering if you could ask the clerk to just add those words in and the delegates could make notes on the sheets you have here.

Mr. O'Neill If the clerk will allow me to do that, Mr. Alario, I'd be happy to.

Mr. Henry No sir. Now according to the rules, Mr. Alario, and not trying to cause problems, but trying to eliminate future problems which could result during the workings of this convention, amendments cannot be amended. Now, if the gentleman wants to withdraw the amendment, and it's the pleasure of the convention to allow it to withdraw the amendments and then to submit new amendments, that's fine.

But we are not going to get into the process of writing in amendments to amendments here. Just too much confusion.

Now if you want to make such a motion, and I'm certainly not suggesting that you do, Mr. O'Neill, it's your pleasure. But we are not going to amend amendments. Not unless you all change the rules.

Mr. O'Neill Well, Mr. Chairman, then, because I have been informed that I can tract [track] the language in the second section of our proposal and do what I would like for this amendment to do without any question, I ask that I be allowed to withdraw my amendment and resubmit it as with the language suggested by Mr. Alario.

→ [Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, I have been informed by several members of my committee that this language could be very appropriately inserted in a later section of our article.

With leave of the convention, I would ask that I be able to withdraw my amendment...

Mr. Henry They haven't been introduced, Mr. O'Neill. You are in real good shape if you don't want to go with them right now.

Mr. O'Neill Well to expedite matters, Mr. Chairman, I'll do that.

Mr. Henry Mighty fine. Thank you sir.

[Previous Question ordered on the Section.
Action passed: 103-8. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Section 2. Sessions—Annual and Extraordinary.

Section 2. A. The legislature shall meet in regular annual sessions. Each year the regular session shall extend for not more than fifty-five legislative days. The legislature shall convene at twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year for not to exceed five calendar days. During this period, no committee shall report, and neither house shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law.

Not later than the close of the fifth calendar day, the legislature shall adjourn and stand in recess until twelve o'clock noon on the second Monday in May, at which time the legislature shall reconvene for not to exceed fifty-five legislative days which shall not extend at any year beyond sixty calendar days following the second Monday in May.

During the interim between adjournment and reconvention, committees of the House may meet and hold hearings, they shall take no vote with respect to any bill or resolution referred to them. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced during any regular session after midnight of the third Monday in May of each year.

Our legislative day is a calendar day on which either house of the legislature is in session.

B. The legislature may be convened at other times by the governor or presiding officer, the written request of a majority of the elected members to each house by the presiding officers of both houses.

The governor, or the presiding officers of both houses, as the case may be, shall issue a proclamation at least five days prior to convening the legislature into extraordinary session. The proclamation shall state the object or objects for convening the legislature in extraordinary session, the date on which the legislature is to be convened, and the number of days for which the legislature is convened.

The power to legislate under the penalty of nullity shall be limited to the object specifically enumerated in the proclamation convening the extraordinary session, and the session shall be limited to the number of days named therein, which shall never exceed thirty calendar days.

Point of Information

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman, in examining line 32, Mr. Poynter read "fifty-five days" instead of fifty days. I assume it is fifty.

Mr. Henry It is fifty. Yes, sir. You are correct.

Explanation

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates. This section actually sets up the sessions for the legislature in so far as regular, annual sessions are concerned. I will discuss only Subsection A of Section 2. It provides in short that the legislature will meet for a period of fifty-five days. Fifty of these days will be days in which the legislature may take final action on measures which are proposed to become law.

The legislature shall convene at twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year for the purpose of organizing, reading bills, introducing bills, referring bills and measures to committees.

Now during this period there will be no action, no final action taken on any matter. This is merely a five-day organizational period. This comes into place particularly every four years in which you have perhaps new legislators elected. It gives them time to meet, organize, perhaps elect officers, establish committees, and refer matters which they have ready for introduction at that time to the committee.

Not later than the close of the fifth calendar day, the legislature shall adjourn and stand in recess until twelve o'clock noon on the second Monday in May. Now, during this period, the committees can possibly meet, have public hearings, do research, hear matters of interest concerning the bills that have been introduced.

It also gives the legislature time to get its staff in order and prepare for the actual legislative session.

There is a specific provision which provides that the committees of the houses may meet, and hold hearings, but shall not vote with respect to any bill or resolution referred to them. This is a safeguard in that the committees cannot act finally on the matters referred to them, but to merely investigate and hold hearings.

No new matter intended to have the effect of law is the next provision shall be introduced during the regular session after midnight of the third Monday in May of each year. This is a cut off point. We have heard many people speak on the proposition of bills being introduced late and having a logjam at the end of the session. This is an effort to clear that up, to provide that bills will be introduced in time to have an appropriate number of days for the committees to meet and act to hear all public bodies, or a public interests, and all people who might want to speak on these matters.

We further define a legislative day as a calendar day on which either house of the legislature is in session. This definition merely is added to give lead-way to the proposition that the legislature has sixty days within to meet its fifty legislative-day period. In other words, if the legislature so desires, it can adjourn for 2 or 3 days, go home, and listen to the constituents and come back and this will not be counted against the fifty legislative days that they can meet. As we have a problem now in annual sessions, you come into sessions for sixty days and if you recess, well your time limit is still running. And we have heard many delegates, and many representatives, and many people professing that the legislature does not have time under the present provisions in order to take care of the business at hand.

This is a very important section. It further deletes the present system of sessions, and as the way we know it, by providing for general annual sessions without referring to fiscal sessions. I will be happy to answer any questions. I think the section pretty much speaks for itself if you read it closely. I feel, personally, that it is a step in the right direction; it gives the legislature the latitude that it might need. But it also protects the public in that it allows for the legislature to come in, organize, take appropriate action that it may need in order to get its business in order before proceeding directly to considering legislation perhaps that it hasn't had an opportunity to review.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Fayard, as I understand the proposal, it provides for what I think is something very good, an interim period. But it also permits legislation to be introduced after an interim period. I see that as announcing one premise and then deviating from it. Do you see a contradiction there?

Mr. Fayard Delegate Derbes, the way I see it the figures that have been provided to us shows that the majority of the legislation, I believe I am right is presently introduced in the first five days and there is a cut off in the constitution at this time that extends beyond this. I feel that the matters... there will be a great majority of matters introduced during this five-day period, to the committee felt that it could not absolutely limit introduction to the initial five-day period in the event that say, active committee hearing on some of the bills that have been introduced made the determination that new legislation, new bills, new measures would have to be introduced.

Mr. Derbes But as I understand the provision, the provision is not established in order to be for the convenience of the legislature. The provision is established in order to encourage public input during an interim period.

So, if that's the purpose of the provision, why not make the five-day period applicable to all bills, the interim period applicable to all bills and perhaps extend the interim period by ten days.

How do you respond to that?

Mr. Fayard Well, we had a great deal of research done in this, and it would appear from the results we came up with, that the five-day period would also be used to a great extent for organizational purposes other than introduction of bills.

Now if, if... we came to the determination that if you limit the introduction to the five-day period, then it may take away time for other organizational purposes. Further, I believe the public is more safeguarded by the provision as drafted in that it would give the public an opportunity to see what legislation would be introduced during that period and give the committees a chance to meet and further allow them an additional week, say, to introduce more bills through their individual legislators.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Delegate Rayburn, Kilpatrick, Casey, Fulco, Ginn, Juneau and many, many others.

Amending the reprinted as engrossed proposal as follows:

Amendment No. 1 on page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following, quote, "Section 2. A. The legislature shall meet annually in regular session for not more than sixty legislative days which need not be consecutive, but no regular session shall continue beyond eighty calendar days after convening. The legislature shall convene at twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced or received by either house of the legislature after midnight of the nineteenth calendar day of the session except by a favorable record vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house. A legislative day is a calendar day on which either or both houses are in session."

Amendment No. 2 on page 2, delete lines one through nine both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment does not make too much change in the present language that is now contained in the committee proposal. It does, however, take out the five-day period where we shall convene for a period not to exceed five days, introduce bills, hold hearings if we so desire, without being able to take any action go home for a certain period and then come back, introduce bills for seven more days and continue our work for a period not to exceed fifty-five days.

These amendments allow the legislature what I think they should be allowed. It provides to meet on the same day and say that we could not meet over sixty days in an eighty day period which means that the legislative... when either body of the legislature in session, that will be a legislative day. But it does prevent us from having Saturdays and Sunday charged against the Legislative day if we are not in session. I have seen in the last session, when the legislature had to meet on a Sunday, and I don't think it's good for this legislature to meet on a Sunday, but because of the time element and because Sunday was a legislative day, we had to meet on Sunday to get our work done. I don't think that's right. These amendments give the right to the legislature to meet sixty days. If we want to convene, call ourselves in session, not necessarily call ourselves in session because we will be in session, introduce bills for fifteen days and go home for ten days, we can do that under the provisions of my amendment.

But I can truthfully tell you since with my experience in the legislature, if we meet five days and we are not allowed to vote, that's going to be five days wasted. When you come back and come back in session, you are going to have to go through the same procedure before you vote on a bill. You are going to have to have probably the same argument because if it's a close vote, one side or the other won't yield, you are going through the same procedure again before you can take a final vote.

And another thing that I see with the present committee proposal is adopted in 1974, the legislature will convene on April 22 and will recess on April 26 and will come back on May 13 which is a sixteen-day waiting period.

In 1975, and I don't know what it will be in 1980, but I did find a '75 calendar, in 1975 the legislature will convene on April 28th, the same month and same day as '74, we will recess five days afterward which we will be May 5 and will come back May 12, a nine day lapse. So, in the next two years coming up, we will have a variation between a sixteen-day waiting period and a nine-day waiting period. And if you would apply the same formula to this convention, we were provided to meet from January to January. If you would provide the same percentage formula which I believe five days out of fifty-five days is about nine percent, you would provide the same formula to this proposal as the language it carries at this moment, we would meet over here one-third of our time or almost one month, I mean thirty days. We would meet thirty days and would not be able to vote or would not be able to take action.

I merely mention that to show you where I think this is going to cause a lot of problems. Now I know who wants this. And if your ears haven't been plugged lately, I think you know because it's been well lobbied. But let me say to the lobbyists in this state, that they don't need a cool-off period to lobby, they do pretty good lobbying when you are in session. They have in the past. But I know what they want to do, I know what they'd like to do. They'd like to get us over here and have us in session for five days, hear our arguments, hear how we're feeling, but no record vote. Then they've got a lapse of ten or fifteen days to try to persuade us to change our minds. Oh, it won't hurt you to change your mind. Nobody really knew how you felt to start with. No record of it. I know that's behind it.

And I think that the legislature should have the right if they think we should meet five days or ten days and go home for ten days, that should be left up to the members of that body. And I may never be a member of that body after this term. I don't really know. But I don't think the constitution should say to the person who runs for the office, "you've got to go to Baton Rouge, you've got to meet five days, you can't vote on nothing." Oh, no. You can't take a vote, but you've just got to go over there and be seen. You know how many would be seen? Not enough to see.

Who's going to sit in a committee all day, day in and day out, when they can't vote? Then when we come back, we've got to go over the same procedure again. And I have no quarrel with the waiting period. I think you're going to see that whether you put it in the constitution or not, I think you're going to see it. I think it's a good thing. But I don't think it's good to tell us that we've got to be in session five days, we've got to go home, we've got to come back, we've got seven more days to introduce bills, and then we go to work. I think that that should be left to the members that desire to run for the office and get elected and I ask the adoption of the amendments.

Questions

Mr. Roy Delegate Rayburn, I just have a technical amendment. On your last sentence, would you agree to strike "or both houses" and the word "are and is" and just say "legislative days of the calendar year on which either house is in session" because I think that's exactly what you mean.

Mr. Henry No sir, you can't amend the amendments now.

Mr. Roy I didn't think I could. I certainly have no objection to it.

Mr. Rayburn The purpose of that, Mr. Roy, is this, I think that we are entitled to a little leeway, and I can truthfully tell you that in the session that we just completed, I'm Chairman of the Finance Committee, the House Appropriations, Mr. Munson, did you meet a week or ten days prior to the session?

Mr. Henry They met a week.

Mr. Rayburn Met a week prior to the session, then they held regular committee meetings after the session convened. The Senate got a two million dollar appropriation bill five days before we had to have it on the Governor's desk. I merely mention that to show you some of the problems we are confronted with, some of the problems we have that if you have never served, you don't know about, and that's the reason that I'm asking you to adopt these amendments. Let us meet sixty days. Let us figure out the way we want to meet. If we want to come in for ten days and introduce bills, this. There is nothing in here within fifteen days or nineteen calendar days which will give us an opportunity not to count Saturday and Sunday against us if we want to go home. After all, some of us have families. You're all business people. You like to be home on the weekend, and I think it's not good for the dignity of this state for us to have to meet on a Sunday, but we've been forced, in the past, to that because of the time element. And I'm merely trying to say that with this amendment, you will let us kindly arrange our working schedule in the manner that we think is best suited for us.

Mr. Flory Mr. Rayburn, you mentioned in your earlier remarks that the five day period would be a time which would be wasted. Do you think it is wasted if you allow the public to know what is being introduced and give them opportunity to find out what's in the legislature?

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Flory, there is nothing in here that says we shall meet five days. There is nothing in here that says we shall hold hearings. It merely says we may meet. A committee may meet, and hold hearings if they so desire. Now you have been around the legislature for a long time, not quite as long as I have, but you have been there a pretty good while, and you've seen day and day when the legislature was not in session, we go to our groups to have committee meetings. You've seen that, Mr. Flory, and you know I'm telling the truth. And that's one reason that I think it would be five days that we couldn't take advantage of, and that's my reason for opposing it.

Mr. Flory If course I can't answer for the diligence of the members of the legislature to when they attend meetings, but my second question to you is that if you have the pre-filing, and I think the committee proposal does require that they meet and have the pre-filing five day period, but allows them to adjourn prior to the expiration of the five days, and then you recess. Don't you think that if you go back and meet with your people and you find out from them what their views are if you have made up your mind and if they can convince you otherwise, don't you think it would be wise to do that?

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Flory, if I'd spend five days over here meeting with someone didn't have to vote. I might not know how he felt. I might not know what would be the final product of that committee. I might tell my people it looks like they're going to kill it and when I come back and take a final vote, they'd find that I'd changed my mind or some of the committee members had changed their mind. There's no way of expressing feelings from people that don't have a chance to vote.

Mr. Flory Isn't it true though, that they would have knowledge of what the contents of the bills are to discuss with you at that time?

Mr. Rayburn My people have that knowledge now. They see it in the paper ever morning what bill was introduced, if there is something they want to know about, they call me and I forward them a copy of the bill as soon as I can get it printed. In this particular procedure, the bill wouldn't even be printed. I couldn't send them a copy.

Mr. Nunez Senator Rayburn, in your proposal, it would seem to me that we are committing ourselves, or the legislature is being committed, to an eighty day proposal. For instance, when I and everybody else who looks forward and says we will be in session for sixty days, what you're doing is changing that sixty day period to, in effect, would be an eighty day period. We'd have to commit to eighty days to attain a sixty working day period. Is that correct?

Mr. Rayburn Well it provides for a sixty day session in a given period not to exceed eighty days, which means that Saturday and Sunday wouldn't be counted a Legislative day. However, under this provision if the Legislature desired to meet and go sixty days straight through, they could. If they desired in the odd years to have a thirty day session, they can. If they desire to have a 45 day session, they can. They just cannot exceed a sixty day session in an eighty day period, Senator Nunez, and my purpose for that, the original provision adds up to approximately eighty days, and the reason for that was that I wanted to try to get away from working on weekends if we could, particularly on Sundays.

Mr. Nunez My point is, when you say the Legislature shall meet at 12 o'clock on the fourth Monday in April of each year, and if I'm planning ahead, as a Legislator and also as a businessman and what have you, and trying to design my future time, in effect I don't know what days we will meet, but I will have to say from the fourth Monday in April I have to look forward to eighty days, whether they be consecutive days or otherwise, we'll be working for sixty days but it will be an eighty day period. The point that I am trying to make is that if the problem is in the thirty day session, and I think that's the problem, because having served in the Legislature for the past few years the thirty day fiscal session seems to present a problem. The sixty day annual sessions every even number years doesn't seem to have a problem. Would you be acceptable to a provision that would just put us in sixty annual days, sixty day sessions annually? And spell out that we shall meet the second Monday of May, just like we do now, and the sixth Monday of April, just like we do now in the regular session, so to speak. That way we would put the Legislature in an annual sixty day session without going the eighty days and the other terminology you have in here.

Mr. Rayburn Senator Nunez, if this amendment fails, I certainly would welcome that amendment. I think it is far better than the one we now have before us in the original proposal.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Rayburn, you stated awhile ago that this actually gives you a little bit more flexibility than what the original proposal has, and this is what you feel that the Legislature needs. Would you be in favor of being constitutionally provided with, the flexibility of saying that the Legislature shall meet in annual sessions as provided by law, which allows the Legislature to pass laws then, determining exactly when their regular sessions will be and how they will set them up and give this freedom to the Legislature to do this?

Mr. Rayburn I'm trying to do that. Not quite as fully as you stated, but I'm trying to do that, but I certainly would have no objections to that if this fails.

Mr. Henry Senator, you might wind up your remarks if you have anything else to say.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, and members, I hope you will go along and adopt this amendment. I can truthfully tell you that I think it's in the best interest. It will give the Legislature a right to schedule their work and to, I think, better handle their work, and I think this is far better than telling the Legislature, and it's plain in the proposal here, that you shall meet and convene at 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year, not to exceed five calendar days. I just think that's going a little too far. I think, in my opinion, that's going to be five days that will not be fully utilized by the Legislature, and I ask you to adopt the amendments.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fayard Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, I would like to get up here and say that my committee is behind me 100% in the proposal which I have previously explained to you. I was sitting down at my desk just now, I counted on this floor amendment the names of six of my committee members. I don't know what happened last night when I went home to say hello to the people back home, but something happened. So I'm speaking on behalf of myself. I believe that, I have one with me.

I do not have much in opposition to Senator Rayburn's amendment. However, I think that the section as presented to you by the committee is a better provision. We have studied this over a period of approximately three to four months. We started out with the premise of having wide open sessions. The Legislature shall meet in annual sessions as provided by law, and we have come down to a provision which I think, not only protects the public, but gives them in the terms, at least the phrase of one of my committee members, a bargain. It allows the public to be kept informed of exactly what is going on. It allows the public to have an opportunity to appear before committee meetings.

It allows the public to be more informed on bills and measures introduced prior to the actual legislative vote on these measures. It was a provision made about the different time periods as a result of the sort of waiting period or interim period. At least the public would know what these time periods are. It's in the constitution. It's established by the constitution. It's very simple if you look at the chart that was passed out on your desk, and this is to come in. I do not oppose the concept of allowing the Legislature to be very flexible, however, I think the dates and times on which the Legislature meets should be established in the constitution. There may be a difference between nine and fifteen days, but if you allow the amendment to be passed, the Legislature would be possible to come in in one year for one day and then recess for twenty days. The next year it could come in for two days and then recess for four days, or what have you. I don't see how the public could be more informed by allowing the passage of this amendment. I further think that insofar as the lobbyists are concerned, that it doesn't bother me that much. I feel like that most of the legislators are over here for the public and that they do what the public wants, and that they want their public to know what is happening. It seems very odd to me that every four years you have new Legislators coming over. They are allowed to take office one day and then start deliberation on the Appropriations Bill and matters of public interest the next day, and it was the intent of the committee to try to solve this problem. To give the Legislature the opportunity and the time to maybe meet for five days, organize, consider measures, refer them to committee, get freshman Legislators oriented and then come back to hear the matters, say within a week, fifteen days, whatever the law provides. I further think that this is the only possible solution to two problems. One is the fact that you have advocates of open-ended annual sessions without any restrictions, and then you have advocates trying to limit the Legislature to meet say fifteen days a year, thirty days a year or go back to keep the fiscal session. In my personal opinion this proposal, Section 2A, as presently drafted solves these problems, and it does allow the public to know exactly when the Legislature meets and it's a mandate to the Legislature that they must be organized prior to taking final action on any matter. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I rise with Calvin Fayard as a member of the Legislative Committee and I too ask what happened overnight. By a vote of 8 to 1, late yesterday, we adopted the proposal that you have in front of you. I too wonder what happened overnight. Let me say that from the beginning of our committee, the beginning of our hearings, I have been in favor of a short session. Various other members of our committee have voted from anywhere from a 45 day annual session to a 120 day session, so I really wonder where most of them do stand. I believe, with Mr. Fayard, that the proposal we worked out does have merit, and even though it does not have exactly what I would like to see, as far as the last 10 days, it as did eight other members of our committee whose names I see on the amendment now before us. In any length of time, the Legislature is going to what they currently do now. In 1971 in the fiscal session, a total of 171 bills were enacted. I'm sorry, a total of 114 bills were enacted. One hundred and thirteen of these bills were enacted during the last two weeks. In the 1972 regular general session, a total of 542 bills were enacted. Yet again, within the last two weeks, 440 of these bills were enacted. The theory that I have explained before my committee since we began in January, is that work expands to fill the time, and any length that we have, the work is going to fill the time right up until the end. We're talking about an eighty day session right now. Sixty of those days in session. That's nearly three months. I really wonder if all of the Legislators would really like to be here that long. It's the middle of spring, things are happening, and I really wonder if they do really want to spend that much time here in Baton Rouge. Mr. Chairman, I am informed by the Clerk that there are ten amendments to this resolution currently pending before us. I would hate for the fate of all these resolutions to hang upon the vote on this one resolution. Keeping that in mind, I hereby move that we resolve into a committee as a whole to hear the rest of the amendments, to hear it discussed and to get all of them before us. I know that Mr. Riecke has amendments, and I know that many other delegates have amendments. Therefore I request that we resolve into the committee as a whole to hear all of these. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Mr. O'Neill, would you mind telling us what the purpose of resolving ourselves in the committee as a whole. We are all here now on the floor. What would be the purpose? Do you have witnesses that you want to bring before the committee as a whole, or just what is the purpose?

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Tapper, there are ten amendments pending right now. All of them different than the amendment we have before us. The fate of those ten amendments rests on how this one is voted. I should think that in courtesy to the other delegates who have amendments, in courtesy to me as a delegate, that I would like to hear all of them discussed. The merits of all of them. I've heard all of this testimony on my committee and would like that the whole convention be allowed to have the benefit of this testimony.

Mr. Tapper Now don't you realize, Mr. O'Neill, that even in the committee as a whole we would be progressing in the same manner as we are here on the floor. That there would be no change in the rules of procedure in the committee as a whole except to bring in witnesses to testify

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Tapper, we can take no final action while in the committee as a whole. Am I correct?

Mr. Tapper You are correct.

Mr. O'Neill Well then, we can't take final action on any of these amendments. All we can do is hear them discussed.

Mr. Tapper But wouldn't the better procedure be to ask the Clerk to read all of the amendments before we take final action on the floor rather than going to the committee as a whole? I can't see what your problem is in discussing them on the floor of the convention.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Tapper, if the Clerk can read them all that still doesn't allow the authors of these amendments to discuss them with us and present their views.

Point of Order

Mr. Stovall The motion to go into a committee of a whole is not debatable, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Henry Mr. Stovall, you are exactly right, but I thought that Mr. Tapper had a point of order or of information, which apparently he did. Now the motion as stated is incorrect, I believe, in accordance with the rules, Mr. O'Neill.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Chairman, I understand that the rules require that we state an allotted amount of time that we recess into the committee as a whole. I would suggest two hours, and ask that all delegates concur.

[Motion to resolve into Committee if the Whole rejected: 30-79.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Derbes What I like about the proposal as originally suggested by the committee is that it is specific and it is reliable. It sets forth in clear and concise terms, a period of introduction and a period of deliberation and a period of input where various members of the state Legislature can hear from their constituents back home. It has been suggested that the original proposal of the committee will redound only to the advantage of lobbyists. I suggest to the contrary. I think that this convention as an indication of what happens to a legislative body, and certainly the House of Representatives and Senate of this state, are well lobbied by the special interest groups. The only people who are not heard as thoroughly as they should be, are those back home. As originally proposed, the committee resolution would permit a period of deliberation and a period of consideration. I suggest to you that the reason, perhaps, why some people oppose it, is because frankly they just don't want to be bothered with the voters back home. They don't want to have to go home after introduction of legislation and listen to yeas and nays and suggestions as to exactly what should occur. I am reminded in the recent session of the Legislature of some, I think, very quickly and unfortunately hastily considered juvenile law proposals which were passed and then vetoed by the Governor. It occurs to me that although certainly measures were needed in that area, if they had been considered more carefully and more thoroughly, if more local input had occurred, perhaps in final form they would have been better pieces of legislation. So I commend to your attention the original proposal of the committee and urge that you reject the amendment. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Drew Mr. Derbes, on the question of going home and discussing these matters. With fifty days, would you tell us when we are going home and discussing the bills that are introduced between the second Monday and the third Monday of May?

Mr. Derbes I, like you, Mr. Drew, have misgivings about that aspect of the proposal. I assume that the proposal represents a compromise. I can live with the compromise. I would rather see some reliable, specific period of deliberation on some portion of all of the bills introduced in any given session of the Legislature rather than in open, free-for-all type system where the public can only rely upon the will of any particular legislative session. I would rather see something specific that deals with some significant number of bills, rather than nothing at all.

Mr. Drew Under that statement, Mr. Derbes, then should you not be supporting Mr. Rayburn's amendment which would give us the opportunity to do what you're talking about.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Derbes Except that it is not as specific as I think it needs to be.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to say, with reference to the draft of this particular Section A, it's not exactly as I would have drafted, but I can tell you I feel that having been in the Legislature for some time, that it is a vast improvement over what we have now. I particularly like the feature about the introduction of bills. Five days or whatever period of time the Legislature wants to spend for that time, and then going home and looking over the bills, talking to your constituents. Sure, you might be subject to lobbyists, but who are your lobbyists? They are going to be your friends and neighbors back home. They are going to talk to you about those bills, and those are the type of lobbyists I like to listen to. There is only one little correction that I'd like to make on this particular provision which I think would make it a better one. In order to do that, I'm going to have to ask you to reject Senator Rayburn's amendment. As I calculate the days in an sixty day period, you are going to have at least eight Sundays and eight Saturdays. Sometimes you will have as many as nine Sundays and nine Saturdays. I don't like for the Legislature to meet on Saturday and Sunday, if we can possibly avoid it. So I do have an amendment proposed to change the sixty day period to seventy day period, and let the Legislature meet only fifty days during that seventy day period, which will be Saturdays. Sometimes you will have to meet on a Saturday or Sunday if the Legislature does not see fit to do that. Otherwise, I'd say leave the provision of tract 'A' exactly as the committee has drafted and proposed it, except for that slight change. For that particular reason, I'm going to ask you to reject Senator Rayburn's amendment because I think we should be in the Legislature in the light, rather than in the dark as we have been doing over the past fifty years. I'd just like to close with this one statement with reference to answer Senator Rayburn's business about not voting in the five day period. I don't know very many votes we've ever taken that first five days of the session, anyway, so I have passed any legislation that five day session, so I don't think it's going to make that much difference.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman, and members of the convention, I won't take too much time on my remarks and belabor the issue too long. I do urge you to adopt the amendment proposed by Mr. Rayburn. The proposal as it exists, and I'm not referring to the amendment of Mr. Rayburn's, the proposal as it exists really, and I don't intend to make any derogatory remarks at all toward anyone, but as drafted, it really presents, I think, a tremendous amount of difficulties. I think that the real key to the wording which presents some problems, and I think the proposal of Mr. Rayburn really cleans up and makes more perfect the proposal for the purpose of calling the Legislature into regular session. Much has been said about the idea of introducing legislation and going back home for two weeks, and then coming back again and then really a hodgepodge of legislation. To give legislators the opportunity to go home and talk to their constituents and to their people about the legislation that is introduced. Let's face it. Let's not kid ourselves about the method of introducing legislation that the proposal has right now. In the first five days of a legislative session there will be no little legislation introduced, that there will be little for a legislator to go back home and talk to his constituents about. Because, as it is right now, and human nature will dictate, that the large percentage of legislation will be introduced after this fifteen day waiting period, so to speak. And that's what's going to happen, and there will be the usual rush then, to try to consider the legislation in Committee, to try to consider it on final passage in both Houses. Mr. Rayburn's proposal solves many of our problems, permits the Legislature by its own mechanics, to establish the method of introduction. To have committee hearings without the Legislature being in session. To have committee hearings during this eighty day period to properly clean up and consider legislation. There are many merits to Mr. Rayburn's proposal, and I urge you to adopt his amendment.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Mr. Casey, is it not correct that some of the remarks in the previous speech was about going home one night and coming back and everything was changed. Did you hear that remark made?

Mr. Casey I certainly did, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. Stagg Well, it is not a fact that I appeared before your committee on Tuesday afternoon when the committee was discussing a sixty day session with a 120 day period and that that motion on that afternoon passed 4-2. Is that correct?

Mr. Casey That's absolutely correct, and if you would like, I might elaborate on that. There have been many proposals before our committee. Personally, I'm in favor of letting the Legislature decide how long we're going to be in session, and I so moved during the considerations held by the committee. I was defeated. The sixty legislative days in the 120 days was a compromise, but you are absolutely correct that all of a sudden it wasn't an overnight situation. It was a morning situation where the present proposal was a sudden development and there it was. I was the only one on my committee that voted against it, and I have no complaints. That's the democratic system. Frankly, I'll tell you what happened last night. I don't like the present proposal and neither did Mr. Rayburn, and we worked together on it, talked to people. Got some votes and that's why it's before the convention today. I'll pull no bones about it. That's the democratic process.

Mr. Stagg I share your approval of the Rayburn substitute and I shall support it. I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen. I'm one of those who has an amendment that I've worked pretty hard on and talked to a lot of delegates about, and I've found my amendment quite popular, and I would like the opportunity for you all to hear it. If we pass favorably on this one, you will kill all the other amendments that are coming up. During the early part of this convention we were sent a lot of literature, one of which was notification that about six years ago the Louisiana Law Institute in studying the constitution had recommended at that time that there be a split session of the legislature for the purpose of first introducing bills and then a recess so that the legislators and the people back home could study the bill and vote more intelligently on them. You've heard it said earlier that there were twenty-eight hundred bills—some speaker said three thousand—introduced in the 1972 session of the legislature. Nobody can tell me or you, I'm sure, that every legislator knew what was in those twenty-eight hundred bills, some of them 30 and 40 pages long. In my campaigning for this office, at which I was elected by the people of my district, this issue of the planks in my platform and I found the advocacy of a split session, in that the people back home would know what was going on if this wanted to take the trouble to know what the most popular thing I talked to the people about, that I think I'm probably responsible for my election. I believe that you ought to give those of us who have amendments to follow this one an opportunity to be heard. If you vote favorably on this one you're going to kill them. I think that everybody in your district, each one of you and everyone of you, would like to know in advance, thirty days in advance, before the legislature considers these bills that come up. This will give the legislators an opportunity to hold the committee meeting in that period of time. If you've been in the legislature when they have committee meetings and there's some bill that's going to hurt your business or you think is going to hurt your area and you want to testify they'll set a time for the committee meetings. Then you go all the way up there from New Orleans or Shreveport and you find that the committee meeting has been cancelled and you have to go back home. These are the things that we want to try to correct in this constitution. Gentlemen and ladies, please vote against this amendment.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham Mr. Riecke made the statement that if this amendment passes, it kills all subsequent amendments to this particular section. That's not correct, is it? The other amendments will still be considered and might supersede this one if they're passed. Will it not?

Mr. Henry The other amendments certainly would be considered. If this amendment were adopted and we began considering the other amendments because of the way they were worded and this amendment had been adopted they may have to be redrafted but they would be considered.

Mr. Abraham His amendment could still be considered, would it not?

Mr. Henry Yes sir.

Mr. Riecke May I answer that?

Mr. Henry Points of order I'm supposed to speak to, Mr. Riecke, but in as much as you still have the floor, I will let you proceed.

Mr. Riecke This is in direct opposition to a split session and if you pass this, there's no chance of the other amendments on a split session being even considered. You've passed what they've advocated.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Madam Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise in opposition to Senator Rayburn's amendment. He mentioned a little lobbying on the committee's proposal. Looks like there was a little bit of the lobbying going on last night and at breakfast this morning from what I am told. And that's good too.

Let me say to you that those of you that can recall the last referendum election the issue of an annual sixty day session was submitted to the people of this state.

And the people of this state decisively rejected the annual sixty day session of the legislature. Now, I submit to you that the work of this convention has to be adopted by the people of this state.

I have for a number of years and the group of people that I represent, have taken the position that if used as intended when it was originally adopted by the people of this state, the fiscal session of the legislature where they would consider only fiscal matters delve into the anticipated revenues, look into the various state agencies of this state and their budget and determine whether or not these funds were being used as the reasons and purposes appropriated. That the state could save untold millions of dollars. I still believe that.

But it appears based upon the actions of the legislature over the past years that they have no intentions of using the fiscal session for that purpose. Under the theory that it takes the fiscal session and the regular session to accomplish the business of this state I am now prepared to in light of that, support the committee's proposal because I think that proposal does provide adequate safeguards to the public. It does provide for a workable legislative session on an annual basis. However, what is contained in amendment Senator Rayburn has is an eighty day session of the legislature every year. Put it anyway you want to. That is exactly what it means.

It does not provide for a prefilling period and I have heard I would suggest a far majority of the legislature repeatedly over the years say that they needed a prefilling session. They needed a period of time with which they could go home and get the reaction of the voters in their district as well as to interpret what is contained in the legislation that had been introduced.

I admit that it is a possibility that Senator Rayburn's proposal that could be done. But there is no guarantee in that proposal that it will be done.

Let me suggest to you what could very easily happen.

The legislature could be in session three or four days a week. Adjourn and hold committee meetings one or two days a week or a remainder of the week. And you've got eighty session days of the legislature.

The last three regular sessions 600 bills, House and Senate have been introduced in the first five days of the legislature. I suggest to you that is a good case load for the legislature to begin work after they come back during the interim period from the prefilling period and committees proposals and start work on the first day of the session when they come back the second Monday in May.

I believe that what is contained in Senator Rayburn's proposal will not be accepted by the people of this state. Already have spoken against the annual sixty day session without any restrictions whatsoever in the period prescribed in his amendment.

I can't help but believe, that the public of this state is entitled to know on an annual basis what they can expect and I can't help but believe that the legislature itself, should want to have a prefilling period spelled out for the purpose of prefilling. Where no action could be taken until the bills were printed to get some reaction. And let the public find out what is in those bills. Now if the public is not entitled to that, and they are paying the bill, then you tell me what they are entitled to.

I believe that if you reject this amendment that in the further deliberations upon this subject if the committee proposal does not suit your fashion that other proposals will be considered that you might find more possible than what is presented here. Once you adopt this amendment, for all practical purposes, the majority of the delegates to speak. And as a practical matter, how can you get adopted a subsequent proposal that might even be a better proposal.

I ask you to give this consideration, reject this amendment. Let us establish in the constitution a prefilling period with a period of recess for the public's good. Let them find out what has been presented and give them adequate opportunity to come to the legislature and be heard. After all, that is what a democracy is all about, representing the views of the majority.

How can that majority be heard if they don't know what's going on? Under the committee's proposal, I suggest to you that can be done. Now, I have been attending in the committee meeting when they adopted their proposal I heard the chairman of this convention speak in favor of that proposal. And I agree that perhaps it is now time to spell out on an annual basis what should be done with the sessions of the legislature and under what conditions they can meet and should meet. And I ask that you reject the amendment and give favorable consideration to the committee's proposal as it comes up.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Madam Chairman, fellow delegates, some reference was made earlier to I think six members of the committee as to what they were last night. Now, I cannot speak for the other five, but I would like to tell you what I did.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

I had supper at the Piccadilly. I had a hamburger, turnip greens and custard pie. Thereafter, I went to my apartment and slept. I saw Mr. Casey in the interim period and indicated to me he said "do you think you would favor a proposal wherein we would remove the five year limitation which I, publicly and in committee and in committee voiced objection to. And to extend the period to eighty days. Which I expressed concern over. And I said yes, I think that would probably be a little better than what we have. And he said if such a proposal would be proposed would you join as a co-author and I said I would. If that is the overnight action that they are referring to I admit guilt.

I might tell you that I offered the original provision that would allow for 120 day period. For sixty legislative days.

I have backed off of my provisions to attempt to arrive at what I thought was a realistic, strengthening fact of the legislature. And that's why I think this amendment is good.

I do not plead infallibility and I do plead that I can be educated by other members of this convention. I thought for edification purposes you would like to know that we considered at length most of the proposals that are being suggested as amendments. And while we are talking about lobbyist's provisions overnight may I remind you, that at the committee hearing yesterday, for the first time, to my knowledge an amendment was proposed by Mr. O'Neill. Which in essence would have reinserted into the constitution what we have now in fiscal sessions.

I submit to you, I think he did in good conscience but the same would apply. Where does it come from?

Ladies and gentlemen, what I am attempting to tell you is this. Over the committee proposals the Rayburn amendment does nothing to mean more than remove the five day limitation which I think it is a little presumptive on my part to say in the future that five days will be enough. Additionally, it extends the period from sixty days to eighty days and I favor that.

I think in contrast to some of the statements that have been made that the provision as now written allows for a suspensive period and you can have split sessions. It does that. I think that is a realistic, practical solution to the strengthening of the legislature in this state and for that reason, I favor its adoption. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Madam Chairman and delegates to the convention, I want to basically reiterate most of what Delegate Flory said and just add a few other little comments.

One, it appears to me that we are getting right back to the same situation of there being a difference in somebody's mind between one, five, ten, twenty days when we have had a committee that has heard probably everybody's argument and what have you.

Then we get to this other argument that is made that for some reason has a veiled statement by some of these legislators don't like working on Saturdays and Sundays.

Well, if we judge the future by the past we find that the legislature passes most of its laws in the last--probably ten days of the session. Therefore, under Senator Rayburn's proposal since there is no specific time that they must meet probably the same thing will happen again. For the first ten, fifteen, twenty days the legislature will dilly-dally and finally it will have to get down to business and people will be meeting on Saturdays and Sundays anyway. That argument doesn't sell as far as I'm concerned. I think the idea that the people are entitled to know when a legislature convenes and about when it shall adjourn. Not to exceed one sixty days is enough. I don't think we have to provide that the people should not be sure whether the legislature will last sixty or eighty days. I think sixty days is enough since we are now having annual regular sessions as opposed to the other session.

I think it is a good idea that any young legislator coming down here has a chance to get his feet wet by providing a grace period during which he may be able to return home if he chooses or he can sit back and listen to the comments that are made either by way of the news media or what have you with respect to as Mr. Flory pointed out to some 800 odd number of bills that have been introduced in the past.

It may be that this provision could be worked out a little better but we still get to the same point of no return. That each of us has some little idea that we would like to get across that may be a little better than what the other guy has and in the end, we're just spending a lot of time.

I believe that the provision that the committee has come up with after hearing all the people is the best thing we can do. I think all the other arguments are specious. I don't think they hold weight about the Saturday and Sunday. I don't think they hold weight about not--you're [your] not being able to get the pulse of the convention of the people because you haven't had a score vote.

I think that the young legislator having a chance to meet his fellow legislators to know how they stand generally is in a better position for final analysis to determine what legislation he will or will not support and then go back--come back here and get busy on it.

I move the adoption of the proposal of the committee and the rejection of the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Madam chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of the Rayburn amendment. I have been in the legislature now since Governor Long's days. Two sessions with Governor McKeithen, one with Governor Davis and now well into this session. Having passed two legislatures already which normally is half of the time.

You hear a lot about what has happened the last ten days of the session. Yes, most of the bills are passed the last ten days. After ten days you finally concur in all of the bureau amendments. That's the days that run the massive of suit bills authorizing suits through.

Yes, that is bogged up on the last few days.

That's the days that you catch the concurrence in the amendments from the other houses concur or not concur in the conference committee reports. And to say that is the time you pass most of the legislation is certainly misleading.

There is only two or three issues in this that I want to specifically call your attention to.

Number 1 under the original proposal, the legislature is restricted from acting on any thing the first five days.

Now, all I have heard since this started was we want a free legislature. We want to have the right to serve the people. And now you want to tie them down to [to] the [to] where they can't even vote when they are in session.

It makes a lot of sense.

You are going to say, that for the first five days even though you've got three or four, or five hours that you could be moving legislation you can't vote. Not only you can't vote, you can't introduce the general program--I mean the special appropriation to pay the expenses of the legislature. And certainly if you can't do that you are going to find the employees going a minimum of twenty-five days before they can be paid.

That makes a lot of sense.

With the Rayburn amendment you still are going to meet the same sixty days and you are meeting on the same system of compensation. For legislators you are going to pay the same price for it. The difference is that you are going to meet five days a week to get in the sixty days instead of attempting to meet seven days and nights a week to get in [to] sixty days like we have done in the past.

I have been here and seen oppositionism all high as fifteen and twenty percent. I wonder if you had legislation that had any absolute whatever to it you dare not bring it up. Because of such a short house why, because you are attempting to meet seven days a week and you had a number of people that had to go home one or two days to transact their own business. This leaves them the one or two days to go home and transact business. And certainly I wholeheartedly agree that there should be enough days in the week for us to transact business without having to meet on Sunday. This would leave you the Sunday to be retained as it set out in the commandments.

Would like to cover briefly the three or four things again that I think is the difference.

Number 1, you still maintaining the sixty days. You are releasing the hamstrings on the legislature and letting them move as they see fit according to the work load that they have. You will be permitting them to go forward with the special appropriation bill for instance, to pay the expenses of the legislature which means that they will pay their employees on time.

You will permit the members of the legislature.

As I say, you would take the five day restriction off permit the legislature to go about their work then in accordance with their work load. They can meet, assign bills to committees and in a number of instances go ahead with committee hearings.

If you have the fourteen days waiting period. A five day introduction period at which time nothing can be taken up. Then it will require a suspension of every conceivable rule that you have and taking advantage of the House and the Senate taking up the same subject matter on the third day in the House and the first day in the Senate even to get by with twenty-five days.

And if you go the normal routine, you could easily run in the neighborhood of thirty days before you make a payroll to the employees.

Now, if this makes sense, there is something wrong with me.

You say that we want to give a legislature all the freedom and that is all I have heard since I got here. We want a free legislature that they can move independently. Leave them the five days, let them move as they see fit. And then let them move into other work as the work load would project. And let them assign the work load and work it out. And this is simply what the Rayburn amendment does. So I have urged the adoption of it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Point of Information

Mr. Kean I understand the Chairman to have stated that if the Rayburn amendment passes, that the other amendments that are in the hands of the clerk will be then taken up for consideration.

I rise to ask the question if the Rayburn amendment passes, does that then become the matter on the floor and can that be amended.

Mr. Miller Mr. Clerk will you speak on that please.

Mr. Poynter Yes, Mr. Kean. Certainly, as you stated it is absolutely correct. That amendment would be appropriate in the manner that it has been proposed to delete the previous amendments and insert in lieu thereof the language that they wish to insert. Or in the alternative, amendments could be proposed to the text of the language which would be inserted if the Rayburn amendment is adopted by this convention.

[Record vote ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Rayburn Madam Chairman, fellow delegates, much has been said here about lobbying. I want to take just a moment and tell all of you and ask all of you how many times I lobbied. Yes, I talked to a very few of you, very few. But I want to ask you how many times you have been lobbied by someone speaking in opposition to this bill.

And let's set the record straight. I oppose this original plan and I am happy some of the committee members have authored my amendments because they think I've got a better plan or not. A lot of other people who discuss this.

They said--Mr. Flory said we would have an eighty day session. Well under his provision you could have an eighty day session if the days of the month fell right.

It is about a seventy-six day session like it is. You are going to meet on the fourth Monday for five days and then you are going home the fourth Monday of April you are going home till the second Monday in May. So it's according to where those Mondays fall. That could a three weeks or more to four weeks lap right there.

So there is no big difference in the days, may be [maybe] one or two not over a half a dozen at the most.

Well I want to say to you Rev. Stovall, if this committee proposal is adopted like it is it would put the legislature in about the same category as you and Rev. Landrum.

If you were holding a revival, you would preach your heart out for five days but nobody could join the church. They had to go back home and think it over three weeks, come back and you had to start preaching all over again.

Now, let me say to you, if you don't think time changes things, why are all these amendments here. All of those that appeared this wonderful committee system that we have and it is going to be awful flexible though. Here's the committee's proposal. Here several of them have had a change of heart. They read off something--the first time I ever heard of we introduced a lot of amendments, but I never had my competition read before but I actually don't mind, but you've done that and that's all right. That's all right, I guess. There are about fourteen others up there changed their minds. So the committee system is so fair--so great and so gracious we wasted a lot of time or this committee did that heard this.

You are seeing democracy in its truest form this moment. You are seeing people have a chance to change proposals. You are seeing committee members changing their minds. I have seen that for thirty-two years at the end of this session. Thirty-two years.

When you spend five days meeting, deliberating and don't take a vote and you go back home what are you going to talk about. You're going to tell your people what you talked about while you were over here. They say well did they do. Oh, he didn't do nothing--just talked.

They just talked, you are going to take three weeks to come back. They are going to start talking again. Oh, that sounds good for somebody who wants a little time that had to see a bill they wanted to kill. That would give them five days to kinda look it over and three weeks to kill it.

Well, you don't think I would drop a bill that I know I'm going to have some problems with in that session the first five days, do you. I've dropped one or two when I first came here, but I learned. I caught on.

Any time you drop one in there you are giving opposition that much more time to shoot at it. You know when they get a chance at mine, the last night the last minute before the deadline for introducing.

There's nothing wrong with this proposal. It is letting the legislature do a little bit of what the people elected them to do. It's no eighty day session. It's tied down in a sixty day session. It does give you eighty days to do your work.

And I don't believe that any legislature should convene on a Sunday. And that was one of my intentions was trying to prevent that from happening in the future.

I think I am entitled to a day or two at home to see the baby's mamma. I hope I am.

This would let us work five days a week, take Saturday and Sunday off. Go home and talk to our people if we so desire. Of course most of them, including myself, have usually got somebody who wants to take us on a fishing trip. Or some other kind of little trip. Well, I want to tell it like it is. But I would hate to come over there and meet for five days and discuss bills and go back home and maybe the farm bureau says well what did they do on that House bill so and so—that had so and so to do with—They ain't done nothing. Just talked about it.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

In my opinion that would be five days wasted and that's my main opposition to the proposal in its present form.

I hope you will adopt my proposal. I'm not going to tell you it's perfect but I do think it's an improvement.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Amendment adopted: 84-34. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Mr. Newton has a set of amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and on page 2 delete lines 1 through 9 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 2[...] aid. The Legislature shall meet annually in regular session convening at 12:00 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April for such terms and under such conditions as may be provided by law."

Amendment No. 2. On page 2, delete line 10 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"B. During such times as the Legislature is not convened in regular session, it may be convened by the..."

And Mr. Newton, leave the delegates here at this time need to add an amendment. Now I would simply delete in their entirety Amendments No. 1 and No. 2 proposed by Mr. Rayburn and adopted etc.

Explanation

Mr. Newton This amendment simply allows the legislature to do as it sees fit. I want them to go here to do instead of just part of what they were sent up here to do as Mr. Rayburn said.

It allows the legislature to determine for itself by law, so that the people will have some idea of when the legislature is going to meet and how long it is going to meet.

It sets out the time that the meeting that the legislature will convene in which is the fourth Monday in April. The other amendment is in the nature of a technical amendment to conform the section on extraordinary sessions with the provision of Section 2.

I don't pretend to the eloquence of Mr. Triche but with his permission I would like to adopt his remarks with respect to the responsibility of the legislature that he made earlier this morning.

I think that during the last sixty day session the legislature of the House met fifty-five days during the sixty day session. Probably passed most of the bills in the last few days and I don't know about the rest of you, but I have seen some pretty bad bills that came out of there.

During the thirty day session I understand the House was in session for twenty-eight days.

I think that Mr. Rayburn's amendment is an improvement but I don't think it is enough. I think that this amendment provides sufficient flexibility for the legislature to be able to conduct the business of the state. There are all these amendments wanting different ways of the legislature to meet.

Under my proposal if the legislature so desires it could try some of these, if they work fine, if they don't they have got the right to change it. To get it like it ought to be.

I think there are going to be sufficient pressures on the legislators to keep them from being down here in continuous session. These are responsible people they are responsible businessmen, they are not interested in squandering the state's money as Mr. Rayburn can attest. They are interested in getting down here and getting their work done and going home.

I think there is going to be sufficient pressure from the different interests of the state to keep the sessions within reasonable bounds. That I personally am not worried about [...] of the privilege or right that they would be given to conduct their business for themselves.

I think that one of the next sections proposed to put the legislature on a salary, so am in complete agreement with this. I think that they are on a salary, they are adequately compensated, let them come down here for however long it takes for them to take care of the state's business. And I think one further thing that allowing them sufficient time to meet to consider the budget, to consider any other matters that they need to consider is going to allow them to at least equalize their strength with that of the Governor. And I urge that you accept the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Fellow delegates, I voted in favor of the Rayburn amendment because I felt we needed to give the Legislature flexibility in doing their work. I am in favor of the Newton amendment because I think we should go further than what we did in the Rayburn amendment. Now this gives the Legislature by law, and they will have to do this, they will have to fix their sessions in the method in which they are going to operate, they will do it by law, so everyone in this State will still know exactly for how many days they are going to meet, and by what means they are going to go about their business. Now here again, and I do not have the eloquence of Pappy Triche but I wish I did, you heard him speak on the need for making the Legislature more responsible, if we are able, if we are really responsible for conducting our business, then we are going to have to give them a little bit of authority to go with it. Now let me tell you what this will do as I see it, and I think it is sorely needed. This allows the Legislature once every four years, and this is needed to have an organizational session prior to the election the following year after the election in which they can elect their officers, in which they can appoint their committees, now this is simply good business sense so that when they do come back into session then they are ready to go to work. It allows them if they so desire to have a filing period. More importantly, it allows them time in which to conduct hearings, and it allows them time while they are conducting these hearings to take final votes on whether they are going to report the bill favorably or unfavorably or however it may be so that when the Legislature does come back, the people know exactly what's in these bills they know how they are going to be presented. Now of all things we need immediately the Legislature to deliberate and I believe in giving our Legislators some flexibility, some authority, I believe in trusting them. Now the Legislators are not going to leave this as a wide opened deal, you heard enough debate here today that if they do not take heed of what has been said here a lot of them are not going to be in the office the following term. They are going to be in their sessions, up as they should be but it will be fixed by law, it's not going to be changed very easily, but it does allow that if this system does not work in four, five, six or seven years from now it needs to be changed they will change it, they will pass a law changing it and every body is still put on notice as to exactly how they are going to operate. I am not worried about them extending the sessions so long because they are going to be on an annual salary but more importantly whether they are on an annual salary or not every Legislator needs to know when he is going to be in Baton Rouge so that he can arrange his business at home. He can't afford to just leave it up to the will of the rest of the Legislature to say O.K. we will adjourn now we will come back in so many days. He needs to know from year to year, and for several years exactly how they are going to meet.

Now what we have done before the original proposal was actually writing statutory material into the Constitution, and I am in favor of taking as much statutory material out of the Constitution as we possibly can, and that is exactly what this particular proposal by Mr. Newton does, this amendment that it says that the Legislature will determine for themselves exactly when they are going to meet and what manner it does fix their starting date. Now if I understand correctly, the Legislature itself, the House had a committee and the Senate had a committee studying its mode of operation both of whom came out with recommendations which in effect said that they did need the flexibility of determining their sessions, it did state that they would like to have an organizational session in order to pick their speakers, or their presiding officers, in order to choose their committees and this should be done without the pressure of trying to get bills introduced or anything else. I would strongly urge that this Convention give the Legislature the authority to run its own affairs if we are going to make them an independent branch of government, if we are going to give them the authority to run we have the check of the Legislative branch against the Executive or the Judicial branch then we are going to have to give them the right to run their business, and as far as I am concerned, the proper manner of doing this is by placing the trust in the Legislature, then if I don't like what my Legislator is doing, then my job is to try to vote him out of office the next time. Thank you.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Denney Follow delegates I rise in support of Mr. Newton's amendment and I echo the remarks made by delegate Abraham. Sitting on the committee on the Executive Department, it was our conclusion that we should give power to the Executive, and I think we should give similar power to the Legislature, if we are going to have an efficient operation in this State, we have to trust our elected officials. It seems to me that the Legislature may be able to get finished its business one year in ten days, the next year in eighty days, but if it is going to take them eighty days to do a good job I would rather have them do a good job in eighty days than a poor job in sixty days or any other limited time, then it seems to me that the Legislature is the best judge of how long it takes to get through its business.

Questions

Mr. Duval Mr. Denney, I certainly agree with you that we need a viable and strong Legislature, but the provision that is proposed by Mr. Newton doesn't allow such... a great deal of uncertainty in that it's possible that we could go back to a thirty day fiscal session or its... that the public would not really know from year to year what the session of the legislature would be. Perhaps you could clear me up on that.

Mr. Denney Well I would envision that the Legislature would adopt a statute which would provide for this, if it chose to amend that statute in later sessions because it found it had made an error it would certainly have the right to do so but it would not require a constitutional amendment. If we found that possibly, maybe the fiscal session is better than two sixty day sessions. Personally I don't think so, but it is conceivable that it is, and I would rather let that in the hands, leave that in the hands of the Legislature than try to amend the Constitution every two years.

Mr. Duval Thank you.

Mr. Anzelone Mr. Denney would you agree that the installation of the sixty day provision in this particular article would definitely be dating this constitution?

Mr. Denney Yes, I think it would be dating it.

Mr. Anzelone Could you foresee at some time, the future point in time where in sixty days might not be enough time just as thirty days has proved not to be enough time?

Mr. Denney I agree with you, sir. That was my point in supporting the motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne I am going to make this very short and probably because it would seem at this time that that might well be in a very small minority, but that's not nothing that keeps me from voting my convictions, I want to assure you, and I feel that this provision is as strictly giving no general guidelines to the legislature whatsoever. We sat here, we provided a continued session, we provided more time and I ask you, shall they ever have enough time, and if it is a question of mistrust or dislike or disinterest in these people, but I want to remind all of you, that you and I have been exposed to these people. We find them to be likeable, fine, wonderful people, but ask you, have the people back home, who elected them are they so convinced that we can just turn loose completely at their discretion, and let them do what they so decide in their great wisdom forever, or shall they say, those people who met in Baton Rouge were absolutely wrong in their decision in turning loose completely the legislature with absolutely no guidelines. I am, even though, I be the only delegate, I am opposed to this resolution, I am opposed to this amendment, and I definitely want a roll call vote on this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Jenkins Did you know, Mr. Champagne, that many of us in the legislature feel the same way, and that you are not the only one who feels that way.

Mr. Champagne That's right.

Mr. Jenkins How do you think it would be to have full time people, who are full time politicians running this big government who seldom ever had a chance to go home and be with the people who elected them? Do you think that would make for a representative government?

Mr. Champagne I think it probably, it would contribute to one of the faults that some people attain, is with the Federal Government, that we have people who do nothing but legislate, and that is one of the reasons why we have so much legislation from a Federal level. I don't think that this is the kind of thing that people want, I am told back home we get too much legislation and I think that if, you get people that are sent up here, and spend too much time here, you are going to end up with something very much like our Federal legislation, but you will get it from both sides, from Louisiana and from the United States.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Champagne, don't you think that even under the present system that you could have full time legislators simply through the committee system who would be down here all year long?

Mr. Champagne That's a possibility but it's not a mandate like this might be.

Mr. Abraham Do you have it now? Do you have full time legislators now?

Mr. Champagne We don't probably have it--in fact we do not have it.

Mr. Abraham Du you think there would be any more reason to have it in the future than you would have now under this system here?

Mr. Champagne I certainly think that the possibility is there in the minds of the people who are going to vote for this constitution.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Abraham Would the possibility be any greater then it is now?

Mr. Champagne I would feel that in their mind there is a definite greater possibility. I also feel that this would indeed give...you know how they say, give them enough rope and they will hang themselves...and this might do it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Newton I can see that the most serious objection to this proposal is that the legislature might stay down here all the time. I personally think that these are responsible people. They are businessmen that have businesses to take care of and I think the pressures are going to be sufficient on them to only keep them down here as long as they need to be down here. I think, if we can adopt a provision which will put them on an annual salary, I think that the pressure would be just that much greater for them to tend to their business and get on back home. I urge your favorable support of the amendment. Thank you.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Again we will need to add a fourth amendment to it.

Amendments proposed by Mr. Riecke.

Committee Proposal No. 3 by Mr. Blair et al.

through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 2. A. The legislature shall meet in regular annual sessions. In each year the regular session shall extend for sixty calendar days, the first ten days of which shall be for the purposes of organization and introduction of bills. No bill shall be introduced in either house of the legislature after the tenth calendar day, except by consent of three-fourths of the members elected to each house. On the tenth day of each session the legislature shall recess for a period of thirty calendar days and shall reconvene at noon on the thirty-first day next following the day on which it recessed."

Amendment No. 2, On page 2 delete line 1 and at the beginning of line 2 delete the words, quote Monday in May period, end quote.

Amendment No. 3, On page 2 line 5 immediately after quote, them period, end quote, delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 6 through 9 in their entirety. We need to add now an amendment No. 4 to strike out in their entirety amendments No. 1 and No. 2 proposed by Mr. Rayburn and adopted by the convention on July 13, 1973.

Mr. Henry The gentleman will explain the amendments.

Explanation

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, and gentlemen. I'm not going to take any length of time to explain this. I talked about it before and as you heard the clerk says it has been previously passed out and I think that's almost what happened to it. In view of the fact that there is some forty delegates who told me that they liked the amendment and that they thought it was a good one I'm leaving it on the calendar for you to vote. It--very briefly, it sets up a ten day period for the introduction of legislation, requires the legislature to recess for thirty days to give them and the people a chance to vote, to study it, it allows committees to meet in the thirty day interim, and it does not permit the introduction of any further legislation, except emergency legislation which requires a three-fourths vote. That's it simply.

Questions

Mr. Abraham Mr. Riecke, the intent of the thirty day recess you say is to allow committees to meet during the period.

Mr. Riecke Yes.

Mr. Abraham But there would be no restriction on them taking final action on a bill?

Mr. Riecke The committee could not take any definite action in that time. They would meet, they could hear people who were interested in the legislation that would be considered, but they could take no definite action during the thirty day period until the legislature gets in regular session.

Mr. Abraham Well, there's nothing here to prevent them from doing this, is there?

Mr. Riecke If there isn't, then they want to make recommendations, they can't pass them anyway until they get to the legislature. I don't think it's important. Maybe you do, but I don't.

Mr. Alario Mr. Riecke, I don't see in any place in your proposal where you say what date the legislature shall meet each year. Could you elaborate a bit on that.

Mr. Riecke No, I left that to the legislature to decide when they wish to convene. It says how many days they shall meet. It shall meet ten days for the introduction of legislation and fifty days thereafter. That's provided, but the date of the meeting would be left to the legislature itself.

Further Discussion

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want of rise in support of this proposal by Mr. Riecke because I too ran from my district on the basis that the legislature should meet in annual session. But the people were opposed to any extension of the legislative session unless there was some reason that they could see for extending it. I believe that the split session is an answer to this problem. In this case the legislature would be convened for ten days in which to receive bills. You heard Mr. Rayburn say the original proposed was faulty because it met for five days, it introduced bills, they went home and they came back and they had seven more days in which to introduce bills. This is not true under this proposal. All bills will have to be introduced in the ten day period unless they can get emergency approval by the legislature's three quarter vote. I think that if any of you have been before the legislature, you know that the time for hearing bills has been sandwiched in between meetings of the regular session of the legislature. They have met before the session or after the session. I think in this case you would have a period of time in which hearings could be set and that the people could have an opportunity to appear and present their views. I think that this corrects some of the faults that the Rayburn proposal was introduced to correct, and I would urge your support of this proposal--amendment. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Mr. Sutherland, this is in connection with the question asked by Mr. Alario. According to the amendment as I read it, I believe it reduces the number of days from sixty to forty that the legislature will actually be in session. Is that your interpretation of the amendment?

Mr. Sutherland From sixty to forty?

Mr. Tapper Yes. In other words you are going to meet...the legislature will meet for ten days. Then they will recess for thirty days. That's forty, isn't it? Ten and thirty would be forty.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Sutherland Right.

Mr. Tapper And then they reconvene, but they shall not meet any more than sixty calendar days. Do you consider the thirty days that they are not meeting as part of the sixty days?

Mr. Sutherland I would not consider it as such.

Mr. Tapper What about the committee meetings? Is there anything in the amendment to provide whether or not the committee shall meet or may meet during this thirty day period?

Mr. Sutherland It is my understanding that if they are not prohibited from meeting, they could meet.

Mr. Tapper Thank you.

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Sutherland, wouldn't this thirty day recess period allow time for the legislators to go to their respective districts to deliberate with their constituents and arrive at their general feelings on some of the bills and proposals which might be brought before the legislature?

Mr. Sutherland I think it would. I think it would also give their constituents a chance to understand what the bills were that were introduced in the session and have an opportunity to contact their legislators, if they so desired.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Sutherland, indeed probably the best part of this proposal, would you suggest, is the fact that they do have thirty days in which to get the feelings of their people. In other words, what I'm sensing here is that we are getting a little picking at this idea but really and truly they are not picking at the idea that the thirty days...you do agree that's the big important part of this thing, allowing the people a chance to have been exposed to the bill, not only the people but the legislators themselves. Is that right?

Mr. Sutherland That's correct.

Mr. Champagne Thank you.

Mr. Roy Delegate Sutherland, I'm a little concerned as to, if this passed, when would the legislature meet for the first time and who would call it into session since there is no convening date?

Mr. Sutherland I would assume that the legislature would have to call itself into session or the governor would call it into session.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Sutherland, I...am I correct in assuming that if this amendment were adopted that we would still have only sixty calendar days to be in session which means that each Saturday and Sunday would be a legislative day? If I read it correct, it says sixty calendar days. Then Sunday would be classed a legislative day, if we didn't meet we would just lose it.

Mr. Sutherland I would think so, sir?

Further Discussion

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, this amendment has the effect of curing some of the defects in some of the other previous amendments, some of which have been defeated. The people of the state, as you know, oppose both the open end session and they also oppose the so-called thirty day fiscal session or any kind of fiscal session for that matter. This amendment would correct all of those defects. In addition the amendment increases from five days to ten days the period during which the legislators can introduce bills. Then it allows thirty days to digest those bills, debate them back home, study them, determine opposition or support, etc. I think this amendment does quite a few things that this convention needs to do and I appeal to you in a sense of fair play that is consistent with what we have been doing and what we have been trying to do in this state and we support this bill. I would ask you that we go back to the principle of Mr. Perez where we voted unanimously to endorse or to pass his amendment. I am asking you to vote one hundred percent for the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, this is a very serious amendment which could be very detrimental to the legislative process. I wish you would consider this very seriously and give it your full attention. The way that it is worded, and I don't believe that it is intended to be worded the way that it is, is that the legislature would go into session for ten days to introduce bills and refer them to committee, and then stand in recess for a thirty day period. Now what would happen under the way that this is worded is that when the legislature goes back into session, all they can meet is for an additional twenty day period. Can you imagine handling three thousand bills in a twenty day period on the floor of the House and on the floor of the Senate. Talk about mass confusion, and bad legislation getting through and pressure groups working like mad...that's exactly what this would cause, mass confusion. Gentlemen, this is extremely serious. Even now under the present law, we have fifteen days to introduce legislation why shorten it to ten days? We have twenty days to introduce constitutional amendments. The Rayburn amendment as adopted, I submit to you, offers a viable, flexible, versatile method of handling legislation. The legislature itself can afford the split session concept. This is an extremely serious, detrimental amendment and I urge its defeat.

Questions

Mr. Riecke I don't see how you interpret that that way at all. To me it's very clear. It says the regular session shall extend sixty days, ten days of which is for the introduction of bills. Now, how you get ten from sixty to be twenty, I'll never understand. If it is a question of form, it would seem to me you have a provision for that in that whoever makes the bills in their final form...if there's some ambiguity in it that they could change it. But to me this is perfectly clear. This gives you fifty days. I don't want anybody who considers this to feel that that was the intent.

Mr. Henry What was your question, Mr. Riecke?

Mr. Riecke My question is, how did he get twenty days out of ten from sixty?

Mr. Henry How did you get twenty out of sixty, Mr. Casey?

Mr. Riecke You must be using a new math.

Mr. Casey Mr. Riecke and Mr. Chairman, by way of explanation I get it two ways. First of all the breakdown is ten days introduction of bills, thirty days in recess and all it says is that we go back into session. It doesn't say we go back into session for fifty days, but under sentence number two it does say that in each year the regular session shall extend for sixty calendar days. Now what does extend mean. Extend means that from beginning the first day, whenever you go into session, including this recess period until the last day which includes those twenty last days after you've been in recess, the way I read it is from beginning to end it's sixty, consecutive, calendar days. Gentlemen, I would hate for this type of amendment to wind up in the Supreme Court for interpretation. All I am is one little attorney. I'd like to say that I'm a little country boy, a country attorney...that's more effectively. I just happen to practice law in the city. My interpretation is that the Supreme Court would say that the sixty days is sixty, consecutive, calendar days from beginning to end.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Riecke Well let me ask you this question then. Would you say that a country boy's interpretation over and above the experts on our staff who wrote this up should prevail? The experts on this staff drew this up for me.

Mr. Casey I'll answer that question. We have a very competent staff but the fact remains they can error also. They are not infallible and I disagree with them on some of the other proposals that are before the convention that possibly need correction and cleaning up. They do the finest job that they have within the time limit that they have and that's our job to make sure that we do the best possible job and present the best and most articulate and understandable and precise constitution that we can.

Point of Order

Mr. Riecke My point is, would it be possible to withdraw this and return it to the staff for clarification and resubmitting it later?

Mr. Henry It would be out of order but I don't think anybody else wants to speak... Under those circumstances it would be in order so if you want to so move...

[Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Abraham], on page 1 delete lines 21 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and on page 2 delete lines 1 through 9 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Quote... Section 2 A. The legislature shall meet in regular annual sessions as provided by law.
We need now, of course, to add an amendment No. 2 deleting the Rayburn amendment.

Explanation

Mr. Abraham This amendment is similar to the Newton amendment with one exception, of course, this amendment was in the hopper before we voted on the Newton amendment. In that, whereas the Newton amendment says may be provided by law, which was permissive, this specifies that it shall meet as provided by law. It leaves no question that a law must be passed which specifies exactly when the annual sessions are to be and for how long.

Question

Mr. Denney Mr. Abraham, does your amendment say that it shall meet in regular, annual sessions? The copy I have says regular sessions.

Mr. Abraham Yes, it says regular, annual sessions. What happened was that in drafting the printed proposal, they left out the word annual, and a new one was passed around.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBlou Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I voted for Senator Rayburn's amendment. I voted for Mr. Newton's amendment, and I ask you to seriously consider voting for this amendment. What it would do is just allow the legislature to provide all of the things that we've been considering here today. In effect, the House passes its own rules just like this convention passed its rules of procedure. The length of the sessions, if they were enacted by statutes by the legislature, could be changed as needed. Maybe once a year, once every ten years, or maybe never, but it would give the legislature an annual chance to correct any mistakes that it might have made and not have to go back to amend the constitution to do it. And let me give you one example of what I'm referring to. At the beginning of this term, this new legislative term, it appeared that for the first time in many years there would be an election by the members of the House for a Speaker. In past terms, the procedure has been for the Governor to say who he wanted for Speaker. It was accepted by the members, voted on on the first day of the session of the House just as a formality. But our Speaker this time didn't really understand that procedure and got out and got enough votes where he thought he could be elected, notwithstanding whoever the Governor wanted for Speaker. And I have got to commend him for it. What he did on the first day of the session when we elected the Speaker, he had then to appoint the various committee members. Since this hadn't been done prior to the convening of the session as it had been done in previous years, that took four or five days. It put the session back that many days before a committee could meet and hear bills that were already introduced. I recognized the situation when it came up and asked the Legislative Council to draw up a bill which would correct this situation, but since it was specified in the present constitution, it had to be a constitutional amendment. Then the bill came along which would create a new convention or convention to develop a new constitution, and I just didn't push the bill because there was a problem in considering that bill when the new convention was coming along. But it is an example of some of the things that the legislature could take care of itself on short order, as these things arose. Another instance is the sixty day annual session. We're talking about the sixty day annual session. I think everybody in here is for sixty days, but I believe that the session that I attended, there was a joint resolution introduced to allow for sixty days, that never could get past the House until 1972. When it came up in 1972, nobody opposed it. It flew right on, but it got included with the 52 other constitutional amendments that were all killed, so you can't say that that was bad. It took 70, or two-thirds majority of the legislature to even get it on the ballot, so it was thought a good item by most of the members of the legislature. But the only way you could change it -- by a constitutional amendment. If we would pass Mr. Abraham's amendment, this would give the legislature authority to do it by a simple act of the legislature, and they could correct many of these inequities as they come up. The legislature is really not as bad as many of you picture us. We have to stand for election every four years, and if we don't do it right, let me tell you, they put the boot on us, and I believe that's the right way to do. If I'm not satisfying my people, then I don't need that thirty day time back home to discuss bills. Anytime there is a bill that affects my area, they let me know about it, and I like to hear from them because that's what they send me down here for. So I ask you please consider this thoughtfully and I ask you to try to see it in our eyes, because I believe we want to try to do the right thing by the people of Louisiana.

[Previous question orderd.]

Closing

Mr. Abraham I still say that we need to give the legislature the responsibility, the authority to conduct their affairs as they see fit. And this is the way to do it, this is the representative way to do it. Those of you who think that the people are not in favor of this, and cite the reason that the constitutional amendment was voted down in the past, that amendment failed with the people because they were just tired of voting on amendments and rejected the whole thing without any regard as to whether they were good or bad. You've heard all these various arguments here today. You've heard all the various ideas of how this should be done, and we're going to try to sit up here and in this short period of time decide exactly how this state is going to conduct its business for the next many years. And we're going to sit up here and we're going to tie the hands of the legislature, so to speak, into a short eighty day session. We're always looking to the past because we are afraid of what the legislature might do. Well I think it's time we start looking to the future. I think it's time that we start looking at what we want them to do and let's put the tools in their hands with which to do them. And then let's take it from there.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Questions

Mr. Stinson One thing that concerns quite a few of us, and that is that there's no date that it will be held. Now your answer to that was well you guess the Governor would call it.

Mr. Abraham No sir, that was not my answer.

Mr. Stinson Well, could you answer it? When would they meet, please sir?

Mr. Abraham The law would provide the day that they would convene.

Mr. Stinson What law?

Mr. Abraham The law that the legislature would have to pass. This says that the legislature shall meet in regular annual sessions that are provided by law.

Mr. Stinson But if they were not in session, they couldn't pass the law that would say when they would meet, though.

Mr. Abraham Do what now?

Mr. Stinson If they were not in session the first time they passed such a law, well there wouldn't be any law saying when they would meet.

Mr. Abraham Well Mr. Stinson, if this constitution is adopted by the people, there's going to have to be a schedule for it. The constitution is to be effective. There're going to have to be many bills probably that will have to be passed in order to effect some of the provisions of this constitution, and this would have to occur in this instance.

Mr. Stinson And then if they did fix it as you say, it could be changed from year to year as the legislature so wished. Is that correct?

Mr. Abraham It could be changed, but I have no fear of the legislature changing from year to year because I don't think any member of the legislature is going to stand still and have it change from year to year because they need to know exactly when to come down to handle their business.

Mr. Stinson You have a lot of faith in our legislature, don't you. I'm sure they appreciate it.

Mr. Abraham I have a lot of faith in the legislature, and this is what I am asking this convention to do, and this is what I'm asking the people of this state to do, is to have some faith in the legislature. And we've belabored this point long enough, so I won't take up any more time.

[Amendment rejected: 15-96. Motion of recess—11 tabling.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The next set of amendments being passed out at this time is offered by Mr. Jenkins. Amendment proposed by Delegates Jenkins, Stinson and Florj to the committee proposal amended and reprinted bill, Page 2 at the end of line 9 insert the following: "During any regular, annual session held in odd numbered years, no measures levying new taxes increasing existing taxes or repealing tax exemptions shall be introduced or enacted."

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, throughout the history of Louisiana, our people have never even once been subjected to the possibility of having their taxes increased in odd numbered years. Until 1954 we had bi-annual sessions, no regular session was held in odd numbered years, and thus their taxes could not be increased. And since 1954 we have had fiscal sessions which were limited to fiscal matters except when a super majority of the legislature decreed otherwise, and even in that instance, no tax increases could be levied. Now I feel sure that it's the sentiment of the convention that we are to have general, annual sessions of the legislature. However, I think that an important political consideration has to be the public displeasure which will undoubtedly result when the people realize that not only will they have annual sessions of the legislature, but that in odd numbered years for the first time they will be subjected to the possibility of having taxes increased. Many people have said that we must trust the legislature, and indeed after having served a little more than a year in our own legislature, I do more than before trust our own legislature because I know the members and I have a idea about how they think. But I think we'll make a grave mistake if we presume that the people trust the politicians. The people do not. In the history of our state, the history of politics in our state is ample justification for their lack of trust for the politicians. And while they might be willing to trust us to have annual sessions of the Legislature, but that they don't think that they will trust us not to raise taxes in odd numbered years when we have that authority. I really believe that allowing the legislature to raise taxes in odd numbered years could be a major factor leading to the defeat of any constitution which we propose. There is really no need in any case to allow taxes to be raised in odd numbered years. Taxes should be raised, levied on a long term basis to provide for long term planning, and every other year should be sufficient for those purposes. Now to include this provision would not, to revert to the old system of having fiscal sessions of the legislature. Not at all, not in no way would it. Under our present law the legislature is restricted to fiscal matters except the raising of a matter the most fiscal of all, levying taxes, is not allowed. There is no way under current law, no matter what super majority might want to raise the tax, the taxes can be raised in fiscal sessions now. And that has created no problem because members do not submit tax bills, and if they do submit one that might be interpreted as a tax measure, it's ruled on by the Speaker or President of the Senate. There is no lengthy debate in almost any case as to whether or not a particular measure is a tax. There may be a handful, but nothing comparable to the extent of debate that centers around whether or not a particular bill is fiscal or non-fiscal. The present constitution, in Section 3 says this: "All regular sessions convening in the odd numbered years shall be restricted to budgetary or fiscal matters, however no measure levying new taxes or increasing existing taxes shall be introduced or enacted." The wording of that provision is retained in this respect. It says: At the end of Sub Section A, "During any regular annual session held in an odd numbered year, no measures levying new taxes, increasing existing taxes, or repealing tax exemptions shall be introduced or enacted." It will create no more problem than that particular line has created in our present constitution, which from a procedural standpoint has been minimum. I think the members and the public are concerned, very concerned about tax rates. I recall one time that I saw a sign that the American people are paying 40% in fact it was 43 of their total per capita income in some form of tax. They have reached confiscatory levels, and I don't think that there is a member of the public who doesn't believe that taxes are too high. And if we include the possibility of giving the legislature two shots at every one that they have now at increasing taxes, I think it's going to jeopardize our entire constitutional proposal. So I ask you to consider this measure seriously, this amendment. It will allow the legislature to do anything it wants except increase taxes. It won't cause any more problems. It won't be a fiscal session, and it will be a good safeguard of our own document that we present. It will certainly be a plus factor because when the constituents raise the question, "Well aren't you having special sessions of the legislature every year? Aren't you going to be down there passing taxes, spending more money, passing more and more laws and regulations?" Well you can say they are going to be there trying to do their job, but they can't increase taxes. And I think that will blunt most of the objections and most of the arguments about annual, general sessions. So, for that reason I urge your favorable adoption of this amendment.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Jenkins, I don't know how you feel about it, but I certainly support the recommendation of the Committee on Finance and Taxation to maintain the two-thirds rule for raising taxes. If that is presented to this plenary session, I will certainly vote for it. I assume you will too. I ask you, isn't that enough?

Mr. Jenkins No, I don't think it is, and the reason I say that is this. There is a psychology about taxation which sometimes exists. I think in a legislative body, and it's like this. In any given session, we don't want to pass too many taxes. We might be willing to pass a few. I know in 1972 we passed taxes totaling about 85 million dollars. It was made up of about eight or ten different measures, most of them not public in nature. But at a certain point, they got to be more and more resistance about discussion of taxation in that session. If we had been allowed to pass taxes this last year, I'm sure a few would have been passed because time would have passed. The fact that we had imposed new taxes on the people would have been forgotten to a great extent, and there would have been less resistance in those odd numbered years to passing new taxes. But in any given session, after a few are passed, there becomes more and more resistance which arises. Now I think too, from the standpoint of the public and popular opinion the two-thirds measure is not enough. We've had discussion at great length prior to this convening of this session regarding a three dollar license plate. The great impact that this has on the minds of people when most of us realize that in terms of taxation this is a small matter, but it is a big matter in many people's minds. And if the three dollar license tag is a big matter, think about matter it will be in their minds where they realize the taxes can be levied on them twice as frequently as before. I think it's a big issue and will become a big issue and I think that it will be an issue that will be played upon by opponents of whatever we come up with in this convention.

Mr. A. Landry Mr. Jenkins, a point of information. Would your amendment prohibit the Governor from calling a special session for the purpose of raising taxes?

Mr. Jenkins No it would not. The current law does not prohibit that. The only thing is, there is a protection insofar as special sessions are concerned because of the fact that the call has to indicate that one of the things would be to raise taxes. And public attention is focused on that, and there is no doubt about what's going on. But this would forbid the automatic, every other year right to increase taxes. And so in emergency situations taxes could be increased. We would still maintain some flexibility, but we would not have the automatic right to.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Speaker, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, from listening to the previous speaker you would think that the annual session in the odd number years was for one purpose, and that was to raise taxes. That must be all Mr. Jenkins has got on his mind. He's going to raise taxes. Well really this body is not to raise taxes or lower taxes, and I don't think there is any question that the legislature is going to retain the fact that it takes two-thirds vote of the legislature to raise taxes. And it's real difficult, when you talk about a democracy and is a government by crisis. And that's what a democracy is to a large extent, government by crisis. And it takes a crisis in this state to get two-thirds of the legislature to raise taxes. It takes a real financial crisis. So this fact, in this regular session, is not a session to raise taxes but you shouldn't hamstring the legislature to where that they can't do the job that they have the responsibility to do whatever it may happen to be. There's a remedy. There is a remedy and there'll be a remedy in this constitution to take care of legislators that abuse the office or the responsibility. One is defeatism, which many times they do get defeated when they vote for taxes, and they won't be returning. Another, if they get too far out of line, you can actually recall them. Now I point out in this last session, you see we have this energy crisis, this gas crisis. We have the oil and gas companies sending all of our natural resources out of Louisiana, and in 1972 when we raised the Severance Tax and had a percentage clause, then we suspended the percentage clause to take effect in 1974. Well, with the increase in the price of gas and what they're getting for our gas when they're sending it out of this state, we should have put that percentage clause in effect this last session because the foot of the well has raised some money so we could have taken care of the school teachers' implementation of their pay raise, and other needs of this state. But, there was a question of whether that would be raising taxes or not. You are not going to, that session is not a tax session, but you should not hamstring the legislature to where they can't do the foot of the well to be done. There is a remedy to take care of them. So I hope that you will vote this amendment down. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Mire Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I sincerely believe that these sorts of amendments is what sort of creates the distrust in our Legislature. It sort of says that we don't trust them, we're not going to allow them to do a specific thing at a specific time. I feel you should either let them do it or not do it. And I feel that the general public actually doesn't know what limitations are really set up. They really don't read these rules carefully enough and they feel sort of that they can do anything any time, and feel that this is the way it should be left.

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Speaker, and members, this is the first time I've been up here since we started the last time. I don't intend to ever get up here unless I have something important to say, not that the others are not important. But I feel like this is a very important issue. I'm for this amendment. The first reason, I was one of the authors of the two-thirds law which I thought was one of the finest laws we've ever had. We all sort of kept that out. We said in an annual session, a fiscal session, you could not pass taxes. Well all we are doing is continuing this if you have another session. I think business and industry and people need a little time every two years, and I think this would do it. It'd give them a little safety so it wouldn't happen that they'd pass taxes every time you turn around. This two-thirds law is a good law. I also think that if we could go ahead and pass this to go along with it, this amendment, to keep them from raising taxes. Of course I say we served in the legislature sixteen years, and four terms. I'm not in it any more, I don't intend to run anymore, but I'm down here to make a good constitution. I think this should go in the constitution, so I ask you please go along with this amendment.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, under the present law, as you know, you cannot introduce measures to levy new taxes or increase existing taxes during the 30 day session. Now that's pretty historical thing because prior to the 30 day session, we didn't have any sessions in the odd years. Now, it seems to me if we change that, we are indicating to the people that we are tax minded. I don't think anybody here wants to infer that they have in the back of their head already, to start pouring it on peoples' sick back when they are ridden with taxes now. Bear in mind that some people didn't know this [...] but I'm not sure you know. During the odd years the Governor can call a special session and he has to do a few instances that I don't worry about that. Under this constitution, you are having provisions that are not hard to do for the legislature to call itself in a special session. What you will be doing by adopting this amendment, you'll be giving some peace of mind to the people of this state. Now I want you to listen a minute because I'm going to give you a few instances that I don't think many of you have heard unless you can go back as far as 1940-1946, and along these. I cannot answer on these things since '64, but having been in the House in 1940-1964, I saw many times these kind of things happen. And I'm not accusing people of it, but people wanted tax dipping outfits for various reasons, and we should pay attentionally, at every session, have to go down to fight off the taxes even if they're not needed. I saw a Representative one time in New Orleans, he had seven different tax bills against the motion picture industry. I saw another Representative where he had his schoolhouse burned and he needed three hundred thousand, and he had twenty something tax bills introduced. I never will forget, Russell Long was helping his uncle Earl, and I tried to get hold of Earl Long and I couldn't. It was a tax on this outdoor signboard, so much a square foot. And Russell Long, that's when I learned he was left handed, seeing him write it, met me that night and figured it out, and it would have cost $1,000 a year more to pay that tax on the signboard than they'd take in. Now, people shouldn't have to be threatened unless it's necessary about taxes coming up every time they meet. It gives them a good feeling that here is a session like the 30 day session there in the idea where we don't have to worry about taxes. It's good for the nervous system if nothing else. Now, you can laugh about that but let me tell you, people are getting so frazzled and all now and taxed so much, and you've got to enclose I must say, during those odd years if you adopt this, you've still got where the Governor can tax in a special session. You've still got where the legislature will be able to call themselves into session very easily, and there's a need for a tax, the people will really get to where they'll appreciate it and will help the legislature and the Governor. But where they pass something where they can tax you any regular session or odd session going against the present law you are not going to have the confidence of the people. And that everybody taking my microphone has stated they want the people to have confidence in the legislature. And I say this is a good amendment and I hope you'll adopt it.

Question

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Jack, at the closing of this amendment it says repealing tax exemptions. It includes not only increasing taxes, but it says that the legislature cannot repeal any tax exemptions. Would you comment a little bit more about your feelings on that? I know you can interpret that as meaning a tax increase for the consumer but there are other areas where we do tax and that we have exorbitant and unjustified tax exemptions. It seems to me that the legislature would also be denied the fact of repealing any, let's say, undue and unjust tax exemptions that may already exist in odd years.

Mr. Jack Well, about the only thing I can answer to that is of course this isn't my amendment. You should have asked the authors, but Senator Bayburn, you might talk to him, he'd mentioned something about granting a tax exemption like these different, I believe, local clubs when they sell Christmas trees and things like that are being charged by the State Tax Collector a sales tax on it and maybe exempt them in the law. Those things, they just don't happen often would be my only answer. I could give you. But what I'm saying, the overall picture and the thing with me, these things are not special, I'm just putting out what I think and what the people want, and I just think it would be fine for the people to continue to know that the regular session, which has been in the past the 30 day session in the odd year, they are going to be able to sit down and quack and worry and worry about the increased tax, and it will be continued right on in the constitution. That's all I have to say.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of the amendment. I appreciate the fact that the present constitution, taxes cannot be increased in the fiscal sessions nor can a special session be called 30 days prior to or after the fiscal session for that purpose. I believe that if there is sufficient need for additional revenue it could be easily handled in the even numbered years in the sessions of the legislature. And I don't believe that the people of this state ought to be subjected to 80 days every year, the possibility of increased taxes. As a matter of fact, I think you've just about reached the saturation point now on what the people can pay in the way of taxes in this state. When you go to talking about a session for taxes every year, I submit that that had a great deal to do with the defeat of the annual 60 day session that the people voted on in this state. Because inherent in that proposal was the authority to raise taxes every year. Attention has been called to the repealing of tax exemption. I don't think industry ought to be faced, every year, with legislation introduced to change the constitution of this state to repeal the industrial tax exemptions. I think they're entitled to that year of grace to know how to plan their corporate budgets for expansion, to hire additional workers rather than losing a tax exemption that they might enjoy given them by the vote of the people of this state. I ask you to adopt this amendment. Assure the people of this state you're not going to raise taxes every year, that they'll only be considered on a bi-annual basis. Adopt this and keep faith with the people of this state.

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Mr. Weiss to the reprinted bill.

These go to the Rayburn amendment and I will try to... you can try to follow along if you still have the copy of the amendment that the convention adopted proposed by Mr. Rayburn.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

Mr. Chairman, it might be in order—I can try to follow along to read the text of what it would read like.

Mr. Henry If you will, do so.

Mr. Poynter As I appreciate the effect of the amendment— If the amendment were adopted, the Rayburn amendment would read as follows:

"The legislature shall meet annually in regular sessions for not more than sixty calendar days. The legislature shall convene at 12:00 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in each year.

No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced to receive by either house of the legislature after midnight of the fifteenth calendar day of the session except by a favorable record vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house.

A legislative day is a calendar day on which either or both houses are in session.

Amendment No. 2 on page 2 delete lines 1 through 9 both inclusive in their...it retains that amendment.

Explanation

Mr. Weiss Fellow delegates, the thrust of this amendment is a very simple one. I feel strongly about it because I would like you to help me decide how to tell my folks back home as Senator—as Delegate Rayburn would say, how the constitution has allowed our legislature meet from sixty days in a two year period to 160 days.

Now it is true, there are many alterations that one can adjust into legislative days and calendar days and therefore, I think that the amendment explains very specifically that this will be sixty day sessions every year.

As Delegate Rayburn said, this amendment which he proposed which was whipped up over night and very well done, was not perfect, but certainly an improvement and I agree with him. But at the same time I cannot justify in my own mind how we can justify fishing trips or other activities for another lengthy period that the legislature is supposed to be in session.

Now, this main objection which Delegate Rayburn objected to is met with by using his amendment, and I certainly think the split session matter is handled by the legislators and to their advantage as they see fit. On the other hand, I think the people of the state are interested in knowing how long the legislature will meet and not when they are in and out of session at their discretion. As a matter of fact, if they had discretion the amendment does allow or care to use their discretion in taking off Sundays it certainly does allow for that because the regular sessions are to be not more than sixty days and therefore, they may certainly go home on their Sundays if they care to or any other day in the week if they so vote.

Even more important however, I think the proposals so far which indicate that we will have an effective legislature who will be better organized. The committees will meet ahead of time. We will have a much more effective approach and perhaps even more agile and younger minds in the legislature that can handle these bills a little quicker. And I think if we give them more time to deliberate on it it will just be more efficient. As Delegate Rayburn pointed out the bills are introduced at the last minute anyway and the nineteen day period they will be introduced and will be discussed and worked over at that time.

I would suggest for the people of Louisiana to be given a small dose at a time. And to increase these legislative days or calendar days from thirty per year to a most efficient per year is just a little too much I think to swallow all at once.

I suggest we accept this amendment and yield to any questions.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just want to clarify a statement that the Dr. made.

Under my amendment, we cannot meet but sixty days in any one year. His amendment says sixty consecutive days, if I read it right.

My amendment would not meet but sixty days in an eighty day period which I was merely trying to give the legislature the weekends off if they so desired.

They can meet thirty days under my amendment. They can meet forty days but they can't meet but sixty days. And it does give them each Saturday and Sunday to have off if they so desire at their discretion. And my amendment had nothing to do with increasing the days to 160.

It tied them down not over sixty days. It don't even say they have to be sixty days. Under this amendment if I understand it correctly Dr., you are saying that the legislature can meet for sixty calendar days period. Which means that if we have got a heavy workload we would have to work on Saturday and Sunday and that's what I was trying to alleviate with my amendments if the workload was so that we didn't have to work on a Saturday and Sunday we wouldn't have to. But if I understand this amendment directly Dr., it says sixty consecutive days or sixty calendar days. Wherein mine says sixty legislative days within a eighty day period. They can't last over eighty days and you can't have over sixty legislative days.

This says sixty if I understand your amendment right, it says it can't be over sixty calendar days. A session can't last over sixty calendar days.

Question

Mr. Weiss No, that's partially correct. You and your amendment have said not more than sixty days.

Mr. Rayburn That is right because we may decide we can do our work in forty-five days and I didn't want us to be tied down for a month. And I am just like you, if we don't need to be here sixty days I think we should have the liberty to quit in forty-five. That's what my amendment does. It says not over sixty days in eighty day period. Yours does spell out sixty calendar days period. And that's why I would oppose it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it never ceases to amaze me how we can continue to attempt to mitigate the number of legislative days which this legislature when we, in our infinite wisdom are going to spend a year. One solid year talking about many things which the legislature talks about in thirty days. I think Senator Rayburn's amendment is--Senator Rayburn's proposal is a good proposal, it gives flexibility, sixty legislative days if necessary. And I think the coefficient of redundancy on this thing is about four hundred fifty percent and therefore, I move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Weiss I am sorry that I am not as persuasive as our legislators who have certainly mandated themselves sufficient time. More than sufficient time I think. And the people of Louisiana will indicate this I believe, in the extinction of the days and I would request a record vote so that at least I can be on record as saying that we have not given the legislature more time, but rather the legislators, themselves, have seen fit to extend this. I think the people of Louisiana are satisfied with the good job the legislature has done. I am afraid that these coefficients that we have been referred to is such that the more time one gets, the more time they use. And I think in sixty days particularly, with this new concept of continuous session--continuous body particularly with the committees meeting and preparing themselves more effectively with the progress that is used in stenographic and typographic and the expertise and assistance that the legislators now have that they can get through their work. We have one hundred to one hundred fifty page document to complete here in about four months. And I think we will be doing one, considerably more work than the legislators have to do with one thousand or two thousand bills, many of which are rejected.

14th Days Proceedings—July 13, 1973

I urge you to accept this amendment for the people of the state of Louisiana and I think that they will appreciate this and in due time, the legislators also will find that they don't need as much time as they have extended to themselves.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Unfinished business, Committee Proposal No. 3, introduced by Delegate Blair, Chairman on behalf of the Committee of Legislative Powers and Functions and other delegates composing members of that Committee.

Proposal making provisions for the legislative branch of government, impeachment, and removal from office.

Of course, when we adjourned yesterday, you had adopted Section 1 and were considering Section 2 of that proposal.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments proposed by Delegates Riecke, Sutherland, Guarisco, Bell and others amending the reprinted bill.

Amendment No. 1 on page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 in their entirety and insert in lieu, thereof, the following Section 2. A. There shall be regular annual sessions of the legislature. The legislature shall convene at twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year for not to exceed fifteen calendar days. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced during any regular session after midnight of the fifteenth calendar day, except by favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership. During this period, no committee shall report, and neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law.

No later than the close of the fifteenth calendar, the legislature shall adjourn and stand in recess until twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in May at which time it shall reconvene for not to exceed fifty legislative days which shall not extend beyond the thirty-first day of July in any year.

During the interim between adjournment and reconvening, the committees of the House may meet and hold hearings. A legislative day is a calendar day on which either or both Houses are in session.

Amendment No. 2. On page 2, delete lines 1 through 9 both inclusive in their entirety.

We need a further amendment No. 3 to strike out amendments No. 1 and No. 2 proposed by Mr. Rayburn and adopted by this convention on yesterday.

Explanation

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have revised...we have revised this amendment to clarify the time which was questioned in yesterday's meeting.

We still have a very brief amendment and there can be no question as to the time the legislature will be permitted to meet under this provision.

We have also revised it to comply with Senator Rayburn's wishes, although I haven't discussed it with him; but as he expressed yesterday, so that the legislature will not be required to meet on Saturday and Sunday, and we have revised the time limit so that the legislature will not have to reconvene on Friday and then recess until Monday. We have made every effort to conform as much as possible with the amendment which you passed yesterday as introduced by Senator Rayburn and others.

I think several of the members of our group would like to discuss it further, Mr. Chairman, if that's alright.

Further Discussion

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is a similar proposal to what we had yesterday, but taking into consideration several of the objections which were raised on the floor in the form of questions to this amendment.

It still contains a provision for prefilling bills. It contains a provision for the introduction of bills and the dissemination of the information to the voting public. It provides for a recess of fifteen calendar days. It provides for a recess which could vary from two weeks to three weeks and provides, also, that the committees may hold hearings during this period of time.

Now, Senator Rayburn objected to the original proposal on the basis that they would meet, go home, come back and were able to do everything that they had to do in the seven days after they reconvene. This provides that no bills may be introduced after midnight of the fifteenth calendar day, except on a favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each House.

You also will notice that this provision that the legislative days after the session reconvenes is more or less left to the discretion of the legislature and if they don't need fifty, they are not required to stay in session. It's left to their discretion.

I believe that this amendment does provide a better system than what we have at the present time.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if I read this amendment right, in the place of our original proposal, this would be fifteen days that the legislature would meet and it says "During this period no committee shall report," nor "neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law."

So we couldn't even report a committee hearing, or we couldn't pass a general appropriations bill to pay the cost of the session until we had been there for fifteen days.

And then it further provides for a sixty-five day session if I read it correctly. And I am going to ask you to reject these amendments because in my opinion there is fifteen days that we couldn't take any action; a committee couldn't even report its findings if I read this language right, and I think I do.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment, also, for the same reasons as Delegate Rayburn, as well as the fact that there is just no need to keep working this thing over and over. I think the fact that we've got an... I initially voted for the original proposition submitted by the committee.

But the fact that Senator Rayburn got his amendment through, I think most of the people agreed it was proper. I don't think there is any necessity for a fifteen-day grace period in which nothing may be done at this time. And I would ask your vote against the amendment.

[Previous question ordered.]

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Closing

Mr. Riecke Ladies and gentlemen, this is a good amendment. This amendment gives everybody back home an opportunity to see what is being introduced in the legislature, it gives the press and the radio and the T.V. time to study legislation that is introduced so that they can inform the people what is coming up in the House and the Senate. And it prevents what the good Senator Rayburn said yesterday, that he found out that it was not expedient for him to introduce legislation early, because if he had a controversial bill, he waited until the last day and the last minute to introduce it, because if he introduced it early, they would tear it to pieces.

Now this bill provides that you can tear a controversial bill to pieces. This amendment says that anything, in effect it means that anything that is controversial that you, the legislators, and the people back home will know it's controversial and will have an opportunity to inform their senators and representatives how they feel about it.

Now if you feel that's objectionable, vote against this amendment. I don't think it is. It's a good amendment. I'd appreciate your support.

Questions

Mr. Womack Mr. Riecke, do you realize that one of my objections to the proposal offered yesterday was that you couldn't make an appropriation bill to pay the employees of the legislature for some twenty-five, twenty-six or twenty-seven days, and this bill will extend that to between thirty-five and forty days.

Mr. Riecke Well, Senator, I don't believe anybody could introduce anything here in this whole session that didn't have some bug in it that you couldn't overcome. And I think that if you ever come home, you can. This is something for the benefit of all of the people of the state, the millions of people, and I think that there's enough know-how in the legislature, I'm learning it the hard way here this trip, I think there's enough know-how that you people can take care of that situation.

Mr. Triche Mr. Riecke, I generally like the proposal of a split session, and I have been trying to find one I can vote for. That's not my question, that's a statement. But I want to ask you a question about your proposal and see if I understand it correctly.

You talk about, about in the middle of the paragraph, "During this period of time, no committee shall report and neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to add the effect of law."

I understand that language to refer to the first fifteen-day period. Which means for the first fifteen days when the legislature is in session, no committee shall report, nor shall either House adopt any bill.

Now, after the first fifteen days, we go into recess. The only limitation on the recess period, I see down at the last sentence of the paragraph, "during the interim," and that refers to the recess period, does it?

"Between adjournment and reconvening, the committees of the Houses may meet and hold hearings."

Now there is no limitation on the committees taking action during the recess period, is there? Or then, as I understand it, the first fifteen days of the session when the legislature will meet, bills would be introduced and only during that period of time except emergencies, on two-third vote.

But during the recess period, bills will be introduced and they can be, then, referred to committee, read by title the first time, lay over, read the second time by title and referred to the committee so that conceivable that in the first fifteen days, all the bills could be introduced, read twice, and report referred to committees. Is that correct? Then during the recess period, the period from two weeks to three weeks, depending on where the calendar falls, during the recess period all of the committees could hold hearings during that period of time and would during the recess. If the committees wanted to report the bills, couldn't they, to be received back at the session when we come for the fifty day regular, fifty day session after reconvening. Is that correct?

Well, I think you have a very good bill, Mr. Riecke.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Riecke, if I understand this correctly, during the first fifteen-day period where we say that "no committee shall report, neither House shall adopt any bill," all this restriction is doing is from reporting a bill. This does not prevent the committees from meeting during the fifteen-day period, does it not?

Mr. Casey Mr. Riecke, the copy of the floor amendments that I have indicates that during this period no committee shall report. Now, my interpretation of that would indicate that you can hold a hearing but cannot make a decision and report to the floor of the House or the Senate your action on a particular bill, and that's the concern that some of us have. Is that not correct that apparently that a committee cannot report them, under your wording?

Mr. Riecke They can only report it when the session convenes after the interim period.

Mr. Casey So, therefore, theoretically, they could really not take action on any bill during that interim period. Would that not be a waste of time, then?

Mr. Riecke No, I don't think that there is any reason why they can't reach a decision. It gives them that time to have the hearings, it gives people at home an opportunity to meet with those committees when they are not in a hurry. The way it is now, the legislature meets and the committees sometimes meet at the same time as the whole legislature and they are in a hurry to get away. Sometimes, when you want to go to Baton Rouge to testify before a committee, you go up there and you find out that the committee's been postponed...the meeting.

This will give the committee more time to have hearings and consider these bills.

Mr. Landry Mr. Riecke, under this proposed split session, you have any safeguards in this article whereby the legislature could not introduce skeleton bills like they do in California to...and then come back in the month of May and then amend their bills with the real meaning, the real, true meaning of the bill in May instead of the first fifteen days?

You have no safeguard against that, do you?

Mr. Riecke You know that was brought up time and again when we were preparing this bill and I don't know of anything that I or any delegate at this convention could do to eliminate chicanery if somebody wants to do it.

Mr. Landry I realize that, and I was just wondering.

Mr. Riecke I don't think that the...I think that the people we have in the legislature would not do that.

Mr. Landry That's right. I believe they wouldn't, but are you familiar with the California system?...and that's the problem they have in California.

Mr. Riecke I am familiar with the California system.

Mr. Landry And of course we are subject to the same situation if we adopt this.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Riecke, you know I just told you I thought maybe this didn't do what you wanted to do yesterday, and I just...you know I had said that, right?

Well, I've looked at it over, and I just want you to know that I think perhaps it does do that.

I want to ask you a question. For instance, if

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

I wanted to introduce a measure which had to do with say, cats, would this enable all people to know that I was going to have a measure that had to do something with cats. Is that right, sir?

Mr. Riecke Why, certainly.

Mr. Champagne And then we all know big cats, little cats, wild cats, tame cats, house cats and alley cats... but if you are interested in cats one way or another, this would give you some indication that cats are going to be mentioned in the legislature. Is that right?

Mr. Riecke Right.

Mr. Champagne Now this would give you an opportunity, and all other people who might or might not be interested in cats, to come to the legislature to hear about or to read in the paper, or to become aware that cats are going to be mentioned in the legislature. Is that right, sir?

Mr. Riecke Yes, sir.

Mr. Champagne Now this does not preclude, as Mr. Landry suggested, that there's going to be a white elephant sneaked in with those cats, of course. Is that right, sir?

Mr. Riecke No.

Mr. Champagne So, in other words, now, but it would enable me as a cat-watcher to wait on the front door and to watch all the cats or the elephants, or the snakes that might come in with the cat bill. Is that not right, sir?

Good.

So in other words, you would say that this possibly, this bill, enables all of the people of Louisiana to have a possible better image of what's going to be introduced and acted upon in the legislature. Is that what you're saying, sir?

Mr. Riecke Yes, sir. That's the purpose of it.

Mr. Champagne So in other words, it has been presented to us that the lobbyist might be better informed. Do you agree with me, sir, that lobbyist are well-informed people who can talk to you for two minutes and know what you did last night? In other words, I'm not talking about them, I'm just saying they are very well informed people and specialists in their field. Do you agree with that, sir?

Mr. Riecke I would assume that.

Mr. Champagne Now, do you also agree that possibly some of us back here are not so capable as these lobbyist are? So this enables the people to have to have the same opportunity that the people here, not speaking badly of them, the lobbyist have. Is that right, sir?

Mr. Riecke Yes, sir.

Mr. Champagne Thank you, sir.

Mr. Triche I'm just going to explain, or ask you if you will agree with me that maybe this proposal is written it doesn't admit of any chicanery. I'm referring to Section C, excuse me, Subsection C of Section 17 which says, "No bill shall be amended in its passage through either House just to make a change not germane to the bill as originally introduced." So that if Mr. Champagne introduced a cat after the recess, I couldn't amend it to make a dog under this proposal as introduced. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Riecke I am glad you called that to my attention.

Mr. Henry Would you yield a question to Mr. Munson?

Mr. Munson Mr. Riecke...

Mr. Riecke I hope we don't wind up with a cat house.

Mr. Munson I don't know whether to ask my question now, or not.

I was going to ask you something along that line. Do you know of any reason why the gentleman from Opelousas neglected to mention Opelousas cats?

Mr. Henry Would you yield a question to Dr. Weiss? And this would have to wind it up 'cause he has exceeded his time.

Mr. Weiss I don't want to get too involved in this cat bill, but I do want to ask a question of Mr. Riecke as to whether he thinks now that the legislature feel that they have sufficient time by his resolution to do the job right. Will the average legislator who is representing our districts back home now spend more time with his bill back home rather than in Baton Rouge doing unnecessary things than in contrast to Senator Rayburn's bill? Do you feel that there will be less calendar days spent in Baton Rouge than there will... or in legislative acts, supposedly, or sessions, continuous sessions, rather than back home where I think the average working man should be to get the feeling of his constituency?

Mr. Riecke If I understand your question correctly, Dr. Weiss, it will make it easier for people interested in the legislation to contact their representatives instead of having to come the way up to Baton Rouge to attend committee meetings.

Mr. Weiss Well, that was the thrust of my amendment yesterday. I am in favor of your bill, sir.

Mr. Riecke Thank you, sir.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Riecke, when Mr. Triche was advising about you couldn't change the cat to a dog, isn't it a fact that he failed to state, though that if you have the vote, you can change a cat to a dog or a rat or anything you want to in the legislative process. If you have the vote you can say this is germane even though it is not.

Mr. Riecke Well, sir, I can't answer that question. I think all the delegates know now that I am a novice and that I make tactical mistakes as you voted me down yesterday, but I am trying to be honest, and I am trying to be sincere, and I am trying to act in the interest of the people I represent. Thank you.

[Parliamentary question ordered. Amendments on agenda: 2-3]. Motion to table re-introduced by Mr. Riecke: 37-66. Motion to reconsider adopted: 11-48.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, in my humble judgment, this is the best proposal to come before this convention thus far dealing with the legislative sessions. The big complaint from the members of the legislature... from the people involved in state government, and from the citizenry of this state has been that the legislature does not have enough time to consider the proposals. Does not have enough time to deliberate and to act intelligently during the 61 day and 30 day sessions of the legislature. The big complaint from the members of the legislature... without proper deliberation, and the reason for that is the restriction of time on the legislature. It has to act in haste. It has to sometimes make decisions with tongue-in-cheek, and defer to the good judgment of the Governor to exercise wisely and judiciously his veto power. That causes the legislature necessarily to surrender (surrender some of its independence and some of its authority) a representative of the people. I suggest to you that this state would be much better off, its government would be much better off if we had an independent legislature that had enough time and the tools and where-with-all [where-withal] to act judiciously and properly and had enough time and availability to discuss and consider all proposals and act intelligently before it acted on any of the proposals. In my judgment, this amendment by Mr. Riecke allows that. The legislature would meet and for fifteen days introduce bills. Bills could only be introduced during that fifteen day preliminary session. The only restriction on the preliminary session is that committees would not be able to report nor the legislature be able to take any action on bills which would have the effect of law. But the legislature could introduce all, would have to introduce all of its bills in the first fifteen day preliminary session. Those bills would be read, printed in the newspaper they would be read again a second time, exposed to the public again and they could be referred to committee within the first fifteen days. The committees could then meet immediately. The legislature would recess after the first fifteen day period, would give the citizenry ample opportunity to become intelligently informed on the proposals that have been introduced. The citizenry ample opportunity to provide whatever input it wished into these legislative proposals. And after the recess the legislature would come back again and then begin to take the matters up on third reading and final passage. I don't think the legislature would be able to complain if we adopt this proposal. I don't think the citizenry would be able to complain if we adopt this proposal that legislative matters were sneaked through without it being informed and without the opportunity to have ample discussion and debate. I heard concern about tax measures, tax measures slipping by in the darkness of night, put over on the people who are not willing to pay taxes and don't want more tax burdens. We had a proposal here yesterday to prohibit the legislature from passing tax measures on odd numbered years, and so forth, and I guess we'll probably have some other proposals which will prohibit the legislature from passing taxes except on every fifth year, or sixth year, or tenth year. I'm worried, and I have sympathy with those proposals, but the worry is, the fear is that the legislature is going to pass tax measures without proper deliberation and pass tax measures promiscuously. And I think this procedure eliminates [eliminates] all of that because any tax measure would have to be introduced in the first preliminary session, the first fifteen days. Those matters would then be ad [...] in the newspaper. The legislature could not act upon that until about at least two weeks later, which gives the citizenry ample opportunity to become informed to contact their legislature, make their wishes known. It would assure us of a complete airing of the problem, and I only point up taxes as an illustration. But all proposals would be subject to the same scrutiny and should be. The legislature has in its hands, the legislature and the Governor of this state, the life, liberty, well-being, health and prosperity of all of the citizens of this state, and we ought to not deal with the health, welfare, prosperity and liberty of our citizens in a slipshod fashion. We ought to not do it in haste. We ought to do it deliberately, and I hear some objection that this hamstringing the legislature. I think, ladies and gentlemen, we ought to hamstringing the legislature. We ought to hamstring it to the extent that we guarantee that matters are not adopted in haste. That matters lay in the legislature at least 25 days or so as this proposal will guarantee before they are finally enacted in the law. We ought to guarantee that there is a time of cooling off, a recess period when the legislature can't move these bills. A recess period when the citizenry would have a right, the opportunity to study these bills and make its wishes known to the legislature. I can see, gentlemen and ladies, that this procedure is going to cure many ills that we suffer from today, and I plead with you to read this proposal and study it and if you can find it to agree with us to help us pass this proposal. Thank you very much.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Questions

Mr. Fulco Delegate Triche, several questions please. How many legislative days are involved in this bill, this amendment?

Mr. Triche Well, as I understand it we meet fifteen days for the first preliminary session. Then we recess and come back on the fourth Monday in May for 60 legislative days, excuse me, 50 legislative days. So that would be a total of 65.

Mr. Fulco All right. How many calendar days are involved?

Mr. Triche I stand corrected, Mr. Fulco. The first 15 day period, fifteen calendar days. So we have first the preliminary session is 15 calendar days, the second session is 50 legislative days.

Mr. Fulco Is that 50?

Mr. Triche Yes sir, 50 legislative days. So we have 15 calendar days to start with, and then 50 legislative days in the second session.

Mr. Fulco Well Pappy, overall, how many calendar days are there in the period.

Mr. Triche Well, the second session which will consist of 50 legislative days [...].

Mr. Fulco Well it's about 100, isn't it?

Mr. Triche Well if you want to answer it, go ahead, answer it.

Well if you are concerned about the span of time, it starts on the fourth Monday of April and lasts no longer than the 31st day of July. So from the fourth of April to the 31st day of July, during that period of time you have 15 calendar days for the first session and 50 legislative days for the second session.

Mr. Fulco Well actually we've got at least 50 legislative days in a possible 100 day calendar day period.

Mr. Triche No sir. No sir. I don't see how you can make 100 out of 15 and 50. The legislature will be in session no more than 15 calendar days, after which time it'll recess. Then it'd reconvene for 50 legislative days. During the recess, however, the committees would be able to meet and hold hearings, but the session would be 15 calendar days initially, then recess and then 50 legislative days.

Mr. Fulco But Pappy, we are going to the last day of July, aren't we?

Mr. Triche Not beyond the 31st of July.

Mr. Fulco Now let me ask you this. Are we paying the legislators per diems for the calendar day period.

Mr. Triche I hope we're going to be paying the legislature an annual salary. I certainly hope so and I'm going to do my best to make it ample so that we can attract you back, Mr. Fulco.

Mr. Stinson Pappy, I've enjoyed listening to you today and yesterday. Now today you said that the legislature should be hamstringed. Yesterday you said that they should not be. Now, is it on Thursday's they should not be and Friday's they should be, or is it the same. I mean Friday and Saturdays, excuse me.

Mr. Triche Now Mr. Stinson, it just depends on who I have breakfast with, and I had breakfast with you this morning and I'm satisfied that since you've changed your position on maybe I ought to change mine. No, seriously Mr. Stinson, you misunderstand me. I'm not talking about hamstringing the legislature in its authority to pass laws and make decisions. I'm not talking about that at all. I'm talking about hamstringing the legislature insofar as procedure is concerned, and I think there's a great deal of difference between substantive action of the legislature and procedural action of the legislature. I would suggest to you that the constitution today presently hamstringing the legislature and its procedure and I wouldn't suggest a change in that and I don't think you would either. Bills ought to be read three times. They ought to go to committees. They ought to be reported back. They ought to be voted on by the record vote and so forth. The constitution ought to provide those things, and I'm suggesting to you insofar as procedure is concerned, the constitution ought to again, provide a procedure to require more lengthy debate on all bills before they're finally passed. And I think this will have the affect of doing that.

Mr. Stagg Pappy, is it not true that the months of May, June and July together, in 1974, would total 92 days and that if you backed up to the 4th Monday in April then the time-span would be 101 days, during which 15 calendar days could be spent in legislative session and a total of 50 working days. Therefore, there would be 65 possible legislative enactment days during 101 days. Is that not correct?

Mr. Triche That sounds correct, yes sir.

Mr. Stagg All right sir. There has been a question raised by some delegates that if you could not act on matters having the force of law during those first few days that there'd be some difficulty in paying the staff of the legislature and the difficulty in paying the members. Is it not a fact that the legislature for the previous year could enact an appropriation to cover the opening expenses of the first 30 days of the following year's legislature and cure that problem? Is that not correct?

Mr. Triche Yes sir, I think that problem could be very easily cured in the manner you suggest.

Mr. Roy Mr. Triche, didn't yesterday you say that you were for the independence of the legislature, and you and I talked for it and killed an amendment. And is wrong with Senator Rayburn's proposal? That is, what prevents the legislature, if it chooses, from doing all these good things that you're talking about and why should we insist that they do it a certain way?

Mr. Triche I have no fault with Senator Rayburn's proposal. As a matter of fact, I voted for it yesterday because I think it's immensely better than what we have now. I think the Riecke proposal, in my judgment, Mr. Roy, is better because I think it guarantees to the people of this state that legislation will be considered and not acted upon at haste. It provides at least a two week recess period from the time the bill is introduced until the time it can be finally passed. We can pass a bill in the legislature today and enact it into law in five days. It's introduced on one day and on the fifth day be passed in the Senate and signed by the Governor. I think that's too hastily done.

Mr. Roy All right. What about a situation where you would have an emergency that would exist. Wouldn't this proposal prevent the legislature, once it has convened, from taking up any emergency legislation.

Mr. Triche No sir, because I think there's a two-thirds proposal in here. Bills can be introduced at any time by two-thirds proposal.

Mr. Roy That's not my question. If a bill is introduced, then the legislature then has to go into a fifteen day period during which it is supposed to receive a lot of input from the people if the legislators happen to be at home to receive it. If in that interim an emergency is enacted that the legislature needs to act, needs to enact a law for the Governor's immediate signature, constitutionally you couldn't do it.

Mr. Triche Do I understand you that your fear is that during the 15 day recess something may come up and the legislature may not be able to act?

Mr. Roy It's not may fear, it's a question. If this provision is passed then constitutionally the legislature is mandated that it cannot enact legislation within that 15 day period. May it do so?

Mr. Triche No it may not do so. I can't draw a conclusion from that. I don't get your point.

Mr. Roy Well, do you agree that some situation may develop that we would need a law passed and the Governor's signature on it so that it would become effective immediately.

Mr. Triche Well certainly.

Mr. Roy Is that denied as a result of the passage of this bill?

Mr. Triche Oh yes it is, but there are circumstances that exist today, which the same opportunities are denied. For example, when the legislature meets, it cannot be called into special session regardless of the emergency for a period of 30 days. That's written in the constitution. We've been living with that for 50 years.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Fellow delegates, I'm very happy that the old pro was up here because we have some very good professionals picking at this bill right now, and all I'm going to say is basic and I hope to put it in very simple terms. We have provided in this convention provisions for the legislature, giving them more time, we're providing, a little later on, we're going to pick up, and probably provide an annual salary. We're going to give them all the things that they wanted or that we want for them, rather. Now we are going to provide the possibility of so many benefits, in fact, that I think we're going to have to get some longer or wider voting machines to put the cards in. The voters that are going to be running for the legislature. Now I want to just mention to you right now that we are told and shall be told that that's not a cure all because somewhere in California or some other state it didn't work completely. On simple terms, did you ever go fishing and expect to catch all the fish in the bayou or in the sea? There's not a man or a woman in this room that intended to do that. It has been brought out by one of our delegates who will oppose this measure that absolute justice is unobtainable on this earth. That stuck with me and I think it's very good. Now all that picking and saying you know you didn't cure all, that's just picking. That's what it is.

Now I want to ask you to think about something that the people back home sent us to use the wisdom, the judgment in our minds to do all we could to give them the things they want. We have provided for the legislature many things, and one member in this delegation suggests to me that possibly we were destroying the acceptance of this constitution by providing too much for the legislature. I am in favor of providing them all the time, the money, the access, the studies. We put them in continuous body, we did all these things. Now give the people a break. Give them a chance that you want to provide for them the same things that you provide for their legislature. This is not a question of distrust, dislike, or human personalities or anything in that nature. It's providing, it's not tying [tying] them, it's not shackling their arms, it's only providing guidelines by which we expect our representatives to inform us of what's going on in Baton Rouge.

You hear a lot of excitement about this is going to take all our time and I want to mention this. I've spoken to one of the members of the legislature, a past member of the legislature, and I give him credit for being a very honest man and he went up in my estimation 1,000. He said I don't want this kind of thing. In this interval they're going to be lining up in front of my office a mile long to tell me what they want and what they want. And I said listen, why did you run for this office, to do what you want or to do what the people want? And if it takes a circus tent in your front yard to house the people, once you become a legislator and you should at that time say thank the Lord for that constitutional convention. Because I just want to mention one thing to you, think of, and this is no reflection on him I just want to point out something to you, from A to Jefferson there's not a more thought of man in his parish than the assessor. Why do you think that's so? That's because he knows and he has a personal contact with these people and he never forgets it. And those of you who are legislators who want to overlook this, who think perhaps you're just a little bit higher than the people who sent you there, remember that. When did you ever see an assessor defeated in your office, in his office? Was it the last time we had an earthquake in Louisiana? And I'm not speaking against them, I'm for them. They have found something that most of us have not found, the ability to contact the people, to speak their mind and to come up from A to Jefferson to the people want. And my daddy told me long ago, he said son, he said don't ever work at a job that you're not happy. He said, all the money in the world's not worth it. And I just want to tell these legislators who may be bothered with these people, that all the money in the legislature and all we are going to provide here is not for it. You're in the wrong job. This is not speaking badly about the legislature, I really think the world of them. My legislators are some of the best people that I know. And I just want to mention this, though, that when I heard of a bill and read it on my local paper for the first time and I asked them why would you vote for that monster'sity? And this is when we didn't have the single-member districts, he says I'll have to check with so and so because he's the man that tells me about this. And they really didn't know what they had voted for or how they had voted and they said if I did, I certainly made a mistake. This will provide a means when we want to know about the bill the cats, we'll find out about the bill on cats. And I personally think that next to the single-member districts and a few other things, this might be the best thing that has ever come on the scene since the birds and the bees. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Alario Mr. Champagne, when I took office as State Representative, I took that office on the second Monday in May, 1972. Now under this provision, and I'm also thinking about the provision as we presently adopted under Senator Rayburn's provision, we're saying that the legislature shall meet on the fourth of April. Now do you think you feel that that would cut down my term of office by some two or three weeks?

Mr. Champagne I think the reason was the date was put in the constitution because several people went to Mr. Riecke, I'm told, and said we want to know when we're running for this office, when are we going to start going to the legislature.

Mr. Alario Would it cut down on my term of office, Mr. Champagne?

Mr. Champagne I really haven't figured that out because we've decided you are a continuous body. You're going to be in office all the time when you're elected.

Mr. Alario Well if I'm reelected I probably would, but in the event I decide not to run again, then would you not in effect be cutting down my term of office by possibly three weeks? My point is this, I believe you are doing that, and if you are, aren't you expressly prohibited from doing that in Act 2 which called this convention into session.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Alario, that's a technical question and I informed the public and the delegates here that I'm not a professional. I really can't answer that question.

Mr. Alario Mr. Champagne, then if this does do it, and I'm just discussing it with the staff, did you know that they informed me that they believe this is so, and if it is so, then this provision that Mr. Riecke has here, whether we are for or against it, would not take effect until possibly five years from now; so that this new legislature which would come in after this constitution is passed would not meet in their split session until the following legislature, you see. Cause in effect, if you're cutting down an officeholder's office, or term of office, we expressly prohibited under Act 2 from doing that. So I'm just wondering if possibly they shouldn't withdraw this amendment and doctor it back up to go to the second Monday in May so that we won't cut down on the office, and they might do this immediately if that's their intention.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Alario, I really agree with you, but once in committee, as you know, a number of amendments and the first thing you would, I didn't have any proposal. But I think you intend well, Mr. Alario. If that was to be the problem and it was found by Style and Drafting, perhaps, that could be changed.

Mr. Wall Mr. Champagne, from the statements you have made, I'll have to first acknowledge you as an expert to the next elections and the candidates and how many there's going to be and what's going to happen. I recognize you for the point of this that you are an expert. Now what I want to know is, are you going to be one of those candidates?

Mr. Champagne Mr. Wall, I want to tell you right now, and this can be public, in other words be mentioned to all the public, that the provisions we are providing for this legislature are so great that I can see bankers closing their banks, farmers closing their farms, and everybody running for the legislature.

Mr. Wall That wasn't my question, sir. Were you going to be one of those candidates?

Mr. Champagne Mr. Wall, that's a decision that when the time comes that I shall make and I feel that I'm qualified to do.

Mr. Duval Mr. Champagne, this question was brought up by Delegate Alario. I think the other provisions that will further come down the line where the terms of office will be changed wouldn't this be handled by the schedule so that the people coming in 1976 might hold terms for 3 years and 11 months. Not shortening existing people, but the schedule would provide for the people coming in 1976. Wouldn't that be the intelligent way to handle it, Mr. Champagne?

Mr. Champagne I think that would be a wonderful way to do it.

Mr. Roy Mr. Champagne, I'm kind of like Delegate Wall. Notwithstanding your comments about the professionals, I thought that the Socratic dialogue between you and Mr. Riecke was the most professional thing I've seen here. But in any event, wouldn't the second to last sentence, "During the interim between adjournment and reconvening the committees of Houses may meet and hold hearings". Isn't that provided for at the other period where it says about the fifth sentence, "During this period no committee shall report. Neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law". Isn't, doesn't that allow the same thing?

Mr. Champagne It's quite likely that it does. It's possible that it does not. This is a technical question that I, not being an attorney, am not qualified to answer.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Mr. Roy All right, the other thing is won't you automatically permit these committees, if they do meet, to have some vote even though they may not render a final report or take any type of action.

Mr. Champagne I really don't know, Mr. Roy. Not having ever been in the legislature, and may never be there, I wouldn't know. But I'm sure that someone might be able to enlighten you, other than myself.

Mr. Roy I want to make one comment about that. Why couldn't they vote? What precludes these committees from meeting, from taking a straw vote? Don't you agree that that's the worst form of preconceived notion, so that when you return to vote on the measure you've already made up your mind one way or the other.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Roy, they have those kind of votes every night when the legislature is in session. They meet in rooms and they do this all the time. Didn't you know that? I was told that and I've seen it in action at this convention.

Mr. Roy Well, I don't usually go by what I'm told. I go by what I know. Finally, wouldn't going into the 31st of July enter into a new fiscal period which would present some problem to the legislature and the state?

Mr. Champagne I think that that probably, as mentioned by Mr. Duval could be handled later on. I really don't know, Mr. Roy. But you see, the point is I try to get direct with my questions and answers, and I try, in other words, in simple terms and that's why I mentioned the bill on cats. Because everybody, you know, has seen a cat. And in other words I like to do this thing simple because when I come from they say "you fer it or your against it" in just, you know, plain English. I will not get involved with people who are better qualified at these technicalities than I am.

Mr. Roy Finally, one last question, what prevents the legislature from doing exactly what you're talking about according to its own rules under the Rayburn provision?

Mr. Champagne Nothing at all, sir. I was for the Rayburn provision, or intended to be, if I was not. The only thing is I think Mr. Riecke's provision is far superior since we are providing things for the legislature that were never provided for before and I think we're doing a good job at that. I just want the people to feel that in return, they are getting some guarantees and guidelines set for the people. Now any legislator worth his salt will run under guidelines that are well established by the people or their Representatives, and that's what this convention is all about.

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

Mr. Munson Mr. Champagne, I wanted to clear up something that I think I heard you say a moment ago in answer to a question of John Alario when he was discussing the dates that are involved in this amendment. Did I understand you to say that the Committee on Style and Drafting could change these dates if that was a problem?

Mr. Champagne In my ignorance, I probably said that that was a possibility.

Mr. Munson Well, don't you agree with me that they cannot change the substance of the amendment?

Mr. Champagne On second consideration, I would agree with you that they cannot, but I think that this is a very technical matter which I have said that I cannot answer and refuse to answer, but because I simply don't know what I'm talking about. But I will be glad to refer it to other people who may have a solution to it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Madame Chairman, members of the convention, new problems have come out about shortening the terms, but I'll get to that a little later. Now, I'm for Senator Rayburn's version of this matter, and spoke on it yesterday. I want you to listen carefully because I don't think anybody has touched on what I'm going to tell you now. Now, under Mr. Riecke's proposal, you have this situation. You have a split session of the legislature. Under Senator Rayburn's, and I want you to listen because this is important, under Senator Rayburn's proposal, broad where it provides for 50 days maximum during which the House, one or both, cannot be in session more than 60 days. Now, under Senator Rayburn's you have your choice. You can have a split session if the legislature so desires. You can have under Rayburn's what Riecke has, but you cannot have under Mr. Riecke's what Senator Rayburn has. Now I want you to follow that. There have been arguments pro and con, in the House and Senate to my knowledge, since 1940 when I first was there as to whether or not we ought to have split sessions. Now, under Senator Rayburn's, the legislature, if they so desire, could go into that. Next year, if they wanted, under Rayburn's, with 30 day maximum, they could have the sixty actual sessions, if they wanted they could choose the first 15 days just like Riecke's in which to have committee meetings. They could do that. If they wanted then, the following year, revert back and run a regular thing like under Rayburn's like you've considered and then make up their mind which is best. But you can't do that under Mr. Riecke's. Nobody has ever had split sessions, so you don't know how they work. They may be horrible. You may not have anybody introduce any bills if Mr. Riecke's passed till the 15th day. And you would have 14 days going along in which you didn't have a single bill. Now I believe the history shows on pre-filing you do find about 300 bills introduced. How much of that Senate and House bills increase and they do file the first few days, I don't know. But I hate to see a split session put in the constitution and made compulsory and you may make a big, big error. Let me tell you, we cannot afford to make errors, if possible. When you make them in the legislature, you can correct them. If you make them in the House, in the Senate and vice versa, you can correct them in the legislature in both Houses, you can correct them the following year. Now you can say, Mr. Jack, you make them in this constitution you can correct them with a constitutional amendment. Let me tell you, that's the reason we are here now. The people are sick and tired of having a lot of constitutional amendments foisted on them. They want us to figure this thing out and there's been no constitutional convention for 51 years, so you may not can correct an error and do it properly for another 51 years. Now I'm going to go over this cause it's important. Under Senator Rayburn's you can do, in my opinion, everything you can do in Mr. Riecke's. You can send up a trial balloon, the legislature can under Senator Rayburn's do the first 10-15 days of the maximum of 80 and having a split session, and see how it does. And after that's over follow the regular other procedure. Personally, I don't think a split session is going to work, but under Rayburn's I again repeat, and I hope you are listening, it can be done. You can handle it both ways under Senator Rayburn's. Under Mr. Riecke's you can handle it the only one way. So I say, let's don't take the chance on being mistaken in this matter and I say let's follow the Rayburn bill. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kilpatrick Madam Chairman, members of the convention. I rise in opposition to this Riecke amendment. I'd like to go back some. Let's study what the Rayburn bill said. The Rayburn bill said that the legislature shall meet annually in regular session for not more than sixty legislative days out of eighty calendar days. What the Riecke proposal does in essence goes back to the original proposal that we had that we defeated with the Rayburn amendment. There's very little difference and it was an overwhelming defeat. We've been here for two days now discussing what we want the legislature to do.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

You have heard better legislators say that they are satisfied with the continuous sessions. We don't want to split this session. Most of us in the legislature do not want to split the sessions. It has been said here that we want to hear from the people back home. Well, that's a bunch of bosh. For the two years that I have been down here as a freshman legislator, I don't hear from a lot of people about bills at home. They come to Baton Rouge to talk to us. You know who you hear from back home? The people who want a job and are hounding you to death from day to day. They're not coming down here and talking to you about something constructive in the legislature. This sounds good to some of the supporters of the Riecke amendment, but this isn't true—putting a great white cloud over an issue that isn't basically true. Most of you are telling the legislature what you want them to do. Let the legislature be independent. Don't hamstring the legislature. Let the legislature come into session, let them pass their rules and regulations that they would like to have to represent most of the people in the state of Louisiana. You're talking about people who have to face the responsibility back home. There was one gentleman here who said that if we did not vote to listen to the people back home we shouldn't be here. Well, let me tell you something, Mr. Champagne, most of the people here who are legislators are conscientious about being legislators and we listen to the people back home. If we didn't want to be conscientious and if we were not conscientious, we wouldn't be here representing the people. I'm down here a fifty dollars a day and my expenses are more than what I'm getting out of this legislature. I have two homes to take care of, one here and one in Baton Rouge with my wife and family here. I have a business going on as most of the legislators do down here. We don't have to be told that we're not here or we shouldn't be here because we don't want to listen to the people. This is not so and I resent this and speaking for myself...I feel like all the other legislators feel the same. When you're talking about the tax assessor being in his office all the time, these tax assessors don't get defeated. Do you know why? They have the pencil. Let's face it. Now leave the legislature alone to make its own decisions. People go in here and leave the legislature independent and let's quit boxing and sparring with these amendments. Yesterday we wanted the Rayburn amendment. Today we want the Riecke amendment. Tomorrow we'll be back with the Rayburn amendment. It was overwhelmingly passed. We have gotten off of a serious, serious subject here today that has to do with one thing and that means that this legislature under the Rayburn amendment as the bill is now proposed to this legislature will meet for sixty days out of a seventy calendar day issue. We don't go home and let a special group of lobbyists or people put us in the pressure cooker and boil us for two weeks under the Rayburn amendment. We come down here and we go to work. Now, another fallacy on the Riecke amendment is this: that you have fifteen days in which the Legislative Council is to prepare all these bills. We had some three thousand bills that were introduced in the first session. This doesn't give adequate time for the Legislative Council to work which they work day and night to get them out. Under the Rayburn proposal that we now have, you have twenty days for the Legislative Council to prepare these bills for the legislators to introduce. I urge you, please leave the legislature independent. Don't tell the legislature what to do. Keep this Rayburn proposal. Thank you.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Mr. Kilpatrick, you said that you didn't want the people from your area to tell you what to do. How can you represent them if you don't know what they want. How can we have government by the people and for the people? You're going to cut out by the people if you don't give them a chance to say anything. I would like to know why you feel that you have all of the answers and you're just going to come up here and do what you want to do and they don't have any input.

We have our constitutional convention here and we have delegates, grass roots people and everybody coming in saying what they would like to have. So are we supposed to consider them or is this a farce and we're just to make them believe that they've got something to say and they don't, and we're going to sit up here and do like we want to do, in all fairness to all of the people, my belief is that we should give the people a chance to have something to say.

Mr. Kilpatrick I have never said that I didn't want to hear from the people back home. I want to hear from the people back home and I represent the people back home. The question is, when you get back home, the people are not going to talk to you back home on these bills. They are coming down here to Baton Rouge but what you said or intimated is nothing...I've never made that statement and I'll never make it. I represent the people back home and I'm free and independent because of the people back home, one hundred thousand people that I represent. I don't know where you got your accusation that I didn't want to hear the people back home.

Mrs. Warren I think that if you read the record back, you'll find where you said it right here on this rostrum today. That's the reason I came up here, Mr. Kilpatrick.

Mr. Kilpatrick Oh no! You misunderstood that. I represent the people back home.

Mrs. Miller Let's not have any argument at the podium. Let's proceed orderly.

Mr. Kilpatrick Let's set the record straight on that, if it's in there.

[Quorum Call: 106 delegates present and a quorum.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Madam Chairman, delegates to the convention, that is one way to waste money is to have too many record votes or absence of a quorum. Sometimes it's necessary. Sometimes I'm guilty of that. First, I'd like to say this. This amendment, as to what will happen and the difference between it and the amendment we passed yesterday, the legislature can live with it. I don't get worked up one way or the other to that extent, truthfully. What does concern me is that so many people that are sitting out here right now, that are supposed to be down here to write a constitution and instead of that they're all—not all but so many of them—are trying to legislate. They want to bring all the legislative persons to the floor and they want to run for the legislature when they get back home, and if this continues, this type of action, it will now cause—could be one of the things—that could cause the defeat of the work of this convention. The reason we have a constitutional convention is because it's necessary is because so many things are tied down in the constitution where the legislature can't change it when times change and there's a need for a change or people demand a change but the legislature can't change it because it's tied down in the constitution. That's the reason we have this constitutional convention today. Yet, you have some people who want to do all these good government things that will look good, that's really legislation, and they try to tie down in this constitution because it looked good today, they can't see down the road the necessity of a change. They are just running for office today. I repeat that. They're just running for office today, what sounds good back home. They haven't got the courage or the vision to really recognize what their duties as legislators are as a delegate to this constitutional convention. They have got to look down the road for change and what would be good in this constitution tion or what would be bad, what would hamstring twenty or thirty years from now. Now, ladies and gentlemen, this is something—the legislature could live with this, but this is such a useless amendment. It's a useless amendment. Why? Five days is too short a time truthfully the original way it was for the introduction of bills. Let me point out to you one reason for that. Now the lawyers could call down the legislative Council and properly get their bills drafted in most instances, but a non-lawyer may not get it drafted until he gets down here or he may not get it drafted correctly because he didn't properly explain it. So he gets down here and it's impossible, a physical impossibility, to have a staff that could draft all the bills that's necessary in five days. Now that doesn't mean that all these bills are good. Many times bills that should not be passed are introduced, but they point out abuses by certain groups or interests in this state that when that abuse is pointed out then corrective measures are taken without necessary legislation. Now, this particular amendment...you're going to bring the procedure out over a necessary process at this particular time. Now you hear what I'm telling you—at this particular time. This should not be in the constitution. The legislature...the constitution should put certain reins on the legislature but that should be limited. There should be that latitude so that if twenty years from now or ten years from now the necessity of the workings of the legislature needs to be changed, the legislature can change it. We are not here to legislate. We are here to write a constitution. If you are going to try to put everything in the constitution that should be legislation, we will not come up with an instrument that will pass the people when we finish it. Ladies and gentlemen, this is not good for the constitutional convention. If one of you happen to be a legislator and you want to put...you need it where the legislature can adjust themselves within certain periods of time. Truthfully, you know if I had my way, and I've been mentioning it a little bit, I really think the legislature should be limited. But I haven't offered that because I haven't had any support yet. But there's a lot of...to the legislative meetings in January. But when sentiment is not with you I don't want to bring it up here and waste the time of these delegates but this is an unnecessary amendment and I hope you will see fit to vote against it.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Duval Delegate Wall, wasn't there a proposal yesterday to allow the legislature to fix its times as provided by law? Wasn't there such a proposal yesterday, sir?

Mr. Wall I believe there was some such proposal.

Mr. Duval Doesn't the Rayburn amendment limit constitutionally the session to sixty days? Doesn't it?

Mr. Wall Not necessarily sixty. Sixty days within a period of time.

Mr. Duval You say you think the legislature should have flexibility, doesn't that also constitutionally fix something that may need to be changed in fifty or sixty years.

Mr. Wall That's right. But this is not an improvement, Mr. Duval. It does put restrictions. If you wanted to have an amendment to let the legislature set their sessions, I would vote for that, Mr. Duval.

Mrs. Warren Mr. Wall, would you consider Mr. Riecke's amendment a legislative bill? When you said we were not up here to legislate, would you say this was a bill or would you say this was an amendment.

Mr. Wall This is a proposed amendment to the constitution. Mrs. Warren. But it is more legislative than it is constitutional.

Mrs. Warren They just mentioned that they have one to allow you to set your own time and it was rejected and I didn't hear you come up here and say anything about it.

Mr. Wall Mrs. Warren, you'll find that I'm not going to come up here and take issue on all matters. There's some things that I feel like that I can feel the sentiment of the delegates and it's not necessary for me to waste the time to come up here and make a talk and give my views. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have analyzed this amendment, I have listened to the arguments and I have come to a definite conclusion. This conclusion is based on the arguments and on the information that I have drawn from this amendment. The very first good feature of this amendment is the fact that it permits a vigilant citizenry to keep track of what its legislature is doing. It permits the citizen to react. This thirty day period during which time hearings could be had will permit the public, John Doe citizen, the man, not necessarily the professional lobbyists or the big organizations, but the little people who may have problems with legislation to come up here to Baton Rouge and present their case. Then, Mr. Chairman, this amendment would remedy many of the ills of the past. It would remedy the problem pointed out by a previous speaker that the legislature has been forced to meet on Saturdays and on Sundays because the stipulation is here that the legislature would have fifty legislative days to work. Finally, I say to you that this is the most perfect, corrective provision to cure the ills of the past that has been presented to this convention and I say to you that if we are losing time and if we have lost time in the past during the debate of this amendment. We have lost time on something else. It has not been this important. This provision is the most important measure presented to this constitutional convention outside of the unicameral legislative idea. So I appeal to you to vote for this provision, put it into the constitution so that the legislature will be responsive to the people, so that the legislature will be a responsible body meeting in session during times when everybody will know when they are going to meet, when hearings can be held and when committees will be holding these hearings. Mr. Chairman, I thank you. If there are questions, I will answer.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tapper Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise also in opposition to this amendment. It isn't as bad as it could be but I'd like to preface my remarks with this. We've been beating this dog for a long, long time. Yesterday we finally voted by an overwhelming majority for a proposal for an amendment to the proposal which was Senator Rayburn's amendment. I believe that that was a good amendment. I believe that this is a bad amendment. It could be under this amendment that we could meet—the legislature could meet—from April through July 31st. There has been much talk here about suspects of the legislature. Of course, I'm a member of the body. I hope that talk was not true. However, if that is true throughout this state, which I do not believe, then what you are doing here is authorizing that body which you feel is not trusted by the citizens of this state, to meet for a longer period than sixty days while at the same time, you are not authorizing them to take any action for the first fifteen days. Yes, the amendment says that. The committees can meet. The committees can take action but cannot report. Believe me if you know what the legislative process is, you can fully understand that we can take action in a committee today and we can take action again tomorrow on the same measure by a simple majority vote to reconsider.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

So by saying in this amendment that the committees can take action, we say exactly nothing because no final action will be taken until that bill or resolution is finally reported out of that committee and no longer in the hands of that committee. I'm sure that most of you realize that because you have been sitting in committees since January and you know that the proposals that you have put forth, the amendments that were adopted were re-amended and reamended in your committees just like you mine and you are here, and we have been here since yesterday, reamending those amendments again and again. One thing else I'd like to point out and that is that under this amendment you will have for a period of forty-five days all of the people who work for the legislature working without pay. I'm not speaking of the legislators. They can do it but what about the personnel? There's no provision for the appropriation bill that pays the employees of the legislature, to have any final action on it until the forty-fifth day or the forty-sixth day or maybe the forty-seventh or forty-eighth day in order for it to get through both houses. There are many, many flaws with this amendment but the biggest one is that it will allow the legislature to meet for a period from April through July 31st and I think that you don't want that. Mr. Chairman, as I said in my preface, this dog has been beaten and beaten and beaten and I feel this, everybody here has made up his mind whether he wants a split session or he wants a sixty day within a seventy day session or what he wants. At this time Mr. Chairman, I'd like to move the previous question on the amendment and Section 2 Paragraph A.

Mr. Henry Mr. Tapper, you have sort of come up with a hybrid. You can move the previous question but if you want to move it on the subject matter it is going to have to be the entire subject matter of Section 2, I believe.

Mr. Tapper I would like for the rules to be checked on that, Mr. Chairman. I think I can move the...subject matter that is presently before us is Subparagraph A of Section 2.

Mr. Henry The subject matter that is presently before us is subsection 2 period because under the rules we are to consider these articles section by section. So if it is the entire subject matter then it has got to be as to Section 2. If it is just the previous question, then we have no problem.

Mr. Tapper I move the previous question on the amendment.

[Motion for the Previous Question re-jected: 53-54]

Further Discussion

Mr. Guarisco I rise in support of the Riecke amendment. I coauthored the amendment and I just want to say that Mr. Wall has suggested on a number of occasions that those of us who are delegates to this convention who are not legislators are preparing for the next election. I feel that those persons are really preparing for the next generation. Why I don't know what Mr. Wall is doing. Yesterday Mr. Rayburn got before you and said, "I don't pass the bills or I don't introduce a bill in the beginning or in the middle. I learned that trick. I put it in in the end. I try to slip it in, slide it." Well, all we want to do with this amendment is to put a little love in the grease. That's all. That's all we want to do. This is what the people want. They want a split session; they want to hear about it; they want to have a chance to look at it—they might not have anything to say, just like those of you who are going around the constitutional convention and had twenty-five and thirty people show up—but at least they had the opportunity to do so. I ask that you vote for the Riecke amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Lowe Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention,

I just want to note before I start to make my short talk to you that this is the first time that I speak on this proposal. I really have no serious thoughts about the number of days and I've sat quietly listening to all the proposals. I have some experience in this particular area having been a legislator from '64-'68 that became a little bit disgusted with the system, did not seek reelection and felt that those that had the power—and there are those that can move things a little bit like the other others, that's the system, it will always be the system and I don't quarrel with that. I think that's good. We need people to give us guidance but we also have some very good people that sit back, that can't always let their thoughts and their efforts be felt completely. There were many times when I sat in the legislature that I felt like a vegetable. For that reason I became completely disenchanted with the system that we had, not disinterested in government, but disenchanted with what we had to work with. Now we argued a lobby bill and I couldn't get serious about that particular bill and I did not speak on it. But I think this is part of a lobby bill. I think this is a lobby bill for the people back home. I don't want to get up and talk about the school teachers and the old folks and the people back home because that's not my type of politics. If anyone thinks I'm running for office again, I think we can let the record show that there's about as much chance for me running for office again as there is for an earthquake in Louisiana. Now that doesn't shut the door completely because I think I could do some good, I might sacrifice. I don't believe I can. There are a number of people in my district who can do as much as I can. But I do believe that this is a lobby bill for the people back home. Now that happens when a bill comes before the legislature. Those people that want to move can see that it moves. Another legislator that he may be just as good a bid, if he's not in and he's out, it may be difficult for him to get his bill to move. He may need more time. He may need to gather his forces. He may need to rally the ranks and it's difficult or impossible for him to do it under the system that we now have believe me. I've been through it. I was one of the voters first in the dome stadium. Now I don't want to resurrect something and the way the dome stadium is today, I'm not here discussing, opposing it. It's what we have to work with and we all accept it but I do believe that the proposition that we received on the dome stadium sometimes in the sixties was not as good as it would be led to believe it was by the number of votes that it received in the legislature. I believe that if we had had time to split the session, to go back home, to look at that proposal that was before us we would have had some different thoughts by the time we got back from that split session and started to vote. I think this proposal fits in very well with a salary for legislators. I think legislators should work hard, work long, that's what they're for office for. There are a number of legislators that came before this mike to oppose this bill. I can't argue with them for proposing the bill. Certainly, if a legislator has to operate under this particular bill it's going to cause him some more problems than he has now and I believe the reason why it will cause him some more problems than he has now is because it will pull into our government our constituents back home. We worry about them being complacent—we have an opportunity now to remove some of that complacency and that's why I'm before you because I want some of our constituents involved when we're seeking office—we're a lot more involved with them now, are they or are they not legislators. That has to be and I don't condemn that because when I ran for this office I was a lot more involved with them than I am today and I regret that. I wish we had a system that had me as close to my constituents as I was last year at this time when I was asking them to vote for me and if we can do something that's going to do a better type of representation, well I'm for it one hundred percent. Now the Rayburn amendment yesterday it's been discussed, I think probably it was better than what we had yesterday. This is just so much better than the Rayburn amendment. We've heard that we have a proposition that it's going to be unconstitutional from the standpoint that we're going to shorten the office of the people now elected. Well those people that are going to oppose something are always going to whisper that we have a problem and that's why we have our style and drafting committee. We adopt what we have to adopt, we send it to them and we have a process that we've set up to take care of all of these problems. If we have a problem, we have some intelligent delegates on style and drafting that will send it back to us and tell us that we have a problem and that's the way I understand our process. I promised to keep it short. I think you get the gist of what I'm trying to tell you, I tell it to you sincerely from someone that was there that tried the system, found that it didn't work as far as I was concerned and hope that we can get a system that will get our constituents involved and give government to the people and let them help us in this representative democracy.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I arise in support of the Riecke amendment and I want you to know this is the third time that I've changed my mind. Not the first or second, it's the third time and I'll tell you another thing, if it comes up, a better amendment comes up, I'm going to be for it. Yesterday morning when we were to work at 9:30 I was for the committee's report, committee proposal number three by the Legislative Powers and Functions Committee. I thought it looked good. It too was for a split session, but after debating around awhile and kicking around the Rayburn theory it sounded better and I voted for Senator Rayburn's amendment. You might notice I sit next to him and I have a lot of respect for Senator Rayburn. I think he's contributed a great deal to Louisiana government but I must say to you that I have to be for the Riecke amendment because I feel, as Sheriff Durso said to me a minute ago, this will slow down the process. It will give the people back home, yes, time to do some lobbying and after all that's the people I want to see do the lobbying is the people back home. These are the people that sent us here. These are the people that pays the bill in the state of Louisiana and I say to you that I am for this Riecke amendment and I will be happy to support it and I hope and urge that you do that. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I spoke to Mr. Riecke concerning his amendment and the one thing in it that I like, it was going to give a chance to the people back home to have a chance to contact their representative before they give any action on it. I can remember on many occasions where I had to make long distance telephone calls at the last minute to representatives from my area to ask them to support a particular bill. I could have so much easier and cheaper done it if they had been home for a period of time where I could have gotten in touch with them. I'm not saying this to be bragging but I do love people. I work with PTA and we do represent people. I work actively with them and I know Mr. Riecke has also. Many times we meet and we decide things that are good for the people. We ask people their opinions before we bring it up to have it voted on, so for this reason and this reason alone I was interested in this amendment. I'm not interested in the mathematics of it. I'm not interested in how the legislators can live with it. I'm interested in if our people will be able to live with it and not just exist. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Reverend Landrum Mr. Chairman, I had asked that my... I raise the right to speak because so many people was echoing my sentiments and as a member of this particular committee, I've heard this argument time and time again and I've heard some very good arguments about it. I wanted to check with legislators who had some experience in this area and I found that they too are somewhat as, like I am, I found that they are very much divided on the different kinds of sessions. Now the proposal that Mr. Riecke had on yesterday, it wasn't possible for me to go along with that proposal. As he has it this morning, I feel that it is the best proposal that I've heard throughout the committee hearing and throughout this convention. Therefore, I will support that particular proposal and respond to delegate Senator Rayburn, and I like what he said about the revival not being able to take in members. Well, I believe that he would know that even better than I because even most country parishes, country churches, they used to strive on that idea, that if you do not come up to par well then they would not accept you into the church. They would send you back. That's why I think we do need to go back, we need to go back and try to get some input from the people. I have to have somebody else's guidance because I don't know all the answers. I want to have the answers and I want to see what the answers is saying. I want to see what people are saying. I want to hear everything and from that then I'll make my own conclusions from it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, I would not be taking up your time at this last date in this debate or in this discussion because I think that every facet and every angle and every possible question concerning this amendment has been discussed and thoroughly discussed.

My only reason for standing before you is a little personal one. Yesterday morning, in talking with Mr. Riecke he outlined what he had in mind which was later transcribed in his amendment and I told him that sounded like something that I could go along with. Later on in the morning, Delegate Rayburn introduced his resolution--his amendment which to me was exactly what Mr. Riecke and I discussed around the breakfast hour. I was set up for Senator Rayburn's amendment. Then later on Mr. Riecke's amendment was introduced which to me, and I have listened very carefully and very studiously to the argument on both amendments. And as of this time I don't see anything in Mr. Riecke's amendment that cannot be done under Senator Rayburn's amendment. It just spells one or two things out a little more. So I saw no possible reason or justification for me changing my vote.

Now, here is a point where the personal angle comes in. As I have gone through life there have been many instances that have come up where I could see no visible reward at the particular time for trying to be fair or overly fair. In some particular event or some particular happening. But a happy happened when Mr. Riecke's amendment came up to be voted on this morning that ultra fairness, extra fairness came into my mind that Mr. Riecke for some reason might have thought yesterday morning that I had committed myself to him. Which of course, I did by no stretch of the imagination. But in the effort to be ultra fair I didn't vote on the amendment when it came up for a vote. An awful and behold as it is my luck in many, many occasions I believe the vote came out even if I am not mistaken. Whereas, if I hadn't had that inner feeling of fairness I would have voted just as I had in the first instance for Mr. Rayburn's amendment. Which I intend to do when it comes up if we ever get through with these many addresses and these many amendments.

But as far as the two amendments are concerned, I have listened to the folks back home and the citizenry and the constituents. And I am frank to say that I go home after everyone of these sessions and the only time that anybody has ever spoken to me about this convention was to ask me to be sure and keep the three dollar automobile license in the new constitution.

The people are not going to discuss with you when you go home as do the--to which one of these amendments you think was the best. They don't know these technical legislative procedures. They are looking to us, to you and to me and to use our judgment up here. And I dare say whether you vote for the Riecke amendment or the Rayburn amendment, your people won't know the difference one way or the other but they are leaving that to your judgment. So I just wanted to get up here fellow delegates and explain my position with reference to this amendment and the fact that as I see it the Rayburn amendment encompasses and takes care of every thing that the Riecke amendment does but it does give a little more elasticity to the legislature when it's in session.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Chairman, and delegates. I think by now the preceding speakers have taken all the wind out of my sail but I have a few points I would like to bring to your attention.

We speak of the apathy of the people in the State of Louisiana uninterested in government. Perhaps this is due to the fact that they don't understand government.

I voted for single member districts on that very idea. We have got to create a structure that they can understand. We have been told by other delegates here that we're getting into legislating and yet those same delegates have told us they are for the Rayburn amendment. This amendment only does one other thing. It allows the legislators to go back home and talk with their people on bills. It also makes a lot of sense to the people can understand. They know when the legislature will go into session. They know when they will be home. They know when they have a chance to influx.

I fully believe if we can create a structure in government then we have done our job here and our people will get more involved.

I don't believe that the intention of this body to hamstring the legislature. Instead, I think we want to provide for flexibility when dealing with substantive matters. We are now dealing with structure not substantive matters. To me it's very plain, very simple.

It's been alleged by some delegates that some of the legislators don't want to listen to their people. There are probably a few that don't want to listen. But I firmly believe that the majority of the legislators do want to listen. I firmly believe that we do have some interested citizens too. This amendment would give them a chance to go home and listen.

There were a number of other points but as I said earlier, the wind has been taken of the sail and they were covered. I'd like to point out one other thing. This amendment has been made by a delegate that has perhaps gained a reputation for being one of the most sincere delegates in representing the people back home.

On the other hand, this same amendment is being supported by one of the most capable legislators that we have. Therefore to me, we have the type of situation that we would want to act on immediately. We have both the ends represented. A man wanting to represent the people back home and a legislator with many years of experience saying that it can be done.

I urge your support of this amendment.

Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Gauthier, did you attend the Public Information Committee meeting.

Mr. Gauthier Yes, I did.

Mr. Bergeron Did you find the input from the Citizens helpful to you in your deliberations up here?

Mr. Gauthier I did.

Mr. Bergeron Don't you also feel that this would benefit the representatives in their respective areas?

Don't you feel that they would have the opportunity for the citizens, the people they represent to honestly state what they would like their representative to do?

Mr. Gauthier I do.

Mr. Bergeron Thank you.

Mr. Toomy Mr. Gauthier, the Public Information Committee was just referred to a meeting on the westbank in Jefferson Parish which included the whole westbank of Jefferson Parish. Was there not only twenty-three people present and five of those were elected officials?

Mr. Gauthier There were. And all twenty-three of them had very good points, Mr. Toomy.

Mr. J. Jackson I agree with what you said about the amendment of Mr. Riecke. The question that hasn't been asked, or maybe it has been asked, is what happens in the case of like...recently in the last session we had some emergency legislation that was introduced. And what happens if emergency legislation is necessary within the fifteen day period. Will the legislature, the House be able to act upon that legislation? Or if you don't know that do you know if there are further amendments that will be proposed to maybe make Mr. Riecke's amendment probably a better amendment?

Mr. Gauthier No, I don't know Mr. Jackson, however I can say this. In listening to Mr. Triche's explanation I understand that there is now a thirty day period where legislation can't be introduced; so perhaps this is an improvement.

Mr. J. Jackson No. My point is that there will possibly be and I don't know we are talking about the future. But I could envision there may be the possibility of emergency legislation for floor control...things like that.

And it just seems to me that this amendment and all I want to know does this amendment provide that either house would be able...that the legislature would be able to act within the first fifteen days. That's my only concern.

Mr. Gauthier With a little aid from another delegate I can now answer that.

If it was an extreme emergency, it does provide that by two-thirds vote you could have some action. By two-thirds vote of the elected members of both houses.

Mr. J. Jackson Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates. I rise in opposition to the Riecke amendment. And I want to briefly tell you why.

I am a little at a loss as to know why some of the people who yesterday said eighty days was too long now seem to like 101 days. Because under the Riecke amendments you can have a minimum of 92 days or 94 days and a maximum of 106 days to be in session.

I have no opposition to split sessions and under my proposal the legislature will be able to try split sessions and see if they work. We have been criticized in the past and when I say we, I am referring to members of the legislature for clamoring the ballot with constitutional amendments. And I am trying to prevent that in the future with my amendment.

When I first came to the legislature the constitution provided that we had twenty-one days to introduce bills. Thirty days to introduce constitutional amendments. We felt that that was too long. So we had to offer a constitutional amendment to cut those days to fifteen. Which the people approved. Later we felt that thirty days was too long for constitutional amendments. We had to come back and offer another constitutional amendment and submit it to the people to cut that period from thirty days to twenty-one days.

I am merely telling you that to show you some of the things that, because of the present language in the constitution has caused us to have to put some thirty or forty, fifty I believe, two at one time amendments for the people to vote on at one time to change the constitution.

I tried to limit the amount of amendments that could be submitted to the people on many occasions in the legislature, but I failed. Under my proposal the legislature can have a split session, if it so desires. It can meet thirty days, it can meet forty-five days, it can govern its work according to its work load.

Under the Riecke amendment you don't have to meet but one day. It says you shall meet not later or longer than fifteen days which in the legislature sees fit they could come in session the first day and adjourn until the fourteenth day and go home.

Now I think I have tried honestly and sincerely to represent my people. And some times I guess you shouldn't tell the truth. It is my opinion, I did say yesterday that I waited until late to introduce my bills because I figured it was the best way to get them passed. And I figure that that was the best way to represent my people if they had asked me to introduce a bill it was left up to me to try to figure the best way to get it passed. And I did find out basic in my legislative life that the best way was to wait longer. Because if you are standing out there and somebody is shooting at you, if you stand there long enough you are liable to get hit. But if you don't have to stand there two or three days when you can just stand there one or two days, I chose the shorter route.

Now, if you will go back and look at the percentage of the people that votes on a constitutional matter has been submitted to them in the past you are going to see in some cases fifteen percent, in some cases eighteen percent and I see some of the news media here that can bear me out. In most cases about twenty or twenty-five or twenty-one percent down low. I believe one time we had about eight percent of the people that voted.

Now I am trying to represent that other seventy or seventy-five or eighty percent. And I just feel like that the legislature should have the right to handle their work load in the manner they think is best. And certainly they are going to try to serve their people. That's why they are down here. That's why they were elected. And I don't think it's really right and I don't blame anybody that don't agree with me. We are all over here and we have our right to our own opinion and I certainly respect yours and I hope you respect mine.

But I feel like the legislature can operate better if it has an opportunity to come over here and meet, let bills be introduced, have committee hearings, recess if they want to and go home for ten or fifteen days; twelve days which they can do under my amendment. And another thing that worries me about this present amendment. There will be a lapse of forty days. We cannot provide money to pay the staff. A fiscal year begins on July the 1st. Under the Riecke amendment it will go until July the 31st before we adjourn. I don't know we'll have to go back and change that fiscal year or do something where we can make an appropriation for the state agencies. And I just have no big quarrel with Mr. Riecke's amendment but I do think that for the benefit of the legislature that my proposal will let us work better.

And let me say this, I think we are all interested in representing our people. If we're not, we've got no business in the legislature. I know I have tried to represent mine and they have been good to me for which I will forever be grateful. But I can truthfully tell you that sometimes when you say let the people know what's going on, you know where you get your most information from people who have a personal interest in something or may I say a vested interest.

I have always tried to be fair with them and on the other hand try to look out for those poor little people that couldn't come over here before a committee meeting that wasn't able to come over here and lose a day's work to appear before a committee. I have tried to represent them likewise.

I do believe with my proposal that you will be giving the legislature a little bit of hand to solve their problems in the manner that they think is best. And for some of you yesterday, that said eighty days were too long I just want to say in and lose a day's work to appear before a committee, you are looking from ninety-two to one hundred and one days if the calendar that I looked at is correct.

I hope you reject the amendment.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Mr. Rayburn, I think in speaking here you failed to mention something that is in Mr. Riecke's proposal... amendment that was not in yours. Mr. Riecke limits the time that you could introduce a bill. You also made a statement about you introduced yours at the last minute and I hope you don't take an offense. That's kinda like pulling a rabbit out of a hat at the last minute. I don't feel about that, would you like to have Mr. Riecke's statement incorporated in your amendment so you wouldn't be able to pull that rabbit out at the last minute?

Mr. Rayburn My amendment also limits the time for introducing bills if you will read it. It has a limitation there. It says they shall be introduced not later than nineteen days. And the purpose of the nineteen was to keep us from having to come back on two weekends. A Saturday and a Sunday. Not later than the nineteenth day. This is not later than the fifteenth day. So there is a little difference.

When I am pretty familiar with rabbits I've chopped a few out of logs. I have stood on one end with a stick and let my brother be on the other end and punched him--and let my brother catch him when he ran out. But if you are looking for meat you've got to figure out the best way to get it so I tried to get somebody on both ends of the log.

Mrs. Warren Yeah Mr. Rayburn.

I'd like for you to know that I came from the country and I used to take a clod of dirt and kill a rabbit and we would have him for breakfast in the morning. But I didn't understand your amendment as clear as I do Mr. Riecke's.

Mr. Rayburn Well I regret that very much but it does have a cut off limit on it and it is not later than the nineteenth day and the only reason I added the four extra days because it's two weekends in the first fifteen days and I was hoping that we could maybe not have to work on a Saturday and Sunday.

And that was my purpose for the nineteen.

Mr. Roy Senator this is a friendly question. Don't you think that Delegate Gauthier was wrong when he said that the Riecke amendment by a two-thirds vote could provide for legislation to be enacted when really it only provides that by a two-thirds vote and you could allow or introduction of legislation after the nineteenth?

Mr. Rayburn That's exactly right, Mr. Roy.

Mr. Flory Mr. Rayburn, as I read this and I ask you to question. Isn't it possible under Mr. Riecke's amendment for the legislature to come in session on the fourth Monday in April and adjourn that day until the fourth Monday in May so in effect that you would only have one day in which to introduce bills and thereafter it would require two-thirds vote to introduce a bill?

Mr. Rayburn They could Mr. Flory if a majority of the membership so desired to do that. They could the way I read the language. Yes, sir.

Mr. Champagne The only reason for asking this question Senator is because I just want to point out something about the last one.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Could you feature a bunch of Representatives and the Senators meeting and saying that we are not going to do anything, we're just going to go back home?

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Champagne I was in the legislature one time in my political life when we met and recessed an adjourned and did the same day we met. I've only had that experience once but yes, it can happen.
I don't think it will happen but I didn't think it would happen that day but it did.

[Motion for the Previous Question.]

Point of Information

Mr. Womack Mr. Speaker, in case there is some very pertinent facts that still haven't been brought out if you vote the previous question you have cut that information off.
Is that not right?

Mr. Henry That is correct.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 54-55.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura The one thing I promised the people back home when I ran for this office and the one thing I have heard you say more than anything else is that we want a short, precise, streamlined constitution. One that can last forever without amendment if possible. We all know that's impossible. But that's what we are trying to do and I feel the more specific we get in the articles we write the more it will need amending in the future. This is the point I want to make. That I think the Riecke amendment, the intent is very good but this amendment is in my opinion much to specific because times will change. As you can see the legislature in the past has met sometimes it has been a thirty day session. Sometimes a sixty day session and I am not familiar with the history of it but I know it hasn't always been as we have proposed it today.

So I know as well as I am standing here that there will come a time when the amount of time they are going to meet is going to be different, required as it is required today. So what I am asking you to do is to let's look at what we came here to do and let's try to do and let's try to streamline this constitution and write it in a way that it will not need amending as often.

I, for one, have faith in the legislators because I have faith in the people. The people who elect them. I have faith in legislators. They are only elected for four years. This constitution is written for much more than four years. Why can't we have faith in them and let them decide if they need to go home for fifteen days if they need to meet for sixty days continuous. I think these specifics can be left up to them because we should have faith in them. Because it is us, the people that's electing them.

Let's not miss the forest for the trees.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, since part of my few remarks will be on paternity which I think most will be interested in wonder if I might suggest a absence of a quorum.

[Quorum Calls: 97 delegates present and a quorum.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I would like to make a few remarks, very short remarks about the legislature and I am one of the oldest new faces that appeared there in 1972. So I am not a veteran of the legislature. But I do know this much about legislators and am speaking from personal knowledge and from what I have seen done in the legislature and out of the legislature in this short fourteen months. There has never been and I don't think there will ever be an attempt for a legislator to isolate himself or herself from their constituents. The procedure which I follow which is followed by most of the House and the majority of the Senate and if you would come into the lounge and see the lines waiting to get on the watts line to talk to our constituents is to discuss with those parties who may possibly even be interested in legislation their feelings on it. Our duty, our obligation because the legislature is a heart beat of government is to vote the will of our constituents and that's what we attempt to do. Now I mentioned that I would talk about paternity a little bit and I do not mean to deflate anybody particularly and certainly not to mean this in a derogatory manner but if you have your chest stuck out because you think you beget this child called split session you had better deflate it. This child was beget by the House Executive Committee months and months ago. And would have been instituted without any doubt prior to this convention even convening had the legislature had the time to permit a split session. And I am sure that it will be done. The consensus of the House and the... I'm sure the consensus in the Senate is the same. That we do need something of split session to have a little more time to consider the bills. To allow our constituents to consider the bills.

Now let's go and see. Now this was [...] by the legislature through its Executive Committee not by this convention. It was submitted to this convention indirectly from the House Executive Committee.

Now, let's put this thing in proper perspective. We have two amendments here that we are discussing, the Rayburn amendment that was adopted the other day and the Riecke amendment and there is very little difference between the two as mentioned when Mr. Warren was questioning Senator Bauman. In one you have fifteen days in which to introduce bills in the Riecke amendment and the Rayburn amendment you have nineteen days to introduce bills. We have a four day difference in that part of it. The difference between the Riecke amendment and the Rayburn amendment which is so vital is that if all bills should be introduced in five days there will be no need for the legislature to sit there for ten more days doing nothing before they went home and instead of having a sixty day session we have then been cut down to fifty-five day sessions with a fifty day session for consideration of bills.

You are not giving the legislature more time to consider bills. You are very possibly cutting down the time that we so badly need in the House. A session had every bill that was introduced gone through both houses and these are rough figures. We would have been permitted twenty minutes per bill to be introduced in the House, considered by committee, considered on the floor, go to the Senate, considered by committee and go to the Senate floor for final passage and come back to the House. Twenty minutes a bill is about the time we were allowed and you are complaining about poor legislation getting through the legislature.

The difference between these bills is this and it is vitally important. You were roost kind yesterday in defeating an amendment that would put limitation on the odd year sessions. If we are going to have annual sessions--let's have annual sessions.

Now let's get down to the difference between these two amendments. The amendment that Mr. Riecke has offered to me and I do not mean this to be derogatory, Mr. Riecke. This is an amendment that would sound good to the people. Sound good to the people. I do not deny that. In fact, it is a part of the con-consideration that has been given to this amendment because then it would be there that we would have to be there fifteen days and take this period in between and come back and consider legislation. The thing that bothers me about the

Riecke amendment is that you are locking us in. Many have been there for years, many of us have only been there for about fourteen months on this thing. But what we need in this constitution is flexibility. And what we need in the legislature is flexibility so we can utilize our time to the best advantage. And I think that you will show enough confidence in the legislature to permit the legislature. We may make mistakes on how long that period shall be before the initial period and the final period. We may want to change that. But I ask you to look beyond your nose. We are not talking about a session in 1974 we're talking about hopefully sessions in 1980 and 1990 and the year 2000 if we come up with the proper instruments. Do not put unnecessary limitations on the legislature. These are unnecessary limitations. If Mr. Riecke's amendment did not lock us in so bad I could support it and at first glance I was in favor of the amendment and the more I considered the ramifications the more violently I am opposed to this amendment. As I said, we need flexibility for efficiency and there is nothing and I repeat nothing under the Riecke amendment that the House and the Senate cannot do under the Rayburn amendment in a much more efficient fashion.

I sincerely urge you to defeat the Riecke amendment. We have an amendment that was adopted yesterday, it's flexible, is workable and will provide you with the most efficient legislature you have had that you can remember.

I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Chairman, members of this delegation, I never in my life have had a most important privilege. This is indeed a privilege on a most important issue. If your memory serves you right, I was the only legislator who testified our Honorable Senator and I have lived long enough to see him have the very privilege that I wanted extended to him. On this day Honorable Senator Rayburn has had the privilege because of a delay that happened by one vote. Great! It has really been great to not only give him the privilege but for you to have the courtesy and patience to give me the privilege and to have given myself the privilege in listening especially to the last speaker.

I am going to oppose my friend Riecke an honorable man, a fine man. I had dinner with him yesterday, I had lunch, I listened and really was convinced that he had something. But after I reviewed very carefully the provisions of the Rayburn amendment and after thinking carefully about the orator who supported Riecke I thought at the time mostly as a sympathy situation. I carefully reviewed and I thought he saw somebody failing and he wanted to give him support and he did and it caught on. And it gained momentum. And people kept talking to me. As I've changed my mind and I could sense that it was really a change of heart.

Ladies and gentlemen of this convention, this Rayburn amendment is a masterpiece. It incorporates everything that this convention needs to do in philosophy. Really and truly, it allows the flexibility that you and I have talked about.

It is worthy by people who know what they are doing. You have assembled on this bill a tremendous amount of experience. These people are professionals and we need professionals in this business.

Now, take my advice. Be guided by these professionals. I have watched this man operate. I know he is sincere. I know he is trying to do the right thing. I ask you to vote down my good friend, Mr. Riecke and vote for a person that I am beginning to really know, Senator Rayburn.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Acting Chairman, and fellow delegates, the previous speaker consumed a little or my material, namely, Senator Rayburn personally. There is still enough left for more people to comment on. I guess I would be considered relatively new in legislative circles. I rank I guess probably fifth, sixth or seventh in seniority. Having been elected the fourth time in six years and from a parish that no man in modern history nor many has ever succeeded himself twice in the legislature.

Much has been said up here about the poor people I have... what Senator Rayburn's lead issues come up with the ideas, stop things that should be stopped. Point out things that should be pointed out. Give your respected constituents the time and the opportunity to consider and make wiser decisions to the extent that I think as far as I am concerned is the greatest legislator that has ever served as far as I have been able to research [research]. And for those who may enter into personalities and say that I don't like legislators, I thank God that we have a few of them and Senator Rayburn is one in particular.

I have seen this legislative government of ours get three, four or five or six hundred percent more complicated in the short period of time that I have been here. The complications have just started. Within less than a life span the older ones saw a State Capitol built at a time when the opposition said we couldn't afford it. Number one, because it was going to cost five million dollars and Louisiana would never be able to pay for it; been little change.

We also said that Louisiana would never need the office space afforded in that giant tower. And when it first opened up the elevator stopped at the eighth floor. Today, and only a short period of time more than ninety-five percent of the government in Baton Rouge is housed outside of that giant tower we couldn't afford.

What I am trying to say is that we are going to have some changing times. Our constitution needs to have the maximum amount of flexibility, that is really why we are here. The Rayburn amendment gives that flexibility that feasibility. It gives us two days a week or three days a week if they see fit as time goes on, in their wisdom to recess each week to go home to meet with their constituents. You know how many they are going to meet with and how many they are going to hear from. A very minor portion of special interest people.

Any of all the years I have been here the major contracts we have had been from a particular selfish interest group that wanted a pay raise or something of that kind. Ninety-nine percent of them are home working and they are depending on your wisdom to look after their business.

Mr. Triche said a few minutes ago, and he is a great legislator, he taught me a lot of what little I know. Some of it I am having to relearn... I believe he learned me wrong. Mr. Triche says that we need to slow this process down as Mr. Riecke's amendment will do. We are going to cut the active legislative days from sixty to fifty. I don't agree that slows this process down. That will speed the process up. One of the problems in handling legislation is with all the bills that are introduced, two hours of time is taken up on controversial bills, they are debated over and over. But in slowing up your process for everybody to be heard on the controversial bills you slow up the process on the non-controversial bills. The legislature needs a maximum amount of flexibility in order to make that adjustment. You say you can have all the introduction of bills and then you have the committee hearings. You are going to hamstring the legislature to where they can't take any action. You would introduce them for the fifteen days. You can hold hearings on fifteen or twenty days but you can't vote.

You can come back and reassign and you can hold hearings on 15 or 20 days but you can't vote. You come back and reassign or assign those bills to the committees for hearings and if you think controversial bills are going to move through without it being more controversial after the first series of hearings when you can't vote, you're kidding yourself. Because the powers of opposition and support are going to regroup their forces, you're not going to save time. You're going to take up more time. It's going to be more necessary that you have additional time. This proposal that Mr. Riecke has.

would start the introduction of legislation which would bring in a new legislature, which would cut the term short of the other members. They said you can provide not to cut the term short. If you don't do that, or if you do it, then in the present four year term which Act 2 says shall be maintained, which the constitution will overrule when we pass it because when you go to court, you're going to find out that the constitution is going to supersede Act 2, and you'll reduce the term of those 12 year Representatives or those 20 year Representatives or those 12 year Representatives or those 20 years of prior service—you have interrupted a retirement system that they joined a long time ago, that they have every right to participate in just as every other state employee has. This is a major factor. There are some legislators it would affect, and they would be affected because the law specifically says they shall have all 12 years with additional years with other creditable service or they shall have 20 full years. And if you cut it a week short, you've interrupted that. I would like to point out to you that for those of you who feel that holding extensive committee hearings for the public to come in, for everybody to come in is going to cure everything, it isn't. I would call to your attention, if you exclude authorizations for suits, I would say that at least 96, 97 or 98% of all of your bills passed by the legislature are amended in some manner after they leave the committee. In many of those instances, with major changes in substance. So the public can only be protected by the legislature as the intent of the form of government and the right that it should be. The Rayburn amendment gives the flexibility to the legislature, which I have heard many of you say the legislature needs the flexibility. In this amendment that's proposed now, we're going to take the flexibility away from the legislature. I have, in the short tenure of time I've been here, seen some emergency when it was imperative that the legislature take very quick action on an emergency basis. To give an example, certain federal funds would be available immediately provided that you could make some changes in your law. I have seen the time when local bills can be certified emergency in order to speed up construction and help construction that would help the suffering people that can't help themselves. The Riecke amendment eliminates the privilege of having this emergency. I feel certain that the closer is going to enlighten me on why it would be a great benefit to the people of the State of Louisiana to tell a legislature that you can meet and can't take action on emergencies. I hope that we can tell me why that cutting the active legislative days from 60 to 50 that you can take action is going to speed up the process. In any manner other than speed up the time that it's going to have to get through with it, you're going to speed that time up ten days. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it is my feeling that personalities should not be involved in this and I will try to always refrain from it. It's unfortunate sometimes they get there. It's my feeling that this is probably one of the most serious things that we are going to consider and that the weight of the seriousness of it would lean very heavy toward giving the legislature the maximum amount of quiet thinking room, and get them to come, and their wisdom make those adjustments. This government has become several hundred percent more complicated in the short time I've been here, and I don't think complications have stopped. As time goes on, it's going to get more complicated. And I think the feeling of the public, and I think the feeling of most of you is going to be to try to submit to the people a proposed document that will be as brief as possible, give the greatest amount of flexibility for the operation of government, and give the greatest amount of protection to you as individuals for your life, your property and your freedom. The Rayburn amendment, in my opinion does that, and I have no intention to try supporting at any time proposals that will put drastic limitations on the legislature after we have voted them the authority and the responsibility and looked upon them and our form of government as the worst form in the world except all of the rest. So with this, I would urge you to defeat this amendment, say yes to the Rayburn amendment, in order to give this flexibility to the legislature to where they will be in a better position to use their wisdom in the years to come. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Bell Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is the shortest speech you've ever heard from this rostrum today. I'm in full favor of the Riecke amendment. I think it's a good amendment and I'm going to ask you to support it. I've sat down this morning and I've listened to whipping the dogs, riding the horse to death, pulling the rabbits out of the hat and we've gone on down to all the animal family. I think we've heard enough. I think everybody here has made up their minds which way they're going to vote, and I think we're wasting a lot of time unnecessarily. Maybe you let some of our lobbyists here lobby long enough... So if I'm in order Mr. Chairman, I would like to move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the kernel of this nut is the recess period after which bills are introduced. After the first 15 day initial period, the legislature recesses for a period of weeks, then comes back later for a 50 legislative day session. The difference between this proposal and the proposal introduced by the committee was that the committee's proposal called for a split session, allowed introduction of bills after the split session. This amendment does not do that. All bills must be introduced in the first 15 day period. Therefore, when the legislature comes back for the 50 legislative day session after the recess, all of the bills will have been introduced by that time and will have been read by titles. If the legislature desired during the first 15 day period, those bills could have been read a second time and then referred to committee and there could have been some committee hearings. During the recess the bills could have been acted upon in committee. When we come back in the 50 day legislative day session, the bills conceivably would all be ready for final passage and debate and would give us 50 days for debate and deliberation before final passage. I think it's workable. I think it's efficient. It gives the legislature more time to deliberate and it gives the public more time to study the bills and provide us with its input. I think it's a step in the right direction. Everybody has heard all of that. The difference between this proposal and the Rayburn proposal is that this proposal guarantees that bills cannot be acted upon and finally passed until the passage of a recess period. I think it's good. I want to touch briefly upon some of the objections that I have heard. Some delegates say well this is not going to really accomplish what you desire because legislators are going to introduce skeleton bills and introduce bills by title and introduce those bills and after they're printed in the paper and after they've been advanced to second reading and gone to committees, the legislators are going to come back and change those bills. That can't be done. If you read Section 17 Article 6, I think it is, it's on page B, it says that no bills can be amended before final passage by any amendment which does not operate retroactively. We will not be able to introduce a bill fixing the seasons for hunting bullfrogs and then come back after the recess and change it to an increase in Severance Taxes. We won't be able to do that under the constitution and the legislature can't change the constitution. So that, gentlemen, if the legislature wants to increase the tax on natural gas as it did recently, we'd have to introduce that bill in the first 15 days. We wouldn't be able to act on it until after a recess.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

I think that's good. It's good for the people. It's good for the government of this State. There's been another objection about emergency. It's been the objection and some of you are troubled about it, and you say that well, we have a 15 day period in which emergencies in which you're not going to be able to act. The woods are going to be on fire and we're not going to be able to act. The woods are going to be on fire and we're not going to be able to put the fire out. We've got to let it burn for 15 days. I suggest that you look at Section 21 of Article 3. It simply says [...]. There's no contradiction of that anywhere Article 3. That no legislation is effective until 60 days after the session. So you're going to have to let the woods burn for 60 days anyway. So that argument of 15 days in which [...] can act, I don't think is an argument against this amendment. It may be an argument against Article 3 in its entirety, but certainly not against this amendment because this amendment doesn't affect that. Sine die, the legislature can adjourn sine die on the first day. I remember that happening. It happened once, I think, in the history of the State and that was a special session where the governor called a special session to pass certain enumerated legislation and nobody in the legislature wanted to consider it, so after a 15 minute session, it adjourned that special session sine die. I suggest to you that under the Rayburn amendment that the legislature could meet 15 minutes and adjourn sine die every year. And under the Riecke amendment we could do that again. That argument doesn't address itself to the merit or demerit of the Riecke amendment or the Rayburn amendment. It addresses itself to the responsibility of the legislature. Legislature is not going to adjourn sine die after 15 minutes of business. I guarantee you that. Term of office being shortened. Senator Rayburn in his wisdom with his amendment, shortened the term of office that the Riecke amendment shortens the term of office. Both amendments provide that the legislature shall meet on the fourth Monday of April. I suggest to you that both amendments are probably in that regard, in error. But that's why the procedure of this convention set up the Committee on Styling and Drafting. To take care of those discrepancies that I guess we must make because we have to agree that we are not infallible. I wouldn't conceive any of you that the Pope's infallible. How in the world I can convince you that Mr. Riecke's infallible. The Styling and Drafting Committee, ladies and gentlemen, is going to take care of that. This is a good amendment. It will guarantee us a slow, orderly legislative process that will act deliberately on bills before they're passed. I sincerely urge you to...

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Henry Would you yield to a question of Mr. Munson. Gentleman refuses to yield.

Point of Information

Mr. Roy My Section 21 of the effective date of law says: "However any bill may specify an earlier or later effective date". I wonder if Mr. Triche has the same section or if we have something different because obviously, we have a different interpretation of what Section 21 says.

Point of Information

Mr. Jack I'm looking, please do not interrupt me it's the only way I can handle this thing. Mr. Triche, I'm not asking him a question, he refuses, but a point of order. I'm reading from Section 21, proposal 3. "All laws shall be published as provided by law and shall take effect on the 60th day after final adjournment of the session in which they were enacted. However, any bill may specify an earlier or later effective date." Now Mr. Chairman, what I want to know, if I heard correctly, Mr. Triche said nothing about how any bill may specify an earlier or later effective date. Now, the point of order is this: I'm reading from what I was furnished here as being authentic. Now correct me if I'm wrong. What I read, isn't that the correct Proposal No. 3, Section 21 that has that last part about any bill may specify an earlier or later effective date.

Mr. Henry That's in the copy that I have, yes sir.

Point of Order

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, point of order, are we going to continue the filibuster that we've had all afternoon under the guise of points of order. If so, I'd like to know it now so we can refer to it again in the future.

Mr. Henry Mr. Burson, your point is, perhaps, well taken. I, again, am allowing as much latitude and to be as fair as possible. Of course after I recognize somebody on a point of order, there's not much I can do but let them go ahead and finish. Sometimes I just don't address myself to it if it's improper.

Mr. Riecke has offered up...
Why do you rise, Mr. Tapper?

Point of Information

Mr. Tapper This is a point of information, Mr. Chairman. Is it not a fact that we have not gotten beyond the Section 2, Sub-paragraph A of the Committee Proposal No. 3 submitted by Mr. Blair and his committee?

Mr. Henry That's absolutely correct, sir.

Mr. Tapper Is it not further true that those sections referred to by Mr. Triche have not been considered nor adopted by this convention?

Mr. Henry I think everybody is aware of that sir.

Mr. Tapper Is it not further true then, that we should not even be referring to those at this particular time?

Mr. Henry Well I wouldn't say that, Mr. Tapper, because in view of what the committee has proposed, I certainly would see nothing wrong with making reference to it.

[Amendments adopted: 59-55.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The next set of amendments, I ask pages to distribute them for me at this time, set up by Delegate De Blieux to the proposal. Amending the re-printed proposal as follows: Amendment No. 1. At the end of line 15 of the convention floor amendment No. 1 proposed by Mr. Riecke and others and adopted by the convention on July 14, immediately following the words "are not to exceed" strike out the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof, "if you've still got the Riecke amendment that's on line 15 at the end of the line strike out the word 50, insert 45 days."

Explanation

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this will shorten the period of deliberation by only 5 days. If you will take your calendar and figure out, you will find that the 50 day period during the time we meet on the fourth Monday of May to the 31st day of July, you will have a period of only 15 days in which will not be Saturdays or Sundays. In any two month period, you are bound to have at least 15 days that will fall on Saturday or Sunday. It can be 17, it can be 18. Since we are going to have 15 days in which to introduce the bills, to refer them to committees, and then sometimes hear those bills during the interim period. I feel like 45 days of deliberation is sufficient time to clear our affairs and before we will take us out of having "meet on a Saturday or Sunday if it is not absolutely" necessary. I just ask to give us that right and privilege to where that if the legislature wants to do it, it does not have to meet on a Saturday or Sunday. Now it doesn't keep them from meeting on a Saturday or Sunday, but at least they will not be compelled to under the law, for the deliberation. That's the only change it makes in the Riecke amendment.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Questions

Mr. Drew Mr. De Blieux, am I correct that you are cutting the session down 5 days by this amendment?

Mr. De Blieux It would have that effect, yes. But your 15 days you initially had plus now, of course he's one of the ranking members, you do not have to meet 50 days. It just says it cannot be in excess of 50 days.

Mr. Drew Senator De Blieux, how many days in the 1972 60-day session was the Senate in session?

Mr. De Blieux I don't know, but I feel quite certain they were not in session a total of 55 days.

Mr. Drew Do you know how many days the House was in session during that 60 day period?

Mr. De Blieux I understand it was 50 days.

Mr. Drew 55 I think is correct counting the days of committee hearings.

Mr. De Blieux But during that period of time, Mr. Drew, I might say this, that you had to have all your committee hearings during that period of time and at least you will have a period during the interim between the fourth Monday of April and the fourth Monday of May in which you can have those hearings. I think you will not necessitate at having as many days as you otherwise would.

Further Discussion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman, and delegates, I want to inform the delegates to the convention that immediately after this adopted amendment, there will be a proposed amendment offered by me which, instead of 45 days, will have the word 40 and it would cut down the last day on which the session would be held from the 31st to the 21st of July. I do not, at this time wish to speak to that particular motion because I know it's out of order, but I did want to inform the delegates that there would be another proposal to go 40 days thereafter for some of the same reasons expressed by Mr. De Blieux in his amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I am not now, nor do I know whether I will ever want to be nor whether I ever could be a legislator, so I don't speak with the immense amount of experience that some of the people that you have heard this morning have spoken with. But I can envision that in 1921 when the constitution was written, probably 15 days of de-activation was all that a body would need. Maybe around 1940 or 1945, 25 days were needed. 1960 or '65, maybe 30 days were needed. Now we come into 1972 and we are granting now, the legislature in all probability sufficient time to do the work that they have to do over the next few years. But what are we talking about in 1980? Are they going to be able to get by with 55 days? We are tremendously dating this constitution when you limit the amount of time that a legislature can actually meet. I urge the rejection of the amendment, in fact I would like to point out that no one has brought up the fallacy and the wrong in both the Rayburn and the Riecke amendment. That is that it does stand as a limitation on the legislature. If we are going to have a free and independent body to govern this State, you are going to have to give them enough time to do the job. I could certainly agree with Mr. Riecke where he wants the people to go back home. That's fine. But when they come back, what's going to happen? They're going to be confused again. So I urge you, do not limit your legislature in the time that it will take to adequately govern this State. Thank you.

Question

Mr. J. Jackson Is the amendment adopted by Mr. Riecke talks about bills introduced, but is it not a fact that you have amendments to each one of those bills that can take as much time for consideration as the whole bill? When you go to the matter of further reducing the amount of days that you're possibly imposing a limitation without even taking consideration that you take as much time in arguing amendments and debating amendments as it does for, let's say, one bill that maybe is not amended. Wouldn't you suggest that this further reduces the time in which that the legislature has to provide effective deliberations?

Mr. Anzalone That's very evident by this constitution, convention.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I was opposed, at the time, to the Riecke amendment and voted that way for several reasons. However, now that we have it adopted and we've seen like we've got to work with it and I don't see any reason why we should change it in it's perspective that it may not allow the legislature to do its job. Under the Riecke amendment as it stands now, we have 15 days in which the legislature would meet to introduce bills and during that time could not take any action. The committees could not take any action. Precisely in the legislation, when we are in two or three days our committees are meeting, they are returning bills out to the House floor favorably or unfavorably, taking the necessary action. Now under Riecke's amendment we'd no longer be able to do that. I feel that we may now, in the legislature, need the additional 5 days since the Riecke amendment has passed. We may need the 5 days in order to, once we come back in the session, to then transpose or transpire all the legislation that now has to be voted by the committee. Riecke's amendment provides that the legislature would not meet when it comes back, in excess of 50 days. It doesn't say that it has to meet in the 50 days, so that if the legislature finds that it can handle its business in 40 or 30 or 45 days, then it will do just that. So if you come back now and reduce the 5 days, I'm afraid we may not be able to handle the necessary legislation that's introduced into the House or the Senate.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennyery Mr. Chairman, similar to Mr. Perez, I want to advise the delegates that I also have an amendment, but it will do the opposite of what Mr. Perez wants. It will provide for a total of 60 legislative days to be divided between the first portion and the last portion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, delegates of the convention, while I opposed Mr. Riecke's amendment, at least you were kind enough to give us most of the time that we need to do the job that you have asked us to do in the legislature. I don't believe that I will run into any surprise any greater than I have just run into when Senator De Blieux comes up here and tries to cut that time down to where we have at best, the same time we have now to do the work. We do not have enough time to properly handle legislation, and you better believe me on that fact. What Senator De Blieux has done to the convention, has given us a shovel to do our job and now Senator De Blieux would like to take the handle off of the shovel. I ask that you defeat this. You are going back and you may as well cut us back to 30 days each year and then keep complaining that we are not properly handling our legislation. We need more time, not less time, and please defeat this.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. DeBlieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I can't necessarily agree with Delegate Drew that this is going to shorten the period of time, because at the present time we've been trying to get to the legislature for many many years the annual session in which we would have an annual session of 60 days each year. I certainly feel that the annual session is going to allow the averaging out and evening up of the proposals that we'll have before us. This is still going to give us not only just you might say 60 days of deliberation, 15 days to start with and 45 days of actual debate upon the bills, but you will even have the chance of holding committee meetings during the 15 days that the committee meets. The 60 day session of the Riecke amendment... it will give us the right to have the knowledge and consent of our people at home as advantage of a split session. It divides the 60 days into 15 days and 45 days, but during that period of time between the 15 and 45, the provisions provide for the holding of committee meetings. Therefore your legislative time would not be all taken up with committee hearings. You will have longer period of deliberation. You will have a chance to average out your bills. Now if you think that this is not enough time, the only thing is I just want to get us out of having to necessarily meet on Saturdays and Sundays or otherwise if we do not want to. I might also call your attention to this that during this period of time you're going to have the 4th of July each year. I would say that if you want more time, we might extend it to some period of time during August, but really where you close it off on the 31st day of July, you are going to force the legislature to meet on the 4th of July and on some Saturday or Sunday in order to get out your 50 days. If you need that much time and deliberation, I feel like the amendment is a good one. I feel like that it is going to help us, and therefore I ask you to support the amendment.

Question

Mr. J. Jackson Senator, in your closing remarks, you said that during the first 15 days that the Committee could meet and during the interim period of the split session that it still would allow for more deliberation which means that you feel as though that gives ample time for deliberation. But wouldn't you agree that the committees met during the split session that it kind of negates the possibility of individual legislators meeting in their own district attempting to convey or get ideas on the legislation that was introduced so that in effect, that the period after the 15 days and the time they reconvene, that really you will find that most of your legislators will probably be in their districts having public hearings in their district on local matters rather than necessary committee hearings. This means in effect, that you don't have those days that you mentioned in your closing remarks.

Mr. DeBlieux Reverend Jackson, in answer to your question... the constitution provides and permits the holding of committee meetings if the legislature should desire them. It doesn't force them to do, but it is permissive. If they feel like that it is going to take that much time in order to cover the subject matter after the 15 day period of time when the bills are introduced to cover them and get a look at them, it can do it. It doesn't have to, but it is permissive. I think it's good.

[Quorum call: 60 delegates present and a quorum. Amendment withdrawn.]

MR. C. PETERSON, DELEGATE, RISES.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [Am. P. 1] (A.S. 10) page 1 in Delegate Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and others and adopted by the convention on July 14, 1973, at the end of line 15 delete the work "50" and insert in lieu thereof "40"

Amendment No. 2. On page 1 in Delegate Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and others and adopted by the convention on July 14, 1973, at beginning of line 17 delete the word "31st" and insert in lieu thereof the work "21st"

Explanation

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman, and delegates, the purpose of this amendment is twofold, and that is to cut down on the number of legislative days after the session comes back in, after the waiting period from 50 days to 40 days, and to also cut down the total length of time in the session. The session may be conducted to the 21st of July instead of the 31st of July. Well this is a practical matter to see what would happen under the proposal which has been adopted. As you know, as we have one here in this session, after bills are introduced, you must have them on first reading, second reading and forth so they are referred to the committee. Then the committee, in turn, holds its hearings. The legislature, of course, follows that same procedure and they utilize, ordinarily, two to three weeks and sometimes four weeks in a 60 day session for most of the bills in the introductory period and in the hearing period. I suggest to you that under the proposal submitted by Mr. Riecke, and adopted, that that first month is really in essence a part of that particular session of the legislature as a practical matter. Because of the fact that the legislators will be able to conduct the normal business which they ordinarily should and would conduct if they were in open session. I've discussed this matter with a number of legislators who have agreed with me. I think there will be others who will disagree with me. But, if you were to take at least 25 of the first 30 days which in essence would be the same as the normal session of the legislature and add that to another 40 legislative days, there is no question in my mind that there is more than ample opportunity for the legislature to conduct its business orderly and properly. The total length of time involved is more than enough. I suggest to you that the people of this State and this country are tired of over-government. The people of this State are tired of laws upon laws upon laws being enacted. I would only hope that the extension or rather the cutting down of the total legislative days would have the effect maybe of the legislature not passing so many laws. I submit to you that this is a good amendment. It's one that will be popular with the people back home. It will be increasing the total legislative days in a two year period from the present 60 plus 30 or 90 days to a period of approximately 90 plus 50 or 150 days. If that basically as a practical matter, we would be doubling the time within which the legislature had to conduct its business. I urge you to support the amendment.

Question

Mr. Drew [...] that DeBlieux wanted the hands. Do you want the whole show? Is that what it is?

Mr. Perez No, sir. I want to give the legislature all of the opportunity they need to enact law but I would like to call your attention to the fact that there are many of us like I, as a local public official, who have to come up at the session of the legislature to do things that will be before that session and that the more time the session of the legislature is, the more the local people like local government officials have to take care of their business back home. I would advise you that the path that we are taking, the people who are paid by the oil companies, by organized labor and by all the other paid lobbyists. I spend all the time in the world up here and that proposal as it is now would favor the paid lobbyist but those of us who are unpaid people who have the, who are required to come up here in order to watch the business for our people back home, will be severely hampered by the longer session of the legislature.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, our government is based on a separation of powers, however if we proceed to take the power from one branch of our government we change the whole basic system of our government. Then it seems to me that this kind of restrictive amendment which has been presented to us is really an effort to take meaningful power away from a necessary branch of our form of government. And I think that what the people are tired of is not more laws and more government, but rather they are tired of the system that does not permit us to operate in a meaningful way and I think that we should defeat this kind of amendment and all that are similar to it. It seems to me also that it is placing too many restrictions upon ways in which our legislature might need to operate in future years and the constitution that we provide and present to the people of the state should not place undue restrictions and limitations that should prevent the future legislature from responding to changes, to future needs to emerging situations and therefore because of this I urge that you defeat this amendment. And I think something else needs to be said and it's simply this, that this type of amendment is based on fear, it is based on a lack of faith in our democratic processes, I think we should make our decisions on the basis of a faith in our people in the different branches of government and I think that we should pass the kind of constitution that will permit a new future and a new day and a new possibility and I think to do so we must make decisions not on what has happened in the past but rather we should make our decisions on the basis of a future possibility for better government in our State and therefore, I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [By Mr. Dennerly].
On page 1 in Delegate Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and adopted by the convention. On line fifteen immediately after the word "exceed" delete the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sixty".
Amendment No. 2.
On page 2 in Delegate Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and adopted by the convention. Immediately after the word "days" delete the word "which" and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"including those legislative days during the first fifteen calendar day period, but the session".

Explanation

Mr. Dennerly The purpose of this amendment, delegates, is to permit the legislature to have a full sixty legislative days within which to act. The method by which it is done is to provide in the event by which the legislature does not use ten legislative days in the first fifteen calendar days.
Under the Riecke amendment, should the legislature recess the first fifteen calendar days prior to using the full ten calendar days then it will have shortened the session by that number of days, legislative days.

I think we have learned today that when a matter is properly and thoroughly debated, it takes a long time.

I think we should permit the legislature at least the full sixty legislative days. It will be within the discretion of the legislature as to how those days shall be apportioned between the first fifteen calendar days between [...] and the balance of the session.

It seems to me judging from what has happened today, they will probably need the full sixty legislative days.

I urge you to support these amendments.

Question

Mr. Henry [Mr. Abraham] Mr. Dennerly, I was just trying to calculate the arithmetic on this and assuming that the first fifteen... during the first fifteen days they did not use four or five of the legislative days.

Can we get fifty-five more legislative days in by the 31st of July?

Mr. Dennerly Yes, you can get fifty-five more legislative days.

It is conceivable that the legislature would have to work on Saturdays or Sundays, but it is possible to do this.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Next amendment would be by Mr. Johnny Jackson which does go to the original Riecke Amendment

Amendment No. 1. On page 1 in Delegate Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and others and adopted by the convention on July 14th, 1973. At the end of line 11 immediately after the word "law" change the period to a semi-colon and add the following:

"at the end of line 11 after the word "law; except bills and resolutions enacted by the favorable vote of two thirds of the elected members of each house of the legislature, after certification by the governor that there is a necessity for the immediate passage thereof".

Explanation

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, and members of the convention, the question that I raised when we were discussing the Riecke Amendments was that it did not provide for emergency legislation. What I've attempted to do is to provide for a provision to build in certain safeguards. These safeguards are built into the House by requiring a particular bill or resolution, a two-thirds vote to be discussed on the House floor. This means if a bill is introduced and certified by the governor as being emergency legislation and one-third plus one of the House feels that it is not emergency legislation then the matter cannot be acted upon.

I have another question that was raised to me prior to introduction of this particular amendment. What the governor introduces legislation and certifies it to be an emergency and tries to under the guidelines to run something through during the first fifteen days.

I think that the awareness of the public and the fact that you have got a third of the delegation that can prevent this would stop any governor under the guidelines of emergency legislation attempting to ramrod something through both houses and put his political career at stake. The Riecke Amendment does not provide the legislature to address itself during the first fifteen days to deal with emergency problems that may arise. I'm not saying that problems will arise but they may, I hope the delegates to the convention will give favorable adoption to this particular amendment.

Questions

Mr. Burson Mr. Jackson, I've heard a lot this afternoon about emergencies. Do you have any example in mind of what kind of emergency would be of such urgency that the governor and the Executive Department couldn't take up if anything needs to be done?

Mr. J. Jackson I'll give you two examples that I'm familiar with.

One is about the matter of flood insurance. Secondly, I'm most concerned about new revenue sharing in this area because the national government is reverting a lot of programs to this State. You may have local communities which are under irregular charges that may need certain legislation introduced to meet certain deadline.

Under Mr. Riecke's Amendment the legislature is not allowed to be acted upon. Those are two examples that I can think of right now...right at hand but I don't want to rule out permanently the possibility that any emergency may occur, and if it does occur we would then have the vehicle to deal with it in the first fifteen days.

You may have a situation that was brought to my attention by Delegate Leithman when school board borrowing bills are necessary to permit school boards to borrow money to finish a school year. All I'm saying to you Delegate Burson is the possibility does exist as it has exercised in the past and could possibly exist in the future. I think this provision does provide a kind of guarantee.

The fact that it takes two-thirds of the House, which is almost like trying to get a constitutional amendment passed to whatever constitution that we finally adopt, and the fact that it will be necessary to obtain the governor's certification on which means no governor is going to attempt under the guidelines of emergency legislation to ramrod legislation that is not actually emergency during the first fifteen days. I have enough confidence, although I disagree and have disagreed and acted upon, I do see the possibility in the future as in the past that the occasion may present itself under the Riecke Amendment to do not have the provisions to deal with an emergency until after the sixteenth day. I think we have to reconvene first to actually take a vote on it.

Mr. Burson Don't you feel that by requiring this two-thirds vote that you would be introducing into this new scheme that we adopted today an element which is very similar to the two-thirds vote which is required to get legislation declared, fiscal in a fiscal session under the old order.

Mr. J. Jackson At the same time what you...we also had Mr. Burson if you want to hold that rule of thumb true that we had the same kind of regulation for proposing the constitutional amendments. And if somebody wants to increase the vote to more than two-thirds, I have no objection to that.

My basic problem is the fact that I can envision the possibility of emergency legislation being needed and being enacted within the first fifteen days.

If we cannot act upon it then there may exist the possibility, and that's all we're talking about, is the possibility of emergency legislation being needed.

I have faith in the legislature to feel as though one-third who do not feel that emergency legislation is needed can prevent it. That's my response to your question.

Mr. Burson So you don't feel this would be used as a device to circumvent the split session that was adopted by the committee.

Mr. J. Jackson I think if it was used as a device to circumvent the split session the fact that this constitutional convention is saying well you know, this is what we want, a split session.

I think one-third plus one of the members of the legislature can prevent it.

In addition let me also suggest to you that I didn't comment before while we were talking about the legislature, but I get the impression that people feel as though the people who meet here in Baton Rouge are representing persons elected from either Texas, Mississippi or Alabama and that we do not come from those localities in which we pass laws that affect them. I would like to clear up for the record, even though I disagree personally with some of the legislation that has been introduced, I do not feel as though we ought to totally say that just because we meet in Baton Rouge that we don't represent to some faithful or trustworthy degree the desires, aspirations or concerns of our constituents.

Mr. Sutherland Delegate Jackson, I have just one question from you, point of information, really.

Who takes care of this emergency legislation when the legislature is not in session?

Let's say in this case from July to April.

Mr. J. Jackson The governor can call the special session. The problem there is what if we are in session and emergency legislation is needed?

Then, we can't act upon it. The governor can call a special session of the members of the House. I believe if I'm correct by two-thirds majority to deal with matters of an emergency nature. But what happens if you were in session?

You can't call an emergency session while you are in session so I just want to provide this provision allowing the legislature within the first fifteen days, if it is certified and if two-thirds decide that it is emergency legislation, that we can act upon it. If there are no more questions, Mr. Chairman, I move for favorable adoption.

[Previous question ordered. Amendment rejected: 34-61. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Motion

Mr. Burson I move to suspend the rules to permit the adoption of Section 2A without including Section 2B. Move to permit the question to be called on 2A without calling it on 2B.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter The next set of amendments is sent up by Delegate Gravel to Committee Proposal No. 3.

Amendment No. 1, delete amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and others and adopted by the convention on July 14, 1973.

Amendment No. 2, on page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Section 2 (A) The legislature shall convene each year in regular session at 12 o'clock noon on the first Monday in April for not to exceed 10 calendar days."

Point of Order

Mr. Burson This is a reconsideration of the Riecke amendment in the guise [quize] of an amendment to it. I object on those grounds. I ask for a ruling on the point of order.

Mr. Henry You would be out of order and I'll tell you why. Because we don't have any rule to the convention that says that you can't consider the same amendment over and over and over again, Mr. Burson, and it is different even if we had such a rule because the wording is different to some extent. Therefore you would be out of order.

Amendment continued

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Mr. Poynter "The legislature shall convene each year in regular session at 12 o'clock noon on the first Monday in April for not to exceed 10 calendar days. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced during any regular session after midnight of the tenth calendar day except by a favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each House. During this period, no committee shall report and neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law. Not later than the close of the tenth calendar day the legislature shall adjourn and stand in recess until 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April at which time it shall reconvene for not to exceed 50 legislative days which shall not extend beyond the 30th day of June in any year. During the interim between adjournment and reconvening, the committees of the House may meet and hold hearings. A legislative day is a calendar day on which either House is in session."

Explanation

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention all this amendment does is to change the effect of the Riecke amendment in two respects. First it reduces the number of calendar days within which measures may be introduced from 15 days to 10. Secondly, it moves up the period during which the legislature would hold its sessions so that the legislature will have completed its work by the last day of the current fiscal year in which it's meeting. Now that's all that it does, that's all that it's intended to do. I think that a great deal could be said and I'm not going to say it, about trying to fashion a legislative session within a time-span that would conclude on the last day of the current fiscal year in which the legislature was meeting. I move the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 41-42. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 42-45. Motion to reconsider adopted: 50-40.]

Reconsideration

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates of the convention, the only reason I wanted to reconsider it was the fact that on comparing the Riecke proposal with Delegate Gravel's proposal, it just seems to me that they are essentially very much the same.

The two distinctions that I can find in particular are, one, that only ten days would be allowed in Delegate Gravel's proposal for introduction of legislation, where it would be fifteen in the case of Mr. Riecke. And it seems like fifteen is just a waste of time under the Riecke proposal ten days is enough to get these things introduced.

And then the other thing is, and the most important thing from my standpoint is just the standpoint of convenience. I think that we're simply taking a written proposal and in point of time moving all the dates back not quite a month.

This would mean, I think, that we would be meeting instead of one month in the spring and two in the summer, we would be meeting for two in the spring and one in the summer. This would leave our summer months freer. I think there are many advantages to that.

So that's the reason that I think this would be an improvement over the Riecke proposal without doing damage to it or violence to it in any real way.

Further Discussion

Mr. Ruemer Fellow delegates, I am opposed to the amendments as stated here for one reason.

The amendment does two things. It addresses itself to the length of time permissible to enter bills and it then addresses itself to ending prior to the fiscal ending of our year.

I am in complete agreement with concluding [including] the legislative session with fiscal ending. I think that's necessary. I am not in agreement, however, with limiting the period for the production of bills.

Under the Riecke amendment that we have already passed here, we have the right as a legislature to have fifteen days for the introduction of bills.

The legislature does not have to take all those fifteen days. It might be that ten is not enough, perhaps it will be. But fifteen gives them the flexibility to take all fifteen days if they so need.

I suggested to Mr. Gravel that there were two issues here, important to all of us. And this question should have been decided, I think, one issue at a time.

However, the amendments as introduced, that is both issues at once, I have to vote against it even though I am in sympathy with ending at the fiscal year. I am not in sympathy with limiting the legislature to ten days for the introduction of bills. I think it is an important distinction. I am sorry the amendments are introduced in this manner.

[Motion to take up other orders rejected: 48-50.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Triche Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I don't want to be contentious about this issue, but I'd like to have some more discussion on it, and I'd like to ask Mr. Gravel, why, first of all when we considered the Riecke amendment, and when we considered Senator Rayburn's amendment, I think the point was raised that worried all of us, and that point was that in convening the legislature in April, the fourth Monday in April, it was shortening the term of the meetings of the legislature in prohibition of Act 2 which called this session.

And we decided well, that's not really defective because we will be sending this proposal to the committee on styling and drafting, and they will straighten it out, and they will move it back so that the session will convene after the term of the members of the legislature which would be the first Monday in May, I think. And we thought that that's the way it would be, and I think that's the way it is going to have to be.

It seems to me what Mr. Gravel's amendment is doing is sometimes in the furtherment, in other words instead of having to move it back one month, they will have to move it back two months. I can't understand it.

In addition to that, I would like to hear some discussion about why restricted introduction of bills to fifteen days to ten days after we debated this thing for about four hours and finally made a decision in a closely debated and a closely divided session, closely divided by the floor.

Just off-hand, gentlemen, I just would ask that the authors come back and give us some explanation as to why. I haven't heard any explanation, why. I just can't understand why the convention would turn itself around in a few minutes without any reasonable explanation.

First of all, we decided that fifteen days is what we needed to introduce bills. Secondly, we decided that the fourth Monday in April was probably too early and in violation of the Act which called the convention, would have to be put back by the Styling and Drafting Committee.

It seems to me if we move it up further, we are still going to have that problem and make the Styling and Drafting Committee's work even more difficult.

For that reason, unless we have some further discussion, I just ask you to vote this one down.

Further Discussion

Mr. Riecke Ladies and gentlemen, if we vote favorably on this amendment, as it seems to me, we are going to set a dangerous precedent. There are a lot of people who left here since the Riecke amendment was passed, and if we oppose this amendment, every time there is a close vote on some subject and a few people leave, we are going to have to vote on it all over again after we have discussed it for four or five hours on its merits. And I don't think we ought to start this kind of thing because we will be voting on things on close vote over and over again. And I urge defeat of this amendment.

15th Days Proceedings—July 14, 1973

Vice Chairman Roy in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson You know, I'm not a legislator, but I did go to school to Georgetown for a year and I used to go sit and watch in the Senate. And I remember Senator Sam Ervin who is now Chairman of the Watergate Committee one time asking one of his opponents on the floor, that as a Southern Legislator, he couldn't understand what the difference was between the debate in depth that his opponent was conducting, and the filibuster that he was usually accused of conducting. And it is very plain to me, that an attempt is being made here to talk the amendment which was talked about for four hours and adopted to death. And I urge you to consider this, whether you agree with the provision that I took on the amendment or not. If we are going to do this with every subsection that we have got to consider, we'd better go back to the legislature and ask them to extend our time for the convention for another year, because we are going to need at least that much. And it seems to me that when a question is decided as many times as this one has been today, that that is enough.

Questions

Mr. Tapper It kind of confuses me a little because you are raising the same argument that I did when the Riecke amendment was proposed. And I said that "this dog has been beaten to death." Were you here when I raised that argument?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir.

Mr. Tapper And didn't you rise in support of the Riecke amendment to outdo what we took all day yesterday to do with the Rayburn amendment?

Mr. Burson No, sir. I did not. I did not speak to the point. I voted.

Mr. Tapper But you did vote for the Riecke amendment.

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, I did.

Mr. Tapper So you are asking us not to do what you did this morning with the Riecke amendment? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Burson No, sir. I'm saying that we can vote as many times as we want to, but we have debated this thing until we are blue in the face.

Point of Order

Mr. Stovall The point of order is that it is the amendment that is before us; not parliamentary procedure. I would think that the speaker should stick to the substance of the amendment that is before us.

Motion

Mr. Burson I thought I was. I move the previous question on the amendment.

INTRODUCTION OF PROPOSALS

[Rules Suspended to advance to Resolutions on Third Reading and Final Passage.]

RESOLUTIONS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter Committee Resolution No. 5, introduced by Delegate Stovall, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Rules, Credentials and Ethics and other delegates and members of that committee.

A resolution amending Rule No. 44 of the Standing Rules of the Constitutional Convention to clarify the requirement with respect to the readings on three different days.

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Delegates, the purpose of this resolution is to correct the reading of the original rules which implied that there would be three different readings on three different days. And if you turn to the back of the page on lines 6 and 7, you see the significant change. It simply says "the three required readings shall occur on three different days."

And that is the correction which was made and there is one other correction found on the first page on line 31. "Reference to Committee on Style and Drafting," and then you notice on the back page on line 3 referral to Committee on Style and Drafting. The Committee on Style and Drafting and others have recommended that the first reference to Committee on Style and Drafting be omitted.

These are merely procedural changes and I encourage your acceptance of them.

Questions

Mr. DeBlieux Reverend Stovall, as I recall during our first discussion and formulation of rules, one of the reasons why we wanted the convention to take, you might say, a final approval of the style and drafting, is because during that time we might discover some errors in the proposals that need to be corrected. And as you well know, that the... under the rules, the Committee on Style and Drafting has the right to ask for reconsideration of proposals that have been considered for this particular reason.

I am just wondering how we are going to take care of that if we eliminate the time it goes to the Committee on Style and Drafting and have only the final approved... that is that we eliminate one of those steps. When would they tell us what errors we have made so that we might be able to correct them in the final approval?

Mr. Tobias It was my feeling that this provision that they amended out of the rule, Rule 44, we... at least I considered it unnecessary because the Committee on Style and Drafting would get the proposal after the final passage on the third reading, and we figured it was just a vain and useless thing. At least I believe it to be a vain and useless thing to have us go over the proposal after the second reading make our corrections, and then have the proposal come to the floor and have it amended almost out of existence and then we have to go through it all over again.

And so, accordingly, I felt that we should only have to do this one time after the third reading and final passage and then we would make our corrections at that point. It's just an effort to save the staff time, the Committee on Style and Drafting time, and that's about it.

Mr. DeBlieux That's exactly my point. Now let me see if I reason this right. The Style and Drafting does not get the proposal until after it's been finally passed. And then we send it to them for their approval.

Now, if they find some errors in this, that would take floor amendments to correct, then we have to correct them on the floor. And then after we make those corrections, then it should... so that they can incorporate those corrections and put it into final form, looks like to me it ought to go back to them again.

Now if you are going to eliminate one of these times, you are not going to be able to do that as I see it. Maybe I am wrong. I don't know. Maybe it can be handled. But I thought there was good reason for having it like we originally adopted it to start with.

I just want to see if you can clarify that information for me. Maybe Justice Tate can do that.

Mr. Tobias Basically, what we were trying to do is eliminate two steps and cut it down to just one step.

After the proposal is passed on final... after third reading, it is supposed to come to Style and Drafting. Under the rules that we presently have, prior to this amendment that we are offering... or this resolution, it was supposed to go to Style and Drafting after the committee reported for us to make our stylistic changes.

Well, we are just saying there is no use making these stylistic changes until after it's been finally passed and we know where all of the amendments that have been made and when they have been made. We want to know that in advance.

And once that's done, then we will come back to the floor with our recommendation and seek approval of our amendments at that time. That is the way that the rules envision it. I cannot explain it any more simply.

Point of Information

Mr. Asseff Inasmuch as I am a member of the Committee on Style and Drafting, I will appreciate it if you would tell me at what meeting of the Committee such a decision was made.

Mr. Henry Wait a minute, Mr. Tobias. It is my appreciation that this is a resolution to change the rules of the convention, Dr. Asseff.

Mr. Asseff Yes, sir, but I thought Mr. Tobias was speaking on behalf of the Committee on Style and Drafting.

Mr. Henry I believe he said that insofar as he personally was concerned, Dr. Asseff. I don't believe he was speaking in behalf of the Committee on Style and Drafting.

Mr. Asseff Well, then, I object, Mr. Chairman, since I feel it should be considered by the Committee on Style and Drafting before it is considered by this convention. Thank you.

Question

Mr. DeBlieux Wouldn't it be better to eliminate "F" in the rules rather than "J" because the reason that I asked that question, and the reason I'd like to have it explained to me, is because it seems to me that we will not have anybody to catch the mistakes that may be made in the enrollment of these bills or anything else. And if you do that, we will have to make those changes and corrections upon the floor after the Style and Drafting Committee has made those changes and we have submitted and corrected them by floor amendment.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

And I just wondered if, because we don't have the two Houses to catch the errors from one to the other...

And I just wondered if it wouldn't be better that we eliminate the references Committee on Style and Drafting in "F" rather than "J".

Mr. Tate To repeat a little bit and particularly to try to answer Senator De Bieux and Dr. Asseff, we realize when a Legislative proposal is coming to the floor, that under the rules under 44-F the Committee on Style and Drafting would have to go through it in detail, add commas, capitals, semi-colons, and so on, and prepare a bunch of stylistic amendments which would be considered before second and third reading at the same time as the controversial substantial.

We also realize at that point, that all that labor might go for nothing because as events have turned out, the floor in fact has taken different amendments and different wording than what came from the committee. So, in answer to Dr. Asseff, incidentally, I made a quick check of the members, and I have recalled talking to Dr. Asseff saying that this proposal had gone to Reverend Stovall's committee...I will answer the question as soon as I can furnish my explanation...and told the Rules Committee we had no objection to the change so far as I could find.

Now, for Senator De Bieux, what happens between second and third reading, I mean between third reading and final passage, I think it's No. 15 on the calendar, I'm not...Forty-four, the other one you are talking about. What will happen then? When it passes the floor totally, Style and Drafting with the assistance of the staff, will go through the final proposal adopted by the convention and then come with a series of technical amendments which, hopefully, will be uncontroversial and will be just limited to those technical amendments that we can consider just once on the basis of the final wording adopted by the amendment.

I will yield to all the questions that were there. I don't...

Further Discussion

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, delegates, I have no objection to the proposal by Justice Tate, and I will vote for it.

I simply suggest that in the future, that if a matter so vital concerns the Committee on Style and Drafting, that there should be a standing order that committee in order that all of the members will be familiar. I am taken by surprise.

However, Justice Tate is correct, and I will vote for the resolution. Thank you.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter These are amendments which you can tell by the subject matter since they have just been distributed, are on the same subject, but go to the title, I appreciate it to correct the title to reflect the committee amendment.

These are sent up by Mr. Tobias.
Amendment No. 1 on page 1, line 9 which is in the title.

After the word quote, "to delete the remainder of the line, delete line 10 in its entirety and insert in lieu, thereof, the following:

Quote, "delete the requirement with respect to reference to the Committee on Style and Drafting prior to third reading and to clarify the requirement with respect to the readings on three different days."

Explanation

Mr. Tobias This is just a technical amendment to amend the title of the Committee Resolution. That's all it is.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman, I have no intention to object to the intention of the amendment as I understand it. I just am not sure that it says what Mr. Tobias means it to say because it ends up reading, "Rules amending Rule No. 44 of the standing rules of the constitutional convention to clarify the requirement with respect to delete the requirement with respect to reference..."

Is that what it says as amended if we have the amendment in it?

It seems to me if that's what it says, it isn't exactly what Mr. Tobias intends and perhaps we should either adopt it as the Rules Committee presented it to us, or have another floor amendment prepared.

Mr. Henry Mrs. Zervigon, I'm advised that technically and procedurally speaking, that the amendment is properly drawn to make the body or the title of the resolution conform to the body of the resolution.

[Amendment reread.]

Point of Information

Mr. De Bieux As I understood the resolution proposed, that it proposed to eliminate line "J". Now unless I have the wrong line on this, if the floor amendment says

"the reference to the Committee on Style and Drafting prior to third reading."

If that is true, then this amendment does not conform to the resolution which is up before us now. I would like to get that because once they are sent up to the third reading...

Mr. Henry Senator, what Mr. Poynter just pointed out was that the amendment pertains to the engrossed resolution which would make it read differently from the resolution as I understand it that you have at your desk. But it does conform completely to the engrossed resolution, it does make sense.

And you don't have a copy of the engrossed resolution there.

Explain why they don't have copies of the engrossed resolution, please sir.

Mr. Poynter The practice at least so far, when a resolution is engrossed, or for that matter a proposal passed to its third reading, the only time that we have been reprinting...going to the cost of this convention of reprinting those and placing them in your binders, is with respect to proposals.

So for example, you do have a reprinted and yellow copy of the proposal which is placed in the legislative article and also will soon receive one, if it is not already in your books, with respect to the executive article which I believe Mr. Stagg is, Committee Proposal No. 4.

We have not, as a practice automatically reprinted the resolutions. You do have the resolution as originally introduced in your bill binder to date without further orders of this convention, we have not reprinted it. However, engrossed copies of it are available in several places. Certainly here at the desk, with the staff, with the Legislative Council and they have been distributed at other places for the purpose of technically drafting amendments.

With respect to resolutions as distinguished from proposals, we have not to this date gone to the expense of reprinting those in the form to place in your binders. Of course, you are aware it is rather expensive to reprint each of these items.

Point of Information

Mr. Fontenot As the engrossed resolution would read, I don't have a copy in front of me, that is why I am asking, line 31 would not be present in the engrossed resolution?

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Henry That's right. That's correct. We've got to get a copy of the printed resolution. Wait just a minute, sir.

Mr. Poynter That's correct, Mr. Fontenot. That is with respect to the printed bill, that the line that has been previously deleted by committee amendment, proposed committee amendment which was adopted by this convention on July 14. It would have the effect of striking line No. 31 on Page 1 of the printed bill or the printed resolution which required reference to the Committee on Style and Drafting immediately before the measure was engrossed and passed to its third reading.

The amendment before you right now is an amendment explained by Mr. Tobias as a technical amendment which would go in to the title exactly, with respect to the printed copy, it would delete the remainder of your line 8 for the word "to" and delete all of line 9 and substitute the language that you see in front of you which would make the title of the resolution conform to the change proposed by the committee and subsequently adopted by this convention on July 14.

Mr. Fontenot O.K., sir. As we read the amendment, it fits in if you look at this blue page and just read the blue page and leave out line 31. Right?

Mr. Poynter Yes, that is correct.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection. Previous question ordered on the Resolution. Resolution adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Resolution

Mr. Poynter The next resolution and order of business is Committee Resolution No. 7, introduced by Delegate Stovall, also Chairman, on behalf of the Committee on Rules, Credentials and Ethics.

A resolution relative to amending the standing rules of the constitutional convention to provide for submission of minority proposals.

Has previously been reported with amendments which were adopted by the convention on July 14, 1973.

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Delegates of the convention, this resolution was approved by a majority of the Rules Committee to clarify the point that a minority of any Substantive Committee has the right to present a minority report. And that simply is what it does, not withstanding any rule previously adopted by this convention.

One or more members of the committee may introduce a proposal representing the views of the minority. And I think that we need not bog down in technicalities or what have you. I think that it's simply a vote on whether or not you want a minority of the committee to have the right in very clear-cut language to present a minority report.

Questions

Mr. Newton Mr. Stovall, was consideration given to requiring a certain percentage of delegates to present a minority proposal; and if so, why was that not included in this amendment?

Mr. Stovall Delegate Newton, consideration was given to a certain percentage of the committee being required in order to present the report. The Rules Committee as a whole rejected any percentage requirements.

Mr. Newton Is there any particular reason for this, please sir?

Mr. Stovall The reason the majority of the committee rejected it is that they desire this convention to be totally and completely open and democratic and to see that every delegate has the opportunity to present whatever he might like to the entire convention.

This was the rationale behind their decision.

Mr. Perez Reverend, does this mean that every proposal which is introduced then will of right come to the floor and be debated on the floor just as the committee proposals are debated without any further action?

Mr. Stovall I would not think so, Mr. Chairman, or Mr. Perez.

Mr. Perez Well, I am trying to find out what you mean by a minority report coming to the floor. The question is does it, as a matter of right appear or come before this full convention for the detailed consideration just as the committee reports and any other matters reported out favorably by the committee.

Mr. Stovall I just answered you, Mr. Perez. I don't think so.

Mr. Perez Well, tell me then what does it mean? I'm trying to find out what this minority report business means if it doesn't mean that it comes before the convention just as a committee report favorably reported.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Perez, the purpose of the majority of the Rules Committee who supported this had as their intent that a minority of the committee would have the opportunity to make a report to the convention.

Mr. Perez Where do we go from there, reverend, is what I'm trying to find out. Does that mean that the matter then comes on the floor just as a proposal favorably reported by the committee would come on the floor?

Mr. Stovall I would assume that something that would be contradictory to a minority report had been previously adopted, that the minority report would not be considered.

If there are members of the Rules Committee who supported this and who wanted to make a different kind of response to Mr. Perez's question, you are invited to do so.

Mr. Perez What is the purpose of a minority report? May I suggest, Mr. Stovall, that this should be returned back to the committee for a clarification?

[Motion to re-commit the Resolution to the Committee on Rules and Procedures adopted without objection. Motion to vote on the entire order of business adopted without objection.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Mire Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, ladies and gentlemen. After considerable thought about the statement to this body last week by the freshman Senator from Ruston, Senator Kilpatrick, I feel that I would be remiss in my responsibility as President of the Louisiana Assessors Association, and in behalf of the Assessors of the State, if I did not take exceptions to this statement.

You will recall his statement as to why assessors are seldom defeated. He said that it was because the assessor put the pen in to the people. It is my opinion that if this were true, that assessors would probably never be returned to office after their first term.

I submit to you that the assessor values property and not personalities. Senator Kilpatrick's statement is an insult to the intelligence of today's electorate who is far too wise to allow such an unjust practice to exist anywhere in this State.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

I feel that statements such as this have a way of spilling over on all public officials and breed the distrust most of our citizens have for its officials. Further, irresponsible statements with no basis of fact certainly contribute to the much used misnomer, "dirty politicians."

I have found that when you trust, you usually can be trusted. Our job here certainly is so important that we should all be above dirty personal vendettas, innuendoes, accusations, insinuations and such, and I feel we can and must about the business of putting together a constitution on the highest plane possible, and only in this way will the public know that we have accepted our responsibilities seriously, conscientiously, and with a sincere desire to offer to them an acceptable document. Thank you very much.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 3.

A proposal making provisions for the legislative branch of government, impeachment and removal of officers... officials and necessary provision with respect thereto.

And of course the status of Committee Proposal No. 3 to date is that this convention has adopted Section 1, presently still has under consideration Section 2, and in particular we have been dealing with Paragraph A, thereof.

Immediately prior to adjournment on Saturday, Delegate Gravel offered up amendments which were defeated by a narrow margin. A motion was made to reconsider and table the same. The convention refused to table the amendment, voted to reconsider the amendments.

Therefore pending at this time, the reconsideration of amendments proposed by Delegate Gravel to Section 2A of the article dealing with the legislative department.

Motion

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman, for whatever it's worth, and if I am in order, I move to reconsider the Riecke amendment and lay it on the table.

Mr. Henry Your motion would be in order at this time because they were not reconsidered.

[Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Point of Information

Mr. Riecke What does it mean?

Mr. Henry That means that the amendments that you sponsored were adopted or better locked in this way than they were the way they were left, Mr. Riecke.

It means it's going to take a two-thirds vote if somebody decides well, we will just undo Mr. Riecke's amendments this afternoon, so we'll move to reconsider and just undo them. It is procedure that's sound, Mr. Riecke.

Mr. Riecke O.K. I'm a babe in the woods and I just want information.

Mr. Henry Mighty fine.

Mr. Gravel, we were taking up your amendments. Do you have some words of wisdom to impart?

Explanation

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as I understand the procedure at the present time, it would be appropriate to take up the proposed amendment that I had introduced at our last session, part of the amendment being to delete the amendments that Mr. Riecke had previously proposed and which were adopted by this convention. Before I withdraw those amendments... that proposal which I am about to do, I would like to state to the convention that those of us who sponsored the proposal that I had introduced at the last session have discussed with the authors of the Riecke amendment the possibility of working out some language that would accommodate the concept of the split sessions of the legislature and some of the proposed changes that I had advocated.

We have reached such an agreement. The reason I am about to withdraw the amendment that I had proposed is because of an understanding that I have with Mr. Riecke, Mr. Sutherland, Mr. Guarissis and Mr. Bel that they will introduce another amendment, also sponsored by Mr. Triche, Mr. Roy, Mr. Newton, Mr. Jenkins and myself which will in effect leave the concept of Mr. Riecke's amendment solely in effect as part of the proposed new constitution.

Therefore, and subject to...

Mr. Henry I have heard of an unholy alliance in my life, but this has got to be it...

Go ahead, Mr. Gravel.

All you need is Roemer and Chehardy on it to really wind it up.

Mr. Gravel Well, both of those gentlemen have indicated they are going to support the Riecke amendment which will shortly be introduced. And Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, for the very brief reasons that I have already enunciated, I withdraw the proposed Gravel amendment...

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [bu Mr. Riecke, et al.]. Delete Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Riecke and adopted by the convention on July 14, 1973.

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following, "Section 2A: The legislature shall convene each year in regular session at 12 noon on the first Monday in April for not to exceed 12 calendar days. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced during any regular session after midnight of the 12th calendar day except by a favorable record vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each House. During this period no committee shall report and neither House shall adopt any bill or resolution which is intended to have the effect of law. Not later than the close of the 12th calendar day, the legislature shall adjourn and stand in recess until 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April at which time it shall reconvene for not to exceed 50 legislative days which shall not extend beyond the 30th day of June in any year. During the interim between adjournment and reconvening, the committees of the Houses may meet and hold hearings. A legislative day is a calendar day on which either House is in session."

Amendment No. 3. Page 2, delete lines 1 through 9, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Riecke Ladies and gentlemen, this amendment is substantially the same as my original amendment with two exceptions. It was pointed out to me this morning that in my original amendment we provided for the legislature to meet the first Monday in May and recess the 30 or the 31st day in July. And it was pointed out to me that if we moved the session of the legislature up 30 days making them meet on the first Monday of April and recessing on the 30th day in June, that this will be substantially the same time to meet but it will move the session of the legislature up into the same fiscal session of the State. This will enable the legislature or the treasurer to pay the people rather than wait another year to get paid. Not being familiar with that part of the fiscal year, I decide that in my original time, I followed the original committee recommendation. But it made common sense to me that if you meet about the same time and move it up so that it will fit into the State's fiscal session so these employees can get paid. Well it makes no substantial change in the content of my resolution. Now the second change was a compromise. My original proposal was that the legislature would meet 15 days solely for the consideration of bills after which they could not introduce any more bills without two-thirds vote of both Houses. It was suggested that we change it from 15 days to 12 days for the introduction of bills. I didn't think that that made that much difference, that three days. Frankly, I'm learning a lot on how to get stuff through, and for that 3 days, I lost a lot of opposition. I hope that everybody will go along with it. This is a good amendment. Thank you.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Questions

Mr. Avant Mr. Riecke, I just want to know if there would be any objection if it was offered at the proper time, I understand that this would not be the proper time to offer this as an amendment to this, but if there would be any objection to adding to the next to the last sentence in this proposal at the end of the word "hearings," the words "but may not act on any matter referred to it" to make it clear that during this interim period that even though the committees may meet and hold hearings, that they may not take any action as a committee to report a bill. Would there be objection to that?

Mr. Riecke I can't answer that. There are a lot of people on this thing now and I would really not be fair to them if I said that without consulting with them. You can do that anyway whether there is any objection or not.

Mr. Avant Oh I understand that, but before I vote on this particular proposition I would like to know what the consensus is, if I can find it out, with respect to this further refining and limiting of it.

Mr. Riecke Well the thrust of this whole thing is for split sessions and any minor detail that the delegates feel is necessary I'm sure would be all right. But we don't want to lose the split session. The people want this and I think the delegates want it and certainly I want it. I see no objection. As a matter of fact you can introduce that if you wish. I'm very anxious to have this behind us so that we can get on with the rest of the work we have before us.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Riecke, you made the statement that this proposal is essentially the same as your original proposal. But if I've done my arithmetic correctly, where your proposal said that they would meet on the fourth Monday in April and after the calendar day period and the period of recess, they would come back on the fourth Monday in May. That's a time-span of 28 calendar days which would have allowed approximately two weeks for committee hearings or what ever may be done in that interim period. But in this new proposal going from the first Monday in April to the fourth Monday in April is a time-span of only 21 days. If you're going to use up 12 of those calendar days for your filing, then you have essentially cut, in fact you have drastically cut the time for committee hearings and so forth. Is there is quite a substantive change in what you are proposing now and what your original proposal was. Is it not? You're going to lose 7 days of committee hearings, are you not?

Mr. Riecke Committee hearings in the interim?

Mr. Abraham Yes.

Mr. Riecke If you've figured it out that way, I haven't taken the calendar and figured it out. There's nothing that stops the committees from meeting after the legislature is in session.

Mr. Abraham I appreciate that, but under your now proposal there is a 9 day period from the 11 days that they've had until they come in again.

Under the other proposal there were 17 days so you've cut your time by 50%.

Mr. Riecke No, you've cut them by 3 days, didn't you?

Mr. Abraham Four days. You've cut them down from 13 days down to 9 days. So you've cut 4 days off that time, have you not?

Mr. Riecke That's right.

Point of Information

Mr. Toomy On a procedural matter. Is it my understanding that the Riecke proposal is now on the table and would require a two-thirds vote to take it off the table?

Mr. Henry To reconsider the vote on the Riecke amendments as proposed would take a two-thirds vote to undo it. These are different amendments, Mr. Toomy. These are entirely different amendments.

Mr. Toomy So this amendment could be accepted by a majority vote without taking the Riecke amendment off the...

Mr. Henry Yes, the motion to reconsider and lay on the table went to the original Riecke amendments Mr. Toomy. These being a different set of amendments, that motion would not be applicable.

Questions

Mr. Shannon Mr. Riecke, I am concerned, I voted for your amendment in the beginning, but I have talked at length with people and I'm concerned now about the committee meetings in the interim between adjournment and reconvening. As I gather this now they can hold hearings but they can't report to anybody until they come back into session.

Mr. Riecke That's correct.

Mr. Shannon Under this, can they take action and get ready for reporting? Can they take final action after hearings and be ready to report, favorable or unfavorable, whichever the case might be?

Mr. Riecke I don't think they can.

Mr. Shannon Well why would you want committee hearings if you can't take any action?

Mr. Riecke They can take action the first day of the session if they want and report...

Mr. Shannon Go through all this procedure again?

Mr. Riecke No, all they have to do is to vote on it. They wouldn't have to have any additional hearings.

Mr. Shannon All right. One other thing. Are these people on the committee going to be paid during this time?

Mr. Riecke Yes.

Mr. Shannon Do you take care of that here?

Mr. Riecke No, you don't take care of that here.

Mr. Shannon Do you not define a legislative day as a calendar day in which either House is in session?

Mr. Riecke Well I assume that if the committeemen are being paid when they hold committee meeting now, that they will be paid if they hold it then.

Mr. Shannon But did you know we do not have interim times now. We hold the hearings while the legislature is in session.

Mr. Riecke Well do you think that this would preclude their being paid? This amendment would preclude their being paid when they're having committee meetings.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Shannon I see where it makes no provisions for them to be paid.

Mr. Riecke Do you believe that they would not be paid and that they could not be paid?

Mr. Shannon I do believe that they could not be paid. Yes.

Mr. Riecke It was never intended that way. Mr. Shannon.

Mr. Shannon Well do you believe that a committee would function without any pay?

Mr. Riecke I would. I don't know, I can't speak for the committees.

Mr. Shannon Well have you ever been around the legislature when committee meetings have been called on the weekend where they couldn't get a quorum to those committee meetings?

Mr. Riecke No sir. Are they paid when they meet on the weekend?

Mr. Shannon Yes, you're paid every day during the session as it is now because it's continuous.

Mr. Riecke Well, if it's continuous then wouldn't they be paid if they meet in the interim?

Mr. Shannon Well that's what I'm asking you--to explain to me your amendment. I do not know.

Mr. Riecke I would assume that if the delegates approve the continuous session that they would be paid in the interim.

Mr. Shannon Well this is not a continuous session. This is a split session.

Mr. Riecke That's a technicality that I can't answer now. If you feel that this would preclude payment of the legislators while they're having committee meetings and if you feel that this should be made crystal clear, then introduce an amendment to this after it passes.

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Riecke, I understand that your proposal, your change in your amendment, that you would meet on the first Monday in April of each year. Is that correct?

Mr. Riecke That's correct.

Mr. Chatelain And you would go for 12 days, then you'd come back in session on the fourth Monday.

Mr. Riecke Yes.

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Abraham brought out a situation where you reduced the time from 15 to 9 days. Is it not correct sir, that in 1974, for instance, this is based on 1973, but in 1974 the exact opposite would be true. That you would come in on the first Monday in April and on fourth Monday would give you a total of 16 days. Is that not correct, sir?

Mr. Riecke Not according to my check with the staff and the calendars. It would be 9 days right on.

Mr. Chatelain No sir, according to the calendar of '74 sir, the interim between the 12 day period and the fourth Monday would be a period of 16 days, according to the calendar I now hold. So you would be increasing your time, actually. So it would go according to the year. It would fluctuate from a total of 9 days to a total of 16 days.

Mr. Riecke It would fluctuate, yes. But 9 days would be the least amount of time in the interim.

Mr. Guarisco Addressing myself to the time interval insofar as the committees may meet during the recess. Is it not the intention to, this recess is really intended to allow the public to find out what's in the hopper? Isn't that right Mr. Riecke?

Mr. Riecke That's correct.

Mr. Guarisco The right to the committees to meet is merely a permissive thing. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Riecke Yes.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Riecke, there's been several mentions at the microphone by the proponents and the authors of this is what the people want. That the split session is the thing. I know this has been hashed over and over and over again. But I just believe and I want to ask you, those 12 days that you are advocating that the legislature be allowed to introduce bills only. Did you ever stop, you and the advocates of this and the authors think, just what the legislature will do during that 12 days besides introduce bills? We will spend 12 days just purely introducing bills up here. Is that the intent of this? Is that the intent of your amendment?

Mr. Riecke Well, the intent of the amendment is to allow only 12 days for the introduction of bills. What the legislature does in the interim I should think, would be up to the legislature to decide. The legislature ought to be able to find something else to do besides receive bills in 12 days.

Mr. Nunez That's your contention that the legislature ought to be able to find something else to do in those 12 days besides introduce bills. I would say well probably they could find a lot of things to do. I don't know whether they'd be in line with legislative business, but they'll find a lot of things to do.

Number two, you've got an interim period between the time we introduce the bills and the bills are pre-filed or introduced that they can be heard but not voted on. The legislature as a body goes home and comes back within a certain "X" number of days and then they start hearing the legislation as such, and then will be allowed to vote on. You have a period of time until that time until the 30th day of June.

My question to you is that I would like to know what the problem that presented itself in the past, to my knowledge and I think to a lot of legislators knowledge, has not been the 60 day session as such. If you check with the Speaker and check with the Clerk and check with the official journal, the House and the Senate has met on an average of around 50-52 days. I believe, and I think a lot of people that have been around here a long time, believe that that is sufficient time. The big contention, I think with the people of this State and with the legislature and with many other people, is not... I'm going to ask a question Mr. Riecke. Has not been the 60 day session...

Mr. Riecke Are you asking me a question or are you making a talk against it?

Mr. Nunez Well I'm going to make a talk against it first, but I want to ask you a question now, if you don't mind.

Has not been the 60 day session. But we're attacking the 60 day session. My question is why would you not object to a straight, just like we now have, a straight 60 day session rather than try to piecemeal this thing and divide it into split day sessions which is not workable and I think if you adopt it and put it in the legislators hands, you're going to find it's not workable? But everybody seems to be insisting, including the authors of this, that we go ahead with a split session. Let legislators stay up here for 12 days and do nothing but introduce bills. Is that the intention of what you're trying to introduce?

Mr. Riecke No.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Nunez It isn't?

Mr. Riecke No.

Mr. Nunez Well I can't read then.

Further Discussion

Mr. Newton I think we've had about all the discussion on this thing. We discussed it several days last week, and I therefore move the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 32-74.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman, and delegates, I rise to oppose this floor amendment. Now, it's been my experience when an amendment is amended and they keep on, there's something wrong with it. And there's something very wrong with the Riecke, Sutherland, Guarisco, Bel, Triche, Gravel, Roy, Newton, et al. etc. amendment. Here, according to my reading of this new amendment, you'd start out the first Monday in April. I want you to listen to this now. Then you'd have the days for introducing the bills and coming in to meet them with committees, and then when you recess after the 12th day, granting if you can meet with committees then, you would have a total of 21 days from the time you started... I want you to quit talking out there, right over there and listen, please sir. Mr. Speaker... please have order in it. I want to say something here that hasn't been said.

Mr. Henry Well now, Mr. Jack... That's just like a lot of things. I can maybe get their attention for you, but I can't make them listen, Mr. Jack. You're going to have to do that yourself.

Mr. Jack I'm not going to take a club and hit somebody, but I ask you to give me your attention. Now there is a period of 21 days. If, during that entire time let's just say they were, in the 12 days, there were 2,800 bills introduced like someone said was in the two Houses the last few years. Now, what are you going to do? That is ridiculous. Would you attempt to consider 2,800 bills during that time? Under these rules, this amendment, granting that you could consider them in committee the first 12 days, granting that you could consider them after the first 12 days and up to the fourth day in April making a total of 21, you couldn't vote on them. Now let me tell you. How could you, after considering 2,800 bills in committees if you possibly could, how would you remember all the testimony and things? Suppose we had this silly rule enforced right here. It would come out that everything that had been said on this convention floor since July 5, we wouldn't have been able to have voted on anything and we would be voting on it at the end of 21 days from July 5. I would have had to be called on, say tomorrow, to vote on everything that's been said here since last Thursday. It's hard enough to try to keep up with the difference between these different amendments, Senator Rayburn's, the two Riecke amendments and the Gravel amendment. Now I want to point that out to you. That it's to me, like trying a case and pulling out, say with the jury because you all act as the jury. Now can you imagine trying a case in court to a 12 man jury or any other number and saying you wait 21 days before you start making up your mind whether you're going to vote for the Plaintiff or the Defendant and any issues that that judge may charge you with. Now that just doesn't make good sense. Now another reason they claim for split sessions, my friends, to go home to discuss the matters with the constituents. Let me tell you, when people elect you they want broad things discussed. They come to you and tell you. If people didn't rely on you using certain judgment and on the broad things then you would see a lot of people here. I don't see anybody in this audience today or any other day except wives and friends of people down here and their children and the employees. If you think that the people all-fired, want to discuss everything with you, let's just look at the meetings that we've had around at different cities. I know that every place I know of wasn't real well attended. The Composite Committee had a meeting a while back and our Chairman couldn't be there and I took his place. It was in Shreveport in a little annex of our civic center. There was 125 people at Shreveport and Bossier City. Over at Minden, a little town, there were 8. But Minden, for it's population, with 8 people there had a better attendance than Shreveport and Bossier who had 125. So there's no justification for split sessions on this old worn-out thing of saying you're going home to discuss it with people like they're going to have that auditorium full for you. What I'd like to see back here, and I hope he'll do it, is for Senator Rayburn to get his resolution back here, if necessary under the rules to change it up; give or take a day. I think that's the one. This Riecke amendment was discovered wasn't proper, again being changed. I say let's kill this amendment. And another thing I'm going to suggest is people give people a chance to talk. I haven't moved the previous question. I don't ever remember doing that in the 24 years I was in the House of Representatives. As long as anybody wants to speak, I'm paid $50 a day to be here and I'd be here whether I was paid or not. I'm not going to move the previous question on anybody. I'll work day and night. Every one of the 132 delegates has got just as much right to be heard as you Mr., or you Mrs., or Mr. or Ms. or whatever you want to call it, as that man, woman or who that moves the previous question. I thank you and vote against it.

Questions

Mr. Gravel You will agree, will you not, that this resolution, except for the date and the time spans is identical, however, with the resolution that was adopted by this convention, proposed by Mr. Riecke? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Jack It was a close vote, and I don't think this resolution, Mr. Gravel, is any good and you didn't think Mr. Riecke's was good or you wouldn't have had an amendment that nearly passed before we adjourned. To me, I'm answering your question. You asked it, so don't interrupt, let me answer. In plain words, I think as I called them in the House, these bad bills I called them snake bills.

Mr. Gravel That's not my question, Mr. Jack.

Mr. Jack You let me finish. The way you do with a snake, you don't let him get in your bedroom, you kill him before he gets on the porch. A snake amendment is the same thing. I think you all got a snake amendment here. You all are combining, you're trying to recreate Mr. Riecke's amendment. I think it's still bad, but all due respect to you, I think yours is equally bad.

Mr. Gravel But Mr. Jack, my question to you which you tried, apparently, to avoid and please listen to me now, my question to you is that the point that you are making could have been made to the Riecke amendment that has already been adopted by this convention. Isn't that correct, sir?

Mr. Jack I talked against it. I don't believe in split sessions. You haven't listened to me. I've been wasting my time on you.

Mr. Gravel You've answered my question. Thank you very much.

Mr. LeBlou Mr. Jack, I believe this amendment states that the session would open on the first Monday in April wouldn't necessarily end not later than the 30th day of June. Now as I understand this language, what it would do would leave the legislative session for a period of say up to 90 days rather than the 60 days.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Jack That is correct. It just costs the taxpayers more money. That's one of the many things. And they're going to get paid during that first 21 days where there is no money to be done. They'll work it out. They call it per diem. They call it expense money. It don't come under salary, and they can vote expense money.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Fellow delegates, I think the issue here is whether or not we want the legislators to have time after bills have been filed, in which to do any committee work or back home work, or anything else that they may want to do before they come back and deliberate. Now both of these amendments provide that during the interim period, during the recess period, that committees could hold meetings. There are no restrictions which would not allow them to take final action on a bill. The only restrictions are that during the initial period in which the legislature is in session, they can't take any final votes. They can still have committee meetings but they cannot take a final vote. But in both cases, they can take a final vote on the day after the recess is over. Now whether you are meeting 12 calendar days or 15 calendar days they can take a final vote on the 13th day or on the 16th day. The real difference in the two amendments is the length of time of the recess.

Now under the old Riecke amendment the recess period would be for a total of 19 days which would include three weekends and 5 weekdays. Now if we go back on April having 4 Mondays in it, it April has 5 Mondays, the recess period would total 21 days. Under this new amendment, the maximum period that you could have during the recess would be 9 days which would include 2 weekends and 5 weekdays, whether April has 4 Mondays or has 5 Mondays. So I think that the issue to be settled here is going to be whether or not we want a longer recess period or a short one. My personal feelings are that it's good to have a long recess period. For two reasons, first of all it gives the person who is back home a chance to do some reading on the bill that he's got at hand. I think he needs to take the time to read these bills. If they're all in front of him, he's going to need 2-3 weeks to read them all and understand them. It gives the committees plenty of time to meet at their discretion, and they are allowed to take final action on any bill. If they are doing the job that they should do they should have them all out of hand and ready for report as soon as the legislature reconvenes. I am opposed to this new Riecke amendment because 9 days is just not enough time. That's two weekends and one week. If the committee wants to hold hearings during that period, they've got one week in which to hold hearings. Again I repeat that the issue is how much time do we want these people to have? I don't think the issue anymore is whether we should have split sessions or not. I think the issue is going to be stage now. I would strongly urge that we defeat this new amendment. I think that what we did last week is good. I think we need this recess time, as a cooling off period or whatever you want to call it. But I think it is needed for these legislators to be able to study their bills and to be able to vote intelligently on them when they come back into session. I have heard many legislators say that their system now doesn't give you enough time to do anything. You don't have time to review the bills or anything like that. I do not understand the legislators who have voiced this comment who would oppose the bill as we adopted, or rather the amendment as we adopted last week. I think that they're talking in both circles. I have a mouth. On the one hand they are saying we don't have enough time and on the other hand they are voting against taking the time to do it. So I am opposed to this new amendment. I think we should retain the old Riecke amendment.

Question

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Abraham, Delegate Abraham, we discussed this a minute ago. In 1974, the interim would be 10 days instead of 9 days. It would give you more time to cool off. Another thought in the new amendment that was offered by Mr. Riecke this morning was that it would be going along with the State's fiscal year. We would have the business of the legislature finished before the end of the fiscal year which would be, I can see, a certain advantage to the State of Louisiana there. I know you oppose this new amendment of Riecke's, but in the spirit of compromise which we're going to have to do a great deal of during the convention, I find that... I'm asking this question now. Don't you think that in the last paragraph of the new Riecke amendment which says during the interim between adjournment and reconvening the committees of the Houses may meet and hold hearings, don't you think this would suffice, sir?

Mr. Abraham No sir, because you do not have enough time in which to meet and hold hearings. You've only got 5 weekdays to do it and that's all you've got under this new amendment. I would like to make another point, Mr. Chatelain, that there is nothing magic about having to get this session over with by the end of the fiscal year. I think what I would like to see is that there be a certain amount of time that the legislators take off after the general election and before the first session of the legislature in which to prepare themselves for this legislature. By moving it up to the first Monday in April you've only got about two weeks to get ready for the session.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I stand to oppose the new Riecke amendments. I can't understand from one day to the next... looks like the decisions of this convention just flip flop. I think if a lot of time had been spent on some threads on our shoes, we would have already screwed ourselves to the ground. I can't understand the necessity in the new Riecke amendments which says that the legislature should end its business by June 30th. I think the present set up and as the first Riecke amendment proposed, you allow the legislature to meet at the end of the fiscal year and a month in the beginning of the new fiscal year. We're always going to be faced with the problem of trying to find additional revenues and of meeting the necessity of those expenditures of the year. If you make the legislature end at the end of the fiscal year without having all the information before them to make that decision, I think you're going to be hampering that decision. You're going to be looking for additional revenues, I don't know how you're going to be able to do it, before the fiscal year is ended anyhow. There is much concern with the split session decision that you would go home to be able to talk to your people about the bills that were introduced. Now under the original Riecke amendment, the first of the proposed legislature would meet in the months of June and July. The working people I represent, the district that I represent, a large shipyard, industrial area, the vast majority of the people I represent take their vacations in June and July. When they are concerned about a particular issue, they come up to the legislature when they take their vacations. They can't afford to take a day off cause they're paid by the hour. He's paid for every day's work that he puts in. When he takes a day off, he loses that pay. Under this new amendment you may force him to take that day off without taking it during his vacation time. I've had one of the staff do a little research for me as to how this new amendment would interfere with the Easter holidays during which the legislature would meet. The information they give me is that the last day for introduction of bills would be on Good Friday in the years of '74, '76, '79 and '81. The session would begin on the Monday after Easter Sunday in 1980 and '83. Easter would not interfere with the session at all in only two years, '75 and '78. The Easter holidays during which the legislature would meet, the information they give me is that the last day for introduction of bills would be on Good Friday in the years of '77 and '82. In eight out of ten years you're forcing the Easter holidays to be interfered with the legislature, a problem that we do not presently have to address ourselves to. You heard the argument by Delegate Abraham who stated that you're going to cut the committees work down by some 8 or 9 days. Again, if you're going to stick by wanting to go home to talk to constituents in your district, then you're going to want some weekends off in that time to discuss with them just what their point of view is on particular issues. I can't see people in my district Monday through Friday during normal working hours. When he gets off from work, generally and it's from the shipyards or from any other place, he would like to get home from six to seven or eight o'clock. He's got to take a bath and eat his lunch and visit with his family. Generally by that time, he's put in a good day's work and he doesn't want to have to fool with any of this. I can see him better on the weekend, on Saturday and Sunday, when he is at his leisure, when he's not losing any time or any pay. If you cut down the committees' meetings to 8 or 9 days and the committees decide to go home on weekends, you're in effect, are cutting it down to only 5 working days. I submit this is not the correct thing and this is not what we're looking to do. I'd ask that you defeat this Riecke amendment.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, every argument just about that has been made with respect to this amendment was made on the original amendment that was proposed by Mr. Riecke with one or two exceptions. And the principle contentions that I think have been advanced are those that result from views that do not result from a fair rating of either the original proposal by Mr. Riecke or this one. Some people are concerned about the fact that there might be some encroachment of legislative time on the Saturday or Sunday periods which they would like to rest and not work in the legislature. There is nothing in the original Riecke Amendment nor in this amendment. The wording in that regard is identical that says that you have to work on any Saturday or on any Sunday. The only provision in here is that there shall be not more than fifty legislative days in which the legislature will conduct its business after the initial adjournment. This amendment also provides that bills can be introduced in the first twelve days. The legislature may adopt rules saying that they will only meet for ten days for that purpose within the purview and scope of this amendment. Now, the purpose of this whole concept is to provide split sessions. To provide a period of time within which the legislators can introduce their bills and explain those bills...and that's [...] seldom done now to other members of the legislature. The legislators are going to be informed initially and after they have received this information then they are going to be given an adequate time and opportunity to come and to discuss with their constituents the scope of the proposed legislation.

Split session is the concept that we're voting on. All of the rest of these arguments are just efforts to try to defeat this proposal, this kind of an amendment, to get back to a continuous session amendment that I am confident would be offered in the event this proposed amendment is not passed here. So I strongly urge that those of you who aren't supporting this principle not be misled by arguments that don't address themselves to the principle or true concept of the Riecke Amendment and that is that we have split sessions within a fiscal year. Now can anybody fail to see that it is important for the legislature if it can possibly do so complete all of its affairs within the fiscal year so that the business of government and the other business throughout the State can be accommodated to the fiscal year concept.

I think this is a good amendment. I think it is going to help streamline the legislative effort and I urge that you support it.

Questions

Mr. Abraham Camille, I take it then you are in favor of the split session, is that right?

Mr. Gravel Absolutely.

Mr. Abraham So the only real thing that we are talking about here is the length of time that we have for the recess period, is that correct?

Mr. Gravel Well, the recess period...

Mr. Abraham The only difference between the two proposals is to how much time we have between the recess period, that's the basic difference isn't it?

Mr. Gravel No. The principle reason why I proposed an amendment to start with was in order to terminate the legislative session during the then current fiscal year. I think that's tremendously important. In other words, to terminate the session not later than June the 30th of each calendar year. That's one very important point. The other one that you bring up is a question...does relate to the question of time between the period within which bills are introduced in not more than twelve calendar days.

Neither Mr. Riecke originally, nor do I suggest, that it is necessary that the initial session last the full twelve days, but that's the maximum number of days that it could last.

Mr. Abraham I see. Well, I just wanted to...the only real difference that you say is not when the thing ends but also in one proposal you have fifteen days not to exceed fifteen days the other you have not to exceed twelve days.

Mr. Gravel That's correct.

Mr. Abraham And then by the arithmetic of the calendar under one proposal you can have a certain number of days of recess which would be nine days under the new amendment or nineteen or twenty-one days under the old amendment.

Mr. Gravel That's correct. As I calculate this the maximum number of working legislative days that would be involved subject to determination and scheduling by the legislature itself would be sixty-two. That's the maximum number of legislative days that could be involved during a span of time encompassing...as I calculate it, approximately eighty-four or eight-five days on the average.

Mr. Fulco Delegate Gravel, your amendment still provides restrictions on the legislature, isn't that right?

Mr. Gravel Well, my amendment does not in any way prohibit nor did Mr. Riecke's Amendment prohibit committees from meeting from the very first day that the legislature goes into session throughout the entire span of time that the legislature would be in session. The original amendment that Mr. Riecke had...and I track his language, does contain a sentence saying that during the interim between the adjournment and reconvening that the committees of the houses may meet and hold hearings. I haven't violated that language or changed the to any extent in this amendment. Now I understand that there are probably going to be amendments whether this amendment passes or not to delete that provision from the proposed constitution.

Mr. Fulco Mr. Gravel, wouldn't it be more advisable if we're trying to remove from the constitution a lot of details wouldn't it be more advisable to leave the details up to the legislature insofar as determining the operation of their business within the limited period of calendar days in your amendment?

Mr. Gravel That would be advisable but I don't consider anything in Mr. Riecke's original Amendment or in this one that is not substantive except possibly the second to last sentence.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Fulco Well how about...

Mr. Gravel The rest of it I think is substantive and should be in the constitution and I think it's sacramental.

Mr. Fulco Mr. Gravel, do you think we ought to put a limit on the number of days in which bills may be introduced?
Wouldn't that be restrictive?

Mr. Gravel Well, we have a limit only to the extent that in the event that they are not introduced... the bills are not introduced within the first twelve days they could be introduced thereafter by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. I think that's a very good provision and one that should be in the constitution.

Mr. Fulco Well, if we could have less restrictions in the constitution then the legislature itself could operate its business according to the situation that occurs at that particular time. In other words, I would hope... and hope you would sort of change your amendment to allow the legislature more flexibility to run the business because they are the ones that are going to have to be down here operating this legislative session. And I think if we restrict them on the introduction of bills or the time that they may recess and the time they may reconvene and the number of legislative days that they will have... I believe we are placing too much restriction on the legislature and making it less flexible which I would think that the constitution... we want to provide for in this constitution, don't you agree?

Mr. Gravel Mr. Fulco, we could provide in this constitution that the legislature shall meet whenever it sees fit to provide a provision could be inserted in the constitution. I think it would be contrary to the wishes of most of the people in this State if that kind of flexibility were permitted in the constitution. I honestly believe that the people want the legislature to meet under such circumstances that there will be an initial period for the introduction of bills and a certain time within which those bills can be considered both by the public and by the legislators before action is really effectively taken on legislation.

Mr. Fulco I have no more questions. Thank you.

Mr. LeBlay Mr. Gravel, I missed the reason that you stated for not having the sessions go beyond June the 30th.

Mr. Gravel No. I believe that the legislature should conclude its business by no later than the last day of the fiscal year in which the legislature meets because practically all of the legislation that has to do with fiscal matters generally will relate to the fiscal year that is to come. One of the objections that I had and probably the only objection that I had to Mr. Riecke's Amendment was that his amendment permitted the legislature to meet up until July 31st and my believe would be that most of the business of the legislature most of the heavy responsible business of the legislature would be conducted in a new fiscal year under the language of his original amendment. Now I felt that that was not a good provision there and principally for that reason I proposed the amendment which I subsequently withdrew.

I think it just makes good sense for the legislature to meet and conclude its business in the current fiscal year because in the main it's legislating for the ensuing fiscal year.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment would appear to have the general support of the people of this State according to the authors. And Mr. Gravel, I'll try to address myself to your remarks as to the conflict between a split session and a regular session which would mean a continuous session. Because it has always been my contention that the problem with the legislature was not the fact that we had sixty day regular sessions every second year but the problem presented itself that we met in a thirty day restricted session every second year... or the odd numbered year. And we were limited to what we could do in that restricted session. So, now all of a sudden that restricted session is not the problem any more, it's the regular session that's stronger. And you look and see... and I know the authors of this have every good intention that the people back home on a split session to look at legislation. Well, let me say this, I think if you adopt the split session which we already have and we're weakening a little more with this amendment we're weakening the legislature, we're weakening one branch of government that is already too weak, the legislative branch. I think we traditionally have three branches of government in this State, the Judicial, the Legislative and the Executive. And certainly, I think we have known for years how strong the Executive is. And I think what this split session does... it not only makes the Executive just a little stronger the legislature is getting a little stronger.

Because if you look at this twelve days I don't see one lobbyist that is against it and I am even maybe convinced the AFL-CIO might be for this too. It gives those people twelve days, not the people back home because why have they elected a legislator or a Representative to come up here? I think legislators basically are going to represent his or her people. And if they don't represent them they won't be back. But I think if you do this you are giving the executive branch of government an edge over the legislature and I would submit to you Mr. Gravel's interest up here is simply that. Because he now represents the administration and I'm not talking about the present one, I'm talking about the administration. If you were to take and give the legislative branch more strength I think you should not adopt this amendment. I think it's a bad amendment. I think when you take the legislative branch of government and tell them they are going to meet up here for twelve days and put all their bills on the line and then give everybody a check home and the people back home will remember they are represented by the legislator, they are not represented by the lobbyists, or they are not represented by the Executive Department. But don't ever believe that the Executive Department doesn't play a big part in legislation, they play a very vital part in legislation... a part so much that I think a great majority of our legislative bills are passed... are passed depending upon what the Executive wants or doesn't want. And what you are doing you are weakening the legislature by allowing them to say you have twelve days only to introduce your bills and then you go home and you allow everyone who want to see what you have done and the people to check home and you, are not going to get involved until they become aware of the fact that something affects them. And how do they become aware of this fact? They become aware of it by several instances. No. 1 by special interest groups such as school teachers, such as elected officials or etc., police jurors when it affects them, property tax and by their legislators. We've hit them today, that I think this bill is actually passed out of committee and is put on the floor for debate and if the news media carried it to those people they become quite excited when the bill affects them. It [] taxes and mainly it's things that would affect their pocketbook. Mainly it's property taxes or increased taxation. So I'd like to say to you here today, that I think this whole concept of split session is a bad concept. It's a bad concept if you sincerely want to strengthen the legislature procedure. It's a bad concept if you sincerely want to make your legislature stronger because you're not making it stronger and in return you are not making the people back home stronger.

I believe if we attack the problem from the concept that the problem is in a thirty day limited session. The problem is in a thirty day session where you can only take fiscal matters. And the problem is putting in a fiscal session hundreds and hundreds of bills that are non-fiscal and that is your problem. Your problem isn't in the regular sixty day session, it never has been and it never will be. And I'm not saying down the line another ten years or twenty years from now we might not give more bills than we can handle but right now we can handle them and in the past we have been able to handle them. I think if you check with the Clerk with the Speaker, or the President of the Senate who will find that bills have been introduced and have been handled quite easily in a sixty day session. And that the House or the Senate has worked an average of fifty-two days which gives them eight days and mainly on Sundays they can take off. Personally, I like Senator Rayburn's Amendment but I like better the straight sixty day session that will have a clean and concise constitution. The Legislature shall have annual sixty day sessions within that period to work their legislative procedure and process. I just can't see how this sixty day concept, the split session concept has developed. I can understand some of the people who are so adamantly for it. Mr. Gravel certainly is the chief lobbyist for the administration. He handles all the legislation, makes sure what passes, what's good or what's bad should pass or should not pass. And I can understand him being on this amendment. I can understand a lot of the lobbyists being for this amendment because it gives them twelve days to see every piece of legislation that the legislature has and it gives them an additional ten or ten or fifteen or five days to work it over and get their people to go for it. You know the people I heard from this session, not the rank and file citizen who is not in contact with the legislature, but a bill that affected the liquor industry. A bill that put a price fix on liquor. I heard from everyone of my citizens who worked for those liquor people. I heard from the rank and file citizen and that's what this is. And that's all you are going to hear from as a legislator. You'll hear from the teachers and they have a right to be heard and you'll hear from every time you affect the truck lobbyist when we took the double bottom truck and wanted to put them on the highway. The truck lobbyist had every time in the House called me in. Not the citizen who was going to get affected by it and I think it was a bad piece of legislation to put double-bottom trucks on this highway. I thought it was a bad piece of legislation to allow one or two or several individuals to stop free enterprise in the liquor industry. But I heard from the people who were being affected by that industry and they said your Senator is up there voting against you, your job. I was voting for free enterprise. And that's who you hear from ladies and gentlemen. You don't hear from that little person who don't get to, maybe he reads it in the paper if you get the newspaper or you'll hear it from the radio or on the television or you'll hear it from the press. And you hear from are special interest people. And you give up twelve days and you say we can't introduce anything after twelve days and that's what we are going to hear from during that period. We're going to hear from those people who are affected. Now maybe that's the way it should be. Maybe that's the way it should be. Maybe the lobbyists should run this state. Maybe the special interests should run this state but I tell you one thing, I think we've got a good procedure with the elected officials going and year legislative process and your democratic process. I believe you had better look at a little harder than what you are doing, I think it's worth the while. I think they worked well and I think the legislator who have done a good job have some back fire and fire again. Legislators like Senator Rayburn and a lot of people here who took their time out to run for this convention. To run for it. And they are here representing those people.

I hope I don't put aspersions on the people who submitted this. I think they are acting in good faith I think they believe that the people should have some say. But I tell you my ten years experience tell me it isn't going to help the people back home and I try to elaborate on who I think it would help. And I am quite convinced and quite positive if I stand before you that that's who it would help. If you want to strengthen the legislative process. If you want to strengthen your legislature put a basically sixty day session and let them do their business. They will be in contact with their people. They know what the people want, that's what they are elected for. That's what they're up here for. And if you pass single member districts which I think is good because it gives each legislator a certain district to be responsible to. And I think basically that's the premise under which we're operating. And I would seriously hope you consider defeating this amendment and then passing a straight sixty day session bill. I think the problem lies in a restricted thirty day session bill and not in the unrestricted sixty day session bill.

And I never have heard, never have I heard one person tell me... I'll tell you what I've heard. Now you want to hear what I've heard. I voted against sixty day sessions because I didn't think that we needed them at the time. And the people thought that too, because they voted against them. You know we put a sixty day session to the people and they defeated them. You are putting practically a sixty day session to the people. I don't think they are going to like it. I really don't think they are going to appreciate it.

I hope you defeat this amendment. I think the concept of a split session is a bad, bad amendment. I think just a continuous session is better than a split session. Because it doesn't give certain elements of our society an advantage over the people. And let me say the part I've heard. If you disagree with that you disagree with the premise that we're up here representing our people and you disagree with the premise that you're up here representing the people that sent you here. I think that if we defeat it and we come back with a straight sixty day session I think you are streamlining the constitution. And on what the people would want to you pure if you want to keep the constitution pure and keep it simple. I think if you put in there a provision that the legislature shall meet in annual sixty day sessions and sixty days only I think you're keeping a pure and simple constitution. And I think you are keeping it in the line and the state we had when the people would want and not the special interest. Not other governmental agencies and not the lobbyists.

So I would appeal to you to defeat this amendment and to come back and to vote for a regular sixty day session.

Questions

Mr. Guarisco: Mr. Nunez, I think I understand now that you are definitely against the concept of a split session of the legislature, is that correct?

Mr. Nunez: I believe so, yes sir.

Mr. Guarisco: May I ask if you were a member of the Legislature that created Act 10. That created this convention?

Were you a member of the legislature at that time?

Mr. Nunez: Yes, I was.

Mr. Guarisco: Did you vote to have this constitutional convention?

Mr. Nunez: Yes, I did.

Mr. Guarisco: Would you deny that the constitutional convention recognizes the concept of split sessions by holding hearings and hearing but the people and then coming back to vote on these proposals at this time? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Nunez: I recognize that the convention had several hearings throughout the state. I don't know what the participation was in those hearings and I would assume that they are going to be of benefit and value to this convention. Yes.

And I also recognize the fact that the convention

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

meets once every fifty years and the legislature meets every year. And I am trying to strengthen the legislative process by giving them a session of sixty days. Let me tell you, the people when they become affected by legislation will come before committees. You're not abolishing the committee procedure and you're not abolishing the legislative process by which the public is invited to appear before committees. I don't think we're doing that at all. I think what you're doing when you say twelve days to introduce bills and go back home, you're not affecting the people no advantage at all. If you assume that, I think your assumption would be wrong.

Mr. Guarisco Do you agree with Delegate Triche's ... when he said that you probably in any session you probably considered more bills than we'll probably consider in the convention at any one time?

Mr. Nunez I don't particularly agree with that because Delegate Triche and ... every legislator knows that when you say you got two thousand bills you got a thousand introduced in the House and a thousand introduced in the Senate of exactly the same matter and then you have a limitation over one hundred percent limitation but then somebody picks it up and wants their name in the paper as the lead author and they introduce the same bill so you might have four and five bills of the same nature and the same content in the Senate and the House and then the Senate will pass it and a House member decides he wants to pass it and he'll pass it and then they fight over who's going to be the pride of having the authorship of that bill. And that's why you've got two and three thousand bills. Not because there is no rash of legislation needed to be passed by this State. Now, if they want to tell you the truth, that's the fact.

Mr. Guarisco Do you think that the legislature should do any less than the convention in passing legislation that may affect the people as much as this convention.

Mr. Nunez Well, I think that you corollary between the legislature and the convention is just not quite what I would consider adopting a constitution and passing annual legislation that you can repeal at the next session on special sessions. I can't buy that concept at all. No, sir.

Mr. Roy Didn't you and I go down in flames arguing the same stuff you've argued about denying the flexibility of the legislature when Mr. Riecke beat us initially on this same matter? Isn't that a fact?

Mr. Nunez I don't know who you call us. I see your name on this proposal and this is almost the same proposal as Mr. Riecke first introduced and defeated the proposal that Senator Rayburn had. Yes, sir.

Mr. Roy Didn't you and I argue for Rayburn's Amendment and against Riecke's initial Amendment. And didn't we get beat for the same arguments you presently laughed into for ten or fifteen minutes?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Roy, this is the first time I've been up here on this or any amendment on the legislature but I think legislators ought to take some initiative because they are the ones who are doing the job in the legislature and I think I would be neglecting my duty if I didn't express my opinion. I haven't been up here before on this proposal or Senator Rayburn's proposal. No, sir.

Mr. Roy I agree

Mr. Nunez You agree with me.

Mr. Roy No, I agree with what you just said, that you ought to take us with what you still agree with.

Now let me ask you one last question. Don't you think that irrespective of the political philosophy that we have whether we should mandate the legislature into special sessions or not, which is what we are essentially doing now? Don't you really believe that if we have to live with either this amendment to Riecke's bill or the original one, that this is a better drafted bill.

Mr. Nunez Well I don't think either of them are better... better in comparatively speaking... I think that the convention just like they reconsidered Senator Rayburn's proposal and passed Senator Riecke's proposal if they hear fair arguments and good arguments from people who are actually doing the work would possibly reconsider Mr. Riecke's proposal here. Beat this one and pass one that I think the legislature can live with for the next fifty or hundred years. I don't think they can live with this one and I think if we pass it or keep the one Mr. Riecke now has that you, this convention, the people of this State will live to regret it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Ladies and gentlemen, delegates all. I am going to keep this very brief. I think we have had too much rhetoric, too much discussion as some people might refer to in some instances and I don't say that, "not all" regarding the issue but it occurs very simple to me that there are only one or two people who actually admit that they are against the split session. I submit to you that the important question here is, do you consider it important enough to you and the people you represent to have it put into the constitution that is all we say. We have sat here, we've talked about long sessions, more pay, more time and all we ask you is to put into the constitution a statement that... we the people back home have a chance to express our view to our legislators, do we consider it of significant importance enough to put it into this constitution. That is the question and either you vote yes or no for that's the way we arrive. All of these other things are simply picking at something which the people themselves do not agree with. And they have a right to do it. But if I would be in order, Mr. Chairman, something which I hope I will probably never do again, I would like to have the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question.
Lost 10-9. 7:40.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, I rise to oppose the Gravel or the Riecke substitute new amendment and I hope not to unnecessarily take up your time because I like the old Riecke Amendment that we labored so hard on last Saturday morning. If we continuously bring up matters that have been resolved by the convention we'll be here quite a long time. I heard these arguments on last week. I came to Baton Rouge to speak to the Legislative Committee which by the way, in six months they're studying these matters and when they were going to have a sixty day session within a one hundred twenty day period I thought that was great. In the Gravel or the new Riecke Proposal as the way I suppose it ought to be the accident of the calendar will give you less than fifty legislative days from the fourth Monday in May until the end of June. Mr. Gravel laid great store by his arguments that the legislature ought not to run over the end of the fiscal year. And I for searching my mind can see no real good, valid reason why that makes a whole whale of a lot of difference. The point I would like to make and then take my seat is that I hope that there are a number of delegates in the room who have listened to the debate on Friday on the Rayburn Amendment, on Saturday on the first Riecke Amendment and here into the middle of the afternoon on the second Riecke Amendment will all if a sudden realize that maybe we are being stalled in place by repetitive amendments on the same subject matter. If this is true then delegates in the room who have listened to I have heard of bills being talked to death, I've never really seen it happen until now. I urge you to defeat the second Riecke Amendment.

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

and leave the original Riecke Amendment in line where it is, so that the legislature can meet one in fiscal session, not meet on weekends as the original Riecke language permitted. The new Riecke language will in some years cause the legislature to stay in session on five weekends if the calendar happens to fall with a Monday being on the seventh day of the month or the sixth and it will happen that way.

We urge that the legislatures be offered time off for weekend visits home. I urge you to defeat the new Riecke Amendment and leave the old Riecke Amendment exactly as we adopted it on Saturday morning.

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Fellow delegates, I speak in favor of the proposed amendment because I think it is a compromise not on principle but on details which are susceptible of compromise. I was for the Rayburn Proposal because to me it established that this convention wanted to get rid of the abomination of the fiscal session and provide for annual sessions of the legislature. I was for the original Riecke Amendment because it was the principle of the proposal which I think is good. I am for this amendment because I think it is a further crystallization of the idea and I do not interpret it as Mr. Staggs apparently did just a minute ago as a delaying tactic. There have been some disadvantages raised. The question of interim committee payments. Payments to committee members has been raised. It is my understanding that we are going to consider later on under this legislative article, annual legislative salaries. Which, if we adopt that concept of course, will obviate any concern in this area at all. We have already adopted language which made the legislature a continuing body and therefore authorized to have standing committees which will obviate the necessity of the future interim committee and per diem payments for members thereof. I do not deem this to be a problem.

The advantages of the split session idea as submitted under this Riecke Amendment are, as I see it. It slows the legislative process down more than anything else. To give time for proper attention to the seriousness of the changes. I am sure you know very often it is more important what you don't submit in the way of a bill than what you do submit. Because when you submit a bill by definition you are changing the law. And one of the great advantages of a system of law at all as opposed to an autocracy where there is no law, is you allow people some measure of predictability for their conduct. They know what the criminal law is. So they know that if they do X that Y will result. In the Soviet Union you don't know what is going to result. You stick your hand in a buzz saw you may get a bouquet of flowers one time the next time you get your arm cut off. And it is important therefore, to the average citizen, that the street electric if he never gets a bill that a lot of time be given before a proposed change of the law gets into the legislative process. And I don't think this has been emphasized enough in the course of our debate until now. Insofar as an objection that has been raised earlier about the introduction of twenty-eight hundred bills in twelve days, I would hope that we would get a bill introduced under the bills in the twelve days because I personally think that that's too many. But if we do, I submit to you that at least in the remaining fifty days the legislators will have a better chance to do their voting because they will have had a period of time in which to consider at least to read over the substance of these bills that are introduced under the original twelve days or whatever short of period the legislature decides is appropriate.

Now there has been a lot of stress placed on the fact that the people don't go to meetings. That apparently the people don't care. I submit to you that that is wrong. I am not a member of the legislature but I have been for some years a member of an elected body. A parish school board during a very turbulent time and I can tell you from experience that the people do care when there are important things going on and they know about, believe me they let you know. I have seen times when I got as many as twenty-five and thirty phone calls a night from constituents who cared a great deal about what was going on in their public school system. The reason why legislators have not received perhaps a commensurate amount of contact from their constituents is simply because their constituents haven't known what was going on and that is the idea of the split session, that they would know what is going on. Because most of the constituents are what you are too busy working and earning a living to go to meetings but they do read the newspaper, they do watch television and if all of the bills have got to be in on those first twelve days at least by subject matter they will be able to sit down and read the subject matter titled in the newspaper. If they see something that interests them they've got a period of time or be it nine, ten or however many days to pick up the telephone and call their legislator and inquire about it and express their opinion.

I think the split session concept is a good I think it's one the people want. Certainly the people in my district want. My legislator from my district who is a man of great ability and honor for whom I have the highest respect talked to me about this over the weekend, he is for it, he thinks it is a good idea. I noticed on my television set that Senator Moulton from Lafayette who has been in the Senate I believe for three or four terms now at least three that I know of endorsed the concept of the split session. Now certainly there are a lot of legislators here who disagree with him but it was interesting to me that there are legislators who are delegates to this convention that voted in favor of the original Riecke Amendment.

I would conclude by pointing out to you that it seems to me that the proponents of the original Rayburn Amendment have perhaps made overly much about the differences between it and the amendment that is presently before you. Let me suggest to you, the important thing that we are considering here is the length of the legislative session in calendar days and in legislative days. Under the original Rayburn Amendment there would be ten calendar days. Under the amendment that is presently proposed as a compromise you would have a maximum possible of ninety calendar days and that is if Monday fell on the first day of April as I read it. And you would have a minimum of eighty-three calendar days if the Monday happen to fall on the seventh day of April. So what we're talking about is the potential difference of ten days or as low as three days from the original Rayburn Amendment. Not in my view a justifiable reason for defeating the concept of a split session. All right, how about working days, which is the other important thing. The original Rayburn Amendment proposed sixty legislative days. This amendment would propose sixty-two legislative days. I would like to see a number in which there could be a vote on legislation. Twelve of which would be restricted to introduction of bills. I do not see where the difference in two legislative days again is worth this, defeating a good concept.

Now finally the third important consideration would be the time for introduction of the bill under the Rayburn Amendment the time for introduction of bills was nineteen calendar days. After that you would have to have a two-thirds vote of the legislature. Under the Riecke Amendment that is being proposed right now on the floor, it's twelve calendar days. After that you would require a two-thirds vote for introduction of a bill. That is the difference of seven days. That is the significant difference in the two proposals. It provides for seven less days coupled from nineteen to twelve in which bills can be introduced. I'm for that for the reason I have already stated. I think we've probably got too many bills now and I think if you're going to propose a change in the civil or criminal law of this State you should have it thought out carefully enough that you're ready to do the first day you get here. The only other significant difference is that interim period of time and that is good for the people of this State. I urge you to support the amendment on the floor at the present time.

Questions

Mr. Alexander Mr. Burson, we've heard some discussion to the effect that there has been two resolutions by Mr. Riecke but I find three different resolutions. Isn't it a fact that the very first, now permit me to ask all of my questions and then I'll be through and you may answer. Number one: Isn't it a fact that under the present resolution the waiting period would have been thirty days? Now, isn't it also a fact that the hue and cry from some of the delegates was that what will we be doing for thirty days? Isn't it also a fact that in the second resolution that thirty was reduced to fifteen days and now under the provision of this resolution that period has been reduced to ten days? Now I submit to you, Mr. Burson, isn't it a fact that if the legislature and if this provision were in effect in 1973, that is this year, the legislature would have met on the second of April which would have been the first Monday? And isn't it a fact that for ten days bills could have been introduced? But isn't it also a fact that the legislature could say after the first day, that we are not going to accept any more bills but we're going to begin hearings or simultaneously we will conduct hearings? Isn't that a fact? There is nothing to prevent them from doing that. Is that not a fact Mr. Burson?

Mr. Burson Yes Sir, it certainly is as far as I understand the language of the amendment.

Mr. Alexander Finally, isn't it a fact that no matter what the legislature does it could meet no longer, that is the whole legislative process could spread over no longer than ninety days?

Mr. Burson Yes Sir, as I understand it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, at this point I really feel like apologizing, for even talking because there has been so much rhetoric on this side of the year, but in the interest of adding my two cents, I would like to add my two cents and I would just initially like to say in answer to Mac Abraham that possibly some of us do speak out of both sides of our mouth. Mac, as you may or may not know, I'm very very much for the legislature making this determination to subject matter to what we're discussing right now, deciding how many days we're going to meet, whether we're going to have a split session, how long it would take to introduce bills, but that measure was defeated and I realize you were one of the proponents of this measure. This mass of detail really doesn't belong in the constitution to start with. This is not the place for this type of detail in our constitution to set forever or for five years, but how measures in the legislature are going to be handled, but the fact remains we have to make a decision on whether we want this amendment or whether we want the other amendment which is in existence at this time and that's all I'm addressing my remarks to. One point was brought up by Mr. Shannon that he was hesitant to this type of measure there. In session, this particularly to Mr. Shannon about the legislators' compensation. We set our own compensation right now. I don't think that's a problem in either this measure or the measure which is in existence at this time. Let the legislature decide what compensation it's going to have and how it's going to pay its legislators whether there are split sessions, but of session. Some people have said this is what the people want. You don't know what thirty three thousand people in your area really want. You do know this, that they want honest, intelligent, efficient government and that's all we can offer to them and we have to offer to them the best possible plan for processing legislation. I would highly recommend that you go with the Riecke amendment. There are a lot of reasons that we can argue for or against and this has not been brought out, and let's discuss more emotional points. I know we're trying to advance some points that maybe have some common sense. But think about a few emotional points. First of all, some of the accountants would be against the amendment because it interferes with the tax season. Some of the people that have big families and like to take family vacations would like to end the legislative sessions on June 30th so if you are going to advance reasons you may as well advance emotional reasons which sometimes may be as logical as some of the other legal reasons we have had. There has been some concern about the interim time between the time of the introduction of bills and when you go back into session. But let's face it. It sounds like good government. It sounds like good government. I'll say that again and I would prefer for the legislature to make this determination but if you are going to stick it in the constitution and if you're going to embed nine days or fifteen days into the constitution I just have a feeling that some of the comments made by Mr. Nunez and others that this is really going to be a lobbyist field day and that's all that interim period may be. We're not sure and that's my only reason for saying we should not put it in the constitution but as I see it that's not the only thing it could be doing for lobbyists. The people will not necessarily benefit by this interim period of time that we're talking about. But all I'm going to suggest to you now is, take off the old and put on the new. Put on the new Riecke amendment. It's a little bit better than the old Riecke amendment is right now. I highly urge you to adopt this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Newton First of all, I voted for the Rayburn amendment. I thought it was good, it allowed us some flexibility. I proposed one of my own which would have allowed the legislature to do what I wanted to do and some of you may wonder what I'm doing on this amendment. Well, two things. It seemed to me that there was a consensus in the convention that there should be a split session. Now, if we're going to have split sessions, we've got a good Riecke amendment and a bad Riecke amendment. The first one is what we had in the legislature and I voted out but Mr. Casey and Mr. Gravel think this new amendment is a good one. It keeps us from going, the legislature from going into a new fiscal year and I think this is very important. Also, there is no reason in here why the committees can't meet from the very first day the legislature goes in session so I don't think that's a valid argument. It's just a question of it being a good amendment or bad amendment. I think the present amendment is good and I urge its approval.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I did not feel I could sit idly by without saying a few words about what's happened to this august body in the last few days. You would think that Saturday we had a pretty little Persian cat. Today, it's changed considerably. Let me briefly tell you all this amendment, the only change it makes. It reduces from fifteen days to twelve days and it does change the time and date the legislature shall convene. That's all it does. Well if it's been dressed up, it didn't take much to dress it. But you know how it got dressed up. It got mixed up in the political arena. A little getting together done. Three days isn't going to help or hurt anyone too much is it. That's all it does, reduce from fifteen to twelve. As far as when the legislature can do it by executive order, you can do it by resolution or many other ways. It's not in the constitution, not to my knowledge. It can be changed to fit the work load or at the pleasure of the legislature. Now I just hate to see the day come in this State when you run for office, you get elected to that office, and then you've been criticized in the past for clamoring the ballots for constitutional amendments and here we start again. I want to say I'm for split sessions. I would like to try them. My amendment provides that they can be tried if the legislature wanted to try them. It didn't give the legislature a mandate because those members of the legislature will run for that office. I believe if the people had demanded a split session they would have given you a split session but in any event, it didn't work. I don't think we should go back to the people with the proposition to change it. I don't know whether it will work or not. I know one thing, if you're coming over here for twelve days and hear bills and have your good people there before the committee meetings, I hope it comes out better than it would have if it had been before some of these other people because by the time we get through with it, and we're not through with it yet, it would be a complete new different shetland pony. Regardless of what has been said in committee, look what we're doing ourselves in the legislature will be people just like us. We're having our committee meetings, we're hearing proposals, but when we go to voting on them it might be a complete different proposal. Now let me say this. I've seen the time when I got a little flexible, when my people are looking at me and they call a vote on the question. I used to be in the legislature when we could vote in executive session. We kind of camouflaged the issue, pledged when you got in executive session to tell how you would. Keep your people wondering. We abolished that. We tried to streamline ourselves to the fact that our people would know and now even though we might meet in executive session in the legislature we've got to vote in open session. Now if you're holding a committee hearing, and your people, which we all seem to be so interested in, those poor people back home, I don't know how many of them have appeared before your committees. I can count them on my hand other than special interest, that has appeared before my committee, and I think a committee member will verify that. But you're going to say to them that they can come over here, they can hear you but you haven't got to vote until they go home. And if they get out of your way, they could have a little hearing on some people's vote. If you're looking at some of your good supporters and your voter is sitting there before you vote you might vote a little different than if you've had a lapse of two weeks to go home and forget about them. And that's what you're doing when you're saying have committee meetings and you can't vote until the last day of action. That's giving you a little cool off period. Giving somebody a little period to work on you, try to get you to change your mind if you ask the wrong question or made the wrong statement in that committee meeting. And I don't feel it, maybe you do. I'm going to say vote your conscience, I'm going to vote mine but I don't feel like it is fair to the legislature to say to them you've got to come here twelve days, ten days or six days and introduce bills but you can take no action on them, you can take no votes on them. You know what's going to happen. Then let's wait and see. If that does come to be you're going to see legislators come over here the first day or maybe wait until the last day to introduce their bills and you won't see them during that twelve day period. What business will they have here? They can't vote on nothing. They don't know if the bill they hear or look at in that committee is going to be the bill when it gets on the floor or not. Just like you don't know what we're finally going to wind up here today. This thing has changed, changed and rechanged since we started and probably might change someone. I don't know. It's pretty well lobbied. There's been a great call for three days. A great revival, a great get together for three days. The only difference, they did reduce it down to about a ninety day session. I had one eighty days about a year ago, it was pretty long. I did that just for weeks. Now I'm staying in the legislature and this passed, I've got ninety days that I can't plan anything else because we might decide to hold committee meetings or we might decide to do something else so I just say to you that I think we're getting a little long strings to write in the constitution what a public official has got to do if he gets elected and runs for that office. I feel like it would be saying to you Mr. Champagne that you're going to open up a big depart ment store. You've got to display it and look at it for fifteen days before you could do any business. Just got to keep it there, put it on display, let everybody come see it, talk about it and then make suggestions of what they wanted to change and go home and take a two or three weeks rest before they could come back and change anything. Maybe that's what you want to do. I don't believe you really do. I know if you had served in the legislature you could see some of the reasons it would not work and I'm a strong believer that a public office is a public trust and you can say all you want about let the people be heard. Let the people speak, but if you're a good public official you're going to let them speak to you or you're going to speak to them. That's the way I conduct my business. If a bill is introduced that I know is going to hurt a segment of the people I represent I get on the telephone and I tell them about it. I don't necessarily agree with them all the time but I try to keep them advised of what is going on and that's what any good public official should do. But I do think that if you're going to the time and trouble of having committee hearings in a short given period of sixty days or sixty two at the most that you should be allowed to take some action. Maybe you disagree with me. It's all right to have twelve days to introduce the bills, and it's all right to have a little lay-over there, but still and all I think, in my opinion, that would be twelve days that would not be fully utilized like I think it should be. It's going to cost around eighty thousand dollars just to get the bill introduced, judge the bills introduced, if everybody stays the twelve days. And they are going to get paid whether they stay or not. That has a little bearing on it.

So this thing is far more far-reaching than I think most of you have realized. That is the sentiment within the legislature. You could either introduce your bills the first day or the twelfth day. And if you waited until the last day to introduce them, you certainly couldn't have a committee hearing on them. They'll have to be assigned to a committee and then if that committee cannot vote or cannot take action, you are going to have trouble getting a quorum, in my opinion.

I've seen the time in the legislature when it adjourned both Houses, and you've run out of time and you'd call a committee meeting on a Saturday, wouldn't have a quorum. People have been away from home for five days, they are wanting to get back. They had a few little things they had to tend to.

But my basic opposition is to this particular amendment, I don't want to hamstring the legislature. If the people of this state want split sessions, I think you will see split sessions if you give them the opportunity. If you don't see it, they are certainly not representing their people and I ask you to reject the amendment.

[Previous Question Withdrawn.]

Closing

Mr. Riecke Ladies and gentlemen, we worked Friday on this concept of a split session and we were so tied up with technicalities that I asked that my amendment be withdrawn so that I could try to overcome some of the obvious objections.

We worked hours and hours and hours Friday, and the delegates here were so conscientious that you passed up your lunch time. You didn't even stop for lunch in order to listen to the arguments in favor and against. And after spending all this time and listening to all the arguments, many of which you have heard again today against the split session, you voted for a split session and for my amendment.

Then another amendment was submitted to amend my amendment. And anybody that says that there has been conniving or pressure or anything like that on me to go along with this revised thing is not telling the truth. It amazes me. It really amazes me to hear people say up here at the microphone that this is something that the special interest, private interest want

Don't you know that the lobbyist, ladies and gentlemen, whether you have one day or five days to consider legislation, don't you know that they know what that legislation is? And the very purpose of this split session is to give the people back home a chance to know what bills are introduced, the press has a chance to analyze it and let the people know what they are all about. The lobbyists already know. Say that if the Senator said that if the lobbyist, if the people want to know what it's all about and if their interest is affected, that they come up to the hearings and tell the legislator.

Well how many people do you know and I know in your district and my district, have the time to come to Baton Rouge and testify before a committee? The lobbyists do. And the people back home want to know what is going on. Now, if this delay, this short delay in introducing bills and in passing them is bad, then I submit to you that our Executive Committee, when we adjourned in January to July 5, that our Executive Committee had the time and effort in going to the people and telling them what was being proposed and asking for input, that's a new word I like. We had... delegates had neighborhood meetings to ask the people what they thought about some of the things that were being proposed in committee. We had committee hearings for months. Somebody said that legislator couldn't remember weeks after somebody told him that. Well, don't you remember what your committee discussions were and we had the people come before us in our committees. Did you forget that? I don't believe you did.

Both the Riecke amendments are good. I am sorry that some people who were for the first one are against the second one, but the prime consideration of these amendments are a split session to give the people home a chance to find out what bills are going to be introduced and to give the press and the television and the radio an opportunity to analyze them and tell the people what it is all about.

I hope that you will vote for this amendment, ladies and gentlemen. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Alario Mr. Riecke, you made a real good argument for split sessions. Now supposing I vote against this proposal, you have now. Won't I still have a split session under your first proposal?

Mr. Riecke Yes.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter These are amendments proposed by Mr. Nunez.

Committee Proposal No. 3

Amendment No. 1 on page 1, delete lines 21 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following quote:

Section 2. A. The legislature shall meet annually in regular session for sixty days. The legislature shall convene at twelve o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced or received by either House of the legislature after midnight of the ninth day of the calendar day of the session except by a favorable record vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each House.

Amendment No. 2, page 2, delete lines 1 through 9 both inclusive in their entirety.

Amendment No. 3 needs to be added to the copy which would delete the previous Riecke amendments.

Explanation

Mr. Nunez Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, what this amendment does would give the legislature... all the legislature to meet... shall meet in annual sixty day sessions... no sixty out of seventy, no thirty day fiscal sessions. Just a plain, regular sixty day session annually like we now meet in the regular session in the even numbered years.

It would also allow us to consider any matter that comes before the legislature like you now can consider in the regular even numbered year session. I think it's a good amendment. I think procedure wise it is what the legislature can operate under, and I believe we would be strengthening the legislative process from a standpoint of allowing the legislature to consider any matter, any matter that it wants to bring before it during this period. It would not be limited to the fiscal matters, or would not be limited to the non-taxing matters or anything of that sort. It would be just the... let me say this, I think it would also, for the people who want to make a pure and simple constitution, it would be in line with what you now have that would make just a simple, sixty day annual session out of the... what you now have.

I don't know what more could be said about this. I think everything that could be said has been said. I don't want to go into the procedures that you have adopted amendments under the split session. I think enough has been said about that. I think some things maybe that haven't been said that as far as quorum to the legislature on committees, it's sometimes difficult to get quorums if the allow twelve or fifteen days for introduction of bills only, and a person has no introduction of bills, I see no reason why he would stay up here.

And if you don't have a quorum, I'd think you are not going to be able to introduce your bills and that's what you have now, that's what you now have. So what I have done is to put a split session in to put a simple phrase into the present... into the new constitution that the legislature should have annual, sixty day sessions.

Questions

Mr. Champagne I think I read this right. What you are saying is, you are not saying no more than sixty days, you actually say sixty days. Is that right?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Champagne, that is what the present constitution says under the sixty day session and the reason for doing this is the fact that the thirty day session... we get down to the simple matter of the problem. And the problem has not been the sixty day session. The sixty day session has worked out quite well and the legislature has worked practically sixty days and the records will reflect the workings of the legislature in this time either the House or Senate has been in for a total of practically fifty-two to sixty days.

Now, in keeping with the idea to keep it simple

... I'll answer any questions...

Mr. Roemer Sammy, you don't differentiate here between Sunday and any other day, do you?

Mr. Nunez No... sixty days is sixty consecutive days.

Mr. Roemer So the Sundays count against you.

Mr. Nunez Yes, sir, exactly right. And there are many times that the legislature works on Sunday. I have never had a Fourth of July off since I have been up here.

Mr. Champagne I am reading in this book they provided for me and it says... that's the question. The question I have says, "and shall be limited to sixty days"

Now, as I understand it, that doesn't say sixty days

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

Mr. Nunez Mr. Champagne, I don't have it in front of me, but it was supposed to be drafted up exactly like it was. "The legislature shall meet in annual sixty day sessions."

Mr. Champagne Well, that was my question. The way you drafted it is not the way it is. It says it's limited to sixty days. It doesn't say you shall meet for sixty days. That was why I...

Mr. Nunez Well, I think maybe we should put "shall meet for sixty days" if it doesn't now because we have been meeting...the sixty day sessions have proved to be the effective sessions for the legislature. They are proven to be workable sessions and they are proven that the legislature can do their business within a sixty day period.

And if you want to say it isn't there, now, I haven't checked the exact wording of it, but my intent was to make it exactly the same way as it is now and to make it an annual sixty day session.

Now the sixty day session is the session that does the job now. The thirty day session does not. If you want to ramble around and put sixty out of seventy, or sixty out of eighty, I think that's where we have been before.

Mr. Jenkins A couple of questions, Senator Nunez. First of all, under some legislation passed during the last session of the legislature, isn't it true that the committees of the legislature will be able to meet year round and won't be limited as in prior years to just a sixty or thirty day session?

Mr. Nunez That's my understanding of the last session we allowed these...made all committees, standing committees be allowed to meet year round during the entire year. Right.

Mr. Jenkins Well, in that connection then, doesn't the need for the split session somewhat be lessened because of that procedure? In other words, because of the procedure that we now have in the legislature with regard to year round committee meetings, there is not as much of a need to have a split session of the legislature. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Nunez It's by that and many other reasons I don't think there is a need for a split session of the legislature.

Mr. Jenkins One other question that I have, you mention that the sixty day sessions in even numbered years have worked well. Did you hear any complaints last year that the legislative session was not long enough, the sixty day session was not long enough, that we couldn't handle our business?

Mr. Nunez Representative Jenkins, I have never heard a complaint, and I know for a fact that the regular, even numbered year sixty day sessions have always excessive time...have always been enough time, and I found them always to have worked well. On the committee meetings, they have enough time to do their business, and even with the so-called load of bills that we have had, it's been enough time. Yes, I think the sixty days have been ample time for the legislature to perform their business up here in Baton Rouge.

Mr. Jenkins So then if we had annual sixty day sessions, but limited to sixty days, shouldn't that be more than enough time to handle all of the business?

Mr. Nunez I would agree with you. Yes, sir.

Mr. Jenkins With regard to the terminology about being limited to sixty days, isn't it implicit in this proposal that we are not going to probably meet every day during a sixty-day session? But we are going to meet just certain days during that session just as always in the past?

Mr. Nunez You are right.

Mr. Duval Delegate Nunez, as I understood some of your earlier remarks, you said that the split session concept never gave the lobbyists a chance to talk and you never really heard from the people anyhow. Don't you think the reason you never heard from the people is that there was never an interim period for them to find out what the heck was going on?

Mr. Nunez No, Mr. Duval, if I said I never heard from the people...I certainly had a chance to talk and I think any legislator worth his salt up here wants to stay up here he better do what the people want and I think the majority of them do. I didn't say that the reason why the split session...there were many reasons why a split session, in my opinion, won't work and we've elaborated on them and I'll go into it again, if you want me to.

Mrs. Warren Senator Nunez, would you say that a person doesn't know doesn't hurt him?

Mr. Nunez That what a person doesn't know doesn't hurt him? Well, that's an old saying but I don't particularly agree with it. I like to know what hurts me, and I think the majority of the people do also.

Mrs. Warren Well, in light of that I'm wondering, are you against the Riecke amendment because it has a split session to allow people to really know what's going on so that they can find out and they won't be hurt so bad if they can say something about it.

Mr. Nunez Mrs. Warren, if I believed and if I felt that the split session that Mr. Riecke proposed would allow the average citizen of this state to know what is going on, I assure you that I would be up here speaking for it.

Mrs. Warren Mr. Nunez, I really don't see how you could say that people don't want to know because you're coming from one district and you're not thinking about people coming from other districts that would like to know...would just like to have a chance to know what is going on.

Mr. Nunez Would you repeat that? I come from a district that the people don't want to know, is that.

Mrs. Warren I said that you come from one particular district and you might know what the people there want but you're not in a position to know what all of the other people in other districts would like, so I do know that they would like to know what is going on and they would like to have that opportunity.

Mr. Nunez I think we're getting to the point where we're saying that either you're for the people knowing or you're against the people knowing. I've contended all the time that I think that in the regular legislative process that the people who want to be informed will be informed. The legislator that has a job to do and if he has legislation affecting his people within a 60-day period, I think that they will know. But as far as the district that I come from, I think that if you want to expand a little bit on my senatorial district I represent, I think it's pretty cross-section of this state. It's three different parishes and it goes. It has 90 or about 105,000 people, so I would say that it is pretty indicative of what each and every one of you represent out there.

Mrs. Warren I'm going to ask you one more question. Don't you think that people are really more interested in what you do than what you say?

Mr. Nunez They're really more interested in what I do than what I say? Yes, they're interested in what I do after I do it a lot of times. They'll indicate to me a lot of times whether they approve or not approve when I come up for reelection every four years, and that's the procedure, the democratic process under which we work, Mrs. Warren. The legislators up here are not representing areas now. They're representing people and I think the new

Supreme Court ruling on the federal reapportionment has made this more so than ever before. I don't represent land area. I represent X number of people. They are either going to be informed or like my performance. If they don't like it...and let me just remark about the legislature. The legislature has the highest turnover of anybody, any elected official in this State, or any group of elected officials, I'll think you find the turnover in the legislature. Since I've been up here it's higher than 50%. When I came it was something like 60%, and I think the last time it was a little more than 60%. I think you do believe that the people aren't informed. I think they are well informed. I think their information indicates to me that when they want to change, they change. I think it's the way it should be. I see no real hang up on the people being informed and not being informed with the split session. I don't believe, and I reiterate again, that the fact that you say legislators introduce their bills in 12 days and go home, that you are informing the people. I can't see how they can be informed if you tell me that the press is going to analyze the bills and put a critique in the newspaper on every bill we have...They come in and pick up what we do and what we say. They pick up debate and they report it as we debate it. I can't see any real incentive for the news media to get there and start going over each bill before it's debated. Many of them have no essence at all. Some of the most innocuous pieces of legislation, Mrs. Warren, will become the most important. It doesn't come out most of the time until it's really debated. I can't see where these 12 days that we introduce all of our bills and we give to the professionals by the way, and I want to reiterate that also. That's who is going to become involved in this process more now than ever before. The professionals, the people that have the interest. The people who are not representing the citizens back home like the legislators are. I think we've got to give a little more incentive for the news media regardless if you like them or not do represent their constituents. If they don't represent their constituents, the process normally eliminates them. I think if you look at the statistics I just gave you that 60% of them are defeated annually or every four years, you'll realize that what I'm saying is a fact. I can't make it any more simple than that.

Mr. Avant Mr. Nunez, I just want to find out what you intend by this amendment because...I want to make sure that I understand your intentions by this amendment because I'm concerned about one particular point. The present constitution says that the legislature shall convene the second Monday in May and shall be limited to 60 days. This provision says they shall meet annually for 60 days. Then there is an earlier provision in this section that says that the legislature shall be a continuous body during the term for which its members are elected. Do you intend that this 60 days shall be 60 consecutive days or do you intend that the legislature could elect and meet for 12 days and then 48 days but at any time between the first Monday in April on through the 31st of December so long as they met 60 days? I want to be sure that I understand what you mean, sir. Do you mean 60 consecutive days?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Avant, I think that the meaning is just relatively simple and it's clear to me and I think if you check with the present constitution it would be clear to you. The legislature shall meet annually in regular sessions for 60 days. The legislature shall convene at 12 o'clock noon on the fourth Monday in April of each year. No new matter intended to have the effect of law shall be introduced or received by either House of the legislature after midnight of the nineteenth calendar day of the session. I expanded on that nineteenth day because 15, some people thought, was not enough and we put the 19 there. Except by a favorable vote of two-thirds the elected members of each House. My intention is that the legislature shall now meet like they'd now meet in regular 60 day sessions for a continuous session of 60 days and regardless if that day falls on a Sunday, a Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, fourth of July or what have you, shall count as a legislative day. Sixty consecutive days, yes sir.

Mr. Willis Mr. Nunez, as I read your proposal, Mr. Avant preempted part of my question, but I don't see any prohibition against the legislature meeting every Monday after it convenes at 12 o'clock noon on the fourth day of April which would make for 52 days and then meet a couple or three Tuesdays and still comply with this constitutional provision, if it were adopted. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Nunez If you reinterpret it that way, Mr. Willis, I certainly don't. My intention is, and if we have to amend it I'll be glad to do that, if this is what the convention prefers to go with. I think it's a good...I think that the 60 day session simply kept like I have it here, regardless if you put continuous days...and if you notice the present...this language almost tracks the present constitution. There is no provision in there that we meet in regular session in 60 days and that's it. I think it would be presumptuous on our part to think that if we put that the legislature shall meet in regular session for 60 days that we are going to meet every second Monday and do our business, you know...

Mr. Willis Well isn't the presumption that you make, a little bit vicious, with the provision that has been adopted as Section 18 to the effect that it is a continuous body, assuming a continuous body could be interpreted as continuous session.

Mr. Nunez That's certainly not my intention to make the legislature a continuous body to meet 60 days throughout one calendar year. No it is not. My intention up here is to give you a simple amendment that you can say that the legislature shall meet 60 days in any year for each year, you know, and that's as simple as I can put it and if you want it amended, I'll be perfectly willing to accept it.

Mr. Willis Well I'm not indicating approval or disapproval. My only suggestion is that its simplicity destroys its being plain and particular.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Nunez, getting back on the split session that you were discussing, I think you partially answered, but it hasn't been clear to me as how the people back home are going to be able to get information as to 3,000 bills that would be introduced in that 12 days. Is it going to be a digest by the Legislative Council sent out to all the voters, or put in the papers or what?

Mr. Nunez You're asking me probably a good question—How would the people, according to the questions that has been asked, that everybody wants to inform the people during those 12 days of a mass of 2,000 or 3,000 bills? That's been a mystery to me and I was trying to analyze that and tell you that someone said that the news media will inform them. Well I think the news media does an excellent job of informing the public about legislation while it's being debated, during debate, and on the vote, and in committee hearings. But unless it's an extremely rare situation will they have a bill that they take extreme interest in and give you a lot of coverage on a bill prepared in advance or a pre-filed bill. I think what a lot of people want to do, you can do now, that's to have a pre-file session. I think there is quite a bit of difference in a pre-file session where we can pre-file a lot of bills than in a 12 day limited session that we go home and we can't do anything on those bills. Mr. Chairman, may I, at the will of this committee, it seems to be that questions raised about the 60 consecutive days. It's my intention. .

Mr. Henry Did you want to withdraw them so you can clear them up?

Mr. Nunez Yes sir. Could I withdraw it and have the opportunity to bring it right back so we can just vote on it...

16th Days Proceedings—July 18, 1973

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Point of Order

Mr. Keane As I understand the parliamentary situation we have on the floor, as I appreciate it, the Riecke Amendment No. 1 was adopted and it was moved to reconsider and lay on the table so that it would be necessary for any amendment by Senator Nunez to provide for the deletion of that particular amendment which this does not do.

Mr. Henry You are correct. The original of these did not have that until the Clerk provided for that on the original up here, for the deletion. Since it was not put on when we got it up here, Mr. Keane, you don't have it on your copy. But to conform with the proposal as it now exists, you are absolutely correct. Insofar as the records of the convention, we've taken care of it up here. I appreciate you pointing that out.

Point of Order

Mr. Keane Point of order, Mr. Chairman. Will Senator Nunez now have another 15 minutes with these new amendments?

Mr. Henry Yes sir.

Mr. Nunez All I want to do is put that wording in there, Mr. Keane, that some members have objected to and allow the convention to vote on it. I don't want to take up 15 minutes or 10 minutes or 5 minutes. Just let us put that provision in there that they shall meet for no more than 60 consecutive calendar days and let the convention vote on it. If this is what they want I...

Mr. Henry Do we have them, Mr. Clerk?

Mr. Poynter Yes, I have the copy of it. Unless the delegate wants to insist that it be retyped the amendment would simply read: Section 2, the legislature shall meet annually in regular sessions for not more than 60 consecutive calendar days.

Mr. Henry Now you understand that what we've done, or what they've done is taken the amendment that we have up here and inserted this in there. Now if you don't mind inserting that, then we won't redraw these and we won't re-excer them unless there is objection.

Mr. Clerk, read it again so that everybody will make certain what we are talking about.

[Amendment re-submitted with clerical error.]
