Madam Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, there isn't much that I can say here that hasn't already been said. But, I, in listening to this debate, it occurred to me that there are a number of younger delegates here who might feel that the things that happened thirty years ago are ancient history. I would have the feeling that thirty years from now you might not feel that way. This is a very vexing question, I know. Those who say that things that have happened in the past cannot or will not happen again are surely naive, or they are simply deluding themselves. I haven't ever had any experience with civil service, but I have been an observer of our government for many, many years. I know this from the slight knowledge of history that I have, that there are some things that will always be with us, as long as there are human beings on this earth: among them are greed, avarice, the love of money, and the love of power--most of all, the love of power. In the book of Proverbs we note that it says that "the love of money is the root of all evil." But, I think, perhaps, the love of power is even greater. George Washington warned in his farewell address about the love of power and proneness to abuse it that predominates in the human breast. My feeling is simply this--and I've never been what you would call an enthusiastic supporter of civil service--but the people of this state have spoken when they have had a chance, and I believe that they. . . I believe it is near and dear to the hearts of the majority of the people. I note that the last time--and this may be ancient history to some, too; twenty-three years ago--I note when they voted on this present constitutional amendment that's in the constitution at this time, the vote was 306,000 for and 90,000 against, which was quite a vote at that time. I do feel, if Mr. Flory's amendment is adopted, that you just as well take civil service out of the constitution altogether. Now, if the majority of this convention feels that we should take it out of the constitution, let's be forthright and take it out--leave it to the lawmakers of the future. But, I certainly hope that we won't be. . . won't do it by indirection, by putting something in here that we will. . . the people will be told that civil service is protected in the constitution, when in reality, in my humble judgment, it will not be worth the paper it is written on. Thank you very much.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman and delegates, most of the people who have gotten up and spoken before you, today, have spoken against Amendment No. 1 of Mr. Flory's. I'd like to speak, primarily, against Amendment No. 2 because very little of it has been brought to your attention. Amendment No. 2 is aimed solely and only, as I read it, at New Orleans. What it would do to the present constitution is to raise the ceiling on a mandatory city civil service from 250,000 to 400,000. Now, the reason for that that was expressed by Mr.

Avant in a question the other day was that if you left it at 250,000, you might make changes in the Baton Rouge city civil service system. Rather than do that, because they knew that the citizens of Baton Rouge would object to changes in their city civil service system, they raised it to 400,000, and then proceeded to make vast changes in the city civil service system of New Orleans. For example, if you will read carefully Mr. Flory's Amendment No. 2, paragraph (3), you will notice that anything--anything--in the old constitution or in Mr. Flory's proposal may be changed--anything except a separate fire and police municipal civil service for New Orleans. Now, who wants a separate fire and police municipal service for New Orleans? As far as I have found out, as far as anyone has ever told me, it is certain firemen and policemen, only. The sanitation workers don't care to have the fire and police separated out from our system, nor do the rest of the municipal employees. The policemen and firemen are, by no means, unanimous on this. Another thing that was said earlier this morning is that civil servants were at a disadvantage because they couldn't lobby. Let me tell you, they can lobby, and they've been doing it pretty heavy. I've gotten a whole bunch of phone calls at my house from widows of firemen who wanted to make sure their pensions were preserved, from firemen who wanted to make sure that they could go to the legislature for a pay raise, from firemen who wanted a municipal fire and police civil service. But, that's who wants this separate system, is certain firemen and policemen in the city. Now, do the citizens of the city of New Orleans want this system? I think not. All of the mail that I've gotten from just plain old regular citizens on this subject says, "Let's keep our system more or less as it is." Not the commission; almost everyone I've talked to wants black representation on the commission, but the system, the system which specifies hiring on merit, promotion on performance, prohibiting from politics of employees, prohibiting of pressure being brought on employees to put them into politics, prohibiting of discrimination on race, sex, or other non applicable bases, impartial commission hearing appeals from job firings with appeal to the court, and that sort of thing. The system, they want more or less the same. Now, has the system, in the past, discriminated against the blacks, or against the poorly educated, and, perhaps, against the elderly? Yes, it definitely has; the system, itself, has. The tests for job positions in New Orleans are now being combed to make certain that there is as little cultural bias as possible. Mr. Jackson made the point this morning that all tests are culturally biased and, yet, if you're going to claim that you're hiring on merit, there must be some sort of a test. If all tests are culturally biased, then, let's, as Mr. Kilbourne said, do away with the civil service system and not institute a different system, call it by the civil service name, but have it not be civil service. So, I ask you, please don't do this inflammatory thing to the citizens of the city of New Orleans. They're satisfied with the system. They don't mind a few changes to insure certain racial representation on the commission which they have now, but would rather be assured. That's no problem. But, to make basic changes in the system, to take one-third of the employees out of the system makes no sense at all. There's nobody asking for it, and I urge you to defeat Amendment No. 2.

Further Discussion

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to follow along with Mrs. Zervigon on Amendment No. 2, first, by saying that I am opposed to the idea of policemen and firemen having a separate system. We do not grant the same thing for garbage workers in New Orleans, for nurses in New Orleans, so, by no means could I stand here and say to you that I am for giving firemen and policemen a separate civil service system. Now, many things I've heard said here today and yesterday talking about qualifications. I'm for having black representation. We have talked about the past. Let the past be a lesson for us, but let the past, also, be a lesson to guide ourselves, today. Let today's action--and when I say today's action, I'm speaking about the convention, now--the action of this very convention. Suppose this convention was the civil service commission. If this convention, or rather, if the personnel staff was the civil service commission, I stand here today and say to you, we would have very, very few black representation. Now, that is quite obvious, here, with this convention. I say even further, we would have even fewer blacks here today, employed with this convention, had there not been some black representation on that committee. Now, when I speak to you about black people, understand me clearly. I don't believe there is one man or woman in this building, or in this state, more concerned or more patriotic towards this state and this country as I. I love Louisiana; I love America, and as one gentleman asked a question: What would the attitude be if we had seventy-five percent black? Yes, I would fight that system because I think it would be a wrong system. We've spent our time talking about pleasing labor, pleasing the press, pleasing the governor, pleasing our constituents; but, seldom do we hear anybody say anything about pleasing God. I believe that you should think about your God, and most of us are serving the same God. If we serve the same God, then we ought to ask ourselves, sometime, "Am I pleasing God?" Now, maybe the news media might not like it; maybe some of your constituents might not like it; maybe labor might not like it. But, I'd rather to please God, any day, than to have labor, my constituents, the news media--I'd rather have God standing with me, any day, than to have all combined standing behind me.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I had my say, yesterday. I'm a hundred percent for civil service. I think we should go ahead and defeat this amendment. If we want to do away with civil service, then go ahead and vote for this amendment. It's a bad amendment, particularly, Section 2, giving the legislature the power to change it. They may not be able to repeal it, but they'll gut it so, it just won't be any good at all. So, I say, let's go ahead and adopt Mr. Dennery's amendment when it comes up and defeat this amendment.

Mr. Speaker, do we have anymore. . .many more on the list?

MR. HENRY

Yes, sir. There's several speakers, Mr. Smith.

MR. SMITH

Of course, I think we are. . .if some of them will yield, I think we've heard enough. We are ready to vote; we're just killing time. That was my main getting up here, and go ahead and move the previous question. But, if there are others, I'm not going to cut off debate. But, if the others would yield, I'll move for the previous question. But, I won't insist, if they want to talk.

Further Discussion

MR. ABRAHAM

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, when I came down to this convention, I was convinced in my own mind that many things could be cut out of the constitution, and should be cut out. One of the things I felt should be taken out should be all of the language of the Civil Service Article because I felt it was too long. I thought it could very easily be shortened. When I received Committee Proposals No. 9 and 10, I was unhappy because it contained all of the information from the existing constitution. I still thought it was too long. When the debate began yesterday, I thought maybe that the Flory amendment would be a reasonable solution to this, and at first, I was in favor of it. But, after listening to two days of debate on this particular amendment, I find that the debate has centered along two lines. One line of argument dealt with the composition of the board, the other line of debate dealt with the structure, or whether or not the structure of civil service should be in the constitution. I think that what we need to do is to, first, address ourselves to whether or not we're going to structure civil service in the constitution, and then we can decide from there what the composition of the board will be. After listening to two days of debate, it seems to me that our choice lies, actually, between two ends--two extremes. One would be the De Blieux amendment which completely takes it out of the constitution and leaves it in the hands of the legislature. The other would be along the lines of the Dennery amendment which sets up the basis structure within the constitution. I have become convinced from the debate that has occurred that the Dennery proposal is the right way to go, that we do need to structure the framework of civil service in the constitution. My recommendation would be that we proceed along these lines; and then, when we start talking about the composition of the Civil Service Commission, we tackle that problem in itself and not try to handle both issues right now, because I don't think the amendment before us deals or can handle both of these issues. I, therefore, think that the proper way to go would be to go along with the Dennery amendment. Then, we can debate the merits or demerits of how the commission should be structured.

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, what is the issue before us?

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

Well, I think that in all sincerity--and I doubt if anyone would dispute it, even though they would be very unlikely to admit it--this is that the one question that is presented by this amendment is whether labor will be able to unionize civil service in this state. I don't think any of us are kidding ourselves when we think that that's not one of the underlying reasons for this amendment. Historically, in this state, one of two groups has controlled this legislature. It's either the governor, or it's labor--organized labor. If the governor is a weak governor or owes a lot to labor to cut for his election, you know whose back is going to get scratched. If you don't think that what I'm saying is true, I suggest you look at Amendment No. 6 of the Flory amendments that he proposes to introduce if this amendment is adopted, and read that last phrase. Does this state believe, or do the citizens of this state believe that civil servants should strike? I don't know; I honestly don't know. But, I know that a lot of people would consider it very inconvenient if their garbage was not picked up on time inside the cities of this state, or if they don't get their mail or something like that. Historically, civil service has been a major issue in this state. In the early 1950's, during the Kennon administration, civil service was placed in the constitution based on a long history thereof. You can . . . if you know the history of this state, it's absolutely essential that we do it at this time, also. The amendment before us offers no protection whatsoever to civil service, to civil servants in this state.

Further Discussion

MR. BURNS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, there's nothing I can say or add to what's been said this morning and so far this afternoon. I certainly don't intend to take up anymore time by trying to add something to it. But, there is one incident that happened today at lunch that, to me, was more impressive and brought to my mind what the present condition is in the State of Louisiana with reference to state employees than all the words I heard this morning put together. A group of us went out to a restaurant for lunch and we had to stand in line. It just so happened--I don't know whether that's one of the things that in divine providence that provided for, or not--but, there were six or seven state employees in uniform was in line right behind us. One of our group turned around while we were waiting and asked these fellows did they believe in civil service. They said, as one, "very much so." They asked him next, was he satisfied with the present civil service. They said they were. It could be strengthened a little here and there, but that, otherwise, they were perfectly satisfied with it. Then, the third question--which I thought was the most important, in the light of what we have been discussing and debating all morning--they asked them, would they like to see it changed so that the legislature, by two-thirds vote, could change the present system around any way they saw fit. They said, "absolutely not." They wanted it left like it is. So, I just pass that on. It's coming from the men who are most affected by this proposed civil service.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Mr. Burns just made a statement why he came to this mike, and I want to tell you that's why I'm here too. It was more than one, it was more than two, and it was more than three--and I didn't do it. We went to lunch at the Welfare Building, and as we walked in, Mr. Jackson decided that he would make a kind of a poll of all the workers coming in--black and white. The answers he got was appalling. They thought it was lousy. I had heard people talk about civil service; I had heard them express their opinions and what they thought about it. As a person, I like to live one day at a time. I'm not a civil service worker, and I don't hope to ever be. I think about what Reverend Landrum said over there when he came up here. He said, "We should strive to serve God." That would be great. All we would have to do would be incorporate the Ten Commandments, and then we all could go home. But, I know that this is not true--not here, not in government. We're going to have a few compromises here and a few there. Some is going to want some things, and some is going to want another. As I thought, I thought about what my little girl said to me once when I went and bought her a pair of shoes. I felt them, and I told her, I said, "These shoes fit, and they are pretty." She says, "Well, okay, Momma, buy them." So, I bought them, and I carried them home. They sat up on the closet shelf. She kept saying she wanted another pair of shoes and hounding her daddy about more shoes. He said, "You've got shoes on the closet shelf, and you don't wear them." She said, "Momma bought them, they fit her, and she wear them." I asked a question this morning about the news media and how many people did they have in civil service. I was asking to help me to find out a little bit more about this thing--civil service--because I had had some experiences with people who thought it was lousy. In some instances, it was rotten. If I had time, I would bring it out. I am from the city of New Orleans, and I want you all to know it. I've been there for a number of years, and I'm not ashamed to say it, over in . . . probably close to thirty years or more. I don't plan to leave; I'm a part of that city, and I don't go along with everything that Reverend Landrum or Mrs. Zervigon says because I have words, and I walk the streets and I talk to people. When I come in here, I'm not going to represent the city, the administration; I'm going to represent people, and I'm going to vote my conscience. I'm not going to let anybody lobby me, and I'm not trying to lobby you. You vote your conscience, and let God be your judge.

Thank you.

Question

MR. LANDRUM

Mrs. Warren, do you know that my remarks had nothing to do with representing no city, no mayor, no governor, no newspaper, no labor group, but representing, first of all, God? That's who I represent, first of all. Now, representing people, trying to do things that I believe God would be pleased with in my action with people--not the mayor. I'm sure you should know better than that.

MRS. WARREN

Reverend Landrum, I say to you, if you're saying that I said it, you're wrong. I just quoted you and what I thought was. But, if that shoe fits your foot, then you wear it.

Further Discussion

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, let me say that just because I'm for this amendment does not make me anti-civil service or anti-merit system. I think there's been some statement made that if you're for this amendment, you're for doing away with civil service. Now, let's look at the issue head-on. This amendment is going to--is going to--be amended later, but we've got to pass it to make it as good as it should be. Mr. Denney's amendment, in my judgment, is not nearly as good as the committee proposal, much less what we could do with the other amendments that Mr. Flory has before us, provided that we vote favorably on this one. The purpose of civil service is twofold, as Buddy Roemer said. One, to protect the classified employees, and two, to insure the state that it gets good people in positions. I disagree with him when he says the best, because no test, no little grade score, can tell me who's the best man in here. No I.Q. test would be any basis for me saying that I will vote for Buddy Roemer as judge because his I.Q. is much better than Greg Arnette's, if it is. There's . . . The point that I want to make is that when you talk about a test, only, you provide for--and you older gentlemen know it, and everyone else--what is known as institutionalized discrimination. I don't speak for the blacks; I speak for all working people in this state who are subjected to institutionalized discrimination fostered and perpetuated by the people in power who happen to be much more intelligent than the guys who are working and carrying the load. You all know what I mean. There is no way that a closed institution, which of itself keeps out the average citizen by virtue of fees to be enrolled, can in any way select or represent to the governor people who are in the system and who have worked for it. Sure, Governor Edwards had to finally ask the president of L.S.U., "Put a black so that we can consider him." But, he may have to, in the future, say, "Let's consider a working man, black or white. Let's consider the people against whom we are writing these rules." Institutionalized discrimination is something that we can all accept because we say, "I'm not discriminating against this poor guy because he doesn't have the ability I have. After all, he had the chance, he just didn't make it." Of course, there's a lot of other people that made it possible for Chris Roy to be standing here. You didn't get talked to by any little guy on the street, and you're not going to. Did they talk to you about the judiciary? Did any little people talk to you about the Bill of Rights? Did they talk to you about the Education Article? No. Who talked to you? The people who are in power. All I'm saying is that when you tell me that a commission that has the power to make rules and regulations and then interpret them can consider the plight of sixty thousand people in this state and what they do; I say, "Phooey, there's no way." There is no way that closed institutions are going to recommend to the governor, a bricklayer, or a carpenter, or a truck driver, or anybody else to consider for an appointment to the Civil Service Commission. All we want to do here is to make it better. I've been in the arena with civil service. It can be a lot better. If it can't be better, then let's throw away Denny's amendment, too. Let's throw away the committee proposal if, as all these people have said, the thing has worked so beautifully, and it is so great. It is not great. It's good, that's as best you can say for it. It can be made better, but it can't be made better by people who represent, maybe, a hundredth of one percent of the population of this state in education, intelligence, and wealth, sitting back and saying, "We're not going to change it. It's all right because we're not getting complaints from the people who need it changed." Well, you go talk to the people who know; you go ask the little fellows on the street. Our purpose is to write a better constitution. . . and that constitution will be written only, only. . .

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time, Mr. Roy.

Further Discussion

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I must sit here in dismay as many of you have, not necessarily with regard to the civil service amendment, but the decorum of this convention. I would like to attribute that to the issue...of the severity of the issues, seriousness of the issue of civil service, but I think a lot has to do with the House... the Chamber itself. But, aside from that, I think it is befitting that we do have the decorum; we do have the silence, and we do have the attention that for the first time that I think we've had in the course of this convention on this issue, because I think the magnitude of the issue justifies listening, deliberation, and soul-searching thinking. I'm not going to reiterate all of the things that have been before you, but merely to put in perspective as I've found it is so necessary to do during the course of this convention. We tend to explain things after we argue to put it... should I vote red, or should I vote green, or am I voting for Mr. Jones, or am I voting against Mr. Jones. That's the issue I'd like to put before you. In my personal opinion, I think that the majority of the people in this state feel safe, secure in the present civil service system. To me, it is the one shining light that we've had in this state. That is my own personal opinion. I think, my personal opinion in... this view is shared by the overwhelming majority of the people of this state. I submit to you that when you tamper with the one thing--the one thing-- that I think that the people feel is secure and just and good for this state, we're treading on dangerous water. The issue to me is very simple, and this is, basically what you're going to be voting on. If you like the present civil service system like it is, then you should vote against the Flory amendment. On the other hand, if you do not like the present civil service system and you want to subject that entire system to total possible change in this state, well, then vote for Mr. Flory's amendment. That's the issue, because that's the issue I think, when you get to the nutshell is going to be presented to the voters of this state. It's my personal feeling that we would make a drastic mistake in tampering with something that the people feel very secure and confident with. I hope that you sincerely reject whatever personal pressures, whatever personal thoughts or inflictions have made upon you, and that you base your decision on what you think is good for this state. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

MR. RACHAL

Fellow delegates, I don't really know where we are at this point, but so much debate has taken place and as I tried to listen to it and decipher it and separate what might be truth and fact from oratory and wild statements, I don't really know where we are. But, I felt compelled since I've also been asked as to why I have been supporting this amendment and what is it that I want out of civil service. Let me first of all say that the... any suggestion that you might have that I'm for gutting the civil service system, please remove that from your minds. At the same time, because I'm concerned about what I think are necessary needs to improve a civil service system in keeping with the true principles of merit, let that not be arguments to say that the system is to be gutted. If I had to give any resistance to arguments to perpetuate the system exactly as it is administered in Louisiana at this time, the debate of those supporting that has done more to turn me from it--and let me give you a few instances why-- I was appalled this morning to listen to speakers at this microphone suggest, for example, that the only reason there are no more blacks in the civil state ...civil service in Louisiana is because we've had a fine merit system and we've selected people on merit, and then go on to suggest to me that they should continue to support that fine operation. Well, first of all after the first statement is made I can no longer go on any recommendations made by those people, although I know most of you know better, I'm afraid that you're being influenced by it. Most of us know, that the reason many blacks are not in civil service in this state--probably why I am not in it--is because I could not get in it regardless to what qualifications I have. I remember years ago going to the state civil service building and was made quite clear that I was not welcomed there to solicit an application, let alone submit it. We know that blacks were not welcomed, regardless to qualifications that they may have had. So, don't now tell me that the conditions are like they are because we've had a fine system, that is not true. I am willing to discuss with you, if you're willing to admit, the evils of the past and let's talk about what we can do about them in the future. Sure, I appreciate history, but I think history should teach us also to avoid the mistakes of the past, and not to have fine statements rationalizing some of the actions which have taken place. We find ourselves caught many times between this failure to appoint by an agency head and the civil service system. What has come through to me rather clearly, especially from representatives and from a senator or two, is that the civil service system stands as some kind of protection between them and wild promises they may have had, and so we depend upon the civil service system to give them an excuse to back out of it. That's not what civil service is for. Civil service just is a personnel operation. It is to assure the government, municipal or state, that it has the best people qualified to do the job, but therein comes the rub. I defy anyone to tell me that we're going to have any kind of testing procedure that we can stand behind and say absolutely this system identifies clearly the best qualified person for the job. That is not possible. To say that the only means of determining the best person for a job is through a written test; that is not true. I, too, have had some experiences, not as great as most of you probably, but it has been with civil service and operations whereby we've tried to do something about the misrepresentation of the people. If I adhere to persons who this morning, for example, talking about this constitution in which it says "we the people,"--I'm not a political scientist--but more accurately we need to state that in the past it has been" we, some of the people." When we talk about representation not only in the deliberative bodies like these, but on commissions and others, we are trying to make it such that the high-sounding principles that we expound in fact, are given a chance to act... to be put into practice. Why all the clamor about the representation on the commission; are we afraid? What great difference will two black representatives on a seven member board have? I recognize that this argument has not come out too greatly, but as someone else suggested about something else, it is an underlying concern of many of us. Yet, we want to talk about all of the people of Louisiana; are we continuing to perpetuate the social club of some of the people. I don't know how much more calmly I can make such statements without getting reactions of radicalism or whatever you might suggest.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, delegates of the convention, I guess it's been very obvious for the last two days that I have not personally come before you to address you about any concern at this... at any previous point concerning civil service, because I, like Mr. Rachal, was sitting back just observing the kinds of arguments for and against certain proposed and needed changes within our civil service system. First of all, let me say that on yesterday, I raised... I raised the motion to divide Mr. Flory's amendment, not in an attempt--and I stated very clearly to him and prior to me making that motion--not in an attempt to defeat the amendments because there are some aspects of it I strongly agree with, and there are some aspects of it I disagree with. When we talk about the question of minority representation on the civil service commission whether that be state or city civil service, I don't see what the big clamor is all about. I suggest for those who may, and whatever motivation that they embraced, are suggesting that that is a concern to them, but at the same time get up here and suggest that --look at Mr. Denny's amendment-- I suggest that you look at Mr. Flory's, Mr. Denny's, and the committee's proposal because they all provide for some degree minority representation. I do not agree with those opponents of the Flory amendment who say that everything in the civil service system is okay, it's great, it's working well. I say very candidly, it depends on what side of the fence you're on. I agree with Mr. Haynes when he got up this morning and said, what's the difference in talking about quotas when in effect you do have in practical and in effect, you wind up with the situation that maintains the quota even if that quota happens to be absolute--and I'm saying there are some agencies where that happens. My objection primarily is to Amendment No. 2. As a member of the legislature, I do trust to some degree the legislature and its ability to exercise sound judgment. I was seriously concerned when some arguments were raised--particularly by Mr. Avant-- who said that we raised... he was concerned about if we kept it at two hundred and fifty thousand then that would affect the city civil service of the city of Baton Rouge, but yet instead we're going to raise it to four hundred thousand dollars... four hundred thousand population. But, there was no consideration whatsoever about what effect that was going to have upon our present firemen and police civil service. We trust the legislature to make all the changes and to that, I agree, but there was one exception, -- and I've got to agree with Ms. Zervigon--if we trust them, then let's make that exception apply across the board. Let it apply also whether New Orleans firemen and police are going to be allowed to remain in the system or leave the system. Let me suggest to you one of my other concerns: seniority is good, and it's just like if you know,-- it's according on which side of the fence you're on--in those parishes where blacks have had to ingress into the system at the same time, seniority equally works for everyone. But, presently under the city civil service we don't have that it's a criteria. So, we're going to move our system out into a seniority system where less than seven percent or four percent of the force, particularly of the police department, are the minority group. That's one of my strong objections to it. I candidly say that without any reservation. Now, one of the other things kind of--I throw out-- is that I voted when I could not get the same consideration for my sanitation workers, and my garbage workers, and my health nurses, and all the other civil servants. When I couldn't get that consideration to allow them to come to the legislature I said, "Well, I will support the firemen and policemen that come to the legislature," and the records will show that. I, also, by that same token allowed the legislature to increase the burdens of... well, not the burdens... but increase the financial expenditures of our city, I voted for that. But, I am at this point concerned as to what kinds of input will the governing authority and the people of the city of New Orleans have in terms of our firemen and policemen when we give them total economy as expressed in the last paragraph of the second... amendment.

Motion

MR. CHATELAIN

I would like to offer a proposition to those gentlemen... ladies and gentlemen, if they would agree to yield, I'd like to move the previous question. I think all of us have heard enough in the last two days of this rhetoric. I can certainly speak for my five--minutes allotted and probably not make any points, but it would make a lot of noise. I would certainly ask that those yield.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I feel that after two days of debate on this very important subject that we should move the previous question.

Move the previous question, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I will try to be brief. Let me start out by saying to you that I had hoped to propose this morning some amendments that I thought would correct many of the objections that many of the delegates had in having taken away the appointments by the governor, letting the civil service... the classified employees elect those two people, retaining the five colleges that are named in the state civil service system and then going and putting in that, a Hatch Act changing it to six year terms instead of the four that's in the proposed amendment. Then saying further that nothing that was contained in this article could be changed by the legislature. But, the detail as to civil service would be transferred and could be by a two-thirds vote, and I really don't care whether it's two-thirds or three-quarters vote of the legislature, so long as we have some vehicle over and above the ivory tower that the commissioners sit in on the Civil Service Commission to review their decisions which the state... as controls the state's employees personnel policies. Now, let me... the amendment that's before you has been designed, or else it's been stated that it's black in nature, that it's anti-God, perhaps, that it's strictly for the unions to control and unionize the civil service of this state, I submit to you, I couldn't organize any employee of any employer unless they were dissatisfied with the treatments that they were getting. I now have in the unions of this state in excess of twenty-one thousand public employees of the State of Louisiana with contracts throughout practically every department of the state. But every time we negotiate a contract as a provision nothing herein shall conflict with the provisions of civil service; nothing. A great deal has been said about Amendment No. 2; Amendment No. 2 is necessary if we're going to take the firemen and the policemen in the city of New Orleans, and place them in the same type of system that the other firemen and policemen throughout this state in all municipalities over thirteen thousand are now under. That's the issue. To put New Orleans with the rest of the state. But, New Orleans would still have its own five-member board for firemen and policemen, and it shall have its own board of the city employees, and the city council would have to prove everything they did... everything they did. A lot's been said about Mr. Denner's proposal-- if you want to give the commission more power than they've got today, you vote for Mr. Denner's proposal. If you want to retain the burden of proof on the employees instead of the employer, you vote for Mr. Denner's proposal. But, I for one happen to believe, that an individual is innocent... innocent if you will, until he's proven guilty. But, not under civil service in this state, and we're the only state in the nation... the only state where the burden of proof is on the employee instead of the employer, and the civil servant is guilty until he proves his innocence. If you believe that a man ought to be innocent until he's proven guilty, vote for these amendments.

You believe that the employer... that the burden of proof ought to remain on that poor employee, vote against these amendments and vote for Mr. Denner's proposal. I'm willing to incorporate in these amendments before you now, if they're adopted, I propose to come immediately right behind it and strip these amendments out and incorporate what I have proposed to you: six year terms, the five colleges that the classified employees elect two members, put in the Hatch Act, and all of these provisions in these amendments could not be changed by the legislature with any vote, but the rest of it could be changed with a two-thirds vote--of if you want a three-quarters vote, I don't mind that, I don't mind that--and I want to say something to Mr. Tobias. I think it's an insult to the integrity of the governors who have served this state and the fine men of the legislature and ladies of the legislature, to say that they have been controlled in the past by labor or by anybody else. I suggest to you, Mr. Tobias, that if they've been controlled by labor, there are a great many things that would be much better in this state today than they are... much better. I ask you to adopt Amendments Nos. 1, and 2 so that I can then come back and make changes.....

[Record vote ordered. Division of the Question ordered.]

Point of Information

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, are we voting at this time on the motion to reconsider or on the amendments themselves?

MR. HENRY

We're voting on final passage on the amendments.

[Amendment No. 1 rejected: 45-61. Motion to reconsider tabled. Record vote ordered. Amendment No. 2 rejected: 48-59. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Denner. O.K. I want to say this: The pages are getting ready to pass out the Denner amendment. Hæretofore, a previous set of amendments have been passed out. Mr. Denner, as I appreciate it, has made some changes with respect to the first two pages only of those amendments. However, to make sure that there is not any confusion or try to hopefully reduce it, the set that's being passed out now is the Denner amendment in its entirety and including a reprint of the seven pages, I believe, that didn't change. You can tell them apart real easy because they got two staples in them.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

Point of Information

MR. ABRAHAM

I have a question for the Chair.

I just want to clear it up, but as it stands now, we have Committee Proposal No. 9 now which only consists of the first page still on the books and everything else has been removed by the third Flory amendment; is that correct?

MR. HENRY

As I appreciate it, that's generally correct; yes, sir.

Point of Information

MR. JENKINS

Point of information, Mr. Chairman. If we were to adopt Mr. Dennery's amendment, would it be appropriate at that time for me to move that we suspend our rules to consider it lettered paragraph by lettered paragraph as we did before? In other words, so if we adopted it, it won't finally be adopted but rather that we can then consider it part by part; would that be appropriate if we adopted this?

MR. HENRY

I'm not sure that I..you said, if we adopt the amendment, then could we consider it letter paragraph by letter? Well, it's already adopted, and I don't understand what you are talking about, Mr. Jenkins. Did you not say, "If we adopt the Dennery amendment or if we take it up"?

MR. JENKINS

You see, it's being considered as a single section now.

MR. HENRY

That's correct.

MR. JENKINS

But, we will certainly want to analyze it in more detail than we are going to be able to give it as a nine-page amendment. What I'm saying that...wouldn't that really be just like an original committee proposal once we adopted it? Couldn't we then move to suspend the rules to vote on it paragraph by paragraph, so that we could amend it paragraph by paragraph and....

MR. HENRY

If you suspended the rules, you could do that, Mr. Jenkins. Yes, sir.

Point of Order

MR. TATE

Mr. Chairman, as I understand the parliamentary situation, we have already adopted the third Flory amendment which has, in effect, taken away the committee draft. So, presumably, the Dennery amendment is--if and when we adopt it--will be the major item of business. Now, the only other approach that seemed to have been submitted in the amendments was the De Blieux approach--the one paragraph. I'm just wondering as a matter of enquiry, if there would not be...it wouldn't be sensible for us to... someone to make a motion to advance the De Blieux amendment, vote on that one way or another. Once it's out, then the Dennery amendments are before us.

MR. HENRY

Well, if someone wants to make that motion, the motion would be in order. But, now yesterday, in talking about Mr. Flory and Mr. Dennery, Mr. Dennery said that he had no great objection to going with the Flory amendment first; but, he did want to take up his amendments after that.

Point of Information

MR. ARNETTE

Mr. Chairman, is not the case if we adopt this particular amendment, people can offer any amendments to this amendment as they wish? Is that not correct before it's finally adopted as a section?

MR. HENRY

That's right.

MR. ARNETTE

O.K. So, in other words, Mr. Jenkins wouldn't have to go through the suspending the rules idea. All he would have to do is offer amendments to this amendment--if it is adopted; is that not correct?

MR. HENRY

Well, that's...what he is talking about is an alternative approach. If he gets the rules suspended, he can do that and that was his question; don't you see?

MR. ARNETTE

Well, I was just thinking we could do without suspending the rules, but that's...

MR. HENRY

Well, we're not to that point yet. I think we are climbing the mountain before we get there. We can take care of that once we ever get there.

Personal Privilege

MR. JENKINS

Let me, just by way of explanation. You remember on the previous proposal, I moved that we suspend the rules and consider it letter by letter. But, on this particular proposal, I knew that Mr. Flory had an all encompassing amendment; and I knew that Mr. Dennery had an all encompassing amendment. That's why I didn't at the beginning of this thing move that we suspend the rules to consider it letter by letter. But, that does seem to be the appropriate way and that's why I asked that question.

MR. HENRY

Well, with all due respect, that's fine but what we need to do is go ahead and start the work, then when we get to the point if this amendment is adopted--the amendment may not be adopted, if it is adopted; then, we can decide then how we want to treat it. So, if you will, Mr. Clerk, and if the folks will have a seat and give you their attention, we'll be on our way again.

[Motion to waive reading of the Amendment adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Delegates, let me point out what Mr. Champagne was worried about; on page one, in Section 1 in the sixth line I have added the three words "local governmental subdivisions," so that state civil service does not include local governmental subdivisions. On the second page in the section which begins with a nine in parentheses, I have switched the language somewhat now to make it read "employees, deputies, and administrative officers." There was some concern that administrative officers and employees might restrict it to administrative employees alone. Those are the only changes I have made, and they were purely for the purposes of clarification. I can only give you the broad picture of this amendment. It is an attempt to put in as what I consider to be as short a form as possible, a completely self-executing civil service provision into our constitution; it covers state civil service; it covers city civil service in cities over two hundred and fifty thousand. Most of the provisions of the present civil service law are retained in one form or another, although I have shortened the language. The principle differences are that as far as the commissions themselves are concerned in the state commission, I have provided that the nominations be made of seven members instead of five and that the nominations be made by the presidents of the only seven private universities.

Point of Information

MR. FULCO

Point of information. Is it possible for Mr. Dennery to tell us where he is in the explanation, so that we can note....make notes on the margin, please?

Explanation continued

MR. DENNERY

I would be glad to, Mr. Fulco. On page two, I have the provisions for the State Civil Service Commission; instead of a five-member commission, it is a seven-member commission. Instead of the nominees being nominated by Tulane, Loyola, Centenary, Louisiana College and L. S. U., I removed L. S. U. as a public university and inserted Dillard, Xavier, and St. Mary's Dominican, which are the three other private universities in the state. This has two advantages, I believe, and one somewhat might be called a disadvantage. The advantages are: that the two predominately black universities now have the right to nominate people which, although not automatically, will probably guarantee black input into the commission. A predominately female university will undoubtedly provide a female on the commission. The commission is divided...the universities are divided approximately equally as far as religion is concerned based upon the population of the state, approximately as race is concerned on the population of the state. The only disadvantage is that five of these universities are situated within the city of New Orleans, but that is a fact of life. On the premise that we would have private universities making the nominations, we were forced to that position. I would point out that most of these universities have alumnae and alumni scattered throughout the State of Louisiana and there is no reason to believe that the presidents of these universities will restrict their appointments to purely local people. On page three in Subsection (D), I provide for the City Civil Service Commission; it remains three as it is in the present constitution. The only change, insofar as New Orleans is concerned, is that instead of the city council appointing one or nominating one group of appointees, I have substituted Dillard University. I allowed Loyola University and Tulane University to remain as far as New Orleans is concerned. When it comes to other cities in the state if they reach two hundred and fifty thousand...as they reach two hundred and fifty thousand, the governing body of that community has a right to select any three of the universities--which are the seven private universities which were named on the previous page. The prohibitions against political activities which are found in Section (1) on page five are basically the same as the present prohibitions against political activities. On page six, the section dealing with rules and investigations has somewhat broadened the power of the commission in order to make the commission more flexible. We have run into situations--both in the state and in New Orleans--where agencies based upon federal funding and matching funds were concerned, where it was impossible to get classified employees within the standard pay rate range effective at that time. In order to permit flexibility, the commission has been given the power to increase the unclassified service but may later decrease it as funds are found to meet the proper pay plans or as employees are found. In case any city under two hundred and fifty thousand or any city parish form of government chooses to come under this type of civil service, they have the right to do so; that is provided on page seven, eight, and nine of the amendment. There are excluded from the classified service--and I would call to your attention that I have used the technical language. Civil service technically means anyone in the employ of the state. You and I today are civil servants. We are not classified civil servants, we are unclassified civil servants. There are certain unclassified civil service positions which are set forth in my amendment which are basically the same as the present unclassified service. All...I have reduced the language, however, considerably by referring, for example, to the Judiciary Article V and saying that the employees of all offices mentioned in that article will be in the unclassified service.

Mr. Chairman, I think, basically, that's the overall picture of this. I would be pleased to answer whatever questions I am able to.

Point of Information

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Chairman, my question is directed to you. Would I be in order to move for a suspension of the rules so that this amendment could be considered section by section...paragraph by paragraph...numbered paragraph by numerical paragraph?

MR. HENRY

Mr. O'Neill, you would be in order to make such a motion, yes, sir.

MR. O'NEILL

But...

MR. HENRY

Well, I'm advised by the Clerk that something like this is very difficult to administer, insofar, as the desk is concerned. Now, the Clerk might address himself to those problems.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, if it's too much trouble, I'll withdraw my motion, Mr. Chairman, but it looks like it's going to be pretty difficult to consider all at once and to get questions answered in full scope of it, so I was just trying to ease matters.

MR. HENRY

Mr. Clerk, you might state the problem that you're going to have.

MR. POYNTER

Maybe I...as far as just considering it section...paragraph by paragraph, I don't think you create a problem at all. It's when you start wanting to vote on them and "delete," and you reach some real technical problems on what follows what and what the efficacy of certain votes are, but certainly in terms of procedure of going paragraph by paragraph in consideration... you know, in offering amendments if you want to to Paragraph (A), for example, and then when that's concluded going on to (B), perhaps that even facilitates the desk, Mr. O'Neill.

Point of Information

MR. TATE

Mr. Chairman, up until now, we haven't considered things section by section until they are adopted. Now, assuming the Dennery amendments are going to be adopted--which I just assume it's going to be--might it not be then more appropriate to consider a motion?

MR. HENRY

That's exactly right, Justice Tate, at that point it would be more appropriate to consider it in that fashion--in my judgment. All right, gentlemen, Mr. Dennery had....

Personal Privilege

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman, Judge Tate, I just don't know; I don't agree with Judge Tate on that. I believe....

May I ask...may I suggest...

MR. HENRY

No, sir. Now, gentlemen, we've got to start considering this at one time or the other. If you want to make a motion to suspend the rules, fine and well and good, let's try it that way. But, we have handled provisions--rather lengthy provisions of a nature--considering them en globo, then you can come back and offer the amendments. But, there is no sense in us getting in a philosophical argument as how we should handle this right now. If we want to try it the other way, move to suspend the rules. If not, let's go ahead and discuss it, sir.

Point of Information

MR. LANDRUM

Well, Mr. Chair, would I be in order now for the motion that we will take a vote on it now because what I see here as far as all the universities from New Orleans, I think we will be wasting a lot of time.

MR. HENRY

Well, that's never been any problem so far with this convention insofar as time is concerned, Reverend Landrum. I'm not trying to put you down, but I think we can handle this thing if we sit in our seats and we pay attention to what's going on but, otherwise, we will be here through Christmas Eve.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

Point of Information

MR. HERNANDEZ

In the event that we do care to amend this proposal of Mr. Dennery's, at which point should we submit our amendments?

MR. HENRY

Well, in the event that you want to amend it, it has to be adopted. Once it is adopted, then amendments to it would be in order, Mr. Hernandez.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Thank you, sir. I just wanted to be sure.

Point of Information

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman, couldn't we follow the procedure we've followed in the psst, perhaps, if we adopt his amendment and not lay it on the table, and we could come back and...

MR. HENRY

Well, if you all will just let us get started on this thing, I believe we can take care of it just right.

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Dennery, the first question I wanted to ask you is that the present constitution deals with fire and policemen in Article XIV, Section 15.1, of the present constitution. You in no way, this.... and, as I understand your amendment, it in no way affects this provision of the present constitution; is that correct?

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, Mr. Duval. The present constitutional situation as far as firemen and policemen are concerned is that in New Orleans they are covered under the general city civil service provisions; they would remain covered under these general civil service provisions. The balance of the state would come under the provisions of what is now 15.1, known as the municipal fire and police system as amended or enlarged, I believe, by certain legislative acts.

MR. DUVAL

Now, Mr. Dennery, I'm interested in....looking over this trying to determine the powers of the commission, insofar, as wages are concerned. Now, one thing that concerns me if the commission were to make a ruling on wages, would this supercede any act of the legislature? Would they have predominance insofar as wages over the legislature?

MR. DENNERY

Well, it goes in exactly the opposite, Mr. Duval. The commission recommends a pay plan and amendments to that pay plan. They are recommended to the governing authority, which in this case of the state would be the governor; in the case of the city to the mayor. Until they are approved by the governing authority, they do not become effective and as a practical matter they will not be approved unless and until the legislature finds the funds and appropriates the money to meet the pay plan.

MR. DUVAL

Now, what I'm interested in a legal matter if the State Civil Service Commission recommends they pay a pay, for instance, and the governor approves; is the legislature....is, then, it becomes a force of law at that point?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, I believe it does. I think there have been some cases to that effect, Mr. Duval.

MR. DUVAL

Now, what if the legislature passes a law raising the salary of let's say state policemen? Would the Civil Service Commission be able to block the implementation of that wage?

MR. DENNERY

Under the present constitution, they would be in a position to do so, and that right has been upheld. I did not make any change in my proposal, nor in my amendment.

MR. DUVAL

Thank you.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Dennery, Thibodaux just got civil service by Act No. 97 of 1972. We have a one board system since we have a volunteer fire department. We don't have paid firemen in Thibodaux; it's completely volunteer. Would your proposal in any way affect the civil service system that we presently have established in the city of Thibodaux?

MR. DENNERY

When Thibodaux reaches two hundred fifty thousand, the answer is yes. Until then, no.

MR. LANIER

O. K. Good.

Secondly, I note in your proposal, that for the boards of other cities, that they shall be composed of three, and that they are nominated by these universities in New Orleans.

MR. DENNERY

No, any three of the first seven universities named. The governing authority selects those three.

MR. LANIER

Well, what I'm getting at is, the board that is set up in Thibodaux under Act 97 is a five person board rather than a three person board. Would we still be O. K. in our five person board? Or would we have to go to a three person board?

MR. DENNERY

When you reach two hundred and fifty thousand.

MR. LANIER

When we reach two hundred fifty thousand. But, prior to that time, this provision....

MR. DENNERY

This has no effect until you are at least two hundred and fifty thousand, Mr. Lanier. After that, it would become effective.

MR. LANIER

Thank you.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Dennery, my question addresses itself to your Section (J), or Paragraph (J), which is on page 6 of your amendment. Now, that, as I understand it, is a restatement in whole, or in part, or maybe with some additions of what was Paragraph (I), or is Paragraph (I), of the present Article XIV, Section 15, is it not, sir?

MR. DENNERY

I think basically that is a correct statement.

MR. AVANT

Now, that vests in the commission rule-making powers in certain areas, and in those areas those rules have the effect of law.

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. AVANT

In those areas where the commission is given the right to make rules under the jurisprudence and the decisions of the Supreme Court, the legislature has no authority whatsoever, do they?

MR. DENNERY

That's not completely correct, Mr. Avant.

MR. AVANT

All right. Tell me.

MR. DENNERY

Well, for instance, as far as retirement and pension provisions are concerned, a civil service rule has been held invalid because it goes against what the legislature....

MR. AVANT

All right, now....

Specifically, it was under Section (I) that the Supreme Court was able to say that a minimum pay scale for state troopers, adopted by the legislature, was unconstitutional because the Civil Service Commission refused to implement it. Is that not correct?

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

- MR. DENNERY
Well, it didn't change its pay plan. I wouldn't say implement it, but the pay plan....it did not change its pay plan.
- MR. AVANT
Now, in addition to the many, many areas in which the commission was given the right under Article XIV, Section 15, to make these rules that have the force of law, I notice in your section, you have added an area which I don't find in the present constitution. That is, to enact rules with respect to employee training and safety. This is a rather long constitutional provision in our present constitution, but I have read it a number of times. I cannot now, and do not remember having ever seen that particular area in there. Is that new?
- MR. DENNERY
Let me see which one...oh, employee training and safety provision?
- MR. AVANT
Yes.
- MR. DENNERY
I believe it is new, Mr. Avant. I would have to go check my earlier drafts to see. But I believe that was added.
- MR. AVANT
It's not in the present constitution, is it?
- MR. DENNERY
No, I don't think it is. I think you are correct, sir.
- MR. AVANT
Well, this would give to the Civil Service Commission, would it not, sir, and take away from the legislature, an additional area beyond that dictated by the present constitution; that is, with respect to employee training and safety? Is that not so?
- MR. DENNERY
Well, Mr. Avant, I'm not sure that the commission hasn't done this already. As a matter of fact, those rules for employee training and safety would just be guidelines for various departments to use. Now, I take it, to the extent that they conflicted with a general statute, similar to the pension ruling of the courts, the same thing would apply.
- MR. AVANT
Well, we would be taking a calculated risk in that area, would we not, if we left this employee training and safety in there?
- MR. DENNERY
Well, I....if you choose to call it a calculated risk. I would choose to call it a method of making more flexible the present Civil Service System, and more useful to the administration.
- MR. AVANT
Well, to get right down to it, to take again the case of the state police--if the legislature, or the superintendent of the state police, in their wisdom, instituted a particular program dealing with the safety of those troopers, say certain equipment that had to be on the vehicles, or the fact that they couldn't make patrols one man to a vehicle (they had to have two men to a vehicle), or if they required that they had to go a certain period of training--say on the pistol range or the submachine gun range, or whatever they do--if the Civil Service Commission didn't agree with it, then under this provision it couldn't be done, could it? Isn't that a fact?
- MR. DENNERY
I take it that's a fact, Mr. Avant. I can't conceive that that would occur. But I take it that that is a fact that it could occur.
- MR. AVANT
Is that any more inconceivable than...conceivable than the idea that the legislature's going to wake up one day and gut the Civil Service System?
- MR. DENNERY
To my mind, it is less....it is more....excuse me, it is less conceivable.
- MR. WEISS
Those of us not too knowledgeable about the details rely a great deal on the committee report. Could you point out the exact difference between your report as abstracted--basically you say the committee proposal--all the changes that your report renders that is different than a committee proposal?
- MR. DENNERY
Dr. Weiss, I suppose I could do that, but it has been done by the staff. They have a complete report which compares Delegate Proposal 27 which is basically the same as this amendment and Committee Proposal No. 9. I think it would be far better to pass that out among the delegates, than to take the time of this convention to try to go through it.
- MR. WEISS
Could I have a copy of that?
- MR. DENNERY
I'm sure we can afford you--or all delegates, if they want them a copy.
- MR. HAYES
Mr. Dennery, I see...I see what's supposed to happen in case the governor does appoint someone. But, what happens in case the particular university fails to submit the names?
- MR. DENNERY
Well, that is the...status in the present law, Mr. Hayes. It is never...that situation has never occurred. I did not feel it was necessary to place this in here--any solution for that possibility. I would not object if you chose to place an amendment in there. You see, what happens, actually, as a practical matter, is that an appointee remains in office until his successor is duly appointed and qualified. I do believe that the other members of the commission, the Civil Service League, the governor, the man, or whoever it might be, would certainly get on the president of the university in question and require him to submit the nomination.
- MR. HAYES
The next question was, in the event one of the universities would close--I didn't see any provisions for that--but I guess...anything that can happen, will. Based on that, I thought since you put it in on the governor, I just wanted to bring it to your attention that it wasn't in there.
- MR. HAYNES
Excuse me, Delegate Dennery, I have implicit confidence in your knowledge of civil service.
- MR. DENNERY
Thank you, sir.
- MR. HAYNES
I have three very quick questions and then, I have an amendment I wish to offer to reinstitute the system we had prior to 1863, which I think would satisfy a lot of the problems that confront us in this convention.
Would you have any serious objections to adding Grambling College so that north Louisiana could be represented in the nominations for these positions, since we have it all skewed in the direction of New Orleans--and I can understand that very clearly, too.
- MR. DENNERY
Well, I would have no personal objection, no, sir. But, I think it would--I believe Grambling is a state university, is it not?
- MR. HAYNES
It's a state institution.
- MR. DENNERY
So I have....my proposal was to have all private universities. I would have no objection at all. But, I chose to use private universities because I feel very strongly that we should keep the appointment of the commissioners as far removed from politics as is humanly possible.
- MR. HAYNES
I can appreciate that. This is one of the things I resented. We've impeached every governor that we've had since Huey Long, here today, in the debate--in this convention.
My second question, since New Orleans is approximately fifty percent each way, now, and about seventy-seven percent of the students in the New Orleans public school system represent the predominant minority in the state, would you have any objection to adding Xavier University to sort of equalize the nominations from the...for the city?
- MR. DENNERY
You mean in the New Orleans commission?
- MR. HAYNES
In the New Orleans commission.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. DENNERY

Well, of course, that would give four people on the Civil Service Commission. I don't think it should be four. I would have no objection, sir, if you chose to make it five and added both Xavier and St. Mary's Dominican. That would give five.

MR. HAYNES

We'll do that. We'll make those....

My third question. In discussing with you, it seems that we have thirty--thirty-nine--persons qualified for the state police according to the civil service requirements. I have my serious concerns about those qualifications, of course. We have five hundred thirty-nine certified--by civil service--for welfare. Yet, these people can't get jobs. Would you accept an amendment to either make it statutory, or mandate that the governor, through executive order, would require fair employment, or employment in these positions without regards to race?

MR. DENNERY

Well, of course, the amendment contains exactly the lack of provision. It does not mandate the governor, but it does say that there shall be no discrimination when it comes to employment--no discrimination because of race, because of religion, or because of political affiliations. Now, you are suggesting, as I understand it, that the constitution contain a provision which would mandate the governor to cause all of the department heads to appoint, in view of that, in light of that nondiscriminatory provision, in a nondiscriminatory manner. It seems to me that our Bill of Rights already requires the governor to do exactly this. I should think that the governor, and all of the state appointing authorities, are under an obligation, or will be, when this is adopted, and the constitution is adopted, under the Bill of Rights, and under this, to be completely color-blind when it comes to appointments.

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Dennery, tell me, don't you think that with all the universities coming from New Orleans, making up this commission, don't you think you are creating enemies for the city? In my opinion, I believe New Orleans--many people across the state bear ill-feeling toward the city now--now to have the Civil Service of the State of Louisiana with all the universities located in the city, don't you think that's creating more enemies for the city?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Reverend Landrum, I had to make a choice, I suppose, based upon a philosophical problem. I felt that I should keep removed from any political taint, whatever, the appointment of the commission as to the Civil Service Commission. I felt that the best way to do that was to use private universities. It is a fact of life that of the seven private universities in Louisiana, five happen to be located in New Orleans. I would point out to you that alumni from Tulane, from Loyola, from Xavier, from Dillard, and from St. Mary's Dominican, are scattered throughout the State of Louisiana. I do not believe, sir, that the presidents of these five universities are so provincial as to appoint only people from their localities. I do believe that they would seek advice from their alumni throughout the state, all of whom are quite loyal to their universities, and seek advice as to what people might be capable from those particular areas to be named as nominees to be presented to the governor. Now, I mentioned--I stated in the beginning--that that on its face appears to be a disadvantage. I do not believe it to be. I think it is the lesser of two evils if you choose to put it that way.

MR. LANDRUM

Now, the...one other question I would like to ask you. I mean, I disagree with you on that. The burden of proof on appealed--now I know you are considered as one of the best legal minds in the country--

MR. DENNERY

Thank you. Pretty broad statement, but I thank you.

MR. LANDRUM

Well, and I mean I agree with that, but now the burden of proof on appeal as to the facts shall be on the employee.

MR. DENNERY

All right, Reverend, let me answer that question. It's a very interesting question and I've discussed it at length with some of the delegates here--Mr. Roy mentioned that he and I had discussed it. In the first place, the burden of proof has been placed on the employee in Louisiana since 1952. That's the present state of the law. There has been no change in the law. Based upon the fact that the burden of proof is upon the employee, all Civil Service Commissions' rules require that if a civil service employee is to be fired or demoted or punished in any way, the exact reasons, with date, place, and everything else, must be set forth, because it is well recognized that it is a little more difficult to prove a negative than to prove a positive. However, you must remember this, that when the employee appears before a commission and denies that he has done what he is alleged to have done in order to cause his dismissal, and this cause must be expressed in writing as the constitution requires; as soon as he has done this, the burden of going forward immediately shifts to the appointing authority who must then prove his case. Now, it is my considered opinion, after having served on this commission for ten years, that the employee is in a much better position under this setup, than if we permitted the state, with all of its assets, and all of its legal counsel and everything else, to present a case on the day of the trial, which the employee was not really in a position to defend.

Furthermore, I would call your attention to the fact that although Mr. Roy, in his discussion on the previous amendment, used the word "innocent until proven guilty," this is not a criminal case. Remember that. There is no crime associated with civil service dismissal. An employee is dismissed for cause. That cause must be expressed in writing. It must be a just cause. The burden of proof is to...is placed on the employee...although it may sound ridiculous to so state, it benefits the employee, in my opinion, and has so proven.

MR. LANDRUM

Well, the word "cause" is used in the '21 Constitution too. I just ...disagree with you.

MR. DENNERY

Well, of course, the courts have interpreted what cause for dismissal is. It's got to be pretty good cause before you can dismiss.

MRS. WARREN

Reverend Landrum asked you one of the questions I wanted so I won't go into it about a person having to prove himself when he is accused of something.

MR. DENNERY

It wasn't "accused," Mrs. Warren. Let's use specifically, now.

MRS. WARREN

Well, I mean, maybe I used the wrong word. But he said it.

MR. DENNERY

All right.

MRS. WARREN

I would ask this question, and I am ignorant. Somebody else wanted to know it so I'm going to ask it. Does garbage people have to take examinations?

MR. DENNERY

Does garbage people have to take examinations?

MRS. WARREN

Right. To work....

MR. DENNERY

It is my recollection that the position of garbage collectors in the city of New Orleans is what is known as a noncompetitive class and they do not have to take examinations. Approximately fifty percent of the employees in the State of Louisiana and I believe almost the same percentage in the city of New Orleans do not have to take competitive examinations.

MRS. WARREN

One more question.

When the garbage...since you are familiar with New Orleans and I am, too--when the garbage people went out on strike, why is it none of them lost their jobs?

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, Mrs. Warren, you are going to have to ask the mayor of the city that question. I can't possibly answer that.

MRS. WARREN

Well, I don't mind asking him. He looks just like you. I'm sorry you can't.

MR. DENNERY

Well, I can't possibly....well, I can't answer that question.

MRS. WARREN

I'm....Mr. Chairman, I was just asking him a question.

MR. DENNERY

All right. Go ahead, Mrs. Warren.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MRS. WARREN

The next thing I wanted to know is, why classified civil service workers and unclassified ones, some can participate in political processes some can't.

MR. DENNERY

Well, my understanding of the law, Mrs. Warren, is that an unclassified employee is...does what he wants. He is selected by his employer--maybe because of the color of his hair, of his skin, of his political affiliations, or what have you. He can be fired at will. He has no job security. It's not a merit system. That individual, the unclassified person, can participate in political activities. The classified employee may not participate in political activities. The reason for that is grounded in historical fact, particularly in Louisiana, but not only in Louisiana. If you recall, there is a Hatch Act in the federal government that says basically the same thing. Any classified employee, in order to have security of his job, should be prohibited from participating in political activities. Otherwise, his ultimate employer can force him to participate.

MRS. WARREN

Yes, sir. But, with the political spoil that we've got in our Executive Branch today, it could easily work that way, too, couldn't it?

MR. DENNERY

Not as far as classified employees, Mrs. Warren.

MR. ABRAHAM

Moise, I have several questions.

First of all, on page 2 where you talk about the terms, is it your intent that these terms would be for overlapping--would be overlapping terms?

MR. DENNERY

Mack, I've decided that that shouldn't be specifically in the constitution. It's in my delegate proposal. I think it's Number 28 or 29, which is a transitional article. It takes care of the overlapping terms. I would, however, have no objection to an amendment which uses the word "overlapping." As you know, if we are...if the convention is kind enough to adopt my amendment...amendments to it may be...will be submitted.

MR. ABRAHAM

When a...another question, now, where we are talking about the...nominating procedure from these various presidents, if we wanted to get statewide distribution here, we could simply amend this to read that not more than one member could come from a congressional district and that would handle that, would it not?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. ABRAHAM

The other question I have where we...on page 4, we talk about the departments of civil service. It's not your intent that these would be one of the departments in the...one of the twenty major departments in the Executive Article that we specified, is it?

MR. DENNERY

Not necessarily. It could very well be. But it's not necessarily one of them. I believe it's set up in that chart we had in our committee to be one of the departments.

MR. ABRAHAM

It would be a department itself--if we use the word department.

On page 5 where you say that the number to be certified shall be not less than three, as I...if I interpret this correctly, does not prevent the commission, in adopting its rules, or setting up its rules, to certify more than three if it so desires, would it?

MR. DENNERY

That's quite correct. That's the law right now.

MR. ABRAHAM

Where we say "no person shall solicit contributions for a political purpose from any classified employee," that is the law right now. But, if I understand you correctly, there are unclassified employees which come under civil service, are there not?

MR. DENNERY

No...the unclassified employee is as if you were not a civil service employee in the normal sense of the word. Technically, anybody who works--the governor is a civil service employee, but he's unclassified.

MR. ABRAHAM

The other question I would have is that if we agree in text with the text of your amendment...if we agreed in principle with the general text of your amendment here, we could go ahead and adopt that. Then, if there is any particular item in here that were not satisfactory...it could be amended, could it not?

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, Mr. Abraham.

MR. STAGG

Mr. Dennery, in the bottom of page 1 and the top of page 2, there is a considerable listing of people who are exempt or are not under the classified service. In about line 12, it mentions the offices of the governor. If I'm not too far wrong on my facts here, in recent months, the Centrex operators were changed from, I think, classified service, to be a part of the Division of Administration. I believe in addition to that, the guards out here on the parking lot may have similarly, or some other groups of employees were moved to the Division of Administration and, therefore, I presume, out from under the classified service.

When you say here simply, "the offices of the governor," how far does that extend and what is the ability of the governor to move people who are protected by being classified employees and shoved over into unclassified positions, and, thereby, able to be fired without cause.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Stagg, the only way I can answer that question is to refer you to a case in New Orleans many years ago when the mayor of the city at that time did exactly what you suggest could be done. The court slapped him down and said you could not enlarge "the office of the governor" by taking in extraneous divisions and say they are part of his office. It means the office of the governor in a normal sense of the word.

MR. J. JACKSON

Now, Mr. Dennery, in that the commission has the right to set rules which have the effect of law and I understand you provide that there is an appeal to the commission, but is there any place within your provision that would allow for a judicial review of a commission's ruling?

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Jackson, the...let me find it...the...it's in here. I just don't remember exactly where it is--on page 7? Yes. That...makes the decision of the commission final on the facts, but subject to review on any question of law, court of appeal.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Dennery, I'll get back to the burden of proof on appeal--the facts shall be...the burden shall be on the employee. Would you please explain to this convention how a complaint is filed, how it is subsequently tried, and how the shifting of the burden is transferred from the employee back to the commission?

MR. DENNERY

Well, not to the commission, but to the appointing authority. The normal procedure that has been followed through the years, Mr. Anzalone...Mr. Anzalone, excuse me...the appointing authority has to write a letter of dismissal. In this letter of dismissal, he sets forth the cause for the dismissal, or for whatever other disciplinary action is taken. Within a certain period of time fixed by the rules, usually thirty days, the employee has a right to appeal by writing a simple letter to the commission in question, setting forth why those facts are not true, or why if true, they do not constitute cause. The commission then fixes this matter for hearing.

At the trial, the adversary parties, or the employee, "appellant" as he is called, and the department head or appointing authority "appellee." At the beginning of the trial, it is incumbent upon the employee to show either one of the two things I just stated--either that the facts are not true or that the facts, if true, do not constitute cause for dismissal. All he needs to do is make a prima facie case of this, at which point the burden of going forward immediately shifts to the appointing authority, who must establish beyond per adventure of a doubt, that these facts are true.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Moise, a great deal of criticism has...been given to the Civil Service System because complaints can be filed by people who are never known to the person who's going to be fired. Is this true?

MR. DENNERY

I don't quite follow you, Joe.

MR. ANZALONE

Well, for instance, if I were to file a complaint against you, who would be a fellow civil service employee....

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. DENNERY

Are you talking now about a complaint of violation of, say, a political activities law, or something like that?

MR. ANZALONE

Well, any reason to get you fired.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now....let me see if I can explain it in this way. There are two types of hearings before the Civil Service Commission. They can make an investigation of a violation of the civil service law, and any citizen can file a complaint on that. But, if he files it, he's got to sign his name to it, and all of the facts are there for the employee who is charged with having violated the civil service law. Otherwise, the appointing authority is the only person who can actually sign the letter of dismissal. Now, it may very well be true that that particular individual is not personally known to the appointing authority, or vice versa. If it's a particularly large department, quite frequently the department head does not know all of his employees.

MR. ANZALONE

We still seem to be escaping what I'm trying to get after. If I want to report you, a fellow civil servant, for some activity which would cause you to lose your job, do you have the right at any stage of the proceedings, to know who I am and have the right to cross-examine me?

MR. DENNERY

If it's for a violation of the civil service law, the answer would be yes. If, however, the department head receives information from a fellow employee, I do not know that he is required to give that information out. Joe, I just can't answer positively yes or no on that particular point.

MR. ANZALONE

Do you think it should be?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I think you have the same problem, I suppose, that the police departments have--probably should be to a certain extent. Possibly not completely.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

MR. TAPPER

Number one, Moise, for the life of me, I cannot understand how we arrived at the theory or principle or what-have-you that the private schools should be the ones nominating the people on the board. Don't you know that I believe that there are more students in the public institutions in this state than there are in the private institutions. Didn't you know that I believe that at least Louisiana State University and Southern, and possibly some of the others, have an equal right to nominate, if any one of them has a right to nominate to the Civil Service Commission.

MR. DENNERY

Until you just told me, I did not know. I do now.

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Acting Chairman, I had asked the question, and Mr. Dennery was not afforded the opportunity to answer it. Do you remember the question, Mr. Dennery, or do you want me to put it to you again?

MR. DENNERY

You mean about the private and public institutions.

MR. TAPPER

Yes. Why just private institutions and not public institutions?

MR. DENNERY

Well, the reason, Mr. Tapper, is my firm conviction that one, if not the most important features of a good civil service system in this state is to have as independent a commission as can be arrived at. I felt that the college president method, having worked since 1952 pretty successfully with four private universities and one public institution, there was no reason not to continue with the university president theory. I chose to enlarge the number by two, to make it seven. It happens that there are seven private universities. Therefore, it seemed to me that this would remove it one step further, possible, from any complaint that politics was involved in the appointment.

MR. TAPPER

In other words, Mr. Dennery, you're telling us that there would be...or there is less politics in private institutions than there are in public institutions; so, you're telling us that you'd have less discrimination and partiality and favoritism by having the private institutions recommend, rather than the public institutions. That's what you're telling us.

MR. DENNERY

What I am saying, Mr. Tapper, is that I believe I have removed it as far as it can be removed. I did not say it was one hundred percent removed. But, I felt that it was as far removed as it could be.

MR. TAPPER

But, did you know, Mr. Dennery, that the private institutions represent only a small segment of the people in the population in this state, whereas the public institutions represent the large majority of the people in the state?

MR. DENNERY

Well, when we talk about colleges, Mr. Tapper, there is a difference; obviously, there have been more students at the public institutions than there are in the private institutions. To that extent, your statement is correct. Neither public nor private universities really represent a vast majority of the people in the state of Louisiana.

MR. TAPPER

Well, then, don't you believe that we should just exclude all of these institutions, per se, and let's have some other body or maybe the governor or someone else appoint these people, instead of singling out just the private institutions to do this. What is it...this is an archaic thing, isn't it, Mr. Dennery? What I mean is...you know, this is a hold-over from the old days, so to speak. Do we really need this type of government in Louisiana?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Senator, let me put it this way...

MR. TAPPER

Thank you, I'm not a Senator, but I appreciate it.

MR. DENNERY

I mean Representative. Excuse me. I don't know whether you should thank me or not. There have been many arguments made on that, and there's good logic on both sides.

As you know, Mr. Tapper, there have been suggestions made over the years that the governor by himself appoint the members of the Civil Service Commission. But, this has never become very popular. At the present time, the governor appoints the members of the commission from lists of three names submitted by each of the five university presidents. As a practical matter, on many occasions throughout the years in the State of Louisiana, the college president has not named, or has included in his nominees, other than his own college graduates. Now, it is true that they do not represent as many people. But, they are further removed from the possibility--I don't say the actuality--but the possibility of political control, than are the state universities...

MR. TAPPER

I understand that. They're also further removed from the people, also, Mr. Dennery, don't you think? Let me ask one further question? In your proposal, as I read it, once the charges are made against an employee, then the burden shifts from the employer to the employee, and the employee then has to disprove the charges made against him. Don't you think that that's a little harsh?

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, I'm sorry you didn't hear my explanation of that before, Mr. Tapper. But, my explanation was based upon the fact that if, as you know, if the prosecution--if you wish to call it that, although this is not a criminal matter--has the right to bring all of its forces to bear the first go-around, and has the ability to present all sorts of facts that the employee knew nothing about, it becomes very difficult at that point for the employee to disprove, even though the department must carry the burden of proof. The system, as it's presently used, provides that the appointing authority or the dismissing authority, if you will, must set up chapter and verse in his letter of dismissal, the cause for which the disciplinary action is taken. Once a prima facie case is made by the employee, the burden immediately shifts back to the appointing authority, who must then fully prove beyond any doubt the allegations which are contained in his letter of disciplinary action. Over the years we have found that this favors the employee much more than the employer.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Dennery, one final question, would you object to my putting an amendment on to do what you said your proposal does because I don't think it does that. Would you agree to allow me to put an amendment on which would shift the burden back from the employee to the employer?

MR. DENNERY

I would argue against it, but I would certainly agree to let you submit it.

MR. TAPPER

Well, why would you argue against shifting the burden to the employer, Mr. Dennery?

MR. DENNERY

Because I think it's much safer for the employee as it is, Mr. Tapper. I have told you that.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Dennery, I refer you to that passage which states that... I had it underlined here...which states on page 6, "rules adopted pursuant hereto shall have the effect of law." In the Legislative Article, and pursuant to good common sense, the laws are promulgated. Now, if these rules have the effect of law, where is the provision whereby the rules of the Civil Service Commission will be promulgated?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Willis, as a practical matter, what happens is a rule can only be adopted after a public hearing, as it states in here somewhere. Once the rule is adopted, it is filed with the secretary of the commission. That constitutes the promulgation. There is no specific provisions for promulgation, per se.

MR. WILLIS

Well, isn't that a defect insofar as that's concerned with respect to universal applicability throughout the state?

MR. DENNERY

No. It would have to be filed with the secretary of the commission. It's available to everyone at that time.

MR. WILLIS

Well, talking about that availability, I tell you that I wrote to the Civil Service Commission, about seven or eight days...nine or ten days ago, asking them for some information to which I have received no response.

MR. DENNERY

Well, I'll have to ask Mr. Sexton, who's in the audience somewhere, to answer your letter today.

MR. WILLIS

Well, he has already told me he would, but after some coaxing.

MR. DENNERY

O.K.

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Dennery, did you intend to include, or keep in your proposal the prohibition against civil servants to make a contribution to political parties, as is described in this circular? In that it is now a part of the Internal Revenue Code, as I read the language on page 5, it prohibits them from making the check-off. Is that correct? Did you intend to include that in there?

MR. DENNERY

Well, at the time I included it in it, the language was taken from the present section. I was not aware of the letter which is the circular which went out on the date of April 2, Mr. Jackson, until just now. I just received a copy of it.

MR. A. JACKSON

But, you do agree that it prevents civil servants from making the check-off?

MR. DENNERY

It would appear to unless the commission has ruled that the contrary since that time. I'm not sure whether the commission has ruled on this.

MR. A. JACKSON

According to their ruling, there is a prohibition. But, I have one other question. On page 8, on the Section O, is it correct that local governing bodies could place employees that are now exempted from civil service under a civil service system? For example, suppose a local school board wanted to place all of the school teachers under civil service. Wouldn't this be possible under your Section O?

MR. DENNERY

I think that's the same provision that's in the present law. I think...

MR. A. JACKSON

That's not my question.

MR. DENNERY

No, no, I'm trying to--if you'll pardon me, Representative Jackson--I'm trying to recall if there have been any rulings on this to my knowledge. It is my recollection, sir, that the legislature has always had the right to do this, although, I believe that the civil service system would be applicable to any or all parish employees. I do not think that would include the school board employees.

MR. A. JACKSON

It says, though, sir, "or by the respective local governing bodies."

MR. DENNERY

Well, I would assume, sir, if the school board...I don't think the school board could do that. As I understand, the school system is set up with a teacher tenure law, anyway.

MR. A. JACKSON

But, it says "nothing in this section shall prevent the establishment by the legislature, or by the respective local governing bodies, in any one or more parishes." Then, he goes on to say, "including those herein and above exempted."

MR. DENNERY

Well, do you...would you include, sir, school board employees as employees of the parish? I would think not.

MR. A. JACKSON

Of course, they are.

MR. DENNERY

I would think they are employees of the school board, rather than of the parish, as such.

MR. A. JACKSON

That's a local governing...a school board is a local governing body.

MR. DENNERY

I don't know that I can answer the question any more than that, Mr. Jackson. I do not believe this has ever been done, nor do I think it's ever been contemplated, nor do I think it's possible.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Dennery, as I've said before, I think that you have a good overall approach to civil service here. There are one or two things that I might disagree with and want to change. But, really, what you're asking us to do, if we vote for this amendment, is to accept this as a working draft. Then, you would expect us to go back lettered paragraph by lettered paragraph, debate it on its merits, offer amendments, and by sixty-seven votes, adopt or reject each given lettered paragraph. Isn't that correct?

MR. DENNERY

I would think so. Yes, sir.

MR. JENKINS

So, even though we may disagree with parts of it, that's not a reason to vote against this if we think this would be a good working draft.

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, Representative Jenkins.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Dennery, I notice here...I think I have the answer,

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

but I just want to be sure that I'm correct in this. On page 2, where it says "the lieutenant governor, each mayor and city attorney of the several cities, of police juries, of school boards, of assessors, and all offices provided for in Article V of this Constitution except the clerks of court, and so forth." Now, is the reason that you didn't list sheriffs, deputies, clerks of court deputies for the reason that they are listed in Article V of this constitution?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir. I believe they are all covered there, and I thought it would shorten this language considerably by referring to another article in the constitution.

MR. HERNANDEZ

I thought it was correct. Just wanted to be sure, sir. Thank you.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Dennery, I'm looking at your Paragraph (N), Acceptance of Act; Other Cities, Parishes, City and Parish Governed Jointly. If one of these units of government would elect to choose the provisions of your proposal, they could do so under this provision. Is that correct?

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, sir.

MR. LANIER

However, am I correct in saying that under your Paragraph (O), that if they chose not to go under these provisions, nevertheless, these units of government could get a legislative act which would create a different form of civil service than that provided for in this proposal.

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, Mr. Lanier because there are many communities which might want to have a civil service system, but not to the extent of the one set forth in here, which is designed primarily for a larger community and for the state. Many communities would not have the financial ability to support a complete civil service system of this type. They might well have their financial responsibility and desire to have a smaller type civil service commission which they could present to the legislature, and thereby have it enacted.

MR. LANIER

Therefore, this last paragraph really gives you the flexibility legislatively to mold a civil service system to fit the needs of particular parishes or municipalities under the required amount of your proposal.

MR. DENNERY

That's correct, sir. That was the purpose of it.

MR. LANIER

Now, the other thing, if a city were to elect to come under the provisions of your proposal, after they have adopted civil service, could they by a similar vote, elect to get out of civil service?

MR. DENNERY

I'm sure they could, sir. Yes, sir.

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Dennery, some of my questions as to some of the unclassified employees has been answered, in particular about the sheriffs and the assessors. But, I notice on page 1, we have exempt from the unclassified service, the registrars of voters. Does that also include the employees of the registrar of voters?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir.

MR. PLANCHARD

Do you consider them as employees of the parish?

MR. DENNERY

Well, in some instances they are, sir; if they are parish employees, they're excluded. In some areas, for instance, in New Orleans, as I recall, they are city employees...oh, they are in the state service in New Orleans...some of them are parish employees, and therefore they would be excluded, anyway.

MR. PLANCHARD

Well, I wanted to know if you included or considered them as parish employees, or if you would consider putting them in the unclassified section.

MR. DENNERY

Well, as I understand it, from the way I have this drawn, if they are a local governmental subdivision, they are not covered under the state civil service. That would include a parish, for instance, and a city, except that the cities over two hundred and fifty thousand are specifically included--their employees are. Therefore, if the registrar of voters in your particular parish is a parochial employee, then his people would not be included in the classified service...they wouldn't be part of the state service. On the other hand, if they happened to be a state employee, only the registrar would be exempt, or in the unclassified service.

MR. WINCHESTER

You did not think schoolteachers could be included in the civil service organization? Does that also apply to employees of an assessor's office?

MR. DENNERY

Oh, yes. There's no question about that, Mr. Winchester. It clearly states that assessors are excluded and all deputies, employees, and administrative assistants of deputies.

MR. WINCHESTER

But, in this where it says that regardless of these exemptions, that would not let you then put them back in?

MR. DENNERY

I would not think so, sir, unless the parish wanted to. Now, if the parish wants to put the assessors under a parochial civil service system, that's the parish's problem. That's not under this act, under this law. It would have to go to the legislature, or else they would have to adopt it themselves.

MR. WINCHESTER

You could not do it under this?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir.

MR. WINCHESTER

Thank you, sir.

MR. CASEY

That's all the questions, Mr. Dennery.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I thank the delegates very much for their kind attention, and I trust you will see fit to adopt this amendment.

MR. CASEY

I see Mr. Willis has a question.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Dennery, may I ask you one question with respect to that last question asked you by Mr. Winchester? I refer you to the next to last line on page 8, which says, you have excluded sheriffs, assessors and so forth, which says that "the civil service is not prevented from establishing," and so forth, "including those here and after exempted from the state classified service," so that you could put under civil service, deputy assessors and deputy sheriffs and deputy clerks; could you not?

MR. DENNERY

The legislature has always had that power, Mr. Willis. The legislature has always had the power to add to the classified service.

MR. WILLIS

Well, it says here, "or by the respective local governing body." That's an addition, isn't it? The legislature?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir. No, sir. The parishes always have that right, also.

MR. WILLIS

Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen, there's two philosophies here before us with reference to civil service. I'd like to speak to you and ask you to listen carefully. Either you believe that the present civil service provisions which we have in the constitution are adequate, and need no changes and should not be changed, or else they can be improved upon. That's it, and that doesn't make any difference whether you are for the Dennery proposal, or for the De Blieux proposal, or for some other proposal. Now, the difference between what I have set before this convention in my proposal, and what Mr. Dennery has, he believes that this convention and this convention only, should have the right to make any improvements in civil service. We've got one hundred and thirty-two delegates in this convention. Sixty-seven of them can adopt any amendment and make any change in the civil service proposal that we have. Now, there's one hundred and forty-four members of the legislature. It takes twenty-six senators and seventy representatives, or a total of a hundred and six people before any change can be made in civil service under my proposal. Now, if the civil service needs improvement now, why shouldn't it maybe need some improvement four, five, ten years from now? I think civil service has worked for us fairly well. But, I do think that it can be improved upon from time to time. I don't want to make any changes now because the vast number of people I talked to have said, "Don't change civil service." But, yet, then I ask them the question, "Do you think it should ever come a time when we might want to change it?" Oh, yes, but don't change it now. I dare to say that the most of the people you talk to, will probably tell you the same thing. So, I don't want to change it now. But, I'm not saying it should never be changed, and I'm not the one to say that the convention and only the convention has the wisdom to know that what should be in the civil service law and nobody else should have that intellect, or has that intellect. Now, so, I ask you to search your conscience as to what you want in that constitution. Do you want something that cannot be changed whatsoever, except by a constitutional amendment? Then, if you do, you are going to be opposed to what the committee has proposed. You are going to be opposed to what Mr. Dennery has proposed. You are going to be opposed to what I have proposed because you want to incorporate what we presently have and put that in the constitution as we have it now--twenty odd pages in our constitution, and make no changes except by constitutional amendment.

All right. Now, if you feel like that it can be improved upon, but you don't want to make any changes now, then you ought to be for my proposal. If you feel like this Constitutional Convention is the only one that has the wisdom to make suggested changes, and then you don't want any changes after the Constitutional Convention makes them, you feel like that we are all omnipotent, and have the intellect to know what should be done in the future. Then, you'd be for Mr. Dennery's proposal because he doesn't want any changes after he gets adopted what he wants. I'm not one of those individuals that feel like that I've got all the knowledge and nobody else knows anything. So, I want to give the people who come after me the right to make some suggestions, too. That's why I propose in my particular amendment that we keep what we've got, that we make no changes now, but give the legislature, who will require a greater number of votes to make a change, than this Constitutional Convention needs in order to make whatever necessary changes that might be fit.

I ask you to vote against the Dennery amendment, and adopt my amendment when it comes up.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I urge the rejection of Mr. Dennery's amendment. Now, let me make one thing perfectly clear at this point. That is, that I believe in a strong civil service system, but we've got to define...

I say, let me make this clear; even though I rise to urge, as strongly as I can, the rejection of Mr. Dennery's amendments, I do favor and believe in a strong civil service system. But, I think that we must define our terms. To me, and this is just my opinion, and what I believe, the object of civil service is to secure career employees, the best employees, who will make a career of service in government, to insure that those people will be initially hired on the basis of merit.

They will be promoted on the basis of merit, and that they will not be arbitrarily treated and fired, to give them job security. I have worked with the present civil service provisions in the constitution since they've been there, and they do far more than that. This amendment of Mr. Dennery's even goes further than the present provisions of the constitution. It is an advocacy, a complete advocacy by the one hundred and forty-four elected representatives of the people of this state to five or seven appointed individuals of the entire personnel system of this state. That, to me, is unsound. It's bad. It is bad for the people of the state. It is bad for the state employees. Now, I was most surprised and shocked to see added to the present provisions of the constitution--the new provision which Mr. Dennery, very frankly, admitted was new-- that when it comes to employee training and safety now, no official of this state, and the legislature of this state will have any say-so about those things except the Civil Service Commission. Now, I respectfully submit to you, whether you agree or whether you disagree with the recent legislation that purported to establish a pay plan for state police officers--whether you thought that was good or bad--that you have got to recognize that times do arise when the legislature of this state, and the governor of this state, acting through the processes of law for the enactment of legislation, have got to have the right and they have got to have the power to address themselves to a particular problem because they are the elected officials of this state, the elected representatives of this state, and they are the people in whom the people of the state have placed their confidence and responsibility. Now, you look about, and you ask yourself, we cannot get a physician at Angola. We cannot get psychiatrists at East Louisiana State Hospital and the other state hospitals. Why? I say, because of the present civil service system and the fact that the legislature cannot do anything at all, insofar as the pay of those type of people are concerned. I tell you that when you come along and you engraft upon the provisions of the present constitution, this additional provision, that when it comes to the question of employee training and safety, that the duly constituted elected representatives of the people, the governor and the heads of the various departments have no say-so, no say-so, whatsoever in those particular areas. All of that power, in addition to the power they already have, is vested in an appointed body, completely unresponsive and isolated from the day-to-day facts of life, that you're making a terrible mistake. I admire Mr. Dennery. I know he believes in civil service. I think I believe in civil service. I think we just don't quite agree on what civil service is. But, when he got up here and admitted, as I understand it, that if this amendment is adopted and became the constitution of this state, that neither the legislature, nor the superintendent of the state police could say that a state police patrol car had to be occupied by no less than two troopers, without the approval of the Civil Service Commission. If we do that, then I think we're doing a damn fool thing.

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of the Dennery amendment. May I take this opportunity to explain my unusual votes on the Flory amendments of yesterday and today. I supported Amendment No. 1, but I opposed the others. I suppose that's why my position was a little confusing to you. But, let me say what the Dennery amendment does, or the Dennery amendments do. There has been quite a bit of discussion, here, about politics in the civil service system. Well, if we are worried about that, I think the Dennery amendment, or amendments, negate the possibility of a governor, or a sheriff of a parish, or the mayor of a municipality manipulating or controlling either a state civil service system or a local system. It takes out the possibility of spoils because under the provisions of this amendment, if it is administered correctly, there could be no spoils system. Now, I have been among those, who over the years, to complain about discrimination in employment in this state. I know that there has been discrimination, and so do you. Anyone in here over forty years of age can remember when there were no black employees on any payroll, other than menial positions. Is that to say that there were none qualified? Yet, there were none. Now, you know that, and I know it. But, I say to you at this time, that I'm willing to let bygones be bygones on that score, since we cannot correct everything. I say to you that this amendment does make provision for blacks to be represented. I'm not a pessimist; I don't believe, as a friend of mine told me, that the opposition of many of you out there is based on the fact that certain black institutions are being included. I don't believe you're that racist. I have more confidence in human nature than that. Now, let me warn those of you, especially those of you black delegates who are talking about Southern and Grambling, remember, there are eleven state institutions controlled by the Board of Education--I think there are eleven; I've counted them. Now, if we must include Southern, or if we must include Grambling, then there's no reason why we shouldn't include Northwestern, and Tech, and Southwestern, and Southeastern, and on down the line, is there? So, we must be logical about this thing. If we're going to turn around, now, and discriminate against some other institution in order to include a black institution, then, I think we're going to defeat the whole thing. Now, why does the Dennery amendment, or why do the Dennery amendments stipulate that only private schools, in effect, will be included? For the same reason. What must we do if we're going to include all the institutions in Louisiana, of higher learning? If we leave out just one--I heard somebody say, "Well, Nicholls State was left out"--if we leave out just one, then that one has a right to complain and to oppose the constitution, and to oppose everything we do--just one can claim discrimination, and I would go along with them.

May I ask you to vote for the Dennery amendment. I have many other reasons. I'll be glad to answer questions, if you'll give me a few more minutes, Mr. Chairman--just to answer questions.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Reverend Alexander, I heard you mention--and I've heard this mentioned quite a bit--the spoils system. Now, we're talking about spoils system, and the only thing I see who to prevent a spoils system is a classified civil service workers. Could you tell me how we could write something in this constitution that would prevent an unclassified spoils system?

MR. ALEXANDER

I don't think we can do that, Mrs. Warren, if you're talking about unclassified employees, because unclassified employees are elected officials and appointive officials. I don't think we can do that.

MRS. WARREN

Reverend Alexander, I only have reference to those that are appointed, and I think that they should be on their merits. I don't think we would have as much spoil at the top as we got in the middle, if we did something about it.

MR. ALEXANDER

Well, there's nothing before us, now, to change the unclassified personnel.

MR. TAPPER

Reverend, I just have one simple question, and that is--really, I don't know why you've taken the position you have. But, my question is: Why private institutions, or why institutions of higher learning, at all?

MR. ALEXANDER

I think the original concept was to take politics out of the civil service system when higher institutions were utilized, originally. I'm speaking about twenty and twenty-five years ago. Okay? Now we've come to the point where we find that if we utilized public institutions, in effect, to my way of thinking, we would give control of the civil service system, or we could give it to the Board of Education, because the Board of Education controls the eleven colleges. Then, we must expand the whole thing, maybe to twenty people, in order to cover the eleven institutions and all the others.

MR. TAPPER

I understand that. Then, what you're saying is that it's better to have a small segment of the people that are really representative of big business and big money and industry to make the decisions of putting people on this civil service commission, instead of the people at large. Is that what you're saying?

Further Discussion

MR. TATE

I've consistently been wrong, so I just want to tell you, as I see the situation, what I intend to do and hope someone with some question will tell me why this analysis is wrong. We adopted the third Flory amendment which, in effect, destroyed the committee proposal. We are now left with the Dennery amendment which is a detailed, but considerably less detailed approach, to regulation of civil service than the committee proposal, and the present constitution. We are left lurking somewhere. The De Blieux amendment, or any other amendments we want, which has the approach-- personally, when the time comes, I hope to vote for it--to take it all out of the constitution subject to a two-thirds vote. But, as I see it now, we have very little other alternative, to me, to study civil service and to vote on it, than to adopt the Dennery amendment right now, and then take out of it what we don't like. Hopefully, the very first amendment that will come up will give us a chance to vote on the De Blieux amendment. Now, that's my analysis of it as a very bewildered parliamentarian. I've been giving it a lot. . .by the way, Mr. Speaker, if Linda Lovelace would please stop sending me those letters about some recent, other opinions I've written, I would have a little more confidence in making expressions of bewilderment than I have right now.

Question

MR. CHATELAIN

Judge Tate, it seems that we kind of bogged down on who. . . what universities, if any, should be the nominating group to nominate the members of the civil service commission. Judge, would you go along with an idea of the Louisiana Supreme Court nominating all seven of them from one congressional district-- not more than one from each district?

MR. TATE

If you would take away our jurisdiction over pornography, I think I would be very. . .with regard to that, for instance, I think that could be amended out if. . .different methods could be provided by amendment than is there provided, if we are dissatisfied with it. Well, I hope I've contributed to your bewilderment. Thank you very much.

Point of Information

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Chairman, I have some amendments up there. Let me ask a point of information? Are we speaking on the final passage of this amendment, aren't we?

Now, aren't there some amendments on the desk to this amendment, or we have to adopt this first?

MR. POYNTER

You'd have to. . .before they'd be offered, you'd have to adopt this, Mr. Tapper. There were, in similar vein, there were a number of amendments at the desk to the Flory amendment, had it been adopted, you know. So. . .

Further Discussion

MR. TAPPER

Well, in that event, then, I rise in opposition to the amendment for several reasons. One of the most glaring is that the burden of proof is placed upon the employee on appeal. Now, I have an amendment--if this is adopted--then I have an amendment to change that. This is one of the reasons that I'm opposed to it, and I'm opposed to it on another very glaring reason. This archaic business of the private institutions of this state making the recommendations when they only represent a small segment of the people of this state. The Reverend was very able when he spoke about it and explained his position on it. But, you know, when we talk about politics, Reverend, you don't get to be president of a university, whether it be public or private, unless you're a good politician. I know you know that, too, don't you, Mr. Jackson? You've never been president? But, when we talk about politics, there's politics in every walk of life, and you don't find anymore politics than you do in a private institution when somebody is trying to get to be president. Those people have power. But, my main objection is the employee--the employee--having to prove that he didn't do anything wrong. You know, the employer says, this is what he did. They don't prove anything--submit a prima facie case. You know what that is? Those of you who are not lawyers and some of you who are maybe don't know what a prima facie case is. They say that you did this and so. That's a prima facie case. You're removed; you appeal it. On appeal, you have to prove that you did no wrong. Beautiful. Mr. Dennery says, "It's been working for years. This is in the welfare. . .for the welfare of the employee that he has to prove that he hasn't done anything wrong." That's beautiful.

I oppose the amendment; I hope you do. At this time, if I'm in order, Mr. Chairman, I'd like to move to return the amendment and the proposal back to the committee. Is that proper?

MR. HENRY
What did you do? You moved to do what?
Now, you gentlemen get your heads together because the motion is not in order to . . .
All right, gentlemen, let's hold it down.

Motion

MR. TAPPER
I move to table the amendment, Mr. Chairman.
MR. HENRY
The gentleman now moves to table the amendment.
MR. TAPPER
The reason I do that is because the next motion is going to be to recommit the proposal.

[Record vote ordered.]

Point of Information

MR. DUVAL
A point of information, Mr. Chairman. What will be the effect of this amendment if it is tabled? How can the convention, then, hear it again?
MR. HENRY
How can it do what?
MR. DUVAL
How can the convention hear the amendment in the event it's tabled?
MR. HENRY
Call the amendment from the table.
MR. DUVAL
What vote would that take?
MR. HENRY
A two-thirds vote of those present and voting, or a suspension of the rules.

Point of Information

MR. LANIER
Mr. Chairman, if we table this thing, would Mr. Dennery be able to make a few minor changes and come back with the same thing again, with the changes?
MR. HENRY
If you table the amendment, and he can't get his amendment off the table, and he comes up with another amendment that's not identically the same, yes, sir.

[Substitute motion to call for the Previous Question on the entire subject matter.]

Point of Information

MR. DE BLEUX
If the motion to table should be carried, that would not prevent the taking up of other amendments to this particular. . .
MR. HENRY
No, sir; not at all.

Motion

MR. SMITH
Mr. Chairman, I'd like to move at this time that we adjourn until tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock.

[Motion to adjourn withdrawn. Motion to table withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

MR. STOVALL
Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I feel that we need to get before us some vehicle through which we can express our specific desires concerning civil service. I think there are two or three ways to do this. One is to adopt the Dennery amendment; another is to recommit. I think that all of us, here, are interested in a viable and meaningful civil service system for the state. I think that the two extremes have been: one has been concerned about flexibility in the present system. I have been concerned about this; at the same time, I am concerned about maintaining a very strong civil service system. So, some of you have been, possibly, more concerned with stability rather than flexibility. I think what we need to do is to vote either to recommit or to vote on the Dennery amendment. I think that rather than express further views concerning the civil service amendment by Mr. Dennery, which is before us, that the next speaker will make a definite motion, and will have definite suggestions. That's all that I'm going to say about it at this time.

Further Discussion

MR. ABRAHAM
Ladies and gentlemen, I think that the convention has already spoken. I think that we are just wasting a lot of time, here. I think the proper thing for us to do in order to get something before this body and keep our work moving is to go ahead and adopt the Dennery amendment. Use this as the same as a committee proposal, if we should want to, and let's go through it paragraph by paragraph and offer whatever amendments we want because, to me, this gives us the structure or the framework that we need that we can work on. There are many things in here which may not be good, but let's just treat it as a committee proposal. It won't do us any good to recommit because we're going to come right back out with a proposal and have to go through this same thing all over again. So, I would suggest that we do it now. I would like to move the previous question, if the other speakers would waive, but I won't insist on it.

Further Discussion

MR. KELLY
Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think I've sat here for the last two or three days as patiently and tried to listen as hard as anyone in this convention, because I am the first to admit that I don't know that much about civil service, exactly what it stands for, what its functions are, what its duties are, or the operations of the system at all. I've tried to learn what I could, but it's obvious that there's been battle after battle, here, for the last two days. It's been argumentative; there's no question about that. People are advocates, and I don't deny them that right. But, at the same time, I think what we are primarily concerned in is the stability of the working people of this state, not only with their stability, but with the stability of state government, which goes right along with it. Now, we've got to hit a happy medium, here, somewhere. I don't know what the answer is; I don't have the answer, at this particular time. I'm not an expert, but I know one thing: we have got to do something. What we do at this particular point in this convention, better darn sure be right. This has been expressed up here before, because someone has said many times before, we've made about as many mistakes as we can make. Therefore, what I plan to do, within the next few minutes, I plan to make a motion to recommit this entire article back to this committee. We have heard the arguments, here, for two days, and that the pros and the cons have been brought out. They can take this back into committee, and they can bring us some working document back out of that committee. I think it's clearly understood, within this convention, that people want something shorter than what we've got. Yet, at this particular moment, we don't even have a working document before us. All right. Now, here's what you're cast with, with the Dennery amendment--and there are a lot of good things in Mr. Dennery's amendment, from what I've read. There are a lot of things which I don't necessarily agree with. What I have got to do, and what I'm going to be forced to do, and what you're going to be forced to do is to vote either yes or no on this entire nine page document. Quite frankly, I don't want to have to do that, at this particular time. We're going to spend the next days and the next weeks sitting here, coming with amendment after amendment. I bet you there's a hundred and fifty amendments laying back here in this room, right now, just in case this particular article or this particular amendment passes. So, what I submit that we need to do is to get this proposal, this article, back into the committee. Let these people who have definite interests in this try and work out some of their problems. Let's bring it back to us sectionalized, where we can take it step, by step, by step.

In order to do that--and let me explain this, and this is nothing, trying to cut anybody off, trying to play dirty, or anything else. But, under our parliamentary rules, the only way that this can be accomplished, at this particular time, is to make a motion to table Mr. Denney's amendment. Now, once that motion is made--I don't think that that is doing anything unjust to the Denney amendment, anything unjust to the cause which he promotes--all it's going to do is put us in line to come back and make this motion to recommit. We've got to table this amendment, first.

Therefore, Mr. Chairman, I make a motion to table Mr. Denney's amendment.

[Motion to table the Amendment.]

Substitute Motion

MR. PEREZ

I know that this matter needs a lot more consideration, but I don't see any purpose in returning it. I'd like to move at this time as a substitute, that we adjourn until nine o'clock Tuesday, when we can return to the convention hall and have something... machine to vote with.

[Substitute motion rejected. Substitute motion to adjourn to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Friday, December 7, 1973 rejected: 46-47. Record vote ordered on motion to table.]

Point of Information

MR. NUNEZ

If we table the amendment, then what is before the convention?

MR. HENRY

If we table this amendment, we have numerous other amendments up here we could consider.

MR. NUNEZ

If we table the amendment and if we want to reconsider the amendment, the author could not just pull it from the calendar, it would take a two-thirds....

MR. HENRY

He would have to move to call it from the table. It would take a two-thirds vote of those present and voting or either a suspension of the rules.

MR. NUNEZ

A further point of information, Mr. Chairman. Will the machine be working tomorrow?

MR. HENRY

No.

MR. NUNEZ

... the voting machine?

MR. HENRY

No, sir. We've got to get a man from out of somewhere to come down here and work on it.

Point of Information

MR. FULCO

I was going to ask the question you answered about what vote is required to call it from the table. You said two-thirds?

MR. HENRY

Of those present and voting.

MR. FULCO

Two-thirds of those voting?

[2646]

MR. HENRY

Present and voting, sir.

MR. FULCO

Thank you.

Point of Information

MR. DESHOTELS

That applies also to referring it back to committee, that you need a two-thirds vote?

MR. HENRY

No, sir. You don't need a two-thirds vote.

MR. DESHOTELS

What will we need to get it back to committee?

MR. HENRY

Well, you've got to dispose of the amendment in some fashion or other. It's a majority of those present and voting to recommit.

MR. DESHOTELS

In other words, after it has been tabled, we can move to have it recommitted?

MR. HENRY

After the... well, you could have the proposal... you could move to recommit the proposal, you see.

Point of Information

MR. KELLY

Point of information, Mr. Chairman.

If... say you ... the motion carries to table, and the amendment is tabled and then a motion is made to recommit the entire proposal to the committee. Of course, when that committee proposal comes back onto the floor... I meant an amendment just such as Mr. Denney's, could be resubmitted at that time, though; is that correct?

MR. HENRY

Yes, sir. That's absolutely correct.

Point of Information

MR. ARNETTE

Mr. Chairman, maybe I misunderstood something, but I thought once an amendment was tabled like this it could never be brought up again unless it was pulled from the table; is that not correct?

MR. HENRY

Not if the proposition is recommitted. If the initial proposal were to be recommitted, it could come out, Mr. Arnette, just exactly in the same fashion as they initially reported it out of committee.

MR. ARNETTE

No, I don't mean the committee proposal, I mean the amendment. If the amendment is tabled, then you can't ever consider that same amendment again, unless it is brought from the table; is that not correct?

MR. HENRY

The gentleman... you are... I would assume that the purpose for recommitting, would be for the committee to do some additional work to the proposal.

You all hold it down back there, please.

Therefore, if the committee made any change at all in the proposal and reported it out, then the amendment that has been tabled, of course, you could call it from the table, but the same amendment, in my judgment, could be offered because it's to a different proposal, in effect. I don't think there's any inconsistency at all in that.

MR. ARNETTE

If it comes out of the committee in the same form, would you be able to .....

MR. HENRY

I think if it came out of the committee in the same form,

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

then you would have a different ball game altogether.
Mr. Roemer, why do you rise, sir?

MR. ROEMER
Point of information.
That would be true also about the Flory Amendment that we defeated.

MR. HENRY
Absolutely. That's true.

MR. ROEMER
It could be brought back exactly like.....

MR. HENRY
That's right, it certainly could.

[Motion to table rejected: 39-55.
Motion to adjourn to 9:30 o'clock a.m., Tuesday, December 11, 1973.
Substitute motion to adjourn to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Saturday, December 9, 1973. Motion for the Previous Question on the Amendments ruled out of order. Motion rejected.]

Point of Order

MR. NEWTON
Am I in order for a motion?

MR. HENRY
Well, you're in order for a motion, but I don't know that your motion is in order until you make it, so proceed, Mr. Newton.

MR. NEWTON
All right. Well, it seems to me that a lot of the objection to the proceedings on the Dennery amendment the way it's presented is that it's not in very good form for us to be able to work on. Therefore, I would ask for a suspension of the rules in order to call from the calendar, Mr. Dennery's Delegate Proposal..I believe it's No. 27; is that right, Moise? Make that the next order of business.

MR. HENRY
Mr. Newton, there's really no way to even do that under a suspension of the rules because we have the Dennery amendment before us and there's something that we've got to do one way or the other with the Dennery amendment, and the proposal; don't you see?

You can't even suspend the rules under those circumstances.

[Substitute motion to adjourn to 9:00
o'clock, a.m., Saturday, December 8,
1973 adopted. Adjournment to 9:00 o'clock, a.m., Saturday, December 9,

Motion

ROLL CALL

[72 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. ALEXANDER

Most holy and eternal God, we come this morning again to thank Thee, Father, for the blessings that Thou has bestowed upon us in days gone by. Bless our efforts here today and throughout this Convention. Bless the participants and those who are in positions of leadership. May whatever we do here redound to Thy glory and Thine honor. In the name of Jesus we pray. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 9, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state and city civil service.

The proposal has one section. One amendment has heretofore--the third Flory amendment--has been adopted which had the effect of deleting the proposal past the first word on page two. Presently under consideration are amendments sent up by Mr. Dennery on yesterday and still under consideration, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, first, I am representing fifty percent of DeSoto, so I don't know that I'm anything but a hybrid relative to representation. I would say very little except I think some of us are going to be placed in a very awkward position if we are asked to vote on Mr. Dennery's proposal in its entirety. I fear that if I vote yes, it may be construed that I am approving it all. If you vote no, you are opposing it all. I think very highly of Mr. Dennery. I am in general agreement with him. I was adviser to the legislature when he prepared the Civil Service Act of '52 and Senator Ainsworth--now U. S. Circuit Judge Ainsworth--introduced it into the Senate in 1952. But, I must add that Mrs. Dennery is as much an authority on elections as Mr. Dennery is on civil service. I am reluctant to vote for an entire proposal, as I have indicated. I prefer voting by paragraphs. I think we would all be taken off the spot if that were done, and it would save time. Though I am a college professor, generally, I oppose presidents appointing anything because presidents do not reflect the views of their faculties--I thought you might like to know that. I will vote for Mr. Dennery's proposal with two reservations at least. I am unwilling--and Mr. Dennery is aware of this--I am unwilling to agree to a Civil Service Commission with five colleges from the New Orleans area. And, two, as you know by my Delegate Proposal No. 1, I feel that provisions should be made for fair treatment for the state police. I think that much of the criticism of civil service has been the fact that inequities have existed. We have not taken care of those inequities: one is the black colleges represent...recommending for the Civil Service Commission; and two, the state police. There are probably others. I think we would minimize objections if we would face the facts of life and try to solve them. As I said, I shall vote for Mr. Dennery's proposal with those reservations. Thank you.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Chairman, in the hopes of expediting the convention, I move--if in order--to suspend the rules in order to take up the Dennery amendment paragraph by paragraph.

MR. HENRY

Mr. Duval, the Clerk advises me--and I think he is absolutely correct--that because of the manner in which this amendment is drawn, it just makes it nigh impossible. If it were numbered and so forth, but it's not; it just about makes it impossible to consider it and do anything at all with it, insofar as adopting it paragraph by paragraph. If we ever get it adopted, we could handle it such a manner.

[Motion withdrawn.]

Point of Information

MR. AVANT

It just seems to me that it would be a lot faster if we took the time for somebody to sit down and number these things, if that's the big objection. One person could do it in probably fifteen minutes, and then rerexox and distribute the thing, and then proceed page by page and line by line.

MR. POYNTER

Once this happens--if it does happen to be adopted--I don't think there is an overwhelming problem of doing it that way. But, to try to come in now and vote paragraph by paragraph, and it's been suggested, offer amendments, you are in the posture of offering amendments to something that's not adopted--an amendment that's not adopted. Right now, you've got one pending amendment that has no efficacy at all until this convention gives it some efficacy. If you ever give it any, one way or the other, then I think you can start proposing amendments to it. But, now, you are putting yourself in the posture, if you want to do it by a suspension, of amending something that's not there.

Point of Information

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, in the past we have divided. I don't see that what the Clerk has said is a problem. If we divide it, then we are voting as we have done in the past--nominations to the Civil Service Commission, etc.--we are adopting it amendment by amendment. Why can't we make it Amendment No. 1, Amendment No. 2, Amendment No. 3?

MR. HENRY

Well, you could do that, but the amendment has already been offered in the fashion that it's in, Doctor.

MR. ASSEFF

The request is that the author do that. If he is unwilling, then, of course, we would have no choice.

MR. HENRY

Well, he is going to have to withdraw it to do that though, Dr. Asseff, because it's not drawn like that right now.

Point of Information

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Chairman, just a point of information. I was wondering, the proposal, apparently, is lettered (A), (B), (C), (D), but in the opinion of the parliamentarian, would that also be a problem if we take it letter by letter rather than paragraph by paragraph--like (A), (B), (C), (D)--would that be also equally as difficult? I'm just trying to figure out some way to get out of the trap we are in right now.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. HENRY

Well, the problem that you get into when you do this--and I know it sounds absolutely ridiculous to you all--but there is a reason for having amendments drafted one, two, three--for having proposals in one, two, three order. Now, it gets awfully difficult to administer up here to decide, all right, we are going to go and just do away with what we have done to this point; we are going to start adopting it paragraph by paragraph, and you are going to adopt a paragraph and offer amendments to other paragraphs that are not even adopted. I just don't know how we can administer it up here. If we make one mistake up here on a very critical circumstance, I know what's going to happen from out there, and it just puts us in a very difficult situation, Mr. Duval. Now, Mr. Dennery wants to... just a minute, Mr.... if this group wants to make a gentlemen's agreement to let the man withdraw his amendments and prepare an Amendment No. 1, Amendment No. 2, so forth, and then come back with them, that's one thing. But, I don't see how we can handle them like this.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, since this is the only vehicle we got to amend or do anything with, I would like to make a motion to go ahead and adopt this amendment; then go ahead and amend it--that's the only way I see to go.

MR. HENRY

That's the motion that's pending right now that we are debating, Mr. Smith.

MR. SMITH

I would like to move the adoption of this amendment.

MR. HENRY

Well, Mr. Dennery, has already moved....

MR. SMITH

The previous question on it.

MR. HENRY

All right. Mr. Smith moves the previous question on the Dennery amendment. There are six other speakers.

Point of Information

MR. A. JACKSON

Could we have a gentlemen's agreement that we wouldn't lay it on the table if we adopted the amendment?

MR. HENRY

Well, if that's what you agree to, Mr. Jackson, yes.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I'm asking, I'm asking the author and the delegates if we could have such an agreement.

Point of Information

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The question that I want to pose is that since a number of amendments have been offered to it, as it is now, I don't see anything wrong with simply adopting it. Those of you who feel compelled to explain your reason why you did or did not vote for it can simply submit your literature to it and have it included in the minutes--I mean, simply have it included in the Journal. If you feel compelled to explain your reasons--they have done this before--simply submit your literature to them, and they will be on the next day's explanation of what went on. So, you're really not in any kind of a trap; you simply feel that you must explain your position on it; simply vote for it or against it; explain it; have it in the minutes. It doesn't really present a.... I can see that if....

MR. HENRY

Mr. Champagne, I asked you to.... I thought you had a point of order or a point of information.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's my point of order; that's what I'm asking. The point is....

MR. HENRY

What is your point?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The point is that I don't see any big reason why we have to divide this thing up because if we do, we are going to have....

MR. HENRY

Well, now, but you are speaking on how you feel about it. Now, all right. We've got the Dennery delegate proposal which, as I appreciate it, is the same thing that he's offered in this amendment.

Mr. Dennery, is that correct? Does your delegate proposal contain exactly the same thing as your amendment?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir, Mr. Chairman, it does not.

Point of Information

MR. ABRAHAM

Point of information. Even if we were to divide this thing up, paragraph by paragraph, would it not be true that we would first have to adopt a particular paragraph before we could amend it; isn't that correct?

MR. HENRY

That's exactly what part of the problem is with suspending the rules; you're right.

MR. ABRAHAM

So, we could accomplish the same thing, right now, by adopting the whole thing--could we not--and then coming back and amending it paragraph by paragraph.

MR. HENRY

You're right. By the same token, we are not going to accomplish a thing at all talking about "what if a." So, we might as well go ahead and.... Mr. Dennery.

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, in connection with what Delegate Alphonse Jackson said, it would certainly be one hundred percent agreeable to me, if the convention chooses to adopt my amendment, not to move to reconsider and place on the table, but to immediately thereafter permit amendments to be made.

Point of Information

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman, did Mr. Smith move the previous question?

MR. HENRY

Well, I didn't know whether he was going to insist on his motion or not. All right. But, Mr. Juneau, you have to understand, with all of these points of information and so forth, we've got to recognize these people.

MR. JUNEAU

I sympathize with you, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HENRY

Thank you; I certainly appreciate it.

Point of Information

MR. RACHAL

I don't know whether it's a point of order, but I would like to suggest.... I would like to make what I think is misinformation. Someone suggested that the only course is to adopt this amendment and then to amend that. I would like to suggest that we could also reject the amendment and proceed to amend what remains of the committee's proposal.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. HENRY

That could happen, too, Mr. Rachal.

Point of Information

MR. MUNSON

Mr. Chairman, wouldn't it--as you said, I believe, a moment ago--wouldn't it simplify the whole thing if Mr. Denny would just withdraw his amendment and let us recess for a few moments and get it in a proper form to which we could vote on it? There is a lot of us don't want to vote on this thing and be recorded as voting for it, and I certainly...many portions of it that I agree with, but some of it I don't. I don't want to be recorded as voting on something that I don't agree with, just to please somebody.

MR. HENRY

Well, if the gentleman wants to withdraw his amendment, sir, that's his prerogative. I'm certain it would speed up things if the gentleman would withdraw his amendment; it would probably speed up things if we would withdraw the proposal, but that's up to the gentleman who's offered the amendments.

Point of Information

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 64-27.]

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman, regardless of what happens to the Denny amendment, would my amendment be next?

Personal Privilege

MR. HENRY

Senator De Blieux, we've tried to put two or three in front of it, so I just don't know; I think it will be tough. After the way you talked to me in the elevator this morning, I think it will have to be. We can talk to you on this business all day.

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, two days ago, the section was adopted on the retirement system. I wasn't here, and there will be some other days I won't be here; maybe I should apologize. But, in that section, as I interpret it--and I haven't gone into it too deep, yet--I believe that puts the full faith and credit or the responsibility for guaranteeing the payments of a retirement system on the general fund of the State of Louisiana, and on the legislature to appropriate the money. Now, that's on municipal and local systems where the state is not involved. To show you what effect that would have in the case of Alexandria--to where they have no funded system--they appropriate each year enough money out of the fund, out of the general fund of the city, to pay those retirees who have a check coming under the system. It raises from that on a low to a high--as far as funding is concerned--the East Baton Rouge Parish system, which is very, very well funded and a very lucrative system. When you go back and look at what the court has ruled in the case of the Port of Baton Rouge, located across the river--whereby four adjoining parishes had the obligation of paying off the bonds, but in order to make the bonds more saleable, they put the full faith and credit of the state behind them. When these four parishes refused to pay the bill, then the general fund of the State of Louisiana has been paying that bill all these years, and we're going to continue to pay it. No suit was ever brought against the parishes, or no claim was ever presented against the parishes, and we've been saddled with that. So, if that provision is not changed--and I'm going to prepare amendments and offer them to this convention--if that provision is not changed, then, any city in the state that refuses to come up with retirement funds and just says, "well, we decided we're not going to do it," then I believe the general fund of the State of Louisiana will be saddled with that local, municipal responsibility. I don't think that that was the intent of this body, and I don't believe that that's what you want to do. I don't believe these parishes and local governments--from all of the crv that I've heard about "get out of our business and leave us alone"--I don't believe they want us to do that.

Motion

MR. BURSON

I wanted to move the previous question since Mr. Smith, as I understood, had done it already, maybe that's superfluous, but I would like to urge the previous question at this time.

[Previous Question ordered: 54-33.]

Point of Information

MR. TAPPER

Is it not true that it takes sixty-seven votes to adopt this section?

MR. HENRY

No, sir, that's not true; it's an amendment. It takes sixty-seven votes to adopt a section or the proposal, but this is an amendment.

MR. TAPPER

Then, it would be a majority of those voting?

MR. HENRY

Present and voting, yes, sir.

Questions

Closing

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I would point out to you that the amendment before you is basically the same as the present civil service law. I have attempted to make it slightly more flexible than the present civil service law. I would tell you that since 1952, since this relatively long amendment has been in the constitution, there has been but two changes, and they add to the classified service. I would tell you that my amendment guarantees, in my opinion, an independent commission which is a necessity for a decent, good civil service system.

MR. NEWTON

Lantz, don't you think anybody buying bonds from the State of Louisiana would have to look at all the indebtedness that the state might have to local employees before we'd be able to sell our bonds?

MR. WOMACK

Well, I think it would naturally be a responsibility of state government if it'd be looked at. However, I don't really think, Mr. Newton, it would affect the sale of state bonds because the liquidation of the state debt claims the first credit on the state money. Certainly, they would all be always...

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

they even come ahead of the employees of the state, I believe, and any other--education, everything else. The first call on the state treasury is for debt liquidation. But, the point that disturbs me is the fact that any day a municipality says we don't have the money--and don't think they won't be doing it--then, you're going to go back and pick up their retirement system. You've already guaranteed it under this provision, and when the first city does it, then every other city in the state is going to do it; so you're automatically transferring, then, to the state responsibility the municipal responsibility of their city police and city firemen. I just want to call your attention to it because I do plan to get into that section and try to come up with some two, three or four amendments that I think will do what needs to be done to keep them in the shape they should be.

MR. TATE

Mr. Womack, would it allay your fears, somewhat, if I told you that Representative Casey and Representative Thompson had called our--Style and Drafting's--attention to the fact that the inadvertent wording that seems to have the state guarantee local retirement systems was the result of a Lanier Amendment that did not have that intention, and that Style and Drafting intends--if the committee agrees--to report this to the floor as a yellow amendment to clarify the floor intent that the state would only guarantee state retirement systems but not local retirement systems. Would that be of some help to the problems?

MR. WOMACK

Well I tell you, I think that's what we're getting at, Judge Tate. Of course there's some other things in it, in the wording of it, that because of the definitions today that's carried forth in many retirement systems, there's some other things that need correcting; but that was one of the flagrant ones that I saw that looked like--just by all means--had to be looked after.

MR. LOWE

Lantz, did you know that when this came on the floor, that there was an amendment that tried to take out of this particular proposal, the guarantee of the full faith and credit of the state, that failed?

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Lowe, that may be right. You know sometimes in a body of this kind--as complicated as this retirement system, especially, and that's probably one of the most complicated things we have in the state--quite often people may not really realize what the impact is on some of these things. I can understand that.

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Womack, do you realize, as far as a parochial employees' retirement system is concerned, that is strictly and one hundred percent controlled by the state legislature, and local government has absolutely nothing to do with its terms and conditions?

MR. WOMACK

The system that I had reference to--and I don't think I mentioned parochial--I said municipal systems, fire and police in particular.

MR. CANNON

Mr. Womack, I would like to just raise a point with you that I think that you're probably in error when you're talking about the Port of Baton Rouge, and it not...I think the case you're talking about is the Kliebert Case, and that has to do with the South Louisiana Port Commission. This was one of the things that we considered on our Subcommittee on Ports and Transportation Special Districts. The South Louisiana Port Commission was not in its constitutional status given full faith and credit of the state behind the sale of its bonds. The Port of Baton Rouge was--specifically behind their general obligation bonds. The Kliebert Case said that by the virtue of their authorization for the South Louisiana Port Commission...by virtue of the fact that they were in the constitution and their bonding authorization was there, this gave full faith and credit behind South Louisiana Port Commission bonds. That was the wording of the Kliebert Case, not the Port of Baton Rouge.

MR. WOMACK

The first responsibility--and if you want to just really get into it--the first obligation of the bonds of the Port of Baton Rouge was the city of Baton Rouge. That's the first obligation. Then, the next obligation was the adjoining parishes that I mentioned, and since they, neither of them, saw fit to put up their money, then they came back and the full faith and credit of the state was put there. It's just one of these things that helped the sale of the bonds, but the state picked it up.

Personal Privilege

MR. HAYES

Thank you, Mr. Chairman. I want to apologize for using this minute, but I wanted to...I didn't need any correction on what I gave yesterday. Mr. Dennery has a computer print-out for 10-31, where he reports his statistics from, on the civil service for black people in the State of Louisiana. My computer printout sheet was January, 1973, which showed what I had told you yesterday. But, I didn't know that civil service would have a better sheet for the convention by the time that this bill would be discussed here on the floor. But, in fact, they say an average of four hundred dollars. That means that the people are getting, not four hundred dollars, but around three hundred and thirty-five. Now, Mr. Dennery put that on my desk, and most of those people get three hundred and thirty-five dollars. Most of them work at Charity Hospital; so they really don't make four hundred dollars. You take the sheet and look at it. When I looked at the sheet, I saw one making eight hundred dollars. He doesn't need to correct that, but his sheet does show what he says. But, my sheet still shows what it had on it, one making about eight hundred dollars. Now, his sheet, today, at 10-31 is showing an average of four hundred and twenty-seven dollars; but in fact, most of those people are making three hundred and thirty-five dollars. That's what they're making under the civil service system that he's trying to project as being so good. I don't know anything worse. It's not really a spoils system as I see it; it's really a rotten system.

Thank you.

Motion

MR. JENKINS

Earlier I mentioned--seems like about a week ago, but I think it was yesterday--that I'd like to move at this time that we suspend the rules for the purpose of considering the proposal, as it now stands, lettered paragraph by lettered paragraph, with each such lettered paragraph being considered as a section requiring sixty-seven votes for adoption.

MR. HENRY

The gentleman moves for a suspension of the rules... We can do that now because the amendment has been--the Dennery amendment has been adopted. We do have something that we can administer.

Point of Information

MR. DE BLIEUX

I just want to know how that motion would affect my amendment.

MR. HENRY

Well, it depends on where you...what section or paragraph your amendment would apply to. Your amendment would be first, I would assume, because it would take everything else out, as I appreciate it.

Point of Information

MR. TATE

Mr. Chairman, that was exactly my question. I thought that the De Blieux amendment came up first. If it should lose, then it may be appropriate to divide the Dennery amendment, but the first order, I thought, is...

MR. HENRY

I think, probably, you're right, because... Mr. Jenkins, would you hold off and let us get through with this De Blieux amendment? All right. Read the De Blieux amendment.

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Senator De Blieux on yesterday. Now, there have been a lot of amendments passed out that go to various portions, presuming that the De Blieux amendment, I presume, doesn't pass. The staff, incidentally, is preparing a new set--not a new set--but they're going to redo the Dennery amendment and send you another copy of it with the lines marked on the pages. You ought to be getting that shortly. Senator De Blieux, we're going to have to change your amendment to, in effect, just strike out the Dennery amendment and insert in lieu thereof your language. The instructions need to change; the text would not. The effect of the Dennery amendment--we'll reword it at the desk--the instructions of it will be to: strike out the Dennery amendment just adopted in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof:

"Section 1. The provisions of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution of 1921, providing for a system of classified civil service for the state and for the cities are hereby retained and continued in full force and effect. The legislature, upon a favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership of each house, may amend or otherwise modify any other provisions of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution--Now, you had a change there, didn't you? It should read--I'm not sure; maybe you have a corrected copy; it should read "any"--strike out the word "other" and the word "provisions" should be singular. "may amend or otherwise modify any provision of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution of 1921, except the legislature may not abolish the system of classified civil service."

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Madam Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I believe I stated yesterday in the argument on the Dennery amendment that we have to determine which philosophy that we want with reference to civil service: that is, if we think that the present provisions of civil service that we presently have in our constitution are good and cannot be changed, then we don't need the Dennery amendment; we don't need the De Blieux amendment; we don't need any other amendment. We just adopt and incorporate what we've got in the present constitution, and that would be it. But, by this convention you have shown that you believe that the constitutional provisions of civil service can be improved upon. Now, the question you have to determine in your particular minds is: do you think that this constitutional convention is the only one who can improve upon it, or do you think the time will come, sometime in the future, when we may need some other adjustments to that provision? If you do, then you're going to let the legislature or somebody decide what changes will be made in those provisions with reference to civil service. I think that civil service is with us here to stay, and there's no possible chance of anybody abolishing it--at least, I hope not. I have incorporated that into this particular amendment that we would not abolish civil service. But, if it can be improved upon, somebody ought to be able to make that improvement, and I certainly feel like that the legislature would be in a position to do that without having to have a constitutional amendment each and every time that is made. This particular body can make changes in that by only sixty-seven votes out of a hundred and thirty-two. The amendment which I have brought before you, states that the legislature can make changes but only as a result of two-thirds of the vote of each House, which means it would take twenty-six Senators and seventy House members, or a total of a hundred and six people out of a hundred and forty-four to make a change. Therefore, you have built into that amendment the security and stability which I think we need, because at all times, I believe, you'll at least find fourteen rational members of that Senate and thirty-six rational members of the House of Representatives to keep something from being changed willy-nilly, as somebody has stated from this mike before. Now, if we're going to leave something to the whims of the convention by six or seven votes, I don't see why the words "whims of the legislature," with two-thirds vote wouldn't be a little bit more stable. I happen to feel, at this particular time, because of the very touchy nature--and the reports and remarks that I've heard from people on the street, people in civil service, voters, constituents, etc.--that we should not tamper with civil service at this particular time. That's why I want to take the present provisions of civil service and leave them as they are with the right of the legislature to make the changes as the time and progress that we make, would see fit to do. I just feel like that we'd have a whole lot more stable situation, if we required two-thirds vote of the legislature to make those changes, than we would by only requiring sixty-seven votes here in this constitutional convention to make those changes. I'm not saying that the provisions in the Dennery amendment are not good; I'm not saying that at all. But, I do feel like that it would be better to incorporate those particular changes at a later date, rather than this constitution going to the people with those changes at this particular time, and they feel like that there's nothing else can be done. For that particular reason, I ask you to go along with this amendment. I think it's a good move. It will certainly shorten the constitution tremendously, and everyone is looking for a much shorter constitution. I talked to some people last night, and they told me--there were remarks that were made by several people--"look like you all are putting back in the constitution everything that we want to take out. For that particular reason, it says, it looks like it might not pass." When I told them that that was not true, then they said, well they would take a second look at it. But, that's the reason that a lot of people on the outside now feel like the constitution is going to fail because we're putting right back in it, everything that we ought to be taking out of it. I just feel like that we ought to eliminate the long provisions with reference to civil service, which constitutes at least twenty pages--it's dependent upon what volume you look at--twenty to twenty-six pages of our constitution. I certainly feel like that we ought to take that and put into our statutory law with the right of the legislature, upon two-thirds vote, to make the needed and necessary changes as they may occur.

Madam Chairman, I'll be glad to answer questions.

Questions

MR. CONROY

Senator De Blieux, several times you've referred to, in your argument, to saying that sixty-seven delegates to this convention could change civil service here. But, isn't it a fact that whatever we do here has to be submitted to and approved by the majority of the voters so that the delegates here can't really do anything to civil service without the approval of the voters?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Conroy, that is right that the constitution has to go to the voters for ratification, but the voters will not have the privilege of changing anything which we propose to them. They either have to take it as we give it to them or reject it in its entirety.

MR. TOBIAS

Senator De Blieux, would you be willing to change your amendment to provide for a three-fourths vote of the legislature, rather than two-thirds?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's all right with me, Mr. Tobias. I'm not locked into the two-thirds rule. I just felt like that most of all of the other provisions we have that to where the legislature can make changes, we put the stability, we've put two-thirds, like tax changes, etc. I felt like that that would be good. The only provision that I know of that we have in the proposed constitution, with reference to three-fourths vote, is that where that there's a special session of the legislature appropriating money immediately preceding an election for governor. I feel like that this is sufficient to lend that stability, which I think civil service should have and would need. Sometimes it's pretty difficult...it's a situation to get two-thirds vote of the House or two-thirds vote of the Senate on certain measures.

Further Discussion

MR. A. JACKSON

Madam Vice-Chairman, Ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I rise in opposition to the De Blieux amendment. I do so not unmindful of the fact that this amendment provides for the ability of the Louisiana State Legislature to make some changes in the policies and procedures and rules of the State Civil Service Commission. We sorely need to make changes in the personnel procedures of the Civil Service Commission, but I cannot support this amendment because it maintains the present, restrictive, discriminatory structure of the State Civil Service

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

Commission. I do not believe that it is in the interest of this state to continue in 1973 an important and powerful structure that excludes black people from representation on the Civil Service Commission. Therefore, I cannot support it. I believe that all of the fair-minded delegates of this convention would agree that it is high time--and I have heard you express the same view from this vantage point--that it is high time that we would have full representation on this important structure. Now, you have criticized the efforts of the governor of this state to include black people on the Civil Service Commission. You said that this was undue pressure and that he should not have this kind of power. Yet, by way of this amendment, you lock in the same system that forced him to make the kind of decision that was made and to exert the kind of effort that was exerted to see that the voices of black people would be heard and would be considered as we make decisions about Louisianians. So, I would suggest to you that we would vote down this amendment because it is undemocratic, because it is unworkable, and because it will maintain a structure that emanates from the past history of this state that would suggest that all people aren't full citizens. Therefore, I do not believe that it is in the interest that we would adopt it. I would ask that you would vote against this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. FULCO

Before I call the previous question, I just wanted to say this: that the De Blieux amendment guarantees the existence of civil service. Secondly, it provides for a change in the rules by a two-thirds vote, and as I maintained yesterday, I do so today, that the two-thirds vote is sufficient and fair for either confirming or denying any amendment or any change to the rules. So, gentlemen, I think that it would be advisable for us to provide for ourselves in the future a method by which we could make necessary changes in the civil service rules and regulations, but at the same time, guarantee the fact that the civil service will continue to live and exist in the State of Louisiana.

Madam Vice-Chairman, if there's no other speakers, I'll move the previous question.

MS. MILLER

Mr. Fulco, there are three speakers on the list. Do you want to insist on the motion?

MR. FULCO

No, I won't. I'll withdraw the motion.

Questions

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Fulco, you made the statement yesterday about being concerned about the passage of the final document. Now, don't you think as the system now stands with civil service pertaining to black people, what do you think of the passage--the chances of the passage--of the document?

MR. FULCO

Well, I would hope, Reverend, that you'd look at the overall document rather than any particular part about it. I think the future is going to be good for everybody. If it's been unfair and unjust in the past, I think it...I have faith in humanity that the future is going to be just and fair to all people. I could go into a long discourse about how you feel or how the black people feel because I know how you feel. I know how I have felt in the past, but I'm willing to face up to the future. I'm willing to try and make...contribute to America, toward making a better America for everybody, and that includes race, religion, creeds, nationalities, and otherwise. So, I don't....

MR. LANDRUM

Don't you think it would be a good time now to start. Don't pass it on to another generation, but let's start now. Wouldn't you think that would be the best answer?

MR. FULCO

I think we've already started, Reverend, and I think it's going to continue very well in the future.

Further Discussion

MR. PEREZ

Madam Chairperson and delegates to the convention, in the hope of trying to speed up the deliberations of this body, I, at this time, would just like to note that this amendment is essentially the same amendment that we debated very lengthily--the Flory amendment--and I don't believe that we should unduly discuss this particular matter. Therefore, I would ask that if the other two speakers are willing to waive--I understand there are only two more--I would move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. DE BLIEUX

Madam Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, Mr. Jackson, I would particularly like to address these remarks to you. If you will notice my amendment giving the right of the legislature to make changes, I recognize the points which you have made about civil service at this particular time. I recognize the fact that it can be improved upon. If I did not think that the Dennery amendment could be improved upon, then I would not be in favor of the provision that I have here. I'd be willing to take it and lock it in, and say that we will not make any changes, but since we have recognized the fact that there can be improvements made in the civil service system, by the very reason of the adopting of the Dennery amendment, then I recognize the fact that we can improve on it, and that's why I want the legislature to have the right to do that from time to time. The only difference between Mr. Dennery's approach to the situation and mine is that I just don't feel like that this is the only body who can make those changes. I feel like that we ought to have the right to look at it further. I don't even know how the Dennery amendments will work after we put them into effect. We might find that we've got things that we did not anticipate at that particular time, and we need some other changes. The only way in the world you could make them is by a two-thirds vote of the legislature and a constitutional amendment to the people, and I think that would be most difficult to do, as you well know, because of the past history of civil service. So, therefore, I'm not locking into the law and the constitution all of the things which you spoke about. I'd like to say with reference to the statement that we did somewhat debate this a little bit yesterday, but my amendments are entirely different from those as submitted by Mr. Flory. I think it's a better approach; it's a new approach to the situation. It's something that I think we can go ahead and adopt and get along with the rest of our business here. I, therefore, ask you to approve of these amendments because it will allow the needed changes which ought to be made at the time that they should be made.

I ask, Madam Chairman, a favorable vote on my amendment.

Questions

MR. CHATELAIN

Senator, should the Flory amendment have passed yesterday, would you have withdrawn your amendment, sir?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No.

MR. ALEXANDER

Senator De Blieux, you have expressed some opposition to discrimination in the past on many occasions. Is not your position a little inconsistent with your past to now come up to perpetuate a system that is obviously discriminatory in its very nature, and in all of its operations, to come up with an amendment like this?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, Reverend Alexander, no, I think you've misread the amendment. If I was for perpetuating the discrimination in the present system of the civil service, I would not want any changes in it whatsoever, and that's not what I'm advocating here. When I advocate here that the legislature has the right by two-thirds vote to make those changes, I want to take out any discrimination that might be. I think you know me well enough that I'm opposed to discrimination in any of its forms; I don't care how it raises its ugly head. This would allow the legislature to remove those very things which you object to.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. ALEXANDER
But when you throw the ball to the legislature--for example, in the body where you serve, there are thirty-five white... thirty-nine members and thirty-nine of them are white. Is that not a fact? Do you expect...are you optimistic enough to believe that they're going to improve something like that?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Certainly, we've got enough, Reverend Alexander...I'm white, but I don't discriminate.

MR. ALEXANDER
You're discriminating now.

MR. DE BLIEUX
I don't believe, if the facts are found, there's anyone who has fought harder to get them their rights than I have. I have suffered as a result of that, and I know that there's enough other people in that legislature that feel the same way I do about it. We don't like it; the majority of the people don't want discrimination. I'm real convinced of that. The majority of the whites don't want discrimination. They want a good, fair deal for everybody, and I think that we can get it just as well in that body as we can in this particular body. Those things, of which you spoke about and you were opposed to, they are not going to continue to exist. I can tell you that if...

[Record vote ordered. Amendment re-jected: 25-69. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. JENKINS
Mr. Chairman, I was going to make that motion on suspending the rules, but we have such a short house that I think it might be difficult to get sixty-seven votes on anything. Maybe the way to do it would be to just go through in order line by line in this thing, as the amendments come up, rather than trying to do it section by section.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
The first amendment, then, is sent up by Mr. Perez. Now, this is the one...he had several amendments. It's by a full...the text is a full paragraph long setting forth a different definition of State Civil Service.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1 of Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on December 8, delete lines 1 through 7 of the text of said amendment, 1 through 7, and insert in lieu thereof the following: If you look at the Dennery amendment, the effect of the Perez amendment will be to knock out the first paragraph of the text of the Dennery amendment.

"(1) State Civil Service. The state civil service includes all officers and positions of trust or employment in the employ of the state, or any instrumentality thereof, at any joint state and federal agency, joint state and parochial agency or joint state and municipal agency, irrespective of what funds are used to pay for such employment. It shall not include municipal boards of health or local governmental subdivisions."

Explanation

MR. PEREZ
Delegates, this is just a technical amendment. I have checked the amendment with the author, Mr. Dennery, and he is agreeable to it. It's only to clarify, first, the fact that in the State Civil Service System, it does not include municipal boards of health or local governmental subdivisions. It also makes it specific with regard to the joint state and federal, etc. As far as I know, there should be no objection to the amendment. It's simply to clarify.

Questions

MR. NEWTON
John, why are the boards of health exempted? I'm just curious.

MR. PEREZ
I really don't know enough about it except that they are presently exempted under the present Civil Service System. I imagine that there must be a good reason for it. I have no idea except that that is what is in the Dennery amendment. That's what's in the present constitution. I just carried it forward. I just wanted to clarify the language. Thank you.

MR. DENNERY
Mr. Perez, in the second line of your amendment, the third word reads "officers." My amendment says "offices." Is that not a misprint, sir?

MR. PEREZ
Yes, it is, and I will at this time move to withdraw the amendment to, and to reintroduce it to change the word "officers" to "offices."

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with correction.]

Questions

MR. ROEMER
Chal'n, as I understand it now, it was the intent originally of Mr. Dennery's amendment to have this joint state phrase, join with not only federal agencies but parochial agencies, municipal agencies, etc., just like you have it more spelled out. Is that correct?

MR. PEREZ
Yes.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
Amendment No. 1. Sent up by Mr. Flory. This is the short one that's got four hundred on it.

On page 1, line 14 in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted today, on page 1 of said floor amendment at the end of line 10, delete the word "two" and at the beginning of line 11 delete the words "hundred fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"four hundred"

Now, in Paragraph (A), that's in the middle of the second paragraph which is Subparagraph (2), State Civil Service. City Civil Service, excuse me, in the middle line, in the third line of that (2), you take out the word "two" and then come down to the next line and take out "hundred fifty" and insert in lieu thereof "four hundred" so it'd read:

"of each city in the state with over four hundred thousand population and every instrumentality thereof".

Explanation

MR. FLORY
Mr. Chairman and delegates, as you know, in the committee's proposal, they had taken under consideration the present constitutional provision which is that the city civil service in the constitution should apply in municipalities over two hundred and fifty thousand. The committee, in their deliberations, decided that it would be better, based upon the population growth of the municipalities throughout the state, some of whom are now approaching the figure of two hundred fifty thousand population, and have their own city civil service system, that it would be better to go to the four hundred thousand population, which originally was intended to cover the city of New Orleans. What this amendment does is to incorporate that figure of four hundred thousand, so that the city civil service provision of the constitution, as originally intended to affect New Orleans, would continue to only affect the city of New Orleans.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON
Then, Mr. Flory, what you are telling us is that you are doing this because you really don't believe in changing anybody's city civil service system. You want to leave them all alone?

MR. FLORY
I'm not doing any such thing, Mrs. Zervigon.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MRS. ZERVIGON

You mean there's only one that you want to change and you want to leave all the rest alone?

MR. FLORY

No, I'm not saying that at all, Mrs. Zervigon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, would you tell us what is your philosophy about changing local city civil service systems that have been established over a long period of time?

MR. FLORY

I would be happy to. In some municipalities in this state, approaching the figure of two hundred fifty thousand population, the city employees are under one system, the fire and police officers are under a separate system. I'd like to see that maintained.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Why is that?

MR. FLORY

Because I think the two systems are better the way they are--one for the city employees which operates under one fashion, the fire and police officers throughout the state, except the city of New Orleans, under another system; and those municipalities over thirteen thousand have a different system that's worked for some thirty-odd years that...and during our hearings in the committee, not a single mayor who had ever worked under the municipal fire and police civil service testified before our committee seeking any changes whatsoever. All of the people that serve under the system were totally satisfied with it, which only can say to me that they are satisfied with the system as it exists, based upon the experiences that they have had with the two types of systems in those types of municipalities.

MRS. ZERVIGON

The mayors from cities over four hundred thousand came and did ask you for changes?

MR. FLORY

The mayor of the city of New Orleans came to the committee and asked that the system that he had be retained the way it was. Yes.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you very much.

MR. FLORY

He said, I believe, also, Mrs. Zervigon, he did not object to the change of four hundred thousand or did he object to seeing any change in the going of the commission to five. There were some other changes he also suggested that he thought that the city civil service employees, state civil service employees ought to be able to engage in political activities insofar as constitutional amendments, ad valorem elections, tax referendums, etc. He also said that.

MR. TATE

Mr. Flory, if your amendment is not adopted, then cities such as Baton Rouge and Shreveport will have a civil service commission chosen, I see, under...on page 3, by...from panels submitted by the universities provided on page 1 which, for instance, would...on page 3, Section 2, it says, "In other cities subject to the provision of this section the presidents of three of those universities will nominate panels." Could you not have the situation that up in Shreveport, or up in Baton Rouge--or here in Baton Rouge--you'd have some...the Civil Service Commission nominated by people totally unfamiliar with conditions in that city? That's a friendly question.

MR. FLORY

I think it's absolutely correct, Judge Tate. I think it's possible that it could be. I, of course, I object to the constitution of the commission as proposed in this amendment that's been adopted. I hope to get some changes made in it. But...

One of the things that I might say that Mrs. Zervigon relates to is that once you have had the system, and then to combine it under... after abolishing one system...is something else. The issue that she raises in bringing the New Orleans fire police officers into the rest of the state under the same type of system is something different entirely, in my opinion.

I ask you to adopt the amendment which merely changes the figure of two hundred and fifty thousand population to four hundred thousand population.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and fellow members, I notice everybody gets shocked by this microphone. I'm used to holding on it. I'll have to hold my hands back of me, I guess, and start off.

As Mr. Flory explained, the reason for this change in the figure to four hundred thousand instead of that two hundred and fifty thousand, Baton Rouge, Shreveport, and then there'll be other cities that would be, in a few years, placed in the civil service along with New Orleans. Of course, it's apparent, as Judge Tate so well pointed out, which I was going to mention, that in selecting, if we got in that position, for our commission in Shreveport, we'd have to select three colleges; we would select Centenary, I presume, and then two others. They are all in south Louisiana. Five are in New Orleans. That certainly wouldn't be fair to our city. So, this is an excellent amendment. The reason it used to be two hundred and fifty thousand was back when there wasn't any if's or and's, and I imagine that figure first started in 1940. At that time I remember Shreveport was ninety-six or seven thousand. So, I hope you'll adopt the amendment.

Further Discussion

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mrs. Chairperson and delegates, I have no objection to changing the number from two hundred and fifty thousand to four hundred thousand so as not in a back-handed way to affect Mr. Jack's hometown, or Baton Rouge, or something like that--if that's really the intention. What I do object to is the dual position of, "Mary, you wouldn't want to change their systems because it would make them uncomfortable, angry, and it would be politically inflammatory. But, we do think there are a few little changes that need to be made in your system. So, let's isolate you. Let's isolate New Orleans to four hundred thousand, and then every change that's made in the remainder of the article, affects only New Orleans."

So, I just wanted to tell you that I, personally, am going to vote for the four hundred thousand because I have no intention of changing anybody else's system. I would hope that you delegates from the areas that are approaching two hundred and fifty thousand that have your own civil service systems, that like them the way they are, will give some consideration to the Orleans delegates when the time comes to pass on our Civil Service System which has also been in operation a number of years and has worked successfully. By no means is it perfect, and I argue with New Orleans Civil Service, I suppose, as often, as loudly, and languorously as anyone you can name. It's a bone of contention in City Hall. But a lot of the things that we object to in the Civil Service Commission--in the Civil Service Department--cannot be corrected by the methods that are being suggested here. We get annoyed sometimes that the tests are too inflexibly administered. That some of them are too broadly drawn. One of the questions, I understand, on the Clerk-Typist exam is "how many staples can you make from so-and-so many yards of wire." One of the applicants told me that if she had to make her own staples, she didn't really want to work for the city anyway.

That sort of thing, you don't change by changing the make-up of the commission. Those tests are drawn by the members of the Civil Service Department, who are civil service employees themselves, and can't be fired--or can't easily be fired. So, you run into problems that you are trying to solve by methods in which they can't be solved. As someone pointed out to you yesterday, black employment was too slow in coming to the city--far too slow. The main reason for that was when blacks tested in the top three, the appointing authority would hire one of the whites who was also in the top three. It took a considerable amount of sitting on some of the department heads to have blacks hired. The department heads in New Orleans have now been sat on. We are getting blacks hired now. But don't stick us, our fire and police departments, in the Fire and Police Municipal Civil Service where you are promoted only on seniority, when it took us so many years to get blacks hired in those departments in the first place. You'll now stick us in a place where we can never recruit again because they know that it will be twenty or thirty years before they get promoted. That sort of change is the sort of change that we don't need. The kinds of changes that are needed will not be accomplished by the sorts of things that are being suggested to you, so, put the four hundred thousand in. It makes sense. But after that, leave us alone. Please....leave us alone.

Thank you very much.

Question

MR. WEISS

Delegate Zervigon, I just wonder whether we shouldn't go ahead and leave the figure at two hundred and fifty thousand in light of the fact that the larger a community, the more need for civil service is the real issue, rather than who will appoint them, and from what area. This can be altered later in the course of handling this amendment, don't you think?

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, Dr. Weias, I don't. I don't think that's the issue. That was your original question. I don't think that's the issue because as I understand it, the cities that are approaching two hundred and fifty thousand have city civil service systems now with which they are relatively satisfied. There is nothing in the way of personnel practices that's always totally satisfactory to everybody...nothing...ever. That sort of system doesn't exist and can't be devised. But, those cities have civil service systems, so I don't believe that's what's at issue.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Madam Chairman, delegates to the convention, again today I rise to bring something to your attention. As it relates to the amendment, I have no objections to it because based on some conversation, particularly two days ago, I do recognize that if you kept it at two hundred and fifty thousand, that that may have some effects on some existing civil service system which I don't know the ramifications of. But I do know that when you do raise it to the four hundred thousand, that any amendment addressing itself to municipal and fire--municipal, fire, and policeman system will directly relate it, as Mrs. Zervigon said, to the city of New Orleans.

Now yesterday, I attempted to, very briefly, to explain to you the kinds of problems that I had with the original amendment as introduced. I'd like to also bring to your attention that presently, there is a suit filed against our present municipal and fire...municipal, fire and policeman association, concerning what you have heard in this convention as relates to civil service at all--you know in toto--problems of hiring, and problems of, particularly, promotions. I suggest to you that ultimately that question has to be decided by this four hundred thousand dollar...I mean this four hundred thousand population limit. There also was an action by the City Council, and I stand corrected if someone here would like to do so, but the City Council, recognizing the need for minority representation, particularly at a high level in our fireman and policeman association passed a city ordinance saying something to the effect that for future employment within the fire and police...department...and most civil service departments, that it will be relegated to the residents of the city. I am saying to you presently, our population is about fifty-fifty, which was another avenue to allow municipal--allow for blacks to get involved in the Civil Service System--to make it begin to work from other areas. I'm seriously concerned, now--and I'm not a lawyer--so I guess if the system is taken out and placed with another...with the state system, we might just have to transfer the suit. But, I am particularly concerned as to why now, after so many years, that if it worked, particularly after hearing so many delegates across the state saying that we've got to raise this figure because I don't know the impact on our City Civil Service. When you get delegates from the city of New Orleans saying to you what it is going to do, there seems to be maybe not the kind of parochial commitment--or not the same kind of even consideration that we are attempting to give those civil service systems with populations approaching two hundred and fifty thousand.

I suggest to you seriously, that I have, as a delegate to this convention, and I guess I am going to repeat it when it comes up again, supported all kinds of moves and amendments to enhance the position of firemen and policemen, particularly from the city of New Orleans. I think, as a delegate, I think as a person charged with some sort of responsibility, that I've got to create the kinds of balance that's necessary between that of the labor movement, and that of the City Council and the government and the people of the city of New Orleans. I suggest to you seriously that you vote for the four hundred thousand amendment; because I don't want to do any adverse things to affect your Civil Service System. But, I think there are too much at stake, particularly as relates to our firemen and policemen, to all of a sudden just come and say, well, we are going to transfer them only in the name of uniformity--only in the name of uniformity and one state system. I'm saying that we want it uniformity and let's go back to two hundred fifty thousand. But, I know in this case, uniformity is not the question.

So, I ask that you support Mr. Flory's amendment as introduced.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Madam Chairperson and fellow delegates, I rise not strongly opposed to this amendment. However, I am going to vote against it, and for these reasons. I think the Dennery amendments been pretty well accepted by most delegates here. If you will go back to what we did in Local and Parochial Government, under Section 8 (D), you will find that when two or more cities in a parish want to join together, they can, in fact, create a local home rule government. I suggest to you, fellow delegates, that in the years to come, that the fast growing population that we now have, that you are going to find many, many areas of Louisiana, particularly in south Louisiana, desirous of taking advantage of the new provisions of the Local and Parochial Government, that will be accepted by the people of this state. I believe that with these views in mind, and the fact that under the Dennery amendment which was adopted here this morning, if you will turn to page 7, under Section 2, which says "Cities," then you go on down to (N) which you see there, "Acceptance of Act; Other Cities, Parishes, City and Parish Governed Jointly," you will find that in that area, in that section of this amendment, that any city having a population exceeding ten thousand, but not exceeding two hundred and fifty thousand, and any parish, or any parish governed jointly with one or more cities in the plan of government, they may take advantage of this. I don't know exactly what this would do to this provision in the Dennery amendment. I believe by increasing to four hundred thousand, that you are going to preclude a lot of people who might want to...in the very near future...perhaps take advantage of this.

Now, I discussed this with Mr. Dennery. I'm not quite sure that I want to strongly oppose my New Orleans friends. But, I do believe that we can't go wrong by leaving it at two hundred and fifty thousand because we are only dealing with one area of our state, and that is the city of New Orleans, in the foreseeable future. I don't see any reason why we should leave out other sections of the state just to take care of this situation. I would only urge that you strongly look at this before you cast your vote. Thank you.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chatelain, let me see if I may get a little clarification here. Originally, I felt that this provision, of course, applied to New Orleans, and the only other cities that could be affected eventually would be Shreveport and Baton Rouge. Now, you raise another question. You infer that, for example, Lafayette and St. Landry may combine to form a unit where you may have at least two hundred thousand people now. Is that the angle from which you may be discussing this?

MR. CHATELAIN

That's exactly right, Reverend Alexander. It's a possibility that according to provisions of local government, that you can...more than one parish can join together. I see no need of just arbitrarily reducing it from two hundred fifty thousand...I mean, increasing it from two hundred fifty thousand to four hundred thousand.

MR. ALEXANDER

Is there any basic reason for the fear of the cities of Baton Rouge and Shreveport, that they would exceed two hundred and fifty thousand and arbitrarily be thrown under the state system without their consent?

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, no, sir, I don't think so because the provision of the Dennery amendment, they may elect to do so. It's not obligatory.

MR. ALEXANDER

They may elect to do so?
Thank you.

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Fontenot, you wanted the floor?

MR. FONTENOT

I move the previous question.

[Previous question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 71-12. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments, also sent up by Delegate Flory, coauthored by Mr. Jack and Mr. Fulco.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the Convention on December 8, (it's listed 7; it needs to be 8) on page 1 of said floor amendment, at the end of line 12, after the word and punctuation "thereof." change the period "." to a comma "," and add the following:

"except paid firemen and municipal policemen, who are hereby expressly excluded."

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

These are lengthy amendments. Go on for . . . these are two page amendments--Kelly and Roemer.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the 8th, on page 2, line 23, following the word "of" and before the word "members" delete the word "seven" and insert in lieu thereof the word "five".

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 14, in the amendment adopted on the 8th, Mr. Dennery, on page 2 of the amendments, line 24, following the word and punctuation "state," and before the word "of" delete the word "four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "three".

Amendment No. 3. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on December 8, 1973, on page 2, delete lines 25 and 26, both inclusive, in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(1) Appointment; Election. Four members shall be appointed by the governor as hereinafter provided, for terms of six years. One member shall be an employee in the classified service of the state, elected to the commission by classified state employees. The employee member shall serve a term of six years."

Amendment No. 4. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on December 8, 1973, on page 2, delete lines 28 through 30, both inclusive, in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Louisiana College, Xavier University of Louisiana, and Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College at Baton Rouge," Amendment No. 5. On page 3 of the amendment between lines 8 and 9, insert the following:

"The election of the members representing classified city employees shall be called by the governor and held at least sixty days prior to the expiration of that term. In the case of a vacancy prior to the expiration of a term in the office of the member representing classified employees, an election to fill the vacancy for the unexpired term shall be held within thirty days after the vacancy occurs.

Amendment No. 6. On page 5 of the amendment, line 25, after the word "office" and before the word "semicolon" add the following:

"except to seek election as a classified state employee serving on the State Civil Service Commission".

At this time, prior to the actual submission of it, he wishes to withdraw 5 and 6 which were intended to be technical in nature to implement the provisions of 1 through 4 with the view that he would offer those later on. They go to pages further into the proposal, as amended, at any rate. So, he, at the present time, is just going to offer the first four amendments, deleting, at the present time, Amendment No. 5 and Amendment No. 6.

[Amendments Nos. 5 and 6 withdrawn.]

Explanation

MR. KELLY

Madam Chairman, members of the convention, this amendment is directed solely at the makeup of the State Civil Service Board and, in essence, what Amendment No. 1 does, it substitutes a five-man board in lieu of the seven-man board as provided by Mr. Dennery. Of course, Amendment No. 2 is more or less conditioned upon whether Amendment 1 and 3 pass, because if we're going to have a five-man board, we've got to have a three-man quorum. Amendment No. 3, in essence, this is what this plan is going to do: you're going to have five members, four members of whom will be appointed by the governor for six-year terms. They will be appointed just like through the process in Mr. Dennery's amendment, except the three names will be submitted by Centenary College, Louisiana College, Xavier University, and Louisiana State University. Now, to make up the fifth member of this board, we have provided that there be some employee input into the board, and the fifth member of the board would be an employee in the classified service of the state. He would be elected, or she would be elected to the commission by the classified state employees. That's the essence of it. I think that this is something that everyone can accept. We've heard a divergence of opinions, here, within the past two or three days concerning the makeup of this board. I, for one, don't particularly like to necessarily look at something from the standpoint of representation, and necessarily, well, how many south Louisiana schools do you have? How many north Louisiana schools do you have? How many black universities do you have? How many white universities, etc.? I think that this amendment will take care of most anyone's problems concerning that. We have the Louisiana University located here in Baton Rouge; we've got Xavier University which is a predominantly black university; Louisiana College there in Alexandria; Centenary College on up in the northern part of the state. One of the most important aspects of the amendment, as I see it and as I feel it, is the fact that one of the employees in the classified service of this state will serve on this board. Apparently, we have sat here for two or three days and rejected the idea of the rules and regulations of the commission being changed by any vote within the legislature. That's the way it stands right now. Mr. Dennery's amendment, so to speak, is the law, at this particular time. Accordingly, I think if that board is going to have that much power, as apparently they are going to have, and continue with the power that they've had in the past, then we, in fact, need for the working people of this state to have one of their people on this particular board.

I'd ask that you adopt the amendment.

Point of Information

MR. DUVAL

I'm just trying to understand how the amendments fit into Mr. Dennery's amendment. I note that on the amendments it says, "page 1, line 14 of the Dennery Amendment adopted December 7." Well, I don't understand how it fits into ....

MR. POYNTER

Keep on going on. That just identifies where the Dennery amendment came in. They'll go on and say, on the page of the amendment and the line of the amendment.

MR. DUVAL

I see. Thank you, thank you.

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Kelly, don't you think that the method of selecting members of the commission has worked well in the past, insofar as having fair and competent people on the commission?

MR. KELLY

I'm not here, Woody, to say that the people who are now serving on the commission are not fair and competent people. But, I meant, they deal primarily with the lives of the classified employees of this state, and I see no reason whatsoever why those classified employees can't have at least one voice on that particular board.

MR. JENKINS

But, they're not representing, they're not there to represent the employees, are they? They're there to administer the employees on behalf of the state, aren't they?

MR. KELLY

They're there to administer and to represent, as far as I see this thing. I think it's a two way street, and I said that up here yesterday afternoon. I think that you've got the interests of the state to be concerned with, with fairly administering the services that are provided by the state and the employees who work through these services. Yet, at the same time, if we're going to be dealing with sixty thousand-employees of this state, I think that they have got to be treated fairly and equitably. I'm not saying that they have or they haven't, at this particular time. I'm simply saying that this will give them a voice on the commission.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. JENKINS

Well, don't you think if we have the civil service employees of the state involved in an election for one of their number to be on this commission, that you're going to have the following situation arise: you're going to have the candidates running for that spot, making promises to civil service employees, and then once that person is elected, that he'll be engaged in reclassification efforts, changes in job descriptions, promotional efforts in order to placate and satisfy those who helped him get elected?

MR. KELLY

I don't necessarily see it that way. I think, quite frankly, that most of the employees within this system would be just happy to have a man sitting there, that they would really know exactly what was going on. They could say that they had some true employment representation there on that board. Now, what a man does concerning his political promises, and what he does concerning his political obligations, of course, that is something that I can't answer, at this particular time.

MR. JENKINS

But, the way it is with private college presidents selecting and nominating these three who, one of whom are selected by the governor, they don't have any obligations to any particular group. They don't have any commitments; they don't have to worry about a constituency that they are doing favors for or that they're currying favor with, do they?

MR. KELLY

No, that's true, Woody. They don't have to worry about anything. But, at the same time, there are four people going to be on this commission who are not necessarily going to be employee oriented. I meant, that's, in essence, what you're saying. At this particular point you're saying that the commission, as it's set up, as I understand what you are trying to say through your questions, is that these people are not necessarily interested in what the employee thinks, and all this, strictly concerned with administering the system. Well, maybe that's true, but when you're administering the system, you necessarily affect the lives and the livelihoods of all of these various employees. What is wrong with them having one member on that commission?

MR. JENKINS

Well, when you say that it's been done fairly and competently in the past, to me, it seems like you endorse the present system, rather than taking a chance of getting a political factor into it, both from, of course, that you would maintain the L.S.U. appointee even though the L.S.U. board members would be appointed by one governor, probably; and then allowing this politicking within the classified service.

MR. KELLY

You know, you misstated what I said. I said I was not here to say whether or not that the present commission, as it's made up, had handled the business of the commission in any other manner than fairly and competently. I don't know whether they have or whether they haven't. That was my statement. The point being is I would like to see the sixty thousand various employees that are certified through this particular system, I'd like to see them have one representative on that particular board. I mean, if you're against the concept, you're just against the concept.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Kelly, in assuming that the employees need representation on the commission, you're assuming that there is another side, at least. Would you concede that in questions before the commission there are often two other sides? One, the taxpayers at large, to make sure that their money is being well spent. The other, the management side of the labor-management relations.

MR. KELLY

Yes.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, who represents those two other sides?

MR. KELLY

Well, it's not a question, Mary. I would say that when you're talking about the state, you're more or less talking about the management. As far as I'm concerned. . .

MRS. ZERVIGON

Who, who is talking about the state, and in what context?

MR. KELLY

Well, I don't understand your question. What are you talking about?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, you are saying that employees need representation on the commission. You agree that there are at least two other sides of these questions. One, the taxpayers side, and the other, the management side. I asked you who represented them, and you said something about when you're talking about the state, you're talking about management. I wasn't talking about the state. I was talking about the management part of the state and the taxpayers part of the state which is not necessarily management oriented. There are plenty of labor folks in that taxpaying body.

MR. KELLY

This isn't a question. Let me answer. . .

MRS. ZERVIGON

It's not a question of representation?

MR. KELLY

It's not a question, necessarily, of representation. You're sitting there trying to distinguish between what's management, what's the taxpayers' interests, what is the state. Well, it's obvious. We all know what the state is. I meant, all I'm saying is that there's two sides to this thing. You've got the state's side which includes the taxpayers' side, if you want to look at it that way, and then you've got the lives and livelihood of some sixty thousand people within this state that are covered under this particular system. I meant, if you want to disregard those sixty thousand people, vote against the amendment.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, nobody has been questioning who ought to be regarded and who ought to be disregarded. You just said that they need representation. I was wondering if there were another side whether they didn't need representation as well.

MR. KELLY

Well, I think that the state is adequately represented. The governor is making four appointments under this. . . under my proposal.

Pardon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

He's limited to among certain nominations.

MR. KELLY

Well, of course. I meant, Mary, let's don't play games about those nominations, etc. going to the governor. I don't think any of us are that politically naive.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, let me ask you another question. As I understand what civil service. . . the civil service system is all about, number one, it's open to the public. Aren't all meetings open to the public? So, it isn't that they are secret and the employees can't know what's going on.

MR. KELLY

It's a matter of having some employee input into this commission. If you're against that concept, you just have to vote against the amendment. That's all I can tell you.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But they are open to the public?

MR. KELLY

Pardon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

The meetings are open to the public?

MR. KELLY

The meetings are open to the public, I assume, and that's not even the point. The point is, in other words, you're dealing with these people, this commission. Now, you can look at it from the state's side. I'm going to look at it from two sides--the state's side and the employees' side. That's the two sides that are involved. I want to see the employees' side at least have some input into this commission. That's all I'm asking.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, let me ask you one more question. Let me ask you one more question. As I've always seen it described in the literature about civil service, the commission is called a quasi-judicial body; they are appealable to the court and that sort of thing. They are passing judgment on employee appeals, which make them quasi-judicial. That would be the description of a quasi-judicial body. So, when you say that employees need representation, isn't that akin to saying "I assume that the judge, being an employee of the state, always represents the prosecution, who is also an employee of the state, and therefore, the defense should always have a representative on the judicial bench of this state?"

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. KELLY

No, that's not the issue at all, Mary. You're trying to confuse the issue. It's obvious that you're against the amendment. Let me tell you something about judges: in other words, you're talking about you've cast this thing into a situation of where you say, all right, you've got a five-man court which performs quasi-judicial functions. That's fine. I meant, I try lawsuits everyday, throughout this state, and some of those judges we think are plaintiff oriented, some of them we think are defense oriented. I meant, that's just something that we all live with, within the system. That's something that we're going to live with, within this system. Now, let me tell you something: the state, or the almighty state which you seem like you are so worried about is going to have four members on this commission. All I'm asking is that these sixty thousand employees out here at least have someone who can express their views within the commission.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Kelly, do you feel, as I do, that the biggest problem that we have with civil service and public service, in the United States today, is that too often the interests of the particular bureaucracy involved as over against a particular state management interest become predominant, and the public, who is supposed to be served and the service of whom civil service was created in the first place, seems to be forgotten in the whole process?

MR. KELLY

I would have to agree with you to a certain extent.

MR. BURSON

Well, then would you further take that concern and apply it to this particular situation and feel that what we ought to aim for on the Civil Service Commission is a type of judicial body that would be fit to look at the thing relatively objectively, and hopefully, reach decisions in accordance with the public interests as distinguished from the employee interests or the interests of the management of the particular governmental body involved?

MR. KELLY

I have no argument about that, Jack. I think that the way you get to the public's true interests is you got, possibly, one side represented here, you've got one side represented over here, and somewhere--I meant--with the two inputs into the system, they are going to come up with something which is good, or which is best, in their determination, for the public. I meant, you're dealing with human decisions, here, let's face it; just like in the judiciary. I meant, those are human decisions. Maybe they are based on law, some of them are based on fact, some of them are based on nothing, sometimes. But, I meant, that's neither here nor there. These people do strive to do what's right. We're not only concerned, here--we jumped off on the quasi-judicial functions of this particular commission, but as I understand, and I don't claim to be an expert within the field of the service, here. But, as I understand the makeup of the present commission, they have vast rule making powers, etc., policymaking powers, etc. We're not just concerned, necessarily, with whether or not--when this thing is judged--whether a man loses a job or whether he doesn't lose his job. Besides, I meant, this one employee oriented person is liable to be just as hard on his coworkers as anyone else. You'd have to assume that everyone is going to approach this thing in a fair and equitable manner. I'm not asking that the employees be granted anything extra. I am simply asking that they be allowed to have someone on that commission which could put some employee ideas, some employee oriented thinking into the commission. That's all.

MR. BURSON

Do you get. . .do you agree with my general basic point that the public interests. . .that an attempt, at least, should be made to define the public interests as distinguished from competing parties at a particular hearing, and that that is what should govern the decisions as much as possible?

MR. KELLY

I agree with that. In other words, I think what we've got to do is you've got the public's position to be concerned about, but let's don't forget the employee that's being tried, if you want to put it like that. I meant, his interest has got to be considered, too. Now, let's say this: this employee member of this commission is not going to be an advocate, he's going to be a judge. I would assume that the employee that's having problems and is appearing before the commission is going to have his own lawyer or his own advocate. So, I mean, all I am looking for is to see some employee input on to this board.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Kelly, are you aware that in the body of my amendment, on page 2, line 31, specifically, that the presidents of the seven universities named are directed to give due consideration to representation of all groups in the making of their nominations, sir?

MR. KELLY

Yeah, Moise, I see that written in there, and that's. . . quite frankly, I meant, that looks nice on paper, but it just. . . It says that they are to give due consideration." Once again, that's a judgment call. I meant, who is to say that what they give consideration to and what they don't give consideration to? I'm not doubting that they will; I'm not doubting that they won't. All I'm doing with this amendment is that I'm guaranteeing some employee input on to this commission--one out of five. I cannot understand, for the life of me, why that frightens people.

MR. DENNERY

Well, may I ask you this question, please, sir?

MR. KELLY

Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

Are you aware that that particular provision was placed into this article, or this amendment, after it was originally drafted, as a result of some conversations had between representatives of labor and me, in an effort to guarantee an employee viewpoint, with the understanding that the labor representatives more or less agreed that in the trial of appeals, it might not be a good idea to have an employee sitting on the board? As a matter of fact, at one time it was suggested that they be recused in such a situation. This is an attempt, at least on my part, to accommodate this to the very problem that you suggest. Are you also aware, sir, that there is nothing in this amendment, to my knowledge, nor is there anything in the present civil service law which prohibits a state employee from being a member of the Civil Service Commission?

MR. KELLY

That's beside the point, Moise, and I think, possibly, that you have made an effort to guarantee these things. I'm not going to stop with an effort. If my amendment passes, it's going to be. We're going to have some employee input on to that commission. It's not going to be a matter of some president of some college, some representative giving due consideration to the employee oriented person who receives a nomination or not. There's going to be no efforts. If my amendment passes, the effort part is nil. We're going to have employee representation on this commission. It's that simple.

MR. DERBES

Don, haven't you, in fact, created a statewide elective office with a limited constituency?

MR. KELLY

No, I don't necessarily think so. I don't look at this from the standpoint of an office. I think these people. . .there's a limited constituency, you might say. I meant, I don't care how. . .that's the reason I deleted Amendments 5 and 6, because we can determine how the election process would be held, etc., and that needs to be worked on. Mrs. Duncan is working on it for me at this particular time.

MR. DERBES

But, in any case, the election that would occur would be statewide among those who would be able to vote, namely, those members of the system. Isn't that correct?

MR. KELLY

That's true.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. DERBES

What do you envision as the platform of the various candidates who would be running? This may seem a bit premature, but. . .

MR. KELLY

I guess you've answered your own question. I can't answer what their platform would be. I'm not concerned about what their platform would be.

MR. DERBES

No, but as Mr. Jenkins, I think, correctly pointed out, wouldn't you think it would be a matter of, perhaps, promising certain specific reclassifications of certain jobs, trading off of support statewide? Wouldn't you see that as a distinct possibility?

MR. KELLY

Well, if that's part of the idea of bargaining and negotiations, etc., I meant, whatever promises that man wants to make, that's his business. If he wants to come on to that board advocating some changes within the system which are valid changes that need to be made in view of the interests of the employees throughout the state, there's nothing wrong with him doing that. He's simply one man out of five, once again. That's the whole idea, is the input on to the commission. This man can promise the moon. Now, whether he can deliver it or not, that's his problem.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Kelly, it's my appreciation of the concept of the civil service nominations through the various presidents of the universities that through their nominations, the representation would be completely, we would hope, unbiased and unprejudiced. Is that really not the concept of it, as it has been in the past?

MR. KELLY

There's nothing. . .that is the idea behind. . .

MR. CASEY

That's the ideal. . .

MR. KELLY

That's the ideal situation.

MR. CASEY

Now, through your recommendation of appointing someone to represent a certain special interest, are we not then going in a one hundred and eighty degree direction from that concept? Instead of representing three million eight hundred thousand people in Louisiana, only four of those members will, and one will represent sixty thousand, with a limited constituency, as pointed out by Mr. Derbes. Is that really what's happening?

MR. KELLY

If you want to analyze it in that manner, Tom, that's fine.

MR. CASEY

I have to.

MR. KELLY

Well, that's fine, and I have no objection to you analyzing it in that manner. In other words, you take your four people that are going to be representing the state, and you can talk about three hundred and something thousand people all you want to. I don't know that much about the commission. But, just apparently, I meant, these people are concerned with the state's business a little more, possibly, than they are the employees well-being. All I'm asking is for one member on a five-man commission so that the employees--the certified employees--of this state can have a true, active voice on that commission. That's all.

Further Discussion

MR. A. JACKSON

Madam Vice Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I do so because I believe that it does violence to the whole concept of trying to provide a commission that would have sufficient representation to make the changes that are needed in order to have this important structure responsive to state employees. Now, I'm certainly not opposed to state employees having representation. But, I cannot vote for this amendment because it reduces the number of people that are going to be on the Civil Service Commission. For the life of me, I cannot understand the logic of Mr. Kelly when he says that we ought to have input on this commission; yet, he reduces the membership. That is contrary. Now, everybody in this room would admit that we have some policies and some rules and some procedures that ought to be changed, and that the day to day operations must be supervised, and these changes must be made by the commission itself. Then, that if this is true, then we need a broader representation than we have. I think Mr. Dennery recognizes this, and this is why he has expanded the commission. I think the fact that we have excluded Southern University--and I don't want to stand here repeatedly and sound like a racist, but I just have to remind you that if we are talking about a structure that's going to be making decisions for all of the people, then we cannot rely entirely upon private colleges. We cannot rely on representation from institutions who have not, in the past, demonstrated their sensitivity for the needs and to the needs of all of the people. I certainly sympathize with the position that state employees ought to have representation, but I cannot, for the life of me, understand why we have to provide the representation by reducing the membership of this important structure. I think it is contrary to what we have set forth as democratic ideas and ideals for this important structure. I would urge the delegates to vote against it, and see if we can't move on and solve the problem in another fashion and leave the commission broadly structured so that we can have the input necessary to change the restrictive policies and procedures and rule making authority of this important governmental structure.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Delegate Jackson, don't you think that all of the commission members were, once upon a time, employees? Don't you think they started at the bottom?

MR. A. JACKSON

All of the commission members?

MR. WILLIS

Yes, the members of this Civil Service Commission.

MR. A. JACKSON

No, not necessarily.

MR. WILLIS

Well, then they must have inherited something. They got to work, and they got to work for somebody.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well. . .

MR. WILLIS

I'm not talking about under civil service. They had to have been employees.

MR. A. JACKSON

Oh, yes, I. . .you know, except for some of you rich folk like you, have always been self-employed.

MR. WILLIS

My dear fellow, I remember my first pair of shoes. I started with bare feet, but I endured them for a longer time than some. Don't you think that the so-called employee viewpoint which is mentioned, which may be laudatory, but, which if taken to its final point may be contrary to the public interests, or ultimately stifle it?

MR. A. JACKSON

No, I don't agree with that, Mr. Willis. I can't stand here and say that I agree with it. My primary objection to this amendment is that it restricts the ability of the commission to be responsive to the needs of the state employees. That's my primary objections to it.

MR. WILLIS

Well, I embrace all your objections, and I feel as you do. But, my point was that under the guidelines established by Mr. Dennery, further in the proposal, the institutions chosen to choose these seven members can take into consideration these so-called employee viewpoints without carrying it to their full point.

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. A. JACKSON

I would agree with that.

MR. ROEMER

In reflection, don't you think you share or, at least, are more in sympathy with these amendments, and the proponents of them, than you are with the opponents of them, in light of some of the questions you're just answering?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, Buddy, I think that I've got a primary and a fundamental objection to the concept set forth by the amendments. I certainly share with one of the objectives. I certainly sympathize with them, and I think that this convention ought to give due consideration to it. But, I cannot vote for it because it does violence to something that I believe to be fundamental in terms of a change by way of the structure of the commission. That's my primary objections.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I have one final question is that, I respect your view, but I would call your attention to a statement that you made that in effect, Mr. Denney's amendment had broadened the board. I suggest to you, it has not. If you look at the composition of that, it would broaden it from five to seven, but they seem to come from the same neighborhood.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I quarrel with the named institutions, and if you will move among your sheets there, you will find an amendment by me that I think will make some significant changes that I hope that you will consider. But, what I'm saying is that the overall structure as proposed by the Denney amendment, provides for the kind of broadened representation that I think to be important, is what I...

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Acting Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to this amendment for the following reasons: Number 1, the sponsor of this amendment has expressed the opinion that politics would not be brought into the civil service system as a result of the provision to add a member through election by civil service employees. Most of you here are elected members of this body. Some of you are also elected members of the state legislature. Now, how many of you can honestly say that you don't receive communications, telephone calls, or some other kinds of pressure from your constituency? I say to you that if we adopt this amendment, then the sixty thousand classified employees of this state would become the constituency of one member of the commission. I can't understand, for the life of me, how we could ever conceive that these employees would not call that man, would not demand of him, that he stand up for certain principles, and that he become susceptible to all of the pressures that any other political elected official would be susceptible to. Now, we know that to be a fact. I can see that as a fact. That's a definite fact. Now, you're talking about anticipating anything. I can anticipate that if I jump from the top of this building, then I don't think I would be no more. I don't have to argue about that. I don't think even the undertaker, or the physician would refute that fact. So, I know that there will be pressure. Now, let me say this: the provisions of...under the provisions of this amendment, the employee would become a politician to some extent. Why? Now, we have denied this right to the teachers. We'll say that a teacher...this convention has said that a teacher in the parish of Avoyelles cannot run for the school board because he will be controlling his own employment, etc. and etc. Now, why are we going to permit an individual who is employed in state civil service to be a member of the state civil service system? Now, the next bad feature of this amendment is that it reduces membership. Now, whenever you reduce membership, whenever you constrict, then there's the danger of excluding somebody, and that's exactly what this does: it excludes somebody. It excludes one of the black colleges. Now if that's going to cause somebody to vote the other way, then I'm sorry. I'll yield to questions.

Questions

MR. ABRAHAM

Mr. Alexander, I agree very much with some of the things you've said. Let me ask you, how much do the members of the commission get paid? Do you have any idea? Are they paid on a per diem basis or salary?

MR. ALEXANDER

I understand they are nonpaid persons.

MR. ABRAHAM

So, if this employee were to be elected, he would have to be elected on a statewide basis, would he not?

MR. ALEXANDER

Right.

MR. ABRAHAM

In order to get elected, he probably would have to travel statewide, in order to get support, would he not?

MR. ALEXANDER

No doubt about that.

MR. ABRAHAM

Where do you think the finances for this type of campaign would come from?

MR. ALEXANDER

From someone who wants to influence him.

MR. SCHMITT

Did we decide earlier that all of our state judges were to be elected?

MR. ALEXANDER

In effect, yes.

MR. SCHMITT

I think we did, didn't we?

MR. ALEXANDER

We did. Yes.

MR. SCHMITT

Now, do these state judges decide cases from districts other than those within their jurisdiction?

MR. ALEXANDER

Yes.

MR. SCHMITT

No, they don't...

MR. ALEXANDER

Well, what about a Supreme Court judge...

MR. SCHMITT

Would you like to see us go back and allow the people from Jefferson Parish to elect the judges from Orleans, and the people from Orleans elect the judges from Plaquemines? Do you think that would be a fair situation?

MR. ALEXANDER

That would not be fair, Mr. Schmitt, but suppose we go back to the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court decides decisions that may...one may be elected from Orleans, but a case may originate in Shreveport.

MR. SCHMITT

That's correct. In other words, their jurisdiction is the entire State of Louisiana. So, then, do you favor that we should elect judges who are not domiciled to the State of Louisiana to the Supreme Court, so they could be completely objective?

MR. ALEXANDER

No, I don't think we should.

MR. SCHMITT

I don't think that's a rational argument that you're bringing forward.

MR. ALEXANDER

I don't think we should. But, I'm not saying don't elect people from the state---I'm not saying that anyone from outside of the state should be elected. The only thing I'm saying is that if you elect a civil service employee to the Civil Service Board, you subject him to political pressure, and you make him a politician.

Do you realize...

MR. CASEY
You've exceeded your time, Reverend Alexander.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON
Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I have restrained my well-known impulse to speak on this topic until now. But, it seems to me that this amendment should be opposed because it is grounded in a fundamental misconception that I feel infects the whole idea of civil service in our time. That is, that the civil service system is organized for the benefit of the employees, rather than for the public whom they are supposed to serve. This is the reason why I voted yesterday to allow the legislature, by two-thirds vote, to change the system because I feel that the legislature, far more than any bureaucracy, represents the interests of the man on the street who's forgotten in all of this stuff. Bureaucracy has a life of its own, and too often, civil service, in my opinion, is used as an excuse or a shield for people who are not doing their jobs. I am sympathetic to Mr. William Buckley's contention that in New York City, you may date the decline of city services such as garbage collection, from the date when the appointment of garbage collectors was taken away from Tammany Hall leaders and given to civil service because when your garbage didn't get picked up in the old days, you called your ward leader and told him, "If it doesn't get picked up, I'm going to vote against you in the next election," and he immediately got something done about it. Today, by the time you get through the review boards, and the other mechanisms that we have used to insulate people from being corrected for malfeasance, the garbage rots in the street. I'm just offering the simple proposition to you, that in all the rhetoric that we've heard up here so far on civil service, we have heard very little to point out that civil service has some disadvantages as well as advantages. I am wholeheartedly in favor of the advantages. I think there's no question but what the civil service system has guaranteed a better quality of public employment. I am in favor of insulating civil service employees from being thrown out every time there's a change of administration. But, I submit to you that you cannot on the one hand, ask for the protection of civil service, and then, still want to retain the right to full political participation because the two are incongruous. I submit in conjunction with this amendment, that you cannot ask to retain the protections of civil service, and then on the one hand, ask to elect the judge on the court that's going to hear your case, and that's what this amounts to in my view. I feel that, as Mr. Dennery pointed out, that if you allow people who are outside of the political process to have a primary voice in making these selections, that they will in good conscience see to it that all interests in the society are represented. But, most of all, the public interest, that thing which is so hard to define, and so elusive at times, should be the dominant interest on the Civil Service Board. I'm not convinced, by the way, that it has been the dominant interest on the Civil Service Board in Louisiana up to date, as a lot of people apparently are. But, be that as it may, I'm quite sure, that if we start holding elections by the people who will be before the boards, that we are asking that person who is elected to "represent" the public employees on that board, to perform an impossible task. He would not be human if he could be elected by a group, and not be partial to their interest when they appear before that board. That simply isn't in accordance with human nature. That, regardless of what we do in this convention, will not change. I'll answer any questions.

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

Questions

MR. E. J. LANDRY
Mr. Burson, don't we elect the judge now, to hear my case?

MR. BURSON
Yee, sir. That's right, and the judge hears the appeals from the Civil Service Board, and there's your election right there, that ultimately insures that the public interest at the highest level of the judiciary will be maintained.

MR. E. J. LANDRY
Well, we elect him now, and he hears my case, doesn't he?

MR. BURSON
Yes, sir, but he hears both sides, and both sides get to vote on him.

MR. DERBES
Jack, all the people elect the judges, right?

MR. BURSON
That's correct.

MR. DERBES
Just civil litigants don't elect civil judges, or criminal defendants elect criminal judges; isn't that correct?

MR. BURSON
That's a right, and plaintiffs don't elect judges or defendants don't elect them; they both do.

MR. KELLY
Jack, to carry out this philosophy that you've expounded on there, concerning the election of the judge who's going to be hearing the case, and so forth...I mean if we carried that to the logical conclusion, then we really shouldn't elect any judges in the State of Louisiana. They should be appointed, and let me give an example. I'm involved in an automobile collision in Natchitoches Parish, and I sue the Traveler's Insurance Company. I'm a voter there. I voted for my judge. Now, did Traveler's vote for him? No. I think that we see equity within that system. If you win, you win; if you lose, you lose.

MR. BURSON
...The lawyer represents Traveler's, and the agents who sell Traveler's elected him.

MR. ALEXANDER
Mr. Burson, judges usually rule on the law, do they not?

MR. BURSON
They're supposed to, the law and the facts.

MR. ALEXANDER
But, in the case of a criminal, who in most instances is a lawyer...I mean a layman, would he be permitted...who's charged before the court, would he be permitted to sit on his own jury?

MR. BURSON
It's not the custom, as far as I'm aware. No, sir.

MR. ALEXANDER
Would not the effect of this amendment be to place a civil servant on his own jury, on his own case?

MR. BURSON
That is exactly the reason why I, as you, Reverend Alexander, oppose it.

MR. WILLIS
Jack, in legal parlance, this commission that we're talking about, is what is known as an administrative tribunal. Isn't that correct?

MR. BURSON
Or quasi-judicial.

MR. WILLIS
Well, I'm coming to that.
Generally, it's an administrative tribunal, and it is one with quasi-judicial and quasi-legislative functions.

MR. BURSON
Yes, sir.

MR. WILLIS
Rule-making is legislative, and judicial is when they decide that the controversy is as between the employee and the state, so to speak. It's the employee, himself, whether he did or did not. Now, in...to your knowledge, do you know of any such tribunal established by any civilized government whereby part of them are appointed in a manner, and another part is elected by part of the people?

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. BURSON

I know of no administrative tribunal at all that has any elected members.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Burson, isn't it true that when a judge hears an appeal, he only hears the appeal on the points of law?

MR. BURSON

Well, in Louisiana, he has a right to review the facts, also.

MR. FLORY

Not in civil service. Did you read the civil service law?

MR. BURSON

No, I thought you were talking about judges in...

MR. FLORY

No, we're talking about civil service now.

MR. BURSON

No, I think you're correct. In other words, the board is the finder of fact, and then he reviews and sees whether they applied the law correctly...

MR. FLORY

And, the decision of the commission is final as to the facts. Is that not correct?

MR. BURSON

As far as I'm aware, that's generally true, yes.

MR. FLORY

Isn't it also true that the commission has other functions than as the development of rules and the administrative procedures, particularly with reference to the development of pay plans?

MR. BURSON

Well, Mr. Flory, again, now, as far as...

MR. FLORY

Is it true, or not?

MR. BURSON

Yes, sir, but in my view, in making those rules, again, the dominant interest should not be whether the employees want them, or whether the employer wants them, but whether they are good for the public interest because the public, the taxpayers, are paying the bills for public service.

MR. FLORY

But, don't you think that that employee ought to have the right to at least say what he thinks in that regard?

MR. BURSON

I certainly do.

MR. FLORY

Behind that closed door.

MR. BURSON

I think he ought to have the right to express his views, but it seems to me that this can be taken care of by the procedures and statutes by which you set this thing up. I don't think that you necessarily have to have a member to have the employee views expressed.

MR. FLORY

Do you, as an attorney, have the right to any say-so as to the minimum prices you charge in legal cases?

MR. BURSON

We are all supposed to follow, generally, a minimum fee schedule which is set by the Bar Association.

MR. FLORY

But, you're a member of the bar?

MR. BURSON

Yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

You have a right to participate in that?

MR. BURSON

Yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

Thank you.

MR. ROEMER

Jack, did you read the research done by the research staff on civil service, and other state constitutions?

MR. BURSON

I did.

MR. ROEMER

Well, then, you know that Colorado has two members elected by the state civil service employees on a five member board; do you not?

MR. BURSON

That's correct.

MR. ROEMER

Well, you failed to bring that out in your talk. You also showed, probably, some nonknowledge about Natchitoches Parish. You know that Traveler's Insurance has never won a case there.

MR. BURSON

The only thing that I would say about the Colorado incident is: I recall that research from reading that memorandum yesterday, most of these states don't have all this stuff...all this detail in the constitution, either. They've got it in primarily as a statutory matter.

MR. AVANT

Jack, did I understand you to say in response to a question by Mr. Willis, as I was walking in the door, that you knew of no administrative tribunal which had an elected member on it? Did you make that statement?

MR. BURSON

That's exercising a quasi-judicial function. I can't think of one right offhand...

MR. AVANT

Well, what do you call the Public Service Commission?

MR. BURSON

I don't think that that's partly elected and part appointed. I think it's all elected.

MR. AVANT

Well, that's right. I may have misunderstood what you said. Now, there's one other thing that I want to ask...

MR. BURSON

Well, the first question was did I know of any that were part elected and part appointed.

MR. AVANT

Now, there's another thing that I want to ask you. There's been a lot of talk about letting the defendant sit on the jury because what Mr. Kelly's amendment would require would be that there would be a classified employee on this. Now, that's not a good analogy at all, is it?

MR. BURSON

No, it really isn't, but it's not an analogy that I made. It's one that someone made to question.

MR. AVANT

Well, I understand that. But, you are familiar with the provisions of the uniform code of military justice, are you not?

MR. BURSON

Not really specifically.

MR. AVANT

Well, you do know that under the uniform code of military justice, if an enlisted man is tried before a court-martial, that there must be representation of enlisted men on that general court-martial; don't you?

MR. BURSON

I've heard that, yes, sir.

Motion

MR. DENNERY

Madam Chairman, it seems to me, we have a very small house today. We are talking about awfully important matters. I would hate to see us make a mistake. I would, therefore, move to proceed to other orders of business.

MRS. MILLER

The previous question has been called, Mr. Dennery.

MR. DENNERY

Then, I move we adjourn, Madam Chairman.

[Motion to adjourn to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Tuesday, December 11, 1973. Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 38-39. Amendments declared not divisible.]

Point of Information

MR. ROEMER

Could it not be possible for this body to agree to reduce the membership from seven to five, but not agree on its actual composition? Therefore, couldn't we put "1" and "2" together and see if we can reduce it to five, then "3" can stand alone--and that is the employee--and then "4" could stand alone--and that is the colleges.

MR. POYNTER

I would certainly say the convention could decide to do that. But in terms of the divisibility, he sent up to effect the changes set forth that he has proposed; I still don't think they are divisible because it would put the present proposal in the posture of having reduced the membership, yet, having appointments and nominations--if you will--still coming from seven sources. Again, in my opinion, and, of course, these are fine line things at times it would not be....

MR. ROEMER

I'll abide by your ruling if that's it; I just wanted to discuss it, fine.

MR. POYNTER

Of course, I would say this, if you voted, you know, if you voted for it you could always....the amendments can be amended, that's the second point I want to make.

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Kelly, are you going to close on this?

Closing

MR. KELLY

Yes, ma'am. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we've heard a lot of talk up here about the state and this unbiased body that we are dealing with here. I have heard for the last two or three days scare tactics used at this microphone about those sixty thousand employees out there that are going to vote on this constitution when it comes up. Everybody seems concerned, "Oh, we've got to come up with civil service. We've got to do it right." I'm concerned. I said that from this microphone yesterday. Let me tell you something: If you are really interested in those sixty thousand employees out there; and if you are really interested in making them happy; and if you are really interested in providing something in this document that will put sixty thousand people--fifty thousand of them maybe, forty thousand of them--at the polls to help us pass this constitution, then you vote for my amendment. For those of you who want to sit up here and oppose these sixty thousand people throughout the state--laboring people, working people, people that go to work at 8:00 and get off at 5:00, or go to work at 7:30, they are not self-employed--who else is going to take care of them; who's going to take care of them? Are these appointees from Tulane University, from this university, some professors, some lawyers, are they going to really look after the interest of this working man? You answer that and then I'll tell you what you do: You vote against my amendment; and you go back home; and you explain in each and every one of your communities that you voted against the civil service employees of this state having a representative on the commission. Now, if you want to do that, and you can explain it, then you vote against my amendment and go back home and tell them that.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Kelly, there have been those that objected to our amendment because they said it's unprecedented to have employees represented in a board like this. Is it not true that across America now in corporation after corporation, that employees are represented on the board now, that that's the coming thing in this country?

MR. KELLY

There's no question about that.

MR. ROEMER

Isn't it also true that those who say that we are trying to reduce the base representation by having the commission at five members, don't know the history of the commission? Isn't it at five members already?

MR. KELLY

That's correct. I might add that under this particular plan which we have proposed here, Buddy, in other words, it's not all concentrated into the south Louisiana area, you've got Louisiana State here in Baton Rouge, some out of New Orleans, one out of Alexandria for central Louisiana, and Centenary College in Shreveport. Now, that's pretty across the board representation as I see it.

Before I answer Mr. Duval, too, I would like to say that concerning employee representation on boards and so forth, it's been brought to my attention that state employees already engage in statewide limited elections: (1) the Louisiana State Employees' Retirement System; the Louisiana Teachers' Retirement System; and the State Troopers' Retirement System. It has been brought to my attention that this has all worked very well in the past.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Kelly, do you know that I'm not certain, in my infinite wisdom, how to compose this board. But, I wanted to bring out something in this question that has not been brought out before, and I think to be equitable it should be brought out. Are you aware that for all cities from thirteen thousand to two hundred and fifty thousand--involving firemen and policemen--that there are two representatives of the firemen and policemen on those boards that are elected by the employees and the other three are appointed; did you know that?

MR. KELLY

Yes.

MR. DUVAL

...that it's in our constitution now and that it's worked actually pretty well.

MR. KELLY

I might also add that this is done in Colorado; it's also done in Maine.

MR. DUVAL

I'm talking about Louisiana in this one that it is done.

MR. KELLY

Right, I understand and your point is well taken.

MR. BERGERON

Don, I believe you have answered my question. But, I will direct you to Amendment No. 3 and reading "One member shall be an employee in the classified service of the state, elected to the committee by classified state employees." Well, it's not so much the board member elected from the classified employees that I'm concerned with, but the manner in which he is elected. I believe you just answered that, but would you clarify that?

95th Days Proceedings—December 8, 1973

MR. KELLY

Well, he would be elected by the classified state employees. In other words, within a limited...only classified statewide employees could vote on this particular man; it would be a vote within the system, you might say.

MR. BERGERON

Such as the retirement...

MR. KELLY

That's correct.

MR. BERGERON

Thank you.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

[Oath of Office administered to Louis Jones. II Journal 932.]

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

MR. POYNTER

Regular Order No. 1. Unfinished business. On unfinished business, of course, is Committee Proposal No. 9 introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee; a proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state, city...state and city civil service.

Of course, the status of the proposal, the convention first adopted Amendment No. 3 proposed by Mr. Flory which deleted the bulk of the proposal. Subsequently, on its last day of meeting, December 8, adopted the Dennery amendment...adopted the Dennery amendment to the proposed amendment. In addition thereto, two amendments have to date presently been adopted to the Dennery amendment; in particular, an amendment proposed to Subparagraph 1 of Paragraph (A) proposed by Delegate Perez, and adopted on the eighth; also, an amendment to Paragraph (A) proposed by Mr. ... going into Subparagraph 2, proposed by Mr. Flory and adopted by the convention on December 8.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Mr. Champagne, Mr. Abraham, and Mr. Chatelain.

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, In Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention Saturday:

On page 2 of the amendment, at the end of line 24, immediately after the word and punctuation "quorum," add the following sentence:

"No more than one member shall be from each congressional district."

Explanation

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, this is a very...simple amendment, and I think there should be a very little cause for objection. What it does is that it assures that no more than one member shall be from each congressional district. This...to those of you who feel, as some of us do, that the appointing universities are, in general, centralized in New Orleans, this assures that while they recommend that eventually the seven member board, or whatever members we eventually decided should be, shall...no two shall be from the same district. This gives us representation spread over the state. I think it's a good amendment, and I urge your adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Champagne, I'm not sure if I'm for or against your amendment yet, but by placing it in Subparagraph (C), do you not possibly destroy the concept of seven members; or, if not, destroy the concept of seven members, destroy the way that they will be appointed in the future in the rest of the article; should I say?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

No, sir, Mr. Bollinger, what this does is it allows seven members, but simply that no more than one of those members can eventually be appointed from each district. Now, in making their suggestions, the presidents of these universities would attempt to get people who are from various...congressional districts. Of course, we all know that the metropolitan area of New Orleans would reflect three congressional districts in general. So, you would still have three people from that general area. The other members would have to be in other areas of the state. I think it's a good amendment for those people who might feel that certain areas would get predominantly, the members from that area.

Any other questions, I'll be glad to answer them. Otherwise, I urge your adoption of the amendment. I honestly think it's a good one. I don't see any reason why you should object.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Champagne, in providing the...for the constitution...of the board here, are you assuming with your amendment that the composition of the commission will remain as presently in Mr. Dennery's amendment?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

It wouldn't make any difference, Mr. Flory, if it was five, seven, nine, or whatever membership it would be. Of course... nine, you would have a problem. That's correct. Assuming it's seven or eight or less.

MR. FLORY

Suppose this convention adopted a commission that called for two members to be elected by the classified employees. What would be the case in that situation?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I see no reason why they shouldn't be from different congressional districts.

MR. FLORY

You wouldn't think that the employees ought to be able to select whoever they wanted irrespective of congressional districts?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I would think so. But on the other basis, then I would allow the appointments to be from other districts than those elected.

MR. FLORY

But let them elect whoever they wanted to from whatever congressional district they may be in.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I would...agree to that.

MR. FLORY

So that if the convention ultimately adopts the proposal to allow two members of the commission to be elected, you would then be willing to go back and change your amendment in order to accomplish that end?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

No appointment. That's right, sir. I would be willing to do that.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 63-13. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment sent up by Mr. Hayes and Mr. Chatelain. Amendment No. 1. In Floor Amendment No. 1 by Mr. Dennery, adopted Saturday, on page 3 --page 3-- line 8, at the end of the line, add the following:

"Should one of the nominating authorities fail to submit nominees in the time required, or should one of the named institutions cease to exist, the governor shall make the appointment to the commission."

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Explanation

MR. HAYES

Ladies and gentlemen, this is a...this amendment, I feel, is technical in nature. The...there are provisions for the appointment being made in case the governor fails to perform. But, there are no provisions in the amendment in the event the institutions fail to perform, or, in the event the institutions fail or cease to exist. So, we decided to offer this amendment; I think, for the most part, there appeared to be no objection from the...from Mr. Dennery on this. I think it's more or less technical. There would be some provisions for continuity. In the event some institution would cease to exist, or would fail to perform, then there would be a way to fill these positions without amending the constitution.

So, I would urge you to support the amendment.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Hayes, as you so stated, you realized you were correct in stating I had no objection. I would point out to you that on page 4, line 9, a similar amendment should be inserted with regard to the city commission. In other words, you have...your amendment refers only to the state commission. I ask, do you propose to submit a similar one with regard to the city?

MR. HAYES

Well, I could do that. That's an oversight on my part. Yeah, I could do the same thing. Yes.

MR. RIECKE

You state in your amendment "during the time required". Is there anywhere else in this thing that tells you what the time required is?

MR. HAYES

During the...what you say, now? I don't get you?

MR. RIECKE

You say if the...if any of the nominating authorities fail to nominate in the time required. What do you mean by "the time required"? Thirty days, or sixty days?

MR. HAYES

There are no provisions at all that I can see....

MR. RIECKE

Well, they ought to have some time in there; don't you think?

MR. HAYES

As I appreciate it, they didn't have anything for the nominating authorities. It's only that the governor was....the governor had a time limitation. But there were no requirements for the nominating institutions.

MR. RIECKE

O. K.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Hayes, just previous to your amendment where it would fit in there, it says that "within thirty days after a vacancy occurs, the appointing...the president must submit his nominations to the governor, and that the governor must act within thirty days."

MR. HAYES

Right. Within thirty days. That's correct.

MR. DENNERY

So, there is a thirty day provision, is there not?

MR. HAYES

There is a thirty day provision for the governor. That's right.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Mr. Alphonse Jackson, Mr. Juneau, as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Dennery and adopted by the Convention on December the 8th, page 2 of said amendment, at the beginning of line 28, delete the words "Dillard University" and insert in lieu thereof "Southern University". Similarly, in the Dennery amendment, on page 2, line 29, after the word and punctuation "South," delete the words "St. Mary's Dominican College" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Louisiana State University".

Explanation

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment does not affect the total number of the composition of the board which is seven under the Dennery amendment. What it does do, and what I want to be very candid about, it changes the concept of an all private institution-type board to include public institutions. It does not affect that portion of the composition which would have to do with the representation of the blacks. By the same token, it was my own personal feeling and that of Mr. Jackson that it would be important at least from the public standpoint to have input from the public institutions. What we did was, we pick the institution which was the biggest in the state, which was L.S.U., and by the same token pick the biggest black institution which was public in nature, and that was Southern. We put those in the lieu of St. Mary's of New Orleans, number one, and Xavier. Secondly, the reason for doing this, it gives more diversification, I think, throughout the state as opposed to totally centralization in the New Orleans area. I'd be open to any questions.

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

Pat, could you tell the convention the reason, or your interpretation of the reason, why university presidents are used to appoint rather than, say, the governor appoint him, or someone else appointing members to the Civil Service Commission?

MR. JUNEAU

Well, as I understand, the thrust of the position as it is now under the present law is just to bring it one step further removed from the body politic. That's why they get university presidents.

MR. BOLLINGER

Is that not the reason that private universities are used rather than public university heads--to remove it from politics?

MR. JUNEAU

That, of course, is the philosophy that Mr. Dennery talked about. He indicated it just depends what philosophy you want to adopt. It just seems to me though, Boysie, that... I think that the public institutions of this state, when we're talking about public money and public employees, that it wouldn't do violence to that concept to have the public institutions in some way involved in that determination.

MR. BOLLINGER

But, why, in your opinion, would university heads be more capable, say, than the Public Service Commission or the House of Representatives or the Supreme Court, or anybody else, to appoint members. Since... I think it's been pretty well established that public university presidents are not.... or have not divorced themselves from politics.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, let me answer the question this way: I'm not attacking in this amendment, nor any of the previous amendments, the concept of college presidents. That's what the present law is; I'm not tampering with that. By the same token, I'm just saying it's a matter of philosophy, I think, that the private... that the public institutions in this state at least should have some role in determining the composition of this Civil Service Commission. Additionally, I think, this amendment gets it all out of an all Orleans appointment. I think it gives a little bit more for diversification within the state.

MR. JENKINS

Pat, isn't it true, though, by the amendment we just adopted, we're going to have people from throughout the state on this group, since no two can be from any one congressional district?

MR. JUNEAU

Well, that may be true, and you'd probably end up with people who went to school at those particular institutions who live elsewhere in the state. I'm just thinking... I say that if an individual went to the public school system--be it Southern or be it Louisiana State University--that I think that the broadening or the concepts that they may have may be a little bit different than what they got through that private institution.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. JENKINS

Don't you agree though that in the past the appointments from the private schools have not necessarily been from among their own alumni; in fact, they've been, in probably most cases people from other schools and from other parts of the state?

MR. JUNEAU

I really don't have any particular violence, Woody, to the people that they have appointed. I'm just saying, as a matter of philosophy, I just don't adopt the principle that it should be all private schools in this state.

MR. JENKINS

Also, isn't it true that college presidents are likely to be even more political... public college presidents are likely to be even more political in the future, than in the past, under the Education Article we've adopted, inasmuch as each particular board would be appointed by, theoretically, one governor during his term of office.

MR. JUNEAU

I really don't know if he would be more.... I guess it would just depend on the individual, Woody. What would be true today might not be true tomorrow. I really can't answer that.

MR. JENKINS

One other question: Isn't the concept of having these nominees submitted by presidents of private colleges--isn't the idea behind that the fact that you're likely to get people of quality who are not going to have a political axe to grind or any special interest one way or the other in the civil service system?

MR. JUNEAU

Well, I wouldn't agree with that, Woody. The inference would be that a public institution is not capable of appointing people of quality, and I don't subscribe to that philosophy.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Pat, I noticed in your first amendment you're substituting Southern University for Dillard University...

MR. JUNEAU

Yes, sir.

MR. SUTHERLAND

... and we just finished adopting an amendment saying that if any institution ceases to exist, the governor will fill the vacancy. Now, there is a possibility, as you well recognize, that Southern as an institution may cease to exist.

MR. JUNEAU

As would be the case, as I understand, the plight of private institutions would probably be the same.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Well, I think there's a bigger chance of the public institution, as such, being discontinued than the private institution. I just point out to you that there is this possibility. We don't know what we're going to finally wind up with, but if we start having the governor make a couple of appointments and then filling vacancies with this, we could have a problem.

MR. WILLIS

Pat, don't you think that the concept of attributing to the private institutions the power or the capacity to appoint these members to the commission, that your amendment derogates from the... what we impute to them in that we assume that they won't... that they will appoint somebody who graduated from that college? For instance, and to exemplify my question: Do you think that St. Mary's Dominican--which you wish to strike out and supplant with someone else, like Southern--do you think that St. Mary's Dominican would always nominate, of the three that it nominates to the governor, someone who graduated from the institution?

MR. JUNEAU

Not necessarily, but by the same token, Burt, it would seem logical to me that if a corporation that I was the president of were charged with the responsibility of designating someone, that would be someone who in the sphere of my corporate business I've come in contact with. I'm just saying I'm trying to broaden that horizon which would be somewhat limited under the proposal that's before this convention. I might add, we've expanded the concept of this board from five to seven. Now, I might leave it alone at five, but we have gone to seven; and if we have gone to seven, I'm not talking about changing the majority vote of the board.

Further Discussion

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman and delegates, this amendment is not one that I feel tremendously strong about, but I just want to point out to you that it's based on some false assumptions, in my mind. For example, one of the objections to the Denny proposal as drawn is that most of the colleges are in New Orleans. We have tried to correct that by passing an amendment offered by Mr. Champagne, for which I voted, saying that there must be a geographical distribution of the members of the commission. Or, will there be a geographical distribution of the institutions? It seems to me that doesn't matter a whole lot so long as the people whom they appoint are geographically distributed, because the false assumption upon which wanting the institutions to be geographically disbursed is based is that, number one; they will appoint one of their alumni and one of their alumni that is geo... tied, at least in their sympathies, to the geographical area in which the institution exist; and, number two, that the president who is making these nominations is from that area. Now, that's absolutely not so. The president of Tulane is not from New Orleans; the president of Dillard is not from New Orleans. The president of St. Mary's Dominican is not from New Orleans at this time. They all came from outside to be appointed to that post. There is almost more traveling from job to job, from state to state, among college presidents as there is with oil company executives, telephone company executives; there's just a whole lot of moving around because there are not that many college presidencies within one town. That's a false assumption. That these folks will be more responsive to the people is, in my mind at least, a questionable assumption. If you will remember, there was a tremendous amount of unrest a year or two ago, accusing the president of Southern in Baton Rouge and the president of Southern in New Orleans as being unresponsive to the people. There hasn't been much of that in the private colleges in Louisiana, more by luck than for any other reason. But, college presidents on all campuses, both public and private, are accused from time to time of not being responsive to the people. That is not a unique thing that happens only in private institutions. While it may be true of public institutions that there is no weeding out or selection as the freshman class enters, you better believe there is a lot of weeding out after that. The figures are almost horrifying. So, whether the weeding out of students takes place right after the high school graduation or right after the freshman year, as far as I'm concerned, is a distinction without a difference. So, as you cast your vote on this amendment, please cast it on the basis of whether you want private institutions or public institutions on a realistic basis that has nothing to do with geography, nothing necessarily to do with responsiveness, but really a more philosophical thing: should this power be all in the hands of presidents of private universities or not? Let me point out to you one more thing just so you won't be disappointed, because some of you may have been expecting me to say this. When you remove St. Mary's Dominican College from the appointing bunch, you're removing the only female college president that has the power to appoint under the Denny plan. Now, it may be that she will not always be a female, but as the thing now stands--and there may someday be a female president of Southern in Baton Rouge; I think it's kind of way down the line; I could be wrong--as it now stands, that's the only female with appointive powers under the Denny plan. Under the Juneau plan, there are no females appointed. So, I just... there are other under-represented groups besides north Louisiana and the blacks, and I thought I would point one of them out to you. Thank you very much.

MR. JACKSON, A.

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, just briefly, this amendment is designed to add significantly to the ability of the Civil Service Commission to respond to the needs of public employees. Now, I know of all of the arguments that have been made relative to the need to keep politics out of the Public Service Commission... I mean out of the Civil Service Commission. I, for one, would like to see the commission steer clear of politics. I do not believe by adding the public colleges and universities to the panel that we are embroiling the commission in politics. I think what we are doing is making it possible for a true representation. I think that L.S.U. and Southern University as additions to the panel will provide for the first time a kind of representation from the general public that is sorely needed. I think you will have from these two institutions individuals that will be sensitive to the problems that confront public employees. So, I would urge, in the name of democratizing this panel, that we would add these two institutions to the panel that is responsible for appointing members to the Civil Service Commission. This does not preclude women from participating. I think that these institutions will be sensitive to the fact that we need women on this commission. I support it; my record is rather clear on the inclusion of women in all strata of government. So, I would not stand here and suggest that we ought to have any sort of panel that would preclude women from true representation. I believe that they ought to be there. I believe that the institutions that will make up this panel, including Southern University and L.S.U., will be sensitive to the fact that we need women as a part of the Civil Service Commission. I urge your adoption. I think it will add to the quality of the decision. It will make the Civil Service Commission sensitive; it will democratize it, and state government will be much more efficient because we have made these changes. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Jackson, assuming that Southern University and L.S.U. are public institutions, and they supplant St. Mary's Dominican College and Dillard University, which are private institutions, now, the first question--I'm going to ask you both of them so you can answer-- the first question is: How do you justify mixing private institutions with public institutions in this way and still exclude all the other public institutions like Northeast, Northwest, Southwest, etc.?

MR. JACKSON, A.

Well, I justify it on the basis that we ought to balance the interests across this state and that we have two university systems in the state, the L.S.U. system and the Southern University system. Since we have given this kind of status to these two educational enterprises at the higher education level, I think it is appropriate that we would use them as part of the ... as part of the panel to select the commission members.

MR. ALEXANDER

The second quick question: I think you asserted the fact that women should be represented here. ...

MR. JACKSON, A.

Yes, by all means.

MR. ALEXANDER

... by appointment. Now, since ... so far as I can remember in the history of these institutions and the boards that have governed them, there aren't any women now, and there hasn't been.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
28-54. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Delegates Kelly, Roemer, and A. Jackson.

Amendment No. 1. In Floor Amendment No. 1. proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the Convention, Saturday, on page 2 of the amendment, strike out lines 27 through 35, both inclusive, in their entirety, and on page 3, delete lines 1 and 2 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) Nominations. The presidents of Centenary College at Shreveport, Louisiana; Louisiana College at Pineville, Louisiana; Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Southern University at Scottsbluff, Louisiana; Tulane University of Louisiana at New Orleans, Louisiana; and Xavier University at New Orleans, Louisiana, after giving due consideration to representation of all groups, each shall nominate three persons. One member of the commission shall be appointed by the governor from the three persons nominated by each president. One member of the commission shall be elected by the classified employees of the state from their number as provided by law. A vacancy for any cause shall be filled by appointment or election in accordance with the procedure or law governing the original appointment or election, and from the same source. Within thirty days'.

Explanation

MR. KELLY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this deals primarily with the same concept that we debated and argued, I think rather thoroughly, last Saturday. I won't make any bones about it. In other words, the primary consideration and the primary thing that I'm interested in is to have one employee representative on the commission. Now, last Saturday morning we went with a five-man board. This amendment gives the seven-man board, of course, which would reduce, you might say, the representation of the employee onto this particular board. It would be six nominated by the various college presidents: namely, Centenary, Louisiana College--we substitute L.S.U. in--Southern University, Tulane, and Xavier which makes up the six universities making the nomination. Then, the seventh member would be the employee commissioner who would be elected by the classified employees of the state. As I attempted to argue last Saturday morning, I just think that it's an absolute necessity that we give the employees some representation onto this board. This reduces, you might say, his percentage of representation as related to the amendment that was offered last Saturday. I just can't conceive of how this convention or the people throughout the State of Louisiana would object to the employees who are governed by this very system having one spokesman on this commission. I heartily urge that you support this amendment. As I stated last Saturday morning, if you want to give this constitution a little boost, then I think this would be a good place to do it, because I think that we can safely say that there is some sixty thousand employees throughout the State of Louisiana, covered under this particular system, that would heartily endorse this amendment, and possibly this proposal with this amendment included in it.

Questions

MR. TOBIAS

Don, I'm reading your amendment. It does basically three things; it would change two of the colleges to two state universities?

MR. KELLY

That's correct.

MR. TOBIAS

It would also allow one member to be elected by the employees of civil service?

MR. KELLY

That's correct.

MR. TOBIAS

Now, have we not in effect rejected the concept just a few moments ago with respect to Louisiana State University and Southern University as representing the appointing agencies on the board?

MR. KELLY

Well, I think that's apparent. I think that was the amendment earlier, but that's neither here nor there.

MR. TOBIAS

Do you have another amendment that would just simply allow for one of the seven members to be elected by the members of civil service?

MR. KELLY

I do not have such an amendment drawn at this time.

MR. ABRAHAM

Don, as I understand, the thrust of the various arguments that's been proposed on the makeup of the commission was that to try to remove it as much as possible from the arena of direct politics. My question is: Why, if assuming we do want employee representation, why should he not be appointed the same as the other members, rather than elected?

MR. KELLY

Well, I see nothing wrong... I'd see nothing wrong with the employees in a limited election. I mean it's not like we're making this a statewide election with the people of the State of Louisiana, or the entire constituency of the State of Louisiana, voting upon this particular representative, but I meant I see nothing wrong with having the civil service employees themselves decide who is going to be their representative onto this commission. No, I wouldn't be in favor of an election, you might say, within the entire state for all the electors of the state to vote on. Don't really have any objection to one of them being appointed.

MR. RIECKE

... there's sixty thousand employees; they would have to have an election of sixty thousand people to vote on one employee -- one member of the commission? Wouldn't that be rather cumbersome?

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. KELLY

I wouldn't think so. It's my understanding that the Louisiana State Police Association does it within their retirement system for the representatives. There are two or three others that... the Teachers' Association, I think, has representatives on the retirement systems that are elected by the -- I guess, the L.E.A. or the L.T.A.-- the local organizations.

MR. RIECKE

How would these sixty thousand people scattered all over the state know of the qualifications of a person in order to vote intelligently on them without a campaign by that man for that position? This would put it into politics, wouldn't it?

MR. KELLY

Well, it would put it into politics within the political realm of the people that are governed by this very commission, Mr. Riecke. I see nothing wrong with that.

MR. BERGERON

Don, we have one member on your amendment which is elected by the members of the civil service throughout the state....

MR. KELLY

Would you speak just a little louder? I'm having trouble hearing you.

MR. BERGERON

All right. I said we have one member under your amendment which would be elected from the civil service members throughout the state. If, for some reason or another, this man was to resign -- for reasons of health or other reasons--who would do the... would this vacancy be filled by appointment or election?

MR. KELLY

It says that "a vacancy for any cause shall be filled by appointment or election in accordance with the procedure of law governing the original appointment or election, and from the same source within thirty days," so I guess ....

MR. BERGERON

So, he would be elected.

MR. KELLY

He would be elected again. Right.

MR. BERGERON

Thank you.

MR. JENKINS

Don, don't you really make a bad analogy when you make an analogy between this and the retirement systems of the state, because in the case of those retirement systems, you're not dealing with public funds at all, but funds belonging to those employees? The board that administers those funds is simply like the board of a credit union. It's not a controversial thing where people get out and campaign and spend a lot of money and have favors to pay off, and things like this. But, under your system, wouldn't that just be the case?

MR. KELLY

No, Woody. In other words, there is a distinction, and it's not a complete or exact analogy, but let's just say this, that when we put this representative, this employee representative, onto this commission, I think they... the employees of this state have a vital interest in what goes on within that commission. I meant, we're concerned with their wage increases at this particular time, what they start, how they are employed, how they are terminated--just a barrage of things--and their own job security. Now, what is wrong with them having some vital interest in those items?

MR. JENKINS

Well, isn't....

MR. KELLY

To me, that is more important than the money that you refer to within the retirement system.

MR. JENKINS

Isn't the purpose of having people appointed from these private colleges the idea that you're going to try to get fair and impartial people with no axe to grind? Wouldn't this person who would be chosen in this way be really almost like a lobbyist, a spokesman for a group, always trying to lead the commission in one particular direction rather than trying to be what the Civil Service Commission is--a fair and impartial body with no interest one way or the other?

MR. KELLY

Let me tell you something, Woody; you can look at this thing from two respects. You say that you're concerned about fairness and impartiality. Okay. Maybe that an employee might be employee-oriented. Quite frankly, I've seen other occasions and other analogies where people a lot of times bend over backwards to make sure that they do not receive criticism, say, along those lines. At the same time, are we to understand that some professor from Tulane University or somewhere else who, quite frankly--or some of the other private institutions--does not have the relationship with the working class of people within this state and are we to say that is fairness and impartiality for a man that is so separated from the working people of this state? I just can't see your argument...

MR. JENKINS

Well, hasn't it worked well in the past; and if it hasn't, why haven't we had state employees calling us? Did you know that the state employees in my district have told me that they're well satisfied with the system the way it is?

MR. KELLY

I think, when they talk in terms of that, the employees of this state are interested in one thing and that's job security. That's the ones that are already covered under this commission, Woody. I don't think that there's any employee in this state covered under the Civil Service Commission who would not readily agree that anywhere that there can be improvement toward the working people of this state, that they would be against that. Now, as far as letting the legislature tamper with their job security, I think it's evident that they don't want the legislature being able to tamper with their job security which they enjoy at this particular time under the present system.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Dr. Asseff as follows: Amendment No. 1. In Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on December 8, Saturday, on page 2 of said amendment delete lines 27 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(2) Nominations. After giving due consideration to representation of all groups, the presidents of Centenary College, Louisiana College, and the University of Southwestern Louisiana, each shall nominate three persons; the presidents of Dillard University and Xavier University of Louisiana, acting jointly, shall nominate three persons; and, the presidents of Tulane University of Louisiana and Loyola University of the South, acting jointly, shall nominate three persons. One mem--"

Explanation

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, in the view of the fact that the convention is in the "no" mood, it might be well for me to hold mine over until next week. I agree with Mr. Dennery that the Civil Service Commission should be independent. I also agree with the concept. But, I cannot agree with the change he is making in the composition of the commission. Since he stated that the present setup has worked well, it is difficult for me to understand the increase from five to seven members with five of the seven nominating colleges being located in New Orleans--regardless of the residence or sex of the presidents and regardless of how well they may do. I cannot support this. My amendment retains the present setup--five-member commission--but I make two changes to correct inequities: (1) We, in the present composition, we do not include black universities on the list of nominating universities; and we do not list a south Louisiana University. I retain Centenary College, Louisiana College; I combined Loyola and Tulane for one; Xavier and Dillard for one; and I add the University of Southwest Louisiana--the principle is the same. Under the present provision, L.S.U. is a public institution. I am replacing it with U.S.L. I am rather reluctant to decide whether to include Loyola or Tulane, or Dillard or Xavier; I would be willing to accept either. But, I don't want to give the impression I'm showing favoritism, and that is the purpose of the amendment. As it now stands, I am willing to accept the civil service provision. I am unwilling to accept the composition of the commission. I think many people will not accept five nominations being made by universities located in New Orleans. I have nothing against New Orleans nor against the universities involved. I do object to five from the same area, whether they are from my area or your area.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman and delegates, the delegates to this convention have spoken repeatedly on this issue. First, the delegates have said, in no uncertain terms, that they are desirous of increasing the number from five to seven. I think that's definite and positive. Expanding the commission is one of the best ways to give wider representation. Second, the delegates to this convention have said without equivocation that they want women represented on this commission. The original Denney amendment guarantees that, in that, St. Mary's Dominican College would be one of the appointees. Thirdly, the convention has said, in no uncertain terms, that blacks should be guaranteed representation. This amendment, in my way of thinking, does violence to all three concepts. I think all of these concepts have been adopted and any attempt to change or alter them has been rejected repeatedly by the delegates to this convention. I say to you that since this is the worse of the worse and since this one does more violence than all the others combined, I am asking you to vote against this one, if possible, unanimously.

Thank you so very much.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I would like to answer Reverend Alexander, because I feel that he has not stated the facts correctly. The present commission is composed of five members. The burden of proof to increase it to seven is therefore upon the person who sponsors it. I have no opposition to seven, if we can find colleges and universities outside of the same city. (2), We do have a black representative from either Xavier or Dillard. That is one out of five or approximately twenty percent which is about what the black population is. It would vary five or six percent about twenty-five or twenty-seven percent. Well, you can't represent everything. Women can be represented, as I see no reason if we are going to say these universities are so objective, so fair they are going to take everything into consideration--and that is what has been said--why can't they take sex into consideration? I see no reason why they cannot. If you wish to reject it, reject on the facts and not on the basis that it is being unfair to anyone because I think that the amendment is fair. I don't believe that many people...I know I am unwilling to accept the entire proposal if five colleges nominating come from the city of New Orleans, and I think that will be true of many people. Thank you.

Questions

MR. GINN

Dr. Asseff, you said you wanted to be fair with this amendment and all of that. I read Southwestern in that bill. What happened to Northeast, or Louisiana Tech, or someone like that?

MR. ASSEFF

I have no objections; I simply selected one, and U.S.L. because it is the largest in south Louisiana. I would have no objections to Southeastern; in fact, I included that first. I have no objections. I just want south Louisiana to make its own nomination; that is all. Thank you.

MR. ALEXANDER

I'm sorry. Since you have stated that women possibly could be represented under your amendment--with possibly one exception throughout the history of civil service--do you know whether any women have served?

MR. ASSEFF

I'm sorry, I cannot hear your question, Reverend Alexander.

MR. ALEXANDER

I say do you know without...with one exception, do you know of any women who have been appointed by any of these institutions?

MR. ASSEFF

I have no idea who's been appointed, Reverend Alexander. I have no assurance that five to seven will correct anything. Hasn't the argument been made that the present system has worked well? If it has, why increase the membership? I see no reason why these universities may not nominate a woman. I see no reason why St. Mary's Dominican could not nominate three men. Now, you give me a college outside of Orleans, and I'll go along with you.

MR. ALEXANDER

Dr. Asseff, are you aware of the fact that there is an amendment pending to disperse memberships so that no more than one individual can be appointed from a congressional district?

MR. ASSEFF

Are you aware of the fact that it takes it exactly one month, under a U. S. Supreme Court decision, to acquire residence in any congressional district, Reverend Alexander--so that is meaningless?

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
15-70. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment reads as follows: In Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denney and adopted by the convention on December 8, page 2 of the floor amendment, line 22, immediately following the partial word and punctuation "nation," delete the remainder of line 22, delete lines 23 through 35, both inclusive, in their entirety, and on page 3, delete lines 1 through 8, both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "There is hereby created and established a State Civil Service Commission to be composed of seven members who are citizens and qualified voters of the State of Louisiana. Five members of the commission shall constitute a quorum. The seven commissioners shall be appointed by the governor for a term of six years as follows: The presidents of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College at Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Centenary College at Shreveport, Louisiana; Louisiana College at Pineville, Louisiana; Southern University at Scotlandville, Louisiana; and Xavier University at New Orleans, Louisiana, shall each nominate three persons, and one member of the commission shall be appointed by the governor from three persons nominated by each president. Two members of the commission shall be elected by the classified employees of the state as provided by law. Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governor from nominations made in like manner by the president (or his successor) of that institution who nominated the member whose place is being filled, and by election, as provided by law, for members representing the classified employees. It shall be the duty of the presidents of Xavier University and Southern University to, within thirty days after the effective date of this constitution, make such nominations, and thereafter within thirty days after any vacancy occurs, it shall be the duty of the presidents of each of said institutions to make such nominations. Within thirty days of the expiration of the terms of the members of said commission previously nominated by the presidents of Loyola University and Tulane University and serving at the effective date of this constitution, an election shall be held, as provided by law, to elect two members to represent the classified employees.

All appointments as hereinabove provided shall be made by the governor without confirmation of the Senate."

We need a technical change here to the instructions to clarify, with respect to the amendments previously adopted. With respect to page 2 of the amendment, it ought to include deleting all amendments thereto. It's my understanding being that if this amendment adopted, a similar amendment would be proposed but somewhat different. But, stop short on page 3 of deleting the amendment added by the Hayes amendment--the Hayes amendment which reads: "Should one of the nominating authorities fail to submit nominees in the time required, or should one of the institutions cease to exist, the governor shall make the appointment to the commission" would stay in.

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, last week when we first started consideration of the civil service proposal, I had submitted three amendments, one of which was adopted and left only page one of the committee's proposal. The other two related to the appointment, procedures, and numbers of the commission.... both as it relates to the State Civil Service Commission and the City Civil Service Commission in municipalities over four hundred thousand. What this amendment does...is an amendment that I had asked that, and to be allowed to withdraw the other two amendments the other day in order to make some corrections inasmuch as I had talked to a number of delegates who were opposed to the governor having the appointive power to appoint two members of the commission. Parliamentary rules being what they were at that time--and still are-- Mr. Dennery objected to me withdrawing the amendment for the purposes of making changes--and I don't fault him for that. It was a parliamentary move in his behalf, which I think was entirely his prerogative. As a consequence, I had to withdraw that motion and go ahead on the merits of the amendments that I had submitted. The discussion that was held on the floor of the convention at that time, related to the--as I said--the power of the governor to make the appointments insofar as two members were concerned from state civil service. What this amendment does is retains five colleges, three of which now make nominations and the governor appoints from those nominations. The three colleges that are retained--as is the present constitution--Louisiana State University, Louisiana College, and Centenary College. Those three colleges are retained as to make nominations. I have added Xavier University at New Orleans and Southern University at Scotlandville to comprise the five nominating universities. The other two members would be elected by the classified employees--which there are some forty-nine thousand I understand, in the state of the sixty thousand employees that the state has. The election would work basically the same as it does with the State Employee's Retirement Board, with the retirement board--in that case--which sends out the ballots to each participant in the retirement system and they then mail their ballots back and they are tabulated in public. The same procedure here would be used, whereby, the Department of Civil Service would be the one that would send out the ballots to employees in the classified service--all of whom the department has on record, their names and addresses--they would be allowed to vote secret ballot and then they would be tabulated in public. A great deal has been said about the employees having the right in order to elect a member of the commission or two members of the commission. Some say that it would politicize the commission; some say that it would be expensive for a state employee to campaign for this particular office. I submit to you that that is not true. Politics and campaign in this type of an election are not done as in civil politics. If the members--and I don't recall exactly how many of them are elected; I think five on the State Employee's Retirement System, as well as the Teacher Retirement System, also elected--and they are able to police the investments and control of the funds in excess of a billion and a half dollars. Then, I see no reason why they couldn't conscientiously administer the affairs of the Department of Civil Service and the implementation of pay plans, the development of rules, and the hearing of the disciplinary cases. This is not without precedence in that the employees elect representatives for the Civil Service Commission almost throughout the state on the municipal level without--the except rather of the city of New Orleans. I would ask that you adopt this amendment to give the employees of this state some voice in the development of a pay plan, the development of rules which govern them in their everyday work. Now, they say that an employee sitting on the Civil Service Commission would be prone, on disciplinary cases, to vote for the employee who had been disciplined. All I can tell you is--based upon those systems where the employees do elect a representative--that has not been the case. I would venture a guess to say that in the majority of the cases, the employee representative that had been elected by his peers normally follows the administrative disciplinary action that has taken place, and upholds the administration based upon the facts developed in the case. So, you will not find that the employee just upholds the employee who has been disciplined merely for the sake of being an employee representative and upholding the employee. I ask that you adopt the amendment. Mr. Chairman, I will answer any questions.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, first a point of clarification. Is it your intention to delete Mr. Champagne's amendment which demanded that the representation be dispersed geographically throughout the state?

MR. FLORY

No, my purpose was to make it apply only to the appointed members. I asked Mr. Champagne at the...I have not done that in my amendment. I think the desk has made the technical correction. If my amendment were adopted, it would do that to say that only the appointed members..no two appointed members could come from the same congressional district.

MRS. ZERVIGON

How can that be done at the desk?

MR. FLORY

I say that no two appointed members could come from the same congressional district.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You mean, we are going to have to amend it again?

MR. FLORY

No, if my amendment is adopted, it's my understanding that the desk has made the technical corrections to do that if the amendment's adopted.

MRS. ZERVIGON

May I ask the desk that question? You left the Hayes amendment, but other than that you said, "deleting all amendments thereto"; didn't you?

MR. POYNTER

As I understood what you asked, Mr. Flory, would be to keep the Hayes amendment but it would be necessary for Mr. Champagne to reoffer his amendment. Now, if you want to withdraw this, we can insert that language in the text of your amendment, whichever you prefer.

MR. FLORY

I thought the desk had made the correction. My amendment does delete the Champagne amendment based upon the fact that he agreed at the time that he had his amendment under discussion, that if this was adopted, that it would apply only to those that were appointed. I would have to come back with an amendment to provide that only the appointed members, no two of which could come from the same congressional district.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, in addition to that, would you point out to us exactly the differences between this amendment and the various Kelly and Roemer amendments and other amendments that went the route of adding public as opposed to... private as opposed to public colleges. It seems to me yours combines two different philosophies: one, the inserting of public institutions, and the other, electing from the employees--which we beat several times both Saturday and today. I was just wondering what exactly you had done in the way of making your amendment different that would make it more acceptable to the body.

MR. FLORY

No, this amendment has been on file, Mrs. Zervigon, since the first...when we discussed and I offered a motion to withdraw the amendments the other day to make corrections. These amendments were before the convention at that time. This is the only time I have had an opportunity to present these amendments. Therefore, what it does, is exactly what you said in that you have three private colleges, two state universities making nominations, and you have two members of the commission being elected by the classified employees of the state.

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, I have been trying to compare your amendment to some others. It seems as though yours is exactly the same as Don Kelly's amendment, insofar, as adding L.S.U. and Southern. The only difference is you take out Tulane and put in another elected employee so that you have two employees; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

I have two employees elected, Mr. Jenkins. As I said the other day, there were many who objected to the governor. In my original amendment it called for seven members and it called for the governor to make two appointments--five nominating colleges and two to be appointed by the governor. What this does is to allow the two to be elected by the employees in the classified service.

MR. JENKINS

In the past--I noticed you take out Loyola and Tulane--

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

in the past haven't Loyola and Tulane both presented the commission with good commissioners that have served well?

MR. FLORY

They have made...they have complied with the constitutional provisions and made nominations to the governor and the governor has made those appointments.

MR. JENKINS

Let me ask you another thing: Under your amendment really four out of the seven would be from either public colleges or public employees; isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

Mathematically, that's correct.

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Flory, how will you estimate that the two members of the civil service, throughout the state, would be elected? I see you have five to be appointed by the governor, and two members of the commission to be appointed by the governor from recommendations of the civil service. How do you think this would go about, or what would be the mechanics of this, sir?

MR. FLORY

Of the election?

MR. CHATELAIN

Yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

I say, as provided by law, and I think the election procedure could be set up by law, as I mentioned, as it is done in the same manner in which the state employees' retirement system, elects, I think, it's five members. I'm quoting from memory now, but I think it's five members, elected statewide from all of the participants in the retirement system. The civil service department has on file every classified employee's name and address who works for the State of Louisiana. They would be nominated in accordance with the provisions of the law. The department would mail out ballots of those running in the election. The employee, when he received it, would cast his ballot, place it in a blank envelope, place that envelope in another envelope. It would go back to the commission, they would be opened in public. The first envelope would be opened. They would be co-mingled then together in the blank envelope, they would then be opened and counted.

MR. CHATELAIN

You don't think that the hierarchy of the association would have any influence on anyone, then, in your opinion?

MR. FLORY

Not in my judgment. A man gets his ballot at his home. He casts his ballot at home, and puts it back in the mail.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 34-54. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

I have another set of amendments sent up by Delegates Kelly, Roemer, Bergeron, Alphonse Jackson.

Amendment No. 1. In the floor amendment proposed by Delegate Denny, and adopted Saturday, page 2 of the amendment, delete lines 27 through 35, both inclusive in their entirety. On page 3, delete lines 1 and 2 in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Nominations. The presidents of Centenary College in Shreveport, Louisiana; Dillard University at New Orleans, Louisiana; Louisiana College at Pineville, Louisiana; Loyola University of the South at New Orleans, Louisiana; Tulane University at New Orleans, Louisiana; and Xavier University at New Orleans. After giving due consideration to representation to all groups, each shall nominate three persons. One member of the commission shall be appointed by the governor from three persons nominated by the president. One member of the commission shall be elected by the classified employees of the state from their number, as provided by law. A vacancy for any cause shall be filled by appointment, or elected in the course or procedure of law governing the original appointment or election, and from the same source. Within thirty days."

Explanation

MR. KELLY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we're back with the same concept of trying to get an employee representative on to the Civil Service Commission. Now, there are no public schools listed in this particular amendment. We're dealing primarily with private institutions, and the only one...

Point of Information

MRS. BRIEN

Mr. Chairman, isn't that the same amendment the convention's been rejecting, two or three times, already?

MR. HENRY

Well, it's the same concept, but it's not the same amendment. Mrs. Brien. Some people just keep going and going. You know how Mr. Gravel and Mr. Kelly get, some days. So, I guess we'll have to listen.

Proceed.

Explanation continued

MR. KELLY

I tell you what, Mr. Chairman...I'll tell you and I'll tell the rest of this convention, you all can go back home if you want to, and tell these people that are employed under this particular commission that you denied them a voice on this commission. Now, you can do that. But, I'm not going to, not at all. So, back to the amendment as it stands. In other words, we've got six private institutions. Now, this is the same thing that has been passed by this convention at this time. We're taking out one private college, and that's the St. Mary's Dominican, or some small private institution there in New Orleans. We're removing that institution. We are leaving Centenary in north Louisiana; we are leaving Dillard, Louisiana College, Loyola, Tulane, and Xavier, and then asking for one thing: that you give the civil service employees of this state the right to elect one member to serve on this commission. That is the only change, aside from what has already been passed. In other words, you've got a seven-man board that has already been passed by this convention. You've got seven private institutions that are going to make the nominations. Now, what is so wrong with saying, all right, let six of these private institutions make the nominations, and let the civil service employees of the state elect one of their number to serve on this particular commission. Now, this is a definite change from what was done earlier, and some people have valid... not necessarily valid objections, but in their own mind they were valid objections, as to placing public institutions as one of the nomination members of the group. There are no public institutions. Southern University is not included. Louisiana State University at Baton Rouge is not included. There's no Southwesterns, no Northwesterns, no Southeasterns; there are no public institutions. There are six private institutions, just like has already been passed in the Denny amendment, with one exception. One person who would sit on this commission would be a certified employee of the state. I ask that you give this amendment your favorable consideration.

Question

MR. TOBIAS

Don, would you be willing to accept an amendment that would state that the elected member of the commission would be ineligible to ever be reelected to that office?

MR. KELLY

That's fine with me. I have no objection. In other words, I think that possibly that might even be a good amendment. That would mean that there would be no certified employee of the state that would become so entrenched, in other words; it would give different people, different certified employees throughout the state, a chance to serve in this capacity. I would personally have no objection to such an amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I won't rise before you and tell you that I'm an expert on civil service in the State of Louisiana. I voted for the Dennery amendment, and if you'll check my voting pattern, I haven't voted to change any of the colleges, private institutions which will be doing the nominating for the members of the Civil Service Commission. Yes, we did change St. Mary's Dominican College, an all-woman college. But, we did provide for one member to be elected. Now, who's to say this member will not be a woman? Why not allow the employees of the civil service system throughout the state to have one member on this board--one member who represents the views of sixty thousand workers. Now, previously, we set the precedent of electing officials throughout the state. I feel it's a good process. I feel this is one case where we should have an election. I've heard from this platform that you want public institutions to do nominations to the Civil Service Commission because they are closer to the working class throughout the State of Louisiana. Why not have a member who's elected? How much closer can you get to the working class of the people of Louisiana, than one from among their own ranks? I also feel that this one member, one member, we're not talking about a majority, or a controlling factor; we're talking about one out of seven. I feel he could be helpful in relating the views of the people in civil service to the commission. I won't take up any more of your time because I feel this matter has been discussed thoroughly. I feel we've heard all aspects of it. I would simply urge you to let the working class of this state have a voice in the system which governs them. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. REEVES

Mr. Chairman and members of the convention, I realize many of you aren't listening to what's going on, and you've made up your mind, and it's become a solid, concrete wall. No amount of screaming by me or listening to the intelligent debate by some of the other delegates could dig into this solid concrete wall that you have. Well, let me just for a moment, involve you with what you've done in the past. In you, good government, excellent government, pseudo-government--individuals sitting out there, listen just a moment. On the Executive Article, you voted, along with me, and you debated continually, and from this podium, many, many delegates came forth and said that people of the State of Louisiana must not be denied representation, must not be denied the sacred right to vote on certain elected officials. We were able to place these elected officials back in the hands of the elected...of the electors, and rightfully so. But then, your hypocritical little minds, all of a sudden, just change when it comes to civil service system. You don't want sixty thousand civil service employees to have any representation. Now, you explain this to me. In your little explanation, the only thing that you've been able to say is: "woo, woo," we don't want the civil service system to be involved in politics. I say to you that's hogwash. The civil service system has always been involved in politics. It always will be involved in politics because the political system is either a political system behind a closed door, with individuals that are trying to put forth their own ideas across, or it's out there in the ballot box, and sixty thousand civil service employees need one representative on a Civil Service Commission. That's all Mr. Kelly and Mr. Roemer, and Mr. Bergeron, and Mr. Jackson are asking, that these individuals be not denied the most sacred right that there is, the right of simple representation. Now, as Mr. Kelly said before, you may go home and tell these people, no, we thought you didn't have the intelligence; we thought you couldn't get up and figure out an individual to represent you on a civil service system; we thought the technicalities were just a little bit too great, as Mr. Riecke said. Now, how in the world, is sixty thousand people going to get together and elect somebody to be their representative? Now, you've just said that, I think here, the technicalities are too much for these people. Well, I'll say that the technicalities are not too much, and my voice and my vote is going to be for having the people of the civil service system having a right to elect a representative to voice their opinion on the Civil Service Commission. That's all we're asking. I think that this is all that any intelligent human being could ask. But, again, I realize that some of you're attacking your hand, and you're saying, "Oh, no; oh, no, we can't give representation to people because you know what they'll do." Representation to people's wrong. Well, you're just little people, just sit back with your hypocritical minds, and think about it. You gave representation once to people because that was you. Let's give it to all the people, including the people of the civil service system. Let's give them a voice in their representative.

Further Discussion

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Reeves got up here and asked everybody to think about what they're doing, and tried to equate it with what was done on the election of the statewide elected officials. Then, he said that the delegates sitting out there in front of them were possessed of hypocritical, little minds. I wonder if that's the way you get people to change their minds. I move the previous question on his amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. KELLY

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I just want to reiterate one thing because this is the issue involved. There's one issue involved here. In the past in some of these other amendments that have been up here, there have been more than one issue. In other words, whether you're going to substitute public institutions for private institutions, etc. There's one issue involved in this amendment. We're leaving Mr. Dennery's proposal as it absolutely stands except we're removing one of the private institutions, and giving the people, the civil servants of this state, the right to elect one of their members to serve on a seven-man commission. I ask that you support it.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted:
52-41. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

I have a set of amendments that go to both (C) and (D), sent up by Mr. Avant.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the Convention Saturday, on page 2, at the end of line 26, immediately after the word and punctuation "years." add the following: "No person shall ever be appointed to serve for more than one term of office on the commission."

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on the eighth, page 3, line 15, immediately after the word and punctuation "provided." and before the word "The" insert the following sentence: "No person shall ever be appointed to serve for more than one term of office on a city commission."

Explanation

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is a very simple amendment, and I think the reasons behind it should be rather obvious. This entire system, supposedly, is nonpolitical, nonpartisan, disinterested operation of a personnel system amongst state and city employees by individuals who are appointed upon the recommendation of the presidents of certain private institutions, primarily, until this most recent amendment was adopted, which gave one member in the State Classified Service the right to be on this board, so as to insure a completely nonpolitical system. Now, under those circumstances, and in line with that philosophy, if you accept that philosophy, it seems to me that it is necessary that we add the provision that no such individual shall serve more than one six-year term on this commission, so as to prevent the system becoming frozen by lack of input and contributions from a wide and varied body of individuals who may be appointed by this process from time to time. I think that, perhaps, some of the objection and some of the dissatisfaction that has been expressed as to the present system, would have been avoided if we had this provision in the present constitution. Now, that, without any disrespect or any criticism of any member of the commission, past or present, who has been on there and has served. But, I do know of a number of members who have served on that commission for at least twelve years, and maybe, some longer--at least two terms. Now, it seems to me that that is directly contrary and at odds with what you are trying to accomplish with this philosophy that's expressed. I won't take any more of your time. I think that you understand the purpose of the amendment. I think that it will actually strengthen the system rather than weaken it. I ask your favorable vote.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Jack, as I read your amendment, it does not apply to the elected person. Is that correct?

MR. AVANT

No, it does not, Mr. Roemer. As far as I am concerned, I would have no objection, once my amendment is adopted, if someone wanted to amend my amendment. But, I didn't want to withdraw it and get into all that, get bogged down and all that process. My amendment goes to the appointed members and provides that "no person will be appointed to more than one term on either a State or a City Civil Service Commission.

MR. ROEMER

I understand. Yours was prepared before it. . .

MR. AVANT

It was prepared before the Kelly amendment was adopted, and I just didn't want to get bogged down in all of that withdrawing it and resubmitting it and all. . .

MR. ROEMER

But, if adopted, you're saying that you will support to make it all inclusive?

MR. AVANT

I said I wouldn't object to it. I won't be up here fussing about it. I've got to think about it a little bit.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Avant, in line with what Mr. Roemer was saying, why would you treat the elected member different than the appointed members? They're all members of the same board.

MR. AVANT

I'm not treating him any different, Mr. Lanier. My amendment was drawn—I thought I answered that question—my amendment was drawn and had been up there before the Kelly amendment was ever adopted. I just didn't want to withdraw it and resubmit it and go through all that malarkey. If somebody wants to adopt. . . offer an amendment to my amendment, if it's adopted, to make this restriction apply to the elected members, I promise you, I will not be up here fussing about it.

MR. LANIER

Now, secondly, don't you feel that your amendment would create the situation that where a person has been there for six years and was getting some expertise in the job, that suddenly they would have to be removed?

MR. AVANT

Mr. Lanier, it's my understanding that these people are appointed to this thing, supposedly, because they already have this expertise. I think that expertise from various sources would be desirable, rather than to create a bureaucracy that kind of becomes frozen in itself and gets stultified and doesn't have any new thoughts or any new ideas. I think that the entire system, in accordance with the philosophy of the people who promote that system, will be improved, if you adopt my amendment.

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Avant, are you aware that I have an amendment that would require that the elected member would not be eligible for reelection?

MR. AVANT

I know you asked me if I wanted to pull mine down and put that on it, and I said no. But, I didn't know that you actually had sent up an amendment to that effect. But, I promise you, you won't see me up here opposing it.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I want to urge you to vote against this amendment for this reason: you have some good people serving on the commission, now. For example, the chairman, Mr. Harry A. Johnson, Jr., people who have built up some expertise, who understand these problems. I don't see any reason that their experience and knowledge should be thrown out the window. Normally, anyone who is appointed to this position is going to have to be reappointed by a different governor. If a different governor saw fit to appoint this person, it would probably indicate that this person is pretty well qualified and must be doing a pretty good job on the commission. I just don't see any reason that we should automatically rule out that expertise. Now, as far as these people being involved in politics and things like that, putting a one term limit does nothing to further limit their political activity. Under Subsection (1) of Mr. Dennery's proposal, you'll see that no member of any Civil Service Commission can be a candidate for political office, or engage in political activity, or serve on a political party committee, or contribute to a campaign, or anything like that. So, these people are not going to be involved in partisan politics either way. I just don't see why we should say that good people who understand these problems, who have some experience, and who might be appointed by a different governor should be ruled out of serving on these commissions. So, I urge you to vote against. . .

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Jenkins, these people on this Civil Service Board, they won't have staggered terms, will they?

MR. JENKINS

I thought that they would, Mr. Lanier, but I'd have to check it to be sure. I'm just not sure about that.

MR. LANIER

Well, if they don't have staggered terms, that means that they'd all go off at the same time. Is that right?

MR. JENKINS

That would be true, if they didn't have staggered terms.

MR. LANIER

So, the governor would have all these appointments at one shot, if they don't have staggered terms?

MR. JENKINS

That would be correct.

You could have a revolution in the commission and have no expertise remaining, if that were the case. But, I'm not sure whether it is or not.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. AVANT

I'd like to answer the so-called criticism --I don't mean that disrespectfully--made by Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Lanier. In the first place, it's my understanding the provision calls for staggered terms. But, the idea that the governor is going to stack the commission--even if they don't provide for staggered terms--is absolutely ludicrous to me, because the governor has got to pick from three people, none of whom he has any voice in naming. They are named by the presidents of these colleges. Now, one thing that I want you to bear in mind is that if a given college president has named an individual previously, and nominated him, and he has been appointed by the governor and has served on this commission, the best way in the world to insure that he goes back is when you submit the three names again, submit his name, and two people that you know are completely unacceptable to the governor. That way, you will insure that your choice will continue to serve on this commission. Now, I have not got up here and made any charges that anybody who has ever served on this commission has participated in politics or tried to politicize the commission. My point is simply this: that you need to change--on a commission of this type--you need to have new input, you have to have a fresh point of view. For that reason, because of the very nature of this commission, a six-year term is long enough for one particular individual to serve. They are appointed, originally, based upon their expertise and knowledge of personnel matters. Certainly, no one person is indispensable; and certainly, college presidents can find a number of people. They've got to appoint three, in the first place--they've got to nominate three, in the first place. So, they've got to find at least three that they are willing to recommend. I think that the entire system will be strengthened and that many of the criticisms of the system will be silent by this simple amendment. I strenuously ask you to support it.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

[Amendment rejected: 30-59. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 68 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Delegate Abraham sends up amendments. Mr. Abraham.

Amendment No. 1. In Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denney and adopted Saturday, on page 2, line 26 of the text of the amendment immediately after the word "for" and before the word "terms" insert the word "overlapping."

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, I think it's the intent of most of us, or the understanding, that these members do serve overlapping terms. However, the way the proposal reads, it simply says that they shall serve "for terms of six years," without anything to signify whether or not they would be overlapping or not. All this amendment does is insert the word "overlapping" to insure that these members will serve for overlapping terms, and that there will be some continuity to the commission. I ask the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Abraham, I'm basically in agreement with your amendment, but I'd like to know how you propose to implement it.

MR. ABRAHAM

I have not placed any provision for implementation in here. However, I think that we would have to provide in the schedule or somewhere for the implementation of these type of terms, the same as we have done elsewhere.

MR. NEWTON

You propose to put it in a scheduled provision. Is that right?

MR. ABRAHAM

Probably so.

MR. DENNEY

Mr. Abraham, are you aware that Delegate Proposal No. 28, which can be pulled from the calendar, provides for the transition of State Civil Service Commission members and City Civil Service Commission members, in order to answer the question which was just put to you?

MR. ABRAHAM

I remember now that you reminded me of it. That's true, yes.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Tobias sends up amendments at the present time, which read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Kelly, adopted by the convention on today, on line 13 of said amendment after the word and punctuation "law," insert the following:

"The elected member shall be ineligible for reelection to the commission."

Explanation

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this amendment is different from the amendment which Mr. Avant offered in this respect: a member of the . . . a classified employee of the civil service system still must continue to work while he's a member of the commission. There has to be some means of insulating this employee from the pressures that may be brought to bear upon him by his fellow employees. It is true that his fellow employees, while he is working, can more or less not talk to him--give him the silent treatment--and pressure him in that respect. But, at least, it will in some small way--this amendment--will take him directly out of the political limelight, or whatever, that may develop because he sought election to the Civil Service Board. I urge its adoption.

Questions

MR. FLORY

Mr. Tobias, are you saying, in effect, that the . . . by your amendment only the elected representative can't succeed himself?

MR. TOBIAS

Right, I'm trying to insulate him from his fellow employees, in other words, to take him out of the political . . . the politics of being elected to a board. I think that as long as he is a . . . it will provide the independence which we are hoping that the appointed members of the board appointed by private institutions will have.

MR. FLORY

You think that's all right, but just leave the appointed members to serve as long as they can play politics and get reappointed?

MR. TOBIAS

I have voted for the other . . . that amendment.

MR. ROEMER

Max, it seems that we are inclined to look with suspicion on a lot of these potential appointments and people who have been elected, and it seems that's what you're doing here. What about the other side of the coin, Max, that if the guy spends six years and does a good job, gains experience and is representing the employees? We're going to deny him the right to run and get reelected by the people he served so well?

MR. TOBIAS

I am attempting, by this amendment, to limit him and to protect him from the pressures--some of the pressures--that may be brought to bear upon him. In other words, to keep him from having to vote on an issue on employees merits . . . on the merits simply because he is the elected employee . . . elected representative and feels that in order to get reelected, he's going to have to vote that way.

MR. ROEMER

I understand that, but what about when the guy runs for the office the first time. Doesn't he realize that there are going to be these pressures on him? If he can't take it, then he won't run for reelection. I just cannot see, you know, protecting a man who doesn't need protection. He ought to know when he runs for the job what it entails.

MR. TOBIAS

We disagree.

MR. BERGERON

Max, you're just trying to keep this one elected member to the commission in an independent position. Am I correct?

MR. TOBIAS

As much as possible; definitely.

MR. BERGERON

You just want him . . . more or less, you want the changeover every term?

MR. TOBIAS

Right.

MR. BERGERON

Right; I agree with you.

MR. TOBIAS

In other words, sort of as a lay judge on a commission. In other words, the voice of the servants . . . of the civil servants of the state.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MRS. ZERVIGON

Max, to follow up on Mr. Roemer's questions, if the member nominated by Loyola University wanted to be renominated by Loyola University, what sorts of favors could he do for that university in line with his job?

MR. TOBIAS

Possibly have better garbage collection or something. I don't know. I don't think he has anything.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, if an elected member wanted to do favors to be reelected, there are certain things that he could fudge on?

MR. TOBIAS

I think he definitely could.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in objection to the amendment for singling out the elected representative of the classified employees of the state, and say that he can be elected and he can serve one term, but that he can't succeed himself; or that he could, perhaps, fill an unexpired term, and he couldn't succeed himself. Let me say to you this: that I voted to have the appointed members limited to one term, and I would not have voted against this amendment had that other amendment been adopted. But, when you choose to leave the appointed member to play politics to get appointed and to keep being appointed and reappointed, and then say to the elected representative, "No, just because you do a good job and you're elected by your fellow workers, we're going to deny you the right to run for reelection," now, I say, let's be consistent. If we're going to adopt this and put it in there as regards the classified employee, then I think it's good for the appointive members, also. But, this convention has already spoken on that issue in rejecting the limitation of one term to the appointed officials. So, I suggest to you that we ought to reject this amendment, and I ask you to reject this amendment. It's unfair to put the employees who are elected in one category, and those who are appointed in a higher category; to say that just because they are appointed, they don't play politics, and particularly when they are appointed upon the recommendation of a private college. But, if that man is elected by forty-nine thousand state employees and does a good job, he can't run for reelection. I ask you to reject the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. TOBIAS

Ladies and gentlemen, I think that one must realize that when you assume that someone doesn't vote with you, you assume he must be representing the other side. I think that that's a false assumption that some people might make. All I'm saying is that if we're going to have an elected member of the board who is elected by the civil service employees, he should function simply as a lay judge, and he should be insulated as much as possible from his...the pressures of his fellow employees and the pressures of reelection. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment rejected: 28-57. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments is sent up by Delegates Casey and Dennery.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the 8th, on page 2, line 27 of the text of the amendment, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegates Kelly, et al, and adopted by the convention on December 11, (now if you follow this, this amends the Kelly amendment) on line 6 of the Kelly amendment, immediately after the word and punctuation "Louisiana;" and before the word "and" insert the words and punctuation "Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College at Baton Rouge, Louisiana;" and on line 11 thereof, immediately after the word and punctuation "president." delete the remainder of the line and delete line 12 in its entirety and on line 13, at the beginning of the line, delete the words and punctuation "their number as provided by law." and on line 14, immediately after the word "appointment" and before the word "in" delete the words "or election" and on line 15, immediately after the word "procedure" and before the word "governing" delete the words "or law" and on line 16, immediately after the word "appointment" and before the word and punctuation ", and" delete the words "or election."

Explanation

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I feel quite strongly that the convention erred in adopting the Kelly amendment earlier providing for the appointment of six members of the Civil Service Commission through nomination by the presidents of various universities, and a further provision for the election of one member. There was much discussion on...there was much discussion on Saturday, particularly, referring to the fact that this is the board of managers for the personnel department of the State of Louisiana, that that particular board or commission should not contain an employee who, in fact, provides not only for regulations, but is also a judge--is a judge, judging other employees where complaints are lodged, where grievances are lodged to the Civil Service Commission. What is done by this particular amendment is to merely provide that in lieu of this particular employee who might be elected by the classified employees of the State of Louisiana, to satisfy a small group of the citizens of Louisiana--approximately forty thousand people--as compared to the three million, eight hundred thousand that we have in the State of Louisiana today, that this board of commissions should rightfully represent. This attempt is to take that one particular representative out who is elected, and substitute in lieu thereof someone nominated by LSU, Baton Rouge. That's merely the intention of this particular amendment. As you know, LSU-Baton Rouge is contained in today's constitution. So, in some small respect, we are returning most of the commission to the status that the Civil Service Commission enjoys today.

I would urge you, very strongly, to reconsider the position which you adopted by adopting the Kelly amendment, and change at least that part of it to eliminate the election of an employee which rightfully should not have a position on a board that governs employment practices, hiring, firing, various regulations and procedures for the entire personnel department of the State of Louisiana for the classified service of civil service. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MR. KELLY

Tom, how did you vote this morning on the amendment which would have placed Southern and Louisiana State University into a nominating position? The Louisiana State University is a public institution, is it not?

MR. CASEY

It is. Frankly, my main philosophy is that we should not have a public institution, frankly.

MR. KELLY

How did you vote?...How did you vote....?

MR. CASEY

I just finished answering it. But, this is far better as far as I am concerned. I submit to you my humble opinion. That's all it represents, that this is far better than having an election process whereby one of seven members is an elected individual where there's an elective process through the employees of the State of Louisiana.

MR. KELLY

I'm going to press you to answer my question.

How did you vote this morning when we tried to place LSU into a nominating position? You voted against that. Did you not?

MR. CASEY

I have...Mr. Kelly, I have consistently voted to maintain as far as possible, private institutions on the nominating list of those nominating individuals for the Civil Service Commission.

First, Mr. Kelly, if I could just answer your question, we had not adopted your amendment at that time, Mr. Kelly, when we were so voting.

MR. KELLY

I'm going to ask you one final time. Did you vote for or against placing LSU into a nominating position this morning?

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. CASEY

Well, my answer was that I've consistently voted to maintain private institutions. So, I think I voted more than once against LSU being on this nominating commission. Right.

MR. KELLY

So, you voted "no." Is that correct?

MR. CASEY

If it was this morning, last Saturday, last Friday, any other time, I voted "no" consistently.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I arise to oppose this amendment. Let me explain again, perhaps in more clear terms than Mr. Casey did, exactly what his amendment does. It, in effect, negates those directly opposite to the amendment--the Kelly amendment that we passed just a few hours ago, which gave us a seven-man State Civil Service Board, six of them appointed from educational institutions in this state, and one, only one of the seven elected. This amendment would take that elected person, eliminate them, and replace them by an appointee from the Louisiana State University System. I am not opposed to LSU having the power to, or the right to nominate someone to this most important board. That's not my reason for opposition. I'm opposing it because it eliminates the hard work that we put in, and the clear vote that we made this morning, in allowing one of these seven members to be elected from the people that are most effected by civil service, and that is the civil service employees.

I don't wish, and I don't think you want me to rehash all the arguments that we use to successfully pass the election of one man this morning. But they center around the fact, not only the importance of the board, but also what's done on other boards and in other states. For example: in Colorado, in their State Civil Service Commission, they have two members elected. What we've done today in this convention is not unprecedented. What we've done today in this convention is, at least to the majority of us, a step forward for civil service in this state. I don't think that it's in our best interest as a body, or in the best interest of the state that we represent, to undo now what we did just a few hours ago after several days of debate, and after several attempts at reaching a fair compromise. I urge you to stick by our decision of early this morning, and allow for a meaningful board composed of seven members, six of whom are appointed from educational institutions, and one as elected by the civil service employees of this state. I think that Mr. Casey, when he makes the argument that the one elected representative is of a narrow base, fails in that argument quite clearly in the sense that you see on your desk now, an amendment from Mr. Casey which just affects the railroad employees of the state. If you talk about narrow amendments and narrow boards, how more narrow can you be? I think that what we did this morning is a step forward for civil service. I urge you to vote against this amendment, and let's stick with our better judgment and a positive vote that we've already made.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Roemer, you're opposed to taking votes on amendments, the concept of which is already lost?

MR. ROEMER

Say that again.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I say, you're saying you're opposed to taking a vote on an amendment, the concept of which has already lost at one point or another in time?

MR. ROEMER

No. I'm not opposed to taking votes. I just urge you to vote no.

MRS. ZERVIGON

It seems to me that you have brought up amendments with this concept in it a number of times and been defeated. I was just wondering how this last vote that you finally brought it up again, fits in with your philosophy along these lines.

MR. ROEMER

Well, it's a good point, and understand the difference. I'm not opposed to him bringing it up, I'm just opposed to you voting for it.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Let me ask you one more question.

Did you submit an amendment to have a teacher representative help on each school board?

MR. ROEMER

No, I did not.

MRS. ZERVIGON

As a matter of fact, the new constitution, as we've written, forbids that, doesn't it?

MR. ROEMER

Yes.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Do we have an A.A.U.P. representative on the LSU Board?

MR. ROEMER

No.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, not all boards are really constructed to be representative. Isn't that not so?

MR. ROEMER

That's definitely true.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Did you....

MR. ROEMER

We're just trying, Mrs. Zervigon, to make this board representative.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Did you submit an amendment that there should be one elected from the unclassified service as well?

MR. ROEMER

No.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Did you submit....an amendment saying there should be a representative of the department heads?

MR. ROEMER

No.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, you only want one group represented. You also did not submit an amendment that would make this one per congressional district appointed or elected from congressional districts.

MR. ROEMER

Well, Mrs. Zervigon, to answer your question about just having one group represented, the one group that we now have represented, happens to be the clear and overwhelming majority of the group involved. I hope you realize that.

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, sir. I believe that the overwhelming majority of the people affected by the Civil Service Commission is the taxpayers of this state. Would you not agree?

MR. ROEMER

It's certainly true. I have considered....

MRS. ZERVIGON

You have considered nobody.

MR. ROEMER

Let me tell you something, Mrs. Zervigon, out of the seven representatives that we have on this board, there is no guarantee that any of them are going to represent the taxpayers, and you know that.

Further Discussion

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to oppose this amendment. I think that we've been trying to strive for balance, and the Kelly amendment earlier today was an attempt to try to put some balance into the problems that we've had of the people who are arguing whether we should have state institutions, or private institutions; whether the institutions should be north or whether they should be south. I think that by going ahead and putting LSU in—which is a fine institution, an institution which I have nothing against—an institution which has done a great job here in Louisiana, that we are insulting all the other fine state institutions. What about USL, what about Louisiana Tech, what about Northwestern, what about Southern, what about Northeastern, what about Southeastern, what about Nicholls State, what about Grambling? If we're going to have a public institution in here, let's try to figure out some way to balance it. We just can't be, every time you have a hole somewhere, or there's a job available, or an appointment available, you're going to give it to LSU? I think that Mr. Kelly, this morning, tried to balance out the warring factions here in this convention. I think that we have to try to have that balance; that by putting LSU in and deleting the man who represents the classified employees themselves, we destroy the balance that we got in the amendment this morning--the early amendment by Mr...Kelly.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

I urge you to vote against this Dennery-Casey amendment.
Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I rise in support of this amendment. I have studiously avoided taking the floor this morning because I thought you had heard enough of me the other...several days. However, I think that the Kelly amendment which was adopted this morning is, as Mr. Perez would call it, a bad, bad, bad amendment. It seems to me that we are overlooking the true nature of civil service. Don't forget that civil service in one phase, protects employees. But, in another phase, at least the equal of that, if not the greater, it installs in the state service a merit system for the benefit of all of the citizens of the State of Louisiana. Now, it seems to me that the fair method of appointing a commission, is to get as independent a commission as it is possible to get. I thought that the method that we had adopted originally, with the seven private universities, was exactly that. This morning, the convention in its wisdom, removed one of those seven universities and substituted in place thereof, a representative to be elected from the classified service by the members of the classified service. As Mrs. Zervino pointed out in her questioning of Mr. Roemer, and as I don't believe Mr. Roemer successfully answered, the entire state should be represented on this commission. This should be no one group, specifically required to have representation. As I stated in an answer to a question the other day, there's no objection to an employee being appointed to the commission. There's no objection to have the voice of the classified employees represented on the commission. There is, in my mind, an objection to requiring that one group of citizens in this state, even though they be the employees of the State of Louisiana, be required to have representation. Management has no formal representation; the employee should have no formalized representation.

Input into the commission may be gained by the employees, and is, as a matter of fact, and not behind the closed doors that have been mentioned. All of these meetings of the commission are open. The law requires them to be open. The employees and their representatives have a perfect right, and as a matter of fact, do appear before the commission and give input into the rules.

When it comes to trying a case, however, don't forget, an employee normally is the one who appeals to the Civil Service Commission to determine if his disciplinary action, which was taken against him, either in the nature of dismissal or suspension, was proper. It seems to me that it is exceedingly difficult to permit another classified employee to pass upon this, and to require another classified employee to pass upon this. I repeat, the important one of the very corner stones of a good civil service system, a sound merit system, is to have a completely independent commission.

I urge you to adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Dennery, have you ever had employees under your supervision?

MR. DENNERY

Yea, sir.

MR. SHANNON

How many?

MR. DENNERY

Well, when I was a member of the State Civil Service Commission, I suppose you could say forty thousands, but, other than that, in my own personal business, relatively few.

MR. SHANNON

Then you have no input as far as an employee is concerned?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I did when I was on the Civil Service Commission, Mr. Shannon, that's exactly....

MR. HENRY

The gentleman has exceeded his time.

Further Discussion

MR. KELLY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in opposition to this amendment. This convention spoke clearly earlier today. We've worked hard since last Saturday to try and reach what we all felt was agreeable to all interests within this convention. We finally ended up with six private institutions making nominations for appointment by the governor. We finally saw fit to give the people who are really concerned adequate representation on this board. We did not do further violence as has been alleged by some people in this convention, to the entire concept by replacing a number of these public institutions...private institutions with public institutions. In fact, the very authors of this amendment, fought all morning and voted against the idea of substituting these public institutions for private institutions. Now, all of a sudden, they want a public institution to make an appointment. They say "to heck with the working man." To heck with the sixty-something thousand employees throughout the State of Louisiana who I guarantee you are happy with what has been passed here so far. I ask us one more time, let's vote this amendment down. Let's forget this. The employees of this state are satisfied at this point. They have adequate representation. The other side, the state, the taxpayers, etc., they are adequately represented on this board by six members being nominated by private institutions. So, let's vote this amendment down and move on with the business of this convention.

Questions

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Kelly, I wanted to ask this question of Moise Dennery, but his time ran out. Mr. Dennery stated that management has no representation on this commission. Would you consider the presidents of universities managers?

MR. KELLY

I certainly would. I would think that they would be management oriented.

MR. GOLDMAN

Would you consider the governor of the state as the manager?

MR. KELLY

Yes, I certainly would. I would say he's the greatest manager of the state.

MR. NUNEZ

Yes. Your consideration of the people mentioned--manager--stems from what source of...what do you consider that they are managers--as elected officials they are managers?

MR. KELLY

I'm sorry, Sammy, I don't understand your question.

MR. NUNEZ

Well, I'm trying to get out...I'm trying to determine... you made a statement when they asked you a question, would you consider the appointments of LSU managers. Does it have to be a manager in fact? You mentioned, I don't.....

MR. KELLY

No, I think you misunderstood his question. I think he stated....I think Mr. Goldman said would I consider the presidents who make these nominations to be managers? Of course, my answer to that was yes, because they quite naturally manage the particular institution of which they are....

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. CASEY

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I will attempt to be very brief in closing, and I'll certainly yield to questions thereafter, Mr. Roemer.

But, I do want to impress upon you this thought. That I'm not sure, I'm just not certain that the convention has spoken that clearly on this particular issue. I think we ought to just try it once more, or, as they say, once more with feeling, because I think the composition of the commission is that important that we should give completely thoughtful process to this particular problem. The idea of the Civil Service Commission, and the idea of nomination by the presidents of the colleges and universities, is to have a completely, as far as humanly possible, a completely unbiased and unprejudiced board that can intelligently regulate the personnel affairs of the State of Louisiana for the employees in the classified service.

It also has a quasi-judicial function as shown on page 6, Section (L) where it says, "not only is a regulatory body, but also hears appeals on personnel matters." I just don't understand how you can have an employee working as an employee, receiving wages as an employee, subjected to the regulations established by the commission who in turn, then, runs for election and acts as a judge on the very rules that he is operating under. The Civil Service Commission is the Board of Directors for the personnel section of the State of Louisiana. How many corporations, Mr. Roemer, how many corporations, Mr. Kelly, have employee representation on their board of directors?

Also, it was well pointed out by many of the speakers on last Saturday, that what kind of animal do we have here? As you may recall, it was attempted to have five appointed members and two elective members last weekend. This time, we have six appointed and one elective. What kind of creature do we have here? Who has ever heard of a mixture of this type as I think was appropriately pointed out by, possibly, Delegate Willis on last Saturday. Whoever heard of a mixture of appointive and elective body of this type?

Also, as Mr. Tobias pointed out last weekend, what kind of platform is this gentleman going to run on? Is he going to work on pay increases, easier suspension regulations from employment, tougher demotion regulations, greater employment conditions for the employees for the State of Louisiana? This is the function of the commission. I can imagine it could lead to all sorts of problems and chaos if we would have a mixture of this type. I urge you, in all sincerity after giving careful, thoughtful consideration to this problem, that we make an intelligent decision on this, and that we vote for this amendment and eliminate the election process for a classified employee.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
35-66. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1, sent up by Delegate Casey: On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the eighth, on page 2 of that amendment, line 18 of the text of that amendment, immediately after the word "machines", change the period to a semi-colon and add the following:

"Railroad (and this word is incorrect. It should be employees) employees whose working conditions and retirement benefits are regulated by federal agencies in accordance with federal statutory law."

Explanation

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, as somebody mentioned earlier, I should have gotten one of our new delegates to coauthor this by Mr. Jones who just joined the convention today. So, this could be called the Casey-Jones amendment....

MR. HENRY

Oh, Mr. Casey, just explain it. Hear? I'm surprised.

MR. CASEY

But, this is submitted merely in an attempt to clarify what is felt might be a technicality. At this time, there are problems in the area of the Port of New Orleans with the New Orleans Public Belt Railroad which may, eventually, and there is some discussion in this area, may eventually be taken over by the operation of the Port of New Orleans. Railroad employees at this time, as probably Mr. Flory could indicate, have the right to strike or organize the unions, and things of this type. It's merely submitted to clarify the possibility that if railroads...if the New Orleans Public Belt Railroad would be taken over by the Port of New Orleans, that the employment practices of railroad employees would not be affected. That's the only purpose of this.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up goes to Paragraph (C), sent up by Delegate Abraham. Now the copies are not out yet. But, they have gone to the pages to be distributed at the present time.

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery floor amendment adopted by the convention on December 8, on page 2, line 27, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Kelly and adopted by the convention on December 11, today, on line 11 of the Kelly amendment, immediately after the punctuation...word and punctuation "president.", delete the remainder of the line. Delete lines 12 through 17 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"One member of the commission shall be appointed by the governor from a list of three nominations made by the president of LSU, the Agricultural and Mechanical College in Baton Rouge, such nominees to be selected from the classified employees of the state. A vacancy for any cause shall be filled by appointment in accordance with the procedure governing the original appointment, and from the same source period within thirty days."

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, I have no real objection to an employee being represented on the Civil Service Commission. However, I do object to the situation of having to elect this employee because I think this really is going to put this person on the Civil Service Commission in an unfair position. Here he is, is going to be an elected member of the commission, and he's going to have to be dealing with six members who are appointed. What my amendment attempts to do, it provides for a member from the classified employees, but this member will be selected through the same nominating procedures as the other members of the commission. What I have done here is simply said that the president of LSU will make three nominations from the classified employees, and the governor, then, will select one. I think that we really are going to put this person in a bad position in having to deal with the commission because he's going to be the lone elected member, having to deal with six appointed members. I think this would be a much better way of handling it. This gives those of you who want representation from the employees, this gives you the representation. Now, some of you may say there is no way for the president of LSU to know whom to select. Well, this president of LSU can select a representative here just as well as the employees of the state can because the employees of the state are going to have to vote on people, and they're not going to know just who they're really voting on. So, I see nothing wrong...

Questions

MR. FLORY

Mr. Abraham, isn't it true that under your amendment, the president of LSU, whose employees are under civil service, could pick those three names from among his employees at LSU, and submit them, and the governor would have to appoint somebody from LSU?

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, under the present system right now, the president of LSU could pick some employees from LSU.

MR. FLORY

Yes, but under what this convention's already adopted, we're not under the present system. We've provided that an employee be elected from the forty-nine thousand other classified employees; haven't we?

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, this person could be appointed from the forty-nine thousand employees.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Abraham, under the provision as it stands now, we have a situation where one of these members will be elected by the classified employees. But, we also have, later on, in Subsection (I), the prohibition against political activities. How can you possibly reconcile having an election among classified employees, apparently involving campaigning, expenditure of funds, solicitation of votes, with the prohibition against political activities in Subsection (I)?

MR. ABRAHAM

You can't reconcile it. This amendment attempts to take this election process out so that the person will not have to campaign. He will be appointed.

MR. ROEMER

Well, Mr. Abraham, is it not true that what you are doing with your amendment is agreeing that one of the seven members of the board will represent the employees, but you're insuring that he doesn't have to represent anybody but the person that nominates him? Isn't that not true?

MR. ABRAHAM

No, I'm not agreeing. I'm conceding the fact that the convention apparently wants to have some representation on the board from the employees. Even though I don't agree with it, I will concede that fact. What I am attempting to do is take the election out of it so that the person will not have to campaign; he will not have to make campaign promises that he may not be able to keep. This puts the appointment process back in where he has more independence, and he can represent everyone without any worrying about whether he's going to run for election or not.

MR. ROEMER

Well, Max, do you think that everybody that runs for office makes false promises in this sort of context? I mean, did you run for your office?

MR. ABRAHAM

I didn't say that, Buddy. To answer your question, no. I didn't run for my office. But, I didn't say that he made false promises. I said he may make some promises he may not be able to keep.

MR. ROEMER

Well, looking at it as objectively as we can, if we're going to have one of these members an employee of the civil service system, you'd rather have him appointed from a list of three nominees, than elected by the employees. Is that correct?

MR. ABRAHAM

That's correct.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Abraham, if your amendment is adopted, then the legislature will not have the ordeal of providing for an election code for those type of employees--the sixty thousand civil service, which will be statewide--and you'll save, and you'll protect the public purse; won't you, to save the cost of that election?

MR. ABRAHAM

That's correct.

MR. WILLIS

That's a tremendous saving, isn't it?

MR. ABRAHAM

Correct.

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Abraham, doesn't it quite often take more politics to get appointed than it does elected?

MR. ABRAHAM

I don't agree with that. You're probably in a better position to answer that than I am.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 27-66. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment's also sent up by Delegate Abraham.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the Convention, on page 2, at the end of line 24, delete Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Champagne, and adopted by the convention on the eleventh, insert in lieu thereof the following:--Mr. Abraham, the Champagne amendment has been gone so it's just a process of inserting this language someplace. It went out the door with the Kelly amendment that was...the Flory.

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, this actually is, more or less, a technical amendment from the standpoint that we have provided now for an elected member. We also have already adopted a provision which states that there shall not be more than one member from the each congressional district. Well, this brings up the problem, that if you've already got six appointed members, then it limits the districts from which the elected member can come. So, this simply says that no member may be...no more than one may be appointed from each congressional district. It allows the elective member to run statewide.

Explanation

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I just wanted to get up and say that I had no objections to this amendment, that actually, when you start electing and appointing, then you are, by its very nature, indicating that there is a difference. So, for those of you who feel we are making a difference, for those who are appointed, we are. Now, we are saying that no more than one appointed member can be from any district. The elected one could be from the same district as an appointed one is. I would have no objections to this, and this was in response to the question that Mr. Flory asked me when I first presented my amendment.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Champagne, would not this amendment correct the so-called abuses that some had complained about, that the Dennery amendment would favor New Orleans or some other section where there is a concentration of colleges, and disperse them?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's right, Reverend. The only thing is, the only difference in this amendment and the one that we adopted is that we inserted the word "appointed" so that the people who are going to elect him, might elect one from a district that already has an appointed delegate. So, that's the only difference--the word "appointed".

MR. ROEMER

Walter, do you share my concern about this amendment--if you'll look at it closely--in that, it really leaves it up to the governor to make these political appointments, in effect, statewide, one from each congressional district. I mean the various colleges appoint the best people they see how, right?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Right.

MR. ROEMER

It might be that most all of these appointments are from one or two areas. They're good people; the colleges think they're the best people; and there's only one or two left from these certain districts, and the governor just gets to pick them with no basis whatsoever, except geographical spread. Don't you see that there's a danger in the enforcement of this amendment?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The danger in the here, Mr. Roemer, that you have, though, I have to agree, is that we've spoke a lot about people from all over the state. I do believe that this would provide them from different areas of the state. You do face the possibility that you may not get...you may lose a real outstanding individual because they already have an appointment from that district, but I think that the majority of the people of the state would feel better if they did have this dispersion throughout the state.

MR. ROEMER

I agree. I'm just worried about how you enforce the thing.

Further Discussion

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I must rise in opposition to this amendment. It slipped by this morning while I tried to get some data rather than speak from some personal feeling. Some of...let me say first that I'm very much in sympathy with those who are concerned that all of the commissioners might well come from one district. I would not want to see that happen. By the same token, I would not want to have a commission that was forced to have representation, and to pass up persons whom the nominators would like to give. In speaking of that concern, I note that the present commission of five members are not all from New Orleans. Three of the present five commissioners are from other cities than New Orleans. I would hate to see a restriction that would mean, for example, that if LSU ends up when we finish here in being able to nominate, could not nominate an alumnus from New Orleans, for example, because the nomination of Tulane is already serving from that area. At the present time Louisiana College's nominee is not from Alexandria, but from Lafayette. I think that the colleges which now nominate could be asked to take this into consideration. But, I would hate to think that we would force the college to move to another area. In the case of having added new nominees to the list of nominators, it would mean that New Orleans is automatically eliminated, Baton Rouge would be eliminated, and the other cities now represented were automatically out, and you would force the nominator to nominate persons from other districts. Let me repeat that I sympathize with the objective of this amendment, but I sincerely believe that it would be unduly restrictive to the colleges which will make the nominations. On that basis, not one of a bias, that I strongly urge that you defeat this amendment which would be a very difficult one to enforce, and one which I think could lead to the kinds of practices which Mr. Roemer pointed out. I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegates Flory and Jack: this goes back to Paragraph (A) at the beginning of the Denny amendment. In the Denny amendment, adopted by the convention Saturday, on page 1 of the Floor Amendment, at the end of line 12, after the word and punctuation "thereof," change the period to a comma "," and add the following: "except paid firemen and municipal policemen, who are hereby expressly excluded."

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, I was under the impression that we were going at this on a lettered paragraph by lettered paragraph formula. Now, we're going back to Paragraph (A)?

MR. HENRY

This is one, as I understand it, he withdrew earlier, and it's the only amendment that we have in (A), (B), or (C) now before going on, Mr. Denny. That's why we're doing it. Of course, we've got ourselves in such a predicament here, without being able to adopt these paragraphs, that we'll probably be Christmas Eve getting through here.

Explanation

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, if you will look at page 1 of the Denny amendment, beginning at line 8, we've already changed the two hundred and fifty thousand to four hundred thousand. So, with this one-and-a-half sentence amendment, it will make that Paragraph 2--give me your attention, please--it will make it read as follows: on line 8 of the Denny amendment, page 1, will read, "City Civil Service; The city civil service includes all offices, and positions of trust or employment in the employ of each city in the state with over four hundred thousand population, and every instrumentality thereof, except paid firemen and municipal policemen, who are hereby expressly excluded." This simply will place the firemen and policemen in New Orleans, and if there were any other cities over four hundred thousand in the same constitutional position as the firemen and police, municipal police, in any other city in Louisiana over thirteen thousand. Back in 1940, when we first started these three civil services, the city of New Orleans employees, the state employees, and the state firemen and municipal police, we wanted--and the police and firemen in New Orleans wanted--to be included with the other firemen and police. You couldn't do it with the great number of legislators in New Orleans. At that time, it took two-thirds. Now, the vast majority of the firemen and police in New Orleans want to be in the law, in this constitution with the other firemen and police in this state. On each of your desks, you have a letter from Clarence J. Perez, president of the New Orleans Firefighters Association, that attests to that fact. Now, Proposal No. 10, which will come after the Proposal No. 9, that is the state and municipal firemen's proposal for all cities of not less than thirteen thousand. Before we reach that Proposal No. 10, we have to include the firemen and police in New Orleans, we have to take them out of the Denny amendment, which replaced Proposal No. 9. As you know, and the best example I probably can give you on why all police and municipal...all firemen and municipal police, within these populations, should be together, is like, for instance, my profession. If you are a lawyer, under the law in Louisiana, you must be a member of the State Bar Association. Now, suppose we had this situation: that all lawyers outside of New Orleans had to be members of the State Bar Association, and nobody else in that State Bar Association would be lawyers. But, in New Orleans suppose we had a law that down there the lawyers could not be a member of the State Bar Association, but they had to be in New Orleans a member of a New Orleans association that was made up of lawyers in New Orleans, doctors in New Orleans, real estate people in New Orleans, dentists in New Orleans, and a lot of other trades and professions. That would not be right to the lawyers in New Orleans, and to the lawyers in the rest of the state. They should, all lawyers, where it's a compulsory requirement they belong to the State Bar Association, that they all belong to it, and not some of them exempt because we are subject to punishment under the State Bar Association and other things. Now, the same applies to firemen and police. You shouldn't have part of them in New Orleans not under it, and the rest of them under it. They went to be under the State Firemen and Police Association. Now, that in a nutshell is the situation. We've got lots of amendments here, and I have refrained from speaking on the others. But, this has been a thing for years that should be decided, so I ask you to adopt this amendment, and then, when we reach Proposal No. 10 that we adopt that. Now, in order to carry out the full effect of taking the firemen and municipal policemen out of this Proposal No. 9, which is the Denny amendment, you will have, Mr. Flory, after this one, will take up two short amendments at the latter part of the Denny one because there is still the wording "two hundred and fifty thousand," and also, it's to meet another little requirement of the optional civil services for cities smaller than the four hundred thousand. So, I ask you to go along with this amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. ABRAHAM

Mr. Jack, I'm a little bit confused now. Apparently, we agree that we should have a state civil service system and a city civil service system, which I understand is to take care of these cities over four hundred thousand.

MR. JACK

To take care of what?

MR. ABRAHAM

To take care of the cities over four hundred thousand population. Now, this amendment here will take out the firemen and the policemen. I don't understand why you're taking out that particular segment of the employees. Why don't you just take all the other employees out also, and do away with the city system? I thought the purpose of the city system was in order to take care of all of its employees.

MR. JACK

The firemen and policemen really have no more business being in the New Orleans city employees' civil service, than a state employee does. They're just a different type of the employee. For instance, as I said, I hate to go over these academic things. I've said them so much here. But, a fireman and a policeman to begin with, the policeman enforces city laws, federal laws, state laws. He is paid an additional salary by the state. A fireman protects and puts out fires on city property, on federal property, on state property, on everybody's property. They are just not like the ordinary run of city employee, and if you will read the present constitutional provisions regarding the firemen and police, you'll find it is different, their civil service from the New Orleans civil service. All of them should be able to be under...all firemen and police, in my opinion...

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. ABRAHAM

Don't the garbage workers in New Orleans pick up garbage from the federal buildings, and the state buildings, also?

MR. JACK

What's that?

MR. ABRAHAM

Don't the garbage workers, which are city employees, they don't pick up the garbage from the federal or state offices or anything like that?

MR. JACK

I'm not going to say anything about anybody, but I think that's a ridiculous analogy on it--where the garbage is picked up. I don't want to low rate them. I wish we could find some that would pick up some garbage.

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Jack, I noticed here a couple of days ago we got this amended from two hundred and fifty thousand to four hundred thousand. It was said by Mrs. Zervigon and others, "It's all right to go...exempt the city of New Orleans." It, of course, precluded all the other parishes and cities in the State of Louisiana even for the immediate future. You just made a statement that the city of New Orleans is different from any other city. You referred to the letter that was sent out by Mr. Clarence Perez. The statement...the letterhead here is that it's a local AFL-CIO union letterhead and he represents the local AFL-CIO unions in the city of New Orleans; is that correct, sir?

MR. JACK

I don't know who all everybody represents, I just call your attention to where he says this, "Our association represents virtually a hundred percent of the members of the New Orleans Fire Department. The members have voted ninety-eight percent in favor of being included in the fire and police civil service."

MR. CHATELAIN

On the one hand you are talking about a union organization, which this gentleman heads, and on the other hand we are talking about civil service in the constitution of Louisiana. I'm confused there, sir.

MR. JACK

This has, as far as I'm concerned, nothing to do with unions or nonunions. This thing goes back to where 1940 when a lot of you wasn't even born; of course, you were and I was. They should have always been in the regular state police and firemen civil service--that's my position--it has nothing to do with union and nonunion, but everybody has the right to express their opinion, whether it be an employee, or lawyer, or doctor, or union, or nonunion. This letter was placed on people's desk because it shows what the firemen and police in New Orleans want.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, Mr. Jack, isn't it a fact, though, that this amendment will, in fact, bring about a union and civil service merger in the city of New Orleans contrary to the wishes of the people in the city of New Orleans, is that correct, sir?

MR. JACK

Well, I don't know what the people in the city of New Orleans want.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise to ask you to support this amendment. What it does: at the present time, the constitution provides that in municipalities having a population of thirteen thousand or more, but less than two hundred and fifty thousand, that they shall come under the municipal fire and police...state municipal fire and police civil service. That system was spelled out in the constitution and has three appointed members, one elected from the firemen and one elected from the policemen. The state fire examiner conducts the examinations in all the municipalities for the municipalities in the promotional schedule on the qualifications. He sets the qualifications, and he comes under the state civil service system and is hired by them and is under civil service himself. Now, what this does is exclude from the city civil service system those paid firemen and municipal policemen who are expressly excluded from that provision on page one. Now, I ask you to adopt the amendment. You ask me, "Why do the New Orleans firemen and policemen want to come under the state municipal fire and police civil service?" They want to join the rest of the state; they want to be under the same type of system, governed under the same rules, same regulations as are the other firemen and policemen throughout this state in those municipalities that I have mentioned and in the fire protection districts, the parish fire districts, etc. So, I ask you to adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, how would this affect a municipality that had paid policemen, but volunteer firemen?

MR. FLORY

This will not affect them in any way, Mr. Lanier, in this particular section. Later on, on page, I believe it's eight or nine I'll have an amendment to take care of that situation which clearly specifies those that would be included. But, I had to put this in as an exclusion in the city civil service system on page one--and I don't have my proposal with me--but, I could tell you where it fits in the...but, what you are talking about--where it has the paid fire and police department, I don't propose to change that at all. What this does, though, is except from the city civil service system these paid firemen and municipal policemen.

MR. LANIER

Well, is it your intention by this amendment that this would apply to the situation where the municipality, or the parish, or the combination thereof had both paid firemen and paid policemen?

MR. FLORY

It only applies to those, yes.

MR. LANIER

This would not apply to the situation where you only had paid policemen, but volunteer firemen?

MR. FLORY

No, no.

MR. LANIER

...and, in particular, by this you are not intending to affect a situation like the city of Thibodaux, for example, which exists under Act 97 of 1972 where we have one civil service board because we have paid policemen but volunteer firemen?

MR. FLORY

No, I do not propose to tamper with that whatsoever.

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Flory, are the other firemen and policemen in the state under the state civil service system or under their respective city civil service system?

MR. FLORY

They are under state municipal fire and police civil service if their municipality is over thirteen thousand and less than two hundred and fifty thousand.

MR. ROEMER

I understand. So, what all of this would do would be to take those...the only city affected is New Orleans, that would put them like the rest of the state; right?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. ROEMER

Thank you.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, under the state municipal fire and police civil service are only uniformed firemen and policemen affected or are the other employees of those departments affected as well?

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. FLORY

For as the uniform....

MRS. ZERVIGON

...for an example, are secretaries affected or which service are they in?

MR. FLORY

I don't believe that the secretaries are in...under the civil service systems; I don't believe they are.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, you would have an anomaly in which a secretary in the Department of Sanitation would be in the classified service. But, a secretary in the Department of Fire would be an unclassified employee of the city.

MR. FLORY

If a secretary worked for the chief of the fire department, the chief's not under civil service....

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, sir, I understand that. I'm not asking you that. I'm asking you....other secretaries in the department; they must have other correspondence that goes out other than from the chief.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Dennery, I see, has handed you the constitution, perhaps you would be kind enough to read it.

MRS. ZERVIGON

It says "There is created in the municipal government a classified civil service embracing the positions of employment, the officers and employees of the municipal fire and police services." That sounds like all employees, doesn't it?

MR. FLORY

I didn't understand you.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I said that sounds pretty well like all employees of the department.

MR. FLORY

Well, it sounds that way.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Flory, there are substantial differences between the civil service as it presently exists under the city civil service system and the so called civil service that is provided for under the municipal fire and police civil service system, are there not?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir, there is substantial difference in the city civil service system as it relates to municipal fire and police civil service, particularly, in the field of examinations. For example, in the city of New Orleans we've got one man that's been thirteen years as an acting captain and he's got no credit for that whatsoever and he has been working at a lesser rate of pay. The real problem that's brought about in the city civil service system is they don't give an examination but about every five years: the list is only good for three years. So, when the list...comes up time for an appointment, there is nobody on the list. The chief, or whoever it is, details a man in there and says either you perform the job--and you don't get any raise in pay for it. Then, when it comes up and he does take the test, after four or five years, and if he has refused it under those conditions, he is bypassed automatically--that's part of the problem.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, delegates to this convention, let me say that I don't intend to come up here and constantly try to beat over your heads my strong opposition to this amendment because I have talked on two occasions. I believe in true conscience that no one can say whatsoever that if the cause was righteous, whether it was for labor, whether its for a municipal government that I haven't supported it. I think in cases of firemen and policemen, contrary to what people feel that my inclinations towards, particularly policemen, my record will show that I have supported every move to enhance the retirement systems and the benefits for firemen and policemen. But, like I told you on Saturday, there comes a point where we must have, in my opinion, some balance. I believe that this amendment, as proposed, would do serious problems and create more serious problems for some of my concerns. I do not think that we ought to have within the city of New Orleans one civil service system for one class of employees if you are not going to extend that to the others. I do not believe, in light of the present action going on in the city of New Orleans relative to suits filed against our local firemen and policemen about, not only the hiring practices but their promotional practices, that we ought to, at this point, change the system and go under another system. I do not believe, in light of the city council ordinance to enhance more black participation in the police force in the city whose population is presently approaching fifty-fifty, that we ought to change and set up a new civil service system within the city. But, more so, I'm concerned about the kinds of effects that are presently also going on in our city. As I look at the city council's budget and I look at where the money is going, and I look at to where it is being taken away from. I can see in the future, particularly if this board has the power of: (1) of providing salaries--and I want to suggest that I would think that this board would most likely be firemen and policemen orientated, that I can see an increase in cost at the expense of other classified employees in the city of New Orleans. In the area of discipline, I'm not saying that presently right now the present system works adequately. But, don't let me...and I don't want to even imply that I am in full agreement with the way civil service works now. But, when it comes down to the area of discipline, particularly of certain actions of certain police officers, I'm doubly concerned when we talk about having a board that's going to be composed....that's going to be set up strictly for firemen and policemen. I think that based on the actions that we have done presently in allowing them to come to the legislature; allowing the legislature to increase the benefits; that we have given the kinds of latitude where grievances need to be addressed, particularly in the fact that every ruling of the Civil Service Commission--even the present one--is open to judicial review. In addition, the fact that we are going to allow--as I understand--some flexibility on the part of the legislature to make certain timely adaptations to the civil service system. I say to the people in Baton Rouge, I mean if we are going to be fair about it, let's lower this percentage back to two hundred and fifty thousand. I say to the people who find it's working in your part of the state, I say to you, "Right on." But, in the city of New Orleans the problem is too complex. I personally as one delegate, I'm not going to come up here any more. But, I personally believe that this is not the way to correct the problems of the present civil service system as it relates to firemen and policemen. Personally, I do not think, I do not feel, that we ought to create such an imbalance between other classified employees and other employees of the city of New Orleans. I know that this is primarily aimed at the city of New Orleans. I recognize that at some points we have got to have uniformity. But, at some points where something has worked--like in the city of Baton Rouge--it ought to be allowed to work and the people within that locale resolve their problems. Finally, let me say that on the seniority problem where it has worked throughout the State of Louisiana without any problems, when you have a police and a firemen force that's less than six percent and you take somebody out of the present system and put them under the seniority system, I suggest to you that when it comes down to the motion and mobility within the department that, as far as minorities are concerned, that that's seriously going to hinder our....

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, delegates, Mr. Juneau asked me a while ago if I felt somewhat like a battleship that was running through a field and having torpedoes shot at it. I must confess, I'm gradually getting that feeling. This is a very bad torpedo which has been fired, specifically at the city of New Orleans. Now, let me straighten out something that the delegate from Caddo Parish said. There is no one, one single statewide fire and police civil service. There is an act and under that act there are a number of boards. Every city that has one of these has its own board. What does this amendment do? It takes those who are under a board in New Orleans and puts them under an entirely different board; it messes up the whole pay plan of the city of New Orleans. We have had firemen and policemen in the city of New Orleans under civil service since

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

1942 when the Sam Jones administration adopted a civil service law applicable to municipalities. The firemen and policemen in this state came two years later and got a fire and police municipal system. But, it didn't apply to the city of New Orleans and there is no reason for it to apply to the city of New Orleans. There's no statement...no basis for Mr. Jack's statement that firemen and policemen are a different kettle of fish; they are municipal employees just like everybody else is. Are you going to mix up the budget of the entire city of New Orleans? And, mind you, this law only affects the city of New Orleans. Mr. Chairman...Mr. Jack knows full well that I don't have to belong to the same bar association that he does in the city of Shreveport in order to practice law in New Orleans. There is no reason for the firemen and policemen in New Orleans necessarily to be under the same fire and police system as the ones in Baton Rouge or elsewhere are concerned. Now, what kind of a system is it compared to the one that we have? In New Orleans we have a merit system; it's based upon the constitutional merit system which has been in effect since 1952 statewide and since 1942 as far as the city of New Orleans is concerned. I'll answer your questions when I've completed, Mr. Jack, and I'm delighted to see you're paying attention now. I don't have.... there are no firemen and policemen in this state who have to belong to a statewide system they are governed by individual boards. Now, we in New Orleans have a very fine system; we are very proud of it. Despite what has been told you, we've given many, many promotional tests. In the position of fire captain alone, for example, since 1962 through 1973, we've had about eight of them. We give all the promotional tests that are necessary. Furthermore, we promote based upon merit. We do not promote based upon seniority alone. Now, it is true that in a municipal fire and police you have to take a qualifying examination and a promotional examination. But, if you pass that promotional examination, the appointing authority must select the senior person. You cannot select anyone else, despite the fact that the other person might be more meritorious and might be of greater benefit to the city fire department or the city police department. You have received a document sent out by the Fire Fighter's Association in New Orleans. I would point out to you that on Friday--while we were arguing civil service up here--the civil service league had a luncheon at home to present the Dunbar awards, which is done annually for many, many years. At that particular luncheon, twenty-five percent of the entire audience was composed of police officers of the city of New Orleans. Now, don't tell me that the police officers in the city of New Orleans don't like their civil service system; they do. The city of New Orleans likes their own civil service system. I urge you, I urge you with every fiber in my being to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I'll attempt to be brief, but I just want to reiterate what I said to you on Saturday when I supported Mr. Flory's amendment to raise the ceiling to four hundred thousand. The reason for submission of that amendment, Mr. Flory said, was because we don't want to change the systems in Shreveport and Baton Rouge. O. K. Let's don't change their systems. But, let's don't come and make vast changes in our system either. You have heard from some firemen on this who claim to represent about ninety-eight percent of the firemen and ninety-eight of the firemen in New Orleans are union members. You have not heard--and the committee heard very briefly--from the policemen. The police union has not nearly the representation proportionately of the police department. Therefore, this you have also not heard from the Fraternal Order of Police, which is an association, not a union, or any others. You haven't heard from the Black Police Officer's Association on this. They don't like it, but they are not as good at lobbying as some of the other folks from whom you have heard. Now, it's my opinion that what a good union officer does is to come and ask for things--just because he asks doesn't mean we got to give it to him, no way. As I was telling Mr. Roemer earlier, my children ask me for candy all the time, but I only give it to them part of the time. There are certain things that we want that would be unfair to everybody else. It seems to me that it is unfair to split off two departments of city government in New Orleans--containing about a third of the employees--separate them out from the system containing two-thirds of the employees and treat them differently. It's not easy these days in a large metropolitan system to recruit firemen and policemen. If a really bright young person wants to join the system and advance quickly because he thinks he is very talented, this fire and police municipal civil service stops him; he'll go do something else. In addition to that, it leaves open the possibility in New Orleans that a secretary working from eight to four in the fire department will be paid on a different salary scale than the secretary working from eight to four in the Sanitation Department. Why? It doesn't make any sense at all. The whole idea behind the uniform pay plan is it is to be uniform. In addition to that, the firemen and policemen are now some of the best paid employees we have. The average income of people working for the fire department is higher than any other income of any other department in the city government. So, they are not being misused. The source of things that Mr. Flory is talking about--the exam for sergeants--not being given often enough in their...in the police department and lieutenant in the fire department is by no means stopped by having a separate commission; it's by no means stopped. How are you going to staff that commission? Are you going to staff that commission by and large with civil service employees? They could bog down the same way. The commission--there's no way to tell how it's going to work, but there are certain things that do not happen because of how a commission is appointed, but it just doesn't bear on the facts. So, please, leave us alone. Leave us with our recruitment programs intact. Leave us with our college program at Loyola intact; it gives someone an impetus to go there that may go....

Further Discussion

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think just about everything has been said. I believe we all know what this is about. I rise in support of the amendment. I would like to make one observation Mrs. Zervigon, we are not talking about ice cream and candy, we are talking about people who risk their lives every day. I don't think they should be on the same level as those people who work in offices. I hope that you will adopt the amendment. I will not answer any questions. I move the previous question.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I really don't know why I stick my big nose in other people's business in many ways. But, I feel sometimes that other people's business becomes mine. I said I rise in opposition to this amendment, and I think you will too if you think about it awhile. Let's try to think about it together. State civil service is good. We're trying to hammer out a good state civil service for the people of this state. I think we're doing a good job. This afternoon, after many votes, we finally gave out of a seven man commission, the state employees one member of that commission and this is fine. I had no great opposition to this, but what we're trying to do now goes far beyond this. This is really not an issue anymore of civil service. This becomes a union issue; an issue that involves union people in the city of New Orleans, and if we let them get by with this amendment, you're going to find it will do violence to the entire program of civil service. I say that the immediate goals and immediate problems of the people of the city of New Orleans is a problem that will eventually hurt all of us in the State of Louisiana. Their problem is merit system versus seniority system. This is the crux of the whole thing. This is what we're talking about, and I say to you if you vote for this amendment, you're voting against the good for the majority of the people of the State of Louisiana. I urge you vote against this bad, bad amendment, and then you will be voting for the state civil service employees in this state. I urge you vote against this amendment.

Questions

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chatelain, Mr. Tapper was referring to these people as being people who put their lives on the line every day. I don't question that, but do you realize that the people most liable to injury and death on the job in New Orleans are the sanitation workers?

MR. CHATELAIN

I do.

MS. ZERVIGON

Do you realize that in Jefferson Parish it's the street's workers who are most liable to injury and death on the job?

MR. CHATELAIN

I do, Mary.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MS. ZERVIGON

Do you know what the primary cause of death on the job of a fireman is?

MR. CHATELAIN

I do.

MS. ZERVIGON

A heart attack.

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Champagne, it's been brought up before that the policemen in New Orleans haven't been heard from on this issue. Do you know that there's a gentleman in the audience in the back who is a legal spokesman for "PANO" which is a patrolmen's association; "SANO" which is an association of supervisors in the fraternal order of police, and he advises--and the fraternal order of police is not a union--would you know that this gentleman informs me that these organizations are in favor of this change?

MR. CHATELAIN

I certainly am sure that that organization would be, sir. But, I'm speaking now for the majority of the civil service employees in the State of Louisiana, Mr. Bergeron, and I feel this is not good for the majority of the people of the State of Louisiana.

MR. BERGERON

I'm just speaking for the majority....

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, in closing let me say this; that it is a little bit surprising to have a man from Lafayette come before this mike and ask you to vote against this amendment when his municipality has been operating under State, and Fire, and Municipal Police Civil Service for about thirty-five years. Let me tell you this: Not a single mayor, city councilman, came before the Committee on Education and offered a single suggestion of improvement for the municipal... State Municipal, Fire, and Police Civil Service. Not a single mayor, not a single city councilman! The only mayor that came before the committee was the mayor of the city of New Orleans who was opposed to it. I've made no bones about that. They don't want to because they don't want to pay these people when they put them in a higher bracket. They don't want to pay them! They want to make the examinations on a routine basis. The chief testified before the committee. He said that they now give examinations about every two years because they don't have the money to fill the positions. Now, is that fair? Is that fair? Merely because they won't have the money to fill the position, yet they want to make a man work in a higher classification but they don't want to pay him for that extra work. Now, you're talking about merit versus seniority; the city of New Orleans gives credit for seniority when they do give the examinations. Remember this: Even though the city of New Orleans would come under the State, Municipal, Fire and Police Civil Service, they would still have a local Fire and Police Civil Service Board. It would be in the city of New Orleans, of New Orleans residence, and the city council of New Orleans would have to approve any budgetary items passed by that group. The city council of New Orleans retains sole authority as to the establishment of pay scales, etc. That board doesn't have anything to do with setting salaries and so forth. Now, the only chief other than the city of New Orleans that came before our committee said any knucklehead could pass the qualifying exam. The qualifying score in his particular case was seventy-five, and yet he said any knucklehead could pass it--he made eighty-three--and they hired him from out of state and he wasn't the high man. I ask you to adopt this amendment. We're going to get into--when we complete this proposal--on State, Municipal, Fire, and Police Civil Service, and if Mr. Jackson has reservations about this amendment, it's my proposal to turn that matter over to the legislature, to let them take and make whatever change is necessary with a two-thirds vote. I ask you to adopt this amendment. Yes, the firemen--almost unanimously--the patrolmen, supervisors, police officers are all for it in the city of New Orleans. They've asked for it. To answer Mrs. Zervigon's question she asked me a moment ago about secretaries in the civil service in the fire department, they don't have secretaries in those departments except on an assigned basis. They're not within that fire department, and in a lot of areas throughout the state in the municipal services, they have unclassified secretaries in the fire departments, or the chief has the option to put that position under civil service if he wants to. He can ask the board to put that classification under civil service. Now then, Mr. Dennery said that this was going to mess up the entire budget for the city of New Orleans. Nothing could be further from the truth--nothing whatsoever--because if that budget is going to be messed up, the City Council is going to do it because they've got sole authority to run that budget--the City Council and the mayor of the city of New Orleans. This doesn't change that one iota--one iota. I ask you to adopt the amendment.

Questions

MS. ZERVIGON

The other police chief who testified before your committee, from what city was he?

MR. FLORY

The police chief?

MS. ZERVIGON

Yes, sir. You said the New Orleans Police Chief testified and one other police chief?

MR. FLORY

One other police chief testified; he was from Lafayette.

MS. ZERVIGON

Where is Mr. Chatelain from?

MR. FLORY

He's from Lafayette.

MS. ZERVIGON

Not everybody in Lafayette is satisfied, would you say?

MR. FLORY

But the chief that testified had only been in Lafayette about six months, I believe, when he testified.

MR. RIECKE

I'd like to move that the gentleman be given two minutes more to answer the questions.

MR. HENRY

You're the only one that has a question, Mr. Riecke. Proceed.

MR. RIECKE

All right. Is it true that... isn't it true that it was testified before our committee that the average fireman's salary was eleven thousand dollars a year in New Orleans?

MR. FLORY

Who testified to that?

MR. RIECKE

Do you agree with that?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. I don't agree with that.

MR. RIECKE

They showed the information to our committee that that was the case.

MR. FLORY

I don't believe. I didn't see those figures, Mr. Riecke. You, maybe, had access to the information....

MR. RIECKE

The mayor got that out and circulated it among us.

MR. FLORY

Well, he didn't give it to the rest of the committee members. He must have just gave it to the New Orleans delegates.

MR. RIECKE

Probably. One other question: the chief of police of the city of New Orleans has stated that if the seniority system were put into effect, that these young men who go to college and study crime courses and adjust themselves for better policemen and study this crime problem, they would not be able to get promotions under the seniority system; is that correct?

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. FLORY

No, sir, it is not correct. It would help them pass the examination better.

MR. RIECKE

But they would have to get in line with seniority with the older policemen?

MR. FLORY

First, they'd have to pass the examination. They'd have to qualify in that respect, and then the senior man under the Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service gets the job.

MR. RIECKE

Regardless of the qualifications?

MR. FLORY

No, he's qualified already because he passed the examination. Mr. Chairman, I suggest the absence of a quorum and ask for a record vote.

[Quorum Call: 93 delegates present and a quorum. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 61-38. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Mr. Flory read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14 in the Denny amendment adopted Saturday, on page 3 of the amendment, delete lines 9 through 35, both inclusive in their entirety, and on page 4, delete lines 1 through 9, both inclusive in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(D) City Civil Service Commission; Nomination; Appointment; Vacancies; Transition

There is hereby created and established a city civil service commission for each city having a population in excess of four hundred thousand according to the latest decennial census of the United States. Each such city civil service commission shall be composed of five citizens who are qualified voters of the city in which they serve, three of whom shall constitute a quorum. One member of each city civil service commission shall be appointed by the governing authority of the city by its own selection and one member of such commission shall be elected by the employees of the city in the classified service from their membership. The terms of the members of the city civil service commission shall be six years.

(1) New Orleans; Nomination and Appointment. In the city of New Orleans the presidents of Tulane University of Louisiana; Loyola University of the South and Dillard University shall each nominate three persons and one member of the commission shall be appointed by the governing authority of the city of New Orleans from three persons nominated by each president.

(2) Other Cities; Nomination and Appointment. In other cities subject to the provisions of this section, three members of the commission shall be nominated from any of the three universities named in Section 1 in accordance with the procedure therein provided.

(3) Vacancies. Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governing body, or by election, or by nomination as herein provided in the same manner as the original appointments were made, and it shall be the duty of the governing body to make such appointments or conduct such election and of the said presidents to make such nomination within thirty days after the occurrence of any vacancy.

(4) Transition. Within thirty days of the effective date of this constitution, it shall be the duty of the president of Dillard University to make such nominations to the governing body of the city of New Orleans. Within thirty days from the effective date of this constitution an election shall be held within the classified service of the city of New Orleans for the purpose of naming a member of said commission."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, when that lion answers that telephone, that's when Mr. Goldman is really in trouble.

The amendment that I have here at the present time--the employees in the city of New Orleans in the classified service have a commission comprised of three members: one from nominations made by Tulane and Loyola, and the city council makes one upon its own motion. This amendment changes that, increasing the commission from three to five members, to have Tulane, Loyola and Dillard University each nominating three people and the city council appointing one from the list submitted by those organizations. The city council still retains its rights under this amendment to appoint one from whomever they choose, and then the classified employees in the city of New Orleans, excluding the fire and policemen, would vote to elect one member, which is precedent for what we did this morning in the state. Bear in mind that in those municipalities throughout the state, many of whom--and just as I said here the other day--if you noticed in the Baton Rouge Morning Advocate, the city of Baton Rouge, the employees, just elected this past week their representative on the city commission here in East Baton Rouge Parish. It also provides that in those municipalities, who in the future might exceed four hundred thousand, that the nominating universities would be any of the nominating universities in Section 1 already adopted by this convention, and one would be elected. It further provides that if the nominating university fails to make nominations, that the governing authority of the city of New Orleans would make the appointments. It also provides in the transition that within thirty days after the adoption and effective date of this constitution, Dillard University would submit three names for nomination to the city council, would make the appointments, and they would proceed to conduct the election among the classified employees then covered under the city civil service system.

I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, I'm forced to take the floor again to oppose this amendment. This changes, basically, a civil service system which has existed in its present form since 1942. The amendment which was adopted on Saturday made one change in that system by adding one other university as a nominating authority and removing the right of the city council to name someone. This amendment leaves those same three universities, and now adds one to be appointed by the governing authority, and one to be elected by the classified employees. I can only tell you that, as someone who has been involved deeply with civil service for many, many years, I find this to be a bad amendment. I think we are losing the whole idea of having a completely independent civil service commission. What disturbs me, probably a little bit more than that, is that there are those in this convention who feel that they know what's best for New Orleans even when they don't live there. You have shown that insofar as the fire and police are concerned, and now you want to change our own system which we have had in operation since 1942. Yet, you ask us not to fool with your systems; don't touch the systems we have; don't let the constitutional form of civil service stay at two hundred and fifty thousand. Change it to four hundred thousand so our civil service systems will remain inviolate. I can see no earthly reason to change just for change's sake, and yet, that is what this amendment proposes to do. We have a system which has worked. You have taken the firemen and the policemen out of it. No one can come here and say the other employees in the city of New Orleans have voted against what we have now. No one can make that statement successfully, and no one will. The citizens of the city of New Orleans adopted a charter some years ago, which has a standby provision in it in the event, through some unforeseen circumstances, the constitutional civil service were repealed. It provides what is presently before you, not what is in this amendment. The citizens of New Orleans adopted that charter by an overwhelming vote. I can see no conceivable reason for this convention to want to change what has been in existence successfully for this length of time. I urge you to vote against this amendment.

Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, in closing let me say this: that this is in keeping with the amendment adopted as far as the constitution of the State Civil Service Commission this morning, in that it provides for the election of one member of the commission by the employees in the classified service in the city of New Orleans. It goes one step further and gives to the governing authority the right to make an appointment, as they have always had, from whomever they choose to serve on a city civil service commission. I think that's wise in that the city governing authority needs input into the commission as well as do the employees, and that's the reason it's drawn in this fashion. The mayor of the city of New Orleans, when he testified before our committee, said he had no objection to increasing the size of the commission from three to five; so that the size of the commission is no problem whatsoever. I know some of the people that have served in the past on that commission. This does not disturb that except that it does continue the appointment of Tulane, Loyola; it adds Dillard as an appointing university, and it retains the right of the city council to govern or to make an appointment from whomever they choose, and allows the election of one from the classified service.

Mr. Chairman, I ask for the adoption of the amendment so that we might pattern city civil service as it is done, not only in the rest of the municipalities...in a lot of the municipalities throughout this state, and also as we have already constituted the commission on State Civil Service. I'll be happy to yield to any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. CASEY

Mr. Flory, without the adoption of your amendment, is it not possible that through the nomination process an employee can be nominated for a position on the Civil Service Commission?

MR. FLORY

My understanding, Mr. Casey, there's no prohibition in the law at this time from one of the presidents of the university or the city council from making such appointments. However, I know of no such appointments having been made in past years.

MR. CASEY

In your reference to the mayor, was that only that he did not object to a five-member commission, but there was not conversation relative to the election of a classified...

MR. FLORY

I made it only to the size, and I did not discuss specifics with him because we had not formulated specifics at that time.

MR. CASEY

I just wanted to clarify that point. Thank you.

MR. FLORY

I ask for a record vote, Mr. Chairman.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 39-55. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Johnny Jackson. Amendment No. 1. On page 1, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on December 8, 1973, on page 3, line 13 of the text immediately after the word "of" and before the word "members" delete the word "three" and insert in lieu thereof the word "five" and on line 14 at the beginning of the line delete the word "two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "three" and on line 19 immediately after the word and punctuation "South," and before the words "and Tulane" insert the following: "St. Mary's Dominican College, Xavier College of Louisiana,"

Explanation

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment was drawn on Saturday of last week. I understand as a result of the convention's action this morning, that St. Mary's Dominican was taken off the State Civil Service and was moved, and in place of that, an elected representative.

I suggest to you that in light of the fact that the convention has rejected the Flory amendments, that what this attempts to do is to expand the commission from a three-member commission to a five-member commission, providing for representation of Dillard University...providing...adding back St. Mary's Dominican College...yeah...and Xavier University. I ask that you favor adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. J. JACKSON

So as there will not be any misinterpretation, Mr. Chairman, about my familiarity with the amendment, let me suggest to you that presently the composition is Dillard, Tulane, Loyola. What I attempt to do, as Mr. Dennery, when he first introduced his amendment, suggested that in order to provide for representation of all segments of the population, including females, we added the addition of Xavier and St. Mary's Dominican College. We would bring the commission from three up to five.

I ask your favorable adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment adopted: 79-12. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Hayes as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on the eighth, page 4, line 9, at the end of the line add the following:

"Should one of the nominating authorities fail to submit nominees at the time required, or should one of the named institutions cease to exist, the governing authority of the city shall make the appointment to the commission."

Explanation

MR. HAYES

Ladies and gentlemen, this is just a technical amendment to the Hayes-Chatelain amendment of this morning. It did not include the cities. This amendment would just include the cities. So, I urge your favorable support of this amendment to further include the cities.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Abraham.

On page 1, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on Saturday, on page 3 of the text of the amendment, line 14, at the end of the line, after the word "serve" add the word "overlapping".

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, this is a companion amendment to the one we adopted earlier on the state commission which simply provides for overlapping terms for the city as well as for the state.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The first set of amendments to (G) sent up by Delegates Alphonse Jackson, Anzalone and Rachal.

Amendment No. 1. In Floor Amendment proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the eighth, on page 5 of the text, line 2, after the word "than" and before the... semi-colon, delete the word "three" and insert in lieu thereof the word "five."

Explanation

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment deals with the long-standing rule that you've heard so much about of three in the Civil Service System. Basically, what it proposes to do is not to leave it up to the Civil Service Commission to decide whether or not to increase the number to a number that they would decide; but to constitutionally provide that there will be a rule of five, rather than three. In attempting to explain why we are offering this amendment, the rule of three means that if ten people take an examination, even though all ten are qualified, seventy percent of these people are going to be rejected. You may say that this is good--good for employment--good for the people of the state. But, let's view the rule of three as opposed to other qualifying tests that are given across the state.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Now I am an attorney by profession. We are different from lawyers because we don't make as much money as they do. Mr. Champagne, we smile, where bond attorneys never smile. But, seriously speaking, I am qualified to practice law in the State of Louisiana, not because I hold LLB degree, but because I happened to have passed the State Bar Examination. I can't tell you the grade that I made on that test. I don't care. They sent me a little piece of paper and they said, "Joe, you passed. Come be sworn in." That was fine with me. Dr. Weiss, you and your group, wherever you are, you don't practice medicine because you hold an M. D. degree. You practice medicine because you have passed your State Board. I'll wager that Dr. Weiss doesn't know the grade that he made on his State Boards, either.

Some may think that this is right and just, this rule of three. The most important, it's fair for all concerned. Now, in the cases of lawyers and doctors, you passed the test, and you practice. In the case of the lawyers, you are entrusted with the care, protection of your client's basic legal rights, their businesses, their properties and as some of us hope to feel, entrusted with making civilization just a little bit better because we are here. Why we are able to practice in our chosen field is because we passed the tests. After successfully completing the State Boards, the doctors of medicine are entrusted with the care of our personal health. Why? Because they passed the test.

Now, let's take the case of a college graduate who aspires to be a welfare visitor--maybe not so high an ambition, but nevertheless an ambition. Of necessity, he or she cannot be self-employed. In most cases, they have to work for government. So they take a test--not a bar examination, not a State Medical Society test, but a Civil Service Examination and passes it. Now, I would assume that if a law student passes a State Bar Examination, and a senior medical student passes the State Medical Board, and they are qualified to practice in their chosen profession, why not a college graduate who wishes to be a welfare visitor? But, this is not the case.

Suppose we went into the law school senior class one year and say, "Now boys, seventy percent of you all are all that we need out of this year's graduating class--thirty percent are not going to be able to practice law next year. Or suppose we told the doctors that we don't need all of you all--twenty percent are not going to make it. I bet you they'd raise so much hell you'd never hear the end of it. But this is exactly what we are doing in other areas and with other college graduates. Only a percentage--only a percentage. Now I wish to remind you that you have heard many, many times over the past, that every politician who runs for office is going to begin to run the state on sound business procedures. I think sometimes that maybe the reason that business has come so far, and government is always promising to adopt these sound business procedures, is that government has got all of the tests to get all of the brains. In the business world, only some of us do-dos are left to run it. I submit to you that the government that runs the people will never be appreciated by demanding a fictitious and super-qualifying procedure which is oriented to the textbook and away from the people that are seeking the employment. You can scream politics, favoritism, nepotism, but nowhere in this proposal with the rule of five, does it say that an unqualified person is going to be hired--nowhere. Every person who passes the test is qualified, is entitled to go to work. I would remind you that there is a story that Albert Einstein once failed algebra, and I personally know an imminent surgeon who thinks that Shakespeare invented a fishing reel. I submit to you that it is not all in the textbook test. It is a great deal to do which cannot be tested on paper, that has to do with the man himself whom you are attempting to employ.

The government of this state is getting larger. You are getting more and more applications. You are going to have more and more competition. Why not raise the number from three to a more realistic number of five? I ask your favorable adoption.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Anzalone, traditionally my problem with Civil Service has been that when a black, or blacks, take examination, and they fail, or one falls within the three, he may be the top man. But he's still not hired by the hiring officer. Now, I'm just wondering what will your amendment do to remedy a situation of that sort?

MR. ANZALONE

Well, Reverend Alexander, my...your question is geared to a racial issue. My amendment is not. My amendment simply is proffered for the purpose of saying that with more and more competition for state jobs, I think that we should take a realistic approach and increase the number of persons who can be hired from three to five. Now, this in no way guarantees a hiring practice based on a racial equivalent, or a racial quota, or something like that. It's not intended to do that at all. It's just simply intended that I can't see any reason where ten people would take a test, and seventy percent of them would be automatically excluded.

MR. ALEXANDER

All right, now. If you were going to substitute the word five for three; which means that instead of three eligibles from whom the employing agent may select, he may select from five. Now traditionally, this has been my problem that he lets--if a black is among those three--he refuses to hire at times, and permit the list to expire six months. Now, may he not do the same thing... would not this aggravate my problem?

MR. ANZALONE

Well, I don't think so.

MR. ALEXANDER

Even though it is not designed to...discrimination...it would aggravate my problem.

MR. ANZALONE

What you are trying to say now is that you've got one shot in three, and you don't particularly want one shot in five.

MR. ALEXANDER

That's right, because there will only be five eligibles left on the pole to die.

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Anzalone, isn't it a fact that industry used to clamor for the high grade students in the colleges, and now they are coming down and they are getting some of the B's and C's?

MR. ANZALONE

Yes, sir. They are looking for us common folks now, as I understand it.

In further answering your question, Mr. Shannon, I always heard that the guy that made the top grade of the class wasn't worth nothing to nobody.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Anzalone, as I understand this amendment, it would certainly make the local legislators in a better position to get jobs. Isn't that one of the primary purposes of this amendment?

MR. ANZALONE

Well, not unless they applied for it and they were not qualified under the three ruling, they could come qualify it under the five rule. Yes, sir.

Are you saying, Mr. Stanwood, that some of our legislators are in need of increasing this rule because they are not smart enough to pass the test now? Shame on you.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment because I think it allows more political influence to be exercised in the selection of people for civil service jobs and promotions. The larger the list you have, the more opportunity there is for influence. For one thing, more people will be on the list, including those that some politician is promoting. Those who the politicians are promoting are more likely to be on the list, the bigger the list is. Moreover, standards on the average are likely to be lower because, whether we like it or not, in general, the civil service testing system is a pretty good indication of the qualifications of a person and his likelihood to perform successfully in the job. If we allow lesser qualified people to be chosen over higher qualified people, then all we can do is help deteriorate the system.

Now, let me give you an example of how increasing the list will work to the disadvantage of minorities. I think that minority groups have been some of the people who have been trying to see the rule of three expanded to a rule of five or a higher number.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

I want to explain how that works. Many people say the civil service system is discriminatory. I defy that statement. Here's some statistics to prove it. Right now, 24.....Let me give you an example of how a weakening of the rule of three can help discriminate against minority groups. At present, 24.9 percent of all civil service employees are black. That's compared with the population in the state of maybe twenty-nine or thirty percent, compared with registered voters lists of about twenty percent. Now, it's true that on the average, these employees make less money than people who are not black. But remember, too, that in the population at large, those statistics are much greater. There's a much greater disparity between the amounts made by blacks and whites in the system at large and under civil service. In fact, the disparity is about half as large under civil service as it is in Louisiana society at large. But the most interesting statistic I've found would compare the Civil Service System to a noncompetitive system. Look at the State Highway Department, if you would. I checked with civil service last week and they told me that seventy percent of all highway department employees are chosen on a noncompetitive basis. Seventy percent of the employees of the Highway Department are selected on basically a political criteria--not on the basis of civil service. Now, does that help minority groups? Well, I found out this, that of those seventy percent of the Highway Department employees chosen on a noncompetitive basis, less than one percent are black--.6 percent are black. Now, that's if you put things on a political basis. A merit system is the best friend of anyone who's going to be discriminated against because it reduces discretion. Now, under the Civil Service System, when a black person has been included on the list of three, forty percent of the time, a black person has been chosen. On the average, it would be thirty-three and a third. Anything that expands the list and grants more discretion to the appointing authority, increases the chance for unjust discrimination.

But, more importantly, I think any expansion of the list again will lead to a deterioration of the civil service--of our public employees. If the fifth man on the list can be chosen ahead of number 1, 2, 3, 4, and the 5th man may have made a 70 on the test and scored low on interviews and other things, it's going to hurt morale of people, because they are going to know that the best qualified are not chosen....

.....and it's going to overall lower the quality of civil service in this state.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I would only point one thing out to you, and that is that the provision that is sought to be amended provides that the list shall contain not less than three names. It does not mean that in the event it's necessary to increase that number, that a commission could not so increase it. Thus far, in the history of civil service in Louisiana, and the rule has always been a rule of not less than three, to my knowledge the commission has never increased it. But I do not believe that the increase is required. It seems to me if it is required, any commission will certainly recognize this and thereby increase it. Furthermore, if there are more than...if there is more than one position to be filled, the list is increased so that it's three or four or five, as the case may be. What this amendment seeks to do, is to say that in every instance, at least five names must be certified to the appointing authority. As was so ably pointed out by Mr. Jenkins, this allows for more--not less--political influence. It provides for less merit rather than more merit. This is a merit system of public employment that we are trying to adopt here. I, therefore, urge you to defeat this amendment.

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Dennery, you refer to what Mr. Jenkins, I guess...don't you believe that the blacks could make it about as well if we didn't have a Civil Service System under the system since the mode of what they get is about three hundred and thirty dollars?

MR. DENNERY

I don't quite understand your question.

MR. HAYES

Don't you believe that the blacks would fare just about as good if we didn't have a Civil Service System since the mode is about three hundred and thirty-five dollars?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir, I do not because without a Civil Service System, there is unlimited discretion in appointment. With unlimited discretion in appointment--as has been shown--the blacks do not fare as well.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Dennery, I believe if I read your proposal correctly, you have changed the present constitution to exclude, in the exclusions, in that now your proposal includes common laborers, Laborers I, II, Utility Workers I and II, this sort of classification. Isn't that correct?

MR. DENNERY

You mean in the classified service?

MR. FLORY

Yes, and also in the competitive field.

MR. DENNERY

No, it's not necessarily in the competitive field, I don't believe, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

Well, isn't it true in the present constitution, they are exempt from civil service?

MR. DENNERY

No, they are not exempt at all. They might be exempt from competitive examination.

MR. FLORY

I think you'll find they are exempt, but that's not my question.

MR. DENNERY

No, once....I beg your pardon, once they are employed, they are under the Civil Service System.

MR. FLORY

Once they are employed. But, they don't have to be in a competitive examination, and the laborers per se are excluded in the present constitutional provision. I'll show it to you when you get back.

MR. DENNERY

Yes, from competitive examination.

MR. FLORY

Now, how long has that been in the present constitution, "not less than three?"

MR. DENNERY

As far as I know, it was in the present constitution, it was put in there in 1952. But, even before that in the 1942 amendment which was a statute which was later changed, it was a rule of three.

MR. FLORY

Are you familiar with the fact that the legislature, by Concurrent Resolutions the majority of the voters of the legislature asked the Civil Service Commission to change the rule of three to not less than five?

MR. DENNERY

I believe that was done, yes, sir. I don't have a copy of the Resolution, but I believe that was done.

MR. FLORY

Do you know that the Civil Service Commission has not considered that as yet?

MR. DENNERY

No, I do not know that they had not considered that as yet. I would assume....

MR. FLORY

Well, they haven't adopted it, have they?

MR. DENNERY

I would assume....I would assume....no, I don't think they have adopted, Mr. Flory, and for the very reasons that were pointed out by Mr. Jenkins.

MR. FLORY

Could you tell me the difference between a Utility Worker I and a Utility Worker II, for example?

MR. DENNERY

No...can I tell you that? No, sir, I don't have the classification plan in front of me.

Further Discussion

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Chairman and fellow members, I've saved back a little time. I think this is the first time I've been up here in about a week or ten days, two weeks. I rise in support of this, and I'm going to give you a few reasons why. Number one is I question the statement that Mr. Jenkins made that almost three-fourths of all the highway employees came up through the noncompetitive route, when I go and look and I find that only just about three classifications of jobs --when you get out in the field, that's labor, utility, bridgeman, etc--is chosen without civil service competition. A crew of seven, nine, or eleven people out in the field only is permitted one of that classification. Now, it is true that a number of these people are chosen at that level because of the promotional factors and policies that the Highway Department has. I like the promotional practices. You not only save a lot of money, but you give people advancement. If an individual is qualified, then I like to see him promoted when a better job is offered. But, there's no promotional policies on secretaries, clerks--all of those jobs--engineers, engineering aids. All of those start off classified from the word go. Now, let me tell you a few of the things you run into. On a field of three to be selected, and civil service walks in--in the..I will use Franklin Parish as an example; we have a job in Franklin Parish as a highway patrolman or State Police--they walk in and said, "We will make Troop F competitive." That covers everything from Arcadia, Louisiana, which is two-thirds across the state, to the Mississippi River and comes from the Arkansas line halfway or one-third of the way down the State of Louisiana. In that, we have three colleges and universities; a lot of urban population. When you add military service of ten points under certain categories, it is almost utterly impossible for ever a citizen of Franklin Parish to become an employee of the Louisiana State Police, because by the time we fight Louisiana Tech University, Northeast University and the urban population where they quite often have some advantages, you'll never get the one that you can hire locally. "Well, we'll send you a good one in from somewhere else." That sounds pretty good. Now, let me give you another example. You have a clerical job. They come back, and we're going to have that on the district basis. So, that goes from the west side of Winnfield Parish, two-thirds across Louisiana, to the Mississippi River. One of the clerical positions you've never heard of, and if they take one fifty or a hundred miles away from home, they're taking it as a stopgap to stay there long enough to find another job. When you look at a list and you find two from Winn Parish looking for a job in Franklin Parish and you find one from down in the lower end of LaSalle Parish say, "Well, we want to come up there because we have nothing else to do right now." Where, on the other hand, you could have an individual number four or number five on that list as local, established, out of a good citizenry, one-tenth of one point, and 86.3, where the number three person is an 86.4, well, you're not qualified. Now, as far as saying this works against minorities, I'm not worried about minorities. If they meet. . .if they are on that list and they are capable of having the job, I want to offer it to the best person for the job. I don't care who he is. I feel that. . .and I have fought this civil service hierarchy or whatever you want to call it. Any day you walk into that Civil Service Commission, you walk in there as a peon, as a political degre that's in there looking for something that shouldn't be done to start with. That's the way you're confronted when you walk in. I really think if you want something done with civil service, the best thing to do is to get an individual in the political figure and walk in and say, "For God's sakes, don't do it," and the odds are, you're going to get it. So, I'd urge the support of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I could not resist, after hearing Mr. Womack and his argument, because I think that's the best argument that's been advanced all day today against this particular provision. He's made a very good argument why we shouldn't expand it. If you want to politicize civil service, just expand it to three. If you want to try to get the best employee and cut out all the political shenanigans, you ought to cut it down to two. Now you can just pay careful attention to what he's just told you, and use your good judgment whether or not you want civil service to work or not. I ask you to vote against this amendment.

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Senator, I applaud your argument, but in projection of it, don't you think that as we remove ourselves from the rule of three and go beyond to the rule of five or seven, that we go from the merit system to the demerit system?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Absolutely. That's what you're doing. The more you expand it, the less. . .the more you can discriminate and the less qualified employee you're going to get.

MR. WOMACK

Senator, realizing that this country, as a political country, that government is the biggest thing we have, since when did it get so corrupt for politics to be politics in this country what we have?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Womack, as you well know, a lot of times politicians do things purely for politics. I think sometimes that we can separate the politics from the good of the country and start working for the good of the country and the community which we are supposed to serve, we will ultimately be better politicians rather than working for how we can get more votes.

MR. WOMACK

Senator, have you ever heard of a number three, number four, number five man on the list being a hardworking individual that was dedicated, where the number one and number two person might be one that's been laid off from every job in the country, that's too lazy to work?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I believe civil service works better than that, Mr. Womack.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Senator De Blieux, going back to your mathematical projection, you say that having two would be better than having three?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I believe that we would have a better system. It would be less discrimination if we're working only from two rather than from three. Yes, I did.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Okay, then, going along mathematically as you said, wouldn't having one be better than having two?

MR. DE BLIEUX

It might be better than that, too, Mr. Velazquez. That might be the best system.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Continuing mathematically, then, if one is better than two, if two is better than three and one is better than two, it would seem to me that zero would be the best answer you could get. That way, you wouldn't have to hire anybody.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, you've got to have some selection.

MR. ANZALONE

Senator De Blieux, when was the rule of three first placed as a rule of the Civil Service Commission?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I believe it was placed in there when it was first adopted, Mr. Anzalone.

MR. ANZALONE

What year was that, sir?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That was adopted. . .I think the civil service that we are presently operating under was adopted in 1954.

MR. ANZALONE

Would you say that today there are a great deal more applicants for the open positions in this state or less applicants?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't know. There probably may be, percentage wise, may be less because we have a whole lot more. . .

MR. ANZALONE

I didn't ask you "may," Senator, because I know the answer. I just want to see if you know it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

The. . . we have more population now, than we had in the. . . the qualification. . . that is, the pay of individuals, usually, are better outside of civil service than they are in civil service. At that particular time. . .

MR. ANZALONE

Senator, I'm talking about applications. . .

MR. DE BLIEUX

At that particular time when it was first adopted, things were harder and tougher to get a job, and we had a lot of civil service applications.

MR. ANZALONE

Applications per job. We have more now than we had then. It would seem to me, don't you think, that if in 1952 where you had an average of five and the rule of three, that where you now have eleven to thirteen, that a rule of five makes just a little bit more sense?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Not necessarily so. You're still trying to get the best qualified employee.

MR. ANZALONE

What is the best qualified employee, Senator?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I would feel like that the ones within the top three would be the better qualified.

MR. ANZALONE

On the basis of what?

MR. DE BLIEUX

The basis of grade.

MR. ANZALONE

Do you think that a doctor of medicine who is a surgeon should be qualified in english?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, I don't know what reference your question has to civil service, Mr. Anzalone.

MR. ANZALONE

Look at one one time, and you will see.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Senator, do you know of anything that prevents a person who possibly missed the first three going back and studying and get ready and come back again and try next time?

MR. DE BLIEUX

What is that?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

If they missed the first three, they can go home and study and come back again in a while.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, you can take another examination, yea. That's right. You can always try to improve your grade. That's why I think that the rule of three is much better than a rule of five, or six, or seven.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Do you know, Senator, that one individual thought maybe I was something like a legislator or. . .

MR. HENRY

The gentleman has exceeded his time.

Closing

MR. A. JACKSON

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I ask you to vote for this amendment because I believe that we need to say to all of the people of this state that we care about them, and that the Civil Service Commission is going to operate in the interest of all of the people. Now, I've listened very carefully to the arguments made against this amendment. Someone suggested that minorities ought not to be concerned about increasing the number because they fare better under the present rule. I'd simply like to point out-- while I don't think that this is a racial consideration at all-- what is the central question, here, is whether or not we're going to provide a greater opportunity for the selecting agencies to find the very best person for a position. Now, I think that Mr. Anzalone is correct when he said that in 1952 we could afford to be selective, and that we could talk about having three. But, when we have three times as many applications, it would seem to me that we ought to have greater latitude, and we ought to be able to look at all of the people who have qualified, all of the people who have made high scores, and look at some of the other qualifications. We have individuals who are secretaries who have scored high on the tests, but can't get along with people, simply because we are confined to the rule of three. We have individuals in high positions who know nothing at all about how to deal with some of the day to day in-house operations, although they are able to pass tests because they are test-wise and because they have been taking tests. But, they still can't do the job. So, what we ought to be able to do is to select individuals, all of whom. . . from a list that will reflect the kind of needs that we have based on the individual who can best do the job. Now, when we talk about minorities, yes, we have about twelve thousand minorities employed in this state, but they all are out at Southern University and Grambling College and in the charity hospitals and intra-level jobs. Mr. Jenkins talks about the fact that this will allow for political interference, and he talked about the fact that the higher we go, the fewer blacks we receive. . . we find. Well, you know, the higher we go in civil service jobs, the fewer blacks we find. The fact is that blacks are not being considered because of the closed nature of the civil service rules and regulations that we have in this state. Now, I think that this amendment is in the interest of all of the people, both black and white. I believe that this amendment will democratize the Civil Service Commission. Now, the committee's proposal recognized this problem and increased the number from three to five. If we had been considering the committee's proposal, you would have had a chance to see this recommendation. So, I think that these gentlemen and ladies recognize that we ought to make changes, that it was in the interest of this state to make changes. Now, let's put aside the racial question, and let's look at the increased number of applications we have. Let's look at the kinds of needs that we have in state government, and let's look at the importance of having all people feel good about the Civil Service Commission and vote for this amendment.

Questions

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Jackson, the way I understand, you want to take the top three and make it the top five?

MR. A. JACKSON

Right.

MR. NUNEZ

I understand, if you recall, I think there was a resolution in the legislature to go a little further than that. Am I right on that?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I think the resolution simply urged and requested the Civil Service Commission to make the change. The Civil Service Commission, up to this day, has refused to do so. . . has failed to do so.

MR. NUNEZ

Well, let me ask you one more question. If you. . .

MR. HENRY

The gentleman has exceeded his time, Senator. He's exceeded his time.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
37-58. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, maybe I was in error a while ago when I said that seventy-one or two percent wasn't right. It could be right because everybody that's been there as many as eighteen years--and there's a good many thousand of them--took absolutely nothing. They were blanketed in without any civil service, without any passing or anything else. So, that factor, if you add those thousands to it, that percentage factor could be a little higher than I had anticipated.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Jenkins to the proposal.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denney and adopted by the convention, Saturday, page 5 of the text of the amendment, at the end of line 9, insert the following:

"No distinction shall be made among applicants on the basis of their affiliation or nonaffiliation with any private organization."

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Flory.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denney and adopted Saturday, on page 4, line 34, immediately after the word and punctuation "efficiency," delete the remainder of the line and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"fitness, and length of service, as"

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, this is in the way of a technical amendment in that it's the present policy of the Civil Service Commission to give consideration to the length of service. I believe I'm correct that it's sixty percent versus forty percent which consideration the forty percent being given in the way of length of service. All this says is that in the development of the competitive examination, the person being promoted will be given. . .at least consideration will be given to length of service. That's all it says. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Flory, the one thing that disturbs me in this is that if civil service gives consideration to it, that doesn't mean a thing in the world--absolutely nothing.

MR. FLORY

Well, no, sir; I can't enter into their minds and thoughts, but I. . .all I am saying here is that they'll take into consideration the man's length of service, or the lady's length of service, in the development of competitive examinations.

MR. WOMACK

Well, now, the only thing I can use is my criteria for feeling this way. I'll ask you to comment on it, if you'd care to, that in the prevailing wage deal it also said that the Commissioner of Labor shall take into consideration the prevailing wage. He went ahead and established it, and when he was questioned, he said, "I considered it. It makes no difference, I considered it." So, I mean, it didn't mean anything. He didn't use it, he just said he considered it. I'm just wondering if this would be another situation of that kind.

MR. FLORY

I would hope not, but that's to the extent that all I asked is that it be given consideration.

MR. STAGG

Mr. Flory, does this implead into the merit system of civil service an additional consideration on longevity of service?

MR. FLORY

No, all it says is that they will take into consideration a man's length of service in the competitive examination to be given for promotions, etc. Of course, he can't have length of service as a consideration for hiring purposes. They do that now, Mr. Stagg.

MR. STAGG

For promotions, then, we would be impleading into this an element of seniority. Is that correct, under this amendment?

MR. FLORY

Call it seniority, length of service, how many days or how many years you've been on the job. It's the same thing they do today.

MR. JENKINS

Now, Gordon, on this amendment, you don't say anything about consideration will be given. You say, don't you, that the system will be based on merit, efficiency, fitness and length of service? You put length of service as a coequal standard there with merit, don't you?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. It says "under a general system," Mr. Jenkins. A general system based upon merit, efficiency, length of service and fitness in length of service. All of them.. all it means is, that all of them be given consideration when you get right down to it, under a general system of that type.

MR. JENKINS

Well, when the Civil Service Commission determines something like merit, or efficiency or fitness, it naturally would and does normally consider experience insofar as that is related to merit and fitness. But, simply length of service has no merit at all does it?

MR. FLORY

Why, certainly it does, has about forty percent today. Yes, sir.

MR. JENKINS

No, but I mean it is not a plus factor, the fact that someone has served a length of time should not be a plus factor, unless, that in some way is reflected in his own fitness or efficiency or merit.

MR. FLORY

Well, Mr. Jenkins, I don't know how you could say that a man served on a job for fifteen years that that experience would not at least, improve his ability to perform that particular function.

MR. JENKINS

Well, then in cases where that is correct, then it is covered by the words "merit, efficiency, and fitness," isn't it?

MR. FLORY

He may be there one day; he may be there ten years. The two people competing against each other--all this says is that length of service will be given consideration. A lot of times in the taking of an examination, with experience--four years of experience-- you could offset four years of college, one year of college, two years of college, etc., and, in order to qualify for the examination, to take the promotion. This is a consideration of length of service. This is what we're talking about.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 45-44.]

Personal Privilege

MR. VELAZQUEZ

I challenge the vote of Delegate Vesich, I don't believe he's here.

MR. HENRY
Delegate who?

MR. VELAZQUEZ
Vesich.

MR. HENRY
Vesich is not here, that's correct. Was his machine voted?

Now, gentlemen, this is the second time in about the last fifteen minutes that somebody has voted a machine of someone who is not here. There's suppose to be some honor, and some integrity amongst this bunch. These are the rules that you adopted, and I'm going to insist that nobody vote anybody else's machine, let alone someone who is not here. Thank you for pointing that out, Mr. Velazquez.

Personal Privilege

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Chairman, you overlooked the fact that there's also some pork in pork and beans; didn't you?
The Chairman was talking about all the honor, I just thought maybe he wanted to add sarcastically, there's a little pork in pork and beans, too.

MR. HENRY

And, there's a lot of bull in some members of ....
All right. Mr. Roemer.

Point of Information

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman, what does, in light of the allegation and your substantiation of that allegation just made. In light of that, what does that do to our vote?

MR. HENRY

If Mr. Vesich is recorded as voting yes,....

MR. ROEMER

Which he is.

MR. HENRY

... then that would mean that the amendment is defeated because the vote would be 44 to 44. So, the amendment is defeated.

[Amendment rejected: 44-44. Motion to table reconsideration.]

Personal Privilege

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I want to apologize to all this delegation. I thought I was at my desk and I was at Mr. Vesich's desk, and I inadvertently voted his machine. When I didn't see my light change, and I came up to my machine, so I'm the guilty party, but I apologize to the convention. But, it was not done on purpose.

[Motion rejected: 43-48.]

Motion

MR. FLORY

I now move to proceed with the vote on reconsideration.

MR. HENRY

All right.

Reconsideration

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I ask you to vote yes on this motion because all we're talking about--one of the four factors that will be considered, will be a man's length of service--that he devotes to public employment to the State of Louisiana. That's all I ask, is it be given consideration. The commission can consider it, the department should consider it and reject it. But, at least, let's say that they should at least give it consideration. That's all the amendment does.

Questions

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Flory, I'm little confused about one thing in the amendment. The way you have it drawn, it would read: "under a general system based upon merit, efficiency, fitness and length of service" as determined by....as ascertained by examination. How do you ascertain....

MR. FLORY

Insofar as practical, I believe that you forgot to read some of it, didn't you?

MR. TOBIAS

Well, I realize that, but what I'm saying is, how do you determine length of service by examination?

MR. FLORY

Well, you'd use length of service as a means of qualifying in order to take the examination in many occasions, Mr. Tobias.

To give you an example, if a particular job classification requires a college degree, you can substitute, if you've had four years of experience you can substitute that for, for example, one year of college.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Willis?
Gentleman yields.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Flory, rather than burden the commission with that consideration, don't you think that if a person has longevity or length of service that that will show up in the exam?

MR. FLORY

Perhaps it will, perhaps it will not, Mr. Willis. Insofar as a person just completing a college degree may not be, because of changes in curricula and updating of curricula, that person who's been on the job for ten years who may have had the same type of degree may not have had access to that updated curricula as a man just coming out of college taking that examination.

MR. WILLIS

Well, now if he doesn't have that, do you think that should be given merit when he has served and has not learned on the job with the same degree?

MR. FLORY

Well, to give you an example, Mr. Willis, if you take the classification as an administrative assistant; the classification as an administrative assistant requires a rather comprehensive examination in order to be a supervisor, if you will, as the administrator's assistant. It's the same classification whether it be in a department head---a department with six employees or six hundred. So, that the material they give you to study in order to be an administrative assistant is so extensive, if you pass that examination--you made a hundred on it--you could be the personnel manager for General Motors-- whereas, you may not be required to fill a position only supervising five employees.

Point of Information

MR. CHATELAIN

I'm opposed to the amendment. I want to vote as strong as I can against the amendment; on what's happening now, how must I vote, sir?

MR. FLORY

Just look at my light and vote the opposite way.

MR. HENRY

Well, you would vote "red". You don't want to reconsider it, sir, because the amendment is dead unless we vote to reconsider it.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, that's what I... how soon can I do that, sir?

MR. HENRY

As soon as you'll quit talking.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I wish you would look at this proposal as it would read with Mr. Flory's amendment. It says, "Permanent appointments and promotions in the classified state and city civil service shall be made only after certification by the appropriate department of civil service under a general system based on merit, efficiency, fitness and length of service." Now, Mr. Flory says that will allow the commission to give consideration to length of service. Does that also mean the commission can give consideration to merit, and consideration to fitness? Well, how much consideration? Will they give almost all consideration maybe to length of service, and just a little bit of consideration based on merit? I guess so. If all that means is they're going to give consideration to these things. It doesn't say that though; it says it's going to be based on four things: merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service. We could have a situation arise where in order to be promoted in the state service you have to . . . it'd only be eligible to people who had served an extremely long period of time. We could make merit a minor factor. Now, we're talking about the guts of civil service. The guts of civil service is that it's a merit system. Seniority is important only as it pertains to merit, not independently. So, let's don't gut the civil service system. Let's don't allow length of service to be highly emphasized and merit de-emphasized. So, let's vote against reconsidering this amendment.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Jenkins, did you understand Mr. Flory as I did, that length of service could be used as a criteria for taking the examination?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, Mr. Lanier, that's what I understood.

MR. LANIER

Now, if you make length of service of equal status with these other types of qualifications constitutionally, would it then not be possible for the board to say that unless you have fifteen years service you can't even take this test?

MR. JENKINS

I don't see they couldn't?

MRS. WARREN

Maybe, I'm getting a little bit confused about a question that Mr. Lanier asked, but the one that I had in my mind: when a person has been selected for civil service, he's been selected on merit; am I right?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, ma'am. Supposed to be.

MRS. WARREN

I'll grant you that. Now, if he's been already selected on merit and he has had a number of years of experience because he's been in service for a number of years; does he think that would give him a plus?

MR. JENKINS

Well, experience may give a person a plus, it may not. If the experience is related to merit, yes. Some people have a lot of experience and have no merit related to that experience. But, certainly the Civil Service Commission considers experience now. They may, for example, require that a person have ten years' experience in a certain field, but not necessarily with the state. We're not talking there about length of service with the state. They may require experience, but that experience can be with the federal government or private business, or whatever.

MRS. WARREN

Well, what makes it so different that their experience will be demanded from some other agency other than their state, or our state?

MR. JENKINS

Well, the system that it's important to preserve here is a merit system, Mrs. Warren, based on the abilities of the person, not upon any mere length of time that he may have served with the state -- or with anybody else for that matter--as these things relate to merit they are valid considerations. But, Mr. Flory's amendment would not necessarily have length of service relate to merit; it would be an independent factor, unrelated to it.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Jenkins, if your statement is true--and I'm trying to ask a question--you just said that we have certain merits, I mean certain qualifications that they have to set up under other agencies other than the state. So, I'm really trying to find out what makes the difference. If they have experience in the state, and they've done a good job, what makes it so much better to have the experience of coming from some other place?

MR. JENKINS

Well, there's no way that experience with the state is going to hurt them, it's going to be a plus factor. But, to make it one of the major criteria would be a mistake, I think.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I'll make my remarks very short. I am concerned to the extent that we do have problems with the civil service system. If you put a constitution of status in there for its length of service, then in effect what you're doing is rewarding a system that has discriminated in the past when it comes down to promotion, and those are my concerns.

Further Discussion

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just want to ask you to please direct your attention just for a moment to Section(J) of Paragraph(J) of this provision. It's on page 6, which deals with the rule-making powers of the State and the City Civil Service Commission. As you know, this commission has the power to make rules under the system interpreting any provision of the system and that those rules had the effect of law. Now, all this amendment does, and it's all that it does, is say that they will consider . . . they will consider length of service in connection with promotion in the system. Now, what they choose to do under their rule-making power; how they choose to handle it is entirely within the discretion of this independent commission. The only reason I got up here is because I just don't see how any intelligent human being who's read this proposal can get up here and tell you that this amendment guts the system. That just ain't so.

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Avant, this will... this involves promoting people in the system; is that correct?

MR. AVANT

That's right. I don't know how you would consider length of service in determining who you were going to appoint from outside the system to come in the system when they had never been in the system before, Mr. Hayes.

MR. HAYES

It has nothing to do with people who are not in the system, I mean bringing people into the system.

MR. AVANT

I see no way in the world for it to apply to that situation.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'll try to be very brief because--and I want to make one point to you-- it was tried... if someone tried to construe what I said that length of service could substitute in lieu of an examination, that is absolutely not true. What I said was, and meant to infer, if I didn't make it clear was: in order to qualify... in order... he might take the examination. He can substitute length of service sometimes for so many years of college or a degree in order to give him the right just to take the examination. This is one of the considerations that could be given to a length of service. The second consideration that might be given; is if there became a layoff, then it would be used in the inverse order in that the youngest man would be laid off and the oldest man would stay on the job. This is merely asking that a consideration be given to length of service. Mr. Chairman, I ask for... I suggest....

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, Mr. Avant said that this would pertain only to promotion and not to initial hiring. But in fact, couldn't this be used to make sure that any time there is a vote... an opening in a given classification, it is filled by promotion and not by some new outside person? For example, suppose there's a position called "surveyor five" and it requires ... the civil service system says that it requires five years of experience with the state. That would mean that a person with twenty years of experience who doesn't work for the state would not be allowed to take the examination and fill that position, but only someone with a certain amount of experience with the state; isn't that true?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, if you can foresee that commission that you said was so outstanding and nonpolitical making that type of a judgment, that theoretical possibility exists. But, at the same time, it also means that in the case of an Auditor I or II, that they could take from the outside and hire a person who's had two or three years of experience just out of college working for Sears, Roebuck, and put him in the Division of Administration as an Auditor II. It also means that.

Mr. Chairman, I suggest the absence of a quorum and ask for a record vote.

[Quorum Call: 88 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to reconsider adopted: 48-47.]

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I'm not going to bore you again, but this is the guts of the civil service system. This would allow it to be destroyed, and so I urge you to vote against this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 49-46.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Landrum, Delegate Tapper, Delegate Schmitt.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention Saturday, page 5 of the floor amendment, delete lines 10 through 20, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(H) Appeals. (1) Disciplinary Actions. No person who has gained permanent status in the classified state or city service shall be subjected to disciplinary action except for cause expressed in writing. Any classified employee subjected to such disciplinary action shall have the right of appeal to the appropriate commission. The burden of proof on appeal, as to the facts, shall be on the appointing authority.

(2) Discrimination. No classified employee shall be discriminated against by any reason of his political or religious beliefs, sex, or race. Any classified employee so discriminated against shall have the right of appeal to the appropriate commission. The burden of proof on appeal, as to the facts, shall be upon the employee."

Explanation

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I will only be here a couple of minutes because I know you are tired and you want to go home and so do I--at least go to my room anyway, or eat, or something. But, this amendment attempts to divide the adopted amendment of Mr. Dennery's into two parts because we feel that it should be in two parts. The first part dealing with the disciplinary action of the employee that the burden of proof should rest with the employer. If the employer is going to take out disciplinary action on employees, then that employer should be able to show cause why such action is being taken. In the second part of this amendment with the discrimination part of race, color, and religious beliefs, if an individual is going to say that someone or that the appointing authority is discriminating against him, then he should be able to prove himself. He should be able to prove that charge. I believe it is in keeping with our standard of procedures in the courts that one is innocent until proven guilty. We never have a man to prove himself innocent in a court of law, but rather that he has to be proven guilty, and until such time he is proven guilty, he is assumed innocent. We cannot allow people to be out of a payroll...out of salary while they are trying to gather up information to prove their own innocence. I don't think it should be their responsibility to prove their innocence. I believe it should be the responsibility of those who are bringing such charges against him, just as I believe that it should be his responsibility if he is going to claim that someone discriminated against him. We ask for a favorable adoption.

Questions

MR. KELLY

Reverend, actually, the only change that you are making is regard to the disciplinary action? In other words, you're not changing Mr. Dennery's proposal with regard to the discrimination, and by political, religious beliefs, sex, or race? You're making no change there; is that correct?

MR. LANDRUM

That is correct.

MR. KELLY

Your only change is that when a man is charged with a disciplinary action, and he is presumed innocent until he is proven guilty; is that correct?

MR. LANDRUM

That is right, Mr. Kelly. Mr. Dennery's amendment locks both sections together; I mean, on disciplinary action and discrimination and the way the two were so locked, you cannot say that you are for it or against it. So, that's why I believe that it was necessary to separate the two.

MR. FLORY

Reverend Landrum, I don't have any quarrel with your amendment. My question is: Will you explain again--and perhaps I missed your explanation--where in the disciplinary actions you put the burden of proof on the appointing authority, yet, under the classification where if a person is discriminated against--let's say, in the taking of a test, or in a promotional process, or on a lateral transfer--if discrimination exists, why you then put the burden of proof on the employee?

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Flory, you see many times a man could just say that "I'm being discriminated against." Well, all right, if you are going to say, "I'm being discriminated against", well then, how? That should be the next question. How am I being discriminated? How are you discriminated against? I don't believe it should be the one who is giving the exam. The burden shouldn't be with him to say that "I'm going to defend myself from this charge." I don't believe that.

MR. FLORY

Well, maybe I'm not getting through, Reverend, but...

MR. LANDRUM

Maybe you're getting through, maybe I'm not getting through....

MR. FLORY

...where it says "the burden of proof on appeal." Now, we have already had the classified employee had the right of appeal to the appropriate commission. So, what we are talking about here is the appeal on the facts to the court. Now, then, you are placing still the burden of proof on the employee in the court to prove that he was discriminated against rather than placing the burden of proof on the employer who actually did the discrimination. He ought to be able to...he ought to have to be forced to prove that he didn't discriminate.

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Flory, maybe you are correct, but I disagree with you. I disagree with you.

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

MR. A. JACKSON

Reverend Landrum, how does the first part of your amendment interfere with the governor's executive order against discrimination in...or state agencies? How does it interfere with the affirmative action programs under the Civil Rights Act?

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Jackson, would you remind repeating that again?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, my question is: When you place the burden on the employee, as it relates to discrimination, I'm asking you isn't this contradictory to the governor's executive order as it relates to discrimination in state agencies? Also, isn't this contradictory to the affirmative action programs that have been implemented under the Civil Rights Act, Title 7?

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Jackson, what I'm simply saying is this: That if I accuse an employer of discrimination, then I must be able to say how, how did he discriminate?

MR. A. JACKSON

But, shouldn't this...my question really is shouldn't this burden be on the agency?

MR. LANDRUM

Well, maybe you could tell me how? Well, how could he prove it? I would like a answer from you, if you have the answer.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I think that now under the Title 7 action that is being brought the person simply makes a charge...files a charge and it's up to the agency to prove that they have not discriminated.

MR. LANDRUM

But, the agency is not bringing the charges there, Mr. Jackson, the applicant is making the...bringing the charge. But, now, that part of it is not really my amendment to start with; I was dealing with the first part of it, on a disciplinary action. I do feel that disciplinary action should not be the burden of the employee to bring about...to prove his innocence. I believe the burden should rest with the employee.

Further Discussion

MR. SCHMITT

Reverend Landrum was quite correct with reference to disciplinary action. The question is: Who must prove what? I would just like to give you one little example. If Sally Mae hollers that Billy Joe stepped on her foot, under the present system, which would be in effect without the amendment which Mr. Landrum, myself, and Mr. Tapper have introduced--Billy Joe would have to come into the hearing and prove that he never did it. So, the issue before us is if there is doubt, or reasonable doubt, does the person who is the employer get the benefit of this doubt, or does the employee? I think it should be the same as it is in private business with the employee getting the benefit of the doubt. In normal types of arbitration proceedings, the company has to come in and prove that it has good cause for dismissing an individual; I think it should be the same way in this type of case. Next, with reference to the discrimination in the Title 7 action--that's under the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission rulings and so forth--and these do require proof upon the part of the employee that some type of discrimination has been brought against the individual, and he must gather facts in order to show this; he initiates a charge--some federal agency might go and investigate it--but ultimately, whichever way is decided upon, he must go into court and prove his case. So, all this is is the enactment of the present law which is in effect at the present time with private corporations and employees hired by these individual private corporations. Now, I think what is good in the private business world and works very well there will also work well within the civil service structure.

Questions

MR. KELLY

Mr. Schmitt, I think you would agree that there has been some misunderstanding concerning these two burdens of proof in relation to Reverend Landrum's amendment in essence and the logic behind his amendment, and is this not true?

MR. SCHMITT

I can't hear you.

MR. KELLY

Is not the logic behind Reverend Landrum's amendment to the effect that whoever makes the accusation has the burden of proof?

MR. SCHMITT

That's correct.

MR. KELLY

All right, i.e., in the first case, in case of disciplinary actions the commission itself would be...

MR. SCHMITT

That's correct.

MR. KELLY

...the people in authority would be making the accusation against the employee; they would bear the burden of proof.

MR. SCHMITT

That is correct.

MR. KELLY

...the discrimination angle if I, as an individual, holler discrimination then I am making an accusation against the system, so to speak; therefore, I have the burden of proof.

MR. SCHMITT

That is correct.

Further Discussion

MR. DUVAL

There may be some confusion for those few of us who are still here as to what this amendment does--I would just like to bring it out. I'm primarily interested in the first part of the amendment which changes the law in reference to the burden of proof. Of course, we do things sometimes that sound good, but we don't know but what this might affect years of jurisprudence on the subject. How does it work mechanically? What does it mean? What does it do? Have we thought in any depth about it? I've handled several cases like this and in order for the employer, the appointing authority, to terminate the employee: (1) the employer has to give specific written reasons--now, specific written reasons. And, of course, the burden of proof on appeal is on the employee, but the written reasons must be proved and the commission must find as a fact that the employee did, in fact, violate certain rules. Now, in private business--I might point out--you'd be fired because somebody doesn't like the way you blink your eyes or the way you wear your glasses and, generally, people are not terminated unless they are not performing their function in a certain way or not; civil service protects them; civil service makes you have to prove, makes specific written reasons have to be outlined. Now, I think when you switch this around and make it like a criminal case where the burden of proof is on the employer, it's going to be very...even more difficult to terminate people. Sometimes people should be terminated because they are not doing their job and it's mighty difficult, right now, if the cases are read to terminate somebody under civil service. They have to be guilty of a pretty flagrant violation. I don't see why we should make any more difficulties. It is not a criminal proceeding but the orderly operation of state government. I see no reason why we should hamstring it more by making the burden more difficult. It sounds good; it makes you feel good, but practically, it doesn't function very well. Practically, the employee's got plenty of protection under the law right this minute.

Further Discussion

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I just want to point out what I consider to be errors in what Mr. Duval has told you. This idea of the burden of proof being on the employee is one of the basic inconsistencies in the present civil service system. Now, this...remember this, under this system an employee to acquire permanent status, first, he has to pass a written examination; he has to be within the top number; and he has to secure the appointment. Then, he has to undergo a probationary period. Only after he undergoes a probationary period, during which period of time he can be discharged for any reason, does he secure what is known as permanent civil service status. Now, thereafter, he can only be discharged for cause. If he violates some rule, he's incompetent, etc., etc. Now, there is no question of converting this thing into a criminal proceeding or a quasi criminal proceeding, as Mr. Duval said. If that permanent status is going to mean anything, if that civil service status is going to mean anything, it must mean that when the appointing authority points its finger at a given individual who has gone through this test and probationary period, and has permanent status, and says, "You are being fired because you did or you did not do thus and such, or because you are incompetent," it simply means that they have to establish that he actually did those things or that he is, in fact, incompetent--that's all it means. It doesn't mean as in a criminal case that it has to be proven beyond a reasonable doubt. All you have to do is prove it enough to where it's more probable that he is guilty of the violation charged than it is that he is not guilty; you don't have to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. Now, if you accept the idea of civil service at all, then you have got to accept the concept that if you can only be discharged for cause, then the burden is on the party doing the firing to prove the cause. Under the present law, the burden is on the employee to prove that he didn't do certain things. Well, you know, it's almost impossible for anybody to prove that they didn't do certain things. So, it seems to me, that this is a burden of proof situation under the present constitution, which puts the burden of proof on the employee, is a basic inconsistency within the system itself; it's absolutely inconsistent with any idea of not being able to discharge except for cause. So, for that reason, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

MR. FLORY

Mr. Avant, isn't it a fact that Louisiana is the only state in the nation where the burden of proof is on the employee?

MR. AVANT

That is correct, Mr. Flory.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Avant, is the burden of proof on the employee an inconsistency with legal jurisprudence in Louisiana?

MR. AVANT

I'm sorry, Reverend Alexander, I'm having trouble hearing you.

MR. ALEXANDER

I say, "Is the fact that the burden of proof rests on the employee inconsistent with jurisprudence in Louisiana--legally?"

MR. AVANT

Well, no, it's not inconsistent with jurisprudence, Reverend, because our present constitution--the civil service provision--says that "the burden of proof on an appeal in a discharge case is on the employee." I say that it shouldn't be there; it should be on the employer if the system is to mean anything.

MR. ALEXANDER

Well, I know, you're speaking about the system as it is now. I'm speaking about under the penal code in Louisiana. Is not the burden of proof....

MR. AVANT

Well, it's contrary not only...but, it's contrary to the general principle that anywhere that anybody who's making an allegation or supporting the affirmative side of a proposition has got the burden of proving that side. The fellow who says, "I didn't do it," he's not supposed to have to prove anything. You're supposed to have to prove that he did do it.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, those delegates who are present--and I'm glad to see that at least some of us remained here--the question of the burden of proof is a very delicate--or rather a very technical question. This is far, however, from a technical amendment. The law has been in this state now since 1942, and again in 1952, that the burden of proof is on the employee. Now it has been said that this makes it difficult for the employee to establish that the employer is wrong. You may be interested to know that since 1955, up to date, there were thirteen thousand four hundred and twelve employees in the State Civil Service who were removed for cause. Of those thirteen thousand almost five hundred, only eight hundred and eighty-two filed appeals, because they knew the cause was present. Of the eight hundred and eighty-two, four hundred and seventy-three, or over half, have had their appeals sustained. So, it is not as difficult as some of the speakers might have led you to believe. Let me read you from the decision of the court...courts...decisions of courts of this state, which require the appointing authority to make specific certain and definite charges as to their nature, as well as to the date, time, and place of their occurrence. Now this protects the employee. It is very simple for an employee, when he knows the exact thing for which he has been dismissed, or disciplined, to dispute it. It is very simple for him to do this because he knows that the appointing authority can bring no other evidence than to substantiate what they have alleged as cause. If you put the burden, and this is not a criminal case, this is not a question of someone being guilty until proven innocent; this is a case where the State of Louisiana, through its duly designated appointing authorities, has determined that a particular individual should be discharged. Now, this is basic to the merit system, to permit the state to get rid of nonmeritorious employees. It's to the advantage of the people of the state to permit the state to do this.

Eighteen thousand...excuse me...thirteen thousand, almost five hundred people have been removed since 1955. If we shift the argument, if we shift the burden of proof, what we are doing, in effect, is saying to the State of Louisiana, "We are trying to make it almost impossible for you to discharge a nonmeritorious employee." When the employee comes in and presents his evidence that he was not guilty...excuse me...that he did not do what the appointing authority said he did, or what he did do was not just cause for dismissal, the burden of going forward immediately shifts to the state, to the appointing authority, and they have to prove it. The only time that the burden of proof becomes important, is if you have an extremely close case--an extremely close case--where the commission is unable to determine whether Mr. A is lying or Mr. B is lying. In those few instances, the burden of proof becomes important. That's the only time it becomes important. I urge you to defeat this amendment.

Questions

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Dennery, you said thirteen thousand dismissed. Of that thirteen thousand, how many appealed?

MR. DENNERY

Eight hundred and eighty-two.

MR. LANDRUM

What was your statement about the remainder?

MR. DENNERY

The others obviously must have known that their cause was not just, or they did not appeal.

MR. LANDRUM

Do you think that they could have felt that they had no power; that they were fighting the power structure that they just could not win even if they would appeal; that they did not have the money to offer to hire an attorney to fight an appeal?

MR. DENNERY

Reverend Landrum, I have been...I sat on that commission for ten years. I never saw anyone complain to that effect. People have appeared without attorneys. The commission has acted, in effect, as their attorney and protected them.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Dennery, isn't it...didn't you say that those who did appeal, that over fifty percent of them were successful in their appeal?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

[Previous Question ordered. Quorum Call: 78 delegates present and a quorum.]

Closing

Point of Order

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Assistant Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, just about everything has been said. I think you understand it. For fear that you don't fairly, let me just reiterate that what we are doing here is not changing Number (2) of (H), because that is the way Mr. Denney had originally proposed it. We are changing only Number (1) of (H) which deals with the disciplinary action, and not the discrimination. Now, we've changed it, changed the burden from the employee to the employer, and that is the only change. That is what this amendment is about. I think that in all fairness, you believe that that's the way it should be also.

Now, Mr. Denney says they've had so many thousand cases of dismissals, and only about eight hundred appeals. Well, maybe that could very well have come about as a result of the particular provision that we're trying to change. Maybe the employee felt that it was no use because the employer was more acquainted with the commission than he, or she, could ever be. I'm not saying that's the case. But that could very easily have been the case.

For the life of me, I cannot understand, nor can the other proponents of this amendment understand, why those who are so bent on retaining the Civil Service System as it is, to protect, allegedly, the civil servants of this state; why they, the same people who say they want to protect the civil servants, insist that an employee has a greater right and is more protected when he does not have the right to say, "I am innocent until proven guilty." Now, whether you call it criminal, civil, call it what you may, it isn't a criminal prosecution. No. You don't have to prove it beyond a reasonable doubt. No. A preponderance of the evidence--not even that--more or less a prima facie case is all they have to prove in the....appeal. Ladies and gentlemen, to me, this vote is on the ridiculous. Why....why does the employee have to prove he did not commit an infraction? For the life of me, I cannot understand that. I urge....I urge that you adopt this. If we want to protect the civil servants of this state, then let's do so, and let's do so one hundred percent. I'd like to know the answer to why they don't want this to be done. I haven't heard it yet. Please, adopt this amendment. I ask for a record vote.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 42-40. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 36-40.]

Motion

MR. TAPPER

I now move that we reconsider till the next legislative day... the convention day.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Tapper now moves to reconsider the Landrum amendment on the next convention day which is tomorrow; will have the effect, then, of passing over Section....Paragraph (H) and going on to (I). Is there any objection to the motion to reconsider on the next convention day?

Substitute Motion

MR. DUVAL

As a substitute motion, I move that we reconsider it now.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Duval now offers a substitute motion to reconsider the vote by which the Landrum amendment was adopted on today.

MR. POYNTER

Just want to make it clear. The motion, or the group of motions, counting the original motion, all have to do, not with reconsideration, but when you are going to reconsider.

Mr. Tapper moved to defer the consideration of the motion to reconsider until the next convention day and to which a substitute was made by Mr. Duval that you reconsider at the present time. So, what you are disposing of now is the time or juncture that you will vote to reconsider, not the motion of reconsideration itself.

[Motion withdrawn. Substitute motion adopted: 64-15.]

MR. TAPPER

Is it not a fact that the vote we just took was on reconsideration?

MR. POYNTER

No. Reconsideration at the present time.

MR. TAPPER

No, the vote we just took was whether or not we would reconsider it today. Isn't that right?

MR. POYNTER

That's correct.

MR. TAPPER

So, now, it's up for a vote on the amendment today. Isn't that correct?

MR. POYNTER

Except the motion on the floor right now is to reconsider.

MR. TAPPER

You haven't....called the vote, yet?

MR. POYNTER

No. The motion under the rules of the convention is debatable so there could be discussion on whether....

MR. TAPPER

The Chair put the question--those who are in favor of reconsidering today will vote yes. Those opposed will vote no. Will you open the machine. The machine is open. The vote isn't counted. If the vote carries, then it's up for reconsideration today to be voted on. Is that not right?

MR. CASEY

Mr. Tapper, I thought the Clerk, I believe the Clerk, in all honesty, had tried to clarify the point that we were merely voting on the time element of reconsideration. The matter up for discussion at this time is the motion to reconsider. I would suggest that we go through the steps of voting yes or no on that, and then if we wish to again discuss the amendment, let's do that.

Point of Information

MR. ARNETTE

Mr. Chairman, Mr. Duval's motion was not that we consider the motion to reconsider. It was that we reconsider. That was the motion as I understood it. It was very plain. Not that we consider the motion to reconsider, but that we actually reconsider that vote. That's the way it was put to the house.

MR. CASEY

I believe the Clerk made it quite clear that it was the time element. If there was any question about it, I would suggest that the convention go through the process of voting on the motion to reconsider at this time--just to solve any problem, Mr. Arnette.

Point of Information

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Acting Chairman, I wonder if you all would adopt a terminology along the line of a farmer's terminology and leave the lawyer's terminology out of it; and I think maybe we'd understand it better.

Point of Information

MR. AVANT

I want....this is a point of information because....this has confused me other than just now. We vote on the motion to reconsider and then to table the motion. O. K. So we say well we don't table the motion to reconsider.

Then, we vote on whether we are going to reconsider....right?

96th Days Proceedings—December 11, 1973

All right, now, then suppose we vote not to reconsider? The vote on that motion is zero. What does that do to the main proposition? Is it then in the same position it would be if we had voted to table it?

MR. CASEY

Except that it would take a two-thirds vote to remove that motion to reconsider from the table.

MR. AVANT

No, no, no, no, no. We vote on the motion to table, and we don't table it. So, then the question is, are we going to reconsider it? So, we vote that we don't want to reconsider it after we have refused to table the motion to reconsider. Then, I want to know where we stand at that point insofar as the main question is to-wit: the amendment--can we....do we ever again.....?

MR. POYNTER

If amendments were adopted, it stays adopted. The amendments were rejected; it stays rejected. We're just in the same posture.

Point of Information

MR. DERBES

Point of ignorance, Mr. Chairman.
Is there a motion on the floor?

MR. POYNTER

The motion to reconsider is pending.

MR. DERBES

I move the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 31-44.]

Motion

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I don't like to cause obstruction in the wheels of the convention. But I think we have a very short house. This is a very serious issue. I don't know to whose advantage it is--the proponents or the opponents--but I would like to move that we return to other orders of the day rather than speak on the merits of this right now because I just think we decided we are making a drastic change here one way or the other. I would like to move that we return to other orders of the day.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Motion adopted: 37-36.]

Point of Information

MR. JENKINS

What will this do to the motion to reconsider?

MR. HENRY

Well, we are debating the motion to reconsider at this time. So, we'll continue the debate on that, first order of business tomorrow. I mean, the first order of business when we get on unfinished business.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Reconsideration

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 9, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state and city civil service. The status of the proposal: the convention has adopted a number of amendments; primarily has adopted a set of comprehensive amendments proposed by Delegate Denney, which were adopted last Saturday, December 8, 1973; at the present...presently considering amendments thereto; and in particular, on yesterday, prior to adjournment, an amendment was adopted by--as proposed--by Reverend Landrum, dealing with Paragraph (H) dealing with appeals; adopted 52 to 50. The motion to table was defeated; presently have under consideration, before the convention, the motion to reconsider the vote by which the Landrum amendment was adopted.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in support of the amendment.

MR. HENRY

Mr. Flory, now, we're on the question of reconsideration, the motion to reconsider.

Point of Order

MR. FLORY

I understand; and my position at this time, if I'm correct, Mr. Chairman, is if we want to sustain the adoption of this amendment, we have to vote no. Is that correct?

MR. HENRY

That would be correct.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

So, if we're in favor of this amendment, we have to vote no because the motion is to reconsider. If we defeat the motion to reconsider, then the amendment automatically stands adopted. So, I ask you to vote no on the motion to reconsider. Our Committee on Education discussed this matter on changing the burden of proof from the employee to the employer at considerable length, both in the subcommittee and in the overall committee. I can tell you, if there was anything in our committee that was by a unanimous vote, it was on the changing of the burden of proof from the employee to the employer. When this amendment first came up yesterday, I had some reservations about the second portion of the amendment, placing the burden of proof on the employee in those cases where discrimination was brought about on political, religious beliefs, sex or race. I am convinced now that that is the proper procedure, that whoever makes the accusation ought to have to prove the charges, so that I would ask you to vote no on this motion to reconsider so that we can leave adopted the question of whether or not the burden of proof is going to be left on the employee or the employer. I think that it rightfully belongs on the employer who takes the initiative in bringing about a disciplinary action against a particular employee. Again, I say to you that Louisiana is the only state in the nation with a civil service who has the burden of proof on the employee. In the rest of the states the burden of proof is on the employer. It is a mere question of whether a man is innocent until he's proven guilty, or whether he's guilty until he's proven innocent. If you place the burden of proof on the employee, that means that he's guilty until he proves himself innocent. But, if you change the burden of proof to where it rightfully belongs, on the initiating party, then that man is innocent until he's proven guilty. I ask you to vote no on the motion to reconsider.

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, again, I want to say to you that we must take into consideration the welfare of a man dismissed from a job. That man lives off of money that he earns, whether he's paid weekly, monthly, or semi-monthly. To have this man to spend his savings, should he have any, hiring an attorney to defend him, or whether this man should be placed in a position of being guilty, not having any income, and then at a later date he's proven innocent, what has happened to him while the time he was waiting? He probably has borrowed...made a loan. You have set the gentleman back, or the lady, whichever the case may be. I believe that we should put the burden of proof on the employer. In the case where, for disciplinary action in the areas of discrimination, if I charge someone with any offense, then I should be able to back up that charge with proof. The burden of proof should be on me at that time. I urge that you would defeat the proposal...not the proposal, but for reconsideration.

Further Discussion

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think it again time that we examine whom we represent here. We're writing a constitution, again, I think, for the people of Louisiana, not for small segments of the people. We seem to have fallen to the tendency that it's very popular and very nice to do things for certain groups of people. But, you're putting this into a rigid document: that is, your constitution. If you do something that isn't well considered, you have to live with it until the constitution is amended. We've already composed a board which is, supposedly, which should be much more employee oriented than the present board. I think that's a without question that the composition of the board that we have proposed will certainly be more employee oriented, which is fine. But, I do not think we should set up a system in this state which makes it more onerous to terminate employees of the civil service system. I think you heard Mr. Denney's statistics yesterday that over half the appeals taken were won by the employee. It's all fine to sit here and wave our banner and say, "Oh, they should be protected," when no other employee in industry is protected except by discrimination. I'm not talking about the discrimination portion of Reverend Landrum's amendment. I'm talking about the everyday running of state business. Now, when are we going to start being concerned with that, ladies and gentlemen? When are we going to start being concerned with how government operates? And, when, it's hard as heck right now, I can tell you--it's hard to dismiss people under the present civil service system. We talk about efficiency in government. Inefficiency has many times been perpetuated by people who are causing disharmony in a department, but cannot be terminated because of the protection, and there should be some protection in the civil service. The main purpose of civil service is to achieve merit, and to do away with the spoils system, and then to give some job security to state employees. But, you don't want to give them a lifetime appointment. Now, what effect will this have? If the cases are carefully read, if the cases are carefully read in Louisiana, it can be found that the employee has been mighty doggone protected by the courts and by the law, and we want to do it more. We want to put on our hat and say look what good guys we are. But, have we thought in depth about the effect our actions are going to have on the jurisprudence of this state, on the machinery of state government? Have we really thought about it? It's wonderful and popular and quite demagogic to come up here and say, "We want to help the poor employee who's oppressed by the evil state." Now, that's just wonderful. That's just great. But, what does it mean? The employee is mighty protected right now. They certainly are, and if the cases are read, that can be seen. But, we want to do it more because we want to be the fair-haired boys, but we're not being responsible to the people who elected us. It's high time we stop writing a constitution to please other people rather than the taxpayers of Louisiana. Just let me read you from a couple of cases--I've just gone through this in a second--"Civil service requirement that discharge of employee come from appointed authorities to be strictly construed. An absence of proper notification is fatal to employee's actions. Mere fact that civil employee has disagreements with fellow workers, is unpleasant to work with, experienced difficulty in adjusting to change, lacks adaptability, and demonstrates inability to work with others, is not sufficient cause for removal." Now, that's the case I'm reading from, right here, Carr v. New Orleans Police Department. That's what the cases have said. Now, I defy that person to work in a regular job. I defy him to keep his job. He can't, but he's protected under civil service. So, I recommend to you that we do in fact reconsider this, and think about what we're doing in a little depth, and hear a little discussion. Thank you.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Duval, would you say it was more important for a commission to be able to get rid of employees, than justice to prevail?

MR. DUVAL

Mrs. Warren, I think justice prevails in our system now. I think injustice will prevail when people who should be terminated cannot be terminated. When we change our law, why change a law when I think justice is being done right now? I don't think you can complain if you look at the cases and the operation of the commission. Also, Mrs. Warren, the way the commission is composed, now, it's going to be pretty employee-oriented to begin with. So, I don't think you have to worry about justice.

MRS. WARREN

Even at that, Mr. Duval, you went on to elaborate on it, so our position is really different. You think one way, and I think another. But, I asked you the question. Now, the question is: if you are accused of something--I accuse you--I should be able to prove what I say, and that goes for the commission or anybody else; wouldn't you think?

MR. DUVAL

Mrs. Warren, if the cases are read, you'll find that anytime an employee was terminated under Louisiana law, the employee had to have a lead-pipe cinch.

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise to oppose the motion to reconsider for the following reasons: One of the previous speakers alluded to people. Who are these people? These people are sixty thousand employees of the state government of Louisiana. They are people like you and me. They are people who work for a living. They are not all black people, Indians, Japanese, or white. They are people like us. Now, fundamentally in Louisiana, we operate under a legal system. Now, if you will recall, under the jury system which, more or less, originated a long time ago back in Europe, especially in Greece, the original system applied only to criminal cases. But, eventually, it evolved, and now we have a jury system, a criminal jury system, and a civil jury system. Now, what am I saying? That to say to an employee who does not sit in an ivory tower, who is not an executive, who is classified, not unclassified--which indicates that his salary is not in the highest bracket--to say to him that you must come before this powerful Civil Service Board, which has at its disposal persons with all kinds of expertise--attorneys, labor relations men, certified public accountants--in order to determine our rates of pay, and etc, the board has at its disposal all of these people. Yet, there's one, poor single individual who may be working for six hundred, five hundred dollars per month, comes before this board, and the whole burden of proof is on him when he is charged with insubordination, or some other breach of the rules. Now, I say unto you, ladies and gentlemen, to do that is a violation of the spirit of the criminal court of Louisiana and of the Constitution of Louisiana and of all the laws of Louisiana which pertain to any kind of criminal or civil activity before a bar of justice. Now, I'm asking you to vote against--to vote against--reconsideration and remember that you're talking about people--our people. We're talking about a law that should have been reformed and changed a long time ago. If civil service has had any weakness--and I don't know so much that it has--but, if it has had any weakness, then that weakness has been that the burden of proof has been on the employee, the one who's least able to bear it. Now, if you want to do this, and if you're thinking of England, where common law prevails and you're guilty until proven innocent, then I say to you, naturally, if we were in England, I would go along with you. But, we are in Baton Rouge, Louisiana, United States of America. I'm asking you to vote against the motion that is before us. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, of course, we've been through all of the pros and cons. However, Mr. Duval brought up some of the decisions and reasonings, and I'd like to comment on that. I believe that's a very commendable on the part of the courts and the commission to make those decisions. However, we are here writing a constitution. The next time these provisions are interpreted, and there's a hearing before the commission or before the court, those decisions might go just the opposite. We are here to write a constitution that we hope will stand up in the face of litigation. It's a very simple thing, and I want to reiterate what was said yesterday; in spite of the fact that some of the proponents of the motion to reconsider feel that this is not only to...or rather, civil service is not only to protect the employee, but it is also to protect the employers and state government. To a certain extent, they may be correct. But, they expound very ably that we need civil service for the protection of the employee so that we will not revert to the spoils system that we had in this state years ago. I agree with them to that extent. I agree with them even further that the only reason for civil service is for the protection of the civil servant; and let's make no mistake about it; the people who are there urging that we have civil service, I believe, are very sincere that they want to protect the civil servant. But, when they say that he must prove that he has not done something for which he can be removed, then again, I have to--as I said yesterday--doubt their sincerity to the extent of one hundred percent. I hope and pray that we will not go so far afield that we will, in the view of protecting civil service as such, take away a basic right of the civil servant that we are trying to protect with civil service. I urge that you defeat, and vote red on the motion to reconsider.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I urge you to vote in favor of the motion to reconsider. We've had a lot of speakers up here extolling the merits of civil service. You know, to give a full hearing to anything, you need to look at both sides. Of course, in my view, and in the view of a lot of people, civil service is a fine thing that does have a few bad features, and one of the bad features is it's very difficult to get rid of somebody that's not doing his job. You know, Walker Percy, who is a native of Louisiana, wrote a novel called Love in the Ruins that I highly recommend to any of you that haven't read it. It's a story that occurs in the 1980's in Louisiana, where there are motels and public buildings that are in ruins, automobiles stalled along the road. It's the ultimate end of the civilization of the half-done job. I feel that in public employment, perhaps more even than in the private sector, the philosophy of the half-done job, the philosophy of more pay for less work has got us in a pickle today. I submit to you, ladies and gentlemen, that there is no constitutional right to employment by the state. I submit to you that the way the civil service system works today, and the hearings that I've been in on both sides of the fence, is that this burden of proof that rests on the employee is discharged quite simply when he takes the stand and says "it ain't true. I didn't do what they said I did." Then the burden shifts immediately back to the public agency. If you think it's all that easy to discharge a public employee, let me tell you it's not, whether it's a teacher under the teacher tenure law or a civil service employee. I've sat in hearings where, for instance, it was proven beyond the shadow of a doubt that a fireman told the fire chief that he just was not going to attend fire drills, and that fireman was not dismissed. He was reprimanded, suspended for two or three days. I submit to you that in private employment, if you told your employer you weren't going to attend when he was taking inventory, he'd fire you, and there's no burden of proof anywhere. You're gone. I submit to you that the system, as we know it today, has worked well to guarantee the employee all the rights that he ought to have. When you go to changing it, and you go to meddling with it, you're creating a situation where you're going to make it even more difficult than it already is to get rid of somebody who's not doing his job. I submit to you that if somebody's not doing his job, you ought to be able to discharge him--whether he's a public school teacher or a civil service employee or otherwise. You know, I've heard a lot of comments from the podium, pro and con, about lawyers as a profession. But, there's one thing about being a lawyer: you don't have tenure; you don't have civil service; and if you don't do your job, then the public is the jury, and they just don't walk in through the front door. If you do your job, they keep walking in through the front door. I happen to believe that some semblance of that standard is needed in public employment, just as well as in any other type of employment--that you ought to pull your load. If you're not pulling your load, if you're guilty of the kinds of things that the civil service system says that you can be discharged for today, that off at the end, somewhere, you ought to be able to be discharged. I submit to you that we ought to retain the burden of proof as it is under the present system because we're not talking about a criminal charge. We're talking about whether or not a person ought to continue to get a check, to be paid, when he's not delivering, or if he's not delivering, because remember in the end--and I bring to your attention again--that when you talk about civil service, you're not just talking about the rights of these sixty thousand employees that people keep talking about. You're talking about two and one half million citizens of the State of Louisiana who are paying the bills--who, through their state income taxes, through the other taxes that they've paid on gasoline and the other state taxes, are paying the bill...

Further Discussion

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you've heard a lot of lawyers get up here, and I just want to explain one thing to you. In deference to Mr. Duval and Mr. Burson, I know they didn't mean to mislead, but the issue is not causes for termination, the issue is burden of proof. Now, when Mr. Duval read this case history and said that they did not fire the person for the causes enumerated, that didn't mean anything with respect to burden of proof. It just meant that the commission said, "irrespective of the reasons for which you say this person did these things, those are not causes for dismissal." We are talking about burden of proof, here. We're talking about a basic question of law. Should a person who discharges another, who wants to change the status quo on the basis of certain allegations, should he be bound to prove those allegations, or should the person against whom these charges are made be bound to disprove them? Now, you get into a real problem when you start trying to talk about disproving a universal negative. I'm sure many of you have had a few little spats with the spouse, one way or the other--a person accuses you of being dishonest. What do you say? How do you prove you're honest? Do you say that I've been dealing with Buzzie Graham for fifty years, and he can say I'm honest? That doesn't prove or disprove the notion that on a particular case you were or were not dishonest. But, the burden should simply be on the person who said you are dishonest because on a certain day you stole something. You can get a hundred witnesses to say Chris Roy didn't steal anything on a certain day. Unless they're with him at every moment, he hasn't disproved anything. But, it ought to be pretty easy for the employer--the appointing authority--to prove that he, in fact, stole it. That's burden of proof. You can listen to all this other gobbledyduke and gook about that's not grounds for termination, that the employee is protected and all that. I agree with you on that, but that's not what the issue is at this particular time. In those crimes involving the most serious issues of life and death, the state is bound to prove a person guilty of murder beyond reasonable doubt--bound to prove every element of the crime and everything else. But, when it comes to some little guy who is working, maybe, for the appointing authority who is an employee of the state himself and may be just as prejudiced and biased as the most bigoted person in this country--when it comes to that little guy's job, for being terminated, the big-shot employer says, "Bsby, you've got to prove to that commission that I was not wrong in discharging you, that you did not do these things." It's just like Reverend Alexander said, you've got all this power behind the Civil Service Commission, and you've got one little fellow up against it who has got to, generally, go hire some attorney to represent him on a contingent fee basis because he's got nothing. If the attorney wins his case for him, the man is reinstated, his salary is given back to him if the commission decides that it will do so. Of course, he's got to pay his attorney out of it. So, this thing is not strong enough. What ought to be done is when a person is terminated, he ought to automatically shift the burden of proof on the employer. The employer ought to have to prove that the guy was guilty, that he did these things. If he doesn't, then the employee ought to get back on the payrolls. Not only that, he ought to be paid an attorney's fee, because you can say it like you want--and I said it yesterday: "I've been in that arena." I've seen them take game wardens and ship down here to take care of the big hunters out on the coast who live in Avoyelles Parish. They can't say too much about it. What are they going to do, say, "I'm not going to go work on the coast, I'm not going to go do these things?" Heck no, they can't say that. They'll be fired for insubordination, and the burden of proof will be on the poor little game warden to disprove it. Vote against this.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I only want to point out one thing to you. We are now voting on whether or not we should reconsider. When we voted on this motion yesterday, there were 82 delegates present. Today, there are 94. The vote yesterday was 42 to 40. I think it is only fair to this convention, therefore, to reconsider the matter. I urge you to vote to reconsider.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I agree completely with Mr. Dennery. Many delegates seem to forget that all of this is in the present constitution, and most people are happy with it. In order to retain it, all they need do is defeat the proposed constitution. Frankly, I am more pleased with the present provision on the composition of the commission than I am with the proposal. Too many people are trying to get the "whole hog," and they may end up with none of it. This is a crucial issue, and regardless of your position, I urge you to reconsider and discuss the matter in greater detail before making a decision. Certainly, a 42 to 40 vote is not indicative of anything except disaster. To prove incompetency, for example, is almost impossible. Have you ever been on that side of the fence? I have. To transfer is usually political. I, therefore urge you to reconsider the issue and to vote on the merits after you have heard it discussed in greater detail than we have heard it today. Thank you, delegates.

MR. FLORY

Would you explain the vote on this issue, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HENRY

Well, it's my understanding that the amendments were adopted--the Landrum amendments were adopted--upon which Mr. Duval moved to reconsider the vote by which they were adopted. If you are happy with the amendments, you vote no. If you're unhappy with the amendments, you vote yes. The Clerk will open the machine.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Motion to reconsider rejected: 39-58.]

Personal Privilege

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to make my objection to your explanation of the vote--of what the vote would do--because it seems to me, a vote to reconsider allows you to reconsider, . . . allows you to make up your mind, especially those of us who had to go off on public information jaunts last night. I just. . . Mr. Flory understood very well, I believe, what the vote to reconsider did. For the rest of us, I think, if you say you want to vote again on this issue, you vote yes. You don't want to vote again on this issue, you vote no, rather than whether or not you were happy on the amendment. You cast your vote on the amendment, on that basis. I just wanted to raise that objection.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. HENRY

Your point is well taken, Mrs. Zervigon. I just assumed that everybody did understand. I thought I understood what Mr. Flory was doing, and I was just trying to make it as brief as possible.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Copies of the amendment will come out. This amendment sent up by Delegate Jenkins. We've been holding it because it would amend the Landrum amendment which we just refused to be reconsidered.

The amendment would read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denny and adopted Saturday, on page 5, line 10, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Landrum, and adopted yesterday, on line 10 of the floor amendment--that is line 10 of the Landrum amendment--after the word "of" and before the word "his" insert the following:

"his affiliation or nonaffiliation with any private organization,"

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, Reverend Landrum's amendment prohibits certain kinds of discrimination. If you look at his amendment, it says, "No classified employee shall be discriminated against by reason of his political or religious beliefs, sex, or race." I've been following this article very closely, and I've been concerned about it because I think I see a systematic attack upon the concept of civil service, and the principles that have made it work in this state in the past. We provide. . . provided for an election of a classified employee to serve on the board, whom I think will be a lobbyist, an advocate, not an objective arbiter. We've now put the burden of proof and dismissals on the state, even though almost nobody is dismissed, now. We've provided that seniority will be a measure of determining appointments and promotions, although I say, "We're not through with that issue." We've had attempts to do away with the rule of three, and if we did that, of course, that would deteriorate the quality of people being hired and promoted. There will be attempts forthcoming to enlarge the political activities of civil service employees and to . . . other attempts to have the legislature involved in setting pay scales and establishing promotion policies instead of allowing an independent Civil Service Commission to do it. One of the things that I am most concerned about in all of this discussion is who is going to control the employment policies of this state in the years to come? I don't know, but I am particularly concerned that some of our civil service employees might be discriminated against if they're not a member of a labor union. That's why I propose this amendment: to provide that a person's affiliations with a private organization--and I'm particularly thinking here of unions--could not be a reason for favoring or discriminating against him. I am thinking in terms of hiring, in terms of promotions, in terms of pay, in terms of transfers, and all of these different things. I don't know how familiar you are with the situation we had in the Highway Department earlier this year. We had a very unfortunate situation. When the Highway Board voted to designate the AFL-CIO, or an affiliate thereof, as the sole bargaining agent for Highway Department employees, even though only about twenty percent of the workers of the Highway Department were members of that union, and the overwhelming majority of Highway Department employees were totally opposed to designating that union as the sole bargaining agent--that agreement that the Highway Board entered into against the wishes of the employees, against the wishes of a large number of my own constituents was later thrown out by the courts, and I think rightfully so. But, I have a feeling there will be future attempts to make it more onerous for people who aren't members of unions to be in state service and get a fair shake. The civil service system is a system that's supposed to be based on the individual merit of the employee involved--not his group affiliations. He's supposed to be hired on his own merits, promoted on his own merits, paid on his own merits. As government, we have to be particularly fair in that regard. We shouldn't be allowed the leeway that private business is allowed. We need to protect our employees in this way, particularly in view of some of the changes we're making in this article and some that will be proposed in the future. So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, Mr. Jenkins and I have been on opposite sides on many major issues in this convention, but I rise to support his amendment one hundred percent. I, too, have a large number of constituents that were offended by the actions of the Highway Board. I, too, share his fear that some of the changes that we have made, here, may be injecting into the equation of civil service in this state a new factor, a factor with which we have not had to deal prior to this time, a factor which could see in this state the same situation that you have had in other states, such as New York City, where vital city services--vital city services, mark you--such as garbage collection, where hospitals--public hospitals--have been shut down in the face of court injunctions prohibiting the strikes. I feel that we should never require in a so-called merit system, such as civil service is supposed to be, membership in a private organization as a prerequisite to employment--no more than we should require that an individual be of a particular race or religious affiliation. Supposedly, in civil service, the sole criteria is merit--the score that the individual makes on a particular test, which is supposed to be indicative of his ability to perform the particular job. That should remain the sole and only criteria. I heartedly urge your support of this amendment. I ask you on this vote, if you have not done so in the past, to give at least equal weight to the public interest--the interest of the two and a half million people of this state--as you give to the particular wishes of an organization or to any particular future political consideration that you may personally have. I think you know what I'm talking about. Therefore, I ask you to support this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. Mr. Jenkins, last night I watched the ten o'clock news, and I was. . . listened to the television where Mr. Jenkins was quoted as saying my efforts in this convention in regards to civil service was a move to destroy the system of civil service in this state. I don't believe, sincerely, that Mr. Jenkins believes that. I believe my actions prove to the contrary, that I'm a firm believer in civil service. But, the amendment before you right now--Mr. Jenkins knows what he's doing. Even though he didn't talk about what type of an organization he's talking about in here, you know and I know the type of organizations that he's talking about. I think this is a free society; it ought to remain a free society. The amendment that's now before you is plain and simple, directed at one group, one type of an organization, regardless of what it says. I ask you to reject this amendment. This is a very, very serious amendment, even though it sounds innocuous and reads that way. It has very serious and far-reaching ramifications. I ask you to reject the amendment.

I'll yield.

Questions

MR. BURSON

Mr. Flory, my only question is: Do you think that a civil service worker or an applicant for civil service employment should be required, as a precondition of employment, to belong to a union, even though he has, otherwise, the highest qualifications for the job, in order to be employed?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, I do not believe that, Mr. Burson. Under the federal law of this land, you cannot require that, and you know that.

MR. BURSON

Well, then what is the objection to this amendment?

MR. FLORY

Well, in what its purpose is.

MR. BURSON

Well, as I understand it, that would be the only purpose.

MR. FLORY

No, sir, it is not. What this amendment says is that you cannot be designated as a sole bargaining agent for a particular group, even though you may represent 99.9 percent of the membership of that particular department. That's what it means. Under the federal law of this country, you can't require that a person belong to any kind of an organization, prior to his employment --no way, shape, form or fashion. Only by agreement, can you require his continued employment in private industry, as a condition.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Flory, if I thought that this amendment prohibited a majority of a group of workers from adopting a particular organization as their bargaining agent, I would not be for it. But, I disagree with your interpretation of that language.

MR. FLORY

Well, Mr. Burson, I've had long years of experience. All you've got to do is change the word "affiliation" or "nonaffiliation" to "membership" or "nonmembership," and you've got the same thing as "right-to-work." That's what you're talking about, right here.

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, of course, I did not give any interviews, yesterday, and so any remarks that were reported in the news media had to have come from something I said at the mike. I never said at the mike what I was quoted as saying, yesterday. I simply didn't say that, what you heard on the ten o'clock news. I want you to know that.

MR. FLORY

Well, I heard it on the news, and in the same breath, Mr. Jenkins, I said I don't believe that you believe that I would do anything that I thought. . .

MR. JENKINS

No, and I didn't say that, either.

MR. FLORY

All right.

MR. JENKINS

Now, let me ask you: How can this amendment be construed as prohibiting the designation of anyone as a bargaining agent for anyone?

MR. FLORY

Because, let's say, for example, that I had an agreement mutually entered into as the designated bargaining agent for a particular group of employees within a department. We've never and would never. . . have never attempted to get a union shop agreement, and this is what we're talking about, Mr. Jenkins. You know that. You mentioned your objection to the Highway Department situation; that case is still in court. What you're doing here and in your other amendment that you have is trying to decide an issue already in the court.

MR. JENKINS

No, well, I have no intention of offering the other amendment, if this one passes, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

I ask you to reject this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I come to this microphone at this time admitting that despite my appearance--and I weigh about 250 pounds--I am frightened. I am frightened almost to death. I am afraid because of the apparent trend that this convention may take, if we pass this amendment. I know that you are students of history, and you remember the rise of Mussolini in Italy, the rise of Hitler in Germany. The first thing they did was outlaw labor unions. Then, of course, in present day Russia, the labor union is supposed to be in power, in control, which is a farce. What I am saying, here, is when you go to the extremes, one way or the other, you destroy the whole thing. This country--that is the constitution and all of the statutory laws of this country are based on checks and balances. The three departments of government more or less check and balance each other. I would vote one hundred percent against anything that would come--any resolution or amendment--that would come before this convention to give all power to labor unions, to give a labor union the right to state or to stipulate who is to be hired and who is to be fired, etc., etc. I would vote against that, and so would I when it comes to the employer. I say to you that what we need in Louisiana and what we must have in Louisiana and continue to have is a good system of checks and balances. I say that the adoption of this amendment would be the beginning of the end of that system. When you hear people talking about right-to-work, you know that right-to-work does not mean what it says. Now, I say that it may not be an out and out labor versus management fight, but any large employer will tell you that he would rather run his plant with a good contract with a responsible labor union than to struggle along in the chaos of an open shop situation. Now, we are not asking for that. The only thing I'm asking you to do is vote against this amendment. If you defeat this one, then the next one will not come up, which will more or less stipulate out and out right-to-work. That is the thing that frightens me. Please vote to defeat this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I really should have risen to a point of order because the last couple of speakers apparently weren't talking about my amendment. This amendment is an amendment to Reverend Landrum's, the second paragraph of it. In his amendment, he prohibits discrimination because of race, sex, religious or political beliefs. I would add to that list of things which the state cannot discriminate against among the classified employees, their affiliation or non-affiliation with any private organization, and I certainly didn't attempt to mislead anyone, because the purpose of this relates to unions.

Now, just the opposite from outlawing unions, this gives unions constitutional protection because it says that no classified employee could be fired simply because he is a union member. No classified employee could be discriminated against in promotion policies, or pay scales, simply because he's the union member. But by the same token, no classified employee could be discriminated against if he's not a union member in any of these ways. Now, that's all we're talking about here. Whether or not an affiliation with a private organization can be a basis for hiring or promoting people in the classified service. To my way of thinking, it has not been in the past. I fear that it might be in the future because of some of the things that are being suggested here in this Civil Service Article. Now, really, it's a kind of ridiculous to, in any way, equate this with a right-to-work law. I am adamantly opposed to right-to-work laws because those abridge freedom of contract. What we are talking about here is discrimination. We have said, "you can't discriminate on the basis of race. You can't discriminate on the basis of political ideas." Why in the world should the state be allowed to discriminate on the basis of what organization you happen to belong to or not belong to. There is no reason. We can't do justice to the state employees of this state if we allow any such discrimination. If you think that you are doing what the employees want, if you vote against this, you are badly mistaken. In my district in North Baton Rouge, which is almost adjoining the capitol grounds here, I suppose I have more civil service employees than anybody in the state. When this event happened at the Highway Department, my phone rang off the hook. It was a hundred to one against the actions of that body in trying to impose a group on that group of employees. They don't want it. They don't want it without their free choice. They certainly don't want to be discriminated against, whether they are or are not in the union, because they have a right to join it, and they have a right to stay out of it.

So, I urge you to vote for this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask for a record vote.

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

Woody, have we not spent approximately two weeks, or the better portion of them, trying to protect the rights of the individuals when employed by the state?

MR. JENKINS

That's right, Boise.

MR. BOLLINGER

Does this not further that protection so that the hiring people cannot discriminate for any means when hiring except by the basis of merit in service and tests and this type of thing?

MR. JENKINS

That's right, Boise.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Jenkins, you are aware of the fact, are you not, that by law, every practicing attorney in the State of Louisiana must be a member of the Louisiana State Bar Association?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, I'm aware of that.

MR. AVANT

If your amendment is passed, it would, in effect, do away with that law, would it not?

MR. JENKINS

No, it would not.

MR. AVANT

I think it would.

MR. JENKINS

Well, I'll be glad to tell you why it would not. First of all, the Bar Association is not a private organization. It is a quasi-public organization. That's the first reason. The second reason is that the only way that a person can practice law is if he's licensed by the state. So, obviously, no one licensed by the state could be hired as an attorney by the state.

[Record vote ordered. Amendments rejected: 47-53. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegate Flory reads as follows:

Page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on Saturday, on page 5 of the Dennery Floor Amendment, line 25, after the word "public" and before the words "or be" delete the word and punctuation "office;" and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"office except to seek election as the classified state employee serving on the State Civil Service Commission;"

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, this is a technical amendment. As you recall, the convention decided on the establishment of the commission being appointed by the governor from nominations submitted by six universities. We required in the past that those members and no state employee could run for office; no member of the commission could run for office. Since the convention has decided decisively to allow the classified employees to elect one member of the commission, in order for that provision to be valid, this amendment has to be adopted to make an exception that a classified employee can run for that sole public office, being a member of the Civil Service Commission.

I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment reread. Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 87-8. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next amendments also sent up to Paragraph (I) sent up by Delegate Flory; amendment, if you are looking for it, that would set forth a new Subparagraph (3)--sets forth a new Subparagraph (3).

Amendment No. 1, in the Dennery amendment adopted in the convention Saturday, on page 6 of the Dennery amendment between lines 1 and 2 insert the following:

"(3) Political activity is defined as an effort to make... made to insure the election of a candidate for political office or the support of a particular political party in an election. There shall be no prohibition against support of issues involving bonded indebtedness, tax referenda, or constitutional amendments or the participation or membership in an organization which is not a political organization but which may from time to time express its opinion on political issue....on a political issue."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, when we had under consideration in the Committee on Education, Health and Welfare, this question of civil service and all its ramifications, it was a long discussion held, particularly in the authority of the local governments and the state, and the responsibility of public servants to those political bodies. There was no effort in our committee to bring about any change in the political activity, or to grant additional political activity to members of the Civil Service System except that there was a strong feeling in the committee that the members of the city Civil Service Commissions, employees, ought to be able to participate in the types of issues going before the public in the way of bonded indebtedness, tax referenda, etc., constitutional amendments. If you recall when the campaign was held to elect candidates to this constitutional convention, there was a ruling issued, and I believe it was by the court, that no classified employee could run as a delegate, could be elected as a delegate to the constitutional convention. We have not still changed that by the adoption...if we adopt the language, it's in (H), I believe it is, and (I). In discussion with the mayor of the city of New Orleans and some of the others representing local government, the question came up as far as pay of local people, when they go before the city council and state government to try to secure additional benefits in the way of added retirement benefits; additional pay; whatever might be a cost item, the city council or the governing body might agree that it was meritorious. But, there would be a lack of funds in order to provide those increased benefits.

The mayor of the city of New Orleans very emphatically stated he thought that they ought to have the right to participate in an election to help raise the fund to pay for those benefits on other issues that might come before them that affected their basic structure of government, or on constitutional amendments that affected their basic constitutional rights. That's what this does, is guarantee them that right to participate only in these types of elections; and further say that participation, membership in an organization which is not a political...allows them to belong to an organization which is not a political organization, but might from time to time express its political views. I ask for the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

I'll be happy to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Flory, would unions be considered one of those things that this last subparagraph would exclude?

MR. FLORY

Would it be?

MR. O'NEILL

Yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir. Just like any other organization. Knights of Columbus or any other group.

MR. O'NEILL

Now, take for example state employees who belong to unions. The dues that they collect will go into the union treasury. Is that correct, sir?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir.

MR. O'NEILL

Now, this union will use those monies for political activities supporting candidates--well, they do, Mr. Flory, yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

No, sir, they don't, Mr. O'Neill. I beg to disagree with you.

MR. O'NEILL

So...the state employees will be having money coming out of their salaries, going into the union which will be used to support candidates for office, and support political activities. Is that right?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. FLORY

No, sir. Not under this, and not under what is the existing practice.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Flory, I understand the first part of your second sentence about bonded indebtedness and tax referenda, etc., but it is not clear to me what an organization is which is not a political organization, but which may, from time to time, express opinion on political issues. I understand you would include a union in that. But supposed you had the employees' social club? Wouldn't that organization, then, simply be a means by which you could completely avoid the prohibition of this section?

MR. FLORY

It could, Mr. Kean, and I have no strong feeling about that last sentence "or the participation." I have no strong feeling because I think that...that's the situation under the law today. But I have no strong feeling and would be willing to delete it. My major concern was trying to give some relief, in particular, local communities where these types of issues come up. The question's been raised about, you know, in the past, where we don't have the money, what can you do to help us secure additional funds? This is a major portion. I'd be more than happy to delete that...

MR. KEAN

....If you'd be willing to delete the last part of that, of your proposed amendment, Mr. Flory, I'd be happy to join with him.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, with the permission of the convention, I'd be happy to withdraw it and resubmit it, the end of the sentence where it says that.

[Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 87 delegates present and a quorum.]

MR. HENRY

Read the Denny amendment....the Flory amendments, Mr. Clerk.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

He's made the following changes with respect to the amendment. On the second line of the text of the amendment...second line... strike out the third word "insure", insert in lieu thereof "support or oppose"... "support or oppose" in lieu of the word "insure."

In addition, on the seventh line, beginning with the portion of the word "constitutional", "tional" put a period after the word, the first full word, "amendment". Delete the remainder of the line and the remainder of the text of the amendment so the text will now read:

"(3) Political activity is defined as an effort made to support or oppose the election of a candidate for political office or the support of a particular political party in an election. There shall be no prohibition against the port of issues involving bonded indebtedness, tax referenda, or constitutional amendment."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, what...this language was taken from the committee's proposal and, I presume, the definition is basically that as in the present constitution as far as political activity. I'm not sure. But, this was taken directly from the committee's proposal, and with this changes, all it does now is prohibit, it defines political activity and allows the civil servants to participate in these types of elections to help the local governmental subdivision and the state in these types of issues.

I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, in order to clarify what you and I discussed at the microphone, there is no particular reason why you have "support or oppose" as it applies to the candidate, but only "support" as it applies to the particular political party. You really mean "support or oppose" in either case. Isn't that right?

MR. FLORY

"Support or opposed" in either case. Judge Tate suggested the language "support" or "oppose" in lieu of the word "insure" to make it better, more easily...to understand...we are constantly aware of support or opposition to a particular candidate. The same holds true as to a particular political party. I don't think you could have...in opposing a political party, you'd have to do it by the support of another political party.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, it's not your intention to create a loophole by which a classified employee can say I'm not supporting no one because I'm just opposing the Democrats.

MR. FLORY

No, ma'am.

MRS. ZERVIGON

O. K. The other thing I wanted to ask you is, are you aware that it's my opinion that this is different from the present constitution in that the present constitution just says "political activity," but doesn't really define it, which leaves it up to each commission at present, as I understand that.

MR. FLORY

I wasn't sure whether we had taken it--the committee had taken it from the present constitution, or some proposal that was recommended. We had a...I don't know how many proposals submitted to the committee. But, it was either taken from that the present constitution, but I know this language was taken directly from the committee's proposal.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I think Mr. Duval thinks I'm wrong. It would change our regulations in New Orleans, I'm sure you are aware of, but my mayor does not oppose this sort of amendment. Are you aware of that? That's what you're referring to in the earlier part of your remarks.

MR. FLORY

Yes. Mr. Landrieu...Mayor Landrieu was in favor of this type of amendment that would allow the city employees in the city of New Orleans to take part in these types of elections. He so stated publicly before our committee.

MR. JENKINS

I have a number of questions, Mr. Flory. I want to know what this does.

What you are really doing in this provision, you are defining what the term "political activity" means as stated earlier under Part No. 1 of Subsection (I). Isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

Let me go back and get the....

MR. JENKINS

Where it says that "no member of any Civil Service Commission of any officer or employee of the classified service shall participate or engage in political activity." Then, really, in Number 3 here, you are defining what political activity is, isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

Yes.

MR. JENKINS

Now, I'm interested to know, for example, would this allow a civil service employee, since you delimited the definition of political activity--it's pretty broad now--say, to raise funds for COPE, the political arm of the AFL-CIO.

MR. FLORY

To do what?

MR. JENKINS

Raise funds for COPE, the political arm of the AFL-CIO.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, if you can show me how you can read that in there, I might agree. But I, that's the furthestest thing from my mind that ever entered into this, but I believe that this changes the existing provision at the present time. The present law says you can't contribute funds to political candidates. We don't change that. I haven't changed that at all.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. JENKINS

But by defining political activities so narrowly, don't you open the door for things like that?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. No, sir.

MR. JENKINS

Let me ask you further. Would this permit a civil service employee....

MR. FLORY

You read, you read Subsection 2, Mr. Jenkins, it says, "No person shall solicit contributions for political purposes from any classified employee, or official; or use, or attempt to use his position or state to publish or harass the political actions of any such classified employee, and I didn't change that at all.

MR. JENKINS

No. Now, that deals with soliciting from employees. I'm talking about an employee going out and soliciting funds--not for a party faction or candidate, but for an organization.

MR. FLORY

I can't read that in there, Mr. Jenkins, in no way.

MR. JENKINS

Well, is there anything that prohibits that here?

MR. FLORY

Is it what?

MR. JENKINS

Is there any provision of the subsection that prohibits such activity?

MR. FLORY

I don't know. You'll have to ask Mr. Dennery. He wrote it.

MR. JENKINS

Well, I would say, "Yes." The term, political activity--"to engage in political activity", under (1) of Subsection (I) would prohibit it now. But by defining political activity this way, it doesn't seem like it would be prohibited, would it?

MR. FLORY

I don't believe that it could be construed when you say, that you can't solicit funds for political purposes from any classified employee or official; I just don't believe that that was ever intended, nor do I believe that it would be allowed, Mr. Jenkins.

MR. JENKINS

Would this permit, by narrowly defining the term "political activity," would it permit classified employees to go out and assist certain political organizations--not at election time--but in the interim, for instance doing polling, making calls, compiling information and lists and things like that. If this were to support or oppose any candidate or political party in an election....

MR. FLORY

Well, that could be construed, Mr. Jenkins, and I think the court would have to ultimately make a determination; I can't make that determination on the hypothet that you raised because I'm not a lawyer, first; I'm not a judge, second. But, I think the court would have to make that determination based upon the fact that if they did that, and that that organization ultimately supported a particular candidate, his efforts then, would....no questions would be ruled that he was taking part in politics and political activity. I don't think there's any question about that.

MR. JENKINS

But, you defined political activities strictly as at "election time." You say, "defined as an effort made to support or oppose the election of a candidate, or support or oppose of a party in an election."

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, as a candidate for public office, when you ran, did you just start campaigning when you qualified?

MR. JENKINS

No....But I did a lot of preliminary work that wasn't campaigning, like polling, for example, and compiling information.

MR. FLORY

But that was towards your election, was it not?

MR. JENKINS

No, it was research. I may not have run.

Let me ask you another question.

Suppose the governor told all classified employees to go out and support a two-term amendment that would be on the ballot, like we had in what was it, '66. They could go out, and under duress and coercion from a governor, go out and campaign because they can campaign on constitutional amendments. Isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

That's correct. They could campaign any way they want to, Mr. Jenkins, which I think is a basic, American right. It's something that affects the basic law of this state. They ought to have a right to ...I think the Supreme Court of the United States is changing that.

[Motion to suspend the rules to allow additional time adopted: 58-28.]

MR. JENKINS

Now, you say there shall be no prohibition against support of issues involving these things: tax referendum, constitutional amendments, etc., "support" apparently includes contributions; does it not?

MR. FLORY

I don't know, Mr. Jenkins, but if my memory serves me right, I believe that there is a statute prohibiting the expenditure of funds either in support of or opposed to constitutional amendments by certain classifications. I'm not sure exactly what that is, but I do believe there's law on that subject.

MR. JENKINS

Yes, but this would supersede it, would it not?

My question is in more particularly; couldn't a governor or say a superintendent of education or someone go around in the education department and dun each employee to support a committee to go out and campaign say for making superintendent of education appointed instead of elected? Couldn't a civil service employee under this be put in a position where he can be subject to coercion either to support or oppose a particular proposition appearing on the ballot?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, not in view of Subsection 2 of Section I.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Flory, it's been inferred by a delegate that maybe labor unions do give money to political campaigns from the treasury. Now, is it not a fact that under the terms of Taft-Hartley, Landrum-Griffin and many other congressional acts that labor unions are definitely and positively prohibited from giving money from their treasuries for any political campaign? Do you know of any violation of that rule?

MR. FLORY

The federal law as I appreciate it, Reverend Alexander, prohibits the use of union funds in any federal election. It does not prohibit the use of union funds in state or local elections.

MR. ALEXANDER

But, it is a practice to violate the spirit of that law in Louisiana?

MR. FLORY

I know of no people even charged with violation let alone convictions.

Mr. Chairman and delegates, all I was trying to do here was to try to give some relief to the local governmental subdivisions who have to raise the money to pay the benefits to their employees. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 89-12. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right. First set of amendments have been sent up by Delegates Singletary and Willis, Singletary and Willis amendment.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the 8th, on page 6, of the Dennery amendment, line 22, immediately after the word "shall" and before the word "have" insert the following: "be published and available to the public and".

Explanation

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, this amendment simply provides that the rules of each commission shall be published and available to the public. Presently, the commissions publish the rules in pamphlet form which are available to the public. This amendment would just insure the continuance of this practice. I spoke to Mr. Forbes with the State Civil Service Commission, he has no objection to the amendment. I move its adoption. I'll yield to any questions, if there are any.

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Duval.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, in the Floor Amendment proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on the 8th, on page 6 of the Dennery amendment, line 31, of the text, immediately after the word "governor" and before the words "or the" insert the following: "and the legislature".

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Madam Chairman, fellow delegates, this changes the law. Presently, the Civil Service Commission promulgates pay scales, which when approved by the governor, have the effect of law. It's my opinion that it's better for fiscal responsibility which is something I think we should think about, for the legislature not to modify or amend these pay schedules, but have to approve them because the legislature has to appropriate the money. I think, if we put this into the deliberative process and have some intelligent analysis of the budget, perhaps, the Civil Service Commission working together with the governor and the legislature involving all three... involving at least two branches of government. Actually, if you consider the bureaucracy, three branches of government, and have a dialogue so that something can be worked out without the commission and the governor going ahead and approving a pay plan, and then the legislature sitting there having to find the money for it, and we, the people to have to pay it. I just think it ought to go through the same process as other things. The commission has a lot of autonomy under the Dennery proposal. Their regulations and rule making power have the effect of law. I merely think that their appropriation power which is, this is tantamount to, should not have the effect of law. It should require approval before implementation.

MR. ROEMER

This is a change in the present law; is it not?

MR. DUVAL

Yes.

MR. ROEMER

All right. This would in effect mean that no such raise or change in pay scale could be implemented except during a session of the legislature; is that correct?

MR. DUVAL

Yes.

MR. ROEMER

Do you see any problems there; politically or pressure wise? Would you like to comment on that?

MR. DUVAL

Well, I don't see... as a matter of fact, I think that one thing I've learned from the legislative delegates here is that, they do watch the purse strings. I think, the ones I've seen pretty closely would allow them to watch it. There's no... the other way, they could at least put it through the grist mill and see how it fits into the budget. This way it's not done, the pay raise is implemented by the governor, and the Civil Service Commission, and the legislature's sitting there going to have to find the money somewhere. I just think it's a more intelligent way of doing things than have the commission... have the effect of law in essence, the appropriation. They can't modify it or amend it; they either got to say yes, or no and hopefully, when they say yes, they'll have the money for it.

MR. ROEMER

This is just a pretty substantial change in the law.

MR. DUVAL

Oh, it is.

MR. ROEMER

I just kind of wondered how much thought you had put behind it, Stanley. I'm not questioning that you haven't put any thought, I know you have. But, I'm just a little bit doubtful as to whether it's a positive change in the law or not.

MR. DUVAL

Well, I think it is, because I think we ought to strive for fiscal responsibility. I think that if a commission... we've got this commission--none of whom are responsible to the people being able to promulgate a pay recommendation which has the effect of law -- the legislature which is certainly as the onus of appropriation has to find the money. I think the legislature should then approve the pay plan to make sure the money is there. That's the thought I put behind it. That's my concept of government.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Duval, if the legislature decides to approve a pay plan at a-- I don't know whether it's an odd year or an even year which is the year they cannot appropriate-- the effect of that approval; it wouldn't have effect in any event until the legislature had an opportunity to increase taxes; is that correct?

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Dennery, it's my understanding, they could appropriate each year.

MR. DENNERY

But, if the money is not there, is what I'm talking about. You would make it ineffective until such time as the money were available.

MR. DUVAL

If the money is not there, that's right, I would hope they wouldn't approve.

MR. DENNERY

Now, if the money is there... if the money is there, what you're saying in effect is, that until the next meeting of the legislature, they cannot approve a new pay plan?

MR. DUVAL

No, sir. Of course, they can approve it; they can appropriate money each year under our proposal.

MR. DENNERY

No, I don't think I made my question clear, Mr. Duval.

MR. DUVAL

Maybe, I didn't understand.

MR. DENNERY

Let us say that the legislature appropriates sufficient funds in personnel to permit an increase in pay. Based upon that, the Civil Service Commission then amends its pay plan, and the governor approves it. We would either have to have a special session or wait until the next year before that could go into effect; is that correct?

MR. DUVAL

If, I understand your question, you mean this is when the legislature initiates the pay plan itself; initiates the pay raise itself?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. DENNERY

No, it doesn't initiate any pay raise; it merely says well, now look fellows, this year we've got a lot more money than we anticipated, so we're going to be able to appropriate more funds for personnel. Now, thereafter, the pay plan would be adopted presumably by the Civil Service Commission after the usual open hearings and studies, etc. Then it would be presented to the governor and if the governor approves it, it would not be able to be placed into effect until the following session. Don't you think that's a little difficult?

MR. DUVAL

No, I don't because I don't think anything should be beyond the purview of analysis. I don't think anything should have the force of law... of this, where money is involved. Certainly, allow some legislative review in that the legislature is... has to appropriate and find the money; in that the budget process should be observed in that it complies with the basic system of checks and balances that I think is necessary, especially with fiscal responsibility. I don't think it's fiscally responsible to allow an administrative agency to in essence, appropriate funds without legislative approval. That's the basic point of my argument.

MR. DENNERY

Well, you understand, of course, under the way the present system works, Mr. Duval, is that the money... the pay plan doesn't become effective in fact, unless the legislature appropriates the money.

MR. DUVAL

It becomes effective in law though as I read it. It becomes effective in law.

MR. DENNERY

It could. But, obviously, the governor is not going to approve a plan until the money is there to meet it.

MR. DUVAL

Well, I don't know if that's... I just say what could be is one thing, but what should be, is another thing.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now let me ask you one other question, Mr. Duval. Do I understand you to mean that the legislature then has the right to amend or merely to approve or disapprove?

MR. DUVAL

Merely approve or disapprove.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Madam Chairwoman, Chairperson, Chairlady and fellow delegates, I'm in the perhaps unenviable position of understanding the amendment, but not really understanding what it's going to do either for the state or for civil service. I'm confused as to the need for such an amendment. Under the present law, the governor approves such pay raises. He only approves it, of course, when the money is available in his budget. He presents such a budget to the legislature anyway for their approval. However, it so happens that during the course of a year that surpluses are created in the budget which allows some discretion on the part of governmental spending. I'm afraid if we pass this particular amendment, we're going to limit such pay increases, perhaps, long deserved, to civil service employees only to those relatively few times and those short periods when the legislature is in session. That's what I see is the danger, and I'm just honestly concerned about it. I asked Stanwood, a few questions, and he shed some light on it, but as far as I'm concerned, to pass something that's this much of a change and could be this important I think we need more information, Stanwood. I would ask that you would withdraw it, and perhaps do some research or talk to some of us on this thing. Let's don't kill it or pass it without knowing what we're doing. That's my only reason for being here. I won't take any more of your time. I'm just generally concerned about it.

Questions

MR. ROY

Buddy, I share your concern too, but mine goes a little deeper.

Isn't this... the effect of this amendment to do the following: Let's say the Civil Service Commission and everyone has said they want to be sacrosanct and aloof from politics--and we voted those things down, as you know, in the last few days--determines after a lot of consideration that a pay raise is in order. Now, as you pointed out, the governor says we've got the extra money to do it; aren't we subjecting the pay raises to people who deserve it? Let's assume, for the sake of argument, to the whim and caprice of not only having to get the civil service to go ahead with it, but to get the governor's approval and thereafter the legislature, and you could get into a political squabble between the legislature and the governor, one trying to put the "b" on the other and prevent something. To me, don't you agree that it just amounts to adding another political arm that could result in some type of political chicanery and/or subjecting this to the whimsy caprice of the legislature.

MR. ROEMER

All right. Let me try to be evenhanded in my answer. I see that as a danger. I'm sure that Mr. Duval did not mean that with his amendment. I know he did not mean that. I think what he was trying to do, and it's legitimate, is put the voice of the people behind this pay raise. That is, our legislature. I'm worried about the mechanics of it, and I'm also worried about the politics of it. I think the system works adequately now. I think some of the civil service employees were a little bit upset when the latest pay raise wasn't implemented swiftly, but the money wasn't there. But, the governor had the discretion when he could accumulate the money to provide that pay raise. I like that system, quite frankly, and I'm a little bit doubtful; well, I'm frankly very doubtful about changing it without more research being done. I don't think, we as delegates, understand the importance of this change. I really don't think that.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Roemer, are you aware that as far as I have been able to determine, there is no other state which would permit the effect of Mr. Duval's amendment, all of the other states provide that the legislature has no review of this sort of thing.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I didn't know that, and that just adds weight to my doubt about it. If he insists on his amendment, I urge that we defeat it.

Further Discussion

MR. WOMACK

Madam Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. This system has worked very well as it is. The way it works now, the legislature appropriates money to every budgetary unit in the state. It's line itemed in the legislative appropriation with the exception of a few times. When a certain amount of funds are made available and the departments are given the discretion of coming back because of reductions, and changes in the budget, and permitted to resubmit their proposal by line item and then it requires the approval of the budget committee, and the division of administration to change their budget after it's once been submitted. After they do that, then there is an accumulation in a number of these line items to where they have money left over that can't be spent without the approval of the division of administration... the Budget Committee after a change of allocation, transfer is requested of those two sections of state government. In the particular item of personal services which is where the most of the money usually is throughout the agencies, and where that they usually have an accumulation because of attrition and because of retirement of people--you retire an individual at eight hundred dollars a month and replace them at six fifty--and there's quite a saving involved in there, and almost without exception, there is factors in these budgetary units that quite often in the middle of the year they would have almost enough money to implement a pay increase. The civil service has the responsibility of submitting to the governor their proposal in a new pay plan. It's up to the discretion and the wisdom of the Executive Department to either accept or reject that plan. If the Executive Department rejects the plan and sends it back to civil service, as the usual rule, the governor will submit what he thinks is a better proposal. It may be--- and I know in one case--the governor felt that the low paid employees weren't rated quite enough it, and more consideration should be given. Civil service agreed to it and they gave additional consideration to the low paid employees. During the period of a year when inflation is running rampant, you quite often have quite an increase in the income that you didn't anticipate. By the same token, the expenses of these state employees is coming up in proportion to that. It becomes necessary to give consideration to their needs for salary adjustments in the middle of a year and not at a legislative session. For that reason, the system has worked good under the circumstances now, and for the most part, implementation of the salary schedule can always be made out of the appropriation that is presently given to the agencies. Keep in mind, that quite a number of times, in fact at all times, a great portion of these salary adjustments is absorbed in federal funds and in funds that doesn't come from the general appropriation of the State of Louisiana. So, all of those things can be weighted. The system is working good like it is now, and I think for the benefit of the employees because they don't have to wait another year or wait until the legislative session at which time we're usually bogged down and overworked in order to get consideration. So, I would urge the defeat of this amendment.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. DUVAL

Madam Chairperson, fellow delegates, I haven't quite understood the specific nature of the objection to this amendment. I might just point out that these people who are worried about change... changing the law have drastically changed the composition of the Civil Service Commission; have drastically changed many other things. I don't know why, all of a sudden, there's a great deal of reluctance to change now. What I'm saying is this, this Civil Service Commission is, as we say, completely detached from your representatives. Its rulings and administrative regulations have the force of law. It, in essence, is a separate branch of government. It cannot be... many of its regulations, which we're not fooling with now can't be vetoed by a living soul. As a matter of fact, the Civil Service Commission in its infinite wisdom blocked a pay raise that the legislature found the money for for state police. This is how awesome and powerful this commission is. We, have again, we have made it more--we have changed the composition; we have changed it drastically. I'm merely saying this, what other body has a right to say, "This money is going to be spent. I don't know where it's coming from"? --- and the governor--what's to say why not put a check on the governor? The governor can say the legislature is going to have to find the money, and me and you can look good." The commission and the governor can look real great. "We're friends of the people; we've raised the money. Now, you find it boys, you go find the money." Now, that can happen. All I'm saying is that, all other appropriations are made during the... in essence are made by the legislature during each session of the legislature; after a review, study of the budget, after accord... there should be a coordination between the commission, the legislature, and the governor. This in my opinion, would produce a fiscal responsibility. I think one thing the people of this state do care about is achieving more efficiency in state government and more fiscal responsibility. I don't see how this can hurt anybody, I don't think the legislature's going to disapprove the plan unless the money is not there. You know the legislature is not overly reluctant to raise salaries, and you know they wouldn't they wouldn't disapprove it unless there was some reason. You know another thing--you know one other thing too--that (Mr. Roemer's antics) you know this: that the legislature are your representatives. You don't know who's going to be on that Civil Service Commission; you don't know who your governor is going to be, but you do have some communication with your legislature. Why strip them of the appropriation power? Why strip them of fiscal responsibility? If any business were run like this, it would go broke overnight. I'm suggesting to you, it's about time we got responsible. Just because they don't get their pay raise right away, I don't think it's going to cause anybody a great deal of concern. All unclassified employees, my friends, have to go through this process. Everybody not in this system has to go through this process. So, I suggest to you, that let's put it through the... why have a Legislative Budget Committee that appropriates the money when your budget's forced on you by the governor and the commission beforehand. So, I suggest to you, you vote for the amendment.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Stanwood, I ask the age old question--particular of you--why is it necessary to change?

MR. DUVAL

It's necessary to change because I have seen in the past, not being a legislator, but having followed it a little bit, that there may be a thirty million dollar implementation and then the legislature is going to have to find the money; they find it because once it's approved what the heck are they going to do? I'm saying that's not a very intelligent system. I'm saying it would be a better system....

MR. ROEMER

You want it the other way? You want the legislature to approve the pay raise and let the governor find the money; right?

MR. DUVAL

No, I just assumed the legislature would have to appropriate it, so they have to find it; the governor doesn't have to find it.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I think we understand how those politics are going to work.

MR. WOMACK

Mr. Duval, (1) is: Do you realize that the budget committee doesn't appropriate any money--that's number one?

MR. DUVAL

Well, the legislature appropriates the money; I realize that; yes.

MR. WOMACK

(2) is: That the Civil Service Commission cannot spend one dime; they don't even write their own checks.

MR. DUVAL

I understand that Mr. Womack. I also understand that once a pay raise is approved under the present system it has the force of law; I understand that.

MR. WOMACK

The only thing that the Civil Service Commission does is make a recommendation of a salary schedule--that's the only thing they do.

MR. DUVAL

I understand that. I understand once the governor signs it under the Dennery proposal it has the effect of law--that's what it says.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
22-70. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Delegates Flory and Hernandez.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14 in the Dennery amendment, on page 6 of the Dennery amendment, line 14 of the text immediately after the word and punctuation "established." add the following: "Nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent the legislature from supplementing these uniform pay plans for sworn, commissioned law enforcement officers of the Division of State Police, Department of Public Safety."

Explanation

MR. HERNANDEZ

Madam Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in strong support of this amendment for the reasons that I firmly believe that this truly, fine law enforcement organization--that is, the Louisiana State Police--or the real law enforcement agency of the State of Louisiana has not been fairly dealt with under the present law. When a state trooper is employed, he undergoes a rigid training schedule to train him, to take his place as an officer and... efficient and well-disciplined law enforcement organization. He is expected to conform to the provisions of state police; to uphold the dignity of the state police and in the performance of his many duties, and he may be called upon to perform and there can be many and varied duties. I happen to know about some unusual situations that have arisen in our part of the state--and they were unusual--had it not been for the state police, I don't know what would have happened. I regret that all of you do not live in an area that has a troop with the efficiency of Troop H. If you do, you can well follow my thinking in this matter. Thank God Troop H does have the efficiency and know-how to handle all the many situations that arise due to the presence of Fort Polk in this area. Frankly, I do not know how some of these situations that have arisen could have been contained if the state police had not taken over to properly handle the situation. The legislature has enacted laws and appropriated funds to supplement the pay of other law enforcement officers--both city and state--and that has resulted in their being paid much more than that of the state police, even though, many times there is no comparison in the efficiency of the two. I would like to cite as an example: a Lake Charles police officer--which is among the lowest paid in the state--possessing a college degree has a beginning salary of six hundred and ninety-seven dollars a month. After one year's service this officer's salary will increase at least a hundred and sixty-six dollars and sixty-six cents a month plus any merit raise earned. Therefore, this officer's minimum pay after one year's service must be at least eight hundred and thirteen dollars and sixty-six cents a month. Now, Louisiana State Policemen possessing a college degree has a beginning salary of only four hundred and eighty dollars a month. After one year's service this officer's salary will increase to five hundred and seventy-five dollars a month due to salary adjustment and different classification promoted from trooper to trooper first-class. Now, bear in mind, this five hundred and seventy-five dollars compares to a Lake Charles city policeman of eight hundred and thirteen, sixty-six. Therefore, after one year's service a Lake Charles city police officer possessing a college degree is making two hundred and thirty-eight dollars and sixty-six more per month than a state police officer possessing a college degree. This is definitely not a good situation, for the state police receive no supplemental pay, and under the existing laws cannot receive any supplemental pay. The result is that the Louisiana State Police are among the lowest paid in the entire nation. I sincerely urge you to support this amendment that can provide for the correction of this gross inequity. I do believe this is an inequity under the present law. Thank you very much, ladies and gentlemen.

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Hernandez, I have some sentiment for what you are trying to do here. But, what I don't understand is by a pretty large vote this group decided not to give the legislature any discretion at all. Now, why do we just give the legislature discretion here as the state police and no other classified employees? How do we justify that?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Duval, the justification is simply this: in the case of city and parish law enforcement officers, which are not under the direction of the state legislature, they have enacted a program of supplemental pay. Now, if they are going to give supplemental pay to those city and police officers over which they have no control, why should they not extend this same supplemental pay to the state police that are the real law enforcement officers of this state around; it's just to correct an inequity, that is all.

MR. DUVAL

Now, Hernandez, the state police are under the state civil service system; is that right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

The state police are under state civil service; yes, sir.

MR. DUVAL

But, none of the other employees in the state civil service system will be able to be...their pay will not be able to be supplemented; is that right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That is correct; yes, sir, that is correct. But, Mr. Duval, let me call your attention to the fact that the state does pay the supplemental pay to other officers and if they did not, I would not be here on behalf of this amendment. But, if they are going to do it for other law enforcement officers, I do believe that they should pay the state police the same supplemental pay. We're not asking anything more for the state police than they are already doing for the local--that is--the city and parish law enforcement officers. I urge you to please give this your consideration.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Madam Acting Chairman and delegates, I hesitate to speak against this amendment, but I am forced to do so. I know that Mr. Hernandez is a great believer in the civil service system. I know that he believes there is an inequity here that he is trying to correct. The problem is, though, that there are other law enforcement officers in the State of Louisiana besides the state policemen. The pay plan, as fixed by the state under the commission and approved by the governor, tries to keep all of these people approximately on a par. Now, Mr. Hernandez mentioned the difference in pay of college graduates. As a matter of fact, I don't believe...as a matter of fact, there is no requirement--to my knowledge--that state police officers must have college degrees; this is the fact, though, in many municipal departments. The state patrolmen, right now, in their entrance salary get a hundred and fifty dollars more per month than any other entrance salaries which do not require college degrees. Now, what particularly perturbs me about this is the question that Mr. Duval raised. You know Mr. Dunbar, who was the father of civil service in Louisiana, used to have an expression that, "You can't be partially pregnant," and that's what happens here if we permit the legislature to increase one particular classification. Then, we are put in the impossible position of not permitting the legislature to do this for all positions and this is exactly what the whole civil service plan--as presently before you--is aimed at. I urge you, therefore, regretfully--I must confess--but, I nevertheless urge you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. RACHAL

Madam Chairman, delegates, like Mr. Dennery, I rise somewhat reluctantly to speak against this amendment. I do so not because I am opposed to what is the objective is, but because I don't think that this kind of singularly identification is necessary. I rise, too, because it gives me an opportunity to speak again about some of what I consider the inflexibility of the commission. Based on my own experience, I don't see why it is necessary to constitutionalize a particular group of workers in order to give them a differentiation in pay that can...if it can be justified. The uniform pay plan--and I've heard it referred to many times from this mike and the one in the Capitol--as if they are completely inflexible and that is not the case. It is possible to give increased pay to different category of workers based upon hazardous duty and various other factors which can justify that differentiation in pay. If it is felt by the commission that they are duty-bound to some kind of rigid uniform pay plan which does not allow this flexibility, then I suggest that what we need to do is to make certain that it is clear to them that they can. But, to begin to constitutionalize individual groups of workers in order to make certain that they were will be considered for differentiated pay--to me--is unnecessary and unduly burdening the constitutional provision governing civil service. So, I repeat again, that it is not that I am against the state police given differentiated pay if that's what is needed. But, I do not think that this is the means by which it should be given because you begin to show differences. If we are going to establish differentiated pay, then I think we should do it in such a way that will give the ability or legalize the commission to do it, but allow them to do it to whatever groups of workers justify a difference in consideration. So, on that basis, I urge that we defeat this amendment and if necessary, let's put one in that is more in keeping with the constitutional provision.

Question

MR. NUNEZ

Yes, sir, Mr. Rachal, if you believe it's justified--and I do--I think every statistic you find that it is justified. Then, you have tried any other method to give them a raise--including to the legislature, including finding the money--and then you find the courts, because of a constitutional prohibition, they have said it's unconstitutional; then, how else do you do it, than remove the constitutional prohibition?

MR. RACHAL

Well, in my ignorance, Mr. Nunez, I just don't think there is a constitutional restriction; I think it's another instance. I'm glad this is an instance that doesn't have anything to do with race, so maybe I can get...speak of it or you can consider my remarks a little more objective. I have always felt that...I've been concerned about what I consider the inflexibility of the commission. In my experience, I have never been able to understand why it is that a differentiated pay could not be given. I think that within the power of

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

Civil Service Commission that it can be done. That was why I stated that I would prefer if it is felt...if the commission feels the interpretation has been that the commission is restricted from doing this, I prefer to have language in the constitution which makes it clear that this is within their power, but that it be given as a broad power to be used at their discretion and not one that's restricted only to state police or only to any other particular group of workers. I would think that we would find in other categories that there are times, if not on a permanent basis, there are times-- another instance that comes to mind--I've heard complaints from the administrators in the health department, for example, of the difficulty in getting psychiatrists; the difficulty in getting other types of workers at Angola and other places. The commission feels that they are duty-bound by the uniform pay plan not to make any differentiation. I say that this, the Civil Service Commission should not be that restricted. I am all for making it clear that that kind of flexibility is within their power. But, I don't want to see it given for one group of workers. Let's make it...if they have it with all of the other powers that the commission has, I don't see that there should be a fear for putting this within their discretion. I think this is discrimination in another form. I doubt that the state police are the only group of workers who are deserving of extra consideration in their pay. So, what I'm asking then, Senator, is the defeat of this specific indication of the constitution. Let's work out something which will make it broader and remove any doubt that the Civil Service Commission does have the authority to grant differentiated pay when it is justified. I urge the defeat of this motion and I would volunteer for collaborating on one which would serve the purpose on a more nondiscriminatory basis.

Further Discussion

MR. DREW

Madam Chairlady, ladies and members of the convention, I rise in very strong support of this amendment. I agree with some of the opponents that it is a deviation from the present plan. I further agree with them that it has been and is within the power of the commission to make these raises, but they have not done it. Now, the figures that I have will vary considerably from those that Mr. Hernandez has and were presented to you for this reason. I am presenting to you the information that has been furnished me as to the take home pay. Let me tell you what the take home pay of a starting state trooper who loses his life on the line every day when he even stops a speeder. Prior to this last raise, his take home pay was approximately three hundred and fifty-five dollars a month. With this pay raise that they have been given--all civil service employees-- I am further informed now that his take home pay is approximately four hundred dollars a month or a little over that. But, let me bring this to your attention which Mr. Hernandez pointed out. I don't believe that we have any law enforcement agency in this state--and I'm not talking down on any other departments--but I don't believe we have any that compare with the efficiency with which our Louisiana State Police work; I see it daily in court; I see it daily in wreck investigations; I see it in every category of their duties and obligations which they so well fulfill. Now, if we are not able through some means--and I know of no other means than this--to guarantee these men an increase, a living wage, to where we will be in competition--just in competition--with local law enforcement officers, how shall we maintain a Louisiana State Police? Why should a man go to work for the Louisiana State Police at a salary of a hundred or a hundred fifty dollars a month less than he can go to work for a city police department, a sheriff's police department and expect that he will eventually get up to somewhere within their pay raise? I think that it is time--and way pass time--that there was a change made to where we can take care of this individual group of which we rely on so much. Most of us, when we think of a state trooper, we think of nothing more than giving a speeding ticket. Some of them have been told that their occupation is no more hazardous than a secretary's. At the same time, I don't see secretaries out drawing the fire of snipers. I don't see secretaries out stopping speeders, never knowing who they may be or what may happen as a result of that, and this is hazard...complete hazard; it's hazard every hour of the day that they are on duty and every hour of the day that they are off-duty because they are subject to call. If there ever was an exception that needed to be made, it is on behalf of the Louisiana State Troopers. I urge you to adopt this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. KELLY

Madam Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I, too, rise in support of this amendment. I might possibly approach it from a little different angle than has been argued by some of the previous speakers. Quite frankly, what we've got to do is to compare what has already been done in this convention. The argument has been propounded against this amendment that it makes an exception. I say that it does not make an exception. To defeat this amendment would make the exception because this convention, and even before, assuming that this Constitutional Convention, or this proposed constitution is not adopted, it's obvious that the city policemen can receive supplemental pay benefits. They can go to the legislature right now, with the exception possibly of some of the charter cities, and receive pay increases. Now, this convention has seen fit already to make an exception for the city policemen at this particular time. I say to do otherwise in the case of the law enforcement officers of this state, would be a slap in their face. That's what we've got to remember. The exception is already there. If we vote against this amendment, that is where we are going to be making the exception. The exception has been made the general rule concerning law enforcement officers throughout this state. All of them can go to the legislature. So, if that being the case, then, let's let our state troopers also go to the state legislature, and concern themselves with pay increases there. Now, I've had a little experience in this area, too, dealing with state troopers, and so forth. If there's one thing that they cannot understand at this particular time, and I'll dare say I've had four or five in my office over the past four or five years that just could not understand how some few years ago the legislature adopted a pay increase for the state troopers, and it is my understanding, actually appropriated the money, and then, they were unable to receive it. Yet, at the same time, the city police officers of the various cities throughout Louisiana have been coming to the legislature and receiving pay increases and supplemental pay. In view of this, I'm going to ask you to give this your utmost consideration. I'm not asking you to be inconsistent. I'm asking you to be consistent with what the law is at this particular time, and what we have previously adopted in this constitution.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

On the basis of the information that I have been given, that we have been given, rather, state police salaries are still in the category of domestic workers and field workers. Now, what I'm trying to determine is how best to cure that inequity and how do those salaries compare with other civil service workers in the state system. I think that's the primary concern of the delegates.

MR. KELLY

Of course, Reverend, I'm not in a position at this particular time to answer exactly how a state trooper's salary compares with all of the other certified employees of the state. I think Mr. Hernandez explicitly brought that out. What we're concerned here with is not necessarily the pay as related to a secretary or to someone else that might be covered under civil service. But, what...how is his salary related to that, say, of a city policeman in the city of Lake Charles? I think Mr. Hernandez brought this out explicitly, and that is the inequity which we are dealing with here. In other words, it is absolutely necessary that we have a program which is conducive to getting good state policemen into the system. I'm not saying that in the past we don't. In my opinion, we have an excellent Louisiana State Police Department, but yet at the same time, in order to be competitive in the future, we're going to have to provide these people with some inducement to go into this field. Otherwise, a person would not be interested. He'd rather go to Lake Charles and go to work as a city policeman in Lake Charles as opposed to becoming a Louisiana State Policeman.

MR. ALEXANDER

Or New Orleans. Now, is this the best way to do it, Mr. Kelly?

MR. KELLY

Reverend, this is the only way I know to do it, is to make this exception. As I have said previously, this convention--and as far as I'm concerned right now--the exception is the general rule anyhow when we are concerning ourselves with law enforcement officers. So, in my opinion, we're not even making an exception here. We're doing nothing more than being consistent with what we have done in the case of all other law enforcement officers.

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

Madam Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you know, you try to be consistent in all your voting and all your proposals in this convention, and I think many of us do. I believe that's why we're running about fifty-fifty on all of our votes in this convention on this particular matter. I started out trying to keep civil service as pure as it is now, or it's supposed to be now, because I have a strong belief in it. I think basically civil service has been good for all of our employees, and more particularly, I think they are getting the cream of the crop, or were getting the cream of the crop when it came to our state police. I think we should continue in this. But, let me tell you what happened about 1970. When, after it was brought to the attention of the legislature, that there were certain inequities that existed in salaries in our law enforcement personnel. I'm talking about inequities that exist on the basis of comparative--comparatively speaking with other states in this nation, comparatively speaking with southern states. We were the lowest in the area. Then, around 1970, we passed a supplemental pay for deputy sheriffs. We always had supplemental municipal police, but in 1970, we passed a supplemental pay for deputy sheriffs, giving a deputy sheriff, a beginning deputy, about the same pay as a state police, and I might add, with less rigorous training and with less rigorous requirements for entrance, that is, testing and etc., and I'm not minimizing our sheriffs throughout the state. But, they start on about the same thing. We supplement local deputies if they make three fifty to the tune of a hundred and sixteen dollars or a hundred and thirty-two dollars and a hundred and fifty dollars, which puts them just about in the same category as our state police. We also, about that time, were to determine that it was difficult to get your state police because naturally they were going to the various deputies' or sheriffs' asso...sheriffs throughout the parishes. We supplemented a pay scale for the state police. We not only supplemented it, we implemented it, meaning we found the additional funds to give them that pay scale. That was done through licenses, brake tag stickers, and etc., and there was enough money available. We thought in the legislature that it was a good pay scale. That pay scale was turned down by civil service, as you probably have heard already. The courts upheld civil service. My whole point is that maybe this isn't the way to do it, but I see no other way because the legislature, the prime body that was concerned with raising the funds for these salary increases, had done just that, but it was declared unconstitutional by the courts, upholding the Civil Service Board. I have no concern with that. They were legally within their rights, and their rights to do it. I do concern myself with the fact that your state police in this state are in the same category, and nobody has seen fit to try to raise them, categorically speaking. I don't think we can stand here today and compare a pay scale for a secretary, for a clerk, for a geologist, for an engineer, for a medical man, as you can with the state police. I think they are completely different. Evidently, these other scales, and these other people in these other categories, are somewhat satisfied because I've heard no hue and cry from them, and I've had nobody come to me and tell me, "We should be differently categorized." But, I have with the state police. I think they're completely justified. I think if you had, if you had the basic information that we had when we voted to give them this raise, that you would vote right now the same way. I see no reason why we should not differentiate. I see no reason why we shouldn't take a fine organization, like the Louisiana State Police--I consider them second to none, when it comes to law enforcement, and I think you do also--I think it would be only right and only fitting if this convention would include in this document. We've adopted a lot of things that I don't think was necessary, but we've adopted them, and we've changed civil service completely as we have known it in the past. So, I see no reason, ladies and gentlemen of the convention that we should not adopt this provision, and give to our state police, if just--and it's more than morale reasons because it means dollars in their pockets. Let me tell you something. It was brought out at the hearings that many of our state policemen--and I don't want to sound melodramatic, but it was brought out, and it's a matter of statement of fact--that many of our state police, on the beginning salary schedule with large families, living in large metropolitan areas where the cost of living went high, were actually getting food stamps. I stand to be corrected, if I'm not telling you the truth. I stand to be corrected. So, if the Civil Service Board cannot differentiate or cannot make a different classification for state police, and we are having problems in that category of pay scale for state police, then

I believe, gentlemen and ladies of the convention, that we should...it be incumbent upon us that we should set that scale, or we should allow them, through the constitution, to set a different scale. So, I would ask you, please, to go along with this amendment. I think it's a good one. I think it's something that should have been done, and has not been done, and if we don't do it, I'd venture to say, it will not be done. It's been proven that...they've turned the legislature down, and the courts have upheld the legislature. So, why shouldn't we do it here? Give me one good reason, and I'll vote with you against it. But, I stand at this point that I think it should be in the constitution. I'll yield to any questions, Madam Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Madam Chairman and fellow delegates, as usual, I'll be very, very brief. I said that to see if you were listening. Thank you for listening. Now, I believe in this amendment. I never did believe that the police in New Orleans belonged in the state civil service; I never did believe the state police did. They're all in a different category as employees. Now, that's where the trouble started back in 1940. All of the state except Orleans had a state police and firemen's civil service and the state police got put into the state employees. Now, policing is just a different ballgame from any other kind of employment. It's got to be treated differently to be fair, to protect the people, and if you don't put them in a different system, you're going to have to make an exception. They're in the state employees' system, and so we should make an exception. To me, it's very clear we should adopt this amendment. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. WOMACK

Madam Chairman, fellow delegates, and I wish you would listen. I'm not going to rehash but a very little of what has already been said. I will touch on it a little. In 1970 the legislature, I think in its wisdom at that time--I know I sponsored the bill in the House, and I think, with Carl Bauer; I don't remember who in the Senate--but, we passed taxes. Now, I want you to listen to this. We get terribly disturbed about a two to one tax, or a two-thirds tax. The legislature, in the last year that they could raise taxes, passed a tax on the people thirty-two to one; not two to one; thirty-two to one, to pay a supplemental pay to state policemen because they realized that they were deserving of it, had earned it and were entitled to it. Now, keep in mind, this is the year, the last year you could vote taxes before you ran for reelection. That's pretty hard, and thirty-two to one is a pretty sizable majority. One of those didn't know what he was voting on, and two of them is against God. So, that was the three votes that was there. That gives you an idea about what the legislature thought. So, if we're going to say that the legislative body should have the right to tell--and I've heard that this morning a good bit--how we're going to spend money, that was the feeling of the legislature. Now, we passed a tax; we got the money; we designated how it was to be spent, and as you know, it was blocked. Now, we were very kind to the state policemen after this was done. We didn't have enough cars to go around, so we went in and took a portion of the money the next year and bought them some cars so that the state policemen would haven't to push some of these vehicles off to go to work, with the job they have to do. Then, the next time, we came back with a little of the money, and I handled the bill to help supplement their retirement system. Do you know what kind of retirement system they've got? The poorest funded retirement system supported by the State of Louisiana today. Now, you talk about a group of people that's kind of halfway been stepchildren; this group of people has been stepchildren. So, we fought that out. This year we finally took this little supplemental pay and added, and got each one of them his own automobile to where he could work going home, work coming back. We're getting two extra hours of patrolling a day from the average patrolman, not paying overtime, not paying normal time, not paying him for the time. All we're doing is furnishing him a car to ride in. This is his supplemental pay, and this is what he's supposed to feed the family with, this two extra hours he's working without pay for. You can just go on and on and on. Now, looking at the table of organization, you say, well he can climb. Do you know how fast he can climb? Our holier-than-thou Civil Service Commission has set up a table of organization, and you can only have one captain and so many proportions, and that fellow starts as a trooper; he's going to stay as a trooper a long time. As long as he stays as a trooper, he's going to get that twenty dollars a year raise now, if he does real good. With inflation going up about twelve percent, that twenty dollars will go a long ways toward paying him, especially when the ducks get through with it. He gets about twelve or thirteen dollars. Then, you wonder why he's entitled to food stamps. If he's got any family at all and he's a beginner, he's entitled to food stamps. So, I would urge you at this time--and saying that we're going to set an example--Mr. Rachal, I can understand your being against it. New Orleans has a civil service system that sets the pay of their policemen, but it doesn't prohibit us from supplementing them in the legislature, and we supplement your New Orleans policemen. But, we can't supplement our state policemen. We can supplement the city of New Orleans's responsibility, but we can't supplement the responsibility of the state out of the state general fund. We're supplementing the deputy sheriffs. My deputy sheriffs at home was making far more as a beginning deputy sheriff than a state policeman was that had been there twelve years, and we supplemented him again. It's just a crying shame, and all in the world this does is authorize ; it doesn't direct. It authorizes the legislature in its wisdom, and if they don't feel like it's there, they're not going to pass taxes to put it there. You know, we in the past even had to go far enough, trying to get a little money to state policemen that we could buy them a uniform, and authorize them to buy a meal while they were out on the road because civil service says, "No, sir. We can't pay them. We've got to consider everybody across the board." Even the military, when you go into combat, gives extra combat pay. Every day a state policeman today hits the road, he hits the road in combat. Let's don't kid ourselves. They're in a class of their own. They're in a responsibility of their own. They're doing a creditable job to it, and they're entitled to what we're asking for in this constitution here, and that is the right of the Louisiana legislature to supplement their pay if they see fit. So, I'd urge the adoption of this.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 98-8. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. DUVAL

Madam Chairperson, fellow delegates, I didn't think that I would ever take the opportunity to rise on a point of personal privilege, but today I feel that I must. I am rather befuddled at the inconsistency of this group. We recently had an amendment which I introduced which would give the legislature merely the power to approve pay recommendations made by the Civil Service Commission. It was soundly rejected, and I understand that. But, now, on the basis that the Civil Service Commission is not political, it should be inviolate, etc., and now, however, we say that...and I voted for the Hernandez amendment, I might point out; but, now we say, though, this group--and some of the people who talked against mine, talked for this--now, we say, fellow delegates, now, we say, it's all right, though, for the Civil Service Commission not to have autonomy where state police are concerned. In that instance, the legislature, who are the watchers of the purse strings of Louisiana, have the final say. Now, you know, if you're going to be intellectually honest with yourself--and it's about time we started--you know that's inconsistent. You know you can't justify it. You know you did it because there's a strong lobby here. You know you haven't been consistent, and doggone it, it's about time. We hear people saying we want elected representation. That's a big cry. Yet, they let appointed commissions have the force of law. Then, they say the state police are excepted from all other employees, and the legislature has the final say here so the whole theory, allegedly, of the Civil Service Commission is put to rest. Therefore, I'm complaining to you, and I feel aggrieved because of the rather regular inconsistency that I have witnessed. I suggest to you to watch what you do, to at least, be honest about it, and not to succumb to every lobby that occurs, and not to succumb to a strong vested interest, who is opposing this constitution to begin with. I'm going to say it just like it is. I have been on the opposite side of organized labor at times, and on the side of some of their proposals. But, I hope and pray that organized labor will be for this constitution after we have finished, because they have dadgum well had their say in it. I hope they, like me, can push to have it passed, and I hope they will not be negative, and merely because we have a sixty day annual session end fighting this. I hope they will unequivocally come out and say, "We support this constitution," and I'll be proud then. Thank you.

Recess

[Quorum Call: 92 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Avant.
Hernandez, Riecke, Wattigny, Smith, Sutherland and Conino send up amendments.
These are the lengthy amendments, your two page amendments.

[Motion to waive reading of the Amendment adopted: 53-18.]

MR. POYNTER

Madam Chairman, I do want to point out one change that's been made.

On the sixth line, on the sixth line which begins "United States" of the text of the amendment...sixth line of the text, after the word and punctuation "United States," strike out the remainder of that line. After "United States," strike out the remainder of that line. Strike out the next line in its entirety. On the subsequent line, strike out the word, punctuation, "dates, inclusive; or". That's the only change to the amendment other than the coauthors which have been added.

Explanation

MR. HERNANDEZ

Thank you very much, Madam Chairman. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment is no play on words. It tracks the present constitution and restores veterans' preference into the proposed constitution just as it appears in the present constitution, with the exception that the Clerk pointed out. It strikes out the words "after having served between the wartime dates of April 6, 1917 and November 11, 1918," both dates inclusive. That is--that was taken out for the sole reason that a veteran that served during that time cannot be hired on Civil Service. He's just too old for that. So, we took that out, saved a couple of lines, since everybody is interested in conserving time and space; that's all that that does. It...provides the dates that a person must have served to be eligible for this five point, or the ten point preference. It's, as I said, just as it appears in the present constitution, provides for a five point preference to any veteran who had served during these war periods, that had been honorably discharged. It provides for a ten point preference for any veteran that served in that time, that had been honorably discharged; and it goes further to provide for the widow....I mean the wife of a disabled veteran who had served honorably during these periods of time--or one of these periods of time, but was so incapacitated that he was not able to do the work that he was best fitted to do. So, therefore, if he was not able to work, we wanted to fix this so that his widow....I mean his wife....would get this ten point preference; in the event of a veteran that was killed in service, his widow, or, that is, his unremarried widow; or his unremarried mother or father, but only one ten point preference per veteran.

It also provides for preference in layoffs. But, it so points out that if this veteran, or his wife, or whoever is used in this preference, must be equally capable of holding this job.

I would be happy to answer any questions. I see some holding up their hands. I'd rather, rather than attempt to go through all of this, I would rather spend this time answering questions.

Questions

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Hernandez, I've got...people asking me all these questions. Evidently, there's a lot of questions they want to ask... particularly wanted to ask: what about veterans of future wars?--of course, I hope we don't have any. But, assuming that we will have something, would it require, then, a constitutional amendment to grant an exemption to future veterans?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir. There is no provision made. The only provision you can make, so far, is to these that have been outlined by the federal government as having earned campaign ribbons during these periods of wartime.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Hernandez, I believe you said this is the same language as is in the present constitution, word for word?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's right. Yes, sir. Research drew this amendment up from the existing constitution, yes, sir. The only thing left out--these dates--because World War I veterans would not be eligible for employment, now, on account of their age.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Hernandez, maybe it was because I wasn't listening too good, but you took out the dates, April 6, 1917 to November 11, 1918. Right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That was only for the reason, Mr. Avant, that a man of that age would not be eligible for work.

MR. AVANT

Yeah. I understand that. But are you sure that none of those people would have spouses or widows who would be entitled to some type of benefit which you are taking away from those spouses or widows by taking that out of there? I mean it would be, probably, unlikely, but, are we certain that in taking that language out, we are not doing something to some unremarried widow or spouse?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Avant, I think you have an excellent point. For that reason, I deeply regret having struck out those two lines. If the Chairman would go along with it, on account of the reasons that you pointed out, Mr. Avant, I would like to offer a technical amendment...I'd like to withdraw this amendment...offer a technical amendment to restore those...that back in there on account of the very point that you have made, Mr. Avant. It was frankly overlooked on my part.

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with corrections.]

Questions

MR. SLAY

Mr. Hernandez, could not the State Civil Service Department do this on their own without an amendment such as this in the constitution?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, sir, they could not.

MR. SLAY

In adopting their rules and regulations to go by, they could not....

MR. HERNANDEZ

They have no authority to make provision for veterans' preference without this in the constitution.

MR. DESHOTELS

Mr. Pete, do you know, sir, that I'm in sympathy with what you're trying to do? But do you also know, sir, that on page 6 of the Dennery proposal, that he has a provision which says that the commission shall adopt rules providing for preference in original appointment, layoffs, etc., reinstatements of veterans? Do you also know that if we could keep...our language condensed in line with what he has, and possibly, if you want to put percentages, that you would have my wholehearted support?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Deshotels, to answer your questions, the veterans service organizations have a strong desire for this same language to be put back as a guarantee to the veterans. They are of the opinion, and I share this opinion with these veterans organizations, that this is of sufficient importance to put in the constitution. They want to spell this out in the constitution so there can be no mistake about it. For that reason, is why. It has worked well, Mr. Deshotels. It is now in the present constitution like you see this now. It has worked well. Everybody's been happy with it. The veterans' organizations feel like that this should be put back in the constitution.

MR. DESHOTELS

But you will agree, though, however, that if we should happen to have another conflict, such as the Viet Nam conflict, that we would have to have additional amendments to your section to have these veterans of the future given these preferences, don't you?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That is exactly right. But we can't anticipate that, Mr. Deshotels.

MR. DESHOTELS

Don't you think that we could possibly go along with not necessarily the same language that Mr. Dennery has, but something in line with that and what you have, and provide for those future veterans, also, and also protect the ones that we have now?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Well, the federal government hasn't gone to that end. This is copied from the language handed down by the federal government.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Hernandez, I'm trying to figure out exactly what the philosophy behind this is. You have a benefit on original appointment, but no preference on promotion. Is that correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That is correct.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I'm assuming you removed the three point preference there used to be on promotion, right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, ma'am. I didn't. The committee did, and I didn't want to, since I sat on this committee, I didn't want to go back.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But I mean it was in the old constitution and it isn't in your proposal.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Well, no, ma'am, it isn't. But, let me tell you why. The employers felt like that if a veteran was given this preference in hiring, that they should be able to, on their own, get the promotions that they were entitled to.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Right. The theory behind that is that you are trying to reassume a person into the work force. Right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Sorry. I didn't understand you.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You are trying to take someone whose life has been disrupted back into the work force. Isn't that so?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's exactly correct. Yes, ma'am.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Pete, are you certain that we should extend this to veterans of World War II? Do you not feel that if they have not come back into the work force that very little can help them?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Avant called my attention to the fact, which I would like to say now that I appreciate his so doing, because there are wives that are still eligible for work.

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, sir. That isn't really what I mean. I'm saying that if a person has had a job in the private sector for these twenty-five years or so since World War II, what is your philosophy behind giving him a preference in Civil Service in 1973, '75, '76?

MR. HERNANDEZ

So that in the event he has a wife that is working, she will be eligible under the provisions of this for other employment, or that preference in being retained on the job.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, let me ask you one further question. If a man sits at a desk in El Paso, Texas, in a uniform, during one of these periods--that's the way Nunez was--during one of these periods you have listed in your amendment, he is eligible for the veteran's preference, right?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. HERNANDEZ

If he served honorably during these periods of time spelled out here.

MRS. ZERVIGON

He didn't have to go overseas?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, ma'am.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, if he sits at that desk just one year later, between these periods, he is not eligible for that preference. Isn't that right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, ma'am, that is...

MRS. ZERVIGON

Even though he may have been drafted. Isn't that correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Even though he may be drafted, it was not during wartime service.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Can you explain to me the philosophy for hiring...rewarding one man doing the same job as another, and not rewarding the second person?

MR. HERNANDEZ

I can explain only this way, that this was first intended, a man that was taken out of life there...out of his civilian life, and put in service, this gives him the preference that the federal government has recognized that he deserves, and the state has adopted those same dates.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But only if his life is disrupted during wartime. His life could be disrupted any other time, and he doesn't get the preference?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, ma'am, he does not get the preference for any other period.

Thank you very much. I deeply appreciate your consideration of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. REEVES

Madam Chairperson, and members of the convention, you are sitting there now having filled yourself with a tremendous lunch and some of you are talking, and others are just reminiscing over the good company that you had during lunch, and the things that you discussed, but what we are discussing before you is a constitution for the greatest state in the United States of America; we are here discussing the future of the State of Louisiana. Mr. Hernandez has been in the legislature. I understand he served well. Maybe he will go back some day. But this is not the place--not the place--not the place--for legislation. If I've got to get loud enough to wherever you can hear me, and you'll listen, I want to get loud enough, because I will not ever support meaningless, extemporaneous legislation to be placed in a constitution that's going to be voted on and held in the State of Louisiana for the next fifty years. I will go on record now as being for the veterans that have lived in my past lifetime, and are responsible for me being here today. For if we hadn't had the armed forces of the United States of America, we would not be a free nation. But, I will not go on record as supporting material such as this. This, my friends, is legislation. This, my friends, is the problem we have in the Constitution of 1921. We have, are beset right now, with a three volume, huge, thick constitution that was placed here by my and your predecessors because they were looking to protect special interests. I think nowhere in the future legislatures, or future legislators of the State of Louisiana, will we ever see the five point percentage, or five points given to veterans taken out. But, we should not place all of this material--have you looked at it? Read it. The United States of America is a great nation. But we are a warlike nation--whether you want to believe it, or whether you don't. We're going to have wars in the future of this country. I don't care how many Tricky-Dickies we got in Washington or not, we're still going to have wars. We're going to be in a war within the next ten to fifteen to twenty years, most probably, according to the statistics. You know what you're going to have to do to protect the veterans of that war? You're going to have to bring on to the citizens of the State of Louisiana another constitutional amendment to protect them. Fifteen more years later, approximately, according to the statistics, you're going to have another war. So, you're going to have to protect these veterans, too. So, you've got to put them in there. Because, see, our wars stopped with the Viet Nam war. The last thing Mr. Hernandez says is "both dates inclusive, or who served in the Viet Nam Theatre between July 1, 1958, and the date the government of the United States declares to be the date of termination of service." This has already been declared. What we're going to have in the future is a constitution laced with amendments. This ain't the way it ought to be done. Now, I realize you have gone against what I--we--hope--or some of us hope is the principles of an idealistic government, and an idealistic constitution. But what you have now is more legislation. I say concretely to you out there, if you vote against this amendment, you're not voting against the veterans of this state. You are not. You are simply voting to exclude this from a constitution where it shouldn't have been to begin with for we, as mature individuals, trust a legislature, elected in a democracy, able to go before the voters, and able for us to have a vote on.

I ask your favorable opposition against this amendment. I realize it's going to take guts--hard, down guts--to sit out there and vote against the veterans, or what you think is the veterans of the state. But it doesn't. It takes guts to be able to say, "This is not--this is not constitutional material." Be it proclaimed throughout the State of Louisiana, that we, as the younger delegates, are looking for a new day in the State of Louisiana--a new constitution for all the people of all the time. I will not support this type of legislation within our constitution. It's going to take you some hard, down, gut-looking fighting to come up and vote against this amendment. But, if you've got it in you, and this is where we're going to find out if you've got it in you or not, we're going to find out if you have the ability to sit down and decide that this is legislation. It belongs in the legislature which meets twice a year right now, or once a year, over in the capitol. This ain't the capitol. We're not the legislature. We are constitutional delegates. If you want to be legislators, there's a campaign coming up in the future. Run and get elected. But, let's don't have legislation in our constitution. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MRS. ZERVIGON

Madam Chairperson and delegates, first I want to tell you I am not a veteran of any war outside the boundaries of this country. So, I don't exactly have an ax to grind. I wouldn't get any benefit under this, anyway.

I'm rising in opposition to the amendment, not only for the reasons Mr. Reeves mentioned, which I think are good ones, but also, I wonder whether we should freeze this concept into the constitution because I question the concept. I think a veteran's preference within five years of service, or if it's the first job a person acquires after service, is a good idea. Reassimilate the person into the work force. That's a good idea, and the government takes the lead on the "Hire the Veterans" campaigns is fine. But I say to you, if a veteran has not had a job since World War II, there's no helping him--absolutely no helping him. If he has had jobs since World War II, then he has already been reassimilated into the work force and needs no benefits. Now, if you are just going to reward this person because he's been under duress, then, perhaps you only ought to reward the person who has served overseas. If you are just going to--if you are going to reward someone because he has given service to his country, then perhaps you ought to award only--the veteran preference only to those who volunteered to serve, and not to those who were dragged off, kicking and screaming under the draft. If you are going to reward service, then, boy, I want mine. I had a Girl Scout Troop. If you think that's not combat, you've never had one. One of the other delegates had an eighth grade Sunday School class. That's worse. I'll give it to him before I take it myself. But I'm telling you, this is not constitutional material. The concept of it, I question.

Questions

MR. NUNEZ

Mrs. Zervigon, I would have preferred to ask Mr. Reeves some of the questions that I wanted to ask, but he's gone, and you're there. You question the concept of giving a veteran additional points, or preference points for...on his test...or for his grade, or what have you...what we are doing here? You question the concept of that, or the lengthy amount of material we are putting in the constitution?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MRS. ZERVIGON

Senator Nunez, I question both. I don't question giving preference to someone immediately out of the service. I think we want to assimilate those people back into the work force. I question giving it to him twenty-five years after the war has ended when he sat at a desk in El Paso, and he didn't want to go in the first place, but he was drafted. I just don't see what good it does the state, nor do I see why that particular person deserves a reward from us.

MR. NUNEZ

Did you question the giving of the homestead exemption to the veterans?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Yes. I can, and I did. I think for a first purchase of a home immediately out of the service, that's fine. Twenty-five, thirty years later, if that person can't make it on his own and be a productive member of the society, then it seems to me there is just no helping him, as I've said before. It seems to me that there are plenty of things that society might want to give rewards for--many different kinds of service. To pick only this kind, and to give it to those who gladly volunteered their time, as well as to those who went under duress, to those who were in danger, as well as to those who were not, I just can't understand the concept.

MR. SINGLETARY

Mary, isn't it true that under the Dennery amendment, veterans could be given preferences in promotions? But under Mr. Hernandez's amendment, they could not?

MRS. ZERVIGON

They could never be unless the constitution was amended. Nor could you extend the dates of the wars, nor could you make it applicable only to those overseas, or applicable to everyone who's ever been in the service, or applicable to only draftees, or only volunteers. There's no way to make it either more extensive or less extensive, or more logical, no way at all under this without a constitutional amendment.

MR. ROY

Friendly--it's friendly, Mary. Do you agree that the purpose of civil service tests, of course, is to get as far as possible the best person for the job?

MRS. ZERVIGON

That's supposed to be the concept--merit hiring.

MR. ROY

Do you realize, then, that if, let's say, the standard for a particular job status was a score of eighty or above, and that anybody didn't get eighty or above, just really couldn't hump it most of the time? That is a veteran with a grade of 71 who got ten points, he would bump out the top three who may have eighties on a job--even after you say, like, twenty-five years from the time of the war?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Chris, I don't think that you can apply the veteran's preference to pass a test. But I do believe you can apply the veteran's preference in order to get in the top three when you weren't really in the top three. As you say, it goes against the merit principle, as far as I'm concerned. Now, if we want to violate that principle for the good public purpose of reassimilating someone into the work force, I'm for it. But for other reasons, I just can't see it.

MR. RIECKE

Mary, what difference does it make if a man is drafted or not, as long as he risks his life for his country? Does the fact that he was drafted make that much difference?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Riecke, it's just that we can't take that into consideration here. I think it makes a heck of a lot of difference whether he was assigned to El Paso, Puerto Rico, or whether he was in the Japanese Theatre. I think it makes a heck of a difference. There's no flexibility under this thing.

My uncle went to El Paso, and he got a beautiful auntan... didn't particularly like being away from home. But, he had his whole family with him. I don't know whether he needs a reward.

MR. RIECKE

But you said it made a difference to you whether he was drafted or whether he volunteered. I don't think that should make that much difference.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I could argue that either way, Mr. Riecke. I could argue that if a man volunteered to go, he was making a choice himself. The choice was not being enforced on him, and, therefore, he deserves no reward for it. My own personal opinion is that if a man was dragged off kicking and screaming, that...and didn't volunteer to go, and didn't voluntarily risk his life, then he really deserves no reward from us.

For one thing, it discriminates against the elderly, against women who are not drafted, against people with trick knees and flat feet, because those folks are not drafted. It makes no sense to me.

MR. RIECKE

I happen to be one of those delegates who don't have any guts. I'm going to vote for it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. HERNANDEZ

Madam Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I took the mike again primarily for the purpose of being able to answer any questions. That's what I was doing back here. I do urge you to seriously consider this.

I had occasion to go through the War Veterans' Home the last part of last week--well, it was last Saturday--and I believe that if I could take some of you people through one of these war veterans' homes, or through some of these veterans' hospitals, that I could get a little bit more consideration from this group. Some of those are still pitiful cases. They are very pitiful. I deeply appreciate Mr. Avant calling my attention to the fact that some of the wives are still eligible for these benefits. We would not, under any circumstance, want to prevent those wives from taking advantage of this. Now, this, as I said before, is almost the same provision that was in the present constitution. We left out promotions for the reasons that one of the veteran's service organizations, and, some of the employers, felt like that after a man gets on, that he should be on his own from there on--that if he deserves a promotion, he will get it. So, that's why we left out this three point preference for a promotion, Mr. Singletary. That was the only reason. The Veterans of Foreign Wars, which I represent, did not favor leaving out the preference in promotion. Some of the other veterans service organizations, and employers--and I can understand why the employers felt that way--they shouldn't have to promote a man unless he has earned it. If there are any questions, I would be happy to attempt to answer your questions.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Hernandez, is not this concept consistent with federal laws in the same field?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir; it's taken from that, Reverend Alexander; it's taken from the federal law.

MR. ALEXANDER

Right. Now, the other complaint is the World War I veteran would be too old for employment. But, isn't it possible that a seventy-five year old man could have married a thirty year old woman and she would still be in the work force?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir; that's why we reinstated those dates of World War I, Reverend Alexander. Mr. Avant called that to my attention, and we put those dates back in for the very purpose that you have pointed out.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. GRAHAM

Mr. Hernandez, in your opinion, without your amendment could the legislature provide for the veteran's preference?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir; the legislature could provide for some preference, I think without a doubt, Mr. Graham. But, you can readily understand that these veterans that are interested in this and the veteran service organization want to put these provisions in the constitution to assure that they will not be tampered with.

MR. GRAHAM

One more question, Mr. Hernandez. Subject to the provisions already contained in the Dennery amendment, could the Civil Service Commission provide for this veteran's preference?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir.

MR. HERNANDEZ

The veteran service organizations you can well understand want this spelled out in the constitution, Mr. Graham.

MRS. MILLER

Would you yield to a question from Chief Giarrusso?

MR. GIARRUSSO

Mr. Hernandez, don't you believe that a man that had his education as well as career interrupted when he had to go to war while other people stayed at home and had an opportunity to make big money and when he came back, he had a very difficult time to get a job, and that he is entitled to some consideration if he takes an examination?

MR. HERNANDEZ

I truly feel that this veteran is deserving of special consideration.

MR. ANZALONE

Do you think that we would ever, the people of the State of Louisiana, elect a legislature that would take away veteran's benefits?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, sir; I do not.

MR. ANZALONE

Now, you mentioned a few minutes ago that this was a part of the federal law...that it was tracked from the federal law. I ask you, is this in the federal constitution?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, sir; it's in the state constitution though.

MR. ANZALONE

Now, Mr. Pete, I ask you one further question: that as constitutionalists, rather than legislators, do you think that it is fair to put these people in a position to say that if they vote against this, that they would definitely be voting against veteran's benefits?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That question is something like what you answer yes or no if you've quit beating your wife.

MR. ANZALONE

Yes, sir.

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's about the same thing.

MR. ANZALONE

That's what it was intended to do.

MRS. MILLER

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Stovall?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, ma'am.

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Hernandez, if your amendment is passed, would you then support an amendment stating that "the legislature shall give the veterans' benefits through the Civil Service Commission" and leave it to them to incorporate the details that you've included here?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Wait a minute. The first part, if this passes? Well, if this passes, no, sir, I'm going to leave it right where it is. I like to quit a winner, Reverend Stovall.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Dennery, I hope this is a friendly question.

MR. DENNERY

I hope it's friendly, Mr. Pete. You're not suggesting that the amendment, as it stands now without your amendment, does not require veterans' preferences; are you?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Dennery, I'm sorry, but I couldn't understand you, and I tried.

MR. DENNERY

I say the amendment...my amendment, which was adopted, and presently in lines 15 to 21 on page 6 "requires the commissions to adopt rules providing preferences for original appointments, layoffs, and reinstatements for veterans"; is that not correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir; that is correct.

MR. DENNERY

And they may adopt rules providing for other veterans' preferences; is that not correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

The basic difference between your amendment and my amendment is that you list all of the dates and so on and so forth and the number of points; is that not correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That is correct. As far as the reason, Mr. Dennery, that these veterans that enjoy these preferences definitely want it spelled out in the constitution; the veteran service organization do and there is quite a movement back of it to put this into the constitution.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you, sir.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Ladies and gentlemen, I do urge your consideration of this. I ask you to give it your consideration. I appreciate the time you've given me.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted:
60-45. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on Saturday, page 6 of the amendment, at the end of line 21, immediately after the partial word and punctuation "ences." add the following sentence: "No rule, regulation, or practice of the commission, any agency or department, or any officer of the state or any political subdivision shall favor or discriminate against any applicant or employee on the basis of his membership or non-membership in any private organization."

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, you have three amendments, probably, on your desk by me. I want to be sure you have the right one. I wish you would just throw the other two away, because I am not going to offer those. This one is the one that begins "No rule, regulation, or practice...." and it's at the end of line 21.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

Let me read this one more time: "No rule, regulation, or practice of the commission, any agency or department, or any officer of the state or any political subdivision shall favor or discriminate against any applicant or employee on the basis of his membership or nonmembership in any private organization." So, what we are saying there, is regarding civil service employees in this state or people who are applying to be civil service employees, the fact that they are in a union or not in a union will not be taken into account whenever they are either hired, or promoted, or whatever; it says they will not be favored; it says they will not be discriminated against. Now, I don't know how we could do anything that would provide more justice or fairness than that; it certainly is not anti-labor; it's not anti-union, in fact, it protects unions; it protects the right of people to be in unions and not be discriminated against. It also protects the people of this state, who work for the state, from being forced or discriminated against if they don't join a union--that's all this thing does. The vote this morning was very close, it lost by six votes. Two machines were voted no on that and the people were not here. I don't think that we ought to let that go by without having another opportunity to vote on this matter. I think a lot of people this morning did not understand it. I think that written in the way it is now that it is understandable. The thing that scares me, and the reason I'm offering it again, is because of the opposition expressed to this principle this morning. Why are people afraid of this concept? Do they plan to discriminate against certain persons in state employment because they are not in the union? Is that what we are looking forward to and is that why we didn't want that amendment this morning? I don't know; but, I'm afraid of that. This is fairness and justice. If a person is in a union or not in a union, fine, just leave him alone in state employment; don't promote him; don't hurt him; don't discriminate against him; don't be favorite toward him because of it. So, I urge you to adopt this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. This morning when Mr. Jenkins came with that amendment I told you then it was the forerunner to this amendment which, in effect, is nothing but a right-to-work law for state employees--purely and simply, that's exactly what it is. I ask you to reject this amendment and to leave the area of employee-employer relationship open to discussion between the employer and the employees. I ask you to reject the amendment.

Questions

MR. O'NEILL

Gordon, would you define the right-to-work law? My impression is that it is abrogation of security clauses under federal law; would you define it?

MR. FLORY

A right-to-work...what it does is appears in many forms, Mr. O'Neill, but whether its membership or nonmembership in any organization is a prerequisite as are its condition of employment. Also, it prohibits the certification of a particular one bargaining unit.

MR. O'NEILL

How would this prohibit the certification of one bargaining unit?

MR. FLORY

Because you couldn't discriminate...you couldn't sign a contract as the sole bargaining agent, although you might represent a hundred percent of the employees.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, I'm not sure that it says that.

MR. FLORY

Well, 99.9 percent.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, let me ask you, would you believe in discriminating against people on the basis of whether or not they belong to a union?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, nor have we practiced that. Under the present civil service provision and in Mr. Denney's proposal it could not be granted as a prerequisite as a condition of employment; that's already taken care of in the proposal as it now stands.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, if you don't believe that people should be discriminated against, why are you against this then?

MR. FLORY

Because you say, Mr. O'Neill, that I can't in this sign a contract as a sole bargaining agent.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, can't you sign the contract as a sole bargaining agent and yet just not discriminate against those who don't belong to the union? I don't see where it prohibits the signing as the sole bargaining agent; that's done now.

MR. FLORY

Perhaps you don't understand the law and practice as far as what is meant by the term "sole bargaining agent," insofar as the processing of grievances, etc. If I'm the sole bargaining agent in private employment, for example, under the federal law, whether he belongs to the union or not, I still have to represent him. If you take his case to arbitration, I have to pay the cost and yet I can't require him to be a member of the union--that's under the federal law.

MR. O'NEILL

Well, wait now, does the federal law apply to governmental employees?

MR. FLORY

Not in the instance I just mentioned, no. But, if I am recognized as a sole bargaining agent, then in the processing of grievances if they come to me and want me to process his grievance, take his case to arbitration, if I'm the sole bargaining agent, I believe they could require that I do so under the law.

MR. O'NEILL

O.K. Let me ask you. A point was brought up this morning by Mr. Duval, what prerequisites is it going to take for you to support this Civil Service Article? How much more are you going to ask us to do?

MR. FLORY

I'm not asking for this, Mr. O'Neill. Let me say this in reference to your question that Mr. Duval raised this morning. As always has been the case, when this convention is over we will make a determination as to what the contents of this document and based upon that, the delegates to the convention of our organization will make that determination, I won't make that as one individual. I'll only have one individual voice in making that determination.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Flory, is it my understanding that you are saying that at present it is legal for the State of Louisiana to discriminate against its employees based on whether or not they are in the union; is that the present law?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, that is not the present law; the subject is silent in that regard as long as he belongs to the...he is a classified employee.... you can't require him, as a condition of employment, to belong or not to belong to a union--that's the law today.

MR. JENKINS

Well, isn't that all this says, is that, "No rule, regulation, or practice of the commission, or any agency shall favor or discriminate against any applicant or employee on the--basis of his membership or non-membership in any private organization"?

MR. FLORY

It also has to do, Mr. Jenkins, with the certification procedures as far as certifying bargaining agents. The only reason for having a sole bargaining agent is that the employer doesn't have to deal with three, five, ten, or fifteen different organizations.

MR. JENKINS

How does this pertain to sole bargaining agents?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, I've been over that about three times, in that I think what you do is preclude me by your amendment from signing such an agreement. You stated from this microphone that that's the sole purpose in this amendment and the one that you had before, is to correct the situation you didn't like at the highway department.

MR. JENKINS

No, did you know that's not correct? I said that that's one of the problems that has arisen when too much power is given to certain groups. But, I certainly don't think that this precludes it in any way. What this says is that no person shall be favored or discriminated against because he is either a member of the union or not a member of the union in state employment; didn't you know?

MR. FLORY

That's all right; the work says that you can't favor or discriminate against a man because of membership or nonmembership in the union.

MR. JENKINS

Are you of the opinion, right now, that a state employee can be forced to join a union as a prerequisite for employment?

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. JENKINS

Well, then this could not be a right to work law because this doesn't change that; does it?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir, it does because you put one....

MR. JENKINS

How?

MR. FLORY

I've said that about three or four times, Mr. Jenkins. I think what you are doing is put up a barrier to me signing such an agreement. I know that your sole motive in this is to try to prohibit a certification as a sole bargaining agent--whether it be my group or anybody else. I think it's much better for an employer to deal with one organization than it is fifteen, as I have seen that happen time and time again.

MR. JENKINS

In other words, what you are saying is, that the way this goes against that principle is if the highway board designated the AFL-CIO as the sole bargaining agent for highway department employees, even though only maybe twenty percent of highway department employees are in the AFL-CIO, that the other eighty percent could not, say, organize in the Teamsters and also negotiate if you have a sole bargaining agreement; is that right?

MR. FLORY

No, but your mathematics are entirely incorrect, Mr. Jenkins, in that we represent a majority of those eligible to join the unit as described by the contract, and it wasn't forced upon them, it was agreed to by the directors of the Department of Highways and entered into by agreement with the highway department board... the board....

MR. JENKINS

But, not by the employees, right?

MR. FLORY

What?

MR. JENKINS

But, not by the employees, right?

MR. FLORY

In that the majority of the employees in the unit asked for it, yes, sir, they voted on it.

MR. JENKINS

The agreement by those majorities is the ones that define the parameters of who would be included, right? But, it was only twenty percent of highway department employees; isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, that is not correct; it is not correct.

MR. JENKINS

Wasn't it nineteen hundred out of seventy-five hundred?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, that is not correct; if you didn't look at the union, as the description of the unit.

MR. JENKINS

Well, is there any way that this can be construed to prohibit unions in this state and state employment?

MR. FLORY

To prohibit unions?

MR. JENKINS

Prohibit people from joining unions.

MR. FLORY

I don't think you could prohibit unions by any state law, Mr. Jenkins.

MR. JENKINS

All this does....

MR. FLORY

...even if it's a constitutional provision.

MR. JENKINS

Isn't, simply, the thing that this does is prohibit discrimination in favor of or against any employee....

MR. FLORY

And, I think it precludes any department head, any state government from signing such an agreement; yes, sir, I do believe that.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Flory, I'm trying to understand your opposition to this amendment. You told Mr. Burson, as I understood the answer to his question, that you did not feel that there could be required membership in a union as a prerequisite to employment in the state service; did you not?

MR. FLORY

That's correct. I don't think you could do that under federal law, Mr. Kean.

MR. KEAN

Now, if you have a contract as such as you had in the highway department, would it be your position then that employees in the highway department could be required to join the union under that contract or have to forfeit their employment if they did not?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. I don't believe I could sign such a contract with the State of Louisiana under no circumstances in light of the civil service provision as is present or as proposed in Mr. Denney's proposal.

MR. KEAN

Then, I don't understand--perhaps you can tell me again--what you think this would do insofar as your union contract?

MR. FLORY

Let's say I got 99.9 percent of the members signed up and represent those employees in a particular department. I am designated by agreement as a sole bargaining agent. If that one employee that may not belong wants to go out and get some other organization to represent him, he could claim discrimination under this provision which would then nullify a certification as a sole bargaining agent.

MR. KEAN

Would that employee--that one employee you're speaking about--have to pay union dues even though he didn't belong to it?

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. KEAN

And the only thing you are concerned about is that under this, that he could go out and ask some other union to represent him other than the one you had signed up....

MR. FLORY

And discriminate against the 99.9 other employees; yes, sir; that's discrimination in reverse.

MR. BURSON

Gordon, this is neither friendly nor unfriendly, I'm trying to make up my mind on this. Now, do I understand your position correctly that--forgetting about compulsory unionism which I think is probably taken care of by the law--but would it be your position that what you are concerned about here is how to operate as a bargaining agent primarily?

MR. FLORY

Correct.

MR. BURSON

So that, this would lead to my next question. Would it be your interpretation that your power as a bargaining agent could extend to contracts which might place, let's say, as a condition for qualifying for promotions, let's say, membership or non-membership in...

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because in every contract that we have in existence, to my knowledge, where a public body is concerned--and there is also civil service in existence--there is a mandatory provision that we require that they sign in there that says "nothing contained herein shall supercede a conflict with any statutory or constitutional civil service provision."

MR. BURSON

So that if the civil service provision says the three highest on the list shall prevail, that's still the law, regardless?

MR. FLORY

In that particular top three, that's correct.

MR. NEWTON

Gordon, are there any state agencies now that you are the sole...that there is a union that's a sole bargaining agent for?

MR. FLORY

Oh, yes. We have a number of contracts in existence where we are the sole bargaining agents with both local government, state government, colleges, and universities.

MR. NEWTON

Would you explain to us what a sole bargaining agent is? I still can't see why this would keep you from being a sole bargaining agent.

MR. FLORY

Well, if I am designated as a sole or any--let's take any organization who might be designated as a sole bargaining agent for a group of employees, it means that the employer has to deal only with that group. The only thing that they can negotiate on is--where you have civil service--is grievance procedures in those sorts of things, so that, you can only deal with one organization instead of a multiplicity of organizations--eight, ten, or fifteen whatever the case may be.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, this is really a very simple amendment and it does exactly what it says--that a person cannot be favored or discriminated against in state employment because he is either a union member or not a union member. That's not a right to work law; it's not anything related to that. In fact, Mr. Flory admits that under state law you could not have a closed shop right now. My theory is that because of the change in composition of this commission, the emphasis on seniority and other changes, that we might have a day arise when some governor or some commission is going to try to impose a situation where you have to be a union member to get a job, or preference will be given to union members, or the situation might even be reversed; it might even come so that a person would be discriminated against if he is a member of a union, forbidden from getting a job. It may be a situation where you have an anti-union administration take office that would try to hold back the union, try to fire them capriciously and discriminate in promotions. This would prevent both such practices; it's fair and just. I urge you to vote in favor of it.

[2722]

MR. ROY

Woody, I've got a couple of questions, and I'm trying to understand what Gordon was talking about. I'm going to ask you some questions to see if you agree. Let's assume...wouldn't you agree that if you have a labor organization named as the bargaining agent for a subdivision or for the commission and the commission says "Since you represent ninety percent of the employees and ten percent are not members of your organization, we will deal exclusively with you, with respect to wage increases." Don't you agree, then, that if ten percent say "We do not want to be bound by the final determination on the issue of wages because it would be implicit that you would be discriminating against us." You would, in effect, nullify what Gordon is saying may come about; isn't that what this is all about?

MR. JENKINS

In order to answer your question, Chris, I'm going to have to give a little bit of background, and I think I will be able to answer it. You must remember that at present under the Taft-Hartley Act, federal law, private employers are subjected to a situation whereby if you have an election among employees and a majority vote in favor of a certain union, then that union can be designated as a sole bargaining agent. Now, Taft-Hartley does not apply to government. Thus, you do not have to have elections among public employees in order to designate a union as the sole bargaining agent. What was attempted to be accomplished at the highway department was that without an election by the employee, just by fiat of the board, a sole bargaining agent was appointed--namely, the AFL-CIO affiliate. Now, that would mean if a sole bargaining agent were appointed that say the teamsters would not be allowed to negotiate with the highway department even though they had more employees affiliated with that union than with the AFL-CIO affiliate. In fact, the situation is, that there are a number of teamster employees over at the highway department. By designating an AFL-CIO affiliate as the sole bargaining agent, then you prohibit the highway department from negotiating with the teamsters. If we had a provision in our law requiring an election, that would be a different matter but there is no such law and probably there never will be. The thing that I'm trying to say is that civil service, first of all, is an individual matter dependent on the individual characteristics, the merits of the individual civil service employee. No group should be able to be the...designated as the sole bargaining agent for any employee without his permission.

MR. ROY

I understand all what you are saying. Let's forget the highway problem that came about. Isn't it a fact, though, that if your amendment passes and there was a provision which respect to a bargaining agent being appointed that one or two people could say "We will not go along with the increase that ninety-nine other employees want in our wages because you are discriminating against us by virtue of letting a group speak for me when I don't want it to"?

MR. JENKINS

No, it doesn't say anything like that, Chris. There has never been a situation where an individual employee has been prohibited from negotiating. I want to make sure that that does not continue...that that continues, so that in the future no voice of an employee can be snuffed out, and you will tell him that he can't negotiate. Now, whatever is agreed to, he is going to be bound to whether he is in a union or not.

MR. ROY

No, he won't because he can then say he is being discriminated against by virtue of his nonmembership in the union.

MR. JENKINS

Listen, what you must remember, Chris, is that civil service... the commission sets pay scales, the highway department doesn't. I mean there is very little to negotiate about in the first place most all of these decisions are made by civil service. The civil service decision of pay scales is going to be what all employees are bound by.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Jenkins, I understand Mr. Flory's argument to be that the word in our seal "union justice and confidence" means labor union. Now, my question is this: As I understand his arguments, he contends that it's all right to discriminate against employees so long as you don't discriminate against unions; isn't that the thrust of his argument?

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. JENKINS

I'm not sure, Mr. Willis. But, I think that no person in his right mind who believes in fairness and justice can believe that the affiliation with a private group by one of our state employees should have anything to do with his hiring, his promotion, or anything else.

MR. WILLIS

I agree with you that that is the height of discrimination and the bottom of that judgment, not to vote for the amendment.

[Motion to suspend the rules to allow for additional time adopted: 60-21.]

MR. BURSON

Mr. Jenkins, I'm still trying to make up my mind on this question. One statement that you made in your conclusion here interested me. Are you saying that under the law, as it exists at the present time, that a majority of the workers in the bargaining unit, i.e., for example, a highway worker or some other civil service bargaining unit need not approve of a union before they could become the sole bargaining agent?

MR. JENKINS

That is absolutely correct, Mr. Burson, and that is exactly what the highway department did. There was never an election or anything else and only twenty percent of the highway department employees were affiliated with this particular union that was designated the sole bargaining agent. In fact, we had a situation when this board met over here where the whole building, of the highway building, was full of employees against the thing. We had five hundred and some odd out of seven hundred workers working in that building sign a petition against the AFL-CIO affiliate being designated the sole bargaining agent. But, the Highway Department Board for reasons--which I am sure are their own--voted to designate this group the sole bargaining agent. There was never any election; there was never any legal requirement that there be an election.

MR. BURSON

There is such a legal requirement in the case of private business.

MR. JENKINS

There is in private enterprise because that's covered by Taft-Hartley, but governmental units and employees are exempted from Taft-Hartley.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Jenkins, are you aware of the fact that the ruling of the court in this case that you referred to was based upon the fact that the union represented only about forty-five percent of the employees in the bargaining unit and not a majority, that that was the sole basis for the ruling of the court? Are you aware of that fact?

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Avant, it's been a period of time since I've read the opinion. I did look at it. But, I don't know that. No, I don't know that.

MR. AVANT

Well, I can tell you that that's true.

MR. JENKINS

But, I do know that of the Highway Department employees, that this union has the affiliation of about twenty percent of them, and that there never was an election among the employees.

MR. AVANT

Now, one other thing. Are you aware of the fact that as of right now, insofar as the designated bargaining unit is concerned, that the union has over a majority?

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Avant, I don't know. If you write your rules so that you so limit who is in the bargaining unit, I guess you could write your rules that way. But, I have no objection to someone being designated a bargaining unit for employees. What I do object to is designating them the sole bargaining unit, even though you may have fifty percent of the employees affiliated with another union, and twenty percent with another union, and twenty percent who aren't affiliated at all. But, that is not what this amendment pertains to. It pertains to the more general question of whether or not the state can discriminate against its employees because they are affiliated or not affiliated with a given union.

MR. AVANT

All right, now, Mr. Jenkins, you have indicated in your remarks that you had quite a bit of knowledge concerning the facts of that particular case. I tell you that there's about a thousand page transcript of the proceedings in that case in my office, and you are invited to come by and read the transcript of testimony, and after you read that, I think you will be in a much better position to correct some of the inaccurate statements that you have made.

MR. JENKINS

Well, Mr. Avant, when I was at the hearing that day--the public hearing--when you had, probably, seven or eight hundred Highway Department employees there testifying against the action of that board, I learned about all I wanted to learn about that unbelievable travesty of justice that occurred at the Highway Department that day--the Highway Department employees overwhelmingly against it. That's . . . that, really, is the motivating factor for me in proposing this change to be sure that in the future we don't have any sort of blatant discrimination against any of our employees in this state based on their affiliations with unions or not.

MR. AVANT

Well, since your mind is closed, I don't suppose it would do any good for you to come and read the facts.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Jenkins, as I understand the law, is it not correct that there is no legal machinery, at the present time, by which you could hold an election for municipal, state, or other governmental employees to designate a bargaining agent for them?

MR. JENKINS

That's correct.

MR. KEAN

So, that all you have now is purely a byplay, a political arrangement between some board or agency and some union purporting to represent some portion of the employees?

MR. JENKINS

That's right; not necessarily a majority, frequently a minority of the employees.

MR. KEAN

This would insure that those employees who did not select to join the union would nonetheless have a right to have their voice heard by that agency or the Civil Service Commission or other agencies that might have some jurisdiction over them, without having to rely solely on the union for that spokespersonship?

MR. JENKINS

That's correct, Mr. Kean, and that's the only way that we can have a viable civil service system, is the people are treated as individuals and granted these rights.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 57-50. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1.

On page 1, in the Dennery amendment adopted by the convention Saturday, on page 7 of the Dennery amendment, delete lines 8, 9, and 10 in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"nesses. The decision of a commission shall be subject to review on any question of law or fact upon appeal to the court of appeal wherein such commis--"

Explanation

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, if I could have your attention for just a few minutes, I would like to explain the reason why I offered this amendment. As it stands now, any one of you sitting out here can try a case in district court--in a civil district court. If you appeal that case to the court of appeal, your case will be reviewed on the record of the facts and the law--the facts and the law. The Civil Service Commission upon hearing a case, if it's appealed, that appeal is sent to the court of appeal.

As it stands now, if you hear a case before the Civil Service Commission--and let me say the Civil Service Commission does operate under the Civil Code of Procedure--if you appeal that case, that appeal goes to the court of appeal. So, therefore, the status of the Civil Service Commission is more or less that of a civil district court because the appeal goes to the court of appeal. Anyway, upon that appeal going to the court of appeal, your case is reviewed upon the law. Not upon the law and the facts, but the law. Now, reading my amendment, it changes the wording so it would read, "The decision of a commission shall be subject to review on any question of law or fact upon appeal to the court of appeal." So, what we're . . . I'm trying. . . simply trying to do with this amendment is afford a person who goes before the Civil Service Commission the same right that each and every one of you sitting out there has now. Well, you may say, "Well, what's the difference between the law and the facts?" I am trying a case before the Civil Service Commission. I have proof that I was on the job a certain date, at a certain time. If this decision is ruled against me, either unintentionally or intentionally, and I appeal this case--I go to the court of appeal-- I cannot introduce that evidence before that court. I cannot say I have documented proof that I was on the job, at this place, at this time, on that day. This is not new, this review on law and facts. Out of the twenty-one states which presently have civil service, four of them review cases on the court of appeal by law and facts. Ladies and gentlemen, as I said, I'm not going to take any more of your time. It's a simple amendment. It's geared at giving every person--each and every person, just like yourself and I--the opportunity to have his case heard and have all of the facts brought in. Now, once this case goes to the court of appeal, I cannot introduce any new evidence, I can just have the record introduced of the law and the facts. I would urge the adoption of this amendment. Thank you.

I'll yield to any questions.

Questions

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Bergeron, did you know that I agree with you a hundred percent? I would like to go on here as a coauthor, if you'd let me.

MR. BERGERON

Thank you, sir.

MR. TATE

Mr. Bergeron, in other words, you want the same burden of proof in a Civil Service Commission appeal as there is in an ordinary civil proceeding. . . I mean, the same review by the courts on the law and the facts? Is that what you are after?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir; that's correct, Judge Tate.

MR. ROY

In other words, Mr. Bergeron, you feel that if a court of appeal can review a jury's findings--a twelve man jury's findings--of fact in civil cases on personal injuries and what have you, that surely it should be able to review the findings of five men who have been appointed by some presidents of different universities with respect to the findings that they make as a matter of fact? Isn't that true?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Bergeron, did you know that in view of the stand that this convention took on appellate review of facts in the judiciary, that, really, this is the only logical way that we can go on this particular point?

MR. BERGERON

Thank you, Walter; yes.

MR. GUARISCO

Mr. Bergeron, I also agree with you a hundred percent. But, I'm faced with this particular problem. First of all, I argued till I was blue in the face that the administrative agencies should also. . . should have no greater import upon the popula than the district court has. But, now, I think, with your amendment--which I support and will vote for--it's going to leave a gap or anomaly in the law in that there are other administrative agencies in the state that will not have the benefit of the review of the fact. Isn't that correct?

MR. BERGERON

I would presume that's correct; yes. I don't know what type of gap it would leave. Tony, let me say this: I feel that the Civil Service Commission is an important commission. I feel that its decisions and the defendants in those cases should simply have the opportunity to have both sides of the law heard--the facts and the law. That's simply what I'm trying to do with this amendment.

MR. ABRAHAM

Mr. Bergeron, it looks to me like this convention has been stampeding along here just hell-bent for the rights of the employee, etc. What's happened to the rights of the employer?

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Abraham, nothing is happening to the rights of the employer, if he is right in dismissing a man or taking disciplinary action against him in a civil service case. Nothing has happened to his rights. I just simply want to afford this gentleman who is the defendant in the case the same rights that you would have, sir, or the same rights that I would have in any type of civil case.

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Bergeron, would it be all right with you if Mr. Lanier and I joined you as coauthors, and ask the Clerk to open the machine to see if there would be others who would join you?

MR. BERGERON

Well, it would certainly be agreeable to me. It might take up some of the convention's time, but I have no objections to allowing. . .

[36 coauthors added to the Amendment.]

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Bergeron, all I would like you to do is to explain to me why you asked the convention to adopt your amendment in view of the provisions that we adopted in the Judiciary Article which says, "as provided by law in the case of review of administrative agency determinations." In other words, other administrative agency determinations are primarily reviewed only on the law. Is that not correct?

MR. BERGERON

If you say so, Mr. Dennery, and if I had that copy right there, I could probably also agree with it. I don't question that.

MR. DENNERY

Well, I'll read it to you, sir. It says, "except as limited to questions of law by this constitution or as provided by law in the case of review of administrative agency determinations, its appellate jurisdiction extends to law and facts." So, why should the Civil Service Commission rulings be distinguished from others? That's the only question I'm trying to find out.

MR. BERGERON

Well, the only way I can. . . let me answer you this way, Mr. Dennery, as I answered Mr. Guarisco and Mr. Abraham: I just feel that this commission is of such importance and that each and every one of us are due our justice in this country as the next man is. I feel that we should be afforded the same right as the average citizen on the street has. When you hear a civil service case, you don't go before a civil district court where you can have your case brought to the court of appeal and can have that case reviewed on the law and the facts. You have no facts in your appeal to the court of appeal. I feel that the justification is there. I feel that every person should be afforded the right to have his case reviewed on the law and the facts, Mr. Dennery.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

MR. DENNERY

Isn't it true, Mr. Bergeron, that in cases before the civil district court or other district courts that the laws of evidence prevail, and you have judges who sit on those cases, and they know which facts to admit and which to refuse admission to; whereas in administrative agency determinations this is not always true?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

Has there been any dissatisfaction, to your knowledge, with the state of the law which has existed since 1952 in which appeals to the courts of appeal or the Supreme Court have been limited to review only on the law from civil service cases?

MR. BERGERON

I can't accurately answer that, Mr. Dennery. I haven't gone back and checked into the records and seen if there's been any dissatisfaction. But, I will say this, pertaining to the Civil Service Commission on appeals: they have had cases overruled and just dealing with the law. I'm sure it would be most helpful for the judges if they had the facts and the law. I feel that some of the cases could be solved very quickly.

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Bergeron, you realize, of course, that all of the facts are before the court of appeal. They are not deciding this case in a vacuum. They have the same evidence that they would have in any civil case. The only thing that this says is that as to a review as to whether the facts as found by the commission, and as found by the court; presently, the appellate court can reverse on facts alone. In a civil service case, they cannot overturn the facts as found to exist. That's all that means.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it's difficult to appear when thirty-six people have already cosponsored an amendment, but I feel I must call to your attention some of the problems that this will create. At the present time, all of the facts as found by the Civil Service Commission, which must make a finding of facts, are sent up to the court of appeal. They have the entire record; they also have the findings that were made by the Civil Service Commission. They then determine whether based upon those facts the commission has applied the law correctly. They further have the right, in the event there is no evidence to support the facts as found, to overturn on the facts in that instance. But, in the ordinary instance, just as in any other administrative appeal, the facts as found by the administrative agency are presumed to be correct, and they are not subject to review unless there are no facts in the record to support the findings that the commission makes. Now, it seems to me that since we adopted, in Committee Proposal No. 21, Section 10 (B), exactly this concept for cases of review of administrative agency determinations, that there is not reason to change it here. Furthermore, I see no reason to change something that has worked properly and well, to the best of my knowledge, since 1952. There hasn't been any hue and cry raised to change this type of law which is in effect in many, many states, as Mr. Bergeron told you. There are only four states in the whole United States which have review of the facts on civil service cases. I urge you, therefore, to defeat this amendment.

Questions

MR. ROY

But, Mr. Dennery, in the other states that do allow the review of facts, they don't even allow review of facts in civil cases at all, though, do they?

MR. DENNERY

I'm not certain whether they do or they don't, Mr. Roy.

MR. ROY

Isn't Louisiana the only state in the union that allows an appellate court to review the facts of a district court or a district jury in civil cases?

MR. DENNERY

I think that's probably correct.

MR. ROY

Well, then, the point is that in those states even where they don't allow a court's review of facts to be made by an appellate court, in some they do allow a Civil Service Commission's facts to be reviewed primarily because, as you pointed out, they listen to a lot of hearsay garbage, and a lot of times they make their opinions on stuff that is not valid evidence. Isn't that true?

MR. DENNERY

I don't think that's true; no, sir.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Dennery, isn't the reason that we have appellate review of facts in Louisiana a theory which I understand is based on the continental philosophy in this regard, because we feel that it is better justice that if a mistake is made on the facts that this mistake can be corrected on appeal?

MR. DENNERY

I think that's probably true, Mr. Lanier, but I don't think that necessarily applies in cases of administrative bodies as it does in an ordinary lawsuit. That's my whole point, here. The theory of administrative law is not the continental theory that we have adopted. The theory of administrative law has built up, primarily in this country, in the last . . . relatively recent number of years. The whole theory of administrative law is to permit the administrative body to find the facts. This saves the court an untold amount of time. If the facts are obviously wrong, an appellate court has a perfect right to overturn them. If there is not enough evidence to support what the civil service found to be a fact, the court does not have to accept it as a fact. But, if there is evidence there, then it does have to. That's normally what a court does, as you well know, even in a civil case. If there is evidence to support what the trial court found, under normal circumstances, the appellate court accepts those findings.

MR. LANIER

I believe the rule that you're referring to is the manifest error rule, isn't it, Mr. Dennery?

MR. DENNERY

I think it's called that; yes.

MR. LANIER

I believe that is distinguished from the rule, as I understand it, in administrative cases that there must be an absence of facts. Is that not correct?

MR. DENNERY

No, that's not true, sir, not under. . . there've been a number of cases. . . civil service cases which have been overturned on the basis of. . . not on the absence of facts, but on manifest error. . .

MR. LANIER

But, really, don't you believe that justice will be better served if we have appellate review of facts in this type of a case? Further, do you see any great policy reason that would overturn this approach, or that would justify overturning this approach?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Lanier, the only answer I can give to that. . . to those questions is that if something has worked well this long, I see no reasons, particularly, to change it. As far as any overriding policy question is concerned, no, I can't say that there's an overriding policy question. I think the courts would be better able to answer that than I would.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. BERGERON

Ladies and gentlemen, I won't take up much of your time. I'd just like to bring this out: in the civil district court, a judge hears the facts, he hears the law. If it's appealed, it can be reviewed on the law and the facts which is brought to the court of appeal. On the Civil Service Commission, the members of that commission are actually acting as judges, because they decide on the case. It is then in turn, if appealed, brought to the court of appeal. They do not have review on the facts--review of the law. I would just simply ask you to give the rights to defendants in these type of cases the same rights which are afforded to you. I would urge the adoption of the amendment. Thank you.

97th Days Proceedings—December 12, 1973

[Amendment adopted: 80-27. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments at the desk goes to Paragraph (M), and are sent up by Delegate Shannon.

Amendment No. 1. In floor amendment proposed by Delegate Denny adopted Saturday, on page 7 of the floor amendment, delete lines 14 through 23, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(M) Appropriations. (1) State. The legislature shall make adequate annual appropriations to the State Civil Service Commission and to the Department of State Civil Service to enable the commission and the department to carry out efficiently and effectively the provisions of this Section, and the amount so appropriated by the legislature shall not be subject to veto by the governor."

Explanation

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I have objections to this as is written because it mandates a specific appropriation for an agency and they do not have to line item it. I understand that they have never exceeded this, but actually, it's been a violation of the constitution that it has not been appropriated. That is my reason for offering this amendment at this time. This will do no violence to civil service, and at the same time will give them adequate monies to operate on. At the present time, and in this proposal, it designates seven tenths of one percent of the entire amount of the classified employees payroll to run that agency. I have talked to some people on the Budget Committee and they said that it never has reached that yet, and they never have asked for it yet. But, actually, he told me at the time that it was a direct violation of the constitution. Now, they can ask for this in a lump sum, if they so desire, and they can use this money, as far as I know, in any way that they see fit. Because they could ask for it in a lump sum, it would not be a line item budget, strictly be a lump sum budget. This is the reason that I had for introducing this, also, recently, at the last session of the legislature, we gave a raise of 5.5 percent to the employees of this state. In effect, what this raise would do would be raising the budget of the Civil Service Commission when they would have no more personnel to deal with, or no extra duties to perform. I have made this so it will not be subject--after the legislature approves it--it will not be subject to the veto of the governor to take it out of the political realm. So, I ask for your favorable support of this amendment.

PRAYER

MR. ABRAHAM

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 9, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state and city civil service.

The status of the proposal is that the convention is still considering amendments, and in particular, amendments to the lengthy Dennery amendment adopted on Saturday. Mr. Chairman, the status of the proposal at the present time with respect to the amendments is that there are a number of amendments now pending to the next paragraph which is (0).

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Mr. Alphonse Jackson as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted on Saturday, on page 8 of the floor amendment, line 32 thereof, after the partial word and punctuation "islature," and before the words "in one or" delete the words and punctuation "or by the respective local governing body,".

Explanation

MR. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I do not believe that there is any serious objection to this amendment. I have talked to Mr. Dennery, the author of the amendment, and he indicated that he had no objections to it. All I'm trying to do is to clarify that state employees or parish employees that are now exempted from civil service will not be placed under civil service if the parish authority--local authority--decides that they want to make some change in their status. I don't believe that that has ever been the intention of civil service, nor the Dennery amendment, and I just want to clarify that. I would ask that you would adopt it--simply clarifies the fact that employees that are now exempted and that are not now subject to civil service would not be subjected to it in the future by a decision of the local governing authority. I ask for the adoption.

Questions

MR. LANIER

If you take out this language, would that then mean that a local authority--say under a home rule charter--could not do this?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I think it would mean that those employees that are now exempted, that they would not be able to do it. What I'm talking about...I'm expressly concerned about assessors and school teachers, employees in that category--in those categories--that are now employees of local governing agencies, not being subjected to civil service. They've not been in the past, and I don't think that any of these groups are desirous of being placed under civil service. To be honest with you, I'm concerned about professional educators. I think the way the language is included in here that a local school board could decide that they wanted to place teachers under civil service, and that's my concern.

MR. LANIER

Well, when we say "local governing authority" or "local governing body" under the Local Government Article, we're only referring--is it not correct--to parishes and municipalities. Isn't that the definition in the Local Government Article?

MR. A. JACKSON

Yes, but I think that when we discussed it and when it was debated, we decided that a school board was a local government body.

MR. LANIER

Didn't we say it was a political subdivision? I think it was Mr. Burson's amendment that put the term "school board" under political subdivision. So, I believe the words "local governing authority" have a different meaning than political subdivision under the local....

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, it may or may not, Mr. Lanier. I think we're really cutting fine hairs here. As I appreciate the situation, you could go either way. There are other categories that I think certainly would fall under this provision that concern me.

MR. LANIER

Well, let me ask you this, Delegate Jackson. Is it your statement, on this microphone for the record, that it's your appreciation of the definitions under the Local Government Article that "school board" is included under the term "local governing authority"?

MR. A. JACKSON

As I appreciate it and as I understand the language, I would think so.

MR. LANIER

Now, if I was to tell you that that is not accurate, would you agree or disagree with that statement?

MR. A. JACKSON

You know, that's not the first time you've told me something. I mean, I just have some doubts about it. I think that a local school board is a local governing body. I would ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted; 42-34. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Delegates Ambrose Landry, Mire, et al.

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention on Saturday, on page 8, line 34, after the word and punctuation "employees," delete the remainder of the line in its entirety and on line 35, before the word "or" delete the words "from the state classified service".

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted by the convention, on page 9 of the text of the amendment, line 14, at the end of the line, add the following: "However, nothing in this paragraph shall permit inclusion in the local civil service of officials and employees listed in Paragraph (B) of this section."

Amendment No. 3. In the Dennery amendment on page 9, at the end of line 4, add the following sentence: "No law enacted by the legislature establishing a civil service system applicable to one or more parishes or to one or more municipalities having a population of less than four hundred thousand shall be effective in any parish or in any such municipality until approved by ordinance adopted by the governing authority of the affected parish or municipality."

Explanation

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, in order to be consistent with what has been done in the Local Government Article, as you recall in Section 8 under the home rule charters, we exempted the sheriffs, the assessors, and the clerks, the district attorneys, the coroners, parish school boards, and the city school boards from being placed under these home charters. This amendment--especially No. 1 and No. 2--only guarantees that if a local parish goes into a civil service system, that the officers listed in Paragraph (B) of the Dennery amendment will be exempted from the classified service. Amendment No. 3 only permits the local governing authority, that if the legislature adopts a civil service system for any of the parishes, that it has to be approved by local ordinance. I don't think the first two for sure are not controversial. I spoke to Mr. Dennery on those two, and he has no objection to include or to make it clear that those officers were listed in Paragraph (B) of his amendment should be excluded from local civil service if they are so adopted.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

I ask, Mr. Chairman, for a favorable vote.

Questions

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Landry, does this amendment have the effect of forever exempting from civil service employees such as those of the sheriffs department, the clerks of court, or assessors?

MR. A. LANDRY

I would say that it would not preclude, unless you would come in with a constitutional amendment.

MR. DE BLIEUX

In other words, that's the only way you could have civil service for it is by constitutional amendment.

MR. A. LANDRY

That's correct.

MR. HENRY

Do you have a question, Mr. Winchester?

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I hope that most of you heard the questions that I propounded to Mr. Landry when he was explaining this amendment.

Mr. Chairman, I don't know whether anybody is listening to me or not on this, but I think it's very important....

If you know what this amendment does, it forever exempts the sheriffs' employees, the assessors' employees, the clerks' of court employees, and the coroners' employees from civil service. I might tell you what happened a few years ago when Sheriff Cronvich was originally elected sheriff in his parish. He wanted to have a civil service only for the sheriff's employees of his parish. The rest of the sheriffs throughout the state fought it because they thought that would be bad for them because eventually they might be subject to civil service for their employees. They defeated that proposal. Now, I just don't think we should block out and say the legislature could never have civil service employees for a sheriff's office, or a clerk's of court office, or some other office if they wanted it. The only way in the world you can get it, if you adopt this constitutional amendment, is by a constitutional amendment to the new constitution. I just don't believe that is good, and I ask you to vote against this amendment.

Questions

MR. NUNEZ

Senator, you mentioned civil service for Sheriff Cronvich's office. If I remember right, that was passed; wasn't it?

MR. DE BLIEUX

What is that?

MR. NUNEZ

Wasn't that statute passed? Didn't that pass the legislature?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, it did not pass. I don't believe it passed, Senator Nunez. I might be in error about that because the reason it didn't pass--if I recall correctly--is that because the rest of the sheriffs got together throughout the state and defeated it in the legislature. It was a proposed constitutional amendment. That's true.

MR. NUNEZ

Excuse me. It passed the House, and you all defeated it in the Senate. That's correct.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, maybe that might have been the fact, but as soon as they found out what it was about, they loaded down on us.

MR. ROY

Senator, is there anything in the present constitution with respect to such a broad prohibition?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't think that it applies at the present time in the constitution. You could not have civil service for those employees by a legislative act--I'll put it that way--as far as I remember the provisions.

MR. ROY

Well, I missed your response.

MR. DE BLIEUX

But, I don't believe there's a broad prohibition against it that's contained in the present provision. In other words this... I don't believe the legislature could put in a civil service amendment for those. I'm not sure about it; I might be in error about that.

MR. ROY

At this particular time you don't think the legislature could provide that clerks of court and sheriffs and what have you will have civil service for their....

MR. DE BLIEUX

I'm not sure, Mr. Roy, whether or not that they could do it by a simple legislative act or not, but I do know that the proposal that we had in the legislature, some nine or ten years ago, was defeated.

MR. ROY

You don't see any need, then, for this broad prohibition in the constitution, I take it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, the only reason to do that is to be sure that you would have to have a constitutional amendment to have classified service for those employees. I can understand the reason they were opposing this particular amendment to this provision is to be sure that the only way they could do it is by constitutional amendment.

MR. STINSON

Senator De Blieux, are you in favor of those employees being under civil service or not?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Yes, I would be in favor of their being under civil service. I think they ought to.

MR. STINSON

Why?

MR. DE BLIEUX

For the same reason I'm in favor of state people being under civil service. I think that way the jobs would be handed out upon merit rather than as a political favor and how many votes they had in the family.

MR. STINSON

Don't they get elected by how many votes they get--the sheriffs and all?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's true of the sheriff, but he's elected as an administrative officer. He should be able to do a job with classified service if we see fit to....

MR. STINSON

Well, isn't it a fact, though, that the state elective offices have a number of unclassified employees that don't come under civil service?

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I did not plan to speak in regard to this amendment, but I was unable to ask a question of Senator De Blieux. I wanted to be sure that everyone understood exactly what this amendment does. Under the present constitution, as it presently exists, the legislature has the right to increase the classified service at any time. Therefore, although these officers—who are forever exempted by virtue of the amendment proposed by Mr. Landry—are presently unclassified, the legislature has always had the right to classify them. I think the act to which Senator De Blieux referred was...an act was introduced by virtue of the present provision in the constitution. As a matter of fact, that's one of the few sections that's ever been amended to the 1952 law, and that one was amended so as to have a period of notification before you could put people in the classified service. Now, the present amendment would remove from the legislature the power to add to the classified service. The amendment which you just adopted would remove that from the power of the local governing body. This amendment would remove it from the power of the legislature as well, and I'm speaking neither for or against the amendment. I just want to be certain that you all understand exactly what is going to happen. This would change the present law, which permits the legislature to put sheriffs, clerks, etc. in the classified service, and would prohibit the legislature from doing that.

Questions

MR. WINCHESTER

Mr. Dennery, in your amendment on page 2, line 19 and 20, "additional positions may be added," what does that mean in reference to deputies?

MR. DENNERY

That has no effect whatsoever. That's additional positions may be added by the respective Civil Service Commissions to the unclassified service—not to the classified service—to the unclassified service. In other words, the State Commission can say that certain positions don't have to take tests in order to get state jobs, but it does not refer to these people at all, Mr. Winchester.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Dennery, under your amendment as it now stands, how would employees of these offices be placed in the classified service, or how could they be placed in the classified...

MR. DENNERY

Well, they could be placed in the classified service, of course, by constitutional amendment. In addition to that, the legislature could create a particular system which could classify these people.

MR. AVANT

Under the terms of your amendment as it now stands?

MR. DENNERY

That's my understanding of it. Yes, sir, Mr. Avant.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Abraham?
The gentleman yields.

MR. ABRAHAM

Moise, as I understand the present constitution, the legislature can add to the list of classified employees of the state civil service system; is that right?

MR. DENNERY

Yes.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, now doesn't this paragraph deal only with city or parish systems and not....

MR. DENNERY

No, I misunderstood your question. It includes parishes, cities, or state civil service.

MR. ABRAHAM

The present constitution does?

MR. DENNERY

Yes.

MR. ABRAHAM

But, doesn't this particular paragraph deal only with the city and parish civil service systems?

MR. DENNERY

That's, of course, what we're talking about here. These are parish officials.

MR. ABRAHAM

I realize that, but I thought this only dealt with where you established a city civil service system or a parish civil service system, not state.

MR. DENNERY

Well, that's correct, but I still think that under the terms of my amendment as it stands, and in (0), that the legislature could increase the classified service.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, now what about the language on page 2? It says "additional positions may be added and revoked by rules adopted by the commission..."

MR. DENNERY

That's the question I just answered Mr. Winchester. I just answered that question to Mr. Winchester. That merely says that you can add additional positions to the unclassified—not to the classified—but to the unclassified, and after you add them, you can take those positions out. But, you cannot make those positions, which are unclassified in the amendment, subsequently classified—the commission cannot. Only the legislature or by an amendment to the constitution could they be made classified.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Dennery, my question is relative to Amendment No. 3. Is it not true that at the present time there is statutory civil service for firemen and policemen in municipalities between seventy-five hundred and thirteen thousand, and those municipalities in the future that would come into that category of population would all be nullified if this Amendment No. 3 were adopted, if the city council did not approve such a system? Isn't that correct?

MR. DENNERY

If who did not approve it? I'm sorry.

MR. FLORY

The governing authority didn't first adopt the ordinance.

MR. DENNERY

Well, of course, Amendment No. 3 refers to an act of the legislature, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

I know, but it says those are statutory systems now.

MR. DENNERY

Yes.

MR. FLORY

So that this would, in effect, be repealing those present statutory systems of civil service unless the governing authority, by ordinance or resolution, approved that system as adopted by the legislature; isn't that correct?

MR. DENNERY

Well, it may be. I'm not prepared to answer what the effect would be on systems already in effect. I doubt seriously that those systems presently in effect would be affected by this amendment.

MR. FLORY

But, any group that wanted a civil service system in a municipality in the future couldn't get it, unless they went the referendum route, without the approval of the governing authority; isn't that correct?

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DENNERY

I think you're right, sir. Yes, sir.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Dennery, in your opinion, do you think that classified civil service, as under the assessors and the clerks of court and so forth and so on, would be better than the unclassified for the state and for the employees?

MR. DENNERY

Mrs. Warren, that's a very difficult question to answer. I think in some areas some of those positions could well be classified; some others might not be as well classified. I don't think you can make a broad statement that would cover all of them. For instance, just as Sheriff Cronvich came up to Baton Rouge to try to get his employees placed under the classified service, Mr. Chehardy did the same thing with regard to the assessor's office, and that was defeated in the legislature. It may well be that employees in the assessor's office may be better treated--I don't mean better treated--but may be better classified for the state as a whole than unclassified. But I really can't answer that question.

MRS. WARREN

So, one is really a merit system, and one is not?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I believe in the merit system. If I had....

MR. WARREN

I mean, I didn't ask you that. I asked you: one of these is a merit system and one is not?

MR. DENNERY

Why is one in the merit system?

MRS. WARREN

No, no, I said I'm trying to clarify this now. One is a merit system, and one is not. The classified is a merit system, and the unclassified is not.

MR. DENNERY

That's correct.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. A. LANDRY

I just wanted to call your attention to to the fact that under Paragraph (B), which has already been adopted by the convention, the various offices such as clerks, sheriffs, assessors, governor, lieutenant governor--all those offices in Article V of the constitution, which means the courts, the Supreme Court, the district courts--have already been exempted. The only thing we're asking you is that if a local parish or a local municipality adopts a civil service system, that these offices be excluded from that particular civil service system; therefore, I ask for a favorable vote.

Questions

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Landry, the governor of the state is exempt from civil service, isn't he?

MR. A. LANDRY

Yes.

MR. STOVALL

On the basis of your argument, you're suggesting that all of the employees of the state ought also to be exempt.

MR. A. LANDRY

No, sir, you've already put them in the constitution, Reverend Stovall. At the present time, these offices that we are asking to be excluded from local already have been excluded from state civil service. They are unclassified.

MR. STOVALL

Yes, but you're saying that if the assessor and the sheriff and all of these, that they are exempt; isn't that what you're saying?

MR. A. LANDRY

They are excluded, yes, sir.

MR. STOVALL

They are exempt. But, this does not mean that the employees should be....

MR. A. LANDRY

The employees are also excluded under the classified system--under unclassified. In Section (B), if you'll read it, you'll find not only all of the officers, but their employees also are unclassified.

MR. ROY

Mr. Landry, the only thing I'm concerned about is that if ever we decide that we would like to have these deputy clerks, and what have you, in some type of merit system, it would require that we go to the people with some type of real detailed constitutional amendment that would, in effect, just balloon up the constitution, would it not?

MR. A. LANDRY

Chris, I think you'd have to look at Section (B). This only deals with local civil service. Now, I do not know whether we would have to really go with that constitutional amendment or not, but if you'll read Paragraph (B), there's a possibility that we could become unclassified--or reclassified, I should say.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Landry, if your amendment is adopted, wouldn't it require two elections--one for the constitutional amendment; and then, if that amendment is passed, then the local governing body would have to vote on it?

MR. A. LANDRY

That's if all of my amendment is adopted, but we've divided the question. I don't know what the convention is going to do on either one of them. It's up to the delegates.

MR. DE BLIEUX

But, it would require two elections, if your amendment is adopted, for the local....

MR. A. LANDRY

As far as the local government is concerned, yes.

MR. DE BLIEUX

For instance, suppose our local parish here of East Baton Rouge would want to have one of their either the clerk's office or the sheriff's office--whichever one it'd be--the assessor or the sheriff or the clerk might want to give civil service to his employees, and he wanted that were done, he'd have to come to the legislature first and get a constitutional amendment passed, wouldn't he?

MR. A. LANDRY

I would think so.

MR. DE BLIEUX

And then after that, then we'd have to have a vote of all the electors of the parish of East Baton Rouge, wouldn't we?

MR. A. LANDRY

No, I don't think so.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Under your amendment, wouldn't that be....

MR. A. LANDRY

I think it says that an ordinance--not a vote of the people. If you'll read it, it's "No law enacted by the legislature establishing a civil service system applicable to one or more parishes ...shall be effective in any parish or in any municipality until approved by ordinance adopted by the governing authority"—not by a vote of the people.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DE BLIEUX

But, this is one parish; this is one parish, and the language above that says there has to be an election for that.

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Landry, aren't you saying, in Amendment No. 3 especially, that the only way that the local governing authority would have civil service under their jurisdiction—which would mean garbage workers, sanitary workers, secretaries, or what have you—would be simply to adopt an ordinance and the legislature pass an act? That's all you're saying in here, isn't it?

MR. A. LANDRY

That's correct. I ask for your favorable vote.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Delegate Flory as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 14, in the Dennery amendment, on page 8 of the floor amendment, on line 30, after the word and punctuation "creation." change the period "." to a semicolon ";" and add the word "Prohibition."

Amendment No. 2. In the Dennery amendment, page 9, delete lines 3 and 4 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "a population of less than four hundred thousand, in any manner now or hereafter provided by law, except that paid firemen and paid municipal policemen, in a municipality which operates a regularly paid fire and police department and which has a population in excess of thirteen thousand, in all parishes, and in all fire protection districts with paid firemen, are hereby expressly excluded from such civil service system."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, if you recall, earlier in the week, we adopted an amendment excluding from the city of New Orleans's city system, the firemen and the policemen. What this does is to carry forward that prohibition to say that when the city or the parish civil service system opts to come under the civil service provisions, that it will not include firemen and policemen in those municipalities under four hundred thousand. We've already taken care of the New Orleans situation, and we have constitutional and statutory civil service for the fire and police officers throughout the state—also in parish fire districts and in special fire districts, as we have here in Scotlandville and where the boards, etc....the civil service is already established, and this we carry forward from the other amendment. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, as I understand this amendment, this would apply only in those situations where a municipality that falls in this category has both paid firemen and paid policemen; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

That's correct, Mr. Lanier.

MR. LANIER

This would also cover parish firemen and special district firemen who are paid?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. LANIER

This proposal here would not apply to a municipality that did not have paid firemen; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, it would not in any way, or a fire district that had volunteer firemen.

MR. LANIER

And, as you and I previously discussed on this point, what I'm specifically driving at is that in the city of Thibodaux, pursuant to Act 97 of 1972, we have one civil service board because we had a volunteer fire department, so...

MR. FLORY

Correct. This does not disturb that in any way because in your situation it would create a four-member board which would not be a workable board. So, this excludes that situation. Unless you have a paid fire and police department, you would not be covered under this provision.

MR. LANIER

So, if this is adopted, the present civil service board in places like the city of Thibodaux, and others that are similarly situated, would not be affected by this proposal.

MR. FLORY

You are absolutely correct.

MR. LANIER

And, in situations like we have several fire protection districts that are all volunteer in Lafourche Parish--this would not apply to them either?

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. LANIER

Because, quite obviously, you can't make civil service apply to volunteer people.

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. LANIER

Thank you very much, Mr. Flory.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Flory, what would the effect of your amendment be with regard to Jefferson Parish, which right now has a parish fire department? Does it....

MR. FLORY

This covers parish fire districts and special districts, Mr. Dennery.

MR. DENNERY

In other words, if the Jefferson Fire Department is presently under the Jefferson Parish civil service, this would remove the firemen from their present civil service system and move them over into the fire and police civil service?

MR. FLORY

It puts all firemen and policemen under the state municipal fire and police service except where they do not have a paid fire and police department.

MR. DENNERY

So, it would remove the ones in Jefferson?

MR. FLORY

If the situation you mentioned is correct, yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, what would be the effect of your amendment if Thibodaux should ever decide that they needed a paid fire department? Would their system then automatically be split into two systems?

MR. FLORY

Yes.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MS. ZERVIGON
Thank you.

MR. FLORY
I presume, in order to be constitutional. I ask for the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Amendments

MR. POYNTER
Mr. Lanier sends up amendments as follows:
Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery and adopted Saturday, on page 8 of said amendment, delete line 32 in its entirety, including any amendments thereto, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "islature, or by the respective parish governing authority, in one or".
Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 14, in the Dennery amendment, on page 9 of the amendment, in line 1, immediately after the word "respective" delete the words "local governing" and at the beginning of line 2, delete "body," and insert in lieu thereof the following: "city governing body,"

Explanation

MR. LANIER
Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment applies to Paragraph (O), which is on pages 8 and 9. It's designed to make it absolutely clear what authority in the parish or the municipality has the authority to create a civil service board. Now, we had the amendment by Delegate Alphonse Jackson this morning where he was concerned about the language "local governing body" being construed to mean a school board, therefore giving a school board the authority to set up a civil service system. By taking out all of this language--and the language he took out was "or by the respective local governing body"--we are left with the situation in Paragraph (O) where it could easily be construed to mean that the parish governing authority does not have authority to establish a civil service system. But, if you'll read the clause that starts with the word "or," on the last line, you will see where a city still has the authority to establish a civil service system, so we have a rather anomalous situation where the parish can't do it and the city can do it. My amendment is designed to do what I think Mr. Dennery was trying to do and solve the problem that Mr. Jackson had with the vagueness of the term "local governing body." Now, in local and parochial government, we used the term in our definitions--and it's definition number one under Section 51--"local governmental subdivision" means "any parish or municipality." With reference to the general term affecting all units--and, in particular, school boards-- we used the term "political subdivision." So, the language that I have here, referring to the respective parish governing authority--that clearly shows that this is not the school board or any special district; this is the governing authority of the parish. With reference to the city, we have "city governing authority," and this is intended to mean the city governing authority, and not any other special district or district of that type. I think that this solves the problem, and I would respectfully urge your adoption of this amendment. I'd be happy to answer any questions. I believe Mr. Jackson has one, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. A. JACKSON
Mr. Vice-Chairman, I have several questions. First of all, I would like to ask Delegate Lanier: Would you agree that schoolteachers are parish employees?

[2732]

MR. LANIER
Well, it may be how you define your terms. If you construe them to be employees of the parish governing authority, they are not. If you con...

MR. A. JACKSON
Well, aren't schoolteachers employed by local school boards?

MR. LANIER
They are employees of the school board, which is a single-purpose special district of the parish, but it operates independently of the parish governing authority. I think that's under the present constitution; and I'm not real sure about this because I wasn't on the Education Committee, but I believe they're set up independently--also constitutionally--under the education provision.

MR. A. JACKSON
But, this language, as it is included in this amendment, says that--and if your amendment is adopted--it says that any respective parish governing authority could place all parish employees, including those exempted, in a civil service system. I don't see how your amendment cares for my concern. I mean my real question is that: Isn't it true now that even if the school board didn't do it, if the police jury wanted to place some parish employees, that are now exempted, under civil service, that they would have the right to do so under this amendment?

MR. LANIER
I think that's true, Mr. Jackson, but I think the problem here is not....

MR. A. JACKSON
And, wouldn't this include schoolteachers?

MR. LANIER
I don't see how the police jury can put schoolteachers under police jury civil service. But, let me point this out: I think that perhaps the problem here deals with other language than that which you and I have been dealing with. I think the problem that you raise probably, in my judgment, directs itself to the term "any and all parish employees." I don't think that, really, you and I are quarreling over the authority of the police jury to set up civil service for police jury people.

MR. A. JACKSON
I'm not quarreling at all with that, but I am quarreling with the fact that you are designating a power to a local government agency, or a local government agent, and the language here which says "of all parish employees" certainly, in my opinion, includes schoolteachers. I don't think that that's your intention, nor Mr. Dennery's intention.

MR. LANIER
Well, to further expand on my answer, I believe what we need to do here is, instead of striking out "local governing authority," I think we need to clarify this language of "to any and all parish employees" to show that the legislature could do it for the school people and the parish can do it for the parish people, but that the parish can't do it for the school people. I think that's what both you and I--and Mr. Dennery--want to do, but I think....

MR. A. JACKSON
Well, would you agree that we have not solved the problem by way of your amendment nor my amendment?

MR. LANIER
Well, I think my amendment leaves us in a posture where we can get to the heart of the problem and solve it, whereas your amendment just takes all of this authority away from the police jury to set up a system for their own people and leaves, in the city, the authority to set up a system for the city people--which, in my judgment, is not right. I think we should clarify the language about the police jury being the parish governing authority; then, perhaps you and I and Mr. Dennery can put our heads together and clean up this other language. But, by just striking this authority from the police jury, in my judgment, is not the proper approach to solve this problem.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendments adopted: 64-32. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
Next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Avant read as follows:

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

In the Dennery amendment adopted Saturday--and, in particular, in the Floor Amendment No. 3 proposed by Delegate Ambroise Landry and adopted by the convention today--on line 1 of the Ambroise Landry Amendment No. 3, immediately after the word "legislature" and before the word "establishing" insert the following: "after the effective date of this constitution".

It would make, Mr. Vice-Chairman, that last paragraph added--Mr. Ambroise Landry's Amendment No. 2 added a paragraph, and then the third amendment added a paragraph--it would make that last paragraph, or last sentence, read, at its beginning:

"No law enacted by the legislature after the effective date of this constitution, establishing a city service system applicable to one or more parishes" etc.

It would make, Mr. Vice-Chairman, that last paragraph added. Mr. Ambroise Landry's Amendment Number 3--Amendment 2--added a paragraph and, then, the third amendment added a paragraph. It would make that last paragraph, or last sentence, read as it's beginning:

"No law enacted by the legislature after the effective date of this constitution establishing a civil service system applicable to one or more parishes,etc."

Explanation

MR. AVANT

Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, there is some question in the minds of some people, as to whether or not Mr. Landry's Amendment No. 3 would affect presently existing statutory civil service systems. Specifically, there is a statutory civil service system for municipal firemen and policemen in cities having a population in excess of seventy-five hundred but less than thirteen thousand. All this amendment is intended to do is to make it abundantly clear that Mr. Landry's Amendment No. 3 was not intended to affect those presently existing systems and to require that they be abolished unless they are ratified by the local governing authority in the particular municipality affected. I've discussed it with Mr. Landry and he has no objection to it. I am so authorized to state that's all it does. So, I ask your favorable support of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The amendments will be passed out at this time.

In the Dennery Amendment adopted Saturday, on page 9, at the end of line 4, add the following:

"(P) Legislative Authority. The legislature, by the favorable vote of three-fourths of the elected members of each house, may amend or otherwise modify any provision of this Article, except that it may not abolish the system of classified civil service."

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we have seen fit since we have been discussing this civil service proposal to make numerous changes in it. Some of these changes have been made by a majority vote with just a very little over a quorum. I think that we have all--by the votes that's been taken here--agreed that some of these changes should have been made. Now this proposal of mine would just allow the legislature to, by a three-fourths vote--three-fourths vote--to make changes if they should discover that some changes should be made in the future. I would venture to say because of the newness of this proposal, that we are going to find times wherein that some changes should be made. Therefore, I just feel like that it would be a burden upon the electorate to have to submit a constitutional amendment to make those particular changes--particularly if you have to wait until a congressional election sometimes to do it and therefore delaying the time when the changes could be made by...over a year or more. With three-fourths vote of the legislature, I believe that you can certainly be assured that there will be enough stability there to keep some changes from being made without sufficient reflection. Because any ten senators could defeat it in the Senate and a whole lot...with very little more than that of the House of Representatives could do the same. We have got a hundred and forty-four members of the legislature and when you require a three-fourths vote of those in the Senate, plus three-fourths of those elected to the House--not just the majority voting, as we have done here--but three-fourths of those elected to each house or three-fourths of those elected to each senate--to the senate--I think you've got enough stability to be sure that the changes would be needed changes and that they will be logical, otherwise then we would not make those changes. I ask you to approve this amendment.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Senator, as you know, or did you know, that I was opposed to your amendment--the philosophy of your amendment? I think that the legislature should not have an opportunity to amend whatever this convention adopts.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Did you say that you were opposed to this amendment?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir. Are you aware that I am opposed philosophically to permitting the legislature, under any conditions, to amend the civil service law?--whatever we adopt.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, Mr. Dennery, let's put it this way. I just don't feel like I am one of those persons who knows exactly what we should do at all times and that nobody else should have a right to pass upon our judgement.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, do you agree that the...obviously what you said is correct and I join in that, not only as to you, but also as to me. But, I believe that the people can change this amendment if it is wrong.

MR. DE BLIEUX

If this particular body here can see the need of changes, I think that a legislative body could also see need of changes. I certainly say this, that where we have changed provisions in this proposal by less than a majority of the elected members of this convention, that I certainly think that with three-fourths vote of the elected members--the direct representatives of the people of the State of Louisiana--should have a like right and privilege.

MR. DENNERY

Are you aware, sir, of the vote yesterday in connection with the state police and the right of the legislature to add supplemental pay? Do you recall the vote on that particular amendment? Do you recall that it was ninety-eight to eight?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, I don't recall the votes on the particular issues that were cast, Mr. Dennery. I'm not...

MR. DENNERY

Well, the journal reflects this and I assume you will accept it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, you may be correct; I'm not disputing your word about that.

MR. DENNERY

My point is, sir, that on that particular amendment there were five speakers for the amendment--three are present members of the legislature, two were former members of the legislature. I take it therefore that the legislature would be subjected to certain pressures in certain areas of civil service. Do you agree with that?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Just like the members of this convention are subjected to the same pressures.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you, sir.

MR. DESHOTELS

Senator De Blieux, you keep harping upon the fact that the convention is divided on the vote on this thing here. Now, won't the people of the state of Louisiana have to vote on this constitution before it is adopted?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Certainly, they will.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DESHOTELS
All right.

MR. DE BLIEUX
The difference between this and the legislature and this convention and the people is that there won't be enough chance for them to get together and discuss the various issues as we have done here in this convention or as the legislature does in its deliberations.

MR. DESHOTELS
Fine. Now, haven't we argued for two days in the House of Representatives as to whether we would have a constitutional civil service or a legislative civil service? Haven't we argued that for two days? Didn't we also resolve that we would have a constitutional civil service, and began working on Mr. Denaery's proposal? Isn't that correct?

MR. DE BLIEUX
That is what we have been arguing here is...

MR. DESHOTELS
All right. Don't you think two days is long enough to argue on this one issue? Don't you feel that we have spoken on it, and that we have made up our minds?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, Mr. Deshotels, it just results back to this: If you think that you know what's going to happen in the future and that there will never be any need for change, O.K. I would say this: If we think that we are smart enough that we can judge for all of our people at all times and that we shouldn't have any changes, except through a constitutional amendment, then I say vote against this amendment. If you think that somebody else can have a good judgement sometimes, too, and that we are not the smartest people in the world, I'd say vote for the amendment.

MR. DESHOTELS
Well, what about the judgement of this convention; don't you defer to it whenever it has decided an issue? Wouldn't you defer to it?

MR. DE BLIEUX
We have to do that because it's the power.

MR. DESHOTELS
Then, let's do it.

MR. CONROY
Senator De Blieux, in your last sentence you say it may not abolish the system of classified civil service. What do you mean by that, that it couldn't abolish the system? If it restructured it all together, wouldn't it be abolishing it?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, no; I don't think so, Mr. Conroy, because it could change it, but it couldn't abolish it. That means that we should always have a system of civil service in the state.

MR. CONROY
What...my question is really, how do you define what a system of civil service is if you don't put any guidelines in as to what it is? Such as an independent governing...I mean, the appointing or nominating authorities being nonpolitical and independent--at least having that in, and at least having some prohibition against political activities. Aren't those the heart and core of what a civil service system is? Wouldn't you need some definition of what a civil service--classified civil system is --that you say you can't abolish? I don't understand how you can just say we won't abolish civil service.

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, I think, as we all understand civil service, that it's a merit system. I believe that that would be the court's interpretation of it. For that particular reason, I don't think... and furthermore we have passed those days where that the employees of the state were politicalized. I just don't feel like that you would ever find a legislature that would want to abolish a merit system for its state employees. I just can't conceive of that. That is the only thing that I think that I have enough judgement to predict as to what is going to happen.

MR. WEISS
Delegate De Blieux, hasn't "with legislative authority" the legislature abolished--at one time in this state--the entire civil service system?

MR. DE BLIEUX
At one time, but that was thirty years ago, Dr. Weiss. I think that the changes in our political make has changed tremendously since then.

MR. WEISS
You don't think history will repeat itself?

MR. DE BLIEUX
I just don't feel like that we could ever...that this state will ever be without a civil service system again.

MR. WEILL
Do you know I've had more calls, personally, by individuals on this matter than any other in the constitution that we've discussed. Every one of them are interested in the legislature and the governor staying out of civil service. Don't you think your floor amendment would put the legislature back into this system again?

MR. DE BLIEUX
No, I do not. I would say this, that you would have a whole lot better chance of having constitutional amendments on civil service with a two-third vote than you would with three-fourths vote if we leave it to the legislature--three-fourths vote. I just think it would be a whole lot harder to change with a three-fourths vote of the legislature than it would be with a constitutional amendment.

MR. NUNEZ
Senator De Blieux, you just made a statement that the legislature would never tamper with civil service. Didn't...isn't it not true at the last regular session, that the legislature passed a resolution suspending the action of the commission with the rule of three and saying they shall use the rule of five? I think at one time they wanted to go down as far as seven. Now...

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Nunez, I never did say the legislature wouldn't tamper. I said the legislature would not abolish it. That's a difference, a lot of difference.

MR. NUNEZ
Well, don't you think there are some things that are...when you set forth without guidelines, if we sit here there is about four or five things in civil service that we all consider sacred. When you start tampering with those sacrecies like the rule of three or five--or whatever you want to and, maybe, picking from additional sources--don't you think that a just for all practical purposes abolishing civil service.

MR. DE BLIEUX
Senator Nunez, haven't we tampered with civil service here? Haven't we made changes in it here? Don't you think those changes that we voted on--those that you voted--don't you think they were necessary and good changes?

MR. NUNEZ
Senator De Blieux, we are here to make those changes. I think the changes we've made have been for the better. But, I think once we get the civil service where we--historically speaking--we get it where it's better than it has been...don't you think there should be some stopgap or some place we should say, "Well this is going to be civil service and it shall not be tampered with."

MR. DE BLIEUX
That's the very reason I put in the three-fourths provision, Senator Nunez, to be sure that it wasn't tampered with, as you say.

MR. FULCO
Senator, hasn't the biggest gripe on the part of the people been about too many amendments--constitutional amendments--that they have to vote on every general election?

MR. DE BLIEUX
That's correct. A lot of good amendments were turned down for that particular reason, Mr. Fulco.

MR. FULCO
Isn't this one way to help solve that problem that the people are having?

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DE BLIEUX

That.....I thought was the whole purpose of this convention, to eliminate the necessity of having to submit numerous constitutional amendments to the people for a vote. They just got fed up and...

MR. FULCO

And one more question.

MR. DE BLIEUX

...and this would eliminate the necessity for that.

MR. FULCO

Isn't a three-fourths vote just about as close as you can get to a constitutional amendment? Won't it make it that--or almost as difficult to pass any changes? So, shouldn't the legislature have that right?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I certainly think so.

MR. JENKINS

Senator De Blieux, you think that three-fourths votes will be a pretty good protection, is that correct?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I certainly do, Mr. Jenkins. I think it would be a lot of protection because in that particular case any ten members of the Senate could block it, or any twenty-six members of the House--twenty-seven members of the House--could block it.

MR. JENKINS

Well, isn't it true in 1948 there was a two-thirds requirement. Governor Long got--easily got--a two-thirds vote. I don't know, maybe, he even got more than two-thirds--maybe he got three-fourths. Isn't that true?

MR. DE BLIEUX

The first time it came up, it failed--it failed to pass. He threw a special session and through that, well he did get a two-thirds vote, that's true.

MR. JENKINS

Don't you think...

MR. DE BLIEUX

But now that...let me tell you this. That was almost thirty years ago and we didn't have "Woody Jenkins" in the legislature at that particular time. So, I think you would have a difficult time of getting something like that through now.

MR. JENKINS

Senator, thank you very much. I guess that was a compliment; I don't know. Don't you think that a new governor in his first term--generally very popular--if he concentrates on an issue like this, which after all is somewhat of a marginal issue from a political standpoint--not like taxes or other things--that he could get a three-fourths vote on something like this, and drastically alter the nature of civil service?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, Mr. Jenkins, I don't because I just feel...and furthermore I feel like any governor, now, would be committing political suicide to attempt to do something like that.

MR. ROY

Senator, just to set the record straight--I don't know how I'll vote on your amendment--but isn't it a fact that when Earl Long was elected in 1948, we did not have single member districts and Earl Long ran on a ticket and had with him everybody down to the constable level. It was common knowledge that if they voted for Earl Long and his ticket and his representative or his senator they were going to end up doing that to civil service and actually that was almost a vote of the people.

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's correct.

MR. STINSON

Senator De Blieux, you were speaking of the house... now in the Senate, don't you think that if you really put all your power behind any issue you could get--easily get-- three-fourths vote in the senate.

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, I don't, Mr. Stinson.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise against this amendment. I think we should put a good civil service law in the constitution and leave it there and not by any fractional portion there, allow it to be amended. A strong governor can get in and get three-fourths votes. You've seen him get two-thirds on many occasions on taxes. You get a real strong governor--we've had them before--could get almost unanimous legislative approval on anything. We've seen it way back in years and while I was in the legislature. I don't think we should tamper with civil service, once we get it in the constitution, by two-thirds, three-fourths, or five-eighths--it don't make any difference what amount it is. I don't believe we should put that in the constitution because the legislature is going to tamper with it. I believe if we want a good civil service, just leave it where we put it in there and leave it alone. That's...I say let's go ahead and defeat this amendment, go ahead and get a good civil service law and put it in the constitution, and don't have any amendments at all on it to how you can change it in the legislature. I put a two-thirds law in the constitution, myself, and it had been changed on... the taxes have been voted. It can be secured--you know it can, and the three-fourths can--if you get a real strong governor and the legislature would go along with him. So, let's go ahead and keep the...like it is and leave out the three-fourths and two-thirds.

Questions

MR. FULCO

Mr. Smith, weren't you the author of the two-thirds law?

MR. SMITH

Yes, sir, I certainly was.

MR. FULCO

Didn't you consider that a safeguard?

MR. SMITH

No, sir. The first time I put it in, I tried to get a three-fourths law and it failed. So, I came back the next year with a two-thirds and it passed.

MR. FULCO

Well, why are you opposed to a three-fourths now, if you were in favor of a three-fourths law in regard to...in the passage of tax measures.

MR. SMITH

Now, I'm a member of the convention and not of the legislature, Mr. Fulco. It is a little different.

MR. FULCO

Wouldn't you consider it more dangerous at that time than it is today?

MR. SMITH

No, sir.

MR. FULCO

You don't consider that we have better government today than we had when you introduced the two-thirds law?

MR. SMITH

I think you could get a three-fourths, if you need to.

[Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Vice-Chairman, that's the only amendments, then, which propose to add paragraphs. We have six amendments which affect various paragraphs heretofore considered and a seventh one by Delegate Alphonse Jackson which we don't have but one copy of yet, Delegate Jackson. That's seven, plus there are two amendments at the desk which are in globo propositions with...which would substitute the text of that amendment for the entire Dennery amendment, as that amendment has been amended. It would be up to you and the pleasure of the convention whether it wants to consider those two in globo amendments first or to go back and start picking up the other seven amendments that we've got.

[Motion to take up the in globo amendments. Substitute motion to take up the amendments section by section.]

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I want to speak in favor of Mr. Jackson's motion that we consider the amendments section by section first, rather than the in globo amendments. The reason is that I think we ought to be given an opportunity to make this proposal as good as we can and perfect it before we consider proposals that would do away with it completely. For example, I think Mr. Jackson has an amendment; I have one that would change that seniority thing that we did earlier. So, that that way we'll have an opportunity to have a true comparison between these various in globo amendments versus this article as we have perfected it.

[Previous Question ordered on the motion.
Substitute motion adopted: 77-12.]

MR. POYNTER

Unless someone has some objection, Mr. Vice-Chairman, I presume you just want to start back with (A). Now, we don't have amendments on every paragraph, but there's a total, I think, of some seven or possibly eight on their way. But, unless someone has some objection, I'll just start back on (A) and run through it again.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right. In that light, the first amendment...The first amendment is sent up by Delegate Dennery--I'll get all...I've been holding a good number of these so that you just wouldn't get too much paper on your desk. We'll get all of these amendments out now--sent up by Delegate Dennery:

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery amendment adopted by the convention on Saturday, on page 1, line 12, of said floor amendment, delete the language added by Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Flory and others, and adopted by the convention on December 11, and insert in lieu the following:
"including firemen and policemen".

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

My amendment would delete the amendment that was adopted by this convention a few days ago which was offered by Mr. Flory. It refers to civil service in the city of New Orleans only. Mr. Flory's amendment changed the two hundred and fifty thousand to four hundred thousand which effectively limits it to the city of New Orleans. Then, excepted from the city civil service "paid firemen and municipal policemen who are hereby expressly excluded." Now, the purpose of that amendment was so that the firemen and the policemen in the city of New Orleans would be covered by a separate board under what is commonly known as the statewide fire and police municipal civil service system. That system provides for individual boards in each community over thirteen thousand and presently up to two hundred and fifty thousand which has a paid fire department and a municipal police department. The city of New Orleans since before there was a municipal fire and police act, has had its firemen and its policemen under the city civil service law which is still in effect, and has been in effect since 1942. Now, the language of Mr. Flory's amendment follows the language that's contained in the present fire and police act. It talks about paid firemen, and the only firemen we have in the city of New Orleans are paid firemen--I don't think we have any volunteer fireman at all-- and it applies to municipal policemen, and of course, we have no parish policemen in New Orleans since the parish and the city are coterminous. The present provisions of the fire and police civil service law seems to indicate that all members of those two departments are under the classified system, including the chiefs of each department. It's not too clear whether they are under the police because apparently something was left out of the law with regard to police. The city of New Orleans has a fire department which is headed by a superintendent of the fire department, and that historically has not been a classified position, but has been a position in the unclassified service. The same is true in the police department. The firemen and the policemen in the city of New Orleans operate under a pure merit system of public employment. The fire and police municipal civil service law is not a pure merit system, but is based primarily upon seniority, which thereby prevents the promotion of anyone to a higher position in that department unless he happens to be the senior person in length of service. Our administration in the city of New Orleans is strongly in favor of retaining the present system. The fire department is almost unanimous in not wanting to retain the present system. The employees of the fire department have voted on this. The police department is not as strong as the fire department in favor of the Flory system. It seems to me that it ill behooves this convention to change what has been successful in the opinion of the administration of all the city governments that have been in effect since 1942. We have a city charter which was adopted as a home rule charter which recognizes the fact that firemen and policemen are covered under the general civil service laws applicable to all city employees. The people of the city adopted this. There was no question involved at the time. The purpose of my amendment, therefore, is to specifically include firemen and policemen in the city of New Orleans in the city civil service system which governs all of the other employees in the city. These people represent approximately one-third of the employees in the city of New Orleans. I feel that is quite important from our city's point of view that we continue the system that has proven so successful in the past. I respectfully request that you adopt this amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Dennery, when I ran for this office I made a pledge to the people that I would abide by their wishes. I've received, I'm sure as you have, and many of us here have received much information, phone calls, letters, etc., stating that the police and firemen wanted to go under the state municipal fire and police civil service system. The thing that beholds me is I can't understand, if the system has been so successful, why are these gentlemen up here from the fire department; this gentleman over here from the police department representing the... for the majority of their membership calling for a change?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I suppose the only answer to that, Mr. Bergeron, is that I suppose you might as well get down to the nitty-gritty of it--the fire and police civil... municipal civil service system is basically a union type system. The city civil service system is basically a merit type civil service system. The only reason I can assume that they are in favor of it is that they prefer the union system. I just disagree with them on that. However, the letters that I have gotten and the phone calls I have gotten from the firemen and from the policemen are, as you say, almost all in favor of changing. But, the phone calls and the letters I have received from other citizens in the city of New Orleans are almost unanimous in not wanting this change.

MR. BERGERON

Well, Mr. Dennery, I read a little column in my... I don't want to go too far afield. I read a little column in the newspaper in the area, local newspaper, which is distributed weekly, and I... every week I put my phone number in New Orleans, and Baton Rouge--my address; I tell them what we're doing up here every week; I told them we were on the civil service commission dealing with police and firemen. I have not received one phone call or one letter from any citizen who was opposed to putting the police and firemen under the state municipal fire and police civil service commission. Furthermore, the organization F.O.P., Fraternal Order of Police, is not a union organization. They are also in favor of the change from the system. Thank you, sir.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Dennery, I'm going to make this short because I was here this morning asking you about the merit system when we were talking about the assessors and the clerks, etc. Now, this merit system that you're talking about--is it good for the goose? Is it good for the gander?

MR. DENNERY

Oh, I don't think there's any question about that; what's good for the goose is good for the gander. What's good for the rest of the people in New Orleans ...

MRS. WARREN

All right. Well, we'll go a little bit further with this. Since we have the municipal fire department for state with this exception of New Orleans, what makes us so different?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mrs. Warren, the thing that makes us different, I think--there are two things that make us different: Number 1, is that, we have had our firemen and policemen under a specific system since 1942 and the other system wasn't even in effect then. So, we have protected these people since '42, if you want to look at it from the point of view of protection of the employee, and we have also protected the city --and I speak now of you and me as citizens of the city--in having a merit type system. The second thing that differs... that I think is different, is that I don't think a department in a city of four hundred... over four hundred thousand people which is infinitely larger than those fire departments and police departments in cities of thirteen thousand need be the same. As a matter of fact, I can see ample reason for there to be difference.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Further Discussion

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Acting Chairman, and delegates, I didn't come up here to repeat what I said the other day. I still feel very strongly the same way. I just came to bring up a couple of points that I don't believe were mentioned the other day in opposition to excluding fire and police from our civil service system in New Orleans. In the first place, it's often referred to as a state system. It is really not a state system. It is a municipality with municipality system with a different commission in each municipality. If it were in truth, a state system with a statewide pay plan, I would have less objection to it. If the municipal firemen and policemen in New Orleans wanted to go under a uniform statewide pay plan with all the firemen and policemen in the state, that's beautiful. But, that isn't what's being asked. In the second place, let me in answer to some of the questions Mrs. Warren was asking Mr. Dennery, give my opinion on the goose and gander question--Does New Orleans have to be treated exactly like the rest of the state? I'm speaking only for myself--I'm not speaking for Mr. Dennery and I'm not speaking for any other citizen of New Orleans--but this is my opinion on the subject. If you will look at my voting record on the judicial system in New Orleans, I voted consistently to bring them into the state system because judiciary officers are paid with state money and there is a reason for uniformity. I voted for the six year term. I voted for the Juneau amendment to leave it open to a change by majority of the legislature as all other lower courts are, rather than two-thirds or a referendum of the people, partly because there's a judicial district of the state, and partly because there are times when the rest of the state is right, and New Orleans is wrong, and that's clearly one of them, in my opinion. There are times it seems to me when what's good for New Orleans doesn't affect the rest of the state because we foot our own bills when it comes to fire and police and when, at least for us, what's right for New Orleans is right and what's right for the rest of the state is wrong for us. It is completely illogical as far as I'm concerned, to set up two different systems within a city for different employee groups. If they want to continue it in other cities, that's fine; we don't want to in New Orleans. I considered introducing an amendment that said, "Wherever there is a city civil service, the governing body with a vote of the people may opt to have a unified city civil service system, and thereby, bring fire and police...or keep the option open to bring fire and police into other city civil service systems." But, I don't believe in going around interfering with other people's business that way, and so I didn't do it. I would like you all to return the favor, and don't interfere in our business. Now, why do the firemen in New Orleans and the police want this system? There are a multitude of reasons, but I'll give you one of them: It favors the men presently on the force in that anyone that applies for the job and is hired after them must take their place in line after them for promotion, regardless of competence, regardless of training. As I told you the other day, this affects the city severely in our ability, in my opinion, to recruit new men, both black and white, if you say, "Look, come on now, but you can't expect a promotion for fifteen years because all these guys are in line ahead of you. It also affects, in my opinion, the degree program for policemen at Loyola University in that we can give the people who passed that course and get a degree in criminology, absolutely no benefit for having taken that training. So, we're not trying to impose our system on the rest of the state, even though we do think, at least for New Orleans, it is superior. All we're asking is to be able to maintain this system. Let me make one more point to you. When the fire and police municipal civil service was established, there were no other city civil service systems that I know of. The majority of the employees--fulltime employees--in other municipalities were fire and police. There was a reason to set up a system just only for them. Now, there are other city civil service systems besides New Orleans, but at that time ours was the only one, so our system was set up for all employees, an inclusive system. As far as I'm concerned, for our people that's the only logical way. I don't question the firemen and policemen who come down here saying, "We've got it pretty good, but we want more." That's the function of union officials. But, it seems to me that aside from that you should think about the other employees and about the other citizens of the city. The other citizens of the city who are not fire and policemen, without exception, have spoken to me to keep the system as it is. Are there bugs in it? My God, I could talk to you for hours about the bugs in the city civil service system in New Orleans. But, let's not replace it with something worse because we don't like what we have. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we passed on this very same question yesterday. By a vote of 61 to 38 this convention of delegates voted to place the paid firemen and paid municipal policemen under the state police and firemen civil service for cities over thirteen thousand. We're back to the same question--I don't know how long we can keep going over the same question--nothing seems to get finalized under our rules. You can change your "a" to "the" or some little thing and reconsider it. Now, Mr. Dennery, as I recall, in his own statement stated the firemen down in New Orleans overwhelmingly wanted to be under the state firemen and police civil service, and by not as big a vote, the police. I don't know where's the information. My information is, no "ifs" or "ands", both those groups want to be under, clearly, unequivocally, under the state fire and police. I know they wanted to be back in 1940, when I was in the House and was a coauthor of the original state firemen and police civil service, and at that time I also spoke in favor of the state employees. We went into it. I went into all of this stuff yesterday. So, I don't know of any reason to rehash it, except to say, "Remember, yesterday, you voted 61 to 38 to bring these police and these firemen of New Orleans--that is, cities, with the amendment, over four hundred thousand--into the state police and firemen's civil service." We've gone over this; they're entirely different from other city employees; they belong in this other one. Now, I ask that you reject this amendment. If there are any questions, I'll try to answer them.

Question

MR. BERGERON

I said, "I'm having some problems getting an answer to this question." I've been hearing a lot about the merit system...the merit system in New Orleans. What I would like to know, and maybe you could help me out of this question: isn't the merit system as presently exists in Orleans, isn't it based on the formula of seniority and merit--a formula similar to sixty merit, forty seniority? Or, I don't know the correct statistics or correct figures; that's what I'm looking for.

MR. JACK

I don't know the figures down there. I do know that as I said ever since 1940---that's a long time, it's older than you and a lot of you are---that they all, municipal firemen and police, belong under one bill. That's the way I feel.

MR. BERGERON

Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. D'GEROLAMO

Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, we have heard the problem of civil service with policemen and firemen here now for many days. It has been quite evident for the past, on three different occasions, that the membership of this committee has spoken, and spoken loudly and clearly, that the policemen and firemen of the city of New Orleans who are under the joint civil service system that they have with other Orleans policemen, these firemen and policemen want out. They want to join the state system. The policemen and the firemen in the parish of Jefferson want out. They want to join the state system. These are the people that we are trying to work for. Civil service is a protection, not only for a city, for the employer, but primarily for the employee. I believe this convention would do an unjust thing to all of they firemen of the State of Louisiana, and including New Orleans, if the go and undo the things that they have spoken clearly for. Go on and reject this amendment. I believe, that we have heard about all we need to know about what is going on, and for that reason, I ask for the previous question, Mr. Speaker.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 32-70. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments, Madam Chairman, are being passed out

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

at the present time. Going in order, they're sent up by Delegate Casey and Johnny Jackson. Amendments read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, in the Floor Amendment proposed by Delegate Dennery, adopted on December the 8th, on page 1 of that Floor Amendment, at the end of line 12 of the text, delete Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted by the convention on December 11th, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"However, paid firemen and municipal policemen may be excluded if a majority of the electors in the city affected voting at an election held for the purpose consent thereto."

Explanation

MR. CASEY

Madam Chairman and delegates, I believe, that the convention has certainly spoken loud and clear, as many might express it, that firemen and policemen in the city of New Orleans should be excluded from the usual civil service system that we have now and put under a separate system. However, as has been clearly stated, the system that exists at this time in New Orleans is a time-honored system that has been in effect since 1942...since 1942. We, here, are going to legislate, and I use the word in the sense that it's intended to mean, "legislate", not write a constitution, but to legislate the city civil service system in a different fashion than it exists today, and remove one-third of our employees from the system we have now into a completely separate system. You know, and I know, that that is just not right. Mr. Reeves, yesterday, spoke of guts and courage; I think that's something we have to express and show here right now that the...we're going to recognize the different systems that exist in Louisiana today, that we're going to honor them, recognize them for the good job that they have done, and not disturb them and use a completely different system under our new constitution than exists today. You know, and I know, that is just not right. If you read the PAR booklet that came out, that was distributed to you and placed on your desk yesterday or day before yesterday when we started discussing civil service, there's a paragraph in their report says this: "It is questionable whether New Orleans fire and police personnel should be separated from the city civil service system by including them in the municipal fire and police system since this could fragment the present city personnel structure, a system that has operated effectively in the past. Now, why does this body want to do this to the city of New Orleans; I'll never understand. But, if a change is necessary, and let's assume that maybe perhaps, a change might be necessary, maybe not today, but ten years from now. As the Honorable Burton Willis always uses a phrase that sticks very vividly in my mind: "we the people." If that change is necessary, let "we the people" in the city of New Orleans decide if a change is absolutely necessary, not a handful of delegates in the constitutional convention affect an effective structure that has existed in the city of New Orleans for over thirty years. You know, and I know, in your own heart that's just not right. I uphold the privilege and the right of these fine gentlemen here in the back of the room in the audience who have effectively lobbied the fire and police amendment. I certainly will fight for their right and privilege to do that lobbying whenever and wherever possible. But, we delegates have to sometimes say no, and it's very difficult to do that. It's very difficult to remain courageous and tell people that we're very fond of, "No". It's particularly difficult to tell police and firemen no at sometime, the most difficult people in the world to tell no, but we have got to do it. We have got to show courage and wisdom. I, personally, resent the attitude, not of individual delegates, but of the convention as a body in agreeing to haphazardly change a time-honored system. I urge you to approach this with wisdom, with intelligence in a very mature manner and say, "No, we're not going to change the system, but if it's necessary, we'll permit the people in the city of New Orleans to do it." I urge adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MR. BERGERON

Tom, it's a question.

Tom, I'd like to ask you this question: why, for what reasons, are you opposed to bringing the policemen and firemen under the municipal state police and firemen civil service commission?

MR. CASEY

Mr. Bergeron, as I understand, under the police and municipal fire civil service system, if ten or fifteen people take an examination, seniority... you have to pass the exam to be considered for the position. It is my understanding, if the senior party places fifteenth on the exam, that is the prime method of hiring. Whereas, under our present system that we have today, it's more the merit system. I want to say I know you've asked the question constantly, "Does seniority come into play?" It is my understanding, that it is certainly a factor, but merit... it is also my understanding, that merit is the prime factor and consideration. We want the best possible civil servants that we can get today. I think the method we have today in the city of New Orleans is the best.

MR. LANIER

Tom, does this only apply to the city of New Orleans, or could any city decide that by a vote of their people, to have one or two boards?

MR. CASEY

I think this is in the paragraph that pertains to cities over four hundred thousand, Mr. Lanier. I don't envision that any other city or municipality in the State of Louisiana has that problem.

MR. LANIER

Okay, but you would not be opposed to the people of any municipality making their own self determination on something like this?

MR. CASEY

Mr. Lanier, I'll wholeheartedly support your amendment, if you would introduce that.

Further Discussion

MR. BERGERON

Mrs. Chairwoman, fellow delegates, I hesitate to rise on this issue, and come before you so much calling for the same thing. Now, let me ask you a question. What did we vow to the people of this state when we proposed writing a new constitution? We vowed that we would go and seek the opinions of every citizen in the state. We would abide or try to see their views; see their opinions; find out what they wanted; find out what they wanted changed, and if possible, change it. Now, I have said before, and I will say again--which has been said many, many, many times before you--the policemen and firemen in Orleans are citizens of the state. If the system has worked so well, why are they calling for change? Why? It's been in existence twenty-five years. We, the people, want to keep it in existence in New Orleans. But, we the people, are also the firemen and policemen. I've heard from those "we, the people."

We've heard a lot about the seniority and merit system. The merit system, basically, is what we're under now in the city of Orleans. The last speaker was quite correct. He said seniority does come into play, which it does, which it does come into play. We do not operate strictly under a merit system now. You know, we've decided on this issue many times in the last few days, and I hate to keep posing the question up before you, but the people of New Orleans have not come to me. Not one "we, the people" have come to me, except the gentleman in those stands behind you, and the one-third of the civil service employees in New Orleans. Now, those "we, the people" have come before me and asked for a change. Ladies and gentlemen, that's what I'm going to do. I'm going to abide by their wishes. I'm going to grant them that privilege of change. I would simply urge the defeat of this amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Bergeron, I assume that you received postcards such as I did, which were printed and read, "Dear Constitutional Delegate, As my elected constitutional delegate, I am calling upon you to vote in favor of placing New Orleans police and firemen under the Municipal Police and Fire Civil Service Act. I support both the Patrolman's Association in New Orleans, Local 641-NUPO, AFL-CIO, and the Firefighters Local 632 AFL-CIO, and their presidents Mr. Irvin L. Magri, Jr. and Mr. Clarence J. Perez, in their efforts to have their police and firemen placed under this municipal police and fire plan. Thank you for your courtesy and attention to this important matter." Is this the type of postcard you got?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir. I have received that type of postcard.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DENNERY

You notice, it says, in their efforts to have their police and firemen placed under it. In other words, Mr. Magri and Mr. Perez seem to think that the firemen and policemen in New Orleans are their firemen and policemen. Do you agree with that?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir. I don't agree with that. I feel that the policemen and fire...they are speaking on behalf of their organization as the representative or chairman for that organization. I'm saying "organization"; I'm talking about groups of police and firemen, and they would simply like to express the views of the people which agree with them, which is by far the majority of the system in New Orleans.

MR. DENNERY

Now, Mr. Bergeron, you asked several people the question about whether or not seniority had anything to do in the merit system, and I believe you wanted to know whether the sixty-fourty percentage was approximately correct.

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir. I had spoken to you yesterday about it.

MR. DENNERY

Now, do you believe, sir, that if seniority is considered, it should be considered for all practical purposes exclusively in connection with promotion?

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Dennery, I feel that seniority plays a big part in the system. I feel, also, that merit plays a big part in the system. But, I do feel this: I feel if a man has been on the job for four, eight, ten years, whatever, he knows the operations of that job. He knows the procedure, the ins and outa. Now, he may not be a college graduate; he may not have the book learning, and he may not be able to whiz through the test as effectively as others, but he does know his particular jobs and duties. I do feel that that is important. Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

Now, do you believe that that--which I agree is important--do you agree that that is the sole test for the ability to lead, and the ability to manage men under you?

MR. BERGERON

I feel that it is one of the factors that come into play. Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

I agree with you, sir. It is one of the factors. But, do you agree that the present fire and police civil service system in New Orleans uses that as one of the factors, but that the fire and police municipal plan, which would create an entirely separate board in New Orleans, would not consider that, but would only consider seniority?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir, I'm aware of that.

MR. DENNERY

You would believe that if you wanted to be a fireman, knowing that the only way you could be promoted was to serve in that department four, eight, ten, fifteen years, you would be willing to start at this time?

MR. BERGERON

I would be willing to start, yes.

MR. DENNERY

Without any possibility of being promoted, even if you were the greatest leader and fireman in the world?

MR. BERGERON

Well, Mr. Dennery, let me say this...

[Motion to suspend the rules to allow for additional time adopted: 56-19.]

MR. DENNERY

I have one other question, though. Why do you object to giving the right to the people of the city of New Orleans to vote on this?

MR. BERGERON

I do not object to giving the right to the people of New Orleans, the voters. I'm just saying that the people have had their chance to come here and express their views, just as everyone else had. They could have five hundred people in New Orleans sitting in that stand screaming for the objection of taking the police and firemen out of the Orleans system. I do not see any of them; I do not see one of them. I feel it's my reasons for supporting this are justified, and I feel it's the right thing to do.

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Bergeron, Messrs. Casey and Jackson's amendment allow the...would allow the electors of the city to vote in an election, to consent to the change in the status of the police and fire department. Is there a provision here to call that election? Wouldn't that be up to the city council, and if they decided not call it, there wouldn't be one?

MR. BERGERON

I was just about to pose that question to you, Mr. Goldman. I see no set time, no set date in that amendment which would call the question to a vote. It could last fifty-two years without being called to a vote.

MR. DERBES

Phillip, I'm a little unclear about your basis for supporting, or rather, for opposing the amendment. Are you saying that your primary or exclusive basis for opposing the amendment is because the firemen and policemen have spoken to you about it, and you wish to represent their wishes?

MR. BERGERON

Well, I wish to represent their wishes in this manner: I wish to represent their wishes in the manner that they are qualified citizens and voters in the city of New Orleans. They, not looking at their standings as police- and firemen, have spoken on this issue, as had every other...the opportunity of every other citizens, and on that grounds, yes. I do support it.

MR. DERBES

Well, if we take the position that city civil service represents more of a merit system, and statewide civil service represents more of the seniority system, as the two compare, what is your basic principle, apart from representing the wishes of the people as you think they have been expressed, what is your basic principle in opposition to city civil service, apart from what you regard as the wishes of the people? In other words, what is the real issue here? Do you understand the question?

MR. BERGERON

I understand the question, but I've just stated the real issue. I'll state another point, too. You know, everyone's been saying, and I guess it relates back to what I've just said, that the systems worked so beautifully for twenty-five years. Jim, you know as well as I do, when a system's working well, you don't have the amount of complaints, the amount of animosity towards the system as you have now. If you're looking for a formula, whether it be sixty-fourty, merit-seniority, or sixty-fourty-seniority or merit...

MR. DERBES

Well, tell me about the complaints, then. That's what I'd like to know. If you tell me that state civil service represents a merit system, or represents a seniority system, and city civil service represents the merit system, then we can sit here and argue about the advantages of one system over another. But, I would like to know the specific complaints that have been leveled, apart from the obvious difference in the systems, I would like to know the specific complaints that have been leveled against the city civil service system, and maybe I'll vote against it, too.

MR. BERGERON

Jim, I'd just say the main complaint is the displeasement with the system. If you...

MR. DERBES

But, why? When people tell you that they oppose something, don't you ask them why? Don't you...do you understand what I'm saying?

MR. BERGERON

Right. I understand what you're saying. If I had the opportunity, I would ask you the question, why are you opposed to taking them out of the system?

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DERBES

Because I'm under the impression that it works well.

MR. BERGERON

Well, these gentlemen aren't.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

MRS. BRIEN

Mr. Bergeron, do you agree that this amendment is more like a compromise, to leave it up to the people affected, to vote for what they really want?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, ma'am, but it's like an...it's an indefinite compromise, an undefined compromise. It's like, I guess, serving a life term in prison. You don't know when the compromise would be brought about. You don't have any specific date. I would say it's some sort of a compromise, but not one that I would agree with. Yes, ma'am.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Bergeron, as I understood you earlier, you indicated you would have no objection to this matter being left to a vote of the people in Orleans Parish, if they happen to be the only one affected. Did I understand you...that correctly answer Mr. Dennery?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir. I said I felt that the people should have a voice in what's done in the system. I said that this is the opportunity, time and place for that voice to be viewed.

MR. KEAN

Well, do I understand that when we talk about the voice of people, that we're talking about the voice of only the firemen or the policemen, and we're going to not pay any attention to the rest of the voters and people in Orleans Parish when we consider this question?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir, but that's the question. They had had the opportunity to cast their voice, to cast their ballot one way or the other. I haven't heard their voice, and I've had open ears, Mr. Kean.

MR. KEAN

Well, have you made any effort to contact the mayor of New Orleans who won by, say, a seventy percent vote in the last election, and discussed with him his feeling about this?

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Kean, I've made a constant effort to contact the people of my district. Those are the wishes that I will abide by in my decisions in the convention--the wishes of the people who elected me to this position--and I have heard from their voice, sir, in the...what you see back here on the rails, the police and firemen. I have not heard anyone opposed to this, and let me say, I have my phone number and address in Baton Rouge and New Orleans in the little local newspaper weekly. They have had the opportunity to contact me. They have not on this particular issue.

MR. KEAN

Do I understand, Mr. Bergeron, that on a matter of this kind, simply because other people in Orleans haven't contacted you, other than the firemen and policemen, you would deny the people of Orleans the right to vote on this particular issue, should they desire to do so?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir. I do not deny them to vote their opinions on this particular issue. My number's 242-6362. They can call me any time they wish.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Bergeron, isn't it true, under what the convention's already adopted, that people are going to have a right to vote on it, when they vote on this constitution?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, Mr. Flory, and in the end result, if the people are not pleased with this, they will have the final voice. As it's been said, we're not legislating; we're handing to them a document which we've composed. If they do not like it, if they do not want to adopt it, they can simply vote against the constitution. That's their prerogative.

MR. FLORY

Isn't it further true, Mr. Bergeron, that the passing grade in the city of New Orleans is seventy, and in the state civil service, municipal fire and police, it's seventy-five, so that you've got to be more qualified to pass the state examination than you do in the city of New Orleans?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir. That is correct.

MR. FLORY

Isn't it further true that some of the problems that...the reason that the firemen and policemen want to be in the state municipal fire and police system, is because under their present conditions, they're mandated to work in a higher classification, but yet, they don't get the benefit of the higher pay, but as under the state system, they do get it?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Bergeron, did you only receive postcards?

MR. BERGERON

No, ma'am. I've received postcards, letters, telephone calls, and personal contact.

MRS. WARREN

So, and you received none from no one else?

MR. BERGERON

No, ma'am.

MRS. WARREN

Do you think that all the controversial issues that have been in this convention should be a matter of the vote of the people before they are accepted, or do you think that they should accept the vote of their elected representatives that they sent here?

MR. BERGERON

Do you mean in the end result?

MRS. WARREN

Right.

MR. BERGERON

I think that the people should have the final say in the end result. I think that is their right, and I would not agree to any other system which we might work out. I think they should vote yes or no on it. Yes, ma'am.

MRS. WARREN

If this is going to be an alternative, it should be statewide?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, ma'am.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Bergeron, do I understand your position correctly that you don't wish to see the people of New Orleans have the right to determine for themselves the way that this thing should be set up?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir. You have completely misunderstood my opinion, and that's unusual for you, Mr. Lanier.

Further Discussion

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the issue before us again is firemen and policemen in the city of New Orleans. I ask each delegate from outside of the city of New Orleans to ask his or herself why he or she has been voting to exclude firemen and policemen from city civil service in the city of New Orleans. May I suggest to you that the only reason is to appease one special interest--the AFL-CIO. Historically, they have opposed constitutional revision in this state. This convention is beginning to look like a ship of fools, and the ship is sinking, fast. What could be more reasonable than to let the people of the city of New Orleans decide whether they want the policemen and firemen included under their own civil service system. Is that asking too much? I think not. It really makes me sick to think that we're being led down a primrose path by one special interest in this state.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Personal Privilege

MR. BURNS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, in the last few days, our Chairman has very properly, and I think of necessity, has admonished us. He's warned us, he's begged us, and he's plead with us to move this convention on, in view of the constantly shortening of time to the deadline. I say to you that there's no way, there's no way that we can finish this convention by January 19, if we're going to day-by-day constantly bring up the same issue to be argued and debated, and it's always the same length of the debate; it's always exactly the same subject matter that's brought to our attention. Now, we're starting at the beginning of this proposal, and going through the exactly the same things that this convention has previously decided in many instance by a substantial majority. There's nothing that I can say except that perhaps we're just sitting back there, and not realizing this. I plead with you fellow delegates, that once we have affirmatively decided on these questions which are not statewide in importance, you might say, if just affects either certain parts of the state, or certain elements. But, they are not of the seriousness of statewide import that should justify this much waste of time on repetition. I don't object to anything being argued here and decided, and then go on to something else. But, what we've spent the last three days doing is going over and over exactly the same thing. I plead with you, along with our Chairman, let's decide these issues once and for all, and then go on to something else. Otherwise, we're never going to finish. Thank you for your time.

Further Discussion

MR. SUTHERLAND

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I ran for this constitutional convention because I thought it would be a historic moment in the history of this state, that I would have an opportunity to come and participate in writing a document that would be the basic law of our state. When I ran for this position, I promised my constituents only one thing, that I would give independent thought, that I would not yield to special interest groups, and I would adopt a constitution that in my opinion was in the best interest of all the people of this state. Now, I happen to serve on the Education and Welfare Committee, and long before we ever started meeting, we received cards asking us to support police and firemen in the city of New Orleans being excluded from the city service system of that city. You people, when you've considered the civil service system decided that two hundred and fifty thousand was too close to your particular cities, and you wanted to limit it to the city of New Orleans, so you increased it to four hundred thousand, and you carried that pretty well. So, you wanted it to be limited to the city of New Orleans, but now, you say, well, why shouldn't the city of New Orleans be similar to everybody else in the state? By gosh, you, by your own vote, made them different. I cannot understand why you are listening to Mr.--I won't mention names, but a delegate from New Orleans says he heard from the people, and he heard from the firemen and policemen, and I did, too. But, now, by this amendment, you're being asked to give the people of New Orleans a chance to express themselves. Now, if you're interested in passing this constitution, you're going to have to have more people vote on it than the police and firemen of the city of New Orleans, or the state police, or any other special interest group. You're going to have to convince the majority of people of this state. Now, if the majority of the people of New Orleans don't approve of this, then, by gosh, do you think they're going to vote for this constitution? I don't. I'd like to give them an opportunity to vote for it because I think that there are some people here who want this constitution prepared so that it will be in their interests, and if it's not in their interests, then they'd just as soon not have a new constitution. But, I'm interested in a new constitution, and I want to give it every opportunity to pass, and I want to be able to go out to the people and say, I am convinced that this is a better document, and I want to say that we operated as an independent group. When I first came to this convention, I was impressed with the delegates of this Constitutional Convention because I could see that there was a lot of independent thought going on. But, in the last few weeks and the last month, I have not seen that independence, and I believe you're making a serious mistake. You say offer alternatives to the people of the state. Yet, you admit that this affects only the city of New Orleans. We're right back to what you say. You want the state to vote what is good for the city of New Orleans, or do you want to give the people of New Orleans a chance to say what is in their best interest? I mean all of the people of New Orleans, not just some, not just those who happen to belong to a different organization. While I'm on that point, I might say that this issue has been lobbied more than any other issue, both on the floor and in the balcony. I think that some things ought to be looked at, and this is one of them. I resent the lobbying on the floor of this convention, by whomever it's done.

Questions

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Sutherland, are you of the opinion that no matter how much more talk goes on here that no more votes are going to be changed?

MR. SUTHERLAND

Well, you may be right, Mr. Shannon. I don't know. But, I would hope, I would hope that some of these delegates are not so tied up with a special interest group that they won't listen to debate.

MR. SHANNON

I wondered if you would ask the other speakers that are on the list in there if they would waive, and you'd move the previous question.

MR. SUTHERLAND

I have no objection.

MR. BERGERON

Matt, I thank you for not mentioning my name. I'd like to ask you, can you gather from the remarks that I made, don't you feel that the people of Louisiana, and by far, the people of New Orleans through our public information meetings, through the media, and the information we've distributed, don't you feel that they have had ample opportunity to express themselves.

MR. SUTHERLAND

No, sir.

MR. BERGERON

Don't you feel the people who had the final say as to whether they want this provision adopted, whether they vote for the new constitution or not? Don't you believe that?

MR. SUTHERLAND

I tell you this, Mr. Bergeron: I have talked to a lot of people, and the talk I'm getting right now is that this constitution doesn't have a chance, and I want to give it a chance.

MR. BERGERON

I want to give it a chance, too.

MR. SUTHERLAND

All right.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Do you know, sir, that I am not from New Orleans, but that I feel that if I were in your position in voting on this issue I put myself in the place that if this affected my area, that I would want to be able to make that decision ourselves. I wouldn't want it made by people who have nothing to say about it.

MR. SUTHERLAND

I ask you to support this amendment, please.

Further Discussion

MR. ABRAHAM

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, when we came into this convention, I think we were all in agreement that one of the things we wanted to do in this constitution was eliminate the necessity for the rest of the state voting on issues which affected a local subdivision, or a parish, or a city, and I think we in the adoption of the article on Local and Parochial Government, we reaffirm our purpose here. We adopted a strong local government provision. Throughout here we have said we would give the people involved a chance to vote on the things that affected them locally. We did it in the Judiciary Article with the districts; we did it in the Local Government Article. Right now, I feel that this convention is meddling. We're meddling with something that we don't have anything to say about, or we should not have anything to say about. Now, I'm from Calcasieu Parish. If the people of New Orleans want to have their own civil service system, I think that and we had provided for that in this constitution, and I think it should be up to them to decide which people they're going to include in it. Now, the remark has been made that we're going to give the people of New Orleans a chance to vote on this when they vote on the constitution. Well, no, you're not giving them a chance to vote on this issue when you vote on the constitution because they're going to have to vote on something that affects the whole state. They're not just voting on this one issue; they're voting on all the rest of it. Ladies and gentlemen, I just think we're meddling here. This don't apply to any of us outside the city of New Orleans. Let's let them fight their own battles. Throughout this convention, we've talked about giving the people a right to vote, giving them a chance to express themselves. Well, how can any of us stand up here and say that we're not going to give the people of New Orleans a right to vote on what they want to do on something that applies strictly to them. So, I'd say let's get out of meddling in their affairs, and let them do what they want down there. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Recess

[Quorum Call: 76 delegates present and a quorum.]

Further Discussion

MR. DERBES

Ladies and gentlemen, if I may have your attention for just a few minutes, I would like to put my two cents in on this issue. I have not been at this microphone very much lately, primarily because many of the things that we have been talking about are not within my particular sphere of knowledge. I have listened rather carefully to the debate that has occurred thus far. I would like to make the following point primarily as a matter of logic, and I do not submit to you a great deal of factual knowledge. I merely draw conclusions or inferences from data supplied by other delegates. It would seem to me that basically the question at hand is whether or not Orleans Parish shall be governed by a civil service system which puts more emphasis on merit than on seniority. That, to me, seems to be the nuts and the bolts of this particular problem. It has been expressed to you that those people who are specifically affected, that is, those employees--namely, the firemen and policemen in Orleans Parish--would prefer the state Civil Service System. I believe that the preference is based, primarily on their desire to see more emphasis placed on seniority rather than merit. I'm going to steal a little bit of Mrs. Brien's thunder here and say to you that I think it's time to hear, perhaps from the Devil's advocate, perhaps from a representative of consumers in this state and by consumers, I mean, those of us who have use for and need for such very important city civil services as fire and police. I simply want to make one point to you, a point that I have experienced for some time in my brief career as an assistant district attorney in Orleans Parish. I have seen in that period of time the caliber of our police department in Orleans Parish improve, in my view, markedly; I attribute that, basically, to a sound civil service system. I suggest to you that when you pick up your telephone and your personal residence may be afire, or when you have need for police services in order to protect yourselves, your family, or your home, I ask you to think about that moment, ladies and gentlemen, when you are selecting a person...when you are calling a person to answer a specific need, to solve a specific problem. I ask you very clearly and very pointedly if, at that time, you would prefer some person whose promotion has been essentially based on seniority or would you prefer some person whose promotion has been more characteristically based on merit? I think, as consumers, as people who are using and have need for very distinct, very important, very personal needs for those city services which are at issue here. Very clearly I, as a consumer of those civil services, would like to see a person come to my door, or answer my fire call, or help me to protect my family, if that person's promotion; if that person's position in the department is based more on merit than on seniority. I am not opposed to giving some consideration to seniority. But, basically, the question at hand is whether or not the Orleans Parish Civil Service System is functioning adequately. I say to you that as far as I know it is; it is functioning adequately. If the only criticism, if the only substantial criticism that can be levied against it, is that it puts too much emphasis on merit rather than seniority, I suggest to you if you were hiring someone to do a job for you--and that is indeed what you were doing here--how would you base your choice? Would you base your choice on seniority or on merit? The answer to me is clear and unless very specific, very well documented arguments can be advanced against a city civil service system which is functioning quite adequately, I see no reason to disturb it. This convention has seen fit to do otherwise. I suggest to you now that the persons who are affected, namely those persons who have need for city civil services should be permitted to decide how those city civil services are administered; that is the specific point of this amendment. I very strongly urge your support of it. Thank you.

Question

MR. BERGERON

Jim, I just have one point to bring out since we are discussing Mr. Casey's amendment. You know I'm quite in favor of letting the people have a voice as to whether...when a matter pertains to one particular locality. But, before other delegates in this convention--in New Orleans and outside of New Orleans--have decided to do otherwise. Take a look at the judicial system. When we elect...in New Orleans we were the only parish in the state which had twelve-year terms for district court judges. We, delegates of the convention, lowered their terms to six-year terms. Now, it was strictly a local matter strictly a local issue. Why weren't the people in Orleans allowed to decide whether their judges in the district courts should have six or twelve-year terms?

MR. DERBES

Well, frankly, I don't think that germane to the subject matter. I'll say to you quite frankly, Mr. Bergeron, that I voted to give Orleans Parish control over its existing judicial structure. In fact, I voted against six-year terms for Orleans Parish judges. I simply believe that when a system is functioning adequately and efficiently and until specific criticisms are well documented and levied against it and advanced in support of a system that would reform that, I see no reason to disturb the existing system.

Further Discussion

MR. DREW

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I guess outside of Jasper Smith--if you want to speak geographically, I live as far away from New Orleans as any member of this convention. In spite of the previous debate that we've had on this matter, I had some reservation in my mind whether I had voted right or wrong before. I must say in all sincerity that I am not one of those who makes up my mind and asks you not to give me the facts because you might confuse me. I think I have learned today from the debate from this podium a lot of facts that I needed to know to honestly make up my mind and know that I was voting correctly. I am not in any way disparaging on those who may be opposing this amendment. But, I must frankly tell you, when I look at the statute of gentlemen that I see supporting this proposal--and without singling out particular...all of them--but our people like Tom Casey, that I served with in the legislature; Matt Sutherland, that I have enjoyed sitting back there since the fifth of July with; and other members. I have found them to be people who were conscientious, looking for a constitution for the people of the State of Louisiana and not for any special interest group. That has had a lot to do with my decision in addition to the facts that have been furnished to me both by those proponents and by the opponents of this bill. It is my opinion, after hearing the debate from this podium today, that we would be making a serious mistake if we did not adopt this amendment. I think that the old saying about the preacher when he said, "We are going to have to cut all this whiskey drinking out," and the old lady in the audience says, "Amen;" and says, "We are going to have to cut out all this cigarette smoking," and she says, "Amen;" and he says, "We are going to have to cut out all this snuff dipping," and she said, "He had done quit preaching and started meddling." Well, I think we are meddling now, ladies and gentlemen. I seriously and earnestly urge you to support this amendment that has been offered by Mr. Casey. I think it will be for the welfare of the entire city of New Orleans and not for some special group.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Questions

MR. BERGERON

Walter, I just like to bring out this one point. If this was offered to the people in the form of an amendment and they were to vote on it, someone would have to campaign on one side or the other.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Right.

MR. BERGERON

Now, we're talking about policemen and firemen. Policemen and firemen are under civil service. Does not civil service prohibit any type of political activity?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's correct, Mr. Bergeron; but, I've had some pretty good phone calls and suggestions and so forth from a lot of people in my area.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Champagne, isn't it so that Mr. Bergeron's assertion would have been true before the adoption of this new constitution? But, with the Flory amendment of yesterday, we have changed that and while they may not campaign publicly for candidates, they may campaign for or against public issues; is that not the case?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's true.

MRS. ZERVIGON

And, isn't it also the case that they have lobbied pretty effectively on a citizen-to-citizen basis which is also permitted presently at this very constitution under the old civil service, isn't that correct?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's correct.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you, Mr. Champagne.

Further Discussion

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, the main objection seems to be that there is no guarantee that there will be an election called. I have prepared an amendment which would require an election within one year of the effective date of this constitution. I now request permission to withdraw this amendment and submit a new amendment calling for an election within one year.

[Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Mr. Casey, Mr. Johnny Jackson now reads:

In the Dennerly amendment, on page 1, at the end of line 12 of the text of the amendment, delete Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and others, adopted by the convention on the eleventh, insert in lieu thereof the following: "However, paid firemen and municipal policemen may be excluded if a majority of the electors in the city affected voting at an election held for the purpose consent thereto, provided said election shall be called by the governing authority of the city affected within one year after the effective date of this constitution."

Explanation

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I'm sure this eliminates all opposition to the amendment. I ask adoption.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment. We've decided the issue about three times in this

Further Discussion

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, to grasp the better course of an issue, we must always endure with becoming and exemplary patience--those whose manners annoy us, whose ideas disturb us, whose practices offend us, whose contentions bore us, and whose facts frighten us; otherwise, we dwell at odds with each other and with ourselves. The frail human tendency to build a wall that shuts out those who differ from us is imprudently to box ourselves in. No matter what minority interest we choose to safeguard--and I don't refer to races or religions. We are, at the same time, members of a larger society and these larger and more inclusive loyalties must be preserved if we are to have equal protection, or for that matter, any protection of the laws--or that kind known as law and order--because the majority of us belong to some minority group. The part is never greater than the whole; it is easier to square a circle than to contend otherwise. Civil servants should enjoy equal status regardless of their type of service. No service is unimportant; it is a disservice to good servants to pretend or provide that some services should be preferred or segregated. That would be the height of discrimination and the bottom of bad judgment. Equal justice under the law means more than that. To cajole for power is no virtue. The best assurance for acceptance of our document is that its provisions are above reproach of favoritism for some. Everything serious is difficult and civil service is serious. The problem challenging us now, on this amendment, should not be what may be popular or make us popular but what is right and proper. We hold within our hands that which is more precious to our people than personal popularity, power or political aggrandizement. It is called equality. No time is a good time to make differences amongst employees of our state or give more privileges or preferences to some. They should be an indivisible and undivided group because they are similarly situated from the standpoint of civil service protection. There should be no last, there should be no first amongst civil servants. Civil service remains...removes the civil servant from the political arena; it insulates him from the political pressures, but it does not relieve him of service to our state civilly. The allegiance of civil servants should be to the people; it is a poor servant who fears the voice of the people. The public servant who fears the people is to be feared. I applaud the system in New Orleans which was the first-born in our state and wish it for every municipality. I deplore the denials of any people the right to decide their destiny. I support the amendment because it is wholesomeness in government. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I simply want to make one or two very brief remarks. It has been said that this proposal has been offered to us numerous times. This proposal has not been offered to us previously. This is one which says the people of New Orleans themselves would decide whether they want to be...have their people, their representatives, their firemen, and their policemen in the city of New Orleans remain in a separate system or join the state system. I think that what we, as delegates not in the city of New Orleans, have to think about is how would we in our position, in our area, how we would react to such a proposal? Would we welcome it, or would we prefer someone in New Orleans to make the decision for us? This is the thing that I'm trying in my own mind to rectify. This is an opportunity, and I would bring it out even further, and I think they may do this if they will provide that within a certain period of time the people of New Orleans shall be offered the opportunity to make such a referendum. I said so when I first came in here; when I first spoke to you as a delegate, I was urgently in opposition to anything different from New Orleans and the rest of the state. I was a fundamental in that opinion. I have since found out, and I appreciate very much that this is a New Orleans function. I think that they should make the decision. I think the people of New Orleans are entitled to that, just as I think the people in my district are entitled to make certain sections. I think this is too far-reaching for us to dictate to the people of New Orleans what they shall do. I also fear that we are putting the constitution on the line if we choose one way or the other. But, by doing this, we are allowing them to make their own decisions. I thank you.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

convention already as to the uniformity of the system of fire and police civil service throughout the state in those municipalities over thirteen thousand. I ask you to reject this amendment. I know this sounds as a democratic process. But, let me suggest to you that if it were only those people that actually were affected working under the system voting, that would be one thing. But, the way this is, that's not the case at all. What you have is the resources of the entire city, the parish of Orleans, could get out and use in public literature and buy space on television and in the newspapers in this election, whereas, the employees could not because of lack of resources. The people would not be on an informed election. I ask you to let's stay with the proposal as we have it now and go forward. But, I ask you to reject this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'm going to talk on this addition about this election amendment--the one here. Now, we've gone over this same thing time and again. New Orleans ought to be like the rest of the state, a lot of us have been saying that in the legislature for years. We couldn't do it because they had about a fifth of the House members. This is a different ball game with the constitutional convention with a hundred and thirty-two members. New Orleans, as a rule, is looking after New Orleans and not thinking about the rest. Now, I want you to consider this amendment as I interpret it. It provides for an election within a year after the effective of this constitution and that means as to all cities over four hundred thousand. I'm not sure of it, but there is going to be a lawsuit later when other cities get to be four hundred thousand. If you are going to treat one way, you treat the others another way. If it turned out I was right on it that other cities, when they got to be four hundred thousand, could have an election on it, you're going to have a pretty silly situation. You would have Shreveport and other cities that because four hundred thousand that has been under this statewide firemen and police civil service for years and years and say it was working good, then there could be an election there in that city for it. I'm just saying we ought to just quit tampering with this thing. Get the police and firemen that are paid under the statewide civil service where they belong. Let's defeat this amendment.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jack, let me just get your position clear if I may. Are you saying that if we introduced an amendment saying that all cities over thirteen thousand would be mandated to hold this election within a year, you would be able to support it?

MR. JACK

Now, I didn't say under thirteen thousand. I'm thinking about this whole thing mainly as applying to cities over four hundred thousand.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, you didn't like singling out cities over four hundred thousand because that treats one city differently than the rest. I'm asking you to pick a figure which would treat all cities alike which you could support.

MR. JACK

I'm just trying to take up, Mrs. Zervigon, what's before this chamber. I don't quite follow you; you're giving me a hypothetical question or what?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I'm just asking you whether or not it's that we are singling out one city that you are opposed to it or whether you would be opposed to this referendum in any case? I'm saying municipal fire and police includes in it all cities over thirteen thousand and whether or not you could support an amendment, if I drew it, that said "all cities over thirteen thousand would have their own civil service system shall hold an election within a year after the effective date of this constitution." Could you support such an amendment?

MR. JACK

Mrs. Zervigon, I take up things as they come, but I want to answer you this way. I don't think this is the subject for voting by the electorate. People send us down here to do our duty. They send people to the legislature. Now, when the first civil service was passed back in 1940, the legislature is the one that passed those bills. They were not submitted to the people; it's not a type of thing that's submitted to the people. We didn't have voting on the others. You people that are opposed to the firemen in New Orleans and the police there being in the statewide civil service--firemen and police--you keep losing, so now you want to holler this old thing that's been hollered for years, "Let the people vote on it." Now, the people vote on certain things. This is one thing they have never voted on. The only time they did was when the civil service for the state employees got gutted in 1948 and I, along with others, coauthored those bills to put them in the constitution where they could not get gutted by the legislature. I'm not bad-mouthing the legislature. I was a member of it for twenty-four years. But, I know what pressure is and how people can vote there and a popular governor--what he can do. This isn't a subject matter to be submitted to the people--that's my opinion--you can have your opinion.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, the people did vote on those original amendments, didn't they? You can't amend the constitution?

MR. JACK

In '48? Yes, ma'am; that was the only way to handle it and they sure voted for it. I just don't....

MRS. ZERVIGON

One more thing: you were referring to a statewide system of fire and police; would you be for a unified statewide pay plan for fire and police?

MR. JACK

Look, you just try to just ask me what all in the future I would stand for, I take the things up as they come, Mrs. Zervigon....

[Previous Question ordered. Quorum Call:
95 delegates present and a quorum.]

Closing

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I would certainly appreciate your attention in this matter because, although, some members may think that this is a matter which is insignificant by comparison to the problems that we have statewide, the problem of civil service generally is certainly important. I believe, I firmly believe that the problems that each individual municipal and parish has is of also statewide importance. We should give equal dignity and consideration to those problems; give proper consideration to them and, with courage, give a proper vote that we in our hearts know is right. I would submit to you that if you had a private business, as has been aptly pointed out--a corporation, Mr. Roemer, or a small business, Mr. Willis, your law office, for instance--that you would hire, or fire, or promote, or demote on the merit system, not on seniority. Seniority is certainly a consideration and you don't want to lose those people who have experience, who may have some seniority. But, you don't put somebody at the top that is not the best man or the best lady to do the job--you use the merit system. Now, under state, municipal, and police, and fire system the test is given on a pass-fail basis. If fifteen take the test and the senior person is fifteenth on the list, they are the ones that get the original appointment--it is my understanding. However, under the merit system, you have the system of three: those who are the three highest who place on the examination are those that are considered for appointment to the position. This is the system that has existed in the city of New Orleans since 1942 and here we are today lightly considering that particular system which has been in existence for so long and at the twist of a hand which controls a button, which controls the light, which controls the decision--we are lightly taking that responsibility. I submit to you, ladies and gentlemen, that we should not haphazardly change anything in today's constitution but give thoughtful reflection to everything. As Mr. Roemer asked yesterday, I distinctly remember, you happened to be against an amendment because you asked the very question, "Why is the change necessary? Why is the change necessary?" and there has not been one iota of evidence which indicates that this particular change is necessary, has been no sound reasoning whatsoever given to this recommended change. Delegates, I cannot urge you strong enough, with every fiber of my being, that you adopt this amendment and give the people in the city of New Orleans, the people in the city of New Orleans, the opportunity to determine their own future for their own police and firemen. I urge adoption of this amendment.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Casey, I have two questions. Don't you think that democracy is bitter only when it is denied?

MR. CASEY

Absolutely, Mr. Willis.

MR. WILLIS

And, don't you think that counting heads by election is a better way to govern than breaking them or allowing them to be broken?

MR. CASEY

Mr. Willis, you have urged from the beginning of this convention, "We the people," and we can do no better job than let, "we the people of a local area, affecting only them, to decide what their future is." I know that's your philosophy, and I certainly submit that philosophy for decision by this convention.

MR. BERGERON

Tom, I just have a few questions. One of my questions is: This system has been in operation since 1942. Why is it in the same situation as it is now? By next question--I'll let you answer them both at one time--under our city system for police and firemen, we do not have a set date when promotional tests are to be given. Under the state system--you know which we are hearing all about the merit system it's fine--but there is no set date or period of time when the tests are to be given. Under the state system, every eighteen months a test must be given.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Bergeron, you are a delegate to this convention. You have a right through the various amendments and proposals in this article, if there are deficiencies--or if you think there are deficiencies, to recommend changes to those deficiencies. If you feel that set, periodic times for examinations are the biggest fault in our system of civil service, I think you can require, though some sort of amendment, that that be corrected. You have the opportunity, Mr. Bergeron, and you correct the error if there is.

MR. BERGERON

Tom, I'm just saying, the merit system can be the best system in the world. But if the tests are never implemented, it's hardly going to do any good for the system.

MR. CASEY

It may also be required by need. If there are not positions open, there may be not a necessity for the test.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Casey, could you tell me what the qualifications are that a man has to have for the position of superintendent of police, or the fire chief of the city of New Orleans?

MR. CASEY

It is my understanding, Mr. Flory, that that rests with the prerogative of the mayor, the chief executive of the city of New Orleans to make the appointment. Whether there are requirements set down in any law setting forth what guidelines he should follow, you might have to point those out to me because I don't know.

MR. FLORY

That, and the position of the assistant chief, both, are both political appointments, are they not?

MR. CASEY

If you wish to say that political means that an appointment rests in the prerogative of the mayor, or I noticed many delegates here have rested the future of the State of Louisiana through appointments with the governor. If that's political, yes, Mr. Flory.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 51-47. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment goes to (B), and it's sent up by... Delegate Vick.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, in the Dennery amendment, on page 2 of the Dennery amendment, line 12, after the words and punctuation "lieutenant governor," before the words "each mayor" insert the words "attorney general".

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is a technical amendment in its classic form. The attorney general was in...is in the Constitution of 1921 in this provision. He is in the committee's proposal. Mr. Dennery assures me that it was an oversight that he was left out. Unless there are questions, I ask your favorable adoption to restore what was a clerical mistake.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment sent up by Delegate Champagne. This goes to Paragraph (C). There needs to be a technical correction to the instructions of it. It reads "In the Dennery Amendment adopted on...adopted last Saturday, on page 2 of the amendment at the end of line 24, immediately after the word and punctuation "quorum," and here's where we need to add the insert, strike out "Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Champagne and adopted on the eleventh of December," and insert in lieu thereof the following sentence...

"No more than one appointed member shall be from each congressional district."

Explanation

MR. CHAMPAGNE

This is a technical amendment. As you will recall, you adopted the previous amendment by a vote of 63 to 13 which is the ratio of five to one. At that time, you all agreed it was a good amendment, in majority, and Mr. Flory questioned of me that if one of the ...one of the members would subsequently be elected, one or more, which we decided to do, the majority of this convention did elect one of the members of this commission. He asked would I have----- at that time, come back and make an amendment to say that no more than one appointed member shall be from each congressional district. This is what this amendment does. I think that it's a good amendment. I think it may have some weaknesses, but certainly it will strengthen, in the eyes of a lot of people in this state, that these appointments shall not be dominated by the colleges that exist in New Orleans, but shall be divided throughout the state. All of the organizations that I belong to statewide have representation on this basis. I think we should encourage representation to this committee. I offer your....I suggest that you adopt the amendment. If you don't do so, then you are going to require that the elected member would have to run, possibly, from only one district. This would be wrong.

I urge your adoption of the amendment. I should see no reason for opposition. I would answer any questions on the subject.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendments adopted: 93-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegates Flory and Dennery together.

Set of three amendments; in the Dennery amendment, page 3, end of line 11 in the Flory amendment, delete the word "to". At the beginning of line 12, delete the words "hundred fifty" and insert in lieu thereof "four hundred".

Amendment 2. On page 4 of the Dennery amendment, line 22 after the partial word "ceding", delete the remainder of the line and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"four hundred thousand."

I've got a third amendment makes the same change, on page 7, at the end of line 30.

MR. HENRY

It's an ecumenical amendment.

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, this is a joint amendment, you might say. Mr. Dennery said he wanted to ask me to put on there "under duress"—his name under duress. All it is, though, is a technical amendment where the figure, two hundred and fifty thousand appeared in the proposal. We've changed that figure in the other places to four hundred thousand. This just makes it coincide with those other provisions.

[Amendments adopted without objection.]

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments are sent up by Delegate Johnny Jackaon.

MR. HENRY

Is Mr. Jackaon here? Delegate Johnny Jackson?
Pass over it.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Chairman, I might say it's my understanding that these amendments were worked out between Mr. Jackson and the staff, and I understand there may be some controversy about them. They were technical and necessary in some measure to implement the amendment that Johnny Jackson did pass on a previous day.

MR. HENRY

Is anyone familiar with these amendments?
All right. Let's pass over them for a minute and maybe someone can get familiar with them.
Mr. Dennery, are you familiar with them?
Would you like to handle them?

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to correct an inconsistency now that there has been a previous amendment as far as the city commission in New Orleans is concerned. The provisions of the city act now say five instead of three members. The way...my amendment reads, it permits...it provides that three of the college presidents mentioned in the previous section, "which three members shall be selected by the governing body of the city, which is over four hundred thousand, shall be the appointing agents and make the nominations for the appointment." Mr. Jackson wants to change that so that there will be five members of other commissions as well as that in New Orleans.

Now, the second part of his amendment, however, is slightly different. I think it will accommodate the people from outside of New Orleans because it permits them to select any five universities in the State of Louisiana, whether they be public universities, or private universities. Since these presidents will nominate city officials, in other words, members of the City Civil Service Commission, the necessity of private universities is not as great as it was with the state. It will permit the individual communities to select those five universities that that community desires to select. I think it is a very sound amendment. It certainly should be changed to provide for five commissioners since the balance of the amendment deals with five commissioners, and I should think that the authority granted to the governing body of the particular city to select the five universities is a sound one.

Question

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Dennery, unlike the other systems, under the terms of this amendment, the governing body would be permitted to select any five institutions in the state?

MR. DENNERY

Of higher learning. Yes, sir.

MR. ALEXANDER

Is that right?
Then, if that governing body decides to discriminate and exclude certain institutions, it may do so. Is that correct?

MR. DENNERY

Reverend Alexander, I would agree with you, but I assume that Mr. Jackson considered that—since he drew this. I didn't see it before today.

MR. ALEXANDER

....You didn't see it?

MR. DENNERY

No. I mean I saw it when it was passed out, and Johnny had told me he was going to draw an amendment. He didn't mention that he was going to change the universities.

If any question is on that, Mr. Chairman, I think it would be better to wait until Mr. Jackson returns because he may have had reasons that he didn't tell me about.

MR. ALEXANDER

I think so. Unless there is some clarifying language, somewhere.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, I suggest that since there is a question about this, that we may pass over it until Mr. Jackson returns. I didn't think there was any problem.

Motion

MR. HAYNES

I move that we pass over this until Mr. Jackson is here.

MR. HENRY

Why don't we just withdraw it for the time being? Would that be fair enough, Mr. Haynes?
Would you mind doing that?

MR. HAYNES

I'll be glad to accept.

[Amendments withdrawn without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment goes to Paragraph (G) sent up by Delegate Jenkins.

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery amendment on page 4, line 34 of the text of the same, delete Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted by the convention on December 11 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Fitness, and experience, as"

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman and delegates, if you'd turn to page 4 of Mr. Dennery's amendment, at the bottom, you'll see where originally he provided that civil service appointments and promotions would be based on merit, efficiency, and fitness. Then Mr. Flory included the term, "length of service," so that there would be four bases for promotions and appointments. This amendment would delete Mr. Flory's terms, "length of service," and insert in lieu of that the word, "experience," so that you'd have it based on four things: merit, efficiency, fitness, and experience. Now there is a big difference between length of service on the one hand, and experience on the other. I think when the convention, if you will remember, by a very narrow vote, it was a forty-four to forty-four vote at first, voted in favor of length of service being included. I think the convention was thinking in terms of experience—that we were saying that experience will be a factor in promotions and appointments in civil service. Certainly, experience is now a factor, and should be a factor in civil service appointments and promotions.

But, length of service is something different. Length of service is strictly seniority. That pertains to whether or not a person has been working for the state for a certain length of time; and, not only for the state, but for a given department, and sometimes, even a given unit within a particular department. I think here, we're really talking about the guts of civil service when you talk about seniority. Civil service is a merit system. It has, in the past, been based on merit, efficiency, fitness and experience. It has not been based on length of service because length of service and experience are two different things. If there is one problem that I think many of us have with the article, it is this: the fact that we are including seniority in here.

You notice the way this provision stands, the Civil Service Commission could, by rule, put all emphasis on length of service. They could make civil service wholly based on seniority; in fact, if you would examine the contract entered into between the AFL-CIO and the highway department, you would see there that in promotions, a person would first of all have to be employed by the department in a given unit; and, if there were no other qualified person in that unit, then as long as he was qualified, he would have to be hired, and no outsider could be hired. In fact, they could not even go outside a given unit such as a gang--a work crew--for a promotion. Now, that's the sort of arbitrariness that we're faced with if seniority becomes a factor in civil service appointments or promotions, or, in fact, it would even be worse if seniority became the key thing that's emphasized.

So, what I'm saying is, let's take out "length of service" and put in "experience." That will allow us to go out and, if we can, get a man with ten years' experience or twenty years' experience; that that will outweigh the fact that a man has been serving with the state for a year or two. Experience is really the point if we are going to base it on merit--not length of service. So, I urge you to adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. ROY

Mr. Jenkins, could experience be a...an indefinable type of word, though, in that context? Or, are you talking about if a person came in from the army and had experience in a particular field, he would automatically have more fitness for the job than a person who had been with the department more number of years.

MR. JENKINS

No, I don't think that it's an arbitrary or indefinable thing. What they normally will say is, for example, they will consider the fact that a person has maybe ten years' experience working as a carpenter, if it's something like that. Or, two years' experience as a physician, or whatever it may be under the particular classification. But the Civil Service Commission does not require that that experience be just with the state. Now, state employment will count as experience, but it would not be in and of itself superior to other experience. You see, what...the way the thing stands right now, you could have a state employee with six months service, who could be given preference over a man with five years' experience outside of state service. That wouldn't be reasonable.

MR. ROY

No, but you could very easily have a man with ten years' service being bumped by somebody who has eleven years, in the army, of experience, couldn't you?

MR. JENKINS

Well, certainly, if all other factors were equal, that could be a possibility. But if there was any other difference in test scores, or whatever; efficiency, or other fitness characteristics, certainly I don't think that would apply. But remember, too, we are talking here about these people being in the top three. If they are that close together, they are all going to be in the top three, and the appointing authority can choose whomever the appointing authority wanted to.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment to say to you that what we are talking about are factors, and factors only, which civil service takes into consideration in the...promotional field. Now, when you talk about experience versus length of service, I think everybody understands what length of service refers to. But, when you get into the area of experience--and certainly the state wants the experience--I don't mean that, but let's take for example, and we've had a number of these happening in recent years--not only here, but everywhere else--where a man, let's say, is retired from industry; or let's say he is retired from the federal government, then, in a particular field, what Mr. Jenkins is saying is that he wants that person to have credit and consideration for that experience even though he may be on a twenty thousand dollar a year retirement from the federal government, in the state employment here. What you are doing by that is depriving the faithful servants of this state, who have given their life and dedication of service to this state. Now, all I had said the other day, and I've had some conversation with people in civil service; I know what they do with regard to length of service today, they do give credit, they do give consideration to length of service. All we were doing the other day was constitutionalizing what is the actual practice in the Civil Service System today. I am told that in practically every system to my knowledge, that consideration is given to length of service; so that I ask you not to substitute the word "experience," and leave the word "length of service" in there, because everybody knows exactly what that means; and, it refers to the years of length of service that person may have had in his particular position, or in his particular employment with the State of Louisiana or with a local governmental subdivision. I think it's extremely important, as a factor in keeping the dedicated employees that we have in this state. So, this is one of the incentives that they have to retain in state employment, is to know that they're going to be given some consideration, if they give their life to state government--that they'll be given some consideration when a promotion comes about, in order to be considered for that position. I ask you to reject this amendment.

Questions

MR. ROY

Mr. Flory, where you have length of service in a particular position, would you agree with me that that is something that we could all understand since it deals with a particular work project? Would you agree with that?

MR. FLORY

Absolutely.

MR. ROY

Now, when you talk about the word "experience" though, as for example Mr. Jenkins used with respect to a carpenter, it could be that we'd be looking for a finished carpenter--a guy who does cabinet work--and the commission could, in its discretion, say that a rough-out carpenter had the experience equivalent to ten years; which would bump a guy in length of service who maybe had only three years as a finished carpenter. Isn't that....

MR. FLORY

That's correct, because he may serve ten years as a carpenter, and still not be able to be a carpenter superintendent as it requires him to read blueprints, supervise people, etc., yet he has the ten years' experience.

MR. ROY

The point is....

MR. FLORY

But, if he were...had ten years as length of service as that superintendent, in that particular employment of the state, doing that type of work, then that could be considered.

MR. ROY

The point is that the word "experience" will be at the whim and discretion of some people who may want to favor a guy and say he's got the experience over somebody who's had a lot of length of service.

MR. FLORY

That's absolutely correct; particularly, let's take the electrical field where you said that you had experience in the electrical industry. Well, there are hundreds of different positions in the electrical industry, even though he may have basic knowledge of electricity, and yet he couldn't qualify for a particular position as an electrician or a classification of that type. So, there is a great deal of difference between actual experience in a field, and the length of service in the particular employment.

I ask you to reject the amendment.

MR. WEISS

Delegate Flory, would you envision an equalization-type formula which would include merit, efficiency, fitness, length of service and experience in this type of selection process whereby merit is the predominant factor?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Weiss, if I understand your question correctly, I have no quarrel with just adding the word "experience," but leaving in there as a consideration, the man's length of service. Because as I've said before, this is one of the strong factors in keeping good, faithful employees in state government. But, I think to take out the words "length of service" and substitute the word "experience" is detrimental to this provision of the constitution.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I want to read to you briefly from the agreement entered into earlier this year between the AFL-CIO and the Department of Highways so that we can show, really, the issue in question here. Take the question of promotions; Article VIII of that agreement says this:

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

"It is the policy, wherever practicable to fill vacancies or new jobs by promotion of employees from the next lower level job class on the basis of their, one; seniority, and second; qualifications."

Now, listen to this further. "Any vacancy in a parish maintenance gang below the highway maintenance superintendent level shall be filled by promotion of the best qualified employee with the greatest departmental seniority, working within the work unit where the vacancy exists. If there are no qualified employees (in other words, if nobody passes the test) in the work unit, employees working in other work units within that maintenance unit will next be considered." In other words, if there's anybody with any length of service, if he is...meets the bare, minimum requirements, he's got to get the job. I think that's the goal we are talking about here. Let me show you just how far that goes. It even goes so far as to say, employees shall not be transferred from one work unit or gang to another work unit or gang for the purpose of promotion."

The whole concept of making length of service--or seniority--as one of these standards, is contrary to the basic philosophy of civil service which is based on merit. Now, insofar as length of service is part of someone's experience, it's total, overall experience, sure it has to do with merit. But the fact that a person has merely served, to give him advantages over others who have more experience, is illogical and can only lead to a deterioration of our merit system in this state. Experience includes length of service, but is not limited to length of service. It includes many other things. Let's--so often in our discussion, we have got off the track. The train we're supposed to be riding is the one that says we get the best qualified people we can to serve the people of this state in state employment. That's why we should base it on merit factors such as experience, and not length of service.

So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Woody, what did the old constitution, or the present civil service provisions read in regard length of service? Anything?

MR. JENKINS

No, I think it was silent on that.

MR. ROEMER

Aren't what you are trying to do is to insure that merit will have as great a place in the civil service promotion regulations as possible? Is that not true?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, really what I'm trying to do is to see that there's no drastic alteration in civil service. It's been based on merit before. I don't want to see that changed and make it a seniority system in any way, shape, or form.

MR. ROEMER

In addition, in your opinion, isn't it true, that you're trying to draw out, to make clear to us, that the relationship between merit and experience is a much closer one than the relationship between merit and length of service? Is that not also true?

MR. JENKINS

That's right, Buddy. I think when the convention acted on this before, they thought they were putting experience in there because we didn't talk about the subject that much. But, length of service is not broad enough. It ought to be experience.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, didn't you say that provision read that the man with the most...the best qualifications, and the most length of service would be filling the position? Isn't that what you said?

MR. JENKINS

That was one part of it. Of course, that in and of itself is ambiguous because, unless you have a man that meets both those things, it wouldn't be relevant. But, later on it says that promotion shall be based on the fact that a person meets the seniority requirements. Because if there's any qualified person that meets the bare minimum standards, who's presently working, he has to be promoted ahead of all the others.

MR. FLORY

That's where there is no people available that are....

MR. HENRY

The gentleman's exceeded his time.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 44-48. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments goes to Paragraph (J), sent up by Delegates Newton and Flory:

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery amendment, on page 6, line 21, of said Dennery amendment, at the end of the last line in the Floor Amendment Proposed by Delegate Jenkins and adopted by the convention on December 12, immediately after the words "private organization" change the period "." to a semicolon ";" and add the following: "provided that this shall not prohibit any state agency, department or political subdivision from contracting with an employee organization with respect to wages, hours, grievances, working conditions or other conditions of employment in a manner not prohibited by any civil service law or valid rule or regulation of a commission."

[Motion to pass over the amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments, then, is sent up by Delegate Alphonse Jackson, Delegate Lanier, and Delegate Dennery. Relates to Paragraph (?).

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery amendment, on page 8, line 34, immediately after the word and punctuation "employees," insert the following: "except teaching and professional staffs, and administrative officers of schools,"

Explanation

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, this amendment clarifies the questions that were raised this morning by way or for the decision relative to whether or not school teachers would be required to become a part of civil service by a local governing authority. I think that we've worked it out, and I think that this language clarifies the question, and I would move the adoption.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments would be the Newton amendments we just passed over, and the distribution copies just arrived here, and the pages will have them passed out in just a minute. Amendments sent up by Delegates Newton and Flory, just read.

Explanation

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I, bring this amendment to the floor because I think possibly yesterday we went a little too far when we adopted the Jenkins amendment. Now, I think that you would agree with me that no union should be allowed to have what we call a union shop in this state, which would require union membership as a condition of employment. Originally, I supported...I was in favor of the Jenkins amendment when he first brought it forward because I did not want any possibility of the requirement of a union shop in the state. However, I do believe that under the proper conditions, that is--I don't want to have to set those out here either--but, I do believe that if the employees of a proper bargaining unit want to have the union to be their bargaining agent, then I think they have that right, and I think that the union has the right to be that bargaining agent. Now, this amendment is designed to be assured that there is a possibility that the union could be bargaining agents for proper bargaining units within civil service. I'll be glad to yield to any questions; if there are serious technical questions on it, I would ask Mr. Avant to come forward.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Newton, can state employees collectively bargain on wages and hours at present?

MR. NEWTON

I'm sorry, I can't hear you.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Can state employees collectively bargain as to wages and hours at present?

MR. NEWTON

Mary, I asked that very same question, and it's my understanding, as far as state employees, civil service employees, no. But, that there are unions that are bargaining agents and bargain for hours and wages with some of the city employees and things of this nature. Yes, that is being done, in certain instances.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I know that that's not true in my city. They may not bargain for wages and hours, but...

MR. NEWTON

No, and I don't believe they would be able to under this proposal, either, Mary; it's my understanding that they would not.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, tell me why the words "wages and hours" are in there, then.

MR. NEWTON

Because if we under some statutory civil service systems, it would be necessary to include this language because that is the way they are presently operating.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, it's your opinion that in some of the other city civil service systems, they may presently bargain for wages and hours.

MR. NEWTON

That is my understanding, Mary.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Newton, isn't it correct that nothing in this proposal applies to any of those systems, that this applies only to the state and cities over four hundred thousand, mandatorily? Isn't that correct?

MR. NEWTON

Mary, I'll have to check on this a minute, and try to answer your question then.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Because I believe if you want to change those statutes, the way to do it would be statutorially, and that what you're doing now is making a substantial change in the state civil service system.

MR. NEWTON

I don't have the Jenkins amendment in front of me right now, but I do believe this language is necessary.

MR. DREW

Autley, the way you have this amendment drawn, it does not in any way, take into consideration the wishes of the employees, does it? It's strictly the right of a employee organization to say a union, to enter into a contract with the department of the state, without the employees having anything to say about it one way or the other. You are ratifying that type of procedure by this amendment, aren't you?

MR. NEWTON

This amendment does not say anything about the requirements, the procedures for setting up the bargaining unit, no.

MR. DREW

But, what you are doing is you are granting the right for a political organization to enter into the contract with a department to represent its employees without ever consulting the employees in any manner. Isn't that what it does?

MR. NEWTON

I don't think that that's what this does. I think the legislature could set up the proper procedures, or the Civil Service Commission, for determining how these things would be worked out.

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Newton, would you please explain to me again how this does not provide for a union shop?

MR. NEWTON

This does not...

MR. TOBIAS

Doesn't this, in effect, require it? I mean that's the way I read it.

MR. NEWTON

No, this does not require a union shop. A union shop requires that the membership in the union is a condition of employment. There are other provisions in the Denney proposal which would prohibit this.

MR. TOBIAS

Let me ask you this: What does the phrase...what is an "other condition of employment"? Couldn't that apply to anything? In other words, couldn't the state agency get together with the union, and say, "This is a condition of employment?"

MR. NEWTON

I don't think that the state agency could do any such thing, Mr. Tobias. I think it could come from the legislature; I think it could happen. It could happen now.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Newton, as I read this in conjunction with the Jenkins amendment, which was adopted, it seems to me that it has the effect of completely negating the prior provision against discrimination because it first says you can't discriminate, and then it goes on to say that provided this shall not prohibit and so forth. But, in the circumstances, wouldn't you think...

MR. NEWTON

I don't follow that, Gordon, at all. It says that you can't discriminate, but that you can have a contract. Now, if you think discrimination is having a bargaining agent and a bargaining union, well, then, I hope it does.

MR. KEAN

My question is that the first part says you can't discriminate, and then you say that "provided this shall not prohibit any state agency from having a contract with respect to these items, not prohibited by any civil service law." So, it seems to me that if you had a contract, you could, under those circumstances, discriminate; could you not?

MR. NEWTON

I disagree. I disagree. This is an exception to the so-called discrimination rule. I regret the necessity to bring this forward, but I think that the Jenkins amendment went too far, and I think we've just gone completely overboard on it.

MR. DENNEY

Mr. Newton, this...the way this language reads, it says, "in a manner not prohibited by any civil service law," and so forth. Now, what we have so far adopted is a provision that the commission shall fix the pay plan, and the pay plan is then approved by the governor after the legislature has appropriated the necessary funds. So, that is no prohibition against the negotiation, and yet, how can you provide for a negotiation for wages and hours when those are fixed by the commission? It seems to me that this is a direct conflict with the theory of the law, not only as it stands today, but as we have thus far adopted a civil service law. Furthermore, would this not permit a negotiated contract which would require length of service to be ninety-nine percent, and merit, efficiency, and fitness to be one percent? Would that also not cut at the heart of the merit system?

MR. NEWTON

I certainly don't think so because it says, "not inconsistent with any valid..."

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. DENNERY

No, no, no, it doesn't say "not inconsistent"; it says "not prohibited," and that's what the question is I'm asking you. Why should you use the language "prohibited"?

MR. NEWTON

I'm sorry, Moise, I didn't follow you.

MR. DENNERY

Your amendment says, "in a manner not prohibited." Now, you just said it's not inconsistent, but that's an altogether different word from "prohibited." Were it "inconsistent" I might be able to go along with it.

MR. NEWTON

Well, not at this time.

MR. JENKINS

I'm still not clear on what "other conditions of employment" means. Does that mean like that a condition of employment might be whether or not a person is in a union?

MR. NEWTON

Well, of course, I think that your amendment would keep that from happening, Mr. Jenkins.

MR. JENKINS

Well, but you...is this intended to be an exception to my amendment, or a clarification of it, or what?

MR. NEWTON

It's supposed to be an exception to your amendment.

MR. JENKINS

Well, then, if it's an exception, this would be an exception to it, that you might require people to be in a union. Wouldn't that be an exception to it?

MR. NEWTON

Well, like I said, I told Harmon a minute ago, there are other provisions in the Dennery amendment which would prohibit, in effect, membership in a union being a condition of employment.

MR. JENKINS

Which provisions are those?

MR. NEWTON

I don't know; I don't have it in front of me. I talked to Moise about this yesterday, and he assures me that it is in there. I also have assurances of Mr. Flory, that he would not make any effort to change that provisions.

MR. JENKINS

You mean, in other words, we're supposed to...Mr. Flory's not going to be around, maybe, for fifty years, you know, writing contracts for state employees.

MR. NEWTON

I'm talking about in this convention, to change the prohibition against membership in the union as a condition of employment.

MR. JENKINS

Well, aren't wages, hours, and grievance procedures all established by civil service rules?

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Jenkins, I explained that a minute ago. It's my understanding that they are not in certain instances of, in some city employments, and I'm not terribly familiar with this. Mr. Avant is, and I'm sure he could answer that question.

MR. JENKINS

Well, why don't you, make this, then, applicable just to city civil service, not to state, if there...?

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I ask you to adopt this amendment. It does not do what some people have, in their line of questioning, attempted to convey to the convention that it would do. Let me call your attention to the language of the amendment adopted yesterday, proposed by Mr. Jenkins, when it says that "no rule, regulation, or practice of the commission, any agency, or department, or any officer of the state, or any political subdivision shall favor or discriminate upon the basis of membership or nonmembership." Now, what that says, in effect, is, as I tried to convey to the convention yesterday, would prohibit me from signing any type of an agreement, even though they may be willing to sign such an agreement covering certain conditions of work. Bear in mind, again, that what the Jenkins amendment applies to is both those employees in civil service and those employees outside of civil service, so that, I'd have some contracts in existence today, in those subdivisions that do not have civil service. Consequently, it's necessary that we place into the contract the hours of work, the rates of pay that are negotiated between the employees and the employer. But, we said in the final conclusion there of that amendment, anything that's not prohibited...employment, in a manner not prohibited by any civil service law, or valid rule or regulation of a commission, so that if you have a Civil Service Commission, and they have rules to set the working conditions, and the city council, for example, set the salaries, under the procedure, this would not affect that at all. The only type of a contract that I could sign would be those items not covered and mandated by civil service. But, when you adopted an amendment yesterday, you covered both civil service and non-civil service, so that what you have done by the adoption of the Jenkins amendment yesterday is prohibited me from signing any type of a contract or an agreement. Now, I don't believe this convention has the authority, or would try to abrogate contracts, even those that we have in existence today. But, further yet, are those in existence, that might come into existence in the future, particularly those where you do not have civil service. But, under the Jenkins amendment, and we researched this quite thoroughly, it's our consideration that you have prohibited us from signing any type of an agreement when you say that they cannot favor a group by the signing of a contract. That, then, would be prohibited. So, I would ask you to adopt this amendment. I did not delete, or did I attempt to delete, the Jenkins amendment. I understood yesterday, and Mr. Jenkins in his line of questioning, and it was statements made from this microphone, no one wanted to stop us from making legitimate contracts. Yet, that's exactly what, I think, the amendment did do, although I do not believe that it was the intention of the author to do that, so that I ask you to adopt the amendment, to clarify, to mean exactly what I think the intentions were. I'll be happy to answer any question, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Flory, under Subsection (J), the rule-making authority of the commission, provides there that the commission and the commission alone shall have authority to adopt a uniform pay and classification plan, and regulate employment conditions, and so forth. What could an agreement between an employee organization and a state agency agree to with respect to those things?

MR. FLORY

Primarily, grievance procedures, some orderly process whereby they could process their grievances.

MR. JENKINS

Well, now, there is a method of appeals set forth under Subsection (L), appeals to rulings of the commission, and also of...there are appeals procedures for people who are discriminated against, or whatever. Don't those cover grievances?

MR. FLORY

No, we're talking about everyday grievances that never get to the appeal level, and never get to the commission. This is grievances within the day-to-day operation of state government within a particular department or agency.

MR. JENKINS

Well, then, inasmuch as pay scales and working conditions and so forth, are covered by civil service...

MR. FLORY

I couldn't contract for that under any circumstances.

MR. JENKINS

So, then, you don't need that language. Why don't you just say "grievances," then?

MR. FLORY

Because your amendment covered both civil service and non-civil service workers, Mr. Jenkins.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Flory, I asked Mr. Newton the question, is there any reason why that word "prohibited" in the second to last sentence couldn't be changed to "inconsistent"?

MR. FLORY

I didn't understand you. I'm sorry, Mr. Dennery.

MR. DENNERY

In the second to last sentence of your amendment, you provide "in a manner not prohibited by any civil service law, or valid rule or regulation." Would that be just as satisfactory for your purposes if it said, "in a manner not inconsistent with"?

MR. FLORY

No, I think in all fairness, Mr. Dennery, what we're talking about, of those standards and rules and regulations that are former rules and regulations that are of a Civil Service Commission. Now, when you get into the term "inconsistent therewith," of course, you get into an area of question, and consequently, it winds up in court. We took this from the same concept that Local Government used in their article, and said that they could do it unless it was prohibited by general state law, so that, I think it's in the same concept that we have adopted in the other articles of this convention.

MR. DENNERY

Well, what you are suggesting, then, is that a Civil Service Commission could then adopt a rule which would say that anything inconsistent with the rules of the civil service law is prohibited. So, you achieve the same results. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

I'm not an attorney, but I'll take your word for it and all the contracts, as I stated yesterday, that we signed that cover classified employees has a stipulation: nothing in that contract can be inconsistent or in conflict with state or constitutional civil service.

MR. DENNERY

Well, that's why, Mr. Flory, I had made the suggestion. If it were possibly for you to change the word "prohibited" to "inconsistent," it seems to me that this amendment would be satisfactory, but otherwise, I'm afraid I'd have to argue against it.

MR. FLORY

I'd have to consult...get some legal advice, as I'm not an attorney, as you well know, and you are, so you have me at a disadvantage in this particular instance.

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Flory, could you explain to me the phrase "other conditions of employment"? In other words, the way your phrase reads, it says "provided that this shall not prohibit any state agency," etc., "from contracting with an employee organization with respect to other working conditions." What's an "other working condition"?

MR. FLORY

Well, other conditions of employment might be that; let's take in a...this is now relative to the noncivil service area, particularly where they had to report that they're working, let's say, in a parish road system, and that the people required that they report at the barn every morning, and yet they worked twenty miles away, that'd be one thing. But, if, on the other hand, they required that the job was twenty miles away, and they required those people to drive their own car that twenty miles, back that twenty miles without any compensation, this would be a negotiable item. This would be another condition of employment. That's just one example.

MR. DENNIS

Mr. Flory, as I read your amendment, with regard to civil service workers, all it does...it doesn't give you the right to get the state to enter a contract in violation of civil service rules; it simply gives you the right to sit down and talk with the state agencies, ideally, before the rules are passed, so that they will know what the employees feel about this.

MR. FLORY

That's correct. Gives me only the right, Judge, to sign a contract that's in conformity with civil service. It says I can't find anything in contrary to it.

MR. DENNIS

As I read Mr. Jenkins' amendment, you might not be able to do that, if you didn't have your amendment.

MR. FLORY

That's correct, and that's the reason for the amendment, to make it clear.

[Quorum Call: 92 delegates present and a quorum. Amendment withdrawn without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The change is on the second to last line of the text: strike out the words "prohibited by", and insert in lieu thereof, "inconsistent with this constitution or", so, it would read, "provided that this shall not prohibit any state agency, department of political subdivision, from contracting with an employee organization with respect to wages, hours, grievances, working conditions or other conditions of employment in a manner not inconsistent with this constitution or any civil service law, or valid rule or regulation of a commission."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, delegates, at the suggestion of Mr. Dennery, when he was at the microphone, take out the word "prohibited," and add in its place "inconsistent with," and also they had asked that we put in there "not inconsistent with this constitution or any civil service law, or valid rule or regulation of a commission." I think this takes care of most of the objections that I know of, and I would ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Gordon, what about the objections to "hours and wages" being in there? Would you like to address a few remarks to that?

MR. FLORY

Well, as I said earlier, Mr. Roemer, all this applies to, actually, at the present time, if you have a civil service system, and the commission establishes those conditions, those hours, those wages, itself, with the approval of the governing authority. What we're referring to is necessary, due to the adoption and the language of the Jenkins amendment where it applies to noncivil service, so that when we're talking about negotiating for hours, wages, working conditions, etc., we're talking basically about those conditions of noncivil service personnel.

MR. ROEMER

I understand. One final question: in regard to the sentiments of the employees themselves, what's your...how does what we do in your amendment affect that; for instance, Delegate Drew asked you from this mike, if we adopted this amendment, the one prior to yours, we would in effect, negate the wishes, perhaps, of employees who desired not to belong to a union. Would your amendment affect that, their wishes, in any way?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, nor would I want to impose upon those who don't want to belong, a requirement that they do belong. This strictly leaves it up to the individual and that's where it ought to belong.

MR. ROEMER

Would this allow...your amendment allow the commission to bargain or to determine a sole bargaining agent, and deny the right to the individual employees to try to get representatives from another bargaining agent?

MR. FLORY

Well, first, let me say this that the commission, I don't believe that you'd conduct negotiations with the commission. I think it'd have to be with the department head or with the municipality, or whoever it may be, so that you wouldn't actually negotiate with the commission, But, you could not negotiate on those items or any items which were contrary to the rules and regulations of a commission.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. ROEMER

All right. But, let me make my question more specific, then. Could a department determine that they wish that their employees have, as their sole bargaining agent, Union XYZ? Could a group of employees in that same department determine that they wished to have another bargaining agent, and so have that agent? Would you prevent that?

MR. FLORY

I think the Jenkins amendment allowed that, and I don't change that, but I think he also... what he did do was prohibit me or anybody from signing an agreement, and that was a necessity for this.

MR. ROEMER

Thank you.

MR. FLORY

I ask for the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, does this mean that with regard to noncivil service employees that some state employees or local employees could be required to join a union because of a contract entered into between a political subdivision and an employee organization?

MR. FLORY

I'm not sure, Mr. Jenkins, what the situation would be if there is no law on the subject, where you don't have a Civil Service Commission, etc. As you know, there is at this time in the Congress, legislation pending which would bring governmental employees under Taft... under the National Labor Relations Act. Whether that comes about or not, I don't know. That's something for the future. But, I'm not sure, legally speaking, whether you could or could not in the absence of any prohibition at this time.

MR. JENKINS

So, in other words, let's take, like, say, the East Baton Rouge Parish Sheriff's Department. Those deputies, I don't believe, are under any form of civil service. If the sheriff decided to enter into a contract with, say, an affiliate of the AFL-CIO, making it a prerequisite for employment, that a deputy would have to belong to the AFL-CIO. You're not sure whether or not...

MR. FLORY

Oh, no, I'm positive he can't do that.

MR. JENKINS

Why not?

MR. FLORY

Because a closed shop's illegal.

MR. JENKINS

Under what?

MR. FLORY

Under the federal law.

MR. JENKINS

As it pertains to governmental employees?

MR. FLORY

I think the closed shop's illegal, period.

MR. JENKINS

Under Taft-Hartley?

MR. FLORY

Yea, sir.

MR. JENKINS

Well, Taft-Hartley doesn't apply to governmental units.

MR. FLORY

I think when you're talking about a closed shop, that's a illegal. You said it as a prerequisite for employment, and...

MR. JENKINS

Well, if the Taft-Hartley doesn't apply to governmental units, then...

MR. FLORY

I'm not sure it doesn't in that particular case, Mr. Jenkins, and that's the reason I asked you before, but I think under the federal law, you cannot sign a closed shop agreement.

MR. JENKINS

But, that's only for private employment, is it not?

MR. FLORY

I can't answer that, but categorically.

MR. JENKINS

Well, can you categorically tell us that if the sheriff's department systematically discriminated against nonunion deputies, or would that be legal?

MR. FLORY

I think it would be in violation of the constitution and your amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DREW

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I have to rise in opposition to this amendment, and if you'll give me a few moments of your time, I think I can show you a sound basis for opposing it. The criticism with the... that has been made against the Jenkins' amendment which was adopted was that it might prohibit a union from representing state employees. There is nothing in the Jenkins' amendment that would do that. The only thing the Jenkins' amendment does is says that no agency or department shall have a rule or regulation which will discriminate or favor an individual because he does or does not belong to a labor union, and that's all it says. That's the Jenkins' amendment right there. Now, I have been told by one man in particular, and a couple of them back of the rail, that I'm anti-union. Well, let me set you straight on that. I am not anti-union, but we have a little different idea of what a union is. In my book the union is those men and women who are paying the dues to that union organization. That is the union to me, not the men sitting behind the rail in this House in the convention here today. Now, let's get on to the amendment under consideration. Under this amendment, do you know who's been left out? Do you know who's been left out? The most important person involved in the whole thing, and that is the employees. The employees are totally disregarded, and if this amendment is adopted, either Mr. Flory's union--or if some other union came in here--they could enter into contracts with every agency and department of this state government without the consent of one employee of that department and be the bargaining agent for the employees of that department. Under this amendment, it constitutionalizes the authority to enter into a labor contract without ever consulting the important people--the working men and women of the state. That's exactly what this amendment does. I think if you adopt this amendment, you will have done more violence to this whole proposal. Let's take a look--as I said--at the people who are ultimately and most importantly involved, and that is the employees, the members or those who may not care to be members. The Jenkins' amendment does not prohibit joining a union. It says that if you join one you cannot be discriminated against. Likewise, it says if you join one, you cannot be given favors because you belong to a union, and that's all it says. Let's take a look at the welfare of the people, the employees, and defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I agree fully with what Mr. Drew just stated. I would point out this: the phrase, "other conditions of employment," under the terms of this if there is no constitutional prohibition, law or regulation of a commission prohibiting a condition of employment that would say that you cannot become an employee unless you're a member of a union, then that would be perfectly proper under this. In other words, it allows a state agency, or the head of that state agency, to conspire--and I regret to have to use that word--but to conspire to restrict employees to those who are members of a union. That's a condition of employment. That's a condition before they can be employed. It's as simple as that.

Further Discussion

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm going to ask you to do just two things...three things--listen and read and think. Now, the Jenkins' amendment, if you will recall during the course of the debate on that amendment yesterday, various people who were proponents of that amendment were asked not once but several times, as I recall, if it was the intent of that amendment and the purpose of that amendment to outlaw any type of collective bargaining contract --just do away with them; make them unconstitutional --and time and time again they said no, that's not what we want. That's not what we want. Well, if you read that amendment carefully--very carefully--I think that you will be forced to come to the conclusion that there is a very substantial likelihood that that is exactly what it does. So, acting in complete good faith and taking these gentlemen at their word, I tried to prepare an amendment that would eliminate that possibility and yet not disrupt the idea of civil service or do anything that what appeared to be the majority of the sentiment of this convention didn't want to do. So, I ask you to simply read this amendment. This simply says that this Jenkins' amendment "shall not prohibit any state agency, department or political subdivision from contracting with an employee organization--all right, now look down here--"in a manner not" prohibited by "any civil service law or valid rule or regulation of a commission." Now, all of these...now we changed that. We thought--again in good faith, I did--that if we took out that language "not prohibited by" and said "in a manner not inconsistent with this constitution or any civil service law or valid rule or regulation of a commission," that that would satisfy the objections, but it didn't. But, let's look at what we have done and the way it reads now. They can make a contract only so long as it is "not inconsistent"--(1)--"with any provision of the constitution," (2)"any civil service law or valid rule or regulation of a commission." Now, that means either the State Commission or any city commission. Now, I just want to ask you in all candor and all honesty and all fairness, do you for one minute think that the Civil Service Commission or the legislature is going to allow these dire things that people seem to be concerned about to happen? Certainly not! Absolutely not! This amendment has one purpose and one purpose only, and that is: to permit and recognize the right of collective bargaining insofar as it is not inconsistent with the constitution or the law or any "rule or regulation of a civil service commission." Now, I want to tell you something else while I'm up here. I happen to know a little bit about these contracts that we've been referring to. I'd like for you to read them. Practically every section, every clause, every page--not once, but fifty times--says "insofar as is permitted by civil service rules and regulations; so long as not in conflict with civil service rules and regulations." Every single one of those contracts before it's ever entered into is submitted to civil service, and their opinion is sought as to whether there is any provision that conflicts, and do they have any objections thereto. Now, those are facts, not fiction.

Further Discussion

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is not the time for rhetoric, and I'm going to be as precise and brief as I can be. Yesterday when Mr. Jenkins came up with his first amendment to this section--the little short, one-sentence version--I voted for it because in reading that I could see that there was no way that collective bargaining was prohibited. Contrary to Mr. Flory's opinion, and others, I said you all are seeing bugger-bears when there are none there. There's nothing wrong with this; it's innocuous. It was defeated. The next time Mr. Jenkins came up with the amendment, that is sought to be amended at this time, I read it more closely. Gordon Flory got up here and said on several occasions, in his opinion, it violated the concept of collective bargaining. When he was asked to explain it, he really couldn't because it was hard to see. I sat back and I started reading it. Finally, when you all moved for the question, I realized that, in my judgment, seven out of ten times I would think a court would conclude that it did prohibit collective bargaining to the extent that when Woody closed, I asked him from the mike "don't you believe that in the end a person who refuses to join a union--and by which union's efforts, a contract is entered into with the Civil Service Commission for certain job work conditions and all--that he could get up and vitiate that contract, not on the basis that he was not a member of the union, but on the basis that this language when you read it says that he can claim some type of discrimination; that is: he says this union agent bargained certain conditions for me which you civil service people concluded and agreed to and with which I disagree; therefore, I'm discriminated against.

Now, in my judgment I think it would knock out collective bargaining, but Woody and all the folks who voted for it said that's not our intention. So, Mr. Avant comes with something that clearly, on its face, all it does is say we will make sure that Mr. Jenkins' amendment yesterday does not abrogate the idea or the concept of collective bargaining, and that's all we're dealing with here because it says that any time this agent is dealing with anything that's "inconsistent with this constitution," with "any rule or regulation of the commission," it will not be tolerated. At that point, I ask you, what is the concern of those, who said they were not opposed to collective bargaining, asking you to vote against this? I ask you to vote for it because, in my judgment as an attorney and in good faith, I believe that Mr. Jenkins' amendments yesterday--even though he didn't mean for it to--will preclude collective bargaining being engaged with the Civil Service Commission by anyone, and they will have a right to get it knocked out. If I am wrong--if I am wrong as a matter of law--then, what's wrong with this particular provision that allows specifically for collective bargaining. I ask you, I urge you, that, on the basis of that, to please vote for this amendment because it does nothing more than clarify what we did yesterday; and that is what you thought, clearly, you were doing yesterday; and there's no mistake about it at this time. Thank you.

Questions

MR. DREW

Chris, by the Jenkins' amendment merely stating that an agency or commission cannot discriminate whether you belong to a union or don't belong to a union, how do you interpret that as prohibiting collective bargaining?

MR. ROY

Very easily, Harmon. I say that when that employee--that one out of a hundred--who says that you, my employer, the civil service people entered into a contract with all these other people, and you provided that I'm going to have to wear safety equipment on the job because that's what the collective agents bargained for, that's discriminating against me; and I don't want to do it. Now, let me say, Harmon, I'm not absolutely positive that a court would interpret it that way, but it's my judgment that the language, as you read it, says that, that he could contend he's discriminated against as a result of your bargaining with the particular group of people that he did not belong to.

MR. DREW

I think you're stretching it real far, Chris, when you go that far on it, but let me ask you this: do you know of any constitutional provision or any rule of any commissions or agencies in this state that prohibit unionization or collective bargaining?

MR. ROY

No, I don't, but there's no such provision as the Jenkins' provision in any present constitutional provision either.

MR. DREW

But do you think that the fact that it says that you can't favor or discriminate just because they do or do not belong to a union, do you still say that would prohibit unionization?

MR. ROY

That's not what it says. It says that the one individual who does not belong, who says that he's discriminated against because the contract was entered into between the union people and the employer, in his judgment, disfavors him. He doesn't like it so he knocks out or vitiates the whole agreement.

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Roy, I know you're very well versed on this amendment and civil service and so forth. I'm trying to find out this: my clerk of court back home and my assessor's office is not involved with any kind of civil service. According to how I interpret this... in other words, a union can walk in there and tell these employees that's a condition of employment; is that correct, sir?

MR. ROY

No.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, what is the facts, then?

MR. ROY

This, Mr. Chatelain, deals with our present civil service

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

provision that we passed, which is Mr. Dennery's work, and does not deal with clerks of court and what have you.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, you say here that any political subdivision...it "shall not prohibit any political subdivision," Mr. Roy, insofar as if it's not "inconsistent with this constitution." It seems to me like--I'm just an old country boy--but it seems to me like you're opening the doors to the clerks of court throughout this state and to also the assessors' office to move in and say look we want to bring civil service to you.

MR. ROY

Well, no, the civil service...the local governmental body--as I understand this last amendment that was passed--would have to...the clerks of court provided that they couldn't be forced to go into civil service.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, it's been said that the amendment adopted yesterday somehow precludes collective bargaining. That's not true at all. What that amendment says is that no "state agency or department, nor the Civil Service Commission, nor any political subdivision can discriminate against or favor any employee by virtue of his affiliations or nonaffiliations with any organization. With regard to collective bargaining, certainly, collective bargaining is permitted under that. The only caveat--the only thing I would say--would be, in relation to the remarks that have been made, would be that if one group of employees gets to bargain with the department, then the other employees of the department also get to bargain, and that no one little clique, or group, or union, or whatever it may be in the particular circumstance, would be the only one that would get to bargain. If you're going to have a meeting between employees and the department head, then just the representatives of the union would not be the only one that would be allowed to sit down there and bargain. Now, if you don't discriminate--if you allow all elements of the employees to come and be represented there, or to come themselves--then you're not discriminating. It would be within the purview of my amendment, but if you said that one little group of employees gets to come and bargain and nobody else, yes, that would be prohibited because that would be discriminating against a group of employees by virtue of their affiliations or nonaffiliations with a union. Now, it's said somehow that this amendment, that we're considering now, allows collective bargaining. It does not. Nowhere is there any collective bargaining in this amendment. This says that a political subdivision or a department or agency of the state can enter into a contract with an employee organization--can have two employees in it; it can have twenty percent of the employees, as at the highway department. That's bargaining with a small group of employees' representatives, but that's not collective bargaining on behalf of all employees. Notice that there's no requirement that a majority of the employees be represented. Now, it's been said that well, under court decision, if a majority of the employees of the particular work unit are in the union, then that union can bargain on behalf of all the employees. But notice it may just be a bare majority of the union members who even favor that sole bargaining agent. They may want to join the union, but they may not want to preclude their fellow employees who are not in the union from also bargaining. So, if you had fifty-one percent of a particular category of employees in the union and twenty-six percent or half of them were in favor of this sole bargaining agent agreement, then they could force the other seventy-four percent of employees to be bound by whatever they'd come up with. Now, I asked the question earlier whether or not in the local sheriff's department a small handful of people could claim to represent all employees and can go and bargain with the sheriff and require that you must be a member of a union in order to work as a deputy there. I got no answer to that. Certainly, perhaps they could bargain to say that everybody would have to join the union within thirty days after the agreement was reached. That's not the way we should run this state government or its political subdivisions. Civil service is something that ought to be based on individual merit. All our employees ought to be recognized as individuals and have a right to appear before their supervisors or their department head, state their grievances, state their demands and be dealt with. But for somebody to be designated to speak for them, without even a voice on their behalf, is basically unfair and unjust.

[2754]

So, I'd urge you to vote against this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, in closing, let me ask you to vote for this amendment. In good faith I withdrew the amendment, and it was stated that this would take out the objections some of them had if I inserted the words "not inconsistent with this constitution or any civil service law or valid rule or regulation of a commission." Now, Mr. Avant said that when these contracts are submitted to civil service, and they have suggested changes--I hasten to tell you where they have suggested those changes--we have gone back and made those changes in accordance with the requests of civil service. Now, I don't know how much fairer I can be than just that --- want to abide by the civil service rules and regulations, believe in them, help promote them, but yet here you are faced with scare tactics on theoretical propositions that might come about and try to create doubt in the minds of the delegates of this convention. I sincerely tell you this is needed in light of the Jenkins' amendment of yesterday, if you expect us to have any right whatsoever in order to sign any type of a contract, even with those political subdivisions that do not have civil service. I ask you in good conscience and good faith to adopt this amendment so that we can keep faith with what was stated from this microphone yesterday, that there was no intent to abrogate contracts or was there any intention to prohibit the signing of contracts. In that light, Mr. Chairman, I ask for the adoption of this amendment.

I suggest the absence of a quorum and request a record vote.

[Quorum Call: 94 delegates present and a quorum. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 51-48. Motion to reconsider tabled: 51-59.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. In the Dennery amendment on page 2 of the Dennery amendment, line 11, immediately after the words and punctuation "deputies, and" and before the word "officers" strike out the word "administrative".

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, it was pointed out to me that the word "administrative" really doesn't mean too much in the location in which it is found, and I agree with that. I think it got in there inadvertently because there was a previous word "administrative" in connection with the schools and the colleges. I, therefore, urge the adoption of this amendment. It's more or less of a technical nature.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The amendment reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, in the Dennery amendment on page 3 of the Dennery amendment, delete lines 27 and 28, both inclusive in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "dents of any five institutions of higher education in the state, which five institutions shall be selected by the govern-".

Explanation

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, on yesterday I passed an amendment which allowed to increase the New Orleans Civil Service from three members to five members. Inadvertently, in making this change, there was some reference to other cities who had reached the population that would require that they would set up a civil service, and where I had increased it to five in New Orleans, we still left a figure of 3. What this was intended to do is to technically correct, as it related to other cities who were going to reach a stage to select a civil service system, that said that they can select--I mean, the presidents of the five institutions in the state and which institutions should be selected by the governing authority. So, technically, I'm changing it from three to five to correspond with the amendment that I introduced and was passed on yesterday.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Questions

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jackson, I can't find my copy. The only change you're making is from the number 3 to the number 5?

MR. J. JACKSON
Right.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, may I ask you a question, please, about the thing as it would stand in either case, and that is: how often may the governing authority change these choices once they've made them? Suppose in a college nearby submitted a list of three that the governing authority didn't particularly like, could they then change that college and replace it with another college to get a different three names?

MR. J. JACKSON

That's not my understanding, Mrs. Zervigon. Under the Denny amendment as written, it would allow the colleges to select three, and if one of those three did not want to submit the names that the governing authority as desired, they could say well, substitute it. So I don't think that's the intent, but technically, I was attempting to correct the figure from 3 to 5.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Jackson, whereas, in other sections of the Denny amendment, the institutions are named, but here you don't name the institutions, and you stipulate that any five institutions in the state--which could be almost any kind--there's no restrictions; so it could be five white institutions without black representation; isn't that right?

MR. JACKSON

I gather that it could, Reverend Alexander, but I think if you read the Denny amendment when it relates to three, it doesn't necessarily spell out those three institutions. It gives the governing authority, who may not want to select from these five in New Orleans--maybe want to select a combination of some in New Orleans, some in Lafayette, particularly like Lafayette, like if they wanted to...well, they've got, as I understand it, an approaching civil service system--but let's say some place where you have a local college and they may not be included under the five that's mentioned in the city of New Orleans, it gives the governing authority of that locality the latitude to select a combination of universities.

MR. ALEXANDER

Of course, in the Denny amendment, the institutions are named. Whereas, in yours they are not named and they may be either private or public because it says that "which five institutions shall be selected by the governor." That's any five.

MR. J. JACKSON

By the governing authority.

MR. ALEXANDER

Yes, right.

MR. J. JACKSON

Yes, right. I recognize that, Rev.

MR. ALEXANDER

You recognize that as a real problem; don't you?

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, I don't necessarily see it as a problem. I can't necessarily say that if in Shreveport that they reach the point where they want a four hundred thousand...and they want to select a civil service system that they must be selected from the five universities in New Orleans. I'm not prepared to force that on them.

MR. ALEXANDER

Yes, but suppose Lake Charles sets up a system, do you think it's possible that they would reach over to New Orleans and select one of the black institutions, or to Baton Rouge, or to Grambling?

MR. J. JACKSON

I would hope that they would. I'm just saying that if you look into the future...

MR. ALEXANDER

I'm afraid they wouldn't.

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, Reverend, that's a possibility that exists, but I don't know if I could mandate that forever and ever--every civil service system that's created--that the New Orleans universities are going to be the nominating body. I'm not prepared to do that.

MR. ALEXANDER

Not necessarily New Orleans.

MR. J. JACKSON

They could very well make it public and say well, we'll take USL, we'll take two from New Orleans; we may take LSU; and we may take Southern.

MR. ALEXANDER

No, now not necessarily New Orleans universities, Mr. Jackson, don't you think? I have reference to black universities anywhere. See, there are two other black universities that are public in Louisiana.

MR. J. JACKSON

Rev., I recognize that's a problem. If you want to amend it, I would have no objection, but I did not see it as a serious problem that you have pointed out. Really, the intent of this is really to be more technical than to be substantive.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. J. JACKSON

To belated fears of those delegates that feel as though we may be excluding, in the future, some other black colleges, I would like to just bring it to their attention that presently under the Denny amendment with three colleges, it closes the field more narrow. So, I suggest to you that this is basically a technical amendment rather than a substantive amendment. I ask your favorable adoption of this technical amendment.

[Amendment adopted: 69-18. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments...finally getting down to the two amendments which were in global proposition. Now, Senator De Blieux, your in global amendment was up here first. I presume you want the Pugh-De Blieux amendment, as opposed to the first one you sent up. Is that correct? The Pugh-De Blieux amendment first. Isn't that right?

I might point out, Delegate Pugh has sent up two amendments to this amendment in the event that his basic amendment should be passed. So, you might want to make sure that you do have the correct amendment which was passed out on yesterday. It's two pages--three pages in length--a short paragraph on the third page, just passed out, I believe, perhaps, they're still in the process of passing them out, were two proposed amendments by Delegate Pugh to this set in the event it should be adopted. Reads as follows:
On page 1, delete lines 13 through 32.....

[Motion to waive the reading of the amendment adopted without objection. Motion to limit debate on the Amendment to thirty minutes adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. PUGH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Tuesday night I dictated what you now have before you. Senator De Blieux assisted me in that endeavor. What you have was indicated on the cover sheet. I suggested to you that we might do one of three things relating to civil service: 1. To place all of the present civil service provisions as contained in the 1921 Constitution within the 1974 Constitution. I suggested another alternative might be to amend, as we have been doing since this was dictated, not knowing, in many instances, the effect of those amendments. Lastly, or thirdly, I suggested to you that we might consider doing this; take the commission, as they were then passed by this body. The structure of the commission, leave it alone. In addition to that, to lock in the appropriations at seven-tenths of one percent of the salaries. Then, I suggested your consideration in taking all of the present 1921 Code of Statutes, correction, 1921 Constitutional Provisions, and create in Louisiana a civil service code. To lay the fears of those who felt that the legislature might do something relating to civil service, there is a provision prohibiting the legislature from abolishing civil service. It also requires a three-fourths vote of each member of the total House—not those present—but the total House, before this code could be amended. I suggest to you that if you take three-fourths of each House, that's a three-fourths of the legislature, that, in effect, you are insuring civil service perhaps even in a better manner than were it in the constitution. I do not believe we can put all of this in the constitution. I believe that for three days we have passed amendments, or worked on amendments, that, as a person who I think has a fair knowledge of the law, I've found myself concerned with what they meant.

As an illustration. We had a situation where Delegate Jenkins comes up with one amendment, then Delegates Newton and Flory come up with another amendment. I listened to both of them intently. I'm not satisfied with either one of them do. I think I have a fair grasp of the law. In addition to that, since Saturday, gentlemen, we have passed four amendments by more than sixty-seven votes. Look at this article. This article was presented to us by means of a Denny amendment, which I have no quarrel with; instead of section by section, it was presented as alphabetical subparagraphs. By alphabetical subparagraphs, all you needed was a majority vote. Man, wouldn't it have been nice when we were dealing with Local Government, when we were dealing with Taxation, when we were dealing with Executive, if they had all been alphabetical subparagraphs? Then we could have amended and amended and amended merely by a majority. Now the four amendments which got more than sixty-seven votes or more, were two of Mr. Flory's, and two of Mr. Landry's. Those four amendments are on one of the sheets that was just passed out. If you will join with me in resolving this octopus, by placing it in a code where it belongs, the simple amendment will take care of the four things that you thought enough of to vote in excess of sixty-seven votes. The only other provision you thought enough of, was the one of Mr. Champagne's. I have it on a separate sheet because it relates to the creation, and the matters relating to the commission. By this amendment, you will lock the commission in the constitution. You will lock the concept of civil service in the constitution. You will lock into the constitution the appropriations and the requirements that the local commissions appropriate. You will lock everything that's in the present constitution into a Civil Service Code—all of the jurisprudence that we have relating to the existing constitutional provisions will remain the same. They'll all be applicable to it. We'll have in one neat, little volume, everything that there was and is relating to civil service. Those of you who are concerned about whether or not the legislature can change it, conscientiously think if it takes three-fourths of each House, or a total, therefore, of three-fourths of the legislature, is it conceivable that the legislature that so few people trust can do anything with this? I suggest to you, gentlemen, that you are doing this state a great service by freezing into a code, the law that they know. We can go to everybody and say, "We left you where we found you." As far as civil service is concerned, we took what you had and we left what you had. We don't have to try to explain to countless thousands of state employees whether or not something they are interested in has been monkeyed with, tampered with, amended, changed, resolved. All of those questions are out of the way. I am not unmindful of the fact that something not too dissimilar to this, you have considered unfavorably.

In connection with that consideration, I call your attention to the fact that the concepts embodied here were not in there. I have waited two days to discuss this with you. Therefore, those of you who felt strongly about your earlier position, I beg your indulgence. I do so because I think this issue is important enough for a resolution in this matter. How proudly can we go back to these people and tell them, "We left you where we found you." We decided that civil service, through the years, had developed to the point where we did not have the expertise to monkey with it. I'll publicly admit it that I don't have that expertise. I'm grown enough to recognize that the people through the years have developed what is known to be one of the best civil service systems in the world. I'm willing to take it today at face value. I'm willing to leave it the way I found it.

I make no apologies to anyone about my inability to treat this subject in a porcupine method. I believe what we have done in the last four days, by less than what any other section would have required, is less than adequate for our task. I believe we owe the people more when we took our oaths saying we would do what we are now called on to do as a Constitutional Convention. If we had three or four years where we could work out all of these delicate problems, how nice it would be. Unfortunately, we do not. For three or four days we worked to the Denny amendment....

As I was stating to you, gentlemen, in all sincerity, I would not be here if I were not as serious as I am about where we are today in civil service. I'll candidly admit to you that I'm opposed by some people in this endeavor. I respect them for their views. I disagree that this convention should, tonight, or tomorrow, or sometime soon, lacking the passage of this amendment, have thrust upon the question to it, "Do we take the Denny amendment as now hodgepodge and vote it out as an article?" I suggest to you that had we had the opportunity, and I fought no one on this—had we had the opportunity to consider this in the cool light of a sixty-seven go, less than sixty-seven fail analysis, we wouldn't be at the problem where we are today where so many people have candidly told me, "I just don't believe I can vote for this article in the shape in which it's in. I don't imply. I don't suggest. I'm not an alarmist. I, personally, have a great deal of reservation and difficulty in pushing a green light for this article as it stands. If you wish to take those provisions that you, in your wisdom, thought enough of to vote at least sixty-seven for, then it's easy enough to take my concept, and with my concept, put those amendments in it. It wouldn't take five minutes. If you wanted to take the Champagne one, also, which is nothing more than kind of making it a little easier to understand, you can put that in there. I'm not suggesting to you that if you pass my amendment, that you've got to go through all of this again. That will not be necessary. You may take my amendment, if you are willing to do so, and on that foundation, we can build a house with a roof on it this evening. We can be completed with the Civil Service Article before we go home tonight. Short of that, it's anybody's guess if the finger of fate says "no" instead of "yes" on this article as a whole, where we—or for that matter, this convention, or the people of Louisiana—will be. I know that many of you have had this matter discussed by not only myself, but others. I have tried to basically leave you alone except run around and explain it to each person. Since then, people have asked me, "When's it coming up?" I say, it's coming out of the chute when they allow it to come out. It's here, gentlemen. I don't want to impose upon the opponents by taking more than my allotted time. I appreciate the courtesy and the consideration and the willingness that you have expressed by listening to me because I can look out there and see that you have given me your attention. I appreciate it.

I will be happy to yield to any questions for what little time I have left.

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Pugh, how many amendments have we added since you drew this up?

MR. PUGH

Mr. Hayes, we have...I can't tell you the total number... but I can tell you that there have been five that got sixty-seven votes....

MR. HAYES

Since you've....

MR. PUGH

....I can tell you that we had a Jenkins one that went fifty-one, I think; we had one a minute ago that went fifty. I can tell you we took the Orleans policemen and firemen in; I can tell you we took them out. I can tell you both of those actions were done with less than sixty-seven. I can tell you we can raise an open shop and close the shop with less than sixty-seven...all in a matter of twenty-four hours.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Pugh, about twice you made the statement that you could go home and tell the people that you left them where they found them. But yours is not exactly that way, the way I read it here. It provides for a seven-member commission, six to be appointed by the governor, and one to be elected from the membership. That is a departure from the present constitution?

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. PUGH

That's absolutely correct. If I misled you, I certainly didn't mean to because I prefaced my remarks with the fact that I had taken the commission structure as this group had passed it and took it from there. If I had misled you, I apologize.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Thank you.

MR. PUGH

I don't mind telling the people that's what I did.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I listened very carefully to Mr. Pugh's talk. I would first tell you that Mr. Pugh's idea was one of the first ideas I worked with when I discussed civil service as far as this constitution is concerned. Obviously, the shorter the provision, the better. But, after much soul searching, I came to the conclusion that we should imbed in our constitution a Civil Service Article. That we should not leave this article subject to being amended even by a super majority of both houses of the legislature.

Now, I have sat here very attentively since my amendment was adopted last week. I voted against some of the amendments to my amendment. But I can tell you in good conscience, that although there are some things in the proposal as it now stands, with which I do not agree, nevertheless, I think that this proposal, as it now stands, as amended, is a viable and good Civil Service Article. It is the type of article that I think people who support civil service can, in good conscience, support. I do not agree with Mr. Flory that "it has been terribly cut up." There are a few sections in here, that there is only actually, as far as I am concerned, the only amendment which was adopted which violates the basic principle of civil service as I see it, was one which was adopted about ninety-eight to eight. That dealt with the state troopers' pay plan. But, I don't think that will kill civil service. I think the enlargement of the commission to seven rather than five by having one of these people elected by the classified employees is not as good as having all seven named from nominations of the presidents of the various universities. But, I don't think it is inimical to civil service. I think all of these amendments are well considered. They come from people with good conscience. I do not think that the article as it presently stands, is a bad article. I, in good conscience, can vote for this article.

I do not believe, however, that I can in good conscience vote for the amendment as proposed by Mr. Pugh. Because, I cannot in good conscience vote for any Civil Service Article which is not completely within the confines of the constitution. To me, that is a basic necessity as far as this state is concerned. I, therefore urge you to vote against the Pugh amendment.

I'll be pleased to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. GRAHAM

Mr. Dennery, how many other states have civil service imbedded in their constitution?

MR. DENNERY

I'm not sure I can answer that, Mr. Graham. I don't think there are too many.

MR. GRAHAM

Isn't it a fact that it is a small minority of the states?

MR. DENNERY

I would think so. Yes, sir.

MR. GRAHAM

If this amendment passes, would not we still have civil service in our constitution?

MR. DENNERY

No, we would have the type of civil service in our constitution that we had in 1942, which was a Legislative Act which by subsequent constitutional amendment, could only be amended or repealed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. In 1948, it was completely gutted.

MR. GRAHAM

Mr. Dennery, one other question, realizing that the members of the legislature are elected by the same people that are elected....the majority of this delegation here--don't you think that the members of the legislature will be responsive to the wishes of the general public to the electorate, and with the coverage by the press now, and the vast emphasis that we have on civil service, that the chance would be almost zero that more than two-thirds, or that three-fourths of the legislature would vote to violate the general principles of civil service?

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Graham, the best way I can answer that question is to tell you that on yesterday, by a vote of, I think, ninety-three to eight, one of the prime principles of civil service was violated by this constitution.

MR. GRAHAM

By this body.

MR. DENNERY

Yes. By this body.

MR. FULCO

Delegate Dennery, you're talking about your amendment with all of the amendments that have been adopted today, would be a viable article for civil service, and that it would be acceptable to you?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. FULCO

That you...would you recommend it to the people in an attempt to pass the constitution, Delegate Dennery?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir, Mr. Fulco.....

MR. FULCO

Well, I'm glad to hear it. I didn't know it....I wanted to be sure I understood you. Thank you.

MR. DENNERY

In good conscience, I can do that.

MR. FULCO

Thank you.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Dennery, I may be incorrect, but I think I heard you say that you didn't agree with me. That I said that it had been cut up. I think you are....

MR. DENNERY

No, no. No, no, no, no. I didn't use your name, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

You used my name....I think it was in error. But, I just wanted....

MR. DENNERY

Well, if I did, I didn't mean to, Mr. Flory.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Dennery, when we state that three, that it could only be changed by three-fourths vote of the legislature, do you really feel like that we would have more than ten people in the Senate, or twenty-seven people in the House, that would be...would not be responsible people to, therefore, keep from gutting civil service, or something of that sort? Isn't it an indictment upon our whole electorate, in electing our legislature? Aren't you saying that the legislature is not to be trusted?

MR. DENNERY

Mr. De Blieux....Senator De Blieux, let me explain that a little further. I don't believe any legislature would pull the guts out of this Civil Service Article in one fell swoop. I would agree with you there. But, I think they would nip at it--yes, sir. I think that when pressure groups come to the legislature, and they have something which seems to be inequitable, they could very well get a three-fourths vote. I think that ultimately would serve to gut the whole system....

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I certainly agree with Mr. Pugh that a provision like this really shouldn't be in the constitution. The only thing is that history has shown us that unless it is in the constitution, civil service can be gutted. It happened right here in Louisiana. The year was 1948. It took a two-thirds vote then. I don't see how a three-fourths vote now would make any difference. We have debated civil service at length. I think this body understands more about civil service than any legislature probably does because we have debated it point by point, item by item. You know, in the legislature, we have not had many of the advantages that we've had here in this convention. If we were debating civil service, we wouldn't debate it for a week. We'd debate it for a half hour, or an hour, maybe. You know, in the legislature, when a bill is proposed and it goes to committee and it's amended, do you know on the floor of the legislature, you never see the changes made by the committee. The only copy you have is the original bill as introduced. Then, when an amendment is proposed, it's not printed and distributed like it is here. It's read one time. People vote repeatedly on items that they've never even read, amending a document that is not a document they have before them. Now, if you think that leaving it to the legislature means that it's going to be studied, and considered thoughtfully, and only after long, serious consideration, is a single change going to be made, you are mistaken. Things rush through there late one night when everybody's in a good mood like that. Three-fourths of a vote is nothing to get. The past has shown us we need constitutional protection for civil servants. Now listen, I haven't gotten everything I wanted in this civil service article. I'm not completely satisfied with it. But I think it retains most of the principles of civil service. I think we can live with it. I think that what we have now is much better than what we are likely to get from the legislature, because the interest, the political interest of a legislator is opposite from civil service. The interest of a legislator is to be able to get jobs for his constituents....to have state employees helping him in his campaigns; to have his friends promoted and get pay raises. All those things are contrary to the principles of civil service. Entrusting civil service to the legislature is like giving cookies to a child to safeguard. It's something you shouldn't expect. So, I'd like for us to take what we have here, we still have a chance to make some modifications and refinements and perfections, but take what we have here and run with it. That's the best we are going to do in civil service in this state. If we don't, a powerful governor will come along like in 1948, one....late one night an amendment will come up to a bill, and civil service, as we know it in this state, will be radically changed--fatally altered. So, I'd like to ask you to reject Mr. Pugh's amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I'm going to be very brief. Maybe it's because I'm a member of the legislature that I kind of resent the implications that you cannot trust the legislature. Let me remind you, that legislature is composed of people just like you and I. The difficulty with this constitutional convention is that we want to legislate rather than constitutionalize. I remind you of that once more. Now, let me say this. In checking over these amendments, there is not one single amendment that we adopted to the Denny proposal where there was an objection, it was adopted by three-fourths of the members, the elected members of this convention. Not one single one. Now, if we can't come to any conclusion on it any more than that, I just can't see how one hundred and forty-four members of the legislature--just like people, you and I--can make any changes that we wouldn't approve of in the legislature. I believe that we can trust this convention, and we have by making these amendments. We ought to be able to trust the people we elect to the legislature. Let's don't indict every legislator that's elected from here on out by saying we've got to put this in the constitution because three-fourths of the legislature may change it. That's wrong. That's wrong. Now, ladies and gentlemen, I suggest in your good conscience, decide whether or not you are going to trust people that you elect to office or don't trust them. That's what's involved in this amendment. I ask you to support it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. PUGH

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Mr. Bergeron reminded me that his amendment which provided for review had more than sixty-seven. His, also, would be on my list. Several people told me that if I had that in there, they would vote for me. I am pleased he told me. Let me tell you that every, everything in the present 1921 Constitution relating to civil service, originated in the legislature. Every constitutional provision necessarily originates in the legislature.

Mr. Jenkins says, "I can tell people that most of it's alright." I would prefer to tell people all of it is alright. I prefer to tell them, "Ladies and gentlemen, we left you where we found you."

I don't believe the legislature, requiring a three-fourths vote of both Houses, will lightly treat civil service. There are too many people affected by it. I don't consider that a problem. Let me tell the people all of it's alright. Not just most of it. Tell them we left you where we found you.

Thank you again for your consideration.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 47-56. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

We have an amendment just sent up by Delegates Lanier, Alexander, Chatelain, and Willis.

Amendment reads as follows: In the Denny amendment on page 9, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted by the convention on the thirteenth, on line 2 of the Flory amendment after the word "law" change the comma "," to a period "." and delete lines 3 through 9, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "However, in any municipality having a population in excess of thirteen thousand which has a regularly paid fire and paid municipal fire department, and in all parishes and fire protection districts having paid firemen, the said firemen and policemen are expressly excluded from a civil service system so established unless a majority of the electors therein, in an election held for the purpose, consent to their inclusion. The election shall be held in accordance with the provisions of--establish pursuant to Article VI, Section 26, of this constitution."

Explanation

MR. LANIER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, you have previously voted for the city of New Orleans or the people of the city of New Orleans to have the right to vote on whether or not they would have one civil service system for all employees in the city or a separate one for municipal fire and policemen. This amendment is designed to extend the right to vote on that same issue to municipalities of a population in excess of thirteen thousand but less than four hundred thousand. In other words, if the people in New Orleans have a right to vote on this issue, I feel it is only fair that the other people in the state, in the other municipalities or other parishes should have the same right. Now, the way this thing is drawn up it provides that the election will be held in accordance with the provisions of Article VI, Section 26, of this constitution. Now, this is in the Local Government Article and that particular provision provides for a uniform procedure for calling, and conducting, and canvassing the returns of certain special elections and is designed to have a uniform procedure for all elections that are noncandidate elections. In other words, this would be a yes or no proposition and would be done in accordance with that procedure, which is a uniform procedure for bond issues, etc. This thing is set up so that there is no automatic inclusion; there must be an election. In other words, right now, all across the states you have many municipalities that have two civil service boards; they have one for the firemen and policemen and one for all of the other employees. It is not the intent of this amendment to disturb that situation where they are already existing. But, it is designed to give those municipalities the right to have an election, if they so desire, to determine the inclusion of the firemen and policemen into the city system or for new cities that are coming under this program; at the time when they come under the program they can put on the ballot whether or not there will be two boards or one board. Since we have chosen to give the people in New Orleans the right to do this, I feel that it is only fair to do this with other places and this is the purpose of this amendment. I will be happy to try to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Walter, you're trying to do by....you're trying to undo the present system; right?

MR. LANIER

No.

MR. ROEMER

Well, you have done that; right?

MR. LANIER

I do not think so. I think the Article XIV, Section 15.1,

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

will stay in effect. However, if the people of a municipality say...desire that all employees would be handled under one system, such as the system in New Orleans, they can vote to do so. If they do not vote to do so, they will automatically have two systems—one for the firemen and policemen and two for everybody else.

MR. ROEMER
Just as they do presently?

MR. LANIER
Yes.

MR. ROEMER
All right. Now, why are we given the right to merge? To what advantage is this? I don't understand the logic of your amendment, it seems....the way the system is now, do you have a list of complaints about that system, or do you have personal.....

MR. LANIER
As I understand it, there are certain advantages and disadvantages to both systems. What I'm saying here is that we do have two systems, this will not disturb the two systems. All we are doing is let the people, themselves, decide which system they wish to have.
...and, quite frankly to me, that's very logical, Mr. Roemer.

MR. ROY
Mr. Lanier, where is the limitation at the four hundred thousand level?

MR. LANIER
That's included in the stuff that comes above this where this is inserted in.

MR. ROY
In other words, you don't think there is any ambiguity, then, once you say that....

MR. LANIER
Not at all, Mr. Roy.

MR. ROY
...and, not even for parishes when you're talking about fire protection districts? That wasn't in the one above was it?

MR. LANIER
Yes; this was the Flory amendment this morning--you have some situations where you have. Now, with reference to the parishes that have paid firemen or the fire protection districts that have paid firemen, of course, there could well be no other system for them to merge in, so there would be no necessity for an election. But, if there was another system, then you could have an election to merge them if that was the will of the people in that particular district. But, you see, this applies in two different situations; it applies in the municipality that has regularly paid firemen and regularly paid policemen. It would not apply in the city where you only had paid policemen and no paid firemen; I think we brought out that point this morning with Mr. Flory. It also applies--and Mr. Flory brought this to my attention, quite frankly--in the situation where you have a parish paid fire department or a fire protection district that has paid firemen, it would not apply in a fire protection district that does not have paid firemen--where you have volunteer firemen in a fire protection district--which, as you know, is quite prevalent in your parish or your home parish and my parish.

MR. ROY
Well, how many people are we trying to accommodate with another exception to the general rule that we have been trying to apply to all people in this state by this amendment, now?

MR. LANIER
Quite frankly, Mr. Roy, I think what I'm trying to do here is be consistent in our philosophy that we have established in the situation of New Orleans. I voted to bring New Orleans into the state. I saw no reason why they should have one system and everybody else had to be under another system, and I voted that way. This convention has now decided that New Orleans has the right to vote which way they want to go and what I'm saying is, I believe everybody else ought to have that same right.

MR. ROY
But, isn't that because New Orleans for some thirty-odd years has had a system that they have worked with and what you are trying to do now is to give to people who never had any semblance of the New Orleans system, the right to choose that in lieu of what we have given them for the past twenty years?

MR. LANIER
Yes, I think the people should have the right to choose if New Orleans has the right to choose.

MR. ROY
But, New Orleans is not choosing; New Orleans has...
Isn't it a fact that New Orleans would merely have the right to continue with what it has and has worked with for many years and it's not the same situation as where you are trying to give other people the right to utilize the New Orleans system?

MR. LANIER
Quite frankly, Mr. Roy, I never thought I would see the day when you would be against giving people the right.

MRS. ZERVIGON
Mr. Lanier, in following up on Mr. Roy's question. Isn't it a fact that what you are doing is setting out some consistency here in our article in that any city--if your amendment is adopted--any city which has its own city civil service system has the right to choose whether it's a unified system or not?

MR. LANIER
That's correct.

MRS. ZERVIGON
But, that in other cities where there is not a city civil service system and the main body of the employees happen to be firemen and policemen it will stay municipal fire and police, until such time as they adopt a municipal city civil service.

MR. LANIER
That is correct; they are automatically in the dual system unless they vote affirmatively not to be in the dual system.

MRS. ZERVIGON
But, it is consistency. What you are aiming at is consistency and uniformity?

MR. LANIER
Yes.

MRS. ZERVIGON
...from city to city. Thank you.

MR. JACK
Mr. Lanier, since the New Orleans one passed, have you had anybody phone you or outsider come up here to get you to introduce this, or is this just you doing it on your own hook?

MR. LANIER
I would say, primarily, this is the brainstorm of myself and my cosponsors of this matter. However, in my opinion, Mr. Jack, I think that we should try to be consistent in what we are doing and have a constant strain of philosophy in this article. I know sometimes it's been difficult for us to do that but, in my judgment, if the people of New Orleans are going to have the right to vote as to which way they want to go, I, quite frankly, feel everybody else should.

MR. JACK
All right. You answered the question, you are running off there and I'm going to be out of time if you don't watch it; I have other questions. Now, where you are from--Thibodaux--you have a population of about fourteen thousand--that's right, isn't it?

MR. LANIER
A little over fifteen.

MR. JACK
...and, you don't have a paid fire or police department?

MR. LANIER
We have paid police but not fire.

MR. JACK
All right, not the fire one. Are you about to get a paid policeman and this would give you an election; is that the idea?

MR. LANIER
Sir?

MR. JACK
Are you about to get paid firemen?

MR. LANIER
I really don't think there is any chance of us having paid firemen in Thibodaux because, quite frankly, we feel we have the greatest volunteer fire department in the State of Louisiana.

MR. JACK
O.K. Then, you are just trying to decide for the other people of Louisiana that they want this, whether they want it or not; is that right?

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY
Mr. Chairman and delegates, I hesitate to rise at this point to oppose this amendment on the basis in which I tend to do so. But, the amendment that Mr. Lanier proposes to amend is one that I went to him with, checked it with him word for word, got his approval on it before I had even proposed the amendment. It was my understanding he was in accordance with the provisions of that amendment. Be that at it may, let me tell you what this amendment does. At the present time, you have state and municipal fire and police civil service in municipalities between seventy-five hundred and thirteen thousand today--statutory civil service. This amendment says that when they reach the population bracket of thirteen thousand, then they got to call an election to see if they want to abolish that system or not. What you're doing by this amendment is providing a vehicle, whereby, you can abrogate a system that is now in effect in the statutes of this state. I ask you to reject the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered.]

Closing

MR. LANIER
Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, in response to what Mr. Flory pointed out, I wish to confirm to the convention that he did confer with me in his amendment, and I did check it over word for word. We actually counseled on it several times and got it in language that we thought was appropriate and it is not my intent by this to change the concept that we were discussing at that time. However, I am adding to that concept a concept that was adopted by this convention, which I think is only logically consistent, that if New Orleans has the right to choose, why shouldn't somebody else have the right to choose? Now, if there are statutory systems that exist below thirteen thousand, then, quite frankly, we could easily amend this to provide--instead of thirteen thousand--seventy-five hundred. I was not aware of those statutory systems, quite frankly, at the time that I drew this up. But, to me, in order to be logically consistent, I believe, that we should make the right available to people in municipalities to vote on this type of a thing if they are going to have that right in the city of New Orleans and this is really basically what I am saying and, on that basis, I would urge your adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER
Mr. Lanier, is it not a fact that this convention has given to cities of a population in excess of four hundred thousand the right to choose by referendum?

MR. LANIER
That's my understanding, Reverend Alexander.

MR. ALEXANDER
Well, do you feel it would be discrimination against those with a population between thirteen thousand and four hundred thousand if they could not do the same thing?

MR. LANIER
I think in order for us to be logically consistent, quite frankly, they should have the same rights.

MR. ALEXANDER
And anybody who votes against this, naturally, is inconsistent; would he not be?

MR. LANIER
That's my judgment, Reverend.

[Amendment adopted: 57-44. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. O'NEILL
Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, this is the first time I've taken the floor during the debate on this entire civil service proposal. I've asked questions; I've lobbied, but now I would simply like to say a couple of things. Yesterday in a series of amendments certain motives were ascribed to the majority of us which were not our motives at all--we had anti-labor; we had right-to-work labels hung upon us when we weren't for those things at all, and I resent that very much. I take issue with it and I deny being either of those things. When I voted yesterday, I voted with one intent in mind, to try and do the right thing. I hope that you will do the right thing now. That's all I have to say. I have no other intentions than honest ones, and I hope that yours are at least the same.

Recess

[Quorum Call: 86 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
All right. To cut to brief: In the Dennery amendment and in particular in the Lanier amendment adopted thereto to page 9, on the third line of the amendment just adopted by Mr. Lanier, after the word "municipal" and before the word "department" strike out the word "fire" and insert in lieu thereof the word "police"; that's right in the middle of the third or almost in the middle of the third line.

Explanation

MR. LANIER
Mr. Chairman, this was brought to my attention after I got back down that the word "fire" the second word "fire" on line 3 should have been "police"; this is to be "paid municipal police department." In other words, the regularly paid fire and paid municipal police department and this is a technical amendment to make that change. I move it's adoption.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the entire subject matter. Motion to recess rejected: 30-60.]

Closing

MR. RACHAL
Mr. Chairman and delegates, I suppose I should start by saying, "Do you remember, I was the one who introduced this proposal to the convention?" I am closing, technically, because the first twelve lines still remain as the committee's proposal. But, I rise to close on this proposal in favor of it--let me say that first--and to urge its adoption. When I started, I mentioned that a few people are neutral about civil service--either they were for it or against it, most probably violently one way or the other. As I listened to the discussion and the result of it, I'm still not sure that we really understand what civil service is really supposed to be. Although many of the things that I personally had hoped to achieve have been achieved in this article, much remains if we are to have the kind of personnel management operation in the state that is desirable. However, I think that we have done well. In my opening remarks I pointed out the salient issues that we have identified from the discussions in the...on civil service---one had to do with the membership of the commission--that efforts should be made to make it more responsive to the people which it served; we have done that. The nominators of the members of the commission was an issue. We have made a change there. Another issue had to do with the autonomy of the commission and this is one area in which I'm not certain we have done very much about. On the other hand, I'm not certain that we should attempt to constitutionalize what the commission should do. I am hopeful that the change in the composition--and with some of the other amendments which are now parts of the article which we have passed--will help to bring about a kind of flexibility and a response to the needs of the government in this state to bring about a system of civil service that will both meet the principles of civil service, as well as give to the people and to those who lead in the agencies confidence that the system is to the best of the stability attempting to carry out the principles of a merit system while, at the same time, serving the personnel needs of the state. Some of the other salient issues, which I question as being constitutional material, of course, we did nothing about--that had to do with testing. Some questions were raised about certification and while we discussed this to some length, it remains that the certification of the three best qualified among those who have competed. Several other items have been attached. We have included items pro.....allegedly, to be in the interest of employees. We considered, at some length, the burden of proof, another one of the salient issues and, in fact, have placed the burden of proof on the employer. While there--as I said--much that remains to be done to make...the kind of civil service system I would like, I recognize that all of it can not be done through constitutional provisions. I feel that in spite of the fact that not as much has been accomplished as I would like that, in fact, we have an article with which we can live and an article which if followed by those who will monitor its life in the future, that we can improve upon many of the compliants and criticisms that were given to this committee and that have been expressed upon the delegates during the course of debate. With that as a background and without going into much of the debate regarding some of the issues because they were on the floor today and ....I would urge the adoption of this section.

[Section failed to pass: 66-36. Motion to reconsider the vote by which the Section failed to pass. Previous Question ordered on the motion.]

Closing

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I just think that this is about the best we're going to do. We've hashed this out for a week now. There's some good things about it and bad things about it. Or, we could go on endlessly. We've got other things to do--we've got natural resources; we've got taxes; we've got general government; constitutional revision--and I think that this is a compromise proposal that makes a lot of improvements in some ways, yet at the same time it does not do any violence to the nature of civil service. So, I want to urge you to vote in favor of it.

[Record vote ordered. Quorum Call: 101 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to reconsider adopted: 65-36.]

Reconsideration
Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, we're going to vote now on the Civil Service Article again. It lacked one vote of passage. There were sixty-six votes in favor of Section 1, and Section 1 is the entire proposal for civil service. What disturbs me is that if this article does not pass at this time, we will be without any article concerning civil service; the committee will have to come back with another proposal, presumably; and this, I tell you--as I said before--is now a viable civil service system for the State of Louisiana and for municipalities over four hundred thousand. I think it is a good article as it is now written. I think it is the type of article that I can, in good conscience, support, and I will support it. The delegates have shown that a vast majority, in any event, are in favor of civil service in the constitution. I urge you to adopt this proposal as it is now. There are many people in here who have certain faults to find with certain specific portions of the amendment, but by and large, I assure you that it is a good article. I urge its adoption. Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, before I leave the podium, I would also like to personally thank the delegates for the attention they have shown this matter over the past several days. It has been a very difficult article to discuss because of the nature in which it has occurred. I personally want to express my deepest and sincerest appreciation to the delegates of this convention for the attention they have shown to it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Dennery, would you direct some of your comments, please, to the possibility of the civil service system in the State of Louisiana being a statutory provision, rather than a constitutional one, in view of the defeat of this article and in view of the time schedule of this convention?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Anzalone, I have already expressed myself on the proposition that, philosophically, I think the Civil Service Article should be in the constitution and should not be a legislative provision. I would hope that even in the event the delegates do not vote sixty-seven votes yea at the next vote, that, nevertheless, the committee will come back with a constitutional type of civil service.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Dennery, would you say that perhaps the one thing we have a fair amount of unanimity among the group on is that there should be something with regard to civil service in the constitution?

MR. DENNERY

Yea, ma'am, I certainly would say that.

MS. ZERVIGON

You don't find this the perfect article, do you?

MR. DENNERY

No, Ms. Zervigon, I don't think any of our articles are perfect.

MS. ZERVIGON

Could you conceive of an article other than this one that it would be very easy to get sixty-seven votes for?

MR. DENNERY

No, I do not; I cannot conceive of such an article.

MS. ZERVIGON

So, perhaps the best thing to do is sort of live with it?

MR. DENNERY

I hope we do.

MR. DENNIS

Moiae, is it true that, as this article now stands, it will allow municipalities in excess of thirteen thousand and under two hundred and fifty thousand to take their firemen out of civil service?

MR. DENNERY

Judge Dennis, I'm not a hundred percent certain that it will. As I read the Section (0), which was the section affected by Mr. Lanier's amendment, Section(0) provides for future municipalities adopting a civil service law--either by the municipality or the parish, or through legislative action. I do not know, and I do not qualify as an expert to tell you that Mr. Lanier's amendment affects any fire and police system which presently is in effect in a municipality which presently has its own civil service. I do not believe it will.

MR. STINSON

I refer you to the Lanier amendment. Mr Lanier came over and says--it says that those who have a civil service are excluded from "a" civil service--he says it should have been "this" civil service. But, when it says "a," don't you agree that they don't have any?

MR. DENNERY

It could mean that, yes, Mr. Stinson.

MR. STINSON

In other words, my Bossier City policemen--if I vote for this--they possibly would not have a civil service. Is that right?

MR. DENNERY

Oh, no, I don't mean that. I think if you vote for this as it stands now, the present fire....

MR. STINSON

Why couldn't Style and Drafting change it where they completely reverse the meaning; it couldn't possibly do that?

MR. DENNERY

I'm not sure I understand your question, Mr. Stinson.

MR. AVANT

Now, Mr. Dennery, it's a fact--is it not, sir --that at the same time the civil service amendment was placed in the constitution, Article XIV, Section 15--which is the state civil service and civil service system in New Orleans--that at the same time there was enacted a state fire and police civil service system, which is Article XIV, Section 15.1?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. AVANT

And, ever since that date, all municipalities with a population in excess of thirteen thousand and under two hundred and fifty thousand, which operate a paid fire and police department--their firemen and policemen come under that system; is that not right?

MR. DENNERY

As far as I know, that is correct, Mr. Avant.

MR. AVANT

Now, is it not a fact that Mr. Lanier's amendment will have the effect of removing those firemen and policemen from any civil service system until an election has been called and a majority of the electors in that municipality vote to include them in the system, which they have been under for some twenty-five years?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Avant, that's not the way I understood the amendment. Now, it is conceivable that the amendment does read that way, but I did not believe it read that way.

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen--and I'm going to speak as I do in church and say brothers and sisters--I come to you at this time in the spirit of the Christ, in the spirit of the prophets, and those who have spoken religiously. I'm not going to preach a sermon, but I just want to talk a little common sense, as Thomas Paine did a long time ago. If you will read through this section and the amendments, and if there are any of you out there who know me, you know that I have hated--I have detested--the civil service system in this state from its inception because I believed, deep down in my heart, that it discriminated against blacks. I'm not sure that that's not true even now, but all of that is beside the point. Let me ask you. How many of you out there have what you want? How many of you get everything you want and everything your heart desires? How many of you don't settle for the second best and the third best, and even the tenth best sometimes? Now, there's an old saying: all or nothing. But, how many of you are willing to go along with all or nothing? You know what nothing means? Death. Let me further say there isn't a one of you out there who would not march to this microphone and admit that there's something in this article that you don't like. I'm sure every delegate to this convention can find something in this article he does not like, or she doesn't like; and everyone most likely will find something that you do like. But, now, don't do as the kid who, when he dropped out of the game, wanted to take his ball and go home. We're not writing a constitution for one group of people. I know there's sections in here that blacks don't like; I know there are sections in here that labor doesn't like; I know there are sections that the city of New Orleans and its mayor don't like; I'm well aware of those facts.

But, we're not writing a constitution for the city of New Orleans, for labor, for blacks, for women, or any one particular group; we're writing a constitution for three million, six hundred thousand people from the Gulf of Mexico to the Arkansas border, and from Mississippi to Texas--for all the people of Louisiana. Since we're only one vote short, I plead with you, I beg you, not to ditch us at this point. Don't despair; don't give up the ship; don't quit now, because if we don't pass this article, we're going to lose time, and we may not finish this constitution. If we don't finish this constitution, all of us are going to be in trouble, and I don't want to be in that kind of trouble. Please give us that one vote.

Further Discussion

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the Journals of the last five days will show that I am manifestly unhappy with many of the things that we were presented to vote for or against; but we do no longer have the luxury of time with which further to manure this article. There are many things about it I don't like; there are many things equally that I do like. But, there are reasons to vote yes, and there are reasons to vote no; and some of the reasons that I have heard in the last fifteen minutes for voting no absolutely are appalling. If you have some narrow interest that you are here to serve, so be it; but, if you view the general interest of this convention and of the people of this state, then I wish you would reconsider your no vote, as you should, and vote to pass this bill. Let's go on to the other pressing matters before this convention.

Further Discussion

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, as I stated to Mr. Dennery in my questions of him--and as he stated to you--when the civil service system was put in the constitution--I believe it was in 1950--Article XIV, Section 15, covering state employees and providing a constitutional civil service system for the city of New Orleans, at the same time there was placed in the constitution Article XIV, Section 15.1, which created the state municipal fire and police civil service system. Now, that system applies to every municipality in the state having a population in excess of thirteen thousand and maintaining a paid fire and police department. It does not apply to the city of Thibodaux, from which Mr. Lanier hails, because they don't maintain a paid fire and police department. That system is administered by a local board, three members of which are appointed, and two members of which are elected: one from the fire department and one from the police department. This amendment permits any city presently covered under that...it doesn't permit it; this amendment does away with that system in its entirety, unless and until an election is called in which the people vote to include their firemen and policemen in that system. Now, that's what this amendment does. That's why I cannot vote for this section. All I ask you to do is to read the amendment.

Questions

MR. KEAN

Mr. Avant, as I understand Mr. Lanier's amendment, that amendment added additional language to Section (O), or Subsection (O), of this section; did it not?

MR. AVANT

Yes.

MR. KEAN

And Section (O) of this section provides a means by which a governing authority of a city could establish a city civil service system; does it not?

MR. AVANT

Yes.

MR. KEAN

And, Mr. Lanier's amendment, under those circumstances, would make it possible to include fire- and policemen in that system if a vote was held and the vote was favorable to such inclusion; would it not?

MR. AVANT

But, they are already covered, Mr. Kean, under the state

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

system-- that's the point I'm trying to make--and it takes them out from under that.

MR. KEAN

As I appreciate it, though, they remain in the state system--the XIV, Section 15.1--would stay in that system unless the city established a civil service system under this section, and there was an election held which decided to include them in that city civil service system.

MR. AVANT

Mr. Kean, I don't interpret it that way; I'm sorry. I just disagree with you, sir. I think it definitely does not do that.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Avant, did I understand you to say that in the event a municipality or parish over thirteen thousand adopted a regular civil service system, that under those circumstances the fire and police people would not be under any system?

MR. AVANT

I say, as I interpret this, Mr. Dennery, they are not going to be under any system, period, unless the city has an election and votes to include them.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, Mr. Avant, it would be true--would it not --that those people...I will assume that we will adopt a fire and police civil service system similar to the one we presently have. Now, on that assumption, the firemen and policemen in such a community will be covered, will they not?

MR. AVANT

If it's adopted.

MR. DENNERY

No, no, no, not if it's adopted--well, if the constitution's adopted, yes. Now, if the constitution's adopted, that particular parish or city which wants to have its own civil service system can have it; right?

MR. AVANT

Not insofar as firemen or policemen are concerned, if the present system is continued, Mr. Dennery.

MR. DENNERY

Correct. In other words, if they adopt their own system, firemen and policemen are specifically, by this amendment, excluded from such a new system--unless the people in that area subsequently vote to include them. Is that correct?

MR. AVANT

I don't agree that that's correct, Mr. Dennery, not as you have stated it. No, sir, I do not.

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Avant, it says the firemen and policemen are expressly excluded from a civil service system so established. You'll agree that they are therefore excluded from such a city civil service system; therefore, if they are excluded from that, they will remain under their present one. Then it goes on to say "unless a majority of the electors in the particular area, in an election held for that purpose, consent to their inclusion in the overall system." Is that not correct?

MR. AVANT

Let me just check one thing in the amendment. No, I don't agree with that, Mr. Dennery, because this goes beyond just municipalities.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, delegates, until the Lanier amendment was adopted, I had proposed to vote for this article. I spent the last eight or nine months working on the Committee, on the Subcommittee, of Education, Health, and Welfare, which had under consideration this subject matter. I gave a lot of hours of work, a lot of hours of thought, a lot of hours of consultation with people in authority--people with concern of civil service. I am a dedicated believer in the system of civil service; but when you take, from existing circumstances, six or so municipalities that fall in the category from seventy-five hundred population to thirteen thousand and say that, when they reach that population figure, then the governing authority...they're not under the civil service system they're now under, which is statutory fire and police civil service--identical to that in the constitutional provision, except for the size of the board--and say that they were then going to call an election to determine whether or not they're going to be under that same system they may have been under for twenty or thirty years, and we're going to create a unified system whereby we're going to put all the employees under one, where the problems are not the same, I can't vote for this article. Yet, I gave that much time to its consideration. Don't be misled; don't be misled into believing that if this article is defeated, that civil service in this state is dead. That's not true. Mr. Dennery himself has got Delegate Proposal No. 27 on the floor of this convention up for consideration tomorrow morning--if this convention wants to do it--almost identical with the amendment that this convention adopted last week. So, don't be misled into believing that if you vote against this article, you're against civil service, or you're for killing civil service in this state. That's just not true. I ask you to reject this proposal. They said they want to keep New Orleans like it is; the convention decided that issue. I was willing to swallow that, and that is a bitter pill--a bitter pill. Yet, I was going to vote for this proposal. But, when you turn around on the same basis--the same people--and say we want to take something away from those municipalities that now have it, I don't buy that philosophy; I don't buy that at all.

I ask you to concur with me and reject this proposal.

Further Discussion

MR. PUGH

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, a suggestion was made a minute ago that if you voted against this, that you had some interest. I shall vote against it, and I have no interest. I took an oath as to my duties and that is the reason I will cast my vote against it.

Further Discussion

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I want to just discuss briefly where we are and then ask for your consideration a certain way, and maybe even for the consideration of Mr. Lanier and Alexander, Chatelain and Willis. The amendment to allow the fire and police people in New Orleans to be an exception to the rule passed by only four votes. I voted against it, but I didn't make any talk against it because it was close enough where I felt that I didn't really know the answer to it, but I just thought New Orleans should be like the rest of the state--thought Tom Caey did a good job and once it passed that was one thing, but as usual in this convention--and there was a reason that you could justify that we did that to New Orleans. For thirty years they've had a special system and they've gone along with it, and it was kind of hard to say that maybe we should take them out of what they had. But, the old thing comes along, you scratch my back, I scratch yours. If you've got something, then I have to have the exact same thing, and low and behold, out of the blue without any request, without anybody asking for it, without any clamor for it, with nothing, we get the Lanier amendment which says, in essence, well, New Orleans has it; of course, some of those voted to give it to New Orleans that way; therefore, let's do it to the rest of us. Let's do it to the rest of these firemen and policemen, notwithstanding that they didn't ask for it. Notwithstanding that no city people came here and said they wanted it or anything else, let's go ahead and force upon them the option to make a choice that will be determined by the electorate of the local governmental body as to whether they stay where they have been for years, and years, or whether they are going to go under some other system that the city fathers will choose for them. I say that in all honesty, because you know that firemen and policemen are not permitted under their rules to engage in a heck of a lot of political activity with respect to electing mayors and city councilmen. Now, where are they going to be when the mayors and the city councilmen with the money and the political finesse they've got, call the election before the electorate and spend the money and say vote to take your firemen out of Section 15.1 of the present constitution, and bring them in under this city agreement that we have because it may cost the city people less money and a bunch of other things. You know what's going to happen; you know it, durn good and well. Those firemen who have been under a system for years and years are going to be under something totally new. I'm against that, there was no need for this. I went and asked, Mr. Lanier, would you please agree then, if you're going to allow this change, why not let the firemen and policemen of those cities of over thirteen thousand and less than four hundred thousand-- why not let them vote to whether to come out of the system that they're presently in or stay in it -- after all that's kind of democratic. It's their system; it's for them. It has nothing to do with whether they fight fires good or bad or whether they protect you or not. But, no compromise again. No, we won it and we're going to keep it. Well, if that's the way it's going to be, I ask you, and I've only said it once before because I don't believe in voting against something, after all the good work we've done in this proposal, I ask you to vote against it, or vote to wait until tomorrow to consider it, and maybe, maybe we can prevail upon the authors of the Lanier amendment to do one or two things: to pull it so that we can get this thing passed fully or to at least allow the firemen and policemen to make the choice. Thank you.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. VICK

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates. I want to say from the outset, that I am for, very affirmatively, for the concept of civil service. But, I am now and have been since the onset of this constitution or this convention, a constitutional purist, and what does that mean? I am against, vehemently against the plethora of statutory material that has been placed in this constitution, and this article is a classic example of it. I urge those of you who have not read the PAR analysis, to do so. I do not think that PAR could ever be considered anticivil service. I have listened to Mr. Dennery's arguments on the subject and I respect them, but I do not share them. He does not trust the legislature in this field. That's where Mr. Dennery and I disagree. I think it is almost insulting to say that if a three-fourths vote is required that the legislature should not be trusted. That's an extraordinary statement. Mr. Chairman, I think that the debate on this subject, if debated, can be called, as evidenced, a deep-seeded unhappiness, frustration, contempt for civil service as it has operated for the last number of years in this state. I am not sure why, never having been a civil servant in the classified service, I am not sure why but there is an underlying complaint of the delegates that I have talked to on this subject. Some attributed to arrogance, arrogance of the commission, arrogance of the administrators. I don't know if that's the case, but nevertheless, there is such unhappiness with the Civil Service Commission as presently constituted or as they do business that I think someone, perhaps, Mr. Dennery, who is our in-house expert on this area, should perhaps come up and give us a catharsis, and tell it like is. What's wrong with civil service as it operates in this state? I don't know, and I have heard very little on the subject from this podium, but there is something wrong somewhere. I want to conclude by saying I am for civil service, but I am against this proposal. Thank you, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates.

Motion

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, I move the previous question, and I suggest the absence of a quorum.

[Quorum Call: 88 delegates present and a quorum. Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 36-55. Motion to limit debate to fifteen minutes. Substitute motion to limit debate to the speakers on the list. Substitute motion adopted: 57-37.]

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and members, I'm against the adoption of the section because I'm afraid after the Lanier amendment, we're going to really, if we leave that, gut civil service. Now, this thing-- I want you to listen carefully to it. We've had the New Orleans policemen and firemen under the New Orleans city for years, since 1940. We've had the other firemen and police under another one, the same number of years. I never did think the New Orleans police and firemen should be under a city one. We tried in the legislature, as I explained--and I have to hurry along--we couldn't change it. Now, all of this got off on the track of trying to put the New Orleans firemen and police under the state firemen and police civil service; that was tried out. New Orleans or those supporting that view won; that ended that matter. We had a vote on it. Now, I'm not--I have to use the name to call the amendments--then came

Mr. Lanier's amendment which was not asked for. He has no way of knowing whether these people and all these other people want his amendment. I had talked to him; he's going to talk; he can tell you that. His city is fourteen thousand--Thibodaux. We fixed the amendments and all so it wouldn't bother his volunteer fire department he keeps bragging on. Now, he's inflicted the Lanier amendment that's gutting the civil service, that's why I am not going to vote for this section. I am not going to vote. I'm going to vote no when that machine's opened. Now, ladies and gentlemen, let me tell you this, if we defeat the adoption of Section 1, it goes back to committee. It'll get straightened out; you bet your boots. There was another proposal defeated, the one on taxation. It got straightened back in the committee, and this will. But, we want to come up with a good civil service for state employees, city employees, police and firemen. We can do it, if we defeat... adopted this whole section, get this back to committee, work until midnight, if necessary. One trouble is, we're not... it's killing us doing it, but we can survive it-- if we'll just keep plowing on and get down here in the morning--I notice every day an hour is lost on everything. Now, let's just defeat adoption of this section, defeat this reconsideration, get it back into committee, and I feel sure that committee will take out the Lanier amendment. It'll be fine. Now, if you leave in this Lanier amendment, and you adopt this section, then these cities like Shreveport, and others, if they'd had the city... the civil service there for all those years, if they've ... changed by election, there's no provision to change back. Those things were overlooked. This thing is not clear, so I hope you'll go along with that. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNIS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I am very concerned about the question that has arisen about the fate of the firemen in cities of over thirteen thousand population, if we adopt this section. Now, Mr. Avant says that it might lead to throwing them out of any kind of civil service system. Mr. Dennery and Mr. Kean in their questions indicate that's not so. When I asked Mr. Dennery the question earlier, when he was on the microphone, he seemed unsure. I have since talked to him and he says reading it all in context, it won't endanger these jobs being taken out of all civil service systems. However, and I think he may be right, but it's hard to follow all of these amendments the way they've come on. I think he's right, but I'm not absolutely certain, and I think many of you may have doubts in your mind. So, Mr. Chairman, if I'm in order at this time, I'd like to move that we defer action on this section until tomorrow, and that you request the staff, if possible, to get us all a cut and clip copy of the section as it stands at the present time, also if possible, ask the staff to digest the section as it stands at the present time with all of its amendments.

MR. HENRY

You'd move to defer action until tomorrow, Judge?
The gentleman now moves to... well, then Judge Dennis, is your motion to adjourn or to defer action or temporarily pass over it? I'm not.... I had some....

MR. DENNIS

Mr. Chairman, what I would seek to accomplish is simply laying this matter aside until tomorrow and asking the staff to prepare a cut and clip copy, and if possible, a digest of the section and proposal as it stands right now.

[Motion to return the proposal to the calendar rejected: 33-63. Quorum Call: 94 delegates present and a quorum.]

Point of Information

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman, there's so much confusion here this afternoon, or this evening rather, how in the world can you... you have something up for final passage, and now here at the last minute come up with an amendment to the thing. I want you to explain it to me, please, sir.

MR. HENRY

I'm not sure that I can understand it for you, Mr. Chatelain, but the gentleman had moved the adoption of Section 1. There was debate on Section 1. We didn't have any additional amendments on Section 1. Mr. Floy has offered amendments to Section 1. The previous question has not been ordered on Section 1, consequently, amendments to Section 1 are in order. That's exactly the way it happened, sir.

Mr. Chatelain.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

[Motion to adjourn to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Friday, December 14, 1973 rejected: 19-70. Motion for the Previous Question on the entire subject matter rejected: 35-55.]

Point of Order

MR. SCHMITT

The amendment deletes what we've previously adopted. Does it attempt to substitute anything, therein? Therefore, I would suggest that we take a two-thirds vote before we can even consider this.

MR. HENRY

I would ask that the Clerk read the amendment and give me a copy of it, please, sir.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The amendment reads as follows:
Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 14, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denny and adopted by the convention on the eighth, page 9, delete Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegates Lanier and others, and all floor amendments thereto and restore the language of Convention Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed to said page by Delegate Flory and adopted by the convention on today.

MR. HENRY

Now, Mr. Clerk, if you will look at your copy and give us just a minute, please, sir.

It's my appreciation, Mr. Schmitt, that what the amendment does is undo what the Lanier amendment did, plus it undoes his technical amendment.

Now, am I correct, Mr. Clerk?

MR. POYNTER

That's correct, and restores back, then, language of the Flory amendment which was earlier adopted in the day. So, it undoes two amendments and restores a third amendment previously adopted.

MR. SCHMITT

This is not reconsideration, then?

MR. HENRY

I think your appropriate concern would be a point of order as to whether or not these amendments are in order at this time.

[Chair declined to rule. Question put to the Convention. Previous Question ordered. Amendment reread. Amendment declared in order: 54-39.]

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, what this amendment does basically, is to delete the Lanier amendment and reinsert the language that he and I had both together agreed upon in the earlier amendments. I said earlier when I spoke, I was prepared to vote for this article under those circumstances on what he and I had agreed on in that particular subject matter. I still am prepared if this amendment is adopted to vote for this article. I want to vote for it. I believe in civil service. I believe that when you tamper with the municipalities that now have fire and police civil service, in that category between seventy-five hundred and thirteen thousand, that you are being totally unfair. I don't believe that that's what this convention wants. I ask you to seriously consider this amendment and put it back in the framework which Mr. Lanier and I agreed upon and adopt this article. Because, I believe in civil service. I believe in what has been adopted, even though I don't agree with all of it. I know that it's the work of this convention. I know you put a great deal of time and effort into the consideration of this most serious subject matter; serious of nature to the employees of this state and of its political subdivisions, so that I ask you to adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Flory, just so we can...I'd like to understand what precisely is your objection to the Lanier amendment. I realize it's stringent and serious. I'd like to know what is your objection to the Lanier amendment. How do you think it's going to injure civil service?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Duval, at the present time, in the municipalities between seventy-five hundred and thirteen thousand, they now come under statutory fire and police civil service which is statewide. All municipalities within that population bracket.

If there is a municipality that doesn't have a city civil service system, when they reach that population of thirteen thousand, what they do is...come under this provision. Then they have to call an election within one year, and then take those people out from under the system that they've been under for maybe thirty or forty--thirty years.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Flory...

MR. FLORY

...unless they have, I am told, some ramifications in those municipalities above thirteen thousand. That, I'm not quite sure of. But I know it affects those between those population brackets.

MR. DUVAL

Now, there's been some confusion, this amendment wouldn't in any way take these people out of civil service, would it? The Lanier amendment would not take anybody out of some civil service system.

MR. FLORY

I think it could very well do that, Mr. Duval, for the period of at least until they called the elections.

MR. DUVAL

Wouldn't they be under that system, sir, until they had another system through an election?

MR. FLORY

That, I'm not sure of. I have reason to believe that they would be under no civil service provisions so long as the municipality opted to come under this section of the constitution and thereby calling an election until such time. Then, I think that I... I'm not sure that it would have any civil service.

MR. DUVAL

Well, I don't know where you see that in here. But it seems to me, sir, that isn't it the basic intention here, of the amendment, as to whether cities would either have the right to have their own systems, or go under fourteen...what is now Article XIV, Section 15.1? Isn't that the basic thrust of the amendment?

MR. FLORY

The basic thrust of the amendment, as it relates to those above thirteen thousand, is that.

MR. DUVAL

But you don't have, as I understand you are objecting to then, is not giving people the right to determine what type of civil service system they want to be under. That's not your objection, then?

MR. FLORY

My objection is that they've been working under that system for thirty years and are happy with it, why change that system?

MR. DUVAL

Well, why did we change the Civil Service System completely here--the composition of the board, the burden of proof, and many other things? Why did we change those?

MR. FLORY

Because those people are not satisfied; they were not satisfied, Mr. Duval.

MR. DUVAL

One more question and I won't belabor this, Mr. Flory. But, then, why not give the people that we're talking about the people--why not give the people in the municipalities a right to choose their own system, then? What about those people that we've forgotten?

MR. FLORY

If you limit the election to those people who have to work and live under civil service, I would have no objections.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Flory, I'm trying to get straight on this thing. Your original amendment provided that in areas over thirteen thousand, fire and policemen were excluded. It seems to me that all the Lanier amendment, it does, is say that they are excluded unless there is an election to include them. Is that right?

MR. FLORY

But, it goes further, Mr. Singletary, that when that municipality comes up to that population, you have to bear in mind they'd been operating for years under an already statutory civil service system which is, in as far as the provisions, are identical with the exception of the board structure so that then, when they reached the population bracket at thirteen thousand, then the only way you can do it is that the municipality calls the election to have established a unified system for the other city employees and put them all under that system, and take them away from that.

MR. SINGLETARY

I'm still having trouble following....your thing...I don't know.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, Mr. Lanier's amendment applied to those cities voting to go under the civil service--constitutional civil service system as it applies to other cities. Isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

I didn't understand you, Mrs. Zervigon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Lanier's amendment goes to that paragraph describing the civil service systems of those cities who vote to go under a constitutional city civil service. Is that right?

MR. FLORY

I can't hear you.....I can't hear you, Mrs. Zervigon. I'm sorry.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I'm saying that Mr. Lanier's amendment went to that paragraph describing city civil service for other cities who choose to go under this constitutional city civil service system. Isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

It's for those municipalities who ought to come under this provision of the constitution.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Yes. Many of the cities--in fact, most--who have their own city civil service systems have statutory systems. Isn't that correct? Therefore, are not under this, but are set up separately. Isn't that so?

MR. FLORY

That's correct, but if they opt to come under it, then they can take the firemen and policemen out from under statutory firemen and police civil service, or out from under this constitutional provision. If we adopt a constitution....fire and police civil service.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Now, the next proposal that we consider is going to be Proposal 10 which deals specifically with fire and police municipal civil service. Isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

I presume that that's what's on the docket for consideration.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Now, if you read this with your fears and mine, wouldn't the place to cure your fears be in that proposal? Couldn't we add a clause in that proposal that would say that "if a city opts to come under constitutional city civil service, then the fire and police are treated by the voters as they please, but must be included either in that city civil service, or in 15.1--the old 15.1--not giving the option to abolish civil service for fire and police altogether. Isn't that the appropriate place to cure your fears?"

MR. FLORY

No, ma'am, because I don't believe in having two conflicting provisions, that we know are conflicting, when we adopt it in the constitution.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, you are saying you are afraid what this might mean. You're not saying that you think it definitely does mean....

MR. FLORY

No, I didn't say I was afraid of what it might mean. I said "I know in my judgment what it means in certain municipalities." The question was raised, and I said I'm not sure about that question. There's no question in my mind about what the Lanier amendment does in certain situations that I have mentioned.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Flory, isn't it correct that not one city in this state, other than New Orleans, has a constitutional city civil service system? They are all statutory--all the others?

MR. FLORY

I'm not arguing that point, Mrs. Zervigon....

They do have constitutional fire and police civil service, though.

Questions

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Flory, the name Lanier, you've constantly mentioned the Lanier amendment, yet in your amendment, you use an "all floor amendments, thereto." Now, if you were just concerned about the Lanier amendment, why would you have that clause there, and all floor amendments thereto?

MR. FLORY

It is my understanding that he offered a subsequent technical amendment to his own amendment. So, I have to delete that, also, in order to reinstate the language as it actually was that he and I agreed upon.

MR. LANDRUM

What about the Casey and Jackson amendment?

MR. FLORY

I don't tamper with that at all.

MR. LANDRUM

In other words, the only amendment is the Lanier amendment and....

MR. FLORY

His technical amendment.

MR. LANDRUM

....and another amendment by Lanier?

MR. FLORY

That's correct. I do not tamper with the Casey-Johnny Jackson amendment at all. I said I was going to vote for the proposal even though I had to vote with that amendment on there. But, I was in a position to do that even though it was a bitter pill for me to swallow. But, I don't, by this amendment, Reverend Landrum, don't tamper with that at all. The only thing this does is delete the Lanier amendment and the one that he offered subsequent to that which was a technical amendment to his own amendment, and reinstates the language that he and I had both agreed upon.

MR. ROEMER

Gordon, is it your understanding of the Lanier amendment, that under systems now in cities thirteen thousand up, exclusive of New Orleans where the systems are split, they would remain separated except by a vote of the people? Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

There is some doubt on that point, Mr. Roemer; and that's the question that was raised earlier is that I said that I'm not sure about. I have reason to believe, and I've been told that they do, it does affect those about thirteen thousand to four hundred thousand. I'm not sure of that.

98th Days Proceedings—December 13, 1973

But, I'm sure it would in a parish fire district, or in a special fire district where you have, let's say, in a...you wanted to set up a parish...police jury wanted to set up a system of civil service for its employees, and you had a parish fire district there. I think it could come under Mr. Lanier's amendment. Is there....

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to one question from Mr. Lanier, and this will be it?

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, did you know that I now know what it's like to be in the eye of a hurricane?
Did you also know that I've talked to three....

MR. FLORY

I thought you'd been in a hurricane before, Mr....

MR. LANIER

I have.
I have talked to two of my coauthors. I hadn't had a chance to talk to Reverend Alexander. But the three of us--Mr. Willis and Mr. Chatelain--rather than be obstructionist, are willing to go along with your amendment to delete our amendment.

MR. FLORY

I commend you for your generosity. I propose to vote for the article.

Further Discussion

MR. ARNETTE

I wish to thank those of you who have voted to give me the privilege of speaking now. I'll try not to take up too much of your time. I've remained quiet throughout this Civil Service Article--or relatively quiet. I think I asked a couple of questions. But, more, and more, and more I am worried--greatly worried--about what is going to happen to this document. I am greatly, greatly worried about some of the things that we are doing. This particular proposal failed for one reason, and one reason only the first time it came up for a vote. A certain special interest group only got ninety-nine point forty-four one hundredths percent of what they wanted in this particular article. There was one thing extra they wanted. Now they got that, too. They came in the back door. They didn't go through the normal procedure of taking it off the table. No, they came in through the back door to get an amendment in to change something back from what we had already laid on the table. Now, they are going to pass this particular proposal to my great dismay. I really can't understand it. I voted for this article the first time it came up because I thought this was the best the people of Louisiana could get in spite of what had been done here. But, I think this last particular thing that has been done is getting to be the last straw. We started out in this article possibly making some good changes--changes for the better I thought--I voted for several of them. The composition of the board needed to be changed. That was a good change. Several other things needed to be changed. But the thing that worries me more than anything, and I've been seeing it coming for the last couple of months, is the independence of these delegates in this convention is no longer. They--we are as independent as one delegate said--a bunch of jelly beans. That's about right. We're as independent as a bunch of jelly beans. Somebody pulls the string, and there's the vote. It goes right up on the board. Ladies and gentlemen, I tell you, if this convention doesn't get back to being independent again, the people of Louisiana--its got damned little chance now--it's not going to have a snow ball's chance in hell of passing, if they find out that all we do is one guy pushes his button, and everybody else follows suit. I'll tell you, that's what's happening. If you people can go along doing this and look yourself in the mirror in the morning, that's fine. But I tell you, if I would do it, I couldn't stand to see myself. I would suggest that many of the delegates here, instead of worrying about a few votes they might get in the next political race, would start worrying about what is good for the State of Louisiana. I thought that was the reason we were here. But, it seems we're no longer worried about that.

We're worried about this special interest group; and that special interest group; and some other special interest group. I--I'm really, really worried about the fate of this constitution. I was going to support it practically no matter what we put in it as long as it was a little bit better than what we had before. But now I'm worried that it's not going to be any better. I'm worried that it's actually going to be worse. The delegates to the convention aren't what they were when they started out. They aren't independent. They're just following suit. Might....
...worry about the state, please. That's all I'm asking you to do.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm going to make a motion. But, before I do, I want to say with all my command, I resent what Mr. Arnette has said. I think it's out of order. I don't appreciate it. I'm about as independent as anybody here and I think he ought to come up here and apologize to this body. He gets mad--people do--and go bad-mouthing the convention, and bad-mouthing the delegates. I think you were out of order, and I certainly think you should apologize.
But this time, I think you are about ready to quit.
I now move the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question on the Section adopted: 52-41. Previous Question ordered. Section adopted: 83-19. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Proposal. Proposal adopted: 80-22. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. JACK

I'll be brief on personal privilege. I'm not going to call names, but the time is long past due for people when they get mad, get dissatisfied, lose a vote, to get up here, run down the constitution--as I use the term, and Jap's been using it since--bad-mouthing it; that's the beat term going. All that does without any facts, gets in newspapers; they write editorials. Like a member of the House of Representatives, he bad-mouthed the constitution. They had an editorial in one of the Shreveport papers, not a single fact stated. Now, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, nobody could possibly approve of everything or disapprove of everything. The thing to do is for us to keep our "cool." We're working awfully hard; everybody is. Now, next time I hear somebody get up here, talk against this just because they didn't win the thing--I've lost a lot of them--I'm not going to listen to them. That is just... we are down here to come up with something good. The present constitution won't work, and it's up to us. It's not like a super salesman but to get the true facts. When you say those ugly things about this without any foundation, it's just not right. We are all in a bad humor tonight; we're overworked--all that--but we've got to quit running down the work we're doing. All it does is get in the papers and a misinterpretation. I think to date these delegates have all shown that they're hard workers, they're knowledgeable; come from all walks of life, that to date I think we've got a constitution we later can be proud of, and I figure the rest of it is going to be. So, let's just quit running it down without rhyme or reason. That's all I want to say.

Personal Privilege

MR. ARNETTE

To my knowledge, I have not gotten up here any time before and said anything bad about this constitution or its chances of passing or failing. I still hope we can pass this constitution; that's always been my hope. I think we can make some significant changes. The reason I got up here was not because I was dissatisfied with any particular article or anything else. What I got up here and what I talked about was the attitudes of the delegates and how they seemed to have changed in my eyes. I may be completely wrong, but I don't think I am. I'll stand by what I said before, and I don't think I need to make an apology to anyone. Thank you.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to take Committee Proposal No. 10 out of its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 10, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee of Education and Welfare, and other delegates who are members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for a municipal fire and police civil service--as I appreciate it once again, this proposal, a lengthy proposal, setting forth one section dealing with municipal fire and police civil service.

[Motion to waive reading of the Proposal adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this morning we continue with civil service but with a committee proposal which though, continues with state as establishing a municipal fire and police civil service and each municipality operating a regularly paid fire and police department and has a population of not less than thirteen thousand. The present constitution, the Constitution of 1921, provides for the same, but with municipalities with a population of more than thirteen thousand but less than two hundred and fifty thousand. This proposal before us extends that limitation to...eliminates any limitation which then includes all municipalities which have paid fire and police departments. However, you are aware that that will be in conflict with a provision which was passed yesterday? I should also point out that like the Committee Proposal No. 9 establishing the state and city civil service, the municipal fire and police is self-operative in that all of the necessary provisions in order to operate are included in the constitution. There are no references, otherwise, or there are no further provisions to be provided by the legislature or otherwise. A review of the 1921 Constitution, as well as Committee Proposal No. 10, will show that except for the removal of the limitation on the population that the other provisions of the 1921 Constitution providing for municipal fire and police has been repeated in Committee Proposal No. 10. It provides for a board, a five member board, which gets its membership by having an institution of higher education nominate four persons from which two are appointed to serve on the board. The governing authority of the municipality involved selects a person or appoints a person. The members of the fire department in that area elect a person to the board. Also, the police department in that municipality elects a person to the board. The others, without going into a great deal of detail, the provisions are also provided for the filling of vacancies which, of course, repeats the original manner in which the person was appointed; it picks up the election of officers and spells them out. The remainder of the proposal really is a repeat of what exists in the present constitution. Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest that...rather than an hour and a half lecture here on the Committee Proposal No. 10, which from this point actually tracts the provision provided in the present constitution, that much more may be gained by a discussion through questions that the delegates may have about Committee Proposal No. 10. If there is no objection to that procedure, I would like to stop my presentation and yield to questions.

Questions

MR. JUNEAU

Tony, it might help, though, if you would just basically tell us what changes were made in this proposal from what the existing law is; could you do that for us?

MR. RACHAL

I think that's what I've done; I could repeat those.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, I've heard them, but I think that's the important thing that a lot of us are interested in.

MR. RACHAL

All right. Let me repeat those. The changes as I can best ascertain them, as I understand them, is that the present constitution provides for a municipal fire and police for all municipalities of not less than thirteen thousand nor more than two hundred and fifty thousand. Committee Proposal No. 10 removes the limitation of the two hundred and fifty thousand, which means then, that this proposal advocates a municipal fire and police for all municipalities over thirteen thousand. Mr. Juneau, that basically is the change from the present constitution which is also, of course, repeated in the statutes. But, that basically is the change and from that point all of the provisions in the present constitution are repeated in this committee proposal.

MR. RIECKE

Mr. Rachal, as I understand it, the firemen and policemen of New Orleans are now under the regular Civil Service Commission; is that correct?

MR. RACHAL

That's right.

MR. RIECKE

And, you're taking them out from that regular Civil Service commission and creating a board...a commission board just for those... for the firemen and policemen; is that correct?

MR. RACHAL

That's what this proposal does; yes.

MR. RIECKE

All right. Now, what institutions recommend that board and how are they appointed?

MR. RACHAL

Well, now in New Orleans, of course, it doesn't....

MR. RIECKE

I know what it is now; what is it under the new proposal?

MR. RACHAL

No. Let me make that clear, you see, now that New Orleans police and fire are under the city civil service, it does not come under this at all.

MR. RIECKE

You are taking it out from that?

MR. RACHAL

No. Oh, now yesterday we voted to maintain that--the convention did.

MR. RIECKE

Yes.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. RACHAL

What I was trying to explain that presently, by the constitution, New Orleans is exempted from the municipal fire and police.

MR. RIECKE

I know that.

MR. RACHAL

...so, there is no institution now nominating because there is no board in New Orleans for fire and police. Now, if we were to...if this provision prevails, and over the vote of the convention yesterday, it would mean that an institution in the New Orleans area would submit four nominees from which two would be appointed to the board.

MR. RIECKE

What institution?

MR. RACHAL

Well, that would have to be decided.

MR. RIECKE

By whom?

MR. RACHAL

By the governing authority of New Orleans.

MR. RIECKE

Does that say so in the amendment?

MR. RACHAL

It doesn't, but the general provision for all municipalities has it that an institution and in any...and that that...where there is only one, of course, has no selection to be made but where there are more than one the use of an institution is decided upon by governing authority of that municipality.

MR. RIECKE

As I understand it, there are five on that board, correct?

MR. RACHAL

Right.

MR. RIECKE

One representative of the police and one of the employee-- police employees--and one representing the fire employees, and the other three appointed by selection from an institution recommendation?

MR. RACHAL

Now, one is selected by the governing authority on its own choice.

MR. RIECKE

Yes.

MR. RACHAL

The other two are selected from among four nominees from an institution of higher education.

MR. RIECKE

So that the whole Civil Service Commission, then, would comprise two selected by the employees and one by the governing authority? I thought you said that some educational institution would recommend.

MR. RACHAL

Right; that's a right. The governing authority appoints one from whatever source it desires. Then, it also appoints two from four nominees made by an institution of higher learning. So, the governing authority actually does appoint three; two of them, though, are appointed from among four nominees from an institution of higher education.

MR. RIECKE

There's five all together?

MR. RACHAL

Five, all together--two employee representatives and three otherwise.

I would move the adoption of Committee Proposal No. 10.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Bergeron offers it.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, following the word and punctuation "Section 1 (A)" delete the remainder of the line 12 and delete lines 13 through 21, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"There is hereby created and established a system of fire and police civil service which, notwithstanding any other provision of this article, shall be applicable to all municipalities with a population in excess of thirteen thousand which operate a regularly paid fire and municipal police department and all parishes and all fire protection districts which operate a regularly paid fire department. Except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this Section, the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the Constitution of 1921, are hereby retained and continued in force and effect as statutes. The legislature upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership of each house may amend or otherwise modify any of said provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the 1921 Constitution except that the legislature may not abolish the system of classified civil service for such firemen and municipal policemen or make it inapplicable to any municipality which has a population in excess of thirteen thousand according to the latest decennial census of the United States or to any parish or fire protection district having a regularly paid fire department."

Explanation

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'm offering this amendment to Proposal No. 10 of the Committee on Education and Welfare dealing with civil service. The reason I offer this amendment is to set up, create and establish, and contain-- I should say retain--the system of municipal fire and police civil service in Louisiana. What we have done is take out the prohibition of any municipality with a population of over two hundred and fifty thousand having a municipal fire and police civil service system. So, I tell you now, that this would include New Orleans into the system. I've sat down and I've listened to the debate for the past few days as most of you have; it's been long; it's been hard. I want to extend my gratitude to you, the delegates of the Constitutional Convention, for sitting down and paying the interest you have in the debate which is going on and as a matter of fact, listening to me over the past few days in what I had to offer. Sure we have problems in civil service. Sure we have problems in the police and fire municipal civil service system. But nothing we can do will completely correct it; nothing we will do will completely correct those inequities. Now, I'm sure that everyone sitting out there will agree that there are inequities in our system because the system that--any system we devise--is only as good as the people who maintain and operate that system. As I've said, I've sat there and listened to the debate over the last few days and, in my judgment, I have not been pleased or have not been satisfied, I should say, with the outcome thus far. There just hasn't been valid or enough valid arguments and points as to why we should retain the New Orleans fire and policemen under the Orleans civil service system. Now, what I'm going to try to do is give you a few examples of why I think this system should be changed--maybe I can bring some new points into the situation; maybe I can bring some things up which haven't been discussed. But, if some of this has been discussed, I would appreciate it if you could bear with me because this is most important. I know we all realize that this is a very, very important situation we are dealing with here. Let me first go back and go through my amendment and show you some of the things we've done. We have created the system for municipal fire and police throughout the State of Louisiana. We've also added...or we've also deleted the two hundred and fifty thousand prohibition which would enable Orleans to come under this system. I have added that "the legislature upon a favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership of each House may amend or otherwise modify any of said provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the '21 Constitution except that the legislature may not abolish the system of classified service for such firemen and municipal policemen or make it inapplicable to all municipalities which have a population in excess of thirteen thousand." So, what we have done, is we've allowed for change in the future--if the need arises. We have set out a prohibition that the system cannot be abolished which I'm sure that each and everyone of us knows that the system of municipal civil service for police and firemen in the State of Louisiana will not be abolished. Now, Article XIV, Section 15.1 simply deals with a municipal police and fire civil service; it has their duties, their regulations, their powers, their terms, the board, and so forth. So, this provision, this proposal only deals with Article XIV, Section 15.1. So, that's all we are trying to tamper with here. Yesterday we adopted a provision in Proposal No. 9--of Mr. Denney's amendment I should say--which calls for an election by the people of New Orleans as to whether their police and firemen should stay under the municipal...should stay under the city civil service system or be transferred into the municipal fire and police state system. Now, let me just point out a few, a few, now this is only a few problems which may arise from this system. First of all, we are going to have to educate the public as to the workings of civil service. Now, we know--and I consider all of us here highly intelligent people--we know and we've sat down and we've read and discussed civil service for over nine months--nine months--and we are still not clear in most instances dealing with civil service; we still are not as fully informed as we should be about the operations of the system. Now, we're talking about educating the city of New Orleans which has a population of over five hundred thousand people as to the workings of civil service--that's the basic step if we are to have an independent vote which is based on the facts. The second problem that I see could arise--it's more or less in the same line of explanation--we're going to have to inform the people the difference between the city civil service system and the state municipal fire and police service system. So, not only are we going to have to go back and tell them first of all how civil service operates; we're going to have to go back and explain the difference between the two systems. I can see this problem: we're going to have two years before the ballot is brought to the polls so we can just inform the public of what we are doing. Third, but not last, the problem which has confronted me is we are going to have to explain them...explain to the people of New Orleans why there should be two systems for civil service. Why should the rest of the State of Louisiana be under one system and why should New Orleans be under a separate system? By the very adoption of the amendment yesterday which put in this--calling for the election--we have set in some problems with the constitution. First of all, we're going to cause, I feel, a political issue. Now, you don't think they are going to call an election for just this one issue on the ballot. We had an election in New Orleans last month; we dealt with the mayoral candidates; we dealt with all our parochial offices, the district attorney. We had a very, very light turnout in New Orleans; it was predicted about fifty to sixty... about sixty percent...sixty-five percent. So, we're not going to have this one issue on the voting poll. We're going to have it thrown with other issues at the polls, maybe even political offices which I can foresee easily. So, the first thing that's going to happen is a candidate is going to be running for an office and he's going to say, "I'm for the city of New Orleans, the police and firemen going under the state municipal firemen and police civil service system," and right away you are going to make it a political issue although, in many cases, I feel it's been a political issue for many years but the problem that will cause is that I do not feel that the firemen and policemen in New Orleans would have adequate funds. I don't feel that our provisions would allow them adequately to carry out this campaign--the provisions we've adopted thus far. Sure, they can campaign on a person-to-person basis, but you are dealing with three hundred... over three hundred thousand people when you are dealing with just the city of Orleans. You know, I would like to just point out some of the specifics that I see, some of the inequities that I see, and maybe you will see under our city civil service system as opposed to our state fire and police municipal city civil service system. Well, first of all, let's go back to what we've been calling the proposed merit system which has been in effect. The merit system--well, let me tell you something about this merit system. A man has to-- in New Orleans now--a man has to be on the police force for three years before he is even eligible to take the merit system test which, also, seniority comes into play on that merit system test. But, he has to have seniority, I'll say, before he is eligible to take that test; he has to have three years seniority; he has to be there three years.

Thank you, ladies and gentlemen, for allowing me the opportunity to continue with the explanation of my amendment. I was explaining the so-called merit system that we operate under now in Louisiana. Under the city system which our policemen and firemen in New Orleans are in or operate under, they have to be on the force for three years before they are eligible to take the so-called merit test which is based on a percentage, some of it to sixty-forty--I don't know the exact percentages, they vary from time to time--merit and seniority. Under the state system there is no seniority until an applicant first passes his test; he has to pass this test before there is any consideration of seniority--that's the first step. A passing grade is seventy-five under the state system; under our city system it's seventy. Now, we had a big call yesterday for the most qualified...the past few days for qualified men, for qualified people in our office as police and firemen. I think if we have a man who passes the test with a seventy-five, as opposed to one passing a test with a seventy, I feel that it is some difference; maybe under the state system we do have the most qualified men. Even though the test in Orleans is seventy for passing and seventy-five under the state system, the policemen and firemen still wish to go under this system. I suggest to you this; I suggest to you as a colleague has suggested to you before, when there is no need for change, do not change. But, when there is dissatisfaction with the system; when there is compliant with the system, there is no other alternative than change. Now, you hear the argument: "Well, sure, but why can't we do it under our present system? Why can't we change it, the inequities, under our present system?" I'm sure any of my distinguished colleagues will suggest that there are inequities in our present civil service system in New Orleans; they know that as well as I know that. We've had the system for thirty-one years, but has it been changed? Have there been laws set up guaranteeing that every eighteen months, or every two years, or a specific said amount of time, there will be a promotional examination given, so the men who pass that examination may qualify for a higher position? No. So, under our merit system, after we are on the force for three years... It could be ten years before a promotional examination is called; it could be five years; it could be three years---there is no set time period. Under the municipal firemen and policemen civil service for the state there is a set period of eighteen months; every eighteen months a promotional examination is to be given. If there are open promotions available, those who qualify for those promotion will surely be considered. You know one other thing just caught my eye when I was looking over our proposal last night; let me explain it to you this way. Under Proposal No. 9, we have allowed for a municipal fire and police representative from the ranks of the state to be elected to the commission. Under city civil service, we have no such representative--no such representative. Ladies and gentlemen, let me just put the question to you this way: We have been...this issue has been before me for the last nine months--nine months. I've studied the facts on both sides. I've looked over the question. I've come up with a decision that there is sufficient information to justify change. The people who operate under this system are the people who have to live under this system. The firemen and policemen in New Orleans have to be operated under this system. Why, why will you not allow them the opportunity to come under a system which they deem more desirable; which they and I both feel will be more beneficial to the people of the state and to the policemen? I would urge the adoption of the amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. JUNEAU

Phil, I want to see if I understand your amendment. It does, does it not, change a vote which we just took in the past two days with regard to the people of Orleans Parish determining whether or not that's what they want? Your amendment does that, doesn't it?

MR. BERGERON

Well, I feel that this amendment, if it were adopted, what would happen was it would be probably sent first of all to Style and Drafting to see if there is, in fact, a direct conflict.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, let me ask the question a little more direct, then. Isn't the intent of your proposal to reverse what we did the past two days with regard to the amendment concerning the people of Orleans to determine whether they wanted it or they didn't want it?

MR. BERGERON

Well, let me say this, Pat. We haven't done that in the last two days; that amendment was offered last night. Now, I tried and I was all set to offer an amendment last night which would have satisfied the problem. Unfortunately, I couldn't get the amendment up. We have adopted that amendment last night; it hasn't changed what we've done in the last two days. My intent, and I feel the intent of the amendment is to put Orleans police and firemen under the state municipal fire and police service system. Yes.

MR. JUNEAU

All right. More specifically then, if your amendment was adopted, then we would have something contrary to the amendment which you said was passed by this convention last night?

MR. BERGERON

Now, I answered your question that way...the first question that way. I said if this amendment were adopted, it would be sent back, I'm sure, to the Style and Drafting Committee first of all to see if there is a direct conflict. Second of all, I'm sure it would come back to the people of the convention. I'm sure we would abide by the Style and Drafting Committee's views and we would have to settle the conflict.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, don't you have language in there that says "nothing in this article notwithstanding that this shall occur? Wouldn't this be a subsequently adopted amendment or the latest expression by this convention which, in essence, it wouldn't even be a question for Style and Drafting; you would be asking this convention to reverse what it did last night?"

MR. BERGERON

Yes, that's probably what would happen and I would say this: That...I'm glad you brought that out, it would be the latest concurrence of the convention, and I've said that all along. I said when I came up here--my opening statement--this amendment would bring Orleans police and firemen under the state municipal fire and police civil service system; that's what this amendment would do. It would also create, and set up, and constitutionalize our present system in this constitution which we are adopting now, which we are writing now.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Bergeron, your amendment makes no provision for a referendum to the various towns as they reach this population of thirteen thousand.

MR. BERGERON

I can't hear you, sir.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Your amendment makes no provision for a referendum to the people of any municipality that reaches the thirteen thousand requirement.

MR. BERGERON

A referendum?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, to the towns and cities that reach the population of thirteen thousand. In other words, they have this system regardless of whether they want it or not.

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir. That is correct.

MR. HERNANDEZ

There's no provisional...That's a change from the present law; is it not?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir, that's not a change from the present law. This system is implemented now in every municipality with a population of thirteen thousand or over.

MR. HERNANDEZ

But, there is no provision in the present law for a referendum for a city to determine whether or not they want civil service.

MR. BERGERON

No, sir, not to my knowledge, as there also is no provision in the present law which would allow a city who has police and fire city civil service to change to that state system. No, sir, the only way to make either one of those changes, as I see, is through constitutional amendments.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Bergeron, my question is somewhat similar to Mr. Juneau's. I see in this proposal a definite reversal of what was adopted yesterday. Would you agree with me? In other words, let's not talk about style and drafting. Let's just say, is it...

MR. BERGERON

I'll stop you right here, Mr. Champagne. I agree. The intent of this amendment is to put the fire and policemen of New Orleans under the state system, and I've been fighting that for the last three days. Yes, sir. That's been my viewpoint all along.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I see. In other words, what we're trying to do is rehash what we did last night; is that right?

MR. BERGERON

When we say rehash what we did last night, let me suggest to you, sir, that we had a fifty to forty-seven vote on this. It was a very close decision, and I feel that the decision is of such importance that maybe someone did not sit down. Maybe someone had something else on their mind and was not listening to the facts, was not listening to all the arguments and points brought out.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Okay. Do you realize my only purpose in getting up is to raise a red flag to this convention to say that, in case someone didn't notice it, what we're trying to do is reverse what we did last night? Thank you.

MR. BERGERON

Thank you, Mr. Champagne.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Bergeron, is this the first time in the history of this convention that you have heard that we are trying to reverse something? Have we not reversed and went forward, and reversed and went forward, and reversed?

MR. BERGERON

Mrs. Warren, you're quite correct; I'm sure all of us here will agree to that. We never know what's going to happen from day to day. That's been the way we've operated in the past, and as I said when I first came up--I'm sure you were listening--the intent of this was to put Orleans police and firemen under the state system. That is what I brought out in my very opening discussion, and you're quite correct. There has been no prohibition against reversing a decision, at least as far as the way we have operated thus far.

MRS. WARREN

It's been reversing, and everybody seems to be upset about another reverse. What does that suggest to you?

MR. LANIER

Mr. Bergeron, I'm looking at your amendment here, and it refers to all municipalities with a population in excess of thirteen thousand "which operate a regularly paid fire and municipal police department." By using the conjunctive "and" there, do you mean that both of these conditions must exist in the municipality before they come under this system-- i.e. they must have both a paid fire department and a paid police department?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir. That's the way I view the system.

MR. LANIER

And this would not be construed to apply to a city that would, say, only have a paid police department but not, say, a volunteer fire department. It would not apply to them; is that correct?

MR. BERGERON

I believe you're correct, sir.

MR. LANIER

In other words, for example, a city like Thibodaux, that has an all volunteer fire department and has a single civil service board under Act 97 of 1972, would not be affected by your amendment. Is that correct?

MR. BERGERON

That's correct, sir.

MR. LANIER

In other words, this is, as I understand it, intended to apply to parish and fire protection districts that have regularly paid fire departments. It would not apply to situations like in my parish where they have fire protection districts that are all volunteer.

MR. BERGERON

Yes, you are correct, Walter. If you would deem it necessary to correct this to correct your system, I would have no objections to it.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. LANIER

You would have no objections to me tacking on an amendment to say that this would not apply to a municipality that only has a paid police department but a volunteer fire department?

MR. BERGERON

No, sir. I was referring back to the "and". Police department and--wait, let me find the exact language--"operates a regularly paid fire and police municipal department." That's the language I was referring to.

MR. LANIER

Right. This is not intended to apply in the situation where you have a paid police department and a volunteer fire department?

MR. BERGERON

No, my intent was that.

MR. LANIER

To apply to a town like Thibodaux?

MR. BERGERON

My intent was to make it apply to a municipality which had a paid fire and police...municipal police department. My intent was to make it apply to Thibodaux, which Thibodaux is part of the rest of the state. But, being from New Orleans, I am not as familiar with your problems, as you are not as familiar with my problems. If you said that there is a conflict or a problem created with this language, well certainly, offer your amendment.

MR. LANIER

Well, now, quite frankly, you've got me confused, Mr. Bergeron, because originally you said by using the conjunctive "and" that both paid departments have to exist before this was applicable; is that correct?

MR. BERGERON

Walter, that's what I said in the very beginning.

MR. LANIER

Well, if you have a volunteer fire department, they're not paid; are they?

Further Discussion

MS. ZERVICON

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I think this is not the ordinary case of fighting and losing and coming to fight again. We've done that time and time again in this convention, and I believe it's legitimate. What this is a case of is fighting, reaching a reasonable compromise, and trying to overturn that compromise. Once we reached our compromise on the elected officials, we didn't come back and overturn that. Once we reached our compromise on the split session of the legislature--leaving it up to the wisdom of the legislature--we didn't come back and compromise on that. We didn't revoke the sovereign immunity compromise. We didn't revoke the police jury powers compromise leaving that to a vote of the local area. This is a viable compromise. It's really very similar to putting an alternative on the ballot, but that alternative will appear within a year of the adoption of the constitution and will only appear in the area affected. Now, let me give you a little bit of information about the fire department in New Orleans because you've heard so much in the way of criticism of this department in recent days. For example, are exams for promotion ever given? You'd better believe it. In the past thirteen years they've given promotional exams twenty-two times. For the rank of fire captain, they've given promotional exams seven times for that rank alone. Now, the reason they had to give that exam so often is that there is an in-time service requirement in a lower grade. As soon as they get enough people eligible, they give the exam again. There is a reason why the exam is not given more frequently, and that is: that when a register is made up, instead of retesting those guys every six months, they just keep them on the register until they promote them. It's the same sort of giving of a benefit to a guy, who is presently in the service of the fire department, that is being recommended to you. But, I may suggest to you: it is a little bit more reasonable because the register is made up on the basis of other qualifications other than seniority. As I say, in-time service in a particular grade is one of the things taken into account, but not the only thing. My major point here is that exams are given and are given frequently, as frequently as are necessary. Now, what sorts of benefits do the firemen get from the city? In the first place, we just signed a collective bargaining agreement; so the city hasn't prevented unionism, as a matter of fact. We think it's a good idea. It helps us know what the people in the department are thinking. It gives us a mechanism to work out disagreements so that they may become agreements. But, in addition to that, there've been two five percent pay increases in the past two years. All city employees receive the tenure award if they are continuous employees of the city. Their safety equipment, paid for by the city, the city allows deductions from union members' pay checks on a sign off of that union member. In other words, the city is the dues collecting agent for the union. The Blue Cross payments have been increased over the years, and now it's forty dollars a day room coverage and unscheduled out-patient coverage. There's been increasing compensatory time off from straight time to time and a half. There's a yearly uniform allowance. The fire fighters work week has been reduced. It's presently twenty-four hours on and forty-eight hours off. In addition to that the fire fighters get what's called a "Kelly Day." A "Kelly Day" is one twenty-four hour period with pay--off. The employees are allowed to convert sick leave to cash payments on his termination from the department. The sum to be computed for total retirement is the highest consecutive pay in a thirty-six month period rather than a sixty month period, which as you can see would raise it. An employee's vesting rights, or an option to stay in the retirement system despite resigning or in some cases dismissal, has reduced from fifteen years to ten years. The city combines an employee's annual leave and sick leave, along with workmen's comp, to provide full payment to employees while incapacitated. There's no requirement to do this; that's just one of the things the city does for its employees. If the employee exceeds the amount provided for workmen's compensation, the city picks up the remainder to protect its employees. Now, what are the firemen dissatisfied with? Well, I imagine they want more. Don't we all? But, still compared to other sorts of employees, the benefits received by these departments--members of these departments--is considerable, including special millages levied to give police and firemen bonuses at the end of the year, special uniform allowances, special committees set up to negotiate differences with the cities which don't exist in other departments, and that sort of thing. In addition to that, let me make one more point to you that's been made before, but as far as I'm concerned, it's one of the crucial points. New Orleans is a large metropolitan area, forty-five to fifty percent black, with a long history of racism--not the overt kind, but just the kind where you don't go out and try and overcome past decades of doing bad to folks. It's only within the past few years--past few years--that we have been actively recruiting black policemen and black firemen. At present, one of the top three officers in the police department is black, and his predecessor was also black. That man did not work his way up through the ranks. He's a very qualified guy, but he did not aerve twenty-five years on the department before he got that job. He's doing a creditable job, as did Mr. Case that preceded him. I've heard absolutely no criticism of these men. What I have heard is that, in the first place, it helps black recruitment, and in the second place, black kids have somebody to identify with in that department. It doesn't look like the big white papa figure. We haven't yet achieved this in the fire department. We don't want to just stick anybody in the top ranks, and of a thousand and twenty members of that department, only twenty-six are black. But, we've got an actively...an active recruiting program which is federally funded, and we hope in the near future to have someone at the top of that department. So, I urge you: vote down this reconsideration.

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, last night I read over again CP 10, which is the subject matter of today's deliberation. At that time, there were in existence in this hall, or in the machinery of this convention, an amendment to CP 10 proposed to be presented by Mr. Flory, and there was another amendment proposed to be introduced on today by Mr. Dennery. In comparing the two proposed amendments, I note that Mr. Flory's amendment was not presented, but a slight change was made in it, and it was proposed by Mr. Bergeron. The effect of that slight change was to eliminate one of the significant things we did on yesterday. This you should be aware of. But if you would take out your copy of CP 10 and look at only two or three provisions of it with me, you would see that there is and will be when we finish here today a significant amount of stuff that is almost unable to be explained. If you would look on page 8 in line 23 and 24 and 25, which allows this municipal board to employ a part-time secretary for "not to exceed twenty dollars a month," are we going to send this over to be part of the statutes? If you would look at a more glaring inconsistency on page 16, you'll find that this so called fire and police civil service provision only covers firemen. It does not cover policemen by its own language. If you would look further in the proposal, beginning at line 20 on page 26 where it sets out various departmental classifications, as I understand it from our local fire and police civil service commission or board, the only way they've been able to work around these problems of these classifications is to get some trumped up opinion from the state attorney general allowing them to operate their system outside these exact words. Yet, Mr. Bergeron's amendment and other amendments send this into the statutes bodily without change. More importantly, by the very language of this Bergeron proposal, you'll find that by a two-thirds vote of the legislature they can amend or otherwise modify any or all of the provisions of this document. Gentlemen, I think that while we must do something, the route to the doing of it should not and ought not begin in the Bergeron amendment, and I urge its defeat.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise again today to speak against this particular amendment. Yesterday evening the delegate, who is appointed to this convention, rose and said--who was appointed to represent labor--rose and said he accepted defeat on the New Orleans issue. I wonder if he's going to stick with that today. We've considered this issue five, six, seven times--a number of times--and I don't think anybody here has not made up his mind on it, or hasn't had someone make up his mind for him. We're running out of time, ladies and gentlemen, and I'm using up part of it now which I hate to do. I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I tell you in all due candor the issues involved in the civil service articles are almost beyond my comprehension. They've been very meticulous and very detailed, and for that reason, I really haven't taken a participation in it because I didn't think that I had enough knowledge to impart to this convention that would be of great value. But, by the same token, you don't have to have any knowledge about civil service to know what is right and wrong, and what is fair play and what is not fair play. I do recall last night that we were embroiled in a controversy over Mr. Lanier's amendment--an amendment which was adopted by this convention, and I do recall that subsequently we could not get final passage--and Mr. Lanier and his coauthors said in an effort to get this convention rolling we will accede to what, apparently, this convention wants to do, and we will withdraw that amendment. The response, as I recall, was from the people who opposed that amendment, we are satisfied with the context of the proposal which is before this convention. Now, I am not completely satisfied with the article that we adopted last night, but I accept it. As Mr. Dennery says, in his opinion he thought it was an acceptable compromise on the issue of civil service and retained the general principles of civil service. Then, today I submit to you: we're playing foul ball. Those who said yesterday it's acceptable, say today we want another crack at the apple. We want to destroy what you said yesterday was fair and equitable. I want to clarify one gross misconception in my opinion. When you use language in an article which says, nothing in here which will be inconsistent with the article, that is not, ladies and gentlemen, anything for Style and Drafting to tamper with. That is a substantive change which is a backdoor language which is used when you want to reverse something that is done previously. What I am telling you here: we are running out of time. I, and many of you here, have accepted the will of the majority of this convention, and I'm merely asking you to move this convention on and reject what I consider to be an attempt to reverse what we did only as close as of last night. Thank you very much.

Questions

MR. BERGERON

Pat, in the very beginning when I offered my amendment, didn't I say that this amendment will bring Orleans into the municipal police and fire civil service system? Did you not hear me make that statement?

MR. JUNEAU

That's absolutely correct.

MR. BERGERON

All right. Let me just ask you one other question. Pat, someone brought out that this would--this vote by the legislature--would only be applicable to firemen. Don't you realize... Do you know that the constitution and the statutes have more or less been combined, and that they are incorporated; therefore, we take care of the police and the firemen?

MR. JUNEAU

In all due candor, Mr. Bergeron, I'm not exactly sure what the answer to that question is, but that's not what concerns me about your amendment. What concerns me about your amendment is undoing, specifically, what we did yesterday. What further concerns me is the answer to your question that this is something to be referred to Style and Drafting, which Style and Drafting has nothing whatsoever to do with. It's a substantive change to completely reverse the one amendment we passed yesterday which is a compromise amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, if only I could get your attention for a minute. How much I have enjoyed your discussions, you'll never know. Up to this point, I have not missed one discussion; I have not missed one vote. The only thing I'm asking for you to do at this time for me is to listen to me because you have taught me--you have taught me what to say at this time. So, I'm going to give back to you what you've given to me if you'll just listen. What it takes to have you listen is a miracle of some kind that I wish could be worked at this time. I've enjoyed the rules of the game. I have nothing to say adversely against anyone who tries to win a point. The fact is I admire Casey. When Casey comes to bat and he uses compromises to overturn, I have nothing but admiration, as long as the man plays the game by the rules. Those of us who disagree with what you are doing or what some of you are doing, still want to play by the rules. Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this point at this particular time is a point having to do with human resources--human resources, people--people who are dissatisfied. That's the issue. I'm on this committee; I listened for six months to people--many, many people who came out of this system are dissatisfied. I realize that something needs to be done, and this is the time to do it. It's not too late; it's just the right time. Now, let me tell you something. I happen to belong to a group of people involved in the system--a state system. There was a time when we were involved in parochial systems. You've heard a lot about the city of New Orleans. There was a time when they operated separately in the school system of the State of Louisiana. But, there came a time when they wanted to belong to the State of Louisiana--when things were rough, when finances were low. Now, let me tell you something. I'm doing a service to the State of Louisiana when I help to put the state, the police and firemen of the city of New Orleans into a system that can be upgraded. We have upgraded to a great extent the teachers of this state into a system that requires qualifications for all of the teachers of the State of Louisiana into one system. There was a time when you had parochial considerations, different systems, different pay scales; that was no good. It was only by collective bargaining--some of you are adverse to it; some of you think it's wrong. It is only a principle of social justice that comes about by collective bargaining. The people have to have a right to do what they're doing in order to get attention. Now, the basic concept here, people, is the last opportunity to give these people an opportunity to become part of a state system that will upgrade human resources, morale. This state has not served well when the morale is low, when the employees and the workers are not satisfied. This state has not served well. Help the State of Louisiana; help New Orleans; help all of these people to get what they deserve. This amendment attempts to do that. Yes, it is a reconsideration under the rules. I'm not against that; I'm for it. Otherwise, I never would have had an opportunity to talk to you. People, vote for this amendment and give these people an opportunity to become part of the state.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, it seems like--and I just can reflect just on yesterday--with the advent of the Lanier amendment, there was a situation whereby people in other parts of the state felt that there was some drastic action that was being taken to affect their civil service, their firemen, and policemen. I think we heard some great oratory on yesterday as to the wrongness of...the vast wrongness of the Lanier amendment. I heard it said that on yesterday, we ought not have conflict in amendments...conflict in provisions. If this passes, truly this will be a conflict in provisions as opposed to that which we have now in Committee Proposal No. 9.

Now, on yesterday, I've got to admit to you, I was late. But, I came back, and I was informed that our local firemen and policemen will remain in the system provided that the people of the city of New Orleans would have the opportunity to vote whether they wanted them to go into the state system or not. As someone said, you know it's a bitter pill on both sides of the fence. It's a bitter pill for me because you presently take a force--and particularly I am concerned about what we are presently trying to do to enhance minority participation. You take a department which is primarily based--promotion is based on the merit system, and you put them in a system where if, upon examination, seniority is the prime factor; it seems to me if it's a good for the goose, it ought to be good for the gander. If people in Caddo Parish, and people throughout the state say that their civil service system has been working effectively for thirty years, and that it ought not be tampered with, then, I say that although I have serious problems with our present civil service as it exists in New Orleans, that it is a city system. I ask that you give the same sort of consideration and reject then, the Bergeron amendment. Because, I cannot conceive, particularly, I think, that we've reached some sort of compromise. We'll let the people decide. But, I cannot see coming back again this way to rehash the issue which this convention spent at least two days--three days--resolving. I think by the vote on yesterday by fifty-seven plus, we resolved that. If the firemen and policemen and the people of the city of New Orleans want to put their money in the state system, then they can so do it. I suggest to you that I could very well see someone coming behind after this amendment, introducing an amendment and suggest that the firemen and policemen of the parish of Caddo, or those where, even in Baton Rouge, that they also...that the people there could take a vote to decide whether they remain in the state system.

I just think it's highly unfair. I think we've debated this issue. I think we've reached what I'm pleased with. I understand that although all parties may not be pleased with it, at least it lets the people decide. So, I ask you to reject the Bergeron amendment. I yield to any questions.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jackson, how many letters or post cards did you have from firemen? Maybe twenty--twenty-five?

MR. J. JACKSON

I don't know if I got that many, Mrs. Zervigon. I did talk to the captain of the fire department--you know.

MRS. ZERVIGON

There are a thousand men in that department. Is that correct? I mean that's what my figures show.

Then how many contacts did you have from policemen on this subject?

MR. J. JACKSON

None.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Neither did I. So, even assuming there's something like five hundred people in that department that would agree with this. Let me ask you this question. Of the eight thousand five hundred other city employees in New Orleans, how many of them contacted you and asked you to change civil service?

MR. J. JACKSON

There were some that had contacted me about attempting to correct what they felt were some of the inequities. I think we did some of that in Committee Proposal No. 9.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Representation on the commission, primarily?

MR. J. JACKSON

Right.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, not this fire and police business.

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, just let me say this, now....

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, let me ask you one more question. How many citizens of the city asked you to change--split out the fire and policemen from the system?

MR. J. JACKSON

None. None.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, generally, we're listening to a fairly small number, would you say, of employees as opposed to the vast majority of the employees who have not contacted you and asked you to do this thing. Is that correct?

MR. J. JACKSON

I would assume so. But, I've got to recognize in earnestly that they are represented here by their lobbying organization.

But, regardless of even that, Mrs. Zervigon, my concern is that particularly, I wanted to make sure that the Civil Service System is responsive to the employees of the city. For me to come up here and particularly fight for minority participation, and then tie the hands of the commissioner that says that this person must be promoted on seniority rule, negates every effort that I've done here in this convention.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, let me ask you one more question.

The point has been made that the firemen are here to speak to us, and there aren't any other citizens here. Isn't it correct that some of these people are here--on pay--from their organizations; and that there are other people who just find it very difficult as plain old citizens to come up here--especially if they are satisfied with the system? Isn't that consistent with the kinds of lobbying we've had on other articles that people who were generally satisfied and have jobs to do elsewhere, just don't quit their jobs and come up here?

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, Mrs. Zervigon, I could say that you're true. But, I don't want to hassle about the operations of the union and the manner in which they lobby. You, know, I think....

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, it's a good thing. I believe it brings us plenty of information, but it doesn't necessarily bring us all the information. Would you agree?

MR. J. JACKSON

Yes. Right. Right.

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Mr. Jackson, isn't it a good thing that we have representation from all forces, including Mrs. Zervigon, who represents the mayor, Mr. Flory, who represents the working man....

MR. J. JACKSON

There's no doubt in my mind.

MR. E. J. LANDRY

...people like myself who represents just ordinary people?

MR. J. JACKSON

Right. There's no doubt in my mind.

MR. E. J. LANDRY

.... legislators and a cross section of everybody?

MR. J. JACKSON

Yeah....I....

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Isn't it true?

MR. J. JACKSON

In fact, I'm glad it's that way.

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Isn't that a wonderful thing, now.

Getting to the real point, Mr. Chairman, isn't it....I have been....have you and I been made fully aware now of the fact that the state system is an upgraded system....that the state system is much superior....from all I've learned in six months in committee, you have to take a test, first, Mr. Jackson. You have to qualify. Seniority is not the main factor.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, that's the same way presently, but it's based on the merits. You take the examination, the promotion....

MR. E. J. LANDRY

You have the...the state system is a far superior merit system, as I understand it. Then, seniority plays a part. Now, all the delegates have to understand that, Mr. Jackson. They don't fully....

Point of Order

MR. KEAN

Questions ought to be questions, and not for the purpose of making another speech. Mr. Landry spoke out his time, and I think he ought not be allowed additional time to speak again.

MR. HENRY

Your point is well taken, Mr. Kean. I'd ask that you just ask a question, Mr. Landry.

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Well, did you understand that all these things that I have heard during the six months period of time are the main essentials in this argument?

MR. J. JACKSON

I can understand that, but I can state it to you that...

I've lived in the city of New Orleans for thirty years, and I'm familiar.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and delegates, and as one of our speakers said yesterday--brothers and sisters--I can remember once, it was on a very, very sad occasion when a lady said to another lady when she had lost her husband, "I feel so sorry for you because I know exactly what you are going through."

The lady wiped her tears and looked at her and said, "I don't know how you can know what I'm going through with cause you ain't never traveled this road before. Your husband is still alive."

I say that to you. I said once before at this microphone, I did not come here for a compromise. I did not campaign on a compromise. I'm going to repeat something that I said when I got a loaf of bread, "When you are bogged down to your ass in alligators, it's hard to remember that your original purpose was to drain the swamp." I want the Times-Picayune to print it. I am an independent. I vote my convictions. I have heard justice, and I have heard political justice. I don't want anybody to get confused on where I stand. Not that I don't have faith to believe that things will be changed. I say to you today, "A little child shall lead them." I want you to read it one day. I want to tell you where you can find it--a little child shall lead them. I've heard many come to me and say I'm talking about you voting for this because this is going to help blacks, you vote for this because this is going to do this, that, and the other for you. I say to you, those things are going to be changed according to a little black book that I know that these things are going to happen. Don't you be confused, delegates, about whether we are coming back once again. It has been set a pattern in this convention that if once you don't succeed, then you try and try again. Why it's so unfair that one who is with strong convictions would not try to try again. I say to those who say that I represent the city, and I want them to have a chance to vote on what they want to, read the Times-Picayune this morning on the voting, asking us to vote in the election tomorrow. It tells you how the Times-Picayune thinks about their candidates. But other organizations are not quite up to them. I say to you, if you want justice, if you don't want child abuse--and this is one of the greatest forms of it--to single out one city's fire department and police department from the rest of the state, if this is not segregation or child abuse in its worse form, I want you to tell me. Please let justice prevail. Then, if you want justice, and you want all the cities to have the same thing, put it in there that they have the same thing, and let's all go home and be happy. But don't kid yourself about the fact that you are trying to get justice. You are trying to get political justice. I'm not so naive as not to know what political justice is all about.

I yield to any questions from anybody. Thank you.

Point of Information

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Chairman, how many more speakers on the list?

MR. HENRY

Two more speakers.

Motion

MR. SHANNON

I move that we vote on this after those two...we limit it to two more speakers.

MR. HENRY

I...there are three speakers on the list--there are three speakers on the list.

MR. SHANNON

Well, I move that we limit it to those three people on the list.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, I had not intended to speak except for something that one other speaker mentioned. I think we all know how we're going to vote. But one speaker was of the opinion, from what he said, and what I gathered, that on Proposal No. 9, would vote...would bind you on Proposal No. 10. Well, that is just not correct. They are two different things--just like--suppose Proposal No. 9 was a lawsuit, I or any other lawyer had filed, and Proposal No. 10 was another one. Now if I settled one case for a client, even if it arose out of the same wreck, that wouldn't mean that the other one had to be settled. Now, without going into a lot of detail, you remember it was agreed, so to speak, and by me and different others, remember the passage of the section was in danger. It couldn't pass. Now, when Mr. Lanier withdrew, or acceded, to getting his out of there, that amendment he had, then we all, nearly, almost unanimously voted to pass the whole section. Now, that had to do with what originally was Proposal No. 9. We are dealing with No. 10. There were people even absent. They certainly couldn't be bound by something when they weren't even there. We are representing people in Louisiana under Proposal No. 9, which been disposed of by more or less a compromise. This is an entirely new thing, ball game, if you want to say, or like another law suit. We are dealing with it now. I'm going to vote just like I voted on the other...my own conscience...and I'm in favor of this amendment because I've always believed from 1940, when we first started fooling with civil service, that the New Orleans firemen and police should be under the same one with the rest of the police and firemen of this state. They are entirely different from the other employees. That's the way I am. I just wanted to express this because there's no settlement of Proposal No. 9--10--by what was done on 9. So, I'm in favor of this amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Wellborn, you were clearing up mistakes, or at least what you thought was a mistake made by previous speakers. Is that not correct?

MR. JACK

What's that?

MR. ROEMER

Didn't you address your remarks to the misconception of a previous speaker, as you termed it?

MR. JACK

That is correct. That is my idea.

MR. ROEMER

I understand that. Didn't you also hear a previous speaker talk about "Caydo"? Would you like to clear up where "Caydo" is?

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. JACK

Well, now, the Indians used to call it "Caydo", I understand. We mispronounced it, called it Caddo, and there's more of us than the Indians, so we called it Caddo.

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Jack, I don't quite understand what you said. You said there is no connection between what we are voting on now, and what we voted on yesterday. I call your attention to the amendment wherein it says "notwithstanding any other provision in this article." Now, isn't it true, Mr. Jack, with that language in there, that it would definitely have the effect of negating the amendment which we passed last night, relating to the city of New Orleans?

MR. JACK

Well, yes it would. But that's what--listen, this Proposal No. 10 has been down here as material. If we did our duty, which I have, I have discussed Proposal No. 10 which covers all cities--thirteen...over thirteen thousand. Now, I've told people I'm for Proposal No. 10. Now, if you don't think that not just having experience, but being a lawyer and knowing something about compromising cases and claims, that I'm going to tell people I'm for Proposal No. 10, and then have something down here where that it was on Proposal No. 9, like another lawsuit, that that's going to settle their lawsuit No. 10. That would be ridiculous for me to be there.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, Mr. Jack, I just wanted to make this point, you're not telling this convention that the language I just quoted to you does not have the effect of changing something we did yesterday. That's....I just wanted to make that clear.

MR. JACK

It does have effect; but, also, the No. 9, of course, we've changed it, we're trying to change that, you know, to get the police and firemen out into the regular system. They were under the state and city one. But, there are entirely two things, in my opinion: Number 9 is one lawsuit, so to speak; Number 10 is another one, and we weren't bound by what happened in nine.

Further Discussion

MR. CASEY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, initially I'd like to say that I certainly appreciate the straightforwardness and forthrightness whereby Mr. Bergeron has readily admitted that this amendment completely changes the amendment submitted by me on yesterday. He pulls no bones about it, and answers without hesitation. So, this is not a sneaky approach at all. It is open, forthright, and there is no question about it, that to put it plainly, it guts us completely from what we did yesterday.

I appreciate, also, the support rendered by many people outside of the city of New Orleans, who spoke for my amendment on yesterday; for instance, Mr. Champagne, Mr. Willis, and Mr. Drew, who, without hesitation, came to our assistance and submitted for your....for your decision, the idea that we should not change.... that we should not change a system of civil service for our fire and police in the city of New Orleans, that has been in effect since 1942. There has been little, and preferably no, evidence submitted to you, to indicate why, in Heaven's name, the state system for municipal, fire, and police is a better system than at the city civil service system which is in existence today.

As we discussed yesterday, and as I explained yesterday, the city system of civil service is merit, whereby you take a person or an individual for a position from the three highest that have scored on a test or examination. Under the state system for municipal, police, and fire, as I said on yesterday, you can have fifteen people taking examinations. Because of the factor of seniority, if the senior person places fifteenth on the examination, that is the person that is chosen for that position. You know, and I know, that is no way to run a business, and this is no way to draft and sculpture a constitution. This is not the way to do it, to completely gut to the detriment of a certain area, a system that has been in existence for thirty years. You know in your heart it's just not right. You know, and I know, that it's extremely difficult to tell the fine gentleman in the rear of this convention hall, one word, when one word has to be used sometime. That word is "No!" You have got to say "no" sometimes. It's awfully difficult to tell these fine people who have every right to be here, to lobby for their cause, you have got to tell them "no." Any politician--let's face it, everyone of us here are politicians. That's why we're here. Any politician who doesn't know how to say no, isn't worth his salt as a politician. Now, those who believe in all honesty that a yes vote, in principle, is the best thing to do, I respect your vote. But for God's sake, don't be committed in advance on something that can be extremely detrimental to a certain area of your fair state. A lot of people complain, I know, about dealing only with matters that affect the city of New Orleans. That's absolutely ridiculous. I don't mind dealing with matters that affect Lafourche Parish, or Caddo (or Caydo), however you want to say it, Mr. Roemer. Those matters are my matters. I am a representative to a state body. Whether it be here, or in the legislature, I am delighted to assist and deal with matters that affect any area of our state. I want to impress upon you, also, that one of our fair delegates, Mr. Willis, has tried to impress upon you consistently that there is nothing wrong with the concept of "we the people." That's what we are gutting. We are taking away from "we the people" of the city of New Orleans, the right to determine its own fate in the matter of its own municipal, fire and police civil service system.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in support of this amendment. A great deal has been said from this microphone this morning regarding a statement that I made yesterday in reference to Committee Proposal No. 9. I said then that I was in a position to support Proposal No. 9 until the Lanier amendment went on it--even though it was a bitter pill for me to swallow. I did that, after the Lanier amendment was removed. But I, at no time, said that I would not try to the very bitter end to try to change that particular provision, even to the extent that when Style and Drafting comes back with its final report, I still have that prerogative. I didn't ask anybody else to give up their rights under that system. I didn't intend to give up mine. Now, the question's been stated from this microphone, that you keep coming back and keeping coming back; but, let me suggest to you the facts that this convention, on two or three occasions, adopted the...fact to bring the city of New Orleans into the rest of the state with the fire and police civil service. But it was the city of New Orleans who kept coming back, and kept coming back, until they finally, by a fifty-one to forty-seven vote, were able to sustain their position. I don't quarrel with that. That's the name of the game. But to say that I am wrong when I attempt to do it, I think, is not giving me the same advantage in which they take.

Now, Mr. Casey said something about "don't get committed in advance." Well, I can say to you from this microphone that a number of the delegates from New Orleans were committed when they came to this convention on that issue. And they haven't waived one iota--not one.

Now, Mr. Lanier, this does in no way affect your situation in the city of Thibodaux. The way this amendment is worded, it could not apply to the city of Thibodaux because you do not have a paid fire department. You have a volunteer fire department, and consequently, the city of Thibodaux is fully protected in this amendment. That's what was intended. That's exactly what it does. The bottom phrase refers to those types of situations so that what this amendment does is to take care and put all of the firemen and policemen in this state, and municipalities over thirteen thousand, in the same type system--identically the same. Now, remember this, in those municipalities between seventy-five and a hundred and thirteen thousand, their system is statutory and is verbatim, word for word, as the constitutional provision for cities of thirteen thousand to two hundred and fifty thousand, with one exception--one exception--and that is the size of the board. In the municipalities of thirteen thousand and more, a fireman representative, and a police representative sit on those boards. That's the entire difference. The city of New Orleans, the firemen and policemen want to come under this system because they would be given representation on the fire and police civil service board. The firemen would elect one, the policemen would elect one. A great deal has been said by Mrs. Zervigon about the delegates, or the people here representing the firemen and policemen, are paid, perhaps, by their own people. That, perhaps is true. But I suggest to you that the city of New Orleans has had lobbyists sitting up there paid by the city of New Orleans ever since this convention started. Nothing wrong with that. Nobody said a word about that. But, it's wrong when a private, poor little old fireman, who's risked his life every time he puts that uniform on, or a policeman comes up here to represent himself. It seems to be some stigma attached to him when that happens. But I suggest to you, that that's not the case.

Let me say to you again. In all of the weeks and months our committee studied this subject, not a single mayor, not a single public official elected, came before that committee and offered any opposition to the fire and police civil service of a municipality that served under this system. Not a one--not a one. That's on the basis of some thirty years of experience.

I ask for the adoption of this amendment.

[Quorum Call: 102 delegates present and a quorum. Record vote ordered.
Amendment rejected: 52-54. Motion to reconsider tabled: 60-46.]

Closing

MR. BERGERON

Ladies and gentlemen, I'd like to bring out a few facts in closing.

You know, I respect my good friend, Mr. Burt Willis. I served on the Judiciary Committee with him. I've found him to be a most knowledgeable person. But you see, the problem is, Burt is not from New Orleans. Now, let me bring this out to you. In New Orleans last month, we had an election. Our mayor was reelected. Our mayor was against the policemen and firemen going under the State Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Commission. Now, let me pose this question to you. How are the fire and policemen of New Orleans going to fight the administration? How are they to have enough pull and enough votes, and enough time, and effort and funds to oppose the administration? That's one year away after this constitution's adopted. We'll still have our present administration. I pose it to you. Can they do it? I think not. I think not. What we're doing is involving civil service employees in a highly political question which should not be a highly political question. Ladies and gentlemen, we have a big decision to make here. This decision was made yesterday by a vote of sixty-one to thirty-eight saying that we should go under the police...the State Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Commission. The so-called compromise we agreed to... we agreed to...falls very short of a sufficient compromise. Those problems I present to you, I would please ask you to search your conscience and give the people who operate, who work, who support their families by the salaries they make, give them a chance to go under the system which they would like to operate under. I would simply urge the adoption of the amendment.

Thank you very much.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Bergeron, when our little discussion was terminated when you made your initial presentation, there was some confusion over the language of your amendment. Now, to get the record straight on this, when you say "a regularly paid fire and municipal police department," you mean this to apply to a municipality that has both of those?

MR. BERGERON

Correct, Walter. It has to have...the municipality has to have a regularly paid policemen and fire department. If the municipality has one paid and one more voluntary, this will not apply to them.

MR. LANIER

Now, further, in the bottom, here, it says that "the legislature may not abolish the system of classified civil service for such firemen and municipal policemen." You're referring there, I assume, to the paid firemen and the paid policemen. Is that correct?

MR. BERGERON

That is correct.

MR. LANIER

Then, when you say "or make it inapplicable to any municipality which has a population in excess of thirteen thousand," what you are referring to by the word "it" is the system dealing with the paid firemen and the paid policemen. Is that correct?

MR. BERGERON

That is correct.

MR. LANIER

So, in no way would this be applicable to a municipality that had, say, paid policemen and not paid firemen?

MR. BERGERON

You are correct.

Mr. Chairman, I think we've been up here and we've discussed the problems of civil service in state and police systems for three days, now. Mr. Lanier had posed his question to me earlier, and I said I would straighten it up. I will not yield any further simply because I believe that we've heard as much as we're going to hear. The delegates have made up their minds, and they know what decisions they will cast. Thank you very much.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Dennery sends up amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 16, after the word "thousand" and before the word "according" insert the words "nor more than four hundred thousand".

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, at the end of line 21, after the word and punctuation "services." add the following:

"However, in cities over four hundred thousand, if a majority of the electors voting at an election held for the purpose consent thereto, the paid firemen and municipal policemen may be included in the municipal fire and police civil service."

Amendment No. 3. On page 1, delete lines 22 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 4. On pages 2 through 46, delete lines 1 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety.

Amendment No. 5. On page 47, delete line 1 in its entirety and on line 2, delete the paragraph enumerated "(A-5)" and insert in lieu thereof "(B)."

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, this amendment is basically, really, almost the same as Mr. Bergeron's, except it provides that...it limits it to four hundred thousand so it would include New... exclude New Orleans, and it provides for the New Orleans vote, which we agreed upon yesterday. It keeps in the law--the present law--for firemen and policemen. Now, this is often an attempt to do basically the same thing as Mr. Bergeron wanted to do, remove the mass of language from the constitution since it is already in a statute. I submit it for that purpose. Be pleased to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Dennery, just for emphasis's sake, what you are saying in your amendment is, in effect, deleting most of the pages of this Committee Proposal No. 10, but still adhering to what we passed yesterday, vis-a-vis New Orleans. Is that not correct?

MR. DENNERY

To keep those pages, or to delete those pages?

MR. ROEMER

To delete them.

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. ROEMER

Okay, but you still have our provision for an election in the city of New Orleans?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. ROEMER

That being the only such election to be held in this regard?

MR. DENNERY

Unless another city comes over four hundred thousand; yes, sir.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask if we could have about a one-minute recess?

[Quorum Call: 98 delegates present and a quorum. Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Delegates Dennery and Flory.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, following the word and punctuation "Section 1. (A)" delete the remainder of line 12, delete lines 13 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"There is hereby created and established a system of fire and police civil service which shall be applicable to all municipalities with a population in excess of thirteen thousand which operate a regularly paid fire and municipal police department and all parishes and all fire protection districts which operate a regularly paid fire department. Except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this Section, the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the Constitution of 1921, are hereby retained and continued in force and effect as statutes. The legislature upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership of each house may amend or otherwise modify any of said provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the 1921 Constitution except that the legislature may not abolish the system of classified civil service for such firemen and municipal policemen or make it inapplicable to any municipality which has a population in excess of thirteen thousand according to the latest decennial census of the United States or to any parish or fire protection district having a regularly paid fire department. However, in municipalities with a population in excess of four hundred thousand paid firemen and municipal policemen shall be included if a majority of the electors in the city affected voting at an election held for the purpose consent thereto, provided such an election shall be called by the governing authority of the city affected within one year after the effective date of this constitution."

Amendment No. 2. Delete lines 1 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety, on pages 2 through 46, and on page 47, delete lines 1 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety.

(Amendment No. 2 deletes the remainder of the proposal.)

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, yesterday we had a technical amendment--Mr. Dennery and Mr. Flory and Mr. Dennery did. Mr. Dennery was under duress, he said. In this case, it's Mr. Flory under duress. What this amendment does is to transfer the existing provisions of the constitution relating to fire and police civil service to the statutes, allowing the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, to change the provisions thereof. It does not disturb the New Orleans situation. It excepts the language. . .it includes the language of the Casey amendment of yesterday, and said that they have to have the election within one year, and if a majority of the voters vote in favor thereof, then they come under the state fire and police civil service system.

Amendment No. 2 deletes the rest of the entire forty-seven pages of the proposal.

Questions

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Flory, since the . . .in this last line, here, the last sentence, "shall be called by the governing authority of the city affected within one year after the effective date of this constitution," would that preempt any other city that reaches four hundred thousand from having an election like that if it. . .maybe it would be ten years after this constitution is adopted?

MR. FLORY

No. No, they would already be under the system, Mr. Goldman, because they would have been in the system when they reached. . . by virtue of the fact that they were within the population bracket of thirteen thousand to four hundred thousand.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Flory, for more than a week we have been talking about four hundred thousand, which means New Orleans, and over thirteen thousand. Is there any logical reason why cities under thirteen thousand are almost forbidden to have a civil service system?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, Mr. Alexander. As a matter of fact, they do have civil service. It's statutory today; it's verbatim as the constitutional provision. The only exception is that the constitutional system in municipalities thirteen thousand to four hundred. . .or two hundred and fifty thousand has a five man board. The population bracket seventy-five hundred to thirteen thousand has a three man board. The consideration being that under seventy-five hundred, you don't have enough employees, really, to establish a civil service system. This was the original logic, I understand, in arriving at the figure of population of seventy-five hundred, because you only have about eight or nine, ten, perhaps, firemen and about that many policemen. . .

MR. ALEXANDER

The legislature is freer to tamper with them than with the other systems. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

We. . .this doesn't affect those systems at all.

MR. ALEXANDER

But, the legislature can. . .which means that the legislature can. . .

MR. FLORY

They can do it today with a simple majority vote.

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Flory, it seems like that we're getting closer and closer together, and someday we may vote together. But, the point I'm concerned about. . .

MR. FLORY

I welcome that day.

MR. CHATELAIN

Thank you. As we. . .you and I spoke a few minutes ago. When I speak. . .when I relate to the city of Lafayette, of course, I'm concerned with the whole south Louisiana sections. Many of our cities are comparable to ours with the problems of ours, above thirteen thousand. As I understand your amendment, it would keep the copy of the 15.5 as is. It would not change any of the operation of my fire department or police department?

MR. FLORY

It would retain 15.1 of the present constitution, which is fire and police civil service, as statutes, and would not change it in any way unless the legislature, at some future date, by a two-thirds vote of the legislature of both houses changed it.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, that would be all. . .in other words, what you see in this 15.5--15.1--would be retained in statutes until changed by two-thirds of the legislature?

MR. FLORY

That is correct.

MRS. CORNE

Mr. Flory, referring to your. . .the very last sentence of this article where you refer to the elections, after an election has been held and voted by the majority of the people, then does this decision remain final forever?

MR. FLORY

I would presume so, unless the legislature, at some future date, changed it by a two-thirds vote.

MRS. CORNE

The legislature could mandate the municipality to have another election, periodically; is that it?

MR. FLORY

I believe they could change the provisions, but I don't know whether they could take them out from under it because there's no vehicle, Mrs. Corne, to do it, because we say that they can't abolish the system of civil service.

MRS. CORNE

Yes, that is correct.

MR. DREW

Cordon, down in the prohibition it refers to not abolishing a system of classified civil service. But, I'm wondering what the significance of leaving the 'classified' out in line 2, in the. . .

MR. FLORY

I can't hear you, Mr. Drew. I'm sorry.

MR. DREW

In the delegate proposal it says "there shall be a classified civil service." Now, that "classified" has been left out in the first sentence of the amendment. Is there any significance to that? It does use it as to what may not be abolished, but it does not use it in the first two sentences, there. Should it be included?

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. FLORY

Are you saying in the first sentence, "There is hereby created and established a 'classified' system?"

MR. DREW

It's used. . . that's the way it is in the committee proposal. "There shall be a classified civil service for fire and police." Now, we are not using the word "classified" in creating. . .

MR. FLORY

Evidently, it's just a technical error, Mr. Drew. If you notice in the second sentence, we use the term "a system of classified civil service—may not abolish the system of classified civil service for such firemen and policemen."

MR. HAYES

Mr. Flory, you said, here, that having "municipalities with a population in excess of four hundred thousand that paid firemen and municipal policemen shall be included if a majority of the electors in the city affected voting at an election held for the purpose consent thereto, providing said election shall be called by the governing authority of the city affected within one year." Now, it appears that this depends upon whether or not the city calls the election. Is that correct—only if they call it?

MR. FLORY

No, this mandates, in my judgment, that to say that the city of . . . we're talking about the city of New Orleans, and within one year after the effective date of this constitution, they would have to call the election.

MR. HAYES

"Provided said election shall be called by the governing authority of the city affected within one year," does that mandate the city to do something?

MR. FLORY

In my judgment it does; yes, sir. That was the intent, as I understand it, of Mr. Casey's amendment.

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Flory, in effect, what this amendment does. . . Can you hear me all right?

In effect, what this amendment does is take the municipal civil service for cities over thirteen thousand up to four hundred thousand out of the present constitution and put it in the statutes, changeable with a two-thirds vote? Is that, in effect, what it does?

MR. FLORY

That's correct; yes, sir.

MR. STINSON

You don't agree that if you don't delete that word "provided," you're not going to have anything? Why you. . . you don't need "provided." Don't you think you should say that "the municipalities shall call"? "Provided" is a condition on the fact that if they call it. If you don't leave it in there, there's no. . . you can't force them to call the election, can you?

MR. FLORY

I think you're correct, Mr. Stinson. It was my understanding that Mr. Casey and Mr. Jackson were agreeable that the election should be called, was mandated. It was my understanding that their intent was to mandate the council to call the election in order to resolve the issue, once and for all. I'll be happy to withdraw the amendment, Mr. Chairman, with the permission of the convention, to strike that word "provided," and to add the word that Mr. Drew suggested in order to be sure that there's no misunderstanding about what we're talking about.

MR. CHATELAIN

May I ask Mr. Flory: if you withdraw this, sir, and come back with it, could I become a coauthor of your amendment?

MR. FLORY

That would really be a combine.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

MR. HENRY

Mr. Flory reintroduces or reoffers amendments.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right, there are three changes. In the text, two changes. On the second line, after the words "system of" insert the word "classified."

On the fourth to last line, strike out the word "provided" at the end of the line.

The third change, add Mr. Chatelain as a coauthor.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, there have been a number of them ask to open the machine and wanted to coauthor it, if it would be permissible.

I now ask for the adoption of the amendment.

[Three coauthors added to the Amendment.]

Further Discussion

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just want to bring this to your attention, and see if you see this amendment as I understand it. Presently, the municipal civil service is in the constitution. It takes a two-thirds vote for a joint resolution through the legislature plus a vote of the people to change it. This amendment would change all that and put the present requirements of the constitution in the statutes and require only a two-thirds vote of the legislature to change those. The convention voted overwhelmingly, yesterday, against a three-fourths majority of the legislature to change the provisions of the state civil service. I just wonder if you realize what we're about to do, and if the people who are concerned with the municipal civil service really want this taken out of the constitution and placed in the statutes. I just throw that out for your consideration, and ask you if you understand this amendment the way I do.

Questions

MR. DESHOTELS

Mr. LeBleu, why do you think that we have in this instance for firemen and policemen a suggested legislative civil service, whereas for the other civil service employees we've just adopted a constitutional civil service?

MR. LEBLEU

Well, that was the point that I was bringing up, Mr. Deshotels. I wonder why we're requiring that the state civil service be placed in the constitution and, yet, the municipal civil service we are leaving to the whims of the legislature.

MR. DESHOTELS

Do you know that I don't know the answer to that question either?

MR. WEISS

Delegate LeBleu, isn't the most important state operation that anyone can think of, the firemen and the policemen?

MR. LEBLEU

Yes, sir.

MR. WEISS

Why is it, then, that they should be separated from the other civil service employees by allowing the legislature to control their civil service operations?

MR. LEBLEU

I can't answer that, Dr. Weiss, but I think under this proposal, Amendment No. 2 would take all of the committee proposal and delete it, which I. . . as I understand it, is some of the provisions of the present constitution. So that it, in effect, would shorten our constitution. All right, but I just wonder whether that's really what the convention wants to do.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

I know the hour is late. I don't mean to delay anyone. This looks like an ideal amendment, but poor legislation is passed in haste. I wonder if this is poor legislation. Now, Delegate LeBleu is also a Representative from our area. He's been unable to answer this question, and I thought this body voted, without question, that this civil service that we have in Louisiana would not be in the hands of either the legislature or the governor. I believe the article as passed, previously, specifically spelled that out. It is constitutional material. This, although constitutionally written, is controlled by the legislature, and I would like some comment and discussion in this regard from those members in this body that can tell me that this is not now a legislative matter rather than a constitutional one.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

Recess

[Quorum Call: 69 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments is offered by Delegate Jenkins: Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery, and adopted by the convention on today, at the end of the text of the amendment, add a new paragraph: "(B)"

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Schmitt, do you want your amendment? Amendment reads as follows: (It amends the Dennery amendment adopted today.) On page 1 of the floor amendment, at the end of the seventh line, add the following: "Permanent appointments and promotions in municipal fire and police civil service shall be made only after certification by the applicable Municipal Police and Fire Civil Service Board under a general system based upon merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service, as ascertained by examination, which, as far as practical, shall be competitive."

Explanation

MR. SCHMITT

I do not feel that seniority should be the sole criterion for advancement within this system. When seniority is the sole criterion, injustice and inefficiency can result. A young person or a person newly eligible, particularly the minorities, to apply for a position on civil service, would be prevented from advancement. If this amendment is not adopted, that would result. This amendment would allow new ideas in the minorities to enter into the system. The original amendment, as proposed by Mr. Flory and Dennery, would require a two-thirds vote of the legislature to change any of the provisions which exist in the 1921 Constitution in Section 15.1. This will drastically prevent any possible change to the system in the future. You've seen how labor has prevented this independent body from adopting a proposal by denying it the two-thirds vote necessary to complete the other proposal. This is with a larger minority representation than presently does exist, or probably will exist in the legislature for a long time to come. It will be easier, in my opinion, for labor to rally one-third of the votes in the legislature to prevent a change in this particular aspect, than it was for them to obtain the one-third vote before the Constitutional Convention. If my amendment, or a similar one, is not adopted, the minorities will get the worst of two worlds. They'll get the worst of the present one because it will essentially prevent any minorities from getting ahead, other than in the parish of Orleans, into positions of power for the next ten or fifteen years. In the future, when the minorities will eventually have the opportunity to come ahead, labor will then have the opportunity of pushing forward and getting the two-thirds vote to change it so it'd be based on the merit system, and thus, perhaps, still preventing blacks from getting their necessary part of control in our future in the State of Louisiana. I feel that this amendment is a necessary amendment. It's necessary to prevent injustice in our system; it's necessary to guarantee that within this new system, the minorities and youth will have a chance of advancing their ideas and ideals into the future. I feel that without this amendment, we will be seriously castrating the possibility in the future of our legislature changing this particular section. I feel that without this amendment, there is no chance for change, there is no chance for progress in the particular system in which this is concerned. I feel that seniority will continue to be the main criteria, if not the sole criterion for even the possibility of taking an examination within the system. I, therefore, urge your adoption and consideration of this amendment. Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I ask you to reject the amendment. The theory of the amendment that we adopted earlier was to just contain a short, concise statement in the constitution relative to the fire and police civil service, and to say that they could not abolish the classified system of civil service, and let the legislature take care of the details and provisions of the civil service system as it relates to firemen and policemen. I ask you to reject this amendment, and let the legislature take care of these types of things where both sides can be heard, who are affected by this type of an amendment. I ask you to reject the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered.]

Closing

MR. SCHMITT

This is the same section which we adopted in Committee Proposal No. 9, Section (G). I feel that it is a fair and an equitable situation. It will give the minorities and the youth the opportunity to get in positions of control, and to allow them to have the same rights of advancement as others do within our system. I believe that justice demands that we adopt this amendment. Otherwise, they will not see the chance to even participate in the future of our state in this system for the next five, ten or fifteen years. Thank you.

Questions

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Schmitt, is not this basically the same amendment that was adopted in Committee Proposal No. 9?

MR. SCHMITT

It is verbatim the same.

MR. J. JACKSON

So, why can you...why are we hearing at present that there is some opposition to putting it now in Committee Proposal No. 10?

MR. SCHMITT

Because I think that what has happened in the past, that these areas have been primarily segregated throughout the state, and this would...actually, without this amendment, it would prevent blacks from getting into positions of power in the police and the fire departments.

MR. ROEMER

"Jay," what's done now on these types of promotion under the system?

MR. SCHMITT

Under the present system, if you don't have a...the person with the highest seniority is first on the list. Once you pass, everyone is put into the same ball park, no matter what your score was on the examination, or what other qualifications that you might have.

MR. ROEMER

So, what your trying to do is make sure that merit and efficiency and these sort of things get equal footing with seniority; is that not true?

MR. SCHMITT

That's correct, and this also allows for seniority to be placed in there as one of the criteria, but not the sole criterion.

MR. ROEMER
 Isn't this exactly what we did in the other committee proposal?

MR. SCHMITT
 Yes, it is.

MR. ROEMER
 Thank you.

MR. CHATELAIN
 Mr. Schmitt, isn't it a fact that your amendment provides for both combination of merit and seniority?

MR. SCHMITT
 That's correct.

MR. CHATELAIN
 In other words, if a person has...want to be promoted, and he's been on the force a good while, it would give him some advantage to be promoted.

MR. SCHMITT
 That's correct.

MR. CHATELAIN
 That's correct. I think you've got a fine bill here, Mr...

MR. SCHMITT
 Thank you, sir.

MR. WILLIS
 Mr. Schmitt, isn't what you mean to say in this amendment, that the appointments and so forth--a certification by the applicable Municipal Police and Fire Civil Service Board under a general system based upon merit, giving consideration to efficiency, fitness, length of service and experience--you don't have it here--as ascertained by examination? In other words, based upon merit, primarily, giving considerations to those four ingredients, and ascertained by an examination.

MR. SCHMITT
 I think this allows the flexibility there for them to make the necessary changes that I feel will be important to prevent seniority from being the sole criterion, and if we reject this amendment, seniority will be the sole criterion.

MR. WILLIS
 No, if you've made your answer clear, my question is not clear, then. Is it what you mean that you want merit to be primary, instead of demerit, and that the consideration to determine merit are those three ingredients of efficiency, fitness, and length of service, and that the ascertainment of that merit, the final drop of the axe, will be the examination itself. Isn't that correct?

MR. SCHMITT
 Yes, sir.

MR. WILLIS
 It doesn't quite say that. I'm going to vote for you though.

MR. SCHMITT
 Thank you, sir.

MR. HAYES
 Mr. Schmitt, do you know of any integrated fire departments in the state anywhere?

MR. SCHMITT
 Orleans Parish.

MR. HAYES
 Do you know of any other one?

MR. SCHMITT
 No, sir.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
 Mr. Avant has amendments at this time.
 Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery, and adopted today, at the end of the text add a new paragraph:

"Nothing in Article VII, Section 1 of this constitution authorizing cities or other political subdivisions to be placed under the provisions of said article whether by election, act of the legislature, or ordinance of the local governing authority shall be construed as authorizing the inclusion therein of firemen and policemen in any municipality having a population in excess of thirteen thousand and less than four hundred thousand and which operates a regularly paid fire and municipal police department or in any parish or fire protection district which operates a regularly paid fire department, which said firemen and policemen are hereby expressly excluded..."

Explanation

MR. AVANT
 Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm not going to tell you that this is a technical amendment because it's not a technical amendment. I would hope that it would be a noncontroversial amendment, however. The purpose of this amendment is to permit us to undo something that was done yesterday by inadvertence. Now, the present constitution, as you all now should be well acquainted with this fact, contains a constitutional civil service system for the state, and also in that same provision of the constitution, Article XIV, Section 15, provides for a city civil service system for cities over two hundred and fifty thousand. Then, in Article XIV, Section 15.1, there is provided a constitutional civil service system for municipal firemen and policemen in cities having a population in excess of thirteen thousand, but less than two hundred and fifty thousand. So, I think you got the picture. I hope you got the picture. Now, in the present constitution, Article XIV, Section 15, Subparagraph (U), there is a provision whereby any city or parish having a population exceeding ten thousand but less than two hundred and fifty thousand, may, by election called by the governing authority of that parish, vote to come under this civil service system that is provided in Article XIV, Section 15, that is the one which applies to the state and to the city of New Orleans. However, now, the present constitution provides that if they so vote to do that, that all of their employees, whether they had previously had any type of civil service system, or hadn't had one, will come under this new system except--and this is what I want to read to you--except those coming within the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the Constitution of the State of Louisiana. So, what the present constitution provides, then, is that if there is a city with a population of more than ten thousand and less than two hundred and fifty thousand people, that opts to come under this system, votes to do it; they go under it, all of their employees go under it except those firemen and policemen that are covered by the municipal fire and police civil service provisions of the constitution. Mr. Dennery's proposal, which we adopted yesterday, incorporates this provision of the present constitution except there was omitted therefrom this exception which applies to municipal firemen and policemen that come under the municipal fire and police civil service system. I did not detect that, in the midst of all of the debate and furor that we had yesterday, until last night. I talked to Mr. Dennery about it this morning. He told me that he didn't intend to do that. It was not by design. It was just apparently an oversight. It just happened in some fashion. He doesn't really know how it happened. I discussed with Mr. Dennery the amendment that you have before you. I also discussed it with Mr. Casey. I discussed it with several other delegates, and Mr. Dennery and...well, I won't say Mr. Casey, but Mr. Dennery has authorized me to state that he has no objection to my amendment, and that this was something that just happened. So, what I am asking you to do, since we have now adopted Committee Proposal No. 9, and it's laid on the table, I'm asking you to adopt my amendment to Committee Proposal No. 10 which will put this exception back so that if a city should elect to come under the state system, or the New Orleans system, or whatever you want to call it--the system that's incorporated in Mr. Dennery's proposal, Committee Proposal No. 9--that they will not carry with them those municipal firemen and policemen who have been covered by the municipal fire and police civil service law, which is the subject matter of this committee proposal that we are on now. That will provide, then, a conflict which we will have to reconcile later; in other words, that will have to be pointed out by the Committee on Style and Drafting to the convention, "Now, look, you've got these two conflicting provisions. Which one do you want?" You would have the privilege, at that time, of voting on that. But, since this was done by inadvertence, it was not intended; I missed it; Mr. Denny says he didn't intend to do it that way, and it's never been considered by the convention, I would, at this time, request that you adopt my amendment which would put this exception back in in this proposal. I'll answer any questions that anyone may have.

[Amendment adopted: 50-45.]

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Avant, I'm looking about in the middle of your amendment, and it says "firemen and policemen," but it doesn't say "paid firemen and policemen". Is what you intend to refer to there as paid firemen and policemen?

MR. AVANT

Yes, sir, and I would have no objection, and I at this time... I did this rather hurriedly, Walter, I mean, in view of the circumstances. But, at this time, I would...well, I don't think it's necessary because if you'll read further down, I put it in. It says, "who operates a regularly paid fire and municipal police department". So, it is in there in one place.

MR. LANIER

Well, for the sake of the record, though, what you're meaning by using...

MR. AVANT

I mean a regularly paid fire and police department. I don't mean Thibodaux; you're not under it; I'm not trying to put you under it.

MR. LANIER

Now, let me ask you something else. This amendment actually goes back to affect, as I understand it from what you say, this paragraph in that we've already adopted in Article VII, Section 1.

MR. AVANT

That is correct.

MR. LANIER

Now, if Article VII, Section 1 is...Section 1(N) is left alone, would that mean that these people between the thirteen thousand and the four hundred thousand could vote to have all one civil service system, and would not be subject to the provisions of having a separate system for the firemen and policemen?

MR. AVANT

It does mean that. That's why I came with this amendment, because it was my understanding that's what the convention wanted to do was just keep the status quo in this area.

MR. LANIER

They would be voting to do that which actually would mean that, in a way, the Lanier amendment is back in effect; is that correct?

MR. AVANT

Now, Walter, as much as we discussed your amendment yesterday, I forget exactly what it said. But, I think, in a way, it is back in effect, yes.

MR. ABRAHAM

Jack, if you can clear this up for me, I understand that the purpose of your amendment now is to say that if a city does avail itself of the provisions of this Proposal No. 9, that the firemen and policemen are excluded. Is that correct?

MR. AVANT

If they are a city which is covered by that law. In other...

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, I appreciate that.

MR. AVANT

It's to make it just like the present constitution in that particular regard.

MR. ABRAHAM

I appreciate it. I'm trying to reconcile what we've adopted as compared to what you're proposing here because in Paragraph (N) of the proposal, we've got a place where they can take... except the provision of the act, but in Paragraph (N) there is the exclusion in Paragraph (O) saying that the firemen and policemen are expressly excluded, and I'm confused as to where this would fit in.

MR. AVANT

Well, Paragraph (O) deals with the legislature placing those people under a civil service system that would be a legislative civil service system which they would do by legislative act, or the council, as I understand it, could do by ordinance. In that particular regard, this problem was taken care of. It says, if they do that, you don't put the firemen and policemen under it. But, the provision that I'm talking about is where they do it by election, in...as provided in Paragraph (U) of the present constitution, Article XIV, Section 15. 1.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, to put it simply, then, what you are trying to do here is put the exclusion into Paragraph (N) of what we adopted yesterday. Is that right?

MR. AVANT

Yes...

MR. ABRAHAM

It said the same as we have in the exclusion in Paragraph (O).

MR. AVANT

Paragraph (N) corresponds with Paragraph (U) of the present constitution.

MR. ABRAHAM

Right.

MR. AVANT

The present constitution has the exception, but Mr. Denny's proposal doesn't.

MR. ABRAHAM

I realize that.

MR. AVANT

It was inadvertent, so I'm told.

MR. ABRAHAM

All right. So, we have the exclusion in (O)...Paragraph (O) of what we adopted yesterday. We don't have it in Paragraph (N), and what you are trying to do is put the exclusion into Paragraph (N), in effect. O.K.

MR. AVANT

That's right. Maintain the status quo.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Avant, as you know, in the parish of East Baton Rouge, in the city of Baton Rouge, we have a personnel system that's provided for in the plan of government, is it not?

MR. AVANT

Yes, sir.

MR. KEAN

As you know from the litigation we engaged in, the fire and policemen in the city of Baton Rouge are under the state fire and police system because it's provided for in the plan of government, isn't it?

MR. AVANT

Correct.

MR. KEAN

Under those circumstances, if the people of the city of Baton Rouge and the parish of East Baton Rouge wanted to amend their plan of government, and bring the firemen under their regular Civil Service System, up to this point in time they would have a right to do that, wouldn't they?

MR. AVANT

I would not necessarily agree nor disagree with that, Mr. Kean, because I think you are asking me now for a legal opinion-- in view of the peculiar plan of government of the parish of East Baton Rouge, the constitutional provisions that led to its adoption--a rather difficult question to answer, and I'm not going to stand up here and say yes or no.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. KEAN

All right. Assuming that I'm correct, that it could be changed by amendment to the plan of government, as I read this proposed amendment, referring as it does to Article VII, Section 1 of the constitution, since East Baton Rouge and the city of Baton Rouge do not come under that article and section, then this would not affect the right of the people of Baton Rouge to change their plan if they had the legal authority to...

MR. AVANT

That is correct because if...their right would emanate from the plan of government, not from Article VII, Section 1, and if they've got the right now, this wouldn't affect it. If they don't have it, it wouldn't give it to them.

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Avant, why did you include on the fourth to last line the words "or in any parish or fire protection district"? I thought we were talking about municipal firemen.

MR. AVANT

Well, the municipal fire and police system covers those, as I understand it, Mr. Perez.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 88-9. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Jenkins sends up the following amendment:
Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 12, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Denney, and adopted by the convention on today, at the end of the text of said amendment,--and we need to insert, now, "and following the language added by the Avant amendment", Mr. Jenkins--add a new paragraph:

(B) Prohibitions Against Political Activities. Article XIV, Section 15.1 (34) of the 1921 Constitution is retained and continued in force and effect."

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, as you know, under the amendment adopted earlier deleting the whole proposal, we have adopted Article XIV, Section 15.1 and provided that that can be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. However, there is one provision in that part of the constitution dealing with civil service for municipal firemen and policemen that, under no circumstances, do I think should be changed by the legislature and that is the Hatch Act provision of it with regard to political activities. So, this provides that Subsection 34 of Section 15.1 of Article XIV of the 1921 Constitution would be continued and retained in full force and effect and would not be subject to being changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. I've talked to Mr. Denney about this and he agrees with it; I've talked to Mr. Flory and his groups agree with this. I think this will provide us with the sort of protection that we need with regard to political activity, so I urge the adoption of it.

Questions

MR. VICK

You saw the tick-tock circular that was passed out to all the delegates in the House Chamber concerning the 1040 checkoff; did you not?

MR. JENKINS

No.

MR. VICK

...the prohibition against the civil service....

MR. JENKINS

Oh, yes, I did.

MR. VICK

...utilizing the 1040 checkoff?

MR. JENKINS

Right.

MR. VICK

Would this affect that in any way?

MR. JENKINS

I can refer to the existing constitution--and by the way--you would find the same provisions on page 42 and 43 of the committee proposal and it prohibits contributions to candidates, so I'm sure that it would; yes.

MR. VICK

Well, do you think the state civil service can tell a civil servant what to do or what not to do with his 1040 tax return?

MR. JENKINS

Well, we're not talking here about state civil service, of course, we are talking about municipal fire and police civil service. No, I don't think that it is those bodies that are doing that. I think what we are talking about here is a contractual matter. The fact is that when an employee comes to work for the state or the fire and municipal civil service they are agreeing, thereby, to not do certain things in return for this protection that they are being given under civil service. I don't think it's in any way an infringement of their rights. Moreover, we have adopted this principle for state civil service. I think we ought to be consistent and adopt it here for municipal fire and police civil service.

MR. VICK

Well, I don't know if you answered my question, but it didn't sound like it.

MR. JENKINS

No. I said I think that in all likelihood that ruling would continue.

MR. A. JACKSON

Delegate Jenkins, would this prevent city employees under city and municipal civil service from participating in issues?

MR. JENKINS

Issues, what do you mean, Mr. Jackson?

MR. A. JACKSON

Constitutional amendments, bond issues.

MR. JENKINS

Well, this pertains not to all city employees but to municipal fire and policemen and under the....

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, would it prevent policemen and firemen from participating in bond issues?

MR. JENKINS

I think that it would; yes.

MR. A. JACKSON

Thank you.

MR. JENKINS

And, let me say this: I favored really originally--in fact, the first amendment that you see on your desk would have provided that municipal fire and policemen would be subject to exactly the same rules as state civil service employees are. However, some of the representatives of the municipal fire and policemen in the back, said that they really preferred things to remain just like they were, that they were accustomed to the legal rulings on those provisions in the present constitution and rather than change them, they would like to see them just kept the same.

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Jenkins, your amendment here is three lines on this sheet of paper, but it would run better than a page. I wonder if it's possible for you to reword that particular section and present it in the fashion that you would like to see it in rather than the way it is now.

MR. JENKINS

Well, in order to retain exactly the same legal effect and connotation, we would have to adopt exactly the same wording.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

So, the only way we could do that is to put that page in there and it just seems like this would be the simplest way to do it. It's not the way I probably would like to do it, but I think that probably this would satisfy most people this way.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

MR. HAYES

Mr. Jenkins, my objection probably was the same as that expressed by Reverend Landrum. I wondered why did you indicate by reference? I could understand better what you were doing if you would have stated here what it is that you don't want done, and 15.1 probably spells out exactly what it is you want done, but it's not on this page; I've got to go to Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the Constitution of 1921 when I could well read it right here.

MR. JENKINS

Well, we are just trying to save length; that's the only reason, Dewey.

MR. HAYES

But, in the process of doing it...before the people who are trying to act on it—I'm trying to say, it's a lot of unnecessary work for us to try to go and tell them. I'm not good at research, and I have to do all the research. You already know what it is, and I don't.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Jenkins, I really think that you answered the question—mine was concerning what we had already passed relative to that they could participate as far as the bond elections and so forth were and, of course, when you finish, I want the floor.

MR. ROEMER

Woody, what does this section say about prohibitions against issue involvement in political campaigns, not personality involvement? Would you like to address a remark to that?

MR. JENKINS

Yes; Mr. Jackson had asked that question. I think that this continues the present law and it would prohibit involvement in public issue elections.

MR. ROEMER

Would prohibit?

MR. JENKINS

Yes.

MR. ROEMER

Do you favor that; obviously you do with this amendment, I would guess?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, I do; I favor it. I think that municipal policemen and firemen, by and large, favor it, too.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this morning we adopted the Dennery-Flory amendment which said that "all of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 would be retained." Now, I can't see the benefit of this particular amendment because that also contains paragraph 34 of Article XIV, Section 15.1. So, I just can't see that we are accomplishing anything by adopting this, particularly in view of the fact when it contains the provision that the legislature can make changes in the law if they see fit to do it. This does not say the legislature could not change anything in paragraph 34. I just believe this is excess verbiage, and we are just hatching something up which we have already adopted which, I think, is fairly well. I just ask you to reject what I consider is an unnecessary amendment.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Well, J. D., do you know that it seems to me that it's more than unnecessary? Doesn't it, in effect, do away with the two-thirds vote provision? Doesn't this constitutionalize this particular article and section?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, I think that's what he intended to do, however, this does not say that, Mr. Roemer. I can't see where he said the legislature could not make a change in this particular provision. I ask you to...

MR. ROEMER

I'm afraid, though, that if we put this particular language in we have circumvented the two-thirds vote, and we constitutionalize this thing.

MR. DE BLIEUX

It might well be and that's one of the reasons I'm opposed to it, too.

MR. ROEMER

And, aren't you also opposed to it on the concept that these men and women are prohibited from getting involved in the issues much less a personality of politics? Don't you think they have the right to get involved on issues that affect their daily lives?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Roemer, as I see the situation, we need more people to take an interest in our political affairs rather than less.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm going to be very brief. I'm sorry that I had to come before this mike again, but it is really hard to believe how one could enjoy the full participation of politics and then be able to ask that others be denied even a small bit. This is very unfair, and I'm going to ask you to vote against this amendment. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, it was said that the purpose of this amendment--someone charged--that it was the purpose of this amendment to circumvent the two-thirds vote of the legislature. Well, yes, of course, that's exactly what the purpose is; it's to provide that the prohibition--the constitutional prohibition--against city policemen and firemen being engaged in political activities is continued in full force and effect. That's exactly what it is. I don't see why in the world the legislature of this state ought to be changing that. Now, Mr. Flory as representing those individuals...have said that they can certainly agree to that; I think that's fair and just. When we give people certain tenure, and certain preferences, and certain privileges under the state or city governments there is no reason that by contract they should not be willing to give up certain of these activities; we've already established that that...the principle, the Hatch Act principle is not in question. We've already adopted that principle under state and city civil service earlier. But, what I simply want to do is to continue that, just as it has been, for city policemen and firemen. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted:
61-41. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I hate to rise at this time and oppose the section as it now stands, but I just do that. I know that what Mr. Schmitt did, he did in sincerity, but he also did it without the full knowledge of how this system operates throughout the rest of the state. When you look at his amendment on the face of it, it looks good because that's exactly what we did in the state civil service and city civil service system. If you look at the fire and police civil service system in the constitution and in the statutes today, there is about three or four pages dealing with testing, promotions, and what have you, and how you get those promotions. You must bear in mind, and I don't know how strongly to impress upon you, that when you are talking about fighting a fire, chasing a criminal, apprehending somebody, it's not a grade that you make on an examination that determines whether or not you can save your partner's life or not. When you are working in a burning building, you want to know that the man working with you in that building has had sufficient training, sufficient experience to know that he is going to be with you and under the most difficult of circumstances. The only way you learn that fighting of fire is by practical, every day experience. Can you imagine a man out of college made a hundred points on the test operating a ladder truck working at that height with another man, both of whom's life depends upon it? I ask you to seriously consider what we are talking about here. We are talking about the lives of human beings and not only the firemen and the policemen, but the people that they are charged with to protect, and that protection depends upon the kind of service that they give. As I said to you earlier, I trusted the legislature. I was willing to turn this all over to them. If there was some quarrel with some of the provisions, let the municipalities come in and be heard. But, let the other people be heard who know what the system is. But, let's don't sit here today and legislate on something that most of us don't know what it's all about. I'm talking about the details of fire fighting, police work, and what it depends upon--whether or not a man lives or dies--that's what we are talking about. I ask you to reject this section until we have had time to clarify this matter, because we are dealing with human beings and it is serious. I know you don't want to do something today that would jeopardize the fine fire fighting system we've got throughout this state and the fine police systems we've got throughout this state. No one can say that I have not been the best friend the blacks have had in this convention, on every issue I've been with them because I don't believe in discrimination. But, this is not what we are talking about here; we are talking about the lives of human beings--black and white. I ask you to reject the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I had hoped not to rise and speak on this subject, but I am compelled to do so for this reason. In my section of Louisiana, I have been confronted by more city mayors, councilmen, and others who are in the business of hiring and promoting firemen and policemen. As I understand it, if someone is wrong they can correct...if I am wrong, someone can correct me. If at ten o'clock in the morning you hire a policeman, and another one at eleven o'clock in the morning, and another one at twelve o'clock at noon, you hire three policemen. Several months later when you are ready to promote these people, under the system of seniority, then you must consider the person you hired at ten o'clock in the morning simply because he has seniority over the two others. The man you hired at eleven o'clock in the morning could have been a man who had, in the meantime, taken more interest in the business of being a policeman and he wanted to advance himself; he went to night courses; he studied; he learned the business of being a policeman; he worked hard at his business; and he was denied an opportunity for promotion for advancement several months later because of the seniority system. I ask you, since we are in the business of dealing with the lives of people and with the rights of people, is this fair? Is this the kind of system that this country was built under? Hasn't the most industrious person in this nation been the one who has advanced the most? I ask you this question: search your mind--have not those of us who worked harder, put in longer hours and prepared ourselves for our life's work--haven't those of us who have done this, both black and white, have been those who have advanced in this country? Is this unreasonable then in this business of civil service that you would deny a person this right? I ask you to search your minds. Don't vote on someone else's suggestion. Vote on your own minds. You are individuals. You came here representing your people and, I say to you, search your mind and let's be fair to our fellow citizens. Thank you very much.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

MR. HAYES

Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in support of this proposal. Mr. Flory said he is for the black people. Well, you are looking at a black man; if he is for black people, then I'm for the proposal. If he is for black people, then vote for the proposal. I don't see any reason why he was opposed to the proposal; I'm for it, but I don't care, this is a test to itself. In this state, as I can appreciate it, I don't think...there's a lot of people in this audience who has never seen a black fireman. I think if you wanted to put one on display, you would have to either go to New Orleans--you might find one--and you'd probably have to come to Scotlandville to find the other one. I know that labor helps us a lot. If you wanted a black plumber to unstop your sewage, you couldn't find him in the state. Of course, labor helps us, I know; I vote with labor all the time. I do the very best I can because I don't have no other place to go because they help us just about as much as civil service; they help us fill up Angola. Angola is full of people--black people--because they can't get jobs; they don't have no other jobs. The only way they can live sometimes is to go to Angola. Now, they have a...we can't go around every time labor gets ready they say that they want to change; every time something gets in here they don't want, they want to change; and they want to amend, and they want to amend and want to put out, and want to put out. Now, he is up and he say he loves black people. If he does, I would like to see him support this amendment...support this section. I'm for the section, and I'm black; you're looking up here at me.

Further Discussion

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if you have questions about Mr. Hayes being black, there is a possibility it could be understood. But, I'm sure, looking at me, there is no doubt whatsoever what I am--I am one hundred percent black; I am one hundred percent a man; I am one hundred percent American; I am one hundred percent a citizen of this state. But, I am not one hundred percent behind nobody but the Lord and I fail there sometimes. I'm not one hundred percent behind labor. When labor, when I can, I'm going with labor. When I cannot, I'm not going with labor. I mean I don't have to hide about it or beat around about it. But, Mr. Flory, when you tell me about you're the best friend that blacks have ever had, I've heard that for a long time, and I've found you coming up short, too--just as I found it short in many others down through the years. There could be a real, real understanding of people and of my really doing a great thing for this convention and for the people of this state, when you could really think about the people of this state. But, don't you tell me about you're the best thing the blacks ever had, because I don't believe that--no way will I believe that--and I have a great deal of respect for you. You have helped me on amendments; I've helped you; I intend to help you further. But, I don't intend to follow everything that you do and that's all there is to it. I urge that you support the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think that it is very obvious that there is some contradictions here in opposition to this amendment. I, too, live in the city of New Orleans; my district is 45-55. When lives are burning--when homes are burning and criminals need to be caught, that's not the issue here because a policeman is a policeman whether he is a sergeant, a patrolman, a captain as such, that has nothing to do whether or not he is going to get the service. What we are talking about here is a more fundamental issue. If we can provide and say that merit, efficiency and length of service are going to be some of the criteria for promotion within a department for the city of New Orleans where we have fires and we have criminals, then they ought to be the same thing for the rest of the state. If we are going to say that just because a man got here five years before I did, that he has the edge on me, no matter how much merit, no matter how much I go to school, no matter how much I prepare myself, but just because he...I've been discriminated and not been in the system and he has and has free access, that I ought to be denied, then, I say that is wrong. I'm willing to say to you very publicly that I'll take my chances on a system based on merit, efficiency rather than trying to say that I'm going to do it on seniority because I know down the road there ain't no way; there just ain't no way. I wonder very seriously why our position did not come up when the compromise amendment came up to add length of service, efficiency and merit--I just wonder why; why now? It leaves me...can someone...I just have two questions and I'll sit down. My first question is: tell me how seriously can we have promotions and access in the system when you take an examination that is totally based on seniority, when we have promptly gotten up here and said that one of the problems of civil service is that it has excluded blacks from participation in the system. How can we justify that? My second question I raise to you. How can you say that in one civil service system-- regardless of how many fires and how many criminals exist--that you can have promotions based on merit, efficiency, and length of service, but for another system you cannot? How can you agree one time and the other time you disagree--it concerns me? I suggest to you very seriously that if you are going to vote against the amendment, do not vote on it because it's been smoked-screened, the fact that some partner riding in the car with him; it's strictly on the basis of that fair treatment, the equal treatment for everybody. I don't see how someone can say when seniority is the sole factor, that is fair to everybody. I ask your favorable adoption of it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Chairman, delegates, if there was ever a difficult act to follow it has been the debate that has preceded this closing. I am afraid that I could never muster the excitement that has taken place and I can't lay claims to some of the personal attributes. Let me just point out, however, that from the committee proposal with which we started this morning, we now have what amounts to a little more than a page, versus forty-seven pages, guaranteeing, however, the provisions basically that were in the committee's proposal. However, the distinct differences are that New Orleans... by, ... well, municipalities over four hundred thousand have the option of deciding whether or not the fire and police of that municipality will be included in the state service. A more controversial issue is, of course, the debate which just ensued that has to do with the criteria for determining the best person qualified for the job. Earlier, we had in passing the compromise amendment of Denny and Flory--I really thought it was all over but the shouting. In fact, I had gone around mentioning during the course of that discussion that it was all over, but the shouting, but I was wrong as you now know. The... I might point out that as I said earlier, that in the... with the exception of the salient issues of controversy which was brought up just before I came here that have to do with the criteria for the best person qualified for the job, and for the permission of the electorate and municipalities over four hundred thousand to vote, that the other provisions are protected, but with the allowance that with two-thirds vote of the legislature, they may be changed. However, the Jenkins amendment having to do with political activity is another addition to the Denny-Flory amendment, of course, and does constitutionalize the matters regarding political activity. With that, I would urge your adoption of the committee proposal as amended.

[Section failed to pass: 55-54. Motion to reconsider on next Convention day.]

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Representative Jackson, aren't we between the devil and the deep blue sea on this issue when... as it's based on seniority, an individual only has to be there a period of time and he cannot be passed over? On the other hand, if it's based on efficiency and etc., he has to be evaluated by someone and if that person has discrimination in his mind, he still can be passed over. Aren't we kind of in a dilemma there....

MR. J. JACKSON

Well, I know that in cases in other organizations where seniority was a factor and when at the point where blacks who were in positions to get the next in line, a ruling came over or a charge was lodged against him to knock out his seniority. So, I'm just saying that if we want to be fair in considering all people--not only black, but people who go out and prepare themselves to participate in the system--that it ought not to be on one sole factor. I'm saying that this provision, as offered by Mr. Schmitt earlier, allows a multitude of factors which can be criteria. But, if presently, the system is solely on one factor--examination....

MR. ALEXANDER

Is your position predicated on the fact that blacks are the last to come into the system?

MR. J. JACKSON

I think that's obvious about the efforts of minority delegates in this convention when we talked about it.

MR. ROEMER

Johnny, haven't we already passed in this convention a provision that secretaries, for instance, in the civil service system have to be... have some measure of efficiency, fitness, and be meritorious; haven't we done that?

MR. J. JACKSON

Yes, we have, Mr. Roemer.

MR. ROEMER

Well, don't you think it's also incumbent upon us to state clearly that the firemen and the policemen of this state have to be meritorious, fit, and efficient as well?

MR. J. JACKSON

I agree with you wholeheartedly, and I'm willing to say this very publicly. I think if that's the criteria, then I'll take my chances.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I didn't come up here to speak in favor of this amendment or to speak against it. I came up here after hearing the many solos about I am black--can't you see that I am blacker than the other in essence? I am not going with labor; I am not going against labor. For the record, I did not vote for Mr. Schmitt's amendment; I had some questions in my mind. I didn't go for Mr. Jenkins' amendment; I didn't like it. It's not a matter of labor or no labor; it's a matter of my conviction; I'm not going to vote black, and I'm not going to vote white. I want you to know that whether labor votes for this or against it, I am against it and you vote to suit yourself. The only reason that I'm not going to sit there and not vote at all is because I'm not going to break what these people call a vote record. But, I'm not ashamed of anything that I do.

MR. SCHMITT

I believe that we should resolve this issue at the present time. There is a strong possibility that tomorrow, which is Saturday, there'll be a short house, and this is the time when we should decide these important issues which have been presented before us. We've seen once again, how labor has come forward and attempted to thwart their will upon this constitutional convention. I reiterate, that if it's so easy for labor to prevent us from getting a two-thirds vote, how easy will it be for them to prevent any type of constructive change in the civil service system once it gets to the legislature? Labor will have a lot stronger pull when it gets to the legislature because these people have to come up for reelection once every four years. We must make a stand at the present time, not for labor or against labor, but for justice and against injustice. In very few parishes in the State of Louisiana have minorities or you've been given the opportunity to advance in the system based upon their merit. I feel that this is one important criteria. Merit is the ultimate criteria in other related matters or the number of years which a person has been on the service. However, Mr. Flory pointed out that this is something that's important because life and death is at stake; I agree with him. However, does it make any difference to you whether the person who's saving your life has been on the force for fifty years and might be sixty-five years of age or that you have a twenty-five year old person who, because of his physical fitness, etc., is better qualified to do that particular job. I think we have some important issues before us at the present time, and that we should have the gumption and the guts to go forward and to make up our minds one way or the other whether we are going to make this a constitution with justice built into the system, or one in which we will allow special interest groups to pervert the intent of the majority of this convention. I feel that it's time that labor step forward and support us in this move to give equal justice to all the people of the State of Louisiana. I would wish at this time that Mr. Flory would come forward and join me in support of this proposal because labor is supposed to be one of the ones who have stood in the past, for equal justice for all. I feel that Mr. Flory should come forward and take that stand, and support this proposal. Why can't they stand up for what they believe? What's the matter with labor? What's the matter with these people? I believe that this is the American system and the system based upon justice for all the people, not just for those who happen to be in the position of power because they were working in a particular job for the longest number of years, not based upon their merit, not based upon their physical fitness to obtain that particular job. This is the time for justice, and I would request that we overrule Mr. Flory's motion to have this passed on until tomorrow when there's a short house and he can more easily prevent this from being adopted, and that we attempt to have this adopted today. I thank you for your time.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I made the motion to reconsider it on the next convention date because of the nature of the subject before this convention is of such serious nature you can't attack it on a momentary basis and there is some time that needs to be given. What was done by the Schmitt amendment affected about five or six pages of law on the testing and promotion within the fire and police civil service system. You have to remember, that once the man gets promoted that he's on a working test period of not less than six months and not more than twelve months, which means that if he can't cut the mustard they bump him back down, and somebody comes up who can qualify, who can perform the service; all of this is involved. That's the reason that I ask you to let's go on with our business, and consider it on tomorrow. I want to support it. As I said, this is the heart and soul of the fire and police service of the state in the civil service system. I don't want to kill the civil service system, no way, but I don't... on a spur of the moment want to come up with something that's going to be detrimental to the fire and police service of the state, and I don't think anybody else does. If we don't consider it tomorrow, what we're going to be doing for the next two or three hours is hearing amendments drawn hastily within five or ten minutes in order to take up the time until it can be worked out. That's the reason I didn't want to take up the time of the convention by reconsidering it at this moment. So, I ask you to vote favorably for the motion, and let's consider it tomorrow when we have had time to study it and to come up with some sensible approach to the problem. No, I don't want to discriminate, Mr. Schmitt, I don't believe in it as I said from this microphone. It has nothing to do with the hiring policies, nothing whatsoever, when you talk about civil service. So, I ask you, in all fairness let's consider it on the next convention date.

Point of Information

MR. ABRAHAM

...If we were to reconsider this tomorrow, do we have anything else to work on today?

MR. HENRY

If we vote to do that, we've got plenty of work we can do... whatever we start on next or whenever we start on something it will be Committee Proposal No. 15.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I hesitate to rise and take your time. I know we all are concerned about time, but Mr. Flory stood before you a few minutes ago and said he did not want to fight this; he wasn't against this section. At the same time, he would not agree to ask a question... answer a question of mine. I want to know this, is he willing to give some kind of consideration or some compromise in the area of some kind of merit? If there's any way of compromise, well, then I'm willing to wait until tomorrow. But, if he's... he got his way last night on the Lanier amendment; we pulled it down trying to hasten this convention. We're trying to be conciliatory in every way we can, but how far can you go? This is the only question I want to know; I want to compromise, I'm not against a compromise, but for goodness sake, we're talking about houses burning awhile ago. We spoke a great deal about the firemen, I'm not only concerned about firemen, this is a firemen and a police civil service situation we're talking about. There's many problems in the many cities of this state of today, and you well know it. I'm concerned about the merit of what quality of a policeman we have in the cities of this state as I am the firemen. I think, if I had to put them in a certain category, I would certainly put the policeman first; he's in the front line. If one or two homes burned, it's a great loss to many people, but we're talking about policemen also. I'm vitally concerned in the type and quality of policemen we have in this state. I will not yield, Mr. Roy.

Questions

MR. LANIER

E. J., am I correct in my memory that yesterday, you tried to get a delay overnight on the proposal so that everybody could think about this thing and see if we could work out something today rather than get it done right on the spot yesterday afternoon?

MR. CHATELAIN

We certainly did. We did everything humanly possible.

MR. LANIER

Do you recall what Mr. Flory's position was yesterday on whether or not we should delay?

MR. CHATELAIN

He was opposed to it.

MR. LANIER

Since we weren't able to ask Mr. Flory any questions, are you... do you have any idea why Mr. Flory was so eager to get things disposed of yesterday and yet, today, wants to have it lay over?

MR. CHATELAIN

Because he thought he... certainly, he thought he had the votes yesterday; he doesn't think he's got them now. He thinks he may get them tomorrow. That's how simple it is.

MR. HENRY

Will you yield to a question from Mr. Roy?

MR. CHATELAIN

I hesitate to because he's a trial lawyer, and I'm an old farm boy, and I hate to...

MR. HENRY

I think you'd be more appropriate to say he's a criminal lawyer, Mr. Chatelain.

MR. ROY

Mr. Chatelain, do you have any criticism against the present firemen and policemen of this state in that you think that they're not adequate and they're not competent because they have been operating under a system that has been here for twenty years?

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Roy, let me say to you right now, I came to this convention back in January, was sworn in and I was... one of the things I was the strongest on was civil service...

MR. ROY

I didn't ask you that.

MR. CHATELAIN

I'm one hundred percent for civil service.

MR. ROY

I didn't ask you that, I said, do you have any criticism directed at the personnel of the state police... of the city police and the firemen in this state, and is it based upon the fact that you say the methods by which they had been promoted in the past is not proper?

MR. CHATELAIN

I will take the fifth amendment on that, Mr. Roy.

MR. ROY

Well, you better because then you're asking us to change it and you don't have any criticism about it.

MR. CHATELAIN

The only thing is, I can say this, Mr. Roy, that Mr. Flory and many of his ilk have stood before us, or his type, and they have been the champions of the people. I.. this is, I can say they've been champions of the people. This is a "people" situation we're talking about right now. The only thing I want to say is, that I think that we certainly have a right to speak. I don't like these hasty deals either.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Chatelain, don't you think that in his didactic declamation, in expressing his aversion to the proposition before us now, that there was a confusion by the speaker of the distinction between experience and length of service?

MR. CHATELAIN

Right, sir.

MR. WILLIS

That there is a big difference between the two?

MR. CHATELAIN

Certainly.

MR. WILLIS

That experience is preferable to length of service?

MR. CHATELAIN

Absolutely.

MR. WILLIS

That that same gentleman refused to supplant length of service by ... with the word "experience" in Mr. Jenkins' amendment yesterday?

MR. CHATELAIN

Absolutely right, sir.

I appreciate, Mr. Willis, your coming to my rescue on that.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Motion adopted: 62-43. Quorum Call: 88 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to return Committee Proposal No. 10 to the calendar pending reconsideration adopted without objection. Motion to take Committee Proposal No. 15 out of its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 15, introduced by Delegate Rayburn, Chairman on behalf of the Committee of Revenue, Finance and Taxation, other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal relative to the tax structure of the state and the public finance.

Mr. Chairman, it's my understanding Mr. Roemer wanted to make some general comment before we got into Section 1.

Explanation

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to ask you to turn to Committee Proposal No. 15. That proposal is introduced by your Committee on Revenue, Finance and Taxation, and comprises the second part of our presentation to this convention, the first part being the proposal on ad valorem or property taxes. I want to make a few introductory comments and then, of course, we'll go through the proposal section by section and entertain amendments. I know it's an almost impossible task to do so, but I ask for your attention for just a few minutes. It just so happens that in the next few days we're going to be talking about the finances of this state. Perhaps, it's too much to ask some of you to sit down and listen to what this committee of twenty-three men and women have done now for over six months to insure that the free society that we live in in Louisiana will be financed adequately.

The chairman of our committee was "Sixty" Rayburn; he cannot be here today, and I'm acting on his behalf as acting chairman in making these general comments to you. Each of you, or none of you, rather, will probably agree with all of the issues that we present in Committee Proposal No. 15, and we certainly welcome your suggestions, your questions, your interest and even your amendments. However, I do want to say that we have worked long and hard on this proposal, and in almost every case this proposal represents a near unanimous vote of our committee. Unlike other committee reports and unlike even some of our own, this committee report...this Committee Proposal No. 15 represents the clear majority thinking of our committee. I can assure you that we will be hesitant to accept amendments that strongly change what we recommend without some fairly good logic on your side, and that's not to say that you won't disagree with some things and try to amend it; that's your right; we welcome that. But, we do ask you to listen to our reasons first and then come with your amendments. We don't know it all, but we have debated it at length. I might further point out that the members of this committee, and I'm one of the exceptions, by and large have a great deal of experience in state government and with state finances. I point out people like John Alario and Senator Nunez and Senator Brown and, of course, "Sixty" Rayburn. Monday Lowe, who served in the legislature and is a C.P. A., David Conroy, who's worked long and hard in the area of bonds and bonded indebtedness, and I could point to committee member after committee member. They include Jap Smith, who introduced the original two-thirds vote provision in the legislature. PAR has issued a critique of our proposal; it'll be on your desk in the morning, as I understand it. I want to read a few paragraphs from that critique. "Committee Proposal No. 15 as submitted by the Committee on Revenue, Finance and Taxation would greatly reduce the length of the constitution on financial matters, exclusive of the property tax which is dealt with in another proposal. Financial provisions in the present constitution are spread throughout several articles, and much is obsolete and restricted. This proposal would not only streamline these provisions but, more importantly, would initiate and give constitutional status to many sound principles of good fiscal administration, and these include--and please listen carefully because this is the guts of our proposal--Number 1, expansion of the application of the two-thirds vote for tax increases; Number 2, elimination of tax dedication; Number 3, elimination of several constitutionally frozen tax rates; Number 4, elimination of constitutional exemptions; Number 5, mandate for a long range in comprehensive capital budget; Number 6, improvement in Louisiana's already excellent debt-issuing procedures; Number 7, improvement in the method of financing of interim emergencies; Number 8, enhance central cash management investment system; Number 9, requirement for a balanced state budget; Number 10, continuation of the prohibition against the state or its political subdivisions lending or giving anything of value to persons, associations or corporations whether public or private or of purchasing stock of any corporation or association." Now, PAR did not agree with everything that we have done. Two things I want to point out they disagreed with: Number 1, with a three dollar auto license plate being in the constitution; Number 2, they disagreed with the ceiling that we placed on the amount of state debt that can be issued, for they say this could encourage issuance of debt up to the ceiling. We happened to disagree in committee with those objections, but perhaps you will raise them on the floor and we will entertain them at that time. Once again, I am proud of our committee. I am proud of the work we've done. PAR labels ours as one of the best to come out of this convention. I hope you agree with them. Listen carefully, and amend it as you see fit, but have the facts at hand when you want to change what we've done. Mr. Chairman, if it's in order, we will go into Section 1.

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Section 1. Power to Tax.

Section 1. The power of taxation shall be vested in the legislature, shall never be surrendered, suspended, or contracted away, and shall be imposed for public purposes only.

Explanation

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would hope that we could start off our Committee Proposal 15 without a great deal of controversy, because I don't believe that Section 1 could bring about any controversy. Inherently, the legislature has the power to tax. This proposal merely reaffirms such authority. Every state in the nation places this taxing authority in the legislature. So, I ask for your favorable approval. I will tell you that we do have an amendment that's being offered by Delegate Perez that says that except as otherwise provided in this constitution, and I know of no objection that any committee member has to this amendment. So, I hope that you will accept it without any opposition, and then go on and accept Section 1.

That completes my remarks, Mr. Chairman.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The amendments read as follows..if not already...now here they come. They are being distributed at the present time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 15, immediately after the word and numeral "Section 1," delete the word "The" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, the".

Explanation

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, if you will recall on the local government article, we had provisions with respect to local government having the authority directly from the constitution to impose sales taxes upon vote of the people, to impose ad valorem taxes. I just wanted to make it clear that these are exceptions to the general rule that the power of taxation shall be vested in the legislature exclusively and shall never be surrendered. I don't believe there should be any objection to the amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.
Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

MR. LOWE

I merely ask you to accept Section 1 as amended.

[Section passed: 107-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Section 2. Power to Tax; Limitation
Section 2. The levy of a new tax and any increase in an existing tax and any repeal of an existing exemption from a tax shall require the favorable vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the legislature, as evidenced by a recorded vote. A like vote shall be necessary for the adoption of amendments to bills proposing the same and to reports of conference committees.

Explanation

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm like Mr. Lowe said about Section 1. I don't think there should be any opposition to this. It's like voting against motherhood and apple pie and that kind of thing.

I was given the privilege of handling this section, which I appreciate since I was the author of the two-thirds law in the State Legislature in 1955. This law was placed in the constitution by the people in 1956, and it has proven most effective in our state in keeping down unnecessary taxes. I do not think there was any opposition whatsoever to the passing...out of this act... out of our committee. It was unanimous, I believe. This section is self-explanatory. I don't think it needs any explanation. The people of our state will want this kept in the constitution of our state. If it's not kept in there, I feel that our new constitution might be in a lot of trouble. I feel that it's a good law; it's needed. I ran as a delegate to this convention in District No. 1 on this particular platform, and no other. I was elected overwhelmingly in the first primary. I think that's some indication of what our people think about it. I feel all of you have heard from your constituents. I also think it's been shown in the legislature that this two-thirds can be obtained, just like in the recent special session, if necessary taxes are needed. Before this law was passed in 1956, as most of you know, whenever any new governor went in, we had a new tax shortly after he went in. I thought this was needed. I had it placed in the constitution by the people. I ask that you now retain this good law.

Questions

MR. CASEY

Mr. Smith, what I'd like to determine is, the...on line 23, where it says a like vote shall be necessary for the adoption of amendments to bills proposing the same. Is that the present law, now, insofar as amendments are concerned, as distinguished from conference committee reports?

MR. SMITH

Mr. Casey, we are going to amend that out. That's what this amendment is. I'd also like to add, of course...it adds to exemptions, also, which wasn't in the law that I introduced in 1956. I ask the Clerk to read these amendments.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Smith, perhaps I ought to ask you this when your amendment is under consideration. But you are also removing the provision that would take a two-thirds vote to pass--conference committee reports on this subject?

MR. SMITH

What I was going to...soon as they read those...explain....

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Mr. Smith as follows:
Amendment No. 1. Page 1, line 22, immediately after the word "legislature" delete the comma "," and insert in lieu thereof a period "." and delete the remainder of line 22 and all of lines 23 through 25, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. SMITH

I think they are self-explanatory. These lines were taken out because the legislative article that we've already passed in concurring amendments, took care of that. So we don't need it. So, I ask that you adopt these amendments....

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

You might have explained this earlier. I was drawing an amendment. But, on line 22, when you deleted the words "as evidenced by a record vote," this is covered in a legislative article, therefore you are just deleting repeated verbiage. Is that correct?

MR. SMITH

Yes, sir.

Gentlemen, I ask for your unanimous adoption. This is a good law and I think the people of our state will be well pleased if you make a unanimous vote on this like you did on...

MR. JENKINS

I'm sorry, Mr. Smith. I guess you explained this, but why is this amendment necessary and desirable? I don't understand?

MR. HENRY

This is the third time the question has been asked, Mr. Smith. Would you explain it real loud?

MR. SMITH

The legislative article took it out, Mr. Jenkins. We don't need it in here. So, this was written up, I think, before the legislative article was passed. So, it's not needed any further.

MR. JENKINS

It deals with regard to conference committee reports that is in the legislative article?

MR. HENRY

Mr. Clerk, why don't you read the amendment?
Read...the legislative proposition. Do you have it before you there?

MR. POYNTER

Yes. I had to ask for a copy of it. It's in Section 17, Paragraph (F), Concurrence and Amendments. No bills...no amendment to a bill by one house shall be concurred in by the other. No conference committee report shall be concurred in by either house except by the same vote required for final passage of a bill. The vote thereon shall be by record vote.

(G) incidentally, requires final passage shall be by record vote.

MR. ARNETTE

Mr. Smith, I know this wasn't your intent, but it seems this language might be interpreted to mean that you have...that a two-thirds vote is only required when you want to do all three of these things: levy a new tax, increase an existing tax, and repeal an existing exemption. It seems like "all" would have been a more proper word to put in there.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. SMITH
I don't believe I understood your question, Mr. Arnette.

MR. ARNETTE
My question is, you intend that when any of these things get done, it requires a two-thirds vote?

MR. SMITH
Yes, sir.

MR. ARNETTE
Not when all three of them are done at the same time?

MR. SMITH
Right.

MR. ARNETTE
I just want to make sure that's...your intent to get it in the record.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 88 delegates present and a quorum.]

MR. HENRY
Read the Conroy amendments, Mr. Clerk.

Amendment

MR. HARDIN
Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 22, after the period "." added by Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Smith and adopted by the Convention on December 14, insert the following:
"Notwithstanding any other provision of this constitution, any law imposing taxes may define or specify the subject, amount, or provisions of such tax by reference to laws of the United States as then existing or thereafter amended, and may prescribe exemptions or modifications thereto."

Explanation

MR. CONROY
This matter was brought up before the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Committee, was also mentioned before the Legislative Powers Committee that a proposal of this kind was in the mill. The reason it wasn't brought forth as a part of the committee proposal was that at the time the committee proposal took its final action on Committee Proposal No. 15, I explained to the committee that I had no intention of proceeding with this without some expression of feeling from the present collector of revenue, as to whether he thought such a provision was desirable or not. It was my understanding that he did. But I felt that it was important to have such a statement of position.
It was this afternoon that I received a letter from Mr. Traigle advising that he felt that this provision would be desirable to permit the legislature to adopt tax laws of this kind. Very briefly, all that this does is authorize the legislature to take certain action. It does not require the legislature to do it. It authorizes it. The reason it is necessary as an authorization is that the present provisions in the legislative powers proposal, prohibit adoption by reference--prohibit adopting any laws by reference to other statutes wherein, in general terms, prohibit any delegation of legislative authority. The effect of this would be to permit the legislature, if and when it decided it was appropriate to do so, to say to the people of the State of Louisiana that your taxable income in the State of Louisiana, you can just figure out what your taxable income was on your federal return, and apply the state percentage to that figure. Or, as the latter part of this provides, you could prescribe exceptions or modifications, and say you take the federal income as reported on your federal income tax return, and adjust it by adding to it your capital gains, or one-half your capital gains--whatever adjustments have to be made--so that you wouldn't have to report at length the full computation of the two ways in which you presently have to compute your income taxes. It is an approach which is now used in, I think it's thirty-four states. The United States Government has indicated that it is willing, in some cases, to even undertake to assist the states in collecting taxes in this fashion. As I said before, it wouldn't put the state in the posture of having to do any of this. But, if the state, at some future date, should decide that this was an economical way in which to collect taxes, to proceed with the collection of taxes, that the state would not be precluded from doing it. The state would be precluded from using this method of collecting taxes without this permissive authorization in the constitution.

Therefore, I ask your favorable approval of this amendment, and will answer any questions.

Questions

MR. HAYES
Mr. Conroy, since you said "may" in here, then, what would be the effect? Wouldn't it be just as well if you didn't have it?

MR. CONROY
It would not be permissible without it, Mr. Hayes, because the legislative proposal, as adopted by this convention, prohibits the adoption of a code of laws by reference. The use of the Federal Income Tax, or the Internal Revenue Code by reference, is presently prohibited under the Legislative Powers Article as we have adopted it. So, the purpose of this is to make an exception to that prohibition.

MR. BURSON
David, I'm just wondering why in the world the Louisiana State Legislature would ever want to adopt by reference something as god-awfully drafted and...as the Internal Revenue Service Code, or any portion thereof?

MR. CONROY
Well, for two reasons, Mr. Burson, one for the ease of the taxpayers of the State of Louisiana in computing their income taxes, because they are having to compute it under the Internal Revenue Code, whether they like it or not; and, secondly, to reduce the cost of collecting the Louisiana Income Taxes because it could, as I indicated earlier, in some cases the Internal Revenue Service, the Federal Internal Revenue Service, has entered agreements with states to undertake the actual collection of the state income taxes, and the cost of collections can be reduced considerably in both ways. Because if the laws are similar, the state can follow, or use the federal administrative services in being able to reduce their own expenses of collection. It's this latter point that has led some thirty-odd states--over thirty states, Mr. Burson, presently use this approach in collecting their income taxes, because they feel it's a significant saving to the state to be able to use this approach.

MR. BURSON
Well, then, do they merely adopt the schedule without all the morass of...

MR. CONROY
They don't...all they do is say that you use the adjusted gross income as reported on your tax return for the purposes of your state income tax computation. In other words, you take that and apply the state percentages.

MR. BURSON
Well, what this then implies, however, what bothers me, is would this then imply that the state legislature could adopt some particular exemption or method of computing a particular deduction as set out in the internal revenue code.

MR. CONROY
They can, and do, now. They don't do it by reference. But they usually track the language a couple of years later, in most cases, and this would continue to permit exceptions to be made...

MR. BURSON
Well, I'm glad that in Louisiana we never have tracked some of the language that's in the internal revenue....

MR. CONROY
So am I.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK
Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, we're all glad to pay taxes when they are needed. Now, when a person pays taxes the legislature passes, seems to me the least they can do is set out in Louisiana law books what the tax is going to be. I certainly hope I won't have to see what taxes I pay by not referring to what the legislature does, but look to see what the U. S. Congress did. I'm pretty sick and tired already of being ruled by a federal court; where they can overrule our Supreme Court and everything else. Now Mr. Conroy is a smart lawyer. But he didn't tell you we need this thing now. We've listened closely--said we may need it some day. Now, let's don't put in this constitution something we don't need now, we may need some day. If legislature has this thing to operate on, takes the short course of putting taxes on us by what was said by Congress, and a Congress that has got us in debt over the years--a national debt....I don't know.... five hundred billion dollars--we operate within a budget. I don't want our tax laws drawn by them. I don't know whether under this that the amendments that Congress would make would affect us in paying taxes. I say, I'm representing the public. I don't believe the public wants to be....have the tax passed by the Louisiana legislature, that nothing is in it but you are taxed according to section so-and-so, subsection so-and-so of USCA--which...USC...which means United States Code.

Now, another thing, we've made by reference to our own constitution, to save time. But, that's because all--to get the constitutional convention people have promised--as thin a constitution as possible. But, when it comes to the legislature, when they want to pass a tax, I think the people are entitled to look at that bill the legislature has and read it and see what it is instead of saying "House Bill No. 250 --and so be it enacted so forth there is hereby levied a tax on every individual in Louisiana in....four hundred...."

MR. HENRY

Wind up your remarks, Mr. Jack, please.

MR. JACK

....Can I have a minute more, please? I move for that. Out of Section 400. Now, you do what you want. I think this is a bad amendment. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, those of you who are not lawyers or tax men, and who have never had the questionable pleasure of having to try and find out what the federal tax law is about anything, by wading through large volumes of regulations written so that nobody in his right mind can understand what they mean, are trying to figure out which interpretation of a particular section of the Internal Revenue Service....of the Internal Revenue Code is the law, when the top court has one interpretation, one circuit has another interpretation, and yet another circuit has another interpretation, cannot fully appreciate the great opportunity that you are being offered by this amendment. I certainly hope and pray that our state legislature will have sufficient intelligence to adopt its own tax legislation without being asked to adopt in toto anything that I've ever read in the Federal Tax Law; because, in my humble opinion, anything that they adopted would have to be an improvement. It could hardly get worse. I'm talking about just the sheer archaic, incomprehensible phraseology, of ninety-nine percent of the federal tax law. If you wanted a model of how not to draft a law so that people could read it and understand it, then it would be the federal tax law. I for one, am not going to vote for anything that would permit our state legislature to adopt any part of that tax law by reference. I think it's a poor practice; I don't think we want to adopt any part of it by reference, and I think you would automatically get inadequate consideration of something affecting taxes. I don't care whether it's how right the taxes are to be collected, or anything else to do with it. We ought to make those decisions here. I certainly urge the rejection of this amendment. I find it significant that it's not in the committee proposal.

Questions

MR. TOOMY

....laws. Couldn't they track it by statute rather than just by reference to the federal laws? You know what I mean, just track the federal law by statute rather than by reference.

MR. BURSON

This amendment, Mr. Toomy, though, says "by reference to laws of the United States as then existing or thereafter amended;" so that they would be adopting--think about that--they would be adopting a law by reference, subject to amendment by the United States Congress, not even by the state legislature. Now, is that what we want to do? Not to mention the fact that I'd like to know what the word "laws" means, here. With regard to tax law, it could mean Internal Revenue Service rulings, regulations, as well as the statutes themselves, because they're all part of the corpus of tax law. I just think that opens up a chamber of horrors, as far as I'm concerned. If thirty other states have done it, then God bless them. But, I hope we don't make that mistake.

MR. TOOMY

What I'm saying, Jack, more or less in agreement with you, is that should the legislature want to incorporate reference to an existing federal law, they could just go ahead and adopt a statute that would track that law, rather than leaving its objective to federal change.

MR. BURSON

There is no question about that. No question about it.

MR. DREW

Jack, while I appreciate that your interpretation is a possibility, do you understand that the purpose of this amendment is to provide that we would possibly be able to attach our federal income tax return to a one sheet form, take the net adjusted income, our state deductions, and that would be all that was necessary, instead of making out two complicated returns?

MR. BURSON

I understand that to be the purpose, Mr. Drew, and if somebody came up here with an amendment that said that, I'd have no objection to it. But, that's not what this amendment says. It says that we can adopt. . .

MR. DREW

It permits that, though, doesn't it? I mean, it would permit it.

MR. BURSON

That's correct, but it would permit a lot of other things, too. It's the other things that I have objection to.

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Burson, as I understand it--I don't know, perhaps Mr. Conroy can answer it, or perhaps you--the thirty states that are using this now have had very little experience with it. They've just started it. They don't know, yet, how much of the money that the United States government collects for the state is going to be returned to the state. The United States government has a great history of keeping most. . .you know, some of that money and not returning all of it.

MR. BURSON

Their pension is for draining off a considerable amount of it, as far as I'm aware of.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm opposed to this amendment. I don't know the merits or demerits of it. I didn't know anything about it until just a few minutes ago. I'm on the committee. Of course, Mr. Conroy said he had--and I don't doubt his word--that he had brought it up before, but it's some possibility it could be adopted by this convention. I don't think it would be, but I don't like to see this section endangered, or put in jeopardy by this amendment. So, without going into the merits or demerits, I think they ought to put this somewhere else, if they can, in this article and not here. So, I ask you all not to adopt this amendment, but vote against it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. CONROY

My only purpose in closing is to clarify what may have been some misunderstanding. This amendment does not require that the legislature do anything. As a matter of fact, in order for the legislature to take advantage of this provision, would take the two-thirds vote that it's required for imposition of taxes, generally, and for any repeal or anything else of a tax. The purpose, here, is to make it possible for the state to do something in the future which it may wish to take advantage of. If the legislature doesn't feel it appropriate to do so, it certainly doesn't have to adopt such a provision and may decide that it's never appropriate to do so. The purpose is to make an exception to what is presently a prohibition in the constitution against the legislature ever being able to take this course of action. That's all it's designed to do, is to relieve or make an exception to a present prohibition. I ask your favorable vote.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

[Amendment rejected: 33-69. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page . . .(we didn't run the distribution copies. These are the technical amendments, several of them we're talking about.) Page 1, line 19, immediately after the word "tax" strike out the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof the word "or "

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 20, right after the word "tax" strike out the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof the word "or "

Explanation

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd appreciate you adopting this technical amendment. Mr. Arnette called it to my attention. I'm sorry I didn't catch it, but it would help the meaning of this. So, I'd appreciate it if you would adopt this technical amendment. I ask for the previous question.

[Amendments adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 106-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 3. Collection and Refund of Taxes Section 3. The collection of taxes shall not be restrained, and procedures shall be provided for the recovery of illegal taxes paid."

Explanation

MR. MCDANIEL

This section is very similar to the provision that's in the present law on the procedure for collecting taxes, and the recovering of money that was illegally collected. Mr. Chairman, at this time, I'd like to withdraw this amendment for the purpose of making a technical amendment on line 28, after the word "provided," adding "by law." This is just simply clarifying it.

Questions

MR. STINSON

For a question. While you're correcting that, Mr. McDaniel, I'm a little concerned. Don't you have "illegal" in the wrong place? Should it be paid. . .say "taxes illegally paid," instead of "illegal taxes paid?"

MR. POYNTER

Where did you all want, "by law"? I'll just draft you a technical amendment.

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask Mr. McDaniel and Mr. Roemer that in the title it says, "Collection and Refund of Taxes ", yet the body of Section 3 has nothing in it about refund of taxes. No refund is mentioned.

MR. MCDANIEL

What we were attempting to do, here. . .

MR. HENRY

Wait, Mr. McDaniel. Let's get our amendments drawn. Now, we're sort of proceeding in a . . .

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 28, immediately after the word "provided" insert the words "by law."

Amendment

MR. MCDANIEL

This section is very similar to the section that's in Article X, Section 18, of the present constitution. What is referred to there is for. . .nothing should be done to restrain the collection of taxes, but adequate provision would be provided by law for the taxpayer to recover those taxes that are illegally paid. I think this particular article is necessary, and it's pretty much self-explanatory. I move for its adoption.

Explanation

[Amendment adopted without objection. Section reread as amended. Motion to temporarily pass over the Section adopted without objection. Quorum Call: 80 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1, proposed by Mr. Singletary.

On page 1, delete lines 26 through 29, both inclusive, in their entirety (we need to add including all floor amendments thereto) insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 3. Collection of Taxes; Process to Restrain; Refunds

Section 3. The legislature shall provide against the issuance of process to restrain the collection of any tax and for a complete and adequate remedy for the prompt recovery by every taxpayer of any illegal tax paid by him."

Explanation

MR. SINGLETARY

Ladies and gentlemen, I've just been told by the committee that they support this amendment. It's the exact wording of the 1921 Constitution, Article X, Section 18. It seems to have served well. I move its adoption.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

On this amendment, it was the intent of the committee--although we tried to do it with less verbiage--to as much as possible track the old constitution on this particular provision. So, if there's any confusion about our shortage of words, here, we would accept this amendment to adopt the language of the old constitution. It's only one line longer.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 104-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Motion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Section 4 is next in order, but we of the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Committee would like to ask the convention to pass over Section 4 at this time. It seems that a number of the delegates just read it some moments ago and have amendments they wish to offer. It's a complicated section; we'd like them to have the opportunity to discuss those amendments with us without going into your time on the floor. Perhaps we can save you some time. So, if it's in order at this time, Mr. Chairman, I move we pass over 4 and go to Section 5, which is the three dollar license plate.

Questions

MR. JACK

Mr. Roemer, when you were talking. . .now the Chairman said temporarily, but you said to discuss them. I want to find how long are they to be passed over before I vote.

MR. ROEMER

Right. Well, we had no intention of bringing Section 4 up today, if that answers your question.

MR. JACK

Well, when do you intend to?

MR. ROEMER

Well, in the normal course of events, whenever we get through discussing the amendments. Do you have amendments that you'd like to discuss?

MR. JACK

Yes, but when are we going to discuss them?

MR. ROEMER

At your pleasure, Mr. Jack.

MR. JACK

Well, can we discuss them right after this session?

MR. ROEMER

Yes, sir; I can assure you that the committee won't take it up until we discuss your amendments with you.

MR. JACK

Well, I know, but I. . .it looks like I've got some emergency, and I'm not going to be here Sunday. I'll be here all day tomorrow, all today, back Monday. I would like to be sure to be here. I have an amendment to Section 4. Can we discuss them after we recess this evening?

MR. ROEMER

If you'd like to make that motion tomorrow, we can support that; yes, sir.

MR. JACK

No, this evening, when we adjourn.

MR. ROEMER

Oh, with me?

MR. JACK

Yes.

MR. ROEMER

Yes, yes, sir. I'd be glad to.

MR. JACK

Well, it's not a motion. Who do we discuss it with? You, or your committee, or what?

MR. ROEMER

The answer is yes to both of those questions--me and the committee.

MR. JACK

All right, well, you're the acting chairman. Can we discuss them when we adjourn?

MR. ROEMER

Be glad to; yea, sir.

MR. JACK

Where abouts? In the Treaty Room or the what room?

MR. ROEMER

Can we find you?

MR. HENRY

Gentlemen, let's. . .Mr. Jack, the gentleman will accommodate you, please, sir.

MR. JACK

All right, okay.

[Motion to temporarily pass over Section 4 adopted without objection. Motion to limit debate on Section 5 to one-half hour. Substitute motion to limit debate on Section 5 to one hour. Substitute motion adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

The next Section 5 reads as follows:

"Section 5. Annual Motor Vehicle License Tax

Section 5. The legislature shall impose an annual license tax of three dollars on automobiles for private use, and on other motor vehicles, an annual license tax based upon horsepower, carrying capacity, or weight, any or all. No parish or municipality may impose any license fee on motor vehicles."

Explanation

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Messieurs, mesdames, ladies and gentlemen, that's an attempt to get your attention. I want to tell you that the reason why I'm up here to present this proposal is because it's completely non-controversial, and that the committee, we had a real argument about who was going to handle it, and I won. But, really and truly, in the absence of our chairman who was strongly for it, I inherited the position. I want to be very frank with you on this question. It is not constitutional material. Let's not argue that point. I agree with you that it is not. I further submit to you that it is in the present constitution, and we submit it to you, in essence, the same way in this constitution. I would suggest to you that most of you are politicians, and if you were not when you got here, then you should be, by now. I also submit that this constitution will be submitted to the people for their vote. Now, you will, possibly, some of you who will argue that by so doing, we are limiting the monetary results of license plates being sold in this state. I suggest to you that that is no limit whatsoever, because all they have to do is raise the license to drive an automobile, which has been done on occasion, and they can get much more money than they can with the three dollar license. I further agree that the legislature, in all probability, will never raise the three dollar license, if you take it out of the constitution. But, I do submit to you that all of those individuals in this state--and let's hope there are a few of them--but I suggest there may be a number of them who would like to destroy the adoption of this constitution. Here is ready-built information for them if you leave this out of the constitution, because it should be a very good voter appeal to those people who may or may not vote on this constitution. But, if suggested to them that the reason why it's being left out of here is because we intend, as a bunch of money raising individuals, to plunder the little man and make him pay an exorbitant license for his automobile. I suggest to you that that material will go like wildfire, and if we do not put it in the constitution, you shall have people flocking to the polls to vote against it. Now, I'm not suggesting that I would do it; I know none of you here would do it. But, I think there are possibilities of some people in this state who would use that measure to inflame a vote anti-constitution, in that measure. I, therefore, those of you are going to argue and say it's not constitutional, I admit it. Most of the committee admits it. This is one of the controversial issues on the. . .on our committee. Those are one of the possible. . . one of the only ones other than the other proposal we had on property tax. I, at one time, voted--we voted three or four times on committee--I'm the first to admit at one time I voted to leave it out of the constitution on the basis that it was not constitutional material. I want to submit to you that we are writing the best constitution that we can get the people to adopt. I feel that this is the kind of measure that will appeal to the little man and the big man and the middle man, because I happen to drive a Buick. I like the three dollar license. I'm frank enough to admit to you that I pay enough other taxes--gasoline, motor oil, all the other taxes that I pay--that I feel this is a privilege the people of Louisiana are entitled to, something that no other state in the union enjoys. For that reason, I suggest you adopt it, and I suggest that you do so and be proud that you're doing so. Do not try to be a perfectionist--simply a constitutional writer. But, in it also, a politician.

Any questions, I'd be glad to answer.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Champagne, how long have we had the three dollar license plate?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

It's been a number of years, way back. . .I think that Long, the Governor Long first instituted it. That's many years ago.

MR. HAYES

Mr. Champagne, do you know where the license plate is made?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Yes, sir; I do.

MR. HAYES

Where?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

At Angola.

MR. HAYES

At Angola. Would you accept an amendment to increase that license plate to six dollars and supplement the prison farm at Angola?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Hayes, the committee either went for the three dollar license or none at all. I think if you're going to raise it. . . I think if you're going to raise the license figure, then you might as well leave it out of the constitution. I think the people are ready for a three dollar license.

MR. HAYES

I didn't get your question. I said, were you willing to accept an amendment to increase it to six dollars, and let's supplement the prison at Angola where they make it?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

No, sir. No, sir, I would not.
Any other questions?

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Champagne, would you have any objections to saying "shall not exceed three dollars," instead of saying "shall be three dollars"? I ask this simply because, in the future, we never know what will happen, and maybe licenses for cars will be abolished or just something like that. I think it may be a technical amendment.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I notice the committee. . .the staff report which said, in essence, it was the same as what's in the present constitution. I, personally, have no objections to that.

MR. ROY

Mr. Champagne, I agree with you for all the reasons you said. What you're saying, in essence, is that probably this is the first thing we get to put in the constitution which really inures to the benefit of and is most prevalent in the minds of the average little guy on the streets. Isn't that true?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's correct, sir. I think that it would help sell this constitution, and I'm the first here to admit that I have no resentments whatsoever, if we can write a constitution that would sell itself to the people.

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Champagne, I understood what you said about that it may be acceptable, but it was the philosophy that this was definitely statutory material?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Positively. I'm the first to admit that, Mr. Juneau.

MR. JUNEAU

I can justify my vote on that basis, then?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

That's fine. I might suggest, Mr. Juneau, that it might-- like some of my friends advised with me from St. Landry, have threatened they're going to vote against it, and told them if they want to be for the upper crust, that's fine; I'm for the little man.

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Champagne, don't you think it would be advantageous to prospective legislators to put it in there rather than letting the legislature do it because they're going to not raise it anywhere as you said, and if they put it in there, then they can take credit for it and not let the legislators do it?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I can't see any possible reason for a legislator not wanting to put it in here because it simply does not force him to make the decision later on.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Champagne, don't you think, that because of the license plates being so high in this state, that we should change the language of this section to read "may impose an annual license tax not to exceed three dollars", so that we could give the legislature an opportunity to reduce it?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I would even be glad to let the legislature play with that politically, Mr. Anzalone.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Newton sends up amendments.
Amendment No. 1. On page 3, delete lines 8 through 13, both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. NEWTON

It's a very simple amendment. It strikes out Section 5 entirely. The first argument against having this in here is that it's clearly statutory. I think, while the three dollar license tax is presently not revenue producing, and it might not necessarily be necessary to have it revenue producing because we can raise license taxes on all other kinds of vehicles except private passenger automobiles, but as I understand it, it probably cost at least four dollars and fifty cents to manufacture and distribute the passenger car license plates. While it's not revenue producing, it at least serves a public police function in identification of automobiles, and I think at the very minimum it should be self-supporting to provide for the police function that it serves. You're going to hear a lot of "little man speeches," I'm sure, but I don't think that this is really so much of a help to the little man because I think that the legislature, in its wisdom, could provide for a graduated license tax, which...this is really helps the man that drives the Cadillac a lot more than it does the man that drives the Ford. Of course, one of the main reasons for taking it out, frankly, is because it may be one of the necessary sources of revenue in order to provide the highways that the people of the State of Louisiana are going to want in the future. I urge the adoption of the amendment. I'll be glad to yield to any questions.

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Newton, I realize that a lot of people are going to seize upon this issue to make "little man speeches," but the way it is now the guy who drives the Cadillac pays the same thing as the poor guy who drives the Model T Ford; is that right?

MR. NEWTON

You're absolutely right, Stan.

MR. DUVAL

And therefore, if the state needs revenue, they can't have a graduated tax on their license; is that right?

MR. NEWTON

That's absolutely right.

MR. DUVAL

So, if the state does need revenue, they might pass a tax

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

which is not graduated, which actually really does hurt the little man more than the license tax; is that right?

MR. NEWTON
It certainly does.

MR. CHAMPAGNE
Mr. Newton, are you aware that I said it helped the little man, the middle man, and the big man?

MR. NEWTON
You're right.

MR. CHAMPAGNE
Do you know that I have no objection to help that one man with a Cadillac if I can help a hundred fellows with a little bitty car, or a small used car?

MR. NEWTON
Thank you, Walter.

MRS. WARREN
Mr. Newton, about how many license plates are made in the State of Louisiana a year?

MR. NEWTON
Oh, I don't know. I think, probably, several million.

MRS. WARREN
Several million? And you say it costs about four dollars and something...

MR. NEWTON
I'm sorry, Mrs. Warren. Mr. De Blieux says there are about two million license plates made in the state.

MRS. WARREN
About two million? And it costs four dollars and something to....

MR. NEWTON
That's my understanding. It costs about four dollars and fifty cents to manufacture, and of course, then you have to distribute those license tags.

MRS. WARREN
Now, what about the other license plates that are made that sell higher according to the fuel that you use?

MR. NEWTON
Well, of course there's no restriction on the increase in the rates for those licenses, Mrs. Warren.

MRS. WARREN
Beg pardon?

MR. NEWTON
There is no restriction. Those can be increased by the legislature.

MRS. WARREN
Well, that's what I'm saying. This is what I was trying to find out about how much money was spent in producing these license plates because the question came to me--I'm asking this--because they said that they made them out there at no... You know, they didn't make any revenue on it, and so I was just wondering. Some of them sell for different prices.

MR. NEWTON
Well, they sell for different prices is right, but some of them are--for trucks, for instance--are extremely expensive. I don't know what the revenue is for the state from these things, but assuming it costs four and a half for two million of them, well, you're talking about ten million dollars to manufacture and distribute license plates.

MR. WEISS
Delegate Newton, don't you think this body should weigh the significance of the criticism we've received repeatedly on legislating matters, and therefore, consider your proposal favorably because anyone who cares to kill the constitution can likewise say, this is not a constitutional body but a legislative body?

MR. NEWTON
Well, we certainly deserve that criticism.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, this issue probably created more discussion and debate in our committee than any other we had. There was hardly a single member of the committee that thought that this was constitutional material, but yet for some reason or another, they wanted to include it in the constitution. Now, let me tell you in all good respect to the statements that were made by Mr. Champagne... Mr. Chairman, I would just like to have a little attention.

MR. DE BLIEUX
In all deference to the statements that were made by Mr. Champagne, you don't help little people by placing the taxes on them. The only way you can help little people is by letting the big man pay his just portion of taxes. Mr. Champagne you've got a lot of people with pickup trucks, trying to make a living, but they have to make up the difference what that man driving that Cadillac and Imperials don't pay for licenses. Just remember that. You don't have to tax little people if you can tax big people. But when you've got a limitation what you can put on big people, then Lord knows, the only people that can pay the tax is the little people.

We recognize that this is not constitutional material. Let's not make the State of Louisiana, which is the only state in the union that has this type of provisions in the constitution, the laughing stock of the nation by putting it in the constitution. I ask you to approve the amendment.

Questions

MR. GOLDMAN
Senator De Blieux, all this talk about worrying about the little people, would you say that they're worrying about the little people with the excessive gasoline taxes that are put on for driving these cars that have the three dollar license tags?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Not a bit in the world, Mr. Goldman.

MR. GOLDMAN
Senator De Blieux, do you know that I feel ashamed every time I get in my Cadillac and Toronado and only have to pay three dollars for the license tag, where my son in Texas has to pay about forty dollars for his?

MR. DE BLIEUX
That's what they're trying to protect--that fellow driving that Cadillac, and that Imperial, and that Continental. They don't want those to pay their just share because that's where the taxes will go--not on that persons who's driving that small car. You know that; the legislature is just as responsible as this convention is, and I would think more so because they come up for election every four years.

MR. JENKINS
J. D., you know the state still accepts donations, and if any of you fellows who feel so guilty about it want to, you can always make a donation in lieu of an increase in these licenses.

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, I think that we're making a donation to the Cadillac drivers now on this.

MR. CHAMPAGNE
Senator, about that tax on those pickups, that's a legislative tax; is it not?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Champagne, it takes a necessary amount of money to operate our highways and pave them. As Mr. Taylor can tell you, he's having a most difficult time at this particular time financing our highway program. I would say this...

Further Discussion

MR. BURNS
Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm not going to take up your time arguing about the little man or the big man or the rich man or the poor man or the owner of a Ford or the owner of a Cadillac. I will say that human nature is a funny thing. When I was active in politics, people used to worry me or bother me about getting them a pass to the fairgrounds in New Orleans. I think at that time the general admission was either fifty cents or a dollar. Those people wanted that pass, but yet, they would go there and bet on races and lose five or six hundred dollars and never bat an eye or never think about it. I know people that take advantage of these free hotel trips out to Las Vegas, and yet, they'll go out there and lose five or six thousand dollars and never think about it. So, it's not a question of dollars; it's not a question of taxes; it's not a question of what kind of automobile you drive. I know people who have Cadillacs and who have Continentals, but there's just something about it--they want that three dollar automobile license--not because it's the question of the money involved. Now, if it wasn't in the constitution--this three dollar automobile license--I'd say we're just wasting our time even discussing it. But, the fact that it is in there, and the people expect it to stay in there. I can frankly say that I've had more people talk to me about "don't do away with the three dollar automobile license" than I had to talk about all the rest of the constitution put together. I'm not going to get up here and try to sell you on the idea of whether it's constitutional material or not, but I will try to sell you on the idea that this is the best selling point of getting this constitution adopted that I know of. I think--as I say again--the fact that it's in there, and the people expect it to stay in there, I think we'd be making a grave mistake as far as selling this constitution to the people in taking it out.

Further Discussion

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, you see that this is probably one of the most emotional issues that we'll run into in this convention. I say that this is not only as emotional as, but as important as, to this constitution as the homestead exemption. Everyone understood and they understand what a homestead exemption is. They understand what this three dollar license fee is, and if you change that, you're very badly endangering the passage of this constitution. As Mr. Burns says, people are funny, but they're going to be people no matter what we do. Now, we can be purists. I've spoke to many clubs, and I ask them the question each time, "What would you do if you were a delegate? Would you take out the three dollar license fee?" And everyone of them on the first poll will say yes. Then, I ask them each time: I say "I want you to reappraise your situation and the answer of that very question." If you were the man on the street, if you were some of these old people that have an automobile--they've known this limitation for many years--ask yourself again how you would vote on it. In each instance, to the man, they would vote to keep it in the constitution. Now, we say this is not constitutional material? Of course, it is if it's that important to the people of Louisiana; it's got to be. Now, I ask you this. We've gone through some very tough times in this convention, and each time you've heard people get up to the podium, and they say that this constitution can be defeated because of what we've done here today. Well, I'm going to say to you that the same individuals, the same groups will come back at you loud and strong if you take this provision out because they'll use this to beat you to death when you go out to talk to the individuals and try to convince them to vote for this constitution. They won't use the ammunition or the provision that you've cut them out. They won't look at that, and they won't argue that point. No, sir, they'll go directly to this kind of thing that people understand. So, when we last hear about the three dollar license, we think that maybe we go out of state and someone says, "Ha, ha, ha, you have a three dollar license fee." You know what I say to them? "By God you'd like to have one, too." I'll mention something else. How many times when you were in the service outside the State of Louisiana, how many times did you come back home to get your license plate if you were using your car in some other state? Sure, you want that three dollar license tax. I think that that limitation is very, very important, and I won't bore you with any more of my rhetoric, but by crackey, think hard, ladies and gentlemen, before you get rid of this provision in the constitution.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is indeed a gut issue, and I would like to speak for the new constitution of Louisiana, for the new people of Louisiana. You know, we're not a bunch of backward Cajuns any more, in case you don't know it. We've got one from Southwest Louisiana that made the governor this past year. Besides that, there're too many people that tell a story about us backward folks here in Louisiana. Well, you know there's a story going around that some city slicker came down our way in Southwest Louisiana and wanted to pass out twelve dollar bills. He misprinted them. The cajun back there quickly replied, "How do you want them--three fours, four threes, or two sixes." That's kind of change we expect the people of Louisiana to know. You've got an entirely different cosmopolitan type operation in this community, in this country, in this state, and there's no reason to try and fool people with three dollar license plates. I think it's the most ridiculous thing that we could put in this constitution, and you're not fooling anybody but yourselves. Are we trying to make a good constitution, or are you trying to run for office? This is absolutely absurd, and I would suggest that we go along with the Newton amendment, delete it, and let the legislature handle a legislative matter. This is nothing to be put in a good, new, sound constitution for the people of the State of Louisiana. I think we ought to tell them the way it is. There's no sense in fooling them. They know darn good and well that if they pay three dollars here, they are going to have to pay much more for some other item. Let's go ahead and give them their money's worth. Let's give them what they deserve--a good constitution with no frills and trimmings for reelection or for election of officers here seated. Let's go ahead and vote the Newton amendment in.

Further Discussion

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it's been said here that the three dollar license plate is too low. That's probably true, but let's look at the necessity of a family having an automobile today when in most families today, both the husband and wife are having to work to bring enough income into this state to make ends meet because of the high cost of living, and the high cost of food just to help their families along. You say the three dollar license plate is too low. Let's look at the other taxes that a person has to pay on his automobile, and at the same time look at, also, the taxes that the rich man has to pay on his big Cadillac or Lincoln Continental and see if we're letting him escape at the same time. Look at the sales taxes a person has to pay on an automobile when he buys it: the sales tax he pays on the repairs and the accessories to repair it, the excise tax on the tires--not to mention the federal gasoline tax of which we don't know what that figure might be in the next few months--the state gasoline tax that's put on him. He's more than amply paying for the use of that automobile, for the building of the highways that are necessary in this state. I don't think he's undertaxed in any which way on that automobile, but he is aware of that license plate that he's paying. I, like Mr. Burns, had a lot of people tell me, "Don't tamper with the three dollar license plate." Now, we're not talking about only the taxes he pays on that automobile to make ends meet. Look at the normal repairs and upkeep for keeping that car going to make sure that he makes that living. Let's look at, when they talk about raising revenues in this state, just where the legislature's going to look then because the three dollar license plate does exist. I suggest to you that there are not enough Cadillacs; there are not enough Lincoln Continentals; there are not enough Paul Goldmans in this state to tax to make any substantial difference in the income of this state. I don't know just how much the legislature might have to raise the tax on Mr. Goldman's car in order that we might have enough revenues to do whatever the legislature thinks is necessary because they are going to raise the taxes. I'll tell you what they're going to have to do, just like every other tax in this state that goes to affect the smaller man in this state, they're going to have to tax and raise the tax on that three dollar car to bring it up of the millions of people who are not driving those Cadillacs, to bring it up to some figure that might be realistic as far as raising revenues. I suggest to you that we should leave it just the way it is so that person might know that his car would not be taxed away from him.

Further Discussion

MR. GUARISCO

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise probably not in support of the amendment, nor speaking for the committee proposal. I just take this opportunity, I suppose, on this amendment--and you might call this the brooding and reflecting of a constitutional convention delegate. If this vote had been held in July, I'd have had no problem with this amendment. I would have voted to delete it immediately. Now, some six or seven months later, some strange metamorphoses has taken place, and I really don't know whether we should vote for or against the three dollar license plate. It's a strange situation where the most important item, supposedly, in the small man of Louisiana is evidently the small mentality of the most important thing being the price of his license plate. One speaker said that he didn't know anything about his homestead exemption, but he knew how much he paid for his plate. It seems to me to be some sort of misplaced priority somewhere along the line that he don't care anything about his home, but he's worried about what he's going to pay to get in that Chevrolet. But be that as it may, I suppose that this is one of the things that we probably have to keep in the constitution, although we might understand that to take it out is certainly not tantamount to raising the tax.

Question

MR. A. LANDRY

Tony, isn't it a fact that what a person is for belongs in the constitution, and what they're against belongs in the statutes?

MR. GUARISCO

That's what they say.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Riecke? The gentleman yields.

MR. RIECKE

Mr. Chairman, how many speakers do we have on the list?

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 23-66.]

Further Discussion

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, it is amusing to hear the concern that we have for those who are in the lower income bracket. One of the things that the governor of this state stated, during the opening of the convention, in talking about some of the things that are in the constitution that should not be, I believe, was this particular section that we are dealing with now about the license plates. Many other organizations have spoken against this idea of a three dollar license plate in the constitution. It reminds me of a newspaper that I have the day after Huey Long was buried when you had--and that was only four years before when we started this new license plates...four years after--that newspaper you had urges one cent apiece; silver bells, five for a penny; sirloin steak, twenty cents a pound. Now, that paper was in 1936. You have had the three dollar license plate since 1940. I believe that this particular section should be removed from the constitution because of the fact that it just don't belong in the constitution. I believe that it has remained there because of the fact that some legislators have failed to be responsible legislators. I think some times this convention we are following in that same pattern. We have criticized the legislators so badly over the past months, but I don't think we can stand in that position to criticize them, nor must we criticize ourselves either. But, let's try to do a good job. I think you know--you don't really need to be told--that it just don't belong there. Now, if the legislators feel that we want to maintain a three dollar license plate, well--as we have on so many other things--leave it up to the legislature. Let them do it; let them impose a three dollar license plate; let them put it in the statutes where it belongs. I urge that you support this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I know I'm not going to change anybody's mind, but I felt impelled to come up here and give you my... what I thought. I am for this amendment; I know it's not popular; I know it's not political expediency, but I feel conscientious and sincerely that I should say what I have to say. I am always in the minority most of the time anyway. I will probably be again today. But, this three dollar car license was put in the constitution years ago as a political gimmick. It is still in there. I ran, and I came down here to write a good constitution. That's what I'm trying to do. I think in putting the tax rate in a constitution is ridiculous and I believe you all do, too. But, you're going to probably vote for it for the fact that it might... people might not vote for the constitution. Well, I hope they do, but I've got to vote my conscience down here. I think this is statutory material; I think it should be left to the legislature. I had passed a two-thirds law and we have just recently adopted it, which I think is fine. I think that will take care of it. I think we should let the legislature raise it. I don't think they ever will raise it, but I think we ought to put it where it belongs--in the legislature. If I was there, myself, I would not vote to raise the three dollar tax. I'd have never voted, in my sixteen years in the legislature, I never voted for a tax. But, I think they should give it place where it belongs. I say, I'm sincere and conscientious in my belief. I think we should put it where it belongs, but I'm sure it's going to be defeated. But, I could not let the time pass without coming up here and saying what I thought. So, I close with that.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I was in the House of Representatives in 1940. This three dollar plate is not a political gimmick. When I ran in...for that election--and was elected to serve starting 1940--in my platform and on my campaign matches, I had printed three dollar auto plates. The reason I did that at that time, we had horsepower what regulated private passenger cars. A Ford gearshift car costs about twenty dollars then. By having a three dollar plate a person, at that time, could buy five, ten, one thousand public liability and that's the reason I was having that three dollar plate. Now, today, with plates gone up in other states--Mr. Goldman was pointing out in Texas, he's right it's sixty dollars; California, it's a hundred in the city out there or more--and by us keeping three dollars instead of getting it increased like California to a hundred on a private car and fifty or sixty in Texas, these people here can carry public liability so if they injure somebody and it isn't their fault, that person can be paid for it. Now, let me tell you talking about selling this constitution: I have people ask me about these things. I point out to them: "Here's where we are going to help you, we are going to"... let's take a person that's over sixty-five, we are going to give him a homestead exemption of five thousand dollars, if he's a veteran it's five thousand, the others it's three thousand. We are going to have the two-thirds tax in the constitution still to pass a tax. People are interested whether their tax is going to be increased or new ones on them. We are also--and I have an amendment drawn on the sections passed over--going to provide that federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period. There's four good things that people are going to get; if nothing else it's going to put frosting on the cake. Let me tell you, if you have those four in here, you are going to sell this constitution when you explain the other good protections they get. If you defeat these--and right now we passed the two-thirds, we passed the homestead, we are on the three dollar auto plate, and tomorrow we going to take up my amendment on the federal income tax paid to be deductible on...item on your state income tax. Those four things are things going to help the person that's old and the person that's in need in keeping people from worrying. I say let's go on and defeat this amendment.

Thank you.

Questions

MR. STINSON

Mr. Jack, if any indication this past special session, if we don't put it in the constitution, we'll be paying five hundred dollars for each automobile license, won't we?

MR. JACK

What's that?

MR. STINSON

If this past special session is any indication as to what the legislature thinks about taxes, if we don't prohibit this and limit it to three dollars, we'll be paying five hundred dollars for automobile licenses, won't we?

MR. JACK

I don't know how much, but I know this, that California--I was talking to a lawyer out there--is a hundred dollars. That's the state tax on private passenger, is what he told me, and on city ones he couldn't tell me in Los Angeles because he lived out of it. But, I'll bet you the total in California and Los Angeles will be a hundred and fifty in plenty other places. That's enough to pay that public liability and that's one of the things I'm interested in.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. WEISS

Delegate Jack, if we could legislate, don't you think we ought to be able to cut the high Louisiana gasoline tax and in two weeks these people could save three dollars...six dollars a month, if we could cut the high Louisiana gasoline tax imposed by the legislature on the people of Louisiana?

MR. JACK

Dr. Weiss, you talk about if we can legislate; I am not in the legislature. When I was there I still couldn't promise that I...one person could pass a thing. I'm saying these four things I've quickly outlined--call them goodies, whatever you want--will be a great help.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. NEWTON

I'll be as brief as I can. There are cer...couple of things I'd like to point out. First of all I'd like to say that I've had a lot more people come up to me at home and say, "I think that three dollar license tax in that constitution is the most ridiculous thing I've ever seen", then I have people asking me to leave it in there. Secondly, I believe it's my understanding that the Composite Committee when it was traveling around the state, only one person--one person in Shreveport--came to that committee and said, "Please keep the three dollar license tax." The third thing I'd like to point out is what we are doing with this three dollar license tax is we are subsidizing people that are driving large cars and could well afford to pay their fair share of the cost of maintenance and building of highways in this state because the license tags cost more to make and distribute than we are collecting for them. If that's not wrong, then I don't know what is. I urge your adoption of the amendment.
Thank you.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Newton, did you know that I agree with your amendment?

MR. NEWTON

Thank you, Walter.

MR. LANIER

But, let me ask you this question, I didn't get a chance to ask Mr. Jack this question, but did I understand him correctly to say that the three dollar license was not a political gimmick, but that he did have that put on his match covers when he ran for office?

MR. TOOMY

Mr. Newton, doesn't your amendment also delete the last sentence to this section which is the limitation...prohibition against cities and parishes imposing license fees?

MR. NEWTON

No, I don't believe.

MR. TOOMY

I think it does. Does your amendment delete the entire section? The last sentence is a prohibition against cities and parishes imposing a license fee on motor vehicles.

MR. NEWTON

I believe you are right.

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Newton, do you feel that taxes should somewhat be equitable?

MR. NEWTON

I think they should, Mr. Stovall; I surely do.

MR. STOVALL

Do you think it's equitable to charge three dollars a license plate for a man who drives a Cadillac and then charge five cents for a sales tax for a poor family?

MR. NEWTON

Of course, I think that is a problem, but I think it's not ethical or anything else to charge less than what it costs to produce and distribute a license plate.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Newton, as far as you know do we have set out in this proposed new constitution any other specific tax?

MR. NEWTON

To my knowledge this is the only tax that is imposed in the constitution. We tried in committee very hard to get rid of all of the taxes that were imposed in the constitution. There were gasoline taxes and things like that; we took all of those out of our committee proposal. This is the only one that, to my knowledge, that has been retained.

[Amendment reread. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 34-70. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The first...we have two sets, one by Delegate Newton and one by Delegate Hayes. The second Newton amendment which has been distributed reads:

On page 3, line 9, change the word "shall" to "may".
Amendment No. 2, on page 3, line 10, immediately after the word "tax" and before the word "three" delete the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof "which shall not exceed".

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Just Mr. Hayes is offering the amendment. Real briefly it raises the...from three to six dollars and dedicates the monies thereto to Louisiana State Penitentiary to be used only for the administration and improvements for said penitentiary.

Explanation

MR. HAYES

Briefly, ladies and gentlemen --we only have five minutes and-- what I'm saying here is that the license plate is processed at Angola. The reason why we are able to receive a license plate so cheap here in Louisiana is because the license plate itself is made at Angola. I don't think you could even buy that license plate for three dollars on the open market. So, what we are doing is using prison labor. If you would go up there and look at the prison, then you would be happy to approve this amendment so they could get some money at the prison to operate the prison with. I think if we would dedicate an additional three dollars to offset some of the expense at the prison we would be doing a justice here and we would be including the inmates in the state of Louisiana into our constitution. I don't believe that this would affect the passing or the election of anybody as a delegate to anything that he's going to run for. I think any one who is afraid of being elected or afraid of the people back home, should check his people back home when you go out to these area meetings. I don't think that any one produced hardly over twenty members at these meetings back home, when they say they are going back home to some of the people back home. But, now, most of those people at the prisons up there are sent there by judges from all over the state of Louisiana and almost you don't have another place you can send one. I think the prison needs to be expanded and needs to be improved. We are receiving our license plates from that prison and bringing them down and registering all the cars in the state at the expense of the inmates at Angola. So, what I think we need to do is increase the license plates enough to cover the expense, dedicate that fund to where the license plates are being made. I think we could, right here, improve the entire facility in the state of Louisiana. I yield to any questions.

Question

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Hayes, I think what your amendment is trying to do is for a worthy cause but I just wondered if you knew...are you aware that after next year all license plates will be permanent and when you apply for your license each year thereafter they'll just send you a little plastic sticker which costs about five cents?

MR. HAYES

This would not nullify the fact that what we are trying to do now is set up many prisons throughout this state where you can stop some of these overcrowded conditions like we have at Angola. I figured a place like New Orleans and other places in the state would need their own institutions. With this additional funds, they will be able to set these places up throughout Louisiana.

I ask for a record vote because I'd like to send this vote...while we was up there, I promised the inmates I'd do what I could for them. Now, if this is all I can do to send them a record vote, I'd like to do that.

[Record vote ordered. Amendments rejected: 20-80. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 88-16. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just would like to make a point clear. My name was on that amendment. When it was brought to my attention about the perpetuation of Angola, then I asked that my name be removed. Mr. Hayes made mention of the fact that we promised the prisoners that we would try to help. Well, perpetuating Angola isn't a help. So, in my...and for that reason I voted against Mr. Hayes' amendment.

Thank you.

Question

MR. WEISS

Delegate Landrum, can't we now be assured that this will never be called the governor's constitution because he went on record opposing this particular section, is that correct?

MR. LANDRUM

Dr. Weiss, you asked a question, so I'm going to answer you. From the beginning, and even to this point, I've always maintained one fact; I believe every citizen in the state of Louisiana should be concerned about the constitution. I would think very little of a governor or a mayor or a sheriff or a constable or a district attorney, if he would fail to show any interest in it. So, I mean I never felt that it was the governor's--well I can only speak for myself. I've told...as I stated earlier, nobody claimed that I'm one hundred per cent behind--if I feel that you are right, well then I'm behind you one hundred per cent, but if I don't think you are right, well, then, I'm not with you.

[Quorum Call: 69 delegates present and a quorum.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Next section, Mr. Chairman--Section 6. Forestry
Section 6. Forestry shall be practiced in this state, and the legislature shall enact laws therefor.

Explanation

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman, I'm not going to try to explain it; I'm not sure what it means or why it's there.

MR. HENRY

Gentlemen, please take your seats.

MR. ROEMER

When I don't want anybody to listen, you get them.

MR. HENRY

Proceed, Mr. Roemer.

Motion

MR. ROEMER

It was decided in our committee that we would have Mr. Planchard explain six. That would be an interesting explanation even for me, but at this time the committee wishes to pass over six. Our reasoning being that six relates to four--four being the provision for severance taxes. We would like to hold six open, Mr. Chairman, till we see what we do with four.

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Chairman, there is an amendment to delete this and it's to delete, then I think we should go ahead and vote on it.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Now, I'm doing this..let me make it clear, Reverend Stovall, that I'm not asking to pass over it because I'm in favor of six. I'm asking to pass over it as a courtesy to people who asked me to pass over it because they rightfully feel--I believe--that it relates to four. They would like to see what we do with four until we vote on six. It makes sense to me and as a courtesy to them, I asked you to pass over it.

Question

MR. THOMPSON

Buddy, why not--it's not but two lines--why not leave it in there for the time being? If we do away with four we can always do away with that section. I don't see any reason to pass it over; we can go ahead and leave it in there.

MR. ROEMER

Well, my feeling was that some people might not want to vote on a simple statement that forestry shall be practiced in this state.

[Previous Question ordered. Motion adopted: 65-18.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Section 7. State Debt; Full Faith and Credit Obligations
Section 7. (A) Unless otherwise authorized by this constitution, the state shall have no power to contract, directly or through any state board, agency, or commission, the incurring of debt or the issuance of bonds except upon the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the legislature, and then only if the funds are to be used to repel invasion; suppress insurrection; provide relief from natural catastrophes; refund outstanding indebtedness, but only to obtain a lower effective rate of interest; or make capital improvements, but only in accordance with a comprehensive capital budget, which the legislature shall adopt.

(B) If the purpose is to make capital improvements, the nature, location, and if more than one project, the amount allocated to each and the order of priority shall be stated in the comprehensive capital budget which the legislature adopts.

(C) The full faith and credit of the state shall be pledged to the repayment of all bonds or other evidences of indebtedness issued by the state directly or through any state board, agency, or commission.

(D) The legislature, by two-thirds affirmative vote of the members elected to each house thereof, may propose a statewide public referendum for the incurrence of debt for any purpose for which the legislature is not herein authorized to incur debt.

Explanation

MR. BROWN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Section 7 primarily deals with the purposes to which debt can be incurred in this state. There are four paragraphs, as you can see and they are fairly complicated. You might want to listen because we've got a few amendments coming up and it's a little technical. Paragraph (A) on page 3 of the committee proposal, basically lists the three... rather lists the five purposes for which debt may be incurred. Now, in the 1921 Constitution there were three purposes for which debt could be incurred: to repel invasions, suppress insurrection, and make capital improvements. The committee added two additional purposes: provides relief for natural catastrophes. It was felt that with our flooding conditions, with hurricanes--this type of thing--we might need to put this extra provision in there. Also, a fifth provision was added which would refund outstanding indebtedness only to obtain a lower effective rate of interest. In other words, if we could refinance our bonds and get a lower rate of interest, then we are authorized to incur further debt. That's Section (A). At this time, Mr. Chairman, there are two amendments that I have to offer to Section (A). I believe they are being passed out right now and I'd like to, well... Mr. Chairman I'd like to suggest that we go ahead and offer these two amendments right now, or what's the wishes of the chair... should we go ahead and explain all four sections?

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right. Amendment reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1, on page 3, line 20, immediately after the word and punctuation "agency," and before the word "the" delete the words and punctuation "or commission," and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"commission, any quasi-public entity, any private person, or any body created by the legislature,"

Explanation

MR. BROWN

The purpose of this amendment..and let me state that I'm offering this amendment; it's not a committee amendment, but several of us got talking just a little prior to this and we thought we ought to make it a little broader because as it reads right now, it just talks about any state board agency or commission. This wouldn't give this protection to--say a commission who would contract with a private individual. So, just to make it a little bit more inclusive, we added this additional language, to make the protection a little broader--to include a quasi-public entity or a private person or any body created by the legislature. We threw that little broader provision in there. I don't think there is any controversy and I would ask for adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next one is sent up by Senator Brown, reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1, page 3, line 29, immediately after the word and punctuation "adopt." add the following:

"Legislative approval may be obtained only during open sessions except as otherwise provided in this constitution."

Explanation

MR. BROWN

Let me tell you again this is my amendment, not an amendment of the committee. I have talked it over with several members of the committee and I want to explain it to you, but I don't want you to think this is a part of the overall committee package. Now, what this amendment is doing is trying to let this legislative approval be obtained when the legislature is in session. Right now the legislature has been called on by the governor to approve eight million dollars, additionally, for the funding of the dome stadium. Under the 1921 constitutional provisions, the governor has a way to do this by written ballot. He sent to each member of the legislature a written ballot. What we are in fact doing, is issuing an eight million dollar addition in funds, without any discussion, any committee hearings, or any of this, in terms of the regular open session provisions. So, what this says is, that if we are going to incur additional debts, it's got to be done when the legislature is meeting in general session. Now, we've got a provision coming up after this that creates an Interim Emergency Board which replaces the old board of liquidation. There is an exception you will notice on here, "except as otherwise provided by this constitution." The purpose of that is to allow legislative approval on funds issued by this Interim Emergency Board, which we'll explain in the next section--that's why that is in there. But, if the governor feels that it's necessary to issue additional bonds, it's got to be done when the legislature meets, and not by a mail ballot. That's the purpose of the amendment. I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. THOMPSON

You answered part of my question about the Board of Liquidation, but, now, this means bonds only?

MR. BROWN

No. Well, this incurs any debt where it takes a vote of the legislature. In other words, the only time that we can be called on to give approval for incurring debt would be if it dealt with what we're going to call the Interim Emergency Board, which replaces the present Board of Liquidation, if we get that far. But, go ahead.

MR. THOMPSON

I can think of times, and Louisiana's one of the states--unfortunate as that may be--that has hurricanes, and we need to act immediately in times like this, and I can see where this could cause a pretty bad hardship on the people, particularly in south Louisiana.

MR. BROWN

Representative Thompson, if you look at Section 7, it states particularly that one of the purposes of incurring this debt would be for relief from natural causes, catastrophes. Now, what you're saying is we should be able to do that by a written..by just a written ballot. I think if we had a natural catastrophe that would incur expending great sums of money--and let me remind you that in the next section, we're authorizing two million dollars, an annual fund for the governor to spend for emergency purposes, two million dollars; plus there are all of the funds which are appropriated to the National Guard, to the State Police; all of these funds are available--if we've got to go above seven, eight, nine million dollars for a hurricane, I think we'd better call a special session of the legislature, and get into it in some detail. If there's no further questions...

MRS. ZERVIGON

Senator Brown, if this fails, would you be willing to submit it in the form that would say "legislative approval for bonds for capital improvements may be obtained only during open session, except as otherwise provided in this constitution"?

MR. BROWN

I'm sorry.

MRS. ZERVIGON

In other words, if this failed, don't you think it would help meet Representative Thompson's objection, if you limited the effect of this to capital improvement; the other emergency things could be done by the mail ballot. But, capital improvements could only be done in open sessions of the legislature. Do you understand my point?

MR. BROWN

Well, if this fails, that would water it down a little bit. But, as I say, if there's an emergency, we have millions and millions of dollars to any number of agencies that are available to come to for. We had a very strong flood here this past year, and we didn't even touch the resources we had to help combat this particular situation.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You're saying mostly emergencies can be taken care of out of the operating budget, rather than the capital budget. That's what you're saying. Rather than issuing bonds, and going into debt, you can take it out of regular operating funds some sort of way.

MR. BROWN

That, plus the fact that the governor has a two million dollar fund that is going to be talked about in the next session, if this body...

MRS. ZERVIGON

Right. That's the emergency money. I mean that is operating money, itself. That is not bonded indebtedness, and this applies only to bond indebtedness.

MR. BROWN

No...I agree with you.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Brown, this question is really, I suppose, aimed at your interpretation of the amendment which we had previously adopted. I'm somewhat puzzled. I don't know exactly...the city of New Orleans was created through a constitutional amendment. It is a home rule city. There are others in the state. I take it your amendment does not prohibit the state to contract directly, or through the city of New Orleans. In other words, it could contract through the city of New Orleans for the incurring of debt and so on and so forth. I'm sure that's not your intention, but it seems to me that every time we put a lot of words in the constitution, we open the door to the possibility of forgetting something. Could we not have gotten the same result by saying directly or indirectly?

MR. BROWN

Well, at what location? I don't...

MR. DENNERY

Well, you see, you now have, "The state shall have no power to contract directly or through any state board, agency, commission, any quasi-public entity, any private person, or any body created by the legislature." Now, a home rule city doesn't fall within any of those. I'm sure you didn't intend to leave them out, to permit the state to get around this prohibition.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Dennerly, I'm not sure I understand what you're asking. You're stating that under your interpretation of this provision, it would still be all right for the state to contract with a municipality, or a...

MR. DENNERY

Through a municipality which has a home rule charter for the incurring of debts without the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the legislature, and I'm sure you didn't intend that, did you?

MR. BROWN

Well, I would think that the word "entity" would incorporate the home rule charter concept...

MR. DENNERY

No, that's your quasi-public entity you said.

MR. BROWN

Do what?

MR. DENNERY

You say a quasi-public entity. A home rule charter is a public entity; it's not a quasi-public entity.

MR. BROWN

What you're saying is we should have included public entity; isn't it?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I'm not sure what I'm saying...what I'm really asking you is, couldn't you put all that in one word, say, "directly," or "indirectly."

MR. BROWN

Well, I think you have a point, Mr. Dennerly. We were real concerned about, for instance, what went on with the state building... the Louisiana Building Authority, which is a private entity, and that's why the amendment was offered.

MR. DENNERY

I understand the problem. I'm just wondering if we may have forgotten someone after putting all of these in there.

MR. BROWN

Sure. I follow you.

I think you may have a point, and just speaking off the top, I think that if you wanted to put an amendment together to say "directly or indirectly," I can't see why I would object to it. That wouldn't hold bearing on the amendment that I have right here, though, right now, I don't think. We've already adopted that amendment. You're asking me, in effect, could you come back and amend the amendment I've already put on. I don't think it has any bearing on this particular amendment which I've offered, which is the one offered on page 3, line 29. If there's no further questions, Mr. Chairman, I'd ask for adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

MR. JENKINS

I have a question that relates to (D). Will you take the floor again on (D), or should I ask it now?

MR. BROWN

Representative Jenkins, I'm going to go to (B), (C), (D), in the normal order of the alphabet, and yes, I will. I'm just discussing (A) now, and taking the amendments to (A), trying to do it in that order if there's no objection. But, we'll go into great detail into the other sections coming along.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Mr. Gravel read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, line 19, immediately after the word "power" delete the remainder of the line, delete line 20 in its entirety and on line 21, immediately before the word "bonds" delete the words "incurring of debt or the issuance of" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "directly or through any state board, agency, or commission, to incur debt or issue".

Explanation

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it's not the intent or purpose of this amendment to in any way adversely effect the proposal that has already been adopted by the convention, submitted by Senator Brown. I do think, however, that this does have that effect because my amendment was drafted before his was adopted. Primarily, let me explain to you the purpose of the amendment that I have. I have some concern about just exactly the intention of Section (A) as it's drawn. As I read it, it provides that the state shall have no power to contract directly or through any state board, agency or commission, the incurring of debt, or the issuance of bonds. Now, that language to me, the prohibition against the power to contract the issuance of debt...I mean, the incurring of debt, or the issuance of bonds, is at the very least, clumsy, and doesn't articulate what I believe is the intention of the section. I believe that the intention of the section is to prohibit the incurring of debt or the issuance of bonds. Now, if I'm wrong in that, I've talked to the authors and some other people, I'd like to be enlightened. The effect of the amendment, therefore, that I would propose is that the state shall have no power to incur debt or issue bonds except upon the affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members of the legislature, and so forth. I think that clearly says what I understand to be the intention of the committee, and I would move the adoption of the amendment. I'd like to try to respond to any questions, if I'm in error in my appreciation of this language.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

Camille, apparently you had a problem, or the staff had a problem, in drawing the amendments. It did not delete the word, or portion of the word "incurring." Could you read it as it would be amended, if your amendment is adopted?

MR. GRAVEL

If my amendment passed, subject to the amendment by Senator Brown, it would read this way: "unless otherwise authorized by this constitution, the state shall have no power, directly or through any state board, agency, or commission to incur debt or issue bonds, except." Now, it's my understanding that that's the intention and purpose of the proposal.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

MR. ROEMER

A couple of questions, Camille: what would your amendment do to Senator Brown's previously adopted amendment?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, actually, I would like to conform that portion of my amendment to the change that was effected by the adoption of Senator Brown's amendment because it was not my intention to conflict with it.

MR. ROEMER

All right. Now, the second question is: before you withdraw it...

MR. GRAVEL

...Senator Brown says that if we have thirty seconds with Mr. Denney, that we can get this whole thing worked out, including Mr. Denney's amendment.

MR. ROEMER

I think we can; that's my point because he would add a much broader prohibition. I think that's what we're all after.

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, in view of that, I would like to ask for a two-minute recess, and see if we can compose our differences.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Explanation

MR. BROWN

I think we've gotten everybody together who had objections to the provisions in Section (A), but the amendment's being prepared right now. There's no other amendments on the rest of this section, but I think there will be some questions, so I'd like to go on to Paragraph (B) at this time and discuss Paragraph (B). Paragraph (B) discusses... Paragraph (B) instructs the legislature to incur debt by making capital improvements only--and this is important; this is a change--only if it's included in a comprehensive state capital budget, which the legislature shall adopt. Now, this is statutory right now; this is in our statutes. However, we had testimony from our state treasurer, from the commissioner of administration who said it's just not being followed right now. It's just not being followed, and they were enthusiastic about the fact that we would make this a constitutional prohibition, so that we could get into some long-range planning, some comprehensive planning. Therefore, we put this section in as Paragraph (B). Are there any questions to this particular paragraph? If there's no question, Mr. Chairman, I move on to Paragraph (C).

Paragraph (C) puts the full faith and credit of the state behind all state debts. Now, this is a change. What this effectively does is abolish revenue bonds. As a lot of you know right now, we have revenue bonds which might finance dormitories in some of our colleges or universities. They are not supported by the full faith and credit of the state. Therefore, they don't get a good break on its interest because it doesn't have the full faith and credit of the state behind it. But, I think if you look at it, that it's still a state obligation. The state certainly is not going to let a dormitory go up for a sheriff's sale, or anything like that. We effectively put the full faith and credit of the state behind all of our bonds. As a consequence, we have abolished these revenue bonds, if you look at what we have in the 1921 Constitution, and that's the purpose of the provisions of Paragraph (C). Are there any questions?

Questions

MR. BURSON

Senator, do you think that by including the revenue bonds in the full faith and credit provision, that you would be in any way impairing your other bonds in the sense of maybe making a higher rate of interest on them because you would be having more bonds definitively backed by the full faith and credit.

MR. BROWN

Mr. Burson, all I can tell you is that we had a number of bonding attorneys come before us, and in every instance, we would ask them this question, and they said invariably that the revenue bonds just don't get as good a rate of interest, and that when you look at our overall balance in terms of what we had to support our state debt, this is no problem. In effect, we can get a much better interest rate if we put the full faith and credit behind the state, as we are in effect doing. We've never let a road go back or a dormitory go back, or anything like that. I don't think we ever will. As a consequence, we're just costing ourselves a lot more money.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Senator Brown, if I'm not mistaken, this was a part of your article that was commented on in your preliminary draft by saying, this is intended to abolish revenue bonding. You don't mean to abolish it statewide. There are certain special districts of local government that issue revenue bonds. It wasn't intended to abolish revenue bonding for all units of government, was it?

MR. BROWN

Mrs. Zervigon, this applies only to state, and not to local. In fact, just to make sure there's no question about it, I believe Mr. Perez has an amendment coming up that will be Section (E), of which we have no objection, which will state specifically that this is not applicable to local political subdivisions. I think that would be taken care of.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you very much.

MR. KEAN

Senator Brown, I just want to see if I understand this proposal correctly. If the State Board of Education, for example, wanted to issue some bonds to build dormitories at Northeast, for example, and felt that they had revenues from dormitories up there to pay for those bonds, you would have to have a two-thirds vote of the legislature in order to issue those bonds. Then they would become full faith and obligations of the State of Louisiana?

MR. BROWN

For the bonds to be approved right now, Mr. Kean, we still have the Board of Liquidation. Therefore, the bonds have to be approved by the Board of Liquidation at the present time. I think your question is that what we're doing is, in effect, adding the two-thirds vote provision. The answer to that is yes.

MR. KEAN

You can only do that when the legislature was in session, and if two-thirds of the legislature voted in favor of those bonds, they then became full faith and credit obligations of the State of Louisiana.

MR. BROWN

That's correct.

Excuse me. I might add, we still have a Bond Commission that must give approval before the bonds are issued, as we do now.

MR. KEAN

In other words, even after the legislature has approved the bonds with a two-thirds vote, you still have to go to the State Bond Commission in order to issue those bonds?

MR. BROWN

Mr. Kean, that's exactly the way we do right now in terms of issuing of bonds. They have to be approved before the Bond Commission at this present time. We've got a lot of bond issues that have been authorized by a two-thirds vote of this legislature--some highway bonds for many millions of dollars that have never been sold because they've not been approved by the Bond Commission, as I understand it.

MR. KEAN

Well, Senator Brown, the only reason for having the two-thirds vote at the present time is to give the full faith and credit of the state to the bonds. They don't automatically have the full faith and credit of the state. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote, can give the full faith and credit. As I read this, no bonds could be issued without a two-thirds vote of the legislature, and then they become full faith and credit bonds of the state, and under those circumstances, I just don't see where the Bond Commission plays any part.

MR. BROWN

Well, I don't know just what kinds of bonds you're talking... Number one, the vote by two-thirds of the legislature doesn't mean they're going to be authorized. It doesn't direct the Bonding Commission to authorize those bonds. Now, you're raising the point about some bonds issued by the State Board of Education. We're getting into large bond issues, I personally think, and I think it's the feeling of our committee that this should bring about the approval of the legislature, and the Bonding Commission.

MR. FLORY

Senator Brown, on Section (C), do I understand this to mean that the...all of the bonds that have been issued to date, whether they were given the full faith and credit of the state or not, in the future would carry the full faith and credit of the state?

MR. BROWN

I don't interpret this provision to state that it has the effect on bonds that are presently being issued or presently being paid on. In other words, if there's a revenue bond that is being issued; it's being paid upon at this particular time. Unless we adopt an amendment that transfers these obligations over in some way, it's my interpretation of this that the bonds would stay revenue bonds until they're paid off, or until they were taken over by a revote of the legislature and reapproval of the Bonding Commission. That's how I read it. Now, I see nothing in here that makes that an automatic transfer. There's a revenue bond supporting a college dormitory. I read this as saying that it's going to stay a revenue bond 'til it's pulled off. In the future, there'll be nothing new added.

MR. FLORY

My second question then is: in those cases where the legislature has created port commissions and various other political subdivisions with authority to issue bonds, in the future, whatever bonds they issue, then—even though they have to be approved by the bonding commission—will then carry the full faith and credit of the state under this provision.

MR. BROWN

That's correct, Mr. Flory, and as I say, one of the reasons that we put this in was because we made it a point to talk to every bonding attorney that came before our committee, and there were many of them that did so. We raised this question and we invariably got the answer that, number one, whether we put it in there or not, the state was still behind those bonds, with its full faith and credit because they certainly weren't going to let, as I say, a dormitory, or a major public facility go up to a sheriff's sale. It's never been done in the history of this state, so we're told; and number two, we're going to get a much better break in terms of our interest, thus saving the state considerable sums of money.

MR. FLORY

I do believe I understood you to say that this would not detract from the present rating that we get on our bonds; it wouldn't harm us in any way in the future?

MR. BROWN

We're told it will do nothing but make it easier to sell our bonds at a better rate. Any other questions?

MR. TOOMY

Senator, in Subsection (A), you're talking about refunding indebtedness only at a lower effective rate. If you remember in the finance provisions for local government, we provided that you may refund at the same or a lower rate. Would you have any objection to making that the "same or a lower rate," because you do require a two-thirds vote?

MR. BROWN

As I understand it, what would be the advantage of refunding at the same rate?

MR. TOOMY

I would think that possibly you might want to make a change in the time payment, somehow...

MR. BROWN

Extend the time from twenty years to forty years?

MR. TOOMY

...Such as was just done in the special session on the Superdome, some to that effect, might be at the same effective rate, but spread out the payment, or make shorter time periods. I just questioned why you...

MR. BROWN

Your point's well taken.

MR. TOOMY

...you don't allow the legislature to do that at all the way it's written here.

MR. BROWN

Well, your point's well taken. In other words, as I understand it, you're saying...

MR. TOOMY

Under your provision you cannot refund at the same effective rate.

MR. BROWN

So, what you're doing is to either extend or shorten the time. I guess that the converse of that is you may want to cut it down, if we're in good financial shape, instead of paying forty years, then, refinance it to cut down to ten. You might go up...Well, right off the top, it doesn't sound objectionable. I think I can speak for the loose-knit group that's been trying to put this together, and say there'd be no objection. If you want to offer an amendment to that effect, I don't see any problem with it.

MR. KEAN

I hate to pursue this point, but under the present constitution, the two-thirds vote is only required where you're going to dedicate a tax imposed by the state to the payment of those bonds. My point is that it seems to me that where we're going to require the two-thirds vote in all instances, and that automatically carries with it the pleasure of the full faith and credit of the state, I think we're going to do two things. One is we run the risk that we might have some revenue bonds that ought to be issued that can't be issued until the next session of the legislature. Secondly, we may have some revenue bonds that we think we ought to issue, but as to which we don't want to pledge the full faith and credit of the state. Your proposal, as presented, as I read it, would create both of those problems. Don't you agree?

MR. BROWN

Mr. Kean, you've raised two questions, and I can answer them as best I can like this: I don't see that there would be an emergency situation that couldn't be dealt with seven or eight months from now—whenever the legislature happens to meet. If we adopt this constitution, we're talking about sixty days. So, we can't conceive...I can't, and I don't feel the other members of the committee could see the situation where there would be an emergency to have something like this. It would be of such a magnitude that it must be done immediately. Number two, you talk about the necessity of revenue bonds. All I can tell you—and you're a bond attorney, and maybe you have a different view on this—but, we had found no bond attorneys that would give us one good, valid reason why we should keep revenue bonds. All it seems to do is cost us money. It costs us money, and we don't get any benefit from it because whether or not we say the full faith and credit of the state is behind those bonds, in fact it is. I just can't conceive of the fact that we're going to have a sheriff's sale which seizes and sells a dormitory at Nicholls State College. The state's going to step in and pick up that obligation. So, in answer to your question, no, we can't have revenue sharing...rather, revenue bonds. One of the reasons is it just costs us too much money, and that's our feeling.

MR. ROEMER

Senator Brown, isn't it true that in answer to Mr. Kean's question, we can't assure him, or anybody else, that the interest rate will go down as a result of our action here? It's the opinion of some bonding attorneys that it might. But, however, we can assure him that there will be more control over such bonds because they do apply two-thirds vote under this new provision. Since they will have the full faith and credit of the state behind them, hopefully, the legislature will give them some scrutiny which oftentimes has not happened in the past.

MR. BROWN

Well, I certainly agree with you, Mr. Roemer, and I point out the fact again that we have a number of issues which have been authorized by the vote of the legislature that haven't been sold yet. We've got a lot of authorizations floating around right now to sell some bonds, and we haven't done so. So, yes, we're tightening up what we've done in the past. We're tightening up for what we think are good reasons because we need the tightening up. Are there any additional questions?

We'll move on to Paragraph (D) if there are no additional questions on (C).

MR. BROWN

As I mentioned to you now, we've listed five reasons for which the state can incur debt. We're now adding in Paragraph (D) the fact that a public referendum can be called by the legislature to incur debt for purposes other than those five reasons listed. If you want to go beyond those five reasons, call a referendum; let the people vote on it. I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Mr. Clerk, has the revised amendment been passed out now? I think it has my name on it, I believe.

MR. LEBLEU

Senator Brown, I talked with you a minute ago, and if we get back to Section (A), your amendment added that this would have to be approved by the two-thirds vote of the legislature in open session. I believe that's what Mr. Kean was talking about. But, two of these items suppress insurrection, and provide relief from natural catastrophes, to me, might put the legislators in a position where you might not even get a quorum, if a special session were called, to provide for these emergencies. I just wondered, your amendment that you offered first, I believe, passed. I don't know whether you were going to withdraw that amendment on your new proposal for Section (A), but I just wondered what you thought about that.

MR. BROWN

Well, Mr. LeBleu, I see what you're saying. If we're going to have a disaster of such a magnitude that we can't get a quorum of the legislature together in a special session, then we're going to have a heck of a time getting the mail through to mail those ballots back and forth. Now, I see your concern, but again, I personally, as a legislator, am very concerned about the fact that I'm voting by mail ballot for eight million dollars on the Domes Stadium. You're having to do it; I don't know if you've sent your ballot in yet; I haven't. But, we're going to do that within the next thirty days, or so. I don't like that kind of procedure. I think we ought to have some safeguards. No reflection on the present governor, but we might have a governor that wants to come back with a hundred million dollars, or two hundred, or three hundred million dollars. He comes on down your way and has a private chat with you, and by one means or another, gets you to sign that sheet of paper. Nobody knows how it's done, and it's done that way, and the vote's taken, and there's no public hearing; there's no chance for debate; there's no chance for any citizen of this state to appear before any committee, and voice any objection. I, personally, think that's wrong because there's no limitation. Under the old constitution, the governor of this state could come up with a billion dollar issue, and by that provision, come through, and without any public hearing or debate, whatsoever, bring about a major bond issue. This is just a drop in the bucket to me, but to me it points out the abuses that could be brought about. I just don't like that kind of procedure in any new constitution. That's why I feel so strongly about it. Now, that's Jim Brown talking now. That's not the committee. So, that's why we felt the way we did. You've talked about the fact that maybe we couldn't get a quorum. I hope that never happens. It'll probably be a national disaster that comes about but if we can't get down here, I don't see how the mail's going to get to us, especially, we're not getting much mail now as it is anyway. So, I think the thing balances off, at least in my mind.

MR. ANZALONE

Jim, would you consider the issuing of a bond issue, probably the last way in the world that you would raise money to suppress an insurrection?

MR. BROWN

I think your point's well taken, Joe.

MR. ANZALONE

You could foresee the need for, just a few days before you could pass a bond issue and sell them. Would you not agree with that?

MR. BROWN

Very much so.

MR. ANZALONE

Now, we've heard some remarks about public catastrophes and the issuance of bonds to cover public catastrophes. You would not say that you were going to issue the bonds to prevent the catastrophe, would you? But, you were going to issue the bonds at some times after the catastrophe had happened to pay off the debt. So, you wouldn't be wanting to do this within two or three days of a catastrophe. You would want to do this only after sufficient study to know what you would need to pay these people for what they had lost.

MR. BROWN

I think your point's well taken. I might point out, after the most recent flood, up in my part of the state, both state agencies and local agencies, are just in many instances, getting their checks now, of which they might have been entitled to from the federal government. I know that our local governmental bodies have done this. They've gone out and charged a lot of things, and said, "Look, when we get the money back in, we'll pay you." So, I think your point's well taken.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments read as follows; sent up by Delegate Brown.

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, line 19, immediately after the word "power", delete the remainder of the line. Delete line 20 in its entirety.

Senator Brown, I presume that includes your Floor Amendment previously adopted. Isn't that correct?

MR. BROWN

That's correct.

MR. POYNTER

All right. I'll add that in for clarity.

On line 21, immediately before the word "bonds" delete the words "curriog of debt or the issuance of" and insert in lieu thereof the following ", directly or indirectly or through any state board agency commission or otherwise, to incur debt or to issue".

Explanation

MR. BROWN

Mr. Chairman, delegates, this is what we worked out between Mr. Denny's concerns, and Mr. Gravel's concerns. I understand that they are both satisfied with it and I think it cleans up the problem we had in defining just who was included in this particular section.

So, if there's no objection, I'd ask for approval of the amendment.

Questions

MR. KEAN

Senator, when we talk about state board, agency or commission, are we talking about, we'll say, a school board....or some local....

MR. BROWN

No, Mr. Kean. As I explained to you earlier the next thing coming up is Mr. Perez's amendment to state specifically that this does not apply to local political subdivisions. So, this only applies to state agencies as such.

MR. KEAN

So, that, under this, if any state board; as for, example, the welfare board, or we'll say the Public Works Board wanted to issue some bonds secured by some revenues available to that board, it would be necessary to have a two-thirds vote of the legislature in order to issue those bonds, and then those bonds, even though no one wanted them to be full faith and credit bonds, would become full faith and credit bonds of the state.

MR. BROWN

Mr. Kean, you couldn't have summed it any better. Yes, sir, that's exactly what our committee wanted. You couldn't have stated it better for us.

MR. BROWN

Mr. Chairman, I think Mr. Perez has an amendment now that once he offers that, then I think that will present what the committee has to present. Then, of course, anyone else has amendments or wants to speak.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 4, between lines 10 and 11 insert the following paragraph:

"(E) Nothing contained in this Section shall apply to any levee district or to any political subdivision unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to the payment of the bonds of such levee district or political subdivision."

Explanation

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, there have been many decisions which have held, for instance that levee districts are state agencies, and yet, in these situations, the full faith and credit of the state is not pledged for the issuance of bonds, for instance, in our area where we want to build hurricane protection levees. We go to the people, we get a tax imposed, we have the procedure set out in our local government article as to how the bonds shall be issued. They require the approval of the state bond commission. There is no full faith and credit of the state behind the issuance of those bonds. As I understand it, the committee is agreeable to the adoption of the amendment.

Question

MR. KEAN

Mr. Perez, in Article IV, Section 2 of the present constitution dealing with this same problem, it provides that this prohibition shall not apply to cities, towns, villages, parish school boards, or any other local political subdivision of any kind. Now, as I read your amendment, we are simply taking care of levee districts and it leaves all the rest of these particular local governmental subdivisions kind of hanging out in the breeze as to where they stand with respect to this proposal.

MR. PEREZ

No, sir. That's not correct. If you will read the amendment, it says to any levee district, or to any political subdivision so that they are all taken care of, Mr. Kean.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Toomy read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 3, delete line 26, in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: portion of the word "edness at the same or at a lower effective rate of interest;"

Explanation

MR. TOOMY

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment simply provides that the refunding of indebtedness could be provided at the same interest rate, as well as at a lower interest rate. I understand that the committee has no objection to it. I wish to move the previous question on it, Mr. Chairman.

[Amendment reread.]

MR. HENRY

We don't have distribution copies. Mr. Toomy, hit just again, if you will.

MR. TOOMY

Fellow delegates, the amendment simply provides that the legislature could refund outstanding indebtedness at the same, as well as a lower effective rate of interest. As the committee has it, the legislature can only refund indebtedness at a lower effective rate of interest. This only provides a little more leeway in the area of fiscal responsibility, I think, that they could extend the time periods or shorten the time periods of the bonded indebtedness, although the effective rate of interest would not be any higher.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Toomy, doesn't this just parallel what you did in Local and Parochial Government?

MR. TOOMY

Exactly, Mr. Roemer.

MR. ROEMER

Did you also know that the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Committee has no objection to your amendment?

MR. TOOMY

Thank you.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Further Discussion

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I don't have any particular objection to making issuance of bonds more difficult, but I think we ought to understand a little bit about the background of the present constitutional provisions, and the difference between them and this provision.

Under the 1921 Constitution, there was a provision that there could be no general obligation bonds of the state unless it was by a vote of the people as an amendment to the constitution. As a consequence of that, we had issued over the years a number of limited obligation bonds--the courts taking the position that since they were limited obligation bonds, they were not prohibited by the constitution, as for example, certain bonds which were supported by sales tax pledge. They found over a period of years that where that situation existed, and they were limited obligation bonds secured by a pledge of a portion of a tax, rather than being designated general obligations of the state, that we got an interest rate that was higher than might have been otherwise the case.

As a result of that, CABL, back about four or five years ago, in 1964 and 1965 made a study. They recommended the adoption of Article IV, Section 2, of the present constitution, which stated that the legislature could not incur debt or issue bonds involving the dedication of all or any part of tax revenues imposed or collected by the state, except upon a two-thirds vote, and then, under those circumstances, those bonds became full faith and credit bonds of the state. I think that is entirely proper. This proposal, as I pointed out in my questions to Senator Brown goes further. It would require that any, any kind of a bond issue, regardless of how it was secured -- through dedication of taxes or otherwise--if it was issued by a state agency, excluding the political subdivisions, would have to have a two-thirds vote of the legislature. If it had that two-thirds vote of the legislature, they would become full faith and credit bonds of the State of Louisiana.

Now, it seems to me, particularly in the field of education--particularly the State Board of Education--that there might well be instances where that state board could issue revenue bonds, as we understand them, secured by a pledge of revenues from that institution, or secured by a pledge of some funds available to that institution, and you wouldn't want them to be full faith and credit bonds of the State of Louisiana. Yet, you couldn't issue those bonds without a two-thirds vote of the legislature. If you got a two-thirds vote of the legislature, under those circumstances they become full faith and credit bonds of the state. I think we're simply putting an impractical limit, or restriction upon the state's bonding capacity, or requiring a two-thirds vote and full faith and credit which is going to make it difficult in some instances, to perhaps issue bonds that need to be issued. I simply think we ought to take a further look at this section before you adopt it in the form in which it is now presented to you. I think we've got a short house here tonight. I think we are all tired. I think it raises some very serious issues. In my opinion, we'd be much better off to defer this matter until tomorrow, have some chance to look at it, and then see whether or not we want to make any changes in it.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

MR. BROWN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I've heard what Mr. Kean says, and all I can tell you is, I think we're talking about where our money is. We're talking about control. We're talking about getting our business all together. I agree, this will have to go through the legislature. But what kind of situation are we going to be in if we, as...if the legislature itself doesn't even know what the state is doing in terms of its financial situation. If we allow all of these agencies to go out and issue a bond in this direction--issue bonds in this direction--and not have any central point to where we can put the thing in its proper perspective; this gives us control. It makes the legislature vote, go to the bonding commission, gives full faith and credit. Gives us good control over just where we stand, to give us good, overall management. I think it's a good section. I ask your favorable approval.

99th Days Proceedings—December 14, 1973

Question

MR. ELAIR

Senator Brown, the real reason that you wanted a two-thirds vote of the legislature, didn't we run into some situations where they were using revenue bonds, and building dormitories? Also, on those same campuses, they had empty dormitories?

MR. BROWN

That was a good point. Another point is, you know you build a small dormitory, the bonding fees in many instances are just the same on a small issue, or proportionately higher, than on a big issue. So, you issue small bonds here, and small bonds there, and you just don't know where you are going. It costs you a lot more money. Might also mention that also a part of this program is the capital budget. It's going to force us into long-range planning. We can't think about just next year or the year after. We are going to have to look fifteen, twenty, thirty years down the road. That's just good, solid money management. I ask adoption of the section.

MR. POYNTER

The first proposal, Delegate Proposal No. 20, introduced by Delegate Jack.

A proposal limiting the number of proposed constitutional amendments that may be submitted to the voters at any one election. Comes from the Committee on the Bill of Rights and Elections. Reported unfavorably.

[Motion to withdraw Delegate Proposal No. 20 from the files of the Convention. Substitute motion to engross and pass to its third reading.]

* * *

Explanation

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, this delegate proposal provides no more than six proposed amendments shall be submitted to the electors of the state at any one election. Now, you recall one of the reasons we have this convention--people got fed up on having forty, and fifty, and numerous constitutional amendments submitted to them. Now, I think we ought to have a definite number and not too high. I suggested to the committee we amend this to ten, which we did. Of course, with an unfavorable report, the bill is as is. But, if I pass this proposal, I will offer an amendment to make it ten, so you can consider it when you vote on it that it will be increased to ten. Of course, the legislature, under the law, would have a right to fix the priority on it. Now, this came out of the committee--Bill of Rights Committee--four yeas and five nays; it was decided by one vote and there was two or three--I've forgotten which--that abstained so it was very, very close. Now, this is strictly a matter up to you; with a new constitution if we do our work right, they shouldn't have to be continually amending--that's one of the reasons we are down here at this constitutional convention. Now, if you ever got in a jam--say, you can't have but ten amendments submitted at any one election--there could be a special election called. Something is going to have to be done to limit these amendments, whether it's done by this at a later date; it's self-explanatory really. I ask your favorable report to engross it and pass it to its third reading. Thank you.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jack, I don't particularly like the lengthy ballot of amendments except that my older brother comes around and asks me how to vote and it makes me feel good. But, how would these six or ten amendments be chosen?

MR. JACK

Well, unless...if there was over ten--you can just count on it being ten, I think everybody would agree if it passes to amend it to make it ten. I just took the number six, could have taken a number a little higher...you usually start and you know somebody would raise it; it would be chosen by the legislature--where this don't provide it, the legislature has the right to do anything that is not prohibited to them in the constitution.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Yes, I understand that. I was just wondering how you picture in your mind the legislature doing this--first come, first served or...

MR. JACK

No, ma'am, they would work it out where they would vote on it, just like they vote on bills.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Is it conceivable to you that there might come a year in which there are eleven really important issues or only eight really important issues, but they would stick ten on the ballot because they had ten places?

MR. JACK

I don't think so. I haven't, since I've kept up the legislature... beginning in 1940, ever seen over ten that were really...really had to be there. I just don't...almost impossible.

MR. STINSON

Mr. Jack, I certainly agree with you that we shouldn't have too many. But, don't you know that whoever the governor is, if he's got ten, it's going to be his ten and nobody else's and no member of the legislature could put it on if the governor wanted his ten?

MR. JACK

That's one thing I don't necessarily believe would be true, just like down here the governor's taken some setbacks, pretty rough ones, and other governors have.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, this delegate proposal was introduced by Mr. Jack and the committee reported it unfavorably. It's true the vote on whether to report it unfavorably was five to four, but the five to four vote was not because there was a division on whether it was a good proposition or not. The division was whether or not we wanted to report it out at all. Some of us didn't even want to bring it to the floor because we thought it was going to waste the convention's time to consider it at this time rather than when we get to constitutional revision. Delegate Jack's proposal would limit the number of constitutional amendments to six. We held hearings on this subject in the committee when we were working on constitutional revision. We heard a lot of testimony on it; the testimony was unanimously against it; unanimously against it from all the good government groups like PAR, and CABLE, and League of Women Voters, and things like that, because although it has a certain superficial appeal, it becomes apparent as you look into it that it's no solution at all. If you set an arbitrary limit on the number of amendments that you can have, in all likelihood what will happen, is the governor will simply control which amendments appear on the ballot. Even though the legislature might want to have some others, if they are in the lower priority, if they aren't in the top six or whatever, the people never get to vote on it. But, more importantly, the committee looked into why we have had so many amendments in the past. The reason we have had so many amendments in the past has nothing to do with whether or not there is an arbitrary limit on the number that can be submitted. The reason we've had so many in the past is because our constitution is so long, so detailed, so complicated, and so restrictive that if the legislature wanted to do anything, it had to amend the constitution. If you look back at our history in recent years, at the constitutional amendments proposed, you will see that very few of them were unnecessary. They were necessary if you wanted to accomplish the end in view. They could not have been accomplished by statutes. But, now, with the new constitution there will be very few things like that that you have to have constitutional amendments for because we've taken most of that detailed, complicated material out of the constitution. The answer to limiting the number of amendments is not to set an arbitrary limit; rather it is to have a good constitution that doesn't need to have a lot of amendments. But, there is one period where you might have to have a number of amendments over six or ten and that is this first year after this thing is adopted; we will have made some mistakes and it may occur that we need additional amendments to correct what mistakes we've made during the first year or two. But, in any case, Mr. Jack can offer this same concept as an amendment when we get to constitutional revision. The committee has reported this delegate proposal unfavorably. I would like to ask that you sustain the committee and vote against Delegate Jack's motion to engross it and pass it to its third reading. Then, if that fails, to go on and go along with the motion to remove it from the files of the house.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I disagree with the delegate from East Baton Rouge. Many amendments have been adopted to give the provision constitutional protection. I, myself, have drafted hundreds of amendments that were not necessary—they were not necessary—there were no prohibitions in the constitution. But, the advocates as for the three dollar car license plates wanted to give the provision constitutional protection against change by future administrations. The people do not want fifty-five amendments or more on the ballot. We do not have to adopt Mr. Jack's provision. All that he is asking is that we pass his proposal on to third and final passage so that we later may consider it on its merit; at that time, we may decide that twenty is a better limit. But, certainly, we should put some limit on it or at least this convention should discuss it on its merit. I urge you to pass the proposal to its third and final passage. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. FULCO

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want to join Delegate Jack in his request that you engross this thing and pass it on to third reading. I like Dr. Asseff said, agree that you don't have to take action on particular numbers of constitutional amendments or action on whether it should pass or fail at this time; we can consider it later on on its merit. But, the people are the ones that have got to be concerned in this proposals; they are the ones who are sick and tired of fifty amendments. In my years in the legislature, I have always wondered why we had to have so many amendments and how frustrating and confusing this has been to the people in voting in general elections. Now, the real reason for us having had so many constitutional amendments in these general elections was due to the antiquated laws that we had in the constitution itself. We have had such things in the constitution as an old jail site in the city of Shreveport, that before they could do anything with the jail in Shreveport they had to have a constitutional amendment passed; before you could have any water districts or any special district considered, you had to have a constitutional amendment. Those were the ones that caused to be so many amendments in general elections. Now, under the new constitution, we are straining it in such a manner that we will not have a necessity for all of these constitutional amendments. So, how this matter can be settled will be left up to the legislature; a form of priorities can be considered. Furthermore, an equal consideration of parishes throughout the state can be considered. In the past, most of the constitutional amendments have come from a particular area in our state and really insignificant to the rest of the people over the state. We won't have that situation again in the future and, therefore, it will be easy to limit the number of constitutional amendments. I ask you to join Delegate Jack in having the minority committee, or the committee's report, engrossed and passed to third reading. Thank you.

Questions

MR. CONROY

Mr. Fulco, don't you feel that the worst thing that this convention could do at this time would be to refuse to even consider limiting the number of amendments to be put on the ballot? Don't you think that would hurt us in the public's eye if we say we won't even consider limiting the number of amendments to be put on the ballot?

MR. FULCO

Yes, sir, very much so, because as I stated in the very beginning of my remarks, this is the one thing that the people are counting on and the one thing that the people understand about this whole convention—the one thing that they talk about, "Are you going to limit the number of constitutional amendments that we have to vote on in general elections?" They don't ask you about anything else in the constitution; this is the one thing they understand. If we do this, I think this will be the greatest inducement in selling a good constitution to the people.

MR. STINSON

Mr. Fulco, during the many, many years that you were in the legislature and knowing that the people objected, have you ever, at any time, voted against one of those, putting it on the people?

MR. FULCO

Ford, I didn't hear you...or your last part, because it is difficult to hear.

MR. STINSON

Have you ever voted against a constitutional amendment, knowing that the people didn't want that many?

MR. FULCO

Well, certainly, not only voting against it because the people didn't want it; I voted against it because I didn't want it.

MR. STINSON

You have?

MR. FULCO

If I didn't want it, sure.

MR. STINSON

I thought you all wanted all of them.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to call to your attention that today is our hundredth day; we are meeting our centennial day here and we've completed about a hundred pages in our new constitution. I think we have done basically a good job, certainly Thanksgiving and going back over the records, it's been an excellent and refreshing experience for me; and I hope someone in the future will continue with the endeavors that I've tried to put forth along these lines. But, I want to call to your attention, at this time, and I'm worried about what's going to happen if this sort of thing continues. Let me give you a little perspective on this delegate proposal. There are too many people that are now in the process of trying to legislate in this constitution. We have been sticking to a constitutional writing process, I thought, until this past week or two. Now, we have personal interests, special lobby groups, prevailing upon this body to introduce at the end of the game constitutional amendments on legislative matters. First, let me inform you that Delegate Jack's proposal can, in no way, be obscured in the fact that he may introduce this as a floor amendment to the committee proposal. This has been discussed at length, the arguments that you have heard are only some of those that could come before you. But, I would like to call to your attention that Delegate Jack's proposal—if this is voted out as he is now proposing it to be voted in—if it is voted out, he still will have an opportunity to present his thoughts to this convention in the committee proposal on constitutional revision. This is simply, as I see it, a waste of time, of our time, valuable time in completing matters on which he, before our committee, testified was one of his two platforms in being elected here this being a point to limit constitutional revision articles, which all of us hope will be limited by virtue of the good and better constitution we have written. But, it is not a matter to be brought up at this time. I hope that you will vote down this delegate proposal which was reported unfavorably from our committee. Secondly, it is a technical maneuver from an excellent legislator, such as Mr. Jack, who is aware of the procedural technicalities which have confused us on the committee. By that, I mean, there are some committees who have tabled matters—and therefore, locked them in committee, preventing them from coming to the floor in a delegate proposal form such as this one. On the other hand, these matters will certainly be introduced as floor amendments by the delegates who desire them introduced in any given article to be proposed in this constitution. So, this is a procedural maneuver used by an excellent legislator, Mr. Jack, to call to your attention a matter which does not deserve attention at this time, which can be considered. I would suggest that we vote this proposal down, go on with our business, and consider Mr. Jack's proposal at a later time. If he cares to introduce it then, the committee will certainly give you an opinion on this. We all have our opinions; we all feel as he does that legislative...that constitutional revisions should be minimized. But, there are some dangers in his original proposal of six limitations; so, he upped it to ten. This, too, we think is dangerous because a strong governor can control this and it will be out of the hands of the people who really want to have constitutional revisions for necessary matters whether it be one or twenty-one. I urge you to vote against this committee proposal.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and gentlemen, please give me your attention just a few minutes, I believe I'm going to say something that's new and will be helpful. Now, like Dr. Asseff said, let's pass this to third reading. Let's get it directly before you on the floor. Now, in the campaign, the two things that I saw people were most interested in was cutting down the number of amendments-- this is what this is to do. Another thing that they were furious about is under the last administration when they passed the law by two-thirds that your federal income taxes should not be allowed as a deductible item in computing your state income tax--they were furious on those two subjects. Now, it's going to be a slap in the face of the voters if you don't give this an opportunity to be passed to third reading and final passage and be given a full hearing in this house. When I campaigned, I went all over my district, and since then. Now, there are five major selling points to this constitution, which is going to be a good constitution and to date is: three dollar auto plates; the homestead exemption--five thousand to veterans and people over sixty-five and three thousand for the others; the two-thirds vote necessary to pass or increase a tax, that Mr. Smith handled, put in the constitution this federal income taxes that you pay shall be allowed a deductible item on your state return; and then this limitation on constitutional amendments. Let me tell you, you've got to offer the people something in a constitution. They are not just interested in a short one; they want something that's not only going to protect them but that will help them. I'm giving you an opportunity to pass to third reading this fifth thing that will help to pass this constitution, and that everyone of you knows ought to be there; the only reasons given would be by Mr. Jenkins who simply says the governor will run everything. Now those five things, you give those to the people; you are representing them; Dr. Weiss, this is one of them. I know you can do like you say and thank you for saying I'm knowledgeable on that stuff; everybody's as knowledgeable at that; we all know the different ways. But, I'm doing it this way because I want the people to know that this thing is being considered. I don't want a jumped-up looking floor amendment like you're talking about. I want the people--and I'm sure it will be mentioned in the papers that they've got this before this constitutional convention. Now, if you want the convention to get a constitution that passes by the people, you better at least consider this vital little amendment that I'm offering here.

...and I hope you will understand that. I'll be through in a minute and yield if there is time. Now, this is to pass it to third reading. I hope you will vote yes in my favor. Thank you.

[Substitute motion adopted: 47-45.
Motion to reconsider tabled.]

* * *

[Motion, under Rule 86 and with prior notice, to require the Committee on the Judiciary to return, with or without recommendation, Delegate Proposal No. 33 to the Convention.]

Explanation

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this proposal is to require that the state shall be divided into seven Supreme Court districts. The districts shall be determined by the legislature, and one judge to be elected from each district. You have on your desk copies of the present Supreme Court districts which I passed out, and I'm sorry I forgot to sign my name to them. But, they were distributed at my request. On this sheet it shows you the population within each Supreme Court district; and you will note that in the six we have the six districts, but in District No. 1 you have a population of over a million people. You have two judges, each running to a million people. In District No. 4, you have only three hundred and sixty-nine thousand for the judge that runs there--only runs to three hundred and sixty-nine thousand.

This is a very gross inequity. Now, it... I submit this in basic fairness to the people of this state. We are trying to write a document that is not favoring incumbents, that is not putting too much burden on the legislature to have to make decisions. Now, you will say that under the proposal as it already stands in the constitution, the legislature can make changes and have more districts. But, you and I know that in all... in the political facts of life that the legislature is going to have two hurdles to meet if it decides to do it. In the first place, the legislature will have to have the desire to make the change, and that is a hard thing to come by in the legislature. Second, then they will have to draw the lines. All this is saying is we're relieving the legislature of one step, and that is that they will have to make up their minds to do something about it. Under this, they will have to do something about it. Then, it's still up to the legislature to draw the lines and to play fair with the judges and with the people. My request is to you that I think this speaks for itself. It addresses itself to your fairness, your sense of fair play, your sense of trying to do what is right for the state, not to favor incumbents. We are not writing--I have had Mr. Tobias stand up at this microphone time and again, and he was the champion of the cause to not devote the writing of this constitution just to six, seven judges, to let a handful of judges control what we put in this constitution. Now, we might just have to go back in the Journal and then reread Mr. Tobias's statement. Yet, yesterday, he was one of the ones trying to keep this thing from coming before you again. I say that this is basically fair; it's right that the legislature should be mandated to go on and do something and to grapple with the question. I think it's wrong to leave the provision as it stands, and I ask that you let this thing go on and be passed on to the next reading. I ask your support of this proposal.

Further Discussion

MR. TATE

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to my dear friend Mrs. Miller's proposal that you require the committee to report once again upon a proposal that was rejected in committee deliberations four times before we came to the floor, that on this floor you had four or five amendments attempting to do the same thing as is now attempted to do. To refresh your memory, you, in your wisdom, took out of the constitution the districts that have been in existence since 1920, which I think was a great idea. You made them subject to change by two-thirds vote of the legislature. You provided the flexibility for orderly transition, for orderly adjustment of the interests of competing segments. Now, traditionally, for fifty years, the Orleans-Jefferson complex--metropolitan complex--has been one district with two judges, with about twice as many people as any other district. It comes out about the same representation per judge, if that were a factor, as it would as if it were divided in one-half. Now, I'm asking you--I... it seems to me like that poker playing is getting to my vocal chords--but, I'm asking you, in the interest of efficiency and economy, at this point, having rejected the thing five times on the floor, five times in the committee, to once again just vote "no" and let's get on with it. We've got a lot of things we have to finish before long.

Mr. Chairman. . .

Point of Order

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman, I rise to a point of order. I believe that my good friend the Justice is arguing on the merits of this thing, and not on the rules of the committee.

MR. HENRY

Well, Mrs. Miller, I thought both of you were. I thought that both of you were, and . . .

MRS. MILLER

No, it's just the way you look at it, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HENRY

Well, I look at it like both of you were. So, you all act like grown-ups, and let's go. Mrs. Warren you have a . . . you want the floor? All right. Have you completed your remarks, Judge Tate?

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm glad Mr. Henry said what he did, because I'm going to say the same thing. This morning Mr. Roemer came to the mike and he said a prayer. I really wanted to go over and shake his hands. As he . . . if you can remember what he said, that we could have peace within and peace without. We're in the great yuletide season, and this was very appropriate. I think this should be a year-round thing. It has been said that "One picture is worth a thousand words." This is not the only time that we have had things come before this convention that was not favorable according to the committee. If this district is divided up in two, where we have over a million population, it is not going to say but one thing: that it was just divided into districts. You can still have judges from the various districts. But, I cannot see why this thing should remain like it is, because it has been in effect for twenty years. We have had things in our constitution since 1921, and they have been removed. I think, on merit--and I've heard much talk about merit--this is the time that merit should come into play, and not because one or two wants to keep the thing just as it is. So, in good conscience, to have peace within and peace without and have favor with God, let's go on and let this thing come to the floor, and let this convention decide what it wants to do. Thank you very much.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this proposal to force this out of committee. Yesterday, in committee, the Judiciary Committee by a 9 to 4 vote tabled this delegate proposal. It was tabled because we have considered it on the floor of this convention a number of times. I supported the concept of seven districts, originally on the floor. But, this convention has spoken on the subject, and I accept defeat. The committee proposal, as adopted--the proposal as adopted by the floor of this convention--allows for flexibility. It says that "there shall be at least six districts, and that the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, can expand it to seven." What can be more simple than this flexibility? I urge you--we've got other business to take care of--let's continue, and let's defeat this.

Questions

MR. WEISS

Delegate Tobias, is the Judiciary above the concept of representative one man, one vote?

MR. TOBIAS

I don't believe so, but I . . .

MR. WEISS

Well, why such malproportion in the number of judges to the population?

MR. TOBIAS

Well, it's historical. These districts were frozen into the constitution, and as time went on, the districts became malapportioned. The United States Supreme Court recently ruled that malapportioned districts for judges--justices of the Louisiana Supreme Court--was not unconstitutional under the United States Constitution. So, in effect, the system is frozen the way it is. We have provided in our Judiciary Article to unfreeze these districts, and that the legislature can, by a two-thirds vote, unfreeze it, apportion them on a one man, one vote principle, and go to seven districts. I think that this is something that we should not try to do in this convention, but let the legislature handle it.

MR. WEISS

You say this is traditional. How many sacred cows do you think the constitution that we present to the people should maintain?

MR. TOBIAS

I don't think it should contain any, but it's got a zillion of them.

Point of Information

MR. DESHOTELS

A point of information, first, Mr. Chairman; then a point of order, possibly.

Under the rules, can we be talking about the merits of the particular proposal at this time?

MR. HENRY

Mr. Deshotels, actually, we ought to be discussing whether or not we're going to require the committee to report this proposal out. It's difficult to discuss something of this magnitude without getting into the merits, to some extent. You just about have to open the main question.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Tobias, I can't state the exact rule, but under the rules of this convention, are you not supposed to report it out favorably or unfavorably?

MR. TOBIAS

No, we do not have that obligation. The committee doesn't . . . does not have to consider it. This is the way you get it out. I don't know what we would do to untable the motion--untable this proposal in committee. If you report. . . I don't know what we do.

MRS. WARREN

So, you just conveniently fix it up to suit yourself with that. . .

MR. TOBIAS

I think the convention has spoken upon it.

MRS. WARREN

Right.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, we are discussing the merits of the proposal. Insofar as I'm concerned, we are out of order. That is not the question before this convention. The question is this: Is it fair to permit a committee to bottle up a proposal regardless of what that proposal is? Surely the committee should report action so that the author can take whatever recourse the author wishes to take under the rules. As the committee has acted, Mrs. Miller is left helpless. The committees would become too powerful, because by a 6 to 5 vote, a committee could tell this convention that we could not discuss a particular matter. When it is reported to the floor of this convention, the convention, if it feels we have discussed the matter long enough, can refuse to pass the proposal to third and final passage. I think it would be most unfortunate if we leave an author of a proposal helpless. I, therefore, urge you to direct the committee to report its actions to this committee--convention--for the convention's determination as to whether it wishes to proceed further. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MRS. MILLER

Ladies and gentlemen, I do appreciate Dr. Asseff's remarks on this, because I think this is at the heart of the question, is whether four or five people in one committee when the . . . or maybe six, when they had a short committee. . . short, almost not a quorum, can table something and, therefore, keep all the rest of you from hearing this thing again. I ask you that you join me in my efforts to have this reported out of committee.

Mr. Chairman, would you please explain in terms of green and red and yes and no how to vote on this, if you want Mrs. Miller's proposal reported out of committee?

[Motion rejected: 39-53. Motion, under Rule 86 and with prior notice to require the Committee on the Judiciary to return, with or without recommendation, Delegate Proposal No. 44 to the Convention.]

Explanation

MR. VICK

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I will try and stick as closely as possible to the procedural question involved. Yesterday at noon, while the committee was having lunch, I attempted to present my case on Delegate Proposal No. 44, which was to add only two words to the proposal adopted by this convention, which was to restore, in part, some of the powers stripped from the office of the attorney general. Now, I rise strictly on a procedural point, because the treatment that Mrs. Miller and I got on yesterday was cavalier and in violation of the rules of this convention, as far as I'm concerned. It's in violation of Rule 61, which says, among other things, there are only certain ways that matters can be reported out of committee--favorably, unfavorably, without action, with amendments. This committee tabled my proposal and Mrs. Miller's proposal. Now, all I'm asking you this morning is to order that committee to obey the rules of this convention, and to report it out, as they're very likely to do, unfavorably. Then, give me an opportunity to stand up before you and ask for a much greater vote than a mere majority vote, to ask you for a much . . . for consideration on the merits at that time. I'll be happy to yield, if there are any questions.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Questions

MR. JONES

Are you merely asking the convention to consider your proposal so every member who is a delegate to this convention has an opportunity to be heard, if they so care to do so? Is that correct?

MR. VICK

Well, Mr. Jones, we adopted a free speech article in the Bill of Rights which . . . in answer to your question, yes. I think that the . . . I think the Judiciary Committee, to my knowledge, Mr. Jones--and I may be wrong, and I'll be happy to stand corrected if I am wrong--to my knowledge, the Judiciary Committee took action, yesterday, that no other committee has taken. That is: they tabled a proposal instead of complying with Rule 61, and reporting it in some fashion or form as set forth in that rule.

MR. JONES

You mean on Rule 86?

MR. VICK

No, 61 sets forth the form under which the committees must report out proposals. They followed none of those--they tabled it.

MR. JONES

Delegate Vick, when you come, would you ask for a record vote on this, please?

MR. VICK

Fine, Mr. Jones. Thank you.

MR. DREW

Mr. Vick, with reference to your remarks about the committee eating while we heard you yesterday, were you in the committee when this same proposal was presented by Mr. Guste, previously?

MR. VICK

I was there, Mr. Drew, when he made his initial appearance while the committees were meeting between January and July 5. He asked, at that time, for nothing more and nothing less than he has in the Constitution of '21.

MR. DREW

Were you also on the floor of the convention when this same matter was debated for two days before it was adopted?

MR. VICK

I don't think it was debated for two days, Mr. Drew. That . . . I would like an opportunity to respond to that, because Mr. Burns, yesterday, in discussing the juvenile court's jurisdiction, discussion the matter Mrs. Miller brought to the convention this morning, the attorney general didn't get that heated and controversial sort of treatment. He got very quick justice.

MR. DESHOTELS

Mr. Vick, this is mostly for Mr. Jones's benefit. But, as a matter of being heard, what you're talking about has been discussed in our committee for months, and then was argued, as Mr. Drew said, over here on the floor of the convention for several days, was it not?

MR. VICK

Mr. Deshotels, I can't disagree with you, but I'll tell you quite candidly--and I think that I want this sort of thing recorded--I don't think the convention really knows what it's done to the Department of Justice. I really don't believe that. If I believed that, I wouldn't be pushing for Delegate Proposal No. 44 to come before this convention again. I really don't believe this convention knows what it's done.

MR. BURNS

Mr. Vick, you said that the convention had never taken a similar action on a delegate proposal. Do you know that just a week or so ago that I had a delegate proposal before a committee and they voted to defer action on it at the last . . . almost the last day?

MR. VICK

In committee, Mr. Burns?

MR. BURNS

Pardon me?

MR. VICK

In committee?

MR. BURNS

In a committee of this convention.

MR. VICK

I stand corrected.

MR. SANDOZ

Mr. Vick, didn't the attorney general come before us, and we resolved into a Committee of the Whole where he presented this same issue, previously?

MR. VICK

The same issue of the power to initiate prosecutions?

MR. SANDOZ

Yes, sir.

MR. VICK

Yes, he appeared here for fifteen minutes, Mr. Sandoz. I don't know the point you're trying to make.

MR. SANDOZ

But, did not the convention listen to him, and then ultimately vote against his contention?

MR. VICK

Mr. Sandoz, let me repeat, again, for the record. I am convinced, after talking to a number of delegates on the floor of this convention, that they did not know, nor do they know today, that they stripped the Department of Justice of the power to initiate prosecutions in this state. I really don't believe the majority of the delegates know that. That's why I'm here this morning.

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Vick, hasn't the spirit and intent of this convention to be fully democratic and open in every sense of the way, and for a committee to take this kind of arbitrary action is not in keeping with the spirit of fair play that we've tried to manifest?

MR. VICK

All I can say to that, Reverend, is "amen," in addition to the fact that they have avoided the application of the rules.

If there are no further questions, Mr. Chairman, I move for the favorable move . . . favorable adoption.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 45-49. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

RECONSIDERATION
[II Journal 990-992]

MR. POYNTER

Under reconsideration, a motion made on yesterday, is the question of reconsidering the vote by which Section 1 of Committee Proposal No 10, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare.

A proposal making provisions for human resources, providing for municipal fire and police civil service.

The motion to reconsider the vote by which Section 1 of this proposal failed to pass on yesterday. Section 1 dealing with municipal fire and police civil service.

[Motion to call Committee Proposal No. 10 from the calendar adopted without objection. Reading of the Section, as amended.]

Explanation

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I would just like to call to your attention that we're at a point of having made considerable progress I think, with the consideration of the Committee Proposal No. 10 which has to do with the establishment of municipal fire and police in municipalities over thirteen thousand. There were a few salient issues that had to do with whether New Orleans would be included or not, and that has been worked out by offering an option to the voters in order to vote. The other issues which were of not, well, were not insurmountable, in that they were worked out, and we find ourselves this morning at a point of finally trying to work out one part of this proposal and I would hope that the discussions that we'll have this morning can lead to an agreement whereby the Committee Proposal No. 10 can be finalized. I would beg your attention to the debate which will follow so that we might complete the deliberations and vote out Committee Proposal No. 10. I would suggest myself to questions, Mr. Chairman, if anyone feels prone to raise any at this point.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Delegate Flory read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Dennery, and adopted by the convention on December 14, delete Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Schmitt and adopted by the convention on the 14th, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Permanent appointments and promotions in municipal fire and police civil service shall be made only after certification by the applicable Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Board under a general system based upon merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service as provided in Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the 1921 Constitution."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, yesterday when we considered the section on Committee Proposal No. 10 for its final adoption, I asked you to reject that section because by the adoption of the Schmitt amendment it radically, radically changed the process of promotions within the fire and police service to the extent that could be most detrimental to the entire state and particularly the local municipalities. I think if you understand that the fire insurance rates that you enjoy on your home and your commercial establishments in this state are predicated in great part at least by the type of fire service, etc., and which is provided within a given municipality. Whatever you do to the detriment of that service reflects upon the insurance rates due to the hazard involved in the protection of homes. What I have done by this amendment is to delete the Schmitt amendment leaving in the consideration of merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service, but deleted the remainder of that sentence which read as follows: "As ascertained by examination which so far as practicable shall be competitive," and left it up to the discretion of the Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the present constitution to let the legislature define and weigh those factors within those four categories. The reason being that if you use, insofar as practicable, competitive examinations--let me give you one prime example as to what could happen in a particular fire department, and that is, that if you had the opening for a position of captain or district chief or assistant district chief, and you gave an examination and the people from the outside were allowed to compete on that examination, it's quite possible due to the weight given to that competitive examination that the person from the outside with no experience whatsoever in the fire service of the type that we're talking about, could be placed in a position of a fire captain and placed in charge of a fire company which has jurisdiction over perhaps as many as six fire stations within a particular municipality. Then, you get a major fire as was done at Howard Johnson's in New Orleans, or a general alarm, and that man's on duty at the time in charge of those companies and he's there directing that fire fighting procedure without the full knowledge of experience, the years of service necessary to have attained that position under the past system, he could well endanger not only the lives of all of the firemen that he was directing and the personnel attendant to the....trying to bring that fire under control, but to the people that might be in that building, in trying to rescue them at that time. Now, this is some of the considerations that I told you that in the subject matter in which we were dealing, even though the firemen and policemen throughout this state felt like it merited constitutional status that they were willing to turn the entire subject matter over to the legislature, to let the legislature, if change was needed, to let them hear whatever change was proposed so that all parties could be heard, thoroughly knowledgeable in the field of fire fighting or police protection. What this amendment does is retain those four categories, but to allow the legislature to weigh it and the primary reason for the amendment was, I did not want to entirely delete Mr. Schmitt's amendment to say that I didn't want to give consideration to merit, fitness, and experience, although I personally feel that that was the proper approach to make, that my actions might be misinterpreted as not being in favor of those considerations so that the only alternative as a legal matter that was left to us was to pursue the course in which I have done in this amendment, to still allow the legislature by a two-thirds vote to handle those matters within the framework as contained in Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the present constitution. I suggest to you that if this amendment is not adopted, that then we pose some very serious problems within the fire fighting and the police protection services of this state. I ask, Mr. Chairman, for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, the clause "as provided in Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the 1921 Constitution," is that intended to modify only length of service or is it also intended to modify merit, efficiency, and fitness?

MR. FLORY

I think it is all encompassing under all four categories, Mr. Lanier.

MR. LANIER

Well, then if it is intended to apply to all four, and merit, efficiency, and fitness were not set forth as considerations in Article XIV, Section 15.1 that means that they would not be considered; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

No, I think they're all set forth in some fashion, Mr. Lanier.

MR. LANIER

Now, my second question is: By making this specific reference to the 1921 Constitution, won't we be incorporating by reference these provisions with reference to these matters in our new constitution?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, what I think we'd be doing is letting the legislature take care of the subject matter just as we did in a general sense yesterday when Mr. Jenkins proposed his amendment insofar as the Hatch Act provisions were in the '21 Constitution. I didn't look at his... I don't have his amendment before me, but this was the philosophy under which the amendment was drawn.

MR. LANIER

Well, Mr. Flory, this says "shall as provided in," now, doesn't that mandate that it be done this way?

MR. FLORY

I didn't change the first part of Mr. Schmitt's amendment, Mr. Lanier; all I did, as I told you, was strike out the language "as ascertained by examination which so far as practicable shall be competitive," and inserted that language "in length of service as provided in Article XIV, 15.1 of the '21 Constitution." As I told you yesterday, there were about five or six pages of the present law dealing with this area, and that's why that it was of such serious nature that on the spur of the moment I did not think that we ought to be legislating in that area without the advice and counsel perhaps of all of the people involved, both from an administrative and from the fire fighting and police protection services. That's why I was willing to turn the entire subject matter over to the legislature where all parties could be heard when change was proposed...

MR. LANIER

Well, but...

MR. FLORY

... recognizing that there were some people who were desirous of change in these areas, both from our side and the other side perhaps, so that the proper forum would be the legislature where the facts could be developed in an open atmosphere.

MR. LANIER

But, wouldn't this mean, say if I was a young attorney twenty-five years from now and I wanted to know what this meant, I'd have to have a copy of the 1974 Constitution as well as a copy of the 1921 Constitution, wouldn't it?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because I think the legislature could adopt the statute that we continue them forward as statutes, and I think the legislature by statute could do that. That's what's intended.

MR. JUNEAU

Gordon, I'm trying to understand your amendment. In your reference to Section 15.1--as you well know 15.1 is a rather long section--could you identify for me the specific provisions that you are primarily relating to in 15.1, because obviously a lot of them wouldn't be germane to what you're talking about?

MR. FLORY

Well, but they are scattered throughout in some areas, Mr. Juneau, and the reason I did not specifically point to a specific paragraph was that they were more than one, and I did not want to be accused of singling out that application to particularly the seniority section of the thing.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, would I be correct then in stating that what you're trying to do is refer to those provisions of 15.1 which deal with seniority, and is that a general....

MR. FLORY

Well, all of them--merit, efficiency, fitness and length of service--all of them would be factors which the legislature could weigh. Give weight to as they do today, let's say in the city of New Orleans where they, I understand weigh at sixty-forty as the state does in their examinations, they weigh it to a certain degree. I think this is what we're talking about in the allowing of the legislature to establish by statute these types of situations after full hearing and open debate.

MR. JUNEAU

Well, let me ask you this question: As you understand the present 15.1, is merit, efficiency, and fitness specifically mentioned in 15.1--as we now have it?

MR. FLORY

I know merit is, and I know that fitness is... physical examinations are prerequisite in the practice, I know that also. Now, experience, I can't answer that categorically offhand because I might point out to you, Mr. Juneau, fitness plays an important part in this service because as a man reaches, let's say forty-five, to fifty, to sixty years of age, then fitness does come into play, depending upon the type of service that he performed, whether it be in the fire service or in the police service, so that fitness always maintains a criteria insofar as position is concerned. So, that in other words, what I'm saying you wouldn't want a sixty-five year old man climbing a hundred and fifty foot ladder in order to get somebody off because this is weighed, is given consideration in the promotion of policies, etc.

MR. JUNEAU

Okay. Well, to get down to what I consider the real issue, Gordon, the net effect of your amendment changes what in Schmitt's amendment? What do... I mean, tell us what you're really trying to do, that's what I want to know?

MR. FLORY

Well, my amendment takes out the language "as ascertained by examination which so far as practicable shall be competitive," and I again point to the situation I mentioned where you could go on the outside. Now, the promotions are filled within the service because the training... there's very little training that you could get and experience that you could get outside of the actual fire service, so that the promotions are made from within the fire service. You follow me up to that point? What I think Mr. Schmitt did by his amendment, and I think by design, was to allow you to go outside of the service and you had a position of a captain open, a vacancy there, then a man with a college degree in other areas may get the highest score. He may make a hundred out of a possible hundred on the examination. It would be possible then for the board to certify him the top nominee, the appointing authority could appoint him even though he did not actually have, he may be physically fit, but he did not actually have experience and length of service, so that you would have a man who was mentally capable of handling the position had he been trained in it, but he had not had the training so that when a major fire comes or a riot or something of that type, you put a man in a position in the top level to where he is in charge of a group of men either in a riot situation or in a major fire situation directing people who have had some experience, but he doesn't know what directions to give them, so that you're endangering not only the lives of the people in the service, but the lives of the people he's supposed to be trying to protect, and this is the great danger. That's why

I said yesterday, and I asked you to lay over until today to give us real time to consider the matter, to come up with something that would at least maintain the concept that he was talking about without doing violence to the present structure of the system and let the legislature then, by a two-thirds vote, change it.

MR. JUNEAU

Would your amendment permit, in determining a promotional status within the firemen and policemen the considerations of merit, efficiency and fitness on an equal basis with seniority?

MR. FLORY

On an equal basis? I think that would be a determination that the legislature first would have to make and then the local board would have to apply it.

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Flory, I have three questions, sir; one, you just alluded to the fact that these various--efficiency, fitness, length of service would be a weighted situation--and Mr. Juneau's question to you, he asked you point blank--were in fact, you considering length of service above the others? Do you or do you not, sir?

MR. FLORY

I didn't change that; that was the order in which the amendment was originally, Mr. Chatelain. I didn't change that.

MR. CHATELAIN

But, would you consider in your amendment a weighted situation where there would be some, in fact, consideration given to the fitness and all the other--merits, etc.; would you in fact, do this?

MR. FLORY

Would I change my amendment?

MR. CHATELAIN

I mean, would you...is it your interpretation that your amendment would do away with that?

MR. FLORY

Do away with those considerations?

MR. CHATELAIN

Yes.

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Okay. Two: isn't it a fact, sir, that the average policeman in an average city retires at age... after twenty years service?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

All right, sir.

MR. FLORY

There's a very good reason for that.

MR. CHATELAIN

All right, I'm not going into that, sir. How many cities with a population between thirteen thousand and one hundred thousand that, in fact, have a joint police and firemen civil service situation?

MR. FLORY

I think they all have it in that category, Mr. Chatelain, with the exception of one, to my knowledge, and that is Thibodaux, who does not have a paid fire department, and that's the reason they don't comply...they don't reach the criteria set forth in the constitution, consequently they have a separate type... then, in the city of New Orleans which is over the population bracket. But, those cities and municipalities and districts within the population brackets of thirteen thousand to two hundred and fifty thousand today are mandated by the constitution to be under that system. Those that are between seventyfive hundred and thirteen thousand are statutorily, statutorily required to have that type system.

MR. CHATELAIN

All right, sir. Let me ask you this. On your second sentence of your-- I mean, second line of your amendment-- you have the word "shall." Would you consider amending that to "may"?

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. CHATELAIN

Thank you, sir.

MR. ABRAHAM

Gordon, I'm trying to understand what the effects of this amendment will be. Now, the original amendment we adopted, the Denney-Flory amendment states that the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the Constitution of '21 are hereby retained and contained in force and effect as statutes. Now, when we come back and state in this particular amendment that it's under a general system based upon merit, etc., as provided in Article XIV, Section 15.1, does not that negate then the possibility of the legislature being able to amend those provisions because they're no longer statutory; they become constitutional here by putting this language back in. You see, because we specifically spelled out in the original amendment that these would be statutory.

MR. FLORY

That was correct and that was my intentions, Mr. Abraham, originally, but when Mr. Schmitt came back and inserted this as a constitutional provision, then I had no alternative except to offer this in order to clarify the situation, which I've done.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, now, looking at the constitutional provision of the Schmitt proposal... based on merit, efficiency, fitness, length of service, but all this fits in with the statutory material, and does not the statutory material provide in Paragraph 23 that the omission to test shall be from the next lower classification? Would not that limit it, or prevent, say an outsider coming in to take the test?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because what he said in his amendment was "insofar as practicable by competitive examination." He don't define where that competitive examination was or who was to participate in the competitive examination and that was the danger in the amendment. That was the reason why I had to come back and to try to change that, and to put it back in the context in which it was originally.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, I'm not quarreling with that; the only thing I'm concerned about is, whether we're actually putting it back in the context or we're locking the 1921 Constitution back into this constitution.

MR. FLORY

Well, Mr. Abraham, I said earlier, perhaps you missed it. My original thoughts were and that my first preference was to delete the Schmitt amendment in its entirety. In order to do exactly what this convention voted to do was to transfer the whole matter to the statutes, and let the legislature after an open debate reach a firm conclusion after hearing all of the facts as to what ought to be done. I was willing to leave that entirely up to the legislature, but when he tries to lock in a particular... a particular provision which says that it shall be by competitive examination without describing who can take the examination, then I tell you, sir, that it could go from the outside-- you could have a man from California take the examination, never fought a fire in his life, never served a day as a policeman, yet was very intelligent and could pass an examination and make a hundred on it and could theoretically and possibly get the appointment in a most responsible position which would be detrimental to either service.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, now, just... just to argue the other side of the coin since you brought up that example; could not it work both ways where you might have a man who got the promotion strictly on seniority who, at the same time, still may not be qualified and could be detrimental to hold the job?

MR. FLORY

I think you have to understand, Mr. Abraham, that in the promotional policies set forth in the constitution and in the statutes, that even though you talk about taking the senior man after he has meritoriously qualified to get in that position that he still has a test period he has to serve...

MR. ABRAHAM

I appreciate that.

MR. FLORY

... and his appointing authority, if he can't cut the mustard, has full authority, constitutional and statutorily to put him back to where he was, and put somebody else who can cut the mustard.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, you appreciate, I hope, my concern that by blocking this back in we might be locking the entire subject matter back into the constitution rather than by making it statutory.

MR. FLORY

I can appreciate anybody's concern with this matter, Mr. Abraham, because as I said yesterday, it was of such serious consequence that I didn't believe that we, as laymen, could sit here without expertise in the police area and in the fire area and could really legislate these types of conditions. Consequently, in order to put it into an area which could receive full and open debate where all parties could be heard who had expertise in the area. A real legitimate change could be brought about if it was needed to improve the service. That's where I thought the problem lies and I still believe that that's the appropriate body, which is the legislature.

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, is there any way that this could do away with the veterans' preference that are granted?

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. GIARRUSSO

Gordon, I'd like to just make a qualifying statement before I ask you a couple of questions. I recognize that experience should be a factor in considering a man for promotion, but what I would like to know, are you saying that because a man serves time in a job, that this automatically qualifies him for a promotion?

MR. FLORY

No, I didn't say that.

MR. GIARRUSSO

No, I'm asking, I never said you did, I'm asking a question. Well, you alluded to that a few minutes ago when you said that a man has to have experience in a particular field if he's going to be able to do a job? Aren't those provisions ...

MR. FLORY

No, I didn't say that... What I said was that in the fire service in particular that there was very few places where a man could get experience in fighting a fire except in the fire service.

MR. GIARRUSSO

I think that that's true with police service as well. I think that there are ample provisions that are made in the qualifying for an examination where experience is a factor, but is not the all encompassing factor that has to be considered by the appointing authority for a promotion. One other question:

MR. FLORY

That's the reason I was willing to turn it over to the legislature to let them determine in their judgment what weight should be given to those factors, Mr. Giarrusso.

MR. GIARRUSSO

Well, do you feel, Gordon, that there are intangible factors that are present whenever you consider a man for promotion?

MR. FLORY

I can't hear you, sir, I'm sorry.

MR. GIARRUSSO

I said, do you feel that there are some intangible factors that an appointing authority has to consider that do not come out with experience, do not come out in an examination?

MR. FLORY

I think there are some considerations, if you're talking about politics; yes, I'm sure there are some political considerations some people would give in making appointments. Yes, sir, I agree with that.

MR. GIARRUSSO

No, sir, I didn't say that, you did, but ... I didn't mean it that way at all because there are factors that are present many times that do not show up in examinations, do not show up in experience. For example,--and this might be considered to be minor--but neatness, integrity, you could talk about a man's attitude, you could talk about his demeanor on a job; these are all things that don't come out in an exam that you know exists. I'm asking again, is that... what I'm trying to say is that, I think there should be some weight given to experience, but not the all encompassing factors as I understand that you're trying to place it on.

MR. FLORY

That's not what I'm doing, Chief. I don't know whether you were here yesterday and heard the debate on the issue or not, but that's not it. I know that what you're talking about insofar as determining a man's honesty when you hire him, or when you promote him as a policeman, is whether he takes bribes or something of this nature, MS. ZERVIGON you would use that as a consideration. I don't think you can constitutionalize that. I don't think you could legislate that, and yes, I would admit, a man's character, certain attributes that he might have, would be taken into consideration. His ability as far as being able to make judgments on a split second decision; yes, sir, these things I'm sure are taken into consideration. I think that's all done too, particularly after you have put the man into a work test period.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. GIARRUSSO

I think this is true, you know, a probationary period.

Gordon, the only thing I'm really trying to find out is that I just don't feel that experience alone, is what I'm saying, should be all of it. If I misunderstand you, well, I stand to be corrected. That's all I'm asking.

MR. FLORY

All I'm saying here is that the legislature--and I said yesterday was--that if there are those who feel that that is not the criteria that ought to be used, as now is the practice and has been for some thirty years or more in all of the majority of metropolitan areas of this state, then I think the proper place to change it is in the legislature where people with expertise--such as yourself, in the police area--could come and be heard and give testimony as to your experiences and what it takes to run that type of a service. That's the way you develop orderly change is by people who testify, who have expertise in certain areas on certain matters; and then laymen, such as myself, can make a considered judgment based upon the testimony heard.

MR. GIARRUSSO

Thank you, Gordon.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, you are saying that the provisions of your amendment would be able to be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature?

MR. FLORY

Yes. I don't think they could change the language in this amendment, no.

MS. ZERVIGON

Your amendment refers to the general system of determining merit, as contained in Article XIV, Section 15.1.

MR. FLORY

Which is the entire forty-seven pages that we had before us yesterday and let the legislature then give its consideration to whatever change was proposed.

MS. ZERVIGON

In other words--in answer to Mr. Juneau's questions, you said that the exam and then seniority system was, by and large, the system that is specified in Article XIV, Section 15.1--the change of that would be left to a two-thirds vote of the legislature. This would not be something that could be changed only by constitutional amendment, would it?

MR. FLORY

This could only be changed by constitutional amendment--this language--but I think what we transfer to the statutes can be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, I'm the chairperson of Legislative Liaison. We're going to have to decide what is statutory material and what is not. Your committee, of course, has to tell us what your committee considers to be statutory in light of the passage of this, and what is constitutional and may not be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. What I'm asking you is, in light of having to make that decision in trying to vote on this amendment: Is the system whereby a man on the police force takes an exam, passes, and then the most senior man who passes the exam is automatically promoted--would that be transposed into a two-thirds statute, or would that be considered constitutional material?

MR. FLORY

I think it's transposed into the statute. It would be carried forward under that as a process now used but, subject to a two-thirds vote of the legislature, could be changed.

MS. ZERVIGON

That particular process. The other thing is, Mr. Flory--I want to give you a little chance to defend yourself--you are not criticizing the fire- and policemen in New Orleans, are you?

MR. FLORY

And nowhere else.

MS. ZERVIGON

They're not chosen by this system, but they are competent at their jobs; don't you agree?

MR. FLORY

I haven't criticized anybody, to my knowledge, Ms. Zervigon. I used a hypothetical situation.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, under your hypothetical example of the man from California who'd never been a fireman, wouldn't he have a little bit of time on the job in which he could be fired if he were found totally incompetent as well?

MR. FLORY

I'm sorry; I can't hear you, Ms. Zervigon.

MS. ZERVIGON

I can't remember who your questioner was when you brought up that hypothetical example of the fireman from California who had taken the exam, never fought a fire before, qualified because he was bright--and was hired. You were saying that under the seniority system, a man has a certain amount of probation time in the new position; isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MS. ZERVIGON

Wouldn't that be true of the interloper from California as well---that he would be on probation in the new job?

MR. FLORY

If those provisions were retained, yes.

MS. ZERVIGON

Thank you.

MR. FLORY

Within that six-month period, they could have a disastrous situation occur.

MR. KELLY

Gordon, let me see if I've got the overall picture of this thing. First, we've already transferred everything that's in Section 15.1 of the constitution into the statutes; correct? Then, we turn around and we say that by a two-thirds vote of the legislature they can change this; all right. Then, in your amendment, you're simply referring back to Section 15.1 of the 1921, and that would be a statute; is that correct? Is that correct? All right, now, and then, in your amendment, you refer to "merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service." Now, these are the criteria upon which permanent appointments and promotions would be made; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. KELLY

All right. Now, can this be changed--not the wording necessarily of this, but, say, the percentage of dominance that would be lent to each one of these criteria--could that be changed by the legislature?

MR. FLORY

I think with a two-thirds vote they could give whatever weight, percentage-wise, to it they wanted to.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Flory, there's only one point that concerns me about your amendment. Under Article XIV, Section 15.1, as it now stands, the seniority requirement is only applicable to the promotional examination, is it not?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. KEAN

As to the competitive examination, the appointing authority has a right to take from the three names that are submitted to him without any reference to seniority; does he not?

MR. FLORY

That's correct, in the appoint...yes, air...in the hiring process, yes, sir.

MR. KEAN

As I read your amendment, it could be construed as injecting these various factors, including length of service, even into a certification for a competitive position. Would you speak to that point?

MR. FLORY

State your question again, Mr. Kean, so I'll be sure I have it correct in my mind. Are you talking about initial appointments or promotions after....

MR. KEAN

In the case of the chief of the fire department or the chief of the police department, those jobs are filled by competitive examination, are they not?

MR. FLORY

That's correct. Within the service.

MR. KEAN

Or, you can have anybody who can apply for that...take that examination, can't they?

MR. FLORY

For chief?

MR. KEAN

Yes.

MR. FLORY

Yes, I believe you can. In that position, yes--with the exception of the city of New Orleans.

MR. KEAN

All right. But, in the fire and police civil service system, the chief's job is a competitive examination; and, therefore, length of service in the department is not a factor to be considered?

MR. FLORY

Not today, and it would be carried forward and only could be changed with a two-thirds vote of the legislature.

MR. KEAN

Well, the thing that bothers me is that you say that the appointments will be made "only after certification under a general system based upon merit, efficiency, fitness, and length of service as provided in Article XIV, Section 15.1." It seems to me that that might be construed as now injecting into the competitive examination a seniority consideration.

MR. FLORY

No, because that is one of the conditions in the present constitution that we're transferring into the statutes: that is, the practice that is the situation today--that would be transferred into the statutes. Now, I can't tell you, for instance, what the legislature might change in the future. I can't tell you either, if it would all remain in the constitution, what the people might change in the future.

MR. KEAN

Well, the language of your amendment, as I read it, says--you make certifications as provided in Article XIV, Section 15.1--and the language in between, it seems to me, would raise the question that seniority could now be a factor in a competitive examination, and I simply want to find out whether or not that was your intention.

MR. FLORY

No, sir, that's not what my intent is. My intent is to continue forward in the new statutes the provisions of the existing constitution, with the letting the legislature change that by a two-thirds vote.

MR. KEAN

So that if the present law says that, in the case of competitive examinations....

MR. FLORY

They'll remain the same.

MR. KEAN

They'll remain the same.

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. DENNERY

Gordon, what I want to be sure of here is that under the present system, which we would continue in effect, the only time, really, that seniority has any importance--the only times, let us say--are when you have laid off somebody or demoted somebody or something of that nature and the position above opens up, you have to bring one of those men back....

MR. FLORY

Or, if someone retires....to that extent, yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

Right. Now, that phase of seniority doesn't disturb me a bit. The one that disturbs me is the case of a promotional examination. As I understand a promotional examination, you have no fear of bringing someone in from the outside because, by the very nature of it, a promotional examination is one which promotes from within the service. As I understand your law, if you pass...if you get your seventy-five percent and there are ten people on the list, the appointing authority is required to appoint that one who has seniority. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

That is the correct system, but would be subject to change by the legislature.

MR. DENNERY

Right. Now, that man has to serve a working test period of a minimum of six months, according to the law.

MR. FLORY

Not less than six months and not more than twelve months.

MR. DENNERY

No more than a year. The only thing that disturbs me: I would say that in ninety-five percent of the cases the person who is senior is probably the person best fitted for the job; the five percent of the cases--and those are the five percent that I think Chief Giarrusso was asking you about--you may run into a situation where you have certain intangibles. After all, you're promoting, normally, to a position of leadership. Leadership, I don't believe--and I think you would probably agree--cannot be adjudged purely by seniority or purely by a test, for that matter. Do you agree with that?

MR. FLORY

That is correct, Mr. Dennery. I don't think you could--you get into the area of leadership abilities--I don't think you can find that out by examination, by demonstration unless that man's had the opportunity to demonstrate leadership, and you don't find that out until within the working test period as to whether a man really meets the criteria to be a leader. But, this is the area--and the area of responsibility and his ability to accept responsibility and discharge it--is the reason for the working test period.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, Mr. Flory, if you look at your amendment and look at Mr. Schmitt's amendment, if you put a period after the word "service"--after "length of service"--don't you think that would take care of your problems and also take care of Mr. Schmitt's problems?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, I don't.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you, sir.

MR. DUVAL

Gordon, my questions are not directed to the merit of your amendment, but to the legal effect they have. I realize you've been asked questions on this before, but I'd like a clear understanding. As I understand it, the thrust of your amendment--is it not--is to incorporate into the proposed constitution the line appearing on page 392 of the copy of the constitution we have, which says, "The appointing authority shall select and appoint, to the first vacancy to be filled, the one person certified to him who has the greatest seniority in the departmental service."

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Isn't that really what you want to insure is in the proposed constitution? Am I correct?

MR. FLORY

Not in the proposed constitution, but in the carry-forward position in the statutes to where the legislature could take into consideration all factors and make a determination.

MR. DUVAL

Well, I understand your intention, but it appears to me, Gordon, that by placing this language in the constitution as it is, that we might be adopting by reference the provisions of the constitution that cannot be changed by a two-thirds vote, as you recall the amendment Mr. Jenkins had in reference to political activity. That could not be changed by a two-thirds vote; won't you agree with that?

MR. FLORY

I don't have his amendment before me, and I'd have to read it again, Stan. I can't answer that.

MR. DUVAL

Well, my concern is that what we're doing is constitutionalizing all the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15.1 again. Do you see any problem that perhaps by...as provided in order... here's a constitutional provision saying this shall be the way, as provided in the constitution, of Section 15.1. How's that going to be changed unless there's a constitutional amendment?

MR. FLORY

You have certain factors to be considered, and the legislature can determine what weight to be given to those factors.

MR. DUVAL

Well, it's just my opinion that it could be stated a little clearer. I would hope that, perhaps, you'd maybe take a little recess....

MR. FLORY

Well, it could've been extremely clear, Mr. Duval, if we hadn't of had the Schmitt amendment adopted yesterday to begin with, because then the legislature would've had the full authority without question--a two-thirds vote, they could change it.

MR. DUVAL

I understand. Your intent is to make the law as it was... the convention in the status as it was before the Schmitt amendment. I understand your intention.

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. DUVAL

I'm just afraid we haven't done this. If there's any way to do it any other way, I'd appreciate it.

MR. FLORY

As I said, if I'd had my druthers, I'd rather delete the Schmitt amendment. Then, there'd be no question about where we atood.

MR. RACHAL

Gordon, you do know that I recognize that this is a guts issue of this proposal; and in our previous conversation, I'm sure you also realize the difficult time I'm having in my own conclusions. One of the questions I wanted to ask was...has been asked by Mr. Abraham--and I've noticed since that it seems to be intertwined in the questions others are asking--and that is that in really trying to come to a decision on the merits of a system based on seniority as a major criterion, even if agreeing to that, I get concernment about constitutionalizing it, which is what others have brought up. I notice Mr. Dennery asked a question about placing a period after "length of service", which was not satisfactory. It then seems to me that if we were to really consider this, many of the anxieties might be slayed if we could delete the Schmitt amendment, rather than amending it as you are suggesting. I must apologize that I don't remember your response to that earlier--as to why you decided against deleting, versus the amending.

MR. FLORY

If you recall the other day, I proposed--when we had Proposal No. 9 up, and then there was a question raised as to the parliamentary procedure as far as deleting something, I had, in order to do that at that time, make a technical correction also--I did not want to be accused of not wanting to consider the factors.... let the legislature consider the factors mentioned in Mr.

Schmitt's amendment, even though from a position of clarity. So that everybody would understand what we were doing, the best thing, in my judgment, legally and otherwise, was to delete the Schmitt amendment in its entirety. That way we would know that we were transferring, in its entirety, the entire system of fire and police civil service, except Mr. Jenkins had wanted to retain the Hatch Act provision where it could not be changed; that was his intent--Mr. Duval raised the question a while ago--so, that's the reason we took this approach. But, I say that if we had done that--and deleted the Schmitt amendment--everybody would know exactly what we're doing; and everything contained in the provision, with the exception of that, would be subject to a change by two-thirds vote of the legislature. So that, yes, the proper thing would have been to delete the Schmitt amendment.

MR. RACHAL

Thank you.

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Flory, in view of the fact that Article VII takes all of Article XIV, Section 15.1 of the 1921 Constitution and puts it into the statutes--it can be amended by two-thirds vote of each house of the legislature--why would it not be satisfactory, then, to end Mr. Schmitt's amendment with the word "service" and not accomplish the same thing? You told Mr. Dennery that it wouldn't be satisfactory. I'd like to know why it wouldn't. What would make the difference?

MR. FLORY

Because I think it would carry the connotation of equal stature to the four categories, and I don't think that that would allow the legislature the proper...the discretion to make, or to give the proper weight that they may need after hearing expert testimony in the area.

MRS. BRIEN

Mr. Flory, on the end of your line there, when you put "and length of service as provided" etc., couldn't you just put "as provided by law"?

MR. FLORY

I think, when you do that, then you put it into the framework of a simple majority vote of the legislature. That, I think, is something that would not be in the best interests of the fire and police service. Perhaps--I'm not sure about that--but, perhaps, that's what we'd be doing.

MRS. BRIEN

Yes, I think that's what we're doing right now.

[Motion to limit debate to 15 minutes adopted: 56-36.]

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to suggest that we take about a five-minute recess. I think, in view of what Mr. Duval has said and raised the issues, and some people--Mr. Champagne--are worried about whether the legislature will be able to change the effect of length of service, at this time in the present constitution, by a two-thirds vote, Mr. Flory is going to pull the amendment and put an exception there that the legislature may change these criteria by a two-thirds vote also.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. HARDIN

At the end of the original Flory amendments, which were just withdrawn, after the word "constitution" change the period "." to a comma "," in that amendment and add the following language: "subject to change by law enacted upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house of the legislature."

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, there was some...Mr. Duval and some of them had questioned whether or not we were locking into the constitution certain practices in the fire and police service. In order to clarify the situation to make certain that's not what we're doing, the following language has been added to the amendment as it appears before you: "subject to change by law enacted

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house of the legislature." So that, there is no question but what it could be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. Let me make one point that I couldn't hear a moment ago when Chief Giarrusso was asking me a question about whether or not experience, etc., were the only criteria: Certainly, my answer to him should have been, had I heard him properly, was that that is not the only consideration to be given, but that a man has to first qualify--and not only that, but he has to keep requalifying, under this provision of the law, every eighteen months so that it is a constant process of qualification in the process of promotion--so that experience is not, is not, the only criteria.

Point of Information

MR. CHATELAIN

The motion that we had previously adopted--about the fifteen-minute limitation--is that still in effect, sir?

MR. HENRY

No, sir, it's not.

MR. CHATELAIN

This is a brand new ball game?

MR. HENRY

It's a new amendment, yes, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

O.K. Well, I want to speak later.

Further Discussion

MR. HAYES

Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm very much in agreement with Mr. Schmitt. The same thing happened--it happened to me yesterday. It takes a little more than one minute to get sixty-seven votes. I think that's what happened yesterday.

I am against this amendment. I'll tell you why I'm against it: Number One, is because it...it is by reference...you are referring to the Constitution of 1921 by reference. Now, if you look on page 376 of that Constitution on your desk, just turn to page 376, you'll find twenty-three pages. There's about four hundred and twenty-five words on each page. You multiply that and you'll find more words than you find in the United States Constitution. You adopting by reference a constitution, as long as the United States Constitution, in order to overturn one little amendment that was put in here yesterday by Mr. Schmitt.

If this can be done away with, with two-thirds of the legislature, why put it in here in the first place? The best way to adopt the Constitution of 1921, is to adjourn and die, and it will be adopted. We don't have to do it by reference.

Further Discussion

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I think this issue has been fully debated; it's been fully disclosed. I think by now you are either for the concept of some type of seniority, being one of the more important criteria used for determining promotions in the end. Now, you heard Chief Giarrusso... you heard Chief Giarrusso's dialogue with Mr. Flory, you know a couple of things that every eighteen months, people in the classified service must continually meet test requirements for promotional advantages in the future. There is nothing wrong with favoring someone, all other things being more or less equal, because of loyalty and seniority. I'd much rather have a fireman who made seventy-five on an exam, and who has got guts and experience and knows what to do, or to come rescue my child out of a burning building, than some kid who made, maybe, ninety-five, and just doesn't have the experience to know what to do. That's what this whole thing is about. Now, the legislature may change it, there's no question about it. If you remember yesterday, I asked one question to a speaker who has been adamant about wanting to change something that for thirty years no one has complained about. There have been, certainly, some few cases where somebody should have gotten a promotion maybe was a little better than the other guy. But, that's how the army works. It's on a seniority basis.

When I was in the service, I saluted captains, and stuff. I saluted the guy who was ahead of me in rank merely because his commission was ahead of mine by a week or so. That's just the way it works. There's nothing wrong with the system we have. There's nothing against it. There's no reason for changing the status quo by us. Let the Legislature do it if it needs to be done. But, for God's sakes, let's move on, let's move on, let's go on to something else. Let's get this constitution adopted. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I just wish this, that fellow delegates... that on this Saturday morning, that you would give me your attention for a little while because there's nothing that's come up in this Constitutional Convention that's more important to one-third, or at least one-third of the citizens of this state who live in cities that have a population between thirteen thousand and one hundred thousand.

Now, we spent a great deal of time on this same subject matter as it pertained to the city of Orleans. I just wish that you would give me the courtesy to listen to my appeal to you. My appeal is sincere; my appeal is justified. Now, let's look at these things objectively. Let's look where we stand today. The Schmitt amendment is a constitutional amendment. It provides for merit, efficiency, fitness, and the length of service or seniority as the condition for promotion. Let's look at this and listen to this awhile. This, my fellow delegates, please... let this sink in; this is a constitutional amendment. We are here for the purpose of writing a constitution for years to come. We are here for the purpose of writing a constitution for the day's needs, and many years to come--not to take...to shirk our duties and turn these things over to the legislature.

Let's look at another fact. The Flory amendment does just that. It shirks our duties and turns it over to the legislature. I say to you, let's listen to my remarks. Please, please pay attention, and please give me the courtesy to listen, fellow delegates. Let me cite a situation in...the city of Lafayette. Eighteen months ago, we had to appropriate by extraordinary emergency session, three hundred thousand dollars to beef up our police department. We hired twenty policemen, and bought twelve new police cars. Those twenty policemen were brought here to Baton Rouge at LSU and underwent an extensive six-months course in modern police technology. Those people have to grapple and cope with problems of today, not problems of ten or fifteen years ago. I want you to think for a while, what we are doing in this constitution. We are considering problems of today. Our Chief of Police is a citizen from the State of California. He came to Lafayette two years ago because we could not select anyone from the ranks that would...who could cope with the problems of the day. So, let me ask you a question, then; what... just think for a while, how in the world can you consider these facts? How can the mayor, the council, go about the business of hiring a police chief; number one, which we just did. The police chief, in turn, has to hire the policemen from a list offered by the civil service board, which is fair, and which I agree to. All right, then the civil service system has to do with the promotions of the amount of money they are paid, the regulations, and all the rules that they may work under. But still, that chief of police must hire and promote those officers in due time.

Now, how can a chief of police promote an officer--for the best efficiency of the police department we're speaking of now--how can he promote those policemen based on the best efficiency of the police of the city, and the police department. If seniority is the criteria? Just think about that for awhile.

I also want to ask you three questions before I sit down. One is, what has happened to those words that we've heard all through the ages, words like industries, as they apply to the individual. A person who goes out and works and studies and sacrifices to learn. What has happened to those words that mean so much in organization--be it a public police department, or any organization--the words esprit de corps? What has happened to those phrases and words? What has happened to the words of loyalty, dedication...that we have heard so much in the past? Don't they apply to police departments, and fire departments? Don't they apply to those departments? I say to you, why do you have a police department and fire department? It's to protect the life and safety of the citizens of our various cities throughout this state. That's why we have police departments and fire departments. I ask you, who should be responsible for the safety of those people in these various cities that spread out all over the state? As a matter of fact, from the city of Lake Charles, Louisiana, the city of Houma, Louisiana--there are over twelve cities that have a population of over thirteen thousand people. There is one-third of the people of this state living in that area, ladies and gentlemen. I would say to you, who has a right to control the lives and safety of those people? Is it the local people? Or is it Mr. Victor Busale and the AFL-CIO who wants to refer everything to the legislature, so they can go there and use the same tactics that they are using here today, is to put the muscle on the delegates, and the members of the legislature.

I say to you, let's leave it to the people who live in these cities. Ask people who have the responsibility of taking care of their own health and safety. I ask and plead to you, please turn down, vote down this amendment of Mr. Flory's. Let's keep the Schmitt amendment in there where the people in this state can serve themselves rather than by being dictated to by some organizations in this state. I thank you very much.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

I should waive I guess, but I wanted to answer one statement that was made about muscle, and just tell you that the way I feel this morning with this fresh cold, there just is no muscle available. There has been none to my knowledge.

Mr. Chairman, just to make certain that everybody understands what we are doing, we are transferring this entire matter into the hands of the legislature. If change is needed, people with expertise in both areas from all sides, can come and be heard, and the legislature make an intelligent decision as to what change ought to be made, if any. I ask you for the concurrence in this amendment, and let's adopt this section.

[Quorum Call: 107 delegates present and a quorum. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 83-31. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The amendment reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 12, in the Floor Amendment proposed by Delegate Denney, et al, and adopted by the convention yesterday, delete Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and just adopted and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Permanent appointments and promotions in municipal fire and police civil service shall be made only after certification by the applicable Municipal Fire and Police Civil Service Board under a general system based upon merit, efficiency and fitness, and which also shall give consideration to length of service."

[Amendment reread.]

Explanation

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I know the mood that this convention's in this morning. I know it is Saturday morning. I know that we have problems. I know you want to go on about the business of ending this section. I know that you've got some people like Delegate Roy, who is ready to pounce upon me because I'm here trying to represent people in this state. But fellow delegates, please look at this amendment for a little while and compare it to the Schmitt amendment, and compare it to the Flory amendment. This is a constitutional amendment. This is what we're here for this morning, is to write a constitution for the people of today, and the people yet unborn in this state, who want protections in the constitution. Since July 5, we've heard it time and time again that we want to write a constitution to protect the people in this state. I say to you, for the people who live in the cities of this state, with its population of thirteen thousand upward, deserve certain constitutional protection. I say that this is a good amendment. It is an amendment that faces it squarely in the face. It's not a black issue, it's not a white issue. It's not a south Louisiana issue, and certainly not a New Orleans issue because we have already resolved the problem of Orleans. We had to go in through the back door, the side door, and all doors to finally resolve the situation where we could give the people a right to vote upon it. I want you to think about these things for awhile. All I'm asking you is, that you consider those people who live in these cities from thirteen thousand upward, below the population of Orleans. This is what I'm appealing to you for, is to give us constitutional rights, as you have given in many other areas of government in this state. I would certainly suggest to you that this amendment, in fact, does give consideration to seniority. It spells it out, Mr. Flory, in no uncertain terms...it spells it out. It says "it shall give consideration to length of service." I don't see where you could go wrong with this. If you want to represent the people of this state, how in the world can you go wrong? This is an awaited amendment. It's wedded to the fact that you have to consider a situation such as efficiency, fitness, merit, and the length of service. What is wrong with an amendment like this? I appeal to you fellow delegates, that you will vote for this amendment and really serve the people of this state as you were elected to do or appointed to do.

Mr. Chairman, I suggest that we have a roll...record vote on this amendment, please.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I hate to rise again, but again we are getting back into the posture of legislating in much too important an area. If you look at the amendment very carefully, he deletes the amendment we just adopted. But he doesn't, and that, then, in effect, leaves then, the Schmitt amendment, and then we are right back where we started, plus the fact that what you are doing here and putting into the constitution, something that can't then be changed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature, I suggest to you, let's defeat this amendment. Let's vote on the section, and let's vote on the article. This is too important an issue to play politics with, to try to resolve here without the expertise required. I ask you to reject this amendment and let's adopt the section.

Questions

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Flory, it's a lot of noise going on back here. I had a little difficulty understanding one of the remarks that you made, sir. You said something about "if I'm correct, please correct me if I'm wrong."

I think I heard you make a statement, sir, "let's not play politics with this." Am I correct, sir?

MR. FLORY

I said that this is too important a subject to play politics with or try to legislate in the area that's so serious and so complicated. Period.

MR. CHATELAIN

You didn't infer, of course, that I'm trying to play politics with it, sir?

MR. FLORY

That's exactly what I said--what I just repeated to you. I didn't mention your name at all, Mr. Chatelain.

MR. CHATELAIN

Because if you inferred, sir, that I was trying to play politics, I think that's the exact opposite from that, sir.

MR. FLORY

I said, as a broad statement, Mr. Chatelain, I said this is too important an area.

MR. HENRY

Mr. Smith.

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, I think we've whipped this dog to death. I'd like to move the previous question on the entire subject matter.

[Previous Question ordered on entire subject matter: 58-39.]

Closing

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm going to close in a most unusual way. Mr. Newton and Mr. Perez, if you'll just listen a little while, I'm going to show you how I'm going to close this one.

This is my closing remark. This is my closing remark. Vote your conscience.

[Amendment rejected: 35-72. Motion to reconsider tabled. Section adopted: 97-13. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

MR. SCHMITT

You've seen in the last several days how the will of the minority, special interest coalition has broken the back of the will of the majority of the convention. Just giving into the minority was done in a spirit of compromise. Yet, their compromise is out as soon as the labor coalition obtained its objective. Labor then sought to obtain, almost immediately, those things which allegedly were bargained away to obtain the concessions it had previously desired but had failed to obtain. For the life of me, I cannot understand why labor--through Mr. Gordon Flory--has fought so hard to deny justice to those who have cried for it and if not given it shall one day justifiably demand it. Those who have in the past fought for the protection of the disenfranchised, for youth, for justice, for efficiency in government, suddenly desert the ship of the ideals and leave the choppy waters of the open sea of freedom for the safety of the sheltered harbor of labor's demagoguery. It is time when each delegate must decide whether you shall allow those ideals, which so many of our country's great leaders have died for, to be championed by each of us or shall we choose the death of those dreams, the dashing of those hopes for some temporary gain which may have been promised us. This convention has been a great education to me. I have seen those for whom I have a great deal of respect bow to the desires of labor when those desires were often questionable in nature. But, this former issue was no such issue. The issue was not a foggy one, the choice was clear. Shall the number of years of service be the sole criterion for advancement in the civil service or in the alternative, should some other factors be considered? Should this be allowed to be decided by a simple majority vote or to allow labor to prevent its adoption by a simple coalition of one-third of the votes in the legislature? Should this system have the chance for infusion of new ideas which may create untold benefits in the fields of opportunity for youthful ideas--not necessarily youth--and for efficiency in government, or should those who do not have the most years of service--which is not necessarily the most experience --have no opportunity to even get the chance to advance themselves. I do not understand how those of you who have prostituted your ideals to curry favor of labor can or will ever be able to get a good night's sleep again. How can you stand to see the face in the mirror which is a mask to hide the horror of a soul which has not been true unto itself? I would request, at this time, that you wipe away that scar from your soul; you stand up for justice and you defeat this proposal, at the present time, so that we might get through the necessary changes. I thank you for your time.

Personal Privilege

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman and delegates, ladies and gentlemen, this is the first time I have taken this microphone on special privilege. I felt myself compelled to do so because I believe that there has been some expressions here that are inconsistent with our democratic system. Mr. Schmitt is a friend of mind, and I know that Mr. Schmitt has political aspirations. I know he is a very upstanding, honest, young man. I think, however, that the voice of experience should be able to say to him at this point that he may be traveling the wrong road. I don't think that labor need apologize for anything labor has done. If labor, through its political muscle, can elect a majority of the delegates and come up here and dominate the convention, then labor does it; if the Chamber of Commerce can do it, also well and good; if anybody can do it, in fact. But the delegates to this convention consist of all kinds of people, of all views--I have watched their voting habits. There are no really strong coalitions here. I'm black; I'm labor; and, incidentally, I'm a businessman; I employ people. Now, with whom should I vote? But, I'll tell you how I vote. I vote for the best interest of the people. Now, I know there are many complaints by all of us. I have had times when I believe that you have voted racist--when I thought you voted racist. But, then I thought and I reflected and I said, "I don't believe a majority of those delegates are racist out there." I found out over a period of time that you are not. I don't believe you are pro-labor or anti-labor, or pro-management or anti-management. I believe you are just delegates elected by the people and appointed by the governor to represent the people here writing a convention. I implored Mr. Schmitt to refrain from these outbreaks and these attacks on labor because if labor can be singled out--and this is very serious--if labor can be singled out as the culprit in drawing up this constitution, then the campaign to approve the constitution will be pro-labor and anti-labor. If labor can be singled out, eventually blacks will be singled out, or Italian-Americans will be singled out, or Jewish-Americans will be singled out. So, I'm asking you and I'm hoping that this kind of attack will stop and that we will not have to discuss this kind of thing any more. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Committee Proposal No. 10 passed: 99-11. Motion to reconsider pending.]

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 15, introduced by Delegate Rayburn, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Revenue, Finance, and Taxation, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal relative to the tax structure of the state and to public finance. Status of the proposal--the convention has adopted the first seven sections of the proposal as amended with the following exceptions: Those being that Sections 4 and 6, respectively, were passed over on yesterday.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 8. State Debt; Interim Emergency Board
Section 8. (A) The Interim Emergency Board hereby is created and shall be composed of the governor, the state treasurer, the legislative auditor, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, or their designees.

(B) During the interim between sessions of the legislature, whenever it is determined by majority vote of the Interim Emergency Board that an emergency exists, and then only for a purpose for which the legislature may appropriate funds, after having obtained, as provided by law, the written consent of two-thirds of all members elected to each house of the legislature, the Interim Emergency Board may appropriate from the State General Fund, or borrow upon the full faith and credit of the state an amount of care for an emergency, which is an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature.

(C) The aggregate of indebtedness outstanding at any one time and the amount appropriated from the State General Fund for the current fiscal year under the authority of this section shall not exceed one-tenth or one percent of the total state revenue receipts for the previous fiscal year.

(D) Each fiscal year, as a first priority, there is hereby allocated from the State General Fund an amount sufficient to pay any indebtedness incurred during the preceding fiscal year under the authority of this section."

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I presume that the reason that I was selected to handle this particular section is because I'm having financial emergencies most all the time and that's what this section of the constitution relates to--financial emergencies. We make the following proposed changes: at the present, we have what we call the Board of Liquidation. That board is composed of seven people at the present time; it is composed of the governor, the lieutenant governor, the speaker of the House of Representatives, the chairman of the Appropriation Committee, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and the comptroller. At the present time, it is limited to a total appropriation of one million dollars per year with the provision that the Board of Liquidation cannot appropriate more than one hundred thousand dollars to any budgetary unit. Now, that in gist is what we presently have in the constitution. There is a provision, of course, that this Board of Liquidation can borrow up to two million dollars, but that provision has hardly ever been used or exercised. Our proposal will change the makeup of the Board of Liquidation to the governor, the chairman of the House Appropriation Committee, giving representation by the House of Representatives, wherein that these appropriations must come from and have some knowledge as to what should be done and, likewise, the counterpart, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; together with the state treasurer, who certainly should know the balances in the state budget at that particular time, and the legislative auditor. The reason for these particular individuals is because it's partly the duty and responsibility of the governor to have the overall situation of state government in hand and knowing whether or not that this is a real emergency or not. Also, the treasurer knowing what the situation or the financial situation, of the state is at the time, together with the chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate and the House Appropriations Committee because in the proposal we have, it must be something that the legislature could not have anticipated. Therefore, those two individuals would know whether or not it is that type of an emergency. Of course, the legislative auditor who has a check upon these various agencies of the state and knows whether or not that that is actually an emergency insofar as they are concerned, with their particular finances. There are two very significant changes in making these appropriations which is not contained in the present provision of law. One is that it must be something which the legislature could not reasonably have anticipated. The second is that it must be a real emergency. Under the present provisions of the law you can make appropriations without there being an emergency by the Board of Liquidation. As a legislator I can tell you, that I have seen numerous instances wherein appropriations were made which I did not consider any emergency whatsoever; they could have, certainly, have well waited until a meeting of the legislature. In fact of the business, I know of occasions where they did not want to bring it before the legislature because they thought they might not have as good a chance of getting the money as they would from the Board of Liquidation. There is another significant change in this proposal. As I first related to you, the present law limits appropriations to one million dollars a year for all emergencies. This proposal limits it to one-tenth of one percent of the total state budget, which means as the state budget goes up the amount that can be appropriated for emergencies can go up. There has been no change in the million dollar figure since 19...since we originally had the proposal--as far as I know. This will allow a fluctuation insofar as that particular amount, because it can only be one-tenth of one percent of the preceding year's budget. At the present time, our state budget is approximately two billion dollars which would mean that we would have an appropriation that could be made up to two million dollars in this particular category. One other significant change in this is that, as I previously related, the present law limits limitation of the appropriation to a budgetary unit of one hundred thousand dollars. I have seen on a number of occasions wherein that the amounts of the emergencies in the needed appropriations amounted to more than a hundred thousand dollars, and so the Board of Liquidation would get around that particular way by appropriating two different budgetary units the amount of funds necessary to meet the particular emergency so that the budgetary units could consolidate those funds and meet the requirement. Those are the chief changes and provisions of this proposal. Now, Mr. Chairman, I will be glad to answer any questions that might want to be asked about this proposal.

Questions

MR. BLAIR

Senator De Blieux, why did you leave the lieutenant governor out and why the legislative auditor?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Why did we substitute the legislative auditor?

MR. BLAIR

Yes, for the lieutenant governor.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, for the reason of that is that the executive department is really represented by the governor. We saw no particular reason or particular input that the lieutenant governor or really the speaker of the House could put in at that particular time since this was the emergency matters. We put in those particular people that we thought it would be necessary for their information to meet their emergency requirements.

MR. BLAIR

Let me quote you a case, and I want you to point out in this section where we could be absolutely protected in it and the case is this: suppose I have a bill and I create an agency; I don't have the funds; I can't get the funds during a legislative session. You know and I know that time and time again we have created agencies through the Board of Liquidation. Do you have it spelled out in this section that that cannot happen?

MR. DE BLIEUX

If it's not an emergency, Senator Blair, under this particular provision of the constitution, if it's not an emergency which could have been anticipated, then you can't get those funds.

MR. BLAIR

O.K. I passed a bill; I passed a bill creating an agency and the funds are not supplied at that time and then I can declare an emergency later and get it through the Board of Liquidation?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Not under this proposal, Senator Blair, you can't do that because that's something that the legislature could have anticipated, the need of those funds by the very passing of that bill.

MR. BLAIR

Is that in line 20? Is that where it's...where you have the protection?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, I would say in line 26 and 27; it says "for an emergency, which is an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature."

MR. NUNEZ

Senator, how long has this Board of Liquidation we now have been in effect?

MR. DE BLIEUX

It was last amended in 1964, but I think it's been in the constitution since it was adopted in 1921.

MR. NUNEZ

Will you tell the constitution how many emergencies you feel we have actually had where we had to appropriate emergency funds through this board?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Oh, I say less than half of them I would consider actual emergencies--a whole lot less than half of them.

MR. NUNEZ

I would say you are being very liberal with your estimate.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, I feel that way, Senator Nunez.

MR. LEBLEU

Senator De Blieux, are you aware that in the past there have been bills..appropriation bills in the legislature to increase the Board of Liquidation's amount from one million dollars up to three and none have been successful?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Yes, I realize that but...well, we had two-thirds...this is one reason why we have done this is because we think we've got a much tighter reins on the meeting of emergencies in this particular one. Then, after all, even after the Board of Liquidation passes it, it still has to receive a two-thirds vote of the voting members of the House of Representatives--before we only had a majority vote, as you well know--this tightens it up much further and makes it much tighter.

...and, I think possibly because of the previous reason when it was so liberal is why that they didn't increase the amount.

MR. LEBLEU

...but, the state budget is now two billion dollars and by your figures here the legislature would have to appropriate two million or one-tenth of one percent every year to begin with. By this section you would be increasing the money now appropriated to the Board of Liquidation by one hundred percent.

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, Representative LeBlen, that is not exactly correct because they can only appropriate the funds which are surplus in the state treasury at that particular time to meet that emergency. Now, they have the privilege of also borrowing that amount of money on the succeeding year's revenues; they have to pay that money that's borrowed--if they did have to borrow any--first before they can go ahead and make any appropriations--that's as a result of Paragraph (D) that has the first priority in paying those funds off.

MR. LANIER

Senator De Blieux, is what we are doing here...what we call at home "setting up a slush fund," so to speak?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, we are tightening up on the slush fund, Mr. Lanier, that's what we are really doing, we are tightening up on it.

MR. NUNEZ

Senator De Blieux, you just admitted that it was a slush fund, I assume.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, sometimes I think that's what Mr. Lanier was talking about; I certainly think that it has been used for that and....

MR. NUNEZ

Well, why have you--another question--why have you taken the amount which was some limitation on the slush fund of a hundred thousand dollars and then just taken it out altogether which means, that if an agency comes in and wants to complete two million dollars they can get it?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, Senator Nunez, let's take this example. As you well know, I think, it was during the hurricane, Betay, that we had down in your particular area, at the time that it took more money than that to meet the needs of the guard, and repairs, and so forth down there. We had to make appropriations of two different agencies in order to get enough money to meet that requirement. Under this particular proposal, as we have it here, that if such a situation came up to where it was actually an emergency, as declared by the Board of Liquidation, and we had the money available, that we could appropriate what was the needed funds to that particular event. Now, you must remember this, it requires two-thirds vote of the elected members, not just a majority as we have at the present time.

MR. NUNEZ

Senator, isn't there other provisions in the law, whereby an agency that runs into an emergency that they're allowed some sort of deficit spending or spending that would allow them to borrow on next year's revenues if there is a dire emergency, rather than setting up a two million dollar fund?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, that's in our present law that we allowed that. But, now I don't know whether or not that's going to be in the proposal when we finally get through with it--being able to borrow money that way or make up definite appropriations. I don't believe we can do that under the present provisions we have in this proposed constitution, that you can go beyond your budget.

MR. ROEMER

Senator, I've heard a couple of people who have questioned you refer to this as a slush fund. Well, it might have been that in the past, but haven't we put some teeth in it in our committee? For example, don't you agree with me that haven't we increased the vote from a majority to two-thirds; haven't we done that?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's right, Mr. Roemer; not only did we increase the vote that it takes to appropriate these funds, but we have even tightened up the reasons for what they can be used. It must....

MR. ROEMER

Exactly.

MR. DE BLIEUX

...actually be an emergency which could not have been anticipated by the legislature.

MR. ROEMER

And, the question by Senator Nunez about these agencies and things, hasn't our whole proposal emphasized capital budgeting and planning and, hopefully, we can reduce these needless expenditures like that and use this fund for real emergencies?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's right, and I might say in reference to yours that this is one of the particular provisions in our proposal that PAR--Public Affairs Research--were particularly praising us for having done...it's a that type of proposal; we have tightened it up and made a much better management of our state finances.

MR. O'NEILL

Senator De Blieux, how much of the million dollars a year do they usually spend now? Do they usually spend right up to the million?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Yes, practically all of it. They usually have some agencies that they will defer until the latter part of the fiscal year. Then, if they have any funds left over, they will go ahead and make the appropriations to them.

MR. O'NEILL

Now, following Mr. Roemer's question, would it be adequately defined as saying now we have a slush fund with teeth?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, that's not right because this is not going to be that type of fund; I can assure you on the provisions we have in this proposal.

MR. SINGLETARY

Senator, is this necessary to be in the constitution? If so, could you tell us briefly why?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Yes, Mr. Singletary, I think it is because we have to have some way to meet emergencies if they should happen. What this is, this is the meeting of emergencies only between sessions of the legislature. If the legislature can be called into session and taking care of something if it's a serious emergency, then you don't need these particular provisions. But, sometimes, you run into matters that only involves maybe fifty, sixty, or seventy thousand dollars. But, it cost over a hundred thousand dollars to call a special session of the legislature, so, therefore, you need this particular....

MR. SINGLETARY

Well, could this be provided by law?

MR. CASEY

I'm sorry, Senator De Blieux has exceeded his time. Are there any amendments, Mr. Clerk?

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 4, delete lines 13 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"created and shall be composed of the governor, the lieutenant governor, the state treasurer, the presiding officers of both houses of the legislature, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and the chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, or their designees."

Explanation

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, let me see if I can explain this to you precisely. This board, of course, replaces the Board of Liquidation of State Debt. The present...on the...in the present Board of Liquidation of State Debt, the lieutenant governor and the speaker of the House of Representatives are on the board. The committee proposal deletes the speaker of the House of Representatives and the lieutenant governor. In my opinion--and, of course, the legislative auditor is on the board--it's my opinion that the legislative auditor is put in a very ticklish position being on a board that makes policy decisions and political decisions, since he is supposedly insulated from the political arena. In other words, if a legislator puts the pressure on the legislative auditor, he's in a position where he shouldn't be in, because this is a very important office. Certainly, the legislative auditor can advise this board, as he should, and give his recommendations. I don't think he should be voting on the board because it puts him in a difficult position and subjects him to political pressures which I don't think he should be. He should be able to give his recommendations without worrying about having to vote on the recommendation. Furthermore, I think that the lieutenant governor, under the Executive Committee proposal, would be on this board anyhow, because he's a member of any committee that the governor is on. I think we should give some specific duties to the lieutenant governor. Furthermore, I think the speaker of the House--we've inserted the speaker of the House of Representatives back on the board, in addition to the presiding officer of the Senate, and that the leadership of both houses of the legislature should be on the board in order to keep track of the financial situation of the state and to provide the leadership that these people are providing in the House and the Senate. I respectively submit to you that this is a better composition than the committee proposal.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

We don't do. . .this amendment does nothing to the basic context of the committee proposal except changes the composition of the board. I think it's more like the present Board of Liquidation. It retains the speaker of the House and the lieutenant governor and adds the president of the Senate. Of course, the legislative auditor's advice would be used, but I think he's in a difficult position if he's on the board.

Questions

MR. BLAIR

Mr. Duval, what you're doing here, though, are you not creating an eight man board?

MR. DUVAL

No, sir; it's a seven man.

MR. BLAIR

Seven. Well, the lieutenant governor was automatically on there, already, because of Section 6, Article IV, of the Executive Branch. So, you had a six man board there, and you've added two more since I. . .

MR. DUVAL

No, we've taken the legislative auditor out, so it would make it seven.

MR. ROEMER

Well, originally, I would be opposed to your amendment, Stanley, but it's just come to my attention that under the Executive Article that we've previously passed in this convention, that the lieutenant governor is an ex officio member of all boards that the governor is on. Is that not true?

MR. DUVAL

Yes, sir.

MR. ROEMER

So, we have to do something to balance it out. Isn't that also true?

MR. DUVAL

Yes, sir.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I support--personally--I support your amendment in that case.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection. Quorum Call: 82 delegates present and a quorum.]

MR. CASEY

The Clerk will read the Alario and Nunez amendment.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Two amendments and they are relatively short.

Amendment No. 1. On page 4, line 27, after the word and punctuation "legislature." add the following sentence:

"The maximum amount which may be appropriated for any agency during any fiscal year shall not exceed one hundred thousand dollars."

Amendment No. 2. On page 4, line 31, after the word "exceed" and before the word "of" delete "one-tenth" and insert in lieu thereof the word "one-twentieth".

Explanation

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Vice Chairman, members of the convention, all these two amendments simply try to do is to bring the Interim Emergency Board more in line of what the law is today, in the effect that the appropriations in this Amendment No. 1 would be limited to one hundred thousand dollars. That's exactly what it is today. I don't think we've had any serious problems with that in the past, and I think we ought to put some limitation so that these. . . It has been admitted by the authors and by the proponents of this section that this is a slush fund, as such, and we want to make sure that we're not exceeding these amounts in any one particular agency. The Amendment No. 2 also tries to bring the section in the line of what the present law is, in saying that no more than one-twentieth of the total budget would be appropriated, which, in effect, would be right near one million dollars as it stands today, rather than doubling the fund as is proposed in the amendment.

Questions

MR. O'NEILL

John, don't you think by putting this hundred thousand dollar limitation on it that it will stop some new agency from being created and coming to this board to have that agency funded, rather than going through the regular legislative process?

MR. ALARIO

Gary, I don't think it will stop an agency from being created. It will just control it from becoming a giant agency. I've seen them established in the legislature in my first few years when I didn't really understand, to be honest with you, what they were doing and just how they were financing. At the time they're presented on the house floor, they tell you, "Well, this is just creating the agency, and then next year we'll appropriate the money." Lo and behold, here comes the first ballot for us to vote for the funds to set up this agency, and at the same time, it looks like they're setting up directors, assistant directors and attorneys, and they're putting in twenty and thirty thousand dollar salaries. So, at least it will have some minimum amount of control in that respect.

MR. ABRAHAM

John, when you spoke of the hundred thousand dollar limit, and you said that's exactly what the present law is today, well, now, is this the statutory law, or is this in the constitution that it's a hundred thousand dollar limit?

MR. ALARIO

I understand that to be the statutory limitation.

MR. ABRAHAM

What's that?

MR. ALARIO

Well, I'm informed it's in the constitution.

MR. ABRAHAM

Oh, it is in the constitution, now? It's not statutory? Could not it be handled by statutory law just as well, without having to write this type of thing into the constitution?

MR. ALARIO

Possibly. I think it. . .

MR. ABRAHAM

Don't you think it would be better to make it statutory?

MR. ALARIO

No, personally I think it's better here 'cause then it gives that protection that we're looking to guarantee, that there won't be any excessive amounts given in any particular agency.

MR. JENKINS

I think you have a good amendment, John. I want to ask you: Have you ever seen one of these mail ballots where something was rejected?

MR. ALARIO

No, Woody, I sure haven't.

MR. JENKINS

They always pass, don't they?

MR. ALARIO

In all fairness to the proponents of this section, Woody, I think the committee has strengthened that procedure in that they are providing for a two-thirds vote. In the past, it's been a simple majority. I have seen where one or two sections may have been in a little trouble had they required a two-thirds. But, at the same time, you and I know what type of politicking goes on in this type of procedure. If I'm interested in a particular appropriation for something in my area, and it looks like I might have trouble passing it, then I'll get on the telephone and have others call around to different Representatives and Senators. So, it's just a routine matter.

MR. JENKINS

One other thing, just a technical thing on your amendment. You say that--and I certainly agree with it--that no more than a hundred thousand dollars should be given to any agency during a given year. You know these things are also appropriated to political subdivisions. Do you think maybe you ought to put that in there too, so that it would not be in excess of a hundred thousand dollars to either to any agency or to any political subdivision?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. ALARIO

I wouldn't have any objection to you coming back with an amendment after. . .and clarifying that, Woody. I would prefer to adopt these two amendments, though, so we might move on.

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Alario, isn't it true that under the present law it takes a simple majority of the legislature voting on the mail ballot to approve these appropriations?

MR. ALARIO

That's right, Mr. Newton.

MR. NEWTON

Isn't it true that under this proposal it would take a two-thirds vote of the legislature?

MR. ALARIO

That's right, Mr. Newton.

MR. NEWTON

Now, isn't it also true that the city of Amite has just suffered a tornado damage--serious tornado damage--and isn't it true that they need an emergency appropriation of approximately a million dollars, and there's no way for them to get that now?

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Newton, I don't know the particulars of what the hurricane situation is in Amite. I can assure you, though, at this particular time in the year, as we go along, that depending. . .you would probably have to have your tornado strike sometime in early July to make sure that your city could get that whole amount, 'cause I can assure you all of that money is just about committed, now.

MR. BLAIR

Mr. Alario, the thing that worries me--and maybe correct me, I'm trying to find now--as far as state revenue is concerned, I think our last year's budget amounts to just approximately one billion, five hundred thousand dollars--five hundred million. Wouldn't you be cutting this a little short by dropping it down to one-twentieth?

MR. ALARIO

Senator, as I appreciate the section, we're talking about--when they say one-twentieth--we're talking about of the total budget which also would include federal revenues. . .

MR. BLAIR

I don't believe that you can count federal.

MR. ALARIO

It doesn't exclude federal revenues in this section.

MR. BLAIR

It says state revenue; I don't believe that includes federal. Anyway, I'm wondering, Mr. Chairman, if we could ask him to divide the question, if and when. . .

MR. ALARIO

Senator, it says "state revenue receipts," and the staff tells me the interpretation would mean receiving from the federal government. They were considering that it would include federal funds, and as I can recall in committee, that's exactly what they were trying to do.

MR. HAYES

Mr. Alario, this is an emergency board, I gather. Is that correct?

MR. ALARIO

That's the title given on it. I have other words for it, Mr. Hayes.

MR. HAYES

Then, how can we predetermine what the emergency is going to be and put it here in the constitution by. . .at some undetermined time?

MR. ALARIO

You and I can't predetermine what any emergency is going to be, Mr. Hayes. I can only look at what the past actions of this board has been.

MR. HAYES

Well, then, wouldn't it be better that if we were to leave this for the legislature or some other body to do since we don't know what an emergency would be; by fixing it in the constitution that it might be a hundred thousand dollars, when it might, in fact, be a million, like someone just said?

MR. ALARIO

I don't know.

MR. SCHMITT

What would happen in a situation, as happened in the past, with reference to the flooding of St. Bernard Parish, or flooding of Plaquemines Parish in which an emergency would be created and the National Guard would have to be called out? Would this hundred thousand dollar limitation apply in that case? In the future, wouldn't it require a constitutional amendment in order to increase this hundred thousand dollar limit?

MR. ALARIO

That's correct.

MR. SCHMITT

Wouldn't it be necessary, then, in order to have the money appropriated, to have a special session?

MR. ALARIO

I think there are other ways, Mr. Schmitt.

MR. SCHMITT

Well, according to what we have adopted, there won't be any other ways. Isn't the cost of a special session something like ten times this amount that you're talking about--in the ball park of a million dollars for the special session?

MR. ALARIO

Well, I'm sure you're not. . .well, it would seem to me what you're talking about also is an emergency that's not necessarily a hundred thousand dollars. It's probably ten times the hundred thousand dollars.

MR. SCHMITT

Okay, that's a million dollars, so you're going to call a special session for a million dollars so you can appropriate a million dollars? Isn't that a waste of money--fifty percent of your money?

MR. ALARIO

It would be, Mr. Schmitt, but I would think an agency of that type may also be allowed some deficit spending, in which the legislature would have no problem.

MR. SCHMITT

But, there is no deficit spending allowed under this constitution. It would be an unconstitutional act for them to go ahead and do that.

MR. ALARIO

That's correct, but I think they probably could get around it.

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Alario, isn't it true that one hundred thousand dollars is the present limitation on it?

MR. ALARIO

That's correct.

MR. LEBLEU

In case of an emergency, these appropriations can be made by the Board of Liquidation to different agencies, such as the State Police and National Guard, the Department of Public Works?

MR. ALARIO

That's what I'm talking about when they can get around any particular problem, Mr. LeBleu. But, at least there's some limitation there.

MR. JENKINS

Isn't it true, Mr. Alario, that really rather than costing more money for the state, like some of the apparent opponents of this amendment have suggested, that this is going to save a lot of money for the state because it's going to make sure that you're dealing with smaller amounts of money, and that if you have to appropriate larger sums, that more scrutiny is going to have to be given to it during the regular session of the legislature?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. ALARIO

Woody, I think the past actions of the Board of Liquidation certainly prove out what you say.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to represent the wishes of the committee. It's clearly stated, here, in our Section No. 8. We'd like to ask you to vote against this amendment. What they're trying to do, here, I think, completely circumvents the whole intention of our rewriting of Section 8. Now, let me tell you what the problem is. When the legislature is in session, it's their right and their obligation to access the budgetary needs of this state and provide the monies needed to carry out that budget, as they see fit. We're not changing that at all. We also have in this constitution a prohibition against contingency financing. That is financing subject to something happening--that's a contingency finance. But, what we do in Section 8 is allow for the reasonable expenditure of money when there is an emergency --in other words, when the legislature is not in session. Now, this is a good provision; this is a good article, because inevitably, emergencies that were not reasonably anticipated do arise. Now, don't be fooled by the proponents of this amendment. Section 8, as we have written it, tightens up the old Board of Liquidation, and tightens it up very strongly. Let me point out what we have done. Not only have we, for the first time, put in there the provision that instead of a majority vote of the legislature, it will require a two-thirds vote of the legislature. We've also put the limitation in there that if this expenditure could have been reasonably anticipated by the legislature, it can't be made; and unless it's an emergency, it cannot be made. Now, I don't think this convention wants to go on record as denying a small fund for the legitimate expenditures to meet emergencies in this state. What this amendment would do, by limiting the expenditures to a hundred thousand dollars for any such emergency, is trying to tell us, in their wisdom, that we can define how great the emergency will be. We cannot do that. How can we sit here and say that the emergency won't be two hundred and fifteen thousand dollars, or it won't be three hundred and fifteen thousand dollars? We can't say that. Sure, there are emergencies that amount to only fifteen thousand or thirty thousand. But, I submit to you that for the own well-being of this state, we should be able to meet emergencies that are greater than a hundred thousand dollars. If you read Section 8 carefully, I think that you will find that we do have a limitation on the aggregate dollar amount. That limitation is one-tenth of one percent of the total state revenues. That amounts to something less or around two million dollars, in any one year, at the present state revenue level. As the state revenues grow, so will that grow. If we get to the three billion dollar stage in our budget, we'll have the three million dollars that we can spend. But, these are for legitimate emergency purposes, and when we try to limit and define an emergency as something a hundred thousand dollars or less, I just don't see how in good conscience, or good logic, or good planning we can foresee the dollar amount of emergency. I ask you to defeat these amendments and stick with the committee report. It's a good report in Section 8. It has been praised by not only the members of our committee, but by outside people who have studied this. For example, PAR, in their report of yesterday, one of the things that they praised most highly in our whole report was Section 8. If you know anything about PAR, you know one of their most vehement criticisms in the past has been against the Board of Liquidation. They praise our committee for straightening it out. I ask you to defeat these amendments and stick with us in straightening out the Board of Liquidation.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Roemer, what is an emergency?

MR. ROEMER

It can be a number of things--a natural catastrophe or an unnatural catastrophe. We debated, Walter, as you probably know, in our committee at some length in trying to come up with a definition of emergency. But, it's just like putting a dollar limit on it. We couldn't possibly provide for all the kinds of emergencies. We decided that we could stick with the wisdom of these five, or now seven men and women in determining an emergency, number one. Number two, the two-thirds vote of the legislature would give some teeth, rather than a simple majority vote.

MR. LANIER

Well, wouldn't you admit that since the term "emergency" is not established by any fixed criteria, that this is, perhaps, the weak spot in the proposal, and the reason for the amendments being proposed is to protect in that type of a situation? Would you agree with that?

MR. ROEMER

Yes, I do. Let me point out two things, Walter, to you. On lines 26 and 27, it says "an amount to care for an emergency, which is an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature." I think that is some step. In addition to that, this amendment does not correct the flaw that you point out. It doesn't define emergency, either. All it does is arbitrarily say, "Well, at least no occurrence will be greater than a hundred thousand dollars." They don't correct what you point out. They just put an additional limitation on it.

MR. ANZALONE

Buddy, let's take the not so hypothetical situation of an agency that was created for--and I understand we have five people on this Interim Emergency Board-- for a brother-in-law of one of them, and they came up with a budget of, say, seventy-five, eighty thousand dollars, sixty-five of which was salary. The legislature decided, in its infinite wisdom, that they were only going to appropriate thirty thousand dollars for this. Well, of course, to keep the legislative auditor's brother-in-law in a happy job, or something like this, they go along with the proposition that all he needs is eighty-five thousand dollars, when three months later-- as Alario says, in July it's all promised--he comes back and he says, "Well, I told you all I didn't have enough money." They said, "Well, don't worry about it, because we've got the Interim Emergency Board." Would this be classified as an emergency, just because somebody ran short of money? It was heard by the Appropriations Committee; it was heard by the Finance Committee. They knew they were going to run short of money; they knew that they were not going to have enough, but, yet, your giving the Interim Emergency Board the authority to give them up to one million dollars, if they so decided?

MR. ROEMER

Well, I think you answered your own question. In no way, under lines 26 and 27 could that be interpreted as an emergency. I'll read you the line again. It says, "an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature." If the legislature created the agency, then they obviously knew it was going to need money to fund it. So, they had reasonably anticipated that. We discussed this specifically in our committee; it would not be an emergency. It's just a scare tactic.

MR. DUVAL

Buddy, you pointed this out, but I don't know if people are really cognizant of the fact that under the present law, it doesn't have to be an emergency, does it?

MR. ROEMER

That's exactly right. We have tightened it up.

MR. DUVAL

So, people can come around with little bits and pieces and just eat the fund to death under the present law; isn't that right?

MR. ROEMER

Exactly right. Let's don't undo what we've done here. I can tell you this, Mr. Duval: if we were talking about the old Board of Liquidation, I wouldn't want to put a million dollar limit on it or a hundred thousand dollar limit. I'd want to take it out altogether. But, we're not talking about the old way of doing business. We're talking about the new Louisiana, here, and the new way of doing business.

MR. STINSON

Under the new Louisiana, who's going to pass on whether it's an emergency or not? The board is set up, isn't it?

MR. ROEMER

Two bodies would pass on it. The Interim Board, number one, and the legislature is number two. It would take both, and the second one would be by two-thirds vote.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. STINSON

Don't you know in the past it, supposedly, was supposed to be emergencies, but at least ninety-five percent of them were not.

MR. ROEMER

In the past, that's absolutely correct. I would say this, Mr. Stinson: in the future, they might try it again. But, we have tried, by that two-thirds vote, to let people like you who might be in the legislature have a chance to vote no and have it mean something.

MR. STINSON

In the past, usually, most of them were those that couldn't get it through the legislature and were afraid to even try. They used this as a means to prevail by calling around to the people to vote.

MR. ROEMER

That's right. In the past, that's absolutely been the case.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I just wanted to further bring out this by asking you this question: We are still talking about two-thirds of the legislature permitting it. We are also talking about members of that legislature on this board saying that they agree to it. So, by what means do they think that they could possibly limit it in the legislature as a whole, if they get two-thirds to vote for it?

MR. ROEMER

Exactly. Somebody brought up a fact about an agency that was passed by a simple majority, and they're going to get the money by a two-thirds vote? That's ridiculous.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I can't add too much to what Mr. Roemer has said, but I want to point out to you, very strenuously--and Mr. O'Neill, I want you to listen to this because you did ask this question after I had repeated it two or three times--this is going to absolutely cut out the creation of agencies without appropriations, and then coming to the Board of Liquidation and getting money. That will not happen anymore if we pass this proposal. It will stop the business of going around and fencing places to where that ever. . . as Senator Blair and a lot of us know that has happened in the past, where that we build fences out of the Board of Liquidation's money. That will not happen anymore if we pass this particular provision. As I see this particular provision, based upon my experience as a legislator, we possibly will be spending a lot less money from the Board of Liquidation than we have been spending--not more, less. I say this: whenever we expend the money this time, you can bet your bottom dollar it will be an emergency. Take the proposal and look at lines 25, 26, and 27, again, very carefully. I want you to read those lines. It says, "for an emergency which is an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature." There is no provision like that in the present law. I ask you to defeat the amendment.

Questions

MR. KEAN

Senator, as I appreciate this proposal, the Interim Emergency Board could borrow money for the purpose of meeting these emergency situations, could it not?

MR. DE BLIEUX

The Board of Liquidation can do that now, Mr. Kean. We did not take that provision out for this particular reason: if we have appropriated all the money that's in the general fund, that's the only place this money can come from. There's actually. . . suppose we have a hurricane or tornado, or something that destroys an area, and we need two or three hundred thousand dollars, and that amount of money is not in the state treasury at that particular time. The Board of Liquidation can borrow that money and use it for that particular emergency. That is. . . and this particular board. The Interim Emergency Board could borrow that amount of money. But, that money would have the first priority and claim on next year's revenue receipts, according to Paragraph (D) of this proposal.

MR. KEAN

Well, I'm not critical of its authority to borrow. I simply want to clarify whether or not, under Section 10, dealing with the State Bond Commission, the State Bond Commission would have to approve any borrowings that the Interim Board might undertake.

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't think under this particular circumstance that it would be necessary to do that, Mr. Kean. Now, I haven't compared the two provisions; I'm not sure about that. But, here's one thing about it: the State Bond Board and this particular board, it constitutes practically the same people.

MR. KEAN

Well, under Section 10 (B), it says "No bonds or other obligations shall be issued or sold by the state directly or through any state board, agency, or commission unless prior written approval of the State Bond Commission is obtained."

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, this would not be bonds, in my opinion. This would probably be a note or obligation of the state, if they had to borrow money. But, we've never had to exercise that particular provision, in the past. I don't anticipate that it would be, but at least we. . . in the event that that emergency should come about, we have this particular provision.

MR. ROEMER

What about the case of some agency like the Atchafalaya Basin which went before the legislature to try to get some money, and they failed to get it? Could they come back before the general board and get it?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Not under this board, Mr. Roemer. They could not. No, sir.

MR. ROEMER

Not a bit, could they?

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as you know, when we get involved in particular articles that many of us aren't familiar with, things get extremely confusing. I've experienced that the last few days with civil service, and I had a great deal of difficulty with that particular article because you want to vote properly. It's difficult to make a decision as to what is proper and what it not proper because the opponents can confuse the issue to such an extent. I'll tell you that this particular provision is a problem. No one likes to give the purse strings to anyone, and if we didn't have to give the purse strings to anyone, we would not. But, just reason with me for a moment now. When we set up an appropriation for the State of Louisiana, we do it for a twelve-month period. That appropriation says, line by line, item by item, what each expenditure will be for the next twelve months. When we get to the bottom for that agency, we can't say "contingency." This might happen in the next twelve months, so we're going to give you fifty thousand or a hundred thousand dollars. That is prohibited in the appropriation bill. There is no way that you can anticipate something that may happen. You have to say in the appropriation bill, we'll spend "X" dollars for salaries; we'll spend "X" dollars for office supplies; we'll spend "X" dollars for rent, and on and on and on. That's the way our appropriation bill that allocates the 1.5 billion dollars is set up. Now, . . . two billion; O.K., Senator Nunez. That's the way our two billion dollars is spent. Now, it's big business to try for the hundreds of agencies in the state to say exactly what each agency will spend during the next twelve months. There's no way that that can be done. You couldn't do that at your house, as familiar as you are with your expenditures, it would be impossible for you to set up a budget and not plan for contingencies. Now, I hope at this point we're convinced that we're going to have contingencies. There's no way we can get around it. I hope at this point that you agree that you don't want to say that we are going to allow this agency in the beginning of the year, fifty, or a hundred, two hundred thousand dollars for contingencies. If we do, what will happen? They'll spend it; they'll find a way to spend it. You know they will. Now, there's no other way, then. If we can't allow for contingencies, if that system won't work, and if we're going to put item by item what they will spend, and we're not going to leave any leeway, how do we take care of emergencies and contingencies? Well, your committee dealt with that long and hard because none of us liked the old board. We knew what happened in the old board. So, we questioned everyone that we could question, and we did what we thought was best for the State of Louisiana. I worked with the old board, and it upset me so bad until, anytime I got a mail ballot in the mail, I threw it in the garbage. I said, well, what's going to happen? The vote's already lined up, and it's going to be approved. But, we've done something here now, and we said that if the occurrence, the event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature. That is good wording because I've seen in my tenure in the legislature a person go before the Appropriation Committee and before the legislature and lose his battle to get funds, then come back during the course of the year and be able to get the funds as an emergency. I submit to you that any delegate in this convention can come before you and confuse you because this is an emotional thing--that we don't want to give the purse strings to anyone. I submit to you that this committee has done a good job, that they've questioned everyone that they can possibly question. If you want to support this committee and the work that they've done, and the diligence that they've had, not just because they are a committee, but because they've worked hard, and they've talked to people that you aren't able to talk to right now. I don't know of anyone that we could have talked to that we didn't talk to. So, I ask you to defeat Mr. Alario's amendment---I know he means well in wanting to take care of the affairs of the state--and adopt the committee proposal as is because the committee proposal as is, I submit to you, is better than the amendment.

Chairman Henry in the Chair
Question

MR. WEISS

Delegate Lowe, you made a very effective presentation, and I enjoyed it, but what is the objection to reducing the term "one-tenth" to "one-twentieth"?

MR. LOWE

Well, you know, we could get to playing with figures, Dr. Weiss, and we could say what's wrong with reducing it to one-thirtieth, and I couldn't tell you that except that the safeguards of a two-thirds vote by the legislature, the safeguards of the vote that we have by the board, and the safeguards of the fact that which is an event or occurrence not reasonably anticipated by the legislature, builds in enough safeguards for us to provide a fund to meet emergencies. There are going to be emergencies. This convention would have had to shut down if we had not been able to go and get ninety thousand dollars. No one was able to anticipate what would happen in this convention. We went before the board last year, and I submit to you that we spent our money wisely.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, first let me say that the people who oppose this on the committee would make you believe that the committee is just composed of them. I'm a member of that committee, and so is Mr. Alario, and so is a lot of other people. If you know the history of a committee, and you know that the vote that we just made yesterday and the day before yesterday at those noon hour recesses we took to get the delegate proposals, it was just historical that all the votes were 9-9, 10-10, 11-11, and I'm telling you, it's been that way the whole time. So, don't say "the committee, the committee, the committee," because there were two committees. I don't want to dwell on that. I want to get to the meat of...the heart of what we're doing. Absolutely right, absolutely right that this is an improvement on what we had in the past. It's a tremendous improvement, and P A R is absolutely right. But, don't think that we don't, give us the opportunity to improve an improvement. Believe me, what we are doing is trying to improve on what the committee has improved upon. I believe if P A R had the opportunity after we adopt this amendment, to rewrite their analysis, they would say that the convention proposal is better than the committee proposal because what we are doing is absolutely improving upon this committee proposal. We're not changing any of the good improvements they've put in the Board of Liquidation. We're just adding two additional improvements: number one, we're limiting the amount of spending to a hundred dollars, a thousand dollars for an emergency; number two, we're limiting the total amount of dollars that they have. This is comparable to what is in the present constitution. The state budget is rising at a tremendous rate. You're putting it on a percentage factor--one-tenth of the total state budget. That's one or two billion dollars, two million dollars. In five years from now that state budget might be three billion. We just cut that down to get it comparable to what it is today. We just left a hundred thousand dollars because we thought it was adequate. It's a safeguard; it's a protection. I can tell you about the abuses that have gone on in the past, but I think you know about them.

In the past ten years--and I talked to many legislators here--they rarely voted on these things unless the legislator who went before the Board of Liquidation called them, or unless I called. Out of the fifteen or twenty proposals we get each week or each month or each three months, you can bet maybe one of them was a real emergency. All this business about hurricanes, I'm from the hurricane area. The state doesn't appropriate money to us as hurricanes. They don't rebuild our buildings; they don't rebuild our levees; they don't rebuild any of that. That's all for the fact, that's all for the National Guard, the State Police and the other state agencies that are involved in that. I've never got an appropriation, and I've been ravaged twice. We have never got an appropriation from the state through the Board of Liquidation or from anywhere else. So, don't be lured into the fact that this is...if we don't have this, we're going to leave cities and towns, and that without water, and without etc. It's not true. I'm telling you that we are improving tremendously on a good proposal. Personally, I would probably like to see this out of the constitution, and to deal with it in some other way. I believe P A R would also. But, the fact of the matter that it's here, and the fact of the matter is that we've done a tremendous amount of improving. So, what's so wrong with us trying to do additional improving? You know, when they first put this in the constitution--a million dollars--they would have tried to get a lot more, and I'm sure during the past history you heard Mr. LeBleu mention the fact that they've tried to raise it legislatively, and the legislature turned them down each time. Now, these are legislators that vote on this, and I can tell you, every time there's a vote, somebody's on that phone calling legislators, "vote for this, we need another vote." It will be the same way with the two-thirds. You don't have benefit of debate, and that's the big problem where I look at this. There's no benefit of debate; there's no presentation. You don't get two sides to a story. All you get is a piece of paper saying ten thousand dollars to this agency, twenty thousand dollars to this group, forty thousand dollars to this group. What it's for? What it's about? Certainly, four or five men now can declare the emergency, and I think it's better. But, I think the real safeguard in a democracy and a legislative body is the benefit of debate, which you're getting right here on this particular article--benefit of debate. Is that wrong? Should we not have that?

Certainly, we should. We're trying to do something that I think was a good article, and improve it. I resent, certainly, the fact as a member of the committee, that we can't even touch this. But, I think we'd done it to...

But, I'm telling you I think we've got a good idea here. I think we're trying to do something that would improve upon a good article, and I ask you to go along with it.

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time.

MR. NUNEZ

There's another provision in there that says that doesn't need...

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time, Senator.

[Record vote ordered. Division of the Question ordered. Amendment No. 1 reread and rejected: 49-50. Motion to table reconsideration adopted: 51-47. Record vote ordered. Amendment No. 2 reread and rejected: 45-56. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section adopted: 95-5. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to revert to Section 4 adopted without objection.]

Motion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask the delegates to turn to Section 4 in their CP-15, and listen to a motion I have. I'd like to move for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of considering this Section 4 of our Committee Proposal No. 15, lettered paragraph by lettered paragraph, with a view that all the rules and precedents of the convention applicable to the section, by section consideration of proposals, shall be applicable to the consideration of each proposed lettered paragraph of Section 4. That's my motion. I'll explain it if it's in order.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Point of Order

MR. CHAMPAGNE

A point of order: is there any explanation of why we want to do this?

MR. HENRY

A motion to suspend the rules is not in order. I assume that why the gentleman wants to do it is because there are so many amendments, but I don't know.

Point of Order

MR. JACK

I want to ask this point of order--I'm against suspending the rules--but, if they are suspended, then we don't get to say anything, and we go that section by section. You need sixty-seven votes for each section..for each paragraph, I mean?

MR. HENRY

You would need sixty-seven votes to adopt each paragraph, sir; that's correct.

MR. JACK

In other words, that's to knock us down that's got amendments.

MR. HENRY

Mr. Jack, now, you're not going to discuss the thing right now.

The gentleman has made the motion...

You certainly can discuss each of the lettered paragraphs; they'll be open for debate, questions and amended and so forth.

Point of Information

MR. AVANT

Just want to be sure, even though we adopted a lettered paragraph, and then it was laid on the table, we've still got to come back even though we go through this procedure and adopt the section by sixty-seven votes; do we not?

MR. HENRY

That's correct.

Point of Information

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Chairman, if we don't suspend the rules, we will consider amendments, though, paragraph by paragraph, as we normally do.

MR. HENRY

Well, then, I would assume we would do it as we've been doing so far.

Point of Information

MR. JENKINS

I have two amendments: one to (A), and one to (E), to create a new (E). But, I wouldn't offer the one to (A), if the one to (E) passes. Am I going to be able to come back and offer something to (A) after (E)?

MR. HENRY

If the rules are not suspended, and we debate this as a section rather than as subparagraphs or lettered paragraphs, you would be. Otherwise, you would not be.

[Motion to suspend the rules rejected: 33-55. Motion to waive reading of Section 4 adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, members of the committee, Section 4 deals with income taxes, taxes on natural resources, prohibition on political subdivisions of certain taxes, including severance taxes, income taxes, taxes on motor fuel. It also deals with the distribution of some of the funds arrived with from the severance tax--that's Section (D). If you would bear with me, I will just go ahead with the highlights of what the committee's thoughts were generally on these particular sections, and I know we have a number of amendments up before the convention to come on Section 4 and the various sections. I thought maybe we might just go ahead and proceed with the amendments Section (A) through (D), as we normally do. Section (A) deals with the income tax; takes out the present rates that are referred to in the constitution for income taxes. It does, however, limit the tax on personal income of ten thousand dollars for single persons, and twenty thousand dollars for joint returns to the present limitation of two percent. It does not mention any of the rates for incomes above that amount. Section (B) has to do with the taxes on natural resources severed from the soil or water, and it says that no further additional tax or license shall be levied or imposed upon gas or sulphur or oil, other than the severance at the place of severance. Section (C) deals with the prohibition of local governments levying severance taxes. It also prohibits them from levying income taxes and the committee felt strongly, I think with the exception of maybe one or two, that income taxes should be reserved for the state, and not for any of the political subdivisions. Section (D) tracks the present constitution, also as far as the distribution of funds, from the severance tax. I know there are several amendments, or one particular amendment up you might want to consider when the time comes.

Questions

MR. ABRAHAM

John, what was the thinking of the committee in leaving the base rate in for the personal income tax?

MR. ALARIO

Mack, the feeling of the members of the committee--now, I might go back a little bit with you and tell you that we had several discussions, and rather heated discussions on the rates on income taxes. Some members of the committee felt no rates should be included. Some had felt, at one point, that we should exclude all rates. Some felt that we should include them just as they presently are. At one point, we had passed in our committee an amendment that said that no incomes up to ten thousand for single and twenty thousand for joint returns would be taxed, and that passed. We came backward on reconsideration and put in this particular feature, keeping the rates lower for the lower income brackets--or what we figured were the lower income brackets--in order that we might protect what normally we consider the wage earner in this state, so that he wouldn't have to worry about the rates going up on him. It's merely a compromise to which...

MR. O'NEILL

John, my question was along those lines, but I wanted to specifically ask why the levels of income taxes for higher incomes were not included. It doesn't seem to make much sense to me to include one and then not include the rest of the scale.

MR. ALARIO

Gary, again, I'll say that it was a compromise worked out by the committee in order to satisfy all sides. There were those who felt by including the larger incomes, that you would be protecting those who are better able to pay and limiting them to four or six percent on income taxes where possibly they should be paying a little more, if the legislature so desires, and of course, by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. That provision's still retained.

MR. TOOMY

Mr. Alario, where you have the two percent limitation on the ten and twenty thousand dollars, you're referring here to taxable income. I believe the present law is "net income". Is it your understanding that the committee meant to change that to taxable income?

MR. ALARIO

No...we didn't mean to change it, Joe. We meant to keep the same percentage as presently exists.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Mr. Kean read as follows--the Kean amendment: Amendment No. 1. On page 2, delete lines 3, 4 and 5 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "and joint income tax schedule of rates shall never exceed the rates presently set forth in Title 47, Section 32 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes."

Explanation

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, if you'll look at page 2,

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

of the Committee Proposal No. 15, you'll find that my amendment is only applicable to individual and joint income tax returns. The background of the amendment is that at the time the Louisiana income tax was originally approved in 1934, the legislature adopted Act 339 of that year, and subsequently in that year, an amendment to the constitution was approved which, not only validated the provisions of Act 339 of 1934, but provided that the schedule of rates applicable with respect to the income tax should not at any time exceed the schedule of rates which was set forth in Act 339 of 1934. Now, those rates were as follows: two percent on the first ten thousand of an individual, four percent on the next forty thousand of the net income, and six percent on any amount of net income in excess of fifty thousand dollars. My amendment would simply provide, that with respect to the state individual and joint income tax schedules, that the rates authorized by this provision would not exceed the rates which are presently in effect under the provisions of Title 47, Section 32 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes, which is the present schedule of rates, and it follows from Act 339 of 1934. My amendment does not place any limitation upon the percentage with respect to corporate income tax which was the case under the 1934 provision. My amendment is limited solely and simply to the individual and joint income tax and would be retained, in effect, the rates which have been in effect since 1934. Now, you might ask, well, why should those rates be retained? There is no limitation insofar as the federal income tax is concerned. I think that the redactors, the people who put this in the constitution in the first place, felt that we should not leave it open insofar as the state income tax was concerned, and then have two income tax structures which could compete one with the other insofar as individual income taxation was concerned. I say to you that this, as is now proposed by the committee, leaves the two percent on the first ten and twenty, but creates open season on those above. I think it ought to be obvious to the members of this delegation that, as inflation continues and income rises, that it will not be unusual at all for even the working man to be outside of the ten thousand individual and the twenty thousand joint. I think this offers to that person a protection which they have enjoyed since 1934; it prevents rates from going up in competition with federal rates. Under the circumstances, I ask your favorable consideration of the amendment to put back in the individual tax limitations that have been in force in this state since 1934 and ought to be continued. Otherwise, I think we have put into this constitution a built-in means by which tax increase can occur in the state individual income tax field, and I don't believe that's what the voters sent us here to do.

I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Kean, to amend the limitations would take a constitutional amendment?

MR. KEAN

Yes, sir.

MR. BOLLINGER

You say this limitation would apply to individual income taxes, and there would be no constitutional limitation on corporate income tax; is that correct?

MR. KEAN

That's correct.

MR. BOLLINGER

Why the distinction?

MR. KEAN

I simply felt that we wanted to take what we could to protect the individual insofar as the tax return was concerned, Mr. Bollinger, and if somebody wants to offer a further amendment to continue the limitation insofar as corporations are concerned, I'd be willing to support it. But, I felt it was more important to deal with the individual tax than it was to be concerned with the corporations.

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Kean, the philosophy of your amendment is consistent with what we did in property tax, that is: to assure the individual people of this state that they would know that they would have some limitations in taxation in those two fields; isn't that right?

MR. KEAN

That's correct, Mr. Juneau. As I appreciate it, this is a limitation which the individual taxpayers have enjoyed since the time the Louisiana income tax was approved. I assume it was a selling point at that time for the constitutional amendment that authorized the income tax, and I think if we take it off, we're taking something away from the individuals of this state who pay income tax that they've enjoyed for many years and ought to continue to have.

MR. JUNEAU

If you take it off, you would logically be telling a substantial number of the citizens of this state that it's open season in taxation in the field of income tax; wouldn't you?

MR. KEAN

In my opinion, you will. Yes, sir.

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Kean, why do you follow this approach rather than stating specifically the rates here?

MR. KEAN

Dr. Asseff, I simply followed the approach that was used in 1934 in the 1921 Constitution.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Kean, on yesterday on the three dollar license, I admitted it...would I be right in assuming that possibly what you mean here is that the individuals vote but the corporations do not?

MR. KEAN

No, sir. I had no thought in that regard, Mr. Champagne. I simply think that when we're dealing with the individual income tax return that it's more important to give to the individuals the continued protection that they've had than it would be to the corporations. They can take care of themselves.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Kean, do you share my belief here that nothing we could do here would align the voters more than anything that we would do to create the prospect of an increase in income taxation?

MR. KEAN

Mr. Burson, I don't know about the voters, but it alarms me.

MR. BURSON

That was going to be my next question. Did you know that it alarms me, too?

MR. AVANT

Gordon, I want to make sure that I understand the thrust of your amendment. If your amendment is passed, then the rate of individual income taxation that is in the present law of the State of Louisiana is frozen, and to raise income taxation on individuals beyond that would require a constitutional amendment?

MR. KEAN

That's correct.

Mr. Avant

That's just for the record.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I would very much like it if we could pass a provision here and state that we would have government without taxation because that seems to be what we want. But, you know and I know that you cannot operate a government without revenues. The only reason in the world that the federal tax exemption was taken off in 1970 was the fact that that was the only way that we could get enough money at that particular time to operate the government. Now, we are passing provisions in this constitution limiting the legislature upon being able to operate this government to the point to where we are not going to be able to provide the type of government which is going to be demanded by the people. I know some of you are running for office, but when you get in that legislature and you have to try to find the finances to meet the demands of your constituents, you're going to have to look hard and long with the provisions we're locking into this constitution. At the present time, we have a dwindling resource that we're getting a large portion of our revenues out of oil and gas. In a few years that won't be there. The state's going to have to look elsewhere for money. Where are you going to find it? Where are you going to find it because we've put too many limitations in this constitution? I just feel like that we, instead of doing the state a service, we're going to be a disservice, and particularly, if we adopt an amendment of this particular kind. We should leave the taxing authority to the legislature. Those people are elected every four years, and they've got to face the people. They know what they've got to do in order to meet the demands of the people. Let's don't hamstring them where they can't operate, and putting a provision like this in the constitution, does just exactly that. You'll make it to where a legislature won't...he won't have too many problems because you've taken them all and solved them for him. This is not the place to try to solve the future problems of government. I ask you in all good conscience if you're going to do the job which we are sent here to do, let's vote down this amendment. It's not good for the state. It might be good for some upper echelon taxpayers, but it's not good for the State of Louisiana.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Questions

MR. WEISS

Senator De Blieux, in the deliberations in your committee, could you tell us what the policies of the other states are percentage-wise on state taxes in regards to corporations and individuals?

MR. DE BLIEUX

They're not...those rates are not placed in the constitution of other states, Dr. Weiss. That's what we're trying to do--put the rates in the constitution. That's bad constitutional law; it's bad policy; and it's bad anyway you look at it.

MR. CHATELAIN

Senator De Blieux, isn't it a fact that a power to tax is a power to destroy?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Certainly, it is.

MR. CHATELAIN

Isn't it also a fact, sir, that somewhere along the lines that the taxpaying citizens of this state are going to have to be looked out for by someone, either this constitution or someone else?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Yes, sir, Mr. Chatelain. Let me tell you this: it's pretty doggone tough to get a tax through the legislature. Those legislators are just as responsible as we are. That's the thing that I objected to--to think we're the only responsible people in the state.

Further Discussion

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I speak in opposition to the proposed amendment. I don't think that there's a whole lot that I can say in addition to what has already been said by Senator De Blieux. This amendment, very frankly, just affords tax protection for the affluent. I don't think that we should hamstring the constitution, even though there is a similar provision in the present constitution, by putting a schedule here that is absolutely unrealistic, and in my judgment, may very well work to the disadvantage of most of the people of the State of Louisiana in the future. The only generalized kind of taxes that seem to hit almost everybody are the sales taxes and the income taxes. Now, it just seems to me that the choice here is relatively clear. Are we going to provide an opportunity for the legislatures of the future to levy fair taxes on those who are most able to pay, or are we going to limit the activities of the legislature in the taxing field to require that taxes be imposed upon the poor and those who are less able to pay? I submit to you that that is the primary central consideration that you should keep in mind in considering this proposed amendment. I ask that you defeat it because I do think this is an area that the legislature can act in responsibly and sensibly, and that the legislature should be permitted to do so.

Questions

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Gravel, you made a statement that this is an amendment directed in the direction of the affluent.

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Sir, would you tell me whether or not a hardworking man who's out working every day of his life and earns ten thousand dollars a year--he has a wife and one child, and he pays fifty dollars state income tax--is he an affluent person, sir?

MR. GRAVEL

No, not necessarily. I wouldn't think so.

MR. JENKINS

Camille, now you talked about fairness. Now, I want to raise for you some statistics, and these were given from Mr. Edwin Cohen, the Under Secretary of the Treasury, in 1972, testifying in Congress. He said this: "Those people who make more than fifteen thousand dollars a year in this country comprise about thirteen percent of all those who filed federal income tax returns, and yet, that thirteen percent of the people"--those who make more than fifteen thousand dollars--"pay more than fifty percent of all the federal income taxes." Now, do you think that's fair?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, I don't know whether you're talking about the aggregate amount of payment or the percentage of payments.

MR. JENKINS

No, I'm saying that they paid more than half of all federal income taxes. More than half of all the money that the federal government gets in federal income taxes is paid by those who make more than fifteen thousand dollars a year, the upper thirteen percent of those who filed tax returns.

MR. GRAVEL

Well, let me just say this: I believe that people who earn a substantial amount of money should pay substantial taxes.

MR. JENKINS

But, don't they already?

MR. GRAVEL

Sometimes they do, and sometimes they don't. There are instances of people who have made substantial amounts of money in the last two or three years who pay very little income tax.

MR. JENKINS

But, despite those isolated instances, isn't it true that on the average those who make, say, over fifteen thousand dollars pay far more than their share of the taxes?

MR. GRAVEL

I don't agree with that. I think that the benefits, the loopholes, the exemptions, all benefit the affluent...generally, benefit the affluent.

MR. JENKINS

One other point I'd like to ask you. Mr. Cohen also said that "the bottom half of all those who pay taxes"--the bottom fifty percent of all taxpayers who file tax returns in this country--"pay less than ten percent of all federal taxes." In other words, half of the people are paying ten percent. Do you think that's fair?

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I've heard people get up here since July the fifth and talk for the little man until they were blue in the face. But, I haven't heard anybody get up here and speak for the average middle class citizen in this whole question of taxes, who's the man who pays all the income tax. Let's not kid ourselves. The federal tax system in the intricate mish-mash of exemptions and exclusions offers to those who have the means to hire adequate legal and accounting talent numerous ways to avoid paying taxes. The poor don't pay any taxes, and it's continuing to be developed an intricate system of welfare, food stamps, and other means of taking care of these people, and that's all right with me. But, the middle income man who depends on earned income, rather than income from property or income from trust funds that his grandfather may have set up....Have you ever noticed how most of the people in Congress who are most liberal in their ideas about how to spend your money are people who usually have had a trust fund set up for them by a grandfather that made his in the free enterprise system. I submit to you that if you go out on the streets in this state today, you're not going to find people complaining much, if any, about the property tax that they pay in the State of Louisiana, but I guarantee you you'll find loads of people complaining about the income tax that they have to pay to the federal government and to the state government. I submit to you that anything that we would do to create the slightest suspicion on the part of that man that he had an income tax increase in prospect for him in the future could defeat this constitution faster than anything I know. Let's do something, for a change, for the man in the middle--the average hardworking man who pays the bills in our society--and let's support this Kean amendment and insure him that, at least in the area of state income tax, that he won't have a tax on his earned income to the point that utterly deprives him of initiative to get out and progress in his business and to do well and, coincidentally, to help our society do well. I urge in the strongest possible terms your support of the Kean amendment.

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Burson, did not, very recently, in the space of ten days that there was a particular tax known as the severance tax--tripled?

MR. BURSON

That's correct.

MR. WILLIS

Isn't it a fact that the guardian angel of a barricade against increased income tax is only up to ten and, for two, twenty thousand, here?

MR. BURSON

I didn't understand your question.

MR. WILLIS

Isn't it a fact that the purpose of putting a barricade against the legislature or any ruler, or any of the branches of government, is properly in the constitution?

MR. BURSON

Absolutely.

MR. WILLIS

And that the barricade should not be partial. That it should be complete and whole?

MR. BURSON

As far as I'm concerned, it definitely should. I don't see why the committee proposal has a barrier with regard to certain categories of income and not to others. That seems to me grossly inequitable.

MR. WILLIS

That's the thrust of my question. Isn't it a fact that if we leave it wide open and we get the same treatment on income taxes as we got on severance taxes, that we destroy initiative?

MR. BURSON

No question about it, and I think, frankly, when you boil it all down, when you talked about property taxes, you're talking about a once a year tax. When we talk about income tax, we're talking about something that affects everybody in his left back pocket once a month in most cases, or twice a month, whenever he gets paid.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I really believe that Mr. Kean's amendment is about three times as bad as the committee proposal. The reason why I believe that is the committee proposal locks in the two percent, and Mr. Kean locks in the four percent and the six percent. He just locks in everything. Now, I know we can sit here and do what we think is best for the State of Louisiana. When we start dealing with the finances of the state, we're dealing with something that's highly complicated and sophisticated today, and I don't know how complicated and sophisticated they're going to get some period from now. Now, let me tell you what we're doing. I hear Delegate Burson get up here, and he's well-meaning in what he says. He's concerned about earned income--the people that go out and with their hands and with their brain produce income by exerting a great deal of effort. Well, if he's concerned about those people, by being for this particular amendment, he's locking in once and for all the ability to be able to do something for them. Now, the federal tax law recognized the same problem that Mr. Burson recognizes, and the federal tax law has built into it a minimum tax. You only pay a minimum amount of tax on earned income, and that makes sense. That makes a great deal of sense to me. Then I have a man that comes to me that has nothing but earned income; he might save five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten thousand dollars in taxes, as opposed to a man that's sitting back and drawing interest and dividends. Now, I don't think that we can deal with every situation and put a percentage on it--not today, not fifty years from now, and not a hundred years from now. It's impossible. By Mr. Burson's own admission, I think that he said that, and by Mr. Burson's own admission, I think that he said that if you vote for this, you are once and for all going to prohibit us from taking a look at the highly sophisticated complicated tax system that's built into our economy on the federal and the state level. You're doing something else by doing what you're doing here today. We have a highly complicated tax collection system in the State of Louisiana, and some states have already seen fit to say that their state would take the taxable income for the federal return and take "X" percent times that figure. I don't know if that's good or that's bad. It may be good today, and it may not be good today. It may be good twenty years from now. By doing that, you've taken out all of the confusion on the state level. Once you've gotten your federal taxable income, all you have to do is take a percentage of it. You've done away with your problems of having to go out and enforce collection because once the federal collects it, the federal already exchanges information with the state. If they go out and find a tax deficiency, they notify the state. So, we can get extremely simple in that particular area. It can be simplified very easily. By building in tax rates based upon certain amounts of taxable income, it's impossible to use that avenue. Now, there are people that make a great deal of income, and because the people that administer the tax laws and say what the deductions are and how certain income is taxed, some of those people don't pay a great deal of tax. The federal government also recognized that. So, the federal government came up with a preference tax. Even if you paid no tax at all on taxable income because you had none, you were still required to pay a ten percent tax on certain deductions such as interest, on certain deductions such as the fifty percent capital gain. Now maybe the state will have to go into that someday. We cannot take something complicated and try to make it simple; it's going to get more complicated as years go by. Let's leave this flexibility to the legislature, and I'm sure they'll handle it wisely. I hope you defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'll make the remarks very brief. It seems to me that Mr. Kean has a good amendment for this reason. If you don't adopt this amendment, it seems to me that--it's not a question of suspicion--you might as well say that it's going to be open duck season the next session of the legislature. Once the people of this state who earn a living--and it's very easy at this day and time, as you well know, for one individual to earn over ten thousand dollars; that's not very hard to do. You're going to tell the individual who works and tries to better himself that we're not going to give you the protection that you've had in the 1930's, but we are going to subject you to the duck season every time the legislature needs money. It's going to be a very easy thing to vote for politically. It seems to me the two areas we're talking about is property taxation and income tax, is the two areas in this state where an individual is going to draw that tax dollar, and he's going to write it out of his checkbook or pay cash for it. You tell the people of this state who make a living--we've had it since 1930, but we're going to give this limit to "X" amount of dollars--that you're over that. If we're going to start looking for revenue, guess where it's coming from. I just think that that's a poor policy. I think we should follow and be consistent with what we did in the property taxation section and leave the limitations which I think are necessary.

Questions

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Juneau, you say if we don't have these limitations when the legislature is looking for more money to run government, it will come out of the income tax. Suppose we do put in all these limitations and the severance tax declines, as we understand it's declining at present, where is the money going to come from to run government?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. JUNEAU

I would seek, Mrs. Zervigon, personally, to go to other modes of taxation rather than to go through the modes of the income tax and through property tax to achieve that.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr Juneau, as I understand it, there are three main sources of taxes, and every other kind of tax is some kind of a form of these three taxes--one is ad valorem tax, a tax on the value of something; one is income tax, that's the money coming in; and one is sales tax, that's the money going out. The value added tax is just a sales tax, and a wage tax is just an income tax, and that sort of thing. So, if you're limited to property tax for the state to five and three quarter mills to these certain specific percentages that we have--and we do that up to the limit in sales tax, I think you would agree; we're as high as any state in the nation--and you also put this limit on income tax, where is state government going to get its money. You don't even leave them the freedom to soak the rich. You know you could have it so that you could soak the rich granddaddy folks like me; it's okay. I don't mind, but you don't even leave the legislature the freedom to soak the rich.

MR. JUNEAU

I think that through your uses and your sales taxes and your corporation taxes you can achieve that end, Mrs. Zervigon. I might further submit, Mrs. Zervigon, it was not to my knowledge until this administration where we made drastic changes in the collection of what is now collectible in this state, and we're now achieving tremendous sources of income that were on the books but were never collected. I don't think that the full source of the income tax under its present system has even been tapped in this state.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You think, as the severance tax declines, this will be sufficient to give the citizens of the State of Louisiana the services to which they've become accustomed?

MR. JUNEAU

I said that I thought there were other sources through the uses and sales taxes, corporation taxes, to get the revenues that would make up for the severance tax, which is a depleting source.

DR. WEISS

Delegate Juneau, could you help me understand this? On a hypothetical question that twenty years from now, if this floor amendment of Mr. Kean passes, and the people of Louisiana need funds to run their state government--we've run out of gas now, the natural gas situation declining--which would the people of Louisiana vote for to eliminate: the license plate tax or the rate of tax on individuals? In other words, to increase their license plate tax or to increase their rate of tax on themselves?

MR. JUNEAU

You're asking me to speculate what the people would do twenty years from now? I have no idea what they'd do, Dr. Weiss, I really don't know. If the vote of this convention is indicated, they certainly wouldn't vote against a three dollar license plate, I'll put it that way. I might add in answer to your question, this very convention has decided --Senator De Blieux argued on this point-- if you wanted a source of revenue, you just went... yesterday... to lock in the three dollar license plate which was a typical point to, or ideal point to get revenue for this state, and if you had wanted to get it to the rich who bought a... or someone who bought a new Cadillac or a Buick every two years, you could have gotten it right there, but we decided not to do that.

Further Discussion

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, my only reason in getting up here is because I really don't like to be on the winning side all of the time. Now, the reason I'm here is to oppose this amendment. It's really somewhat of a mystery to me that some of you can sit out there and vote against the three dollar license in the constitution, then the next day you come up here and you want to include all of these limitations on the income tax. Now, this committee proposal is a compromise, it is between those who wanted to put in all the schedule and those who didn't want a schedule at all. Frankly, I personally voted for this proposal because I thought that we were going to provide for the lower income people of this state between ten and twenty thousand in the case of a joint return that most of us do file on, twenty thousand a year. I personally feel that those people in that category probably should get some limitation, but frankly, I simply cannot understand that the way some of these people vote one day against a limitation that brings peanuts in the treasury, the three dollar license or ten dollar license or twenty dollar license, when this brings a big amount of money, and frankly, I feel that if there's anybody, and I'll make this statement to anybody, that if they make it, I think it's a good thing; you pay for it. But, when that three dollar license, you pay that, whether you can afford the automobile hardly at all; you pay it and if you pay thirty, you might not be able to afford to drive it, but we're not arguing that point, but simply that... the reason I mentioned this is I cannot understand the consistency of these things. I feel that people who make money deserve to pay money. I feel that this State of Louisiana is one of the lowest in the United States on income tax, that I think it's a good place, if we ever need the money, to allow the legislature to raise it. If we don't put these limitations in here, then they won't have to take away your federal income tax off of your state which they did a couple of years or a year ago and allow a lot more revenue to the state than a little slight increase in percentage would allow. This increase was set some thirty or forty years ago, and now we're going to this percentage; and now we want to lock it in the constitution on all categories for the next fifty years. I think that's unjust and really, I think, reasonable people would understand that. Thank you.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Champagne, I'm sorry to have to ask you this; I tried to get recognition when Mr. Kean was up there. In this it says "set forth in Title 47, Section 32 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes." Now, everybody else in here might know that, and if I'm ignorant I'm not going to apologize. Would you tell me what's in that Section 47... Title 47, Section 32 because I'd like to know before I vote on it.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Yes, that's two percent, ten to twenty thousand joint return and then they go to fifty thousand and they can pay four percent. Then when you get above that, they might even charge you six percent. That's what is in there.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you.

MR. WEISS

Delegate Champagne, let me just clarify my reasoning because yesterday you were so honest about this you said that the license plate matter should not be in the constitution and that issue passed.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Correct.

MR. WEISS

You're now saying that this issue should not be in the constitution, therefore, we in effect, should really put it in?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Frankly, what I'm saying, Dr. Weiss, if you'd listen very carefully, is that the whole thing should not be in there. The... and you wait and see what I'm going to vote on the committee: two percent. In other words, that is the objection, the two percent is, it's a compromise, the lower limit and frankly, I was trying to get Mr. Kean to say that, but he wouldn't. I'm admitting that this is most of the people we're appealing to, the two percent--ten to twenty; I'm very frank on it. In other words, I didn't admit it maybe the first day, but I admit now that most of us here are politicians.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Champagne, I have a hard time understanding the philosophy that motivates your remarks. Do you think that it's immoral for people who make more than twenty thousand dollars to get to keep some of the money they make after they pay the bills for the rest of the people on supporting the society?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

No, I wouldn't take it all, Mr. Burson, because I wouldn't even have any left if I make that much.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, you know if there's anything that there are a lot of misconceptions about it's taxation. We constantly hear that taxes are so low in Louisiana. Well, that's just not true. Take the income tax, for example; a large number of states in this union don't even have an income tax. Most southern states don't have an income tax. Our sister states surrounding us don't have a personal income tax. So, don't talk about how good our income taxes are. Our overall tax levels are not that good either. In fact, the average family of four pays more in local and state taxes in the State of Louisiana than any other southern states except Florida and Virginia, according to Commerce Clearing House of Chicago. We don't have such low taxes. Nationwide taxes have become a tremendous problem. The average person supposedly spending now between thirty-five and forty-five percent of his income in some form of tax. Where will it end? Who is paying the taxes? Well, according to the federal government, it is a very... it... the people who are paying the taxes are the very ones that will be most hurt if we don't adopt this amendment, namely, the people with incomes over, say, fifteen thousand dollars, who now under federal law pay more than fifty percent of all the income taxes in the country, the people who make more than fifteen thousand dollars who make up thirteen percent of all those who pay taxes on the federal level. The bottom fifty percent of all taxpayers pay less than ten percent at the federal level. Now, that's of those who file returns, that's not even counting the ones who don't file returns. Now, you know, we were sent here to write a new constitution, and nobody ever talked to me about raising taxes. Nobody ever came to me and said, we need to take off those limits on the income taxes. Now, already we've provided that property taxes which had limits on them before, now have no constitutional limits and can be increased by vote of the people. Sales taxes have no constitutional limit. Certainly, we need to maintain the present limit we have. There is no shortage of state revenues. In fact, we saw the largest increase in taxes in the history of this state within the last few weeks with zero demonstrated need. Taxes increased with no need demonstrated at all. The State of Louisiana is not short of money. It hasn't been for some time, and there's no prospect that it will be under the present tax structure of the state. Now, we don't need to go to the people and ask them to vote for a document that will take off limits on income taxes. That's one of the good things and one of the few good things about our present constitution, so we don't need to change that. So, let's adopt Mr. Kean's amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, if this restriction was not in the present constitution, I would not be before you today urging that we continue. I think that it was placed in the present constitution for a good reason. It was placed in the present constitution in recognition of the fact that the federal government was already in this field; already in the field with the right to levy a tax without any restriction. Therefore, if the state had the same right, we could in effect, end up with two income taxes levied against the people of this state resulting in confiscatory action insofar as the large portion of the tax-paying public was concerned. Now, there's been some talk-- Mr. Monday Lowe, delegate Lowe raised the question about these sophisticated programs that we wanted to tie in with the federal income tax. You may recall, that Mr. Conroy had an amendment on yesterday, which would have permitted a further tying-in between the federal and the state income tax, and this delegation resoundingly rejected that idea. It seems to me here that there's no more reason to take the limit off of our state income tax in order to enjoy the doubtful benefits of the federal income tax administration through this device than it was yesterday, that the one advanced by Mr. Conroy. I read an article just recently that stated that the people in this country that are having the greatest difficulty in making a go of it are not those in the poverty level, not those in the upper brackets, but the person with an income between fifteen and thirty thousand dollars, who had to support a family; put children through school. This is the type of individual that I think, this restriction is designed to protect. I urge you under the circumstances that we continue this restriction in effect; it applies only to the individual tax returns, and I believe it would be in the interest of this state and its people to continue that restriction as it has continued since 1934. I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Kean, do you realize that those rates were put into the constitution during the depression days and that was the only way that they could get the bill through for homestead exemption?

MR. KEAN

Sensior De Blieux, I haven't seen any complaint over the years about this particular restriction. There's never been a constitutional amendment offered that I can recall that would have changed it and it seems to me that it comes at a rather late date, for us to now in this convention decide we're going to take the restriction off without ever having indicated to the people of this state, that was our intention.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, do you realize also that this will not mean that you're going to have an increase in those rates; it just means that the legislature would have the opportunity to do it as they saw fit?

MR. KEAN

Well, that's exactly the reason I want to put the restriction back in.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Now, do you know how much income that a family of man and wife with two children would pay on a twenty-five thousand dollar income ... state income tax?

MR. KEAN

I think it would depend on a lot of factors, Mr. De Blieux; it would depend on what kind of deductions they have; what kind of income they had.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, on the standard deductions, .. do you know on the standard deductions he would only pay two hundred and fifty-two dollars? Is that too much for a man on twenty-five to count on?

MR. KEAN

As far as I'm concerned, a man in that bracket, that's just about all he could afford to pay.

MR. WILLIS

Do you know, Mr. Kean, in further projection of his question, that if we leave the door wide open he may pay ten times that much?

MR. KEAN

That's exactly right, Mr. Willis.

MR. WILLIS

Now, don't you think that everything has a limit?

MR. KEAN

Yes, sir.

MR. WILLIS

Taxes should have a limit, and that the proper limit for taxes should be in the constitution? Did we not limit the property taxes?

MR. KEAN

Yes, sir.

MR. WILLIS

Should not the income taxes be limited?

MR. KEAN

That's the purpose of my amendment.

MR. WILLIS

Now, the sales taxes--there are three kinds of taxes: taxes on property you have and property you receive, notably income, and property that goes away, notably sales taxes. Now, we don't talk about sales taxes because that applies equally to everybody.

MR. KEAN

That's correct.

MR. WILLIS

Now, but we put a limit on property taxes what you have, but there's no limit on what comes in.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 57-36. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Newton had sent up amendments which were four sets of amendments. He just wanted to go with the first amendment so to simplify, we've taken the Gravel amendment...take the Gravel amendment and just change the name. Mr. Gravel does not wish to offer an amendment; Mr. Newton does, and it would be the same as his amendment, No. 1. Just take the Gravel amendment--Mr. Newton's name.

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 2, immediately after the word "income" change the semicolon ";" to a period "." and delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 3 through 5, both inclusive, in their entirety.

That should include all amendments thereto.

Explanation

MR. NEWTON

Well, of course, what this amendment does is delete all of the limitations on the income tax, takes out the two percent and it also takes out the four and the six that were added by the Kean amendment. Perhaps some of you were in favor of the Kean amendment because you felt that if we were going to keep any at all, we ought to keep them all. I offer you the alternative of deleting them all. I urge the support of the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I assume everyone in here is amply aware of the fact that if we adopted this amendment we would undo all the good that we've just done by adopting the Kean amendment. I strongly urge that we defeat this amendment and any other attempt to take out of here a limitation on the tax on incomes of the people of this state.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, my remarks are going to be very brief. We have put a limitation on taxing property, now we're putting a limitation on the taxing the income. There is nothing else for us to tax now. Now, I'm telling you, trying to tell you as much as I possibly can, you're putting this state in the position of where it's not going to be able to operate. Now, if that's what you want, vote against this amendment. If you want to let the state operate and have a basis of being able to operate its government, vote for this amendment.

Questions

MR. BURNS

Senator, you made one statement so many times that you've about convinced me that unless the Kean amendment passes, we immediately are going to have a raise in state income taxes.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Not necessarily, Mr. Burns, but at least you fix it to where we can't....

MR. BURNS

You said it about three times.

MR. DE BLIEUX

... we can't increase any taxes if the need should arise. That's what I'm talking about, even if... regardless of the need.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, after yesterday's license plate episode, I don't think there's any question that a body as deliberative as this is more responsive than our legislature who is an absolute political body by definition of its legislators and from the experience we've seen here today, and for the past hundred meetings. If we don't put a limit on what the people of Louisiana are going to have to pay, no telling what the politicians will have us paying. We must go ahead and counterbalance the three dollar license plate which we're giving to the people with the fact that we're not going to take from them the major source of their income through state sales taxes... the state income taxes. Don't worry, there'll be a lot of gas and oil left in this state long after we're gone, and there'll be plenty of sales going on, and I'm sure the state will get funds from sales taxes. I urge defeat of this amendment.

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, in view of the adoption of the Kean amendment, I've prepared another amendment that I want to submit to the convention, but I just was able to give it....

MR. HENRY

Mr. Gravel, all we're talking about is the present amendment that we have right now. We're not about to....

MR. GRAVEL

I beg your pardon, sir.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment reread. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 28-64. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Mr. Jack, joining him as coauthors are Messrs. Smith, Shannon, Fulco and Velazquez.

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 5 after the word and punctuation "percent ." add the following:

"Federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period."

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Point of information directed to the Clerk.

Don't you have to change that now that the Kean amendment is adopted, there's a no longer any word "percent" in there?

MR. POYNTER

Should be after the word now, I believe, "statutes" added by the Kean amendment.

Explanation

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this simply provides, and I'm sure you've read it--it's short--that federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period. Now, during the last administration, you will recall when they were trying to pass taxes, and they couldn't get two-thirds, then they did. Instead of passing the tax they got a two-thirds vote to keep you from deducting as a deductible item on your state return, the amount you had paid in federal income taxes. Now, I don't see how anybody can be for this, or be against this. Now, it's true the legislature at the special session passed a similar one, but remember, the same legislature by two-thirds, it kept the federal income taxes paid as being the deductible, so we want it in the constitution. Now, I might add this, if you'll listen carefully, this doesn't -- I believe Senator De Blieux will vote for this one--because this doesn't set out, Senator De Blieux, the amount. It says, "Federal income taxes shall be allowed as a deductible item," Senator De Blieux. They wouldn't have to allow the full deduction even. So, this one, I believe, everybody can be for. Now, this is the thing that has stuck in the craw of the people in Louisiana-- I heard and am hearing, more comment against that passage of that at the last administration because the people were paying a tax on a tax, paying a state tax on money they never felt, smelt, saw, or even got near. It was withholding tax and those things. Now, these are the kind of things -- I won't go over it a lot, but along with the things I mentioned yesterday on the three dollar plate are things that the people know you're thinking about them. I say this is good legislation, I'll hope you'll pass it. If there are any questions, I'll try to answer them.

Further Discussion

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it's very difficult to get up and oppose an amendment of this type Mr. Jack is offering, which would allow for the constitutional provision that the federal taxes would continue to be a deductible item on the state income tax. I voted for, supported, and coauthored legislation that took away--or that removed--or gave back to the people, rather, that deduction this past session, because we did find other means of financing or replenishing the state treasury for those sixty million dollars. That's the only reason why we didn't do it earlier in the legislature, because there had to be some means to find that sixty million dollars to replace those revenues.

Now, let's look at just what might happen if the legislature is looking for additional funds. Sure, there's going to be a constitutional prohibition, now, to the legislature doing this--putting the federal tax, or taking the federal tax exemption away. But, there are other exemptions that are allowed that the legislature has the control over, that are not constitutional. They could, then, take away the F.I.C.A. deduction, for instance, that's getting to be just as high, now, for the average working man as his income tax; it's starting to rise even greater, year after year. All they've got to do at the legislature is go to that deduction and say, "Now we are going to disallow that." Or, they could say that we will no longer have any itemized deductions; get away from that. You might even look at the amount that you are allowed for personal exemptions --get away from that--raising the tax, thusly. Don't think we ought to put this one prohibition, even though I don't personally intend, and I think by the stipulation we have in this proposal now, that the only way the legislature could take away that exemption in the future would be by a two-thirds vote, thus requiring them to raise that tax by that vote. I think we wouldn't be doing any real good by putting this in the constitution at this point.

Questions

MR. WEISS

Delegate Alario, what percent of the revenue last year--or this coming year--to Louisiana, comes from federal source?

MR. ALARIO

Oh...I'll guess I would say about twenty-five percent. That's just figuring over my...

MR. WEISS

Twenty-five percent. So, we have a pretty good income from them, too, even though they take it?

MR. ALARIO

Yes.

MR. WEISS

Don't you think the people of the state should be entitled to a deduction on what they are giving to the federal government, for Louisiana schools?

MR. ALARIO

I certainly do think they ought to be entitled to the deduction, Doctor, but I don't think it ought to be in the constitution.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Alario, in view of the fact that we put all these limitations--you know, on the higher income people and all that--do you feel that when they took this federal tax deduction away from the people, they hurt the smaller paying individual more than they did the big one? Did they not?

MR. ALARIO

They certainly....they hurt the bigger man, Mr. Champagne, when they take a federal tax exemption away 'cause he does pay a larger amount of federal taxes. Therefore, six percent of his larger amount is a heck of a lot more than two percent of the smaller man's amount.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Proportionately, though, they hurt the...percentage of the little man's income much harder. Did they not?

MR. ALARIO

Well, they hurt more little people than they do big ones, naturally, because there are more little ones.

MR. GOLDMAN

John, you didn't mean really, seriously, to suggest that the legislature might take away the F.I.C.A. deduction, or the personal exemptions of Louisiana taxpayers, since there are so many of them, as contrasted to those who have a federal income tax problem, did you?

MR. ALARIO

If they took away the federal tax exemption, Tom, I don't know what future legislatures might do. We've got a real good one now, and I don't think they would do--stoop that low.

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Alario, did you say awhile ago that it would take a two-thirds vote of the legislature to take away the federal income tax?

MR. ALARIO

If this new constitution passes, yes, sir.

MR. GOLDMAN

Well, I'd like an explanation on that.

When they take away the deduction from federal income tax, is that a tax....that's not considered passing a tax, is it?

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Goldman, you are a member of the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Committee. I believe if you look in Section 1...which you are a part of that committee, you will see that the prohibition against removing exemptions would require a two-thirds vote. I wish you would pay attention to the work that you do on that committee.

MR. GOLDMAN

Removing exemptions or paying taxes?

MR. ALARIO

Removing exemptions, also. Mr. Conroy handled the amendment in committee.

Further Discussion

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to support this amendment because it seems eminently fair to all. It serves the ordinary citizen who never sees this money because it's withdrawn from his pay envelope before he even gets it. The fact that I like best about this amendment is that while it makes the basic statement that federal income taxes shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid through the same period, it does not say the deduction will be a dollar for dollar deduction. The legislature can determine the percentage. If times are good and the money is rolling in, the legislature could allow a total deduction. If times get tough, the legislature could make the deduction fifty percent, twenty-five percent, or ten percent of the amount paid in federal taxes. There is extraordinary amount of leeway here. The concept, itself, is good and is worthy of constitutional inclusion. The deduction--the basic deduction--should be here. Between now, and the time they vote, every citizen will have the privilege of filling out his state income tax form. He'll see this key relationship and he will know that this constitutional convention was looking out for his interest and his well-being. This federal income tax deduction on state income taxes helps the little man proportionately more than it helps anyone else.

I urge your favorable adoption of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment. I'm one of the coauthors. I'm also on the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Committee. I think when this law was repealed by the legislature a short while ago, it showed that it was inequitable. You are paying a tax on a tax. I think you should have taken it off. I don't even think you should have put it on there. That showed then that they realized their mistake. It raised a lot of money at that time that, I think, now that we've got other sources--but anyway I don't feel like that you should pay a tax on a tax. I think we should put it in the constitution even though we have a two-thirds vote now on exemptions--I feel like in the future some governor may come along and say, "I need more revenue." I think they have got plenty of sources of revenue without trying to get this inequitable source that's paying a tax on a tax. I think we should freeze this in the constitution, that no further--that we have to pay tax on a tax like we have done in the past.

I ask you to support Mr. Jack's amendments.

Question

MR. JENKINS

Jasper, you know the last session of the legislature--or rather, the last term of the legislature--when that tax was originally imposed, of course most legislators voted for it. But, did you know that sixty-five out of a hundred and five representatives did not come back? Most of those that did not come back, voted for that tax. Don't you think that's a pretty good indication of how the people feel on this issue?

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

MR. SMITH

I think this was so in our own parish. I feel like if they did it again, the same thing would happen.

MR. HENRY

Do you realize that it didn't kill everybody, though, Mr. Jenkins?

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 65-24. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Bollinger. The amendment reads as follows:
Page 2, line 3, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Kean and adopted by the Convention on December 15, at the beginning of line 1 of the text, before the word "and" insert the punctuation and word ",corporate".

Explanation

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think this is in the nature of a technical amendment. Mr. Kean said he had no objection to its adoption, upon my questioning while he was explaining his amendment.

Title 47, Section 32, of the Revised Statutes includes corporate income taxes at a limit. In Mr. Kean's amendment, we have referred to that revised statute in an effort to limit the amount of individual income taxes and joint income taxes. I think this amendment just simply includes corporate income taxes to where if you wanted to have a raise in the tax structure, that it would take a constitutional amendment, which would include all of them.

We sat here all during the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Article with regards to property taxes, and listened to the pros and cons of incentives for industry to come to Louisiana. I think it's no incentive when a corporation looks at Louisiana and says, "Constitutionally you protect the limit of individual income taxes, however, the legislature at its whim can raise corporate income taxes." I think this is an incentive for industry in Louisiana.

I move the adoption and yield to questions.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I know I have been before you a lot today, and I'm not going to be here for long this time. I just appeal to you, let's not make this mistake of locking in the four percent on corporations. Many of our corporations are large corporations with out-of-state shareholders. There's a choice as to whether you want to incorporate or whether you want to operate as an individual. I just can't imagine locking into the constitution the four percent limitation on corporate income tax. I appeal to you, let's not make this mistake.

Further Discussion

MR. SINGLETARY

Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in strenuous opposition to this amendment. It's far from being a technical amendment. It would lock in four percent as the corporate tax--four percent of net income. So, I strenuously urge you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, the reason I am supporting this amendment is as follows: if you look at the federal tax structure, I believe the federal tax rate on corporations at present, if they earn more than twenty-five thousand dollars, is fifty-two percent. That's a flat rate the corporations pay in federal income taxes. So, at most, forty-eight percent of what they make can be distributed to shareholders. Then, when shareholders get it, it's income. It's taxed again--both federal taxes and state taxes. Corporate income tax is double taxation right now. It's taxed at the federal level; it's taxed at the state level. Now, it seems only reasonable if the federal government is imposing such a tremendously high tax on corporations, of fifty-two percent, that we shouldn't risk an increase at the state level, because with state taxes at four percent that's a fifty-six percent from the very beginning, before you ever distribute it to shareholders. So, look at it right off the top. You're looking at fifty-six percent taken off at the corporate level; you're left with forty-two percent. Then, when it gets to the shareholders, you have federal and state income taxes against that--which probably would amount on the average at least a fourth of that, so that of a profit a corporation makes, at most, about thirty percent is going to ultimately go into the pockets of the shareholders. Now, certainly, I think we need to preserve this limit. Four percent is plenty. I don't see why we should impose a limit on individual income taxes and not go ahead and impose it on corporate income taxes, just as we have in the past in this state. So, let's keep it the way we've had it, and adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. AVANT

Mr. Jenkins, this two-thirds vote to raise corporate income taxes....it would apply to corporations, wouldn't it? It would require a two-thirds vote, wouldn't it?

MR. JENKINS

I think every tax would. Yes.

MR. AVANT

And, of course, salaries paid to officers and directors of a corporation are chalked off before you figure the income tax, aren't they?

MR. JENKINS

That's right. I think so.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Delegate Jenkins, did you know that any amount that a corporation pays in state income taxes is deductible on their federal income taxes?

MR. JENKINS

Well, it's deductible on the personal income taxes, I believe.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

It's deductible on their....federal corporate income taxes?

MR. JENKINS

But, even if it were deductible, that would not be a tax credit. That would just mean that you would not pay taxes on that amount. It wouldn't mean that you would have that amount taken off of your federal tax bill.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

So, the actual effect of a corporate tax is not in proportion to the actual amount the corporation pays because it is a deductible item.

MR. JENKINS

Well, it's certainly in....it's a pretty high amount right now, Mr. Velazquez, and I certainly don't want to see any increases in it. You can bet, if we take this limit off, there will be increases in the next few sessions of the legislature.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Haven't we already protected the corporations by the base that we've put on the property taxes? ...Doesn't the base that we have put on the property tax in Louisiana already guarantee a protection to corporations operating in Louisiana?

MR. JENKINS

No, Mr. Velazquez, what we....

MR. VELAZQUEZ

....just the ordinary citizen....

MR. HENRY

Let's settle down now.

MR. JENKINS

What we did, was we imposed more taxes on business and

100th Days Proceedings—December 15, 1973

industry under the property tax structure we created. You can't take it off the homeowner, keep the overall level of taxation the same, and not have the tax picked up by business and industry. We've already increased their taxes there. I certainly don't want to see us chance increasing them anywhere else.

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Jenkins, do you know that, number one, a small business man does not have to incorporate; number two, if he does, he's got the option of going to Subchapter (S) which will protect him insofar as paying a lot of taxes. I am a business man; I'm involved in both types of corporations. I would say I think you've got a bad amendment here, sir.

MR. LOWE

Mr. Jenkins, did you know that I think maybe that I was wrong in opposing this, because if we keep on the way we are going, and we adopt all of this, it may be in my favor. I think we'll never get sixty-seven votes to adopt the section. That may be good. So, I'm all for it.

MR. JENKINS

Well, Monday, you know what? The people of this state right now have a constitution that limits the amount of income taxes levied against their personal income and against their corporate income. I don't believe that they sent us here to raise those taxes....

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time, sir.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to oppose the amendment to put yet another rate in the constitution. You know, a little while ago I got up here and tried to suspend the rules so that we could take Section 4, paragraph by paragraph, and adopt it paragraph by paragraph. Wasn't trying to fool anybody, or circumvent our normal rules. I was trying to point out something to you that's going to become clear before we get through with Section 4, that is, that Section 4 is very complicated and the paragraphs deal with many diverse subjects--this being the first--income tax. Wait until we get to (B) and the severance tax; wait until we get to (C) and the limitation on local taxing authority. I think that a comment made a few minutes ago, that when we get through with 4, if it gets 67 votes, it's going to be a miracle. We are going to debate it for two days, get through with it, and not get 67 votes, and have to start all over again. But in your wisdom, you decided not to suspend the rules, and take this whole grab bag as one. Now, with this particular amendment, all we are doing is following up your illogical step of a few moments ago, in terms of individuals, and put yet another rate in the constitution. Our committee debated at length about specific rates in the constitution. We felt it was not in your best interest, our best interest, or the state's best interest. We thought that our protection would be the two-thirds vote. As a compromising committee, we did agree to limit the small man's income to the two percent tax rate. I urge you to let's defeat these amendments, try to keep these rates out of the constitution, and keep this document flexible.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Roemer, since part of your speech dealt with subject matters other than this amendment, my question goes to that same thing.

Don't you think that we should consider this thing in its entirety so that we can keep a constant thread of thought through it, and make a package out of it, rather than taking it apart piecemeal and putting together some building blocks that don't fit?

MR. ROEMER

You could be right. Most of the delegates agreed with you. I just don't.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Roemer, you brought out something that I tried to, also. But do you know that the way--in other words--what I really think about this thing is, if we pass this section, it would be a super miracle, not a miracle.

MR. ROEMER

I agree with you. In answer to some questions that, perhaps, are in everybody's mind, you might need to know that the franchise tax incorporation is not limited in this section. You can limit corporation taxes all you want--there's no limit on franchise taxes and that gets at the guy who has no money whatsoever, and he's just getting started in business. So, this amendment doesn't even help the guy you are trying to help.

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Roemer, I agree that we shouldn't lock in the rates. But, don't you think it's just equitable since we did adopt Mr. Kean's amendment, that we should make it applicable? Doesn't the 1921 Constitution do exactly this?

MR. ROEMER

Yes, it does. It's hard for me to argue with your logic. It's going to be interesting to watch the votes of these delegates who just locked rates in a minute ago, to vote against your amendment. I agree with you. I hope they do vote against it. But, if they do, they'll be illogical as heck.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Roemer, is it your observation that representative bodies like to raise taxes on people?

MR. ROEMER

Oh...they do not like to raise taxes on them.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Wasn't it true that McKeithen had to twist a whole lot of arms and finally put a flag on the top of the capitol for one of the legislators, in order to get enough votes together to raise the sales tax?

MR. ROEMER

I don't know about that, Mrs. Zervigon. I'm younger than you. I don't....

MRS. ZERVIGON

A whole lot....

MR. NUNEZ

Maybe on personal privilege, and I should be up there. But, that flag was put on top of the capitol at the request of the veterans of this state.

MR. HENRY

That's exactly right. It had nothing to do with taxes.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we have heard in the last few minutes, an example of a phenomenon that we've observed a few times in this convention; that is, when you lose on a crucial vote, the other side is automatically wrong. I submit to you, is there any doubt in anybody's mind, that if you put this question to a vote of the people of the State of Louisiana, that you would have an overwhelming mandate to put limitations--meaningful limitations--on personal income tax? As far as the concern expressed for the logic, or lack of it in the following vote, I would rather be right on my vote, as far as I see it, than be logical or consistent in someone else's view. I think it was Samuel Johnson who said that "consistency is the hobgoblin of little minds". I will let that statement stand on its own merit.

As far as the two-thirds vote in the legislature, we all know just about how much protection that has been as far as passage of new taxes is concerned. We had an outstanding example in the legislative session that's just concluded where the severance taxes were tripled. We've also had some good examples in recent years where, as Mrs. Zervigon pointed out, we had about five tax increases in one session. That's neither here nor there. I think it might be well for some people here to realize and these are--in most cases this is puzzling if we are talking about consistency--the same people that were determined to deprive local government of the ability to levy almost any meaningful property tax, but now want to be real sure that the state government is going to have ample access to my left back pocket in the years to come. As far as I'm concerned, then, it becomes a question not of whether to tax or not to tax, but that a tax is all right as long as it's levied at the state level, but not all right if it's levied at the local level. I can't draw any other conclusions. I submit to you that if we're talking about sixty-seven votes to pass the section, there's some of us that believe just as strongly that these income tax rate protections for the individual belong in here that maybe we could do a little bit about sixty-seven votes, or a lack of it. I certainly, for one, would intend to do just that. So, let's keep that clearly in mind, too. I think we are a little late in the game to be playing that kind of game. I submit to you that the two questions are separable. Because, as Mr. Avant pointed out in his question, corporate income is what is left over after the salaries of a particular corporation are paid. In most small corporations in this state, I would expect the prudent business man to pay out most of what he makes as a salary to himself. I wouldn't be confused by that. I simply felt compelled to comment on the logic, or lack of it, of the arguments we heard.

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Burson, focusing on this matter of consistency, isn't it a fact that although a corporation from a legal standpoint, or in legal parlance, is a person, when you come to elections, they don't vote?

MR. BURSON

That's certainly true.

MR. WILLIS

Additionally, the corporations whose stockholders live outside of Louisiana, they don't vote here, do they?

MR. BURSON

That's true, and it's not an unreasonable argument, it seems to me, that perhaps they ought to pay something for the government of the state that they are operating in and benefitting from.

MR. WILLIS

So that there is no inconsistency in my having voted for Mr. Kean's amendment, and my intention to vote against Mr. Bollinger's. Is that correct?

MR. BURSON

I hope not, because I intend to do the same thing.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'd like to quote to you from Article X, Section 1, of the 1921 Constitution, referring to those taxes. It says: "The said income tax schedule of rates shall never exceed the schedule imposed in House Bill No. 339, of the regular session of the legislature of 1934", which, as Mr. Kean referred to it, was Article XLVII, Section 32. So, this is not a change in the law. It's not a change in the constitution. It's just being consistent with the provisions of the 1921 Constitution. I'd like to, in closing, leave the thought of this. We, in the Property Tax Section have allowed veterans with homes valued at fifty thousand dollars to be exempt from property taxes and other individuals with homes of thirty thousand dollars to be exempt. We have extremely lessened the amount of taxable base for the local governing authority, except that they...all the tax burden is going to go on industry. Now, we are going to allow the legislature, with no limit, to tax industry again. Where does it stop?

ROLL CALL

[74 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. E.J. LANDRY

Mr. Chairman, honorable delegates, members of the press, visitors, the working force of the convention, I have never in my life been given a more privileged opportunity by the Chairman than was given to me this morning. I'm speaking to a point of personal privilege and prayer which is unique in this convention. I say that so that you will understand why we begin as we do this morning...at Christmastime. You saw fit last week to send me to visit murderers on death row. You saw fit to make it possible by dismissing this convention early; had you not done that, I would not have been in a position to do what I am going to do today. So, please, if I am just a little bit longer than normal, bear with me because I represent today forces that are bigger than I, bigger than you, bigger than the State of Louisiana and that is the reason why I am taking the route that I am taking. Thirty years ago a chaplain, a good friend of mine, who handled the condemned and the murderers was killed in World War II and left me this prayer and asked me to pray for him. I'm going to ask you to join with me after you've heard this simple prayer. I looked into the eyes of the murderers; I looked into the eyes of human beings, God's creatures; and I've studied over the lessons that I have learned over the years and thought about what was said this morning when the minister, the representative of God, of Christ spoke to me and asked me to witness that it's my duty and your duty. So, I come to you with two parts of a petition, two parts of a prayer that has to do with the business of witnessing. I would ask you in your hearts to think about the words, since words have such tremendous meaning in the writing of a constitution. The Lord has given us a tremendous constitution made up of words that we need to be reminded often about--this is very simple and stated simply by a simple man facing you. "Dear Lord, you taught us and reminded us often that what we do for the least of man that we do to You, that You live in that person. You, also, reminded us often that to forgive, forgive others just as we want You to forgive us. For example, You taught us to love all men, even sinners, even murderers. You did this by example, by Your death on the cross for our sins when You forgave a murderer at that instance. Now, Dear Lord, at this season of Your birth give these delegates the understanding, the compassion, the will to search for means to alleviate the inhumane, the prolonged cruel suffering imposed by our society on Your creation which gives no hope to Your creatures that have sinned and who have been condemned by man and forgotten forever with no hope." Now, Father Malloy, who spent a lifetime helping sinners and murderers, a good friend of mine was killed after he gave me this note in World War II and he said--and he signed it, addressed it to me--and he said, "Pray for me;" and, I'm sure he said, "Pray for hope for all of the people who have nobody to represent them." This is what he said in the prayer: "Soul of Christ sanctify me. Body of Christ save me. Blood of Christ inebriate me. Water from the side of Christ wash me. Passion of Christ strengthen me. O, good Jesus, hear us. within Thy wounds hide us. Suffer us not to be separated from Thee. From the malignant enemy defend us. In the hour of our death call us and bid us come to Thee that with Thy saints we may praise Thee forever and ever." Amen.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 15, introduced by Delegate Rayburn, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Revenue, Finance, and Taxation and other delegates and members of that committee.

A proposal relative to the tax structure of the state and to public finance.

With the exceptions of Sections 4 and 6, the convention has adopted the first eight sections of the proposal--reverted, after the adoption of Section 8--back to Section 4, previously passed over which is presently still under consideration.

MR. POYNTER

Set of amendments send up by Delegate Gravel and passed out on yesterday.

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, delete lines 3, 4, and 5 in their entirety, and delete all amendments adopted thereto and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Income tax rate on the first ten thousand dollars of taxable income for single return or twenty thousand dollars taxable income for joint returns shall not exceed two percent and no portion of taxable income shall be taxed at a rate in excess of twelve percent."

Explanation

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, that amendment was prepared yesterday and so was another amendment which I meant to supercede it. I wish to withdraw that particular amendment. I don't know whether the one I prepared yesterday subsequently is at the desk or not; I'll hand the copy to the Clerk and we can check it.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to withdraw the amendment that has just been read. I understand there is another amendment, if we could go with it, then the amendment that I would like to present the body can be circulated.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Tobias has amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 5, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Jack and adopted by the convention on yesterday, on line 3 of said amendment delete the period "." at the end of the line and insert in lieu thereof the following punctuation and words: ", but the deduction shall not be allowed to corporations." Now, this is the Jack amendment which read as follows: "Federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period." This would delete the period "." at the end of that text and add the text just read of the Tobias amendment.

Explanation

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, yesterday Mr. Jack's amendment which read: "Federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period." This statement, as written, would apply to people, corporations, any type of legal entity. The purpose of my amendment is to restrict it strictly to people--it would restrict the Jack amendment strictly to people. Now, the phrase...Mr. Jack's amendment is self-executed. That means that it will go into effect whether or not legislation is enacted pursuant thereto. What my amendment does is a state that this provision would be... shall not be allowed to corporations. This does not mean that the legislature could not authorize this to corporation; it just says that the deduction would only be allowed to persons. The legislature still, at some future date, could allow this deduction to corporations.

Questions

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Tobias, your amendment says "shall not," and you've got me somewhat confused as to the difference between "shall" and "may," when you say "deductions shall not be allowed to corporations." If we put this in the new constitution, wouldn't that then mandate the legislature or the legislature couldn't allow the deductions to corporations as we have just done in the special session?

MR. TOBIAS

No, I think that's inaccurate. The reason I say that is because the Jack amendment is self-executing. Therefore, if we changed "shall"--the word "shall" in my amendment--to "may" it would remove the self-executing feature of the Jack amendment.

MR. ALARIO

Couldn't you accomplish the same thing, then, by going back

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

to the Jack amendment and saying "shall not be imposed on personal incomes taxes?"

MR. TOBIAS

That is another way of approaching it; yes.

MR. ROEMER

Max, don't you...would you be agreeable to taking the suggestion of Representative Alario and perhaps doing what you are trying to do in a more straightforward fashion by inserting the word "personal" as to that deduction in the Jack amendment? There seems to be some confusion over this self-executing thing in "shall" and "may."

MR. TOBIAS

Well, the problem with using the word "personal" is that it would only apply to people. What do you do, for example, with a partnership--that's a separate legal entity? What do you do with a trust--that's another type of entity? All of those are in a sense, a person; so, if you say "personal" I don't know what accord. I would rather just tie it down...take the restriction out and restrict it to corporations.

MR. ROEMER

Being not an expert in the field, but being interested in it, I can tell you that partnerships do have to file personal income tax returns.

MR. TOBIAS

That's a true.

MR. ROEMER

...so, you do the same thing.

MR. TOBIAS

What about a trust?

MR. ROEMER

Well, I mean, eventually when it comes to the income they have to file a personsl return; now, you know that.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Willis?

MR. WILLIS

Max, don't you think that you could accomplish what you want by instead of using the word "shall" use the word "need?"

MR. TOBIAS

Need?

MR. WILLIS

"Need not be allowed," that is permissive and it's a better word than "may"--"need not be allowed"--that would give them the flexibility that "may" would be in other circumstances; don't you think?

MR. TOBIAS

I agree.

Mr. Chairman, I move to withdraw the smendment and change the word "shall" to "need."

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

...virtually the same fashion--chsnging the word "shall" to "need" so that the additional language proposed to be added to the Jack amendment would now read: ", but the deduction need not be allowed to corporations."

Questions

MR. MUNSON

Max, exactly what did the legislature do during the special session? Was it limited to individual and joint returns or did it apply to corporations?

MR. TOBIAS

I'm not sure. I was not in favor of the Jack amendment, but I feel that we should limit it in this particular instance. I do not know what the legislature did.

MR. MUNSON

You do think it was the intent of the legislature to limit it to individuals, do you not?

MR. TOBIAS

I don't know.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question from Mr. Smith? You'll be next, Mr. Velazquez.

MR. SMITH

Mr. Tobias, it "need not," would that leave it up to the legislature or to the collective revenue and revenue department?

MR. TOBIAS

It would leave it to the legislature.

MR. SMITH

But, it don't seem to say that.

MR. TOBIAS

That's what it would do.

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Did you know that what you are doing is exactly the intent of the Jack amendment, we meant to protect the individual, ordinary taxpayer of Louisiana not to protect the corporations?

MR. TOBIAS

I didn't understand that to be the intent of the Jack amendment, I thought it was....

MR. VELAZQUEZ

But, we are glad that you are supplementing this thing and making it much clearer.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Tobias, are you aware that the legislation passed by the legislature applied to both individuals and to corporations and it was intended, as such, to give relief to both groups?

MR. TOBIAS

I was not aware of that. I would assume that what this provision would do is allow that portion of the act, that was enacted by the special session, to continue in effect but at such later time, the legislature could go back and say, "No, this exemption shall not apply to corporations."

MR. CHATELAIN

Max, I think I know what you are trying to do, but I'm somewhat confused myself, the Jack amendment read that "federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid during the same period or paid to federal government." What you are trying to do is to fix it so that the state legislature could or could not allow this same deduction to the businesses; is that right?

MR. TOBIAS

That is correct; or, corporations rather than businesses which would be personal income to certain individuals, in certain cases--sole proprietorship, for example.

MR. SINGLETARY

Max, the section only refers to individual and joint returns. So, nowhere in it, as far as I know, with all the amendments does it mention corporations at all.

MR. TOBIAS

As I read Mr. Jack's amendment, it goes much further than that it says "for...."

MR. SINGLETARY

But, would Mr. Jack's amendment be tied in with the previous language?

MR. TOBIAS

I think there is a very strong possibility that it would not. I think that the clear statement is that the...when it says "federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item." It doesn't necessarily restrict it to joint and single income tax returns.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm a little disappointed that we are really taking off on the tangent that we are taking off on. It appears at the moment that we are attempting to write a tax law. You know and I know that we didn't really come here to write a tax law. I agree with you that the matter of deducting federal income taxes has gotten highly emotional in the State of Louisiana. But, just because this matter has gotten emotional and the legislature realized that it was emotional, they corrected it and that tells us that the legislature is sensitive to what goes on in the State of Louisiana and that when something happens that they realize was bad; and they have that flexibility to deal with it that they will correct it; they had a mandate. They recognized that mandate and they acted. Now, someplace down the line they are going to want to react to a mandate and aren't going to be able to because we, in what we feel is our wisdom, have locked something into this constitution that deprives them of that flexibility. Now, I can't for the life of me understand why we would want to come here and try to write a tax law, particularly, when none of us are really expertise in that particular area. I don't mean to talk about any delegate, because if I get up here and say things and I make mistakes, I think people should point them out to me. The author of this amendment is concerned about partnerships taking deductions on a tax return. Well, even the most elemental, elementary person in tax law knows that a partnership pays no federal income tax and pays no state income tax, so how could they take a deduction? The only reason why I point that out is to point out that we are talking about things that we know absolutely nothing about. I'm sure some of you read what Mr. Traigle had to say in the paper this morning, that he has some long-range plans to try to accomplish some things for the people of the state. By our action yesterday, we deprived him of the opportunity of implementing some of the things that he has in mind that he wants to place in effect that would be beneficial to the people of the State of Louisiana. Now, this reminds me of what Delegate Wall started to do sometime back to bring out a point about retirement systems. He had an amendment that covered every retirement system in the State of Louisiana which numbered thirty some odd. He was going to give them the same break that some other system had. Now, if we try today to come up with amendments to assure that those deductions that people were enjoying now would not be infringed upon, we would have paper stacked all over your desk. I submit to you that the five thousand dollar personal exemption that is allowed an individual... a married individual filing a joint return in the State of Louisiana is much more important than deducting the federal income tax that's paid. So, we are going to say that we are going to leave here telling the people that we have done something for them in allowing them to be sure that for all times that they can deduct federal incomes taxes. The little man may pay two hundred dollars of federal income taxes but the legislature, because you locked this in, may have to take his five thousand dollar personal exemption away from him and they can do it; and they may have to do it. So, we are not doing a thing here except kidding ourselves; we're window dressing; we're trying to go back home and tell the people that we have given them something. I'm here to tell you that that's just not fair to try to fool the public on one hand and tell them that we have given them something when we haven't given them anything, not anything at all because we can take it right back away from them in the form of another deduction. The only way we can give them something is to lock all of the deductions in--everyone of them. I would say that we are taking a serious course here to take off with this sort of thing; it's not the type of thing that we were sent here to do. I really don't believe that this is the type of thing that we want to do. Now, let me address myself to this amendment even though I don't think it's worthy of the time, and I say that with all due respect that I don't think that this convention should spend five minutes on this terrible amendment. You're worried about individuals. Who owns corporations? Individuals own corporations. What happens to the income from those corporations? They pay tax on the income and then what happens? What's left is distributed to the individuals. So, then what happens? They pay tax again; so, they are double taxed. So, what you are saying is, that we believe over here that maybe you ought to have something but in this area where you are double taxed, well we are just going to tax you a little bit harder because double taxing isn't enough. We will double tax you but, at the same time, we won't give you a deduction for the tax that you've already paid the federal government. Now, if you can put that in some kind of logical order, well, I would say that you are a lot better delegate than I am. I hope that we don't discuss this thing in great detail, and we just vote it down.

Further Discussion

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, I'm real disturbed; I'm aggrieved; I'm disappointed. You've seen in the space of about five minutes a classic example of what we've done here time and time again when we start trying to legislate things into this constitution. The amendments are poorly drawn; they have to be rewithdrawn, rewritten, and this type of thing. We're in an area here where we have no business, and the further we go, the worse it gets. I think it's just sheer hypocrisy on our part to put such things in this constitution in order to try to sell it. We're going to sell it with a three-dollar license plate; we're going to sell it with a limit on income tax; I have to repeat what Monday has said: "Who are we kidding?" The legislature has the right to tax. We've said that in the first paragraph of this article. It's going to take so much money to run state government. They're going to have to get it from one place or the other. We are in an area here where a lot smarter people than us have tried to write tax laws and have been unsuccessful. I don't see how we can come up here through amendments in the space of a few minutes, and start trying to revise the tax code. I beg of this convention, let's put a stop to all this foolishness. Let's leave this thing as simple as we can because we're going to foul it up so bad where nobody will be able to salvage it. I'm just real disappointed that we've come back this morning and started doing things like this. I beg of you, let's put a stop to it.

Further Discussion

MR. RIECKE

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I think it's a very, very bad amendment. There are many, many hundreds of small, family corporations in this state who, as it was pointed out Saturday, pay as much as fifty-two percent federal income tax on their earnings, and on top of that, pay about four percent to the state. That's fifty-six percent of a small, family corporation's earnings going to taxes. The legislature, as Mr. Monday Lowe said, is sensitive to the will of the people. I think that we ought not to alienate the votes for this constitution by making an exception to these corporations. For some reason or other, so many people believe that because you've got a corporation, it's a great big wealthy outfit that ought to be taxed and taxed and taxed. Well, there are hundreds and hundreds of small corporations in Louisiana. I don't think we ought to penalize those people by passing this amendment. I'm very much against it. I think it's a very, very bad amendment, and I hope you'll vote it down.

Question

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Riecke, this is a friendly question. I agree with you one hundred percent. What I am attempting to do by this is to undo in part what we did yesterday. I think we made a terrible error when we froze into this constitution this type of deduction. Do you not agree that perhaps some sort of amendment would be desirable that would at the end of my amendment, perhaps, say after the word "corporation," say, "or persons"? In other words, but the deduction need not be allowed to persons. The reason I say this is because I don't think we could get sixty-seven votes to call from the table the motion to reconsider. Do you agree that that would be another way of reconsidering it?

MR. RIECKE

I don't know. The persons' corporations are comprised of persons. I think when you exclude them from that exemption, you are making small corporations pay taxes that you are allowing to partnerships and ownerships, and I don't think that's fair.

Further Discussion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Mr. Jack couldn't be here today. He had to go to Shreveport; he won't be back till tomorrow. But, the last thing he said, "Don't let them mess with that amendment we've passed." So, I'm up here in behalf of my colleague, and also myself. I was a coauthor of this amendment. So was Mr. Fulco, and Mr. Shannon, and Mr. Velazquez. This amendment which was a good amendment yesterday was passed 65 to 24. It just said "Federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes."

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

I don't see why in the world corporations can't remain in there. It could say most, or a lot of small corporations need the deduction as well as individuals. Usually, you think of a corporation as a big giant. Most of them are not. But, anyway, it is an inequitable tax to begin with--tax on a tax as I said yesterday. I don't see why it shouldn't be allowed to everybody. This comes at a late date, and I ask you all since my colleague that instigated this matter is not here to talk, I'm talking in his behalf. Like I say, we've passed one by a tremendous vote one day, and then you come back and want to change it all up. Let's don't fool with it. Go ahead and defeat this amendment and leave it like it is.

Further Discussion

MR. ARNETTE

Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in support of this amendment, and the reason I do support it is it does give the legislature some leeway. It says that this is not necessarily...your federal income taxes are deductible by a corporation. Let the legislature decide this particular matter. That's all Mr. Tobias's amendment does is make it clear that the legislature has some leeway. Now, Mr. Smith got up here and talked about small corporations, and Mr. Riecke talked about family corporations. I realize these are in existence, and they are much more numerous than, probably, the very big corporations. But, I'd also like to point out to you that most family corporations, depending on how they're run, pay absolutely no federal income taxes because all the earnings are distributed in salaries, or either it's under a partnership-type of tax--I forget the federal income tax section--but, they treated it as a partnership, and only the persons who have stock in this particular corporation pay taxes. The corporation itself pays absolutely none. So, this isn't going to hurt the small person, the small corporation, or the family corporation. All this does is let the legislature, if they need to, put it in there so that these taxes, the federal income taxes, are deductible by a large corporation. That's all Mr. Tobias's amendment does. It doesn't say that this is the way it is, and nobody can change it. It says, well, let the legislature decide. I think that's what we need to do. I think we need this amendment in there to make it clear that the legislature has that option. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I would urge you to vote against this amendment. Yesterday, I opposed putting in the deduction for federal income taxes against the state income tax because I didn't think you were doing anything at all for the people. The legislature, as Mr. Lowe pointed out to you, has other ways of raising that income tax on them--by taking away the personal deduction, by taking away other itemized deductions, and it's also true with corporations. We can raise the corporation taxes simply by raising the corporation franchise tax. So, there's no problem there. But, if you've got one of them in, then let's go ahead and be consistent, and also leave the deduction in for corporations, and let's not get raveled here in all kind of mess that we really don't understand.

Question

MR. BOLLINGER

John, I guess you know I agree with you wholeheartedly, but don't you think we were inconsistent yesterday when we adopted Mr. Kean's amendment to put a limit on personal income tax? However, we didn't see fit to put a limit on corporate income tax when, again, you could have raised the franchise tax, if you decided to...

MR. ALARIO

You're right, Mr. Bollinger.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, several months ago Senator Rayburn stood at this microphone and said that this convention was acting like a bunch of people at a wild cow milking contest. Well, I think yesterday when we enacted Mr. Jack's amendment, that's what we did. The purpose of my amendment is in part, to undo part of what we did yesterday, and I admit it. I would hope that someone would come with an amendment to amend my amendment which would take...which would add after the words "corporation," the phrase "or persons," which would, in effect, negate the whole first part--in other words, Mr. Jack's amendment. I think that this is a point where we've got to realize that we are running out of time, and that we're trying to enact a revenue code for this state, and that's just something that should be left to the legislature. I remind you that we are trying to constitutionalize something with respect to the Jack amendment that is not now in the constitution and that the legislature has just returned and given back to the people. I agree with Mr. Lowe, Mr. Riecke, Mr. Abraham, but I still urge that we ought to undo, in part, what we did yesterday, and enact this amendment.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 19-76. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to suspend the rules to call from the table the motion to reconsider Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 by Mr. Jack rejected: 29-65.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

The next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Gravel, which read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 32, immediately after "(A)" delete the remainder of the line and on page 2, at the beginning of line 1 delete the word "upon" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "The legislature upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house may levy equal and uniform taxes upon individual and corporate".

Amendment No. 2. On page 2, line 2, immediately after the word "income" change the semicolon ";" to a period "." and delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 3, 4, and 5 in their entirety including all floor amendments adopted thereto and insert in lieu thereof the following: "The income tax rate, however, shall not exceed twelve percent on any portion of individual or corporate net income."

Explanation

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, like Mr. Lowe and Mr. Abraham, I'm very, very much disturbed about what we did on yesterday, and what we appear to be doing to Committee Proposal No. 15. Instead of trying to write a constitution, it looks like we're trying to build into a proposed document technical procedures that relate to the revenue collection processes of the State of Louisiana. I'm very much disturbed also about the fact that we are going to get ourselves, perhaps, in such a position that there will be serious limitations upon the power of state government to raise at the state level, adequate revenues to run the government for much of the time that is going to be left during the remainder of our lives and for many, many years thereafter. I looked at Committee Proposal No. 15 and thought that in general the committee had done a very good job. There has been removed from the proposal certain provisions in our present constitution that made it difficult, if not almost impossible, to adequately prepare a legislative program that dealt both with revenues and services. The purpose of this amendment is, hopefully, to try to respond to some concern that some of the delegates seem to have with respect to the possibility that the legislature may go way too far in imposing income taxes on individuals and corporations. It seeks to delete the Kean amendment adopted by this convention, which freezes into the constitution a totally unrealistic schedule that was imposed in the depression years, or placed into the law in the depression years; and at the same time, to put some limitation upon the authority that the legislature may have to levy income taxes. What the amendment seeks to do, Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, is to give to the legislature authority to impose income taxes on individuals and corporations, but imposes a ceiling of twelve percent of the net income as being the maximum that can be imposed. It seems to me that this would be a fair compromise in lieu of the provisions that have been heretofore considered and adopted by this convention, proposed both by Mr. Kean, and by Mr. Jack. We should not, we should not be structuring the tax program of the State of Louisiana in this constitution. We should only lay down in the proposed document the broadest possible guidelines that it will permit of an orderly control of state government and an orderly process for the collection of revenue. I submit to you that we should go no further than is suggested by this amendment. I ask your favorable support for it.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Gravel, the effect of your amendment, would it not be to eliminate the Kean amendment of yesterday which imposed the rate as we now have it in the constitution? Is that right?

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct, yes, sir.

MR. ROEMER

But, wouldn't it also have the effect of undoing what the committee tried to do in limiting the rate on the lower income people? That would be eliminated also, wouldn't it?

MR. GRAVEL

That would be eliminated to the extent that it would be a matter for the legislature to determine by a two-thirds vote.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I don't know whether you know it or not, but I find parts of your amendment in its effect of eliminating the Kean amendment very helpful, but the effect of eliminating that two percent, very dishelpful. I'm just at a problem there.

MR. GRAVEL

I understand that. But, my whole point, Mr. Roemer, is that within the limitation...well, within the span of from zero to twelve percent, the legislature should be given authority to act and it will have to act by two-thirds vote. It seems to me that that's as much limitation as we ought to place on the imposition of the income tax in this constitution.

MR. SMITH

Mr. Gravel, didn't you say your amendment would have the effect of eliminating both the Jack and the Kean amendment?

MR. GRAVEL

Yes, sir.

MR. SMITH

And any other amendments we'd adopted yesterday, too?

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct. That's the effect of this amendment.

MR. SMITH

What is the purpose of your amendment? I mean, why do you want to eliminate all of these?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, the purpose of the amendment is to leave to the legislature, subject to the twelve percent ceiling, the right and the authority to determine what income taxes should be paid, and what deductions should be allowed. It's just inconceivable to me that we can be here writing a constitution for the State of Louisiana and spending most of our time on placing into the constitution what should and should not be deductible.

MR. SMITH

Well, don't you think we, as delegates, should do this?

MR. GRAVEL

No, sir. I do not.

MR. SMITH

They put the three-dollar car license in the constitution.

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Smith, the three-dollar car license is an emotional issue that I think is set off by itself. Most of the delegates of this convention don't agree that it should be in the constitution, and most of us feel that if we don't put it in it, it's going to spell death for the document.

MR. SMITH

Well, don't you think federal taxes should be deductible from your state income tax?

MR. GRAVEL

I certainly do. I certainly do. But, I don't think that we should for all time freeze that concept into the constitution. I think the question of deductions for state income tax purposes are purely within the scope of the legislative process and should not be built into the constitution.

MR. SMITH

Well, don't you think, though, if we don't freeze this in the constitution, and there was some governor that would come along, that was able to get two-thirds vote, and do it all over again?

MR. GRAVEL

If it's absolutely necessary to be done, I think, perhaps, it should be done. Let me explain one thing to you. The reason why we were able to remove this particular...well, to reinstate this particular deduction at the special session, was because we were able to get additional revenues for the State of Louisiana from the severance tax on oil and gas. I think someone pointed out yesterday that the gas resources are being depleted at a rate of approximately three percent per year, and our oil resources are being depleted, or reduced by about eight percent per year. I don't know what structure is going to have to be created during the next decade or the next two decades by the legislature of Louisiana in order to obtain the necessary revenues to run this government. I don't believe that we ought to prohibit at all times in the future the legislature from utilizing this deduction if it becomes necessary.

MR. SMITH

Thank you, sir.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Gravel, as I appreciate it, if we adopted your Amendment No. 1, and didn't adopt your Amendment No. 2, then there would be no restriction upon the right of the legislature to levy the income tax.

MR. GRAVEL

If you adopted No. 1 and did not adopt No. 2, that's correct.

MR. KEAN

If we adopted No. 2, then the legislature could raise the percentage on income from ten to twenty by six times, could they not? In other words, they could go from two percent to twelve percent. Is that correct?

MR. GRAVEL

That's the ceiling. However, it does permit the legislature to impose income taxes on a graduated basis. I mean that language is still in here. Mr. Kean, I think it's very clear what...I said this: I said that the legislature under this amendment could impose income taxes from zero up to twelve percent on such basis as it in its wisdom might determine.

MR. KEAN

And, if it went all the way to the twelve percent in its wisdom, then it would increase the ten to twenty thousand by six times; it would increase the twenty to forty thousand by three times, and it would double the income tax of those forty or above.

MR. GRAVEL

If it did that, and conversely, if it said that the income tax should be two percent on all income, then it would reduce some of the taxes that are being presently imposed.

There could be no change in the present law; there could be no change in the present structure except by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. The present structure would still be the law of Louisiana as it is now in the revised statutes.

MR. BURNS

Mr. Gravel, at the present time, the ceiling on state income tax, the rate is six percent, isn't it?

MR. GRAVEL

Yes, sir, for everything over fifty thousand dollars.

MR. BURNS

Your Amendment No. 2 would double that.

MR. GRAVEL

It would authorize the legislature to go up to twelve percent.

MR. BURNS

Do you know, I went home yesterday afternoon, and left there after church today, and this is the first weekend I ever have received a favorable comment on what we were doing over here because of just what you want to delete?

MR. GRAVEL

No, I didn't know that.

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Gravel, why twelve percent? You talked about not putting any limitations at all, and you come up with a twelve percent figure. Number one and number two, you're not only doubling the six percent factor, you're allowing the legislature to double or triple or quadruple any of the three factors that we now use.

MR. GRAVEL

For two reasons, Senator Nunez. Number one, I think there should be some limitation; number two, I think that the income tax is the fairest of all taxes and the legislature should have some flexibility. I don't know what the legislature might decide to do in its wisdom, but at least to give them the latitude in the area within which they could operate, I thought that a twelve percent ceiling would be realistic, and the legislature then could make a determination within the limitations as to what taxes should be imposed, and what graduations should be made.

MR. NUNEZ

Did you know you were absolutely right in your prediction or your statement that the oil natural resources are being depleted at eight percent per year? But, what you didn't add was that we have been taxing them at the rate of an additional hundred percent per year for the past three years.

MR. GRAVEL

Well, relatively, though, when the tax was imposed, the proportion on the present tax in relation to the value of oil is about the same--just a little bit different, not much.

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Gravel, I'm going to ask you if you've heard this quote by Benjamin Franklin, and then I'm going to ask you to comment upon it. "It would be thought a hard government that should tax its people one-tenth part of their time to be employed in its service."

MR. GRAVEL

Well, I believe both the church and the government are not necessarily bound by that.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the Gravel amendment--both of them. I have to say that the amendment is not without some worthy aspects. We in the committee--and I'm not speaking for the committee as a whole; I'm speaking for myself, but let me tell you about the committee deliberation--we in the committee did believe in flexibility when it came to these rates. We didn't feel the constitution was the place to... for us to legislate for all time, as it were, what the specific and exact rates of income tax and severance taxes would or might ought to be. We also believed in the integrity of the legislature, but we didn't believe that they should have a free reign, and we inserted the two-thirds rule. We also, however, unlike Mr. Gravel, felt the need to protect the men and women of this state that made a fairly small amount of income from the willy-nilly imposition of high tax rates on them. I think, and I hope that you'll see after now, the second day of debate on Section 4, why we came up with Section 4(A). It makes good sense. It makes sense both politically--that is, what the people want--and it makes sense fiscally--that is, what's in the best interest of the state. If you look again at what we did originally in Section 4, Paragraph (A), we put a two percent limit on individual income up to ten thousand, and two percent limit on joint returns of up to twenty thousand. After that, we left it up to the legislature. After you see amendment after amendment that does nothing more than try to legislate tax rates, I hope you will realize that the committee was not out in left field on this thing. We spent a lot of time looking at it, and I hope you will realize that what we came up with is truly in the best interest of the citizens of this state. I ask you to defeat this amendment, and to consider an amendment that we have coming in a few minutes which will, in effect, go back to the original committee report. I think that's in our best interest.

Questions

MR. FULCO

Buddy, don't you think we owe Mr. Jack the courtesy of at least considering his amendment in his presence, and withholding consideration of this thing today until his return tomorrow?

MR. ROEMER

Well, I think we gave Mr. Jack a hearing, and I supported his amendment, Frank. You know that. But, I don't think we can stop the deliberation of this body for one man, whether it be Mr. Jack or myself. I wouldn't ask that, and I don't think Wellborn asks that.

MR. FOWLER

Mr. Roemer, don't you think Mr. Jack could have been here today, just like we are?

MR. ROEMER

Well, I don't have a comment on that. I think Mr. Jack does what he has to do. I've found him to be a hard working delegate, and I know if he could have been here, he would have.

MR. HENRY

Yield to one quick question from Mr. Bollinger? The gentleman yields.

MR. BOLLINGER

Buddy, what do you find wrong with the first amendment?

MR. ROEMER

What do I find wrong with the first amendment?

MR. BOLLINGER

Amendment No. 1.

MR. ROEMER

Nothing, with the first amendment. As I understand it, though, there was not a call to make the question divisible, yet. They were presented as a package, Boysie. I opposed them.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, by a quirk of fate, I see they're having a party up in Boston today to celebrate a two hundred-year anniversary of the Boston Tea Party. The ability to tax is the ability to destroy. We know that. This issue is coming before us again, and I would like to look at it with you in perspective and explain it to you as I see it. I think there are two groups, here, and I'm afraid the coalition of this both good and bad group may do a great deal of harm to this constitution. First, the good group--and I think most of us try to fit in this group. We are trying to represent the people. Who are these people? These people are the poor, the workers, the workers' incorporations and not incorporations, the shrimpers, the farmers, the doctors, the attorneys and any category you care to put us into, we are all people. But, at the same time, we're like the blind man and the elephant. We can only perceive one aspect as we see it. So it is to the benefit here of all of us combined, that we give to the people of the State of Louisiana our combined decision. On the other hand, there have mixed among us, a group of bad people. I've noticed this, and several of you have referred to them with great disdain in coming to this microphone, labeling them all types of names--hypocrites and the like. But, really, I watched them carefully, and I believe that the intent is to kill this constitution. I'm very disturbed that these people are acting at this time to overload the camel with the straw that's going to break its back. I'm most disturbed that a coalition of the uninformed and this bad group will get together and create a faulty document which we are in the process of trying to complete, and thereby defeat this constitution in the name of the voters of this state trying to decide whether we did a good or a bad job. Now, let me show you--Buzzy, can I have that newspaper--let me show you what the people back home said in the Sunday edition.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Here's what the people in one section of the state think about our action yesterday. Although I did not go for the three dollar license plate, because I thought it was nothing more than a political gimmick. Those of you that are running for office and writing this constitution presented a very important aspect--that's voter appeal. This is what the folks back home woke up to this morning: "CC/'73 Blocks Income Tax Hikes." If you don't think that's going to sell a constitution, you tell me somebody that's against this. Now, that's about as far as we can go, I think, and that's as far as I think we should go. We've got to face reality, and those members of the committee have come before you and told you that there's voter appeal on one hand and reality on the other, and where's the state going to get the funds. Let's cut out this foolishness and go on with this convention. I don't believe that the floor amendment here proposed is doing anything but messing up, confusing the issue again. We are not tax attorneys. We're not trying to write tax legislation. Let's go on with the committee proposal as it is and as it stands. Hopefully, those of you that are running for office, if you so desire to keep the three dollar license plate in, we'll do so. Hopefully, we will restrict the income tax hike to the two, four, and six percent, as outlined on personal income. In conclusion, let me say, the legislature, as you all know, has the power to tax. If they're not going to get it from one direction, they'll get it from another. So, we don't have to worry about the state going broke. But, I, like many people in this state, think that the state has plenty of money. More than that, they're giving it to a lot of people right here that are making their livelihood on the name of the state. That's too much money that the state is getting--your money and mine and everybody else's, little people, big people, and in-between people. Let the state function on what it needs to function on and do a good job. I think those of you that sit here know that we have a fine state, we're doing a good job, and there's no reason to horse around with this tax structure. Let's leave it be to the legislature, but at the same time, let's leave some of these amendments in that have been presented. Let's give the people of the state what they deserve and keep them from hiking the income tax. If you want to leave the three dollar license plate in, throw that in the boot.

Questions

MR. LOWE

Dr. Weiss, this may seem like a facetious question, but it's not, really. It's merely to make a point. I have a lot of respect for you. But, how would you like to perform an operation after a tax man had walked through the operating room and decided which tools you would use to perform that operation with?

MR. WEISS

No, sir, Mr. Lowe, I respect your question, because that is not either facetious or otherwise; it's a fact. Today, the medicare operation--which is a complete flop and now being revised--is exactly what the federal government tried to do to the doctors. They've not succeeded; they don't understand the problem; they don't understand people. Of course, they tried to do it and failed.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I was just wondering, Dr. Weiss, did the three dollar license make any little headlines in your paper?

MR. WEISS

They made smaller headlines. Did you see what made the front page Sunday edition? You're right, it did.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

It did make some, though, didn't it?

MR. WEISS

It made small, and your name was in it, and mine was too.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

In my area, Dr. Weiss, it made the big headlines. I live in a very poor area, sir.

MR. WEISS

Well, I happen to be from Governor Jones's hometown, and they made it small print, fortunestly, because I opposed what he started, forty years ago.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I rise in opposition to Mr. Gravel's amendment and also in opposition to the amendment that Mr. Roemer referred to that the committee might offer with regard to reinstating the section to the original shape that it was in. Mr. Gravel said that, you know, we have a declining tax base with regard to severance taxes. Thus, we need the authority to impose additional income taxes. I want to refer you to some remarks made by Mr. Traigle, the collector of revenue, in this morning's paper, with regard to severance taxes. Here's what he said: State revenue collector, Joe Traigle, said Saturday 'he recently signed two hundred and ninety-eight million dollar severance tax laws will serve Louisiana as an effective hedge against the specter of dwindling petroleum resources. The key to advantages in the new legislation,' Traigle stated, 'is that oil will be taxed on a percent of value rather than a per barrel basis. This means,' he said, 'that as the value of oil increases, the state will share in the increase in the value because we will receive a flat percent of that value.' Then, he said, 'More than likely, oil quantities derived from Louisiana will continue to decline, but just as likely, the value will continue to increase significantly, as it has in the past six to eight months. The increase in value will surpass the decrease in quantity, which means that the State of Louisiana will stop losing money from oil severance tax and will begin reaping increases in the oil severance tax from this point on.' So, Mr. Traigle's statement certainly contradicts Mr. Gravel's. Something else Mr. Traigle said in the paper, though, I want to disagree with. He said in another article, he said--with regard to what we did yesterday on income taxes--he said, 'pointing out Louisiana income taxes are currently the lowest in the country,' Traigle said, 'the administration needs the flexibility to make administrative changes without a constitutional amendment.' Well, the fact is, Louisiana's income taxes are not the lowest in the country. In fact, thirty states either don't have income taxes at all, or if they do have income taxes, they are no higher than ours in Louisiana, at that six percent figure. Now, with regard to the proposal of Mr. Gravel that the limit be twelve percent on state income taxes, let me inform you that there are only four states in this country that have income taxes as high as twelve percent. Those are on very high incomes, and those states are: Delaware, Minnesota, New Jersey and New York, which have some of the highest taxes per capita in the country. There seems to be this myth continuing that our taxes are so low in Louisiana. Well, on a per capita basis, we rank twentieth in the nation in taxes, per capita. Yet, we're forty-sixth in the nation in per capita income--forty-sixth in the nation in per capita income, twentieth in the nation in per capita taxes. Our taxes, as a relation of our income, is very high in this state. Of course, a number of folks have said, 'What are we doing here, trying to make all these amendments and changes in this proposal by the Revenue and Taxation Article, trying to lock these things into the constitution just like they have been before?' Well, I'll tell you what we're trying to do: we're trying to represent the people of this state who are fed up with increased taxes, who certainly don't want to see them any higher than they are now. If that's not what a constitutional convention is for, I don't know what it's for. So, that's what we're trying to do here. I think this subsection is all right like it is. We've continued the present limitations; we've put in this prohibition against taxes on taxes. I think we ought to move on to the next subsection.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm inclined to begin my speech by reciting the Latin words of the mass that I used to hear before we started the vernacular, "Mea culpa, Mea Culpa, Mea Maxima Culpa," because it seems that the general tenor of the debate that I hear, here, is that one should apologize and do penance for proposing that people who make more than twenty thousand dollars receive the same constitutional protection as those who make less. You know, lost in the rhetoric that you have heard up'til now is the fact the committee proposed to keep the very same limitation on lower income taxes that is in the constitution, now. They were going to offer this protection to everyone up to twenty thousand dollars. Well, now, why is that? Why is that, indeed? Because the committee, as many sagacious politicians before them, know that as long as you take care of those, or rather don't disturb those who are in the majority, you can sock it to all of them above and make them pay the bills. Don't you think for a minute that this wouldn't have been the end result of this tax scheme of the committee if we'd let it stand like it was. You know, there's another thing you want to remember about the legislative process in taxation. There are a lot more pressure groups wanting increases in taxes for various reasons--the reasons may be very legitimate in particular cases--then there are pressure groups up here lobbying against taxes. In other words, you have a lot more people that don't want the new taxes, but the people that don't want them are not nearly as well organized as those that do want them. If you stop and think about that awhile, I think you'll conclude that's true, in the main. I submit to you the state is not going to run out of money, and if the state gets in such bad shape that it has to up the income tax rates, well, then, certainly that should be obvious to the citizenry. They could propose a constitutional amendment and come in and alter these limits at that time. We must not be in that shape now, because I read the other day in the paper, after the severance tax increase, that a large percentage of what was going to be collected under the increase couldn't be budgeted. There was nothing to spend it on. They're going to have to stop and figure out something else to spend it on. I didn't see anybody propose that the excess be used to pay off bonded indebtedness, or anything as archaic as that, though. That seems to be entirely out of fashion, much like here in the United States of America, we've believed for so many years that we could borrow and borrow and borrow because we only owed it to ourselves. Of course, we all know about the dollar drain on the country, now, and the shape we find ourself in in the international community on that situation. I submit to you that the people of this country believe, childlike as they may be--what I read in the civics book, I can well remember when I was in high school--that when your total tax structure takes more than thirty-five percent of your income, it's confiscatory. All the statistics that I read show a range between thirty and forty-five percent. If you're in that above twenty thousand bracket, and you got hit with a twelve percent state income tax lick, then you would be, I would guess, well in the fifty percent range. A system like that kills initiative; it's basically unfair to make the man who's got the initiative to get out and earn his income pay the total bill for the society, because as I mentioned yesterday, the very rich--the very rich--have ways of avoiding paying any taxes at all, as we are all well aware, including, apparently, the president of the United States. I submit to you, in the end, that the tax schedule that Mr. Kean has frozen into the constitution in his amendment is not unrealistic at all. It's served us quite well up to date, and if and when it becomes "unrealistic," then we can change it by constitutional amendment. The tacit assumption on all of the reasoning I have heard up here is that taxes--the rate of taxation--must continue to rise. I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, answer me this question: At what point do we reach a limit? I guess we may be getting to the point where we'll be able to just endorse the check on the back, send it to the state, and get our coffee money back, because with the raise we've had in social security rates, which are up to ten percent now, the federal graduated income tax rates--that's another thing nobody mentioned--even the state schedule is graduated. You're taxed on a higher level if you earn more money, although, thank goodness, it's not graduated nearly to the extent that the federal tax schedule is. I submit to you it's time, for once, to think of all of the citizens who go to work every day, hold two jobs in some cases, to see to it that their children can get a good education, and who pay the bills in this country. Let's give them the kind of protection that they need, that they want, as reflected in that headline in the Lake Charles paper. If you think we ought to accept this amendment, think what that headline will look like tomorrow, if we reverse ourselves today.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I again urge you to support this amendment, primarily because we have, within the proposal, adequate limitations to safeguard any abuse whatsoever with respect to the imposition of income taxes on individuals and corporations, by the legislature. I don't think it's realistic for us to freeze into the constitution a schedule that was devised in the depression years, at a very, very low rate, applicable to income taxes. The primary reason that this amendment has been offered is in order to afford some latitude to the legislature, which is not being afforded by the proposed section, in its present form. I urge that you adopt the amendment.

Questions

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Gravel, assuming your amendment is defeated and Mr. Kean's amendment stays in, what is your objection to the people having an opportunity to vote on constitutional amendments which, in the future, might rearrange the tax schedule?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, I just . . . I'm trying to keep the people from having to vote on a lot of amendments, and I think most of us are doing that in the effort that we're making to write a new constitution, to make it as broad and comprehensive and with sufficient latitude so that it doesn't have to be considered for amendments from time to time.

MR. HENRY

Yield to a question from Mr. Goldman?
The gentleman yields.
You're next, Mr. Smith.

MR. GOLDMAN

As usual, this probably doesn't bear directly on this, but it does bear on amendments. Isn't the idea of writing a new constitution to eliminate the necessity of the general population of the state voting on amendments for particular localities? But, when it's necessary to vote on constitutional amendments that affect the entire state, then I think we should be able to vote on those constitutional amendments.

MR. GRAVEL

Well, I think you should be able to, also.

[Record Quorum Call: 103 delegates present and a quorum. Division of the Question ordered.]

Point of Information

MR. KELLY

I'd like to address this question to Mr. Poynter.

It was my understanding from a question that was directed from Mr. Kean, that even though Amendment No. 1 were to pass and Amendment No. 2 were to fail, that this would still wipe out all those amendments yesterday. Is that correct, and actually leave nothing? Could you answer that, Mr. Poynter?

MR. POYNTER

No, the first amendment just deletes language on page 1, line 32-- I mean, on page 2 at the beginning of line 1. So, it would not have the effect of going further than those pages and lines, in my appreciation, Mr. Kelly.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment No. 1 rejected: 39-62. Motion to reconsider tabled. Amendment No. 2 reread and rejected: 28-74. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments sent up by Mr. Gravel and reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, delete lines 2 through 5, both inclusive, in their entirety, including all floor amendments thereto and insert in lieu thereof the following: "ing to the amount of net income. However, the state individual income tax rate on the first ten thousand dollars of taxable income for a single return or twenty thousand dollars of taxable income for a joint return shall not exceed two percent, and any additional tax levied on additional taxable income shall not exceed twelve percent. Federal income taxes paid shall be allowed as a deductible item in computing state income taxes paid for the same period."

Explanation

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the very first thing I want to say about this is that this proposed amendment retains for the proposed constitution the Jack amendment. So, I don't want to get in any trouble with Mr. Smith, Mr. Fulco, or anybody else at this time about the fact that Mr. Jack isn't here to protect his interest because his amendment is incorporated in and made part of this proposed amendment. Another thing that the proposed amendment does is that it continues the provision, in effect, that the committee adopted to insure that the persons of minimum income, so to speak, are not prejudiced by any income tax schedule. So, those individuals whose taxable income does not exceed ten thousand dollars cannot be taxed more than two percent. What we are proposing to do by this amendment is to authorize the legislature by a two-thirds vote to increase the tax rate of those persons who make in excess--and make sure I have the statutes here so I get the exact amount--in excess of ten thousand dollars per year, up to such amount as the legislature may determine not to exceed twelve percent. This would also authorize the legislature to tax corporations not more than twelve percent. As you all know under the present statutes, the corporate ceiling is four percent. Now, what this does, then, is to permit the legislature to increase the income taxes on those people who are making a substantial amount of money. I don't think that we should freeze into the constitution for the benefit of those who have reached levels of affluence in excess of ten thousand dollars, those particular minute percentages that were adequate for the 1930's. I urge you to adopt this amendment.

Questions

MR. CHATELAIN

Delegate Gravel, when you mentioned those names of Mr. Smith and others back here, you forgot to mention my name. I would like to ask you this, sir: Would you consider exempting those small corporations who earn ten, or fifteen, or twenty thousand dollars a year? Would you consider exempting them in the same rate that you exempted the small individual?

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chatelain, it's my intention--and I believe the result of the proposed amendment--is that these percentages would apply to taxpayers, both corporate and individual taxpayers. I don't intend to make and don't think I made....

MR. CHATELAIN

You have no reference here to...it say "individual income."

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct.

MR. CHATELAIN

Would you go along with the amendment and you can gain my vote if you do that?

MR. GRAVEL

I would. In other words, I think that a corporation should be subjected to the same schedule as the individual for state income tax purposes.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, that gives a lot of we delegates here, Mr. Gravel, a problem as you well know because of many, many small corporations in this state domestically own or solely own the local communities, and----- do have a problem in this area.

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chatelain, I think, just to further answer your question--- I'm not sure, I would want to check it with the staff--but, I think perhaps to accomplish what you suggest and want I really had intended that we might only have to leave out the word "individual" that's on the second line of the proposed amendment; I'll have to check that and see.

MR. CHATELAIN

Thank you very much; I really appreciate you doing that, sir.

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Gravel, we had the same problem in our Revenue and Taxation Committee in trying to word these different amendments that we had and trying to get our ideas incorporated in the proposal. But, is there any significance, Mr. Gravel, in the use of "and any additional tax levied on additional taxable income shall not exceed twelve percent." My question is: If we redefine income or taxable income as the gross income rather than net income, would that have any effect on the two percent?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, I think it would. But, I was trying to be consistent with the language that was utilized by the committee and, as I understand it, the tax...the two percent application was the net income and this was to be consistent with the language that you had already utilized.

Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask permission to withdraw the amendment simply for the purpose of deleting the word "individual" on the second line of the proposed amendment, so that there will be no question but that the entire provision would relate to both personal and corporate income tax.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment withdrawn: 78-13.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Resubmits the amendment: the second line of the text, the second word, strike out that word "individual." So, it reads "However, the state income tax rate on the first ten thousand dollars", and so forth.

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Gravel, I believe the main thrust of your amendment is it takes out the four and six percent limitations on incomes above ten and twenty thousand dollars; is that correct?

MR. GRAVEL

It does that and then additionally, also, it would put a constitutional limit on the imposition of corporate income taxes of twelve percent which I don't think was done by...was touched, in anyway, by the Kean amendment.

MR. JENKINS

I want to ask you this: Do you know of any other southern state that allows income taxes to be taxed in excess of six percent, our current maximum limit?

MR. GRAVEL

I've made no study of it, Mr. Jenkins. But, I started to ask you the question when you were making that observation because I think there is a vast difference between our tax structure in Louisiana and the tax structure of most other states because most all of our taxes are selected at the state level and there are no... there are a lot of services in the other states that we provide at the state level that are provided for on a parish or county level by the imposition of tax.

MR. JENKINS

But, then, we have the severance tax and most other states don't have that; don't we? So, we have....

MR. GRAVEL

No, no, that's not correct.

MR. JENKINS

Most of the southern states, besides Texas?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, producing states most...almost all of them have severance tax.

MR. JENKINS

But, you don't know of any other southern states that tax their incomes in excess of six percent at most; do you?

MR. GRAVEL

No, sir. I don't know what any of the others tax for. All I'm doing here is trying to authorize the legislature to impose the tax, there is no tax imposition by this proposal at all, Mr. Jenkins.

MR. JENKINS

Do you know that there are no other southern states that tax in excess of the six percent that we now tax?

MR. GRAVEL

I don't know; no, sir, I do not.

MR. WEISS

Delegate Gravel, how much more funds would this amount to in the total state revenues if this was doubled as you suggest, sir?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, let me see if I can do a little calculating for you. I don't know the brackets in which the income taxes are... from which the income taxes derive.

MR. WEISS

Right not it's nine percent of the total state revenues.

MR. GRAVEL

Well, there's about a hundred and eighty to a hundred and ninety million dollars currently...that were currently being collected as corporate and individual income taxes in the State of Louisiana--that was before the last session of the legislature

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

at which the federal tax was permitted or reinstated as a deduction from state taxes which cost approximately sixty million dollars. So, I think the total income taxes that are going to be collected in the State of Louisiana, under the present structure, would be in the neighborhood of about a hundred and twenty million dollars or so.

MR. WEISS

Which is less than five percent of the total revenues in the State of Louisiana at this time; is that right?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, it would be less than that.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Ullo.

MR. ULLO

Mr. Gravel, could you tell me how you derive this twelve percent figure?

MR. GRAVEL

I doubled the six percent that was in the Constitution of 1921 that was adopted during the depression years.

MR. ULLO

I see.

MR. GRAVEL

That was I doubled the maximum statutory ceiling.

MR. ULLO

You feel it's very nice to double the middle income people, but leave the other people throughout this state under twenty thousand at the same rate?

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Ullo, as I've said many times, I want to say it again. I think there is a choice sometimes that the legislature has got to make as to whether or not they are going to impose--let us say--an income tax or a sales tax. Now, we've got to impose taxes in order to provide services. My own personal philosophy is if you're going to have to comfort the afflicted sometime, it may be necessary to afflict the comfortable. I think that the middle income people ought to bear more of a burden proportionately than the poor.

MR. ULLO

All right. Do you think it is possible that they could double this taxation at the next session of the legislature following the passage, the proposed passage, of this new constitution?

MR. GRAVEL

If the constitution is adopted, it would be within the realm of legal possibility. But, I don't think that you are going to be able to impose any taxes, by any legislature, for a long, long time to come in view of the additional revenues that are being obtained at the present time as a consequence of the increased severance taxes imposed at the last session.

Further Discussion

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this proposed amendment not only because it has the effect of eliminating the amendment which I offered yesterday, but it seems to me to raise some very, very serious questions concerning the income tax that might be paid by the people of this state above the minimum level that's set forth in the amendment. First of all, as I read the amendment and in light of the little experience I have had with the legislature, it seems to me that we are looking at a twelve percent income tax. Now, that means in the case of the persons who are making between twenty and forty thousand dollars that they are going to have their income tax rate tripled. In the case of the corporations above that level, their rates would be tripled. In the case of those who make above forty thousand dollars, their rate would be doubled. I don't think you can read this amendment and come to any other conclusions. But, beyond that, I ask that you look at this amendment very carefully because it reads: "any additional tax levied on additional taxable income." Now, the present constitutional provision and the provisions of Title 47, Section 32, that we referred to yesterday deals with the maximum tax on net income. Now, as I read Mr. Gravel's amendment, it would be possible through this device to label all income as taxable income--that is, gross income as taxable income and then put a percentage factor against that income not to exceed twelve percent. Now, I don't believe that's what this convention would want to do. I don't think you would want to triple or double the existing income taxes of this state even if we stay with net income. But, clearly, we don't want to adopt an amendment which would leave it open for the legislature--by whatever vote, two-thirds of otherwise--to say that we are now going to impose this twelve percent tax on gross income. I say to you ladies and gentlemen, that this amendment would clearly permit that to be done. I suggest that we reject the Gravel amendment, that we move forward with the section as we now have it, and I ask for your consideration in that regard.

Further Discussion

MR. BURSON

Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, this is about the one thousandth example of a phenomena we have seen many times since July 5, "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again until everybody gets fed up and adopts an idea." The Kean amendment was adopted 58 to 36 yesterday. Mr. Gravel's first attempt today was rejected 74 to 28. I hope that the vote on this is so overwhelmingly against it that maybe they will give up trying. But, again, this whole idea is grounded in a fundamentally false, erroneous and unjust assumption, that is, that the fundamental premise of government in Louisiana should be "soak the rich." The rich, by the way, that have reached what Mr. Gravel somewhat, I would say, exaggeratedly called a level of affluence of ten thousand dollars. In the light of the present day economy how anyone in the name of heaven could call a ten thousand dollar income a level of affluence escapes me entirely. It is the level, however, that which most of the upper middle class and middle class citizens who support the state and local governments operate because don't forget the same people who pay this income tax in the main are the ones who pay the property tax to support local government. The only difference is and it's a big, big, big difference, they can vote whether or not to impose the property tax upon themselves. There is a second big difference, they are much more likely to be able to have a direct and powerful influence on how that money will be spent and to approve, even in most cases, specifically the project for which it will be spent when they approve the tax levy--that is an enormous difference. I submit to you that the real reason why the proponents of this amendment decry sales taxes is not that the sales taxes are regressive, but that sales taxes affect everybody. So, if you vote for a sales tax in the legislature, you are likely to have to go back home and face a totally enraged electorate, whereas, if you just vote for an increase in the income tax rates on people who make--let's say--more than twenty thousand dollars, that's likely to be only a small part of the electorate. If you figure you can bring home enough watermelon, or cantaloupe, or whatever else they happen to be slicing up at that time, then you may be able to buy enough votes, locally, to overcome that small amount of taxpayers who pay on an income of more than twenty thousand dollars. But, if you pass that sales tax, you better be able to justify totally the purpose for which you pass that sales tax because everybody's got to pay it. I don't think it's such a bad thing offered at the end that there is some tax that everybody's got to pay after all. I submit to you that it was admitted that the three dollar license plate was emotional. Well, if you think the three dollar license plate was emotional, you let that paper in Lake Charles that printed that headline yesterday about us maintaining the barriers against higher income taxes on the people of this state come out with a headline the same size tomorrow that say that "C.C./'73 flipped-flopped and permits double the tax rate that you have right now." I would be interested to hear the explanations back home, I really would be. I submit to you, we ought to reject this and every other amendment that would undo the good we did with the Kean amendment.

Questions

MR. ANZALONE

Jack, do you believe that five percent of a man's income who makes four hundred dollars a month is worth more to him than five percent of man's income who makes twelve thousand dollars a month?

MR. BURSON

I certainly do.

MR. ANZALONE

Well, Jack, you can't qualify your sales tax; you better try again.

MR. BURSON

Joe, I think the answer there is that the sales tax is the one tax that would fit in that category you are talking about, whereas, you have property tax which is the main basis of support of local government that is paid almost exclusively by the man in the second category that you talked about. Somewhere in the end, people have got to pay part of the bill so they will realize that there ain't no free lunch.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Burson has exceeded his time, gentlemen; I'm sorry. Senator De Blieux is now recognized.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I just want to mention a few thoughts to you that I'd like for you to keep in mind when you vote upon this particular amendment. First, in spite of what might have been said from this rostrum, the tax rate upon the individual taxpayers of the State of Louisiana are the lowest of any place in the United States. I want to repeat that, the taxes that the individual pays in the State of Louisiana are the lowest of any taxes of any individuals in the United States. If you don't think I'm correct in that, you compare your property taxes to those of any state around you or any place else. You compare your rest of your taxes. We are high in sales taxes, yes, that's the easiest tax for the legislature to pass and sometimes was probably the only tax that we could pass because of the limitation on the income tax and others. Due to the fact that a large portion of our money comes from severance and royalty payments, we have been able to have that low income tax... low tax rate on the individuals. However, as you have already been reminded, and I repeat again, that is a depleting resource. In ten or twelve years from now, I doubt very seriously that the revenues... that the amount of money that that brings into the state will amount to one-tenth of its total revenues while now, it amounts to approximately one-third or a little more. We haven't tried to put any limitation on the sales taxes that the individual pays. Yet, in most of the state, the sales tax rate, local and state sales taxes amount to six percent. Now, isn't it much harder for an individual trying to live off of three and four hundred dollars a month to meet a six percent rate than it would be for somebody who's making twenty and thirty thousand dollars a year? To me, the rate of ten percent, if we did have to go that high in your income tax rate. But, let me tell you this, we are not passing taxes in this Constitutional Convention, at least, we shouldn't be. Why not leave that to the legislature and let them decide. The thing is that the legislators, they have to face their constituency every four years. Any time that a legislator does not follow the wishes of his constituents and raises their taxes beyond what they think he ought to raise it, you can bet your bottom dollar, he won't be back. So, why should we try to make judgment for him. Why not let him make that judgment, and decide whether or not it's necessary. There is only place... the only place I know of that where the legislature can get money to operate the government is from the taxpayers. You can realize that they've got a responsibility just as much as we have here. I certainly feel like that in all due deference to the headlines that Dr. Weias held up a few minutes ago, that a similar headline that would have said that this Constitutional Convention outlawed all future taxes possibly would have been more enlightening to the taxpayers than what his headline was. But, as I think that we realize, as constitutional delegates, that would have been most imprudent to put into our constitution. But, yet, similarly we're trying to do that, we're trying to say that there will be no additional taxes. That should not be our function. So, let's leave to the legislature the duties and responsibility of running this state and deciding the amount of taxes. Therefore I ask you to let's support this Gravel amendment. At least, you do put a limitation up to twice to what it is now. That's twice what it was during the depression days. I ask you to seriously think about it. You're not imposing that tax; don't get me wrong; you're not imposing that tax, but you're just saying that they can't go any higher than that. I think that's sufficient. We have a limitation for property taxes, we ought to have a limitation for income taxes, and I should say we ought to have one for sales taxes, too.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Acting Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, let me close by making one very serious, and I think, pertinent observation with respect to this amendment and hopefully suggesting that it will give you a reason to support it. If we limit in this constitution, as we have done by adopting the Kean amendment, the unrealistic percentages that were adopted back in the thirties, we're going to leave only one alternative to the legislature, if in the future, the demands of the state require that revenues be increased and that the income tax be considered as a vehicle for that increase. If we don't give to the legislature the latitude permitted by this amendment, the legislature is going to be forced to either reduce or do away with the personal income tax exemption, the five thousand dollar exemption that applies at this time or the legislature is going to be forced to curtail some other exemptions that are presently permitted by law. Now, all I'm saying is this, is let's have some latitude, both at the top and at the bottom whereby the legislature can act. This is a reasonable amendment. It has adequate safeguards in it, it has an adequate ceiling and a constitutional floor, and yet, it will safeguard to a large extent the interests of the poorer people of this state. Certainly, no one can complain if persons who are making enough money to have a net taxable income in excess of forty or fifty thousand dollars, that they pay some more income tax than they're paying at the present time if the needs of the state require the imposition of such additions. I strongly urge that you support this amendment.

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Gravel, isn't it true that we've provided that if sales taxes are going to be increased on the local level, the people have to vote on it, or if property taxes are going to be increased on the local level, people have to vote on it?

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Jenkins, we've provided that, but we're not talking about even the imposition of taxes now. All we're talking about is the constitutional authority for the legislature to act. We haven't provided, we certainly haven't provided that all taxes imposed by the legislature shall be subject to a vote of the people.

MR. JENKINS

Well, isn't it reasonable though that if we've done that, that we ought to go ahead and say here that we'll put these tax limitations in the constitution on income taxes, and if the legislature wants to increase those then the people would have to vote on it?

MR. GRAVEL

In answer to your question, in my judgment that would not be reasonable.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Gravel, another question: Senator De Blieux stated and some others have said that we have the highest tax... lowest taxes in the nation, or do you agree with the figures from Commerce Clearing House that say that the average family of four in Louisiana pays one thousand three hundred and twenty-four dollars a year in local and state taxes which is sixty dollars a year more than the same family would pay if in Texas, and a hundred and forty dollars a year more than if he lived in Arkansas, and three hundred and sixteen dollars a year more than in Mississippi, and that is personal taxes on the family?

MR. GRAVEL

I don't know whether... what taxes that includes and I don't know either your figures or Senator De Blieux's, but it is my understanding, that as a general rule, taking all taxes into consideration that the people in Louisiana pay generally less taxes than do the individuals of other states.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 43-58. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 11, immediately after the word and punctuation "severance," delete the remainder of line 11 and delete lines 12 through 25, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. NEWTON

I think the amendment is self-explanatory. It's a....

Well, it takes the restrictions off of the legislature in being able to tax mineral resources and timber resources. It's a very simple amendment. I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. BERGERON

Autley, is this language maybe not in the same structure it is now in the Committee Proposal, but is the language in our present constitution?

MR. NEWTON

Well, some of it is, and some of it isn't.

MR. BERGERON

What are the reasons why you'd like to delete it from the Committee Proposal?

MR. NEWTON

Well, because I don't know what the economic future of this state is going to be. I mean it may be that right now some states are taxing timber in place, some states are taxing oil and gas in place. I... want us to be able to stay in a competitive situation with other states, and with these restrictions on there, I thought we might not be able to do that.

MR. BERGERON

But, the question is, these restrictions are in our present constitution, am I correct?

MR. NEWTON

Some of them are and some of them aren't. There are some of these more comprehensive than they were. For instance, upon oil, gas or sulphur leases, all right, so that was added--could be no tax on a lease right or a royalty interest.

Further Discussion

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in sincere opposition to this amendment for several reasons. The first and most important being that it seriously affects the economy of the pine timber area of Louisiana and especially the western Louisiana area in which I live, and with which I am best acquainted. Now, I realize that his entire amendment is not directed at that, but if you will look on line 22 of the committee proposal it states clearly, "likewise severance taxes shall be the only tax on timber," and that is what I am trying to preserve, that is about the severance tax on timber and it being distributed to the parishes or that is, seventy-five percent of the tax is about the only thing that the committee salvaged for us out of the entire Forest Land Taxation Law and that is the law that made it possible and induced the large landowners to plant western Louisiana, and it has been successful. The Forest Land Taxation Law which was adopted in 1954 by an overwhelming vote of more than three to one of the people of this state provided for a severance tax in lieu of a property tax, or that is, on timber. This has definitely been proven to be a very wise decision. No longer is a landowner reluctant to plant his land to timber because of the possibility of your accumulated taxes during the years required to grow timber to merchantable size, making such a program financially unsound. To the contrary, this provision has encouraged the planting of the naked pine lands. The fact that a landowner will pay the same tax on timber whether or not it is in production--and understand, that's the part that we, or that area are discussing-- we want all of this land put in production because you can remember that the soil... the production of the soil is the basis of your economy. When we had hundreds of thousands of acres of unproductive lands, and had just cut over pine land producing absolutely nothing, it provided for a very poor economy. Now, with this Forest Land Taxation Law in effect which began in 1954, and the landowners were protected against accumulated taxes during the growth of this land, practically everything in that parish-- and I will say that we have more pine timberland in Vernon Parish than any parish in the State of Louisiana. It is practically all in production, and it has changed the economy of that area tremendously. In fact, in the State of Louisiana, more than one million, three hundred and fifty thousand acres have been planted and are now in production since this Forest Land Taxation Law went into effect. Pine timber is the only renewable natural resource that we have in the state. It has now been restored to the extent that we are producing enough pine timber to support many large wood-using industries. Now, please keep that in mind: these industries that are supported by this forest land are new as far as the State of Louisiana is concerned. I would like to read something right here in this effect-- and if you don't listen to anything else, please listen to this as this is something we're all interested in. At present, forty-two thousand families-- and that's a lot of families-- forty-two thousand families earning two hundred and forty million dollars a year are directly dependent on this industry. Another hundred and twenty thousand persons who own forest land has purchased sixty million dollars worth of timber each year. Now, those are independent landowners, and they're producing this timber and selling it to the others and they, from theirs have reached a determination of sixty million dollars a year. In addition, many service industries rely almost completely on the forest industry for their existence. Louisiana is now one of the nation's leading producers of forest products. Third in plywood production, third in paper and paperboard, tenth in production of hardwood lumber, and thirteenth in all lumber. Our state ranks fourth nationally in number of acres certified as tree farms, and fifth in the number of tree farms, and much of this ... much of this growth has occurred during the last ten years. For the small landowner, the single most important factor is that, growth was the stabilization of taxes on forest land provided by the Forest Land Taxation Law. Landowners needed assurance that the tax burden on their timberlands would not become so great that they would be forced to clear it for other moneymaking purposes before the trees became merchantable that is, in fifteen or twenty years.

Ladies and gentlemen, I urge you to defeat this amendment which will do serious damage to this large segment of our economy. Thank you very much.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, Mr. Newton's amendment just entirely guts or takes out the provision that we had worked so hard to place in in the committee--that is, in substance, the same provision that is in the present constitution. There was tremendous reason for that provision being in the constitution, and that reason, moreso today than ever, is still valid, and we certainly hope you would defeat this amendment. Number one, the question becomes a legal question. The legal question being in years past, they had several additional taxes on gas--gas gathering. It ran into some interstate commerce problems. As you know, it's a problem to determine--gas and oil especially; Mr. Hernandez spoke of timber, and I'll speak of gas and oil because we'll try to cover both fields and there might be some people that want to speak on gravel and etc.-- but, it's a very difficult to determine the amount of tax, and where to tax. Gas and oil, before it's severed, nobody really owns it because nobody knows if it's there. It costs a tremendous amount of money, and you know it's a fact because all you have to do is check the amount of wildcats or the amount of rigs, or the amount of holes, what is commonly called dry holes that are drilled, that are nonproductive. You don't know whether you're going to strike oil or strike gas or hit oil or gas, and it becomes an economic producer. So, it was determined years ago that the best way to place a tax on oil and on gas would be at point in time of severance. At point in time of severance means that when you actually hit that well, and you start producing it, it's actually measured there not by a choke or by a counter right past what is particularly called a choke. Now, historically, Louisiana has taken this fact into consideration when we tax the oil industry. It's been historically that we place all of the taxes at the point of severance on the oil and gas industry taking into consideration that this is the only tax. Now, if you compare this tax that we have in Louisiana with the taxes in Texas and Alabama and Mississippi and all the oil-producing states, you're going to find that it's not only comparable, that it's probably higher. It works a lot better because it's an uncomplicated tax. It has a lot of jurisprudence behind it, meaning that it's been in court a number of times, and it's been proven that this is...that we can do it this way. I think all you have to do is look at what we did this past session. We doubled the gas-gathering tax, or the severance tax on gas from 3.3 percent to 7 percent. We more than quadrupled the tax on a barrel of oil from twenty-three cents a barrel to twelve-and-a-half percent, meaning on value. This naturally was taken into consideration the fact that the price of oil and gas has risen in the past few years. This isn't the first time we did this. In 1970... '72 we raised it from 2.3 to 3.3. So, within the past four years, we've actually raised the price of gas...the severance taxes on gas from 2.3 percent... cents to 7 cents--a tremendous increase. This, I feel, and the committee felt, and I think that the state feels, is a fair and equitable tax on the oil and gas industry. I think the proof of that is the fact of the matter, if any of you have these little booklets put out by the revenue department, before this recent increase, over forty percent of our revenues in this state were derived from the oil and gas industry, mainly on severances and on royalties and on etc. Now, we decreased the sales tax and we decreased the income tax, and we don't have those figures yet, but I'm sure we'll have them after the next year, and I'm sure you're going to find that at least fifty-five to sixty percent of the revenues of this state, ladies and gentlemen, are derived from severance taxes, from royalty taxes, and from taxes on the oil and gas industry. I believe if you search your conscience and you search your mind, and you search the legal history of this, you'll find this is a tremendous burden for one industry to pay. It's a tremendous burden, but they are paying it. I don't know how long we can continue to keep this industry as being the major revenue-producing industry of this state. I can tell you this: if we take this out of here, if we take this out of here--and I think this is where the dire consequences come in--then we start levying ad valorem taxes on oil and gas and freight, and only the most astute geologist or reservoir engineers can tell you what's down in that ground, only the most astute. I think we're going to run into some legal, very serious legal problems. I think if we allow local government to go ahead and tax oil and gas, or the state, in place, or any other tax that we don't know whether we will be held constitutional, I believe we'll be seriously jeopardizing the entire revenue structure of this state. You've got to realize, some of the statements you hear up here, and what I'm telling you is you can check any of the revenue books of this state. You've heard statements that we're the lowest income tax state in the nation. I don't know if that's quite true. I've heard we're one of the highest. You've heard statements that we have the lowest property tax in the nation. I was told that we're thirty-six and thirty-seven. We've heard many of these kinds of statements, and you don't know whether it's quite true. I'm telling you that this is a factual statement. I'm telling you that the oil and gas industry pays the majority of the revenues of this state, and it's on a decline. It's on a decline and we don't know, we don't know where we'll be able to find additional revenues. I feel very, very concerned, and I think you should be also that if we ever lose...if the great oil industry of this state ever finds ourselves in the next fifteen or twenty years or ten years, where it's producing twenty percent of the revenues in this state, do you know we'd have to raise at least a half a billion dollars worth of revenues? Would you think about that for a minute? A half a billion dollars worth of revenues to just replace half of it. It's fantastic when you think about it, but it's a fact. Everything I'm telling you up here is factual information. So, I would ask you, I would ask you that the constitutional provision...

If there's no objection. I would seriously ask you that you do not do this: that you do not take this provision out. Mr. Chairman, I don't have much to add...that this constitutional amendment is not a deterrent, is not a deterrent to the state raising additional revenue for the oil and gas industry, and I submit to you the fact that we just have raised it on gas, on severance tax on gas by one hundred percent, and we've raised it almost three hundred percent on the barrel of oil. So, if this is a deterrent, then I don't know what we've got to put in here to stop the legislature from continually, or to continue to increase the taxes in this industry. We can do it now. We can go ahead and raise it and raise it and raise it. There's no limitation on what we can raise. But, if you constitutionally open the door whereby other subdivisions of the state, and other taxes can be levied on this particular industry, I believe you'd be seriously jeopardizing the entire financial structure of this State of Louisiana. I'll yield to any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Question

MR. NEWTON

Sammy, I really hated to interrupt you while you were going so good there, but I'd like to move to withdraw the amendment.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Newton, I felt I was doing good, but I didn't think I was doing that good.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Mr. LeBleu sends up the following amendments:

Amendment No. 1. Page 2, line 26, at the end of the line after the word "levy" delete the partial word "sever-" and at the beginning of line 27, delete the partial word and punctuation "severance taxes,".

Amendment No. 2. Page 2, line 27, after the word "fuel." add the following: "A parish governing authority may levy a severance tax if authorized by law enacted by the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house of the legislature, and approved in a referendum in the political subdivision affected."

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegates Kean and Conroy reads as follows:

Page 2, line 27, after the word "fuel" delete the period "." and insert a comma "," and add the following: "except that the legislature may authorize a local governmental subdivision to levy an income tax, subject to such restrictions as the legislature may impose, with rates not to exceed the schedule of rates for the state income tax, and to be levied and collected in the same manner as the state tax, by an act passed by at least two-thirds of the vote of the elected membership of each house of the legislature. No such tax, if authorized, shall be effective until a proposition for imposition thereof is submitted to the electors of the affected local governmental subdivision and approved by a majority of the electors who vote in the election held for that purpose."

Explanation

MR. CONROY

Throughout this convention, we have tended to look back to the past to see what has happened in the State of Louisiana, what it's history has been, what the historical significance of certain events in Louisiana have been. But, I think at times, unfortunately, we have spend very little of our efforts in projecting into the future and thinking about what the future may bring to this state, and the municipalities and parishes in this state. This provision, with as many safeguards, as I think you can possibly put into a provision, is designed to permit local governmental subdivisions, with a vote of the people, in the local governmental subdivision, and with a two-thirds vote approval in the legislature, to adopt an income tax. Let me explain the significance of those two procedural steps which require the votes. It's all the steps that are required in a constitutional amendment except requiring the approval of voters throughout the state to vote for approval of one area's desire to impose an income tax. That's essentially what this does is to preclude the necessity, say, for the people in Shreveport from voting on whether or not people in Jefferson parish should have an income tax. The state presently, as has been said by a number of people, the state presently funds a greater portion of the services that are provided in this state than most states do. We have little funded at the local level. The state's income is primarily from the oil and gas industry. As the state revenues from the oil and gas industry decline, I think that something's going to have to happen with regard to this method of funding services in the State of Louisiana. I think that more of the burden is going to shift down to the local level, particularly, now since we really can't increase state income taxes. For example, it was conceivable that prior to the adoption of the amendments which have occurred in this proposal, it was conceivable that the State of Louisiana might have chosen to increase income taxes and use that money to fund local services. But, that possibility doesn't exist. My belief is that at some point in the not-too-distant future, in order to provide the services that people in an area will want and need and be willing to vote for, that we will have some areas desiring to have local income taxes. I say again, remember, it's something that they're going to have to want badly enough that they're willing to vote to impose it upon themselves because it does require a vote of the people in the local governmental subdivision. I can't think of...frankly, I can't think of any reason why there should be any objection to permitting a local governmental subdivision from deciding to impose a tax upon... I mean the people in the area deciding to impose a tax upon themselves, if they want and need the services that the money will have to provide. I think that realistically, we just simply have to come to grips with the problem that at some point we're going to be needing to look for money. We're at the limit of the sales taxes; the ad valorem tax we've imposed a very large homestead exemption on, so that the revenues will not be available from that source. Logically, necessarily, local governmental subdivisions will require some source for money, and I don't think that you should require or look forward for the necessity for a local governmental subdivision to appeal to the whole state at that time for a constitutional amendment to impose a tax in its own area. I urge the adoption of the amendment. I'll answer any questions.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Conroy, didn't we in committee reject this idea?

MR. CONROY

No. As a matter of fact, when I brought it up, it was tabled.

MR. ROEMER

I took that to be the same thing. Thank you, Mr. Conroy.

MR. CONROY

Well, I wasn't sure whether it was just a lack of desire to come to grips with it, but at that time, it did not have this restrictions in it, Buddy. At that time, the other provisions that have now been adopted into this constitution were not adopted either. So, I don't feel it appropriate to say that it was rejected by the committee.

MR. TOOMY

Mr. Conroy, this amendment requires a vote of the people in the governmental subdivision.

MR. CONROY

Right.

MR. TOOMY

Does that necessitate that the tax would only be applied to persons or residents of that subdivision?

MR. CONROY

No. That is intended to be dealt with up above in the third line where it says, "subject to such restrictions as the legislature may impose." Actually, what this would invase is taking something like the metropolitan New Orleans area where the various parishes would jointly want to each impose an income tax. I don't think it would work, frankly, if one parish in a metropolitan area attempted to impose it, the legislature presently prohibited, and I think there's sound logic in that, and I don't think that that's possible. But, I think that not too far down the line, it may well be that both Orleans and Jefferson, and possibly the other parishes in the area would want to impose such a tax.

MR. BURNS

Mr. Conroy, I understood you to say that you couldn't imagine how anybody could be against this tax inasmuch as the electors of the local governmental subdivision affected would have to vote on it. Is that correct?

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. BURNS

Do you realize that possibly over half of the qualified voters in those different governmental subdivisions don't pay any income tax?

MR. CONROY

Well, I...that would depend...

MR. BURNS

Yet, they'd have the right to vote an income tax on the other forty-five or forty percent?

MR. CONROY

Mr. Burns, that would depend on how the tax was imposed. But, I think one way or another, they do have income that could be taxed.

MR. LANIER

Excuse me, Mr. Chairman. I was in a heated debate with Mr. Duval who's not thinking correctly today, apparently.

MR. HENRY

As usual.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Conroy, on this part (C) here, it says "political subdivisions of the state". Is that intended to apply to local governmental subdivisions, or does it mean state agencies like levee districts and ports, etc?

MR. CONROY

Mr. Lanier, that's a very interesting question. That does not really relate to my amendment. In a sense, it may. At the time this committee proposal was drafted, the committee did not have before it the Local and Parochial Government Committee's definitions and terminology. So, it may be that this terminology as presently worded would not preclude a local governmental subdivision from imposing an income tax. Is that the point you were suggesting?

MR. LANIER

Would you agree with me that it probably does not include local governmental subdivisions as presently drafted?

MR. CONROY

Well, no, I will not agree with that because I think it's only when you pick up the definitions that your committee used that that problem generates because I think it's fair to say that in a broad context, political subdivisions means local governmental subdivisions, as you all have defined them. "Of the state" just is not...it is a geographic reference is what I think it is here, not a reference to being agencies. I think it means political subdivisions in the state, in effect.

MR. LANIER

Why would you want to prohibit a local governmental subdivision from levying a motor fuel tax?

MR. CONROY

Well, this does not relate to my amendment. I trust you understand that, Mr. Lanier, because that's Paragraph (C). I'm not explaining (C). I'm explaining my amendment. The reason for that, I believe, was to prevent warfare as far as sale of gasoline at various filling stations throughout an area that they wouldn't have different taxes on it in the different areas. Any other questions?

MR. SLAY

Now, the city of Alexandria would be a local governmental subdivision under this?

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. SLAY

Now, the parish of Rapides, also?

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. SLAY

Now, we were concerned about Mr. Gravel's twelve percent-- if I lived in Pineville, worked in Alexandria, then I could be subject to three six percents or a total of twenty-four percent. Would that not be correct?

MR. CONROY

Mr. Slay, I just didn't feel it necessary to spell out all the possible restrictions that could exist. I said here that it required a two-thirds vote of the legislature, subject to such restrictions as the legislature might impose. I think it very likely to assume that if the legislature did permit any income taxes in a particular area, and it would require the vote of the legislature to permit it, that it would impose restrictions comparable to the restrictions that apply to the occupational license tax in any area where you had....

Further Discussion

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I rise to, of course, oppose this amendment. I'm very surprised at this time to see one of the authors who are offering this amendment who fought so vigorously at this microphone because he was afraid that we might be doubling the income tax rates for certain people, to now be proposing that there might be just that--the doubling of rates for all people in this state. I can't for the life of me see where we need to provide for another tax on the wage earners of this state. Those that are earning in the incomes at the end of the year, just get a W-2 form they get to have his taxes filled out, and don't have any of these shenanigans to bypass the taxes, are going to be further taxed on his wages, the money that he takes home, even further than what he is now. This amendment would, in effect, allow local governing authorities to bring the income tax up to the same rate as state income taxes, and at the same time, not only tax those who are voting on this issue, but tax residents of another parish who work in that particular area. To me that would be a very unfair tax. Those people who work in that particular city are spending taxes in that area by the money they spend in that area--the sales taxes, gasoline taxes, cigarette taxes that they pay, and of course, not to mention the property taxes that are paid by the business in which they work in. It says, in effect, "subject to such restrictions as the legislature may impose." Now, just what does that mean? Just how high might these taxes go? Let's take for instance, if a particular area voted for this tax. They say, well, now, we're going to put an earnings tax, but we're going to give you a credit on that tax for all your property taxes or taxes paid within the city if you live in that city. In effect, what you're going to be doing then is only, only taxing the nonresidents, the people who live out of that parish or out of that city, and making them pay for all the taxes, and I'm sure it's going to be popular to those local politicians to be able to raise the taxes on others, but at the same time, not taxing their own. I tell you this would certainly be another unfair tax on the working people of this state, and I ask that you would certainly oppose it and vote it out.

Questions

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Alario, I want to revitalize the questions that Mr. Burns asked Mr. Conroy. Bearing those in mind, I want to point out another venomous tentacle of this octopus of an amendment. Who would be the custodian of those tax returns in the local government, and where is the confidentiality of those returns? What would you think of the confidentiality of my returns filed in the courthouse?

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Willis, of course, it says in here that the tax would be collected the same as the state tax, so I would imagine it would be filed at the same time.

MR. WILLIS

But, I would have to file three income tax returns?

MR. ALARIO

I thought I read here someplace where the tax would be collected by the state, "levied and collected in the same manner as the state tax," so evidently, it would be collected...

MR. WILLIS

In the same manner, but it doesn't say by whom.

MR. ALARIO

Well, you're right. It may require them to file an extra return.

MR. WILLIS

In other words, the secretary to the police jury can be the tax collector and say, "You file the tax returns with me," and he has custody. Where's the confidentiality of those tax returns?

MR. ALARIO

There's a possibility there. I don't just exactly know what the authors had in mind as to an extra form, or what.

Further Discussion

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise to strongly oppose this amendment. This amendment would, for example, allow New Orleans to impose an income tax on individuals working in New Orleans and living in St. Tammany Parish. Several months ago, each of you got a unanimous resolution from the Slidell city council opposing the concepts set forth in this amendment. The people in my area are very strongly opposed to this amendment, and I believe that if this amendment is adopted, it would greatly jeopardize the passage of the constitution in St. Tammany Parish. So, I urge you to defeat this amendment.

Question

MR. BROWN

Mr. Singletary, you said that the Slidell city council was vehemently against it and so were you, but why? What does this do that's so crippling to Slidell or St. Tammany Parish?

MR. SINGLETARY

Well, it would allow individuals that live in Slidell and work in New Orleans to have their income taxed, and they're opposed to that.

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you know, many of us would have liked to have taken the state out of the income tax business and just let the federal government be in the income tax business. Lord knows they're heavier enough in that business. Now, we have an amendment, here, to put the local government in the income tax business, and not only to put them in their own area, but to allow one parish to tax across parish lines. Let me tell you the complications this would set up. If you take, for example, Senator Brown, the question you asked of Mr. Singletary. Take the great fishing industry in coastal Louisiana where you have about two hundred thousand people engaged in fishing throughout coastal waters. They might leave St. Bernard Parish and end up in Cameron Parish with about three or four--used to be hundreds--but maybe fifty, sixty barrels of shrimp that's worth a hundred dollars a barrel. They get a voucher for, maybe, five or six thousand dollars. Where is that income earned? Is it earned in the Gulf of Mexico; is it earned in Bay Catalina, or is it earned where you sell it, in Cameron Parish? We have got an opinion that it would have to be paid in Cameron Parish, if they had this tax. Take another example. If you want to take Cameron, or take Plaquemines Parish that has twelve thousand offshore oil workers that live in Shreveport, Mississippi, Alabama, all over the country, and we put an income tax on. Now, those people would pay taxes where at? They'd pay it in Plaquemines Parish where their check was issued, if the home office was there, or they'd pay it out of New Orleans where many of the home offices are. There's a great... I think, legally, we're talking about something that we're not going to be able to accomplish, and, I think, probably wasting a lot of the convention's time. It's a... I think it's a bad amendment simply because it's placing another income tax. But, I think from many, many standpoints we should defeat this amendment. If they want all of the big metropolitan areas... when they come in and shop from West Baton Rouge and East Baton Rouge, and they pay that sales tax, if they pay cash, they don't send the money back to West Baton Rouge. When the people of Jefferson go into Orleans Parish and pay that six percent sales tax, that money doesn't go back to Jefferson Parish. It stays in Orleans. They ought to be thankful that we have these big areas, that we're flooding our dollars into these big metropolitan areas rather than trying to tax the people that might work there. I'll tell you, Mr. Conroy, or anybody else who's submitting this amendment, if you look at it a little harder, and you realize that there are many people in your areas that work in the outlying areas, you might be at a disadvantage passing this amendment. I think it's a very bad amendment and it's detrimental to a consistency in income tax provisions of this state. So, I would ask you to defeat the amendment, ladies and gentlemen.

Further Discussion

MR. HAYES

Ladies and gentlemen, maybe I need to explain the votes I have made so far. I had voted with the Kean amendment twice, but it looks like this is getting ridiculous. I didn't think that we'd come up... I was trying to stop the state from imposing taxes, the main reason being that it was about 1913, I believe, they passed the Sixteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution. Up until that time, an income tax, itself, was unconstitutional. But, now, the federal government will almost tax you out of your house. You don't have to worry about a person getting rich. They're going to see to it that you don't get rich. The problem is you have to find some way to get that money back into your community. Now, this is the reason I voted like I did. They're already going to get the money. No matter how much money you make, you will not get away with it. They're going to take it back. Now, the state, then, if they limit the amount of money that the state is going to take, I thought you would have enough money, then, left to have an incentive to do something. What... When a person is in business, you must have an incentive and you must have a profit. You people in business know you're going to have to have a profit and a loss statement. If you have a loss statement, you're not going to stay in business. So, my reason for voting this way was to make sure that you would have a profit and not a loss, you would have an incentive to stay in business. That if you would make any money and the state didn't get it, the federal government would, and you would put it all back into salaries or something else. Whenever you pull it out, somebody would get the money, and the people that are rich are not going to get richer. The poor people that we keep talking about--and you're looking at one--the poor people are going to pay the tax, no matter what you do. That's what you have; that's who's going to pay the tax. The more you try to save them, the more you're going to sink them. So, you don't have to worry about that. Every time you attempt to try to sink the rich, they're not going to pay anything. I don't care what you do, they're not going to pay it. It's the poor people that are going to pay it, because you had a majority of the people are poor, that's who are going to pay the tax. Please defeat this amendment. You're ridiculous, here, now, talking about subdivisions and all these people in the state going to impose an income tax. I never heard anything like this before.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. CONROY

I'm going to try to straighten out a few misconceptions that appear here at this rostrum. In the first place, there is not, at this time, any constitutional prohibition against local governmental units having an income tax. There is a statute which is on the books which precludes one parish or city from imposing taxes on residents of another. This does nothing to disturb that situation. I think that's a sound statute. As a matter of fact, this provision recognizes that by saying that it's "subject to such restrictions as the legislature may impose." I think it's wonderful that we can sit here and think and believe for one minute that there can be government without taxation. There cannot be government without taxation. The money has to be provided. All I'm asking is that you not impose restrictions for the future that do not exist at this time. Leave it open. If you want to put restrictions in, put the restrictions of the kind that are mentioned here, where the people in the local area can vote to impose the tax on themselves if they need it. I don't know how we can sit here and assume that we can forejudge the future and assume that there will be no need for such taxes, and that we will not have to ever have them to support government in this state. I urge the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. WEISS

Delegate Conroy, what is the primary source of income for local government?

MR. CONROY

Right now, I think it's probably the sales tax, would be my guess which is. . .

MR. WEISS

I think it's the property taxes. Didn't we give a. . .

MR. CONROY

I'm not sure whether that's so. But, it would be property taxes and sales taxes. We're affecting, possibly, the property tax in some areas, and local government units are at the maximum on sales taxes in many areas right now.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Conroy, is it not correct that the whole problem existing with this particular section of this proposal is that we're proposing to do something in the constitution--our new constitution--that all we have today is statutory prohibition on, which can be changed by the legislature? Rather than embedding this in the constitution, would it not be better just to stick with statutory prohibition to have the flexibility in the future?

MR. CONROY

Yes, Mr. Casey, I believe that very strongly. But, sensing the attitude of this convention, I didn't think it appropriate to pull out altogether the prohibition against income taxes. Instead, I permit them, but only with very severe restrictions on what circumstances income taxes could be imposed. I think it's an entirely appropriate amendment.

MR. AVANT

David, this is a question that goes to, I guess you might call, a technical point. But, the phrase "to be levied and collected in the same manner as the state tax," does that mean that if they enact a tax, that then all of the little technical rules as to exclusions, deductions, exemptions, capital gains, losses, carry-overs, and all of that stuff that fills many libraries has got to be just like the state law so that once you learn the income tax in Louisiana, then you will know it, no matter what city may impose one?

MR. CONROY

Precisely. Yes, sir.

MR. AVANT

I wanted to make sure that that's what that meant.

MR. CONROY

Right, that's exactly what it's intended to do. Not so that the thing won't be anymore complex, it will just be a matter of another agency being able to collect money.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
22-76. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Landry, let me read it so they'll know which one it is. This is an amendment sent up by Mr. Ambroise Landry and many other coauthors.

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, line 6, after the word "exceed" strike out the remainder of line 6 and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"five hundred thousand dollars to".

Now, there are two amendments with two dollar amounts. This is the five hundred thousand dollar amendment.

Explanation

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm not going to tell you that this is a technical amendment, because when you change the word "two hundred thousand" to "five hundred thousand," it's a more than a technical amendment. But, I believe that it is a fair amendment. If we look back just a couple of weeks ago at the special session of the legislature, the legislature increased the severance tax on gas from 3.3 cents per thousand cubic feet to 7 cents per thousand cubic feet, which means approximately a hundred and twelve percent increase. Then, we see what they did with oil. They raised oil from twenty-three cents per barrel to twelve and a half percent of the value of the oil. I understand, at the present time, oil is selling at four dollars and thirty-five cents a barrel, which means an increase to 54.37 cents per barrel, or an increase of one hundred and thirty-six percent. Now, remember that the proposal carries on the same amount of severance taxes given back to the parishes as it did in the 1921 Constitution. I want you to realize that in the coastal parishes and in the parishes that have oil development, that because of that development, we do have problems that is created by that development. For instance, I've explained to you very simply that in my parish, alone, we have a courthouse that is bulging at the seams; the people will not vote taxes to build a new courthouse for the simple reason they feel that we should get some money from the severance taxes that has created the oil industry, that created the problem. If it wouldn't be for the oil industry in LaFourche Parish, it would not be necessary to build a courthouse. We wouldn't have enough papers to fill it up. But, it creates a problem. I hope that you will see fit to vote for this amendment. I understand that there are some of you people who have the timber tax. I am not changing anything. It is not my intention to deprive you of continuing to receive your severance tax on timber. I understand that if my amendment passes, that there will be an amendment to make sure that the severance tax on timber to the various parishes will be retained. I hope you will consider this amendment very seriously and vote for it to help those of us, and it will not hurt anyone in the State of Louisiana. I hope that you will vote favorably for my amendment. Thank you very much.

Questions

MR. ANZALONE

Oh, Mr. Peeper, would you tell me what happens to the excess of this two hundred thousand dollars, now?

MR. A. LANDRY

The excess, now?

MR. ANZALONE

Yes. All that you all don't get above two hundred thousand dollars that are collected more than two hundred thousand dollars, where does it go?

MR. A. LANDRY

It will go to local government.

MR. ANZALONE

No, I mean, where does it go, now?

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

MR. A. LANDRY

It stays in the state treasury, I would imagine.

MR. ANZALONE

Into the state treasury?

MR. A. LANDRY

I hope it does. I don't know.

MR. ANZALONE

Well, now, let me ask you this question: being as I am from Tangipahoa Parish, and last year I think we collected something like fifty-nine thousand dollars; if we tried to get something out of the state treasury, you are depleting our resources just a little bit, are you not?

MR. A. LANDRY

No, I don't think we're decreasing yours; we're increasing yours, somewhat.

MR. ANZALONE

No, sir, you couldn't possibly be, because if it's going into the state treasury--all over two hundred thousand dollars--and you want to make it all over five hundred thousand dollars, then you're taking three hundred thousand dollars away from some of us country parishes that like to come to Baton Rouge to get a little money every now and then.

MR. A. LANDRY

Oh, I doubt seriously. Don't you forget that they just raised it more than a hundred and thirty-six percent. So, there will be a lot more money coming in.

MR. ANZALONE

Yes, sir, but they took some other ones off.

MR. FAYARD

Mr. Landry, let's assume that the legislature would come back next year and repeal the severance tax and go right back to where we were before the imposition of the new tax. What would happen under your proposition? You would continue to get the excess over two hundred thousand?

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Fayard, the way the proposal is written, you're entitled to twenty percent of the severance taxes or one-fifth on oil and gas, not to exceed five hundred thousand. So, if the revenues drop, yours drop too.

MR. FAYARD

But, your proposal is based on the premise that since the severance tax had been almost doubled, you're entitled to a doubling of what you presently get.

MR. A. LANDRY

That is correct, sir.

MR. FAYARD

But, if it was reduced, you would still be allowed to get up to five hundred thousand.

MR. A. LANDRY

Providing that we collect that much, yes.

MR. FAYARD

So, in effect, you would be taking some additional away from the state revenue general fund. Is that correct?

MR. A. LANDRY

I think you just heard this morning. . .this afternoon, that Mr. Traigle has advised that because of the increase in the value of oil that it doesn't seem like it's going to decrease, even though oil decreases.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Landry, do you know how much money that this is involved that you. . .the total amount of money involved throughout the state?

MR. A. LANDRY

I don't have the exact figures, Mr. De Blieux, because I had asked the staff to get that for me, and I don't think they've been able to do it. But, I would say, probably ten million dollars.

MR. DE BLIEUX

You would be taking this additional money outside of the state treasury?

MR. A. LANDRY

How is that, sir?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I say, you would be taking this. . .that is, reducing the state resources by this sum of money--ten million dollars?

MR. A. LANDRY

Yes, sir. I think we'd be getting a little share of what we've been putting into the treasury.

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Landry, you were asked a question about what happens to the excess over the five hundred thousand dollars, and you answered that went into the state treasury. That's correct. I want to ask you: what happens to seventy-five percent of the timber tax? What happens to seventy-five percent of the timber severance tax? Where does that go?

MR. A. LANDRY

That goes to the parish--individual parish who collects it.

MR. LEBLEU

The local governing authority.

MR. A. LANDRY

There's no limit on that, Mr. LeBleu.

MR. BURNS

Ambroise, did I understand you to say there was amendments to be introduced that would take care of the severance tax on timber, too, such as you're doing in this one?

MR. A. LANDRY

In other words, Mr. Burns, as I read the proposal, there might be a question. I did not prepare the proposal; the committee did. All I changed was the "two hundred thousand" to "five hundred thousand." Now, if the timber people feel--and I don't think so, I think they're protected. But, to make it clear, I certainly would not object to such an amendment, Mr. Burns. It was not my intention to deprive the parishes with timber of any of their severance tax.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Landry, would not the effect of your amendment be to double the amount the parish retains?

MR. A. LANDRY

In some parishes, not all, Reverend.

MR. ALEXANDER

Not all. How would this affect Tangipahoa? Would it not, possibly, instead of getting sixty-nine thousand, now, we'll get a hundred and thirty-eight thousand?

MR. A. LANDRY

Let me say this: it will affect Tangipahoa to this rate, that they're now, according to the 1972 figures, they receive $57,875 and under--not under this amendment--under the present constitution, they will get an increase of up to $66,502. So, they lose no money, Reverend.

MR. ALEXANDER

Good.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Landry, am I to understand that you understand that the two hundred thousand in the committee was before the state increased the tax so gracefully? So, what you're trying to do, here, is to compensate that the parishes retain a larger portion of this great additional income that the legislature, you know, threw around quite liberally, just shortly? Is that right?

MR. A. LANDRY

That is correct, Mr. Champagne.

MR. A. LANDRY

Sixty-eight, yes, sir. The staff did make one error. They put Mr. Giarrusso, and it was Guarisco, not Giarrusao. They put Giarrusao, once, and Guarisco, once. So, I have sixty-nine, but it's really sixty-eight because I didn't talk to Mr. Giarrusao.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I don't know whether anything I say is going to make much difference in this, but nevertheless, I want it on the record recording you. This is just like making an appropriation out of the general funds of the State of Louisiana. We're already in enough difficulty as it is, in trying to meet the obligations that call upon us by local government as well as state government. Now, if you want to put the state in a very serious bind in being able to meet those commitments, go ahead and vote for this amendment. This constitutional convention, I don't believe, was called for the purpose of appropriating money. But, yet, nevertheless that's what you're doing. You're appropriating out of the general funds of the State of Louisiana to certain local governments--not all of them--just certain ones, by this amendment, some of our funds. I just tell you it's a bad proposition. I think you're going to get severely criticized for it if you vote for it.

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, and Senator De Blieux, yesterday you presented an amendment that appropriated two million dollars to the Board of Liquidation. Some of us thought it was wrong, but still and all, you were appropriating, evidently. All we're doing in this amendment is giving justice back to the parishes that are paying the severance tax and the royalty tax of this state. Let me tell you, you just heard me get up here and explain the reasons why we should not place additional taxes on the oil industry, that is, local taxes. Well, one reason why this amendment is necessary is because local industry or, I mean, local subdivisions cannot tax the oil industry, as such. What we are doing is compensating them in some small manner for the . . . what goes on in that parish. Well, the legislation we passed this past session that was designed to increase drillings and increase production; it's going to increase activity in those parishes. Let me tell you, you people who live down in the coastal areas of Louisiana, you know that some of the damage done is irreparable. Some of the pipelines that are cut through the marshlands of our area will never be restored. The economy of that area, of those areas, was based on fishing, shrimping, crabbing, trapping, etc. In Mr. LeBleu's area, on catching alligators. Evidently, that's coming back. But, when we deplete our natural resources, and we're out of natural resources and we don't have any more, our economy will have to go back to one of fishing, shrimping, crabbing, trapping, etc. So, this is small enough compensation for the damage--and I'm not saying the oil companies do the damage, but in the course of drilling and dredging, etc., in the course of all the activities, in the course of providing services for the many people that they bring down, this is far enough compensation for those parishes. Let me tell you the amount of money some of the parishes give to this state in the form of severances: St. Mary's Parish, Mr. Winchester, forty-five million dollars; Terrebonne Parish, about forty million dollars. Now, I, personally, would like to see us rebate back to those parishes a lot more. I would like to see a limitation where the legislature could make a sliding scale. We're not asking for that; we're just asking for a fair--not even a fair amount.

Just a small token amount back to that parish that you are severing their oil and their gas. We're giving back to the timber parishes seventy-five percent, and nobody objects to that. I'm for that; I think it's a good provision.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

I just wanted to hit that point again. We didn't mean to take away the timber severance income, did we?

MR. NUNEZ

Not at all, Mr. Roemer. I think you agreed to accept any amendment that would make it on parity with what we're doing. They get seventy-five percent. The law now provides that the oil producing parishes get twenty percent. But, if you took and applied that twenty percent to those forty-five million, you'd give nine to ten million. That's why the state cannot afford that, so we limit it to two hundred thousand, and now we're raising it to five hundred thousand. I think it's a good amendment.

MR. ROEMER

Senator, do you mind if I tell the convention that you're the recognized authority on severance taxes in our committee?

MR. NUNEZ

Is that on raising them or lowering them?

MR. ANZALONE

Sammy, how much revenue did St. Bernard get out of this tax last year?

MR. NUNEZ

Out of this tax?

MR. ANZALONE

Yes. How much over that five hundred thousand dollars did you all actually get?

MR. NUNEZ

I want to tell you. Let me. . . if you give me an opportunity, I'll tell you, exactly. St. Bernard Parish got a hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars, Mr. Anzalone. Now, let me. . . we paid--excuse me. . .

MR. ANZALONE

One million eight hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars?

MR. NUNEZ

No, we paid just about. . . St. Bernard Parish is west of the Mississippi. . . east of the Mississippi River. From a geological standpoint, there's very little production of oil and gas east of the Mississippi River. It's all mainly west of the river. We are not a high producing parish when it comes to oil and gas. So, you can use other parishes if you're trying to. . .

MR. ANZALONE

Sammy, if you were me, and you were from a parish that collected thirty-six thousand dollars last year, well, do you think that I. . . that you would vote yea or no on this particular amendment?

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Anzalone, I've known you to be a fair man, and if you'd paid in forty-five million from your parish, I think you'd vote yes.

MR. ANZALONE

If I paid in thirty-eight thousand, how would I vote?

MR. HENRY

The gentleman has exceeded his time.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 88-15. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POWENTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 29, after the word and punctuation "tax," and before the word "one-fifth" insert the word "and" and at the end of line 30, delete the comma "," and delete line 31 in its entirety and at the beginning of line 32, before the word "shall" delete the words "owned property" and on page 37, between lines 7 and 8, add the following paragraph:

"(E) Ten percent of the royalties from any mineral lease or agreement heretofore or hereafter granted by the state on state owned land and water bottoms or from such land or water bottoms the title to which is in the public for mineral development shall be remitted by the state treasurer to the governing authority of the parish from which the minerals were severed to be used by such parish exclusively to construct roads, highways, bridges and tunnels in such parish, and to operate and maintain automobile ferries in such parish. The governing authority of such parish is authorized to fund into general obligation bonds of the parish its portion of the royalties."

Explanation

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the committee proposal as it stands now, allows the moneys from the royalty road fund to go into the general fund of the parish. The concept behind the royalty road fund, when it was devised, was to rebate to the parishes money in order to build roads. The reason for this was that traditionally the oil and gas severance tax producing parishes have a weaker foundation, have a greater expense in the construction of roads. We just adopted an amendment which increased the severance tax limit allowed to parishes. This goes into the general fund. I honestly feel that if we would retain the present provision which is in the constitution, that the concept behind the royalty road fund, that is: the construction of roads, is retained. Many questions have been asked me in my talking to delegates about the royalty road fund, "Why isn't maintenance included?" The 1921 Constitution in its royalty road fund provision leaves the word "maintenance" out, and this has worked fine. Parishes have, in instances where it's necessary, overcome and overlaid roads where it was necessary. However, I think if we include maintenance in the royalty road fund provision, we lay open the possibility of each individual parish establishing a small highway department or a maintenance department. The second part of the amendment deals with the bonding of these moneys. The 1921 Constitution allows the proceeds from the royalty road fund moneys to be bonded for the construction of roads. The last sentence of this amendment does the same.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Mr. Chairman, I yield to any questions.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Just a quick question, Boiesie, on this second part of the amendment. This is more restrictive than the committee language, is it not? We didn't restrict the use of these funds, did we?

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes, sir, Mr. Roemer, it definitely restricts the use of the money.

MR. ROEMER

I see. To such things as automobile ferries, right?

MR. BOLLINGER

Well, automobile ferries would allow the operation and maintenance. Usually you can use this money to operate and maintain automobile ferries, but you cannot use the money to maintain highways, and that's why the distinction was put in there.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Bollinger, isn't this a change from the present law in that the money is not rebated directly to the parish?

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes, Mr. Flory, it is. In the 1921 Constitution, the provision is that the money is placed in the treasury of the state, and it's credited to the parish for the purpose of constructing roads.

MR. FLORY

And isn't the contract let by the State Department of Highways for the construction of highways, etc., in the parish in which the money is to be credited?

MR. BOLLINGER

Only upon the request of the local governing authority. Yes, it is, but only upon their request.

MR. FLORY

That's correct. The money can only be used upon their request, but the contract itself is let by the Department of Highways.

MR. BOLLINGER

Well, that would not destroy this, Mr. Flory. I think the local governing authorities realize that the highway department has the professional staff to judge contracts, and as far as I know, they always go through the highway department in this type of letting of contracts.

MR. FLORY

This amendment would not change that procedure?

MR. BOLLINGER

No, sir, it would not.

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Bollinger, I wonder why you are restricted to the operation and maintenance of ferries. In Cameron Parish we have one large ferry that crosses the Calcasieu Ship Channel, which cost one million dollars, and the parish paid half of the cost of that out of the royalty road fund. I can see no way, for the rest of my life, how we're going to ever get a bridge across there. Now, if you restrict this just to the operation and maintenance of ferries, you'll prohibit us in the future from using some of the royalty road funds to build a new ferry in case we need it.

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Conway, I would consider and I will, Mr. Chairman, withdraw the amendment to include the word "purchase" of automobile ferries. I tracked the original language, and it wasn't included. But I see that it is in error, and I would like to include it.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Bollinger, are you aware that the committee, in my opinion, thought that our language was less restrictive than the one you have?

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes, sir. That was the purpose of my amendment.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

We feel that local government says, "Let us run our own local government," and in the event these people would not do what the people want, they are subject to being replaced in office, are they not?

MR. BOLLINGER

They are, Mr. Champagne. As you know, we cannot change the bonded indebtedness, but from past history, and if you look at the bonded indebtedness of parishes that receive royalty road funds, they are bonded to the hilt right now. The necessity to continue bonding these funds for the purpose of constructing roads is necessary. This is the purpose of my amendment.

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Bollinger, if you're going to withdraw the amendment, would you consider changing the word "automobile" to "vehicular"?

MR. BOLLINGER

To what?

MR. TAPPER

To vehicular, to include also trucks because, according to this amendment, only automobiles will be able to use the ferries if this money be spent for it, and also passengers, because you know there are a lot of people that walk on a ferry to get across the river.

MR. BOLLINGER

Well, Mr. Tapper, how do you refer to a ferry if it's not an automobile ferry? I was under the assumption that all ferries were automobile, except for railroad or this type. If there's a problem, I have no objection, but I would assume that "automobile ferry" included ferries that carry passengers and trucks, but not exclusively passengers.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right, the following changes have been made. On the fourth to last line of the text of the amendment, it should read--the fourth to last line in its entirety--"parish, and to purchase, operate and maintain"--scratch out the word "automobile"--"ferries"...parish, and to purchase, operate and maintain ferries". Add the word and punctuation "purchase," before "operate;" strike out the word "automobile".

Questions

MR. DERBES

Boiesie, isn't it basically the premise of this amendment that the local governing authority is not the best judge of how it uses this revenue?

MR. BOLLINGER

At times, very often, Mr. Derbes, and that is the purpose of my offering the amendment.

MR. DERBES

Further, isn't the amendment also, essentially, restrictive in terms of the types of transportation that it encourages? In other words, we've reached a point now where the state legislature has seen fit to create an energy commission and to make specific provisions for energy conservation. Yet, what we're doing here is we're not making any general provisions by way of encouraging mass transit, general transportation provisions, other than roads and highways and ferries; isn't that also the case?

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

MR. BOLLINGER

I didn't understand the point of your question?

MR. DERBES

Well, in other words, if we're going to provide for transportation for...if we're going to use these funds to provide for transportation, don't you think it would be more futuristic and better planning to make a more general statement requiring that the funds be used for transportation, rather than a restrictive one, in order to give us an opportunity to develop better types of transportation?

MR. BOLLINGER

No, Jim, I think as I explained in my first explanation, the reason for the royalty fund road--the way it's construed--is because the areas that produce the minerals have weaker foundations and cost more money to construct transportation facilities, meaning roads, not broadly. Now, I think it would very easily be construed to think that these parishes wasn't any better deserved than any other parish to buy a train or a bus or anything of that sort. That's why I don't think it should be that broad and should be limited to the uses herein provided.

MR. SCHMITT

What would be the present cost to the State of Louisiana if this is adopted?

MR. BOLLINGER

What would be the present? Whatever it is today; it wouldn't change.

MR. SCHMITT

How much money is involved? How many millions of dollars?

MR. BOLLINGER

I really don't know. It's the same as it is. It's no additional cost to the state, if that's what you're asking.

MR. SCHMITT

If they're losing ten percent of the revenues, there has to be some kind of cost to the state. How much is the total amount of revenues which are received from these sources at the present time, yearly?

MR. BOLLINGER

Jay, I really don't know, but it's the same as it is today under the present law. I don't know the figure.

MR. SCHMITT

Also with reference to the "heretofore or hereafter granted," does that mean that a lease which existed prior to this time that the parish has a right to go in and collect for back years? So, if they'd been ten years paid, they'd get a hundred percent the first year.

MR. BOLLINGER

I think you're misunderstanding me. They have been receiving it; they're receiving it now--today. It's all-inclusive, but it's been...the law is now, exactly as it is stated in here, with regards to leases on state-owned lands and revenues derived from those leases.

MR. SCHMITT

If the state should happen to establish some type of a pipeline and would charge a rental from that, would that be characterized as a royalty?

MR. BOLLINGER

No, no, I don't think it could be at all.

MR. ABRAHAM

Boysie, I understood you to say that you were trying to track the language of the present constitution, but isn't this a radical change from the present constitution in that you say that "the money shall be remitted by the state treasurer to the governing authority of the parish;" whereas, the present constitution states that it "shall be..."the state treasurer shall place it in a special fund, and it may only be withdrawn by the State Department of Highways" for the construction of these roads? So, this would be a radical change, would it not?

MR. BOLLINGER

I have no objection to that, Mack. My only reason in using the language was that Committee Proposal 15 used this language that it would be remitted to the parish. So, I just tracked the language of the committee proposal in that respect.

MR. ABRAHAM

Committee Proposal 15 used this language?

MR. BOLLINGER

It says that the money will be remitted to the parish, and I just kept that concept in this amendment.

MR. THOMPSON

Mr. Bollinger, what you're actually saying here is about the eight or ten parishes down there that have most of the minerals that these parishes will benefit by it, but the other, say, fifty-four--it's going to probably cost the state two million dollars for this, won't it? Then, if you take the money out of the general fund of the treasury of the state, then where are you going to get it from--tax the people to put it back?

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Thompson, this will affect approximately about thirty parishes. It's been in effect, and the reason it's in effect is because to construct roads in these areas is much, much more costly. This is a way for the state to subsidize the parish for the extra money they have to spend for the construction of highways and roads.

MR. THOMPSON

You say it's going to affect about thirty parishes; I think it's going to affect all sixty-four, probably fifteen or twenty of them to the plus side and the rest of them to the minus side, because when you take the money away from the treasury, you're taking it away from the state.

MR. BOLLINGER

It only affects those parishes which have state-owned lands with the production of minerals on them. That's the only parishes that receive it, but traditionally, these parishes are the parishes with the weaker foundations and need more money for the construction of hardsurface roads.

MR. THOMPSON

I understand what you're saying, but it affects all the parishes when you take money away from the general fund of the state. You're saying it affects these parishes because they'll get more money, but the rest of them don't realize that this money has to come from somewhere.

MR. BOLLINGER

Well, every time the Education Department gets a seven hundred million dollar budget, it affects the rest of the state also, or any other thing that's budgeted to a department, it affects the whole state.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Bollinger, the change pointed out by Mr. Abraham that both you and the committee are making, isn't the effect of that to keep this money out of the central cash management that the committee has later on in the proposal?

MR. BOLLINGER

It's not my intention, Mary. I really have no objection to leaving it like it is: that it would stay in the state treasury and be credited to the parishes, as long as the parish is the recipient of the funds. I just used the committee proposal because they had been having hearings on the subject matter, and I thought it was a modernization.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Bollinger, can you tell us once again exactly what the effect of your amendment is. It's to more carefully channel how the money will be spent once it reaches the parish?

MR. BOLLINGER

Most definitely. It spells out how it can be spent and limits the uses.

MS. ZERVIGON

And that's the only effect that your amendment is intended to have is to limit the parishes to these particular uses of the funds?

MR. BOLLINGER

Exactly...

Further Discussion

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, let me see if I can clarify some of the questions...

The Bollinger amendment would simply reword the existing provisions of the present constitution. It would take away nothing from the state any more than has been in existence for many, many years. The only purpose, the only purpose of the Bollinger amendment, was to make the use of the funds more restrictive on those local parishes. Now, let me say, for instance, in my parish that we have used over eighty percent of these royalty road funds moneys in building state highways so that in doing so we have relieved the obligation and burden of the state in building those highways and have freed funds to be used elsewhere. All that the Bollinger amendment does is to reword the existing law with one exception, and that exception is that instead of the funds being managed by the highway department, they would be managed by the local government. I say that that was done for two reasons: first, the highway department itself, as expressed to me personally by Mr. W. T. Taylor, who is the head of the highway department, has stated that they want to get away from having to manage these funds, and secondly, because the committee proposal itself provided that the funds went directly to the parishes. So, this Bollinger amendment is strictly nothing more and nothing less than a restatement of the present constitutional principles with the one exception that I just mentioned to you.

I'll yield to questions.

Questions

MR. TATE

Mr. Perez, now the committee proposal turns the same amount of funds over to the governing authority of the local subdivision?

MR. PEREZ

That's correct.

MR. TATE

So as to relieve that matter of putting it in the state treasury. One of the things that I was curious about, it says that they're only going to be able to use the funds to construct roads. It doesn't say construct and maintain roads, just for example...

MR. PEREZ

Well, for instance, that is true, and that's what the present constitutional provision has in it--strictly for the construction and not the maintenance. It's strictly an attempt to retrace the existing law.

MR. TATE

As a local government man--I was just curious--what would happen if the day ever came, which I guess is visionary, that they had all the roads they wanted, all the roads and bridges and ferries they wanted, what would they do with the money then?

MR. PEREZ

Judge, I might say to you that the big problem we have, and one of the reasons I'm in favor of this amendment, is because of the fact that there has been a drastic reduction in many parishes--I know in my parish--in the amount of royalties. We have already bonded these funds very, very heavily, and I would like to see to it that these funds will be available strictly for this purpose in order to be sure that we will be able to take care of the funding of those bonds as the time goes along.

MR. TATE

Well, one last question: the committee proposal, as I read it, doesn't stop you from bonding it for that purpose.

MR. PEREZ

No, no it would not.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Perez, just to make it abundantly clear to the convention, I'd like to ask you one question. This does not take any money away from the state, it's just in the present law, isn't that right?

MR. PEREZ

This is a restatement of the present constitutional provisions and does not attempt to take anything away from the state.

MR. DUVAL

And something else, someone asked a question about the committee's central cash management theory. In the committee proposal, isn't this money directly appropriated to the local government subdivisions?

MR. PEREZ

Yes, it is, and I might say to you this is a more restrictive provision than the committee proposal.

MR. ROEMER

Chalin, I just want to follow up on those questions. I think it's good to bring out the facts, and I think you're trying to do that and let people vote their convictions on it. To repeat again, the Bollinger amendment is more restrictive than the committee proposal in that you delimit the uses of this money; is that true?

MR. PEREZ

That's absolutely correct.

MR. ROEMER

You know it was the desire of the committee, and it was our feeling that we should not delimit the use of this money, that it was the parish's money and the local governing authority ought to be able to use it for what they saw fit. But, you do not increase the amount of money, nor did we. Is that not true?

MR. PEREZ

That's correct.

MR. DERBES

Mr. Perez, you mentioned bonded indebtedness as a specific consideration in passing the amendment, but isn't it also a fact that what this convention does cannot affect the current bonded indebtedness?

MR. PEREZ

That's right. They could not affect the present bonded indebtedness; you can't impair the obligation of bonds.

MR. DERBES

How would dedicating the use of funds, as far as the parish is concerned, in the new constitution encourage or perhaps enable you to further bond?

MR. PEREZ

It would require the use of the funds for this limited, particular purpose rather than to allow it to be used for general purposes.

MR. DERBES

Are you saying that you couldn't bond...you could not sell bonds for that purpose were this provision not in the constitution?

MR. PEREZ

It's one of the problems, I believe, that we presently have with the committee proposal is that it does not have the last sentence which is in the Bollinger amendment, and that is "the governing authority of such parish is authorized to fund into general obligation bonds of the parish its portion of the royalties." I don't believe that it could issue those bonds unless you had that provision.

MR. DERBES

Now, suppose the funds were not dedicated for specific use; that is, they were simply remitted to the local governing authority, and we coupled onto the existing committee language a sentence which would permit the local governing authority to bond those funds. Wouldn't that take care of your problem?

MR. PEREZ

Yes, it would definitely help.

Further Discussion

MR. DERBES

Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to the amendment basically on a principle of fiscal and budgetary efficiency. Let me explain something to you in as precise terminology as I can. Our committee, the Natural Resources Committee, was concerned with the problem for some time, and we did, by way of committee proposal, adopt specific language which I do not support either. Essentially, what this amendment does is it restricts the use. I am certainly not opposed, and indeed I support, the concept of remitting to the local governing authority a certain percentage of the revenue derived from minerals on state lands in the parish or area of the local governing authority. I support that concept; I think it's good. I just don't think--and I don't think it's sound government--I don't think we should tell the local governing authority how specifically to use the funds, particularly in the area of transportation. You have seen, no doubt, and heard about an energy crisis in this country which completely changes the complexion of transportation. In the future, hopefully, we won't have to do without personal transportation, but we don't know. We don't know whether we will or not. It may very well be the fact that mass transportation may be required in areas where it is not presently being undertaken. To restrict the use of these funds to building highways, to maintaining highways, and to building ferries, may not be the most efficient and highest and best use of the funds. I say only to you that the local governing authority, particularly after we labored long and hard over local and parochial government, the local governing authority should be and indeed is the best judge of how to use the funds. The local governing authority may want to use the funds for education, may want to use the funds for sanitation, for police and fire protection, and the like. To tell the local governing authority that it has to use the funds for transportation just to protect the bonded indebtedness of the parish, to me does not reach the issue. Mr. Perez has one particular criticism of the committee proposal, and that is that there is no specific permission for the local governing authority to bond these funds. I say to you that that's a problem easily solved by one sentence: namely, that the local governmental subdivision may bond these funds--something very easily solved. But, to say how the local governmental subdivision has to spend the money, to me, violates the basic principle of local government which we labored long and hard over, and to me is essentially a nonfuturistically oriented concept. We don't know what the future holds, and it seems to me that the local governmental subdivision is indeed the best judge of how to spend the money. So, I say to you support the committee proposal, reject the amendment. If you're concerned about bonded indebtedness, let's put an additional sentence on the committee proposal which will permit the local governmental subdivision to bond the funds. But, let's not restrict the use--not in a constitution that I hope will be alive in this state for many, many years.

Thank you.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

MR. LAMBERT

Mr. Derhes, let me ask you this question: first of all, as it is presently worded in the constitution, the money--the royalty road fund--is kept in the State Highway Department. It's worded this way in the constitution. Now, what I would like to know, if you know the answer, would be, does the Highway Department invest this money under the Cash Management Act of the state, investment of idle funds? If they do, if this amendment is adopted, then this...this would be taken out of that particular area of state control.

MR. DERBES

I, frankly, don't know the answer to your question. I would assume that they do invest the money. I understand that the money can only be used...under the direction of the local governing subdivision, but only for the purpose of constructing roads, and the other limited purposes specified in the existing constitutional language.

MR. LAMBERT

All right. My next question is this. I don't know the answer, and I don't know whether you know. I don't know if anyone here knows, but I wonder why the highway department was given the control and management over the release of the money? Would it...could it possibly have been so that they could supervise the construction of the roads, supervise the letting of contracts, supervise the standards of the roads, etc?

MR. DERBES

That would seem to be the case. That would seem to me to be efficient and advantageous. I can't answer for the Committee on Revenue and Taxation. My only concern, Senator Lambert, is in the limitation on the use of the funds--not the central management of the funds--I think that's fine.

Further Discussion

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I submit to you that...it is properly taken care of in the committee proposal. This amendment does only one thing: it further states in the constitution what local governments have to do. I feel that these people are entitled to the privilege to spend that money, since it is for those local parishes. I feel that it is time for this constitution to stop limiting various parishes simply because some individual parishes may not have complete confidence in what their local governing body will, or will not, do. I submit to you that if they do not agree with what they do, they have ample provisions the next time around to throw them out of office and put people that will respond to the wishes of that local government. As a member of this committee, we spoke on this at great length. This amendment is unnecessary. I feel that if you reject it and adopt the committee proposal as submitted, you will have a much better proposal.

I'll answer any questions.

Question

DR. WEISS

Delegate Champagne, would you not call this, then, dedicated funds?

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Positively. This is dedicating to the ultimate.

Further Discussion

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment, in certain instances I have objections to, but, overall, I think it's what we would like to do and intend to do. One of the objections I have to just making an overall gift to the parish governing authority is that it doesn't restrict them. I think the idea behind the original constitutional amendment was that it allowed a governing authority to collect some money from the state to replace taxes which they could not impose on state-owned property within that parish. A good example is Cameron; we have about thirty percent of the parish in game reserves, waterways, lakes, etc., that are all owned by the state. If the parish decides to impose a road tax, which we did a number of years ago to build a causeway over to Port Arthur, Texas--across the Sabine River. It was a parish-wide tax, but thirty percent of the eligible property in the parish was restricted because we could not impose a tax on the state property. I think that was the original intent behind the whole bill. Now, if we go a little farther and just give the money to the parish governing authority unrestricted, it would allow them to use money, say, for garbage districts, hospital districts, and all of you know what problems we are having with ambulances now. But, it would allow the police juries to spend this money for those purposes. Like I say, I just don't believe the original intent was behind it. It would force the police jury to bow to pressures which the public could impose on the jury. So, like I say, there's some of the restrictions in there I'm opposed to, but, the overall concept, I think, is good. I believe if we go ahead and adopt this amendment, it's going to work out. It will be just about the same as it has been since 1950, I believe, when the constitutional amendment was adopted. So, I urge your favorable vote on this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, all I ask you to do is think about the reason that the parishes received the monies from the royalty road fund. The reason is, that the foundation is weaker in these parishes; it costs more money to construct roads in these parishes. The money should be used for that reason, and that reason alone.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Questions

MR. LANDRUM

Mr. Bollinger, will you define roads for me, please?

MR. BOLLINGER

A street--if you are referring to our previous conversation-- a street is a parish road.

MR. LANDRUM

A street is.

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes. This applies to streets if it's within the parish.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Bollinger, do you really think that having oil wells stuck all over your parish is a liability?

MR. BOLLINGER

No, Joe, it's not. But, the reason...the structure of the area around the oil wells causes it to be very expensive to construct roads in that area. The heavy equipment from these oil wells do tear up the roads considerably.

MR. ANZALONE

These people don't pay any other kind of taxes down there or anything?

MR. BOLLINGER

Which people?

MR. ANZALONE

The people that are drilling for these oil wells.

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes, they pay taxes.

MR. ANZALONE

Do they hire people?

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes.

MR. ANZALONE

Wouldn't think so.

MR. WEISS

Mr. Bollinger, isn't it inconsistent with your reasoning to say that the roads need to be maintained, and yet not include it in this floor amendment? That is, construct and maintain roads.

MR. BOLLINGER

Doc, almost all of these local governing authorities have a levy...a property tax to pay for the maintenance of the roads. But, it's extremely expensive to construct these roads. There's the purpose for the amendment to limit the use of the monies.

MR. LAMBERT

Mr. Bollinger, is it not true that the Committee on Natural Resources has jurisdiction over this subject matter? Or is that incorrect?

MR. BOLLINGER

Well, I would think it would be joint jurisdiction, Senator Lambert. But, we did deal with it in the committee....

MR. LAMBERT

You're on the Committee on Natural Resources. We devoted much, much, much, time to this subject matter. Is that not correct?

MR. BOLLINGER

Yes, sir. The language that we adopted is similar to this language.

MR. LAMBERT

The language is similar, except that the questions that were brought up on transportation, I think, were clarified and the money was left in the state, to be administered by the highway department; makes a lot of changes. That's the only thing I wanted to point out to you.

MR. BOLLINGER

I did point out, Senator Lambert, I have no objection to the distribution of the money to remain the same. If this amendment passes, I will support an amendment which would leave it like it is in the present constitution.

I have no objection to that.

MR. LAMBERT

I just...want to say...I'm not asking a question-- I want to make a statement if I can. I am for the royalty road fund, but I'm concerned about the way this amendment is drawn up.

MR. GASEY

Senator Lambert, you're not allowed to make a statement. You are only allowed to ask a question.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Bollinger, this is the royalty road fund. Is that right?

MR. BOLLINGER

That is exactly what it is.

MR. DUVAL

Your amendment is to keep the present law so that roads will be built. Is that right?

MR. BOLLINGER

That's exactly what it is.

MR. DUVAL

Also, these roads are parish roads. Isn't that right?

MR. BOLLINGER

That's exactly what they are.

MR. DUVAL

This money is parish money. Isn't that right?

MR. BOLLINGER

That is correct.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
36-67. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, line 5, immediately after the word "all" and before the word "natural," insert the word "other."

On page 3, line 5, immediately after the word "resources" and before the word "severed," insert the following:
"except timber."

Explanation

MR. KELLY

Mr. Acting Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I have just been instructed by the committee that I can refer to this as a technical amendment in their behalf, and that they have no objection.

What this simply does is, it would make the last sentence at the top of page 3 read as follows: "and the amount of severance tax on all other natural resources, except timber, severed from the soil or water, so remitted, shall not exceed five hundred thousand dollars to any parish for any year." The thought behind this being--and it was my understanding it was the intention of the committee--that the severance tax relating to timber, which is seventy-five percent, would be distributed and remitted back to the parishes. In order to make completely sure that this happens, and that it is not considered part of the five hundred thousand referred to in the committee proposal, it's necessary for this amendment. It may be. It may not be. Quite frankly, from an interpretation point, it certainly does no violence to any of the substantive meaning within the proposal. It simply clears it up, and makes it abundantly clear that the timber severance tax will not be included within the five hundred thousand limitation set in the proposal.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Kelly, you do know, I think you stated it; I want to restate it, that this was the committee's intent to do just what you're doing now. We thought we had done that, and you just questioned whether we did or not. Is that correct?

MR. KELLY

Yes. I don't question actually whether you intended to do it; I know you intended to do it. But, I think this makes it abundantly clear, under the language, that this will, in fact, happen. In other words, the severance tax which is remitted back into a particular parish, will be remitted regardless of whether they usurp the limits of their five hundred thousand dollar limitation on all other natural resources severed from soil or water.

MR. ROEMER

Well, isn't this also true that to do it this way is very important to many local and parochial governments across this state who get income from this particular source?

MR. KELLY

That's absolutely correct.

MR. ABRAHAM

Don, are there any limitations now on the amount of severance taxes remitted?

MR. KELLY

I wouldn't know of any.

The fact being is I'm not...I'm not messing with the committee proposal in that regard. In other words there is none within this committee proposal, and it was their intent not to have any limitation on timber severance tax.

MR. ABRAHAM

I appreciate that. What I'm trying to find out, is there any limitation now in the present constitution?

MR. KELLY

I can't answer that. I don't know.

The committee members over here say there is not. But, I don't know.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Kelly, do you have any idea about how much money we are talking about here? ... How much additional money would come out of the state treasury as a result of this amendment?

MR. KELLY

I don't know, but we're getting it right now, Senator De Blieux, and I don't want to see that changed. I think under this particular committee proposal, there is a possibility under judicial interpretation that this could exclude--or make encompassed within the general limitation, the timber severance tax. That was not the intent of the committee. So, I just want to make that abundantly clear.

MR. CONROY

Mr. Kelly, your amendment puts in the word "other" as well as the wording "except timber."

MR. KELLY

Yes, sir.

MR. CONROY

Do you understand what that does in addition to dealing with the timber problem?

MR. KELLY

I think it would...I'm sure the other would refer back to the ...sulphur and some of the other things that are mentioned up above there.

MR. CONROY

Are you aware that the present constitutional provision is that if you've got sulphur, that you only get a total of two hundred thousand? If you put the other in here, the effect of that is the parish with sulphur gets a maximum of the five hundred, I guess it is, now, plus a hundred thousand for sulphur. Are you aware that that would be the effect of your amendment?

MR. KELLY

If it does that, yes. If it, in fact, does that, then I still have no objection to that either. That would be part of the intent because I can't see any difference between a parish that's got sulphur production and one such as my parish, which has a great deal of timber production.

MR. SHANNON

Don, isn't it true that what you are trying to do here is protect these little poor parishes that do not have anything other than timber revenues?

MR. KELLY

Yes, sir. There are a great number of parishes that have little or no oil, and other natural resources, and depend almost entirely upon their severance tax on their timber. That's not the case in my parish in many of the parishes it is, in north Louisiana.

MR. THOMPSON

Mr. Kelly, to answer Senator DeBlieux's...statement... question that he asked you, it should have been no money would be taken out of the treasury. Of course, now, we are getting all of it. This is just to help these poorer parishes. You know I'm for your amendment?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Unless I'm wrong in this, the way that I read this amendment, this excludes the sulphur tax from the severance tax, but it includes the timber tax.

MR. KELLY

No, sir.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Now, well, that might not have been your intention, but you'd better take another look at it and see.

MR. KELLY

Well, I just don't see how it could, Senator De Blieux. It says "and the amount of severance tax on all other natural resources, except timber, severed from the soil or water so remitted, shall not exceed five hundred thousand dollars." That's about as plain as I know how to say it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's not the way that I read the article. Maybe I've got it in the wrong place.

Further Discussion

MR. CONROY

I think that before the convention votes on this, it should understand exactly what it's doing. The present constitutional provision for a parish which has sulphur, gives that parish a total aggregate of a maximum of two hundred thousand dollars. The committee proposal was to retain that same concept that the sulphur had to be included within the total amount that was rebated back to a parish in severance taxes.

That amount has been increased by this convention from two hundred thousand to five hundred thousand. This would permit a parish with sulphur to get five hundred thousand, plus a hundred thousand, or a total of six hundred thousand, placing sulphur on the same level as timber. I think that conceptually that that can be justified and maybe entirely appropriate. But I do think that the convention should understand that that is what's before it, is, in addition to clarifying the situation with regard to timber--and to which I have no objection whatsoever--the convention should understand that the effect of this amendment, in addition, is to give to a parish with sulphur, an additional hundred thousand dollars, which it does not presently get under the constitution. That...as I said...that can be justified on its own basis. But I think it should be justified on that basis, and understood by the convention before it's adopted.

Questions

MR. KEAN

Mr. Conroy, as I read this proposal before the amendment was offered, the parish has got "not to exceed five hundred thousand dollars from all severance tax on all natural resources." Is that correct, sir?

MR. CONROY
That's correct.

MR. KEAN
By the language that Mr. Kelly would propose to add, they would get a hundred thousand dollars for the severance tax on sulphur, and they're not to exceed five hundred thousand on all other natural resources.

MR. CONROY
On all other natural resources other than timber. That's right. That's the way it's amended.

MR. AVANT
Mr. Conroy, wouldn't that only have any significance if you had a parish that had both sulphur and timber?

MR. CONROY
No, it would have significance only if you had both sulphur and oil and gas.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
Amendment No. 1. Page 3, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following:

"(E) A state tax revenue limit shall serve as a check on uncontrolled increases in state tax revenues. The state tax revenue limit for any fiscal year shall be twelve percent of state personal income. State personal income is the dollar amount that is reported by the United States Department of Commerce, or its successor agency, as total income by persons in the State of Louisiana for the calendar year in which the fiscal year commences. State tax revenues include sales, severance, income, gift, inheritance, excise, property, license fee, corporation franchise, and all other taxes collected by the state during the fiscal year. The legislature shall establish a system whereby all state tax revenues collected in excess of twelve percent of state personal income, and the interest thereon, shall be placed in a tax surplus fund which shall be used only for annual tax refunds, or reductions as provided by law.

Explanation

MR. JENKINS
Mr. Chairman, delegates, this amendment was passed out yesterday and if you don't have a copy, they have some copies on the side, and I think they can get you one. This is a proposal that I have been working on for several months. You may recall about a month or so ago, Governor Edwards held a press conference and indicated his strong support for it. It attempts to put an overall limit on the amount of taxes that can be levied by the State of Louisiana... I think if you listen closely it may cut down a lot on the number of questions and misunderstandings that might result from it. What this attempts to do is to put an overall limit on the amount of taxes that can be levied by the State of Louisiana during any given fiscal year. It attempts to do that by tying the taxes that the state levies to an overall economic indicator. In this case, we've chosen state personal income as an indicator. State personal income is a dollar amount that is reported annually by the U. S. Department of Commerce and it includes just about everything that individuals receive; it includes wages, salaries, dividends; it includes payment from government, such as, welfare, social security, and so forth. This particular economic indicator is chosen because--well, really for this reason. If you have a copy of Louisiana, the State of the State on page 21 it says "Total personal income is frequently used as the best single available measure of economic well being. When the income per person in a state is growing rapidly, it usually means that the standard of living of the population is improving." So, what you do if you take a typical year like 1971, you see that state personal income in Louisiana if added all together amounted to about twelve billion dollars--that's all the salaries, all the dividends, all the payments from government from all the citizens added up together amounted to twelve billion dollars. The state during that year levied taxes that amounted to about one billion eighty-two million dollars and that was about 9.0 percent of total personal income. Now, as a result of the special session that we just had, we had there the largest tax increase in the history of the state. The taxes levied by the state now amount to about 9.8

percent of total personal income. What this proposal would do would be to set a percentage limit on the amount of taxes that could be levied. The percentage limit chosen is twelve percent. Originally in our proposal, we had agreed to make it ten percent. If you noticed the news release from the governor, the figure of ten percent is mentioned. But, in talking to the delegates in the convention, a number of them said that they felt that this would be cutting it too close and rather they liked the concept but they would rather leave a lot of leeway, so that's why the figure of twelve percent is included. Now, this means that taxes could increase and would increase in proportion to the economic growth of the state, population increases, and inflation. In fact, it could increase if the taxing authority existed from the nine percent, 9.8 percent or as high as the twelve percent. But, if taxes in this state ever exceeded twelve percent, then the excess funds--the excess over the twelve percent-- would have to go into a tax surplus fund that could be used only for tax refunds or reductions. Originally, we said only income tax reductions or refunds, but we've taken that out. The legislature would have authority to decide what kind of tax refunds or reductions. So, here is a practical situation: suppose in 1971 the total personal income were twelve billion dollars, the tax revenue limit at twelve percent would have been one billion four hundred and forty million dollars. Now, the taxes actually levied were one billion eighty-two million. We were two hundred and fifty-eight million dollars below the limit. But, suppose instead, that the taxes levied had actually been one billion four hundred and fifty million, in which case, we would have been nine or ten million dollars over the tax revenue limit and that circumstance, that nine or ten million dollars, would have gone not to the general fund but to a tax surplus fund. That fund, then, would be used for income tax reductions, sales tax reductions, refunds of some sort, rebates, credits, or whatever the legislature decided to use it for. As an example, they might say everybody got five percent off his next year's income tax. Or, he might say that...the legislature might say that the sales tax would be...certain exemptions would be had on the sales tax for the next fiscal year, in which case, the funds would be transferred from the tax surplus fund back to the general fund to make up for that but still to retain the limit.

Let me give just a little bit more information on it, then I'll try to answer questions. Now, when we talk about state tax revenues, we're talking about strictly the taxes that are levied by the state. We are not talking about local taxes. We are not talking about federal funds. We are not talking about self-generating nontax revenues, such as, oil royalties. We are not talking about tuitions from state colleges and universities. We are talking strictly about state taxes. Now, why is this needed? There are two reasons that it's needed. One is: The taxpayer needs some overall protection and overall protection is much more important than the protection with regard to any one tax, like the income tax or the sales tax or whatnot. Overall tax level is really the most important factor in the whole economy. We have found by analyzing the situation that state and local taxes in the last five years have increased nationwide twice as fast as wages and salaries have increased and there needs to be some check on that. Another thing that we think that this proposal would accomplish is that we think it would reform the whole appropriation process by the state--right now the state legislature works in this fashion. The budget committee works very diligently to come up with a budget and they try to be fiscally responsible and generally they are. But, individual legislators and special groups come up with new proposals, new programs. The legislature, when presented with a bill for some such proposal, looks at it, we like it, there is no way we can object to it and frequently we vote for it without any consideration of how it fits in with the other priorities in the budget. We tend, when we have a state budget and there is a new proposal, we tend to put it on top of the existing budget. Seldom do we kick out something of equal amount and put that in and that's why it seems like the tremendous increase has been had without any relation to economic growth. What this proposal would do, though, was if we ever reached the limit--and I hope we never would--but if we did and we have a budget and someone comes up with a great new program, we are going to have to get that person to show two things--not just that it's a good program but that there is something in the budget of equal amounts that can be kicked out that's of a lower priority. Now, what this will likely do is to allow a constant reevaluation of the budget in a much better way than in the past so that legislators always will be trying to find out what is being done that's inefficient, what's unnecessary, what's of low priority, and we can get rid of. So often when an agency head or a department head goes before the budget committee or appropriations committee, we simply ask him "Well, how much did you get last year and how much increase do you want?" This will force a questioning of whether or not what he is doing is any good at all and whether or not we need his services at all and that of his agency or department. Now, this proposal has one similarity to the proposal that was on the ballot out in California by Governor Reagan about a month ago. That proposal was defeated 54 to 46 at the polls, but it was quite different. Out in California they take in state taxes about 8.75 percent of the people's...of the total personal income of the state in taxes. What Reagan would have done would have been to reduce that percentage by one-tenth of one percent a year for sixteen years until it was stabilized at 7.15 percent. Well, that really was asking an awful lot because everyone who got a piece of the pie whether it was education, whether it was welfare, whether it was highways, whatever it might be started questioning and asking, "Well, even though the budget is going to increase tremendously, perhaps, it will be my part of the pie that gets cut."

This proposal does not threaten anybody's piece of the pie because we are not cutting back at all; it's about 9.8 percent right now; we would limit it to twelve percent. Everyone who's getting a portion of the state budget, right now, certainly would ---- would retain it without any troubles--presuming he wouldn't be cut normally anyway--but it would say that when we reach, if we ever do that twelve percent limit, then that's about the most that the people of the state can be asked to do. Out in California it was...after the returns were in it was shown that of those who voted against the proposal, sixty-nine percent did so because they were under the mistaken assumption that it would increase taxes; it was so complicated and so detailed, it was fourteen legal pages that would have been put in their constitution and that, certainly, was too much detail. The proposal we have here is very concise and it leaves the mechanics to the legislature. So, now, let me try to answer questions. I know you, probably, will have a lot of them.

Questions

MR. DERBES

Mr. Jenkins, let's assume for purposes of argument that we have reached the point contemplated in your amendment, as I understand it, where the total amount of tax revenue produced in the state during any given fiscal year is now twelve percent of personal income. O.K.? At that point, suppose the legislature acting indifferently to this amendment raised the severance tax, a tax not ordinarily associated with the little man or with personal income but, although, it might be indirectly associated therewith. Suppose the legislature acted to raise the severance tax, at that point, or to raise the corporate franchise tax, at that point, and the total tax revenue exceeded twelve percent of personal income. What would happen to the additional revenue produced by the increase in taxes?

MR. JENKINS

Now, here's what would happen under those circumstances, and I explained this a little bit before. If the taxes actually collected by the state exceed the tax revenue limit, then the excess amount goes not to the general fund but to the tax surplus fund which can be used only for tax refunds or reductions in the discretion of the legislature. So, let's suppose that twenty million dollars was levied in taxes above the tax revenue limit--that would go into the tax surplus fund. The legislature, either before or after it, could enact laws deciding how that twenty million dollars would be disposed of. They could say that, for instance, that all income taxpayers will get a five percent reduction during the current fiscal year or during the next one. They could say that the sales tax will be....an exemption on the sales tax will be granted for certain items purchased, and during the next fiscal year that twenty million dollars would be transferred from the tax surplus fund to the general fund to make up for that loss of revenues. In other words, it doesn't matter what source the money comes from, the excess is going to have to be returned to the taxpayers, not to any particular taxpayers, to whatever taxpayers the legislature decides is in need of tax relief.

MR. SLAY

Mr. Jenkins, you've got a pretty deep amendment here, now... and you're looking at the overall picture here. But, suppose the governor of this state looking forward to four years from now and he would not reduce the collection of any of these taxes. But just before the election, he would take all the money that he had in excess of the twelve percent and he would say to me and to you and everybody else, "I'm going to give you a hundred dollars back here on your income taxes." By this amendment, then, we would be making it possible for the legislature and the governor to set up one of the biggest slush funds this state's ever seen; would you not agree?

MR. JENKINS

No, not at all for this reason. If you notice in the last line, "annual tax refunds" are required if there is any amount in the fund. Now, let me try to answer and then I'll answer the next one. But, I contemplate what would happen under this proposal is that we would very seldom have any surplus at all because people would know what the limit would be and they would certainly closely scrutinize legislators who would vote to go beyond the limit. But, in case the limit was gone beyond, then in any given year it would have to be refunded or a reduction of some sort would be granted. But, certainly, it would be self-defeating to have an excess in the fund rather than just reduce that particular tax. If the legislature, for example, saw that you were going to be beyond the limit during a given year, the thing that would in all likelihood do is they would....if they wanted to give income tax relief, is just reduce the income tax for that particular year rather than going through the expensive and costly procedure of collecting it and then giving it back.

MR. SLAY

Yes. I....

MR. JENKINS

Let me further answer that there is...there would be no political advantage to returning to someone what you've already taken. The tax surplus fund is the mechanism by which the legislature is controlled on this point. I don't know that there is any way that we could say that the state simply can't collect in excess of the limit. So, what we have said instead is that if the state does collect in excess of the limit and that... some of that, all of the excess is going to have to be returned to someone who paid it.

MR. SLAY

Yes. I get your point and all, but with the energy crisis being what it is and suppose we have vast oil discoveries here and with the new severance taxes we bring in large amounts of money. Now, then this could easily become a political issue because the man running for the governor could say "I'm not going to reduce these severance taxes and all these other taxes, but I'm going to give every person who pays income tax a refund each year when I get to be governor." So, my point was, that with this we could very easily be setting up a slush fund for politicians and the bureaucrats don't mind sending that money back every year--you know how they work, they love to get credit for it and that's the point I was trying to get across.

MR. JENKINS

No. But, don't you see that a gubernatorial candidate faced with tremendous increases in oil revenues could just as easily say, "Well, I'm going to eliminate the income tax or do away with it," and the political effect would be no different from what you are saying. So, I don't think that that's a....I honestly don't think that's a legitimate argument because either way the political impact would be the same.

MR. TOOMY

Mr. Jenkins, first of all, would you tell me if any other states have such a similar state tax limits at present ?

MR. JENKINS

No, this is a new concept and it's a concept that was created in an attempt to give some overall perspective to what government's doing to reform the appropriation process. If we did it, we would be the first, and I think we would be making a good step forward.

MR. TOOMY

You sort of gave an impression before...you mentioned about income taxes that this surplus would come back to the people who paid the taxes. I bring your attention to the last line when you talk about annual tax refunds, it would come to the people, I would assume, who paid taxes?

MR. JENKINS

No, no. In other words, the legislature decides what kinds of tax refunds or reductions would....for example, if the severance tax is raised and if that's what makes you go over the limit, you don't have to return it to the severance taxpayers; you return it to whoever you want to but they have to be somebody who paid a tax; there would be some system for the sales tax, the income tax, or whatever.

MR. TOOMY

But, I don't think they necessarily have to be anyone who paid any tax.

MR. JENKINS

Well, it says "tax refunds or reductions," so it has to be... the only way if no one paid a tax, then he couldn't get a tax refund or a tax reduction, so you couldn't give it to him if he paid no tax.

...but, in order words, you can pick out income taxpayers, you could pick out sales taxpayers, whoever you wanted to pick out to give the surplus to.

MR. TOOMY

But, a tax reduction would apply in the future, it wouldn't necessarily help the man who paid too much in the past.

MR. JENKINS

The tax reductions would apply in the future. The tax... that's why I said earlier that in the case of a tax reduction for the future that in that case the taxpayer would get no money himself, the funds would be transferred from the tax surplus fund to the general fund to make up for the lost tax revenue--the general fund, then, receiving no dollar amount over the tax limit.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jenkins, can you tell me the logic of including the severance tax in? As I understand it, the effect of severance taxes is not as directly personal as say--personal income tax or sales tax, but a lot of it is paid by taxpayers outside of the State of Louisiana; is that not correct?

MR. JENKINS

The reason for including it, Mrs. Zervigon, is because we are trying to make an overall correlation between total personal income and the amount of taxes collected. Now, first, total personal income includes many things, such as dividends from corporations; such as welfare payments, social security payments just as all taxes include severance taxes, income taxes, and so forth. The point is to set a limit that the state can get for revenue purposes. The reason the state levies taxes is because it needs money, obviously. The point for including severance taxes is because that's one sort of tax that it levies. Now, you see, we're not giving any benefit to the severance taxpayer here; we are not helping the severance taxpayer because the last thing the legislature is going to do is grant a refund to the severance taxpayers. What they are going to do, though, is to use the severance taxes paid and computing the twelve percent so that beyond the twelve percent that extra increment can be returned to whatever taxpayers the legislature desires to. So, the reason for including all of these taxes is because that's part of the money that the state receives in taxes, that's why.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Jenkins, can you tell you how this is going to be made equitable? For example, can you explain to me how this refund fund can't be rigged in such a way that one person will be paying twenty-five percent of income to the state and another one five percent and the average would be twelve?

MR. JENKINS

Well, I mean, you ask that question...that's like saying how do we know that whatever taxes we levy aren't going to rigged that the income tax, or some other tax?

MRS. ZERVIGON

Supposing the...

MR. JENKINS

It's because we have laws, you know, we have equal protection clause in this constitution and things like this. The thing that the legislature will do and frankly I don't foresee any tax surpluses because when the legislature knows that it has this limit there is no political advantages in levying taxes beyond the limit. But the thing that the legislature undoubtedly will do, will be to make a refund of probably what's a most politically popular and that would probably be either the sales tax or the income tax. So, I mean, the thing that they are going to do, I can't foresee what kind of tax relief they are going to give any more than I can suggest what kind they might give if we don't have this. But, probably, it would be like everyone gets five percent off his income tax, or everybody gets a ten dollars credit against his income tax, or the sales tax for a given year will not be levied against certain types of exchanges, or the gasoline tax might not be. It would be whatever the legislature in its discretion decided to give the tax relief in the amount of that excess.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You don't really expect to be taking twelve percent of anyone's income. What you really say is that when you add in corporation taxes, severance taxes, and other things that don't come out of anyone's personal...directly out of anyone's personal pocket that is like twelve percent. But, couldn't it be the case as...

MR. JENKINS

No, Mary, what I was going to say--let me answer--because you are...in your question you're saying something that isn't true. You see, this has nothing to do with the individual income of any given people, nothing to do at all.

MRS. ZERVIGON

That's what disturbs me about it, Woody...something disturbs me about it--the rebates, or reductions, or refunds could be on corporation taxes, could be on severance taxes, could be on gift or inheritance taxes.

MR. JENKINS

Well, it can be that way now, I mean, we can reduce whatever tax we want to right now, Mary.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I'm just wondering how much protection this is to the person you are trying to protect in that case.

MR. JENKINS

Well, the protection is the fact that you elect people to the legislature to decide which, in their discretion, where tax relief ought to be granted. But, let me...because your question indicated a basic lack of understanding of what this proposal does; I want to try to explain one little aspect of it again. Total personal income is the dollar amount of all income by persons in the state--wages, salaries, dividends, welfare, and so forth. We are not talking about any specific tax or any specific person's income. You know, you have gross national product. Personal income is a factor of gross national product; it's a complicated formula but if you took gross national product and took away capital consumption allowances, you would find net national product. If you took away indirect business taxes and business transfers and added surpluses to government, you would get then national income. If you would then subtract from that corporate profits and government and add governmental transfer payments, you would then get national personal income....

State personal income is part of national personal income relating to....

Further Discussion

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, fellow members of the convention, I rise to oppose Mr. Jenkins amendment not because I'm against the concept of what he is trying to do but because the only exposure we have had to it is the fifteen or twenty minutes that he has had to present it to us; it's certainly a far-reaching concept looking at new systems or a limitation on the financing of our state. We have not had the benefit of any hearings in committee of this proposal. I suggest to you that you just look at the criticism we received in a ten day legislature session on the new concept and, yet, in fifteen or twenty minutes we are expected to absorb this whole new concept. I don't know just how far-reaching we might get into what Mr. Jenkins is proposing here. You've heard some other--Mr. Slay, I believe--bring up what happens if we find some new resources in this state and are we prohibited from collecting what is rightly and justly belongs to the people of this state to maybe build new schools that are so badly needed throughout the state; maybe to start new programs in our state that are really needed. I don't think we are giving the people in this state everything that we possibly could give to them, but the two-thirds taxing power that's restricted in the legislature by a vote of two-thirds of the members of the legislature keeps down the spending in this state to somewhat. I wonder what happens if personal income goes down to a certain point for a depression or recession if we would be prohibited from collecting again the oil and gas severance taxes that we are collecting. Will we then have to close our schools and hospitals in this state because we would not be able to collect up to a certain percent of personal incomes and those personal incomes would have thus dropped? Will we have to reduce the taxes on our oil and gas in this state? I don't know where...just how far-reaching it is. What about the refunds? Who do you refund to? Do you refund to the people who were just paid over that excess amount? Or, do you refund to everybody in this state regardless if he paid a penny or two of taxes? I don't understand the full effect. I certainly would be willing to work with Mr. Jenkins in the future, in the legislature, if he would want to refer it to some joint legislative committee that we might study this proposal and in the future present it to the people. It scares me very much that the people of California would have voted down the same type of concept when it has been presented to them, I'm sure, over a period of time; and it's hard to believe that people will vote against just keeping taxes down, there must be other effects that are here that we can't get in this fifteen or twenty minutes. So, I ask that you will defeat it at this time. If Mr. Jenkins wants to bring it in some fashion before one of the committees of this convention, possibly, we may be able to get it some other place, I don't know, I don't think we even have time in the month that's left in this convention to study this full proposal. I think what he is trying to do is a good thing. We need to have some controls over state spending, but I don't know if we need to do it right now in this constitution without a full hearing and without full explanation.

Questions

MR. MIRE

Mr. Alario, to further substantiate what you were saying, your argument against the amendment, isn't it a fact that when it was first mentioned to us that we were talking about a ten percent limitation and we have now gone to a twelve percent limitation?

MR. ALARIO

That's right, Mr. Mire. I've just heard, as you have, a clipping in the press about this thing, but I haven't had a chance to study it or look at the full effect and I see it changing already.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Alario, I don't know whether you understood this or not—I know I didn't, but I asked if you did--the state tax revenues would include all revenues that the state takes in; is that correct?

MR. ALARIO

I don't really understand what Woody means by all...when he says state tax revenues....

MR. DENNERY

Does it also include....

MR. ALARIO

....that's part of my contention, does it include revenues from the federal government or what does it actually include, I don't know at this point?

MR. DENNERY

Therefore, it would include the amounts that are rebated to the various parishes....

MR. ALARIO

Well, that's correct.

MR. DENNERY

....which it all states. Now, that amounted in 1971-72 to some fifty million dollars. So, if you are going to put a limit on the state and then take fifty million dollars of it away, how are we going to operate the state government?

MR. ALARIO

Well, I just don't know where....how far-reaching this thing is and that's why I'm asking that we not go into it; you are absolutely right, Mr. Dennery, you certainly have a right to look it over.

MR. JENKINS

John, you know there have been many, many things brought up here that we didn't have committee hearings on. Don't you think the proper approach would be to let's discuss it now and decide whether it's reasonable and makes sense? The problem I see is so many people don't understand it and apparently aren't making an effort to understand it. Don't you think the thing is to go ahead and discuss it and understand it now and make the decision?

MR. ALARIO

Woody, I don't know if we have brought anything before this convention that is as far-reaching as what you've proposed here and that's the only thing I'm asking that we have time to look it over and study it sometime; and I really don't think we can do it in the short time we have in this convention, frankly.

Further Discussion

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'd like to spend two and a half minutes for this proposition, and two and a half minutes against it; that doesn't make too much sense, but it's about true. What Woody is talking about is a concept of limiting the taxing power of government which I think, is a good concept. But, where it begins to fall down is that he's setting the rates of taxation.

Now, Woody admits that at the present time we are taxing at the rate of 9.8 percent of the state income for all persons in this state, but yet, he's going to set the limit at twelve. Now, Mr. Slay pointed out, and I think very truly, that you could use this additional 2.2 percent to set up one of the biggest slush funds that you've ever seen in the state, and, of course, maybe it will. But, one thing you have to take into consideration that this does include all revenues which presently make up about ten percent of the annual income of the state other than federal sources. So, when this ten percent is depleted, as we seem to think that it will be within the next twenty years or so, then this ten percent is going to be added to the personal taxes that you're going to have to pay. Now, what I'm saying is, is that if you had a realistic approach percentage-wise to where you were going to place some type of realistic limit on governmental taxing power then you would have something, but it doesn't make any sense to go into a doctor's office and him tell you that you've got to lose weight and give you a diet anywhere between one and five thousand calories a day, and that's what this does. You just can't exist on it; if you're going to limit, make it a realistic limit. Now, as I understand his argument in the case of the California constitutional amendment, the reason that it didn't pass is because it had a reduction every year for so many years, but at least it started out at the limit where the state was spending at that particular time. We're not starting out there; we're starting out with the limit 2.2 percent in excess of there, plus the fact that we're taking into accountability the severance taxes which account for approximately one and half, or a hundred and fifty or so million dollars a year in the state which has got to be absorbed by personal taxes of some sort or the other. So, where the concept may be good, the realistic percentages are just not there, not in this proposal. Now, on the other side of the coin, if you like the concept, maybe this is the place to start. You put in a twelve percent limitation now by constitutional amendment--every four years maybe the citizenry wants to reduce it. I don't think that there's any doubt but that if you had something like this in a constitution, it would make the spending arm of government just a little bit more responsive to the taxpaying citizen, and this, I don't think, is bad at all. But, yet, you are starting out with the twelve percent, you are starting out with Mr. Slay's slush fund. I hesitate to say yours, Mr. Slay, but it's a possibility that you are starting out with a tremendous slush fund, but this is maybe not realistic for enforcement at the present time. But, if you like the concept, maybe this is the place to start. You would definitely, I believe, if the citizenry of the state had this kind of axe to hold over state government as we have over local government, I think that you would get the same degree of responsibility in state spending that most of us are proud that we have in local government at the present time. That is for, and that is against. Now, I don't want to answer any questions because I honestly don't know where I stand, I just thought I would convey a few ideas to you.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, there seems to be a lot of misunderstanding about it, and I have a proposal that can be amended in the Revenue and Finance Taxation Committee on this, so I want to withdraw it and let folks realize that I have it pending, and I'd like them to study this material and at the appropriate time we'll come back with it.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, between lines 7 and 8, insert the following: "(E) Individuals, partnerships, companies and corporations paying royalties or other monies derived from oil, gas, or other minerals shall file with the state annual reports of funds so paid attributable to minerals produced in Louisiana. Such funds which are unclaimed shall be deposited with the treasurer of the state and held or disposed of according to law."

Explanation

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is to try to bring in ... maybe I should say this is to close a loophole that now exists in our law whereby monies are held unclaimed and are not deposited either with our treasurer or with the public administrators in the parishes where property is held... is found, but is sent out of state and then held as unclaimed accounts by the oil companies. Now, this money is derived from producing royalty and minerals... from producing minerals in the State of Louisiana. When this money goes out of state and is held, the state loses the float on the money which we should be entitled to, it loses income tax on the money, but most important of all, if no effort is made to find the real owners of that, as the state would do if it were unclaimed property, and where a Louisiana citizen would have a better chance to find out if something is held in their name. In the long run, the citizens themselves lose, to whom this is due and owing. Then, in Louisiana, if you had property unclaimed for a certain length of time, when the money is declared unclaimed you have a procedure by which the state then, can become the beneficiary of this unclaimed fund. We do have the uniform disposition of unclaimed property act. You'll find this in Title 3 of the Civil Code, 9:151-182 and you will also find a statute in the Revised Statutes 1585 that deal with the uniform disposition of unclaimed properties. Now, if you have banks, trust companies, businesses, stock companies, all kinds of financial organization; life insurance corporations and utilities that hold money that is unclaimed, they come under the uniform disposition of unclaimed property, but at this stage we have no way of keeping this money that is due to people that may owe income tax on it in Louisiana or to whom it may be due and owing, to keep it in the state so that we can dispose of it. I see no reason at all why anyone, any citizen of Louisiana, should be opposed to this act. If the oil companies do not have any unclaimed funds, they will not fight us on this, would they? If they do fight us on this, then we know they do have the unclaimed funds. It's just a simple matter of logical deduction. In the last analysis the money we recover may be our own. I can see no reason why anyone should have any opposition to this. What we're trying to say is that these are unclaimed accounts, we want to keep control over them, we want to keep them in the state, we want the legislature to be able to provide for the collection of income tax due on it and also for the final disposition if the citizen of Louisiana does not claim. I will read you an opinion that was written to Breazeale & Sachse firm on February 10, 1969. They were inquiring of the attorney general and I will say this was under our last attorney general, Mr. Gremillion, whether ... monies held out of state by companies had to be deposited with any public administrator or the treasurer of Louisiana. The opinion says, "Although we have no court proceedings in point, it comes to us that where money is being held as payment for royalty, such money would not be construed as incorporeal immovable property for the purpose of administration." In other words, any money on deposit anywhere in the State of Louisiana resulting from a mineral lease or royalty would appear to be governed by the situs of the money so far as the owner is concerned, or for administration to transfer to the Collector of Revenue. Therefore, if the money is located and under the control of a person or a corporation in the parish where there is no public administrator, it would seem that the money should be transferred to the Collector of Revenue. Be that as it may, if this money is under the control of an oil company out of state and the money is out of state, we know of no authority for holding that such money should be paid either to the Collector of Revenue under R.S. 9:151 or to the public administrator under R.S. 9:1581. He concludes that this is a rather vexatious problem. I'm asking you to close this loophole, to do this favor to the citizens of this state to whom this money may be owed. You're not going to hurt any company that is really entitled to it because the company is not entitled to it. We're entitled to it, our citizens are entitled to it and the State of Louisiana is entitled to have the final control and disposition. I'll answer questions, if I have time.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Questions

MR. DUVAL

Mrs. Miller, I'm trying to understand how it would work mechanically. This is... you're trying to in essence have an escheat law for oil royalties; is that correct?

MRS. MILLER

Right, for money that has... is due and owing citizens from oil and mineral revenues.

MR. DUVAL

Now, I'd like to get into the legal part of it. Now, where ... these are royalties due from oil extracted from Louisiana; now would it... does this only apply to Louisiana citizens?

MRS. MILLER

Only applies to monies that come from minerals extracted in Louisiana.

MR. DUVAL

But, the point is that, the state would receive the unclaimed monies; is that correct?

MRS. MILLER

The unclaimed monies.

MR. DUVAL

Now, what if the royalty owner was a non ... not a domiciliary of Louisiana, and the money was due that royalty owner. Would.... under your amendment would the state then have the right to claim that money?

MRS. MILLER

What I have said in this is that it will be held and disposed of as provided by law. I'm sure that the legislature would provide by law very much as it does in the uniform disposition of unclaimed accounts in which they give a prescription of ... in some cases, of two years, sometimes ten years, but it always reads: "where the last known address is in Louisiana."

MR. DUVAL

Mrs. Miller, did the attorney general's opinion go into the conflicts of law problem which might arise here?

MRS. MILLER

You know how the attorney general's opinions used to read when Mr. Gremillion was writing them, Mr. Duval.

MR. DUVAL

I see.

MRS. MILLER

I think you know that whoever wrote... asked for the opinion, wrote the opinion he wanted to get and had it signed.

MR. DUVAL

I see. I'm just trying to understand how it's going to... I understand the thrust of your amendment, but where does the money originate? I mean, the funds themselves come from out of state, but it's in reference to minerals produced within the state; is that right?

MRS. MILLER

Actually, the money is generated in this state; the minute the oil comes out of the ground the price is converted to money...

MR. DUVAL

I see.

MRS. MILLER

... under most mineral leases. Then when it's converted to money they send it out of state. Of course, it's all a bookkeeping problem, I'm sure. It's nothing... I'm sure they don't physically transfer those funds.

MR. DUVAL

One other question. Are you satisfied then that as a legal matter we can achieve this, notwithstanding any attorney general's... we haven't had a recent attorney general's opinion saying that we can? We do have the legal authority to do this?

MRS. MILLER

I'm convinced that it probably could have been done under the uniform disposition of property if the companies had been named specifically. Since they weren't and since this is such an important matter, and it involves such huge amounts of funds, I think that it behooves this convention to address itself to this problem. I ask for your favorable vote on this amendment.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mrs. Miller, is there any possible way to do this through the statutes?

MRS. MILLER

Ms. Zervigon, when it comes to lobbying that legislature, I don't believe there's any way you could do this under the statutes.

MS. ZERVIGON

But, legally, it would be possible?

MRS. MILLER

Yes. I would think it would be possible, but I don't think it would be very probable.

MS. ZERVIGON

What is your estimate of the total number of delegates who have listened to any five words you've said?

MRS. MILLER

Well, I think we've had pretty good attention because when you start talking about mineral revenues, people kind of pay attention.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, do you think it would be wise to adopt something that could be done legislatively when only Mr. Dennery is listening?

MR. WINCHESTER

Mrs. Miller, on the report that is made annually of funds so paid that's referred to in the first sentence, what would that report contain?

MRS. MILLER

I would imagine the legislature would provide very much as the federal income tax regulations provide, that you furnish, you know, as you furnish through businesses when all accounts ... amounts or interest paid, income paid, dividends paid, that there would be a very simple process that this information on royalties that have accumulated or paid out will be furnished to the state. This would just be a matter of income tax regulations --- very similar to income tax regulations.

MR. WINCHESTER

If I now receive oil royalties my name would appear on that annual report; is that correct-- as receiving them and the amount?

MRS. MILLER

If you were under... of course, if you're a known royalty owner, you would get your regular statements from the company. This would only apply to those that are unknown and unclaimed, and so instead of the company sending to you because you are known, it would send to the state the statement of account of those who are unknown and unclaimed; they'd just keep it.

MR. WINCHESTER

All right, then that annual report would only contain those names that the.... that have royalties that are unclaimed; is that correct?

MRS. MILLER

That's correct. There would be no need for other private people who are getting theirs, because they get theirs through different forms.

MR. WINCHESTER

It wasn't very clear; it is now, though. Thank you.

MR. BROWN

Mrs. Miller, I wanted to follow up with what Mr. Winchester said. Is it your intention that anyone who would receive any royalty check at all that this would all be public record, that their names be listed with the state that you and I could go look and see just to so...

MRS. MILLER

Oh, no.

MR. BROWN

Well, that's what it says to me, and that's why I was concerned. It says that.. "shall file with the state annual reports of funds so paid." You would not interpret this as filing a list showing everyone receiving any kind of royalty check, exactly how much they received?

MRS. MILLER

Actually, there would be no conflict under the present laws regarding the statements you get ordinarily anyway from your... you know, the collector of revenue and your income tax collector gets statements anyway that you file with your returns. You can provide by law the method in which this will be done.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

All right. The change is resubmit... amendments resubmitted as follows: The fourth line, right after the words "reports of" and before the word "funds", insert "unclaimed", the word "unclaimed". It would read: "Individuals, partnerships, companies, and corporations paying royalties or other monies derived from oil, gas, or other minerals shall file with the state annual reports of unclaimed funds so paid attributable to minerals produced in Louisiana."

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, as much as I hate to, I can't help but oppose Mrs. Miller's amendment. Although I think she has a very good idea and I'd like to see that enacted into law as legislation, but we are writing a constitution, ladies and gentlemen we're not writing out legislative provisions, at least, we should not be. I find that that's what we have been doing to a great extent here of late. I think this is a matter that certainly should be left to the legislature to do, and I ask you in all good graces, let's stop writing in legislation in this constitution, and write the provisions which are necessary and leave to the legislature those problems to solve which ought to be solved by the legislature.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 46-43. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 31-58. Motion to reconsider. Previous Question ordered. Motion adopted: 56-39.]

Reconsideration

MRS. MILLER

Ladies and gentlemen and Mr. Chairman, I'm so glad that something brought you to your feet because I know that you sit down so much and don't stay there that you need the little exercise. I will say again, this thing cannot hurt any of you or anyone you know. The money you reclaim may be your own. It certainly might be your neighbor's. There is no reason why this need not be in the constitution. I implore you that if you want to do a service for your friends and for the citizens, this amendment will be a vehicle by which you can do it. There is absolutely no reason for these funds to float out of state, for some company to get the float on the funds, that itself would bring revenues to the State of Louisiana. I agree with Senator De Blieux this thing could be in the statutes, but I will reaffirm that it has not been put in and the likelihood of it being put in is very, very slim indeed. I'll answer questions.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Question

MR. NEWTON

Mrs. Miller, isn't there some question about the constitutionality of this provision in view of the conflicts of law problem?

MRS. MILLER

No, there isn't, Mr. Newton, because the other uniform disposition of properties has been held constitutional, and there's no reason why this should apply to insurance company funds, utility funds, banks, and all other businesses....it's absolutely the same principle; it's just that one whole set of revenues managed to escape in the act.

Further Discussion

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman and delegates, as my good friend from the north who is not present today, says, "I'll be brief". I hate to oppose Mrs. Miller, but I will on this issue. Mrs. Miller says that this can be done through legislation. I don't understand it at all, so I urge all of you who don't understand it or haven't listened, to vote with me against the Miller amendment, and I believe the vote will be mostly red. I move the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 40-42.]

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I'd just like to say that I think that what Mrs. Miller has in mind and wants to do is a good idea. If she is willing in the next session of the legislature, I'll be glad to sponsor legislation, but it requires setting up the procedure by which this can be done. It requires a hearing so that we will know exactly what the score is and whether or not the amount that would be recovered would be worth the administration. I just don't think that we ought to put this type of legislation into our constitution because this is strictly legislative, it's self-executing and there would be no procedure whatsoever set up as to how it's to be operated and done. I just think that we're going too far in attempting to put this in the constitution. I ask you to vote against it.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I know we're in a hurry, but this is significant. I think it brings up a very, very important point of principle here, and I don't think that good legislation is made in haste. Let's stop a moment and consider that we're representing the people of Louisiana. I hate to direct these questions to people who don't listen or who are legislators, but I am specifically speaking to those parties now. First of all, if you haven't listened, it's very simple, very simple. If you want more taxes then vote against Mrs. Miller. If you don't, then vote for her because the State of Louisiana will only be getting what it's due. Now, the legislators are in a hurry to tax us more, but they will not fight to see that we keep in Louisiana the funds that are due Louisianians. This is oil taken from the ground of Louisiana that's due to Louisianians and for some reason through default of our legislature, no doubt, these statutory matters have not been enacted; this is a constitutional matter in my mind. When the legislature defaults, which it has done in this instance for years, then it's time for the constitution and this body to take action when it's due the people of the State of Louisiana. Mrs. Miller is an expert. She sat on the mineral board, she saw what has been happening, and in a sense, it's a rape of the lands of Louisiana that is being kept in hands where it does not belong. The people that own this land are the ones to which these royalties are due. Now, when they decessate or are gone, it's only logical that the state should be entitled to these funds. I see no problem for those of you who have not listened, simply vote yes if you have any question in your mind, to keep the taxes of the State of Louisiana down and the people of Louisiana getting their due.

Question

MR. AVANT

I just want to make sure I understood what you said, and I think what you said in effect was this; that when these people are decessated or gone that it's only right that the state step in and razzo that money?

MR. WEISS

I don't know that it belongs to anybody else, Mr. Avant.

Further Discussion

MR. E. J. LANDRY

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, ... now I don't quit; I don't quit and I don't see why you quit. Now, when you get to an important, very important part of this convention you quit; that's wrong. That's very wrong. Now, here's one of the most important issues in this convention for money. If there ever was a time that you could listen to someone who has been fighting this fight, if you've read what Mrs. Miller has been trying to do, you would realize that she is trying to do the right thing. Now, there was some confusion. Every time you vote to reconsider, there's a tremendous amount of confusion and many of you vote wrong. Now, you did vote right when you voted with Mrs. Miller a minute ago. She is trying to do the right thing. There is no big problem. There is no problem here. She is trying to recover monies for the State of Louisiana that need to be recovered, and this is the way to do it. I didn't vote for the three dollar license plate because it was not constitutional material. I'm telling you, ladies and gentlemen, that this is constitutional material because the things that affect this state revolve around the revenues that we get from oil and gas and that's the big issue, because Louisiana is oil and gas. So, put into that constitution any recovery that you can make from oil and gas. So, I'm asking you to put this in the constitution. It'll be worked out according to law. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 45-47.]

Point of Information

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to ask if it would be in order, if I could move that all the legislators in this convention who think that they could put this kind of thing in the statute would go on record that they would coauthor this bill to bring it into the Uniform Disposition Act?

MR. HENRY

You might could ask it; I don't know what kind of answer you'd get, Mrs. Miller.

MR. NUNEZ

I'm volunteering to do what she just requested.

MR. HENRY

There's one, Senator De Blieux's another. . . Let's give them a big hand.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegate Dennery. Mrs. Warren joins as a coauthor.

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 32, after the word "property" and before the word "shall" insert a comma "," and add the following:

"and three-fourths of all state sales taxes."

Amendment No. 2. On page 3, line 1, after the word "occurs" and before the word "or" insert a comma "," and add the following:

"in which the taxes are collected,"

Amendment No. 3. On page 3, line 4, after the word and punctuation "year," and before the word "and" insert the following:

"the amount of sales taxes so remitted shall not exceed one million dollars to any parish for any year,"

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, the purpose of this amendment is twofold. Number one, I wanted to point out to the convention what I believe we have done in the last two days with regard to reducing the areas in which our state will be able to operate. I think we have successfully reduced the areas in which our state can collect revenues, and I think we have seriously damaged the ability of the state to operate. If this convention sees fit to do this, however, my second purpose comes forward. We, in New Orleans, do not have too many natural resources. In the year 1971-72, the three-fourths of the timber severance tax which was collected in New Orleans amounted to zero. Pulpwood, though, we got $25.79. In oil, we got twenty-one thousand five hundred; in distillants, $35.31; in gas, some eighty-seven hundred dollars; and in all other severance taxes, twenty-eight thousand three hundred and eighty-four dollars. Now, that was what was collected from the parish of Orleans. But, the sales taxes which were collected from the parish of Orleans were some fifty-one million dollars. Now, if every other parish is going to be protected under its natural resources, and since this convention has seen fit to deprive the city of New Orleans from taxing its best natural resource --namely, its own citizens and the citizens of its neighboring parishes, as Mr. Nunez points out--then I think the very least we can do is permit the parish of Orleans and the city of New Orleans to get back some of the sales taxes which it remits to the state. Therefore, I have introduced this amendment. Now, out of that fifty-one million dollars, which is a sizeable amount, I'm willing to limit us to three-fourths, or one million dollars. I don't want to appear greedy on behalf of the city. I'm perfectly willing to limit it to a million dollars. If you wanted to limit it to seven hundred and fifty thousand, I wouldn't object to that either. My point is twofold, I repeat. I want to point out to this convention what I think we have done in the last two days, and I think we have made some serious mistakes. I think we should look back, tonight, and see exactly what we have done. We have legislated to a great extent on the ability of this state to operate. I seriously believe we've made a mistake. On the other hand, if we're going to do that, by golly, the city of New Orleans is entitled to its share. Therefore, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MR. DUVAL

No, Mr. Dennery, I just was wondering, how much did New Orleans get on the revenue sharing proposal we adopted?

MR. DENNERY

Oh, I didn't put income tax in here, Mr. Duval. I don't want any of the income taxes back. We get that back in revenue sharing. But, sales taxes, we don't get anything back.

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

MR. DUVAL

I was wondering, also, Mr. Dennerly, in what way have we changed the present constitution to limit the taxing power of the state?

MR. DENNERLY

Well, for one thing, we have put. . . we have denied the legislature, for example, the right to knock out as the deduction the federal income tax.

MR. DUVAL

That's the only way we've really prohibited. . . changed anything. Is that about right?

MR. DENNERLY

I don't believe that's completely correct, Mr. Duval. I think, for instance, in the question of severance tax on sulphur, the parishes which presently have sulphur were limited, previously, to two hundred thousand dollars. Now, they're going to get five hundred plus a hundred instead of two hundred, including the hundred. We've increased the amount of severance taxes that go back to the various parishes. No, we have made a number of changes in here, Mr. Duval.

MR. DUVAL

I'm talking about the prohibition against the state from this. There's nothing stopping the state from. . . on the severance tax--on a limit on the severance tax. We did not change the law, isn't it correct, on the income tax? We didn't change the law, did we?

MR. DENNERLY

No, but, Mr. Duval, I think. . .

MR. DUVAL

That's the only point I wanted to make.

MR. DENNERLY

Well, I realize that, but I think you have to recognize that sooner or later we get to the end of the rope on the individual tax. If we start putting limitations on the state's power to tax, we are running into some very bad waters, it seems to me.

MR. BROWN

Mr. Dennerly, are you trying to equate, philosophically, the same purpose of giving you this rebate, when you talk about natural resources, that are given back to the parishes involved in the rebate for. . . rather, the break on the severance taxes on their own gas and timber? Are you trying. . . am I correct that you're trying to relate the two?

MR. DENNERLY

I think to a certain extent they can be equated. Yes, sir, Senator.

MR. BROWN

Well, did you hear the discussion by Senator Nunez and others who talked about how, because of the taking of these natural resources, that our rural roads were, you know, really worked over, and it was a way of giving back something to you for what was taken in terms of public facilities? Now, what's taken from you in terms of natural resources when I come down where I live--and I often come to New Orleans and spend my tax money and give you my sales tax money--what are you depleting down there? What are you losing because I come down there and spend all that money in New Orleans? How am I hurting you?

MR. DENNERLY

Well, I don't think you're hurting us a bit. I never said you were hurting us, Senator. I think it's great that you come down there.

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Dennerly, I'm sure that you are familiar with the fact, are you not, that severance taxes are collected, and the first thing that is done is taking it off of the royalty checks? Is that correct? It's taken from the top, isn't it?

MR. DENNERLY

Oh, yes. It's taken. . . not off the royalty checks. It's taken from the people who produce it.

MR. A. LANDRY

That's correct.

MR. DENNERLY

Also off the royalty checks.

MR. A. LANDRY

Also. But, isn't it true that the individual landowner who had production on his property will also pay either one-sixth or one-eighth of the increase in that tax?

MR. DENNERLY

If he owns it. Of course, a lot of the individual landowners have sold their royalties, you and I very well know.

MR. A. LANDRY

We know that, but a lot of them have kept it. I hold in my hand right here, which I just took out of my courthouse this morning, where I have four hundred people involved in a lawsuit. Their royalty interests for .375 was a check for $1,342.70, of which $236.96 was taken off of that check because of the severance tax. Do you realize by doubling the severance tax that this will take another two hundred and thirty-six dollars off of that check?

MR. DENNERLY

Oh, yes, sir. I certainly do, Delegate Landry.

MR. A. LANDRY

Now, let me ask you this: Do you know how much money New Orleans contributes to the State of Louisiana in, not only in your income tax, but all other taxes?

MR. DENNERLY

No, I don't believe I can give you the exact figure, there.

MR. A. LANDRY

Do you know how much they receive from the State of Louisiana? Would you accept an amendment that New Orleans will not receive anymore than they put into the state?

MR. DENNERLY

That New Orleans would not receive. . . I think. . .

MR. A. LANDRY

Would not receive anymore from the state than they put into it.

MR. DENNERLY

Well, I'll tell you this, Ambrose, I'm not sure of the figure, but I'd be almost willing, right now, to bet that we get less than we put in.

MR. A. LANDRY

Well, I'm going to tell you that if you check it, you wouldn't accept the amendment.

MR. DENNERLY

I didn't say I'd accept it.

MR. CASEY

Did you know, in answer to Mr. Ambrose Landry's question, Mr. Dennerly, that New Orleans is the third to last per capita in the State of Louisiana for parishes receiving revenue back from the State of Louisiana?

MR. DENNERLY

No, but I'm very happy to learn that in answer to his question--not to learn it.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I guess this is about the first time that you have seen me and Mr. Dennerly together. You might think of the old quote, "Politics makes strange bed buddies." How would you like to get your chance in bed? I knew I would get your attention, then.

When I first saw Mr. Dennerly's amendment, I went back and I spoke to him. I said, "Mr. Dennerly," I say, "I think I'd like to coauthor this with you." He said, "If you do," say, "go up in front and tell them." Thing came into my mind the same thing that he saw. I thought of an old saying, once, many years ago when I was in school. The saying was: "Hold what you got, and if you ain't got nothing, hold that too."

As we were going on and we were talking about natural resources. . . I said our greatest resource is people. Our greatest resource is New Orleans people. Unfortunately, they eat.

Just a few days ago, my husband, you know, he called me on the phone and he told me he had an article that he had taken out of the paper, and he thought I would be interested to see it. It was talking about a group that had appeared before our city council. They were talking about welfare people, and the city's needing more funds to take care of their needs. I know in that area that we had an organization of which I was a member of. I'm chairman of it, Emergency Aid Committee, where we raise money to try to supplement our people in that area in that situation. So, when Mr. Dennery came up with his amendment, I thought about that. I said if we could get some of our taxes back, that's just about all we can get. Mr. Jerry spoke to us one night about Louisiana politics. The thing that was interesting, he said, was pine tree lands. It made me think about at home. We had pine trees, and when we cut all the timber off it, if you wanted to grow anything on it, you were just in hard luck 'cause there wasn't nothing going to grow there. That's the way it is in New Orleans. All we got is people. If you all want to give us some of our natural resources back, all we can claim is some of the taxes that the people pay.

I ask you to please vote in favor of Mr. Dennery's amendment. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, since you would not let me ask Mr. Dennery a question, I'll have to ask it this way: two-thirds of what we have done to date is legislation, and so a few more sentences won't matter. However, before I decide, I would like to ask Mr. Dennery a question. Since my parish, DeSoto, gets little out of the severance tax, can you please tell me what DeSoto will get from the sales tax, in order that I will know how to vote? Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendments rejected: 23-69. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 5, after the language added by Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Jack and adopted by the convention on the fifteenth, add the following:

"The tax to be assessed, levied, collected and paid upon the net income of every corporation shall be computed at a rate not to exceed four percentum of the amount of taxable income up to twenty-five thousand dollars. The legislature shall, by law enacted by the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house, provide for the rate of taxation on corporate taxable income over the amount of twenty-five thousand dollars, but such rate shall be not less than four nor more than twelve percent of taxable income."

Explanation

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I think most of us want to go home, or get out of here and go to some place. . . other place. But, here's a very good, good, good amendment. Now, you've been. . . in the course of the last six months, made many efforts to protect the small people in this state. I say to you that this is an opportunity for you to help the small business people in this state who are the backbone of this whole financial structure in the State of Louisiana. I want to, number one, say at the very outset, this amendment does no violence whatsoever to the Kean amendment. This amendment does no violence whatsoever to Mr. Jack's amendment. Mr. Smith, and you over there, that does no violence whatsoever to your amendment. It leaves intact those two amendments. What it does do is give an opportunity of constitutional protection to the small business people in this state. I will define this small businessman or business as a twenty-five thousand dollar annual taxable income. Now, think about that for awhile, a twenty-five thousand dollar annual taxable income. Why the limit twenty-five thousand? Those of you who know--and many of you do, you attorneys, here; you tax people, here, like Mr. Monday Lowe and Alario and others--you know that the federal government makes a great distinction at twenty-five thousand. Twenty-five thousand dollar taxable incomes are taxed at twenty-seven percent, whereas if a corporation is making more than twenty-five thousand dollars a year and up to a certain percentage, pays fifty percent. Then it goes on up, up to about ninety percent. But, we're talking, here, of small corporations. Lastly, I'd like to say that the legislature, above twenty-five thousand dollars, will have the opportunity to raise it, to raise the existence--the present four percent taxes--it will maintain the four percent taxes, but it will. . . it can go upwards as far as twelve percent. But, it does give a protection to a large corporation. It doesn't have the sky as a limit so far as taxes on the large corporations above twenty-five thousand. I say to you, this is a good amendment, and it is justifiable to many, many small corporations in this state. Many corporations are formed in small communities for the purpose of the local people getting together, putting their monies together, and in many cases involves families and local people who want to form a small corporation for the purpose of bringing jobs to that community. Then, they have to form a corporation to avoid the other liabilities involved. I would certainly urge that you delegates give an opportunity to that small businessman, that small business corporation in this state that he justly deserves. I urge your support of this very good amendment.

Questions

MR. KELLY

E. J., isn't this substantially the same amendment that Mr. Bollinger tried to insert yesterday, by adding the word "corporate" into the Kean amendment which had already been adopted, and. . .

MR. CHATELAIN

Absolutely not, sir.

MR. KELLY

Well, is it close?

MR. CHATELAIN

No, sir. It's not even similar to that amendment. I'll tell you why.

MR. KELLY

Well, I was hoping that you would be able to explain it, because it was my understanding that you more or less spoke against the Bollinger amendment, yesterday, and, in fact, voted against it. Is that correct?

MR. CHATELAIN

I voted against it, and I'll vote against it again, sir, because it has no. . . it has absolutely no limit on corporation. . . when you freeze in the constitution or the statute four percent, it's a vast difference when we're locking in here four percent and a maximum of twelve percent. I would vote against that type of a concept again, and you know the reason I'll vote against it.

MR. ROEMER

Yea, Mr. Friendly Chatelain. Don't you realize, or perhaps you do not, that corporations can get around your little limitation here, of twenty-five thousand dollars? All they have to do is pay themselves more money, as individuals, and they won't have any corporate income. Isn't that true?

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Roemer, you surprise me, sir. I don't think you. . . you read the thing, because if you would have, as a man with a Master's Degree in business, as you have, you would understand there's a vast difference between "taxable," the word "taxable" income, than income.

MR. ROEMER

Say that again.

MR. CHATELAIN

You heard me. You were listening to some of these other people giving you bad advice.

MR. ROEMER

What about the proliferation of corporations, Mr. Chatelain? Well, how would you handle that?

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Roemer, the word "taxable income," means taxable income. I don't care if you've got forty deadhead men on the payroll, we're speaking in terms of taxable income.

MR. ROEMER

Yes, but what about the idea that you can just form more corporations and still get under the twenty-five thousand dollar umbrella? Isn't that not true?

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, certainly you can form. . .but the federal law prohibits this, and you know it.

MR. WEISS

Dr. Chatelain, isn't it true that the present constitution contains a portion of what you're presenting as a floor amendment?

MR. CHATELAIN

No, sir. The present constitution, as I appreciate it, does not. The four percent limitation is in statutes. . .

MR. WEISS

No, it's in the constitution, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Yes, sir.

MR. WEISS

It is constitutional. In other words, as I understand, then, is it not correct that a portion of your amendment is currently in the constitution? That is: the four percent on taxable income. But, you're limiting it to corporations of twenty-five thousand, that is: small corporations or less, whereas over twenty-five thousand, you put an upper limit of twelve percent. Is that correct?

MR. CHATELAIN

That's exactly right.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chatelain, this question really involves some of your answer to Mr. Roemer's questions. I do not understand the distinction between net income, in the second line, and taxable income, in the fourth line and elsewhere. What is the distinction that you draw between net income and taxable income?

MR. CHATELAIN

I didn't draw the distinction, sir. He questioned. . .

MR. DENNERY

No, in your amendment you draw the distinction. I want to know why.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, I'll tell you why, sir. To be perfectly honest with you, after it was. . .after the staff got it together, we had noticed the word "net" had been brought in there for this reason: if you. . .

MR. HENRY

You've exceeded your time, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

I'd ask for two minutes, please, sir.

Mr. Chairman, I ask that you give me two minutes for additional explanation for this.

MR. HENRY

The gentleman requests a two minute extension of time. Is there objection?

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, I'll tell you, I'll make a deal with you. Let me have one minute and explain this.

MR. HENRY

Go ahead. Go ahead, Mr. . .

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Dennery, in the statutes, in Section 32, they use only. . . they refer only to "taxable," whereas the committee proposal uses the word "net." That's the difference, sir. That's the reason why that there was an omission. If you would be happy with this, we'd be glad to change this only "net" from "net" to "taxable." It's not a great deal of distinction, sir. I would urge your support of this very, very, very good amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I want to support this amendment. Now, let me give you a good reason why. Yesterday, when we adopted Mr. Kean's amendment, he incorporated as a portion of his amendment Section 32 of Title 47. That particular section imposes a limitation of four percent upon the net income of corporations. Under the Kean amendment, individual taxpayers would pay more income tax than corporations would pay. This particular amendment they have would restrict the limitation of four percent to only that income of twenty-five thousand dollars or less, and would let the legislature increase the income tax of corporations making income above twenty-five thousand. We need that in order to correct the inequities that was done by the Kean amendment, if we're going to do anything about it. I just want to point that out to you. We limited the corporate income, yesterday, by the Kean amendment to four percent of the net income. Here it is; you can look at it and compare it in your section.

Questions

MR. KEAN

Senator, if you read my amendment that I offered yesterday, I think you will find that the only part of 47 and 32 that was referred to had to do with the individual tax rates. Isn't that correct, sir?

MR. DE BLIEUX

But, you incorporated in it Title 47, Section 32 of the Louisiana Revised Statutes, which became a part of your amendment. That includes the corporate income taxes in Sections (A), (B) and (C) on corporate. . ."the tax to be assessed, levied, collected and paid on net income of every corporation shall be computed at the rate of four percent."

MR. LOWE

Senator De Blieux, do you know I believe this is a bad amendment because the federal government has already found out that there was a terrible loophole by allowing multiple corporations. I'm sure that this is what this would encourage in Louisiana. The federal government is now phasing out their surtax exemption for all multiple corporations. In 1974, if the brother-sister corporations will get only one surtax exemption and do away with this loophole. What we're doing here, now, is providing a loophole to form a hundred corporations and keep your surtax. . .you keep your tax down to four percent.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. CHATELAIN

Fellow delegates, there was a question raised by Mr. Dennery and one or two other friends of mine, the inconsistency involved in the second line, the word "net." I certainly have no objection to make a technical amendment there--I mean, a technical correction there. But, I don't think it's necessary, in the spirit of haste, now, to go ahead and do this. So, if it is adopted, and I hope it is, then we'll be glad to change this technical amendment. But, I would like to ask that you support this amendment, and I'd like for Mr. Bollinger, who has another amendment similar to this one, here, to close for me. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd just like to answer a few questions that were raised that were really ridiculous. One of those by a good friend, Mr. Roemer, who said that corporations would split up and divide so as not to have an income of over twenty-five thousand. I never heard of anything more ridiculous in all my life with regard to state taxes. When the federal government taxes you at twenty-seven percent on under twenty-five, and at fifty-two percent over twenty-five, I'm sure four percent is going to affect what they're going to do. On paying themselves larger salaries, I don't think state income tax is going to cause that --federal, possibly, but not state. I hope you can vote for this amendment because it is only fair in light of what we did with the Kean amendment, yesterday.

[Amendment rejected: 30-62.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Gravel sends up the following amendment:

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, at the end of line 5, immediately after the word "all" and before the word "natural" strike out the word "other" added by the floor amendment proposed by Delegates Perez and Kelly and adopted by the convention on today.

Explanation

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the present constitution provides for a maximum of two hundred thousand dollars, that can be paid to any parish as a consequence of the collection of the severance taxes on natural resources in that parish. The committee proposal maintained that particular allocation and limitation. In view of the fact that we had just... have just practically doubled the severance tax on oil and gas, and original proposal was circulated throughout this convention suggesting that there be an increase in the minimum participation by the parishes of the severance tax from a limit of two hundred thousand dollars to seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars. By a compromise, it was generally worked out, that the limitation would be increased from two hundred thousand dollars to five hundred thousand dollars insofar as it related to the severance tax on all natural resources. Now, I think the motivation behind that was the fact that the severance tax on oil and gas has been increased. The amendment that was proposed by Mr. Perez and Mr. Kelly seemed to relate to a limitation as to...sought to remove any question about the limitation of the tax on timber. But, what this amendment...but the Perez, Kelly amendment ended up doing was to authorize a sulfur producing parish to tack on to the five hundred thousand dollars an additional amount up to one hundred thousand dollars, so that such a parish would benefit more than any other parish even though there has been no change at all in the tax rate on sulfur--and well there can't be because at the present time, not under the proposed new constitution, but, at the present time the tax is frozen into the constitution. So, clearly what we've done here is to give a Christmas present, so to speak, to the sulfur producing parish that was not included in any way whatsoever in the severance tax increase that was put into effect at the last session of the legislature. Now, maybe, that's what you intended to do. It's not what I intended to do. I think that it's important that you clearly understand that the purpose of this amendment is to make it crystal clear that the maximum allocation that can be made to any parish, as a consequence of severance taxes on the natural resources within that parish--severed from the oil...severed from the water and land--would be five hundred thousand dollars. I submit to you that that's what most of us intended to do, and this amendment would carry out the intent of that amendment.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Gravel, you are saying there's only one sulfur producing parish in the state?

MR. GRAVEL

I don't know whether there is more than one. I think there is one major. Plaquemine is the major sulfur producing parish in the state. I don't know...

MRS. ZERVIGON

Should your amendment fail and the previous amendment stand unamended, what would be the effect on the state budget?

MR. GRAVEL

Well, it would be allocating to the sulfur producing parish an additional one hundred thousand dollars.

MRS. ZERVIGON

It would take one hundred thousand dollars out of the state budget, is what you are saying, approximately?

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Considering what we've done, to date, to the state budget, in the way of limitations and deductions and that sort of thing, do you think this is a particularly significant thing? Can you explain the significance of it?

MR. GRAVEL

The significance of it is to...is we've got a ceiling and a limitation on all of the parishes up to five hundred thousand dollars. I think that by this amendment that was adopted, that very few, if any, of the delegates to this convention realize that possibly one parish would get six hundred thousand dollars and the rest of them would get five hundred thousand.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, you are just only giving us a chance to sort of consider it with all of the facts before us..that you are not attacking anybody; is that correct?

MR. GRAVEL

I'm not attacking anybody; I'm not opposed to it because I think that the ceiling that was intended as the present constitution provides, that there be a maximum limitation in the constitution of the participation by the parish in the severance tax up to five hundred thousand dollars. That's the present constitution, except that the amount is two hundred thousand dollars and we increase it to five. The consequence of the amendment was to give at least one parish six.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Gravel, is my memory correct, but wasn't this very point about the effect of the other asked of Mr. Conroy while he was up at the mike and I thought quite well explained? You didn't hear that?

MR. GRAVEL

I didn't hear it; no, sir, I did not.

MR. ROEMER

Csmille, if you want to bring out all of the facts, let's bring them all out. Isn't it true that in addition to the five hundred thousand dollars that many parishes will also receive three quarters of the severance income from timber; is that not true?

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct, but none of those, incidentally, at the present time, even approach two hundred thousand dollars.

MR. ROEMER

I realize that, but sulfur would only be a hundred thousand under that proposal; isn't that right? So, why do you get the five hundred thousand dollar figure? I mean, if we give it to timber, and you're making a comparison, if we give it to sulfur, it's only a hundred thousand; is that not true?

MR. GRAVEL

That's correct.

But, the difference is, I think that there...clearly this or other needs to be spelled out so that you will understand exactly the effect that it has.

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Gravel, are you aware that a lot of the industries that came to this state, came to this state just because of the sulfur that we have here, and that we also have a lot of sulfur over my way?

MR. GRAVEL

Let me just say this, Mr. Planchard, to all of you: I just want it clearly understood that we are not...we do not have the five hundred thousand dollar limitation that many of us thought we had as a consequence of the first amendment that was passed. The purpose of this amendment is to clearly separate, separate the Perez-Kelly amendment insofar as it dealt in part with timber, and in part with the other natural resources.

MR. BURSON

Mr. Gravel, isn't it true that under the present constitution that in addition to the two hundred thousand maximum, that the sulfur producing parishes can also have in fact been receiving that hundred thousand dollars you are talking about now?

101st Days Proceedings—December 16, 1973

MR. GRAVEL

It's my understanding--rhar's the point, Mr. Burson--it's my understanding that the two hundred dollar limitation included the one hundred thousand dollars allowed for sulfur. That's exactly the point I'm making.

MR. BURSON

I would have to say that my reading of that provision doesn't come out that way.

MR. GRAVEL

Well, that's clearly my understanding of it. I think, if you are willing to do it, I 'd like to look at the constitution with you...

Further Discussion

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is what might be called the dirty pool amendment because all of us know and realize that when the amendment was placed on just a little while ago, which would have provided some additional funds from the timber tax..timber severance tax. It also provided for a little additional for those parishes which produced sulfur. I would say to you that this would be most unfair and unconscionable, if we passed a situation where we had severance tax both provided for, with respect to timber and with respect to sulfur, and then all of a sudden we are going to say: "Well, we passed it as a package, but we are going to take one of them away." So, therefore, I strongly urge you to defeat this amendment.

Questions

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Perez, isn't it true that they are not limiting anything on timber, isn't that correct? This amendment would not remove the timber tax.

MR. PEREZ

No, what it would do would be to say we've passed an amendment which covered timber and sulfur, but now, we've passed them both together and then we are going to take the sulfur part away.

MR. A. LANDRY

In other words, take a parish like Webster Parish who will collect twenty-seven thousand, five hundred twenty-one dollars worth of timber and five hundred thousand dollars from oil, will be collecting five hundred twenty-seven thousand, five hundred and twenty-one dollars. Parishes like Plaquemines who is going to be contributing ninety-one million dollars to the state will be collecting five hundred thousand dollars; is that correct?

MR. PEREZ

That's correct, but I think we worked out an amicable and a reasonable situation and I sure hope that this delegation will stay with its decision.

MR. GRAVEL

Mr. Perez you suggest that this amendment is dirty pool; as a matter of fact doesn't the amendment that I have clearly put before this convention an alternative that the convention did not have when it voted on the Kelly amendment?

MR. PEREZ

No, sir. It was clearly set forth to the convention exactly what that amendment meant at the time.

MR. GRAVEL

But, it was...the amendment, it was one amendment that included both concepts: timber and other resources besides oil and gas?

MR. PEREZ

I think this was explained to you if you look at the way the provision reads that it was oversight that that word was not included in there by the committee. Most of the members of the committee understood, when it was reported out from the committee, that that one hundred thousand was an addition.

MR. GRAVEL

But, my question directed to you, Mr. Perez, is that this amendment that I propose, whether it passes or fails, clearly poses the issue for the convention. They can decide whether they want to include sulfur in it or not. Isn't that correct?

MR. PEREZ

I think it was clearly posed to the convention when they voted on it the first time.

MR. GRAVEL

But, they were both in the amendment; were they not?--with timber.

MR. PEREZ

I don't care to argue the point with you, sir; I just gave my opinion.

MR. KELLY

Chalin, concerning the intent of the committee, it was our understanding of the intent of the committee--and I think you've already explained it--but, ii that had not been the intent of the committee, there would have been no reason to have placed any limitation on sulfur at all within the committee proposal, as I understand it.

MR. PEREZ

That's correct; when the committee said one hundred thousand dollars on sulfur, it meant that. I think, as it was explained too by representatives of the committee, they intended for that to be extra just as they did with regard to timber.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Perez, following Mr. Gravel's logic don't you think that if we were to follow that logic, that the convention should have a clear shot at timber, also?

MR. PEREZ

Well, no. I don't think we want to get into that, but I'm sure that the delegates to the convention knew when they voted that...what they were voting on.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 20-69. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

MR. ROEMER

I'll just make a few brief comments. I think that you see our problem in committee with Section 4. It has to do with the monies and obligations of this state to the parishes and the people of the state. I don't agree with all that we have done in Section 4, but I think you've done a good job of considering it. I hope, even with its limitations, that you can see fit to vote for it.

Thank you.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

MR. POYNTER

Regular Order No. 1. Unfinished Business.
Committee Proposal No. 15, introduced by Delegate Rayburn, Chairman, on behalf of the Committee on Revenue, Finance, and Taxation, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal relative to the tax structure of the state and the public finance. The convention has adopted and amended the first eight sections of this proposal, save for Section 6, which has been passed over.

[Motion to consider Section 6 previously passed over adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 6. Forestry
Section 6. Forestry shall be practiced in this state, and the legislature shall enact laws therefore."

Explanation

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as you remember there was a few remarks made about this section the other day. Of course, the question in your mind was, "Well, why in the world have some statement like this?" It's not needed in the constitution. But, I can tell you, it was in here for a purpose, and it does have a meaning. The first reason that we have some expression in Section 6 that forestry shall be practiced is that in the present constitution we have this very language except in the article it goes farther. It allows the parishes to levy a two-cent acreage tax. In allowing that two-cent acreage tax they also had to include an exemption or to have the acreage tax included in the homestead exemption. This was caused by the fact that any old constitution, in the exemption section, you will remember that the wording is in the ad valorem property section, that these exemptions and no others will be granted. So, consequently, you had to have the homestead exemption in the article referring to the acreage tax. Another reason that we included this section as it is, is we considered all of the forestry questions, and individually we would refer it to the statutes. But, this is such an important industry, we felt that we should give some expression as to our feelings in Revenue, Taxation and Finance. Another reason, and not least, is the fact that we didn't know what this convention's feeling would be concerning the severance tax. It was almost unanimous in the committee that this was absolutely the only fair way to tax the timber industry, and the oil and gas industry. So, consequently, it was best to leave open this section until after we had completed Section 4 to properly and fairly treat the forestry industry. These are but a few words, but they definitely had the meaning and the reason that they were there. Another reason, and nonetheless, I did make a promise to one of my fellow delegates here if you will remember when we were talking about the ad valorem property tax. He was concerned with their acreage taxes, and I told him that the proper place to bring up his acreage tax was under the Proposal No. 15. He was gracious enough at that time to withdraw his amendment and to wait until this time. Rather than take it out by the committee action, I'd prefer for this convention to hear the amendments to this section, and then if you feel in your wisdom that we should take it out altogether, then so be it. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The committee did remove a number of pages from the old constitution by simply putting this statement in here, did they not?

MR. PLANCHARD

Absolutely.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The second part of the sentence, "and the legislature shall enact laws therefore," is actually a mandate to the legislature that reforestation, good forestry, good forestry shall be practiced in this state. Is that right?

MR. PLANCHARD

That's correct.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Actually, we have evidence, most of the older people can remember and some young ones can hear some tales where it was not always done in this state. Is that right?

MR. PLANCHARD

Absolutely.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Thank you.

MR. PLANCHARD

Of course, another reason is I'm informed that the Natural Resources Committee has come out with their proposal, and in their proposal, they do treat forestry as an industry, and they do have the many provisions that we had in the old constitution, in the new constitution. Consequently, it was not necessary for us to include it all in this particular section.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Bollinger had amendments we had passed out several days ago.

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, delete lines 14 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Lanier sends up the following amendment.

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, line 14, after the word "Forestry" add a semicolon ";" and add the following: "Acreage Taxes; Homestead Exemptions" and between lines 16 and 17 add the following paragraph:

"Acreage taxes and contributions for the benefit of the land may be levied and collected within political subdivisions as heretofore or hereafter authorized by law. These taxes and contributions shall be listed on the assessment rolls as provided by law. However, property occupied as a homestead, as defined in Article XI, Section 1, shall be subject to the homestead exemption from acreage taxes and contributions levied for forestry purposes."

Explanation

MR. LANIER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment is basically the same amendment that I brought up on this same subject under the previous committee proposal from Revenue, Finance, and Taxation. At that time, part of the discussion was where should this topic properly be dealt with, whether it should be dealt with under the ad valorem taxes section or under this section? If you will recall, initially, this proposal passed by a vote of 72 to 20 as an amendment, and then as the section failed by a vote of 64 to 32, and was brought up for reconsideration at which time I was asked by Mr. Plaachard to withdraw it since it was his opinion and apparently the opinion of several members of the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Committee that this subject matter was more properly treated under this committee proposal rather than the other committee proposal. Now, if you will look at the present constitution, Article VI, Section 2 in your book, you will see that this language dealing with forestry and the forestry acreage tax is contained at that point in your constitution. The purpose of this amendment, first of all, the first sentence is to consolidate the many provisions in the present constitution authorizing acreage taxes. Specifically, I would direct your attention to Article XV, dealing with drainage districts; Article XIV, Section 14, Subsections (O), (P), (Q), (F), (G); and there are also several statutes on the books dealing with this type of thing. In my research on this, under the 1971 report concerning taxes in Louisiana, there were twelve parishes that had levee district type acreage taxes or contributions for the benefit of land, and there were thirty-five parishes that had the forestry acreage tax. Now, the second sentence of my amendment is designed to constitutionally require that these taxes be listed on the assessment rolls. We have said, dealing with ad valorem taxes, constitutionally that they shall be listed on the assessment rolls. We're doing the same thing here for acreage taxes. Now, you might say, "Well, why do you have one for ad valorem taxes and one for acreage taxes?" The reason for that is that an acreage tax is not an ad valorem tax. It is a tax on property, but it's what's called a specific property tax as distinguished from an ad valorem tax. Ad valorem means by value. Specific means by quantity. In other words, so much per acre, instead of so much per the value of the acre. The third sentence constitutionalizes the present homestead exemption dealing with the forestry acreage tax. This is under the present Article VI, Section 2. We have constitutionalized the homestead exemption for the ad valorem tax, and this constitutionalizes the homestead exemption for the forestry acreage tax as we have at the present time. One thing that is different between my amendment and the committee proposal in the present law is that the tax itself of two cents per acre is not included. This would be transposed into the statutes where it could be subject to legislative action in accordance with law. I feel that this is a necessary amendment to take care of this problem of the acreage taxes and contributions for the benefit of land. I might add one further point here. In some of the statutes, these types of taxes are also called local assessments. I did not use the word "local assessments" here even though it is intended to include this type of a situation. I did so because of a point raised by Mr. Denney when we discussed this previously that we do not want to get this type of local assessment confused with the special assessment like that for sewerage purposes, etc. But, the term "acreage taxes and contributions for the benefit of land" is intended to include those types of taxes that are referred to in some statutes as local assessments, but is not intended to include the types of special assessments, such as sewerage assessments, etc. I would ask for the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Chairman, and I would be happy to yield for any questions.

Questions

MR. BURNS

Mr. Lanier, I understand in conversation with you that your interest is centered primarily in the drainage tax proposition, and it would seem to me that with that thought in mind, that you are sacrificing the timber acreage tax in favor of a larger, perhaps necessarily larger, drainage district tax because, by the very nature of things, the two-cent timber acreage tax that's been in existence for so many years has been sufficient to take care of the much lesser amount necessary to protect forest land than it would be the tax necessary to take care of drainage purposes, which would necessitate construction in every other facet in connection with drainage that the forestry tax doesn't require. Does not this wording "acreage taxes and contribution for the benefit of the land may be levied and collected within political subdivisions as heretofore, or hereafter authorized by law"; does not that wording open up a possibility or threat of the different political subdivisions to be able to increase the present timber tax, say to five cents an acre, or ten cents an acre instead of two cents?

MR. LANIER

I believe that could only be done by a legislative act, Mr. Burns.

MR. BURNS

I know it, but I ask another question: but, you're taking the now constitutional protection of the two cents an acre out of the constitution, according to you, and referring it to the legislature?

MR. LANIER

This is what the committee did also. Now, if those of you from timber parishes wish to put in the two-cent limitation, I have no objection to that one way or another because quite frankly, it doesn't affect me in my parish. We have no timber acreage tax in my parish. My particular interest, of course, is with reference to the drainage district acreage taxes. The particular act that affects my parish is Act No. 64 of 1971, dealing with Lafourche Drainage District No. 12, which puts in a two dollar and fifty cents per acre maintenance tax, but this is done by law, and as provided in the act, it has to be also approved by a vote of the people in that district--and I might add, they overwhelmingly voted for this tax.

MR. BURNS

I understand all that, but I was just wondering if there wasn't some way to word this to where you wouldn't lump the present timber acreage tax in with the drainage tax, which as I say, I understand requires a lot more money.

MR. LANIER

I think what you would want to do, if you feel that there should be a limitation on the forestry acreage tax, then you would make an amendment to this amendment putting in whatever limitation you felt was appropriate if you deemed such a limitation necessary. As I say, as far as my parish is concerned, we have no timber acreage tax, but there are about thirty or thirty-five parishes that do have the timber acreage tax, and whatever the delegates from those parishes feel is in the best interest of those parishes, is certainly fine with me.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Lanier, I'm not taking issue with your amendment because that is for the benefit of your land down there. But, isn't this a long ways out of place, putting it under the heading of forestry? It has no connection with forestry whatsoever, absolutely none.

MR. LANIER

Well, I think if you will look at the present Article VI, Section 2, of the present constitution, you will see that the forestry acreage tax and the homestead exemption for forestry purposes is coupled with this language that forestry shall be practiced in the state, and the legislature is authorized to make provision therefore. I expanded this language to include all of these types of taxes. Now, the question of placement came up before, and as I recall, the committee felt that it shouldn't have been placed in the previous committee proposal, and suggested that it be placed here. I don't care where it's placed, but I've got to place it somewhere, Mr. Hernandez, and if we go by the layout with the present constitution, this fits at that point in the present constitution. So, I put it here.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Lanier, won't you agree that this two-cent acreage tax on forest land is for the sole purpose of fire protection? For the sole purpose of fire protection.

MR. LANIER

I think it's also used for reforestation, too, isn't it?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No, sir. No, sir, purely for fire protection. It's just like paying on an insurance premium. It's solely for fire protection and there's a two-cent limitation on it, and it's for that purpose and that purpose only. So, that's the reason I feel like...I'm not taking issue with your amendment at all except that it is not in place, and it's about as far removed as I can imagine because it has nothing to do with fire protection. This two-cent acreage tax is solely for fire protection.

MR. LANIER

Well, with reference to the acreage tax for forestry purposes

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

I think that's definitely connected with forestry. With reference to the general authority for the levying of this type of tax, perhaps, the first two sentences could be put in a separate section, than the homestead exemption for forestry. Another possibility would be to make this a separate section and leave the present Section 6 like it is. These are all possibilities. This could, of course, be done by style and drafting. All I'm saying is the way the present constitution is set up and the indication that I got when I presented this in the previous committee proposal, this was, to me, I felt this was the most appropriate place to put it. Now, how you want to style it around, as long as the substance is there, really...I have no great concern over that.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Don't you think that is...that's entirely up to you to where to put it, but it should be nearer in place than in this section, Mr. Lanier.

MR. ABRAHAM

Walter, since this says that it simply authorizes the legislature by law to provide for these different things, what do we really accomplish by putting this type of language in the constitution. Can it simply be handled statutorially just as easily?

MR. LANIER

Well, I think, Mack, we had the same argument here as we've been having all the way through the convention. I think if you wanted to really get down to it, we could probably stick civil service in the statutes. We could stick all of the stuff dealing with severance taxes in the statutes. My feeling is, since we have constitutionally required that the ad valorem taxes be listed on the assessment rolls, that it is entirely logically consistent to constitutionally require that the acreage and contribution taxes on property also be listed on the assessment rolls, and in fact, they are today. We have constitutionally provided for the homestead exemption for the ad valorem property taxes, and to me, it is entirely, logically consistent therefore, to provide the same thing with reference to the homestead exemption for the forestry acreage tax. With reference for the authority to levy acreage taxes, certainly, this authority would exist were this first sentence not in here. But, it's just a question of how you do it. I think this first sentence consolidates many, many provisions of the present constitution, giving authority for this into one sentence, and I feel that it is appropriate in this place. But, from a pure legal point of view, yes, you're correct. All of this could be in the statutes, just as many other things that we have constitutionalized can be in the statutes.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, the real restrictions that you're after then are that they will listed on the assessment rolls or that the homestead exemption will apply. That's what you're really trying to accomplish; is it not?

MR. LANIER

Yes.

MR. HAYES

This is one of the shorter sections--this section that you're amending here--isn't it, Mr. Lanier? This section that you're amending in here is one of the short sections. It just says that the legislature shall provide for forestry. Don't you think that's one of the better sections that we have come up with so far, leaving the legislature to do this?

MR. LANIER

Well, it depends on your point of view, Mr. Hayes. I've found--and I'm sure you have--all the way through this thing, if you're for something, it's constitutional; and if you're against it, it's statutory. So, this is a question of judgment that I think each of us has to exercise.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman, and I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. THOMPSON

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. The legislature already has the authority to levy or allow such taxes to be levied. The local governing body, the police jury, already has the authority to levy such taxes. They just need to get the people to vote for it. I don't believe in giving the authority to a local subdivision, or a local political body, to go out here and levy taxes on all the land within the district without a vote of the people on it. I think they should be accountable as to how this money will be spent, what it's needed for, and everything else. You look at the constitution, and you've said over and over again we need a short constitution. So, why clutter it up with something that's not needed in here when the legislature already has the authority? What we'll be doing is merely opening the door for more taxes--this is just opening the door and from here on out these taxes will be allowed, and you can increase them. This is just a way of coming in the back door and taxing the poor people and the land for things that's not needed. I think they already have this authority, so I urge defeat of the amendment.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Thompson, isn't it true that almost every acreage tax that's presently levied is a direct grant of authority by the legislature, or the constitution, and does not involve a vote of the people?

MR. THOMPSON

The taxes that you're talking about, but this says "allow local political subdivision." Well, they can do this if the legislature grants it, but you don't have a blanket authority to allow all the land to be taxed within your parish, say, for forestry or for drainage or for recreation, or anything else. We're just opening the door to allow this. I don't know why they haven't given you permission to do what you want under the present constitution.

MR. LANIER

Well, doesn't Article XV give direct authority, for example, to drainage districts to levy this type of tax?

MR. THOMPSON

Yes. With a vote of the people.

MR. LANIER

Do you say that Article XV requires a vote of the people?

MR. THOMPSON

Not Article XV, no.

MR. LANIER

Now, is the Red River and Bayou Pierre Levee and Drainage District in your district--Rapides Parish?

MR. THOMPSON

Yes.

MR. LANIER

Doesn't Revised Statute 38:2028 provide for a five cent per acre acreage tax and a sixty dollar per mile on the railroad tax, which does not require a vote of the people?

MR. THOMPSON

Seven parishes voted on that Red River Waterway tax that you're having reference to, and it was voted on by all seven parishes. Right now, there's a lawsuit saying that it's unconstitutional--which I don't think it is because the people voted it on themselves.

MR. LANIER

Aren't you referring to the five mill ad valorem tax, and not the acreage tax, when you're talking about the election?

MR. THOMPSON

No, I'm talking about this tax for the Red River Waterway.

MR. LANIER

Isn't it five mills?

MR. THOMPSON

Right.

MR. LANIER

But, I'm talking about the five cents an acre tax. Isn't that a direct tax that the board of commissioners has the right to impose?

MR. THOMPSON

And I don't agree with it. They've got a half a million dollars sitting in the bank drawing interest. They paid--up until the legislature took the bull by the horns and limited them to eighteen days a year—they paid the chairman of the levee board over three hundred dollars and the others five hundred dollars a month. When you get a surplus of money—taxing people for a surplus of money—this is how your money is being spent. I'm opposed to that. That's the reason I'm opposed to this.

MR. LANIER

Well, now, let me ask you: This amendment requires that the tax be authorized by the legislature, doesn't it?

MR. THOMPSON

Yes, but I don't see any reason for giving the authority to the legislature. They already have it if they need it.

Any other questions?

If not, I urge defeat of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 25-42. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Bollinger sends up amendments.

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, delete lines 14 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety.

That amendment was passed out the first time we were on 6. A few of you may not have copies, but the effect of it is just to delete the entire section, Mrs. Warren; that's all it does.

Explanation

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I was told by Mr. Roemer that the committee has no objection to deleting this section. It was placed in the committee proposal to leave open the forestry section for Mr. Lanier's amendment—which they had agreed on—and possibly if any changes were made in Section 4. The Committee Proposal No. 34 on natural resources and environment has a whole section—Section 13—dealing with forestry. I can see no reason why the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Article should deal with forestry, so I think we should delete this section and wait until the committee proposal on natural resources comes up to consider it.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 62-5. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Next section would be Section 9.

"Section 9. State Debt; Maximum Debt Service Expense for All Purposes

Section 9. The legislature shall enact no law authorizing the incurrence of state debt, whether contracted directly by the state or indirectly through a state board, agency, or commission, if incurrence of the indebtedness would result in total annual debt service requirements on all state obligations, whether outstanding or authorized and unissued, exceeding an amount equal to fifteen percent of the average total revenues from state sources available for debt service for the preceding three years."

Explanation

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Section 9 is, as you can see, a debt limitation on bonded indebtedness for the State of Louisiana. You'll notice that we carried it to the...indebtedness...fifteen percent of the average total revenues is the limitation on the debt service. Of course, for those who do not know what debt service is, that is your total principal and interest that you must pay each year. This is only a limitation, and it is well within the bounds of our present situation. I think our present situation is we're at about nine percent, so we do have plenty of leeway, but the committee felt that it was necessary to at least put some debt limitation so the bonded indebtedness would not get out of hand. If there's any question, Mr. Chairman, I'll be glad to try to answer.

Questions

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Planchard, I think there are many delegates who are becoming more and more concerned with regard to the meaning of a "state board, agency, or commission," because if you will look at the Revised Statutes, you will see that there are pages and pages and pages of "state boards, agencies, and commissions," which extend all the way from those agencies which take care of the retirement systems-- and your local agencies, even the cities, etc. The question that I'm very much concerned about is, when you begin to figure your state debt, are we talking about the debt of your cities and of your parishes, etc.? because there are decisions which say, for instance, that a municipality is an agency of the state. Again, I'm getting more and more concerned about what is meant by "state board, agency, or commission." It even extends, for instance--a state agency is a pilot association which pilots ships up and down the river; they're agencies of the state. Now, would we have to take into account their indebtedness? I'm very much concerned about what "state board, agency, or commission" means and would like to get some sort of a definition of it so we'll know what we're talking about.

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Perez, when we are referring to local, we refer to the local subdivisions or political subdivisions, and this is strictly the state. Now, in answer to your question on the pilot agency: If it is a state agency and if they have a right to issue the bonds, it would be included.

MR. PEREZ

Let me again call your attention to the fact that this talks about state debt, and not strictly the issuance of bonds. I'm just trying to get an interpretation because of the fact that the terms "state board, agency, or commission" is so all-encompassing that I'm not sure that the delegates understand and know or that the courts would ever understand and know what a "state board, agency, or commission" is. I'd just like an explanation of what it is. What are "state boards, agencies, and commissions"?

MR. ABRAHAM

A. J., I'm having a little difficulty understanding the language here. As I read it, it states that the total debt service requirements will not exceed fifteen percent of the average revenues from state source available for debt service for the preceding three years." Now, are you trying to say that your debt service requirement will not be fifteen percent of the total state revenues?

MR. PLANCHARD

That's correct.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, as I read this, and maybe I'm...I must be interpreting it wrong because it reads, to me, that it's fifteen percent of the revenues available for debt service.

MR. PLANCHARD

It seems to me, I think, that the idea is--and the way it will be--is that all the revenues now will be open for the payment of bonds, because it's going into the general fund, so you have to include all the revenue.

MR. ABRAHAM

The last sentence, then, as you interpret it, means that the total state revenues could be completely available for debt service?

MR. PLANCHARD

They would be.

MR. ABRAHAM

And, what you're saying, that this would be fifteen percent of the total state revenue? The limit would be?

MR. PLANCHARD

That's correct. That's right.

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Planchard, is it not true--in answer to Mr. Perez's question, and I think we all share his same concern--that when we refer to the "state boards, agencies, or commissions," we do not mean the municipalities, for example, or the parishes? When we want to include that, we talk about any "political subdivision" of the state. We don't mention that in this section. It's clearly a difference than when we are trying to include it. Number two, in answer to Mr. Abraham's question, isn't it true that if he were to read the other sections of this provision, he'll find that all state revenues would go into the first here, the bond security and redemption fund, and are available for debt service on bonds?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. PLANCHARD

Correct. Thank you very much.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Planchard, getting to the question that both Mr. Perez and Mr. Roemer talked about, I would not have too much concern about it either except for the fact that when we were dealing with Section 7, which had the language "state board, agency, or commission"--perhaps out of an abundance of precaution, but in any event, we did it--we included a section which said that "nothing contained in this section shall apply to any levee district or to any political subdivision unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to the payment of the bonds." Now, would you--in order to clarify that point again, in this Section 9, that we're not talking about that type of indebtedness unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to it--would you have any objection to a similar amendment in this particular section?

MR. PLANCHARD

We would be happy to go with excepting the other political subdivisions.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as you know, I generally get up and oppose placing percentages and restrictions such as this in the constitution unless they are absolutely necessary. Here I am again to oppose this particular provision, because I don't see that it'll serve any useful purpose. The fact is, I believe that it might work to the contrary and might do two or three things. Number one: the first time you establish a percentage for someone or a ceiling for someone, the first thing we try to decide is, "Well, look how low we are, and really, where we should be is way up here at this other figure." The first reaction is to say, "Well, we have a lot of leeway here now, and we haven't issued all the bonds that we should issue, and we haven't incurred as much debt as we should incur." You know that there's always projects laying around, waiting for someone to pick them up and finance them, in all of the sixty-four parishes that we have. We'd have no problem selling projects. It's just a matter of whether we have that latitude to go ahead and finance them. Once we place in this constitution a twelve percent figure, I can appreciate the legislature saying, "Well, the Constitutional Convention, in their wisdom, established a ceiling for us of twelve percent, and we're not nearly there now, so why not issue some more bonds?" Now, this isn't a sophisticated figure that's going into this constitution of twelve percent. I don't know of a great deal of study and research that has gone into it. I don't believe any member of the committee can come up here and say that we have come up with that magic figure that we can tell the legislature that if you do this, and you're under it, you're not in trouble. I submit to you that there's more an automatic control on this sort of thing. The bonding people that buy bonds aren't going to buy bonds when they feel like the state has overextended itself. They're going to do that in light of the current economic conditions and in light of the current market and take into consideration all of those things that are happening in the year 2000, or the year 2025, and not what's happening in 1973. We're not dealing with any "mickey mouse" people when you're dealing with bonding companies; they're sophisticated. You'll know from the interest rate whether you've stepped out of line or not and have too much outstanding indebtedness. I submit to you that their approach will be a lot more sophisticated than the approach that we've used in coming up with an arbitrary figure of twelve percent that I doubt if anyone can place any logic on. Now, that's my concern, mostly--of using this figure as a barometer--and you know it could happen. We don't have such a provision in the constitution at this time. I don't know of any sound reasons to place it in; I think it works to the contrary; it works to a disadvantage in dealing with our orderly development of our state finances. I ask you to vote against the section; by so doing, you'll delete it. We don't need an amendment to delete it. Let's just vote it out. I ask you to defeat it.

Questions

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Lowe, would you...and I know you probably have these figures, and maybe it'd be wise to give them to the committee. To my knowledge there's quite a number of bonds that are not sold that are ready to be sold or issued that are not issued yet---I think it ranges from maybe four hundred million to maybe six or seven if you include the toll road, which is no longer a toll road, and various other things we have in this state--and has not been issued. If the state went ahead and sold all the bonds that were authorized by the legislature, could you tell us what that figure would now be?

MR. LOWE

I don't have that, Senator Nunez, but I can tell you that we had testimony before our committee that did tell us that there was just a large number of bonds that had been authorized that had not yet been sold. But, I can't give you the figure; I don't have it with me, Senator. Do you have it?

MR. NUNEZ

Just an off-the-cuff estimate, and I don't have the figure myself, but it's been tossed around quite a bit. I think it runs something like six hundred and fifty million dollars worth of outstanding bonds that have been authorized--not outstanding, but have been authorized by the legislature, and this has come about since we changed...there used to be a provision in the statutes whereby, when you issued a bond or you authorized a bond, you had to (and I'm asking a question) provide a revenue for that bond. We changed that in 1970 because, to get lower bond interest rate, that the general fund...the state bond redemption had first call on the general fund, which means every dollar that this state had would be eligible to relieve bond debt. Now, then we passed about three or four hundred million dollars, but it's never been issued. I think we should have that figure, because in my recollection it might come close to going near this ceiling we're now trying to place on the debt.

MR. LOWE

Well, I don't have the figure, Senator Nunez, but I still submit to you that we don't have a sophisticated percentage to put in this constitution. It's no use coming up here and saying that we have done adequate research to tell us what that percentage is. It may be that what's outstanding now, if we issued it, may go over twelve percent. I don't have any idea, Senator.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to put in perspective, just for your information, what we're talking about in dollars and cents here vis-a-vis the limit in Section 9. If you read Section 9 carefully, you see we use total revenues from state service for the preceding three years. If we take the last three years, for example--that's average one billion, four hundred million dollars for the last three years--if we take fifteen percent of that, we'd have two hundred and ten million dollars available for debt service. Right now, our debt service expense is one hundred and thirty-five million dollars. Under the provisions of Section 9, the state would still have seventy-five million dollars available for debt service. At the present rate of eighty million dollars of debt service for each one billion dollars in bonds, we would still have the state able to float an additional nine hundred and thirty-seven million dollars in bonds. So, what we've done has not crippled the state at all. What we're trying to do is put a reasonable limit on how much debt service the state takes out of that bond redemption or security and redemption fund. The point that I'm trying to make is just information. You have to make up your mind or not whether it's good government to put some sort of restriction on the bonded capacity of the state. Most members of our committee felt that it was good government, and is practiced in most other states, to have some sort of debt ceiling on state government. I just wanted to put it in perspective for you.

Questions

MR. LOWE

Mr. Roemer, isn't it true that whenever you place restrictions upon people, the first thing that you find that happens is they look for ways to circumvent those restrictions or ways to get around them? Isn't that normally the case, you would say?

MR. ROEMER

Right. However, just because things are thwarted doesn't mean that the intention is not good and that we ought not at least make it difficult for them to thwart it.

MR. LOWE

I agree with that, but don't you think that one bad thing about this particular restriction, the first thing that could be done to circumvent it--you've made the statement that to hold the debt ceiling down--now, don't you think it would be bad to start issuing forty year bonds instead of twenty year bonds?

MR. ROEMER
Yes.

MR. LOWE

Because if you issued forty year bonds, your debt service would still be not much more than what it took to service a twenty year bond. So, what I see with this particular restriction is we're telling the legislature, "Look, go in debt, but make it stretch over as long a period as you can because, if you do that, you're going to be able to service it with the restriction that we're placing on you. Don't go into debt and pay it off right away because, if you do that, you're going to soon have so much debt until you'll be up to that percentage limitation that we placed." So, we're forcing the legislature, by all of these restrictions, to circumvent what we're putting in here, and the result of circumventing it isn't always good; it's bad.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I agree with you completely. As you know, in committee you and I had the same position that we didn't really need Section 9. I would share the feeling that Section 9 is more window dressing than it is effective government, but I hope you also agree with me that Section 9 as presently written, at least sets an example of what we hope will happen and doesn't hurt the state at all.

MR. LOWE

Well, Mr. Roemer, don't you agree that it would hurt the state if we had all forty year or fifty year bonds instead of twenty year bonds?

MR. ROEMER

Well, you made the point in committee--and I think it's true--that the life of a bond depends on the circumstances of the time. You know, you used to have a twenty year mortgage on your home; now it's average thirty years. People do what they have to do, Mr. Lowe.

MR. LOWE

But, the condition of the times would be that in this time we'd be placing that limitation. So, one of the things is about the times we'd be in is that we're forcing a longer life for the bonds, which isn't necessarily good.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I would like to think that what we're forcing the legislature to do is to look closely at any bonds they authorized. That would be a pleasant change.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Distribution copies are not here.

Mr. Kean has sent up amendments, however.

Amendment No. 1. On page 5, line 15, after the period "." add the following sentence: "Nothing contained herein shall be construed to include the indebtedness of any levee district or political subdivision in the calculation of state debt, unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to the payment of the bonds of such levee district or political subdivision."

Explanation

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, when we were considering, I think it was Section 7 which had to do with the issuance of bonds, there was an amendment offered and approved which made it clear that that section did not apply to bonds of levee districts and political subdivisions. This would follow that particular amendment because with the language "state board agency or commission" you could have a question without this language, as I see it, that those references might include levee districts or political subdivisions. If you add that in the calculation of state debt, it seems to me that the formula that the committee has suggested might well be inadequate. This would simply make it clear that nothing in this Section 9 would be construed to include the indebtedness of any levee district or political subdivision in the calculation of the state debt unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to those obligations and under...with that language added, I think Sections 7 and 9 read the same and have the same effect. I think this would be helpful insofar as the formula that's suggested by Section 9 because it would avoid the question of whether or not this indebtedness should be included in the calculation of state debts for the purpose of Section 9. For that reason, I suggest the adoption of the amendment purely for clarification purposes.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Gordon, I agree with you in trying to define what we intended in committee. I do quibble though with putting the levee district in that exclusion, why are you trying to...for example, you know that under a recent state statute the moneys and funds and fees collected by the levee districts are sent to the state treasury now; they are part of the state agency. I wonder why you have to exclude those here?

MR. KEAN

Well, the only reason I did, Buddy, is because in the amendment we adopted to Section 7, we did exclude levee districts in that particular amendment. I was simply making this correspond to the other section.

MR. ROEMER

The reason we did in Section 7 exclude levee districts were the unique characteristics as evidenced by Section 7. They don't have those same characteristics though when you are talking about the total bonded indebtedness of the state. I wish you could withdraw the specific mention of levee district from Section 9 so we could support you; we would like to support your definition here of local political subdivisions. But, I don't think we can go along with you on levee districts because we mentioned those in committee explicitly in regard to Section 9 and Section 11.

MR. KEAN

You mean you would want to have the indebtedness of levee districts includable in the calculation of state debts for purposes of Section 9?

MR. ROEMER

Yes, sir, and specifically did you know the reason why in the investigation of levee districts the very uneven quality of the management of those districts? We felt, if in doubt, we ought to include them in fiscal limitations and that's why we wanted them in Section 9.

MR. KEAN

Well, I don't see that this has any reference to fiscal limitations. I'm simply trying to provide here that you don't include that indebtedness in the calculation of state debts. Whatever other restrictions you want to put on the levee districts so far as fiscal limitation is concerned, I would share your view in that regard.

MR. ROEMER

Yes, sir. Well, I just wanted you to know that in your defense of levee districts in regard to Section 9, you might jeopardize your other delimitation which I think is much more important and, that is, local political subdivisions. I'm just asking if you are not to consider to withdraw the specific mention of levee districts from your amendment to garner support for your amendment and support your intention.

[Quorum Call: 69 delegates present and a quorum.]

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Kean, I just want to be sure what...you know in 1968 we passed an act creating the State Board Commission which has authority over all bonds issued in the state. Now, what effect will this...your amendment have with reference to that particular authority?

MR. KEAN

It would have no effect upon that particular commission and the authority it has to approve bonds. This simply is designed to make it clear that in the...applying the formula that the committee has suggested for state debts that you don't include the indebtedness of levee districts and political subdivisions in the calculation of the state debt.

MR. DE BLIEUX

In other words, your amendment would have the effect, you might say, if we did not include those bonds of increasing the limitation of bonds that could actually be issued by the state, where we wouldn't have to take in the levee districts and the political subdivision districts in determining how much of the total indebtedness of the state is because, you see, as it stands right now--as I understand it--this would include those bonds and they would make the total indebtedness of the state not in excess of that sum.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. KEAN

Well, if that was the intention of the committee, then I think I could say without fear of contradiction that the percentage formula that you have come up with would simply be unrealistic because if you throw into that formula the indebtedness of levee districts and political subdivisions, I would daresay that you are out of business already. This is designed to make it clear that you do not include the indebtedness of levee districts and political subdivisions in the calculation of that formula unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to those bonds. Now, the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to the bonds and, under those circumstances, that indebtedness would be included. But, without that obligation on the part of the state, they would not.

MR. DE BLIEUX

In other words, your amendment would be a more lenient position and that, therefore, the state could issue more bonds or more bonds could be authorized.

MR. KEAN

Well, my... I don't know whether it would be more lenient; I think it's realistic because if you include this indebtedness I don't think your formula would enable you to issue any more bonded indebtedness, and I don't believe that was the intention of the committee.

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Kean, let me see if I can understand your amendment because I believe it's a good one. Take, for example, I have a levee district that's about to sell forty to fifty million dollars worth of bonds with the local governing authority; they are a state agency, but they don't have the full faith and credit of the state. But, because the federal government is building the Mississippi River Gulf Outlet, and we have to levee it, some agency in the area--meaning the levee board--has to be the agency that will accept the responsibility of those bonds. Now, because they are a state agency, if this Section 9 passes without your amendment, would not this total amount be credited against the state debt?

MR. KEAN

That's correct. In other words, that fifty million dollars will be added into the total, based on which you would apply this fifteen percent formula. I think Mr. Planchard had some figures which indicated about three hundred million dollar leeway under the formula based on its presently existing indebtedness. If you throw in your fifty million and we throw in the other millions that are presently outstanding on the part of the levee boards and political subdivisions but not secured by the full faith and the credit of the state, then I don't believe the formula the committee has recommended is realistic; I think it's simply already taken up. All my amendment is designed to do is to make it clear that these bonds... this bonded indebtedness of levee districts and political subdivisions such as the districts you refer to, to which the state has no obligations so far as full faith and credit is concerned, is not to be included in the calculations of the state debt. I think that would be traditionally the case in all instances.

MR. NUNEZ

So, what I'm asking is whether they are against the section or not? To make the section realistic your amendment should be attached to it.

MR. KEAN

That's correct. I'm not up here arguing for or against the Committee Proposal Section 9, I simply think that in order to make it realistic you have got to make this clarification.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Kean, as you recall when we passed Section 7 of this proposal, it was rather late at night, and I didn't give it my best attention, to be frank. Mr. Roemer and other committee members have agreed to reopening Section 7 for one single purpose and that is to add the words "or local public agency" and Mr. Perez's amendment to it--which was similar to this--for the benefit of those agencies that do not have geographic boundaries but who have a debt and whose debt is not a full faith and credit obligation of the state at this time. How would your amendment... how would these agencies affect your amendment? If we managed to amend Section 7 to that extent, would your amendment exclude them from being figured into the total state debt or would they still be figured in because they are not levee districts and they are not political subdivisions in the strict sense of the word?

MR. KEAN

Well, if that type of amendment is made to Section 7, Mrs. Zervigon, we probably need to come back and make this language track whatever we put in Section 7.

MRS. ZERVIGON

In order to agree with Section 7?

MR. KEAN

Yes.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you very much. You would have no objection to that, Mr. Kean?

MR. KEAN

Oh, no, I would have no objection to that.

MRS. ZERVIGON

You're trying to do a similar type thing to exclude local debt which is not a full faith and credit obligation of the state?

MR. KEAN

That's correct; it grieves me that you didn't pay as much attention to my late afternoon talk the other night.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I couldn't hear you, Mr. Kean.

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, I move the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 67-4. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I reluctantly rise to oppose this section. I just can't conceive why we should put window dressing in the constitution and make a debt ceiling limitation of fifteen percent when according to the figures we now have that we are at nine percent. Let me tell you what I feel is going to happen. You don't have... there's not many school boards in this state that when you put a debt ceiling on them, that they don't go up to that debt ceiling. There's not many other local governmental authorities that you have a debt ceiling that they don't go up to that maximum debt ceiling. We now have since 1970 where the bonds of this state--when we created a state bond and redemption fund, has the first call on the general fund of this state which means that all the legislature has to do is come back in and start selling bonds or authorizing bonds and immediately, we will be up to that fifteen percent debt ceiling. I think we are not doing right by putting a ceiling that is far above what we now have as for practical purposes of debt ceiling. So, I would ask you to vote against the entire section. I don't think we need it in the constitution. I think we were just trying to find a magic figure that would tell the people of this state that this is the most outstanding indebtedness we can have. I think by doing that, we are going to raise the outstanding indebtedness of this state and not keep it at a constant level or lower it. So, I think we should eliminate the section. I would ask you to vote against it.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Senator, you probably know from talking from most of the committee members that we agree with you that it is nothing more than window dressing and a few members of the committee really wanted it strong, but I personally agree with you; we really don't need this section.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

I just wanted to say the same thing, that I've talked to a lot of people and I had an amendment to delete it, but simply by voting it down we can eliminate it.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Nunez, don't you think this will have the same effect as the theoretical debt limitation that's placed upon Congress, it will just keep it... Don't you think this will have the same effect as the theoretical limit on the national debt, which we always reach and have to increase anyway?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. NUNEZ

That's exactly right, Mr. Dennerly.

[Previous Question ordered. Section failed to pass: 4-68. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 10. State Debt; Political Subdivisions of the State; Issuance and Sale of Obligations; State Bond Commission; Approval Required

Section 10. (A) The State Bond Commission hereby is created and its membership and authority shall be determined by the legislature.

(B) No bonds or other obligations shall be issued or sold by the state, directly or through any state board.....

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, in 1968 the legislature passed an act creating the state bond and building...state bond authority which handles all the issuance of all the bonds in the state regardless of the nature of what they are, you must have the approval of this state bond authority in order to do that. We have already adopted Section 7 which creates the full faith and credit behind all the bonds...the state bonds that are issued. We also have the debt service of the state and we need to give constitutional status to this particular state agency so that we will always have it to properly manage our funds. One of the things that you will notice in Paragraph (C) of this... no, Paragraph (C) of this amendment it sets up the time in which you can contest bonds. Now, as the bond attorneys tell us that you must have some stability so that they...the bond buyers will know when they have a valid bond. This requires the filing of suits in order to contest the issuance of bonds within the thirty days from the advertisement of the sale of those bonds so that you can have the limitations as to when those bonds will become incontestable; that is one of the good features about this particular provision so as to make the sale of bonds more saleable and, therefore, limit the time which they could be contested. Also, it requires--as I have stated before--the approval of this bond authority so that the state will know exactly how many outstanding bonds we've got and not let any of our political subdivisions or the state get into any difficulty with the issuance of their bonds. I will be glad to answer any questions, if you need any questions on it.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mrs. Miller sends up amendments:

Amendment No. 1. On page 5, line 26, "The attorney general shall appoint one assistant who shall be the sole legal representative of the state in all matters relating to the issuance and sale of bonds issued by the state or any of its political subdivisions. The district attorney or district attorneys in the political subdivision affected shall assist the assistant attorney general in matters relating to bonds to be issued and sold by a political subdivision."

[Quorum Call: 76 delegates present and a quorum.]

Explanation

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think if you will read this amendment you will find it's self-explanatory. I call this the anti-fat cat amendment. As you know so much of the...when our bonds are floated by local political subdivisions, when they are floated by the State Bond Commission, and other state agencies we have very enormous fees that often go to the attorneys selected by the bodies floating the bonds. Now, I admit this is a very good thing for the lawyers that get this fee, but it's not a very good thing for the state and it's not the most economical and not particularly the best way. You don't necessarily get the best attorney to float the bond because someone selects him. The argument will be that this will not be...that this will be an impractical way to float bonds...to have the bonds sold by the state. I say that it is the most practical way. If you have an attorney, if you've elected an attorney general who is going to attend to his business; he will have to put people in his office who are qualified to do this work. He will no longer be able to use the jobs he has to give out just to repay political debts. He will have a job to do, and he will do like his clerks and your assessors do in the local parishes, you get the best people to work for you that you can find. As you know, the state issues millions of dollars worth of bonds, there is no reason in the world that this couldn't be done by one qualified person in the attorney general's office who is paid a salary and who gets no rake-off on this commission that's paid. I think you will find this will be very popular with your people back home. I don't know anyone that really likes to see the lawyers get the big fat fees. I'm sorry that Representative Wall is not here. I am sure that he would be for this one hundred percent. I want to say that in our parish we have had an attorney general who has picked up the ball and run with it when we have bond issues. He has handled these things and we have not had to pay big attorney fees to get some of our local bonds and municipal bonds floated where the attorney general has been the ex officio advisor for the board--our school board, our police juries have had these services done and it saves money back to the local government. As I say, I don't think this will be popular with some lawyers. I do think it will be popular with the people. I think it's something that is practical. I don't think it's impractical. I believe it should be handled by the attorney general. Now, I'll mention one thing. Now, when the State Bonding Commission issue bonds and when the local government issue bonds, the fee does have to be approved by the attorney general. You are just going one step further and letting the attorney general go on and handle this through his office. I'll answer questions.

Questions

MR. SMITH

Mrs. Miller, would this affect cities too? You said political subdivisions; you said the district attorney would have to handle the city bond issues?

MRS. MILLER

Well, usually, your district attorney is not the attorney for your very local governments--like your city and municipal things.

MR. SMITH

But, you said "all political subdivisions," that looks like that's a little ambiguous there and it affects cities too.

MRS. MILLER

Well, I think...assuming there that since we are talking about the State Bonding Commission and your local subdivisions that came under your district attorney, that it would only apply to those where he had the jurisdiction over the local governing authority and not to any authority where he was not the ex officio advisor anyway, by law.

MR. SMITH

Don't you think this is against home rule that the district attorney would handle...

MRS. MILLER

No, I think this is for the people back home. I don't know anything that incenses people more than to see that some big fat law firm has grown fatter getting some commission off of their bond issue and they get less in their buildings; they get less in their building programs because so much has been skimmed off the top for all kind of fees and professional services.

MR. STAGG

Mrs. Miller, let me say, first, that I'm not a bonding attorney, nor have I ever been one, but I have been involved on behalf of city subdivisions, the airport authority, and so forth in the sale of bonds. What disturbs me about your amendment is the lack of expertise in bond matters of the usual attorney general's assistant and the usual district attorney and his assistants. Is it not true that the sale of bonds depends to a considerable degree on what the bond buyer thinks of the bonding attorney's opinion on that issue of bonds and that matter of confidence is what makes New York banks or Atlanta banks or New Orleans banks or other people who buy municipal bonds put their good, hard money down on a several million dollar bond issue, and they depend on these longtime, long experienced bonding attorneys to keep their skirts clean? Can you believe that these same amounts of money will be spent on the opinion of an attorney general?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Stagg, I would think that, you know, we have a lot of myths and fallacies in this country. Most of them are perpetuated and instigated by the people who benefit from having them. We all know that no one has greater pride than these bonding attorneys. They will go around all the time and tell you that they are the only ones that can handle this matter, and they've sold us that bill of goods. I don't think it's true. I think the attorney generals of this state, elected by the people, certainly, would be capable of selecting someone with the integrity, the expertise, and you know, I'm a great believer in that anybody with intelligence who can read, and a lawyer with intelligence who can read and study is perfectly capable of becoming an expert in almost any matter. Now, if the attorney general gets a bunch of idiots in his office, as we've seen sometimes in times past, then I agree. But, who's going to say that the municipalities necessarily select the best people? I know some bonding attorneys that I don't think so much of, and I think they've just built up this myth and perpetuated it for their own benefit.

MR. STAGG

May I ascertain that you said that it wouldn't be unusual for an attorney general to have some idiot in his office?

MRS. MILLER

I said it wouldn't be unusual, but I think that the move has always been now toward having better people. Incidentally, Mr. Stagg, I did vote for you for attorney general.

MR. JONES

Mrs. Miller, the first two lines read that the attorney general shall appoint one assistant, and that he shall be the sole authority. In other words, what you really mean is that you want the attorney general to take over as legal representative of the state in bond matters. Is that correct?

MRS. MILLER

Yes, the ultimate authority. Now, you know that right now the attorney general has to approve the fees, the attorney fees, that are set by the State Bond Commission and other authorities issuing bonds. So, you're just taking this one step farther and saying that he is the chief legal officer for the state. That's the way we have it in the Executive Department. Nothing is more important to us than what's happened to our money, and you're just putting all of this under the jurisdiction of the attorney general. In a law firm, you just usually have the...the firm may handle it, but a lawyer's name goes on that. I don't see how one lawyer's much better than the other when it comes to this kind of thing.

MR. JONES

I just wonder about your language here. It sounds like you're setting up an individual who might be able to make a decision which might be different from that of the attorney general. I just wonder if you couldn't amend it to say, "the attorney general shall be the legal representative." Don't tell him how many lawyers he's got to hire.

MRS. MILLER

Well, what we were trying to avoid is this business of the attorney general delegating his authority to special assistants who may have an interest in the cause. This has been done in many fields under the attorney general's office. In other words, we want this to be a full-time employee in the office who is not having a part-time practice on the side, as is the case with the attorneys employed for Mineral Board, and some of the other departments of the state.

MR. JONES

Well, I think that the attorney general could decide that, but I just feel that the way your amendment reads, that this individual's going to have authority that's separate and apart and independent from that of the attorney general, and I really don't think that's what you intend by your amendment.

MRS. MILLER

Well, if we pass this one, I'll be glad to have an amendment to clarify that language, but I do think that the concept is important to get across, and I believe we can clear it up. I urge your support of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I want to object to the amendment. It might be a good provision, but this is not something which should be incorporated into our constitution. I don't know whether it would work or not until after we'd tried it. The only way that you can do things like that is by making it legislation where, in the event it didn't work, you could put the necessary corrections to it to make it work. We can't do that if we incorporate something like this in our constitution. This is statutory material, and I certainly think that the legislature ought to take care of it. I object to the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I stated in my question to Mrs. Miller that I was not a bonding attorney, and I wouldn't want to be. It is an intensely specialized area of legal practice. It is an enormous field of legal involvement. Bonding attorneys, not alone, have to know the law of the State of Louisiana and its constitution to the nth degree, but they have to keep up with the bond market. They have to know when bonds are salable. They have to advise the local subdivisions by whom they are employed when might be the proper time to go to the market with a bond issue, and when not to do so. This requires a considerable expertise in the financial maneuverings and banking and knowledge of the markets... financial markets of this country. I would believe that that is an area of knowledge of the law and of government that has become so specialized that there are, in fact, very few capable practitioners in it. I don't think you could have an assistant district attorney in each of the districts of this state who would have the qualified knowledge and expertise to act under the aegis of Mrs. Miller's amendment, and I do hope that you will reject it and not let this become a matter of constitutional gravity.

Questions

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Stagg, does not this amendment in effect just about outlaw the private practice of bond law in the State of Louisiana and turn it over to the State of Louisiana?

MR. STAGG

It would have that effect, Giuseppe, because if it states that a...an assistant attorney general will handle it for the state and the district attorneys will handle it in the district, there would be only those people who were maybe city attorneys who would have an axe or a bit to do for their city bond issues. But, nobody else could touch it.

MR. ANZALONE

Well, now, Mr. Stagg, in connection with this, too, we know that LSU has one of the finest agricultural schools in the state, and can do a much, much better job with the dairy industry than the private citizens are doing. So, wouldn't it be appropriate that we should take that over, too, so that we could...

MR. STAGG

If we're going to follow that logic, Mr. Anzalone, we should do so, but I hope that we will not.

MR. BURNS

Mr. Stagg, hasn't this always been the procedure, with reference to sales of bond issues, that you have to have the approving opinion of a recognized bonding firm, regardless of whether the attorney general handles the bond issue, or his assistant, or the district attorney; whoever it may be, you have to have a recognized bonding attorney?

MR. STAGG

I would think that that would be an absolute necessity. People in New York whose money comes to Louisiana to buy these bonds know of our history, and they rate our bonds; they rate our politics; they rate our government; they rate our ability to pay; and they're not going to buy a set of bonds without being darn sure they're going to eventually be paid. They are hard-nosed businessmen and are not going to fool around with millions of dollars.

MR. BURNS

I didn't mean, of course, that it was a legal requirement, but I meant it was a practical requirement that they get the opinion of a bonding attorney with whom they have had experience and in whom they have confidence.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Stagg, two questions: number one, insofar as the expertise, if we accumulate all of the funds that are spent annually by all of the political subdivisions and municipalities on bonds for bonding attorneys, don't you think that we might be able to employ the best expert firm in the world, if you add up all that money that's spent on bonding attorneys?

MR. STAGG

Mr. Tapper, I would think that that physically would be possible to do. Then, no longer would Dr. Mary be the highest paid employee of this state because that lawyer would have command of that kind of a salary.

MR. TAPPER

Number two: you said something about having to have bonding attorneys in response to Mr. Burns' question. Isn't it a fact that generally, the bonding attorneys locally always have to have the approval of bonding attorneys in New York, or someplace else before those bonds are approved?

MR. STAGG

Not necessarily, Mr. Tapper. When the firm or the bank buying the bonds has a Louisiana counsel in whom they have confidence, they do not have to go to Chapman and Cutler or some of these other big houses to get their legal opinions. In bond issues of hundreds of millions of dollars, they will get a backup opinion in darn near every case.

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Stagg, you know the members of our committee, by and large, support your objection to this amendment?

MR. STAGG

I'm delighted.

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Stagg, are you questioning the amendment on the basis of the technical knowledge required, or are you questioning it on the basis of whether or not it's constitutional material?

MR. STAGG

In it, I question it on both of those bases, and on the practical basis that it will not result in a favorable sale of bonds by the subdivisions of this state.

MR. ASSEFF

But, wouldn't you agree that we have included much legislative material already?

MR. STAGG

Unfortunately, Dr. Asseff, you are entirely correct.

MR. ASSEFF

My second question: I agree with you that it is technical, but if a bond attorney can learn it, can't another attorney do it, also?

MR. STAGG

It would be inept of me to say that the sale of municipal bonds is a confidence game, but it is. The confidence that I'm talking about is the confidence of the people with the money, that their money will be properly spent on bonds that have been properly floated, and they have to have confidence...

MR. ASSEFF

You haven't answered my question. I'm saying if one attorney can learn the technical art, cannot another attorney do it, also?

MR. STAGG

Yes, sir, but can he earn the confidence of the people who are going to spend the money?

MR. ASSEFF

That depends upon his knowledge, Mr. Stagg.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

MRS. MILLER

Yes, I'd like to resubmit it with some deletions which I think will meet the objections of particularly the district attorneys. I do think it's important that the district attorneys keep control of the local situation. We've had a very fine example in our parish, and so if the Clerk would read the changes, I think they would find that it's more palatable for them.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

You all might need to follow along on this.

Beginning "The attorney general," then strike out the remainder of the first line. On the second line, strike out the word "who," "The attorney general shall be the"--strike out the word "sole"--"legal representative of the state in all matters relating to the issuance and sale of bonds issued by the state." Place a period after the word "state" in the fourth line. Delete the remainder of that line, and delete the words "political subdivisions" in the following line. "The district attorney or district attorneys in the political subdivision affected shall", strike out the remainder of the line, strike out the word "general", at the beginning of the next line, and insert in lieu thereof the words, "be the legal representative". So, it would read, "The district attorney or district attorneys in the political subdivision affected shall be the legal representative in matters relating to bonds to be issued and sold by a political subdivision."

Explanation

MRS. MILLER

I think this should meet some of the objections. We saw in the paper only very recently that the governor was thinking in terms of having a state architect. Now, there was a time when we hired engineers, and the highway department hired engineers outside of the department. We have moved to close that rather bad procedure. Now, we have our own engineers in the highway department. The governor has announced that we're moving toward this with architectural firms to do some of the state planning. I am saying that for the fees you will save when you skim a one and a half percent, sometimes, off the top of a big bond issue, you can hire plenty of legal talent in the attorney general's office. There is no reason why the attorney general shouldn't generate just as much confidence in the bond market as some law firm. I don't know what makes one law firm think that it's so great that only it can sell the bonds in New York.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mrs. Miller, it's unclear to me with your amendment, even as redrawn, where the municipalities stand. Do the city attorneys have no input into bonds issued by the municipalities? Would the district attorney in the area have all the responsibility for those bonds?

MRS. MILLER

I think as we left this, we have excluded the municipal governments because we related this to the area where the district attorneys are the ex officio advisors to the political subdivision, which means primarily your school board and your police juries.

MRS. ZERVIGON

As defined in our...in the Local Government Article, Mrs. Miller, doesn't political subdivision mean parish, municipality, school board, or any other agency of government performing general governmental functions?

MRS. MILLER

It does to some extent, but this is not including them in this particular function unless they have to have the approval of the State Bond Commission. Right now, when you have the State Bond Commission issue that, the State Bond Commission chooses the attorneys, but they choose them outside the government, which is a great political patronage. It makes a lot of fat cats out of some lawyers. I would say, you just have a dozen top firms in the state who get most of the bonding business.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I don't really understand your answer to my question when you say that the municipalities are included in that definition to some extent, when you define a phrase in one part of the constitution and then use it in another part of the constitution. Doesn't that same definition apply throughout the constitution?

MRS. MILLER

Well, this applies only in two areas: where the bonds are being issued by the state through your State Bond Commission, and where they are being issued by the subdivisions over ...for which your district attorneys are your ex officio advisors. So, it is silent in regard to the municipalities.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

...Which I would think would leave them to go on and do as they've been doing.

MR. CASEY

Mrs. Miller, I don't really still quite understand it, and I'm inclined to think that, for instance, in the city of New Orleans the district attorney handles all matters relating to criminal violations of law. The city attorney handles the civil business of the city of New Orleans. It appears that the last sentence would require that the district attorney of the city of New Orleans be the legal representative in bond issues, whereas, in fact, the civil responsibilities rest with the city attorney. This appears to affect the city of New Orleans; does it not?

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Casey, this is just another example of why we should have brought the city of New Orleans back into the state in the union of the state because we might have a problem, and I'd be willing, once we pass this, if we have to work out an exception because of the structure you have in Orleans--which is different from the rest of the state--in your...

MR. CASEY

The structure may happen to also be good, too, Mrs. Miller. Don't you think?

MRS. MILLER

It might be that we should look, but we should not let the one parish stand in the way of trying to structure this whole state bonding program so that it won't cost the state so many hundreds of thousands of dollars every year, just in fees. If you like to give fees to lawyers, that's fine. But, I just wish Mr. Wall was here because I know we could hear his eloquent address..address himself to that matter.

MR. DENNERY

Mrs. Miller, you did point the finger at New Orleans, but isn't it true that there are many municipalities in the state which issue bonds?

MRS. MILLER

That is true, Mr. Dennery. Where you've gone into...where we have structured some of these parish governments a little differently, we might have to change this, if this poses a problem, which I'd be willing to do.

MR. DENNERY

In Jefferson, for instance, as I understand it, there's a parish attorney and a district attorney.

MRS. MILLER

Or we could change it that the chief legal advisor for the local municipal...you know, municipal government or the governing authority.

MR. DENNERY

Well, are you suggesting that we adopt it and then amend it?

MRS. MILLER

Well, I think that we should adopt the concept and then amend it; take a few minutes to study this and get our heads together because I do think that the concept that the State Bonding Commission's bonds will be issued by the attorney general is very important.

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, isn't it correctly based on Subparagraph (A) of this section, where it says "the State Bond Commission shall have such authority as is provided by law" that the State Bonding Commission could be given the authority to determine that the attorney general or that the various legal advisors of the local political subdivisions should be the attorneys to pass upon the legality of bond issues. Is that correct?

MRS. MILLER

That's correct.

MR. DENNERY

But, you think it should be in the constitution, rather than the statutes?

MRS. MILLER

I do think it should be in the constitution because you and I know the political realities of life, and we know that how political campaign debts are repaid by, you know, shaking the plum tree, and letting a little of the plums drop around.

MR. DENNERY

That may be very true. I don't think you're going to remove that.

MRS. MILLER

We're just trying to quit shaking the plum tree.

MR. DENNERY

You just want to quit shaking the plum tree as far as attorneys are concerned.

MRS. MILLER

Well, I think we've done some things in this constitution to try to effect some economies in state government.

MR. DENNERY

I agree with you. What disturbs me though, frankly, Mrs. Miller, is that I think the important thing is to get the bonds sold. I'm just not so certain that we'll be able to sell these bonds if all we have is a city attorney or a parish attorney or an attorney general's opinion. I just don't know whether the bond market will absorb those bonds.

MRS. MILLER

I would say we have sold our bonds from Jeff Davis Parish because we've had a conscientious, marvelous attorney general, who has dedicated himself to effecting these savings in our bond issues, and he's never encumbered us with fees.

MR. ANZALONE

Mrs. Miller, although you have these...the matters of bonds turned over to the attorney general, do you realize that there is still, as Mr. Dennery pointed out to you, nothing in this section which would make it incumbent upon a buying agency to accept the opinion of any of these political appointments that you're talking about, that of necessity, for the salability of the bonds, you're still going to have to have an opinion, and what you're doing is running the opinion makers out of this state and back up East where the people are going to be buying the bonds?

MRS. MILLER

It's been my experience in trying to get bond elections through, and also getting money out of the federal government, that no matter who you have in the state, you're going to cross some palms with silver and gold somewhere along the way. This was true when we were trying to apply for Hill-Burton funds and we were told that, in our little town, that the palm we had to cross was in Dallas. We just bowed our neck and said, you know this is not the way it has to be. We're still going to have to have...

MR. ANZALONE

Well, Mrs. Miller, how is that going to...how are we going to affect the people in Dallas with your amendment?

MRS. MILLER

The thing is there's always somebody...I think the attorney general can handle this very well.

Further Discussion

MRS. ZERVIGON

I just want to point out two things if you didn't notice them from the questioning. Number one, municipalities are included in the definition of "political subdivision." The words "political subdivision" are included in the word describing the responsibilities of the Bond Commission. So, municipalities would be affected by this. The other thing is I'm not certain that it accomplishes Mrs. Miller's end because it seems to me that the city attorney or district attorney could put on retainer for whatever amount of money he wants, any bond attorney he feels is competent, or he could pay him on a fee basis for each bond issue issued in order to get his advice and counsel. So, whether he is paid through the office of the administration, or of the agency, or of the district attorney's office, or of the city attorney's office to me matters not at all. It still does not accomplish Mrs. Miller's end if she doesn't want high fees paid to bond attorneys. So, I urge your rejection of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm not going to be long. I'm going to be real brief because time is money, and this is what we have been talking about. I don't have the expertise as many of you. When Mrs. Miller came out with her amendment, I began to think back. I congratulate her on her efforts, although I know it's going to fail. I'll tell you why in a little story.

It's a barnyard story, and I don't know if you've heard it before. The pigs, and the chickens, and the ducks and all were in the barnyard. So, the chickens and the ducks had a fight. The other animals told the chickens, say, "You go to the city council and put your problems before them." So, the poor little chicken went on out to the city council and when he opened the doors, he looked up and he didn't see anybody sitting on those rows but ducks. When he came back, with his head hung down, they asked him how did he make out?

He said, "I tell you brothers and sisters, when I looked in there and saw all them ducks, I knew I didn't have a chance."

This is all I've got to say to you.
Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I know you all know what we are talking about. I'll be very brief. I'd like to point out just two things; number one, as far as being able to employ an expert in this field, this would be a very simple matter because if you accumulate all of the attorneys' fees that are paid to all the bonding attorneys--I might say all of them--we don't have many of them in this state. But, if you add up...if you total all of that money up from all of the bond issues, from all of the political subdivisions in the state, we could employ the greatest expert in the world in the field of bonding.

Secondly, insofar as Mr. Anzalone said, we're not here to knock the attorneys out. No. We're not. But, we're here to write a constitution. When we see a blatant error, as I think it is, in our way of doing business in this state where you must have one of these bonding attorney firms, and you must pay them a set amount--a percentage of your bonds--I think that it's time for us, as a delegation to this convention, to attempt to do something about it.

I really appreciate Mrs. Miller putting this amendment forth. This may not solve all of our problems. But, as one attorney in this state, I urge that we do, and you do something about this here and now. I urge that you adopt this amendment and let us begin saving the state a little money, because we can do it here. We can save a lot of money for the state.

Questions

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Tapper, you acknowledge the fact to get a man that would be qualified to do this job, it would cost a substantial amount of money. You will agree, will you not, so that to command that type of individual would probably be incumbent upon us to come up with a salary which is at least three or four times more than what the attorney general makes. You think that is a practical thing that would occur in view of the fixed limitation by the legislature, what the attorney general makes?

MR. TAPPER

Mr. Juneau, number one, I did not acknowledge that it would take so much to get the type of person we are talking about. I didn't acknowledge that. That was something that was said by someone else. The only thing I said was that if it did cost as much as you think it might, we'd have that much and a lot more if we'd save all this bond attorney money that we're spending.

Secondly, as far as the limitation on the salary of the bond...the attorney general, I think this should have nothing at all to do with it. We have Mr. Murray who was being paid fifty-five thousand dollars a year, which is more than the governor, for a particular...this is not a problem, Mr. Juneau. I don't see it. The only problem is that we're wasting hundreds and millions of dollars on bonding attorneys' fees when they're not necessary.

MR. JUNEAU

All right. Let me ask you the second question. If we would have someone from the attorney general's office involved in this, wouldn't we possibly be subjecting bond issues to political considerations, that is opinions from the bond attorney who would, in reverse, be effected by what local people want with regard to the passage?

MR. TAPPER

Well, Mr. Juneau, you have that possibility in every area. But, it's a greater possibility now when the political subdivision just selects at random the bonding attorney firm. There's no... bench put out for this bonding attorney firm.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. VICK

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, at the fiscal session in May when the attorney general appeared before the House Appropriations Committee, he was questioned in some detail about what the attorney generals do in other states, and what the attorney general could do in this state to pass on the efficacy of bonds. Primarily, their concern was how much money he could save the state. Now, that study is still under way. The report has not been submitted to the House Appropriations Committee yet, and probably will not be until the May session. The Bond and Building Commission is very concerned. I think that a vote for Mrs. Miller's amendment will most certainly give an indication of the desire on the part of this convention. It's a controversial issue. The study has not been completed, as I say. But, the attorney general has the desire to serve. Our office is being upgraded all the time by the legislature. I think in time, we will have an in-house capability to perform the service that both the legislature--perhaps this convention--and most certainly the people deserve. Thank you.

Questions

MR. SMITH

Mr. Vick, say that this passes and is put in the constitution, the attorney general and district attorneys will have the right to issue on bonds...to do the bond issues. Who would buy the bonds after they were...after you all did them?

MR. VICK

Mr. Smith, you've heard Mr. Denny and Mr. Stagg on this subject. This is a matter of expertise. As I told the Chairman, it's very much like a practice before the Federal Power Commission, it's an area that it is not within my realm of knowledge--personal knowledge. I would assume, Mr. Smith, that as Mr. Stagg said if I understood him correctly, that there would be back-up opinions by Standard and Poor, and Moody and so on. I really don't know the answer to your question, Mr. Smith.

MR. SMITH

You still would have to have bond attorneys, wouldn't you, after you are all finished with them?

MR. VICK

No, you would have to have an in-house capability, Mr. Smith. There's absolutely no doubt about that.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Vick, isn't...doesn't this constitution provide that the attorney general is a chief legal officer of the state?

MR. VICK

It so provides, Mr. Willis.

MR. WILLIS

Isn't part and parcel of the attorney general's job, should that not be that he passes on the validity of bonds for the state?

MR. VICK

As I said, Mr. Willis, there are attorney generals in the fifty states that do so.

MR. WILLIS

My next question is, assuming pro arguendo, that means for the purpose of argument, not to you I say that, for the purpose of argument, that there is incompetency in your office. Isn't it possible that this...the other provisions cures that bad opinion. After thirty days, no one has a right of action to challenge them. Isn't that correct?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. VICK
That is correct.

MR. WILLIS
So that you can make an error for a month, but after that, error or not, it's still good.

MR. VICK
That, most certainly, would be true as well.

MR. WILLIS
Besides, that...law firm...they talk about those bond attorneys, they're not the only pebbles on the beach, are they?

MR. NUNEZ
Mr. Vick, looking at this proposal, we...evidently we would operate within the sphere of what we presently have as attorneys for your office as attorney general of the state, and district attorneys in their office. Would you believe that this would cost any additional funds to the state in hiring staff to do this? Or, could we do it within the present offices, or present staff, that you now have?

MR. VICK
Let me answer your question, Senator, this way. When the attorney general was authorized to pursue the gas litigation, he attempted to build in-house capability. He promised the legislature he would do that, both the Senate...and Senate Finance Committee, and the House Appropriations Committee. We were attempting to do that. I think that the same thing would happen--of course, you realize what's happened to our...to the attorney general's power to pursue the gas litigation--we're out of that business now. But, I think that as we have attempted to create in-house capabilities in other areas. I think this could be done without an additional expense to the state; because, as you know, the attorney general has reversed the trend of sixteen years. We have gone from sixty part-time attorneys, and ten full-time, to sixty full-time and ten part-time...on the...well, I'm not going to say on the same appropriation....

MR. NUNEZ
Mr. Vick, I'm not questioning the competency of the attorney general's office, but you and I both know, and I am on the Finance Committee, we have increased your budget considerably. I'm ready to do it again
.....we're just concerned locally....

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected:
24-55. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
This is a handwritten amendment sent up by Mr. Roemer. Amendment No. 1. On page 5, line 28, immediately after the word "indebtedness" insert the words "of the state". There should be a closed quote at the end of that.

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Chairman, this is just a technical amendment. The committee proposes, has no objection to it.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
Mr. Dennery has a set of amendments at this time. Amendment No. 1. Page 6, line 2, after the word state, and before the word "a" insert "as provided by law."

Explanation

MR. DENNERY
Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates, you may recall that when we were discussing the first committee proposal before us, that of the Legislative Committee, the question was raised about the effective date of laws when the...as it presently reads, it says "all laws shall be published in the official journal of the state as provided by law." The reason for that, as I recall it, is that there was some question whether the date of promulgation should depend upon the publication of the official journal, and if the official journal burned down, or was on strike or something, there would be no way to do this. It seems to me we are placing ourselves in much the same position here because the issuing agency, after authorizing the issuance, has to publish once in the official journal of the state, a notice of intention. If something were to happen to the official journal, there would be no way to get these bonds issued. So, I suggest we merely insert the same language "as provided by law," and permit the legislature to make that...an arrangement in the event the official journal could not publish. It's really technical in nature.

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Chairman, the committee has no objection to this amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.
Previous Question ordered on the Section.
Section adopted: 74-4. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER
Section 11. Collection of State Funds; Bond Security and Redemption Fund
Section 11. All money received by the state or by any state board, agency, or commission, immediately upon receipt, shall be deposited in the state....

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. RAYBURN
Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, Section 11 places in the constitution what is now an act that was passed several years ago by the legislature creating the bond redemption fund. It provides that all money received shall first go to the bond redemption fund to retire the bonded indebtedness. I do have an amendment that I will offer by Mr. Roemer and myself that I would like to send up at this time which might clarify some of the language. There has been some question as to how far-reaching this particular language went, as to whether it applied to all boards and commissions and agencies in the state. It was not the intent of the committee to do that. I do have an amendment that I would like to offer at this time that I think would clarify that.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
The amendment sent up by Delegate Rayburn and Roemer reads as follows:
Amendment No. 1. On page 6, the end of line 28, place a comma after the word "associations" and delete the word and, delete lines 29 and 30 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"the employment security administration fund or its successor retirement system funds and".

Explanation

MR. RAYBURN
These amendments want to make it crystal clear that we do not intend to take any funds that are now in the various retirement systems, or any monies that are now in the Employment Security Administration Fund and place them under the provisions of this language. It was not the intent of the committee to do that when we prepared this particular proposal, and it has been called to our attention that it could be far-reaching enough to include those funds. We certainly don't want to include them and had no intentions of it. I'd move the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

MR. DENNERY
Senator, your amendment also takes out that provision about the two-thirds vote of the legislature, doesn't it?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. RAYBURN

Yes, sir. It does that, Mr. Denney. It takes that out because after we thought it over, it says this—"it's by a two-thirds vote of the legislature in the future we could delete them." But, we felt like we might be going a little too strong there. So, it does delete that provision on lines 29 and 30. It takes all that out where it says that "by affirmative vote of two-thirds of the members elected to each house of the legislature." That language has been deleted by this amendment, Mr. Denney.

MR. LEBLEU

Senator Rayburn.

MR. RAYBURN

Yes, sir.

MR. LEBLEU

....not necessarily in connection with this amendment, but I just wonder what this proposal would do to the conservation fund? You know a couple of years ago we changed, in the legislature that would provide that the proceeds at the end of the year would remain in the conservation fund rather than be returned to the general fund?

MR. RAYBURN

I believe, Representative LeBleu, that those funds are dedicated to conservation funds, and that we did...that we have tapped it for several years. I don't think that this would have any effect on that. I'm not positive, now, because I don't want to say something here and really find out I said something that didn't prove to be true. It was not our intention to tamper with that fund.

MR. DREW

Sixty, with reference to what Conway was speaking of, those funds, the conservation funds, that was done by statute in the 1972 Legislature. If this provision is adopted, it would override any statute to the contrary, wouldn't it?

MR. RAYBURN

Well, I really don't know, Mr. Drew. It could. That's why I told Conway it was not our intentions to do that because those funds are funds that belong to the Wildlife and Fisheries Department, and they have been using a certain amount of them each year. They have accumulated quite a bit of surplus. They did maintain control of that surplus until the legislature saw otherwise, which a couple of years ago, we did take some of those funds. Then, at the last--two years ago, I believe--we increased the amount of funds and said that they shall retain them. I don't think this would supercede that. It's highly possible it could. I really don't know.

MR. LANIER

Senator, if the provisions of this section are presently covered by statute, why did the committee feel that it should now be constitutionalized?

MR. RAYBURN

They are presently covered by statute, and as you know, the reason for passing that statute was to give us a better bond rate in this state. We had a very poor bond rating. When we passed the statute, we did get a better bond rating. The Committee felt like if we'd put it in the constitution, it would help us in the future on our bond rating because the legislature could come back at a later date and repeal the law, or amend the law, and the bond people would not have the security that they have. We felt like it would strengthen our bonds by placing it in the constitution. That was the purpose of it. It has worked real well since we created the bond redemption fund. We felt like we should place it in the constitution.

MR. ABRAHAM

Sixty, I'm not sure how this is handled now, but the monies received by the universities and things like that, does that go in the general fund now or would this change that or.....?

MR. RAYBURN

This exempts any grants or special donations of monies of that kind. They won't be included in this exemption.

MR. ABRAHAM

....the fees that they collect and this type of thing? The tuition fees would not be included in here?

MR. RAYBURN

No, sir.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Rayburn, nobody can be against low interest rates on bonds. That's a really nice thing to have. But, let me ask you about some of the effect of this.

When these agencies of the state turn over funds that they themselves have generated to the state, how do they get anything back?

MR. RAYBURN

Well, I'll just give an example. The highway department who collects, I mean, they have a lot of dedicated funds. They turn it over to the state treasurer, and then they draw against it through warrants. Now, the interest that's derived from investment of those funds until they draw the warrant, that remains in the general fund and it's reallocated each year by the legislature when we meet.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I was really thinking of different sorts of things like there are parks that have concessions of one sort or another....

MR. RAYBURN

I can't understand you, Mrs. Zervigon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

There are parks, for example, that have concessions. They make money on their concessions. At present, the couple of parks I'm thinking of, reinvest that money in the park. Suppose they had to turn that money over to the state? How could they be assured of getting that money back?

MR. RAYBURN

Mr. Chairman, could I have a little order here to my right? I really can't understand the lady. I'm trying to answer her question, but I can't understand what she's asking me.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Any agency or subdivision of the state that has self-generated funds, would now, unless it's specifically excepted by a few...the language excepting a few different organizations, would have to turn these self-generated funds over to the state. What I'm asking you is, how can they be sure they get the same amount of money back, or the same amount of money, plus interest? How can they be certain that that would happen?

MR. RAYBURN

Well, the only way they could be certain is through their budget each year by getting the necessary funds they needed for operation of the agency. That's the only way they could be sure.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Rayburn, I have one particular.....

MR. RAYBURN

This is designed to only apply to the state agencies that are now under budgetary control.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, I think the definition of state agency is sometimes a little hard to make. That's the thing that troubles me about this concept.

MR. RAYBURN

Well, this exempts trades, professional associations, and others. That's what we tried to exempt....I think what you're speaking of we had hoped we had exempted them.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Thank you very much. I'll come talk to you after your explanation if that's all right.

MR. RAYBURN

O. K. Thank you very much.

MR. SINGLETARY

Senator, was it your intent, by deleting the two-thirds vote, was it your intent that the legislature wouldn't have any say--so by a majority vote or otherwise?

MR. RAYBURN

No, without this language, I don't think the legislature could delete any of them. We did have the language in there where if the legislature so desired, by a two-thirds vote, they could delete some of them. We felt like that that would more or less be putting the section in the political arena, so to speak. If some agency was to come up there and could muster enough votes that they could get out from under this, it would keep us in a constant turmoil as to various agencies wanting to get out under the provisions of this section. That was the reason we deleted it, Mr. Singletary.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Rayburn, isn't it true, Senator, that on . . . as far as these trade and professional associations, with the language in our amendment, they're out, now, aren't they? The . . .

MR. RAYBURN

They are. That's true.

MR. ROEMER

Right. I just wanted Mr. Singletary to be sure and understand that, that we've taken them out, now. The legislature doesn't have to vote on it at all, because the feeling of the committee was, if you remember, that oftentimes they are more a bother to try to get them in than the money you get on the interest from having them in.

MR. RAYBURN

That's true, and then you've got a certain amount of cost, there, maybe trying to get a few dollars into this general fund. It would cost more to get it in than it would if you hadn't attempted to try to get it in through the general fund with all the bookwork and keeping up with the paperwork, etc. That's why that we decided to exempt them.

MR. ROEMER

One other thing, Senator. Mrs. Zervigon questioned about these self-generated funds. It was certainly the intent of our committee to have funds that were generated as a result of state creation to be managed by the state. Is that not true?

MR. RAYBURN

That's true, through budgetary controls and through the budget and the legislature. Let me say this, while we're talking about that. As far as the Wildlife and Fisheries budget, the legislature would still have the right to appropriate to them, every year, any amount of money they wanted to, that they felt like that they were entitled to and that they needed to operate their agency.

MR. DENNERY

Senator, did I understand you to say that all monies received in the form of tuitions, for example, to state colleges would be subject to the central cash management fund?

MR. RAYBURN

No, sir. If you will look, Mr. Dennery, it says that all . . . "except monies received as results of grants, donations and other forms of assistance where the terms and conditions thereof, or agreements pertaining thereto, require otherwise."

MR. DENNERY

Well, now, what . . . let's talk about other types of monies going to the universities. What about the money that L.S.U., for example, receives from its football games?

MR. RAYBURN

Well, we have grants and donations.

MR. DENNERY

Well, that's not a grant or a donation.

MR. RAYBURN

Or donation or . . .

MR. DENNERY

I'm just trying to find out for my own information, Senator. I don't object to this; I just want to be sure what it covers.

MR. RAYBURN

I believe you could argue it either way, Mr. Dennery. Under the language of this provision, I think that you could argue it either way, that it could or could not, because we did try to--the thing that you speak of--we did try to leave them out of here. Maybe we haven't gone far enough; I really don't know.

If there's no further questions, Mr. Acting Speaker, I now move the adoption of the section.

Point of Information

MR. PEREZ

What's . . . I just wanted to be sure what the Senator's motion was.

MR. RAYBURN

On the amendment. I'm sorry.

MR. CASEY

That's right. Just on the amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Amendment

MR. HARDIN

Delegate Drew sends up the next set of amendments. Amendment No. 1. On page 6, delete lines 22 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 7, delete lines 1 and 2 in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. DREW

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, what this amendment does is delete the first paragraph of Section 11. From the questions that have been asked, you can see that there are many questions that the committee cannot answer. Now, in 1972, the legislature adopted a central cash management statute which, apparently, is working very well. A great deal of this is taken from that. But, I think that this provision, probably--I was trying to get a copy to compare it exactly, and I'd like to point out one or two things that have already been mentioned that you should consider. One, were the questions that Mr. Flory asked about universities and colleges, as far as their funds. On the question of the Department of Conservation, I don't think there's any question but what a constitutional provision overrides a statute. Therefore, that statute would become a nullity if this constitution is adopted. This is a good concept. It is in the statutes. By being in the statutes, it is flexible. I think that is all that we need. I notice that Mr. Newton's amendment and Mr. Flory's amendment, if they intend to go with them, both provide or insert the provision "except as otherwise provided by law." Well, a constitutional provision that can be changed by the legislature would add nothing to the effect of the provision. It would add no excess weight to the provision. I think we would do well, in this convention, to delete this provision. The legislature has made provisions for central cash management. We were confronted, when the bill was introduced, with a bill that was so broad that it covered everything from top to bottom. I think that there will probably have to be amendments made as we go along, but the concept of central cash management has worked well. It has earned money for the state. Mr. Rayburn and Mr. Roemer removed part of my objection when they removed the retirement systems from there, because you must remember that if the money once goes into the state treasury, the interest from that money is retained by the state and does not go back to the agency or commission from which the money came from. I ask that you adopt this amendment. Delete the first paragraph of Section 1, and leave the matter up to the statutes.

Question

MR. CASEY

Mr. Drew, what concerns me, theoretically, I agree with what you are doing, but practically speaking, what concerns me, is that under the executive proposal, apparently all the funds are mandated that they would go to the state treasurer. As I understand it, the need for this paragraph is particularly the exceptions that are made, and unless we have a paragraph of this type, then all port funds and whatever Sixty Rayburn accomplished by his amendment would . . . all those funds would automatically go to the state treasurer. Now, I may be wrong, but that's my understanding of what the conflict is that exists.

MR. DREW

Mr. Casey, I think you are correct on that, from what Mr. Roemer tells me. I had overlooked that fact when I offered the amendment. I understand that there will be an amendment to go ahead and . . . or insert a clause, "except as otherwise provided." I think that maybe that would still leave it---- would actually be saying that we have a constitutional provision subject to statute, but maybe we need that at this time.

Under those circumstances, Mr. Chairman, I'll withdraw my amendment and hold it at this time.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. HARDIN

Delegate Perez sends up the next set of amendments. Amendment No. 1. On page 7, between lines 17 and 18 insert the following paragraph: "Nothing contained in this Section shall apply to any levee district or to any political subdivision unless the full faith and credit of the state is pledged to the payment of the bonds of such levee district or political subdivision."

Explanation

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is the same amendment that was added to Section 7 and to 9, and I don't believe that there will be any objection to the adoption of the amendment.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Recess

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

[Quorum Call: 79 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

I have amendments, at this time, sent up by Delegates LeBleu, Rayburn; also added as coauthors, Mr. Munson and Mr. Newton. The amendment reads as follows: On page 7, line 16, immediately after "Thereafter," and before the word "all" insert the following: "Except as otherwise provided by law,"

Explanation

MR. RAYBURN

Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment proposes to take care of funds that are now allocated or more or less dedicated by previous acts of the legislature. There was some question about the Rockefeller Foundation money, about the conservatioo fund, that the law is now very plain on. This amendment is intended to not disrupt the present law and the present use of those funds. I move the adoption thereof.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Senator, I just want to be sure you mean "except as now provided by law."

MR. RAYBURN

Yes, sir.

MR. DENNERY

In other words, you don't anticipate that the legislature can subsequently amend this section?

MR. RAYBURN

Well, I wouldn't think so, but, I mean, the past legislature has now allocated or dedicated those funds. I feel sure, Mr. Dennery, that in the future they might have the same prerogative.

MR. DENNERY

No, no, I don't mean it in that way, Senator. I mean if there is something that is now set up, fine. But, do you anticipate that the legislature may want to just go around this section completely, in the future?

MR. RAYBURN

No, sir. Something that's now set up by the legislature and is in the law today, I don't want to disturb it, Mr. Dennery. That's the purpose of the amendment.

MR. ROEMER

Sixty, if we accept your amendment, we have not circumvented the bond security and redemption fund, have we?

MR. RAYBURN

Not at all, no, because that provision is spelled out in the beginning of the paragraph very clearly. This is after all of our bonded indebtedness has been taken care of. Then, the remainder of the funds will revert to the general fund unless "otherwise provided by law." That's what the amendment does.

MR. DREW

Senator, although there are present existing exceptions to this central cash management thing, actually, this does go a lot further than our present law on this subject, doesn't it? I mean, it's much more comprehensive as to the funds.

MR. RAYBURN

Well, I don't know, Mr. Drew. It does say that if the law now provides for special disposition of funds, that it will remain in effect.

MR. DREW

The reason I'm asking this, Sixty, is because Mr. Dennery's question as far as anything done in the future, the way the present statute reads, this task force that's created in there can exempt certain funds from this central cash management. It says, "as provided by law." Of course, at the time of the passage of that, as I understand it, there was no exemption because it wasn't handled on this same basis.

MR. RAYBURN

That's right.

MR. DREW

But, it would, possibly, prevent the . . . I mean, permit the legislature to make other exemptions, wouldn't it?

MR. RAYBURN

That's my opinion; yes, sir.

[Amendment reread. Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section adopted: 76-7. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 12. Expenditure of State Funds Section 12. (A) Money shall be drawn from the state treasury only pursuant to an appropriation made in accordance with law. (B) Total appropriations. . .

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Vice-Chairman and members of the convention, Section 12 seeks to provide some fiscal controls and good fiscal management for our state in providing that no money shall be drawn from the state treasury unless appropriated by law, and that the appropriations made by the legislature shall not be greater than anticipated revenues. This is to make sure and provide that the people of this state can be assured that we would not have any deficit spending and would not appropriate any larger monies than we anticipate receiving. Section (C) provides that the . . . that a publication of the revenues and expenditures of the state shall be printed, at least, on an annual basis. Section (D), and Section (D), I want to point out to you at this time, that members of the committee have agreed that we should, or we are going to offer an amendment to delete Section (D). It was our intention, at the time, to make sure that there weren't any constitutional dedications of any funds. It was not our intention that the legislature, by law, might not be able to dedicate particular funds, and because, of course, even if the legislature did dedicate them on . . . through law, then they could change it annually, also. So, there's really no need for Section (D), and it was not our intention to curtail any dedications by the legislature, itself.

Questions

MR. HAYES
On (C), did you intend "one"?

MR. ALARIO
On (C) we did intend "one". That's right; "no more than one year."

MR. HAYES
You just intend to put one year, there?

MR. ALARIO
"At intervals of not more. . ." So, they would have to publish it at least every year.

MR. HAYES
Once a year?

MR. ALARIO
Right.

MR. HAYES
You say. . .

MR. ALARIO
Well, we might be able to do it twice a year. I don't know, three times. . .

MR. HAYES
But, you have "one year." That means just one time. Is that what you mean, or. . .

MR. ALARIO
Well, it says, "of not more than one year," so that the legislature wouldn't wait until every two years to publish it, or every three years. It's trying to make sure that we, at least every year, get to see what were the expenditures and receipts.

MR. HAYES
What I'm trying to say, did you mean you want to publish it once a year, or do you just mean you want to publish it one year and stop? That's what I was confused about.

MR. ALARIO
I don't really follow your question, Mr. Hayes.

MR. HAYES
Did you want to publish it once and stop, or once every year?

MR. ALARIO
Every year, sir.

MR. HAYES
Well, wouldn't that be once a year?

MR. ALARIO
Well, it might be twice a year, Mr. Hayes.

MR. PLANCHARD
Mr. Alario, in answer to that question, isn't it true that it's stated that "the publication of a regular statement," that means one, doesn't it?

MR. ALARIO
That's correct.

MR. PLANCHARD
And not more than one year at a time?

MR. ALARIO
That's correct.
Mr. Clerk, I think there's two amendments up, both of them by Mr. Kean. One would be unnecessary if we go ahead with eliminating Section (D). So, we go ahead and propose that we go with section. . . the one eliminating Section (D).

MR. NUNEZ
It was concerning (D), Mr. Alario. It just concerns me that if we pass a tax specifically saying we dedicate it to teachers or highways, etc., under (D), we can't do it. I think that you've agreed to take (D) out. I didn't hear you say that, and that's why. . .

[2892]

MR. ALARIO
Yes, Senator, I wish you'd pay attention when I talk, Senator. We did say we'd go along with taking out (D).

MR. NUNEZ
Well, I couldn't, because I came in a little late, Senator.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
Amendment sent up by Delegate Kean and Alario reads as follows: Amendment No. 1. On page 7, delete lines 28 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. ALARIO
Mr. Vice-Chairman and members of the convention, all it simply does is to eliminate Section (D), because certain members of us on the committee now feel that if we included Section (D), it would prohibit the legislature, let's say, like we're doing now with the cigarette tax, where half of it goes to the city of New Orleans, and the rest is distributed to other municipalities in the state. We may be doing great harm to these municipalities by including this in the constitution, and other specific dedication that the legislature might provide on a yearly basis. Of course, this would not prevent the legislature from changing that formula at any time, 'cause they can do that with any statutory dedication. We ask that you adopt the amendment.

Questions

MR. AVANT
Mr. Alario, I'm trying to see if this thing turns around and works the other way. Would this prohibit the legislature from enacting a tax and say that the proceeds of that tax shall be used for a particular purpose?

MR. ALARIO
Would it prohibit the legislature from. . . if we take it out, no; we don't see where it would prohibit them.

MR. AVANT
I mean, if it's left in.

MR. ALARIO
If it's left in, we're afraid it may prohibit the legislature from dedicating that tax for a particular purpose. Yes, sir.

MR. CHAMPAGNE
That's somewhat the same question. You said some of the legislators on the committee had thought about that?

MR. ALARIO
I said some of the committee members. . .

MR. CHAMPAGNE
Oh, I see. Well, I was wondering, you think maybe that would help you all to pass a tax if you dedicated it?

MR. ALARIO
I don't foresee any taxes in the near future, Mr. Champagne.

MR. FLORY
Mr. Alario, I'm going to read something to you from one of the statutes, at the present time, and ask you, isn't it necessary that this be taken out in order to comply with this?
"All monies which are deposited or paid into this fund are appropriated and made available to the administrator for the set forth purposes." So, that. . . and we're talking, here, about the employment security fund, for the payment of unemployment benefits. Unless you take this out, you couldn't do that, could you?

MR. ALARIO
That's right, Mr. Flory. We're afraid it may do harm in certain areas, that certainly the legislature would see fit that those funds should be spent for that particular reason, or even raising those revenues for that dedicated specific purpose.

MR. FLORY
All right. These monies that are paid into that fund are in the form of taxes levied on the employer for that specific purpose to pay those specific benefits. This would correct that problem, is that not correct?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. ALARIO
That's correct, sir.

MR. RAYBURN
Mr. Alario, is it not true that what the committee was attempting to do was future dedication of revenues? That's what we really was thinking about doing when we prepared this language. Is that not true?

MR. ALARIO
I think they were also looking at, Senator, at really constitutional dedications. In some kind of way, we got mixed up in the language, here.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I'm opposed to this amendment. What we have been trying to get away from and what has been criticized by those who have been interested in government for many, many years has been the extreme amount of dedicated funds that we have in the State of Louisiana. I'll tell you one thing else, it helps to provide additional taxes, because that's the way you get some additional taxes, sometimes, whenever you dedicate those taxes to the payment of a certain function of government. That shouldn't be. If you need additional money to run the government, it should go into the general fund and then allocate it and appropriate it to where it should be for the necessary operation and function of government. At the present time, the amount of funds that we have available that we can actually appropriate to the various functions of government that are undedicated only amount to approximately twenty or twenty-five percent of our total income. That's not right. All of our funds are taken care of and decided where they are going to go way before we get them. That's not the best way to operate a government. I just feel like that this particular provision that we had in this article is . . . in this particular section is a good one, and we ought to keep it. We were complimented by PAR for having such a provision in here. I just think that this is a bad amendment. I ask you to vote against it because it's not good government management of your state funds.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON
Senator De Blieux, isn't it a fact that what's been hanging up the flexibility that the legislature needs, recently, is constitutionally dedicated funds?

MR. DE BLIEUX
I didn't exactly understand your question, Mrs. Zervigoo.

MRS. ZERVIGON
I'm saying, isn't the legislature restricted by constitutionally dedicated funds? In other words, legislatively dedicated funds, they could undedicate at any time they wanted to. Isn't that a fact?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, we are restricted both in constitutional dedication and legislative dedication, because after we have made those dedications, sometimes it's pretty difficult and hard to undedicate them.

MRS. ZERVIGON
Well, Senator De Blieux, suppose in . . . this section stays in. Wouldn't you still find informal agreements that are the same as dedications, people saying, "I'll take a little of this, if you'll take a little of that"?

MR. DE BLIEUX
That's true; that happens quite often.

MRS. ZERVIGON
So, what I'm saying, is, either way, isn't the legislature only as flexible as it wants to be? If the legislature wants all of its funds undedicated, it has only to undedicate them.

MR. DE BLIEUX
But, we do have a lot of constitutional dedications of funds, Mrs. Zervigon. They are not all. . .

MRS. ZERVIGON
Senator De Blieux, where in this new constitution have we any dedicated funds?

MR. DE BLIEUX
They are not all. . . they are not all legislative dedications. There's both ways. There's some of them are a legislative dedication because that's the way we got the taxes passed to begin with, on the basis that they were going to be dedicated to a certain service or a certain function of government.

MRS. ZERVIGON
But, Senator, under the new constitution, under the one that we are drafting right now, there are no constitutional dedications, are there?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, that's why I'm trying to keep some from being dedicated through constitutional provisions. That is, to outlaw these dedications even by the legislature; they shouldn't even be dedicated by the legislature.

MRS. ZERVIGON
But, the legislature, if it chooses to dedicate them, could choose at any time to undedicate them. Isn't that a fact?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, it could, but it's most difficult to do. I tell you, you have to be a member of that legislature and see the wheeling and dealing that goes on sometimes. Then you'd recognize how difficult it is sometimes.

MRS. ZERVIGON
You, yourself, told me that it could still go on in some sort of informal manner; isn't that so?

MR. DE BLIEUX
Well, it's difficult.

MR. NUNEZ
Senator De Blieux, I think that probably most people here agree with what you're saying, but not in light of what you're trying to do here, because the way I read this, "except as otherwise provided in this constitution, no appropriation shall allocate to any object the proceeds of any particular tax," which means to me, that if we sit down in this next session, and we say we're going to have a one cent gasoline tax and that tax shall be dedicated to building roads--"X" number dollars of roads--in this state. Then, those . . . that funds, the proceeds of that tax will go towards those roads. Now, I think we want to do that. I think we want to leave the legislature that latitude to pass a particular tax and dedicate it to a particular . . . proceeds to a particular object, which means that if you want to pass a highway tax for roads, or a welfare sales tax for welfare, or school teachers, in particular, that's what I think the flex. . . Don't you agree that the legislature needs that flexibility if we're ever going to pass one, because most people won't vote for a particular tax if it's not particularly dedicated. I don't blame them; I wouldn't.

MR. DE BLIEUX
Mr. Nunez, that's what I object to, because that's what makes it so easy to pass taxes, is when you say you're going to use that tax for a specific purpose. Then, afterwards, you . . . whether you use it for something else or not. We ought to use the . . . pass taxes because they are needed for all purposes, not just for dedicated purposes.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY
Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment. Let me lay something before the convention as a specific example of what we're talking about. If you remember in the Executive Article, under the powers of the treasurer, we put in a proviso that stipulates as follows: "There shall be a Department of Treasury headed by the state treasurer who shall be responsible for the custody, investment, and disbursement of public funds of the state." We added the language, "except as otherwise provided by this constitution," with the full knowledge we were going to broach this subject when we got to it. Now, in Section 12, if you read--even with the exceptions in Section 11 that we listed--Paragraph (A) where it says, "Money shall be drawn from the state treasury only pursuant to an appropriation made in accordance with law." If you look at the Legislative Article, and remember that the appropriation--that no money . . . you have to have. . . money can only be appropriated for specific purposes and only on an annual basis. So, that what I'm leading up to is this: that in the employment security fund which is . . . was established as a result of federal law setting up the standards in 1935, it is a state program, and it is a state fund created. When the fund was created, there was a stipulation put in the law that the funds paid by the employers as a tax or a contribution rate was paid to the fund and was automatically appropriated to the administrator for the payment of unemployment benefits. So that when you get into Paragraph (D), you have to delete it if you intend to continue the dedication of that tax to the payment of unemployment benefits. Now, if you don't dedicate it, let me show you what you get into. The employer's contribution rate or his tax rate is based upon his individual experience: that is, the fluctuation of employment due to the economic conditions of the state. So that what . . . in the last eighteen months, I guess, we've been paying out more benefits than have been coming in in tax dollars. But, the fund was set up on a sliding scale with a floor of one hundred and ten million dollars; that if that fund went below a hundred and ten million dollars, the tax contribution rate went from whatever it was, to a maximum of 2.7 of the taxable payroll for all employers. So, if you had not had the dedication, you had not received the interest earned on that fund--which was last year about nine million dollars, I believe--it would have fallen below the floor of a hundred and ten million dollars. The contribution rate for employers would have gone up. You would have had to assess an additional twenty-five million dollars in taxes in order to keep the fund on its level. Now, if the state doesn't want to dedicate those funds, then in the years--as I just mentioned--where you pay out more than you take in, the state is going to have to come up with those appropriations in order to make up that difference. What we're talking about, sometimes amounts to between thirty and fifty million dollars a year, depending upon the economic conditions of the state and of the nation.

So, I ask you to adopt the amendment and let the legislature continue as it has in the past to automatically . . . or to dedicate by automatic appropriation these types of funds.

Questions

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Flory, isn't that money that you spoke about for the security fund as a result of a federal program?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. It's as a result of a federal law setting up standards, but it is a state program, a state fund.

MR. DE BLIEUX

But, isn't it required by the federal government?

MR. FLORY

The standards are set by the federal government and required by federal law. But, it is a requirement that it be done on a state basis.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Didn't we take care of that in the provision? We said, "when required by the federal government for participation in federal programs."

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because it is not a federal program, Senator De Blieux. I keep trying to explain to you it is a state program operated under federal standards.

MR. DE BLIEUX

I think that's the reason we put that particular language in that section, to take care of what you are talking about.

MR. FLORY

It doesn't do it though, Senator. I'm sorry.

MR. LOWE

Gordon, did you know that with this type of explanation there's usually some confusion? I just wanted to get up and compliment you for explaining it very well. I appreciate what you said, and I hope that the rest of the delegates listened, because this is something that we have to have in here to make sure that that program works the way it does.

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Flory, also to clear up this confusion, in that Section 18 that Senator DeBlieux referred to, doesn't that just refer to capital improvements--with federal government programs on capital improvements?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. GOLDMAN

If it does, then it wouldn't really take care of this, would it?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because unemployment is sure not a capital improvement.

MR. ROEMER

Gordon, aren't what we're trying to do, we have to be aware of the difference between constitutional dedications and statutory dedications. I think the committee wisely prohibited, with one exception--that's the severance tax--constitutional dedications. All we're trying to do, here, is to say that statutory dedications would be then allowed, but they are subject to change by the legislature. The objection to dedications when they are constitutional, is the money is gone forever, and it can't be managed. Isn't that right?

MR. FLORY

That's correct; yes, sir.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 79-6. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Alario sends up technical amendments which at this time, copies were not run, the amendment reads: On page 8, at the beginning of line 1, strike out "(E)" and insert in lieu thereof "(D)".

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

I have one further amendment sent up by Mr. Roemer, and others, I think. Distribution copies have not arrived yet. You all may want to hold up until you get copies of the Roemer, Alario amendment. That's what I figured. The amendment is short, would read as follows: On page 7, line 19, immediately after "(A)" delete the word "Money" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, money".

Explanation

MR. ROEMER

Yes, sir. I submit this amendment with Mr. Alario to try to make consistent the provisions of this article as between Section 11 and Section 12 primarily. Section 12 as written prior to this amendment would allow monies to be drawn from the state treasury only pursuant to an appropriation made in accordance with law. While immediately above that in Section 11, Mr. Dennery, and other delegates pointed out to me, we have monies going from the state treasury to the bond security and redemption fund without appropriation, so we . . . and we want that to happen. So, to make the two consistent, we'd like for Section 12 (A) to read as follows: "Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, money shall be drawn from the state treasury only pursuant to an appropriation made in accordance with law."

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Vice-Chairman and members of the convention, if . . . just a short word or two. I ask you to vote for Section 12. If you'll look in the report that PAR put out, on the last page they've got a comment on balanced state budgets and the last sentence they say "is contrary to a widely held belief, the present constitution does not prohibit a deficit budget. Many of us in the legislature -- & I was, anyhow--misinformed in the past, or misinterpreted what the intentions were in the past and didn't know that there wasn't a specific prohibition against deficit budget, and I think, this would help strengthen that cause and make sure the people of this state can be assured that more money would not be spent than what comes in.

[Section passed: 90-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Section 13. Management of State Funds; Budgets
Section 13. (A) The governor shall submit to the legislature, at a time fixed by law, a budget estimate for the next fiscal year setting forth all proposed state expenditures and anticipated state revenues.

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would hope that you would accept Section 13 (A) and 13 (B) because what it does, it tends to tighten the purse strings for the State of Louisiana. Section 13 (A) is new and mandates the governor to submit to the legislature a budget estimate for the next fiscal year setting forth all proposed state expenditures and anticipated revenues, in addition to a general appropriation bill. If necessary to give recommendations in the budget, in the proposed budget for a new or additional revenues. As you heard before, that there have been many budget estimates that come around each year. This gives constitutional status to the budget that the governor is to send to the Budget Committee. Of course, the Budget Committee holds hearings and reworks the budget, but at least it gives the point of departure to start with as far as the budget is concerned. Now, Section B also is new and it mandates to the governor to submit in each regular session of the legislature a proposed five year capital outlay program with the request for implementation of the first year. Now, what we have here is nothing that is too different from what is happening right now. The only thing that is different is that, we're giving it constitutional status, and we believe, that by giving constitutional status to the... and mandating the governor to submit a budget... operating budget in Section (A) and also in Section (B) to submit a capital budget that we are strengthening our fiscal affairs for the State of Louisiana. I, frankly, don't see anything controversial in it, but I submit myself to questions if there are any.

Questions

MR. TOBIAS

Mr. Lowe, I'm looking at Committee Proposal No. 4 on the Executive Department. As adopted on the floor of the convention, it says, "the governor shall submit to the legislature at a time fixed by law, a proposed state budget for the next fiscal year setting forth all proposed state expenditures and anticipated state revenues." Then, Paragraph E says, "the governor shall submit to each regular session of the legislature a proposed five year capital outlay program with the request for implementation of the first year of the five year program." Why is this section needed then?

MR. LOWE

Well, Mr. Tobias, I would imagine, and when we were working on this section it dealt with the finances of the state and we felt it encumbered upon us to come up with the budgets in this particular section.

MR. TOBIAS

Then, in other words, we could defeat this section instead of... and delete it and it would still be covered; isn't that correct?

MR. LOWE

I haven't compared what we have here to what you have just read to us, Mr. Tobias, but I would assume that if there is some duplication and Style and Drafting seems to think that something should be taken out, I imagine that could happen. I'm not sure whether this should be in the article on Taxation..Revenue, Finance and Taxation or whether it should be in the article on Legislation.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Lowe, I may have missed what... something you said on this, but the first clause in each of these subparagraphs is identical to the clause in the executive department proposal which we have previously adopted; is that correct?

MR. LOWE

What I said, Mr. Dennery, is that when Mr. Tobias read it, I couldn't follow whether it was exact or not.

MR. DENNERY

It is identical.

MR. LOWE

Then, if it's identical, I'm sure that we don't need the duplication.

MR. DENNERY

That Style and Drafting can correct it.

MR. LOWE

I would think that they could, yes, sir; decide which article it should be in and leave it there.

MR. LeBLEU

Mr. Lowe, presently the Budget Committee is made up of legislators who meet before the sessions each year and go over the recommendations of the governor. Now, I just wondered, by the provision that you're explaining, if that Budget Committee would necessarily be made up of legislators; couldn't the governor just propose a budget saying the division of administration and present it to the legislature on the first day that it meets rather than have a legislative Budget Committee that meets to go over and make adjustments as it sees fit in the budget?

MR. LOWE

No, sir, I don't believe that we, by any stretch of imagination recommend anything like that, Mr. LeBleu. What we've done here is said that the governor shall submit budget estimates of revenues and expenditures. Now, the Legislative Budget Committee would not be affected by this particular proposal. Now, if the governor would make recommendation and then the Legislative Budget Committee would send back to the governor their recommendations after holding extensive hearings. But, I think, what we're trying to say here is that there's some constitutional status for the governor being involved on submitting his estimate of revenues and expenditures for the year. Then, after that, well, the Legislative Budget Committee holds extensive hearings, and as a result of those hearings well, then, recommendations are sent back to the governor of the final outcome of what has happened as a result of those extensive hearings by the Legislative Budget Committee.

MR. LeBLEU

Another question about the capital outlay budget: in the past three or four sessions bond issues... a bond issue has been presented to the legislature for the construction of a legislator's complex, I mean, office buildings, committee hearing rooms, etc. I just wondered by requiring the governor to submit a capital outlay budget, wouldn't it prevent such a bill of... of this sort, the appropriation bill or a bond issue from being enacted unless it was previously added to the governor's outlay budget?

MR. LOWE

We would think that it would tighten up the capital outlays of the state, Mr. LeBleu, from the standpoint that there would be a five year budget, Number 1, and then, there would be a request by the governor for implementation for funds in the appropriation bill to implement the first year of that five year budget. We feel that we would add some order to the capital outlay program.

MR. BLAIR

Mr. Lowe, along the lines that Conway was talking about, the Budget Committee is set up under statutes, and actually what the Budget Committee... what they do is they listen to all these agencies and they submit their recommendations to the governor and under the constitution it's the governor's duty, and I think, you're just tracking the old constitution and it's his duty to submit a balanced budget to the legislature.

MR. LOWE

Yes, sir, that's correct. I think that what we've done here has made it clear the governor shall...he's mandated to come up with his estimate of revenues and expenditures.

MR. TATE

Representative Lowe,....

MR. LOWE

Thank you for the promotion, Judge. I don't know if I could stand four years again, though.

MR. TATE

... once a Representative, always a Representative. The Executive Branch proposal and the Legislative Branch proposal also had requirements as with regard to the budget estimate and the capital outlay program. Do you know to what extent this duplicates those proposals that have already passed the floor, or to what extent it's in conflict with them?

MR. LOWE

Mr. Dennery, just asked the question and the substance of his question was that the operating budget section in part (A) was identical to the Legislative Branch, and I don't know whether the capital outlay budget Section (B) is identical--he's shaking his head and saying that it is identical--and my answer to him was that I thought that if they were both identical, that Style and Drafting could make a decision on the deletion from one section or the other, leave the provision in the article that they thought was most appropriate.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Lowe, you do have amendments? Alright.

Amendment No. 1. On page 8, line 7, immediately after the word "shall" delete the word "submit" and insert in lieu thereof the words "cause to be submitted".

Amendment No. 2. On page 8, line 10, immediately after the partial word "mendations" delete the words "in the budget".

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates to the convention, the Acting Chairman has asked me to explain this amendment, to which there is no objection raised by the committee itself. I, ... you will note that the first amendment merely says that the governor "shall cause to be submitted" rather than "shall submit". The second amendment merely removes the words "in the budget" meaning that he should merely submit his recommendations for any new or additional revenues. It's basically a technical change.

[Amendments adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 86-1. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to temporarily pass over Sections 14 and 15.]

MR. CASEY

Mr. Roemer, why don't you hit a tick and explain to the convention why you're passing over.

Explanation

MR. ROEMER

We have an amendment to 16 that we'd like to take up and discuss at this time and we're trying to get 14 and 15 in order. If we have a few minutes to do that, I think, we can get by 14 and 15 without any major discussion, just for the sake of time, that's all, Mr. Chairman, we'll go right back to 14 and 15.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Section 16. Management of State Funds; Prohibition of Loan, Pledge, or Donation of Public Property; Exceptions-- and that word incidentally didn't print--Exceptions for Public Purpose Section 16. (A) The funds, credit, property or things of that...

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, this section is purely for the purpose to prevent the state or any of its agencies from loaning our property of value or giving away the monies of the State of Louisiana; we can loan, pledge or donate it to any private person or association or corporation. Of course, it's strictly for the purposes of preventing this type of thing occurring, and I think it's self-explanatory in the article itself. We also went further in Section (B), though, to say that nothing contained in this section shall prevent the intercooperation between the state and its political corporations, or between political corporations, or between the state or its political corporations of the United States, or between the state or its political corporations in any public or private association or corporation or individual for a public purpose. We thought we fully covered every thing to be considered under this section, but there was some question by some of the delegates that we may be preventing ourselves from actually pledging the credit of the state to back up our bonds. So, consequently, to avoid any question we do have an amendment by Mr. Kean, and I think it was from the committee proposal on Local Government which not only incorporates what we have, but it goes further to make exceptions. So, without any further ado, Mr. Chairman, I would like to go ahead and have the amendments offered and we can discuss the amendments, and if there's any questions at that time; I think, that they can all be answered.

[Quorum Call: 75 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent by Delegates Perez, Toomy, and Lanier which read as follows: Before I start on this, there's been one change in Paragraph (B) subparagraph 4 has been completely deleted. Subparagraph 4 of Paragraph (B) has been completely deleted, so that's about two-thirds of the way through the text of the amendment. Subparagraph 5 is then changed to become subparagraph 4 of Paragraph (B). Would then read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 8, delete lines 27 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety and on page 9, delete lines 1 through 10 both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 16. Management of State Funds, Donation, Loan, or Pledge of Public Credit

Section 16 (A) Except as otherwise provided in this constitution, the funds, credit, property or things of value of the state....

[Motion to waive reading of the Amendment adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the Local Government Committee has its proposal No. 27 and the amendment which has been offered is essentially the same, in fact, it's verbatim with the exception of the deletion of this paragraph Number 4 under (B) because there was some objection to that particular part of the Local Government provision by the ... by some of the members of the Revenue Committee. Now, let me explain to you, if I may, the extreme importance of this particular article. There are over two hundred pages in our present constitution as a result of what you would look at as Section (A) of this new Section 16 which would be the companion in the Revenue Proposal, because it is a prohibition and rightfully so against the funds, credit, property or things of value of the state from being loaned, pledged or donated. But, when you get yourself into that position, then you have to make exceptions because of the fact that you could never issue a bond unless you made an exception for that purpose, and you could never have public welfare. You couldn't have your retirement benefits. You could not have intergovernmental cooperation. The Revenue Committee Proposal contains essentially what is in Section (A): that is, the prohibition against the funds, credit, property, etc., of the state being loaned or pledged. But, in as far as the exceptions to that rule are concerned, it basically only covers what you see before you in... under (B) Number 1, that is, intercooperation between the state and political subdivisions in the United States, etc. I cannot impress upon you more the dire need for the inclusion of exceptions under this article because this is the real reason, the main reason that our constitution was amended so many, many times. This is the main reason that you have had so many, many provisions on the ballot for proposed constitutional amendments. Now, if I may go over these with you in detail. Number 1 is the same as the committee proposal--and I do not believe that there's any particular necessity in going over that--but if you will go to the exception under (B) paragraph Number 2, the use of public funds for programs of social welfare for aid and support of the needy; the prohibition against giving the funds of the state away would certainly include giving away under a welfare program unless you have an exception for that purpose. Under Paragraph (3) the contribution of public funds to pension and insurance programs. There is some question in that area where it might be said well, that may be extra compensation to the public employee, and therefore, may be or could be permitted under this prohibition. But, I do believe, it is the better part of judgment to go ahead and see to it that we have the paragraph Number 3 in there to make sure that we do not jeopardize any of the pension or insurance programs for the benefit of public employees. With respect to Section 4 we've agreed to the deletion of answer of, skip the discussion of it, except that the Local Government Committee felt that was the way that we give the legislature the authority to make further exceptions, but if there's any serious objection to it, all it will mean that we'll have more frequent constitutional amendments in the future. With respect to Number 5 and this is the real key provision, the legislature from authorizing the loan, or pledge of such funds, credit, property or things of value for public purposes with respect to the issuance of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness. Now, that is the area where we have had page upon page of amendments to the constitution in order to authorize the issuance of bonds by the state and by the public... the various subdivisions of the state. Paragraph (C) would have as its purpose the ratification of the existing authorities now contained in the constitution and it would continue that existing authorization unless such authorization is revoked by the legislature by a two-thirds vote of the elected membership of each House prior to the vesting of any contractual rights pursuant to this section. I submit to you that the Local Government Committee spent a tremendous amount of time working up this proposal and gave it a lot of detailed thought, had a number of witnesses who are experts in their particular field who testified with respect to this particular proposal and I would like, therefore, to offer it to you for your consideration. I'll be glad to answer any questions.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Perez, I realize that Section 4 was a very broad article, but let me place this proposition before you and see if this type of a situation would authorize the municipality to do with most of the municipalities in this state outside of that half a million dollar boandoggle that we had yesterday, have to get out and scuffle for an industry. Now, we have an industry that wants to move into Tangipahoa Parish we'll say a private concern, they're going to put up a two million dollar structure and employ something like five or six hundred people which is of great benefit to our parish. Now, in exchange for them coming to our parish what we as a local government municipality parish government or otherwise would agree to do that we would buy the land for them on which they would construct this building and just give it to them. Now, is that type of activity prohibited by Number 1?

MR. PEREZ

It is prohibited by (A) and I can't see where it's given back in (B).

MR. ANZALONE

But, it would be given back by Section 4?

MR. PEREZ

Well, Section 4, we've agreed to take out.

MR. ANZALONE

But, I mean it would be given to...

MR. PEREZ

The legislature by two-thirds would have to approve something like that. But, again, I say I've agreed to take it out although I have some questions to whether it should be taken out, but I've agreed that it should be taken out.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Perez, on your Number 5, if you read it starting with the (B) at the top it says "nothing contained in this section shall prevent -- Number 5-- the legislature from authorizing the loan, or pledge of such funds for public purposes." If you leave out your "or pledge" it says "nothing contained in this section shall prevent the legislature from authorizing the loan of such funds with respect to bonds or other evidences of indebtedness." Wouldn't that allow the ... any public funds to be loaned so long as it... there is a public purpose, which would mean most anything and in evidence of indebtedness given?

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Jenkins, I think that you're misreading the real meaning of the word "loaned." It's a question of loaned by whom and to whom, but I've already told you that if you have any serious objection to that word, that I'd be agreeable to get another word which would mean to borrow, but the main thing is that we've got to give the right to put the right in the legislature to authorize the borrowing funds and the pledging in order to be able to issue bonds. Otherwise, we're going to have one constitutional amendment after another authorizing.

MR. JENKINS

But, isn't it true we're talking about public funds here? There is no prohibition against borrowing private funds, the state borrowing private funds, so you don't need to mention "borrowing", do you?

MR. PEREZ

No, but in connection with the borrowing, you have to pledge by the issuance of bonds because you have to... when you build that public improvement, that sewerage system or whatever it is that you're building, you have to be in a position to pledge, and you can't pledge unless you borrow first to pledge.

MR. JENKINS

But, this here says that the legislature may authorize the loan of public funds, does it not?

MR. PEREZ

I've agreed with you Mr. Jenkins, if you're concerned about that word I'll be glad to have an amendment which would make it clear that we're talking about the borrowing of funds by the public and then the pledging of the assets which are used for construction of that public ... or that is where the funds are being used to build a public facility you have to have the pledge of the ... in order to secure the borrowing of the funds. You can't pledge unless you first borrow.

MR. JENKINS

But, wouldn't it be illogical to substitute the word "borrow" in that place because we're not talking about borrowing public funds. That's what the word "loan" refers to, as loaning public funds. So, we're not talking about borrowing public funds, so we couldn't substitute that, could we?

MR. PEREZ

I say, I agree with you generally, if you want to amend the provision I don't see any serious objection as far as I can determine at this time.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Perez, this Section C does it have to be that length in the constitution?

MR. PEREZ

I'm sorry; I can't hear you.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Section C, does it... in other words what it says is what we've done already; we're not abolishing right now; is that right?

MR. PEREZ

That's correct.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Couldn't we say that in a lot less words than that many words? Or isn't that a transitional matter? In other words, if the state has already entered a contract or an agreement, can we just cancel that? I'm wondering why is it necessary?

MR. PEREZ

Well, first it's necessary because of the fact that you have, as I explained before, over two hundred pages of authorized bond issues in your constitution at the present time. In order to be sure that those authorizations continue in effect, we provided that they would continue in effect, but the legislature by two-thirds vote of the elected membership of each House could amend those provisions provided that the bonds had not as yet been issued or contractual rights had not actually gone into effect.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

And you feel that you need that long a paragraph to say that. Right?

MR. PEREZ

Yes, I just feel that we can't say it in fewer words. We tried to say it in as few words as possible.

MR. CONROY

Mr. Perez, in order to get the record clear on the meaning of this Paragraph 5--it was 5 of (B)--the last few phrases refer to the issuance of bonds or other evidences of...

The last few words refer to the issuance of bonds or other evidences of indebtedness. Now, as I understand your explanation of this, that refers to bonds or evidences of indebtedness of the state or of a political subdivision.

MR. PEREZ

That's correct.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. CONROY

That this would not authorize the state to pledge funds or credit or anything to secure the indebtedness of any private entity.

MR. PEREZ

No, sir.

MR. CONROY

Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 83-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

The next amendment is sent up by Delegate Roy, Delegate Pugh.

The instructions on this are going to have to change given the adoption of the Perez amendment. The text would remain the same.

On page 8, in Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Perez, just adopted, at the end of line 11--that's the end of Paragraph (A)--immediately following the word "enterprise" strike out the period "." and insert the following: "; however, neither the state nor any political subdivision thereof shall be prohibited from entering into a contract for the purchase of insurance from a mutual company or depositing money in savings and loan associations or savings banks."

Explanation

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, presently under the old part of the constitution, there was a Supreme Court decision that held in Public Housing Administration of Bogalusa--rather of Administration v. Housing Authority of the City of Bogalusa--that it was unconstitutional for the city of Bogalusa to buy insurance, fire insurance, with a mutual insurance company even though there was going to be a dividend paid back to the city of Bogalusa of some several hundred dollars, thereby making it the cheapest amount of insurance. The theory was--and you'll have to follow this kind of closely--that mutual insurance companies, theoretically, when you buy insurance with one of them, you yourself become a stockholder or shareholder in it. Therefore, the state by some real pretzel type of reasoning was becoming engaged in business against itself with itself. Now, the decision probably should have never been rendered, but in any event, that's the present state of the law--that the state cannot be allowed to buy insurance with a mutual insurance company even though it would make a great deal of savings for the state because, theoretically, somewhere or another the state is becoming a shareholder in a company and thereby is competing with private enterprise. I don't see the rationale behind it; I disagree with it. I think that it ought to be specifically provided in the constitution that notwithstanding anything to the contrary this particular type of transaction will be allowed, and it does that. It also provides that the state will be allowed to deposit money in savings and loan associations or savings banks. Now, the state is not at this time allowed to do that, and I don't see the reason for that either. If the deposit by the state is fully insured and protected just like it would be in a regular banking institution, I can't see why the state should not be allowed to deposit its money or the city deposit its money in a savings and loan association and draw more interest than it would if it were trying to deal strictly with a commercial bank.

If there are any questions, I'll be happy to try to answer them.

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Roy, does the federal government in some cases prohibit the participation in some mutual companies?

MR. ROY

Does the federal government prohibit participation?

MR. HAYES

Yes.

MR. ROY

I don't know, Mr. Hayes.

MR. HAYES

I think they do.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Roy, don't we have a provision in one of the other articles that the state cannot own stock in a private corporation?

MR. ROY

I don't recall right off hand if we do or not, Walter. Probably, we may; I just don't know. This, of course, would be a specific limitation only with respect to contracting for the purchase of insurance in that particular situation.

MR. LANIER

Well, what I'm getting to is I believe the case that you cited was based on the constitutional provision that we had in the old constitution, and which I think we put in the new constitution, that...

MR. ROY

It's the same....I talked with Justice Tate, and we both feel that unless we do it--it's a heck of a way to have to do it--but unless we put this in here, we're going to have the same Supreme Court decision applicable to the future.

MR. LANIER

Well, what I'm getting to is that your amendment is designed as an exception to the general rule that you cannot have the state being a stockholder in the corporation.

MR. ROY

Right. That's correct.

MR. LANIER

Now, the second thing is: what is the difference between a savings and loan association and a savings bank?

MR. ROY

I'm not quite certain, Walter, what the difference is. I just know that both of them, when the state would deposit the money and be fully protected and maybe even draw better interest, we're not allowed to do it at this particular time.

MR. LANIER

By what authority?

MR. ROY

Well, I think it's for the same reasoning that they would hold that when you deposit....You see, if you deposit in a savings and loan association, you become a member of it, theoretically; therefore, the state would be a member of a private corporation, and thereby meet the same results that it met in the Bogalusa case.

MR. LANIER

But what about a savings bank?

MR. ROY

I think a savings bank is more or less on the same basis. I'm not quite certain. Mr. Pugh is much more of an expert in that field than I am.

MR. DERBES

Mr. Roy, did you say that you had discussed this with Justice Tate, and that he thought it was necessary?

MR. ROY

Yes, Justice Tate felt that if we were going to obviate the results of the Bogalusa case, we'd have to put something like this in here.

MR. DERBES

Did you ask him if he was giving you a minority or a majority viewpoint?

MR. ROY

Well, it's a de novo viewpoint because he was not on the Supreme Court at the time.

MR. ANZALONE

Chris, in that suit that you cited a few minutes ago concerning the ban against state governments and their subdivisions purchasing insurance from a mutual company, are you sure that that case did not turn on the liability of any mutual company as opposed to a liability in a stock company?

MR. ROY

No, for your information let me read what the headnote said on it. "Where the mutual insurance company submitted to a municipal housing authority a bid for fire and extended insurance at an initial premium of six thousand and seven hundred forty-two dollars and an estimated dividend that they were going to get back of one thousand and three hundred forty-eight dollars and a stock company," you see, which was bidding in competition with the mutual company, "submitted simply a bid for the same coverage of six thousand, seven hundred and forty-two dollars with no estimated dividends, the stock company was able to come in and vitiate the contract that had been awarded to the mutual investment company because it said that the state was engaging in competition with it--the stock company. Now, here the state lost out in that particular case an estimated dividend of thirteen hundred and forty-two dollars because of some theoretical position that the Supreme Court had to take that the state was engaging in competition with private enterprise. So, this particular amendment strictly is an exception--like Walter said--to the general rule that a state or a political subdivision may not purchase stock in any company, and it excepts it only in mutual insurance company associations where the state will get some type of dividend back.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

I move the favorable adoption.

MR. ANZALONE

Chris, I really want to thank you for answering my question; I appreciate it.

MR. ABRAHAM

Chris, if supposedly the state became a stockholder of this-- or the city in the case you mention there--became a stockholder of the mutual company by purchasing insurance from them, what is the law in regards to this type of situation? Are they liable for any of the debts of the company or the savings and loan association?

MR. ROY

No.

MR. ABRAHAM

That's the question I would ask. They must have ruled...

MR. ROY

No. When you invest your money in it, you're not obligating yourself for any obligation of the company.

Further Discussion

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I don't claim to be an expert on insurance, but in speaking to Mr. Graham, who is in the insurance business, he informs me that it's possible for the state to possibly enter into a policy where they can be assessed if the overall company would happen to have a general loss in an area. I think this is something that has to be considered when discussing the possibility of the state investing in insurance with a mutual company.

I move the rejection of the amendment, and let's us clarify it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. ROY

In answer to Mr. Abraham's question, the funds are nonassessable; the policy is. Therefore, the state can't be responsible for any type of loss on it just to allay anybody's fears.

Questions

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Roy, there's no such provision in the present constitution; is there?

MR. ROY

No, sir.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Roy, Mr. Hayes just--who is a member of a credit union--tells me that there maybe a problem with this with reference to the federal law, in federal credit unions. Are you aware of any such proviso or restriction?

MR. ROY

No. Let me point out that, of course, any purchase of the state has got to be in compliance with R.S. 40:474 which makes it you have to deal with a nonassessable type situation. The state can't get itself in any trouble.

I'll yield to any further questions.

MR. GRAHAM

Mr. Roy, perhaps you just covered it in your last comment, but I was just going to ask if you knew that there were some mutual insurance companies that are assessable companies? Unless they say specifically that they are nonassessable, then if the company did have an overall loss, they could come back and assess their policyholders for an additional amount of premium to cover their losses on an overall basis.

MR. RAYBURN

Mr. Roy, in further...with further reference to what Delegate Graham asked you, if a mutual company wants to levy an assessment against its stockholders and the bank had five million dollars worth of insurance with a mutual company, would they be liable for that assessment that they wanted to place on all the stockholders?

MR. ROY

Run that by me again, Senator.

MR. RAYBURN

Well, let's take a savings and loan or a mutual insurance company: if they had a bad year and they wanted to assess their stockholders a certain amount of money, or a certain percentage of their investments, and the state had some business with this particular company, would they be liable for that assessment?

MR. ROY

Senator, I don't know.

MR. RAYBURN

Would a savings and loan association--assuming that you were governor of this state and you wanted to create a savings and loan, and you wanted to deposit a lot of state funds in it, and then the thing didn't...you made some bad loans and you wasn't doing too good, and you had to assess your membership to kind of keep going--would the state be liable for that assessment at the end of the year?

MR. ROY

I don't know, Senator. I better move to pull this...

MR. RAYBURN

I'm afraid I know, Mr. Roy.

MR. ROY

Well, if you have some doubt about it...Mr. Chairman, on that basis I'll move to pull the amendment at this time.

[Rules Suspended to allow amendment to be withdrawn. Quorum Call: 80 delegates present and a quorum.]

MR. HENRY

Read the Avant amendments, Mr. Clerk.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1 reads as follows: Page 8, line 13 in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Perez and adopted by the convention today, after the word and punctuation "prevent;" delete the remainder of line 13 and delete lines 14 through 18 in their entirety, and on line 19, delete the word and punctuation "purpose;"

Now, the effect of all of that is to delete Subparagraph 1 of Paragraph (B). It would just delete in its entirety Subparagraph 1 of Paragraph (B). The second amendment then changes all of the subparagraph numbers--changes 2 to 1 and 3 to 2 and changes 4 to 3.

Amendment No. 3. At the end of the Perez amendment adopted by the convention on December 17, insert an additional paragraph to read as follows:

"(D) The state and its political corporations may, for a public purpose, engage in cooperative endeavors with each other or with the United States or its agencies, or with any public or private association or corporation or individual."

Explanation

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the committee proposal, as well as Mr. Perez's amendment, starts off with what on its face is a prohibition against the lending or pledging or donating of public funds to private persons or corporations. Then both of the--the committee proposal and Mr. Perez's amendment--in the next breath say, however, that that prohibition shall not prevent certain things, or as they phrase it, they say "nothing contained in this section": that is, the prohibition shall prevent certain things. Well now, that simply means when you say "nothing herein shall prevent" it, that means the same thing as except that. So, we still, then, are faced with the proposition--if you read Mr. Perez's amendment, Section (B) 1--that this intercooperation, if it is intercooperation, whatever that may mean, that you can then pledge or donate or loan public funds or credit to private individuals or to private corporations. The purpose of this amendment is to permit the objectives: that is, to permit the state and its political corporations, if you will refer to the Paragraph (D) which we have added, to engage in cooperative endeavors with the United States or its agencies or with each other or with any public or private association or corporation or individual but subject to this prohibition, and that is that the funds, credit, property or things of value of the state or its political subdivisions cannot be loaned, pledged or donated to any private person or corporation. That is the purpose of the amendment. In other words, this intercooperation would be acceptable and permissible and legal and fine, but you still can't under the guise of cooperation do what the constitution has set out to prohibit, and that is: take public funds and give them or loan them or otherwise dispose of them to private entities. For that reason, I would ask your favorable support of the amendment.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

Questions

MR. CASEY

Mr. Avant, I'm just concerned about--in Amendment No. 3--about the use of the word that you're using for the--at least for the first time I recall having seen it--a political corporation; whereas, in Mr. Perez's (D) 1, he uses political subdivision. What is the difference between a political subdivision and a political corporation?

MR. AVANT

A political subdivision is a parish, a city, perhaps a school board, but there are certain public corporations, as I understand it, which would not qualify as political subdivisions--say, your port commission--I don't think that is a political subdivision, but it is a political corporation or board. I think, Mr. Casey, that the word "political corporation" if you...I don't want to appear to be real bright. I think I picked that up out of the committee proposal. Doesn't it appear in the committee proposal?

MR. CASEY

I don't recall having seen it. But, is it your intention that it be more encompassing and broader than the word "political subdivision?" Is that your intention?

MR. AVANT

Yes, sir, but we went through that the other day if you recall in some connection. I don't remember just...But the word "political corporation" is broader and more encompassing, I feel, than "political subdivision."

MR. LANIER

Mr. Avant, right now in Delegate Bollinger's district they're having a very serious problem with the Intercoastal Canal where it's not bulkheaded, and the wave wash from the boat traffic is eating into the property outside of the right-of-way which was given to the United States government. Now, if your amendment was adopted, would that prohibit the state bulkheading along the Intercoastal Canal to protect this property that's being washed away?

MR. AVANT

Is it the state's property?

MR. LANIER

The damage is being caused outside of the right-of-way which now belongs to the federal government, as I understand it, for the Intercoastal Canal.

MR. AVANT

Well, it seems to me, Mr. Lanier, that if...Whose property is being damaged? That's what I want to...first question I would ask.

MR. ABRAHAM

Jack, I think I understand what you're trying to do, but what is the difference between intercooperation and a cooperative endeavor?

MR. AVANT

Well, I see no distinction. It's just a matter of phraseology where...

MR. ABRAHAM

Then, I don't see what we're doing. Why do we need, then, to change this language because we're saying in this Perez amendment "nothing contained shall prevent," and in your amendment we're coming right back down the line with another paragraph saying that they may do so? I don't understand the purpose of this.

MR. AVANT

I'll tell you why. As I read Subsection B, when you say--and this is where I started off, Mr. Abraham--when you come along and say "nothing contained in this section shall prevent" that's the same as saying "except that." In other words, (A) is a prohibition; then when you come along in (B) and say "nothing in this section prevents this, then you're saying--insofar as (A) is concerned--that "except that." You can't do these things, except that you can do them. Do you follow me? I wanted to disassociate this concept of intercooperation and put it down in another section so that it would not be viewed as an exception to the prohibition contained in (A). In other words, they may engage in these cooperative endeavors as long as they do not pledge, donate, or loan public funds to private individuals in order to accomplish that purpose.

MR. COMAR

Mr. Avant, I just wanted to make clear on one point here. You say "except for a public purpose" in this amendment. I would assume, then, that the state, under your amendment and under the section as is contained, would still be able to contract with various private institutions to take care of children, to take care of old folks, and those types of things which the state now does; is that correct?

MR. AVANT

I think that is a public purpose, and if you remember, I rephrased this amendment to eliminate any possibility that that would be prohibited, and I did it at your request.

MR. COMAR

Fine, thank you.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Avant, the way I understand your amendment is that both the Perez amendment and your amendment allow intercooperation between government and private agencies.

MR. AVANT

That's correct.

MR. JENKINS

The only difference is that the Perez amendment would permit the state to give public funds to private corporations or private associations in relation to this intercooperation whereas yours would not.

MR. AVANT

That's correct.

MR. BOLLINGER

Mr. Avant, my only question is in your Paragraph (D) where you have public purpose. Along the coast of Louisiana you have a tremendous amount of erosion and land that is washing away, and there are some large landholding companies, and the state as well, own property along here. Would the public purpose conflict if say the state or one of these large land companies got together and said, "well, both of our lands are washing away; let's share the expense and go ahead and do something to prevent this?" Wouldn't that be considered a public purpose, or would that...

MR. AVANT

I think that it would, and to be honest with you, I think about most anything the legislature decides is a public purpose the courts probably going to say that that's a legislative determination.

MR. DENNFY

Mr. Avant, your amendment will not prevent the continuation of the free schoolbook and free school lunch program; will it?

MR. AVANT

No, sir, I don't think it would because I think that's already been upheld as a public purpose.

MR. DENNFY

Thank you.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

[Amendments adopted without objection.]

Amendments

MR. HARDIN

Mr. Jenkins .

Amendment No. 1. On page 8, line 27 in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Perez and adopted by the convention on December 17, 1973, at the end of line 27 of the text of the amendment, delete the words "loan or".

Amendment No. 2. On page 8, line 27 in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Perez and adopted by the Convention on December 17, 1973, on line 30 of the text of the amendment, immediately after the word "indebtedness" delete the period "." and insert in lieu thereof the following, "to meet public obligations."

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, this is an amendment to Mr. Perez's amendment. You remember he started out with it in his Number 5; then it was Number 4; now, it's Number 3. This deletes the words "loan or", so that the legislature may authorize the pledge of public funds for bonds and so forth. It deletes loans so it makes sure that we're not permitting here loans to private individuals. It adds at the end after "indebtedness" the words "to meet public obligation" so that it's clear that we're not talking about just issuing bonds perhaps to meet private obligations. But, it has to be for public obligations. I urge the adoption of these amendments. I understand the committee has no objections.

[Amendments reread. Amendments adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, I have no particular objection at this point, but it seems to me that it's unwise to let the committee pass on the closing of a section because there may be some questions that have arisen that people will not have an opportunity to answer. I do believe that the Chair should see if there are any questions.

MR. HENRY

You're point is well taken, Mr. Dennery.

Mr. Planchard, you have the right to close.

Sometimes the Chair gets a little too impatient, Mr. Dennery, and I apologize for my overenthusiasm.

Closing

MR. PLANCHARD

Mr. Chairman, I sincerely wish I knew exactly what we have said now. I think we all mean exactly the same thing. It all depends on what words you use to put it across. I think that even with the amendments that we have, it's still plain to see that we do not want to allow the loaning or pledging of public property for private purposes. We have put in the necessary exceptions in order to allow the bonding, we necessarily allowed for the inner cooperation of the political subdivisions and the state, and the United States. So, I really, personally, have no objection to it.

Question

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Planchard, if this amendment should pass, and I presume that it will, would the committee have any objection to not laying it on the table?

MR. PLANCHARD

No, I have no objection whatsoever, Mr. Singletary.

[Section passed: 91-1. Motion to table reconsideration pending.]

Point of Information

MR. NUNEZ

I'm trying to find out why we've laid every section on the table, and what objection there is to not laying this section on the table like we've done with every other section. It passed 91 to 1. Why let it stay open and linger open...I don't know the reasoning behind it. If there is, we was open for discussion; we could take any amendments that you had. If we're finished with it, let's lay it on the table and get it out of the way.

Point of Information

MR. CHAMPAGNE

The only reason why I'm rising, I want to suggest that about ninety percent of the people in here don't know what's in that section now. That's why I think the man asked not to lay it on the table. I'd like to see it in writing. Right now, I don't think anybody could tell you what's in it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Champagne expressed the same motion which I wanted.

MR. HENRY

Well, I think there was sort of a gentlemen's agreement not to table it, Senator.

[Motion to consider Section 14 previously passed over adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

MR. HARDIN

"Section 14. Management of State Funds; Public Record Section 14. All reports and records of the collection, expenditure, investment, and use of state moneys and all reports and records relating to state obligations shall be matters of public record, except returns of taxpayers and matters pertaining thereto."

Explanation

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Section 14 simply provides that the public records shall be just that. The records and collection and expenditures, and investment of state money shall be public to the citizens of this state. But, it does provide that the tax returns of the citizens shall be held confidential in those matters pertaining thereto, meaning the schedules and attachments having to do with the tax returns shall remain confidential.

Question

MR. ANZALONE

John, is the reason that you all are always putting in here that these income tax returns will be private, is because you don't want the world to know that all of the mistakes that people like you make for people like us?

MR. ALARIO

That could be, Joe.

[Previous Question ordered. Section passed: 91-1. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to consider Section 15 previously passed over adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 15. Management of State Funds; Investment Section 15. All money available for investment in the custody of the state treasurer shall be invested as provided by law."

Explanation

MR. ALARIO

Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, this simply provides that the funds of the state shall be invested to make sure that we get a return on those idle funds in the state treasury, and to provide the maximum return for the citizens of our state. I ask that you adopt it.

Questions

MR. DENNERY
John, will this permit the investment of state funds in, for example, bank certificates of deposit?

MR. ALARIO
I didn't catch the beginning of it.

MR. DENNERY
Would this permit the investment of state funds, if the legislature so provided, in certificates of deposit issued by banks?

MR. ALARIO
It says "as provided by law," Mr. Dennery, so that if the legislature says that would be a procedure, then I'm sure it would be alright.

MR. DENNERY
Well, now, under Section 16(A), don't you prohibit the lending of funds for any private purposes, for any private organizations--excuse me? Isn't a certificate of deposit in effect a loan to the bank, just as the purchase of a bond, wouldn't that be a loan?

MR. ALARIO
I don't think it's a loan to the bank. Whenever the state puts up monies for certificates of deposit, it in turn has to have a pledge of certain assets equal to that amount.

MR. DENNERY
Wouldn't that be a loan? That's my whole point. When you buy a bond, that's an obligation. In other words, if a state could invest in a certificate of deposit, I suppose it could also invest in the bond of a private corporation.

MR. ALARIO
Mr. Dennery, I don't see any problem. We're following that procedure now, and that's the current law, so I don't see any problem with it.

MR. DENNERY
Well, let me go one step further then. Do you think the state could invest in private corporate stocks?

MR. ALARIO
I don't think the state could get into it, as such, Mr. Dennery. There may be some cases where they do. For instance, the retirement systems get into investing some of their idle funds in common stocks, and they're doing that now.

MR. DENNERY
Well, the reason I asked this question--and that may be the reason that it was a good idea not to table the succeeding section--it seems to me you may have run into a conflict there.

MR. ALARIO
That may be, and we may need to look at it.

MR. DENNERY
Thank you.

MR. CHAMPAGNE
When you deposit under certificates of deposit, you pledge collateral. You pledge government bonds and such. So, is this not just a simple statement in the constitution of the good practice that the law now has?

MR. ALARIO
That's right, Mr. Champagne. Thank you.

MRS. ZERVIGON
Representative Alario, when it says "as provided by law," could they provide certain exemptions from this investment policy?

MR. ALARIO
It could, Mary.

MRS. ZERVIGON
Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Section passed: 90-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER
"Section 17. Release of Obligation to State, Parish or Municipal Corporation; Taxes on Confiscated Property Section 17. The legislature shall have no power to release or extinguish or to authorize the releasing or extinguishment, in whole or in part, of the indebtedness, liability, or obligation of any corporation or individual to the state, or to any parish or municipal corporation thereof, provided, that the heirs to confiscated property may be released from all taxes due thereon at the date of its reversion to them; and provided..."

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. CONROY
Essentially, this section carries forward into the proposed new constitution two sections of the present constitution virtually word for word. Article IV, Section 13 contains the basic prohibition against the authority of the legislature to authorize releasing of indebtedness to the state, carries forward also the exception contained in that particular section to that general rule, and also carries the further exception contained in Article X, Section 20. I believe that both of these exceptions are largely historical. I would hope that somehow we can get them into the schedule rather than into the body of the constitution. At the time the committee met on this proposition, we didn't have a sufficient idea of how the schedule would operate to deal with that possibility. But, the basic thrust of Section 17 is found in the first five lines. The rest of it are exceptions, which, as I said, are historic exceptions. The basic proposition involved in Section 17 is that the legislature shall have no power to authorize the releasing of debt to the state. I'll yield to any questions.

Questions

MR. AVANT
For the record, Mr. Conroy, only, would this prohibit the compromise of a doubtful and disputed claim?

MR. CONROY
Mr. Avant, I'm not sure this is just for the record because the present policy, as I understand it, is that some basis has to be found for a determination rather than making a compromise. The attitude of the people in the department of revenue that I've dealt with, for example, has been that you can...that the department can agree with you that they will give up on certain issues and will not on other issues. But, the department of revenue is operated under a basis where they could not just agree with you on a flat, say, across the board, twenty-five percent settlement basis. This would continue in effect the same language in the present constitution which precluded their just reaching straight percentage compromises.

MR. AVANT
Well, this language is not limited to tax obligations.

MR. CONROY
That's correct.

MR. AVANT
What I'm wondering, say, they had an explosion. They frequently do, and state buildings were damaged, and you had a hot lawsuit going, and nobody could really figure out who was responsible. Could you...would this prohibit you from compromising that kind of a claim?

MR. CONROY
No, if you arrived at an amount, what you'd do in effect is that the representatives of the state agree...in any case where you have an unliquidated claim, the state could simply agree that this is the proper amount of the claim, and that's not really release of any debt or anything; that's just a determination that this is the proper amount that the state's entitled to. So, it would not preclude it under those sort of circumstances.

MR. AVANT
That's why I said it was for the record.

MR. CONROY
For an unliquidated claim, it would not prohibit a compromise.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Conroy, down on line 25 where it says, "it will be presumed conclusively that such forfeiture or adjudication was irregular and null" and that the property has been redeemed, is this affecting title to property that was patented out by the state years ago, and where some of that is in litigation now?

MR. CONROY

No. No, this carries forward again the same language of the present constitution in Article X, Section 20. It is exactly the same language, and really doesn't deal with state titles. What happened, Mrs. Miller, is that during the Civil War a great number of tax sales took place in this state. In 1879 an effort was made to try to straighten out and correct the situation because, with regard to a number of those tax sales, the tax debtor... supposed tax debtor had never moved off the property; the records were not in very good shape; and there was some rather serious feeling about the impropriety of some of the tax sales having taken place in the first place. So, that's what happened in 1880... or 1879--I can't remember which year it was--there was an effort made to forgive these old indebtednesses and to wipe the slate clean after the Civil War days. In order to do that, this was necessary as an exception to the basic proposition that the state could not forgive these debts, and it did in some cases straighten out titles because there had been some subsequent tax sales involved while the property was presumably in the state. But, I think in most of these cases, it involves... it doesn't involve a claim by the state anymore, not since 1880. It just is needed to keep titles straight, but it hasn't involved the state in the title since 1880.

MRS. MILLER

This is a continuation of what's in the present constitution?

MR. CONROY

Present constitutional provisions--no change at all in that regard.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Conroy, adverting again to the questions that Mr. Avant asked, under the law which becomes effective on the first of January when the department of revenue starts worrying with the inheritance taxes, questions of valuation would fall within the unliquidated claim of your explanation?

MR. CONROY

Yes. In the way in which I've seen it applied, Mr. Dennery, yes; that would fall in that same category.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Jenkins sends up amendments at this time, reading as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 9, line 13, after the punctuation "17." and before the word "The" insert the letter "(A)".

Amendment No. 2. On page 9, line 17, after the word and punctuation "thereof," and before the word "provided" insert the following: "provided, that the legislature may establish a system whereby claims by the state or political subdivisions may be compromised, and".

Amendment No. 3. On page 9, between lines 29 and 30, insert the following:

"(B) All taxes and licenses, other than real property taxes, shall prescribe in three years from the thirty-first day of December in the year in which such taxes or licenses are due, but prescription may be interrupted or suspended as provided by law."

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, these amendments are an attempt to solve some problems that I think are in the committee proposal. Amendments 1 and 3 go together, and 2 is separate. Really, they deal with different ideas, different concepts.

Amendment No. 2 does this. It provides that the legislature could establish a system whereby claims that the state might have can be compromised. As I read the committee proposal, such compromises are prohibited. Now, here's what that means. Let's take an example. Suppose you are out on the highways and run into a state-owned vehicle and do certain damages to it. Well, as I appreciate it, if the estimate of damage would be, say, a thousand dollars by the state, there would be no way that the state could agree with you to accept less than that amount, even though any other private individual could compromise such a claim. Apparently, if you wouldn't pay the full amount, it would have to go to court for final determination.

Suppose someone had a contract with the state and he got into financial hardship and for some reason or another couldn't meet all his obligations, there is no authority under this section to compromise the claim.

The same is true in tax matters. The Internal Revenue Service naturally compromises tax claims every day. It does so it has the talent to do so; it has the efficiency to do so. Certainly, in this state, we should be enlightened enough, I think, to be able to provide a system whereby compromises can be agreed to. I can cite an example of how compromises are just absolutely necessary to insure justice from time to time.

There was a private school here in Baton Rouge that I know of that was formed about ten years ago. They did not incorporate under the nonprofit laws of the state. But, they were, in fact, not a profit making organization, operated by the parents. They called the Division of Employment Security when they opened their doors. They were told that they did not have to withhold unemployment compensation taxes. Time passed. Then, last year, they were informed by the state that they owed all the back unemployment compensation taxes as long back as prescription would allow them to go--even though they had been told not to. Now, the Division of Employment Security knew that it would be unjust to charge them this twenty-five or thirty thousand dollars, but under the law, there was no way they could work out an equitable compromise, despite the fact that no one working at that school had ever drawn unemployment compensation. So, there needs to be some way to compromise claims. The legislature under this, would be able to, either through some claims commission, or by approval of the department heads, or whatever it wanted to work out.

Amendment No. 3 deals with prescription. It incorporates Article XIX, Section 19 of the present constitution, which provides that taxes prescribe after three years. The present constitutional provision has been interpreted to mean that the legislature can pass statutes, which allow prescription to be interrupted or suspended. So, that is included in the last clause of this amendment.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Jenkins, how would the three year prescription affect severance taxes in connection with tidelands disputes?

MR. JENKINS

Because of the fact that we say, "prescription can be interrupted or suspended as provided by law," it would not. At present, prescription is not running. It has been suspended.

MR. DENNERY

Isn't there a special article in the constitution right now which does that?

MR. JENKINS

That's correct. This allows that to continue in force. We may need to put something in the schedule, I think, regardless of whether we adopt this, to make sure that that continues, though.

MR. DENNERY

The second provision which leaves it to the legislature, presumably that's to take care of those cases where there is fraud in the filing of a tax return, or failure to file a tax return. Is that correct, sir?

MR. JENKINS

In regard to Amendment No. 2?

MR. DENNERY

No, no. Amendment No. 3. The question about the prescription.

MR. JENKINS

Now Amendment No.... you may have a copy of an amendment that mentions fraud and late filing.

MR. DENNERY

No. I just want to know if the provisions that you have which say that prescription may be interrupted or suspended; will that take care of those instances where there is fraud in the filing of a tax return, or complete failure?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, it would. That is the.... in fact, our revised statutes specifically provides at present.... that prescription is interrupted and suspended in most cases, and enumerates about four or five other cases. So, this would continue that authority.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, in reference to the question Mr. Dennery asked you regarding the tidelands settlement, isn't it true that under the language of your Amendment No. 3, that if the tidelands weren't settled for the next twenty years, that at the end of that period of time, unless the legislature took some affirmative action, that the oil companies owing the severance tax on that land which will eventually be declared state property, would never owe but three years in taxes?

MR. JENKINS

No, that's not true at all. As long as the tidelands question is unsettled, we can provide that prescription will be interrupted and suspended. That's the way it is at present. In fact, there is a provision in the present constitution that so provides. I don't know, if we don't put something in here, if that will still be possible to so provide. That's why, one reason that this is worded in this manner, to provide that that instance--fraudulent claims, late filings, and things like that--prescription will not run in those cases.

MR. FLORY

I know, but...and I'm familiar with the 1962 Amendment that was placed in the constitution in that regard. But, aren't you, in effect, continuing the tax exemption for those corporations who owe ad valorem taxes, once the tidelands issue is settled?

MR. JENKINS

No, we're suspending it until it's settled, and at that time, they'll have to pay it.

MR. FLORY

But only if the legislature provides it--the interruption for prescription. Isn't that correct?

MR. JENKINS

Well, that's true. But, it is so provided for now, and I assume it's going to continue. Whether or not we adopt this is not going to affect that. We're still going to have the law continuing the interruption of prescription regardless of whether we adopt this amendment. We've got to so provide.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Jenkins, you realize in the year 1972 we passed an act wherein the state could recover for inheritance taxes. That is, our inheritance taxes would be like that of the federal government. If you didn't file a return, they would not prescribe.

Now, under this particular provision here that you have, wouldn't we go back to the old system where those taxes would prescribe after three years, in the year in which they are due, and, therefore, the state couldn't collect them?

MR. JENKINS

No, this, I hate to say it again, J. D. This is the present law. Amendment No. 3 is the present law in Article XIX, Section 19 which says that "all taxes prescribe after three years." But, the legislature has passed certain laws under the 1921 Constitution allowing the suspension or interruption of prescription." So, I've included that in this last clause. So, this gives greater authority to suspend the effect of prescription in inheritance tax cases than you have under the present constitution. There is some question under the present constitution really whether you can suspend prescription. This gives constitutional authority to suspend prescription from running.

MR. DE BLIEUX

I'm just concerned about that because it looked like to me you would be allowing some people to get by without paying their taxes after a period of even....

MR. JENKINS

No, this allows the statutory authority, presently in the statutes, to continue in that regard. Whereas, there is some question in the 1921 Constitution whether you can interrupt or suspend prescription because the 1921 Constitution is unequivocal. It says "all taxes prescribe after three years."

Further Discussion

MR. CONROY

On these two issues, I am not certain that I can say I speak for the committee. I can only speak for myself with regard to both.

First, with regard to the prescription question, or this delimitation period. It is my personal feeling that it is not necessary to deal with that question in the constitution. In the Local and Parochial Government Article, there is a section referring to the running of prescription against the state which I think was intended to permit the legislature to enact appropriate laws with regard to prescription. My personal feeling was that that was adequate to handle the question of prescription. Mr. Jenkins felt that it was still somewhat doubtful. I think the questions that have been asked with regard to the effect of this provision raised some of the questions that existed in my mind as to the extent to which you have to spell it out if you start getting into the question of prescription in the constitution. However, frankly, I feel that as written, Amendment 3 should not be objectionable. It seems to me that it essentially carries forward the basics of our present constitutional provisions and would be an appropriate way to handle it. I don't think it is necessary, but I think this is appropriate language to handle it.

With regard to the right of the state or political subdivision to compromise claims, I think that that's a question for this body to decide as a matter of theory or philosophy what it wants to do and what it wants to permit. I think that the concepts in the past have been that the right of state officials to compromise rights of the state, or claims by the state, should be narrowly construed as has been, I think, the theory up until now, that it was unwise to permit public officials to be able under the guise of compromise to decide how individuals could be treated. Because, after all, remember, that this can be the subject of political pressures or questions, and so forth, when you start a broad program of being able to compromise state claims against individuals or corporations. I think it was....I think the present constitutional provisions are wise. I think that it unwise to have a broad grant of authority to compromise claims. It could be that the legislature under this program here would severely restrain the areas under which compromises could be entered. I assume that's why Mr. Jenkins did it the way he did, that the legislature may establish a system. But, my personal feeling is that it's unwise--it's an unwise provision.

Questions

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Conroy, would Mr. Jenkins' amendment permit the compromise of a tax claim, including any penalties and interest which may have arisen?

MR. CONROY

I assume so. The way it's written, I assume that it would permit the legislature to set out whatever it wanted to with regard to the....system whereby any sort of claim could be compromised.

MR. DENNERY

Now, in a tax claim, suppose you get into court with a tax claim? Is it possible at that point, under the language of the committee proposal, to then compromise based upon the hazards of litigation?

MR. CONROY

As I understand it, not on the hazards of litigation. That is correct. That is the precise problem or area that the state, perhaps, has found itself in for some time as it is generally felt that the state cannot compromise on the hazards of litigation basis solely. They have to have some other basis upon which they can settle issues, or find facts, or find issues of law that they say, "This is the way it is in our judgment, this is the correct way.... disposition of this matter, and not just say that we have a twenty-percent chance of success, or we settle it for twenty percent of the state's claim.

MR. DENNERY

The committee's position is that that should remain the law. Is that correct?

MR. CONROY

....it's difficult for me to say what the committee's position is on that. That's my feeling, yes, Mr. Dennery. But, I'm afraid that this wasn't sufficiently discussed at the committee level for me to speak for the committee.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Conroy, the present law is geared to the fact that the state can only pay out your money and mine after a judicial interpretation in most instances. Is that correct?

MR. CONROY

That's correct.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. ANZALONE

What this is going to do is turn around and say we are going to be able to compromise in any instance?

MR. CONROY

That's what it would open the door to. Yes. That's why I feel it unwise.

MR. ANZALONE

Now, Mr. Conroy, in connection with that, have you ever seen a thirty thousand dollar back that was settled for about seven hundred and fifty dollars?

MR. CONROY

A what?

MR. ANZALONE

A thirty thousand dollar back that was settled for seven hundred and fifty dollars?

MR. CONROY

Well, I guess anything is possible.

MR. ANZALONE

I have never filed a tort suit in my life for less than a million.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I've discussed this amendment, particularly Amendment "B" with Mr. Jenkins. I'm not an attorney, but it's difficult for me to understand how tax cases in the State of Louisiana can be settled without, in some instances, settling them on the hazards of litigation. Now, how we've gotten around that in the state, I don't know because many cases at the federal level are settled purely on the hazards of litigation. What happens--and then what happens is that the...state government accepts what's happened at the federal level. So by accepting what's happened at the federal level, they have, in effect, accepted that settlement based upon the hazards of litigation. As a layman, I'll tell you how I appreciate it when I'm dealing with a client. We may have a client that has a tax case with the federal government, and the agent will come in and say that the salaries that have been paid are excessive, and that instead of the salaries being a hundred thousand, that the reasonable salaries are fifty thousand. That the other fifty thousand is a dividend. So, the agent at the district level cannot settle on the hazards of litigation. It's either right or it's wrong. So, then, by the time you get to the appellate level with the appellate conferee--that's the last step before you go in the tax court--he has the authority to settle on the hazards of litigation. He might decide, "Well, we've won half of these cases on reasonable compensation, and we've lost half. We have fifty thousand dollars involved so we'll settle for twenty-five, because if we go with the case, we may lose it all. If we don't, we're sure we'll get half if we settle on the hazards of litigation. The hazards of litigation are fifty-fifty."

So, at that point, the federal government agrees to a compromise. That compromise in this hypothetical case is purely on the hazards of litigation. So, then that taxpayer signs an agreement. That agreement, due to exchange of information between federal and the state, goes to the state. The state accepts it. The state assesses that taxpayer on the same basis that the federal assessed them. So, in that case, I would submit to you that we are, in the State of Louisiana, already settling cases and compromising on the hazards of litigation. I don't think it's possible to settle tax cases without some sort of compromise based upon the hazards of litigation. I don't think that you would want to take every taxpayer into the courts. It's just not practical. Now, I'm not an attorney, but I've given it to you the way I appreciate it. I think that we do need some provision for compromise. So, I'm going to support Mr. Jenkins' amendment.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I want to emphasize that this deals not only with tax claims, it deals with all sorts of claims that the state has against people, whether it's in contract, in tort, taxes, you name it. It would be somewhat absurd, really, to say that the legislature could not provide a system whereby these claims can be compromised. It's standard business procedure, it's efficiency, it's good economics, to say that you don't have to go all through every possible area of litigation before you can compromise a claim. That's why this is needed. If we adopt it, it will save the state money because it will save us court costs, time of attorneys, and everything else. We'll be able to reach amicable agreements to get the sort of funds that we deserve to the extent that we can.

With regard to the last amendment, again I want to mention this as the present law that we are retaining with regard to prescription in tax cases. So, I urge the adoption of all three.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 9, between lines 29 and 30, in Floor Amendment No. 3 proposed by Delegate Jenkins and just adopted, immediately after the language added by said amendment, add the following:

Now, that's the one that added Paragraph (B).

"No state, district, parish, or other tax, license, fee or assessment of any kind or nature, with all interest charges and penalties appertaining thereto, imposed, due or collectible, upon any property, minerals or the severance thereof, or due or payable by any person, firm or corporation upon any business operation or activity within the Tidelands area in dispute between the state and the United States and within the state's historic gulfward boundary three leagues from coast, as established and defined by the Act of Congress of April 8, 1812, which admitted this state into the Union, and as re-defined in Act 33 of the 1954 Legislature of Louisiana, shall prescribe until three years after the 31st day of December in the year in which the controversy existing between the United States and the State of Louisiana over its said state gulfward boundary shall have been finally resolved and settled in accordance with law; provided, however, no interest charges nor penalties shall be assessed or collected on any such tax, license, fee or assessment if such tax, license, fee or assessment is paid within one year after the 31st day of December in the year in which such controversy is finally resolved and settled."

Explanation

MR. AVANT

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think this is a technical amendment, and that it is necessary at this point in time in view of the adoption of the Jenkins amendment. I've talked to several members of the committee. The ones that I've talked to say they have no objection to it. I've talked to Mr. Jenkins. He has no objection to it. I think that later on, it can be incorporated into the schedule, or something. But I did feel that as a technical matter at this point in time, we had to take some action on this particular thing in view of Mr. Jenkins' amendment which says that all taxes and licenses shall prescribe in three years, but that the legislature will provide how prescription will be interrupted or suspended. As I interpret that, that requires some affirmative act on the part of the legislature. Now this constitutional provision which is presently word for word Article XIX, Section 10 (A) was adopted in 1962 it was not objected to. In fact, I think it was desired by both the petroleum industry and the people who are engaged in business in the disputed area, and also the state. Because, you are on the horns of a dilemma; the state, if they did nothing, then these taxes would prescribe. Yet, the only thing they could do was attempt to collect them, and then each year the companies would have to be paying them under protest and bringing suits all over the state to get it back. This was the solution that was apparently agreed upon. It's what the people put in the constitution. I certainly wouldn't want us to do anything to jeopardize this constitutional provision and to permit this vast amount of money that may be due the state to prescribe.

So, I don't think there's any objection to it. It's technical in nature, and I ask your favorable vote on the amendment. If they want to put it in the schedule or do something like that with it, well that suits me.

Question

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Avant, would the words "the legislature is authorized to pass laws with regard to prescription", would that accomplish the intent of your amendment?

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. AVANT

No, sir, it wouldn't, because let me tell you the way I see it. I think that that requires some affirmative act on the part of the legislature after this constitution becomes effective--if it becomes effective. In view of that, I think that's just about the biggest log you could roll and there ain't no telling where the coon's going to jump.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 76-6. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

MR. CONROY

I think it's been discussed. If there are any questions, I'll be happy to answer them.

[Section passed: 85-9. Motion to table reconsideration adopted: 64-20.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

Incidentally, there have been several requests, particularly from Mr. Champagne, for a copy of what Section 16 looked like as amended. We've just had passed out--which was prepared by the Enrolling Room--a copy of that section as it has been presently floor amended. Of course, again, that's unofficial. If anyone wants to draft an amendment, don't do it to that, but go back and draft it to the amendments adopted to the Section.

"Section 18. Legislation to Enable Compliance With Federal Laws and Regulations to Secure Federal Aid in Capital Improvement Projects Section 18. The legislature may enact legislation to enable the state, its agencies, boards and commissions and political subdivisions of the state, and their agencies, to comply with federal laws and regulations in order to secure federal participation in the cost of capital improvement projects."

Explanation

MR. GOLDMAN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think I have one here that's not controversial, except for those who have a philosophy of not wanting to use any federal monies; but if you have that philosophy, of course, you will vote against this and the state won't use any. This grant...in the old constitution--or in the 1921 Constitution--the legislature was granted the power to pass legislation to enable compliance with federal laws and regulations to secure federal aid in capital improvement projects. This proposed Section 18 represents no change in the present provision, except for a modernization of the language and a reduction of the lineage. There were thirteen lines of extremely small type in the 1921 Constitution and this provides five lines of larger type and reduces the length of this particular article. I don't know whether there will be any amendments to it. I hope not and I'd like to move the adoption of this article.

[Previous Question ordered. Section passed: 84-14. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Personal Privilege

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, of course I know no part of this particular proposal has been drafted up so you can tell exactly what we've got in it, since we started out. We started out with a very, very good proposal in my estimation, but when we got to Section 4, we started chopping it to pieces. Let me tell you some of the things we've done: in addition to putting restrictions in this particular proposal, which benefits only the high income tax people, we've also put in this provision taking away quite a large sum of money from our dedication of funds to school education, by increasing the allowable exemptions from--I mean the allowable portions of the severance taxes to the various parishes--from two hundred thousand to three hundred thousand dollars. We also give another hundred thousand dollars to each one of the sulphur parishes. We have exempted from this the timber taxes which doesn't count insofar as the allocation of money concerned for those parishes that have timber in them. We have absolutely cut up this particular proposal where we just won't know where we stand insofar as finances are concerned for this state. We have little opportunity to correct them; I just want to let you know that. When your schools come around and find out they don't have enough money to operate because there wasn't enough in the state treasury to allocate enough for education, I want to let you know who's at fault for doing it. We are going to have to answer for some of these problems sometime, and you may not be running for public office, but yet nevertheless it will be part of our work here that have done this particular job. I just want to ask you now, Mr. Chairman, if I may, so that we may put this thing in proper perspective, so that we can have a...Mr. Chairman, I don't want to vote against the whole proposal, but if it stays in this particular form I would be forced to do so. But, I'm asking now in all good conscience and graces, I would like to make a motion that we suspend the rules to reconsider Section 4, so that we won't have to apologize to our people for what we have done. Whether that particular proposal is the only one that I'm really concerned with...I'd just like to make that motion now--if I'm in order--to suspend the rules so that we may reconsider Section 4.

[Motion to suspend the rules to reconsider Section 4 rejected: 39-48.]

Motion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman, out of a matter of courtesy to one of our fellow delegates, she asked during the discussion of one of our sections if the committee would have any objection to suspending the rules for her to go back into the section for a specific purpose---that is her amendment. As a matter of courtesy, we have no objection to doing that consideration on her behalf. In that light I so move that we suspend the rules in order to go back into Section 7 for the consideration of Mrs. Zervigon's amendment.

[Motion adopted: 60-27.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1, on page 4, between lines 10 and 11 in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Perez and adopted by the convention on the 14th, on line 2 of the text of the amendment at the beginning of the line, delete the words "or to any political subdivision" and insert in lieu thereof the following: ", any political subdivision or local public agency".

Explanation

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is an amendment of very limited purpose. Mr. Roemer said that it was not his intention that the full faith and credit of the state be pledged bond issues issued by local public agencies. The problem is there are agencies--and I'm sure each of you will have agencies like this in your parish that are not exactly districts--that you are not certain whether or not they are covered in the definition of political subdivisions that issue their bonds and back up their own bonds, or your parish backs up the bonds, that don't require the full faith and credit of the state and therefore you would like to be able to issue them yourselves without the two-thirds vote of the legislature. The example that comes to mind in my parish are the housing authority of New Orleans which issues bonds that are backed up by the city and the Urban Renewal Agency of New Orleans which issues bonds in the same way. They are not special districts really; I'm not exactly sure they are political subdivisions. They are just agencies of our local government and they would like to continue to issue bonds in the same manner in which they have issued bonds and they do not request that the full faith and credit of the state be pledged to them. So, I ask that you adopt this amendment. I'm open to any questions that I can answer.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mrs. Zervigon, would not the dock board, the sewage and water board and agencies of that sort also fall in this category?

MRS. ZERVIGON

I think not, Reverend. I believe the dock boards...I'm not certain about the dock boards to tell you the truth. It isn't local totally, I don't believe, but what I'm trying to get at is agencies that are purely local or authorities that are appointed by the city council of New Orleans and that sort of thing. The sewage and water board, as I understand it, is a drainage district. Drainage districts weren't meant to be covered by this section. Special districts are excluded when you use the word political subdivisions. There are other sorts of agencies. Local public agencies like the housing authority and like the urban renewal agencies, which are clearly creatures of the city of New Orleans, which have never asked to be backed by the full faith and credit of the state. It seems to me that any agency that is asking to be backed by the full faith and credit of the state has to subject themselves to the requirement of a two-thirds vote of the legislature. I have no quarrel with that.

102nd Days Proceedings—December 17, 1973

MR. ALEXANDER

Even though you have New Orleans in mind, Baton Rouge, Shreveport, and other larger municipalities may be involved here also; isn't that a fact?

MRS. ZERVIGON

I feel certain that they are, especially if they established agencies of this type. The problem is--and I'm sure it is true of all of us--that I don't know nearly as much about other parishes as I know about my own.

I move for adoption of this amendment, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 87-1. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 94-1. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Isn't there one section which we haven't yet tabled--Section 16?

MR. HENRY

You are correct, sir.

MR. DENNERY

I believe I have an amendment up there for that.

MR. HENRY

That's just what we are trying to get straight, Mr. Dennerly, that there are amendments.

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Dennerly has an amendment which was proposed to 16 and Mrs. Zervigon has a further amendment proposing the addition of a Section 19, I believe.

[Motion to reconsider Section 16 adopted without objection.]

Reconsideration Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Dennerly at this time, now, sends up amendments. Amendment No. 1, on page 8, line 27, in Floor Amendment No.

1 proposed by Delegate Perez and others and adopted by the convention on today, in line 30 after the amendment proposed by Delegate Jenkins and adopted by the convention on today at the end of the line insert the following:

"(4) the legislature by a favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected members of each house from authorizing the loan, pledge, or donation of public funds in the furtherance of facilities and other programs having a public purpose;"

Explanation

MR. DENNERY

This was the language which was originally in Mr. Perez's amendment and he deleted. I think it's essential if we are going to permit the state and its agencies to invest funds in certificates of deposit, for example. Section 15 says that all money available for investment in the custody of the state treasurer shall be invested as provided by law, but then Section 16 comes along and says "except as otherwise provided," and I don't think this is a sufficient other provision. The funds of the state or any, of any political subdivision thereof shall not be loaned, etc., to any corporation, public or private. Now, the investment of funds and the certificate of deposit, in my humble opinion, is purely a loan of state funds. Now, it's true it's a secured loan, but nevertheless it is a loan of state funds, technically. It seems to me that by not having language of this sort in here, we will prohibit the state and its political subdivisions from making investments in term certificates of deposit which the state customarily does. It's greatly to the advantage of the state and its subdivisions to make this type of an investment and I think we will prohibit it without such a provision. That is the reason I have submitted the amendment and I ask for its adoption.

Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Dennerly, if you won't allow to be sure that there is no doubt that time certificates of deposits are allowed to be investments by the state, why don't you just do that rather than just gutting this complete section. Hasn't this been in our law a long time and wouldn't by leaving it up to a two-thirds of the legislature to give away anything in the state, you really gut the effectiveness of it?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Jenkins, I'm primarily interested in the loan of public funds. If you want me to delete "pledge or donation," I would have no objection strenuously to that, but it seems to me that in order to permit not only the loan and the certificate of deposit, but this would prohibit the investment in a private corporate bond, for example, which again is a loan and yet it might be to the advantage of one of the pension trust funds to invest in that fashion.

MR. JENKINS

But, if we put loans in there, then the state could in effect be a bank--lending money to anyone for any public purpose which the courts have interpreted it as just about anything. Isn't that correct?

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Jenkins, I have no objection to changing the language, I just pulled this language because that's the way it was. Now, if you think that the language is too broad, I certainly have no objection to changing. My purpose is not to prohibit the investing of state funds in investments such as certificate of deposit of banks.

MR. JENKINS

One more question, isn't it a fact that we have had a prohibition against the state loaning public monies, but, in fact, we have always had state investment in bonds, we have always had, in recent years, state investment and time certificate of deposits and there has never been any difficulty in that regard?

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Jenkins, of course, a number of our laws have been more honored in the breach than in the observance, but if we are going to do that, then I think we ought to correct it.

MR. TATE

Mr. Dennerly, when you say "enacted by a two-thirds vote," you do mean "by law enacted by a two-thirds vote?"

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I think that Mr. Dennerly's point that it might be advisable to make investment in time deposits is certainly a good point. If he would offer a proposal to do that, I think that it would be acceptable even though we've had no difficulty in the past with regard to making investment in time deposits, and I don't think we will in the future because there's no one who can raise that issue in a court of law. But, to completely gut the prohibition against giving away or lending public funds or pledging public funds is far beyond the intent of his amendment. So, I think that in regard for this principle that has been our constitution for so long, that public funds ought not to be used in these ways. We certainly should reject his amendment.
