Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Roll Call

[86 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Conroy Lord, we ask that You endow us with the humility, the love and understanding of one another required to make the product of our work pleasing to You. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADDPTION OF THE JOURNAL

Mr. Poynter On pages 8 and 9 with respect to the adoption of several amendments, and in particular, an amendment sent up by Delegate Alphonse Jackson and a subsequent amendment sent up by Delegate Duval, we've got some scrambled eggs in the Journal. They've been straightened out, but they left out a number of things and got Mr. Duval's amendment out of place in the middle of the adoption of a second amendment. So, I just wanted to point that out. If you're looking at 8 and 9, it's going to be pretty well scrambled up by the time you get through the first roll call there, but all that's been straightened out.

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 7, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee.

The status of the proposal: the convention has adopted as amended Sections 1 through 4, 6; has voted to delete from the proposal Section 5; presently has under consideration Section 7. Mr. Chairman, there is one further amendment mentioned on yesterday, that offered by Delegate Morris and Delegate Flory, pending at the desk.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment sent up by Delegate Flory and Delegate Morris as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 3, delete lines 21 through 27, both inclusive, in their entirety and all amendments adopted thereto and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(B) Board membership; terms. The board shall consist of fifteen electors appointed by the governor, with the consent of the Senate, for overlapping terms of six years, following initial terms which shall be fixed by law. There shall be at least one member, and no more than two members, appointed from each of the several congressional districts."

Explanation

Mr. Morris Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the board...the amendment does just exactly what the Clerk says. It sets the membership at fifteen, the method of appointment and the limitations--at least one from each congressional district and no more than two from any one congressional district. I feel this is more representative, and it's a proposal that I have strong feelings about. I hope that you can accept this proposal.

I'll be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

Mr. Juneau Mr. Morris, if we adopted the suggestion which you have in this amendment, wouldn't we end up with an unusual situation with having a Board of Educaiton for Elementary and Secondary Education composed quite differently from higher education, and what rationale do you have for that, sir?

Mr. Morris Well, Mr. Juneau, several members asked me that this morning, and my answer to them was something like this: that the state board as it affects secondary and elementary education, most of the functions and the duties having to do with curriculum, etc., are prescribed in statutes already. This is not true with higher education. I see no conflict at all, in my thinking or my idea about the education. I might even have been so disposed as to appoint--as long as we have an elective superintendent--support an appointive board at elementary-secondary level.

Mr. Juneau Well, wouldn't it be more consistent for constitutional purposes to have the two boards which are, in essence, representing people, for those boards to be composed on a like basis? Wouldn't that...it just seems to me that we'd have a hard time...

Mr. Morris The only problem I have with that is the fact that it says somewhere in here that the state superintendent may, at sometime, be appointive. As long as that provision is in there. I think that we should have a setup that if he becomes appointive, that we have an elective board.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Morris, didn't you get up before us the other day and argue very strongly for an elected state superintendent of education?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier Why don't you feel that the people of the State of Louisiana should have a say-so in electing the people who will be in overall charge of higher education?

Mr. Morris Well, there is...I'm probably aware of this as much as anybody in the state--this tremendous competition for the higher educational dollar--and I would hate to see...I would hate to see that board become completely politicalized where everybody was looking out for their own little college without anybody having an overall concept of what was happening in higher education in the State of Louisiana.

Mr. Riecke Mr. Morris, why do you feel that a board appointed by the governor could do a better job in controlling higher education than one elected by the people?

Mr. Morris I didn't necessarily say that, Mr. Riecke. I really...

Mr. Riecke But, that's actually what would happen.

Mr. Morris Well, if...if you follow the rationale that you're...what you're saying, that every office, every board in the State of Louisiana should be an elected one.

Mr. Riecke No, I didn't say that. But, this is a very powerful board. This controls a great part of higher education, and the governor will appoint that? It would certainly be a political board rather than one elected by the people.

Mr. Morris It has to be, and these people have to be confirmed by the Senate, also.

Mr. Stinson Jimmy, I'll ask you a question that I asked yesterday and it wasn't satisfactorily answered. Isn't it a fact that under you bill--your amendment--one governor who serves two consecutive terms will appoint the entire board?

Mr. Morris I said to you sitting over there when you came back to your seat that I thought he would. He has to be...they have to be...particularly, if he served two terms, and it would have to be confirmed by the Senate. I don't see it any other way.

Mr. Stinson Why not make them for longer terms or something? Don't you think education is too important to have the terms so any one governor-- I don't care who he is--will appoint the entire deal and run the show?

Mr. Morris I do, and I was just trying to follow the outline or the scheme of the original Proposal No. 7. The seventeen man board was knocked out, and this was the closest number--odd number--that I could come up with. I was trying to follow the scheme. I agree with what you said; yes, sir.

Mr. Stinson It isn't the number on the board, it's the length of the term of office that will determine whether one governor could appoint all of them.

Mr. Morris I wouldn't...I personally was opposed to fourteen year terms like the Board of Supervisors had. I wouldn't mind having a longer term. That wouldn't bother me. I hadn't talked to Mr. Flory about it, but it wouldn't bother me at all.

Mr. Stinson I sure think it would help it.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Morris, didn't we adopt an amendment that would provide for an elected board, yesterday, by a vote of 69 to 46?

Mr. Morris Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Zervigon Doesn't your proposal almost--not quite, but almost--to the letter go back to the proposal yesterday as we rejected it, really, by that vote--the main difference being that the committee proposal required two from each congressional district, and yours only allows it? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Morris Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, what compelling reason has come up overnight that would...you would ask twenty folks to change their minds on this thing?

Mr. Morris Mrs. Zervigon, I said awhile ago that I felt like that higher education and the competition that would occur on that board--that the best educational systems that we have in the university and college might be reduced to the middle or to the lower end of it, depending upon the politics on that board. I hope that that wouldn't happen, but in my mind it's a real possibility.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, Mr. Morris, has that changed since yesterday?

Mr. Morris No, I voted against the amendment yesterday, and I felt very strongly against it, although I didn't say anything because we were urged unless we had some new...something to say, not just to get up and say, "Me, too." I tried to follow that sort of instructions from our chairman. But, I do feel real strong about this, and education is a field that I spent my lifework in. I feel like I have some knowledge of it, and I feel compelled to have something to say about it this morning.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, Mr. Morris, let me ask you one more quick question. You said that some institution that was at the upper end of the scale in higher education might be moved to the middle or the lower end. Do you really believe there ought to be that much difference among our institutions, or shouldn't each one of them be very good at what it does? They don't necessarily have to all try to do the same thing. But, shouldn't each one of them be very good, just for the good of the state?

Mr. Morris Mrs. Zervigon, what you are saying is very true as far as you go. I don't think every college and every university in the state all should have advanced degrees in every discipline that they might want. I want to make sure that some colleges do have higher degrees in certain disciplines that are necessary if our state colleges are to advance and our state universities are to advance. I don't want to see every college, everyplace in the state, offering PhD's in every discipline you can think of.

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Morris, I'm just looking at: "the board shall consist of fifteen electors appointed." Why the number fifteen? Any specific reason?

Mr. Morris No, sir, other than that was as close to the proposal as I could stay, Mr. Bergeron.

Mr. Bergeron I'm just looking at the basis of "appointed"..."appointed." Do you remember--well, I don't believe you were here, but in the Executive Article we adopted an amendment which could call for an appointed or an elected superintendent after 1976. Do you realize we could have an appointed superintendent and appointed board for higher education?

Mr. Morris Yes, but I would say to you, Mr. Bergeron, that the state superintendent's vast... the vast part of his work is done in elementary and secondary education rather than higher education, per se.

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Morris, I would like to reiterate a question that you did not answer awhile ago. Why would appointed people be more qualified than elected people?

Mr. Morris If I didn't answer the question, I attempted to, Mr. Anzalone. I said--and I'll say again--that I think that an appointed board would not have the pressures to represent just a single area on them than an elective official would have. If you were elected on that board, you would, I know you would have to, by the very virtue of the fact that you live so close to Southeastern University to do all in your powers to raise...elevate them to a certain degree. That's the way the system generally works.

Mr. Anzalone Well, now, Mr. Morris, in connection with that, would you say that everybody has fared so badly in the past by going before an elected legislature for the tax dollar that you are saying that there is so much competition for?

Mr. Morris I can tell you that they may not have fared so badly, but they haven't received--if you look at what the requests are as opposed to what they receive, you'll see a great difference. The thing I'm saying, Mr. Anzalone, if you don't understand me, is, they request a great deal more, and their wishes are a great deal more than they actually receive--colleges and universities.

Mr. Anzalone Well, Mr. Morris, and high schools and elementary schools and everybody does that. There's no question about that.

Mr. Willis Mr. Morris, to accomplish what you have in your amendment, why don't...and under the operative provisions of our constitution, why don't you make the governor either superintendent of education, a co-superintendent, or assistant superintendent because that will be the result or the consequence or the sequence of your amendment? Isn't that correct, after the glorious year of the two hundredth anniversary of America--1976?

Mr. Morris It is a glorious year; I agree with that, but I don't agree with the other things that you said; no.

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Morris, don't you honestly believe that it takes a special breed to fill this bill on this, to find a man or a woman with the capabilities of performing all the duties outlined in this proposal and, at the same time, has the desire and the willingness to serve and can do that? Don't you think it takes a kind of a special breed that needs a highly selective process to determine?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Morris Yes I do, Mr. Hernandez, I surely do. I think that quite likely you might appoint some people that wouldn't run for the office.

Mr. Hernandez I wanted to ask you if you didn't think that was a distinct possibility?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Morris, I'm concerned about the real life politics of this and not just the theory. I want to ask you: isn't it true, under this plan, that until the year 1984 Governor Edwards will have appointed, under this plan, a majority of the membership, and they would have control over this board through the year 1984? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Morris Well, Mr. Jenkins, you've asked several questions. One, I said to Mr. Stinson that I did think that this governor, if he serves two terms, would have control of the board, if the Senate confirms that governor's appointments to these boards. I felt the same way under the other proposition--the committee one--and gave a great deal of thought about it and could accept that in my thinking. Yes, I do think--you have evidently worked out the year; I haven't. If you say that, I accept what you worked out because you're a bright young man, and I know that you've done it correctly.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Morris, under my figuring, here, if Governor Edwards had two terms, he would appoint one hundred percent of the board through the year 1982, sixty-six and two-thirds through the year 1984, and through the year 1986 he would still have one-third of the board who would be his appointees. Now, aren't we as much as we may like Governor Edwards or any governor aren't we giving such a person extraordinary control over the entire higher education system in this state, under this amendment--a type of control which has never existed before?

Mr. Morris I'm sure that is the point, Mr. Jenkins, and due to the term of office I'm sure that this can prevail, as you say.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Morris, so that we can get something cleared up for the record, someone spoke about an elected superintendent and an elected board. Now, this particular board we are speaking about in this amendment is not the board that governs secondary and primary...elementary education, is it?

Mr. Morris No, sir, it is not.

Mr. De Blieux So, therefore, this has really no connection with the superintendent of education whatsoever; isn't that correct?

Mr. Morris No, it doesn't.

Mr. De Blieux This is to govern our colleges and higher education.

Mr. Morris I think somebody was equating one to the other, one elective and one appointive. But, it doesn't have anything to do with higher education. The...

Mr. De Blieux Well, I just wanted to clear that particular point with you.

Mr. Conino Delegate Morris, you represent education as an appointed delegate; is that correct?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir.

Mr. Conino The name of your organization is Louisiana Teachers' Association; is that correct?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir.

Mr. Conino Is this the wishes of the Louisiana Teachers' Organization, that you have appointed members of the board?

Mr. Morris We have no position on this. The people that I work for--there are numbers of things that I'm voting on that we don't have an official position on.

Mr. Conino But, in other words, this is not the Louisiana Teachers' Association official position; is that correct?

Mr. Morris They have no official position on a number of things, Mr. Conino. I hope I didn't leave that impression, and when I say something up here, it doesn't--and I want to say that right now--that I'm not inferring, and I don't want anyone to think that I'm inferring because I'm making a statement. It's a policy of our organization because we don't have policies on everything in this constitution.

Mr. Conino One more question: have you checked with the association to see if this meets with their approval?

Mr. Morris This hasn't come up at all before our governing board.

Mr. Burns Mr. Morris, I believe you've said in your opening remarks that one of the main reasons you favored this amendment was that it would make a...result in a nonpolitical board. How long have you been in politics?

Mr. Morris Not as long as you, Mr. Burns.

Mr. Burns Well, don't you know that if this amendment passes that there will be a rush on the governor's office--every ward leader, every parish leader in the State of Louisiana will be jammed in there trying to get their favorites appointed to this board whether they can read or write or...

Mr. Morris I assume that to be correct, Mr. Burns.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise to oppose this amendment. I think we clearly demonstrated yesterday in a full day's worth of debate and several votes on this particular issue that we count education at the higher level of the same importance that we do education at the secondary and elementary level. On our board--our State Board for Secondary and Elementary Education--we made it elective by eight people and appointive for three. The attempt--and the successful attempt--yesterday, was to do the same thing for the Board of Regents for exactly the same reasons. That is that education belongs to the people of this state, and not to a governor. Let me repeat that. Education belongs to the people of this state, and not to a governor--any governor. I don't care who he is or who he might be. If we reverse ourselves--and that's what we would do if we adopted this amendment; a clear reversal of yesterday's vote to the tune of 69 to 46--if we reverse ourselves and allow one of, if not the most important board in the state, and certainly the most important board in terms of education to be totally and completely dominated by the picks of one man--regardless of who that man is or might be--then I think that much of the criticism that's been directed toward this convention will be well-founded. That criticism is that we're like the goose. We point to the north in the morning, the south in the afternoon, and we don't really know what direction in which we'd like to fly. What more do we want out of a constitutional convention than unlimited reasonable debate among reasonable men and women, and then a decision to be made and to stick with that decision unless there are some compelling reasons to change? Have you heard a compelling reason yet this morning to change from our clear mandate for an elected board to one that's completely appointed by the governor? Have you heard a single reason to change? Now, there has been made mention that some people would be appointive that might not run for the office. That is true, but it cuts both ways--some better people and some worse people. You and I can get together in a relatively few moments, point out some appointive people that might not have been elected, and they're doing a good job, and we can praise them. But, we can also point out some appointed people that might not have gotten elected, and they might be doing a lousy job, and wouldn't have been elected. I guess I've gotten the reputation in this convention of being for elected people, and that's true because I think that if you throw the cards up in the air and they come down, some on one side of the fence and some on the other. What ultimately makes up my mind is: number one, the importance of the job in question. There's no more important job in this state than on the Board of Regents, after the way we've got it structured here. Number two, the danger that when people take office they feel that they're responsible to who got them there. If the people got them in office, they're responsible to the people. If a person got them in office, they're responsible to that person. Now, certainly there are people who don't feel that way, and certainly there are times when that doesn't hold true. But, time in and time out, we look back home, wherever home is. If home is the governor's office, that's where we look. If home is the people that elected us, that's where we look. Now, I did not go to L.S.U. or to a state school. I attended a college for seven years outside of the borders of Louisiana. Perhaps I don't know the in's and out's of Louisiana education, although I did attend high school here and elementary school. But, perhaps I got a little bit more objective view than some of you did about education in Louisiana. It's not what it ought to be. One of the reasons it's not, as far as I'm concerned, is because we haven't delineated responsibility among the structure and the powers and the functions. Well, we're doing that now. I think we're taking a great step forward for Louisiana. But, let's don't slide back to the old way, and that is the governor having total absolute control, or the thread of that control over our educational system.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise to speak in favor of the amendment, and I recognize at the outset the actions of this convention yesterday, but I go back to a number of years ago when I was privileged to serve on a committee to help write the legislation for the Coordinating Council of Higher Education in this state. It was believed at that time that the...in order to provide for a real coordination for quality education in this state that that board should have been given much greater authority than was granted to it at that time. Politics, being what it was and is, we could not get that through the legislature, and consequently, that board has not had the authority for true coordination of higher education. No one in this convention has more strongly supported the election of public officials than I have, but I suggest to you that if you seek coordination of higher education, if you seek education to higher education levels, one of excellence, and if you speak or seek for equitable distribution of the educational dollar for higher education, then I suggest to you that the only way that that can be accomplished is through an appointive board system. I can tell you from experience that if a person is elected from a congressional district, that college in his district is the one that he's going to protect in order to be reelected to that particular board. When he gets elected, in order to protect that board he's going to make agreements with the other board members--that you protect my college when it comes up--and when yours comes up, I'll protect yours. Nothing wrong with that except that you have a continuation of the present system of higher education in this state. You do not have coordination nor can you get coordination under that concept. I assure you, perhaps if I were elected from a congressional district, I would be in the same position. I find no fault with those members who have done that in the past because that has been the system and that's the way that they have had to be reelected. But, I think that it's high time that we go about higher education in this state and provide the type of program, and the types of schools in our particular universities that when a person goes to that university; pays his tuition; spends his money to go to that university that when he gets that degree he'll know, and it will say to the world, that he's gotten a degree at a university, one of excellence. I do not believe that we have that in all of the institutions of higher learning in this state. I do believe, that through an appointed Board of Regents with the powers that we have spelled out in this proposal, that you could accomplish that through the appointed board. I do not believe that that could be done under the...what has been adopted yesterday by this convention. I strongly urge you give serious consideration to the appointment of this Board of Regents as proposed in this amendment because I honestly believe that that is the answer to quality education and equitable distribution of the educational dollar for higher education. I'll be happy to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, you were the sponsor of the amendment the other day that made the superintendent of education elected, is that not correct?

Mr. Flory Absolutely correct, yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier Now, Mr. Morris, who is your cosponsor on this amendment made the statement a little while ago that he felt that if we had an elected Board of Regents, it would politicize higher education. Do you agree with that statement?

Mr. Flory I said, Mr. Lanier, that if you had an elective Board of Regents, I do not believe that you could get true coordination as ought to be accomplished in the field of higher education in this state and I hold to that statement.

Mr. Lanier Do you feel that you can have true coordination of elementary and secondary education with an elected superintendent and an elected board?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier Then...

Mr. Flory So long as the legislature delineates the authority between the two positions, yes, sir. I must say, too, that you cannot draw the parallel between the Board of Regents and the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education because the schools in elementary and secondary education, by and large, are controlled by the local school boards, and we're not faced with that situation as we are in higher education because they're supported in almost toto with state funds.

Mr. Cannon Mr. Flory, haven't we eliminated the curriculum control of the Board of Regents over the elementary and secondary activities?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir...no provision in the proposals at this time for the two boards to meet and coordinate curriculum.

Mr. Cannon Right. Now, we have in the...as contrasted to higher education where you're educating adults all of which are not citizens of this state as contrasted to elementary and secondary who are...which is the education of the children of citizens of this state. Don't you think that that would have more tendency to be, elementary and secondary, close to the people in elected situations, where maybe the more professional competence might be required in the higher education aspect of this?

Mr. Flory Yes, I think that's true, Mr. Cannon.

Mr. Cannon Could the legislature also not remove vocational-technical education and put it under elementary and secondary which I have, you know, tended to favor?

Mr. Flory I think that's true if the facilities under the elementary and secondary education are to be provided in the elementary and secondary schools. But, I think the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education would govern vocational-technical or career education or comprehensive high schools in that particular...

Mr. Cannon Right. Even though the Board of Regents would have supervisory control over that curriculum above...beyond high schools?

Mr. Flory Yes, that's correct.

Further Discussion

Mr. Anzalone Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we ran the philosophy of appointments over elected officials way back in the Executive Department Article. I think that we satisfied ourselves at that time that by far and in great majority the people of the State of Louisiana are very much interested in electing those who are going to govern them. Once again, we come to the same point. We have heard that now we are in a specialized area whereby locally elected people cannot represent the State of Louisiana as a whole. I find great error in this statement. All of us here have local problems, it's true. But, at the same time all of us are here to represent the State of Louisiana, not necessarily to do what is good for our particular area, but in view of the overall picture to do what is good for the state as a whole. I don't see the sense in saying that we do not trust the people of the State of Louisiana to elect people to represent the State of Louisiana; it just doesn't make any sense. You're running away from the problem rather than facing it head-on. There's no reason in the world why somebody from my congressional district cannot represent Southeastern, McNeese and L.S.U. all at the same time because what you're trying to do is build a darn good educational system. You don't go to a State Board of Education, I don't believe, from an area like Hammond, to increase tenfold the tax dollar coming into Southeastern, and at the same time, take away tenfold the money going to U.S.L. You are saying, "No, we do not want to face the problem head-on." We want to give it to somebody else and let him try to solve it. Then, if he doesn't do a very good job at it, well then we have somebody to blame." I don't agree with that at all. If we're going to set policy for the entire State of Louisiana by any board, governmental agency, legislature, executive department or whatever, I think it is well known in this convention that the philosophy of the people of the State of Louisiana dictate election rather than appointment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Juneau Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, I don't believe in belaboring a point, but I do believe in putting to rest a point which was put to rest in the Executive Article. I find it extremely ironical that a lot of the people who are supporting this amendment were the strongest advocates in this convention for elected officials. I find it also quite interesting the argument being that if you go to the election of people for higher education, you're going to politicize higher education. But, by the same token those very people would have you turn around and believe that, well, that's all right for higher education, but we're going to politicize lower and secondary education. It seems to me that if you're going to write a constitution, and this is the only one basic point

I want to make--at least--at least be consistent. You were consistent yesterday when you voted to have elected officials who are representing people in the educational field. That is consistent with what we did when we voted on the Executive Article. So, I submit to you, don't be inconsistent when you vote on higher education. We're talking about the same thing and don't be fooled. We're talking about representing people, people who are concerned with education. When we're talking about representatives, what you're talking about is do you want him appointive or elective? If you want an amendment like this which give fifteen boards which con...fifteen members which conceivably could be nominated by one governor, well, then, vote for it. But, I submit to you: examine your record, and examine your conscience when you do that; and ask you these two questions: am I on the one hand going to have a board for the children of this state which is going to be elective, and then, on the other hand, I'm going to have one for higher education which will be appointive? Secondly, I ask you: do you want to rest and can you justify to the people that you represent, that one governor in the history of this state can nominate the entire membership of this particular board? I don't think the people want that. I'll yield to any questions.

Questions

Mrs. Brien Pat, what you think what kind of people would run for this position with no pay?

Mr. Juneau Do I think they would?

Mrs. Brien Yes. I'd like to know, what kind of people would run for this position without salary?

Mr. Juneau My inclination, Mrs. Brien, was that you would get a very high caliber of people or person. It's contrasted--the statement was made, and I think eloquently, by Mr. Burns--contrast with that what kind of doors they are going to beat on the governor's office to have this kind of commitment when you go through an election campaign? I'd rather take my chances at the ballot box.

Mr. Burns Is it not a fact that races for the present State Board of Education are some of the most hotly contested political races in the state?

Mr. Juneau That's right.

Mr. Kelly Pat, with reference to the business about the caliber of people that you're going to have running for election, we have no guarantee. I meant the people have no guarantee as to who's going to be on that board when we leave it to the appointment process, do we?

Mr. Juneau That's the very point, Don. There's no guarantee whatsoever, but by the same token you don have the guarantee when you afford the ability for a people in the district to evaluate the people who are running for office. That's the guarantee I have as an elector.

Mr. Kelly Also, if we want to use the argument of per diem expenses--in other words, we should be appointing the legislature then, shouldn't we?

Mr. Juneau Oh, no question about it.

Mr. Willis Pat, the first three words in our constitution is "We the people," isn't it?

Mr. Juneau That's absolutely correct, Burt.

Mr. Willis Now, don't you think that the people can choose or elect the members of that board as competently as the governor?

Mr. Juneau I would think so, Burt.

Mr. Willis They elected the governor, didn't they?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Juneau That's right.

Mr. Willis So, if he feels on the one hand that they can't, then he certainly detracts from what the people did with respect to him; isn't that correct?

Mr. Juneau That's correct. I might add, Burt, that this convention has decided that you want to put into the constitution the structure of education, and if that's the will of this convention, so be it. But, when we do that we've got to be responsible to the people, and I think it's our responsibility to structure how their education is going to be run. That's definitely affected by the appointive versus the elective process.

Mr. Willis That responsibility is echoed by your sentiments to the effect that we should be consistent, isn't that correct?

Mr. Juneau That's the whole point. I find it inconceivable for someone to get up here and say we're going to politicize higher education, but I'm not...that's all right for lower education; that just doesn't make any sense.

Mr. Willis It's just a high grade of politics--that other one, isn't it? One is petit and the other one is grand. Now, under this amendment here, isn't it a fact that the governor could positively control the board in that if whoever can appoint, can unappoint under this amendment? So, if he's got fifteen and three of them are against him, he can just pluck those three out, isn't that correct?

Mr. Juneau I think the authors of the amendment admit that.

Mr. Willis All right.

Mr. Kean Mr. Juneau, isn't it a fact though that there's a substantial difference between the secondary-elementary situation and what we're talking about here with respect to higher education?

Mr. Juneau It's not to me, Mr. Kean, when we're talking about someone who's charged with the responsibility of representing the interest of people in education. To me, I can't appreciate that distinction. No, sir.

Mr. Kean But, isn't it a fact that in the secondary and elementary field we've got school boards in every parish; we've got schools in every community; they are largely financed by local funds, and therefore, you can have a grass roots board which will not be likely to be balancing off one area against another?

Mr. Juneau I think that argument, Mr. Kean, to me, is self-defeating because apparently this committee's decided that they are going to have a grass roots board for governing boards for these schools of higher education. If that's true, there's the buffer zone that you would be applying in higher education; that's how I...

Mr. Kean But, my point is when you then turn to an elective board for higher education, where you've got institutions in different parts of the state who are likely to be competing against each other, won't you then have a different situation with an elective board of higher education than you would with the one with secondary and elementary?

Mr. Juneau I'll put it this way, Mr. Kean, I'm... you have and always will have apparently some competition, be it elective or appointive in the fields of higher education. There's no way in the world we can limit that money.

Mr. Chatelain Well, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm going to make my remarks very brief. I don't know what happened last night, but looks like there're some forces at work. I stand in firm opposition to this amendment. One of the authors of this amendment stood before you a few moments ago and told you that an elected member would have a tendency to look out for his own university or college in his area. Now, isn't that a terrible thing? I'd hate to be known as an elected member in south Louisiana and would not be looking out for my own university. Wouldn't this be a terrible day in Louisiana when an elected official could not look out for his people or his area. It seems like to me that one day this business of electing your public officials is a good idea, but the next day the shoe is on another foot, and it's not a good idea. I want you to stop and think for awhile, my fellow delegates, what's happening to us here this morning. I submit to you that a member who would be appointed by the governor of this state would likewise, if he was a decent kind of a fellow, and I'm sure he would be, would have a tendency to look out for his own kind, his own university, or his own people. I want to leave one last thought with you this morning, my fellow delegates, and that is: beware of this move. It's a move; it's an amendment for one purpose is to remain for the great university which I have a great deal of respect for and feel that always shall be the number one university in this state, and I shall fight for the right. But, this is a move by that force, or those forces, to remain...to maintain status quo, and this is not what we want in this convention. This is a convention for the future, not for the past. I say vote this amendment down. Thank you.

rejected: 18-63.]

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux We are now talking about a position that carries no salary to it; only per diem, only expenses. We are not talking about a paid salaried job or a job wherein that it will command a lot of money or ability to make contracts or something of that sort; that goes into your elective procedure. As a result of this being the number of elected people we'll have aspiring for this job, I feel very certain we are not going to get the quality of personnel we need to control our colleges and universities, and decide which one of them will grant degrees and not grant degrees. This is a place where we need high type personnel. Somebody brought up the idea about saying that we ought to appoint the members of the legislature. Well, let me tell you the difference between this and the legislature. The legislature is a direct representative of the people. Everybody the legislature represents is not exactly smart. We may have some nitwits, and nitwits are entitled to representation, but I don't think we ought to put them in control of our colleges and universities. You are going to get a much, much, better type of individual to decide your degree programs, etc., for higher education, if those people are appointed than you do if they are elected; I can tell you that. You know that and I know that. I want to point out one other thing to you. If these...I can't get the idea just because a governor appoints somebody that that person is not going to be qualified and it's going to give the governor control and let him run everything; that governor is usually--the governors that I've seen and I've served with even though the may--we have has our disagreements, I think they're just as much interested in the welfare of this state and higher education as anybody else. I can't get the idea through my head that I'm the only one capable of selecting a person to serve on a board or a commission. I think there're other people that are just as capable of making that decision as I am. I feel like that we ought to at least, show that we have some confidence in the people that we elect to offices to perform these functions. Now, there's another point that I want to bring out to you. You know one of the things that's caused us to be here today is a long list of constitutional amendments that we have had, and why? Because those constitutional amendments have been involved with a long list of elected officials. Here we're loading up this constitution with elected officials and after awhile you're going to have a ballot five feet long for elected people. It's going to be very difficult to make a decision and know something about those. So, maybe we'd better allow a few of them to be appointed. So, I ask you to go ahead and go along with this amendment so that we can have a few people appointed to office and lessen the length of our ballot, and get some responsible people exercising the functions which I think they ought to do insofar as education is concerned. We need a good educational system, and I just don't think you're going to get it by trying to politicize that system and let every Tom, Dick, and Harry, or courthouse crowd decide who's going to be on the Board of Education. So, I ask you to go along with the amendment.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Questions

Mr. Riecke Senator, I understood you to say that you would get a much higher type person on the board if they were appointed than if they were elected; is that correct?

Mr. De Blieux I really believe that because the people that ought to serve on this board--I don't think that usually, generally, that they're the type that will get out and make a campaign.

Mr. Riecke Do you believe on this convention here that the people who were appointed by the governor are a higher type people than those of us who were elected.

Mr. De Blieux I feel like they are equally and capably--yes, some of them I do--I think this appeared to some of us who are elected.

Mr. Roemer Senator, you just don't have much faith in the elective process, do you?

Mr. De Blieux Oh, yes, I have a lot of faith in it, but I tell you it's the candidates that's going to run for the job. There's one thing you have got to remember is this, Mr. Roemer, you can't elect a good man to office if he won't run for the job; just remember that. You've got to vote for what you get...you've got to make your choice, but sometimes you can persuade a good fellow to accept an appointment that you can't get to run for an office.

Mr. Roemer Senator, I'm still with you--you say that a good man can't get elected unless he runs. Well, a good man can't get appointed unless the governor wants to appoint him. Isn't that right?

Mr. De Blieux Well, that may be true, but you've got a better chance because I think we've had pretty honorable men serving as our governors, the majority of them anyway, even though we've had our disagreements.

Mr. Anzalone Senator De Blieux, we've heard a great deal about this tax dollar and the competition for the tax dollar. Is not the final determination made on the disbursement of these tax dollars made by a legislature elected from single member districts throughout the state?

Mr. De Blieux Yes.

Mr. Anzalone Well, what in the world is wrong with a little input into the educational system from people who are elected throughout the state?

Mr. De Blieux Well, there's a lot of difference,

Mr. Anzalone. One thing is that we're thinking about our children and their future, and that's involved and the legislature does have some control over it whenever these things get out of line. Now, insofar as your political input and output--but as you well know--every legislator gets elected by what he can bring home to his constituents, how well he does his job insofar as they are concerned. That's the way you elect the members of this board; that's what they're going to be concerned about, that college in their area where they are elected from because they know if that college doesn't get what they want that college to get or the people in that area want that college to get, they've got a small chance of getting reelected.

Mr. Anzalone Senator, is that the way it's done now? Is that why we're in such big trouble?

Mr. De Blieux Well, that's a little bit part of our problem because we've got an elected superintendent and an elected board.

Mr. Anzalone I see. In other words our problem is with elected officials?

Mr. De Blieux With some...with some elected...You know, sometimes you have a better group than you have if you don't--if you have appointed officials than you have if elected ones.

Mr. Anzalone Senator, I want you to know I agree with you. I think a great deal of our problem is with some of our elected officials.

Mr. Juneau Senator De Blieux, in view of the decision which was reached by this convention yesterday, to have elected officials on the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, is it your opinion, from what you said, that we are telling the people of this state for the State Board of Education you're not going to have qualified people?

Mr. De Blieux No, I'm not saying that.

Mr. Juneau Why not?

Mr. De Blieux I'm not saying that because...but what I'm saying is for this particular board, the Board of Regents, that we ought to have an appointed board in that particular category.

Mr. Juneau You're evading my question, Senator. Tell me about the State Board of Education for Elementary and Secondary Education, which this convention has decided will be predominately elective. Are you telling me and the people of the State of Louisiana, because of that decision they're not going to have qualified people on that board?

Mr. De Blieux I'm saying that you'd probably get better qualified people to run our educational institutions if they were appointed.

Mr. Fowler Senator De Blieux, you made the remark that the Senators and Representatives were not interested in the children or the education of the people of this state. Aren't you a Senator?

Mr. De Blieux I don't think I made that statement, Mr. Fowler.

Mr. Fowler I think if you go back you made one to that effect, and if you feel that way, I think you need to be out of the Senate.

Mr. De Blieux I don't think I made that statement. I'm just saying in most cases you can get a qualified man who will take a position which he would not run for.

[Quorum Call: 98 delegates present and a quorum.]

Further Discussion

Miss Perkins Ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to the amendment on the floor. I rise in opposition to the proposal of my good friends, Mr. Flory and Mr. Morris. First of all, let me point out to this delegation that we've heard a great deal of debate with reference to the individuals that would compose this particular board. I don't feel that this is necessarily a pro-con issue with reference to LSU, in that this board could not only be loaded if we had appointees in favor of LSU, it could also be loaded in opposition to LSU. So, I don't think that that's the basic issue that we have before us. I would like to point out that by the committee proposal, which basically I support, we have three boards for higher education. The two management boards--namely, the LSU Board of Supervisors and the Board of Trustees--will be appointed, that membership will be appointed by the governor. If we allow appointment to this particular board's membership, we will have approximately fifty-one appointees running higher education. We have allowed for an elective board in our State Board of Education to govern primary and secondary education. Supposedly, the youth of this country is the foundation of this country. We felt the necessity to have supervision by elected people at the primary and secondary level, but yet, now, we don't think our elected officials are competent enough to supervise higher education. If they're not competent enough to supervise higher education, I certainly don't think they're competent enough to supervise elementary and secondary education. I'd also like to point out that we're reversing our position from yesterday. Many of you have said that this convention has lost a great deal of time. Ladies and gentlemen, when we defeat a proposal, let's accept that defeat and move on. If you reverse your position and reverse your vote today, you are encouraging this type procedure, not only now, but for the duration of this convention. I'd also like to point out that the people that say that our electorate is not qualified to select qualified people by electing the members of this board. Ladies and gentlemen, one hundred and five people in this convention, and I think a hundred and five high caliber people, were elected by the electorate of this state. If they could choose you, I don't see how you can turn around and accuse them of not being competent to select those people that are going to administer higher education. In addition, I would like to point out as we have very fine appointees in this convention, we have also provided for three appointees on this board for higher education. I strongly urge that you defeat this amendment and that we proceed with the other provisions of the committee report.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as the days go by, I appreciate this convention more and more, especially listening to the opposition. My only wish is that more people would listen to the opposition. Unfortunately, in this convention I think one of the great drawbacks is that we do not listen. We're satisfied with our position, and then from then on nothing matters. I think that's wrong. I think one of the most important things that we could learn to do in this convention for the balance of the time is to listen to your opposition. Miss Perkins is strong opposition; Miss Perkins is young. You are now looking and listening to an old man who has seen and heard much on the subject of education in the State of Louisiana over the years. If you had listened carefully to Mr. Flory, who has had experience as a member of a committee that had much to do and much reason to be concerned about what happens in higher education, this is the moment to be inconsistent. Man must not be consistent when there is a reason to be inconsistent. There is no comparison between the two--the elementary education of the children of this state and the education of the adults in higher education. As you were told--and as I want to repeat before you make up your minds--the organization for elementary education has to do with a board of education in each parish, sort of equally distributed throughout the parishes of this state. That is not true for higher education. There is no comparison whatsoever. That is more the reason for having an appointive system where the right kinds of people can be selected to administer the affairs of higher education. Think of the geographical locations--these smaller colleges--you don't have one college in each parish; you don't have one college in one area. They're all different sizes; they all do different things, and these different representative people can't represent their areas equally, as you have in elementary and secondary education. I urge you most strongly to listen to the fine presentation that was made by a very knowledgeable man a moment ago and to listen to the reason of those who have had experience. This Flory-Morris amendment is really and truly a sound amendment for education in this state at this time.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, in closing on this amendment there is very little that I could say at this point in the debate upon an issue that I consider to be one of the most crucial as it relates to the youth of this state. If we believe in coordination of higher education, if we believe in quality education, if we believe in equity as far as the distribution of the educational dollar for higher education, then we have to give serious consideration to the issue before this convention at this very moment, because I truly believe that the future of higher education depends upon the vote that you now are about to cast. If you believe in true, responsible coordination, then I ask you to vote for this amendment, because I believe that this is the way that we could accomplish true coordination of all of higher education into building a better system of higher education for the most valuable asset, and that is for the youth of this state. I know that a great deal of fear exists in the minds of some of the delegates that one governor might appoint a majority of the Board of Regents, or that the existing governor might appoint the total membership of the Board of Regents. I ask you in all fairness to look at the Committee's Proposal No. 30, the transitional article providing for the transition of the Coordinating Council into the Board of Regents, as well as the present Board of Supervisors of LSU into the Board of Supervisors under the committee's proposal. I feel that with the committee's recommendation, this convention will buy Committee Proposal No. 30. It came out of that committee with a unanimous recommendation, and, to come out of that committee unanimous, is an unheard of task, really, as far as that committee in the deliberations that they had. I ask you to really consider the vote that you are about to cast now, and to cast it in the spirit of real coordination for higher education. Cast aside, if you can, political aspirations, political considerations, and give to your vote a true coordinating effort for higher education in the colleges and universities of this state for all of the years ahead that this constitution is to serve. Mr. Chairman, I would ask for a record vote on this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Flory, you touched on Committee Proposal No. 30. As I understand that proposal, if it is adopted as a transitional measure, the members of the Coordinating Council whose terms have not yet expired would then serve on the Board of Regents until their present terms did expire; would they not?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Flory That is absolutely correct.

Mr. Kean So that the governor would not be able, under this transitional proposal, to appoint all of the members of the Board of Regents as has been suggested here today?

Mr. Flory That's absolutely correct.

Mr. Willis Mr. Flory, by virtue of the Duval amendment--put a question mark to this--by virtue of the Duval amendment now there is a divorce between the state superintendent of education, who is elected until '76, and the State Board of Education and the local school boards on the one hand, and the Board of Regents and the Board of Governors for LSU and the trustees for universities on the other; isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory That's correct.

Mr. Willis There is a complete divorce between the two.

Mr. Flory That's correct.

Mr. Willis Now, the thrust of your amendment is to make the governor appoint the members of the Board of Regents, which adumbrates the other two boards; isn't that correct, under the committee proposal in its present posture?

Mr. Flory Only the other two boards: that is, the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Trustees for state colleges.

Mr. Willis And the trustees, yes. The thrust of your amendment is to make the governor appoint the Board of Regents, the membership, which adumbrates or supervises the other two?

Mr. Flory It has budgetary and curricula responsibility over the other two.

Mr. Willis Well, I understand--supervise--I use that word loosely. So that now, if the governor can appoint the members of the Board of Regents, he would not be a superintendent; he would be a super-superintendent, because that would be super education, which is higher education; isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory Mr. Willis, I have great faith in the governors that have served, not only in the past, but those that might...

Mr. Willis We're not talking about faith, hope, and charity.

Mr. Flory Let me finish...that might serve in the future. I believe that they feel as we do that this is one of the most crucial issues before the people of this state, not only now, but in the future as it relates to higher education. I cannot visualize any governor, whoever he may be, appointing people to a system to govern a system, and he would then go down in history as destroying the higher educational system of this state. I can't believe that. I've got too much faith in humanity, too much faith in the people, not only that have served in the past but who might serve in the future as the Chief Executive of this state, to make irresponsible appointments to a board of this stature.

Mr. Willis Mr. Flory, I applaud your faith in the people. I hope that your faith is more in the people than in one of the people. Now, don't you think that the people are as competent to choose who will govern them than one person?

Mr. Flory I have no quarrel with the intelligence of the voters of this state. I just say to you based upon past experience, it has not worked in the best interests of higher education; whereas a man had to run for reelection with a university or a state college in his district in which he had to be elected, because his prime responsibility--and having to be elected from that district--made it mandatory that he protect the best interests of that particular college or university and not necessarily the overall system of higher education.

Mr. Willis And you mean to tell me that that would not be the same sequela or the consequence if you were appointed and from that district--under this appointment?

Mr. Flory No, sir, not in my judgment.

Mr. Willis You mean to say that he would betray his district by virtue of the appointment and align his allegiance with the governor?

Mr. Flory I believe that if he were appointed and did not have to worry about seeking reelection, he would be in a much better position to take an overall look at the entire system of higher education and make a more qualified judgment as to what was the best interest of the total system, rather than a particular university, even though it may be in the district in which he resides.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Flory, your answer to Mr. Kean's question rather puzzles me. You say that because the Coordinating Committee is folded into the new Board of Regents that means that a governor couldn't appoint the entire board within the span of two terms in office. What you really mean is the governor, the present governor, could not. What happens at the end of the expiration of the terms of the present members of the Coordinating Committee? Couldn't a governor appoint all members of the board?

Mr. Flory I believe Mr. Kean's question was directed at the present governor, and the situation in the transitional period under the transitional article in Committee Proposal No. 3D.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, let me ask you a different question. Is it not a fact that future governors, if they were elected to two terms, under your amendment might appoint the entire board--in fact, must, if the terms are six years?

Mr. Flory I haven't worked the mathematics out, but if you say that's true, Mrs. Zervigon, I accept that, only to say to you that again I do not believe any governor would make such irresponsible appointments to destroy higher education, as has been indicated.

Mrs. Zervigon But he would appoint the entire board; a future governor would appoint the entire board?

Mr. Flory As they have in the past to some extent.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 62-43. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Hardin [Assistant Clerk] This is the second Aertker amendment which was passed out. Amendment No. 1. On page 4, line 7, immediately after the word and punctuation "board." insert the following:

"(1) The Board of Regents shall meet with the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education at least twice a year to coordinate programs of public elementary, secondary, vocational-technical, career, and higher education."

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, yesterday we adopted an amendment which deleted actually part one of the Section E of the powers of the board. I think that the vote was based on the fact that many people feared that the language that we had in the document presented a threat to the control of the curriculum of the elementary and secondary education, but I also recognize the fact that we did create a real problem for developing a coordinated program between elementary, secondary, vocational-technical, career education, and higher education. In an attempt to resolve the matter, we have... I am introducing this amendment, and I think it does take care of the question. I have spoken to Mr. Duval about this amendment, and he has indicated to me that this would not have too much serious objection from him. Unless you have some further questions, I think this would resolve the whole matter. I ask the favorable approval of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Duval I just want to get something quite clear. Now, what if the Board of Regents and the State Board meet, and they can't agree to coordinate? What happens under this amendment?

Mr. Aertker Mr. Duval, I thought of that, and really one of the reasons why the boards... I would presume they are going to have to establish some ground rules of coordinating, but I really can't understand how people who would be working for common programs--for instance, to give you an example, if higher education has got to find out what they are going to say... what programs they're going to have in order to qualify their people and train them to come into the elementary and secondary area, it seems to me that it isn't a matter of agreement; it's a matter of getting an understanding as to what is needed in their programs.

Mr. Duval I'm merely trying... I just want to establish the intent of your amendment. Am I to understand that the intent is just to ensure a rapport, or at least the chance for a rapport, between the two boards, but, in the event there is a disagreement--because all reasonable men occasionally disagree--would the Board of Regents have authority to compel coordination under this amendment?

Mr. Aertker No, it would not.

Mr. Duval In other words, it's the intent of your amendment that they would merely meet, but the Board of Regents would not have the authority to direct the State Board of Education to do a specific thing. Is that right?

Mr. Aertker And by the same token the elementary-secondary wouldn't be able to dictate to the higher education that this would have to be done. The only thing is that this would be a coordinate and advisory group getting together to discuss their problems.

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Aertker, my question deals with: is this the amendment--you had two of them on our desk--is this the one with "public" in it or is it the other one?

Mr. Aertker The one with "public" is correct; yes.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Aertker, aren't we getting a little bit far afield for the constitution when we attempt to put the procedure of these boards--you might say--into the constitution? Couldn't this be taken care of by the legislature or by rules of the board, etc.? Do we have to put this in the constitution?

Mr. Aertker Mr. De Blieux, to my knowledge, we haven't had meetings between elementary and secondary and higher education to discuss the coordination of our efforts. As far as I understand, it's been at the discretion of the legislature, and the fact that the legislature has failed to provide and present this opportunity, I just felt that it was necessary to have it in the constitution that these people would meet at least twice a year. If they just had to meet and say what their problems were to each other, that would be a considerable improvement over what we've been doing in the past years.

Mr. De Blieux Well, where has been the objection to that meeting in the past?

Mr. Aertker The objection has been that nobody has ever bothered to call it, and the legislature hasn't legislated to make anyone call it.

Mr. De Blieux Well, don't you think the legislature would do it if it was brought to their attention?

Mr. Aertker Well, I think that this is going to bring it to their attention by having it in the constitution.

Mr. De Blieux I just wonder about the wisdom of putting procedural matters of these boards into the constitution. I just think... don't you think that ought to be left to the legislature?

Mr. Aertker No, otherwise I wouldn't be proposing it to be included in the constitution.

Mrs. Corne Mr. Aertker, under your proposal, which of these boards would have the final decision on the certification of teachers in elementary and secondary schools?

Mr. Aertker That State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education. That's where they are employed, Mrs. Corne.

Mrs. Corne Would have the final decision?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mrs. Corne Thank you, sir.

Amendments

Mr. Hardin Amendment No. 1 [by Mrs. Miller]. On page 3--a technical correction--line 15--not line 5--immediately after the word and punctuation "establishment." delete the words "There is" and delete lines 16 through 20, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "There shall be a body corporate known as the Board of Regents of the University of Louisiana, which shall be composed of all publicly supported university systems and all publicly supported universities and colleges now existing or hereafter created. The board shall be responsible for the government, control, and budgetary management of the University of Louisiana and shall exercise such powers and functions, duties and responsibilities for these purposes as are provided by this Section and by law."

Amendment No. 2. On page 3, line 29, delete the ",", comma after the word "Regents" and delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 30 through 32, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 3. On page 5, line 5, immediately after the word "the" delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 6 through 8, both inclusive, in their entirety and at the beginning of line 9, insert the partial word "tion" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "university systems, universities, and colleges governed by it forming the University of Louisiana."

Amendment No. 4. On page 5, delete lines 17 through 25, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mrs. Miller Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I am

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

offering undoubtedly the most noncontroversial amendment that's been offered in this convention, because I anticipate it will be absolutely bombed to the full present delegation, minus my one vote that will probably be in favor of it. I understand I already have two votes; I have three votes. Anyone for four? Anyone for five? I am offering this because we have been...the Education Committee has been discussing for seven months how to set up a system of higher education, Board of Regents, Superboards, Coordinating Council. I'm offering this because I do think the people of Louisiana deserve to know there might be another way; it might not be available right now. Maybe this thing is ten years too early, as one delegate told me; and perhaps it's ten years too late, as another delegate told me. But, we do know we are running out of funds; our colleges are competing for funds. I want you to look at the second page of information--which I think has been distributed to you--which shows what we've been talking about. In regard to the institutions of higher learning, the number of students that we have, we have not been given as a whole convention all the information on the degree programs that are offered at the various schools and colleges. This may sound to my fellow members of the L. S. U. Foundation composed of some four hundred members, and of which I am one--that I'm being a traitor to the L. S. U. system. I am not being a traitor to the L. S. U. system. I am not being a traitor...or being against U. S. L. and McNeese, and I live between these two colleges. I am a graduate of L. S. U. My son is a graduate of U. S. L. I have a daughter working on a master's at McNeese; she was a graduate of Newcomb. I know now that we don't have, sometimes, the old hoo-rah-rah spirit about colleges and universities that we've seen that my good friend, Mr. Ford Stinson, still carries in his heart for L. S. U. We often identify with a college and university that is in the area where we make our living and where we raise our families. But, we all know now; we are competing for funds. I would like to see my daughter be able to get a degree in the performing arts at McNeese. But, I know this is an impossible thing for her to ever get, because she cannot leave her...she can't be given that type of degree at McNeese. She can't leave her husband and child for three years to go and take up residency in Baton Rouge where this particular type degree is offered. But, if you have a unified university system, run with imagination, and you have floating professorships and floating supervision over all your branches, you may be able to offer these degrees at these various institutions without having to maintain full staffs and full degree programs at every institution that thinks it wants to be able to offer master's and doctor's degree in everything that comes up. I say that the idea is workable. I admit that it's workable only if you have a Board of Regents composed of people who do have imagination and foresight and where you have some change in educational principles. But, I believe this is the way we can provide services to our people out in the state. Now, I want you to look at what happens when a teacher at McNeese wants to get her master's and doesn't... she can get it now at McNeese in certain degrees of education--if she runs out there at four o'clock in the afternoon after she's off teaching, and she takes her graduate things at night. This is great. But, sometimes she won't feel that she has a degree that's worth very much except for the extra pay it gives her--the credits it gives her in our present educational system. What we may be able to offer with a unified university system is a degree that will come from a great and fine university program that encompasses the whole state, that this degree program is made available to everyone that wants to take advantage of it in the State of Louisiana. I submit it is a novel idea. I submit that it's been working in some other states. I submit that it is the only way that when we are talking about Board of Regents and Coordinating Councils, what we are talking about is trying to coordinate all these various systems under one board. This does it without doing violence to the cherished place that L. S. U. occupies in the hearts of some of its alumni or the cherished place that is occupied by U. S. L. in the hearts of some of its people. But, what we are trying to achieve is a higher system of quality education for all of our students, wherever they may be living--to be able to offer degree programs throughout the state, but under a system where you can have quality education. I tell you the truth: it's so new to me. I'm not sure I can answer some of your questions, but I'll be glad to try.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Mrs. Miller, is it not true that from time and time again we have listened to people from that microphone say that we need a university system in Louisiana?

Mrs. Miller Well, I keep hearing those kinds of things, Mr. Bollinger, but I haven't seen this thing be...I haven't even seen it being really conceived. You know, before an idea can be given birth, you have to have conception; then, you have to have growth and incubation; then, you have to give it birth. I hope in this amendment we can do all these things.

Mr. Bollinger Did you not also hear from the other side of the river, so to speak, from that same microphone, people advocating one board to govern higher education?

Mrs. Miller This is...you're right; this is exactly why I think it's time to offer this amendment. I think this is what we've really been trying to work toward, and we just haven't had the courage to face it.

Mr. Bollinger Does not your amendment establish for Louisiana a university system under one board?

Mrs. Miller That's what it would do. Now, I admit if we do that, then you may want to go back and change the way you select your Board of Regents because this would be an entirely new thing. It might be that some of these other amendments which I have attached to this to show what all we are... we've tried to draft them to show what other changes you would have to make in the committee proposal to make this compatible. But, it might be that if you adopt the system--the idea of a university system for the State of Louisiana--then you will have to go back probably and look at the way you select your Board of Regents, and the management for the total program. I tell you, I think this is what--as Mr. Bollinger says what we have been trying to work toward, and we just... none of us have just had the courage to get up and say, "Well, let's not cherish one institution so much that we can't look at what's good for the whole state and for students scattered all over the state."

Mr. Stagg Mrs. Miller, this isn't meant to be unfriendly, but after you heard all of the debates for the last day on this same subject and have heard the expressions from that microphone from more than forty or fifty people, don't you think your amendment comes a little late?

Mrs. Miller No. I think it comes at the right time. After you've had all that fertilizer put around, then it's time to do the planting.

Mr. Stagg I think you literally express what's been put around.

Mr. Chatelain Mrs. Miller, I don't know how to phrase this question. But, I want you to know this. I think you got a darn good amendment.

Mrs. Miller Mr. Chatelain, I sure appreciate that. That maybe...that makes us five votes now, I hope.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Aertker Mrs. Miller, you realize that this amendment that you offer actually will end up destroying, really, the identity of all of the universities and colleges in the State of Louisiana; is that correct?

Mrs. Miller Yes. It will destroy--and I admit this very frankly, and let's have this very clear-- this will destroy the identity of the colleges and universities of this state. The reason...and it's very important that we understand this. But, what we will be establishing is identity for our degree program so that any student from Louisiana can go anywhere in this world and say "I am a graduate of the University of Louisiana," and it will mean something in the academic world. I believe it will mean something in the academic world.

Mr. Aertker I say, I know that you are aware that this has been instituted in other states. But, are you also aware that, to my knowledge, that in no state did they suddenly come as sudden as you've come with your proposal, that they usually had a phasing into and phasing out program to where they gradually incorporated these...yours is just about like having a sudden operation and cutting off the person's head before they found out that he stopped walking.

Mrs. Miller Well, I admit, you know, I've had some...I've had six operations, three of them were emergencies and three of them were planned. It doesn't matter how you do it, when you start cutting on someone, it's traumatic. I admit that if we adopt this, we may have to come back in with an amendment for a phase in-phase out amendment.

Mr. Aertker Mrs. Miller, do you know that I think some people are going to consider this an operation leading to suicide?

Mrs. Miller Well, anytime that you go under the knife--as Dr. Weiss can tell you--there are going to be some dangers.

Miss Perkins Mrs. Miller, wouldn't this, in fact, create a superboard? Is this correct?

Mrs. Miller I think this...yes, Lynn, I think this is what we've been talking about...when we have been talking about Board of Regents and trying to reconcile Board of Regents and the Board of Supervisors for L. S. U., and the Board...Coordinating Committee. This is what the legislature, you know, has been talking about and rolling around for some time. But, I think I'm...

Miss Perkins Excuse me. Wouldn't this, in fact, be in creating a superboard that we defeated the other day, Mrs. Miller?

Mrs. Miller Well, we defeated the superboard in relation to our thinking at that time; and that was, that we were really retaining all the systems the way they are operating now, pretty much, with just a superboard over those that had been under the jurisdiction of the Education Department separate from L. S. U.

Miss Perkins And, you do agree that this amendment would make us lose identity to all colleges and universities?

Mrs. Miller This is what I said before, and I say it very honestly and frankly, that what we are doing is saying "We are not going to have identity as little separate universities. We are going to be the University of Louisiana."

Mr. Bollinger Mrs. Miller, in reference to the question Mr. Aertker asked you and the answer you gave him, is not your amendment similar to the plan of education in California? Do any of these universities lose identity? Aren't they some of the most renowned universities of the country?

Mrs. Miller Well, you're right. I don't think you could ever really kill the school spirit on any one campus. You know there is no more school spirit than you find at the University of California at Berkley. Wherever people--and I'm sure wherever you find Louisiana people--you're going to find they are going to have some way to identify themselves.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Alario]. On page 3, delete lines 21 through 27, both inclusive, in their entirety and all amendments adopted there-to and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(B) Board membership; terms. The board shall consist of fifteen electors. There shall be one elector elected from each congressional district of the state. The remaining members shall be appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate, provided however, each congressional district shall not have more than one appointed member. The members shall serve for overlapping terms of six years following initial terms fixed by law."

Explanation

Mr. Alario Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, what I'm trying to do with this amendment is to combine the different ideals we have here today on the floor concerning the membership of the board--combining it in a sense that we are providing that one member shall be elected from each congressional district. The remaining members of this fifteen-member board would be appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate. It further provides that no congressional district would have more than one appointed, and that's to prevent possibly all of the appointees coming from one particular district, which I think would be totally unfortunate; but, I think we ought to provide for it. I think it would meet the objectives that those of us who believe strongly in having elected officials. It also meets the objectives of those who feel that education is so important that maybe you ought to remove it partially, if not completely, from politics. I don't believe myself, from the experiences I have had in the short while I've been in government, that you remove from politics any board or any commission when they become appointive, because after all, who gets appointed? It's those who have worked in campaigns, worked hard for their candidate, those who have contributed financially, those who are close friends with the person who is doing the appointing. I think we have been fortunate in this state to have good people appointed, and I'm glad for it. But, I just don't know if we ought to trust a high board of this nature to the makeup of an entirely appointed board. At the same time, I can understand the ideals that some of you have in saying that you think they ought to not all be elected, and not all have to run, and all be in politics. I ask that you consider this amendment very highly.

Question

Mr. Jenkins John, this is not something you just dreamed up, is it? It's something that has been over...gone over by the legislature, because actually this is the same basic plan that the legislature adopted, isn't it?

Mr. Alario It is.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 47-62. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Stovall].

On page 5, line 11, after the word "institution" insert a period "." and delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 12 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "The Board of Regents shall submit proposed budgets for the operational needs on behalf of all post-secondary higher education in the state. It shall submit a capital outlay budget with recommendations on priority needs for capital construction and improvements."

Explanation

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, would you be kind enough to get your proposed Article VII and look at it. Under Section 7 you will notice that the Board of Regents...it says on line 17 "The Board shall plan, coordinate, and have budgetary responsibility for all public higher education." Then, if you turn over to page 5, line 11, you will notice again "The Board of Regents shall submit its recommendations on budgets for all institutions of higher education" and so forth. My point is that this language is simply not clear. It really does not indicate who has the responsibility for recommending budgets to the legislature. This amendment is an attempt to clarify the responsibility. In our voting so far, we have indicated that we want a Board of Regents that will have responsibility to coordinate, and we use the terms "budgetary responsibility." Now, my amendment simply says "The Board of Regents shall submit to the legislature proposed budgets for the operational needs on behalf of all post-secondary higher education in the state." This means that the Board of Regents has the responsibility of recommending to the legislature budgets for the different institutions. They, of course, will receive recommendations from the different colleges and universities. Also, "It shall submit a capital outlay budget with recommendations on priority needs for capital construction and improvements." I think the point is very clear: it places the responsibility for budget recommendations on the Board of Regents. The thrust of this amendment, ladies and gentlemen, is whether or not we want coordination in higher education. This amendment gives to us coordination because it provides for the coordination of budgets--operational budgets as well as outlay budgets. I encourage your support of the amendment.

Question

Mr. Jenkins Reverend Stovall, on a technical point, would you mind inserting the word "public" before "post-secondary" in your amendment, so that there's no confusion there, and resubmitting it accordingly?

Mr. Stovall I really don't feel that it is necessary, Mr. Jenkins. I have no objections to it. But, I think that certainly this is...obviously what we are talking about here is institutions, public institutions of the state.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 36-71. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Ouval Mr. Vice-Chairman, fellow delegates, I certainly am reluctant to abuse the time of this constitutional convention. However, I think there comse a time when we must speak our piece. I arise in opposition to this section; perhaps fpr different reasons, and some of you might oppose the section. My primary opposition is that you're enshrining a constitutional board with detailed composition, and duties and powers for all time in a constitution, and we don't know if it's going to work or not. But, in our infinite wisdom, we're going to put this in the constitution. In my opinion, one of the reasons we were sent here was to do away with constitutional boards; was to do away with that type of composition and structure in a constitution. That's one of the reasons why we had Act 2 of 1972. This type of thing is an abrogation of the mandate given us to the people. That's my primary objection. I would prefer to see no boards in this constitution. Everyone has a great fear of the legislature now, but the legislature is going to appropriate the money anyhow. But, let me go on to some more basic objections. I just wanted to get that clear; that's my main one. Here's the basic objection. All of a sudden today we have a divine revelation again. One of these divine revelations that happens overnight when one day we represent the people who elected us, and the next day we don't, because the crunch is put on. Now, doggone it, when the paper publishes that we have decided to elect our Board of Regents which is going to have awesome power, which is going to have budgetary control over education in this state; we decide we're going to elect them so they will be responsive to somebody, and then the next day all of a sudden, we say that wasn't a very good idea. Although we had three appointments, now we're going to appoint them. I didn't hear any great wisdom or logic that really convinced me, and I suggest to you that you remember who elected you. If you go out and ask people what they would want, they would want some responsiveness to them. They would want somebody to respond to their will, rather than a constitutional board which is appointed. That's like having a bunch of federal judges who are totally inviolate. What you're going to have is the same type of kingdom you have in your constitutional boards now. Every governor's race...the big plum is going to be the Board of Regents. That's where it's at, and you're going to have everybody who...that's going to be the plum, and that's going to be the way it's done as to what governor wins, and who puts up the most money, and that's a fact and you ought to know it. At least if the board was statutory, I could certainly go with an appointment. I think there are many valid arguments to appointment in some ways, but if it were statutory. But, now you make it in the constitution and these people aren't answerable to a living, breathing soul, and they have total control over education. Now, you think the people of Louisiana want that? You think they want to put a kingdom in this constitution? Is that why they sent you here? Now, you ask your conscience. Is that why I came here to enshrine a concept to put everything away from the will of the people? We're saying that the people just don't know any better. We can't let the people do this. They don't know. We're so much smarter than the people; that's why they elected us to come up here and isolate education from them for all times. Now, I don't think we really mean that, do we? Now, as you recall, in 1952 we had a lot of constitutional boards. It was a great idea. One of the reasons we're right here is to get rid of those constitutional boards because they haven't worked. We're making a drastic mistake. We are using, in our infinite wisdom, we are using this convention to enshrine concepts which we don't have any idea how viable they really are. We are placing fifteen appointments away from everybody. You're going to have a kingdom; that's practically how it's going to work. If the board was statutory, I would vote for appointment. It's not, it's constitutional, and these people are locked in forever, and if you don't think you have a kingdom, you're either naive or rationalized and it's not going to do...we are all concerned, and I'm sure we are, about the educational system. This is the heart and soul of our future, it really is. I'm not wise enough to tell you how to do it. I certainly am not. I can just...I think we have enough common sense to realize though that if you have a board with the awesome power that this board has, the fiscal power over all colleges and universities, and this board is appointed and not responsive to a living, breathing soul, then what do you have? Who are they going to represent? You think about it for a minute. What's so bad about the election process anyhow? What's so bad about...why is the legislature elected? Why do we want to elect our judges? Why is this any different? I ask you. We have no qualifications set here at all, not one bit. I suggest to you that you vote against this section if you really want to represent the people.

Further Discussion

Mr. Willis Mr. Chairman, and my fellow delegates, I prefer to wonder and blunder and stumble a thousand times to proclaim that we are not peas in a pod when we have erred in placing an impossible passage in our fundamental law; that we are impervious to reconsideration for improvement; that we do not sit in this weatherproof shroud as shriveled, self-satisfied souls; that we are motivated by the driving power of truth and love to shape the future fundamental rules of government; that we have faith, hope, and charity in every cozy corner of our hearts to ameliorate any imperfection. I proclaim we are able to think, to make the wonderful come true in this awesome thing called life we share together on this relatively insignificant ball of snow, stone, soil, sand, and sea rotating exactly every twenty-four hours, and revolving exactly every solar year in a very small part of the heavens as all other celestial bodies rotate and revolve in similar unison in the universe; the extent to which our minds, finite as they are, cannot realize all of which sufficiently attests to the existence of a divine being. It takes a little bit of doing, but it is worth going all we can give to earn redemption. Our error beckons correction. The beacon to fix our position glows brightly, and we are not, and cannot be oblivious of that high and bright light even in the dark of night. We must not depreciate our high estate or degrade our trust by blinking at this error. We should be able to, and we should, and it should, and it must be corrected. Correction of an error is still a part of life. If we look above, beyond, down under and around, we do work of honest worth, so we must look again and never let our searching cease. Something within me tells me this passage strains and overstretches our document. The urgency of the hour and the flight of time demand we seek a better course. In fact, we should not settle for less than the best way to go. We must look again; it is somewhere; we must uncover it. Every single word we print puts our spirit on parade. If we meet this trying task head-on again, the calendar will mark a year of happy hours, and we will be entitled to the benediction of, "Well done, thou good and faithful servants." Let us open the door and let life in this constitution, prompted by experience and the teachings of our times. Let us give this passage the bath of life it needs. Let us search our souls and stretch our minds until we give this passage oneness by refreshing our communion with it until we are glad of heart and clear of conscience. Oneness or harmony in fundamental or transitory law is achieved when we discard discord. We can harmonize only if we reconsider. To reconsider this section is to disapprove it. I recommend your disapproval of it so we may hold it under advisement, and can later vote for a principle which lasts forever instead of a person who makes his exit and his entrance as he does the one, the other; and so that we can give more faith in the ability of our people to elect their rulers. Let me close with the famous words of Thomas Jefferson in that regard as follows in his letter to William Charles Jarvis in 1820--just one passage--"I know of no safe depository of the ultimate powers of society but the people themselves, and if we think them not enlightened enough to exercise their control with a wholesome direction, the remedy is not to take it from them, but to inform their discretion by education." Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, today will mark the first time since I've been a member of this great august body that I will cast a vote against a section. I do it with a great deal of hesitation, because I've heard a lot of debate as you have heard. That's what we're here for, to debate, and to think, and to listen, and to analyze. I want to speak the few words I have here to those people who have an interest in their heart, Louisiana Tech., Northwestern State University, Southeastern State University, University of Southwestern, that great Nicholls State University, McNeese State University, and yes, some of you who have an interest of Southern University and Grambling. Now, is the time to think. Let's wait a few hours, or perhaps a day or so, and think this thing out, perhaps so we can do as we've done in the past in other sections. Maybe something will develop tonight. Yesterday, we were all happy and contented with a...greatly, the majority of the board being elected. Today it's the reversal of what we had yesterday. Let's give ourselves a few more hours, or perhaps another day, and see if something can't be developed. If it cannot be, then I'll be the first to appear before you and again tell you that I'm going to stick to the business of adopting sections. But, I ask you to please vote down this section, and let's give ourselves a few hours to think about it. I'm sure that we can come up with something that we can all live with. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kelly Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise also to urge you to vote against this section. My memory is not quite as good as Mr. Chatelain's, and I can't recall whether I voted against sections or not, but I know I haven't made a habit of it. But, we've done something here--and especially when we turned down the Alario amendment earlier--that strikes near and dear to the hearts of most of the people of the State of Louisiana as far as I'm concerned. The actual authors of the amendment that passed this morning, creating a fifteen man appointive board--I heard one of those very authors say from this stand that if there's one thing in the State of Louisiana that he felt like he could feel the pulse of the people on, was that they wanted to elect their officials. Now, that's something we've got to think about. We've done a complete reversal here this morning. I meant the political philosophy that has carried through this entire convention by a substantial majority--in all cases --has always been that we were going to elect these people; that we were going to be accountable to the people of the State of Louisiana, that we were not going to be accountable to a governor, nor to a Senate, nor to anyone else. Let them be accountable to the people. I might add that I think there's some issues that have been drawn into this issue of public versus appointive that have no bearing whatsoever on it. I think those issues have got to be separated; they've got to stand on their own feet. We're not concerned, at this particular point, about LSU, about the state college systems, or anything else. We're talking about a Board of Regents. Apparently most of the people in this convention are agreeable to this Board of Regents--this high and autonomous board and body that's going to set forth the greatest and grandest educational plan in the history of Louisiana. But, yet, because of some in-fighting between different state colleges and university systems that has been drug into the issue of whether or not we're going to have these powerful people--and that's what they will be; don't you ever think they won't--that sat on this particular board, we're going to let them be appointed by one man. Well, I can truthfully say that there is no way, under any circumstance, that I could support this particular section. There's no way! I want a lot of you to think about this--Mr. Duval made this point explicitly--I want a lot of you to think about going back home and telling those people that "Yes, you voted for a fifteen man appointive board right down the line," none elected. We couldn't even get Mr. Alario's amendment passed, which was a fifteen man board, which is my understanding from talking with some of the legislators, that was kind of in line with the superboard concept that was adopted by the legislature. We couldn't even get that adopted. No, we've got to go appointive all the way. I could have lived with Mr. Alario's amendment-- eight elected, seven appointed. I mean, if we've got to have some...if we're looking for appointments for racial reasons, if we're looking for it for professional input, for special interest groups and so forth, that could have been accomplished under that particular proposal. Now...well, I think everybody will probably be represented under this particular concept, but what about the people? Well, I'd just like to remind you that we've got to get this complete document passed. We've got numerous alumni from different colleges throughout this state, not just LSU, including LSU, and these people are going to have to be satisfied with this proposal on education. In my opinion, this is one of the most important proposals that we've come to grips with. I mean, we've talked in terms of the legislative, the judiciary, and everything else, but we're talking about the future of the children, the young people of this state; and what have we done with it? We've done one thing: We say, "Well, we're going to run it, and we're going to outlay you a grand educational plan, and here's how it's going to be done. We're going to have fifteen people appointed by the governor of the State of Louisiana."

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it's very difficult for me to reappear so often after having not appeared over such a long period of time. But, there comes a time in a man's life when he has to speak, and I feel that this is one of the most important times in my lifetime to speak. Had not I accumulated a lot of experience in this area, I would not be here speaking to you. I can appreciate the opposition trying their level best to resurrect something that has been, in my opinion, buried. That part of the system I appreciate. Now, if there was one man that you defeated in this section, I was that man, and it wasn't too long ago. You spoke to me in no uncertain terms that you did not like the unique proposal or amendment that I gave to you; that was on the Board of Education. You told me that I was wrong. Now you've told these opponents that they were wrong. Just because they don't like one part of the section really doesn't mean we should kill the whole section. Now, I'm going to sell this constitution to the people in my area even though some of them may not approve of some parts of it. That's what I'm dedicated to do, and that's what you and I are dedicated to do in the consideration of a section. All together we have spoken in loud and clear voices. I represent the people of my area; each one of you represent the people. My people don't know what happened here. You often speak about the people. Really and truly, you and I are the people. We heard the discussions; we know what transpired; and we decided. Ladies and gentlemen of this convention, do not change your mind because of the pressure tactic. We have a good section. I spoke to my chairman a moment ago. I said, "Mr. Chairman"--the chairman of the proposal--I said, "Mr. Aertker, I only reserve a position in order to have an opposing point of view. Will you speak?" He says, "You go ahead, you present the proposition in simple terms." Why I present it in such simple terms is this: Last night I read a constitution. I read one of the most...the simplest constitution that could be written. It is a constitution governing the lives of millions, and millions, and millions of people in the world. It is the constitution dealing with the spiritual lives of millions of people all over the world, and the language is so simple a fifth grade student could read it, and that is why I think that we should speak in simple language so that we can all understand. Now, I'm asking you at this stage of the game, after you've heard all of these arguments, stick by your section. I can sell the section; you can sell it. A good majority of the people in this audience have decided. Don't change your mind. That's all I want to say.

Mr. Casey Will you yield to a question, Mr. Landry, of Mr. Jenkins? We have time for only one question.

Mr. Landry I'm always afraid to listen to questions from these brilliant young men.

Question

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Landry, what I'm concerned about, don't you think that people in a lot of areas of the state, say, around McNeese State College and Southwestern, and Northeast and Northwest, are going to feel cheated by this provision, because right now they have the right to elect a member on the State Board of Education which controls their own campus, and under this plan they're not going to be able to directly elect or choose anyone to govern higher education?

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Jenkins, let me answer you this way: I'm not afraid of anything that the elected and appointed delegates of the people have decided in this convention, and I'm dedicated to propose anything that I might have been against. Even though I lost a vote in this convention, I am going to go all out to sell the constitution. That's my position as a representative of the people. I may be opposed to something, but when I leave here, I am going to sell even the objectionable features in my own personal opinion.

[Previous Question ordered on the Section. Quorum Call: 107 delegates present and a quorum.]

Closing

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'll try to be as brief as possible, but I do believe that I ought to just refresh the memories and the minds of all of us as to just what this proposal is and what it represents. It represents six months of input from every person in this entire state who had an interest in the matter of higher education. It represents the listening to and the hearing of all of the many diverse elements that are represented throughout our educational process. It represents, certainly, the considered judgment and the thinking of the entire committee that will compose not only of people in education, but people from all walks of life. You all are familiar with the composition of our committee. You recognize that we don't have one particular interest, or any particular special interest. We represent, I think every walk of life and every type of occupation that is of any prominence in this particular state. I think there are certain statements that are made here that really do need speaking to. For instance, the statement that this doesn't belong in the constitution. My only answer to that is, is that if this doesn't belong in the constitution, why is the State Board of Education is [in] the constitution? Why is the Coordinating Council for Higher Education in the constitution? Why is the Board of Supervisors in the constitution? For very good reasons: because we have recognized in this state that inclusion in the constitution gives it a status that the people of this state want. They want something that is going to be...that they can count on and rely on. They claim that, of course, we are locking in people by a six year term. This is rather difficult for me to figure out how you're going to lock somebody in on a staggered term that every two years about one third of the membership will be going off of that. I say to you that appointment, election or anything else, that the tide of politics in the State of Louisiana is such that when a governor comes into power, generally speaking, those people who support him in his belief--in his platform--follow him into office, and you can follow that pattern throughout there. So, we would have certainly a board that would have influence on those proposals and those things, but the people would be speaking to the man that does this appointing. So, I state to you that we have a proposal here that I think is a marked improvement over what we presently have in our present educational operation. But, I leave you with one final comment, and that is: just remember, this proposal that we have had written into it, the final answer to everything, and that is that even though this Board of Regents has budgetary powers, it can't budget anything unless the State Legislature goes and approves that budget, unless this State Legislature gives them the money to operate with, unless the State Legislature agrees that the program that this master board is coming up with merits in their estimation and in their judgment the proper funding; and remember, I still believe that we have...still have our legislative elective, and, so therefore, the people do speak to it, and the people do answer in the final analysis on the whole operation. So, I submit to you that this proposal represents something better for education in the State of Louisiana, and I ask your favorable adoption.

Questions

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Aertker, it would seem that we've had a great deal of input on this committee that you've talked about for the last six months from educators--obviously from some other interested groups of the state. I ask you sir, do you believe, in your infinite wisdom, that with what we have here that we can sell it to the ordinary voter who must approve this thing?

Mr. Aertker Repeat the last question.

Mr. Anzalone Do you think we can sell this mess to the ordinary voter.

Mr. Aertker Mr. Anzalone, I think that this ordinary mess--to use your words--is so much superior to this garbled mess that we have presently in operation that I don't have the slightest doubt that we in education...this represents the things that we in education feel is a decided improvement on it. This isn't from my infinite wisdom; this is just from my background, because I have no infinite wisdom.

[Section passed: 74-38. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 85 delegates present and a quorum.]

Motion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, in the interest of time, it seems that the last two sections that we've discussed, that we have had considerable dialogue, and just continued discussion as far as the merits or demerits of the LSU Board of Supervisors...What I think would be, perhaps, repetition of what we've already heard. If we go into Section 8 at this time--I would like to move at this time that we pass over eight and move on to nine with the understanding as soon as that is over, we will revert back to Section B with the hope that this would dispose of all of the questions and answers relative to the matter of the Board of Supervisors. We could, then, resolve the matter in that fashion.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Section 9. Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College

Section 9. (A) Creation; Powers.

[Motion to waive reading of the section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Cowen Mr. Chairman, delegates, we have the Board of Regents, you wisely, I think, were put into the constitution. As I said when I explained the Board of Regents, I was going to explain 7, 8, and 9, the Board of Regents, Board of Trustees, and the Board of Supervisors, because I considered that they came into a package. For this thing to work adequately, we need the three boards for higher education; one for planning and coordination, two boards for the day-to-day management of their respective institutions. There are two systems in Louisiana. We have the LSU State University, that represents the system...or the state system, the state university system. Then we have the Board of Trustees to represent the second system of colleges and higher education. The LSU System, its components are, of course, LSU in Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Shreveport, Eunice, Alexandria, the Medical School in New Orleans, and Dentistry. I don't know that it's necessary to go over all these reasons why. You've heard them, just like to explain to you that in Section 9, that there is created this Board of Supervisors, Louisiana State University and Agricultural [Agricultural] and Mechanical College...subject to the powers that are vested in the Board of Regents. This Board of Supervisors shall supervise and manage the day-to-day affairs of LSU and its system. The committee came up with a seventeen man appointed board--appointed by the governor, in any vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term shall be filled for the remainder of the term by the appointment by the governor.

This, in the main, is Section 9. I think that you've heard plenty of discussion in the past. I have no other explanations.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Delegate, could you address a few remarks for our benefit as to why the Board of Supervisors for LSU-A&M needs to be in the constitution. You said that the board just managed the day-to-day affairs of LSU, and that, in effect, it was subservient to the Board of Regents which we've already put in the constitution. Why do we need to put this board in the constitution?

Mr. Cowen Mr. Roemer, traditionally it has been in the constitution, which tradition has been since 1940, and I think the people want it in there. They voted the Coordinating Council as a constitutional board. I think that this will help to make a more stable situation for the state university. Like I say, we'll have two systems, the state university and the other colleges. We feel that to have more stability, it should be necessary to put it in the constitution.

Mr. Roemer All right. Now you say the people want this? Is that a fair statement?

Mr. Cowen I would think so...

Mr. Roemer If the people want the governor to appoint all fifteen members of the Board of Regents?

Mr. Cowen This is not an unusual situation, and we think that that's the way it should be.

Mr. Roemer Oh, you think the people wanted the governor to point all fifteen?

Mr. Cowen I think so.

Mr. Alario How many members are on the Board of Supervisors for LSU?

Mr. Cowen Fourteen.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Alario So, in effect, you are increasing that to seventeen. Is that right?

Mr. Cowen Right.

Mr. Alario Now, as I understand the article as it stands now, we would have fifteen members for all the other colleges, and then seventeen for LSU. Is that right?

Mr. Cowen There are seventeen for the other... for the Board of Trustees. There are also seventeen, Mr. Alario, as we have it written and proposed at this time.

Mr. Alario Well, what about the Board of Regents? How many did we specify on that?

Mr. Cowen Well, of course this is changed. We had seventeen--we proposed seventeen, also.

Mr. Alario Well, this would be an additional seventeen besides those seventeen, or besides the fifteen?

Mr. Cowen Mr. Alario, you have now, of course, fifteen on the Board of Regents. We are proposing seventeen on the Board of Trustees, and seventeen on the Board of Supervisors.

Mr. Alario Well, why couldn't one board take care of all of these functions? Have you thought of that?

Mr. Cowen Mr. Alario, we think that it is physically impossible for one board to take care of all these things by the very reason...that I've outlined. I wish I had them here to show you the day-to-day affairs that come up in the Board of Supervisors. The last four meetings, there were some hundred and eight different...relatively speaking...significant details important to the state university itself, that the Board of Supervisors took up. We think that these are not things that the Board of Regents should be handling, when they should be thinking about planning and coordination, and thinking about some curriculum, or degree, or school, or something ten years hence, for example, and getting the money for it.

Mr. Roy Mr. Cowen, isn't it a fact that before 1940, when the amendment was adopted making LSU a constitutional board, that it was controlled by the legislature, and that the Board of Supervisors was under the direct control of the legislature?

Mr. Cowen That's true.

Mr. Roy Now, maybe Mr. Roemer, in his junesse[sic] doesn't remember, but isn't it a fact that since 1940 there have been three attempts to amend the LSU Board of Supervisors and modify--reduce--its powers, submitted to the people of the State of Louisiana in '58, '62, and '70. All of them were just overwhelmingly defeated by the people of this state?

Mr. Cowen That's correct.

Mr. Roy Wouldn't that lead you to believe that the people of this state are, in fact, insisting upon the state--the Louisiana State Board of Supervisors--being a constitutional board and being independent of the legislature?

Mr. Cowen There's no doubt in my mind or that of the committee.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Cowen, you say that the LSU Board of Supervisors needs to be in the constitution for stability, and because it's been there traditionally, and because the people feel confident in it. Are you aware that those are the exact same arguments that were used to keep into the constitution the Board of Liquidation, City Debt of New Orleans, the Sewerage and Water Board of

New Orleans, the Board of Commissioners of the Lake Charles Port, the Board of Commissioners, South Louisiana Port, the Fresh Water District of Lafourche and myriad other districts that would sort of like to be in the constitution because they've sort of always been in the constitution, and because they've been subjected to scandal sometime in the twenties, thirties, or forties?

Mr. Cowen That's true, Mrs. Zervigon. But, we feel that education, and higher education is such an emotional issue that these things come up, and as Mr. Roy pointed out, they've come up time after time. We feel that they will no longer be the case if we put them in the constitution.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, can you explain to me why this is more important, or more liable to attack than the port commissions, which are the second industry of the state, and make lots and lots of money, and have, in the past, been forced to hire bunches of deadheads and that sort of thing--have had their treasuries raided? Why we can trust the legislature less, as far as higher education is concerned, than we can as far as the money that the ports produce, for example, is concerned?

Mr. Cowen I can't really explain it. I...think I voted, in most cases, for those to be constitutional boards. Perhaps they should be. But we... can only go in education to what has actually happened in the past. There is every indication that this is...would be a more stable situation if it should continue in the future.

Mrs. Zervigon Are you aware that by name, and as far as their detailed composition is concerned, not a one of these boards has come before the floor of the convention so that it would have been hard to have voted for them? None of them have come up on the floor.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Cowen, as I appreciate what you're telling this convention for stability in education, it's an absolute, total necessity that we have the management boards in the constitution. It cannot be a legislative board. Is that right?

Mr. Cowen We think this is...

Mr. Juneau O. K. All right. You say the reason why we want to have...this in is because the people want it. Is that right?

Mr. Cowen We think this is true.

Mr. Juneau All right. Then let me ask you this question, Mr. Cowen. If I present an amendment and tell you that the people of a university that is of the size of twelve thousand students, wants a management board, and they want it in the constitution, more specifically, the University of Southwestern, would you vote for that amendment, Mr. Cowen?

Mr. Cowen No, I couldn't, Mr. Juneau.

Mr. Juneau Why not, Mr. Cowen?

Mr. Cowen Because, well, as we come up under the Board of Trustees, and I will attempt to explain it at the time...

Mr. Juneau Let's get into it because it affects this section, Mr. Cowen.

Isn't it true under the committee amendment on the Board of Trustees, that the only way that any university in this state, other than LSU, can have its own separate management board, is to have a legislative board which you say is bad? Isn't that correct?

Under the Board of Trustees, Mr. Cowen, under Committee Proposal 7, if the University of Southwestern and the Louisiana Tech wants its own management board--which you recognize they can get--the only way they can get it is through the... through an act of the legislature, which would be a legislative board. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Cowen That's true.

Mr. Juneau All right, then, Mr. Cowen, what protection does Louisiana...does University of Southwestern, or Louisiana Tech have with regard to a management board if they've only got a legislative board, and you're telling this convention that the only...that to have a board that has any authority, it's got to be constitutional, how can you support that?

Mr. Cowen Of course we've been through this many times, haven't we, Mr. Juneau?

Mr. Juneau Well, I just want an answer, Mr. Cowen. That's all I want.

Mr. Cowen The Board of Trustees, of course, is the second system, or the first system that I discussed so far as other colleges and universities are concerned we have the two systems--LSU System and other colleges' system--USL comes under that of the undergraduate institution as a part of the Board of Trustees. Now, we have made provisions under the Board of Regents, any time that they deem it necessary, and that it should be done, they can create by two-thirds vote of the legislature, and within one year's time, a legislative board for USL. We consider at that time that if this is done, and this plan is followed, then there should be no reason why you would ever be disturbed or should be and could be disturbed later on.

Mr. Juneau All right. Last question, Mr. Cowen, you're telling this convention that "to have a management board", it's got to be in the constitution. Isn't that right?

Mr. Cowen We think so.

Mr. Juneau All right. How in the world does these other state universities under your proposal--the committee proposal--get a constitutional board? How do they do that, Mr. Cowen?

Mr. Cowen By amending...the constitution at some later date. That's the only way they can get it. If we don't think...we didn't think in our consideration that they could...and needed a constitutional board unless the Board of Regents...I mean the...yeah...the Board of Regents, thought that it was necessary and made provisions for it.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Cowen, would you not agree some of these questions about why the ports and the river section, and this port, and that board was not in the constitution, would you not agree that a lot of those especially...especially local in nature, while the LSU is statewide in nature... It's a statewide...

Mr. Cowen This is the reason for it.

Mr. Champagne Correct.
Now, would you also agree that...the Board of Trustees for all other universities other than the LSU System are, in fact, taken care of by the committee proposal?

Mr. Cowen They are.

Mr. Champagne In other words, we are, in this case, are you not, raising these institutions to the same caliber that the LSU now enjoys? Is that right?

Mr. Cowen That is true. That is true.

Mr. Champagne Thank you.

Mrs. Corne Mr. Cowen, in speaking to Mr. Juneau just now, you referred to USL as an undergraduate college, did you not?

Mr. Cowen In the main respect, yes, ma'am, I did.

Mrs. Corne Do you know that USL has a large graduate college?

Mr. Cowen I didn't under...your voice is low.

Mrs. Corne Do you know that USL has a large graduate college?

Mr. Cowen Yes, ma'am. I realize that.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Cowen, isn't the contrast that needs to be made in answer to Mr. Juneau, something like this...that the Louisiana State University System operates on six campuses scattered throughout the state, has forty thousand seven hundred and sixty-eight students, and two hundred and nineteen graduate programs within that university system. While no one denigrates the University of Southwestern Louisiana, it is on one campus, it does have forty-six degree programs and eleven thousand students. Isn't that a contrast that could be made in answer to Mr. Juneau?

Mr. Cowen That's a very good...very good answer to Mr. Juneau. Thank you, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Cowen, I understood you to say by your remarks that there exists within the State of Louisiana only one system. Have you ever heard, and any brochures, any testimony by myself or any delegates, or even by the administration of the State Board of Education, any reference to the Southern University System?

Mr. Cowen I have heard of it, Mr. Jackson. Yes.

Mr. J. Jackson Well, then, it's not exactly true when you say that there is only one system per se.

Mr. Cowen That's true.

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Cowen, someone brought out that LSU has constitutional protection because they have over forty thousand students. Let me ask you this. When did LSU gain constitutional protection?

Mr. Cowen In 1940.

Mr. Bergeron 1940. Did they have forty thousand students at that time?

Mr. Cowen No, they did not. It was just a few thousand.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Leithman].
On page 6, delete lines 20 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety, and on page 7, delete lines 1 through 8 both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Leithman Mr. Acting-Chairman and members of the delegation, it may be repetitious, many facets of what you're going to hear because this is getting down to, I think, the dividing fact of this constitution. I think we are on the verge, in Louisiana, of making complete asses of ourselves. All of the states are looking at us. I can tell you this--all of the states, all of the legislatures around the country are. Admittedly, we have not all had the opportunity to meet with these people and discuss what is taking place in education. I wish you would have been there in my place, or I wish that I would have the power to convey to you what is taking place in education around this United States. Apparently, I have not been successful, nor the people who have progress in education have been successful. But, some things have been brought out, and I wish to relate them to you.

One...you've heard many, many comments about past years, the scandals, and how this four-board concept will save us from scandal. I have here-- and each of you have it--a newspaper from the LSU campus here in Baton Rouge. On this first page, it relates to "the Board of Supervisors will not be prosecuted for violation of the law." I'm not judging whether they are guilty or not. But, this certainly isn't preventing any scandals if the scandals were to be done--having four boards. Cause here is the LSU Board of Supervisors, apparently their own newspaper, on their own campus, feels some law has been broken and it has been stated that they will not be prosecuted. I'm happy for this. But, apparently, something was going on behind closed doors. You heard it. We're not going to go into this, but something that happened this morning--and I wish to relate it to you--last week, or earlier this week, I read the comments verbatim from a member of the State Board of Education. I was questioned as to how he derived these figures; were they true, or were they misleading? I couldn't say. I merely quoted to you figures that the State Board of Education member deemed fit to put into public press.

Today, the Committee on Higher Education, formed by the state legislature, both Houses--House and Senate--are fully informed of this article and what is going on. As a prime undertaking--a prime undertaking of this joint legislative committee, will be a complete--a complete--review of the finances, not only of LSU, but our entire system around the state. But, we want to go into these campuses now, open the books, and let's see what's happening from top to bottom, how these universities are being funded. Perhaps at some future date, after this investigation is complete, maybe I will be able to go into this and say first hand these are Ken Leithman's figures, and not reading from the State Board or accept them from someone else. To you folks on other campuses around the state I have a letter, and this is going to follow on your behalf, or to you from local campus. Here is a letter and a resolution passed by LSU-New Orleans. You know what this letter says, and this resolution passed by that university in New Orleans? I hate to use New Orleans because this is from my area. I wish I could have the resolutions that will be passed by you at Northeast, and you at Southeastern, and Nicholls State, throughout the state.

The tuition is going to be increased at N.O. You know what the increase will be? It will be a larger increase than that to be effected here on the Baton Rouge campus. Why? Relate this subject matter. Relate this. If there's an increase around the state, I don't think it should be done at one campus and not the other. But, there will be a differential, believe me. It's in this letter, and you all, I'll be glad to show it to you. It's from the...university in New Orleans. I'll read... I picked out the line here. "Although there is a pro rata formula, LSU-N.O. is paying a forty-five dollar increase while LSU-Baton Rouge is paying less--a ten dollar difference. A ten dollar difference is the figure I was looking for. I don't know what your campus is going to be increased. But, because of inequity in funding, your people and your universities will be paying a larger increase. As far as people supporting a single board, there have been questions pro and con. I wish I could have gotten the governor. Mr. Michot has consented to appear before you and say the same words. But you have a document from Governor Edwards. You've read it, I hope. The first paragraph is all that you have to go. It merely reads this: "After careful consideration of various proposals advanced by the governance of education in Louisiana, and after deliberating with pros and cons..." and it goes down to say, "in the best interest of the citizens of Louisiana, a single board to govern education would be the best way." This is by Governor Edwards and the Superintendent Michot. Of course, the same letter would be furnished you by Mr. Michot...by Jesse Bankston and the State Board of Education. Why a single board? We have arguments for a single board. You have this on your desk right now. This was put out by Mr. Staggs, and I appreciate it.

You have...just a mass of release of programs...

graduate programs throughout this state. Many of these are duplications. Why duplications? Because you don't have any coordination at the present time. I don't see any in the future. You have some universities with twelve master programs; McNeese has thirty-four; Nicholls State, thirteen; LSU-Baton Rouge, a hundred; LSU-New Orleans, twenty-nine. There's duplication of master degree programs here in the state. We are trying in the legislature to cut these things back and create some coordination. Apparently, the majority of us here don't favor that.

Who's behind the single board concept, or improving education? You have all of this on your desk. This is a resolution passed by your universities around the state--the eleven of them--calling for a single board concept. It's right here in front of you. You are turning your back on those people. Who else are we turning our backs on? You have a letter from the Alumni Association. I don't know if you read it. It's signed by Stafford...James Stafford who is the president of all the alumni associations; Mr. Willis from Louisiana Tech; Mr. Dowel from Northeast; Mr. Soileau of USL; Mr. Thompson of Grambling; Mr. Quinn of SLU; Mr. Collier, LSU-N.O.; Mr. Wiggins, Northwestern; Dr. Merrick, Southern; Paul Arceneaux, McNeese; Frank Pertini, Delgado; LaRose from Nicholls State. These people have asked you for a single board concept. It's right in front of you. Are we going to turn our backs on the Alumni Association, also?

I have here a letter signed by the director of the National Association of State Boards of Educators--the National Association of State Board of Educators--urging this delegation, urging this convention, to go with a single board concept. This man, Mr. Ironsgard, the executive secretary, has offered to appear before this body and impress on you the importance of a progressive type of education. This is...it deals with virtually every state board in the United States. I'm not going to go through this, you well know that throughout the United States, the fifty states in the union, we have but twenty boards in constitutions--twenty--here today Louisiana, the progressive state is going to ask for four more, moving the total up some twenty percent.

In closing, on this proposal...what we now are doing, we've already, just before lunch, asked for some seven--fifteen appointments was it--all by the governor? Do you know what you're asking for here in this proposal? Seventeen more appointments, all being made by a governor. Not Governor Edwards, but all governors for the future of the state. Give it to the governor. Let one man rule. You're talking about politics taking over, when one man, the governor of the state, can call the shots on all educational boards from here to eternity, I say that is strong-arm politics. Gentlemen, I certainly would move that you consider the adoption of this resolution.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Leithman, Mr. Willis asked the question one time, and it stuck in my mind. I'm going to ask you the same question.

Wouldn't you have us write this section with an eraser rather than anything else?

Mr. Leithman What was that? I didn't hear the question, Mr. O'Neill.

Mr. O'Neill Wouldn't you rather us write this section with an eraser rather than anything else? I've seen amendments on my desk by you several times to just delete entire sections.

Mr. Leithman With this? Yeah, I think this is what a constitution is all about. I don't think a constitution is to build up a volume of things that can't be changed. I think it's got to be flexible. I think we've got to look for ten years, fifteen and twenty years from now. To...delete this section you'd wind up with two boards; one for higher education, and one for elementary.

I think this is...this could well do the job.

Mr. O'Neill Are you going to attempt to eliminate the Board of Trustees?

Mr. Leithman If this section is deleted, I would most surely vote and support an amendment to eliminate the Board of Trust...Yes, I would.

Mr. D'Neill Now you mentioned--which I think the argument's totally irrelevant and not germane to this section--but you mentioned fee increases that are about to take effect. Let me ask you as a legislator, have you done anything to stop these fee increases from taking place? Do you intend to?

Mr. Leithman Yes, sir. Everything that we have done in the legislature trying to coordinate things, bring things under one board to control this, is about to be redone. That was our purpose in coordinating the...eliminate the duplication and coordinating education in this state. But, it looks like what the legislatures's tried to do by a majority of the legislature, is about to be undone and permit this sort of thing to continue.

Mr. Aertker Mr. Leithman, you mentioned that LSU's Board of Supervisors--evidently we have a bunch of criminals down there--don't you think it would be of interest to this convention if you would explain what heinous crime they just committed, that they should be punished for?

Mr. Leithman Mr. Aertker, for the past six months--that comment, I can well expect you to say--going back, my comments were this. I read it from the first paragraph of the LSU paper. I read verbatim from that paper that...whatever was done, they will not be prosecuted. I'm just saying something was done, apparently wrong, and I didn't put down on anyone at all, Mr. Aertker. But, I can appreciate your comment. I read from the newspaper out there. Whatever was wrong, they decided not to prosecute. The investigation may turn it up that nothing was done wrong. However, if you read the front paragraph of that item, you will see that they will not prosecute.

Mr. Aertker Mr. Leithman, I was so impressed by all of the information you are presenting to this because I saw you present similar information like this. But is it not a fact that you have presented information to our Committee on Education, and that that information has later on been completely repudiated as being erroneous?

Mr. Leithman None of this has that I presented to you today has been. None of it.

Mr. Aertker Mr. Leithman, you wouldn't object, then, for some of the members of this committee to explain to us...to this convention, then, the information you gave us relative to the University of Tennessee and its operation and the statements that we got from the president in which he was quoted two days before that. He completely repudiated the information two days after that. You'd have no objection to that?

Mr. Leithman No, not at all. I had nothing to do with that article. I merely presented an article that was written in a newspaper. It was repudiated by the University of Tennessee. I don't see where this has any bearing on what we...

Wait...let me finish, Mr. Aertker.
I didn't mention the University of Tennessee in my argument, whatsoever. I was wrong when I mentioned that I thought Notre Dame was going to be upset by a ball club. You can bring that out, also, if you think it's relevant.

Mr. Aertker Mr. Leithman, you stated that you all are going to solve all the problems of education by the legislative committee that you serve on--going to make a complete study of all of the finances, etc., of the State of Louisiana. I have a question in my mind. What has the development, or what has the incorporation of the LSU Board of Supervisors, or the continuance of the LSU Board of Supervisors in the present constitution, as they presently are, in the proposed constitution? What would that have to do with the study that you are going to make? How would that interfere with it or affect the study if you are studying the finances of the operation when this convention has already adopted a proposal that is going to provide the finances and the budgetary powers in the Board of Regents?

Mr. Leithman None. No interference.

Mr. Aertker All right. Then the final question I have is that you showed concern about having seventeen members appointed. How do you think the present LSU Board of Supervisors is appointed, and by whom do you think they are appointed, and what apparent change are we making other than increasing the number from fourteen to seventeen?

Mr. Leithman Well, to answer all the questions, the LSU Board now, Jimmie Davis, and McKeithen's brother, and the whole line, are now appointed by the--I don't have anything against these people--they are now appointed by the governor. By what you have in this amendment, for the eternity of this document, or until it can be changed, those persons, all seventeen, will be appointed by this governor, or future governors. So, there's virtually no change at all. I would say a regression, if anything.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I seriously ask, if no more than the rest of this convention, that you attempt to listen to what I'm trying to say. I rise in support of the Leithman amendment, but not for the reasons--and I want to make that very clear--not for the reasons that I'm anti-L.S.U. or I'm anti-L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. Like most of you--and you know, I'm kind of shameful to even admit it--but most of you ought to recognize what has occurred by us moving over Section B and going to Section 9. You see, the whole question of the Board of Trustees for everyday management of the university's operations was supposed to be discussed in Section 8. So, it puts a lot of delegates who are not necessarily anti-L.S.U., but for their particular universities, in an awkward position of voting against Section 9 because we are only discussing one Board of Supervisors, and I hope that does not negate the argument that I have been fostering for a couple of days now--that there are, existing within this state, colleges and universities in another system that ought to be given the same amount of consideration for a Board of Supervisors if you're going to allow that for one university. I suggest to you that the Leithman amendment--although I rise in support of it--that the Leithman amendment attempts to bring us back to Section B because what if in Section B that it is the feeling of this convention that they do recognize that other state universities ought to have individual boards of management, or that at least another system ought to have the same Board of Supervisors? In Section 9, we've already done spelled it out what the Board of Supervisors is going to be for one section. If you wanted one for your university, you're going to have to try to adopt a whole section. I would suggest very seriously that either you do two things: either you, one, support the Leithman amendment, and we can come back there and explain comprehensively what should be the functions and duties of all Boards of Supervisors, if such is the case; or that, if this amendment fails, that we get a motion to revert back to Section 8 so that we can talk about a state system of board management not separate for one university, but in light of all the aspirations and desires of not only L.S.U., Louisiana Tech, Northeast, Northwestern, Southeastern, Southwestern, Nicholls State,

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

McNeese State, Southern and Grambling. I congratulate the proponents of the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors for their move, but I suggest to you that for those individual delegates who really want to fact this question square on the head and don't presuppose that we're only going to have just one Board of Supervisors, that you ought to give some very serious consideration why we passed over Section 8. For those reasons, I rise in support of the Leithman amendment. I'm not necessarily anti-L.S.U., but that we can handle this problem head-on. I yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Johnny, if we don't pass the Leithman amendment and thereby keep this section as it now reads, are you telling us that you're going to try to put in the constitution--in the same way that L.S.U. will be put in this constitution--a management board for a similar system that operates in this state?

Mr. J. Jackson I suggest to you, Mr. Roemer, ~~that my~~ personal position is--and make it very clear to everybody--that I don't see how, since we're talking about Boards of Supervisors are going to run just the everyday affairs of the university, how you're going to set it up for one and don't even consider setting it up for the other one. Personally, I would like to just see one, but I do not see--and I will fight very strong--I do not see we, not only proposing one and letting all the other ones go under another one, at the same time negating deliberative and constructive debate on a section where we could determine that in one issue rather than saying we do 9 so we can't go back and undo 9.

Mr. Roemer Right, but the point I'm trying to make for our information is you're going to give us the alternative, I hope, that if we can't take these boards out, then we're going to put all legitimate boards in. Is that correct?

Mr. J. Jackson I will give you an alternative... I have a couple of alternatives. That would be one, Mr. Roemer. Another one would be that we ought to at least give consideration to all the other universities, particularly since we're just talking about boards of management and operations.

[Motion to suspend the rules to allow additional time adopted: 67-9.]

Mr. Aertker Mr. Jackson, when I got to this mike and explained to the delegates that the reason why we were passing over Section 8 and moving on to 9 was because I felt we would hear the same arguments, the same conversation, etc. It was my impression that the Chair asked if there were any objections to that. Why didn't you object to that?

Mr. J. Jackson I respond to that, Mr. Aertker. I was there at my desk when the question was asked, and I did--and I will say this very sincerely--I attempted to get recognition. But, after it was done, I just stayed there, you know, I didn't argue, I didn't push the point. But, I'm just saying that I think a lot of delegates in this convention did not recognize the true implications of what was being done by passing over Section 8.

Mr. Aertker Well, Mr. Jackson, you really don't believe, then, that we have to resolve the question of the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors to perhaps maybe even more intelligently decide on what follows in the consideration of the Board of Trustees for higher education?

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Aertker, I suggest very strongly that we ought to resolve the question of one, L.S.U. Board of Supervisors, a Board of Trustees, individual boards of management. I don't think you can resolve that by just dealing on just the L.S.U. Board of... 'cause it puts me, personally, as a delegate, to say that, look, I'm not anti-L.S.U. to have a Board of Supervisors. But, I suggest very strongly that I ought to have the consideration to have a Board of Supervisors, also. I think all the other universities feel very strongly since it's just a management board and since that we do not have--even if we got it--we do not have the constitutional status. Secondly, since that we're going into detail in Section 9 to decide what's going to be the composition. Let's say... I'll word it like this: If we were all to get a Board of Supervisors, that we've extended another university system a Board of Supervisors, then you're going to have to come back with another section as you do in 9 to explain now, what's going to be their functions. I'm saying if that is the case, then we can do it in a general provision that says board of management and supervisors should have such and such a function.

Mr. Aertker But, it actually is a fact, Mr. Jackson, you'd probably have the same problem if we would have gone to 8 instead of 9, too. Wouldn't you?

Mr. J. Jackson I would not have that problem, Mr. Aertker, because I think what we will be doing would be discussing the thing in a... in my opinion, in an arena where everybody is involved rather than necessarily isolate and negate, that possibility.

Mr. Aertker In other words, this is one of those cases, again, where it depends on who recognizes where the horse is and where the wagon is, and we really don't really know where it is.

Mr. J. Jackson Well, I don't wish to put it like that, but I'm just saying that I did compliment the movers of that motion and their tactics. But, I just think I wanted to raise the question to all persons who are interested about their university to recognize what you are doing.

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura Thank you, Mr. Chairman.
Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment, and in support to this section. I sat on the Committee of Education; I sat on the Subcommittee of Higher Education. I don't want to feel that I sat there for months to do no good. I sat there and I went into it open-minded. If this--and I want to pass on to you the benefits of what I have learned--if this amendment is passed, it would, in a way, undo what we did this morning by the passing of Section 7. The intention of the supporters of this amendment is to go back to the one-board system. I want to tell you why I've learned that we shouldn't have a one-board system. It sounds good--one board system. Everybody will be created--everybody will be equal; everybody will be treated equal. I've sat at the State Board of Education meetings many times. I've seen these elected board members who do a fine job try to handle budget, curriculum, and manage eleven state colleges and universities. They can't physically do it; it's just too much for them to do. In the wisdom of this Education Committee, we have set this thing up to where a Board of Regents would rule over curriculum and budget for all schools because everyone--everyone who is pushing for a one board system will give you that as the reason--that the curriculum should be decided on an equal basis; the budget should be decided on an equal basis. That's why the Board of Regents governs L.S.U. and governs all of the state colleges--equally. But, I've sat at these board meetings at the Board of Education and seen that they can't physically do all of that. The Education Committee also agreed when they said that these colleges and universities and L.S.U. should have management boards. Now, whether... now, the question is also whether L.S.U. should be divided from the other colleges or whether they should be alone. You have already decided that.

You've decided that by an overwhelming vote of 74 votes "for," this morning, when you passed this section. Now, it was also mentioned about L.S.U. N.O., and it keeps bringing up that L.S.U. N.O. should be divided and taken out of the L.S.U. system. I don't know if that's right or wrong, and I'm not here to say it's right or wrong. L.S.U. N.O. was not created by this constitution--by the delegates. They should not throw that decision on our backs. They should go to the people that created them and take that problem where it deserves to be taken. It's unfair to come to us and try to make us make that decision. So, I ask you to go along with what you decided this morning. I'm not saying that you should be limited to only one board for all the state colleges. That decision I think you will make when you get to Section 8. What I'm asking you to do is you've already decided to separate L.S.U., and let's defeat this amendment and go on and vote for the section as it is. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in vigorous opposition to the Leithman amendment. It's another attempt to completely abolish the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors, and frankly, just to skin and gut this entire concept of governance of higher education. It's just another one of those attempts. Back in 1921, the constitution authorized the legislature to set up the Board of Supervisors of L.S.U. L.S.U. prospered, did well, and finally, all of you know about the scandals in 1939. So, in 1940, the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors was put in the constitution in reality. Since that time, there have been three attempts to change this Board of Supervisors of L.S.U. and take it out of the constitution. That was in 1958, 1960, again in 1970. Every time the people of the State of Louisiana had an opportunity to voice their opinion, they were, in a big majority, opposed to any change in the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. So, it can easily be said, and I think, said without fear of contradiction that the people in the State of Louisiana definitely want an L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. Now, it should be--there should be an L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. We keep talking about the systems, but L.S.U. is a system that operates all over the State of Louisiana. It's not an institution located in Baton Rouge or any other section of the state. It operates over the entire State of Louisiana. I would like to add, quickly: just stop and be fair. It is a university and a university system that we should all be proud of. L.S.U. is something that has been built up. It's widely known; it's accepted as being a great university, and I think that every person in the State of Louisiana should be proud of it. It's not just a local issue at all. Now, it has, in addition to the university in Baton Rouge, it has L.S.U. in New Orleans, a four-year institution with graduate and research programs, L.S.U. Medical Center with two campuses in New Orleans and in Shreveport, and certainly we should be proud of those medical schools; L.S.U. in Shreveport which will next year become a full-fledged four-year institution; L.S.U. at Alexandria, a two-year community college; L.S.U. at Eunice, a two-year community college. The center for agricultural sciences and rural development headquartered on the Baton Rouge campus and made an autonomous unit of the system by the Board of Supervisors. It operates home demonstration agents and county agents in every parish in the State of Louisiana. There are fourteen agricultural experiment stations that are scattered all over Louisiana. There is an observatory in Clinton. Now, another great accomplishment of L.S.U. is the center for wetland resources: that is the sea grant program. Now, I would like to read from this production, here: "L.S.U. operates a unique center for wetland resources which, under a February, 1971 wetlands charter, is charged with the responsibility for developing the manpower and technology necessary for optimum use of Louisiana's wetland resources, the present importance and natural potential of which are unexcelled anywhere in the world. Among the center's major responsibility is the development of a sea grant program funded, substantially, by the federal government. Among the center's direct contributions to the state have been the research and recommendations of L.S.U. staff members from several departments which have played a leading role in locating a Superport in Louisiana, and in presenting the state's concern for such a facility." Now, listen to this carefully--I hope I'm not disturbing this conversation back over here, Mr. Chairman. "The economic importance of wetlands can hardly be exaggerated since forty-five percent of Louisiana consists of coastal and floodplain wetlands..."

Mr. Hernandez Thank you very much. If you don't listen to anything else, please listen to this: "The economic importance of wetlands can hardly be exaggerated since forty-five percent of Louisiana consists of coastal and floodplain wetlands which contain eighty percent of the state's population, and eighty percent of its manufacturing capability. Moreover, more than fifty percent of Louisiana tax revenues come from coastal or marine related businesses. Louisiana's wetlands are a tremendous source of food, the most important of which are shrimp, crayfish, crabs, and oysters. Actually, all the common species of fish and shellfish in Louisiana are dependent on at least part of their life cycle." Ladies and gentlemen, I plead with you in all sincerity, please consider the fact that this L.S.U. system was not developed overnight. It's a development over a long period of time for the entire State of Louisiana. Louisianians must be proud of that institution. They have supported this concept three times that the people have had a chance to vote on it. Won't you please give that your consideration, and for God's sake, let's keep this L.S.U. Board of Supervisors so that we can maintain one of the greatest universities in the United States. Thank you so much.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Leithman Gentlemen, just in sixty seconds I ask that we really consider what we are about to do. I just feel that the constitution in toto is up for jeopardy. We have over a hundred thousand alumni people behind this amendment from the independent universities and sixty thousand students. Two-thirds of the state's students are endorsing this concept. I certainly hope we don't turn our backs on our constituents. I think I may have been as guilty as anyone. I think, perhaps, being down here the way we have, well, maybe we have lost touch, and maybe we're just not voting the way our people are asking us to vote. So, I would certainly ask that you pass this amendment, and in the legislature, if there is a board that need be created to take care of L.S.U., I will certainly be the first person to support it. Thank you.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 40-71. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Motion

Mr. J. Jackson I move that we revert back to Section 8.
 Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'll be very brief. I think everybody understands basically why we skipped over Section 8 and went to 9. I'm saying that 8 comes before 9, and it allows just consideration of all universities and colleges within this state. So, I ask your favorable support of the motion.

[Motion rejected: 39-64.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Stinson sends up amendments at this time. It's going to be difficult for you to distinguish at a moment's glance the difference between the two amendments. It's the longer of the two Stinson amendments. You can determine it by counting the number of lines in Paragraph (A). The amendment that he is going with has six lines in Paragraph (A) as opposed to five lines in the amendment he's not going with. It was the second one that was distributed.

Amendment No. 1. On page 6, delete lines 22 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 7, delete lines 1 through 8, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 9. (A) There is created a body corporate, known as the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College which, subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents, shall direct, control, supervise, and manage the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College.

(B) The board shall consist of the governor, as ex officio member, and fourteen members appointed by the governor, with consent of the Senate. The appointive members of the board in office on the effective date of this Section shall continue to serve until the expiration of their respective terms. Thereafter, the members shall serve twelve-year overlapping terms. The legislature shall provide for the terms of two members to expire on June first of each even-numbered calendar year. At least one member shall be appointed from each congressional district, but at least seven appointive members shall have been students at and graduates of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College. No person shall be appointed to the board who would attain the age of seventy years prior to the expiration of his term. The board shall elect, from its appointive members, a chairman and a vice-chairman, and it shall elect a secretary, who need not be a member of the board.

(C) A vacancy occurring prior to the expiration of the term shall be filled for the remainder of the unexpired term by appointment by the governor, with the consent of the Senate."

Explanation

Mr. Stinson Fellow members of the convention, so that there won't be any confusion--the amendment that was withdrawn--all these were prepared yesterday. This body has yesterday said that they want L. S. U. to be under the Board of Regents. I do not believe in forcing continuous votes on the same matter, so I've withdrawn that amendment. The only difference is the one I present to you today will place L. S. U. under the Board of Regents. Now, the changes that I have made are those that have been discussed and brought up at different times in the legislature. I will take them in the order, not necessarily of importance, but as you come to them on the amendment and explain the difference between this and the committee proposal and also tie it with our present law. Under our present law, we have fourteen members. The committee proposal, as I read it, would provide for seventeen members. Under the present law, the governor is ex officio member, and I continue that, I think the governor should be. I also, as I said, keep fourteen members as it is in the present law. Now next, of course, in my proposal and that of the committee to be appointed by the governor subject to the consent of the Senate-- Now, mine provides for twelve-year overlapping terms. Under that, no one governor could control the board--could appoint all the members. Under the committee report, six-year terms, any governor serving two years would control the board and make all of the appointments. That's one feature that we have got to keep; any one governor from controlling the board; it gets rid of temptation--even the good governors have temptations--and a lot of the graduates and other people in the state like to serve on that board. So, let's make it... reduce it from fourteen years in the present constitution, to twelve years. Now, I would like to tie-in while I'm speaking of that term. One of the criticisms of the present law is that some are appointed and by the time they go off the board, they are too aged. I've talked with different ones, and we felt that in their days, seventy years is not too advanced an age and it provides in mine that "no one will be appointed who will exceed seventy years of age when he finishes his term of office." The present committee proposal doesn't have that limitation and a man could be on there at a hundred years old. Also, I provided this: that at least seven will be L. S. U. graduates. The committee does not have any requirement as to graduates of L. S. U. I certainly feel that it is not out of line to continue, as in the present law, seven of the appointees will be graduates of L. S. U. Also, the present law-- I don't believe--requires any congressional district to have any. My amendment says that "each congressional district shall have at least one appointee on the board." That covers the changes that I have proposed in this amendment. I would like to urge you...that I believe this is for the betterment of L. S. U., and the betterment of the state, and our entire educational system than that of the committee. I'm not criticizing. I'm just making my observations. I hope that you agree with me. The main point that I think in the committee proposal is six-year terms and any one governor serving two years will control one hundred percent of the board. Mr. Jenkins, in figuring it out on the other board, it will mean that that governor will control the board up until, I believe, 1984, even, almost ten years, even after he serves his term. I don't think that's proper. I would like to urge you to go along with this amendment. I think it improves on that of the committee. If there are any questions, I'll be happy to try to answer them.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Stinson, I believe we have previously in this convention approved terms of ten years for the Louisiana Courts of Appeal and the Louisiana Supreme Court which are elected offices. Why do you think we should give twelve-year terms to these people who are under the Board of Regents and are appointed?

Mr. Stinson Mr. Lanier, due to the fact that that is the best term of office that we could allow that, that no governor would control the board. As you know, the judges are elected and these people are not elected, so no governor could control the courts because they are elected for their terms of offices. I think it's possibly a little different matter to be considered. I'm trying to keep the control of this board from anyone, except the people and the board itself.

Mr. Jack Mr. Stinson, I noticed in here you provide "no person shall be appointed to the board who would attain the age of seventy years prior to the expiration of his term."

Mr. Stinson Mr. Jack, that is so that they won't appoint old people like you on the board.

Mr. Jack I'm getting to that, Mr. Stinson. I got more hair than you, and I'm younger in some ways. I just dyed this hair white, you know, to give me dignity. I'm really black haired.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Jack, I always heard that hair and brains didn't mix, I understand why you have so much hair.

Mr. Jack All right. Let me ask you the question.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Stinson Yes, sir.

Mr. Jack How old are you?

Mr. Stinson Thirty-nine.

Mr. Jack Now, Mr. Chairman, I want him to answer the question seriously, honestly, if he can.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Jack, in answer seriously, I am fifty-nine. I would be too old to be appointed, because if I figured correctly, I would be seventy-one if I served twelve years.

Mr. Jack All right. Well, I want to try to find out what reason do you pick that age, most of us at...past fifty-eight are very active. You're losing a lot of good brains if you do it. I'm trying to figure why you are against people over fifty-eight if they are in good health and smart like a lot of us.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Jack, at that age your health is not certain and especially a mental lapse that could happen. Everybody says that we old folks should move aside and let the younger ones in and this is an opportunity to do that.

Mrs. Corne Mr. Stinson, your proposal contains the fact that a member of this board should be a graduate of L. S. U.

Mr. Stinson Seven of the fourteen.

Mrs. Corne Would you agree to the same for the other state colleges, for the board that would control the other state colleges?

Mr. Stinson If we had a board controlling the other ones, yes, ma'am. I certainly think there should be.

Mrs. Corne Therefore, some of us would be eligible for both boards, would we not, if we are graduates of L. S. U. and also of one of the other state colleges?

Mr. Stinson If they had such a board, it would seem so, yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Corne Yes. Thank you, sir.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Stinson, under your proposal of members being appointed for twelve years--would it not be possible for appointed board members to control the L. S. U. system? You hesitated to stick to the six-year period, because you were afraid the governor would control. Would it not be possible for appointed members to build up a power block and control the L. S. U. system?

Mr. Stinson I'm glad you asked that, Brother Stovall, you're all out for this Board of Regents. I was not and everybody knows the Board of Regents is going to control L. S. U., this board and everything else educationally. So, you've already gotten your cake, and you have a chance to eat it by helping L. S. U. now even though they are under your Board of Regents.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Stinson Thank you. I would appreciate it, and L. S. U. would appreciate it if we could go along with this. It will cure some of the complaints and objections in the past and make it overall better. I would appreciate it if you could vote for it. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Hayes Mr. Stinson, do you realize I couldn't serve on that board?

Mr. Stinson What was that?

Mr. Hayes I couldn't serve on the board at L. S. U., because I didn't finish from the school.

Mr. Stinson No, this is only seven...there are seven appointees that do not have to be graduates.

Mr. Hayes Well, I would be too old to serve, then, wouldn't I?

Mr. Stinson Well, you're a lot younger than I am. How old are you? You know also, Jerry, the way you sleep you might be categorized as Rip Van Winkle, and you come back a lot younger over there.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Stinson, you didn't put in there--in your seven that must have graduated in the L. S. U. system--that there must be one from each campus, or that they may not all be from one campus, or anything like that; did you?

Mr. Stinson No, ma'am. It just said that "a graduate of L. S. U."

Mrs. Zervigon Can you tell me why you didn't specify that other campuses must be represented on the board?

Mr. Stinson The reason on that, Miss Mary, is that I was tracking the present law on that appointment.

Mrs. Zervigon How many of the present board members are from campuses other than the one in Baton Rouge or graduates...undergraduates from other campuses?

Mr. Stinson I do not know.

Mrs. Zervigon I don't believe there are many. I don't believe there are any. Is that correct?

Mr. Stinson I don't know. But, it doesn't say you have to be from Baton Rouge campus, in other... it could be from New Orleans, or Shreveport, or Eunice, or Alexandria, or those places.

Mr. O'Neill Well, Mr. Stinson, it's not likely that very many of them are because most of them are pretty old fellows and those colleges weren't even created when they graduated from college. Isn't that about right?

Mr. Stinson That's right and, Gary, I don't put a minimum age. So, I think you could qualify.

Amendment

Mr. Hardin [Assistant Clerk] Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Abraham]. On page 7, line 1, after the word and punctuation "law," delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 2 through 4, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "The board shall consist of thirteen members, with at least one member, and no more than two members, appointed from each of the several congressional districts into which the state is divided."

Explanation

Mr. Abraham Ladies and gentlemen, the only purpose of this amendment is to bring this board in more in conformity with the Board of Regents. We have already provided that the Board of Regents will be fifteen members. The committee proposal, as it stands now, would allow seventeen members. I do not think that it would be right to have this managing board larger than the Board of Regents. I have cut it back, actually, to thirteen, which will be two less. But, I have also provided that "at least one member, and no more than two members" would be from each of the...appointed from the congressional districts, the same as we have the same language we have with the Board of Regents--that's the only purpose of this amendment.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Next amendment sent up by Delegates Juneau, Corne, and Johnny Jackson.

Amendment No. 1. On page 6, at the end of line 21, after the word "College" add the following: "and Board of Governors for State Colleges and Universities"

Amendment No. 2. On page 6, between lines 29 and 30, insert the following:

"(B) Board of governors of state colleges and universities; creation and powers. There is created bodies corporate, known as the Board of Governors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, the Board of Governors of Northeast Louisiana University, the Board of Governors of Grambling College, the Board of Governors of Louisiana Tech University, and the Board of Governors of the University of Southwestern Louisiana, which subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents, shall supervise and manage their respective colleges and universities."

Amendment No. 3. On page 6, at the beginning of line 30, change "(B)" to "(C)"

Amendment No. 4. On page 6, line 30, after the words "of the" and before the word "shall" delete the word "board" and insert in lieu thereof the words "respective boards"

Amendment No. 5. On page 7, line 1, after the word "members" and before the word "shall" insert the words "of each board"

Amendment No. 6. On page 7, at the beginning of line 5, change the Letter "(C)" to the letter "(D)"

Point of Order

Mr. Kean I rise to ask the ruling of the Chair, as to whether or not this amendment is germane to Section 9, which is under consideration at this time.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Casey Mr. Kean, I would have to rule as Acting Chairman that the amendment is germane. The section establishes a board of supervisors. The amendment extends this to a board of governors for other colleges and universities. I would have to rule that the amendment is germane.

Explanation

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I will tell you in all candor the exact amendment which is now before you, I had originally prepared that amendment for Section B. You will recall the discussion earlier why...why not we went from "G" to "B". The reason is because you took it in the order that you did, I deemed it germane and to clearly put the issue before this convention, I put the amendment in Section 9. Very simply what this amendment does--and it's not complicated--I have not changed the Board of Regents one iota. I have not changed the L. S. U. Board of Supervisors one iota. What I have done, and what this amendment very simply does is, is give it to the other state universities in this state who want to have a constitutionally created management board the right to have such a board. You might recall the discussion earlier when Mr. Cowen was up here, the question was arisen as to how these other schools, these other universities in the future be they have twenty thousand, fifty thousand, or a hundred thousand students. How do they get a management board? The response was, they have to go to the legislature, they have to get a two-thirds vote of the legislature and what they have is a legislative board. The next question was, "Well, Mr. Cowen, is a legislative management board a good concept?"

The unequivocal and consistent answer throughout the deliberations in this convention is, "Gentlemen, if you put it in the legislature, you're going to ruin education." So it seems to me that we have ended up in a rather ridiculous situation. You are telling these universities that have over...some of whom have over twelve thousand students, "Yes, gentlemen, you can have your management boards. But, the only way you're going to get it is through a Legislative Act," which according to the discussions in this convention isn't worth the paper it's written on. I want you to explain that logic. I'll go further to tell you the point was indicated to me earlier, and I might as well bring it forward. There are a couple of universities which are deleted from this amendment, and I'll tell you why. Since several of us were offering these amendments, we thought it appropriate to contact the presidents of all of those universities and find out what their feelings were. There was some degree of hesitation or unsureness, or not sure what position the universities--Northwestern, for example, and Southeastern, and McNeese--wanted to take. So, I didn't think it was for me to put them in the amendment. By the same token, these universities--Southern, U. S. L., Grambling, and Louisiana Tech--they have said unequivocally "We want a constitutionally created management board. We think it's a good concept. We think we would have to have it. We think we're asking to do nothing more but to have a buffer zone in a constitutionally created board, which is the only way we can get it." Very simply, that's what we have done. Now, gentlemen of this convention, let me just put it to you frankly. If you get up here and say in answer was, "Well, we're giving them a board. We're giving them a Board of Trustees." But, that's all of you people get into the swimming pond, and you all fight for the fish. If you want to segregate, and if you want to get out by yourself and have your own management board; well, then you take the guillotine approach. You go get your legislative board, which admittedly is bad. I just frankly do...I say to you that is not fair. I say to you in all candor, and I say this to the L. S. U. system, which I have supported throughout my lifetime. I tell you that what they are doing in this amendment, if you vote against it, what you're saying is, "We're not interested in L. S. U. necessarily--which I thought was the original intent--but we want to squash the opportunity for another school to have the right to have a constitutionally created board." Let me offer for you this practical consideration. Gentlemen, when we get through with this convention, we've got a problem. We've got a problem in selling this constitution. I'm not asking for the bonanza. I'm only asking for a crumb. You've got to tell these people in northeast Louisiana, and in south Louisiana, and in the Southern system, "Gentlemen, at least you have a constitutionally created board, and we have not deprived you of that opportunity." That practically--and this is addressed to the L. S. U. system--what is wrong in giving the delegates of this convention and the people of those schools some status in this constitution. I fail to see that logic. So, what I'm asking and pleading with you to do is only to give us status, and it doesn't harm the structure of Committee Proposal No. 7--is to give them the same right--from a management standpoint--as you have afforded to the L. S. U. system. I will yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Stinson Mr. Juneau, you have already answered part of my question and that was why all were not included. I was especially concerned about Northwestern because so many from my parish go there, but, of course, if they don't want to and Mr. Kelly doesn't want them in there, I can understand why they are not. But next, don't you fail to set out the composition and so forth of the board, how they will be appointed, and what terms and all? Don't you think that's necessary?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Juneau No, sir. I haven't failed to do that, Mr. Stinson, at least, I don't think I have. I think the language provides, in essence, that the composition of the board will be composed exactly as the Board of Supervisors of the L.S.U. system would be. That, of course, is the latter amendments which are on this sheet--two from each congressional district.

Mr. Bollinger Pat, in light of everything we have done so far today, I think your amendment is very appropriate. But, I was wondering why you left out Nicholls State University. I realize, possibly, they may not have wanted to be in there, but my question arises from this: If your amendment is adopted, we are going to lock in these universities with a board of governors. Any additional university created or anyone who changes administration and decided to come under this board of governors, will need a constitutional amendment; is that correct?

Mr. Juneau If they want a constitutional status, Mr. Bollinger, that's correct. Let me further answer your question this way, Mr. Bollinger. If the delegates from that area, and the representatives from Nicholls State University say, "That's what we want," I would stick them in the amendment. I just don't have the authority to do that. I don't think that's my position. If it be the consensus of that delegation after the passage of such an amendment, I would vote for it; no question about it.

Mr. Bollinger Well, do you think we are writing a constitution for today and for the administrations of the colleges today; or, are we writing a constitution with regard to education for years to come?

Mr. Juneau I came down here, Mr. Bollinger, in answer to your question...to write a constitution for the next three hundred years. I supported the initial amendment, which was to take all these boards out; I didn't think that was appropriate. I didn't make that decision, Mr. Bollinger; this convention has made that decision. Since it has been made, I'm only asking for fairness and justice to the other universities of this state.

Mr. Newton Pat, have you checked with the presidents of all of these colleges and universities that you have in your amendment?

Mr. Juneau Each of the presidents of the universities indicated in this amendment have been contacted. Yes, sir.

Mr. Newton And, they all have to have a constitutional board? Have you contacted anybody else besides the presidents, I mean, have the alumni associations of these schools come out...the delegates from those areas, the faculties, the student bodies? Has anybody else indicated that they wanted a constitutional board?

Mr. Juneau Have I personally? No, sir.

Mr. Burns I believed you answered this generally. But, did you contact Southeastern Louisiana University at Hammond?

Mr. Juneau I spoke to the delegates in this convention who are from that...some of those who are from that area...I see Mr. Newton, I talked to Mr. Fayard, I talked to Mr. Anzalone, and some one else. They told me they discussed the matter with Southeastern. As I appreciate the answer which they gave, they wasn't sure that that's what they would want to do. So, I didn't think it was appropriate to put it in my amendment.

Mr. Roemer Mr. Juneau, some delegates seem to be concerned that you've taken heretofore the position that we ought to eliminate such boards from the constitution and that's true; is it not?

Mr. Juneau That's correct. That's the original amendment which I filed, Mr. Roemer.

Mr. Roemer Isn't it also true that this deliberative body is a process--it's not a single act--and that in this process, this debate that's going on at this moment, you feel that we've lost the opportunity to clean up and write a concise constitution in regard to these boards? Isn't that right?

Mr. Juneau In my humble opinion, that's absolutely correct, Mr. Roemer.

Mr. Roemer So then, my third question is: in view of that defeat in laws then don't you think it's appropriate that we should give the same board management representation to all the universities and colleges of this state, as we do to L. S. U.?

Mr. Juneau This convention has apparently made the decision; they want to put management boards in, Mr. Roemer. Since they have, I'm merely asking for fairness, that's all.

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Juneau, at the time that the L. S. U. Board was formed some years ago, there were approximately five thousand students in the L. S. U. system. Is that correct?

Mr. Juneau I think it was...in 1940, I think it was less than five thousand, or it wasn't very many more than that, if it was.

Mr. Anzalone And the real reason was because this was a big university, and they needed a board to manage its affairs. Wasn't that correct?

Mr. Juneau That's right. That's my understanding.

Mr. Anzalone Well, now I see down here that the University of Southwestern Louisiana now has eleven thousand six hundred and twenty-five students in it. Don't you think that's big enough to have its own management board?

Mr. Juneau They think so.

Mr. Cowen Mr. Juneau, we are talking about numbers, it seems. Don't you think, then, that with twenty-three thousand now with L. S. U. Baton Rouge, that L. S. U. Baton Rouge under your proposal should have a board of its own and let each one of the other institutions whenever they reach a certain amount, LSUNO and so forth?

Mr. Juneau I'll put it to you this way, Mr. Cowen, I can't visualize in God's green earth of L. S. U. ever wanting to do that.

Mr. Cowen No, but I agree with you. We don't think that we would, or the L. S. U. system would do that. But, what I'm saying is, don't you think it's just as reasonable? You say that...don't you think...to put it in a form of a question... Mr. Juneau, the opponents of the committee proposal have consistently said and made statements on how we are destroying the other colleges and universities in the state. We don't think this is true. Those of us who worked on this committee proposal think that we have upgraded the other colleges and universities by giving them a Board of Trustees or one that would manage all of them, just as the L. S. U. system. There are some seven institutions in the L. S. U. system under the Board of Supervisors. There are some...over forty thousand students in that system with sixty thousand in the Board of Trustees or other colleges. Don't you think that we are really upgrading the other colleges and universities by the virtue of giving them a Board of Trustees of their own?

Mr. Juneau Well, Mr. Cowen, you made the statement that this is what you thought was best for these universities. You know, the only problem with that, they just don't happen to agree with you. I might further add, Mr. Cowen, in response to your question about the L. S. U. system, I have no objection if you want to provide the flexibility for the L. S. U. system to break down internally however they may do it. But, as a practical matter, that will never occur. In conclusion, and in answer to your question, the paramount question in this thing is, Mr. Cowen, you know, someone made the argument to me a minute ago, they said, "You know you are creating more boards." I didn't create all of these boards. I presented the original amendment to knock them all out. You want them in? All right. If you want them in, I'm going to give them to you. The only thing that I'm telling you, if you are going to give them, be fair about it, because you can't justify rationally to say, "Hey, all you, sixty percent of the college students in this state, we are going to put you in a fish bowl and divide you up." They don't want to be there. They want their own management board. They will concede and be under the Board of Regents; what's unfair about that?

Mr. Roy Mr. Juneau, I don't understand your logic. Is it your statement that you have decided against your conclusion previously that there should not be administrative boards constitutionalized since a bunch of students came to you and/or some college presidents? You are now for constitutionalizing administrative boards?

Mr. Juneau I'm not for constitutionally creating management boards; you are, Mr. Roy. Let's talk about logic in answer to your question. As I recall the early discussion in this convention, Mr. Roy, you came to me and told me, "You know one of the great amendments we ever charted in this constitution--and I can name several others--is to take them all out." But, then we change and we are going to put them all in. So, what I'm telling you, Mr. Roy; I'm only asking for fairness. If you want to put them in and these people want them, give it to them. What's wrong with that?

Mr. Roy Did you make that determination based upon your own intelligence or because a few students came in and talked with you, and you talked to some college presidents, that's my question?

Mr. Juneau It is not a unilateral determination, Mr. Roy. It is a determination that was made only after the delegates from the areas involved--and not me personally--contacted the presidents of those universities and made that ascertainment. I say to you, Mr. Roy, that my own personal opinion--and this is purely personal--not based on a Gallup poll. If you would poll the alumni who have unilaterally voted and passed out amongst you a resolution for a single board, is there any doubt in your mind that they would want their own constitutionally management board?

Mr. Roy My question is then, that your decision to go with this amendment is contrary to what you reached yourself. But, you are now making the decision because some students and some college presidents asked you to go that way?

Mr. Juneau The effect of students had no bearing on this decision, Mr. Roy. My decision was based upon what I consider the illogical decision of this convention to put the boards in. You wanted to put them in, so I said put them all in.

Mr. Riecke Pat, this is a friendly question so keep your blood pressure down now and don't get excited. You have on here Grambling College, which is a small university. Don't you think that two members from each congressional district for a small college like that would be too much, especially from all over the state? Would you be willing to amend that later, if this passes, to revise the boards? I don't think that people from all over the state would be interested, particularly in Grambling, rather than a regional area maybe.

Mr. Juneau Well, I'm not particularly wed to that, Mr. Riecke, and I'm, of course, open to that. I might tell you that that point was addressed to the people who were involved in these universities and there was consensus to have a really effective board--which the L. S. U. Board, I think, does have--that you have to have a broad representation. It's for that reason and for the reason of conformity and uniformity, that I left the same language which applies to the other boards--that's the only reason I added it. The point I'm making to you, I'm not absolutely wed to that, I'm just telling you what the concepts were.

Mr. Riecke I see. One other question--you mentioned Southern University in your list here. Now, there are two Southern Universities: one at Baton Rouge and one at New Orleans. Would it be proper to put both in there? Wouldn't it be...

Mr. Juneau It refers to the entire, as it's written, as my appreciation, Mr. Riecke, refers to the entire Southern University system--you know, be it Baton Rouge or in New Orleans--it's all under one system.

Mr. Riecke Well, that would be one board for both colleges?

Mr. Juneau For the entire system, as does the L. S. U. system have.

Mr. Riecke Thank you.

Mr. LeBleu My question was, first, why wasn't McNeese included in your amendment?

Mr. Juneau Well, the same reason indicated, Mr. LeBleu. I talked to, I think it was Mr. Planchard. I think I talked to Mr. Abraham. I just went to the delegates and I said, "Look, you know, would you contact the president of universities?" In essence, as I appreciate, they weren't sure that that's what they would want to do, if I'm correct in that regard. It's only for that reason some were sponsoring the amendment, Mr. LeBleu. I didn't think it was appropriate for me to put them in unless I had at least some indication from the head of that university indicated.

On the contrary, if an amendment like this would pass, and McNeese would want to put it in, I'd vote for it.

Mr. LeBleu Well, did you know that McNeese is in my legislative district?

Mr. Juneau Yes, sir.

Mr. LeBleu Do you further know that I didn't contact the president of McNeese, or any member of the student body or anyone else? But since the appointive Board of Supervisors out at LSU is so efficient in the operation of LSU, that I want the same privilege for McNeese. I would ask you, if you would temporarily withdraw your proposal... your amendment, and insert McNeese in it, and then resubmit it.

Mr. Juneau I would have no objection to doing that, Mr. LeBleu. The only indication--let me just be very candid with you--I don't know what the reaction of the entire...you know your delegation from Calcasieu. Whatever you want to do is fine with me. The only point is, I think the more proper way to proceed--would be my opinion--is to vote on the amendment and prepare the amendment inserting McNeese, which I would, of course, wholeheartedly endorse. I think, for procedure-wise, that would be the better way. You know, I don't have a hang-up one way or the other.

Mr. Kean Mr. Juneau, none of these institutions have boards which have constitutional status at the present time, do they?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. Juneau Unfortunately so. That's correct, Mr. Kean.

Mr. Kean The LSU Board is in the present constitution, is it not?

Mr. Juneau That's absolutely correct.

Mr. Kean Now, if we adopt your amendment, and if we put McNeese in, and whatever other schools that you have indicated you are happy to have join the crowd, then I assume that we might as well dispense with the Board of Trustees that's in Section B of this particular proposal. Would it not be proper to reach that assumption?

Mr. Juneau If...every university...if it would be the conclusion that every university in this state should be in, I think that'd be correct, Mr. Kean. The only reason I didn't delete it, Mr. Kean, because I didn't have them all included in this amendment.

Mr. Kean Well, wouldn't it be preferable then, to simply have an amendment which would say that any college, university, or institution of higher education in this state that wants to have its own board could have that board? That would give it this constitutional status that you're seeking. Then we'd simply do away with the Board of Trustees and let it go at that.

Mr. Juneau Matter of semantics. It all depends how you want to approach it. I just took this particular approach, Mr. Kean.

Mr. Kean Well, isn't it, by taking some and leaving some out, you've got to keep the Board of Trustees. So, we've now got a whole new series of institutions which are dealing with management and supervision. We've still got the Board of Trustees. Wouldn't it be better to simply say they can all have the board and take out the Board of Trustees?

Mr. Juneau Well, as I explained to you, Mr. Kean, when this amendment was originally drafted, I'd put them all in.

Further Discussion

Mr. Roy Mr. Vice Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, naturally I am opposed to this amendment. I just think that it...we've reached the stage where either we're going to sit down and get to the task of writing this constitution, or we're going to make it the laughingstock of the whole state. I have never talked about what will kill the constitution and what won't. Now, I am not going to say that anything will or will not right now. But, I will tell you that with these types of amendments coming in, and with delegates getting up here--who've been elected to represent the entire people of this state--to get up here and to argue that they fundamentally feel one way, and that there's no question about it but that something is wrong, and to turn around and then sponsor a provision which is inconsistent with their political and personal philosophy, I just think is not representing the State of Louisiana as it should be represented. We're not legislators here. I have a brother who is on the State Board of Education. I happened to have graduated from LSU. I've got no colleges in my area. I don't care about further political office if it means that I've got to stand up here and start participating in the derogation of this particular article for the sole purpose of satisfying a bunch of people back home who feel that they should be constitutionalized, even though they don't know why. It's just absurd to me that a person would say the students at a particular school, or the president, would call me, and even though I'm against this philosophically, I'm going to go with it and get us in the entanglement that we've now reached where, instead of us deliberating this matter, it's becoming a personal issue of the Louisiana State University versus other colleges and universities.

My brother called me and asked me to be for a particular matter, and I told him that I wouldn't even though he felt one way about it and felt very strongly. I just think that we ought to--whether you agree with me or not--whether you agree that LSU is a system and these other schools are land-locked schools, the University of Southwestern Louisiana is a fine school, but it doesn't extend beyond the confines of the present campus. It has no extension program anywhere. So, some of you all are going to get up and say, "What about Southern?" because you want to appeal to some other group because Southern is called Southern University System. Well, it just so happens--as a matter of fact--that Southern is not the system of LSU. We have LSU on our hands. We've had it since 1940. The people of this state have beaten down on three occasions, and recently, any attempt to modify the LSU Board of Supervisors because it's constitutionalized. What do you want us to do? Say it's not present? We've tried to do the best we can with a Board of Trustees that will govern these other colleges. They can get out of it if they want. The fact of the matter is, as my brother tells me--and others--is that they have enough time to deal with the other colleges and universities. You don't need management boards to operate a college that operates in...one particular town. LSU is like an octopus in its size. Below LSU, you've got six other...campuses; below the other campuses you've got sixteen experimental stations--scientific experimental stations--below that, you've got LSU in sixty-four parishes through the county agents' offices. Naturally, that's a system. Naturally it's got to be treated differently. But even if there's no philosophical reason for saying that LSU should be in the constitution, and other colleges not--as it presently is to some extent--the fact of the matter is that the people of this state who went through the 1939 scandals at LSU are not going to tolerate that particular board being taken out of the constitution and subjected to the whim and the caprice of the legislature, even though we've got a great legislature.

You can ask all the questions you want. I'm going to yield to any questions you have. But, I just think that it's time for us to stand up as men and women. If something is not particularly popular in your area, to have enough guts to say that you're not going to back it. If it is a good thing, whether it's popular or not, to go with what is good for this state and this particular section. I yield to any questions.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Mr. Roy, I know from this you realize that it wasn't this question that I wanted to ask you specifically.

Mr. Roy Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Warren I am wanting to ask this question. On page 5, Section 8, we say "there is created a body, cooperatively known as a Board of Trustees for state colleges subject to the powers invested in the Board of Regents by this article, and shall have so forth and on..." which goes right on over on page 6, beginning at line 22, it says "created powers there is created a body corporate known as the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana...for LSU, subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents, shall be subject...subject to the Board of Regents." I'm trying to find out now what is the difference in the Board of Supervisors and the Board of Trustees if they are going to have the same thing according to the proposal?

Mr. Roy The only difference is, Mrs. Warren, they're going to have the same powers and what have you...equally right now. But the state...the Board of Trustees will supervise all other colleges but the LSU System. You see, in the LSU System there is LSU, then there are six universities or colleges under it, then all these "ag" stations and all these experimental stations. That'll be under one pyramid. The other pyramid will be the other state colleges and universities. Let me say this, that I'm...the reason I support that concept is because presently, the Board of Trustees is not constitutionalized...the State Board of Education today.

Mrs. Warren One more question.

You've made a statement up there concerning a system. You refer to Southern. Now, what do you... you said that LSU...we're stuck with it, in other words. This is what you inferred. Now, as far as I'm concerned, you're stuck with Southern, unless you want to flush it down the toilet. Now, you tell me what you want to do with it.

Mr. Roy Well, first of all, Southern has been governed for the...for many, many years by the State Board of Education. There's been no problem there with respect to the administration of Southern nor any of the other colleges and universities. I say that if...if after you weigh everything, you come up with the conclusion that there should be nothing in this constitution with respect to college boards and what have you, you still have the problem that LSU has been a Constitutional Board, and in my judgment, the people of this state have manifested on three different, separate occasions, that they will not tolerate the LSU Board of Supervisors being tampered with by the legislature when they defeated every constitutional amendment since 1940 that sought to do anything about LSU.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Roy, you are saying that this has been in the constitution for a long time because of the scandals. You are saying that there were a lot of people who were interested in it and afraid if we take it out. You are saying that the constitution is the only way to protect the LSU Board. Is that not correct?

Mr. Roy I didn't say, Mary, that the constitution was the only way to protect LSU. I said that in the scandals of 1939, that the people who went through them, I don't think are at all predisposed to making any change because they associate the 1940 constitutional amendment with the protection of LSU.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, may I ask you why you didn't stand up and make those arguments in favor of an amendment, sticking the Board of Commissioners of the Port of New Orleans in?

Mr. Roy Because I think that the particular problem about New Orleans, which is just for that city, is located there. I'm not for constitutionalizing all of New Orleans' real peculiar problems. I think we did a good job in doing that, incidentally.

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir.

Are you aware that the Port of New Orleans covers three parishes, and economically impacts the entire state, but that they are willing to forget about past scandals, to trust the voters of Louisiana, and to trust their...the legislature with the two-thirds vote?

Mr. Roy Yeah...yes, I'm aware of it. So, what?

Mrs. Zervigon Pardon me. You are aware of that?

Mr. Roy Yes.

Mrs. Zervigon How does this amendment setting up boards--constitutional boards--for other universities and university systems, impact the LSU System and its Board?

Mr. Roy Well, anyone that tries to say that this is not an effort to ultimately cause the collapse of this whole section, I think, is foolish. But, I think, secondly, that we don't need these particular boards for the other colleges and universities. There has not been manifested any need for them other than a few students and a few college presidents calling a bunch of delegates over here.

Mr. Leithman I forgot the question...

Mr. Roy...yes or no...did you make a statement that Louisiana is about to be the laughingstock of these United States?

Mr. Roy No, I didn't make that statement.

Mr. Leithman You didn't make that statement, Mr. Roy?

Mr. Roy I said the way that we are conducting ourselves may lead to that. I didn't...I don't know if I made that particular statement.

Mr. Leithman With the offering of this amendment, you did not make a statement that with the offering of this amendment, that we are about to make a laughingstock of ourselves?

Mr. Roy I said of the way we've been deliberating this issue, yes, I think so.

Mr. Leithman All right. I think my next question is this.

With this amendment that we are offering now, which puts all universities on an even keel, all we are doing is...we're not really affecting the status of Louisiana, did you...and I'm asking you, did you know this...in the eyes of the other fifty states, because right now, with the way the article reads at this moment, we're the second worse--we're the second worse. Do you know if this amendment is adopted, we still don't take over number one spot. I'm talking in terms of number one and two. I think this is how LSU understands this. But, with the adoption of this amendment, do you realize that we're still only number two...from the bottom, as far as number of boards and constitutions. We still won't catch Arkansas, which is at the bottom. We'll still be number two; we're number two now, with the four boards. So, did you know that we really won't worsen our position in national standings? Did you know this?

Mr. Roy Well, if your premise--your original premise--is right, you'd be true if you're basing everything on just numbers of boards.

Mr. Leithman Number of boards in national...constitutions of the fifty states is my premise.

Mr. Roy You just want to make sure that we almost overdo Arkansas.

Mr. Leithman I don't think we really hurt...I'm asking you. I don't...do you think we've hurt ourselves if we give every...university an even status in the state when we really, by doing this, don't worsen ourselves worse than Arkansas. We'll still have forty eight states that are better than Louisiana with the adoption of the amendment the way it is--or article the way it is now.

Mr. Roy I think that's a very compelling reason to vote for this amendment, Mr. Leithman.

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm not rising for or against this amendment, because I don't think this amendment belongs in this section. When we passed Section 7 this morning, Section 7 specifically spells out that the...there is a Board of Regents, there is a Board of Supervisors for LSU, and there is a Board of Trustees for the state colleges and universities. I'm saying this amendment should not be considered under this section. This amendment, if Mr. Juneau or any other delegate wants to bring an amendment like this up, it should be brought in the next session...section...which is Section 8. Let's not muddy the waters, let's go ahead and defeat this amendment here, and then give it true consideration later on. Let's move on and pass this section as it is.

Further Discussion

Mr. Velazquez Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is a good, good, good amendment. It merely extends the good idea a little further. If any institution wants this concept, they can now do it without going to the legislature and getting what we have been told is an inferior legislative board. Or, they don't have to amend the constitution itself. What is good for the goose, ought to be good for the gander. I'm not against LSU. But I don't think we ought to have a system with a purple and gold giant in the tinned walls. Let us remember that when LSU was given a Board of Supervisors, it had in the range of five thousand students. All of these institutions have reached the historical LSU minimum, or they will soon reach it. The graduates of these institutions have taken the history, and they've taken the pride of Louisiana all over this country, and all over the world. The historical pattern with the LSU branches is that when they reach a certain size, they split and they go their own way. I've been told this is what happened to McNeese--that at one time it was part of the LSU System--it has now gone its own way. In the New Orleans area, people have told me that LSU-N.O. will, one day, go its own way.

Delegate Juneau has contacted directly, or indirectly, the presidents of the colleges. If he had more time he would have contacted the faculties, the student bodies, the alumni association, and even the janitorial staffs. But, he has only had a limited amount of time. He has not tried to put institutions out. He has tried to include as many institutions as told him through these various means, that they wanted this particular concept.

For those who point out the various specialized services and the great burden that LSU bears, let them ask themselves a simple question that, if LSU decides to drop the experimental stations, if LSU decides to drop the county agents, the other schools in this state would fight like hell to pick them up. Don't the other colleges of Louisiana deserve the same level of protections as LSU?

I ask you to vote for this amendment.

Mr. Hardin Amendment No. 1 [by Mrs. Zervigon and Miss Perkins]. On page 6, line 32, immediately after the words "terms of" and before the word "years" delete the word "six" and insert in lieu thereof the word "ten"

Amendment No. 2. On page 7, line 1, immediately after the word "law" and before the word "Two" change the period "." to a comma "," and add the following:

"provided that no member shall be eligible to succeed himself."

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates, it has been asked time and again on this floor whether or not one governor who serves two terms, could appoint an entire board if the terms of that board are six years. That answer has been that Governor Edwards couldn't because the Coordinating Council would be folded into these boards. However, after the terms end of the Coordinating Council Boards, and the LSU board members, any governor in the future could appoint the entire board. As a matter of fact, there would be no way for any governor in the future to avoid appointing the entire LSU Board. If the LSU Board is worthy of protection--as I believe this body has decided--and if the LSU Board needs to be insulated from the whims and changes of the times--as I believe is one of the main arguments for it--then the terms must be longer than six years. The main argument against long terms is that people become old and stale on the job after serving two or three of these long terms. So, the second amendment that Miss Perkins and I are suggesting is that, in view of the fact that if Amendment No. 1 passes, the terms would be ten years long, we should provide that no person may succeed himself of the Board. This would help keep people from getting stale on the board.

I served on a city board at one point where the terms were nine years. My experience was that in the middle of the second term, very often, people became jaded, tired, bored with the job, and we had a little bit of difficulty getting a quorum.

So, I urge the adoption of these amendments.

Amendment

Mr. Hardin Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. J. Jackson]. On page 6, delete lines 20 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 7, delete lines 1 through 4, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 9. Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College; Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College.

Section 9.(A) Creation; Powers. There is created bodies corporate, known as the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College and the Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, which subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents, shall supervise and manage the institutions and statewide agricultural and other programs administered through the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College and the Southern University Agricultural and Mechanical College system.

(B) Membership; terms. The members of each board shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the Senate, for overlapping terms of six years following initial terms which shall be fixed by law. Each board shall be composed of two members from each of the congressional districts into which the state is divided, and one member shall be from the state at large."

Explanation

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, to a large degree based on the arguments that I have heard, I would suggest to you that not only is my amendment a technical amendment, it is indeed, a just amendment. I don't want to stand here--and it has been raised to me--that Johnny, basically what you're doing...I will attempt to explain to you my rationale for introducing this amendment to provide that the Southern University system shall be entitled to a Board of Governors as that of the present L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. One: I'd like to make it perfectly clear and--Mr. Cowen, I believe, said in his remarks before this platform, when I raised the question, that he considers Southern University a system, and would he correct his statement by saying that there is only one system in the state--he did in fact correct himself by acknowledging the fact that Southern University is a system. I suggest to you that for the very same arguments that you have heard proponents of maintaining a Board of Supervisors for the L.S.U. system that I personally felt and voted that: one, other colleges should have the same rights and privileges and particularly Southern ought to have it in fact, that it is indeed, a system. I suggest to you that the major components of Southern University consists of three campuses, so in effect we do have an octopus effect throughout the state. We have a campus in Baton Rouge; the state provides the campus in New Orleans, and there is a campus in the Shreveport-Bossier City area. So, like L.S.U., Southern is an 1890 land grant institution with research in agricultural involving twenty-four extension agents and aids operating--not in Baton Rouge, not in Orleans, not in Shreveport--but statewide. We've heard the arguments that: but we have sixteen extension programs. I'm suggesting to you the similarities of the two systems. Thirdly, Southern University is authorized to provide continual education and extension not in Baton Rouge, not only in Shreveport or Orleans, but in every part of this state. Fourthly, like another system that exists within the State of Louisiana, we have a law school, a graduate school, a college of engineering, college of art and humanities, colleges of the sciences, colleges of business administration, colleges of agriculture, and colleges of home economics. One thing that Southern does have, and I suggest seriously why you ought to give consideration to allowing Southern to have a Board of Governors is, in fact, that unlike other colleges or like one other system, we have--or Southern has--the responsibility to administer two state schools, Louisiana State School for the Deaf and Louisiana State School for the Blind. Sixthly, the university offers military training through Army ROTC and Navy ROTC. Now, I suggest to you, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, that the question is not whether you are against the L.S.U. system or you are against the Board of Supervisors, but the question really is: are there, in fact, in the State of Louisiana another system with branches throughout this state? I've heard questions says where Southern is not as large as L.S.U. Southern doesn't have the enrollment--we have enrolled in the three branches over twelve thousand students--and, Mr. Jackson, I would ask for a suspension of time if you would pass that motion because I want to answer some questions. When I raised the question to the proponents of a Board of Supervisors as opposed not allowing other colleges the only answer was given to me was that L.S.U. was the system, and that there was no other system throughout this state. If we are going to be fair and concerned about it you can see that that does not hold merits in light of the information that I have presented to you. Now, what I'm about to say here in my next statement, I wish that you candidly listen to because to me this is a crux [sic] of some consideration that you ought to be aware of.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Mr. J. Jackson I'll try not to get emotional, fellow delegates, but I want to suggest to you that on November 16th of this week, that it may not be a pleasant thing for people here to understand, but on November 16th, there are memorial services for two black students who died on the university campus. One of the points that was brought out during that whole medley was that there are some peculiar problems, aspirations and desires that exist upon the Southern University campus and throughout the system that's not prevalent in all universities and colleges throughout this state.

One of the recommendations, and this is an effort, not of the students, but of the administration, the student body, the alumni, and the parents, but one of the recommendations was that if we're talking about the day-to-day management operation and supervision of the universities then this was one of the key recommendations as offered and has been resolved over a year of trying to work out the difficulties that existed on that university. Now, I suggest to you that I'm not prepared to go back and say that I know that L.S.U. is a system; and I know that we're a system, too; I know that we've got branch colleges; I know that we've got extension programs that range over seven million dollars; I know that we've got, if not as com...if not as equal, at least comparable, an analogy to most aspects of the present system that we have jsut recently approved. On behalf of the administration, on behalf of the alumni, and behalf of the student body, and on behalf of many graduates, and people throughout the State of Louisiana who are concerned about it we're going to give constitutional status to one system then we ought to...if we see that there are comparable reasons as to why we ought to extend that, that we ought to allow that to another system within the state. I suggest to you that my amendment just attempts to do--is to be fair--just to be fair. I will yield to any questions from members of the floor, but I do want you to recognize that this is not a frivolous amendment; I have constantly--just by the mere fact--by speakers up here have constantly implied that we have been, and the university has been, the stepchildren by the fact that there is not still recognition that the Southern University is a system. I'm attempting to correct that. I'm saying that if we recognize it then we ought to be able to deal with it on a very favorable basis.

Question

Mr. Rachal Mr. Jackson, I'd like to ask a question that was asked before of a...when a similar amendment was made and that is, have you been in contact with the persons at Southern, and have they indicated to you that they want what you are proposing in this amendment?

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Rachal, on yesterday, I took personal privilege and acknowledged the president of, not only the president of the system, but each president and vice-president of the different branches and the alumni associations and the student associations, so, that...and they have said and they have helped prepare for this convention the information that I am using to argue the point for acknowledgment of the Southern system.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, it's not too difficult for me to support this amendment. As long as we are going to have a Board of Supervisors for L.S.U. whether they have several campuses, I think the only thing that we can do is to allow the Southern University to have the same setup. Personally, I'd rather see both systems under one Board of Supervisors, but I doubt very seriously I could get that done. Since they are not...they are going to have one for L.S.U., I think it's only fair and square they have one for the Southern system, too. I'm going to ask you to go along with the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, I would like to believe that silence would mean consent. I'm not going to stand here and attempt to suggest that the reasons why we have not heard any opposition would mean that--well, I don't want to get in and say because you haven't heard any opposition that there aren't any on the floor--but I say to you that when I came up here and spoke for fair treatment of all universities I had no problems saying to anyone whether I had opposition against him or not. I would hate very seriously because this is very crucial, for folks to say that, well, I understand what you mean. I'm saying that you recognize that there is another system. If you suggest that one system ought to have a Board of Supervisors then you ought to extend that privilege and right to another system. I don't come up here to try to make wishful arguments and say that this doesn't have a basis because I think we all recognize it, because if someone didn't recognize it, then I challenge him personally to come on the platform and say why not. I'm not concerned to the extent to say that our university ought not be given adequate consideration, but I am concerned when I, as a delegate of a constitution, ... of a delegate to this convention, writing the constitution that's designed for all the people of the state... that's designed to afford equal opportunities and treatments to all universities and all colleges and for some reason or another we haven't given constitutional sanctity to another system. Am I to conceive that is a continuation of the step-child attitudes of philosophy to the university? Am I to have to, as a legislator and someone concerned about a university, have to go back another year because there's some problems on the university and that there will be a board that possibly won't have representation on it to address themselves to the peculiar aspirations and desire of the predominant student body of their university? Do I have to constantly go before the courts and argue the question of merger and the dissolution of black universities that affect predominantly black institutions that affect the lives of individuals? I say that we can correct all of that right here and now. I just ask you very seriously, and I hope if... I hope I've not offended any single delegate in this convention, but I seriously think, and I seriously feel strongly, that if you're going to allow a Board of Supervision not to control the money, but just to run the everyday affairs of the university to determine student curriculum, determine professors, to determine student activities--who's going to be hired--who's going to be fired--you know, what film can be used, what speakers can come on the campus. It seems to me that you ought to recognize that there's truly a need here. I ask your favorable adoption of this amendment.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 61-47. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, on behalf of the president of Southern University system, the students, alumni, and all the people of the State of Louisiana, I thank you for your vote.

Amendment

Mr. Hardin The Perkins amendment which was passed out earlier has incorrect instructions in light of the adoption of the Jackson amendment so that it would now have to be... its instructions would have to be drawn to the Jackson amendment. The effect of the Perkins and Zervigon amendment is to add "of which there shall be at least one member representing each of the several campuses within the systems who has attended the university at the campus represented for at least one year."

Explanation

Miss Perkins Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, what this amendment does is initially leave the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors as set up by the committee proposal, that is, two appointees per congressional districts and one at large. What this amendment provides for is that among these appointees, we shall have an appointee representing each of the branches within the L.S.U. system, namely: L.S.U.-N.O., Shreveport, Eunice, and Alexandria. You will note that Alexandria and Eunice are two-year schools so we haven't said graduate, but rather, that the individual appointed shall have attended that particular branch college for at least a year. The purpose of the amendment, ladies and gentlemen, are that these schools are within the L.S.U. system. If they are within the system and a part of the system then certainly they should have representation of the system's board. It would provide that these appointees could go to the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors and present those problems of their representative campuses, which are unique. These individuals could not get control of the board; all they would be doing is allowing the branch colleges the opportunity of having their unique problems presented to the board for their consideration. Ms. Zervigon and I feel that this would provide for uniformity in administration and uniformity in policy. If the branches are to be considered within the university system, I do not see how the delegates of this convention could possible vote against this amendment. If we're part of the system, then let us have a voice in the system. I'd appreciate your support and consideration of this amendment.

Closing

Miss Perkins Ladies and gentlemen, I've talked to several of the L.S.U. people that say that they have no objection to this amendment, and I didn't have time to encourage the support of this amendment by these people. I don't see how you can squarely look any branch of L.S.U. in the eye if you vote against this amendment. We're part of the system; let us have representation in the system.

Point of Information

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, I have a question of the Chair.

If I understand the status of 9 (B), as a result of the Jackson amendment this... it has to some kind of a technical change on this proposed amendment that's being offered by Miss Perkins in order to make it fit because it's different as I understand it.

Miss Perkins I think the Clerk is working on that, Mr. Kean.

Mr. Casey Mr. Kean, I think your point is well taken.

The Clerk is working on it right now trying to collate the two amendments.

If you don't mind, we'll continue yielding to questions until the Clerk can clear it up.

Questions

Mr. Bergeron Ma'am, this amendment would ease the problem we have such as L.S.U.-N.O. which is a branch of the L.S.U. system which is the second largest university in the state with the student attendance of twelve thousand, two hundred and sixty-nine am I correct?

Miss Perkins I assume you are; I don't have the figures in front of me, Mr. Bergeron.

Mr. Bergeron This would more or less ease the problem that we're having at the present time--the grant representation--etc?

Miss Perkins Yes, but you know sometimes if you can get a little bit you don't ask for the whole barrel at one time. All we're asking is for a voice. That's all we're concerned with, so as far as the number of students or which campus, we're not concerned with that. We just want to give N.O. and every other campus a chance to present their problems to the board.

Mr. Pugh I don't object to your concept, but I assume you're aware of the fact that we've just been fortunate enough to have L.S.U.-S up our way for a very short period of time; that necessarily means that the board member from there would probably be somewhere in the neighborhood of twenty-two or twenty-three years old. Were you aware of that?

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Miss Perkins Yes, sir. Well, if a delegate was appointed to this convention to represent youth I have no objections to a young person being on this board.

Mr. Pugh I don't have any objections to a young person being there either. I'm just saying were you aware of the fact that some of these systems had not been in existence for a very long time?

Miss Perkins Yes, sir, but I don't think that that's any real problem, Mr. Pugh.

Mr. Pugh If they create a new one, and they hadn't served...hadn't been there a year, what are we going to do?

Miss Perkins Well, Mr. Pugh, I assume that they would have the opportunity to have representation as well on the board. I can't see how you can have a school that's within the system--now that includes budget, it includes courses--you know what we've given..well, I'm sorry, that's in the Board of Trustees, basically say policy and management. I don't see how you can manage a school that you don't even have any idea what their problems are. I think something could be worked out. I don't have the exact answer at this time.

Mr. Smith Miss Perkins, do you think a detail like this should be frozen into the constitution?

Miss Perkins Normally, I would say no, Mr. Smith, but the only way we're going to be part of that system is if you let us be part of that board we're establishing.

Mr. Smith Don't you think this will lead to a lot of confusion though in trying to pick out the people who to vote for on these different campuses?

Miss Perkins No, sir. No more confusion than the selection of any other member to serve on the board.

Mr. Burson Miss Perkins, of course, I represent the district in which L.S.U.-E is located, and I would hope that someone from our area eventually would get on the L.S.U. Board. But, do you think that this is the best way to go about governing a great university by providing for a quota system instead of trying to get the best individuals available at a particular time for an appointment?

Miss Perkins Yes, sir, because you'll have another person from that congressional district that can be appointed. The only way this board is going to be aware of the unique problems at their branch is by having representation on that board.

Mr. Burson Well, how would you differentiate your support for this concept from objections previously voiced about quota systems in other respects?

Miss Perkins If you'll state it in particular, Mr. Burson, I'll be glad to discuss it with you at a later date. That's not under issue right now.

Mrs. Corne Lynn, do the regulations provide that all people who have been faculty members of L.S.U. and its branches, must have been graduates of L.S.U. and its branches?

Miss Perkins I'm sorry, Mrs. Corne, I didn't understand what you were asking me.

Mrs. Corne Do you have a regulation in the LSU system that all people who serve on the faculties must be graduates of LSU or of the system?

Miss Perkins No, not that I know of.

Mrs. Corne No, you do not. Okay. Then, if you have a very fine member of the faculty who may be retired or removed from that faculty for reasons of his own, then do you not think that maybe he would be a very excellent board member and could represent that institution on the board? Yet, he's not a graduate; he has served only as a faculty member.

Miss Perkins Yes, ma'am. Well, that could possibly be true, but we didn't use the term "graduate"; we said "attended that college or branch for at least a year." We didn't say attended in what capacity. I mean I'd have no objection to it being someone that has served on the faculty for a year.

Mrs. Corne Well, usually when you attend a university, you're a student in that university and not a member of the faculty.

Miss Perkins Yes, ma'am. I realize that.

Mrs. Corne Would that also preclude an ex college president from serving on the board to represent that institution.

Miss Perkins As written, that's possibly true.

Mrs. Corne I think you would be skipping some very fine members of the board, wouldn't you?

Miss Perkins Yes, ma'am, but we skip some fine people with anything we do around here.

Mr. Roemer Lynn, in answer to a question that Bob Pugh put to you about the relatively youthfulness of some of the board members from these new branches of LSU, I don't know whether you know or not, but I teach physics at LSU. I have forty-three members in my class, and ten of them are over thirty.

Miss Perkins Thank you.

Mr. Stinson Lynn, I notice you say "who attended there for at least one year. Shouldn't you have said "one school year, because you're going... this means twelve months, and they could go there one school year, and then have to go at least..."

Miss Perkins I wouldn't mind another amendment, if we can get this one through, to that effect. All we were attempting to do is because two of these branches are not four year schools. It would make it certain that they had to attend for a designated period, not just a semester; that's the reason it's worded that way.

Mr. Stinson Also, you don't say, but do they have to make passing grades or not? You don't say this. They can go there and flunk out, and then be appointed?

Miss Perkins No, but I tell you what, we didn't say on a lot of these board members. We don't say what kind of academic record they have to have had either, so why should we do it with these?

Mr. Stinson In other words, if they flunk out, they'll know more what's at fault than those that passed, maybe then, wouldn't they?

Miss Perkins They could come within the eligibility of the other appointees.

[Amendment reread with correction.]

Mr. Poynter As I appreciate the status, the amendment has had--because of the adoption of the Johnny Jackson amendment--to be redrafted to read as follows: "On page 7, in the language added by Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Johnny Jackson, at the end of the last line of the language added thereby immediately after the word and punctuation "large." insert or add the following: --strike out the words "of which"--"There shall be at least one member representing each of the several campuses within the system who has attended the university at the campus represented for at least one year."

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Point of Order

Mr. Fontenot I'm not exactly sure. I wish there was a speaker up there I could ask this to, but, Mr. Chairman, in your interpretation of this, would the LSU Medical School be counted as one campus, where the LSU-NO campus would be another campus?

Mr. Casey Mr. Fontenot, I would have no idea.

[Record vote ordered.]

Point of Order

Mr. Stinson Another point of order similar to the one from over there. Also there's a medical school campus at Shreveport...

Mr. Casey Now, wait just a minute, Mr. Stinson. Let's not debate...

Mr. Stinson I'm just asking a point, so we'll know how many designated ones we're going to vote on.

Mr. Casey Mr. Stinson, I really don't think that question is appropriate. I can't answer substantive matters on the amendment at all, because I really don't know.

Mr. Stinson Thank you for your information.

Mr. Casey Thank you, Mr. Stinson. I appreciate it.

[Amendment adopted: 59-50. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 44-58.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, fellow members, I tried to bring out my point by a question. You know, as I count them, there are seven campuses at LSU. There are two medical schools: one at New Orleans and one in Shreveport. There is LSU here, LSU in Shreveport. In other words, they've got two tied down from Shreveport right there, and that takes all from that congressional district: one from the medical school and one from LSU in Shreveport. No one else can be appointed in the Fourth District--not just Shreveport, all the entire Fourth District. That stretches all over North Louisiana under the present law. Then we've got one at Eunice and one at Alexandria. Actually, that ties down, of the seventeen, seven members on that board. I think we're making a serious mistake. If we want to get the thoughts of the young people and the students, why not say maybe from two of the campuses or something; don't say it from each one of them. I'd like to...consider this, because it's going to be very harmful.

Questions

Mr. Roy Mr. Stinson, can you tell me what type of input a student would have...a person would have who attended LSU-A, let's say, in 196D and twenty years later--for only one year--and twenty years later was up for appointment, could he have any information, do you think, that would be current about LSU-A that could really give some input to the board that requires this type of legislation?

Mr. Stinson None whatsoever. If the limitation is in there, if they're appointed within five years or while they're attending or something, there'd be some thought of getting a student. I would be more in favor of, say, appointing a student at that time than saying someone...that's from there on, not just the next few years. I think we're making a terrible mistake tying it down.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Stinson, don't we have really three campuses of LSU in New Orleans? Don't we have the dental school, the medical school, and LSU-NO?

Mr. Stinson I beg your pardon, and I think they also have a veterinarian school, too. That ties in some more. Also, it will certainly cut off any portion of the state in the future that wants to get a branch of LSU in that area if it's needed and we continue growing, because the board will be taken up.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Stinson, is it not true that this is an unworkable amendment, that it would be impossible to have anybody actually representing LSU-Baton Rouge, because if you got two from the Eighth District, which includes Eunice and Alexandria, and you had to have one from each of the campuses, then you could never have one representing Baton Rouge from the Eighth District?

Mr. Stinson I would think so...

Mr. Champagne Actually...and do you not agree that possibly some of the great support this amendment got was from those people whose intention is to destroy the LSU system?

Mr. Stinson Well, I think you have misguided thoughts, and I know it wasn't intentional.

Mr. Champagne Isn't that quite obvious that that is some of the great support this amendment got from the people who wanted to...

Mr. Stinson Yes, sir, and also, further, in New Orleans there may be a nursing school--I don't know--connected with the hospital there.

Mr. Alexander Mr. Stinson, is it not true that a faculty member or graduate may be on the campus of any one of the LSU campuses, but he may hail from Farmerville in Union Parish, or Calcasieu, or any other parish, which means that his appointment need not be from the parish in which the school is located? Isn't that correct?

Mr. Stinson That's a very important point that we hadn't thought of. This person would be appointed from the Eunice School, and he may be from New Orleans--or she may be from New Orleans--and is taken from the district, and we're going to have all kind of confusion. That's a good thought...

Mr. Alexander Or he may be from Jonesville.

Mr. Stinson That's right. I think...I wish we'd reconsider...

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I didn't rise to talk about this because I didn't think it would help too much when it was under debate. The two charming ladies that offered it have a lot going for them, but I'd like to reply to one thing that Miss Perkins said--that this Board of Supervisors for LSU and the Board of Supervisors for the Southern University system, it is said, would not have any way of knowing about the peculiar problems of the other elements of the system, if those elements of the system were not a member of the board. I really think that needs to be answered. It cannot possibly be contended by Miss Perkins that the Board of Supervisors of a major university is not at all cognizant of what goes on or what the peculiar needs are of the campus at Alexandria, or at the medical school. This Board of Supervisors at LSU and the new

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

Board of Supervisors with Southern University, I hope, will be composed of people selected for their merit, for their knowledge of education, for their understanding of the needs of the university systems of this state, and not because they happen to have attended for one year at one or another of the branches. I do request that you consider to vote yes on the question: "Shall this be reconsidered and, upon reconsideration, to vote no."

Further Discussion

Mr. Segura Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, although I can see the reason that Miss Perkins and Mrs. Zervigon suggested this amendment--and in a lot of ways I think it's good because these people would have the feeling of these schools, and you would sort of get a cross section--but I don't think it can work. I don't think it would be good for the state, and I have two reasons. First, the mechanics of actually implementing it--you would limit in a lot of ways the people that could be appointed and could serve justly. Also, you've got a lot of good businessmen, and a management board--and remember it's a management board--is not all education. There's a lot of business to it. I know some excellent businessmen who have never had a day of college. You'd be passing up the possibility of getting a person of that caliber appointed to that board. I wish Senator Rayburn were here so he could speak on this, because I think he is a prime example of someone with a superior education and superior knowledge in a lot of affairs and has never had a day of college. I think he'd be a prime member of any board, or a member--I'm using him as an example, because I know we all know him, but I think we should reconsider this. I think it should be defeated, although I think the thought was awfully good. But, I think it would limit the board, the appointments, too much and would not end up with the best possible board to govern these two universities.

I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Zervigon Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to urge you to stick by your former decision. There are some vast misconceptions being foisted upon you that I would like now to rebut. I can rebut it best by speaking about the two schools in my area--because they're the ones that I know the most about--but I'm telling you that they apply equally to every other school in the LSU system. First, let me speak about LSU-NO. The students at LSU-NO, while they are attending LSU-NO, live in three different congressional districts, at the least--three different districts. Because LSU-NO is situated in the First Congressional District does not mean that the person appointed to represent LSU-NO must live in the First Congressional District--by no means. LSU-NO has graduates living all over the southern part of the state, at least. The LSU Medical School in New Orleans is even more widely represented in residents in other congressional districts in the state. There cannot be one of the eight congressional districts that doesn't have a graduate of LSU Medical School living there. That would be an impossibility. You have been told that perhaps some of these colleges might not have folks that are qualified within the constraints of this article to be appointed to the LSU Board of Supervisors. Ladies and gentlemen, if there are not graduating people who are qualified to serve on the LSU Board of Supervisors, they should be abolished. There should be at least eight people having attended a school for one year on each of these campuses that is qualified to serve on the LSU Board of Supervisors. There is no conflict between the district requirement and the requirement that someone has gone to a certain campus--no conflict whatsoever, because the two overlap and interweave, and it is possible to be fair both in geography and in the attendance of the schools. Let me answer one more point that's been raised. Can someone who went to LSU-A twenty years ago have current knowledge of the situation at LSU-A? He can. Does he necessarily? Not necessarily, but he's got as much knowledge of the situation as someone who went to LSU-BR or to Harvard--at least as much. In addition to that, when he is appointed to represent LSU-A, you can bet that what that person will have is concern for that campus, and that person will get himself over to that campus to find out the current problems tout de suite, if you understand my language, Mr. Willis, because pretty soon that person will be called upon to answer for the problems of that campus on the board. So, I urge you stick by your former decision. It was a good decision. Don't let your minds be clouded with people throwing up smoke screens. This is a good, fair amendment, and you voted for fairness in the Jackson amendment; I'm only asking you to vote for fairness one more time.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Tapper Mrs. Zervigon, I have two questions; they're very short. I don't know whether the answer will be short. But, isn't it a fact that under your amendment it's possible that all of these members could reside in one city or one parish?

Mrs. Zervigon Is that a fact? No, sir; that's not a fact.

Mr. Tapper Is it a possibility?

Mrs. Zervigon No, sir. The article already requires that there be two from each congressional district. These two things must be read in concert, not separately.

Mr. Tapper I see. The second question is: I'm a graduate of USL, but I live in Arabi in St. Bernard Parish. I could not, under your amendment, represent or be a member representing LSU-NO; could I?

Mrs. Zervigon You could not be a member representing LSU-NO, but you could be a member of the LSU Board of Supervisors. I think you'd be a good one. I don't think you'd vote against the concerns of LSU-NO, necessarily, but I think it would be a good idea to have someone there specifically to vote for it.

Mr. Tapper Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I'm in favor of reconsideration. Now, I voted for this amendment when it was up originally. There's been a lot of noise and confusion; today is one of the worst days I've seen, and I don't mind stating when I think I've been wrong. I was wrong. Now, upon listening and further reading on page 7, at the top of line 1, "two of the members shall be residents of each of the congressional districts into which the state is divided, and one member shall be from the state at large." Now, in Caddo, we have a branch of the medical school and a branch of the undergraduate; so both of ours would be--as I interpret this--having to attend it at least one year. This seems to me to be a bad system because it cuts out people unless they attended it. Now, we have people in Caddo that never had their foot in a college, that have given more money to colleges than many of the people that got a pretty much of a free ride and a free education. I just think we should reconsider it, and I'm man enough to get up and say in my opinion I made a mistake when I voted for this amendment. We've got lawyers in Louisiana that didn't graduate, that came in as special students when they used to allow it, were excellent. I don't think that it's a good idea to place a majority of the people, or all of them on these boards because they went to a particular college or university. I think we're on dangerous ground. So, I am for reconsideration.

85th Days Proceedings—November 14, 1973

[Previous Question ordered.]

Point of Information

Mr. Burson Would you please explain the purpose of the vote that we are now taking?

Mr. Henry Well, Miss Perkins had offered up amendments which had been adopted by a majority vote of the delegates. Miss Perkins then moved to reconsider the vote, and lay the motion to reconsider on the table. The delegates refused to table the motion to reconsider. Upon which, Miss Perkins asked that the reconsideration take place now. Therefore, ... Miss Perkins, you'll have a right to close on this. Therefore, when you vote, if you are satisfied with the Perkins amendment, you will vote no. If you want another shot at voting on them all over again, you'll vote yes. That's what it boils down to.

Closing

Miss Perkins I waive the right to close, Mr. Chairman, but I would like a record vote.

[Record vote ordered. Motion to reconsider adopted: 67-39. Motion to take up other orders rejected: 50-53.]

Mr. Henry We're now in the position of debating the amendment again, and it's been thoroughly debated, but is there any further discussion on the Perkins amendment?

Reconsideration

Further Discussion

Miss Perkins Ladies and gentlemen, I'll make this brief. I know you're tired, and I've also been around here long enough to recognize the political moves. I still urge the support of this amendment as I think it's a good, fair amendment. For those of you that feel that this amendment was used or will be used to defeat this section, let me assure you that the people that are going to vote against this section, are going to vote against it with or without this amendment. To the LSU people, I hope that I have not jeopardized your board, but let me also say that we are supposed to be part of this university. For those of you that are using as an excuse that this is going to overload this section, the people that are going to vote against it will vote against it anyway. Those of you that voted for this amendment to attempt to overload the provision, I congratulate you because I think you've done a good job and you've helped out part of LSU. So, I'll leave you to make what I hope will be a conscientious decision on the merits and not on the politics of this convention. Thank you.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Miss Perkins, are you aware that this amendment would make it possible for me and for some of the other LSU-NO partisans to vote for this section? I would vote for this section if this amendment passes. Are you aware of that?

Miss Perkins Thank you, Mrs. Zervigon, because I was also told that Orleans was voting for it to overload this section, and I appreciate you making a public statement otherwise as to your individual vote.

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Perkins, isn't it possible with just a slight amendment later on to correct all these problems everybody sees in overloading the people from any one congressional district? Isn't it possible to handle this with just a small ... a slight, technical amendment tomorrow?

Miss Perkins Yes, sir. This is certainly possible, and all it would say is that only one within a congressional district would have representation.

[2376]

We can cure any problems brought forth by some of the delegates that fought this provision, even though I question whether their true question of the provision was as stated. I think they had other motives.

Mr. Fulco Miss Perkins, can you give us the present situation on the composition of this board?

Miss Perkins Well, I probably could come pretty close, but since you're standing there with the piece of paper in your hand, I assume you're going to give it to me.

Mr. Fulco No, I don't know whether that part has been amended or not, I've forgotten, but the proposal calls for "two of the members shall be residents of each of the congressional districts into which the state is divided, and one member shall be from the state at large."

Miss Perkins Yes, sir; I'm sorry. I thought you were talking about the current constitution. I didn't realize you were talking about the proposal, Mr. Fulco.

Mr. Fulco No, I'm talking about the proposal now, and I'd like to know: what is the status of the composition of the board at this time?

Miss Perkins Two per congressional district; one at large. Of the two per congressional district, one to represent the school within that district.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 44-58. Motion to take up other orders adopted without objection.]

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 7 introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee:

A proposal which makes provisions for education, necessary provisions with effect thereto.

The status of the proposal: the convention has adopted the first four sections as amended, deleted Section 5, adopted Sections 6 and 7, passed over Section 8, still has under its consideration Section 9. Mr. Chairman, there is still one amendment pending to said Section 9.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter [Amendment by Mrs. Miller and Mr. Gauthier]. On page 7, between lines 8 and 9, add the following Paragraph:

"(D) Merger and consolidation; establishment of university system. The legislature, by two-thirds vote of the elected members of each House thereof, may provide for the merger or consolidation of the Board of Regents, the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities, and the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College into a single board and may vest in said board the coordination, government, supervision, control, and budgetary responsibility for all publicly supported university systems, universities, and colleges and such other powers, duties, responsibilities, and functions with respect to education above the secondary level as it shall determine. In such case the legislature shall establish a university system for the state composed of all publicly supported university systems and all publicly supported universities and colleges now or hereafter created, and may vest in a single board herein authorized all responsibility for the government, control, and budgetary management of the university system."

Explanation

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Chairman and members of the delegation, we offer this amendment in hopes that some day we will put this state in a position that they can move forward. We don't intend this amendment to kill any particular section or to do damage to anyone's personal interest. On the other hand, we recognize that there is a need for, at one point, to say that something can be done in the field of education to leave some flexibility, to leave some room to move forward. The amendment, in basic terms, simply states: by a two-thirds vote of the legislature you can go to a state university system, which includes all colleges that are supported by public funds. I think, at this point, we need this in the constitution; we need it desperately. If we continue in the same line that we have gone, we have tied up what I consider could be a hopeless situation. Yet, I don't know. Who knows? We may have done very good work here. We may have created some good boards in a good system that will work--maybe. But, can anyone in this audience say for sure that what we have done is good, and say for sure that it will work? Then, if so, we would withdraw this amendment. But I can tell you that no one can say certainly that it will work. This amendment is designed to allow the legislature, only by two-thirds vote, to go to a state university system in hopes of achieving something better for education in this state.

I ask you, please, to be reasonable before you vote. I am not an expert by any means on this subject, nor do I claim to be. There are many in here that know a lot more about it than I. But I think any reasonable person in this delegation can see that we need some room for a change, if a change is necessary. I ask you to please support this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Wendell, you don't have in your amendment the board that we set up yesterday for Southern. I guess you'll make that technical change?

Mr. Gauthier Yes, we would agree to make that amendment, Mr. Roemer.

Mr. Roemer O.K. The second question is: isn't this what we did in terms of the statewide elective offices--that is, allow the legislature at some future date to consolidate or eliminate, if they saw fit, by a two-thirds vote?

Mr. Gauthier That's correct. In that particular instance, I think the delegation realized that at one point change may be necessary, realizing, also, that we're here with a mandate from the people saying, "Don't lock everything in, and don't force us to vote on constitutional amendments." It does provide the "if." I emphasize, if a certain system isn't working, there is room to go to another system.

Mr. Roemer The point I'm trying to bring out: do you agree that there is some precedence already in this convention for doing just what you're trying to do with education?

Mr. Gauthier Yes.

Mr. Abraham Wendell, in the merger and consolidation, does this give the legislature the authority to reduce the size of this board? Because when you...if you simply merge all of these together, you've got a sixty-six man board. The way I read this, I'm not sure as to whether it would allow them to reduce that.

Mr. Gauthier Yes, it does...yes, it does, Mack.

Mr. Kean Mr. Gauthier, as I read this, the legislature could merge them by a two-thirds vote, but I suppose they could unmerge them by a majority vote. Is that correct?

Mr. Gauthier You are correct, Mr. Kean. They could...

Mr. Kean So, we'd simply have no stability in our university system in this state at all, because from legislature to legislature, we'd be hanging by the hair as to whether we are going to be merged or unmerged, wouldn't we?

Mr. Gauthier ...If I may answer. Gordon, that goes back to the same problem as to how much stability and how much flexibility you want. Believe me, we are not allowing room for a lot of flexibility here. We are only saying that in the event that what we've established in this constitution isn't working after a number of years, there's at least one system to go to.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Incidentally, I'm glad you brought up what you did. I just realized that what you say is correct, Gordon. This allows us to change to another system, then, if it's not working, then go back to the old system. You made a very good point. Thank you.

Mr. Kean In other words, you'd just have your university systems in a state of constant change and turmoil waiting to decide which is the best system?

Mr. Gauthier I don't believe that's correct, Gordon.

Mr. Stagg Mr. Gauthier, do you know the vote in the House and in the Senate by which the superboard bill passed last year?

Mr. Gauthier I'm not aware of the figures, Tom, to be honest with you; I know it passed by a good majority.

Mr. Stagg Would you then not expect those in this convention who are members of the legislature--for instance, the gentlemen from Jefferson Parish or from Caddo Parish--who are supporting the superboard concept, to at each recurring annual session of the legislature to bring back up the superboard bill until they get a two-thirds vote on it? Then we are, as you would well understand, constantly putting these college administrators in legislative committee meetings as Mr. Kean put it, completely unstabilizing higher education in this state.

Mr. Gauthier Well, I think that's a little dramatic--"completely unstabilizing", Tom. Let me finish answering your question.

Mr. Stagg I'm not going to go away.

Mr. Gauthier If I...could foresee the future, I wouldn't even be here, but, I can tell you this; we provided for a change in some other cases. Many times, many cases, people such as Chris Roy and other delegates have taken the stand and said "a two-thirds vote is almost impossible to get. Why do you want to lock it in with a two-thirds vote?" I'm telling you we recognize that a two-thirds vote is very difficult to get. I'm also telling you that in the event that we realize there's a need for a change, and it's a very desperate need, that a two-thirds vote can be mustered.

Thank you, Tom.

Mr. Dennery Mr. Gauthier, Section 7, Subsection (E), (C), dealing with the right...the powers of the Board of Regents, contains the provision that--seems to me--covers exactly what your amendment tries to do. I think we have already adopted it. Do you see any necessity for this amendment, as well as what's in there?

Mr. Gauthier Yes, I do, Tom.

Mr. Dennery Well, where is the distinction, Mr. Gauthier?

Mr. Gauthier I feel that we have to explicitly give the legislature this power, if need be, to establish a state university system. Now, I may not be reading it as well as you do, Moise, but I feel that it is necessary.

Mr. Tobias Wendell, isn't it true that somewhere in the Legislative Proposal--I was trying to locate it--that there is a provision that when we require, in another part of the constitution, that a two-thirds vote would be necessary to enact something, it would require the same vote to repeal that act? Do you recall?

Mr. Gauthier Yes, that's right, that's right. Gordon, that would answer your question.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I have listened now for almost a day and a half to the discussion about the structure of higher education and particularly the concern that some members of this delegation seem to have about the L.S.U. system. I have not heard one single argument advanced which would suggest that we need to change the present structure of the L.S.U. system. In my humble opinion the L.S.U. system has achieved a stability over the years. I see no reason to change that structure simply in the interest of change. I think the time has come for us to face up to the issue and that is, whether we want to have a management board for the L.S.U. system similar to that which is now in existence, with the exception of the coordination and budgetary control which we have given to the Board of Regents. Contrary to establishing or continuing stability, amendments of this type simply strike at the very heart of the stability that the L.S.U. system enjoys. If the legislature can change it by a two-thirds vote, they can change it back to something else at a later time. If that doesn't work, as Mr. Gauthier has indicated, they can change it again. It seems to me that the net result of a proposal such as this could have no other effect than that of constant change and turmoil in the higher education systems of this state, contrary to the best interest of those systems and the state as a whole. I think that the fact that the people of this state have rejected efforts to change the L.S.U. system three different times indicates that they support that system and desire its continuance. I would like to see us complete this section, approve it, so that the management board for the L.S.U. system is fixed in the constitution and we know that the stability of that system is assured. Then, if we want to argue about other boards--the other duties of the Board of Trustees--we can do that until our time runs out. But, I suggest to you, that amendments of this kind can have no other effect than destroying the L.S.U. system and the stability that that system has enjoyed over the years. I urge your rejection of this amendment and all similar amendments, so that we can adopt this section and move on with the business of this delegation.

Further Discussion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I don't believe I have to tell you that this is the exact same thing that was run by you yesterday and that failed to get...it's just a little different wording and a little different form. There are some things that I would like to point out to you about this whole proposal. One is, of course, that they have the magic figure of two-thirds in it. I think all of us are practical, or know enough about practical politics, to know that it doesn't take any governor with a great amount of popularity to achieve a two-thirds vote on some matters in education. I think Act 712 is a sterling example of it because it passed just about by that vote, even though it didn't require that. This is just a subterfuge and a coverup to let you think that this is going to be quite a difficult thing to do. But, secondly, is that the proposal that we have given to this convention contains the very authority that is necessary to create anything. It has the authority to create new institutions; it has the authority to create new programs. I venture to say, when the rest of the universities in this state suddenly find out what's happening to them under this setup, they are going to find out that they are not so happy with this entire setup because it's going to have to continue to pronounce the operation of the state university as it. On this direction, I think that we ought to give some thought to the fact that some of us just won't face up to one fact of life, and that is, is that L.S.U. is the state university for this state. L.S.U. is the university that has the extensive programs, that has the research programs, it has the many, many programs that other institutions have for one...other institutions don't have for one simple reason--this state can't afford to support more than one state university. As a result of that when you keep watering this thing down, as we keep trying to water this down, there is only one thing that I can see that will result in this state and, that is, that you will pull down a great state institution to a level of just a mediocre university. One of the things that is holding back education really, in the State of Louisiana right now, is the fact that the legislature on the recommendation of the Coordinating Council got here and has created more universities than this state can possibly maintain in university fashion. I say to you, that if we don't stop and take a look at higher education and give this Board of Regents--which is being given all of the budgetary matters, all of the financial control, all of the control over curriculum, all of the control over programs--if you don't let this operation just take a couple of years to review and see what's going on in higher education and go...instead go into something like this, you are fixing to throw education--higher education--into the biggest turmoil that you've even seen. I urge you to give serious consideration before you move in this direction. I urge the defeat of this amendment.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Graham Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise briefly to oppose this particular amendment. In addition to several of the words in opposition that have already been expressed, I think there are a couple of things that would more or less drift us into the twilight zone if we would go along with an amendment of this type: (1) the amendment provides no way to reduce the number of members that are or will be serving on the respective boards. Consequently, we could very easily end up with one board that was made up of sixty-six or more people. I think that you will agree that that's far too many and would be entirely unwieldy. Another reason that I do oppose this particular concept--and to me this is a most important reason--is that in doing this we would be combining the coordination and budgetary functions with the supervisory functions of the board. I think that this is one of the problems that we have had in the past...giving power of supervision and the coordination and budgetary authority to the same board. I do sincerely request that you join me in opposing this amendment. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mrs. Miller Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, we address this amendment to your imagination. Now, yesterday when I first brought it up, someone said, "Why didn't you bring it up two days before, so we could have had more time?" Yesterday I had at least a dozen people come and say, "Mrs. Miller, I didn't realize at the time you brought it up that you were earnest, because it was such a far-reaching idea and a new idea." Now, last night I went in and read the book, The Importance of Being Earnest. Today, I am very earnest about this. Mr. Aertker brought up several points that I think we need to reconsider. One is, that this is not the same amendment at all that went by you yesterday morning. This is leaving to that legislature, in which we have reposed so much confidence, the ability to deal with all of this school system when the money gets short--which it's going to do--when the academic programs have just proliferated to the point where we've had an explosion. We are saying, "We think that the people of Louisiana will have elected to the legislature intelligent people who can deal with this." We are giving them the flexibility to do with it. Now, I voted against a great many things that came up when it said, "leave it to the integrity of the legislature."

Those of you in the legislature have finally convinced me that you have some integrity. Now, I want to see it exercised. I believe if you really mean what you are saying, you will have to go along with this and leave some flexibility, because we are building a steel rod into the spine of this constitution when we lock into all...into the constitution what we have done in the last three days; because you will never get the people of Louisiana to pass a constitutional amendment changing some of these things you've done the last few days that maybe needed to be changed under court orders and for economic reasons. We're running out of money; we all know we're running out of money. There's going to be more and more competition among...between the Board of Regents and the L.S.U. Board and something is going to have to give. What I am saying is, that under this amendment, you are giving to the educators of this state the opportunity to exercise some imagination in planning programs and curricula. Is it asking too much to have educators exercise a little imagination? Is it asking too much to have educators exercise some integrity? If it's asking too much, then you'll have to vote this thing down. But, if educators have imagination and the legislators have integrity, then this amendment is not going to do any violence at all to the educational institutions of this state. Yesterday it was asked, "Mrs. Miller, will the schools lose their identity?" I had not really turned that over in my mind and yesterday I said, "Well, perhaps they would and possibly would." Since then I have been reminded by many delegates that you do not have any more fiercely self-oriented schools than you do in the school systems of California--like the University of California at Berkley--they are intensely loyal to their own school systems. This is not running by you the amendment of yesterday. This is coming back and putting the flexibility with the legislature to act in the future. I am proud of McNeese University. I am proud of the University of Southwestern Louisiana. I am proud of Northeast where one of my sons graduated; Southwestern where one son graduated. I am proud of McNeese where my daughter is seeking her master's. I am proud of Northwestern where many of my aunts got their teacher's degree. I am proud of South-eastern where I have had many friends. I am proud of Nicholls College, which deserves to be stronger and have better programs. I am proud of Southern University, and Grambling, and Louisiana Tech. We're not seeking to damage these or L.S.U. But, we are seeking to say we have to work together. The only way we can do this is to give the legislature the flexibility it's going to need to cope with the multitude of problems that are going to be upon us within a very few years. Thank you.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Bergeron]. On page 7, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Jackson and adopted by the Convention yesterday, at the end of the last line of said floor amendment change the period "." after the words "at large" to a comma "," and add the following: "of which there shall be at least one member representing each of the several undergraduate campuses having a student enrollment of at least four thousand, who has attended the university at the undergraduate campus represented for at least one year."

Explanation

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise before you to make a statement which may surprise many of you. That statement is that I believe the L.S.U. system is a very good system. It has worked well in the State of Louisiana for many years. I would like to see that system continue. What I am trying to do with my amendment is just let the branches of L.S.U. have a voice in the operation of their system. Now, this amendment does not talk about medical school, or dental school, or law school--if you look at the enrollment of these schools, you will see that clearly. This amendment simply talks about undergraduate campuses: for instance, LSUNO which has a student enrollment of over twelve thousand, which is the second largest university in the State of Louisiana, only second to L.S.U. in Baton Rouge. LSUNO is in a peculiar situation, fellow delegates; it's situated where it handles three parishes--we're talking about Jefferson, New Orleans, and St. Bernard. Why shouldn't the second largest university have a voice within the L.S.U. system? Why shouldn't the needs of the students be known on the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors? Shouldn't the branches have a voice in the operation? Well, I say that they should. I'm not trying to change it radically at all. I'm just saying that we would like to have a voice in what L.S.U. does. Now, we're talking about one member right now--we're talking about a member represented from L.S.U. in New Orleans. In future years, maybe the other branches will join. But, at the present, we're talking about one out of seventeen members. I don't think that this is too much to ask for, ladies and gentlemen. We're talking about representation. We're talking about what is fair. This is what we have been striving for all along. We're not striving to throw out the L.S.U. system--as I said "It's a great system." We're simply striving for a voice in the L.S.U. operations. Now, as I mentioned before, look at the medical center; you're talking about fifteen hundred students. Look at the law school; you're talking about under a thousand--nine hundred and forty-three. So, you're not talking about the dental, the medical, or the law school. You're simply talking about undergraduate campuses. I would just ask you, since much of this has been discussed previously, to simply consider the amendment. Just look at what the amendment says, and please give the other branches of L.S.U. a voice in the operations of their government; let them have a say. I would just urge that you adopt this amendment, ladies and gentlemen. Thank you very much.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Bergeron, I'm generally in favor of what you're trying to do. But, I see a problem with this four thousand number you have there. It seems to me that you effectively disenfranchised L.S.U. in Alexandria. You've disenfranchised L.S.U. in Eunice. You've disenfranchised L.S.U. in Shreveport...none of which institutions yet have reached the level you're talking about and probably won't reach it for a certain amount of time. In our own Southern University system, you've disenfranchised two-thirds of the schools in the system. I don't think it's your intention. I think that what you have is a good idea. But, you've got to write it up a different way than the way you've got it written up now.

Mr. Bergeron Well, Tom, let me say this right now. It's not the intent to disenfranchise the other branches. I felt, and many others felt, that four thousand was a nice size university; it was sufficient enough to have representation. If you would like to come back with an amendment after this amendment is adopted, fine. But, this will also clear up any arguments we have about the medical, the law, or the dental school in New Orleans; although, we are talking about undergraduate schools. As I say, it was not the intent to disenfranchise other universities. I just had the feeling from most of the delegates that a four thousand enrollment in any university was large enough to have a voice in the government of that university system.

Mr. Velazquez Wouldn't it be possible to do what you want to do by operating on a limitation on a congressional district basis, similar to what Miss Perkins was trying to do yesterday? Only, she ran into the problem that, where there was more than one institution in a congressional district, giving participation to the institutions in that district would effectively destroy the total of two available from that district. Wouldn't the answer to your problem be to solve the problem that she developed yesterday, rather than to start a new problem?

Mr. Bergeron Tom, I don't know. Miss Perkins passed out her amendment yesterday, and she wasn't very successful. I just see this as the only possible means thus far. If you can come up with another answer, show it to me.

Mr. Kean Mr. Bergeron, I'm really asking the same...had the same inquiry that Mr. Velazquez had...you...the four thousand, as I understand it, would only take care of LSUNO, would it not?

Mr. Bergeron Well, I have the statistics right here in front of me, Mr. Kean; you're correct. But, if you also look at L.S.U. in Shreveport, they have close to twenty-five hundred students. I think that in not too long a period they will also reach the four thousand mark. But, at the present, it only considers and it only takes care of LSUNO which--and let me specify at this time--has over twelve thousand students, that's twelve thousand three hundred students.

Mr. Kean If I follow your argument, and we adopted this concept and in order to be fair to the other institutions who might have less than four thousand and who we wouldn't want to disenfranchise--as Mr. Velazquez has suggested--we would simply be right back where we were yesterday afternoon with the Perkins amendment, which we reconsidered and then finally defeated, would we not?

Mr. Bergeron No, I don't think so, Mr. Kean. I think that any time you have a university of four thousand--now, you're talking about four thousand students--that is sufficient to have representation. Now, as I said, L.S.U. in Shreveport, L.S.U. in Alexandria at one time, I'm sure in the very near future, will reach the four thousand mark. But, if you look at the universities in the L.S.U. system, you will see that many of the others will reach it in the future, I'm sure. But, presently, this will only pertain to L.S.U. in New Orleans; yes sir.

Mr. Kean Well, I don't quite follow your point that this would give some representation to a particular university campus because, as I read it, you could have someone who attended LSUNO for one year and then went to L.S.U. in Baton Rouge and graduated from L.S.U. in Baton Rouge and under those circumstances could be designated to the board and would qualify under this particular amendment, would he not?

Mr. Bergeron Yes, sir, he would be.

Mr. Conroy Mr. Bergeron, as I understand your amendment, it's designed to guarantee that an institution that has thirty percent of the total enrollment of the L.S.U. system will have at least one out of seventeen representatives on the board. Is that correct?

Mr. Bergeron That is correct.

Mr. Conroy Thank you.

Mr. Bergeron David, I don't think that's too much to ask for if you look at the facts. Thank you.

Mr. Cowen Mr. Bergeron, you realize, of course, that under the proposal there will be two appointed from each congressional district which, in essence, we'll give six from New Orleans anyway and more than likely you would have somebody represented from LSUNO.

Mr. Bergeron That may be correct, Mr. Cowen. But if, as I mentioned before, you're talking about the university which is situated in three parishes--Jefferson, St. Bernard, and New Orleans. We're just trying to guarantee that we have one member on the board--just one out of seventeen. I don't think that is...who has graduated from that campus...who has graduated from that university... excuse me, who has attended that university for one year.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Motion

Mr. Fontenot Mr. Chairman, I think this is a very similar amendment to the Perkins amendment we had yesterday. At this time, I don't think we ought to waste any more debate on it. I move the previous question.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 22-71.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Tobias First, let me thank the delegates for allowing me the opportunity to speak on this amendment. I want to tell a funny little story. Back in April the Composite Committee toured this state. I made the tour with them, and I made all, I believe it was seven stops. At each stop we were met by a member of the L.S.U. Alumni Federation who spoke in favor of a proposal that their federation came up with. We all received copies of that proposal. I had questions for the members of the L.S.U. Alumni Federation at each stop. The questions went something like this: How many members of the study panel graduated from a school other than L.S.U.? The answer was none, they all graduated from L.S.U. Next question: How many members of this study panel graduated from a school other than L.S.U., Baton Rouge? The answer was none. My third question was: Then, will you please explain to me how you can have an independent study--and this is what they started off their speeches with--how you can have an independent study of the L.S.U. system by L.S.U. graduates, who graduated from only L.S.U., Baton Rouge--that's ridiculous, it's utterly ridiculous. If you've been examining my vote on this article, you will note that I have been opposed generally. I have been opposed to anything spelling out any board with respect to education in this state. I'm especially opposed to those who may think that I'm in favor of Tulane University being in this constitution. Let me assure you, I am not. I have an amendment sitting up there on the stage right now to delete Section 17. There is no reason for a private university to be in the constitution. But, the same nearsighted, myopic viewpoint as expressed by the L.S.U. Alumni Federation in their so-called independent study carries over to the Board of Supervisors. L.S.U. in New Orleans has not one member on the Board of Supervisors, yet they have thirty percent of the students of the L.S.U. system--thirty percent. Is that fair? Is that reasonable? I suggest to you that it is not. Four thousand members of this...four thousand students as this proposal would set a...set as a minimum number of students before a member would be required, is a reasonable number. This guarantees that any school, any branch of the university of L.S.U. system--of the L.S.U. system that has that many students would at least have some representation on the board; it's a reasonable number of students. As time goes on, you will have more schools with four thousand students besides L.S.U. in New Orleans. But, is it asking too much to have one member of seventeen members on the L.S.U. Board, is it unreasonable, to represent L.S.U. in New Orleans? I urge, please, adopt this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Fontenot Max, you mentioned something about how could...you asked the question: How could you have an independent review of the L.S.U. system if you have just people from L.S.U. of Baton Rouge looking at the whole system? Well, by the same token, if you're going to require people from the congressional area to have to attend either L.S.U.

in Eunice or L.S.U.--let me finish the question, now--you're stating that you have to have a person that attended L.S.U. in Eunice or attended L.S.U. in Alexandria, if and when the time comes, and there are over four thousand people. So, the problem is, there, you're saying exactly the same thing. A person who didn't attend one of these colleges and universities, say, in the future that have over four thousand people, you're going to keep somebody from being on the Board of Supervisors because he hasn't attended. Now, you're going to force the board to accept somebody who has attended one of these universities. Now, how are you going to get an independent review?

Mr. Tobias That was more or less a statement. I don't understand your question.

Mr. Fontenot No, I'm saying isn't that inconsistent with your opinion saying that how are you going to get an independent review if you have just L.S.U. in Baton Rouge people on the board? Well, how are you going to get an independent review if you have just people from L.S.U. in Alexandria or L.S.U. in Eunice if they ever get big enough?

Mr. Tobias I think that all segments of the L.S.U. system should be represented on the board, if they're going to have someone from those systems. It's just...it's fair.

Mr. Fontenot Okay, well, let me ask you this, now: Are there present...on the present Board of Supervisors of L.S.U., to your knowledge, do you know of anybody that hasn't attended the L.S.U. system at all?

Mr. Tobias No.

Mr. Fontenot In other words, all of them have attended L.S.U.?

Mr. Tobias All of them have attended L.S.U., Baton Rouge.

Mr. Kean Mr. Tobias, don't you think that with the enlargement of the L.S.U. Board and the shortening of the terms of those members that the governor, who's got to make those appointments with the consent of the Senate, would take into consideration the points that you've made here today? Aren't what you are arguing is something that ought to be addressed to the appointing authority, not to this convention?

Mr. Tobias Mr. Kean, based on what I saw with the Composite Committee, touring the state, and the statements that the L.S.U. Alumni Federation made saying that this was...their study was an independent study--that type of myopic viewpoint--I can never believe that they would not, without some force and mandate in the constitution, do it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Bergeron Brother and sister delegates, it just upsets me sometimes when I hear people throwing issues into the arguments, which really don't belong. Now, let's look at the facts. Let's just sit aside and look at the facts. We're talking about L.S.U. in New Orleans, who has a student body of over twelve thousand--twelve thousand--who do not have one representative on the board. Now, is that right? Is that right? Thirty percent of the L.S.U. system in New Orleans, and they don't have one representative. I feel that in order for a person to know the needs of the students at that particular campus, he has to have gone to that campus; he has to know the needs and work with the faculty, etc. That's all we're asking for. We're asking for one--one--representative out of seventeen.

I feel that the L.S.U. system is a good one, as I've said. I feel that L.S.U. in New Orleans is growing, and it's continued to grow. It hasn't hasn't been in existence for a very long time, but they do cover three parishes; they do have certain needs; and they do want a voice in the student government. Now, why should not they have that voice? You know, we've been talking about equality throughout this whole convention. What's right? What do the people want? Well, I'm not saying that I'm speaking for twelve thousand students; I'm not going to tell you that. But, I do say if you want to do what's right and you want to do what's equal, why not give them that one representative? That's the issue; that's the issue that's before us with this amendment. I would simply ask you to consider this amendment, and if you can find it in your heart, please vote with it.

I'll yield to questions, Mr. Chairman.

Question

Mr. Alexander Mr. Bergeron, would you consider temporarily withdrawing your amendment, and reducing the qualifying number from four thousand to two thousand so that the other campuses could be represented?

Mr. Bergeron Reverend Alexander, if the amendment passes, I would have no objection to going with two thousand. As a matter of fact, I'll endorse it and speak on it. But, I would like to see this amendment pass. In answer to your question, no, I don't have any objections to that.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 42-63. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is sent up by Delegates Alexander and Toca.

Amendment No. 1. On page 6, line 20, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Johnny Jackson and adopted on the 14th, delete line 21 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"shall be composed of two members, one of whom shall be a professional educator, from each of the congressional".

Explanation

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, this amendment simply stipulates that one of the two persons who will be appointed by the governor from each congressional district will be a professional educator. Now, we define professional educator to be one who has been involved either in secondary or higher education for five or more years. This assures representation by the various campuses because these professional educators, of course--it's assumed--will have graduated from one of the colleges here in Louisiana. This amendment, in effect, eliminates people like me, for example, because I am not a professional educator. I think, there again, we find that we are not talking about the selfish point of view because it is my opinion that politicians as such--that is, someone who is solely interested in the political aspect of the thing--should not represent education in Louisiana. For that reason, I am calling on you to adopt this amendment so that we can include professional educators on all of our boards. Thank you.

I'll yield for questions.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Reverend Alexander, are you inferring that professional educators are not politicians?

Mr. Alexander Not necessarily so, and not always so, suppose I say, Mrs. Warren.

Mrs. Warren Then you said this would assure that it would be nonpolitical?

Mr. Alexander No, I said this will assure the fact that there will be professional educators included on the board.

Mrs. Warren Well, I took you up on the statement because you said they would be nonpolitical. I wanted to say to you that some of the greatest educators are also political.

Mr. Alexander That may be correct.

Mr. Slay Reverend, I'm not trying to pick your amendment apart, but you say, "one of whom shall be a professional educator." Now, our other shortage in there is money, so we should say the other one should be a banker? Wouldn't that make as much sense?

Mr. Alexander We are assuming that the other individual will be someone selected by the governor from the public at large. He may be a baker; he may be a candlestick maker--or anyone, for that matter.

Mr. Smith Reverend Alexander, why do you think an educator will make a better member than a non-educator?

Mr. Alexander Well, for the same reason, Mr. Smith, that most boards in Louisiana that represent trades or professions are made up of persons who come from those trades and professions. Could you imagine a board--a medical board--being made up of persons other than doctors, or no physicians, etc., and on down the line? How about a plumbers' board with no plumbers? That's what I have in mind.

Mr. Smith Do you think this is a good thing to put into the constitution, something like this? Like you say, somebody else will come up here with an amendment saying you've got to be a banker or a lawyer or a doctor. I mean, I think this is a rather ridiculous thing to put into the constitution.

Mr. Alexander But, we are discussing education; and, for example, since you mentioned bankers, the board that controls bankers is made up predominately of bankers, and on down the line. That's just a fact of life, and I think we should do it in education. I don't think persons who have been elected to the Senate or the House of Representatives or someone who has political clout in a community, just because he has that political clout, should be a member of the Board of Education to control the colleges.

Mr. Stagg Reverend Alexander, would you say that in each of these college campuses controlled by these boards, the president of those universities or colleges is a professional educator?

Mr. Alexander In most cases, he is; he's come up through the ranks, in most instances.

Mr. Stagg All right, and the deans of those colleges, and the other administrative heads of these colleges, are professional educators by... practically by definition?

Mr. Alexander I would say they are, Mr. Stagg, because usually they come up through the ranks; and where there are exceptions, it's rare.

Mr. Stagg All right, then, when you have a management board, is it not the duty of that management board to make policy with respect to the management of this institution, as well as to the educational quality of it?

Mr. Alexander Yes, he may, but I would think that the persons who would be on this board would be men who have retired, for example, and persons who had been employed in some way and possibly had gone out of education, or persons in that category.

Mr. Stagg In other words, you don't think a board should be on... what you are proposing is that, on both sides of the boards, the employees of the board as well as the board itself should be composed in great part of professional educators. What you are doing is cutting in half the possibilities of management brains and administrative brains other than those possessed by educators; is that not correct?

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Alexander In effect, that is my intention, Mr. Stagg.

Mr. Stagg Do you know that I oppose your amendment for that reason?

Mr. Alexander Yes, Mr. Stagg, that's obvious.

Miss Wisham Reverend Alexander, you began your interpretation of a professional educator by saying that they were individuals that had been involved in secondary education and higher education. Why did you skip over elementary education?

Mr. Alexander I didn't categorically exclude elementary education. Suppose I'll say all education, both above a pre and subsequent to the college level, and that will...

Miss Wisham Well, you do...

Mr. Alexander I know many elementary teachers who have Ph.D.'s, Miss Wisham, so I would not exclude them. It will be the prerogative of the legislature, of course, to determine and define a professional educator, as you know.

Miss Wisham Well, good, because an elementary educator is a professional person.

Mr. Alexander Thank you. I'm sorry I didn't get the last question. That's all right.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 27-74. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Delegate Stanwood Duval sends up amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 7, between lines B and 9, add the following paragraph:

(D) Merger and Consolidation. The legislature, by a two-thirds vote of the elected members of each house thereof, may provide for the merger or consolidation or restructure of any of the boards created in this article into a single board or a lesser number of boards and may vest in said board or boards the coordination, government, supervision, control and budgetary responsibility for all publicly supported university systems, universities and colleges and such other powers, duties, responsibilities and functions with respect to the education above the secondary level as the board or boards shall determine."

Explanation

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I was...a couple of people have said, "Stan, I wouldn't...why are you going to introduce this amendment? It's just taking up the time of the convention." Well, let me tell you, I think, in my own humble opinion, that this is the most fair and equitable amendment that we've come up with yet, for the following reasons--I might point out I feel pretty strongly about it, and I generally don't like to waste time, but this is an issue that I just feel very firmly about. We have--as has been said here--we have structured the system of education from time immemorial in this constitution, and you understand, of course, you have alienated a great segment of the population. You do understand that, I am sure, in your infinite wisdom. You understand you created an appointed Board of Regents. Everybody is afraid of the legislature. You've got an appointed Board of Regents; you ought to be afraid of them because they're not answerable to anybody. At least, at least, an elected board is answerable to the people. An elected board can play politics, but only to such a point as is within the bounds of reason; an appointed board that is inviolate from everyone cannot. What this amendment does is to allow true flexibility. If everybody is not...if everybody here who's been talking about flexibility, and not a rigid document that is going to have to be amended, then this amendment allows it. It's what we've done in other instances. It allows by a two-thirds vote, not necessarily to go to a single board system, but a two-thirds vote to restructure the boards. If the composition... we are not...we, who are so...all of us geniuses here have decided how they are going to be composed. But, if it doesn't work--if it doesn't work--it allows a two-thirds vote of the legislature to change the composition of the board. By a two-thirds vote of the legislature, they can pass a tax. They ought to be able to change the composition of a board that doesn't work. What if this doesn't work? Has anybody thought about that? What are we going to do? Has that crossed your mind? Has any degree of introspection entered into your thought process here? This allows at least a restructuring. It allows that it be, perhaps, three boards or two boards. It allows that. It doesn't say there will be, but it gives the flexibility that we have. I defy anyone of you to say that you know everything about the educational system, and you know that this system is going to work. I defy any and anyone of you to say that. If you say it, it's going to really mystify me how you know this--and I want to see your crystal ball--how you know the Board of Regents is going to work, how you know it's going to operate properly, how you know the composition is exactly correct? This at least allows an out. It at least allows two-thirds of the legislature--and hopefully they're going to be reasonable men representing the people of Louisiana; hopefully they're going to be reasonable; if they are not, we're in trouble anyhow--it allows them to cure some of the mistakes we might have made in this constitutional convention.

I'll yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Stan, as I read this amendment, I'm confused by the words "board or boards" in the last line. The thrust of the article is--or the proposal is--that the legislature may provide for the merger and consolidation, and that the legislature may vest in said board or boards, the coordination, supervision, and control. Then drop down to the next to the last line, "and functions with respect to education above the secondary level as the board or boards shall determine." Shouldn't that be "functions with respect to education above the secondary level as the legislature shall determine"? Is that an error, or do I just read your proposal incorrectly?

Mr. Duval Well, the purpose of the amendment, Mr. Stagg--and you may have...the purpose of the amendment, of course, is to allow--is to allow--the legislature to consolidate the boards by a two-thirds vote, or to lessen the number of boards, or to restructure the boards. Now, in the event that there was a consolidation, the functions would be delineated under the...by the legislature; that's correct.

Mr. Stagg Well, in line 5...6, if you put the word in front of the word "may vest," if you merely interline there, what you mean to say is that "the legislature may vest in said board or boards coordination," etc. How do the boards or boards determine it when it's supposed to be the thrust of the sentence that the legislature shall determine it?

Mr. Duval The purpose of the amendment...the purpose of the amendment is to merely allow flexibility, to allow the legislature to restructure or consolidate the boards we in our infinite wisdom have done here. Now, if the board...it may well be "as the legislature shall determine." It may well be in error.

Mr. Kean Mr. Duval, will you explain to me what the difference is between your proposal and the Miller-Gauthier proposal that was rather soundly defeated?

Mr. Duval I would be very delighted to do that, sir. The Miller-Gauthier amendment mandated a single board, in my opinion. This amendment does not mandate a single board. It could be...it says, "lesser boards." It also allows any board to be restructured, which the Miller-Gauthier amendment did not. In other words, if our composition, here-- I know we know everything, but if we composed a board that is in poor composition--the method of composition is wrong, then it allows the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, to change that. I think it's a substantially different amendment than the Miller-Gauthier amendment.

Mr. Kean But, it still has the fault of--as I suggested before--of lending towards instability because you could still do it, change it. If you didn't like it...if you didn't like seventeen, you could make it nine. If you didn't like nine, you could make it forty, or whatever two-thirds of the legislature might decide, from time to time.

Mr. Duval That's right, Mr. Kean. It also allows errors to be corrected. It allows that type of flexibility rather than instability. I think we all use the words that suit us best, of course, but I think flexibility is the key word in this amendment--not instability. We were going to enshrine a...we can enshrine a bad concept; and for the sake of stability, we perpetuate mediocrity. I don't think that's a very good idea, Mr. Kean; do you?

Mr. Kean Well, as I understood your argument, Mr. Duval, you were much concerned about the Board of Regents--this inviolate group who can't be touched by anybody, etc. Yet, you're injecting this amendment in the section dealing with the L.S.U. management board, aren't you?

Mr. Duval Well, look. I realize that the L.S.U. system is what is concerning many of us now, but I think it is not as...what makes it more inviolate than anything else? I'm saying that there ought to be flexibility for the entire system of education, also. That's the general thrust of this amendment.

Mr. Cowen We keep talking about time and trying to get ahead as much as possible. A point of order, Mr. Chairman. I say this is the same thing that we have beat back three or four times in the past.

Mr. Henry Mr. Cowen, it's not the...it's not identical to other amendments that we've considered. Of course, it's been customary to go ahead and to let them beat themselves to death on them if that's what they want to do.

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Duval, would you agree that it requires long-range planning in any institution of higher learning to keep your program going to build up universities in this state? Are you convinced of that?

Mr. Duval Certainly, it requires long-range planning, but I'm sure that there are long-range plans that change as the times change, also.

Mr. Hernandez Yes, sir, but how in the world could any university or college plan, or do any long-range planning, when year to year this can be just torn asunder--the entire board changed up, restructured, and everything else? That can be done at every session of the legislature. How could they plan in the future?

Mr. Duval As you know, sir, in every session of the legislature, under what we've done, they can change all the agencies and consolidate and un-consolidate them. Hopefully, we're not going to have a bunch of raving maniacs in the legislature, but people who are trying to do reason.

Mr. Hernandez There are different men to come to the legislature with different ideas, and that would just tear asunder any long-range plans.

Mr. Duval It requires two-thirds...I just want to replace "board or boards" with "legislature" to make it technically correct.

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with correction.]

Closing

Mr. Duval Fellow delegates, I realize the sense of this convention. I just want to please remind you again that it's so important to have flexibility in a constitution. Do you understand that one of the reasons we are here is because of the inflexible constitution we're living by now? Let's at least give two-thirds of the legislature the right to correct some of the errors that we may have made. Now what makes us so dadgum much smarter than two-thirds of the legislature? What makes us so infinitely wise that we can predetermine how the educational system is supposed to work from now and forever more? What makes us so smart? Why are we so smug to say we can't make an error? Why can't we give this document the flexibility that it sorely needs? That's the reason we came up here, to have a flexible document. You look into your own conscience and your own intellect. You think perhaps, maybe, you can make a mistake, and perhaps this is one way to change it without hurting the LSU System.

I went to LSU for seven years and think very highly of the LSU System. LSU may find out it doesn't like the way the Board of Regents is composed. LSU may find out it doesn't like the powers of the Board of Regents. LSU may dadgum well want a constitutional amendment. They may rue the day that they didn't allow any flexibility in this particular proposal. Our children may rue the day that we...that the Constitutional Convention of '73 didn't give us any way out of this proposal... no way out at all, and we have to live with it. Now, you think about that for awhile, fellow delegates, and then vote.

Thank you.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 40-66. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1. [by Mr. Roy]. On page 6, line 20, delete Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Johnny Jackson, and adopted by the Convention yesterday.

Amendment No. 2. On page 6, delete lines 20 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety, and on page 7, delete lines 1 through 4, both inclusive in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 9. Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College

Section 9. (A) Creation; Powers. There is created a body corporate, known as the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, which subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents, shall supervise and manage the institutions and statewide agricultural and other programs administered through the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College system.

(B) Membership; Terms. The members of the board shall be appointed by the governor, with the consent of the Senate, for overlapping terms of six years following initial terms which shall be fixed by law. The board shall be composed of two members from each of the congressional districts into which the state is divided, and one member shall be from the state at large."

Point of Order

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman, as I read this, it's only a reconsideration of the Jackson amendment of yesterday. I'd like a ruling of the Chair on that.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Henry All right. Mrs. Zervigon, I had looked at this earlier, but, the Jackson amendment deleted the provisions, as I appreciate it, that were in Section 9 at that time, including some additional amendments which had already been added to that section which, in effect, would make this a different amendment.

It deletes some amendments that...the Jackson amendment of yesterday deleted certain amendments... which had already been adopted to Section 9, including repealing or deleting some language which was presently then in Section 9. Your amendments, according to this Journal, and some other amendments...

Mrs. Zervigon But, Mr. Roy has not reinserted my amendment, as I read it.

Mr. Henry That's right. That's what makes the amendment acceptable at this time.

Mrs. Zervigon The Jackson amendment deleted...

Mr. Henry It's not the identical amendment...

Mrs. Zervigon I appeal the ruling of the Chair, Mr. Chairman.

Appeal from Ruling of the Chair

Point of Information

Mr. Stovall Could we get the amendment from yesterday? Could you give to us any specific differences that might be there?

Mr. Henry All right. As I appreciate it, there was a floor amendment introduced, according to the Journal, by Delegate Jackson. Amendment No. 1 was on page 6, delete lines 20 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety. On page 7, deletes lines 1 through 4 both inclusive in their entirety, and delete convention Floor Amendment No. 2 proposed by Delegate Zervigon, et al, and adopted by the convention on November 14, 1973, and insert in lieu thereof the following: So, as I appreciate this, what is being offered by the Roy amendment is to delete a portion of what was adopted in the Jackson amendment, and not to just completely undo the Jackson amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Chair sustained: 84-16.]

Explanation

Mr. Roy This amendment nullifies the results of Mr. Jackson's amendment which was to give to Southern University a board similar to the LSU Board of Supervisors. Now, of course, I'm sure you all know how I basically feel about certain things philosophically. But I must, in good conscience, oppose Mr. Jackson's amendment which was proposed yesterday, about which I and a lot of others did not speak, because maybe we felt it would not pass. But there are just certain things that...in it that are just detrimental to what maybe he thinks the good will be accomplished from it; one of which is that it's impossible for me to conceive that a separate board for Southern University will, when it presents itself to the Board of Regents, competing for budget and what have you against the LSU Board of Supervisors, and the Board of Trustees of other state colleges and universities, will not be in some sort of a detrimental position with respect to the competition among other schools. Now, that may or may not be something that the people want to look at, but, it's an important fact of life and you all know, as delegates here, how it would be if you sat on a Board of Regents and had the request made from the Board of Supervisors of LSU, and the Board of Trustees, and then a small board like Southern's, what may be the result.

The other thing that I want to bring to your attention, and to be perfectly honest about it, is that Mr. Segura has an amendment which addresses itself to Section 8, and which provides that when a college essentially reaches a ten thousand student level, it may petition or seek to be...to have a separate Administrative Board. I don't believe in not being frank and honest, and I don't think I would, maybe support that. I'm not sure. I haven't heard any argument on it. But if we are going to get to the issue, then that's the place where this matter ought to be discussed. We have the fact that since 1940 LSU has been in the constitution of this state. That's a fact. We can't overlook it. We've got to accept that. We've got to deal with it. Section 9 is supposed to be dealing with LSU, and not the other state colleges and universities which previously have been operating under the State Board of Education.

So, in closing, I'd like to urge the adoption of this amendment. I think it's exactly what the committee proposed. I think it's good. I think, notwithstanding, it's laudible to have blacks be able to say we've got a separate board for Southern. I don't think that's in their best interest, and I would urge your support for this amendment.

Question

Mr. Dennery Mr. Roy, on yesterday afternoon, by a vote of 62 to 47, there was added to the original section, before Mr. Jackson's amendment, a provision that no member should be...would be eligible to succeed himself. I notice that you voted against that amendment. Is that the only reason you didn't put this in?

Mr. Roy No, I am opposed to preventing a member from succeeding himself, especially since we have only a six year term. Mr. Jackson's amendment did take that out of the amendments that had been passed. I am for a board member being able to succeed himself.

Mr. Dennery Thank you.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Question

Mr. Kelly I said the crux of your amendment is really to delete Johnny Jackson's amendment yesterday afternoon. Have you talked with Johnny about this this morning?

Mr. Roy No, Johnny is not here. I haven't seen him, and...you know, I told him yesterday how I felt. So, it's nothing new.

[Motion to table the amendment rejected: 41-59.]

Further Discussion

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman and delegates, I very much object to the tactics that are being used here today. This is a reconsideration and I believe that Mr. Roy, over these microphones was frank to tell you that it is a reconsideration. I'm being told that, "The blacks don't want it." Well, I have yet to see any one group of people that can be categorized that way vote all together on an issue every time. There may be some blacks that want it and some that don't, but Mr. Jackson who originally introduced that amendment, who cannot be here today because of pressing business in New Orleans, would like his amendment to stand. Early on, one of the first actions this convention took was to create the Composite Committee. The Composite Committee toured the state and heard people come to talk to them. We didn't hear everybody in any area. Those who would get themselves away from their T.V. sets or the dinner hour were the people who felt very strongly on an issue. We only heard those people who felt very strongly on an issue. In Alexandria, we had representatives from the Southern Alumni Association. They told us that they would like a board. They are a system. They are not only one little teeny tiny college, they are a system similar to the LSU System, smaller, newer, weaker, and for that reason, they may need constitutional protection more than the LSU System. It is apparent here that the LSU System, alumni and all, when they get cranked up, can swing considerable clout. That's a little difficult for the smaller, newer universities. But ladies and gentlemen, we passed this thing yesterday. No new, compelling reasons have arisen why we should repeal it. Representative Jackson would like it to stand. The Southern Alumni Association has voted in favor of it. I beg you, stand by your actions of yesterday. Do not be blown back and forth in the wind like a willow tree.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Thank you very much.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates, he that has eyes, let him see, and he that has ears, let him hear. This morning we debated that whether we wanted to work on Sunday because that was the Lord's Day. I'm wondering right now if I didn't make a mistake in voting that we work on Sunday, because evidently, some of us need to go to church and get refueled before we come back to this convention. I am reminded now of a man that was dissatisfied with himself. He spoke out loud one day and he said, "If I die and I could come back into this world in any form that I'd like to come, I'd like to come back in the form of an elephant."

Some of his friends heard him, and they pulled a joke on him. So, while he was sleeping, they put an elephant suit on him and stuffed it. When he woke up the next morning, he was so heavy, and he couldn't hardly move, he said, "Of all things, I planned to go shopping today and buy me a new suit, so, I'm going to go on out of here, anyway, and see if I can't buy that suit."

When he went downtown to his favorite store, he couldn't find a suit to fit him. So he said, "I changed my mind. If I could come back in any form that I could want to come back, I'd like to come back in the form of a rat." He said, "In that way, I could squeeze in any hole I'd like to go into." I'm saying to you, this is a dead horse. This rat is trying to squeeze into a hole. Let's don't let this rat squeeze in this hole. Let's let justice prevail. Mr. Roy made it very plain that he wanted to squeeze Southern out; that he wanted--and I asked the question yesterday, "Do you want to flush them down?" He's coming right back this morning. He just wants to plain eliminate them. I'm asking you, look into your hearts, search your minds, and make up your minds. Ask yourselves are you ready to stoop to these kind of tactics to get what you want? It's alright to grow big so long as you don't step on that next person trying to get big.

Let's vote this amendment down, and let's let justice prevail. I'll answer any questions from anybody.

Questions

Mr. Stagg Mrs. Warren, let's try to see where we are with reference to the setup of the various boards. When the Jackson amendment was adopted yesterday, that set up a seventeen person board for the Southern University system. It requires that a certain number of those board members have attended Southern University. Therefore, the make-up of that boards would be, most likely, predominantly black. Is that not correct?

Mrs. Warren I imagine you are right.

Mr. Stagg Let's feed into that computation that we also in this week have adopted an amendment or a proposal of the committee that there be a Board of Regents which would have the effective budgetary and other controls over all of education in the higher levels, and that we had a lot of arguments about how many of those people might be predominantly representing the predominant minority of the state. Is that not correct?

Mrs. Warren Right.

Mr. Stagg If the board for Southern University persists in the form of the Jackson amendment, would not some future governor, having made seventeen appointments of prominent black citizens to the board of Southern be somewhat off the hook on the number of people he might, then, feel, therefore, feel necessary or appropriate to appoint to the Board of Regents of Higher Education which is really going to be the control valve of higher education in this state? Are you not in danger, therefore, of losing sight of the higher objective in order to achieve the lower objective?

Mrs. Warren I don't think so, Mr. Stagg. I didn't...didn't write the amendment. One amendment came before this floor--Mr. Alphonse Jackson submitted it--that was to give representation for blacks. I have stood at this podium, and I've said to you, as far as the color of a man's skin is concerned it doesn't matter one way or another with me, but evidently, it didn't work out that way the other day. I said if people want to see what you do, instead of hearing what you say. Now, the point that I'm raising here is not the number of people on the board. It is a fact that he wants to erase Southern completely. This I disagree.

Mr. Stagg Well, you did hear the governor's comments, I presume you did, on the news last night...

Mrs. Warren No, I didn't, Mr. Stagg. Maybe you'd like to tell me.

Mr. Stagg Well, the HEW has...

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, I was not here yesterday and did not vote on the particular amendment either way. But in a sense of fair play, since the delegate that proposed the amendment is not here, I would suggest of Mr. Roy that he withdraw the amendment at this time and then if he so desires, when the delegates is here, represent his amendment. I would certainly hope that he would withdraw it in this time...at this time, due to the fact that the person that authored the amendment that is involved is not here. In a sense of fair play, Mr. Roy, I hope you would withdraw the amendment at this time.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I, too, want to rise and ask that Mr. Roy please withdraw his amendment. It would make it much better for many of we delegates to try to rationalize after two days of real hot debate. I think in all fairness, I join Senator Rayburn that he should withdraw...it temporarily and come back at a later time with it.

Questions

Mr. Roy When is Johnny Jackson coming back?

Mr. Chatelain Sir?

Mr. Roy When's he coming back?

Mr. Chatelain I understand he's due back tomorrow, sir.

Mr. Roy Now, look. I...certainly I would withdraw it if we could consider it that way. I don't want to bamboozle anybody. But...

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, I just spoke with Representative Jackson, and he is presently appearing before the City Council in New Orleans and will be leaving shortly to return to Baton Rouge.

Mr. Casey It's anticipated he will return in the next couple of hours, then. Is that correct, Mr. Jackson?

Mr. Chatelain We would appreciate it if you would withdraw it, Mr. Roy.

Mr. Roy Yeah...sure...I'll do that. Look, I didn't know that Johnny was going to be here or not be here today.

Mr. Casey Mr. Roy now moves to temporarily withdraw his amendment with the understanding that you'll have the right to resubmit it, Mr. Roy.

Mr. Roy Right. That the whole section will not be considered and voted on before...

[Amendment withdrawn. Motion to revert to Section 8 previously passed over adopted: 91-3.]

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Section 8. Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities...

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Segura Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, in this section it's called the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities. It creates the management board for all state colleges and universities not under the LSU system. We have been discussing Section 9, which is the management board for the LSU system. This board is...and the way the proposal is prepared, it's one board, as the Board of Education is today, that would have management control over every state college and university and all the vocational and technical schools that are now under the State Board of Education. As you know, this constitution has already adopted Section No. 7, which is the section which creates the Board of Regents. There has been much debate and much question amongst the delegates and amongst the people of the State of Louisiana as to whether we should have a one board system, a two, three, four board system. I want to tell you under this proposal we have only a one board system. You might think I'm mistaken, but let me explain it to you. All curriculum and all budget for all higher education institutions--LSU and all others--are under one board, the Board of Regents. In its wisdom, this committee in this proposal saw that to put management of these under the Board of Regents, also, would be too much to do. So, they separated curriculum and budget from management. Section 9 explained the LSU system, and when you voted to adopt Section 7, the Board of Regents, you individualized LSU. I'm not saying it's right or wrong; I'm saying you, yourselves, decided LSU should be divided; so LSU was under Section 9. Now, you're covering the management boards of all the other colleges. It is composed very much in the same way as was the boards we've been discussing for the last day under Section 9. It is composed of two members from each congressional district and one member at large, all members to be appointed to serve staggered terms of six years each. I would like to ask you and urge you to support this section and vote favorably for the section.

I'll answer any questions.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Segura, I noticed both in this section and in Section 9 we're changing the present terms all to six years. I'm assuming you have either proposed or will propose a scheduled provision dealing with those who are in office that have terms longer than six years. What is your committee proposal on how to handle those people who are presently in with more than six years to run?

Mr. Segura We have another committee proposal, and it's either 11 or 30--30? It's Proposal No. 30. It's another committee proposal which deals with all of the boards that are now existing, how they will be phased into this system for the balance of their term. I think if you'll study that, you'll answer that question, and I thank you for asking that question.

Mr. Drew Perry, I wonder if you could give me a little of the feeling of the committee on this subject. I notice that post-secondary vo-tech training is listed under the section on Board of Regents and under the section on Board of Trustees. It is not mentioned under the Board of Education. The reason I ask this: the tendency is to increase the vo-tech training at the secondary level, high school level. Here it looks like we have it divided to where, possibly, your Board of Education might have some control up until graduation, and then you've got your Board of Trustees having control.

Mr. Segura As I understand it--and I wish Mr. Aertker would correct me if I'm wrong; in fact, maybe I should yield to Mr. Aertker to answer that question. I see he's standing. If you don't mind, I will let him...

Mr. Henry Well, no...

Mr. Segura Well, I'll be glad to answer it.

Mr. Henry Go ahead because you have the floor...

Mr. Segura Okay. Well, there is vocational education before you get out of high school. That is under the board we have adopted for elementary and secondary education. Once all vocational training after that is under this Board of Trustees. That's the management. The Board of Regents still controls the budget and the curriculum for all...

Mr. Drew I understand what...your answer you're giving me, Perry. The point I'm making is: aren't you dividing the supervision or jurisdiction of vo-tech training to where, maybe, it would be better if it were all under the Board of Education?

Mr. Segura Mr. Drew, I'm sorry. I can only hear about half of your question, but it is under the high school program. Mr. Aertker just corrected me. It is...

Mr. Drew That's the point I'm making. You are dividing the jurisdiction of the supervisory jurisdiction over vo-tech training into two sections--your secondary education and your post-secondary. Now, don't you think it would be more advisable to have it all under the Board of Education because it is more or less of a continuation of secondary education.

Mr. Segura I tend to agree with you, but that is not the way it is set up.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The first amendment is sent up by Delegate Alphonse Jackson.

Amendment No. 1. On page 6, line 3, after the word and punctuation "College," add the following: "Board of Governors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College,"

Explanation

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, this is a rather simple amendment--technical in that we have already adopted an amendment on yesterday by Delegate Johnny Jackson, which established a Board of Governors for the Southern University system. If you will note on the page that's indicated by way of this amendment, you will see that the Board of Supervisors of the Louisiana State University system is excepted from control of the Board of Trustees. My amendment simply excepts the Board of Governors of the Southern University system that was established on yesterday so that it will now have the authority to control and manage the affairs of the Southern University system in a like manner as is provided for the LSU system. I ask for the adoption of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Roy Alphonse, in view of my pulling the amendment that I had to Section 9, I'm wondering if it wouldn't be better if we just--if you would pull your amendment until we decide the issue of whether Southern will be a constitutionalized board or not?

Mr. A. Jackson Well, I don't really think that it would make a lot of difference Delegate Roy, because if your amendment prevails, then that would certainly remove the need for this amendment. But, if not, if we go ahead and adopt the section without this amendment, I think we've got a problem relative to the way the Southern University Board would operate.

Mr. Roy But, wouldn't we have to come back, if my amendment later passes, we'll have to hold B open to come back and take this out, because we certainly couldn't have this language in Section B without Southern University being a constitutional board under Section 9.

Mr. A. Jackson Well, I think you're right. I think we'll be wasting time if...until we decide the question, I think that you're right. I'll withdraw it until that time.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter This time Delegate Drew sends up amendments, Mr. Chairman. It reads as follows: Amendment No. 1. On page 6, delete lines 5 through 8, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment is a follow-up on the questions that I asked Mr. Segura while he had the floor a few moments ago. If you will revert to Section 4, you will see that that does provide that "the board shall have other specific powers, duties, and responsibilities as provided by law," which means the legislature can enlarge upon their jurisdiction. Now, what we have at this time: we have a reprogramming of high school education to try to get more vo-tech training in high school. The purpose is this: there is no need for a student who does not intend to go to college to spend four years getting a high school diploma, and then have to spend the next two or three years in a vo-tech school if that's what he desires. The movement is to put more vo-tech training in high school. What we have under the present proposal would be a split jurisdiction between the Board of Education and the Board of Trustees, although it could be changed by the legislature under this Subsection 2. I think that what we need is one board in charge of vo-tech training, and by doing this, it would permit the legislature to put the entire authority at the next session after the constitution is adopted, to put this authority in the State Board of Education where it belongs, rather than having the State Board of Education handling part of it, the Board of Trustees handling part of it. I think you would have a more...a better continuity in your program. You would have a better saturation of vo-tech training in high school. I ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Aertker Mr. Drew, this then, actually, would result in our adding still one other board, though to the boards that we have proposed in...

Mr. Drew No, sir. This would not...under the Subsection 2 I think you would be more apt to have another board than under deletion of 2, Mr. Aertker, because what this is doing is permitting the legislature to put the total jurisdiction under the Board of Education. It is not intended to create a new board.

Mr. Aertker Well, the question I have is: you don't think it would be better for us to see just what problems we're going to encounter in view of the fact that the structure and the approach to vocational education and career education is in such a state of, really, transition right now that, really, most people don't know whether it's fish or fowl, even, half the time. Most of them don't know whether it's going to end up with the prominence being placed at the secondary level or at the post-secondary level. Wouldn't it perhaps be better if we would leave this language that we have in there, and then the legislature in their wisdom after seeing it in operation for about a year would be able to then create whatever board would be necessary, even, after...or designate specific responsibilities into the Board of Education or the Board of Regents?

Mr. Drew The reason I have offered this amendment, Mr. Aertker, is the experience and the information that we received in the legislature in dealing with vocational-technical schools is that the better purpose was to put a heavier saturation in your secondary education. I think by dividing it under two jurisdictions would be making a bad mistake. I think this is the proper place for vo-tech training is under the Board of Education. I'm hoping that by doing this we will have a heavier saturation in high school to where those who do not intend to go to college will not waste their years getting a diploma that's worthless.

Mr. Aertker Well, Mr. Drew, you don't think that we could actually accomplish that just as we are because, for instance, most school systems right now are getting a heavier saturation of it without any urging from the board of Vocational Education or even the Board of Education? It's actually being included as a part of the formula, as a part of the curriculum?

Mr. Drew That's the reason that I think that this amendment is necessary, Mr. Aertker, because it is becoming a heavier part of the high school curriculum. I move for the adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 41-57. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Segura and Mr. Pugh]. On page 5, delete lines 26 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety, and on page 6, delete lines 1 through 15, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section B. Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities

Section B. (A) Creation; powers. There is created a Board of Trustees to supervise, manage, and govern all public institutions of vocational-technical training and career education together with all colleges and universities, not otherwise provided for in this constitution. As each such institution reaches an initial student enrollment of twelve thousand it shall have a separate Board of Trustees.

(B) Board membership; terms. The members of each board of trustees created pursuant to this section shall be appointed by the governor with the consent of the Senate for overlapping terms of six years, following initial terms which shall be fixed by law. The board shall be composed of seventeen members, two from each of the congressional districts into which the state is divided, and one member shall be from the state at large."

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Explanation

Mr. Segura Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Fellow delegates, as I explained to you a few minutes ago when I explained the section, the committee felt it necessary to split up the work of controlling education in this state by having one board, the Board of Regents, to control curriculum and financing for all universities and state colleges, whether it be LSU, Southern, USL, Nicholls, McNeese, or any other. Then they created a management board for LSU, and then one management board for all the other state colleges and universities and the vocational and technical training. I contend that pretty soon this will be too much for one management board to control, and the workload will be too much. All of the eleven state colleges and universities are not going to be able to have enough time devoted to them by this management board in order to do fair and justice to them all. So, I'm asking you, whenever a university or a state college reaches a certain size, certainly their problems get greater. Whenever it does, this amendment would automatically create a management board for them. I researched the figure that I should use, and I debated with a lot of delegates, and I got advice from a lot of people. I settled on the figure of twelve thousand students because I feel that that's the size that, when a university gets that size, it has more problems than can be handled all by one board, and it deserves another board of management. You've got two universities right at that stage right now: that is, Southern University in its entire system and the University of Southwestern Louisiana.

I ask you for favorable consideration on this amendment. I do want to say this is the very first amendment that I have brought to this floor, and I have thought about it, and I think it's a good one, and I'd like for you to consider it.

I'll answer any questions.

Vice Chairman Roy in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Aertker Perry, under the first section that you have there, you say it shall have a separate board. You don't even give them any choice? It means the minute they hit twelve thousand that's where they get a Board of Trustees whether they want it or not?

Mr. Segura That's correct, sir.

Mr. Aertker In other words, they would be forced to take it even though they would be happy with their relationship with the present Board of Trustees that we've set up to manage that; you'd just say, "Get out and fly by yourself."

Mr. Segura That's one point I really didn't look at because I didn't think anybody...I thought anybody...any school would have been happy to have its own board. I did discuss this with the president of Southern University. I did discuss this with the president of the University of Southwestern, which are the two schools that's knocking at the door with that right now. They both were happy and would be satisfied to be under a separate board under this section.

Mr. Aertker Did you know that I spoke of the same question with the president of Southeastern, and he indicated to me that he did not want a separate board to govern his...to operate his--so this was my concern here?

Mr. Segura I did not speak to him because his enrollment was not near this, but I would be receptive to an amendment to this or a change on this, because I think it's a good point.

Mr. Aertker One other question then, Perry. This means then that this Board of Trustees would have the identical powers that the present Board of Trustees that we're putting into the constitution...

Mr. Segura Yes, sir.

Mr. Aertker Which would mean then that it would be possible in the future for...with population growing--and this is the concern that I have with numbers in something that might be around fifty years from now--it might be possible that if all of these universities grow as they seem to be all growing, that it could be possible that the Board of Regents would actually have maybe twelve or thirteen Board of Trustees coming to them with a budget for each institution, right?

Mr. Segura It is possible, but, you know, one thing--in my profession I'm an architect, and one of our specialities is hospitals--the one part of the hospital that has been decreasing is the obstetrics department, because the population is ceasing to explode like it had been. I feel that there will still be a population growth in Louisiana, because, let's face it, a lot of people are coming into Louisiana because it is a good place to live, and so these schools will grow. But, I don't think it will grow at the same rate that it has grown in the past. I think that if everyone of these universities get to that size then they deserve a board because it's too much work for all to be under one board.

Mr. Aertker You're not telling me though that they're just reproducing outside of Louisiana, and that we've quit reproducing, are you?

Mr. Velazquez When LSU in Baton Rouge was given its Board of Supervisors down back in 1940, how many students did they have?

Mr. Segura I did not research that. Maybe you can answer that for me.

Mr. Velazquez I've been told they had in the neighborhood of five thousand students. I've been told this is the neighborhood. How come the neighborhood has gotten so expensive since then?

Mr. Leithman Mr. Segura, I don't know if you know how we came about this career education, but, we worked on this thing for about--almost a year, and we utilized professional people--that's professional educators--in creating career education, which is a concept of elementary and secondary. I see here that you are about--on this amendment under Section (A), as I read it--you're indicating that we should disengage career education from our elementary and secondary concept. Now, career education isn't something that you say, "This is career education." Career education is a concept that we work into our elementary from grade kindergarten on up. Primarily, career education has to do with our high school...in our high school and elementary years, and I just wondered if you fully understood what our concept of career education is, because what we're about to do here, as I see it, is just ruin something that we feel we've done a good job on, and in the legislature and with our professional educators. Did you know this?

Mr. Segura No, Mr. Leithman, I've got to answer in all honesty. I'm not that familiar with the program on career education. I do want to say this: I just took the wording that was out of the committee proposal as relating to career education and inserted it in this section, because this language would replace it. I would be wide open and receptive to an amendment concerning that, or a suggested change on this. Of course, if it is a controversial subject, then it should come as an amendment of its own.

Mr. Conroy Mr. Segura, LSU-ND is presently the only institution in the state, other than LSU in Baton Rouge, that has more than twelve thousand students. But, as I read your amendment, you still wouldn't do anything to help out LSU-NO, is that correct?

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Segura I'm real glad you asked that question. Whether LSU-NO deserves a board of its own, whether it deserves to be on its own away from the LSU system, or whether it belongs under the LSU system is not a decision that I think I am qualified to make. I don't think that we at this convention ought to make that decision. LSU-NO is created, as I understand, by the LSU board and the state legislature. I think this is a complete different problem, and I don't want to get into the middle of that debate.

Mr. Conroy But, I'm correct then that your amendment does not in any way assist LSU-NO in correcting those changes?

Mr. Segura It does not help it or hurt it.

Mr. Flory Mr. Segura, your amendment would not affect LSU-NO, or any branch of LSU, would it?

Mr. Segura No.

Mr. Flory Doesn't your amendment really only affect the possibility of one state college or university at this time?

Mr. Segura It affects two; University of Southwestern and Southern University when each one of those reach twelve thousand, and I'm not sure if they have twelve thousand. I've seen some figures that give them both above twelve thousand. I saw some figures yesterday that give them both right below twelve thousand, but they will be at twelve thousand pretty soon.

Mr. Flory How would your amendment affect Southern University, because the institutions that I'm looking at--one has eight thousand three hundred, the other twenty-five hundred, and one eight hundred? You're not talking about systems now, you're talking about facilities.

Mr. Segura I think--let me read--but, I think I've said, "in its branches."

Mr. Flory You say, "as each such institution reaches an initial student enrollment."

Mr. Segura Well, it could be that I might have gone out with the wrong amendment, but I had covered that yesterday, because...let me ask Mr. Pugh who is a coauthor on this.

Mr. Roy Mr. Segura, you can't ask Mr. Pugh. He doesn't have the floor.

Mr. Flory My real question, leading up to it now, Mr. Segura, is: if the enrollment at Southwestern is now eleven thousand six hundred and twenty-five, and in the next school year they hit twelve thousand, and a board statewide is appointed, you take them out from under the jurisdiction of the Board of Trustees, and at mid-term or during the school year, dropouts drop and forces the enrollment to drop below twelve thousand, do you then abolish that Board of Government?

Mr. Segura No. No, this Board of Government, under this amendment, once it is created it stays under that Board of Government.

Mr. Willis Mr. Segura, I thought you were discussing your amendment, and I had questions to that one, but now I see twelve thousand--you had ten thousand as yours--take this for an instance. Suppose USL is at eleven thousand five hundred at the present time, and it would--if the Board of Regents would allow it to--go up to thirteen thousand and qualify for a Board of Governors, don't you see? But, the Board of Regents decide that, well, "We ain't going to let it go that far; we'll clip it at eleven thousand five hundred; we won't give them these extra courses of study." Isn't it possible that the Board of Regents could do just that and clip off USL?

Mr. Segura I don't think the Board of Regents has that kind of control.

Mr. Willis Has USL got twelve thousand students now?

Mr. Segura I don't see how they can control the number of people that want to go to that school.

Mr. Willis You answer that question. Has USL got twelve thousand students now? Yes or no?

Mr. Segura Did you ask me if it has twelve thousand students now?

Mr. Willis Yes. Would it qualify for a separate board under your amendment? Yes or no?

Mr. Segura I'm not sure, because I saw two sets of figures. One set of figures showed twelve thousand; the other set of figures showed right below twelve thousand.

Mr. Willis Yes. Well, if you had used your ten thousand dollar figure, it would qualify; would it not?

Mr. Segura Well, but, I think it would bring...

Mr. Willis Well, yes or no!

Mr. Segura Yes, it would qualify.

Mr. Willis Yes, it would qualify, but under twelve thousand you don't know, and it's probably that it won't qualify.

Mr. Segura I feel that it will qualify very shortly...

Mr. Willis Eventually, unless the Board of Regents clip it; isn't that correct?

Mr. Segura I don't think the Board of Regents has one bit of control over that.

Mr. Sutherland Perry, this is a question in regard to what Toca had been asking you earlier. In connection with public institutions of vocational-technical training and career education, you said you picked up the committee proposal and adopted them into yours.

Mr. Segura That was my intention.

Mr. Sutherland But, the committee proposal said that that would only be at the post-secondary level, and your amendment does not say that. It just says "all institutions," so I do think you have a conflict and you may have to change this up.

Mr. Segura I agree with you, and I think I will have to ask for a suspension of the rules in order to make that change. Thank you very much.

Mr. Dennery Perry, if an institution such as Delgado gets...if Delgado gets over twelve thousand students, as I understand your proposal, we would then have a Board of Trustees which would have to be composed of people from each of the eight congressional districts; is that correct?

Mr. Segura That's correct.

Mr. Dennery Well, isn't Delgado basically a community-type institution? Why would it be desirable even to have trustees from all over the state in that type of institution?

Mr. Segura I'm not that familiar with Delgado, but, don't students go there from all over the state, or is it only limited to a certain area?

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Denny It's basically a community institution with regards from about three or four parishes.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Stovall Mr. Segura, aren't these matters that really should be handled by a Board of Regents that would be responsible for control and coordination in the best interest of higher education, rather than our trying to make these detailed decisions here in a constitutional convention?

Mr. Segura I don't think that should be, because I think these boards deserve constitutional status, and unless we do it now, I don't see how it can have constitutional status.

Mr. A. Jackson Delegate Segura, wouldn't the powers of the Board of Regents prevent the growth of any of these universities and colleges to the level called for by your amendment?

Mr. Segura I don't feel that it has any type of control over the growth of the school in enrollments, that's why I picked enrollments.

Mr. A. Jackson Are you aware, sir, that the Board of Regents will have the power under this proposal to revise and eliminate programs to approve and disapprove, and that if this is the case that there will be no chance for growth?

Mr. Segura Well, I would think that the Board of Regents is going to be composed of a group of men who are going to be for the betterment of all schools and all the people of the State of Louisiana, and in doing so, not do anything to try to hurt any one institute or university.

Mr. A. Jackson Isn't that their responsibility? Isn't that the responsibility of the Board of Regents?

Mr. Segura It is their responsibility, but that's only...it is their responsibility, but if they control curriculum, that's only for the betterment of the state for the cost to the people, and for bringing about a better education, and a better overall system for all of the students.

Mr. A. Jackson But, in effect, won't your amendment freeze the level of enrollment as it is now?

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Segura, you and I both are from the Southwest Louisiana area in which the University of Southwestern is located in Lafayette; is that correct sir?

Mr. Segura Yes, sir.

Mr. Chatelain Alright. Would you consider amending your amendment to ten thousand instead of twelve thousand?

Mr. Segura I'd consider amending it to eleven thousand, but I think you would defeat the purpose of this amendment if you went down too low, because if you get too low...the real reason for this is to split up the work, and not to put too much work load on any one board. Don't forget that. It's not to give a board to this school or that school. It's to split the work load to where it can be done efficiently so...and it's hard to deal with numbers. I debated with myself with whether to come with this amendment because I had to use a number...but I would go down to eleven.

Mr. Chatelain Would you explain to me in as simple a term as you possibly can, exactly why you came with this amendment?

Mr. Segura I came with this amendment because in my own mind, I have sat at the State Board of Education meetings many, many times, and I've seen these men do as good a job as they could, but could not do justice to all the problems at all the schools under their jurisdiction. There's just too much. So, what I'm saying: when the work load increases, and as the schools increase--as the schools increase, the work load will increase--so then you should split up the work, and that's the primary purpose.

Mr. Chatelain In other words, as you split these boards, one would be equal to the other. Will they be coequal?

Mr. Segura Yes, sir. They would no longer be under the jurisdiction of the central board.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kelly Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I, with reservation, rise to oppose this amendment, and my opposition is centered completely around one word. That's in the last sentence of the first paragraph. It shall have a separate Board of Trustees. This leaves no flexibility whatsoever. In other words, if a particular college happened to reach a student enrollment of, say twelve thousand, and they really desire to remain under the State Board of Trustees, they would not have this choice. They would automatically be cast over to the side with a separate Board of Trustees. Quite frankly, as a delegate from Natchitoches Parish, and speaking primarily in behalf of Northwestern State University, we're not in favor of this at this particular time, and this, regardless of what the...it leaves no local option. In other words, we couldn't do what we wanted to. It would be an absolute mandate, and I'm not really in fear of us reaching a student enrollment of twelve thousand within the next few years, but this might apply to other schools. I'd ask that you defeat the amendment.

Motion

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, Mr. Segura wants to withdraw this amendment for the purpose of reentering it by the application of two words, "post-educational..."

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Alright. The gentlemen resubmits amendments with the following changes--both changes occur in Paragraph (A)--I'll read that: "Creation; powers. There is created a Board of Trustees to supervise, manage, and govern all public institutions of vocational-technical training and career education"--here's the first change--insert "at post-secondary levels together with all colleges and universities not otherwise provided for in this constitution. As each such institution reaches an initial student enrollment of twelve thousand it--strike out "shall" insert "may"--may have a separate Board of Trustees."

Explanation

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, and fellow delegates, yesterday Mr. Segura discussed with me at my desk, an amendment of this type. The purpose of this amendment is to allow such schools or universities as reach an initial twelve thousand student enrollment to have their own board. I would be the first to acknowledge and admit that publicly I have stated I have some reservations about having a board placed in the constitution. However, it has been apparent to me from the last two days that Louisiana State University--of which I am a graduate from law school--will undoubtedly appear in the constitution. I have no quarrel with that. As a result, yesterday, of Delegate Jackson's amendment, we now have Southern named in the constitution. At the time this amendment was drafted, it was drafted at twelve thousand with the realization that both Southwestern and Southern would shortly be to the twelve thousand student criteria. As a matter of fact, since eight appears before nine, LSU could easily come within this amendment, because it also has more than twelve thousand students. Now, I've got no quarrel with boards; all I say is: What's good for the goose is good for the gander; that if you're going to create a board for the benefit of one of these institutions, then as the other institutions reach a certain enrollment level, whatever it was that caused a board to be created for LSU when it had five thousand students justifies the creation of a board when a school gets twelve thousand students. Whatever it is that justifies LSU or Southern, either one, being in this constitution, ought to be equally applicable to one of these other schools when it reaches a certain plateau. The plateau we suggest to you for your consideration is twelve thousand. I believe, based upon the accuracy of the information given here, that two schools will be at that level before this constitution is even adopted by the people, that of Southern, and that of Southwestern. In days to come it may well be that the other fine institutions throughout the state--Tech, Southeastern, Northeast, all that we have--may someday reach this level. All I say: if it's good enough for one, it ought to be good enough for the other. I ask your favorable consideration of this amendment. I'd be pleased to submit to any questions.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Questions

Mr. Dennerly Bob, as I read your proposal, you have wiped out the board which presently exists which manages the Delgado Junior College in New Orleans. Now, was that the intention of this?

Mr. Pugh No, I was not familiar with your Delgado situation until you asked Mr. Segura about it, frankly.

Mr. Dennerly Would you have any objection to adding an amendment which would add a third subsection which provides that any such institution which presently has a Board of Managers shall continue to have such Board of Managers?

Mr. Pugh I certainly would not have an objection to that, and, as far as I know, Mr. Segura would not either. It's a particular problem you were kind enough to bring to our attention.

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Pugh, are you trying to tell us that it takes twelve thousand students at some other institution to equal five thousand students at LSU? Is that your idea of equity?

Mr. Pugh I'm not trying to tell you that. I said what was good for five certainly ought to be good for twelve.

Mr. Velazquez You know, yesterday I said that what's good for the sauce was goose, was good for the gander, and the whole convention didn't think much of that idea. But, getting back to this mention that you have there of institutions. Southern University isn't an institution; it's a system. So, in effect, you really wouldn't be helping us in any kind of way on this thing.

Mr. Pugh I interpret the word "institution" as used there to cover the Southern system. In my opinion, as a lawyer, I believe that Southern--when it reaches twelve with its three campuses--would be entitled to a board.

Mr. Velazquez Did you know that the other lawyers that I spoke to said that may be your specific interpretation but I don't think the courts would go that way? Did you hear your compadre in this piece of material state that Dr. Netterville of Southern University had approved of this thing?

Mr. Pugh Did I hear him say that?

Mr. Velazquez Did you hear your associates say that?

Mr. Pugh No, I had to be absent for a minute.

Mr. Velazquez Well, let me tell you that he did say it, and we've checked with Dr. Netterville, and this thing was never submitted to him in the form that which it's been presented now. Another question: You've pulled this thing down twice, haven't you, to make slight technical amendments?

Mr. Pugh No, I haven't pulled it down twice.

Mr. Velazquez You and your associates, between you, have, haven't you?

Mr. Pugh No.

Mr. Velazquez Didn't you pull it down once just now and make a little amendment--make a little technical change?

Mr. Pugh That's once, not twice.

Mr. Velazquez I think your associate pulled it down once and made a little technical change.

Mr. Pugh He may have drafted this a dozen times for all I know.

Mr. Velazquez Don't you think that if this thing has been so poorly written that you've had to change it twice, it might be just worthwhile to pull it out altogether and...

Mr. Hayes Mr. Pugh, didn't you change "shall" to "may"...you changed "shall" to "may" have a board, didn't you? You said you changed that word to "may?" Is that right?

Mr. Pugh That's correct.

Mr. Hayes Now, when you change "shall" to "may" then who will make the decision at this point?

Mr. Pugh The school.

Mr. Hayes The schools. The administration will decide whether they will have a board. That means the faculty of whoever runs the school, the president? I'm just trying...I'm asking strictly for information at this point.

Mr. Pugh Well, as I understood, there was one school whose name escapes me, indicated he didn't want to be in the constitution.

Mr. Hayes That's the president, or something like this?

Mr. Pugh If that's the way he feels about it...I thought I answered you.

Mr. Leithman Mr. Pugh, is there any doubt in your mind that this would make LSU-NO eligible for their own board? Is there any doubt in your mind under this section?

Mr. Pugh No, I don't think it would make them eligible for their own board.

Mr. Leithman You do not think so?

Mr. Pugh You're talking about LSU-NO?

Mr. Leithman Yes.

Mr. Pugh I look at it as a system.

Mr. Leithman You look at it as a system?

Mr. Pugh That's correct. I don't think it's a separate university.

Mr. Leithman O.K. USL is right at the twelve thousand. Of course, there's no question; they would become eligible for a board. Delgado Trade School...you agreed that we would give them their board?

Mr. Pugh Yes. Whatever Mr. Dennerly wants to do about Delgado is perfectly alright with me.

Mr. Leithman O.K. Do you know now, as of yesterday we had five boards in the constitution? With the two that we're contemplating now, we'll have seven. Is there any doubt in your mind that we will catch Arkansas for the fiftieth spot in the nation as far as boards in constitutions?

Mr. Pugh I have read their corporate laws. I've never read their constitution, quite frankly.

Mr. Leithman Well, they have nine, and we're at seven now, and I just ask you: don't you think there's a good possibility that we will be able to take over the number one spot in the nation?

Mr. Pugh There's always a possibility.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it appears that most of the interest of the convention has been on the portion pertaining to separate boards. But, let me call your attention to the first sentence in Section (A) as this amendment is written. Now, under the committee proposal, at least, and at least I'd say that the committee proposal does not lock into the constitution. Under Subsection 2, it says, "unless and until the legislature shall provide otherwise, supervision and management of all public institutions of Vo-Tech training and career education at post-secondary level." At least it is not locked in. Now, what this amendment is doing is locking into the constitution, the supervision and control of post-secondary Vo-Tech training in the Board of Trustees where it does not belong. I ask that you defeat this amendment. We are dividing one of the most important aspects of education between two systems two jurisdictions, and if you adopt this amendment, you are locking it into the constitution, and I hope you will oppose it.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 32-77. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 88 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The amendments read as follows: Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Toca]. On page 5, delete lines 27 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety and on page 6, delete lines 1 through 15, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"versities; Board of Trustees for Public Institutions of Vocational-Technical Training and Career Education

Section 8. (A) Creation; Powers. There is created bodies corporate, known as the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities, and the Board of Trustees for Public Institutions of Vocational-Technical Training and Career Education which, subject to the powers vested in the Board of Regents by this Article, shall have the following specific powers:

(1) The Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities shall have supervision and management of all state colleges and universities except those included under the management of the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, and Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, and any other board hereafter created pursuant to this Article.

(2) The Board of Trustees for Public Institutions of Vocational-Technical Training and Career Education shall have supervision and management...

[Motion to waive reading of the Amendment adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Toca Mr. Speaker, fellow delegates, this amendment is a little bit different from the rest of the amendments that have been proposed on the floor for a separate board for each university. We're talking about approximately sixty-four vocational-technical schools right now in the State of Louisiana. We're in a...we have a program to build approximately twelve more in the near future. I think this amendment is justified on account of the schools that we have now in existence.

So, I'll ask you for a favorable report on this amendment. Right now, we have approximately forty thousand enrolled in the State of Louisiana. In my school alone, we have six thousand enrollment, and a seventh thousand waiting list. We don't have enough vo-tech schools in the state right now to take care of the people that want this kind of an education. Our budget in '72-'73 was eleven million dollars. Proposed budget '73-'74 will be approximately twelve million. So you can see, readily see that vo-tech training will be the coming thing in the United States in the future.

I ask for a favorable vote.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 30-62. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The amendment [by Mr. Velazquez] reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 6, line 3, after the word and punctuation "College," add...or need a change that the staff indicates for clarification... probably be better if that reads insert the following:

"Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College,"

Explanation

Mr. Velazquez I hate to say this, but this is purely a technical amendment. It doesn't do anything to anybody; doesn't hurt anybody; doesn't cost anybody a nickel; shouldn't require any extensive changes in anything. It merely says that... it merely inserts "the other board of supervisors" that we set up yesterday in a spot where that we neglected to put it yesterday so that it would then read that "supervision and management of all state colleges and universities except those included under the management of the Board of Supervisors of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, and the Board of Supervisors of Southern University Agricultural and Mechanical College, and any other board hereafter created pursuant to this article."

It's purely one hundred--one thousand percent--technical. We urge your favorable vote on it.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Thomas, all this does is put in line today what we did yesterday. Right?

Mr. Velazquez That's exactly correct, Delegate Roemer.

Mr. Stinson You know I voted for this yesterday, and I'm going to vote today. But, different people have been coming around spreading rumors that Southern doesn't want this. That is not correct, is it?

Mr. Velazquez I spoke to the gentlemen, some people from Southern University today at lunch time. They told me their position today is the same position it was yesterday. They wish they had had a Board of Supervisors in 1920.

Mr. Stinson Thank you.

Further Discussion

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Roy I didn't want to ask Tom any questions because it's such a technical amendment that it just precludes our discussing, Section 9, and particularly my amendment. Now, I think that the convention ought to know that if you vote for this amendment which is an identical one that Alphonse Jackson pulled earlier, what you are saying is that you want to lock in the Board of Supervisors for Southern University, and, of course, will make moot any discussion in Section 9 of the amendment which I have which is to take away that particular provision that was passed yesterday.

Now, let me say in all sincerity that I talked with Johnny Jackson this morning at about ten thirty. He is supposed to be on his way here--in fact, should have been here--I just, I hate to say that we should go on and move on. But, I guess we're going to just have to. Well, we all know what the issue is. Either you are for a separate branch or Board of Governors for Southern University, or you're not. I think it's bad; I think we ought to vote it out; I think we ought to vote down this particular amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Velazquez I just want to say this is purely technical. It was purely technical before the gentleman in opposition spoke. It's still purely technical. I urge your favorable acceptance of it.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 64-46. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 88-20. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 18-87.]

Motion

Mr. Stovall I move we continue to pass over this section until Mr. [J.] Jackson is present.

Substitute Motion

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we have now concluded, hopefully, Section 8. We've taken a second vote--what amounts to a second vote--with respect to the Southern Board. That's the only amendment which is now pending to Section 9. I see no reason to skip over Section 9 for any...or delay it any further. I suggest we move on with the final consideration of Section 9. If Mr. Roy wants to insist upon his consideration of his amendment, we'd do it. But, I don't see any reason at all to wait further to conclude Section 9. I think all we are doing is unnecessarily delaying the conclusion of this matter.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, as Senator Rayburn said so effectively this morning, he just felt that since this had been presented by Mr. Jackson yesterday, and Mr. Jackson will be back shortly, that we should wait until he returns to consider it. It's on that basis that I made the motion that we pass over this until he returns.

Further Discussion

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Chairman, I don't want to consume the time of the convention. But I think in all fairness to the members of this convention, I think we...I would be happy to handle the amendment, because I think we have waited. I don't think it's fair to continue to hold up the convention. I would advise that we would proceed, and I will handle the amendment.

Well, now, what I mean is that I will defend opposition.

Point of Information

Mr. Jenkins In all fairness to Mr. Jackson...Mr. Johnny Jackson...Mr. Chairman, if someone is going to defend his position, shouldn't it be someone who agrees with his position?

Mr. Henry Well, I don't know who do and who don't right now, Mr. Jenkins. So...why do you rise, Mr. Roy? If Mr. Roy doesn't go with his amendments, that will resolve a lot of...

Mr. Roy Well, I just don't know. I...talked with Mr. Jackson, and he was supposed to be here two hours after I talked with him, which was about 10:30. I've got some business, you know, myself, that I'd like to get on with.

[Record vote ordered. Motion to temporarily pass over Section 9 rejected: 41-70. Motion to waive reading of the Roy Amendment adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Roy I've been reminded that this is number 175. Anyway, everybody knows what the issue is. I simply want to remove Johnny Jackson's amendment. I don't think it's wise; I think it's bad. If there are no further speakers, I move the previous question.

Questions

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Roy, in other words your amendment would delete from this constitution the board for Southern University. Is that correct?

Mr. Roy That's right, Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins Now, why do you want to delete it?

Mr. Roy Well, first of all, it's not needed. Secondly, I said yesterday, and I frankly feel that we have the LSU Board in the constitution because since 1940 it's been there and the people have voted three times not to tamper with it. Therefore, we have to meet the issue head-on. Southern University does not need it. Now, yesterday, Mr. Jackson spoke of the extension service. I want to tell you now that Mr. Jenkins has got me going on it, that all land grant and/or A & M colleges have three functions to perform: 1. They must teach; 2. Experiment; 3. Disseminate the knowledge of the teaching and the experimentation to the people of the state like LSU does with its extension program. Southern, contrary to what was indicated, does only one of those. It teaches. In fact, it does not experiment at all; does not disseminate information, and as a matter of fact, LSU has had to take in Southern employees for the purposes of doing some extension work in certain fields. So, it's not needed. There is no comparison between the two systems. Now, that's it in a nutshell. I think...

Mr. Jenkins But, now, isn't it true that Southern University is a system, just as LSU is a system? Whereas none of our other colleges and universities are truly systems. They are independent institutions.

Mr. Roy Southern is a "system".

Mr. Jenkins Also, don't you think that Mr. Johnny Jackson was correct when he said yesterday that perhaps some of the problems that we've had at the Southern campuses, both in Baton Rouge and New Orleans, might have not occurred if we had had governing boards that were for Southern, and that paid more attention to the interests of Southern?

Mr. Roy No, I don't believe that. What I do believe is that if you have a separate governing board, some of those college presidents in the future at Southern, with a separate governing board are going to have a hard time in any event, staying where they are. I don't think it's needed.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

It was never needed in the past because, except for one occasion, Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins Now, one more question, Mr. Roy. On this question of boards for higher education, this convention has flip-flopped on several occasions. In one issue of a paper, on one day the people have read we've done one thing; the next day they read we've done something else. How much longer are we going to continue to do that?

Mr. Roy How much longer are we going to continue to do what? Flip-flop?

Mr. Jenkins Flip-flop.

Mr. Roy Well, hopefully, we won't do it any more, Mr. Jenkins.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Juneau Chris, yesterday we were talking about the other state universities. You asked me the question, did I know what the faculty, the students, and the university wanted? In this particular case, are you aware, and I'm informed--I don't have personal knowledge of it--but that the faculty, the university, and the alumni all feel that they should have a Board of Supervisors?

Mr. Roy Yes, I'm aware of that. I'm aware that that's what they say.

Mr. O'Neill Well, Chris, that was my same question, only I want to know what they really think--not just what they say they think.

Mr. Roy I think they are saying that "Give us a black board because with black faces in high places we'll be somewhere." I think that's fallacious. I think in the end that they will be...their position will be hurt, and in the future, Southern will rue the day that we gave them a board of its own.

Mrs. Miller Mr. Roy, I'm a little bit confused about things in the State of Louisiana right now. The governor made the statement last night--didn't he, and it was in the papers this morning--that he would do without all federal funds for this state rather than to sacrifice Southern and Grambling Universities? Now, don't a majority of the funds for this Agriculture Experiment Station that we have through the Agricultural and Mechanical College...isn't the largest percentage of that money provided by the federal government on the Agriculture Experiment Stations?

Mr. Roy I would think so. I just have no...I don't see the connection about...

Mrs. Miller Well, you have just gotten through saying that one of the things the great university like LSU has to do is to conduct...these...to have research and experimentation. We're going to lose all that; so LSU isn't going to be so big. So, we're going to have Southern saved. We're not going to have federal funds for LSU's Ag Experiment Station so that's going to decrease the size of the university. We're going to bring them down to equal sizes. So, don't you think they should have equal boards?

Mr. Roy No, I don't think the governor said that, Ruth. If you'll notice he...

Mr. Miller Wait. I want to understand. You don't believe the governor meant what he said last night?

Mr. Roy He said that, and he will continue in that position until the Supreme Court of the United States tells him something different. I would think he would abide by that. You didn't read the rest of his statement apparently.

Mrs. Miller We got the message pretty clear.

Mrs. Warren If I told you I'm totally confused on what is going on here backwards and forwards, you would believe me, wouldn't you?

Mr. Roy I probably would, Mrs. Warren.

Mrs. Warren You can. I want to ask you one question, maybe two in one. When you spoke to Mr. Jackson this morning, where was he?

Mr. Roy He was in New Orleans.

Mrs. Warren And he didn't say nothing to you, but he would be here, and was...there was no other discussion?

Mr. Roy He asked me to pull my amendment, and he informed one of his other friends who talked with him that he would be here in a couple of hours.

Mrs. Warren Thank you.

Mr. Stovall Mr. Roy, you want to eliminate the Southern Board of Supervisors; is that right?

Mr. Roy No, that's not what it says, Reverend.

Mr. Stovall That's the essence of it.

Mr. Roy Yes, you know that's what it says. I mean we've gone through this for two hours.

Mr. Stovall Would you favor eliminating LSU system Board of Supervisors?

Mr. Roy No, I don't.

Mr. Stovall Is that consistent?

Mr. Roy Yes, it is.

Further Discussion

Mr. A. Jackson Mr. Vice-Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I want to make it perfectly clear, which is not a very good term for me, that as the past president of the Southern University Alumni Federation, that I support the Southern University system completely, and I've told Mr. Jenkins about getting into our business. On a serious note, I want to address myself to the proposition before this convention. First of all, I want to say to you that I am in disagreement with the proposition as offered by the amendment by Delegate Roy. I want to point out to you, ladies and gentlemen, that the Southern University system is the largest predominately black university in the world. I also want to point out that, contrary to the remarks made by Mr. Roy that the Southern University system is not meeting the criteria for a land grant college, that this is in complete error because the Southern University system is engaged in extensive research to the tune in excess of some seven million dollars, that the Southern University system engages in agricultural extension work all over this state. The Southern University system is a teaching enterprise that is making a great contribution to all of the people of this great nation in which we live. So, I refute the argument that the Southern University system does not meet the requirement of a land grant college. But, the central question before us and the question that you, ladies and gentlemen must consider--is whether or not the Southern University system ought to be afforded the same equity that is afforded the LSU system. That's the central question. You've already made the decision; you've already decided that it is fair for the LSU system to have a management board, and that it's fair for the Southern University system to have a management board. I would suggest to you that that decision was proper, and I do not believe that we are going to recant on that decision at this time. Now, what does this mean? It simply means that people are going to have a voice in the affairs of the Southern University system. Now, Mr. Roy would suggest by way of his explanation here that the people at the Southern University system would be desirous of having an all black board. That is not true. The Southern University Alumni Federation has said repeatedly, the administration has made it known from all of the places from which they have spoken, that we are not interested in having an all black board because the Southern University system serves all of the people of Louisiana. Because it is serving all of the people of Louisiana, certainly we want all of the people to have a voice in the decision-making process and to do otherwise would be reverse racism of which we would have no part. Ladies and gentlemen, I would urge you to defeat this amendment because I think we will all rue the day that we would turn away from an important consideration--a consideration that would suggest that there ought to be justice, a consideration that would suggest that there ought to be involvement, a consideration that would suggest that there ought to be sensitive and humane people concerned about a large segment of the people in this state in which we live. I think these suggestions would motivate all of us to do what is right and do what is in the interest, not of black citizens, not of white citizens, not of red or brown, but of all citizens of this great state. So, ladies and gentlemen, I would urge you to vote against this amendment, and let's move on with the business of the people.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Questions

Mr. Brown Representative Jackson, I'm concerned about what the governor said in his press conference yesterday. He quoted a figure, and I was there, and I heard the amount--$60,000,000 that we get for higher education in this state from federal funds. He further said that unless we dismantled the Southern system as it stands right now, and do so in the fairly near future, the state is going to lose $60,000,000. This has been handed down from HEW. They said this very strongly, and he's not sure just what to do about it. What is the overall value in losing that kind of money to support our higher education system that so desperately needs funds and its relationship with keeping the Southern system?

Mr. A. Jackson Well, I think that's a rather serious problem that we have to consider as citizens of this state. I simply would like to state that the Southern University system is a vital part of a unitized system of higher education that must be maintained. I think that it would be in the interests of all of the people in this state, including the members of this convention, for us to come together and to see if we can't solve on a reasonable and rational basis a way to meet the guidelines of HEW in a manner that would not affect the mission and role of any of the segments of the higher education systems that we have in this state. I think that the problem is that we have not addressed ourselves to how we can solve the problem. I think that we need the money; I think we have to find a way to meet the guidelines, and I think it is urgent that we would address ourselves to this serious and crucial and critical problem at this time.

Mr. O'Neill Representative Jackson, various people lobbied us on this amendment saying that you actually were for the amendment, but that you would speak against it, and you would vote against it. Is there any truth to that claim?

Mr. A. Jackson I'm sorry; I...

Mr. O'Neill People have lobbied us on this amendment and said that you're actually for it, but that you would speak against it, and that you would vote against it. Is there any truth in that claim?

Mr. A. Jackson That is not true. I have steadfastly made my position known. I have voted consistently with my views. When you watch the board, I think that you will see that I am steadfastly in favor of a management board for the Southern University system.

Mr. Haynes Delegate Jackson, isn't it true that institutions like West Virginia State at Institute, West Virginia, like Bluefield, like Lincoln in Pennsylvania, all formerly all black schools have met all of the guidelines that HEW has set up. Isn't it true that these institutions, formerly all black, are thoroughly integrated today?

Mr. A. Jackson That is correct, Mr. Haynes. I think that that suggests to us that we need to give full attention to how we democratize higher education in this state, and if we give full consideration to it, I think that we can devise a plan that will utilize all of the units that we have in this state for the people of this state.

Mr. Stinson Delegate Jackson, someone mentioned about federal dollars. Actually, all that's our money coming back to us; isn't it?

Mr. A. Jackson Yes, sir, Mr. Stinson. That certainly is our dollars, and I think that contrary to a belief that used to be around when everybody was talking about the tainted federal dollars, I think the only thing tainted about it is it "tain't" enough, and we ought to find a way to get all we can.

Mr. Stinson I'm glad we agree on that. Now, isn't it a fact that when you're right, you shouldn't let dollar signs influence you to vote wrong?

Mr. A. Jackson Well, I would agree.

Mr. Guarisco Mr. Jackson, I just want to ask this question...in the effort for you to clear up, maybe, a misconception. We just were passed out a statement that the State Board of Education is unalterably opposed to the multiplicity of boards, and secondly, that it's in favor of one board and, alternatively, the present three constitutional boards. Since this seems not to be your particular position, your name appears on the bottom, and I understand that this is not your position. The reason that your name is on the bottom is simply that a delegate had to sign this in order for its passing out.

Mr. A. Jackson Well, let me explain that. A friend of mine on the State Board said that it was important that this statement would get before the convention. He asked, to comply with the rules, would I sign it. I said, "Sure, I would sign it." That's simply all that happened.

Further Discussion

Mr. Alexander Mr. Chairman and delegates, I arose to speak on this question because I think there have been some erroneous opinions expressed here. May I say to you that there are some of my friends out there who said to me, "When all of your black delegates parade to the podium, you give to an amendment, or whatever question you are supporting, the kiss of death." For that reason, I have stayed away, but I've discovered that whatever is going to happen is going to happen. Now, these are the questions I have in mind. Previous speakers have said there are persons in the black community who don't want this separate board. Originally, I came to the convention with the intention of supporting one all-powerful board to govern education in the State of Louisiana. But, the delegates to this convention have repeatedly stated by their votes that they're not going along with a superboard or any kind of board of that kind. Now, let me answer one or two questions. First someone has said there are officials at Southern who don't want this. During the lunch hour I spoke with the president of Southern University and the vice-president of Southern University, and both of them said they're behind the Jackson amendment. Now, will the opposition tell me who their persons are, or officials are, from Southern? Secondly, the Alumni Association of Louisiana--of Southern University, rather, is behind this amendment. Now, I want to know also of them: who are those other persons? Name the persons in the black community who are against this proposition. Now, I say to you that the perpetuation of the Jackson amendment does not mean necessarily an all black board. In fact I'm opposed to any all black board, just as I know most of you are opposed to any all white board. So, it does not mean that; it does not mean, even, the perpetuation of Southern and its system because that still could be changed if necessary. But, for the sake of the blacks of this community, for the sake of harmony in this state, for the sake of having three million, six hundred thousand people work together as one unit, I am asking you to vote against the Roy amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the committee, first of all I apologize to you being late. I did not intentionally want to be absent today, but I had to appear before another deliberate body concerning the aspirations and desires of a particular community. As I appreciate it, the amendment as proposed by Mr. Roy, it, in effect, removes or reverses the action that this convention took on yesterday. Let me say, so there are no uncertainties among some delegates, that I and other delegates, the alumni association, the presidents of student bodies are in favor of the amendment of the section which presently includes a board for Southern University. I did have the occasion this morning, however, in talking with Mr. Roy concerning his amendment, and he suggested to me that...what he say, "I think that this is going to hurt you." I say, Roy, say, "I can appreciate your concern, but I'm reflecting the concerns; I'm reflecting the direction; I'm reflecting the attitudes and aspirations of the student body over at Southern University." On this question of HEW with separate boards and such, I suggest to you that that problem is going to be resolved. But, my question still says we, presently under the old set-up, had one board for LSU and a separate board governing other colleges. Does that make it more the less a threat to a higher education system? I can't reiterate much of what I...more than what I told you on yesterday, except to let you know that there are over $7,000,000 worth of research projects. Southern University's system administers Louisiana State School for the Deaf, Louisiana State School for the Blind. In addition it has a School of Law. I don't want to...I think that I cannot say no more than I said yesterday, and I'm very confident that the delegates in this convention do recognize that Southern is a system and that for every criteria that you set out to say that one system deserves a Board of Supervisors, you've got to apply that to the Southern system. So, I'm going to ask that you reject the Roy amendment, and that we proceed on about the business of this convention. I say to Mr. Roy that I understand what he's trying to do, and I don't think he has no malintent, but, I do not believe, and I do not possess, and I do not embrace the kinds of reservations that he has. If more I embrace--and I want to suggest to you that there is a national concern going around the country about what's going to happen to predominately black institutions. I suggest to you that the provision as adopted on yesterday allows Southern University, LSU...Southern University to deal with its day-by-day administrative and management problems. I, again...I just want to reiterate that they are unique problems of the student body that's predominately black--and I want to make this point clear: I'm not asking for a totally black board for Southern University. I don't see how that got mixed up in the argument, because if that was the case then I point to you, very seriously, look at the composition of the LSU Board. I suggest to you that they are thirty percent population of black students over at LSU. But, that is not the point. The point is that does this system...is this system based on the three colleges, its research programs, and its administration of the other schools deserve a Board of Supervisors? Mr. Chairman,...

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Jackson, did you know that HEW has threatened every southern state at one time or another over various questions that no southern state has yet lost any money from...through the efforts of HEW?

Mr. J. Jackson Not only that, I think the governor in his press conference today reaffirmed the position that predominately black institutions like Southern and Grambling do have a meaningful purpose in the state higher education system.

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Jackson, do you think our Louisiana Congressional delegation will allow Louisiana to lose any money, or do you think that they will have a special act passed to take care of us this year, another special act next year, and every other year that we require a special act to get the money we need?

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Velazquez, I don't think that our delegation will, whether it's higher education or any other program, will allow our state to lose money. I think that's why we've got a delegation, but I think the key question here is that we ought to recognize that Southern University is a system and treat it accordingly. I ask for your rejection of the Roy amendments. If there are no other speakers, I move the previous question, Mr. Chairman.

[Motion for the Previous Question withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, this is the most momentous day of my life. I don't know of a delegate who's fought harder than I have in the last two or three days for a single board concept for higher education in the State of Louisiana. Fellow delegates, I have fought long and hard in the last two or three days to try to bring about a single board concept for higher education in the State of Louisiana. I still contend that it would be the best concept. But, my fellow delegates, we have reached an impasse in this convention. Certainly, I voted for Johnny Jackson's amendment yesterday. I still thought we had hopes of at least bringing in other universities. We tried it this morning; we failed. I say to you that even though I hate to do this--principally because of the great delegates that I've worked with from Lafayette Parish, two of the finest delegates I know of. It's been a pleasure having their confidence and friendship throughout this convention, and many others in my area, but I think that like a bunch of kids, we've played the marble game. We should pick up our marbles, as it were, and go about the business of writing this constitution. I feel that the thing that we did with reference to Southern University is a disservice to them as well as a mockery to many of other people in this state. We have fought the powers of LSU, and I can say to you right now I didn't know until the last two or three days how far the tentacles of that great university spreads out in this state. I find that the farm experimental stations all over this state is a factor that brought the farmers together with them. That's one of the greatest powers they have. They have joined forces with the AFL-CIO, an organization that is side by side with them; the farmers are with them; the governor, I'm told, is with them, and we have reached an impasse. We may as well borrow...bow to the pressures that be. I don't know who's right, and I don't know who's wrong. I was all wrapped up in the idea of a single board concept, and I'm a hardheaded Frenchman, and it's pretty hard for me to change my mind. But, in all honesty, my fellow delegates, in all sincerity, I think that some of us are going to have to change our mind and act like grown people. I know that I was sent here from District 45--some of the most independent people in the State of Louisiana. I have the former head of the Republican Party that lives down the street from me. I represent about twenty-five percent of the black people in my parish, and I know that I feel in my fifty-eight years of life that I have a feeling for the people of this state, and secondly, for the feeling of the people in District 45 whom I represent.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

But, I say, delegates, that we're going to have to get off from dead center and go in some direction. I say that the Roy amendment is a good amendment. It's an amendment that will get us off from this dead center we're on now and go about the business of writing a constitution.

Yes, I'll yield.

[Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 19-77.]

Further Discussion

Mr. E. J. Landry Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, one time in my life I'm going to ask you to listen to a simple man tell a simple story. One time, please. I'd even sing you a song to get your attention; I would. If you'd only listen just a minute, I promise that I'll keep away from this microphone, and you'll not see me in this position for a long time--on my word of honor, if you'll just listen once--one time, please.

Whatever it takes for a simple story, then make up your mind--a simple story from a simple man who has worked his whole lifetime trying to keep from undoing what you might let happen to you today. I've been busy all day talking to the blacks, talking to the whites. I was busy in the committee working with the blacks, working with the whites. I've spent forty-five years of my life working with the blacks, working with the whites in education. If there's one thing you need to think about at this moment, it is the broad concept of education that does not promote, in any manner, shape, or form, a division that takes us back to where we were when I began forty-five years ago. Forty-five years ago I watched little black children in the Hahnville High School walking on the sides of the road--three months of school, poor school situation, cast-off books, broken down desks delivered to their schools, poor facilities. I saw white children ride by coming to my school in big new busses. I saw the lag develop; I became concerned. Then later I saw the attorney for the blacks walk into the School Board Office. I was present. I saw the request for equal facilities granted--beautiful schools for the blacks, inferior schools were still there for the whites, but the blacks had more than equal facilities in my school situation. Later, I saw the request for equal all the way. I became part of the movement; I was involved in community action programs. You're looking at the man who started for the first time in a white school without the cooperation of the School Board, an integrated faculty, and an integrated student group in the Headstart Program--not through the forces of the schools of this state, but through the black LEA Teachers' Organization here in Baton Rouge. How did we do it? We telephoned directly to the President of the United States to get the funds. Now, I tell you these things to let you know that you're looking at somebody who doesn't want to go backwards. That's what I've been telling all of my black friends today, and I can't understand for the life of me why at this time we want to set up in the constitution two systems--two systems which will promote just the opposite of what I've been trying to do all of my life. I want to work with; I want to be a part of my brother; I do, sincerely; and I want to in no manner, shape or form become part of two systems of education constitutionalized in this constitution. I certainly...if you think right at this moment, you'll realize that this amendment will do what I've been trying to tell you. I voted no yesterday, and I told all my black friends why. I think you'll realize that we're writing a constitution, not for the immediate, not for the dollars that are coming in now, but we are writing a constitution for my grandchildren and for your grandchildren so that they can carry out the dreams, the great dream that Martin Luther King expressed. I believe in his dream; I subscribe to his dream, but what we did yesterday in confusion, what we did yesterday when some of you were prejudiced and you voted just to be against something, you weren't voting for something; you weren't voting for that broad concept of a single university. You--some of you--were voting against something. Now, I'm imploring with you: today think about it, and vote for something. That's the one concept of a tremendous university that will include, I hope, in a very short time all of the blacks. I want people to be together. I want that, and this does not--that is the concept that we voted on yesterday, the Jackson amendment, will not do that. But, this Roy amendment will put us back into position. I sure hope that at this stage in my life you think carefully before you vote.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Landry, I think this is an important question. As I understand it--or as Mr. Willis says, put a question mark to this--have we, in fact, constitutionalized a separate system of education based on race?

Mr. E. J. Landry I didn't get the first part of your question.

Mr. Derbes In other words, do you find anywhere in our product to date--that material that we have adopted thus far--the constitutionalization--including the Jackson amendment--the constitutionalization of a racially separate system of education, per se?

Mr. E. J. Landry I do.

Mr. Derbes You do? It seems to me--and I again question you on this--it seems to me that all we are doing is constitutionalizing the administration of facilities which don't necessarily have to be separate, or racially discriminatory. Don't you see a difference?

Mr. E. J. Landry I don't.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Roy Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I just want to make one clarifying remark to Mr. Alphonse Jackson, in case some of you misunderstood. I didn't say that Southern didn't have any grants and didn't do any experiments. I said that they have no experimental stations in the extension work, and that's what I meant by that. I was not trying to be sneaky or anything, that's just a matter of fact. I'm not going to yield to questions. Everybody knows what the issue is. In deference to the time and all, I would like to read something that manifests my feelings about what I think...how important I think this is. In the end of the play in Cyrano, when he talks about fighting the age-old enemies of man--compromise, prejudice, cowardice and folly--Rostand says this: "Mourn not the dead that in the cool earth lie, dust unto dust, the calm sweet earth that mothers all who die, as all men must. But, rather mourn the apathetic throng, the coward and meek who see the world's great anguish and it's wrong, and dare not speak." I am not nearly what Cyrano was, but I see right here and now something that is basically wrong, and I'm going to speak, whether I speak one time or one million times, if anybody wants to write it down. Thank you.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 44-71. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we have been discussing this section--in and around it--for the last several days. I just thought that I would just give you just a few brief words as to why I, who have spent my life in education, feel as strongly as I do about the inclusion of the university system into this article. I could tell you not the fact that they are in the constitution, not the fact that they were put in there because we had scandals in the 30's, etc. I support and have worked for the inclusion of the university system into this article--into this section--because I happen to serve on the Southern Accrediting Association for Universities and Colleges. I have the privilege and the pleasure, I might add, of reviewing every university and every college in eleven southern states. I have been doing this for eleven years, now. I am totally familiar with what is the composition of just about every university and every college. I serve on there representing the secondary schools of the south along with the superintendent from Dade County in Miami. Incidentally, in that...on that committee of twenty-one people, happens to be Dr. Mary Deichman from the University of Southwestern, and Chancellor Taylor from the Louisiana State University. But, I think that you would be interested in knowing the prestige that the Louisiana system has as far as the southern states are concerned, as far as people who recognize what degrees are and what quality is. I can tell you that this system with the personnel that they have, the investment that this state has into this system, that it would have been a real tragedy if we would not include them and guarantee them some constitutionality so that we would always preserve the investment that we have and the prestige and heritage that it has because this university is--it not only ranks high in the area of athletic accomplishments--I can tell you that in educational accomplishments it is recognized as being one of the leading institutions in this...in the entire south. I think that the final moment that we have approached here has been worth all of the efforts and all of the time and the sweat and the tears that we have put into the inclusion of this. I, certainly, at this time, ask for your favorable approval of this entire section.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

[Section passed: 92-27. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion to reconsider Section 8 tabled without objection.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter "Section 10. Minority Representation Section 10. An appropriate number of citizens from the predominant minority race of the state shall be included on the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, the Board of Regents, the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities, and any other board created pursuant to this Article."

[Motion to waive explanation of the Section adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Juneau]. On page 7, delete lines 9 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment deletes the entire section. I'll answer any questions.

Further Discussion

Mr. Haynes Mr. Acting Chairman and members of this delegation, we concur in Delegate Juneau's amendment. We have voted in this constitution a Board of Regents that will have coordinating responsibilities for all of the higher education. We have voted for management boards for Louisiana State University and Southern University and likewise, we have voted for a board to govern elementary and secondary education with certain coordinating provisions with all of the other boards. While it is implicitly our view--and we believe that it's a view that permeates the one hundred and thirty-two delegates to this Constitutional Convention and the people of the State of Louisiana that all of these boards should reflect the ethnic population of this state. It's in this view, Mr. Chairman and members of this distinguished delegation, that we concur in the Juneau amendment, and we ask that you will vote favorably on this amendment. Thank you very much.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter The next section is Section 11, Mr. Vice-Chairman. It reads: "Boards; Dual Membership Prohibited

Section 11. No person shall be eligible to simultaneously serve on more than one board created by or pursuant to this Article."

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the explanation is quite simple. The committee felt that with the creation of these boards that it would be certainly improper, and I think wielding undue influence for a person to hold membership on more than one of these boards. It's the recommendation of the committee that this be restricted to membership on one single board.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Aertker, as a professional educator, are you aware that you have split an infinitive in this section?

Mr. Aertker Mrs. Zervigon, I really didn't check the grammar on the thing.

Mrs. Zervigon "To simultaneously serve."

Mr. Aertker Your point is well taken, so we will correct it--"to serve simultaneously."

Mr. Dennery Mr. Aertker, I don't...I can't put my finger on it right away, but didn't we adopt a proposal about dual officeholding which would cover this, or was I away on that day?

Mr. Aertker Well, no, this dual officeholding, I don't believe, would, perhaps, maybe cover this. We just felt that this would make sure that we didn't have one on two boards.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Aertker, would this apply to ex officio members of a board, for example, the governor?

Mr. Aertker No, of course not.

Mr. Tobias Why not?

Mr. Aertker Well, if he'd be ex officio, we just feel that since he wouldn't be able to vote that this wouldn't be any undue influence.

Mr. Tobias Do you know that the law is confused on that point whether an ex officio member has a right to vote on a board?

Mr. Aertker I know that we don't have the governor serving on any of the boards that we've created, Mr. Tobias.

Mr. Tobias What about the Board for Secondary and Elementary Education?

Mr. Aertker The governor is not on that one.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter The amendment [by Mr. Wall] reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 7, line 17, after the word "Prohibited" insert a semicolon ";" and add the following:

"Student Membership Authorized".

Amendment No. 2. On page 7, line 18, after "Section 11." and before the word "No" insert the letter "(A)".

Amendment No. 3. On page 7, between lines 20 and 21, insert the following:

"(B) The legislature may provide for the membership of one student on the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities, one student on the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, and one student on the Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College whose terms shall not exceed one year. No student member shall be eligible to succeed himself. A student member shall enjoy all of the privileges and rights of other board members except the right to vote."

Explanation

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, first, I want to point out that this does not, in itself, put any members on the Board of Trustees or the Board of Supervisors of L.S.U. nor the Southern Board. It provides that the legislature may. I'd like to point out to you that to be able to be appointed to a board--let's just face reality--you don't generally get appointed to the board unless you're a man of means or you've made your political mark sometime or another. To do this, in most instances, it's about twenty years after you were in college. Most of us, twenty years after we've left the college campus, we can't really envision all of the problems that confront the students at these colleges and universities. A student spends from four to six years of his life at the college or university; he lives there from four to six years. He is part of that community; he is...the students are that community. I don't think that if students are sent to the university to get an education that they should say what the curriculum is for, or they should do the teaching, or they should do the governing. But, I do think that when they are governed by people that are appointed--that you might say they have nothing to say about who is appointed and by people much older than they are, and peoples that doesn't really realize the problems that they are confronted--that they need...their voice needs to be heard. What this amendment does, it provides that the legislature may provide membership on the Board of Trustees for one member, not to exceed one year, and he cannot succeed himself--he or she. The same thing for L.S.U. One member on that board for one year that cannot succeed themselves, and also for the Southern board. These individuals would have all the rights of board members except to vote, for one year. I think this is very important. Now, I don't say this is how it would be done, but let's just say that the Board of Trustees, it could rotate from one college or university each year, but the students would have the same view--they would have the same problems--and they would have someone that would be their spokesman. Now, this doesn't set this up; it provides the legislature may. I think this is very important. An educator that's a member of this convention told me that he deals with young people. He says, "If we don't give these young people a voice, they will assert their voice of the problems that the older people don't understand." In the past six years, two college presidents have told me, said, "Shady, so and so needs to be done where the students are right," but said, "If I went down and told that State Board of Education that they should do this, I wouldn't have a job when I got...before I...my job would be eliminated--me, for the position--before I got back to my college." So, I think this will be very important. It will help, when and if it's done, and this is not doing it; it's making it permissive.

I yield to a question.

Questions

Mr. Burns Mr. Wall, I've served on quite a few Board of Directors of Boards during my lifetime, and I can't conceive of what rights any board member has, if they couldn't vote. They have no authority or...

Mr. Wall Yes, now, Mr. Burns, I can tell you exactly here. The thing is the problems of the university students, where these young people live four to six years, they need to be able to make that position known. They don't have to vote, but they still need to be there as full-fledged members so people can't go in executive session and pull the wool over their eyes. They don't have to vote, but they need to be in an official position to make their problems known because many times when these people are appointed, and they have been out of college from twenty, to thirty, to forty years, the college president can't go and tell them that the young people today, it's a different problem, it's a different world. The legislature may do this. This doesn't set it up; it's strictly permissive.

I further yield to Mr. De Blieux.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Wall, in view of the fact that this is permissive legislation, do you know anything that we have in this constitution that would prevent the legislature from doing that if this provision was not in the constitution?

Mr. Wall Mr. De Blieux, you are smarter than that, and you know that if we create a constitutional Board of Supervisors, that the legislature could pass an act setting up something, but it--the State Board--under their constitutional authority, could eliminate these members at executive sessions or any other time. They'd let them come in and sit a little while. But, they could, under their constitutional authority, they wouldn't keep them in all the time if they didn't want to.

Mr. De Blieux If the legislature passed an act setting forth what you have here in this provision, is there any way that the board could keep them out if the legislature passed an act to that effect?

Mr. Wall Pardon me?

Mr. De Blieux I said, if the legislature passed an act to that effect, even without this, wouldn't they have a right to sit in?

Mr. Wall No, the Board of Supervisors have ignored things that the legislature has done that they disapprove...that they didn't approve of.

Mr. De Blieux Well, since this would be permissive, the legislature would have to act on it anyway. What good would it do to put it in if the Board of Supervisors will ignore it?

Mr. Wall Oh, no, if it's in the constitution, the Board of Supervisors can't ignore it, Senator De Blieux.

Mr. De Blieux Isn't this just window dressing, Mr. Wall?

Mr. Wall No, Senator De Blieux. If you want to make a speech, you can make a speech--get the floor.

Mrs. Zervigon Have you ever spoken to a member of a Board of Trustees of a university that has student representation on the board?

Mr. Wall Mrs. Zervigon, there hasn't been any in this part of the country, but...

Mrs. Zervigon Would you say yes or no?

Mr. Wall Well, look, if you want the question answered, would you please be quiet a minute?

There's not any in this part of the country, but there are several colleges and universities that do have student representatives, and I have read where it was very successful, and the boards really approved it, and they contributed to it.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mrs. Zervigon Are you aware that one of the fine side effects of this, that you did not mention in your talk, is that the students see what the difficulties the board has, how onerous the budgetary responsibilities are, and go back and inform their fellow students that managing in a university is not all that easy? Are you aware of that side effect?

Mr. Wall I think you are absolutely correct, Mrs. Zervigon.

Mrs. Zervigon There is one such university in New Orleans now, a private university, that has student representation on the board; and they found this to be so. Are you aware of that?

Mr. Wall I'm having difficulty understanding you, Mrs. Zervigon. I'd ask the Chair to get order.

Mr. Alexander Mr. Wall, there have been several amendments, and, of course, the original sections adopted which stipulate the number of persons who will serve on these various boards. Would your students be supplementary, or may the legislature increase the numbers of persons to serve on these boards?

Mr. Wall Reverend Alexander, this would be an additional member, but since they won't vote, it doesn't really upset the balance of the board since they don't have a voting authority. It will be an additional member.

Mr. Alexander It will be an additional member?

Mr. Wall Yes.

Mr. Alexander Well, may--under the terms of some of these amendments, since it will be constitutional--may the legislature exceed the authority given it in the constitution and increase the number?

Mr. Wall Well, Reverend Alexander, there's laws to cover that in case they do exceed that authority, and there's a court to take care of it--declare it unconstitutional--which has been done in the past. I'll say this: the students, it's been said now, if the students don't get an opportunity to properly voice the problems they are confronted with, they need this just as much as black people need to get in the mainstream of American life and be a part of it. The students need to be a part of the university life.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Wall, why did you say that "the legislature may" rather than "the legislature shall," since the person in your amendment doesn't have the right to vote? Why would you just make it permissive instead of mandatory?

Mr. Wall Mr. Tobias, I couldn't get enough support to pass it by saying "shall" and by giving them the right to vote. The main thing is, I think, the fact that they can sit there and be there and make the official position of the students known, plus, like Mrs. Zervigon pointed out, learn the problems of the board to take back to the student government. That's the main thing, have an official position where they can't be excluded in executive session. It will accomplish what I really want accomplished without the benefit of vote. I couldn't get the support; I wouldn't have a chance of passing it if they could vote.

Point of Order

Mr. Duval Mr. Chairman, this has nothing to do with the merit of Mr. Wall's amendment, but the rules do say that amendments have to be germane, and I'm just wondering, perhaps, like a ruling from the chair as to whether this is germane to dual officeholding.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Casey Mr. Duval, you bring up a good point. The only...about the only way that we can...as a Chairman I can intelligently rule on this is that Mr. Wall--and I so ruled yesterday, made a similar ruling--that where the title is amended and membership, in this case, student membership is included in the title, I think I would have to rule that the amendment is germane.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendments adopted: 77-35. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Hardin [Assistant Clerk] Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Tobias]. On page 7, between lines 20 and 21, in Floor amendment No. 3 proposed by Delegate Wall and adopted by the convention on November 15, 1973, on line 8, after the word and punctuation "himself," delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 10 and 11 in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Tobias This is a rather simple amendment. It deletes the last sentence of Amendment No. 3 that we just adopted. It would allow a member--a student member of the various boards listed in Amendment No. 3--to vote. There are seventeen members that we've established for each board. This would allow the eighteenth member, and it would allow this person to vote and become a part of the system,--a student member. Considering the history in this country in the recent past of the problems that some universities have had with respect to the deaf ears upon which administrators have...how deaf administrators have been to the student affairs of this...of various universities, and have not allowed students to have some voice in the administration of universities in this country, I think that this is an appropriate and necessary step to allow some representation to the various boards by the students. Bring the students into the system. As Mary Zervigon has mentioned, students--once they become aware of the financial situation and the various situations governing a college--can better express and better understand the problems that a board has. There is no better person to explain to students exactly what is happening at the university than the student himself,--to explain it to other students. I yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Tobias, haven't we, in fact, in the Elections Article accorded persons over the age of eighteen, or eighteen years or older, the right to vote?

Mr. Tobias Yes.

Mr. Derbes Can you think of any reason why student members of the boards as provided in Mr. Wall's amendment should not be accorded a similar right?

Mr. Tobias None whatsoever.

Mr. Arnette Max, I think you've got a good idea there, except one thing bothers me a little bit. Do you think that the legislature would be a little less likely to grant this privilege of having a student on the board if he automatically had the right to vote?

Mr. Tobias It's possible.

Mr. Avant Max, don't you think that if the legislature had the right to create such a membership with the right to vote, that they would automatically have the right to create the membership without the right to vote, if that's what they wanted to do? They wouldn't have to give the right to vote. Couldn't they?

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Tobias In other words, if they could create the membership and not to give him the right to vote.

Mr. Avant Or give him the right to vote, as they wanted.

Mr. Tobias I think that's...this is flexible enough to do that, yes.

Mr. Avant So, that wouldn't be any objection to the amendment then--the fact that the legislature might be less willing to do it?

Mr. Tobias I would think so.

Mr. O'Neill Max, I'm not sure in the amendment whether or not these students would be paid expenses and per diem as other members would be. Do you know from reading the amendment whether they would be or not?

Mr. Tobias No, I do not.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Mr. Stovall Max, isn't it rather insulting and condescending to ask someone to serve on a board of this kind and not give them the right to vote?

Mr. Tobias I would think so.

Mr. Flory Mr. Tobias, isn't it true that if you delete that last sentence that you create problems on what's already been adopted by this convention with the Board of Supervisors, etc.?

Mr. Tobias Why?

Mr. Flory As to the numbers provided for in those articles...in those sections?

Mr. Tobias I see no problem for this reason: There are a hundred and thirty-two members of this convention which is an even number of members.

Mr. Flory No, I'm not talking about that; I'm talking about increasing that...those sections provided for specific numbers on those boards.

Mr. Tobias Right.

Mr. Flory Here you say that the legislature may provide.

Mr. Tobias ...for an additional member who would be a student member. I see no problem, no conflict.

Mr. Flory But, if you delete that last sentence, don't you think, in effect, what you're doing is killing this provision?

Mr. Tobias I don't think so.

Mr. Dennery Mr. Tobias, I probably should have addressed this question to Mr. Wall, but I failed to do so. Possibly you can enlighten me on it. What is a student? Is it necessary for a student to be a resident of the State of Louisiana? Does he have to be a student...can an L.S.U. student serve on the Board of...Southern University's Board?

Mr. Tobias I think it applies to "a student." I don't think it has to be specified, and I think it would be left to the legislature under the amendment.

Mr. Dennery You think the legislature could do this? In other words, what is a student? That's what I'm trying to find out. A student is one who studies. Is a student...

Mr. Tobias who is attending the college or university--a college or university in the state for those that would not apply to, for example, the Board of Trustees for the State Colleges and Universities. It would be a student who's attending a state university, as I would interpret it.

Mr. Burns In other words, Max, it could be a student from Mexico or Hong Kong or Australia, or...

Mr. Tobias It could; it's conceivable.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I'm sorry I didn't say anything about the Wall amendment because I think that's where we made a mistake. But, be that as it may, since this is permissible legislation, we certainly should adopt the Tobias amendment because you would have--if the legislature ever wanted to create a student member of the Board of Supervisors or any of these boards--they would have to create that position without a right to that person to vote or have any other right, other than the right of just sitting in, as you might say--a...an auditory member. I think that might not be what the legislature would want. It might create the leg...prevent the legislature sometime from creating that position. At least if they wanted just an auditory member, they could do so--that is, with the Tobias amendment. Without this amendment you might have a situation that the...might not ever get a student member of the various boards. I certainly think that, since this is merely permissive legislation to start with, that we don't need to tell the legislature it can do something because it already has the authority. As I've said time and time again, we should enact laws here to tell the legislature "you shall do something" or "you shall not do something." Don't tell them they may do something, because they can do it whether we tell them they may or may not.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I rise against this amendment. I voted against the Wall amendment. I was surprised that it passed. I believe that all students should have a right to appear before boards. I do not believe it would place the students in a position of better representation to have one student on each of these boards. The one they might have might be elected by them, if the election was weighed by one vote--and they vote poorly like grown people--so, you might have a person elected, say, out of a possible vote of a thousand that beat his next opponent by one vote, and the two of them got three hundred votes together. If I was a student back in school--and I've kept up with it since I was there--and I was educated from coast to coast: part in North Carolina, part in southern California, part in New Orleans, part in Shreveport, in colleges and universities. So I say, furthermore, we shouldn't have passed the Wall one; I voted against it, but it is not mandatory, but permissive. Now, here is how ridiculous the Tobias amendment is--and I don't like to use that word often--but, it...the Wall amendment which it follows just uses the word "student". It does not even provide whether he's from Louisiana; he could be a correspondent school student; he could be there--just entered the place; he could be from Russia; he could be from Communist China; he could be from anywhere. Certainly, we don't presume governors would appoint those kind of people, but it just points up how ridiculous it is. The fair thing is for a board to permit students to air their grievances; that is the whole purpose. I say this is a dangerous type of amendment. I know somebody is trying to humor somebody. But, the time for humor is over, as many people have realized, and get down to hard work. While I am on that, just count up. I believe, today, about two good amendments have passed and, all the rest of the times have failed. Now, I suggest we defeat this amendment since that Wall one has passed, and it's not mandatory. The legislature can in their wisdom, or lack of wisdom, decide what to do with that. Thank you.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, you know, really and truly, people that have been around a long time--like Mr. Jack got a little bit ridiculous then. This is permissive to the legislature. Don't you think that when you're spelling something out in the constitution, that you should give the legislature some latitude and they will tie it down. That's what we're trying to do is to give the legislature the latitude as to say--and which they will say--students from that particular group of colleges and universities under the Board of Trustees or a student from the L.S.U. system or a student from Southern. So, it doesn't pin it down, but the constitution is leaving that to the legislature. Now, on this amendment I really... there's some people in the different systems that went along with my amendment on the basis that they would not be permitted to vote. I just want to say this: the main purpose that I want is these people to be in an official position, and that their voice can be heard, and that they will remain...they can't be put out in executive session where that they will know what's going on; they will better understand the functions of the board; it will educate the board as to their problems, and they can in turn go back and educate the students. I don't think they have to vote in order to do what I really want to accomplish, and we would be upsetting the balance of the board. So, that's my position.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 39-72. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Dennery and Mr. Casey]. On page 7, delete lines 7 through 20, both inclusive in their entirety, and all floor amendments thereto.

Explanation

Mr. Dennery This...the purpose of this amendment is to delete Section 11 in its entirety. The reason for that is that under the dual officeholding provisions the legislature has the right to provide for dual officeholding or to prohibit dual officeholding. The Wall amendment says that the legislature "may" and that type of language is certainly not necessary unless we prohibit the legislature from doing something, the legislature may do it. So, I believe, and I think Mr. Casey agrees with me, that everything we are putting in here is purely legislative in nature, is not necessary in the constitution, and, furthermore, is not desirable in the constitution. I, therefore, ask that you vote in favor of this amendment which would delete Section 11. I'd be pleased to answer any questions that I'm able to.

Question

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Dennery, you believe that this prohibition against serving on two boards would be enacted by the legislature under a code?

Mr. Dennery Yes, sir. I certainly do, sir.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I rise in strenuous opposition to this amendment. Now, the Education Committee in the eight or nine months of work that we had went into this...in the structure of the governance of education to a great extent. When the proposals are... as it stands now the way that the convention has adopted it, they've adopted the concept that this Education Committee submitted to you. But, let me suggest to you here that you read carefully and study carefully the prohibition against dual officeholding in this particular capacity, because what you're doing if you don't contain a provision here saying that no member shall serve on but one board, what you could have, if the legislature does not act, is you could have the superboard--you could have the superboard--by merely having members serve on more than one board. Theoretically, if you delete this, they could serve on each board so that the Board of Regents would control the entire structure and governance of higher education. That's the value of this particular section. Now I have...I voted for Mr. Wall's amendment, even though I did not believe that it did everything that it purported to do in the way of giving to the students what they asked for. But, I tell you we need the prohibition contained in Section 11 prohibiting dual membership on the governing boards of education. If we need anything in this constitution, we need the prohibition against dual officeholding for the boards of governing higher education. I ask you not to delete this section, and not leave it to the will of the legislature--not that I don't trust the legislature, but I know that when the people adopt this and provide for the prohibition against dual officeholding, then the legislature has to live with that decision. We take no chance whatsoever of a member serving on two, and perhaps three, or even four boards. I don't believe that was the wishes of this convention, but that's what we're about to do if we delete this section. I ask you to vote against the amendment and leave the section as it is. Let's adopt the section in its final analysis.

Questions

Mr. Dennery Mr. Flory, we adopted a provision which says "the legislature shall enact laws regulating and prohibiting dual officeholding in state and local government." Now, don't you think that covers this?

Mr. Flory No, sir. I don't believe that it necessarily does, and I don't believe that it harms a thing in the world to say here what we mean as far as that no person shall serve on more than one board.

Mr. Dennery In other words, you don't believe that a board service is officeholding?

Mr. Flory Mr. Dennery, I'm not a lawyer and you are. I'm a layman, and I know--when I read Section 11--I know exactly what it means. When I go back to the dual officeholding that you're reading there, I don't know what's going to happen in the interim period between the time that the legislature takes action and when this board comes into being.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Flory, there's no shortage of good people in Louisiana to fill them without having to double-deck them, are there?

Mr. Flory Based on the conversation in this convention in the last several days, I think we have an abundance of intelligent people willing to serve on the boards governing higher education.

Mr. Stinson With reference to the question asked before me, isn't it usually been interpreted that when you have a position with a per diem, that it's not necessarily dual officeholding, hadn't it? There's a possibility of that anyway.

Mr. Flory I know that that's been the cases...in some cases in the past, Mr. Stinson.

Mr. Fulco Gordon, isn't this about the seventh time that we've tried to create a superboard?

Mr. Flory Well, I don't know. I didn't count them Mr. Fulco, but I just tell you that in the final analysis, if you delete this section you can wind up with a superboard by all its members serving on one board, the Board of Regents, and then simultaneously serving on the other two boards.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I want to emphasize the point that Mr. Flory made. The reason that I want to do it is because of the questions that Mr. Dennery asked. I certainly respect Mr. Dennery's legal ability, but if you will recall, the original committee proposal on dual officeholding specifically excluded from it those persons serving on boards, commissions, and other instrumentalities performing solely policy-making or advisory functions. Now, this convention in its wisdom didn't adopt that, but simply said that the legislature shall enact laws defining and regulating dual employment and defining, regulating and prohibiting dual officeholding. Now, certainly under that provision the legislature could, if it saw fit, in its definition of dual officeholding, eliminate from that definition "serving on these boards," taking a position which would be similar to the original committee proposal saying that since there's no salary and no pay, and only some per diem and expenses--and then only if the legislature sees fit to give per diem and expenses--that they could very well eliminate from the definition of dual officeholding "serving on these boards of higher education." The only reason I got up here is because of the remarks of Mr. Dennery, who I respect and who I know you respect. But, I do want to point out that I think Mr. Dennery very definitely is wrong, and if you will read the dual officeholding proposal and read these provisions relating to these boards, I think that you will agree in my interpretation of it. For that reason I ask you to reject this amendment.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Avant, how long do you think it might take the legislature to enact a comprehensive code of dual officeholding?

Mr. Avant Oh, Mr. O'Neill, I have no idea.

Mr. O'Neill Well, can you envision it taking a year or perhaps two, and in that...

Mr. Avant Well, I think it would take, at least, maybe two sessions of the legislature.

Mr. O'Neill These initial appointments could be made, and one person could be appointed to three boards, and there would be no code to govern it; is that right?

Mr. Avant That is correct.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this section is absolutely necessary from two viewpoints: first, as to dual officeholding on these boards, it could be specific, and it is specific, so we should retain this section and, second, as to the amendment that was passed by you a few minutes ago dealing with students and their representation. Now, I have introduced legislation in the past, but each time it had to be a constitutional amendment because everyone--the legislative counsel and all the legal counsel that I could get in Baton Rouge, said that if you're going to do anything with these constitutional boards--if you're going to tamper with these constitutional boards--it has to be a constitutional amendment. So, the work that we just done would be of no effect if we don't retain this section, plus the fact we need it as far as dual officeholding is concerned. I ask you to keep this section just like it is. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and delegates, I can only point out to you that we have...will have something in the new constitution that we do not have today, and that is a mandate from this convention and, if adopted by the people, a mandate from the people that the legislature shall enact laws--and I have the wording of Proposal No. 23 right here--the mandate that requires the legislature to enact the laws defining and regulating dual employment, and defining, regulating, and prohibiting dual officeholding in state and local government. I would submit to you delegates that Section 11 is not necessary. I would also submit to you that those who believe that student representation is certainly worthy of consideration on the Board of Trustees and the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors, the legislature would have a right to do that anyway--to offer the possibility for student representation on those boards. It is certainly not prohibited. I would submit to you that under the dual office holding requirement that this convention has already adopted, I think we have duplication here and Section 11 is absolutely unnecessary.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 33-80. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Further amendments sent up by Delegates Derbes and Gravel.

Amendment No. 1. On page 7, between lines 20 and 21, delete Floor Amendment No. 3 proposed by Delegate Wall and adopted by the Convention on November 15, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(B) The Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities, the Board of Supervisors of L.S.U. and Agricultural and Mechanical College, and the Board of Supervisors of Southern University and Agricultural and Mechanical College shall each include one student elector"--now there's several changes in this next line--"shall each include one student elector of Louisiana from"--strike out the word "each"; insert the word "the"--the institution--pluralize "institutions"; insert the words "governed thereby". Make "institutions" plural; then add the words "governed thereby, whose terms shall". So, it would read: "shall each include one student elector of Louisiana from the institutions governed thereby, whose term shall not exceed one year. No student member shall be eligible to succeed himself."

Explanation

Mr. Derbes Ladies and gentlemen, what I am attempting to do here is to constitutionally require the membership of one student, who is an elector--defined elsewhere in this constitution as a person who is eighteen years of age or older--and who would, of course, have to fulfill certain residency requirements. I'm providing that that person shall be appointed to each of the various boards from the areas governed by each of the various boards. For example, one student from Southern University would be appointed to that board from the student population of Southern University, provided that he is an elector of the state, and one person from the student populations of the other institutions governed by the Board of Trustees for State College and Universities would likewise be appointed. The provision is a requirement rather than permissive language. It's clear; I think it satisfies the objections raised by some of the delegates on the debate on previous amendments that the student appointed might not be a resident of the state and possibly might not be old enough to vote. I think it satisfies those requirements and makes the appointment mandatory. It also continues in effect...it continues in effect the requirement that no student member may be eligible to succeed himself and continues the period of the appointment for one year. So, I think this is a clear and definitive requirement on the appointment. I urge you to adopt the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Smith Mr. Derbes, will the member here have a right to vote--the student?

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Mr. Derbes Yes, sir. He would become a member of the board just like any other member, and he would have a right to vote.

Mr. Smith How old would he have to be?

Mr. Derbes He would have to be an elector, which in turn would require that he be a resident of the state and would require that he be eighteen years of age or older. I think if he can vote in the general elections of this state, he ought to be able to vote, if this convention in its wisdom determines that he should be permitted to serve.

Mr. Pugh Does the fellow run for office, or he gets appointed or what?

Mr. Derbes His appointment would occur in the same manner that the appointment of the other individuals would occur, Mr. Pugh. This is just a requirement for appointment.

Mr. Pugh Well, you understand under Mr. Casey's ruling that all you had to do was amend the title and you could then put anything in a section. We now have a section that refers to dual membership and, I take it, for a student member, but I don't see anything in this section relating to appointment or election or anything.

Mr. Derbes Well, I respectfully suggest to you that the selection process for these various boards is mentioned elsewhere in this article, and all this is, is a restriction on the appointment or on the selection process. It merely provides that when the governor is making such...when the appointing body is making such appointments, that one of the appointments must come from the student populations of the various institutions.

Mr. Pugh In other words, he's going to use this as one of his appointments?

Mr. Derbes Yes, sir.

Mr. Pugh O.K.

Mr. Derbes Yes, sir. It won't change the overall population of the boards. It will not disturb the ratios and selection methods. It would just require that one of the persons be appointed from one student population.

Mr. Shannon Mr. Derbes, through your amendment are you trying to mandate that the governor appoint this seventeenth member which is his member-at-large, as a student?

Mr. Derbes Mr. Shannon, I'm not disturbing the selection process of the various boards I'm merely saying that of those persons who are appointed, the person should come from these various student populations.

Mr. Sandoz Mr. Derbes, when you say one student elector for each institution, now in the L.S.U. system if you have five...

Mr. Derbes May I clarify it?--and I'm glad you brought that up again because the language of the amendment has been changed, Mr. Sandoz, I don't mean to cut you off. It now says, "from the institutions governed thereby." So, the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities with five-member organizations, or five organizations, under their governance would have one member from those...from that student population--all of the five institutions, in other words.

Mr. Sandoz There would just be one for the L.S.U. system, then?

Mr. Derbes Yes, sir.

Mr. O'Neill Jim, didn't we provide that certain of these members had to be from certain congressional districts?

Mr. Derbes I'm merely specifying, Mr. O'Neill, that in addition to any other requirements already provided for in this article, that one member from each of the affected institutions...of the board's governing each of the affected institutions must be a student in those institutions. That's all I'm saying.

In closing, let me say, ladies and gentlemen, without a lot of Fourth of July rhetoric, that I was in college in law school during a lot of the student unrest in this state, and I certainly believe that one of the ways to solve the problems is to give the students some voice by way of vote and by way of participation in the governance of their own institutions. This to me is a very minor compromise and a very minor way of including these people in the affairs that affect them so personally. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this problem of the students having a voice in their university life is one that I have been familiar with since 1950 when they wouldn't let the girls receive telephone calls after 9 o'clock. So, this is a question that I have been familiar with; I know something about it; I know something about the legislative process; I know that we have to have this amendment in the constitution, or we can't do it. I know there's not enough support for any stronger amendment than the one that I have given you. Now we can put a person--and let their voice be heard--on these different governing bodies through the legislature. You've got to have a procedure. There's a big--look, I've introduced several constitutional amendments on this--there was a lot of thought process as to just how this student representative be selected and where he would come from. So, this is a legislative problem as to how he will be selected. But, he should have the voice.

Now, there's a lot of people that went along, and they believed that the students should have a voice. But, they won't go any further than what the amendment that you approved earlier that was submitted to you. They are not going any stronger than that. So, I'm opposed to this amendment. I'm opposed to the forced membership at this time. This makes it some question as to whether you're going to have a member from each institution. He deleted my entire amendment, which deleted the title, which doesn't make it germane; but that's alright. But, I'm going to ask you to vote this amendment down.

Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Tobias Mr. Wall, your last remark was that this deleted the title. Isn't it true that your amendment--this amendment--would only delete the third amendment of your three amendments and would keep Amendments No. 1 and 2?

Mr. Wall I believe you are correct, Mr. Tobias.

Mr. Tobias O.K. That's one question.

My second question is this: you personally agree that there should be at least one...a student should be on the board, whether he is a voting or nonvoting member? In philosophy you believe in that?

Mr. Wall Yes, but Mr. Tobias, we have to accept what's best under the circumstances. Many people went along with this, without giving them a vote; and they've got some strong arguments there. I'm going to have to support that position, because I think I have to support that position in order to keep the amendment here so that we can gain...that much ground.

Mr. Flory Mr. Wall, isn't it true, as I read the amendment, that the LSU Board of Supervisors would have nine students on it out of the seventeen; the Board of Trustees would have ten or eleven students out of a board of seventeen--which would be a majority; and the Southern Board would have three out of seventeen under this amendment?

Mr. Wall Well, Mr. Flory, I'm going to tell you what. This...Mr. Gravel left a lot of things unanswered in this. This is one of his poorest legal documents that he's ever drafted.

Mr. Flory Well, he didn't leave that unanswered. It reads that way when you say "each include one student elector of Louisiana from each institution."

Mr. Wall Well, he amended that "from the institution." But it still leaves it in doubt to what they could be--five or nine.

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think this is a bad amendment--one of the worst I've seen. I voted against the Wall amendment. I didn't think it...thought it was rather ridiculous. I think this is worse. I don't think that students have a right or are mature enough to be on these kind of boards. I don't know what they are trying to do--get the youth vote or what? But I think we ought to get down to business and cut out these ridiculous amendments. I hate to call them that. But that's what they are. I wish the Wall amendment hadn't passed. At least it's permissive, but, this would be mandatory; and I don't know what reason it has here. But, I say I'm not looking for any votes. So, you all go along, and let's vote this thing down.

Question

Mr. Stovall Mr. Smith, you don't think that the students would be as mature and competent as we are here--we who are older--in this Constitutional Convention, then?

Mr. Smith That's right, sir.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this sounds good on the face of it: a student has a right to be there. But, I just want to call your attention to the fact, so that it will not be overlooked, that on your Board of Trustees you will have eight students. That is almost enough to control this Board of Trustees. It's departed from the thing of just giving a little input to a board which was first intended, because they can very easily be in control of one of these boards and vote a majority. Then, on the LSU Board, there would be five students on that. That is just too many students on one of these that...you have departed completely from the original concept of giving them input. They would...they could too easily get control of this. So, for that reason, I ask that you disapprove this amendment. Thank you very much.

Question

Mr. Tobias Mr. Hernandez, if we were to delete the one phrase that says "the LSU Board of Supervisors," would you be in favor of this amendment?

Mr. Hernandez No, sir. You would still have eight on the Board of Trustees, which is, by far, too many students on this board. So, I think that wouldn't...that would help it very little, Mr. Tobias.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Derbes I regret having to appear before you again. I'll be brief.

I want to say that, although I respectfully disagree with some of the philosophical differences of opinion that have been advanced in objection to my amendment, I must say by way of clarification that the grammatical objections, in my opinion, are not well taken. Let me explain.

The amendment as it is currently proposed says that each of the various boards shall include one student from the institutions governed thereby--not from each of the institutions governed thereby, but from all of the institutions governed thereby. I am not suggesting to you, it is not my intention, and I do not believe that a clear and fair interpretation of the phraseology indicates that I am expanding the membership of any of these boards or requiring more than one student on any of these various boards. All that this amendment tries to do is to require one student on each board--nothing more, nothing less. To answer Mr. Wall's charge, the amendment was drafted by me. I take full credit for it. Mr. Gravel's name appears on it, but I am responsible for it. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Fulco Mr. Derbes, we have four or five branches, I guess--LSU branches. Would that mean that each student from each of those branches would serve on the board? That's the way your amendment reads. I wish you'd check that. I want to vote for your amendment.

Mr. Derbes Thank you. I'm just going to...can't turn on my recorder again and say the same thing, Mr. Fulco. That's that my amendment requires the appointment of one student from each...I should say my amendment requires the appointment of one student from the entire student population governed by each of the boards. In other words, if there are five colleges and universities governed by one board, the appointment...there is required the appointment of one student from the entire population of the five schools. If there is one college and university governed thereby, the same requirement. There is no more than one student appointment required to each of these boards.

Mr. Fulco I didn't have your recent copy of the amendment. The way it read originally, it was "shall include one student elector of Louisiana from each institution."

Mr. Derbes Yes, sir. From each...from the institutions governed thereby.

Mr. Fulco Yeah. But my amendment doesn't read that way.

Mr. Derbes Again I reiterate--in defense of the criticism levied against the amendment, the grammatical criticism--that the amendment should read on the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7th line, "of Louisiana from the institutions governed thereby." The previous language has been deleted. "From the institutions governed thereby"--one student from each student population governed by each board--not from each institution, but from the entire student population governed by the board.

Thank you. Please vote for the amendment.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment re-jected: 35-78. Motion to reconsider tabled. Pending Amendment read. Previous Question ordered on the Section: 63-48. Section passed: 100-18. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter The next section is Section 12. Parish School Boards; Parish Superintendents

Section 12. (A) Parish School Boards. The Legislature shall create parish school boards and shall provide for the election of the members of such boards.

(B) Parish Superintendents. Each parish board shall elect a superintendent of parish schools. The State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education shall fix the qualifications and prescribe the duties of the parish superintendent, who need not be a resident of the parish in which he serves.

Explanation

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this wording pretty well tracks the present constitution. I think we all recognize that this would be necessary for the operation of the school system. So I recommend to you its adoption.

Questions

Mr. Pugh What's the reason for the provision that he doesn't have to live where he's going to work?

Mr. Aertker Because there was a provision at one time that stated that he had to. So, we decided we wanted to clear that out--that he didn't have to.

Mr. Pugh In other words, the old constitution says he has to live there.

Mr. Aertker That's correct, and he'd have to get it waived.

Mr. Pugh So, this isn't exactly like the old constitution, is it?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Morris Mr. Aertker, would this allow the superintendent of the city of Monroe or the city of Bogalusa to live in those parishes, rather than in the city, today?

Mr. Aertker Yes, it'd allow...yes, it would.

Mr. Morris In the years gone by, we had other city school systems in which this did present something of a problem. Isn't that right?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Burns Mr. Aertker, what was the reasoning on the part of the committee to remove...to add that requirement...that is, that exclusion that the superintendent did not have to be a resident of the parish in which he serves?

Mr. Aertker We felt that he...in order to allow the school systems to go out and make a choice to give you an example: If a school system that would desire to get someone from, say, from out of state to come in as superintendent--or one would want to, they say, who lived in another parish, to come in and be superintendent this was the reason why we would put that provision in there.

Mr. Carmouche Mr. Aertker, did you know that the old constitution did have a provision that the superintendent did not have to be a resident of the parish?

Mr. Aertker Yes, actually, it was the State Board of Education that finally had to put a waiver in there for those coming out of state, Mr. Carmouche.

Mr. Tate That's apparently to continue to permit, for instance, when the superintendent of St. Landry Parish is hired by Plaquemines Parish, so that they could free Plaquemines Parish to choose an educator from other parts of the state?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Jenkins]. On page 7, at the end of line 24, add the following: "School board members shall be elected from single-member districts at the first and each subsequent regular election for school board members after publication of the results of the 1980 decennial federal census."

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates, this is to follow up the precedent we set in the Legislative Article with regard to single-member districts. You'll notice that it provides that it would apply only after the 1980 decennial census. This really is to make sure that we don't have any problems with regard to implementation of this whole plan. Since people serve for six-year terms in most of these school boards, we didn't want to, in any way, infringe on the terms of people who might be elected in the 1974 elections; and, also, because school boards operate on staggered terms, we didn't want to create transitional problems there. Also, a number of school boards have been reapportioned in recent years, and we didn't want to create a situation whereby the adoption of this amendment would cause them to have to reapportion again. This would give them time to prepare for it and make an orderly transition. If there were some court orders that provided another means for apportioning school boards, then naturally the court would have to accept this plan before it would have any effect in that particular parish.

The purpose for having single-member districts in this constitution is that single-member districts represent the fairest means of electing people to public office when they serve in legislative or quasi-legislative capacities. I think if you look around the state, you'll see all sorts of inequities that exist because of multi-member districts. Sometimes they are rural-urban problems; sometimes they are black-white problems; sometimes it's Republican-Democrat. There are all sorts of things that arise that don't allow people to be represented properly. Let me give you an example.

There's one town that I know of that is surrounded by a rural area. On their school board they have four or five members from that particular district. Invariably, the town outvotes the rural areas and elects all the members from that district, even though there is a very substantial rural population. You look at a particular ward in East Baton Rouge Parish--Ward 2--where we have three board members. This district is at least forty percent black, and you would think at least one-third of the members of this...of the three would probably be black. But, almost invariably, the election in that district, because there tends to be a black and a white in the runoff tends to be some sort of racial contest; and people tend to vote along racial lines. That doesn't promote the selection of the best school board members. I think it would be much better to have three single-member districts there where people in the particular districts, regardless of what their sentiments might be, could vote for the people that they chose to represent them.

I know in East Baton Rouge Parish, to take another example, we have one area of the city that traditionally votes Republican. There is a Republican state representative from that area; there's a Republican city councilman from that area, but because the ward in which that particular area is established is not predominately Republican, there is no Republican member of the school board, etc. One of the best things about single-member districts is that it tends to breed responsibility on the part of public officials, directly to a group of people who elected them. So often when you have multi-member districts and you go to a particular school board member, or councilman, or representative--whatever it may be--and there are other legislators or members from that district, you find that no one is particularly interested in helping you because there's such a dispersion of power that there's no real responsibility.

Another important thing is campaigning. When you have to run in a multi-member district, sometimes it even gets ridiculous. It gets to the point of having to run in an area, for a relatively minor position, that involves a hundred thousand, two hundred thousand, six hundred thousand people in a given district, to run for the school board. That means that too much money has to be spent to elect people. Also, it means that the average voter cannot possibly know his particular member on a school board. We have single-member districts that allows person-to-person campaigning. It cuts down on campaign expenses because it just doesn't cost nearly as much to run in a single-member district. I thought long and hard on this amendment about attempting to exempt Orleans Parish because some of the delegates from Orleans wanted it that way. Other delegates from Orleans did not. The argument in favor of exempting Orleans was that there's maybe some special circumstances there: the fact that they have five members of their school board elected at large from the whole parish; the parish coincides with the city; they have nonpartisan elections; their school board members are elected at the time of the general election, etc. It was charged, perhaps, that this would politicize the Orleans Parish School Board, if we had them run by single-member districts. But, after thinking about this a great deal, I think that that argument is fallacious for the reason: There's nothing in the nature of single-member districts that would change the basic structure of the Orleans Parish School Board. People would still be elected on a nonpartisan basis. They would still run in the general election; there would still be five members of that board. I see nothing that would any way hurt Orleans Parish School Board. I think it would help it by making it more representation. So, I'd urge the adoption of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Jenkins, as you and I previously discussed, is it not true that, at the present time, the Lafourche Parish School Board is under an order of the Federal district court for the United States District Court of the Eastern District of Louisiana, under Docket No. 68-1702 in the case of A. J. LeBlanc v. John J. McKeithen, et. al. to have multi-member districts in the parish of Lafourche, to have his school board members elected by division?

Mr. Jenkins Well, I'm not sure if your numbers are correct, Mr. Lanier; but I assume you're correct otherwise.

Mr. Lanier I have shown you the orders and the judgments; is that not correct?

Mr. Jenkins I think that's correct, Walter; and let me say that, obviously, by this constitution, we can't override a federal court order. But, I think what would happen if we adopted this, and it were still in effect after the 1980 census, is that the school board would make an effort to have the court amend its court order to encompass this particular concept. If the court agreed to it, well, then it would; and if they didn't, it wouldn't. But, we're still going to be decided by the federal court, and nothing we here do is going to change that or affect that in any way.

Mr. Lanier Well, would you agree that if this amendment passes, it could create a conflict between this judgment--which I understand to be a final judgment in the federal court--and the provisions of the new constitution?

Mr. Jenkins No, I don't think it will be a conflict because you have to look at the legal order of priorities. The federal court order in regards to Lafourche Parish is going to take precedence, and so it won't be a conflict; it will just be a question of that being imposed. But, I really think that if Lafourche Parish School Board is apportioned on a single-member district basis--or an attempt is made to--and that's submitted to the court, and they find that it's a fair system, I don't think there will be any problem of having that judgment amended.

Mr. Lanier Under your amendment, is it not true that all members of the school board will have to run in 1980?

Mr. Jenkins No. In fact, it would be impossible for them to run in 1980 because this provides that at the first election after the results from the 1980 census are obtained, single-member districts would be...those board members elected after that time would have to be from single-member districts. So, that means that in the 1982 elections, those elected that year would have to be from single-member districts.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Chairman, I've got some very serious problems that...

Mr. Jenkins Let me finish answering by saying this: in other words, this doesn't require that everyone in 1982 be in a single-member district. It requires that everyone who's elected in 1982--and that will probably be one-third of the board, unless there's some transitional measure enacted by the legislature--that those elected would have to be from single-member districts, and all those subsequently elected would be.

Mr. Lanier O.K. Would it then be your interpretation of your amendment that, in accordance with the court order that I showed you that provides that our school boards will complete their six-year terms, and that one-third will be elected every two years, this part of the court order would not be in conflict with your amendment as you intended. Is that correct?

Mr. Jenkins That's correct.

Secretary Denny in the Chair

Mr. Slay Mr. Jenkins, under the Federal Election Act that was passed here a few years ago, it says that the Justice Department has to approve any changes that are made in our voting procedures here in the state. Now, once we adopt this, the Justice Department will have to approve it; and so, regardless of what the courts have said, I believe that if this is approved, and the Supreme Court has said that that election law was valid, then we could follow this amendment, once the Justice Department approves it. So, that would answer all the questions that've been raised.

Mr. Jenkins I think this is the way it would work, Mr. Slay, and remember, it's not going to apply just to this amendment. All of our election law that we put into this constitution--including the Election Article--is going to have to be submitted to the Justice Department under the 1966 Voting Rights Act. Now, the Justice Department, if it approves that plan, will then validate subsequent elections held under it, if they're held in accord with those laws. Now, I don't think that Justice Department approval would supersede a federal court order, however. That's why the federal court order in that particular instance would be amended. But, I can't really see that if any of this is approved by the Justice Department that we're going to have any trouble with the federal courts. I really don't because I think that would satisfy.

Further Discussion

Mr. Newton Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment. There are many reasons to urge you to support it. I'd like to point out two. I supported the concept of single-member districts for members of the legislature for the reason that it cuts down on the cost of campaigning. I think that that is, in itself, is enough reason to have single-member districts for school boards. I'd like to point out--Mr. Shady Wall's been talking about an inequity in his parish in Monroe--well, there's an inequity in my parish that I'd like to clear up, and I think this would go a long way to do it. My district comprises the Seventh and Eighth Wards of Tangipahoa Parish. Now, the Eighth Ward does not have a single-member on a nineteen-man school board, and they don't have a single police juror. I think that this amendment would go a long way to alleviating that situation and similar situations in other parishes throughout the state. Thank you.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to this amendment. Now, let me tell you, you're looking at the fellow who introduced into the legislature an act for single-member districts of the legislature. I believe in single-member districts. But, yet on the other hand, I can see some time maybe in the future where we might want to have maybe one district that would have multiple members from that district. If you passed this amendment, it would be impossible to do that. I just don't think this is the type of legislation which should go into our constitution. At the present time, we are trying to solve all of our problems in today's conditions. That we should not do. I don't believe any of us here has enough foresight that we know that what's going to happen in the future. One of the reasons we have a great United States Constitution is because those framers of that constitution did not believe they knew all the answers. I think that what we are trying to say here that we know what's going to happen in the future. So, therefore, we're going to solve the problems for the future by cluttering up our constitution with a lot of solutions on today's problems. What we are doing is creating situations which we will have a lot of amendments in the future, as we have had in the past, by putting matters like this into the constitution. I think that this is not what we want. The legislature can provide for single-member districts. So, let's let the legislature do that. If the occasion should arise when we need a multiple district, as least we won't be locked in to where we can't do it without a constitutional amendment which would make a local issue for some local school board that we ought not to have in our constitution. Therefore, people will be voting upon something that pertains to only one school board rather than something that pertains to statewide election. I just think this is bad to put into the constitution, even in spite of the fact that it has fifty-five coauthors to it. I ask you to reject...to consider your position and reject this amendment. It's not going to eliminate single-member districts. It just provides that if the occasion should arise and the legislature did want to have one, it would have the right to do so. I ask you to reject the amendment.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Senator De Blieux, you didn't vote for single-member districts in the constitution for legislators, did you?

Mr. De Blieux If...to put it in the constitution? No, I did not for the same reason I gave you here.

Mr. O'Neill Senator De Blieux, I think you did.

Mr. De Blieux Wait. I introduced a legislation in the legislature to provide for single-member districts for legislators, as you well know.

Mr. O'Neill Well, I think you voted to put it in this constitution as well.

Mr. De Blieux No, I did not.

Mr. A. Landry Senator De Blieux, is there anywhere in this proposal where terms...years of terms for the school board is set out, to your knowledge?

Mr. De Blieux In this constitution?

Mr. A. Landry Yes. In the proposed constitution--the proposed article that we are considering now--is there anywhere that sets out how many years a school board member shall serve?

Mr. De Blieux I think we've got six-year terms; I'm not sure.

Mr. A. Landry I'm not too sure that I see it. I was just wondering whether you knew about it or not. I don't think we've set out terms at all, so far.

Mr. De Blieux Maybe we haven't gotten to that particular section yet.

Mr. A. Landry If we haven't set it out, then, wouldn't we be, in Lafourche Parish, in a terrible situation where the court has ordered us that the election of 1976, that five of our members shall be elected for six years?

Mr. De Blieux I think you would be. Yes.

Mr. A. Landry You feel that this might be better left up to the legislature instead of being put in the constitution? Is that right?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, I do, certainly; much better.

Mr. Lanier Senator De Blieux, do you agree with Mr. Jenkins' interpretation of this amendment that commencing in 1982, that one-third of each school board would come up for election?

Mr. De Blieux Well, that all depends upon what would be the provisions in our law at that particular time, Mr. Lanier. If we did not provide for staggered members for school boards, that would not happen. They all would be elected.

Mr. Lanier Secondly, since we're under a court order in Lafourche Parish to have multi-member districts set up in divisions, would it be your opinion that the only way that we could comply with the new constitution would be to go back into federal court and ask for an amended judgment in order to bring ourselves in compliance with the state law?

Mr. De Blieux That's my interpretation, Mr. Lanier. You'd have to do that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates...Mr. Acting Chairman, I rise in opposition to this amendment. The Orleans Parish School Board presently consists of five members who are elected from the parish at large for six-year terms with one, two and two coming up every two years. The members of this board are elected on a nonpartisan basis. They cannot have political support. They run in the general election; they are not in party primaries. The people of New Orleans appear to be well satisfied with their members and the way that they are elected. It is my understanding that there are other boards that are elected in the same manner. I can tell you that the Louisiana School Boards Association--I've talked to their executive secretary--they've informed me that there are at least forty-eight other boards who have multi-member districts in this state. They have been involved in litigation--many of them have been--and the multi-member districts have been approved by federal court. Now, what are we trying to do? At the present time, the legislature is the one who determines the composition of these boards, fixing their terms and the membership. In the last session of the legislature, attempts were made to change the terms and the conditions, the composition of the Board of Orleans Parish. There was widespread opposition to it in our city. We do have race represented...all the races represented. In Orleans Parish, it's an unusual situation, where they attempt to have people qualify who represent different religions, different races, and different geographical sections. But, we run from the city at large. There is no district. Now, if you put this amendment in and force upon Orleans a district that means that we will then have to divide the city up into districts, we will have one member elected from each district; and they will be competing, then, for schools for that district which we have not had. We have been interested in schools for the city at large. I have served twelve years on this board. I had, many times, people ask me from the district which I run...which I come from, where I reside: "Why don't you do more for the citizens of Algiers? Why don't you get more schools for Algiers?" I had to tell them, "Look, I am not representing Algiers; I'm representing the city of New Orleans, and I have to do what is best for the entire city, not for my particular area." Mr. Riecke served on the board with me at the same time that I did. He represented the Gentilly area. He was elected from a geographical area, but he had to represent the city of New Orleans as a whole. We had members from the uptown area, from the downtown area. I think that this would be a mistake to attempt to force this upon us. Now, Mr. Jenkins said that he talked to me, and he thought about it, and he understood that we had problems. But, he doesn't think that this is any problem. Well, I have to disagree with Mr. Jenkins, and I think the people of New Orleans will disagree with him. I think that other districts...if you will check with your school boards, you'll find there is opposition to this type of thing. I would urge you sincerely to defeat this amendment and leave it as it is now, with the legislature, where the flexibility can be put into it, if it's necessary to do so. I'll yield to any question.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Casey Mr. Chairman and delegates, I urge you, with every bit of convictions and ability that I have to convince you, to vote, absolutely and positively without a doubt, no, no, no on this particular amendment. I submit to you, delegates, that it's awfully difficult to oppose apparent good government, apple pie, and motherhood. But, I must do so in this case. The school board of the parish of Orleans, for instance--and, I know, many other school boards who represent...have parishwide representation rather than single-member districts--we have the finest school board, as far as I'm concerned, in the State of Louisiana. Our school board, I feel, because of parishwide election, avoids much of the sectional interest and bickering that could occur from single-member district representation. We have five members of our school board: we have one black; we have one lady, and three other members of our particular school board. During the difficult days when segregation and integration was an issue, our school stood up and was counted. I feel that they were able to do that because of the parishwide representation, because of being elected from Orleans parish rather than from a particular area of the city of New Orleans. It was so difficult at that time. Two of our delegates, Mr. Sutherland and Mr. Riecke, were addressed out of office by the legislature because of a stand that they took during the days of integration. I would submit to you, delegates, that this can easily be left to the legislature. Let the legislature decide if certain parishes wish to elect their school board on a parishwide basis or a single-member district basis.

An attempt of this type was made similarly in the legislature to apply, however, only to the parish of Orleans. After hearing much testimony, after hearing many witnesses, it was soundly defeated in the House of Representatives. I must strongly urge you to positively defeat this amendment.

Question

Mr. Mire Mr. Casey, did you know that I was an author on this? But, you have convinced me--you and other speakers--that this is a bad amendment, and I'll vote against it. For the records, I'd like to state that I'm against it.

Mr. Casey Thank you very much, Mr. Mire.

Further Discussion

Mr. Slay Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, first

I want to say that I'm impressed with what the committee has proposed for school boards. I think that the school board is probably the most important public body that we have in the State of Louisiana. I say that because I served on the school board in Rapides Parish for twenty-five years, and I know what those people go through with. I would also like to rise in support of this amendment. We have about sixty-four different methods of electing school board members. I would like to see it done statewide, and have one system for the whole state. I think single-member districts is the only way that it can be done. In Rapides Parish we have three different systems. North of the river, if you live there, you run in one way. In Alexandria and the surrounding area, you have another way to run. If you live south of Alexandria, you run in an area that's about forty or forty-five miles long, representing four wards. Now, two people have to live on one end. Two have to live on the other. But, the people on one end have the votes to elect them on both ends. Now, that doesn't make sense. The people don't know what's going on there, and once we get single-member districts over the whole state, then, we can settle down and go about the business of running schools, and we'll know what's going on. As I say, I have served in all kinds of methods. We have been reapportioned three times in Rapides Parish. I would like to see it settled one time. Let the Justice Department come in and approve this method. Then we can settle down and be about our business. I urge your support of this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I rise in support of this amendment. I'm in favor of single-member districts for legislators, schools board members, police jurors, and any office of similar nature. Here is the reason for it, if you'll give me your attention: when you have, let's say, you elect five candidates for a certain office parishwide. There's fifteen running; you have to vote for five of them. Now, you don't even know who your opponent is in that race. Now, if you have a block vote against you, you are doomed. But, if you have single-member districts, then you can create the issues, and you know who your opponents are, and you know who's getting that block vote. Now, let me tell you I can't--let's forget New Orleans a minute; Mr. Casey was talking about it; I can't say where his five members that run in that parishwide come from--but in Caddo, over the years, beginning 1940, my memory serves me correctly--and I was elected for twenty-four years in it--but, it wasn't a fair thing. Every representative and senator, during the time 1940 up until single-member districts in the House and the Senate, came from Broadmoor area and at least the area east of Fairfield, with the exception of one representative; and that was me--or "I," I should say--and I lived on the west side of Fairfield. From there west and south and north, but keeping that parallel line, no representative or senator was elected. That was not fair. The fairest method is the broad section of the people, and that's the way you get it by the single-member district. Another thing: I saw the time when you had to vote for two out of three candidates for a certain office. I did not want to vote for two of them. There was only one of them I wanted to vote for. So, for me to vote for one man out of that three that I wanted, I had to vote for one of the two men, neither of those two men did I want to vote for. That's another trouble with this business of having to vote in a district where they run at large, and you have to vote for two or more people. The fair thing is single-member districts. It's fair in New Orleans. Mr. Casey says vote against, against, against. I say vote yes, yes, yes. There's a many a person here, if you didn't have single-member districts, would have never been elected here. I don't know that I would. I doubt seriously I would. If you stay in politics a long time, there are little block votes, little block votes there. I was in a head-on race--thirteen of us running. Then when it came down to the final thing, in the runoff, there were issues, and I won it. I say single-member districts in everything. Thank you.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

Questions

Mr. A. Landry Mr. Jack, you mentioned a multiple district. Do you realize that the federal court has ordered Lafourche Parish five different districts, and that in one district we have five members of the school board to be elected? Do you know that the federal court designated them as seats A, B, C, D, and E, and you don't have to qualify against all five; you can pick your candidate?

Mr. Jack I don't have any respect much for federal courts to begin with, but I like single districts... single-member districts. I do not approve of sections. I don't think it's good at all for this kind of thing.

Mr. A. Landry Do you realize, Mr. Jack, that we did not set single-member districts for police jurors?

Mr. Jack I didn't understand you.

Mr. A. Landry I said, did we in this convention set single-member districts for police jurors?

Mr. Jack Well, you just get an amendment up there, and I'll sure be for it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, single-member districts might be the greatest thing that ever happened to this state. But, I don't believe this is the way to do it. There are many of our parishes, and I just had the occasion to have one of my parishes to adopt a plan submitted to the Justice Department or the courts, or what have you, that comes back approved. There's four different districts in a five board district. They run from one, two and three members. They run A, B, and C. But, I think if you adopt single-member districts for school boards, you're going to also have to come back and do it for police juries and other governing authorities because most of our school board lines... most of your school board lines trans...are on the same lines as police juries run in. If you do this, I don't believe that you should do it for one and not the other. Why should we say there should be single-member districts for school boards? I don't believe this is the way to do it. I think it's bad. I think that we should allow our parishes and the school board authority, through the legislature, to run the way they think it's best for them to run, and that is with the sanction of the federal courts. I think we're going too far. I think the courts have realized, in telling us what they've done over the past ten years, that they have gone too far, and I think they are coming back. They're coming back to the moderate side. They're coming back to what the people want rather than stuffing it down our throats. I don't think we should go ahead and pass this whereby the constitution...we put in the constitution after 1980 that all school board members, all school board districts shall be single-member districts. I think we're just tampering with our school system a little too far. So, because there are so many coauthors on here, I would ask you coauthors to look at this again, and look what you're doing to your school boards throughout the state, and if you reconsider what you've done. I ask you to vote against it. Thank you.

Question

Mr. Tapper Senator, I guess you realize my name is on that amendment, but did you know that I had it taken off?

Mr. Nunez Well, would you take Mr. Tapper's name off, please? I'm glad to see you taking your name off, Mr. Tapper. Would you agree we open the machine for coauthors now? It's up to you, Mr. Toca. I'm against the amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Hayes Ladies and gentlemen, I don't know whether I could say any more than has been said already. But I fully endorse these single-member districts. Had it not been for the single-member districts, I am sure--I am positive--I wouldn't be at the Constitutional Convention today.

Here in East Baton Rouge Parish, in the school system, we have the multi-member districts. We have never been able to elect anyone to the school system. I think if we had the single-member district, we would have at least three members on the school board. I fully endorse the single-member districts throughout the parish. This, in my opinion, would mean more than the school board...I mean the board that they have just given Southern University a few minutes ago. This would really mean something to the people in the State of Louisiana. So, help us adopt a single-member district for the entire State of Louisiana.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this delegation, I had not planned to come up here to say any thing. I was just going to sit there and listen and vote my convictions and save time. But I find that I must.

Mr. Casey made a statement. He said we have on the board, in the city of New Orleans, one black, one lady. True. And you've got one you can catch up with, and he ain't black. I am not going on a racial issue. I would like to see some of them on there black; but, personally, I could not care less. I want somebody on that board that I can communicate with. All these fine gentlemen that are telling you about the school board, and keep it like it is--I have missed one school board meeting since I have been coming to this convention, and I haven't seen any of them there. You tell me how interested they are in the children. I want to say, for here and now, I'm not only interested in the children in the city of New Orleans; I'm interested in every child in the State of Louisiana. I'm not going to be satisfied until the communication gap is closed. I think it can be closed with this amendment. Yes, I...am actively working in P.T.A. I support P.T.A., not for a board. As I said once before, a board is not the thing that is holy and sanctity to me; it is the education and the welfare of our children. I am going to ask you to forget about these little petty things. I want to ask you to look into your heart and vote for a single-member district where we can get some communication and not a lot of air.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd like to speak because I was one of those who are coauthors in this amendment, and I'd like to clarify my position after hearing the arguments. I am going to vote against this floor amendment, and I'll tell you why.

First of all, I've never considered issues of racism. I do not think this is a black-white issue, and should never be. These are not issues we are voting on in this convention. It's quite obvious that the black and white race are equal. I think that we have maintained this in our Declaration of Rights. We understand and appreciate that always in this constitution. This is not an issue at this time. I would like to point out, however, that I was not aware of the complications which this floor amendment brings forth.

There are two factors here that were not understood by me when I coauthored this floor amendment initially. One is that the committee proposal already allows for single-member district operations.

86th Days Proceedings—November 15, 1973

In other words, it is optional for the legislature to establish single-member districts within the school board operation. Secondly, the floor amendment makes it mandatory. Now, I think that where indicated, we have, and have acted as a body to make situations mandatory that deserve that they be mandatory. However, I believe that there has been sufficient expression here to indicate there would be too much confusion in certain areas of the state to make this mandatory. Furthermore, the mandatory nature of this comes close to home; nothing is more personal than the educational process to the people of our state.

But, secondly, and that which disturbs me most, is the defining of the school board districts. Now, this is a real problem. I think that the legislature has this prerogative at this time. But if it is made mandatory, it will create havoc. Specifically, what will become of police jury districts? What will happen to council districts in the charters of New Orleans and in other cities? Are we going to have single-member council members to local government? Are we going to have single-member districts police jury members running? This creates a real problem. It is my belief that we had best leave this, as an optional procedure, to the legislature and adhere to Section 12 of the committee proposal as outlined, rather than accept this floor amendment. Therefore, I am voting against this amendment. Of course, you, the delegates, will do as you see fit. But I wanted to explain why the change from a coauthor to currently voting against this floor amendment, as I appreciate the problem now.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Dr. Weiss, I hope you understood what I said.

Mr. Weiss I believe you were speaking of black and white. I get turned off when you say that, Mrs. Warren...

Mrs. Warren No...no, no, no. You've got to be wrong. I thought that's what you thought. Mr. Casey was the one that mentioned it. Not I. I quoted what he said.

Mr. Weiss What did you say, Mrs. Warren? The question?

Mrs. Warren I said it didn't make any difference with me. I said the one that we can catch up with is not black. I don't go on no racial issues, and you ought to know it since you and I have been here so long.

Mr. Weiss Are you for or against this amendment?

Mrs. Warren I'm for the amendment. I'm saying I'm not going...

Mr. Weiss Why? Why are you for it?

Mr. Dennery Dr. Weiss, you are supposed to be answering questions--not asking them.

Mr. Weiss Well, I was waiting to get a question.

Mrs. Warren If you had been listening, Dr. Weiss...

Mr. Weiss What is the question, Mrs. Warren?

Mrs. Warren You mentioned--and I wanted it clarified: the only way I could clarify it was by asking you a question--you said the racial issue came up after I came to the mike. I did not bring the racial issue up. Mr. Casey mentioned it.

Mr. Weiss Well, what is the question?

Mrs. Warren You said it was a racial issue. It's not a racial issue.

Mr. Weiss No. I say what is your question?

Mrs. Warren Is that the reason that you are changing your vote, because you believe it's a racial issue?

Mr. Weiss I think I specified that specifically in my discussion.

Mrs. Warren Well, who do you think made the racial issue?

Mr. Weiss Because so many people have come to this microphone and made it a racial issue...

Mr. Poynter Delegate Proposal No. 32. Introduced by Delegate Drew.

A Proposal to provide with respect to the courts of appeals circuits and districts. The proposal has been reported without action by the Committee on the Judiciary.

[Motion to withdraw Delegate Proposal No. 32 from the files of the Convention. Substitute Motion to engross and pass the Proposal to its third reading.]

READING OF THE PROPOSAL

Mr. Poynter Delegate Proposal No. 32.

A Proposal to provide with respect to the courts of appeals circuits and districts. Provide an additional Section 9.

Explanation

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, what this proposal does is grant permission to the legislature to district the various circuit courts of appeals. As it is presently set up, we have three districts in each circuit, and all additional judges that have been added run at large from the entire district. I will give you an example of the Second Circuit which is composed of twenty parishes. You have three judges who are elected from specified districts to--one of them has seven parishes, one of them has less, and then one of them has quite a number less than that, I think is the way it works out. Then we have two judges who have to run from the entire twenty parish district. You have that same situation in every circuit court of appeals district. This is nothing mandatory. It is permissive for the legislature to create districts for those judges. Some of the districts it may be an impossibility. In other districts, it would straighten out the problem of having three judges run from small districts; two or more judges running from extremely large districts. It would do no harm to the court of appeals. You would probably have better representation from the smaller districts, and like I say, it is permissive legislation...permissive matter that the legislature can look into and do when it is determined that it is to the best interest of the people. I ask that you give me a favorable vote in passing this on to third reading.

Questions

Mr. Tobias Harmon, didn't the convention pass on this exact issue that this delegate proposal has?

Mr. Drew I don't believe so, Max. I could be wrong, but I don't believe they did.

Mr. Tobias Well, I think we did, and that's why this whole thing arose.

Mr. Tate Mr. Drew, was it not...the committee had originally recommended retaining the present system of giving at large, judgeships, letting the legislature create, at large, judgeships, rather than re-district? Without much discussion, a floor amendment was adopted which took away the option of the legislature to create additional judgeships by at large method, and the reason--if I understand it--that you are reintroducing this is that the fifty-eighth study of the Judicial Council had recommended this as a method of avoiding a politicalized fight every time you have a new district. So, as I understand it, you want the opportunity--in the event we get time, which we probably won't--for the convention to reconsider this matter. Is that right, sir?

Mr. Drew That's correct. It would be something that has to be studied. At the time that they needed additional judges, the expedient way at that time was to let additional judges run at large. It's something that, I think, will in the future give us the flexibility to make it a more workable system on the circuit court of appeals.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Drew, did you know I agree with Delegate Tobias that I think the convention has already expressed itself in this regard. But, you mentioned that this was permissive legislation, and I read the first line of your section proposal, "as each circuit shall." Now, my understanding is this is mandatory legislation. Why do you say that it's permissive?

Mr. Drew I don't have it right here before me, I don't believe, Doctor, but, I mean...

Mr. Weiss I'll read it for you then. It says: "Each circuit shall be divided into at least three districts." This is your Delegate Proposal No. 32, is that correct?

Mr. Drew Well, that is the situation we have now, Dr. Weiss. You have three districts in the circuit now.

Mr. Weiss With at least one judge elected from each?

Mr. Drew Correct, and then all other additional judges are elected at large. That's what we're trying to rectify, possibly, in the future.

Mr. Weiss It says "each circuit or retains subject to change by two-thirds vote of the legislature."

Mr. Drew That's correct. But, right now, you have your three districts, and then when they needed additional judges, instead of dividing the districts, they created at large judgeships. In the Second Circuit is a good example. You have three districts, and one judge is elected from each district. You have two additional judges that are elected at large from the entire twenty parish circuit. That is the law today that you have three districts, see.

Mr. Weiss I thought we did away with the judges at large.

Mr. Drew What?

Mr. Weiss We did away with the judges at large, didn't we?

Mr. Drew No, sir, we have not done away with the judges at large.

Mr. Warren Mr. Drew, one thing you said when you started speaking hasn't brought me to this microphone. You said it would be probably better representation if we had the district rather than at large. So, what's the reason for wanting at large district judgeships?

Mr. Drew What is the reason for the at large...

Mr. Warren Why? You said it would probably be better vice versa. Why would you want it any other way than to have better representation? Do you have any other reason that you would rather have...do away with better representation, in other words? This is what I'm trying to say.

Mr. Drew Well, the thing is, Mrs. Warren, I don't think it's fair--and let me continue to use the Second Circuit as my example--to have three judges running from rather small districts, seven parishes on down; and then to have two judges who are obligated to run from a twenty parish--the entire circuit; they are elected from the entire twenty parish area. To get the additional judges we needed, that was the only way at that particular time that they saw that they could add the judges without a great deal of turmoil.

Mrs. Warren Well, right along now, we can fix it up like it is, and it won't be no problem. I mean, unless you just don't want to change.

Mr. Drew I didn't understand you.

Mrs. Warren I say at this point it appears that it is already settled, and we could go on with it like it is, and we wouldn't have any problem, unless you just don't want to change.

Ms. Zervigon Mr. Drew, I'd like to be clear in my mind exactly what we're debating. We're not debating right now or voting on the merits of your proposal, are we?

Mr. Drew No, ma'am.

Ms. Zervigon We're just voting on whether or not to reconsider this question. We could easily vote it down on the floor when it comes up at that time, couldn't we?

Mr. Drew You're correct, Mary. We're merely discussing now, the question of presenting it to the convention. That's what it amounts to.

Ms. Zervigon If we continue to say to ourselves we've decided that already, we won't think about it anymore, it may well be that we've made terrible mistakes that we won't turn over; isn't that correct?

Mr. Drew I think we've made quite a few, and have rectified quite a few, Mary, during the time we've been here.

Ms. Zervigon But, we don't want to make it so that we can never rectify anymore; isn't that correct?

Mr. Drew That's right.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Drew, so that we can understand this situation: there is no district at the present time that has less than three judges; is that correct?

Mr. Drew That's correct.

Mr. De Blieux Therefore, some of the judges run at large, and some of them run by districts.

Mr. Drew Right.

Mr. De Blieux This would give the legislature the flexibility to make the adjustment as needed?

Mr. Drew That is correct, Senator De Blieux, and it's going to take an extensive study because of your overlapping periods of the terms, and if you had an at large judge from the same parish, say, that a judge from a district was elected...I mean, it's going to take a long time. It's nothing that we can do overnight, but it's something that will provide us the flexibility to do it in the future.

Mr. Arnette Mr. Drew, I think that you told Dr. Weiss that we had not done away with at large judgeships. Did you say that or not?

Mr. Drew As it is now set up, we are leaving the courts as they are...the courts of appeal as they are.

Mr. Arnette Well, Mr. Drew, I'd like to read to you from the adopted Judiciary Article which says, "after January 1, 1975, no judge shall be elected at large from within the circuit," which means we have done away with at large circuits after 1975. Your proposal seems to be exactly the opposite of that. Am I incorrect, or not?

Mr. Drew My recollection was that that was deleted, Mr. Arnette.

Mr. Arnette Well, I'm reading from the first enrollment.

Mr. Drew Are you talking about the courts of appeal?

Mr. Arnette I'm talking about the courts of appeals, Section 9. Courts of appeal, circuits, and districts--from the judiciary...this is the adopted first enrollment, which says we have done away with at large judgeships. So, is your idea entirely against something we've adopted, or not?

Mr. Drew My idea...I would be very much against that Mr. Arnette, for the reason that I don't think there's any way humanly possible to do it by 1975. There's no humanly way possible to do it.

[Motion to table the Substitute Motion rejected: 23-62.]

Further Discussion

Mrs. Miller Mr. Chariman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, Mr. Drew's proposal is a proposal to reopen the section on the courts of appeal. I think this is something that addresses to your very careful attention, because when you open that section, you can do violence to a great many things. But, the thing you will do the greatest violence to, under the Drew proposal, is the equal hand of justice in the State of Louisiana. Now, we are not bothered with this problem down in Orleans--the people in the Orleans Circuit. You now have before you, I think, a map of the State of Louisiana--has that been passed out by the pages? Alright. On that map, you see the four circuits of Louisiana: The First Circuit, Second Circuit, Third and Fourth. You only have the problem of judgeships at large in two of the circuits; that's up in the Shreveport area which is your circuit number two. You have the problem in the Third Circuit which you see on your map which is all the center section of Louisiana. You do not have any at large judgeships now in the Baton Rouge area. In fact, in Baton Rouge, you all specifically rejected the concept of judges at large. In Orleans Parish, you do not have any at large judgeships, and the concept of judges at large has been rejected. So, you're talking about only three judgeships where you have at large judges in the Third Circuit, and up in the First Circuit around Shreveport, you have five judges of whom two run at large. Now, Judge Tate told me that he's been approached by several judges who wanted to change this section. Well, I haven't been approached by but one judge who wanted to change the section, and I have been approached by one who knows...who has run at large. Both of these who've approached me have run at large. They know that when you give a judge in twenty-one parishes an at large judgeship, you've given him a life term, because who's going to take him on after he's been in there for ten or twelve years, and run against him? This convention saw fit to limit these judgeships to ten years so they will have to stand again for reelection, and I say when you run in twenty parishes as you...what I think the number is up in the Second Circuit--when you run in the Third Circuit in twenty-one parishes, and get a ten or twelve year term, you pretty well have it for life, because the judge would have to do something awfully unpopular for anyone to raise a quarter of a million dollars to run against him, and give up a district judgeship probably in the process. You're talking about only five judgeships at large. You're not going to really hurt anyone. The newest judge on the Third Circuit will go in January in a twelve year term. Surely, in twelve years he can make himself popular enough either in his own district or wherever he would have to run to seek reelection. You're not doing violence to anyone's term of office. Now, I've heard Judge Tate say that it gives the court stability; stability is the word I hear him use in the committee thing, to let these judges run at large because it kind of creates continuity. I'm saying you're giving him a life term, and this is exactly the concept that we have rejected for the Supreme Court judges, the district judges, and for all judges, is that we want them to stand and face the people every so many years. Now, I've heard the argument that it's easier to create judgeships when you let them at large. It was easier when the first one was created back when Judge Tate ran for it, because you did have a unique situation. But, when Judge Tate ran for it out in the Third Circuit, they didn't have twenty-one parishes, and the campaign cost was not as great. Now, we heard Mr. Jenkins yesterday talk about one of the problems on these districts that he was talking about yesterday, are campaign costs. It is a terrible burden for anyone to run in a third of the State of Louisiana. When you run in a third of the State of Louisiana, you either have to be very wealthy, and able to bear the campaign costs yourself, or you have to raise money--and I'll tell you, they don't give money for judges races like they do for congressional races and legislative races, because what can a good judge do for you in return--so the money comes from two sources, plaintiff attorneys, and defense attorneys. Do you want your judiciary to have to sell out to raise campaign funds, or do you want him to have to mortgage all his salary for his twelve year term of office...ten year term of office in order to meet the expenses. I think the Drew amendment is going to open up this Judicial Section again, and now is the time to kill it. I ask that you vote against the Drew amendment. I'll answer questions.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate Miller, isn't this just rehashing what the constitution has been over in regards to single member versus multiple districts for election of judges?

Mrs. Miller You're entirely right, Dr. Weiss. This would just open that up all over again, and here we are with very limited time to even do the work that's still before us.

Mr. Drew Ruth, speaking about the cost of campaign--and we were speaking of the second circuit there--do you think it's fair to require two judges to foot the cost of the campaigning in twenty parishes, and three in much smaller districts?

Mrs. Miller I think it is very unfair. Like on the Third Circuit, you have three judges who run in districts to six parishes, and you have three judges that run in twenty-one parishes, so you have three judges that may can do a campaign on twenty thousand dollars, and you've got three judges that have to mortgage their souls and life and income away, or they either have to raise the money from the bar to do it. So right on the Third Circuit alone, it's gross inequities that you have three judges that only have to run to six or seven parishes, and three that have to run for twenty-one parishes.

Mr. Drew Well, Ruth, you say that we would rehash a single member district. Doesn't this actually only give the legislature the right to look into it, and if it is feasible and advisable, then to go ahead and do it to adjust these inequities?

Mrs. Miller You will note under the committee proposal as it's been adopted by this convention, you've given the legislature a great deal of flexibility. You're not saying that you cannot combine two or three districts within the circuit which almost comes to the at large situation if they thought it was desirable. But, you are preventing them from creating such massive and huge circuits that it would be unfair to the people, because the people of Louisiana...they know in a campaign you cannot get to know people in a five or six weeks campaign period over twenty-one parishes unless you pour a massive amount of money into the campaign. In the Third Circuit you're talking about, right now, six T.V. stations, fifty small dailys and weeklys, six major newspapers, and over fifty radio stations, and all of those things have to be used, because if you leave one out, someone else gets mad at you. So, you're talking about a massive amount of money, and you're talking to somebody that's been through that game, and I know the name of the game.

Mr. Drew You're speaking of your at large judges there when you're speaking of all of that area, aren't you? You're referring to the at large judges from the Third Circuit; is that what you're referring to?

Mrs. Miller Well, and it's the same thing. Of course, now, on the Second Circuit, you only have two major cities with presently...with probably only two or three major T.V. stations, and fewer newspapers, of course. But, I just don't see how we can create unequal type judgeships. This has been something this convention overwhelmingly voted for, was to try to keep even handed justice and equal judges in the State of Louisiana.

Mr. Drew Well, just one more question, Ruth. I mean, to let judges run from similar size districts, you say that is unfair; that we're creating unequal areas, unequal judgeships, by giving them similar areas to run from?

Mrs. Miller Well, I definitely think when you have at large judgeships...the man that runs at large is not on the same footing with a man that runs in the district. He's not on it financially; he's not on it in any way.

Point of Information

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, my questions are directed to the Chair.

First, I think we'd all like to know this, Mr. Chairman, as they are coming up. One: To what extent will a delegate proposal reopen the section? Two: Will it be necessary to suspend the rules, or will the adoption of a delegate proposal simply amend the section? Three: Will a delegate proposal require sixty-seven votes, or only a majority as it will be amending a section?

Mr. Henry Dr. Asseff, yes, sir, I would think so.

Mr. Asseff Sir? You may hold it up, Mr. Chairman. We sooner or later, we will need a ruling from the Chair.

Mr. Henry Well, all the proposals are going to have to have sixty-seven votes. Now, these delegate proposals, as they come in, will be treated as a proposal that will be adopted. Then I would assume we're going to let you people on Style and Drafting come up with some idea as to where they will be placed in the order of the proposal that we find a complete...the overall proposed constitution, sir.

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, please don't leave it to Style and Drafting.

Mr. Henry Well, I've given that a great deal of thought, Dr. Asseff.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Miller Thank you. I hope you will defeat the Drew proposal.

Further Discussion

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in support of the motion to pass the Drew proposal to a third reading. The proposal...I'm not debating the merits of the proposal at the present time. I'm simply asking you to let this come to the convention and be voted on. It is necessary to discuss, just briefly, to let you know what the group proposal provides, and it would be particularly applicable to the Second Circuit where I reside. We have, as I understand it, we have frozen three separate districts into each of the courts of appeal circuits. But, in the Second Circuit we have two judges running at large, and they run over the entire twenty parishes that comprise the second circuit. Now, all that the Drew proposal will do would make it permissive to the legislature to redistrict that circuit, or any circuit, if necessary, so that an at large judge would be running from a district rather than from the whole circuit. In ours, for example, the Shreveport Circuit...the Shreveport district is the most populous district, and a judge running at large... the two at large judges will normally be elected from that particular area. It denies, as it is set up at the present time, it really denies equal representation to all residents of the circuit. I strongly urge that we pass the Drew amendment to third reading, and at least discuss the matter when the proper time comes. I ask you to support the Drew amendment by passing it to third reading. Are there any questions?

Questions

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Leigh, after listening to your argument, it would seem that you would be against Mr. Drew's amendment, because Mr. Drew's amendment allows the continuation of at large districts, and would allow one area to dominate others. Whereas, the way we have it written, we have, in effect, single member districts mandated after 1975; don't we?

Mr. Leigh I don't understand that. Frankly, Mr. Jenkins, I don't recall exactly the way the proposal was adopted in our previous work. But, I do think that all of the circuits should be districted and should have a separate district for each judge who is running in the circuit if that can be worked out by the legislature. My understanding of the proposal was, as adopted is that we mandate at least three districts, and the others would run at large. That's my understanding.

Mr. Jenkins No, sir. Do you realize, Mr. Leigh, that what we adopted says that after 1975, no judge shall be elected at large, so that requires that all new judges be elected from districts? Whereas, Mr. Drew's proposal would leave it up to the legislature, and we could continue to have at large elections for other than the first three judges.

Mr. Leigh Mr. Jenkins, I have to say to you very frankly that I have not reread the proposal that you are speaking of. I am strongly in favor of having separate districts within the circuit for each judge that's running within the circuit. This amendment...this proposal--as I have read Mr. Drew's proposal--would permit the legislature to establish that. Now, as far as I'm concerned, when the matter comes up, if we have adopted a proposal which mandates separate districts for each court of appeals judge, I would be in favor of that. But, I'm not clear on that, and I would like to see this at least brought to the floor again in order that we can make sure that that is the fact.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Well, I just want to make two points. It seems that Mr. Drew has offered this particular proposal so that the legislature will be allowed to make separate districts for these at-large judgeships. But, we have already adopted a section in the Judiciary Article that mandates--not allows, but mandates--separate districts. All you have to do is read your first enrollment of the Judiciary Article, Section 9, and it contains the sentence, the second sentence of Section 9 says "after January 1, 1975, no judge shall be elected from at-large within the district." It's very simple. It just says you can't have at-large judgeships at all, and I think this is what the convention wanted. We voted very much in favor of this, which brings me to my second point. If we're going to sit here and hash over and hash over these things over and over, and over again, something that not only the convention has already rejected, but the committee that the delegate proposal went to, submitted it back to this convention...reported it back without action, and then we're going to fight it on the floor today and then fight it on the floor tomorrow when it's brought up for its third reading, we're going to waste time, and waste time, and waste time. So I urge you to vote against this, and don't replot this same ground. It's getting into pretty late November now; we've got to get finished with this thing. If there are no speakers, I move the previous question.

Further Discussion

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, brother and sister delegates, I will speak very, very shortly and sit down, but I want to point out to you and ask you to consider what we are asking you to do. We are simply asking you to pass on Representative Drew's amendment on to third reading so that if and when the convention can get to the delegate proposals on the calendar, you will have the opportunity to restore to the legislature the option they have now of adding new judgeships to the Courts of Appeal by adding them at large. I would just have to tell you this: in the convention's deliberations, without much discussion, we provided only that the legislature can have at large judges. We didn't say that they can have twenty parish judges. We didn't say that they must have single-member districts; there can be two or three to a district. We didn't say a lot of things. All we said is that we took away from the legislature the option--when you have a new judgeship needed for a Court of Appeal circuit--we took away the option of providing that he be elected at large through the entire circuit so that everybody would have a chance to vote for that new judge rather than either adding him to a district--one of the districts which would have a population imbalance, for instance, Lafayette has four hundred thousand, I believe; Lake Charles, three hundred thousand; Alexandria, three hundred thousand. You add two judges to one of those districts, there's disproportionate representation. It's true we don't need proportionate representation, but simple fairness does that. You have that alternative either to give one district more judges than its people...the number of people are entitled to, or two, you set off a political cat and dog fight. What sort of district are you going to create? The district you create--the legislature creates--now is out. Everyone else in the circuit, but only those favored people in that parish have the opportunity to adopt a judge--to elect a judge. Now, all we're asking is to preserve that option. The legislature has had that option since '58. They adopted it because after two years of study by the Judicial Council and the Law Institute they found that was the only way that they could meet the objections of redistricting that were involved when they found out they needed five judges instead of three. In the long run I anticipate--just as in the First Circuit and in the Fourth Circuit--eventually the judges were passed into the district. But, this just gives the legislature the option. All we're asking you is to give yourselves the option, if and when you have time--if and when you have time after we finish the committee proposals--to reconsider a matter that we think needs study.

Questions

Mrs. Miller My good friends, Justice Tate, isn't

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

it true that under the at large judgeship system when we were going to redistribute this population imbalance we ended up with three judges on the Court of Appeal from the Lake Charles area? Answer that, Judge Tate, please.

Mr. Tate My good friend, Mrs. Miller, I'd be glad to. The majority of the million people in the circuit chose...

Mrs. Miller You didn't answer my question, Judge Tate.

Mr. Tate Choose three judges, including your husband and Judge Watson, later, from the Third Circuit--from the Lake Charles area. But, that was a million people who thought they were the best men. They looked at who was the best man, and your husband, incidentally, is a very great judge.

Mrs. Miller You were talking...weren't you talking about and you were mentioning that the reason for the at large judgeship is to give flexibility so that the population imbalances can be adjusted, yet, with the at large judgeship you ended up with three judges from Lake Charles area--my husband, Judge Savoy, and Judge Hood. Then, when the people had another opportunity to vote on an at large judgeship, they didn't solve the population imbalance; they still ended up with three from the Lake Charles area--Judge Miller Judge Watson, and Judge Hood, now. So, your argument is wrong.

Mr. Tate Well, in answer to your question...

Mrs. Miller I hate to contradict a Supreme Court Justice.

Mr. Tate In answer to your question, Mrs. Miller, I'm just speaking as a man who served as an at large judge for ten years. For the good of the system--I have no personal interest in the thing--but for the good of the system, I think we should give the legislature the option, if and when we can get to it.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Substitute Motion to engross and pass to its third reading adopted: 71-27. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. Poynter One more, Mr. Chairman. Also, from the committee, Delegate Proposal No. 43, introduced by Delegates Johnny Jackson, Gauthier, et al.

A proposal for providing for juvenile courts having exclusive original jurisdiction with the exception for offenses of murder, aggravated kidnapping, armed robbery, or aggravated rape.

Comes from the Committee on the Judiciary. Reported without action.

[Motion to withdraw Delegate Proposal No. 43 from the files of the Convention. Substitute Motion to engross and pass to its third reading.]

Explanation

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as you recall, approximately a little over a month ago we discussed the...in the Judiciary Article constitutionality of juvenile courts. As a result of the close vote of this convention by four votes--four or five votes--an amendment failed that would have given constitutional sanction to the juvenile courts as we have given it to the district courts, courts of appeal, and the Supreme Court, and to some degree, to mayor's courts and justice of the peace courts. So, as a result of that, a delegate proposal which was just the same amendment--and we're right at the deadline--was introduced as a delegate proposal and sent to the Committee on the Judiciary. Because of the problems that the committee had had--particularly on the final hearing of that delegate proposal--because of the problems that they had, and they couldn't get a quorum. On Wednesday they accommodated me by saying, "We'll let your proposal out without recommendation." The feeling was that the committee would possibly never get a quorum, and ultimately, any sort of fair hearing to attempt to address themselves to the reservations by the delegates of this convention and some delegates on that Judiciary Committee would not materialize. So, therefore the committee, in order to accommodate, asked that it come out to the floor, and asked me would I take my chances on the floor. I agreed. I would like to suggest to you that I did pass out before you a letter from the judges of the Orleans Parish Juvenile Court which states very clearly their reservations concerning our present provisions as they deal with juvenile court. Now, I'm not asking you here this morning to argue the merits or demerits of Delegate Proposal No. 43. But, I do feel that so crucial an issue which is going to affect a large segment of our population--and particularly the future generations of this state--ought to have at least as much debate, criticism, and concern as we have given every article and delegate proposal. So, I'm not asking you, here, by your vote now, to say that you are for retention or you are against it. I'm saying that allow us to pass this on to the third reading, to allow us not to have this proposal to be withdrawn from the files of the House. I do not understand, and I cannot envision any proposal--whether I like it or don't like it--failing to get as much consideration as possible because we cannot maintain various quorums. I think this is a very cruciary, [sic.] and you know that I have, for the longest, attempt to relate to you my concerns--not about maintaining juvenile offenders who commit heinous crimes, but I want you, on this vote, to think about those youngsters which is in...which are in the majority who do not commit heinous crimes like murder, aggravated rape, or robberies; but those who may get in a fight and decide...and will be...and as a result would be subject to criminal courts and all the kinds of ramifications therefor. So, I ask that you allow this delegate proposal to be passed on to its third reading, at which time when it comes up for debate--and I think it will come up at a time where we can best attempt to address ourselves to this problem--then you can vote your conscience, one way or another, whether you're for the retention or you're against the retention. I ask your favorable adoption.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the substitute motion to pass this to third reading. I urge you to vote against that motion, and to let this proposal be withdrawn from the files of the House. You will recall that the Judiciary Committee, in its committee proposal, recommended to you a very simple proposition with regard to juvenile courts. We recommended that you adopt a section which simply said that "The juvenile and family court shall have such jurisdiction as the legislature shall provide by law." You adopted that simple statement. The reasons we recommended that simple statement to you--as I told you when we were presenting the Judiciary Article--is that there are many differences of opinion as to how old a person ought to be when he is treated as a juvenile. We are in a period of great social change in our society. Some people think that incorrigible juveniles ought to be referred to the adult courts; others think that they should not be. There are all kinds of differences of opinion, and things are changing from day to day. So, we felt it best to leave this type of decision in the hands of the legislature so that they could study it and treat it in a detailed and thorough fashion, and be able to change it and not have it frozen in the constitution. You will also recall that Delegate Johnny Jackson attempted to amend this on not one, but several occasions. One of the amendments he attempted to get you to pass was the same thing as this delegate proposal. He had other amendments which were, I believe, even more damaging to the Judiciary

Article in that they interfered with what we had done in enabling the legislature to work toward a uniform and consistent court system. He has just said to you on this microphone that if you pass this to the third reading, he's going to seek to amend this delegate proposal in the same fashion that he sought to do on the floor, which I would be even more opposed to because it will interfere with the big thing we have done in this Judiciary Article: that is, give the legislature the power to work toward a more comprehensive, consistent court system, and perhaps do away with the crazy quilt work of local courts that we have in this state, at some time in the future. The convention...the Judiciary Committee has considered this on not one, but three occasions. We recommended a simple statement to you. It was debated fairly and fully and for a long period of time on the floor, and you saw fit to sustain the committee and to adopt this statement leaving the juvenile jurisdiction to the legislature. I ask you to do this again this morning, and let's go on with our business. Vote against passing this delegate proposal on to third reading because you will only reopen the matter that we have already debated, considered and decided.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Judge Dennis, did I understand Delegate Jackson correctly when he said that this is the identical amendment that we previously voted on?

Mr. Dennis I didn't hear everything he said because someone was talking to me, but it is, I believe, identical to one of the amendments he offered. He offered more than one while we were debating this on the floor. One of them did just this. Another one did this, plus, in my estimation, interfered with the scheme that we had come up with for court structure. So, I'm opposed to both of them, and the latter even more than the first one.

Mr. Lanier But, what I'm getting at is...

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir, I believe you are right. Yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier Would it be correct to say that we have voted on this thing already, and it's been decided?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir; that's my point.

Mr. Jenkins Judge Dennis, in other words, you want us to go ahead and kill this particular proposal because it's been dealt with, as I understand it? Is that correct?

Mr. Dennis That's right, sir.

Mr. Jenkins Now, let me ask you one other question, too. In the legislature this last session, the legislature tried to deal with the juvenile problem, but because of the stringent constitutional provisions with regard to jurisdiction, we were unable to. The governor vetoed our bill on constitutional grounds. Wouldn't the committee proposal, as it stands, allow the legislature to deal with the juvenile problem, sufficiently, without all these burdensome provisions in the constitution?

Mr. Dennis That is our intention. I am not familiar enough with the legislation you passed to know whether this actually removes the particular constitutional objection that he used for the basis of his veto. But, the general idea here is to leave this problem to the legislature because the committee felt that it was extremely complicated in an area of great social change, and that we were not competent enough to freeze something in the constitution detailing the juvenile jurisdiction of the court, and that we ought to leave this to the legislature.

Further Discussion

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I abide by your wishes to expedite the matters of this convention. I shall speak briefly and to the point. Judge Dennis sits on the district court, and the district court's jurisdiction is spelled out in the constitution. Justice Tate sits on the Supreme Court; his jurisdiction is spelled out in the constitution. Mrs. Miller's husband sits on the court of appeal, and his jurisdiction is spelled out in the constitution. There's no justification for not spelling out the jurisdiction of the juvenile courts. It's not going to hurt the district courts because under the constitution, they sit as a juvenile court. They're going to have to do that work anyway, but the protection that we will afford by a specific constitutional amendment or a provision is to allow the Orleans Juvenile Court and the Caddo Juvenile Court to continue. It's not going to affect the other district courts because they've got to handle the problem regardless of their age, one way or the other. They sit either as a juvenile court or as a district court. I ask your favorable consideration to Delegate Jackson's proposal, to allow it to remain open for your further consideration. I appreciate the time and the indulgence you've given me to make these remarks.

[2418]

Questions

Mr. Dennis Bob, I know you didn't intend to mislead anyone, and I'd just like to ask a question in clarification. You are aware, aren't you, that in Section 15 of the Judiciary Article--which is a different section than we are dealing with here--we said that "the district, parish, magistrate, city, family, and juvenile courts existing at the time of the adoption of this constitution are retained"? You are aware that that does take care of the juvenile courts and retains them as they are now?

Mr. Pugh It gives them absolutely no jurisdiction, and you know it, and I know it. All it allows them to do is the same judges will continue to sit. Insofar as the juvenile courts are concerned, if the legislature shall decide we won't have them, then you won't have the judge to go with it because he won't have an office to run to. Nothing in...

Mr. Dennis Then I'd like to ask you this, Bob: are you aware that the Judiciary Committee intended by this and is of the opinion that this retains every one of these courts intact with its present jurisdiction and powers? That is the reason we put this in here. If it doesn't do that, then all of these other courts have not been retained.

Mr. Pugh Are you trying to tell me, Judge Dennis, that you didn't spell out the jurisdiction for the district courts? Are you trying to tell me you didn't spell out the jurisdiction for the courts of appeal and for the Supreme Court?

Mr. Dennis We didn't spell out the jurisdiction of the parish, magistrate, city, family and juvenile courts because we did not intend them to be constitutional courts. We intended the district, court of appeal and Supreme Courts to be the only constitutional courts in the constitution. The rest of it we intend for the legislature to be able to merge into the three level court system, if it wants to in the future. This is the point I've been trying to make, over and over and over. This is the big thing we have done in this Judiciary Article, and if you come back and undo it, you're undoing the only real reform step we have made. Do you understand what I'm saying now?

Mr. Pugh I understand that you're saying that you want to put it in the posture where the legislature can abolish the juvenile courts--I got that message.

Mr. Dennis Do you understand I'm not saying that we will abolish the juvenile court function, just like I, now, sit as a juvenile judge? By the way, I want you to be aware that I do juvenile work; I sit as a juvenile judge. I'm not...

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Pugh Judge Dennis, I've written two books on this subject. I know...

Mr. Dennis I just want to ask this question: do you realize, Bob, that we are not leaving it open for the legislature to do away with juvenile court functions? These can be performed by district courts, just as I, as a district judge, perform juvenile court functions. We are simply saying that if the legislature wants to, in the future, it can establish a consistent three level court system and have divisions of the district court which do juvenile work, family work, criminal work, civil work, and all kinds of work. Do you understand that, sir?

Mr. Pugh Yes, Judge Dennis, I drew the acts by which you sit as a juvenile court.

Mr. Jenkins Isn't it true, Mr. Pugh, that under Delegate Jackson's proposal that if a person one day under the age of seventeen committed the crime of attempted murder, that the worst that could happen to him under this provision is that he'd be sent to L.T.I. or some similar provision until about his eighteenth birthday and then would be released?

Mr. Pugh There is that possibility.

Mr. Jenkins Isn't that a certainty, not a possibility?

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, we debated this issue thoroughly already. The reason we didn't spell out the jurisdiction in the proposal for juvenile courts was with this day and time, it may be we would want to lower the age limit below seventeen. There's so much crime in this country today that's committed by people under seventeen, so many robberies where people are not killed in them, but are ruined for life. There's been connections by juveniles in mass killings that a murder charge would not stand up, but they played a big part in the robberies and the other connected things that wouldn't make them a principal and guilty of murder that we thought it best to make this flexible and leave it up to the legislature to set the jurisdiction. It's not lowering the importance of the juvenile court at all. Now, the material that was laid on our desks about juvenile judges--talking about the clause in the proposal that was adopted that they could be abolished--I agree with them. If Mr. Jackson had his proposal cut down to where they couldn't be abolished by the legislature, I'd support that. But, I cannot support his proposal as is to set in the constitution, to use the fancy words, "lock it in there, close the door", for this flexible change of time that's going on. So, I say, it's not a question of a courtesy to be extended to allow these bills in. Now, if it's something that is a delegate proposal that hadn't been here before, that's a different matter. But, this took up a lot of our times. I remember, definitely, numerous people talking on it, so, I'm going to vote against this.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I am deeply regretful of the fact that we are attempting to discuss the merits and demerits of Delegate Proposal No. 43. I said very clearly when I got up here on the platform: I'm saying whether you're against it or for it--I'm not asking you to vote your convictions here today--I'm asking you to allow us to pass it on to the third reading. If there was a quorum in the Judiciary Committee on Wednesday, we could have settled it there. There were ten members, but they did not...they could not stay to hear the whole proposal, even the members that we had planned to introduce to reserve whatever objections that people had. I'm not asking you to stay here and say you're for juveniles who commit armed robberies, but I do want to say this in response to those kinds of arguments that have attempted to cloud the issue: what about that ninety percent of youngsters that don't commit those crimes? Even in the delegate proposal, if you're concerned about armed robberies, I'll put it in there, and it was not in the prior constitutional provision; it was a statutory law. I'm saying to you that the juvenile court system--and I just found that out recently--is America's only contribution to the judicial system of the world--America's only contribution--and here we are not willing to allow us to debate it. I'm saying to you very clearly, I wouldn't even come back to you with this issue if the convention wasn't so closely divided. If the committee would have finalized this hearing on it, I wouldn't 'cause they could have voted it out unfavorably, or they could have tabled it in the committee so you wouldn't have to do it. If they would have met, you probably wouldn't discuss...be discussing this. As Mr. Pugh said, I passed to you a letter from my judges. My judges have said very emphatically their position on legislative action. But, see, that comes down the road when we discuss the merits of the delegate proposal as proposed to be amended. But, I also want to say, you know, when I'm talking about this is that on Wednesday I met with representatives--black youngsters and white youngsters--from the Baton Rouge area--from Valley Forge High, Catholic High, Istrouma, etc. Mr. Lowe gave me, this morning, a class project which includes numerous letters expressing concern. The letters don't say, "Mr. Lowe, I want you to vote for Delegate Proposal No. 43." It says very clearly, "Mr. Lowe, would you vote to pass it on to its third reading?" Mr. Lowe...well, in talking to the youngsters, themselves, they are concerned because they recognize that they may be subjected whether they get in a fight at school, they may be subjected to going before district court, having a record, and being charged with aggravated battery because they were fighting at school. In closing, I say to you very clearly, I'm not asking you here to vote your convictions on the juvenile court. I'm just merely asking you to give fair consideration of it. I suggest to you that there are too many people--not only bad, but good--can be affected if this proposal--this last opportunity--is withdrawn from the files of the House. For those who are interested in what the legislature did last year, I've got all the acts here. I would like to point out to you that Act 36 that did not pass... said that all juvenile records will be open to the public, not for court purposes, not for D.A. purposes, but just to let somebody come in there and criticize or castrate [sic.] youngsters, no matter what...

[Record vote ordered. Substitute Motion adopted: 57-49. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 7, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee of Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee.

Mr. Chairman, the status of the proposal the convention has adopted, as amended, Sections 1 through 4, 6 through 9, and 11, and 12. Next section will be Section 13... additionally has voted to delete from the proposal, Sections 5 and 10, respectfully.

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter "Section 13. Recognition of Existing Boards and Systems; Consolidation.

Section 13. (A) Recognition of Boards and Systems. Parish and city school board systems, in existence on the effective date of this constitution, by virtue of special or local legislative acts or previous constitutional provisions, are hereby recognized, subject to control by and supervision of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education and the power of the legislature to enact laws affecting them.

(B) Consolidation. Two or more school systems may be consolidated under procedures enacted by the legislature, subject to approval of a majority of the qualified electors voting in each system affected in an election called for that purpose."

Explanation

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the title of this section pretty clearly describes the provisions. It...to go into detail a little bit, it clearly provides for the recognition of the parish and city school board systems in existence on the effective date of this constitution, whether by virtue of a special or local legislative acts or previous constitutional provisions and are subject to control by and supervision of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education and the power of legislature to enact laws affecting them. It has...this pretty well tracks the present provisions of the constitution. You will recall that in a previous section it has been previously established that the state board shall have no control over the business affairs, or the selection, or the removal of officers or employees--that is in Section 4 (A). Now...for... this "13 (B)" provides for consolidation of two or more school systems, which may be brought about by...under procedures enacted by the legislature, whereby the majority of the qualified electors voting in each system affected is necessary to accomplish that purpose.

Mr. Chairman, I will be happy to answer any questions or get to answer any questions.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Amendments

Mr. Poynter The first...the Wall amendment that's being offered at this time is a group of two amendments--Amendment No. 1 and Amendment No. 2--Wall, Ginn, Kilpatrick, Henry, and Warren.

Amendment No. 1. On page B, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

"(B) Ouachita Parish and Monroe City School Systems. The territorial jurisdiction and the ad valorem taxing jurisdiction of the Ouachita Parish School Board shall be the parish of Ouachita excluding the area within the city limits of the city of Monroe as existing on the effective date of this constitution. The territorial jurisdiction and the ad valorem taxing jurisdiction of the Ouachita Parish School Board may be changed only by the legislature or by the separate majority vote of each of the following: (1) electors within the jurisdiction of the Ouachita Parish School Board is defined herein and (2) electors within the territorial and ad valorem taxing jurisdiction of the Monroe City School Board, which encompasses the area within the city limits of the city of Monroe as existing on the effective date of this constitution.

The provisions of this Paragraph shall be operative notwithstanding anything in this constitution to the contrary."

Amendment No. 2. On page B, between lines 6 and 7, insert the following:

"(B) Ouachita Parish and Monroe City School Systems, board membership. Only persons residing within the jurisdiction of the Monroe City School Board shall be eligible to vote for or be members of the Monroe City School Board. Only persons residing in that portion of Ouachita Parish outside the jurisdiction of the Monroe City School Board shall be eligible to vote for or be members of the Ouachita Parish School Board. Any member of either board...

[Motion to waive reading of the Amendment adopted without objection.]

Point of Information

Mr. Kean Just a question of the Chair. Both of these Subsections (B) are on page B, between lines

6 and 7. Are they supplementary to each other? If you adopt Amendment No. 1 and reject Amendment No. 2, you end up with something different or what? I don't understand the way it's drawn.

Mr. Henry The alternative proposition, as I appreciate it...we're going to have a division of the question on this, as I appreciate it, Mr. Kean.

Mr. Wall, now you're going to have trouble every time somebody asks a question, if you've got to run out individually and explain it to them.

Explanation

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is a constitutional issue. This is one that we must settle in this convention and must be settled in this constitutional convention and this instrument that we're going to draft. We've had these injustices going on in the city of Monroe and parish of Ouachita for many, many years. The first one has to do with the boundaries of the parish and city school systems. Presently, when the city of Monroe expands its boundaries, the school board even though it's a separate entity and a separate body, it automatically expands with it without regard to the parish school system. Now, what makes this really bad is the thing that my second amendment corrects. We have a city school system that has six members, they are all elected from within the city. They don't elect any of them from out in Ouachita Parish. Outside of the city the people don't go to the city school system. Outside of the city, the people don't pay the ad valorem tax to the city school system, and they don't vote on the members of city school board; they shouldn't vote on them and they shouldn't be elected from out in the parish on the city school board. But, here is where the catch is, the parish school board is also made up of six members. You know where half of that board comes from? The city of Monroe where for years and years these people that serve on that board and they dominate the parish school board, their children do not go to the parish schools. Their personal, their own children, the one that they clothe and feed and shelter do not go to the parish school system yet, they tell the rest of the parish how they are going to run the parish schools. Furthermore, the people that elect them, their children do not go to the parish school system. Furthermore, the people that elect them, taxes don't go to support the parish school system. Now, tell me how, tell me how, tell me how a person that will not send his children to a system, the people that elects him don't send their children to that school system, and the people that elect him don't pay the taxes to support that school system--how can he have the same interest in that school system as a person that where he personally sends his children to the school system he represents and the people that elect him send their children to that system. The people that elect him pay taxes to support that system. You have three people on the parish school board from the city of Monroe. Their interest...I don't say they are not good people, I don't say they haven't contributed to education. But, they can't have the same interest as the person in the parish has in that school system. So, three people, all they've got to do is to deal with one of those members from out in the parish and say, "We'll give you the principal you want at such and such a school," and they have four votes. They dominate the president of the school board. They dominate the spending of the money. They dominate all the things for all the people out in the parish that are paying the way--sending their children to the schools--yet, the people who elect them have none of these things in common. Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'm going to have more to say in closing on this. But, this has to be corrected by this body. It's a great injustice, and I plead with you to help correct this injustice. I'll answer any questions.

Questions

Mr. Hayes Mr. Wall, you said only persons that appear here that were residing in the city of Monroe at the time the constitution was adopted. Now, I wonder what would happen if they would extend the city limits of Monroe just a few feet. Would you need a constitutional amendment for these people to participate?

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Wall I don't quite understand you, Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes As I understand here, it says "electors within the territorial and ad valorem taxing jurisdiction of the Monroe City School Board, which encompasses the area within the city limits of the city of Monroe as existing on the effective date of this constitution." Would you explain that... whatever that means?

Mr. Wall It says...it means just exactly what it says, Mr. Hayes. I don't see how it could be any plainer that...

Mr. Hayes Well, I'm saying that they could move the city limits of Monroe. Do you follow me now?

Mr. Wall Yes. They could move the city limits of Monroe.

Mr. Hayes ...and, what happens then?

Mr. Wall Well, when they moved the city limits of Monroe legally, they move the city limits of Monroe...the limits are extended.

Mr. Hayes But, it would not be as existing at the time you adopt the constitution; this is what I can't overcome.

Mr. Wall No, it wouldn't be the same as at that time.

Mr. Hayes As it existed when...

Mr. Wall But, the city limits of Monroe could be extended.

Mr. Hayes Right.

Mr. Wall ...and, this was not affect...has no affect on the extension of the city limits of Monroe...but to no affect. But, for the school board to extend their city limits, they would have to go through a procedure of getting the people to vote to go in, or either to...it would have to be specific as to the city school board, would have to get a vote or either get the legislature.

Mr. Hayes The school board could not extend with the city limits of Monroe, it would have to stay the same.

Mr. Wall Yes, they could...but, it wouldn't be automatic.

Mr. Hayes I see.

Mr. Wall They could, but it would not be automatic. Nothing prohibits them from it, but it would not be automatic.

Mr. Womack Mr. Wall, was you really serious when you came down and suggested that we don't ask the speaker any questions on this that we hold all of them for you?

Mr. Wall Thank you, Mr. Womack.

Mr. Abraham Shady, is it necessary that we spell all of this out in the constitution? Doesn't Paragraph (B) of the committee proposal place this in the hands of the legislature and could it not be handled statutorially?

Mr. Wall No, it can't be handled statutorially, Mr. Abraham.

Mr. Abraham Why not?

Mr. Wall There are many reasons, I'll give them to you on my closing.

Mr. Abraham Well, but...but, constitutionally does not this provide...the proposal provide that the legislature can handle this type of thing--in about four lines it says the legislature can merge school systems?

Mr. Wall Mr. Abraham, there's several reasons it can't be handled by the legislature. One of them is: we don't know all the provisions that will be in this constitution, or the present constitution that cannot be handled by the legislature because of the provision that where municipality has over so many...a certain percentages of the voters they have representation. Another thing, is the practical matter of the north side of Monroe is the rich people and they dominate the situation...the financial power structure, political power structure and it would be impractical to try to get it through both houses of legislature; they would dominate the Senate where it would never get through there.

Mr. Burns Shady, we're sent up here supposedly to draw a short, concise constitution. Can't you do what you want to do without putting a whole page in the new constitution?

Mr. Wall No, I can't Mr. Burns. It's specific that when you have special districts like New Orleans has some, and like Washington Parish has a special school board, you have to have a provision for it in here, Mr. Burns.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Wall, I got two amendments on my desk here. One that's sponsored by you and others who, I believe are from Ouachita Parish or have Ouachita in their district. Another one by Judge Dennis and two others who, I believe, live in Monroe. They don't appear to be the same. Would it be correct to say that you all are having a family squabble up there?

Mr. Wall I wouldn't exactly say that. We just have a political problem, an injustice that we have to get corrected, Mr. Lanier. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to both of these amendments. I am unalterably and strenuously opposed to Amendment No. 1. Amendment No. 2, I'm also opposed to but not nearly as strongly as No. 1. I would like to address most of my remarks on No. 1 at this time. However, both amendments, there is nothing in either amendment that could not be handled statutorially. Both amendments present to you what I think is a local problem that could be dealt with by the legislature. Amendment No. 1, aside from being statutory material, is an unfair amendment. It is a bad amendment even if it were in the legislature, I could not vote for it because what it does, ladies and gentlemen, is, it freezes the taxing jurisdiction of the city of Monroe--not the city school board--it freezes the taxing jurisdiction of the city of Monroe for purposes of financing the schools in Monroe. Now, I'll have to bore you with a little history. Monroe, the city Monroe, got its charter back in about 1900 and in that charter it was authorized to operate, finance, and own a school system. In 1948, the operation of the school system was taken out of the city of Monroe and put in the Monroe City School Board. But, the financing, the power to tax and to issue bonds, and to do all of the financial things that are required to finance a school system were left in the city of Monroe. So, that if you pass this amendment which makes it...going to make it very difficult for the city of Monroe to use its full tax base to finance its schools, you are, in effect, going to strangulate, and I predict, ultimately kill what is now a viable school system within the city of Monroe. The Monroe City School System and the Ouachita Parish School System are both good systems, and they have flourished through competition--healthy competition--because they have both been healthy enough to carry on a good school system. But, if you say to the city of Monroe, that for purposes of running the schools there, "You can't grow like you would normally grow with the rest of the city." You are restricting the schools to one portion of the city for its tax, ad valorem taxes. If the property in that area deteriorates, which some of it has already deteriorated, like most of our downtown centers, the Monroe downtown area is going down, down, down. We're trying to correct it with urban renewal, but if that doesn't work, and we can't let the tax base that supports this school system grow out into the other commercial areas that are being established out along the interstate highway. You're going to end up with a weak, underfinanced court system...excuse me, school system in the city. You're going to have a strong system out in the parish. This is unhealthy, and I predict will lead to the ultimate death of the Monroe City School System. During the period while it's dying, there are going to be a lot of people, a lot of children--black and white--we have a fifty-fifty system in the city of Monroe. You're going to have a lot of children, black and white... because of this underfinanced weaken condition. Now, on Amendment No. 2, I will be the first to admit that perhaps there is an injustice in allowing the citizens of Monroe to elect one-half of the Ouachita Parish School Board. But, I believe, that this solution that Mr. Wall has could be accomplished statutorially and it could be accomplished in a better manner than he's done it. He has given you the most simple solution. But, it still leaves some injustices because while most of the people in the city of Monroe send their children to the Monroe City School System, there are twenty-five hundred children from Monroe who go to the parish system. My point is that the people of Monroe while they do not have as direct an interest in the parish school system as the people who live out in the parish. They do have an interest, because they do send some of their children to it. They do pay taxes to protect through fire and police some of the parish school buildings, which are located in the city. All of us in the parish pay sales taxes which finance both of these systems. Most of the sales taxes are collected in the commercial centers in Monroe. So, I don't know what the answer on No. 2 is. It is my position that that should be dealt with statutorily. But, maybe there is an injustice there, but that it could be corrected by the legislature. But, on No. 1, that wouldn't be good anywhere; that would be unfair. It would deal a death blow to the Monroe City School System and not allow for a consolidation of it or anything else. In other words, you would have to go through a weakened...dying period before anything would ever be done to finally correct the solution. So, I ask you to vote against both of these amendments, but especially Amendment No. 1.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Judge Dennis, I'm looking at these two amendments that I have here; its got yourself, Mr. Leigh, and Reverend Stovall. I believe you all live inside the city of Monroe; is that right?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir; that's correct.

Mr. Lanier ...and, I'm looking at these folks who are on this other amendment. I believe they live outside the city of Monroe; is that right?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir. The delegates on Mr. Wall's amendment, except Mrs. Warren, represent basically the areas outside of the city limits in Ouachita Parish. They don't all live there, but their delegate areas represent most of the area outside of the city limits of Monroe.

Mr. Lanier Apparently there is a squabble going on up there between the people in the city of Monroe and the people outside the city of Monroe in Ouachita Parish, is that right?

Mr. Dennis Well, there are hard feelings by people out in the parish about these members...about half of the school board being elected from within Monroe and Monroe having a competing school system. There are hard feelings and, as I said, I would be the first to admit that that is problem. On Amendment No. 2, I don't say it doesn't have some merit. I'm saying that it's statutory material. But, on Amendment No. 1, I think that is unfair wherever you put it--in the statutes, or ordinance, or in the constitution--because it's going to weaken and kill a viable school system, the Monroe City School System. It's going to say "Monroe City School System, you are divorced from the city of Monroe. You can no longer grow with it. You cannot plight your future with it. You cannot project your future with it. You can't depend on the tax base of the city of Monroe to support you any more. You are going to be crammed into whatever district you now live in."

Mr. Lanier Would you agree with Mr. Abraham's observation that this squabble could be settled by the legislature pursuant to the Subparagraph (B) of Section 13?

Mr. Dennis I haven't looked at it carefully, Mr. Lanier, to give you a specific section. But, as I said earlier, I think both matters could be done statutorily, but, I would not be in favor of No. 1 being done anywhere.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The gentleman [Mr. Wall] sends up further amendments. What he has in effect done, withdrawn and stricken Amendment No. 1 on that page and made Amendment No. 2, Amendment No. 1. So, what he submits is, in effect, that second amendment on the printed sheet as the sole amendment--deleting the first paragraph there and setting forth the old Amendment No. 1; old Amendment No. 2 becomes Amendment No. 1 and the only amendment.

Explanation

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this amendment is what was Amendment No. 2. It corrects the greatest injustice being done in Ouachita Parish and it has to be corrected here. So, I withdraw Amendment No. 1. I also have another amendment up there that I'm not going to bring it before the convention. This is the only one that I plan on bringing before the convention as to correcting the situation there. I want to point out one thing, when you have special school districts--like Bogalusa, and like Monroe City School System, and Ouachita Parish and city--you have to spell out and call it by name because if we didn't, if we said something--just school boards--it would effect Bogalusa, so, it has to be Ouachita Parish just like you have a special district in New Orleans or Bogalusa schools; it has to be spelled out. I'm just going with the No. 2 Amendment on your sheet.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennis Fellow delegates...Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, it's understanding now that Mr. Wall has withdrawn this amendment. I understand from conversation that he will withdraw his other amendment that he has--not in this one, there's a separate amendment on the tax boundary, freezing the tax boundary of the city of Monroe. As I told you earlier, that is the main source of my opposition to him. I appreciate, very much, his and the other coauthors withdrawing this amendment, because I think it would have been devastating to the Monroe City School System. I still cannot personally join in supporting his other amendment because, first of all, I have a very high personal regard for the three citizens of Monroe--Mr. Clem Toastum, Mrs. Marie Louis Snellings, Dr. Henry Hammonds, who are

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

...serving on the Ouachita Parish School Board, so, I cannot vote for this amendment or support it for that reason and for the reason that I told you earlier that it is statutory and could be dealt with in the legislature. However, in fairness to Mr. Wall and the other delegates, I will admit that there is a problem. I simply don't think it should be dealt with here or in this manner, because I do think that while the citizens of Monroe don't have as direct an interest in the Ouachita Parish School System, as the people outside of Monroe, they do have an interest, as I explained to you earlier. This improves immeasurably Mr. Wall's proposal, and I want to admit that frankly, it does not...I simply, personally cannot vote for it or support it. I would ask you to search your conscience and ask yourself whether this ought to be in the constitution.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Judge Dennis, do you think under the law there would be any prohibition whatsoever with the legislature enacting a law similar to this, if this was not in the constitution, I mean?

Mr. Dennis One just like this? I don't think so, but I haven't really researched the law from a constitutional standpoint.

Mr. Bollinger Don't you think one of the greatest problems this convention has made for the past months is we have been legislating, rather than constitutionalizing?

Mr. Dennis At times we've done that; at times, we've done very well; at times you have to make compromises. I would not make this one, personally.

Mr. Henry Would you yield to a question from Mr. Ginn?

Mr. Ginn Judge, I'm a little bit concerned here. Can we really handle this in the leg...could this be statutory?

Mr. Dennis This right here could be...

Mr. Ginn How could it be handled?

Mr. Dennis Statutory...I don't know how you could...I'll have to admit, frankly, I don't know how you could draft a statute that would give representation to the people in Monroe on the parish board and still comport with the one man-one vote principle and diminish the representation. Here's what I'm saying--there is...Mr. Wall's proposal has merit in that Monroe is now electing three of six board members and perhaps that's giving too many to Monroe because, generally, the people of Monroe send their children to the city school system and generally they do not pay any property tax. This is the inequity he's talking about. I thought about trying to come up with something that would give Monroe one vote out of six. But, then you run into the problem of...does that...will that pass muster under the one man-one vote principle of the U.S. Constitution. So, I frankly have to admit to you, I don't have the answer for a statute in the legislature. But, I would rather pass it to the legislature and let them grope with the problem, because I think they have more time. But, I frankly, I'll have to admit to you, I don't have the answer, Mr. Ginn.

Mr. Leigh Mr. Dennis, I just simply wanted to ask --you are aware that I concur in what you have been saying from the podium there?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir. As I understand it, you and I were pretty much of the same view that Amendment No. 1 was a real bad amendment and that it would have been detrimental to the Monroe City School System and that reasonable men could disagree on the latter. But, we think it's statutory and Mr. Wall thinks it has to be dealt with in the constitution.

Mr. Leigh Thank you.

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Dennis, wouldn't Section (B) under committee proposal...wouldn't it have a tendency to take care of this, sir--Section (B) Consolidation?

Mr. Dennis No. Section (B) enables two school systems to consolidate. Now, what Mr. Wall is attempting to do is not consolidation but to actually make a cleaner separation of the two systems. It is not the same thing, no. I hope we keep (B) in there, because I would like for the possibility to remain that if these two systems want to consolidate in the future, they can.

Mr. Chatelain Well, the second...the third sentence...

Mr. Dennis As I understand it, he's not taking (B) out. He's just adding a section to it.

Mr. Chatelain Yes, sir. But, I was just concerned because this is hard for us to figure out. It says "Any member of either board at any time not satisfying the requirements of this Paragraph shall vacate his position." It's involved in some things I can't understand; I don't mind telling you, that's the reason I was trying to clear it.

Mr. Dennis Well, that means that if you live in...out in the parish now, and you get elected to the parish school board, if you move into the city of Monroe and out of the jurisdiction of the parish school board, you have to get off the board and vice versa.

Mr. Chatelain Thank you.

Mr. Womack Judge Dennis, wouldn't you think it would be quite an injustice if all of the...or at least, half of the school board members of the city system came from out in the rural areas that basically had no children or tax interest in the city system?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir. I'd have to admit...

Mr. Womack Well, then, you would have to admit, then that when you reverse it and put the city people on the parish school board where they pay no taxes, is also an injustice, wouldn't you?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir, except that I do believe the people in Monroe have an interest in the system. Now, how much, and how you represent it on the board is a difficult problem to deal with, and I'll be the first to admit that.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I know that some of you are wondering why I'm on this amendment, and I'm so far removed from Ouachita Parish and Monroe. I am not as far removed as you would believe. I'm not speaking for PTA. I'm speaking for me. But, PTA believes in justice and believes in education for all children. I'm on the State Board of Management, and my chairmanship is Community Responsibility. I'm not an expert on the legal matters which was in Amendment No. 1. The thing that struck me most--and if you see it on my amendment--was in No. 2, where we had the board members in Monroe representing the people in the parish. I don't but feel that children's education should be taken lightly; while adults bicker over this and that, our children must have an education. So, I wanted you to know that I was not dabbling in family affairs. My only concern is that every child in the State of Louisiana has a chance for an education. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Bliieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I don't reside in the city of Monroe now. I'm speaking more upon the principle involved here rather than the problem that's involved. This is not a situation which you might say, that I have no connection with, in view of the fact that I graduated from Ouachita Parish High School, which at the time that I was there, was situated right in the heart of Monroe. I still have relatives living there. But, I have yet to have one of those relatives tell me that we should solve this by the Constitutional Convention. This is not the place to solve these types of problems. That's the trouble with our convention right now. I think Mr. Bollinger hit the nail right on the head a few minutes ago. We are trying to solve all the problems of our state in this Constitutional Convention. Those problems should be solved in the legislature, not here in this Constitutional Convention. If Judge Dennis cannot present a worthwhile statute in the legislature, I don't see how in the world we could have a worthwhile provision in this constitution to solve that problem. I just ask you, let's leave out these problems because they are only going to bring back and require constitutional amendments. I tell you that right now. I think it's better. I'm talking about the principle. I'm not in the sense of the word, for or opposed to the solution which he has suggested. I'm opposed to putting that proposed solution in this constitution. It has no place. Therefore, I ask you to vote against this amendment and any others like it.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate De Blieux, this gives me an opportunity to ask you, do you know if the legislature had solved all these problems that you're talking about, we probably wouldn't have to meet here now; don't you think?

Mr. De Blieux That's probably right. But, sometimes those problems have never been presented to the legislature.

Mr. Weiss The second thing is that there are special interest groups involved here. Do you think that we should try and pass upon this decision?

Mr. De Blieux I certainly do not because this is not the place for it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Wall Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I would like to point out that Reverend Stovall told me he was going to vote for this one because he feels like that it is an inequity and injustice that needs to be corrected. I'd like to point out that even Judge Dennis admitted that it would be injustice if the people outside of the city of Monroe composed half of the city school board. So, he admits there's an injustice, and he also admitted that he didn't have the...even though he said it could be taken care of by the legislature, he didn't have...it would be difficult to draft a statutory provision to properly take care of this under the law, the one man vote, and so forth. This will solve the biggest problem, and I'm going to ask your favorable vote. Now, Delegate De Blieux over here, as usual, he has problems understanding many things...we can explain to him, but we can't understand for him. We've always had that problem with him around, and he doesn't live in the city of Monroe now, and if he was up there...well, I'll quit with that. But, I will ask a favorable vote. This corrects an injustice, and I think it's one that we're entitled to. It has to be corrected here. When you have like the Ouachita Parish School Board has to be spelled out. Thank you.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 91-18. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section.]

Closing

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman, if there are no further questions, I move the adoption of Section 13, as amended.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Just a technical thing. Aren't there two Section B's or Subsections now, that one should be B and one C, that will be taken care of by Style and Drafting--the consolidation?

Mr. Hernandez I'm sure the Clerk has already taken care of that, Dr. Weiss.

[Section passed: 103-5. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Next section:
"Section 14. Boards.

Section 14. The legislature shall appropriate funds for the operation and administrative expenses of the boards created pursuant to this Article.

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think this is self-explanatory. Certainly, the funds are necessary in order for the boards that have been created by this article to operate, and so I ask the favorable consideration...for the approval of this section.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment by Delegate Juneau, Leithman, and Mrs. Corne reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 8, delete lines 12 through 15, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 14. Appropriations.

Section 14. Appropriations by the legislature for educational purposes shall be made to and administered by the appropriate board, agency, or authority and shall be used solely for the operations of the institutions for which designed in the appropriations."--excuse me, "for which designated in the appropriations."

Explanation

Mrs. Corne Mr. Chairman, delegates, "the appropriations by the legislature for educational purposes shall be made and administered by the appropriate board." I think this is very self-explanatory. It means just exactly what it says. It's very short, clear-cut. There is an addition here that the funds will be used solely for the purpose for which they were appropriated. Mr. Chairman, I don't think that there needs to be any explanation to this proposal. I would move the adoption.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Mrs. Corne, reading from the amendment, you said, "or authority and shall be used solely for the operations of the institutions for which designated in the appropriations." Would this prohibit the use of any public funds to aid private institution in bussing, textbooks, lunches, or any other manner?

Mrs. Corne These funds will be used solely for the purpose for which they were appropriated; whatever the appropriation that's made by the legislature.

Mr. Brown Mrs. Corne, I don't understand what your amendment is trying to do. Section 14 as is written in the committee proposal, mandates the legislature to appropriate funds for the operation of the of the various boards. It says, "they shall appropriate funds." Your amendment does not do that, as I read it. I wish you'd tell me if I'm wrong. Your amendment merely says that the funds appropriated, if any are ever appropriated, shall be administered by the appropriate board. But, it doesn't say the legislature has to appropriate any funds. Do you see what I mean? I wondered if that was your intention. In other words, the committee proposal dictates that funds be appropriated. Your amendment does not do that. Your amendment does not dictate to the legislature that they've got to appropriate any funds, whatsoever. It looks to me like your amendment, maybe, should have been after the original section, itself. Would you comment on that?

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mrs. Corne The...

Mr. Brown I don't know if that was your intention, and I wanted to point that out.

Mrs. Corne The intention was, of course, that the Legislature would appropriate funds...

Mr. Brown Your amendment doesn't say that.

Mrs. Corne ...but that these funds that are appropriated would be so administered.

Mr. Brown Well, I see what you're trying to do, but Section 14 of the committee proposal says, "they shall appropriate funds." You're deleting that, and you're not saying that there shall be any funds appropriated.

Motion

Mrs. Corne Mr. Brown, I think your point is very well taken. I will move then, to withdraw the amendment and see if we can't clean it up. Mr. Chairman, I so move.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Delegate Morris sends up amendments as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 8, line 12, at the line, add the punctuation and word "; Prohibitions"

Amendment No. 2. Page B, line 13, immediately after the number and punctuation "14." and before the word "The" insert "(A)"

Amendment No. 3. On page B, between lines 15 and 16, insert the following:

"(B) No appropriation of public funds shall be made to any private or sectarian school, but nothing in this Paragraph shall be construed to prohibit the supplying of free school books, school lunches, school bus transportation or other goods and services which were provided from public funds to children in private or sectarian schools and handicapped persons as of January 1, 1972. The legislature may enact appropriate legislation to permit institutions of higher learning which receive all or part of their support from the state of Louisiana to engage in interstate and intrastate education agreements with other state governments, institutions of higher learning of other state governments and private institutions of higher learning within or outside state boundaries."

Point of Order

Mr. Kelly I'd like to raise a question at this time as to whether or not the amendment would be germane to Section 14. From what I read about the amendment, I can very well see where it might go into Section 16. But, I'm not sure whether it's germane to Section 14, or not.

Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Casey Mr. Kelly, I appreciate your question. I can see why you raised the point. However, Section 14 deals with appropriations of funds for school purposes. The paragraph that Mr. Morris intends to add is on that subject matter. The Chair would have to rule that the amendment is germane. I think it would be appropriate to bring it up in this section.

Appeal from Ruling of the Chair

Mr. Abraham I'd like to question the ruling of the Chair because Section 14 deals with appropriations for the purpose of operating the boards and not for the operation of the schools.

Explanation

Mr. Morris This amendment has application to both Section 15, and Section 16. Particularly, for the elementary, secondaries, the monies are appropriated to the Board of Education. I do think it's germane to 14. I do think that it is germane to both 15, and 16...

Questions

Mr[s]. Brien Don't you think when it comes to all our children of the state, we shouldn't lock something in the constitution that might have to be changed in the future for the welfare of our children? So, don't you think it would be better to go on with the committee proposal?

Mr. Casey Those asking questions and those arguing the point, as to whether this would be germane to Section 14, let's stick to the question of that; as to whether the subject matter is germane, rather than arguing the substantive nature of the amendment itself.

[Previous Question ordered. Chair sustained: 76-26.]

Point of Information

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, if I'm in order, I would ask that the question be divided. Now, the first two amendments appear to be technical in nature. What I'm interested in dividing, really, is Amendment No. 3. Now, I realize, I may have to ask for a suspension of the rules to do that under the way the Chair has previously been ruling, as I understand the position that the Chair has taken. But, on Amendment No. 3, although it is one amendment, it very definitely contains two entirely separate and unrelated concepts. Therefore, by the rules of logic, if not by the rules of the convention, I respectfully submit, should be divided. So, if I'm in order, I ask for a division of the question, particularly in order to divide Amendment No. 3, so as to consider first the sentence which ends with the language "January 1, 1972," and then, after we vote on that, to consider the second sentence which... second part which begins "the legislature may enact." Do you understand what I'm asking?

Mr. Casey I see exactly what you're requesting, Mr. Avant.

The Clerk is our parliamentarian. We'll ask him to express his opinion on that request for a division.

Mr. Poynter Mr. Avant, I think you're about a thousand percent correct. You're right. The amendment, as drawn, is not divisible. The way you suggested, technically, it can be done, I suppose, under a suspension of the rules. Quite frankly, if Mr. Morris has no objection, might be easier for instruction purposes if he would want to withdraw it and resubmit it with four amendments, adding that other one. I don't know whether Mr. Morris is going to want to do that. If he doesn't, you would certainly, as you indicate, you could ask for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of dividing Amendment No. 3, so as to vote first on the proposed first sentence of the language to be added by Paragraph B, and secondly, the second sentence. As I said, maybe Mr. Morris would want to withdraw it so that you could do that without a suspension. But, otherwise, you would need a suspension, in my opinion.

[Motion to withdraw amendment adopted:
82-12.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Stovall Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm going to have to leave in just a few moments for a funeral in New Orleans. I simply wanted to make one brief statement for the record. I realize that the amendment which is being presented here will get into the question of aid to private and parochial schools, the matter of separation of church and state. I want to say that basically, I believe in the separation of church and state. However, I am in favor of the present level of services to the private and parochial schools. I would not be here to vote possibly on this. But, I do hope that this will be handled in such a way that these services can be maintained, and at the same time, that we can maintain our historic tradition of the separation of church and state. I simply wanted to say that for the record inasmuch as I possibly will not be here at the time that the vote is cast. Thank you.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Quorum Call: 78 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter All right. In light of Mr. Avant's request, Mr. Morris has resubmitted the amendments in exactly the identical form that they were originally presented with this change: After the first sentence to be added by proposed Amendment No. 3 insert this:

Amendment No. 4. On page 8, immediately after the language added by Amendment No. 3, add the following sentence:--It would add then the proposed second sentence identical as it is set out presently in Amendment No. 3. So, the effect would be that the question would be divisible as between Amendment No. 3 and Amendment No. 4, or to the point as between amendment...the first sentence and the second sentence of the text proposed by proposed Paragraph (B).

Explanation

Mr. Morris Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention the amendment makes the exact...is the exact language that's in the present constitution with the exception which says that the services that are being provided to private and sectarian schools...and handicapped persons as of January 1, which is an arbitrary date will continue. I do think that this is a constitutional question. I think that it should be...it's appropriate, that it be voted on by this convention. I have a great deal of admiration for the people who represent the opposite thinking. I have worked with them on matters and against them on matters, and I certainly understand their position. I understand your position, should it be different than my own. However, I do think this prohibition belongs in the constitution that's being proposed, I would hope that you agreed with me. That's about the extent of my remarks. If there are any questions, I would attempt to answer them for you.

Questions

Mr. Abraham Jimmy, the way this reads, it says that they will provide various services to the children who are in school as of January 1, '72. I assume that you want that to mean that they will provide the same services that were provided as of January 1, '72? Is that the intent of it?

Mr. Morris That's the intent. That's the understanding that I had that when this amendment was drawn, that that's what it accomplishes. If new, nonpublic schools are established, they would be accorded the same services that the present ones are receiving.

Motion

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman since this appears to be a rather controversial issue and since we're frequently inclined to debate things ad nauseam, I now move that we limit debate on this amendment to one hour.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Questions

Mr. Champagne Don't you think perhaps that this is the kind of thing that you can't make anybody happy with that...you know those that don't want to give them a pencil they'll be unhappy because they're getting a pencil, and those who want everything, they're unhappy because they're not getting enough, etc? Don't you think that we're asking for it whenever we go into this kind of thing?

Mr. Morris Mr. Champagne, if this were omitted from the constitution you'd still have that problem I'm afraid.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Morris, you know a number of innovative new programs are being tried in other states such as the voucher system, which is under consideration in New Hampshire and California. Don't you think that this amendment would prohibit the State of Louisiana from ever even experimenting with or attempting the voucher system?

Mr. Morris There's certainly that possibility, Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Morris, I'm having quite a bit of problems trying to figure out exactly what you're trying to do as opposed to the committee proposal. Can you explain to me for instance, why the cutoff on January 1, 1972?

Mr. Morris It's an arbitrary day, Mr. Chatelain, that was selected simply because it was the first of the year, and it simply says that any nonpublic school that's receiving a certain amount of support will continue to receive that support. But, no additional support above what they're receiving today. This is an attempt to say to the people in the state--I saw a letter, I saw a telegram saying--please, don't take away what we're getting today. This amendment, that's what it does.

Mr. Chatelain In other words, any person or any school...that were receiving certain benefits such as, books, etc., on January 1, 1972, will continue to get it if this...if your amendment is enacted?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir. That's my understanding of my amendment. Further, if there are additional new public schools established, they would still get the same level of support that the nonpublic schools are receiving today, but no more.

Mr. Chatelain Thank you.

Mr. Burns Mr. Morris, did I understand you to say that the wording of your amendment was the same as the present constitution?

Mr. Morris With the exception, Mr. Burns, of saying that the children of this state that are now receiving the goods that they're receiving, the services they're receiving will continue to get that at the level at which they're receiving as of January 1, 1972. That's the only difference.

Mr. Burns I should have looked this up myself, but this is the part that I mean, is this in the constitution--present constitution---"no appropriation of public funds shall be made to any private or sectarian schools except, "etc.?"

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Morris The present constitution reads like this "no appropriations of public funds shall be made to any private and sectarian schools."

Mr. Burns That's all I wanted to know.

Mr. Morris Yes, sir. Before you say that, if I misled you in any way, Mr. Burns, I apologize. The intent is exactly the present language of the constitution.

Yes, sir, Mr. Juneau, excuse me.

Mr. Juneau For point of clarification...for simplification, Mr. Morris, tell us what you are trying to do by this amendment which is distinguished from the committee report so we can get the philosophies separated?

Mr. Morris Very simply, to maintain the level of support for nonpublic schools at the level it's on today--no more, no less, and prohibit any additional support. For instance, paying the rent, utilities, etc., of any nonpublic schools.

Mr. Juneau What is it about the committee report so that I can understand the thrust of your amendment that you don't like about the committee proposal?

Mr. Morris Well, I love the committee report--I said that up here several times, the one other time I was up here--I think the committee report is great except that it doesn't mention this at all.

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Morris, I believe it was in 1972, the legislature granted a certain amount of tax exemption from income taxes for parents who had children in private and parochial schools.

Mr. Morris Yes, sir.

Mr. LeBleu Now, I don't know whether this has been tested in court or not. It seems to me that it has been, but I can't remember the outcome of it. But, no matter...

Mr. Morris Can I give you just what I know about it real quickly?

Mr. LeBleu Well, my question was: no matter what the outcome would be, your amendment would prevent anything else like that from taking place in the future; would it not?

Mr. Morris No. The attorney for the association for which I work says that's not so. The state is under an injunction from the...what circuit it is, I'm not sure...to...they are disallowing this at this time. However, should the federal government rule in favor of the State of Louisiana, they will be able to receive that write-off on their state income tax; so I'm told. I'm a fifth grade teacher, and I'm not an attorney, and I want to be sure that I make that difference, Mr. LeBleu.

Mr. LeBleu But, what I was talking about, Mr. Morris, if we specify January 1, 1972 as a cutoff date for those goods and services that those students now receive, no matter what would happen in the future in the legislature, if the legislature wanted to grant an additional goods and services, they would not be allowed to under your provision; would it?

Mr. Morris But, the act that you specifically mentioned that deals with the income tax write-off--so our attorneys say--are not affected by this amendment if they're allowed, that this will not prohibit the parents from receiving that.

Mr. Toca Delegate Morris, I can't understand your position on this. What is the benefit of this in your amendment? I just don't understand it. Do you want to give them free books and free school lunches, but you're trying to lock this in it. If we ever come up with other benefits, they won't be entitled to it according to your amendment; they'll be locked in just what they're getting now?

Mr. Morris That's correct. Let me tell you this, Mr. Toca, I'm a great believer in public schools, I believe that the thing that makes our country different from other countries is...that we...everybody gets to go to school.

Mr. Toca Delegate Morris, you haven't answered my question. I asked you why are you so interested in this amendment?

Mr. Morris Well, I don't know how to amplify on it. I thought that I did. I have no desire, or it's not our desire, to penalize any children from receiving the services that they are receiving. However, we would like it confined to the services they're now receiving.

Mr. Arnette Jimmy, just one quick question. I'd like to ask you a couple, but I know I don't have time. But, it seems like you're limiting these things to school books, school lunches, and school bus transportation, etc., the things that have been allowed by the Federal Constitution. Hasn't everything else practically been disallowed by the Federal Constitution?

Mr. Morris In...I'm not positive about that, Mr. Arnette. If I said yes, I would just be...it would be supposition on my part.

Mr. Arnette Well, in other words, what I'm saying is I don't see any possible use for having this language in here since it's already been decided by the federal courts according to the Federal Constitution.

Mr. Morris Well, there aren't...it's my understanding, for instance, there are a number of things that have not been decided by the federal courts.

Further Discussion

Mr. Comar Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I know we've already limited the time on this thing to an hour so I'll try to be as brief as possible. But, I think we should know what we're talking about on this particular amendment. The committee proposal that you have before you is silent on the question of what aids shall be provided, and which shall be disallowed when we talk about those aids which go to nonpublic school children. We would like for the committee proposal to remain silent, and to let the legislature determine what aids shall be provided. Knowing full well, that the courts of this state and of the country have put very strict interpretations and have limited aids to what we call minimal assistance. Those minimal assistance would have been jeopardized, we feel, by the original proposal that was discussed by the Education Committee. However, the Education Committee in its wisdom, amended after many weeks and months of debate on its proposal, decided indeed that it would be better to leave the question up to the legislature, and were convinced that this would be the best thing to do, as I say, knowing full well what the courts have already decided in this area; the limitations have been placed on by the court and need not be placed upon by this Constitutional Convention. Now, let's see what we're looking at when we look at the amendments, the four sections of this amendment, and I would suggest that we oppose all and stick with the committee proposal under Section 14. It says "no appropriation of public funds shall be made to any private or sectarian school, but nothing in this paragraph shall be construed to prohibit the supplying of free textbooks, lunches," etc. If this amendment is adopted as it now stands, you would not be...the legislature would not be free in the future to grant any additional aids to nonpublic school children, and those aids we all might like to have somewhere down the line. For example, a simple thing like driver education may be dictated by the legislature for all school children to provide safety and health...safety on the highways for our people, that this amendment were adopted, that... even that type of aid could not go to children in nonpublic schools. There may be other things like health programs, dental programs, which are mandated for public school children in the future, because we know not what will happen in the future, and those would be denied under this. Further, there is a very serious problem with regard to the handicapped in this state. There are not enough public or private institutions to take care of handicapped children. The state again in this field provides some assistance to the nonpublic schools which take care of retarded, and those would be forever frozen at the level of 1972 if, indeed, this amendment or series of amendments were adopted. Further, we believe, and I, like Jimmy, I have also talked to the attorneys on this because I am not an attorney. But, further we believe that there would be a serious blow to the current lunch program of the nonpublic school children. As you know, this program is operated by the nonpublic schools in cooperation with the State Department of Education. Several years ago, the legislature did provide some assistance to the lunchroom workers because of the...nonpublic schools could not provide a low cost lunch...and, at the same time, provide the necessary salaries to take care of these employees. In 1972, six months after the cutoff date of this...the legislature expanded those aids to the nonpublic school lunchroom workers, and those would be endangered. I urge that you oppose these amendments and any other amendments which would change the committee proposal. Let's leave it up to the legislature.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I appear before you to try to explain what is the purpose behind this amendment as it has been introduced. Originally, the committee proposal had a provision in it which was supposed to be identical to the present constitutional provision--"no appropriation of public funds shall be made to any private or sectarian school." This was deleted and, from the committee, on the basis that the committee was told this could have an effect on future appropriations, and that it also might deprive the students of the aid they were presently receiving. Well, it seems to me that if this language is in the present constitution, and if the courts in interpreting that constitution allowed these aids, certainly that language being in there will not deprive the schools of this aid. But, C.E.F. circulated some literature around the state indicating that the committee was trying to deprive the school children of aids which they were presently receiving, and because of this fact, Mr. Robertson, when he was on the committee, introduced this amendment to show that we did not intend to deprive them. Nobody on the committee intended to take away any of the aids which were presently being received by parochial or private school children. But, because of this misinformation this amendment was introduced in committee, and I voted for it in committee because nobody--I repeat nobody--on that committee wanted to deprive them of any aids which they are presently receiving. Now, it's a different story as to whether or not they want additional aids; because this language was removed from the constitution, another amendment was introduced by Mr. Segura, which took out references in there to public education in many instances. Now, when you say the legislature shall appropriate funds, and you don't say for what purpose, then you leave it entirely up to the legislature. Now, if you're in favor of additional aid to parochial and sectarian schools, you should vote against this amendment. If you're in favor of not having any additional aids other than what they're having now, or which the courts will permit under this language which is the same language that was in the present constitution, then you would vote for this amendment. But, whatever you do, I don't want them to be a misconception and a twisting of the facts as to what we're talking about...we're not talking about...You may have received, and I received a whole flock of letters and little mimeographed paragraphs from people in Lafayette, saying please, don't take away our present aid; please don't take away our token aid. There's no intention to take away any of that aid. The whole thing has been twisted around--do you want additional benefits--and that's the issue. I like it to be clear where we stand on this matter.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Matt, I didn't know much about the law in this area, and still don't...I was surprised quite frankly to find out that public funds are used for private institutions to the extent that they are: that is, the lunches, and the books, and the trans...that was a shock to me. Now, aren't by this amendment...aren't we insuring that that's going to continue in the future?

Mr. Sutherland Buddy, I think that when you say you were surprised to know it, this language is in the present constitution: "no appropriation of public funds shall be made to any private or sectarian school."

Mr. Roemer Right.

Mr. Sutherland Despite that language, the courts have held that the aids such as transportation, such as school books and lunches, are not aid to the schools, but are aid to the children, and therefore, it is permissible under this language. Now, I told you why this other language was added here to get away from this misconception that we were trying to take away the present aids.

Mr. Roemer Well, what in your opinion, Matt, would be the legal circumstance if we didn't have...we didn't add this particular language in the constitution; we would in fact leave it up to the legislature, right?

Mr. Sutherland If you had nothing in there?

Mr. Roemer Right. Other than what we have in our present constitution; that is, a prohibition against aid to private and sectarian schools.

Mr. Sutherland If you had the same prohibition that you have in the present constitution, I don't think you would need...I don't think you need this language. I think that that language would be interpreted the same way it has been interpreted.

Mr. Roemer So, I'm to understand now, you are opposed to the amendment; you're saying it's not needed? Is that what you're saying?

Mr. Sutherland All I'm saying...no, I'm saying that the reason why this language--several questions were asked as to why this language is in here the second part of that--and it only is to alleviate any of the fears that those people may have that, by putting the language which is in the present constitution, you'd be taking something away from them.

Mr. Roemer You wouldn't be doing that in your opinion?

Mr. Sutherland We would not be doing it, and I don't think that...I think this clarifies that we don't even have any intention of doing it.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Juneau Matt, I agree a hundred percent with what you say about the amendment, but I don't necessarily agree with what I thought you indicated with regard to the committee proposal. If I were to vote for the committee proposal, I do not construe that as being a vote necessarily for private aid to public schools; do you?

Mr. Sutherland Not necessarily vote for it, but there's no prohibition in here...

Mr. Juneau I understand that, but in other words, if I...if I in my judgment say that I don't have the wisdom to decide what we might want to do in the year 1959, I haven't said that by voting yes, that I'm voting for aid to private schools; you will agree with that?

Mr. Sutherland I don't know; that would be subject to interpretation, I think, Pat.

Mr. Segura Mr. Chairman, if there are no other speakers, I'll waive, if anybody else will waive.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Morris Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this is the sort of the issue I know that everybody probably has their mind made up on. I won't prolong any talk on it. Again I'll say that I think that it is proper that this be in the constitution, and everybody has to vote their own conscience, represent their own people. But, I do think it's proper that it be in the constitution. That's why it's offered. I appreciate your time. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Morris, last year the legislature appropriated, I believe it was three hundred and fifty thousand dollars to Tulane for...to assist seventy medical students in the medical school at Tulane. Now, as I read this, "the legislature may enact appropriate legislation to permit institutions of higher learning which receive all or part of their support from the State of Louisiana."

Now, wouldn't this language cut out any further appropriations to Tulane in support of their medical school?

Mr. Morris Mr. LeBleu, if my memory serves me correctly, and it may not, but that was...I understood...that that was a direct grant to the students because we did not have facilities to take them into medical school. It was not to the college itself, but to the individuals in medical schools. Now, whether it prohibits it or not, I don't know. I wouldn't think so. I would hope not.

Mr. LeBleu Well, wasn't it granted to the students because there was no other that they...the legislature could appropriate it to Tulane. They had to appropriate it to the students.

Mr. Morris But, there's a big difference in my way of thinking, Conway. This was a...this was a grant to accommodate some people for a necessary service which we couldn't provide. The same thing occurred at Oklahoma A & M, Texas A & M, and Auburn, before we had a school of veterinary science. Those were accommodations because we didn't have those schools. I wouldn't think there'd be a prohibition, but, I don't know. I'm not an attorney. Just like you, I'm a lay person.
Yes, sir.

Mr. Aertker ...Isn't it a fact that actually, in the present constitution there is much stronger language relative to this matter than what you have in your proposal?

Mr. Morris Well, I personally think that it's much more stringent in the present constitution, Mr. Aertker. But, I could be wrong. I've been wrong about a lot of things.

Mr. Aertker Well, Mr. Morris, as you read it, don't you read that this reads strong and that this really represents more of a compromise in the direction, because the...doesn't the constitution state that no direct aid of no public funds can be used for private or sectarian school? Isn't that the wording of it?

Mr. Morris That is true. I think this is an attempt to accommodate people, children, if you will, to assure them of the things that they are now receiving.

Mr. Aertker The purpose of your amendment, then, is really to see that--not that the present things that are being provided private and parochial schools are taken away from them--but actually, you are concerned that no more further direct aid is given to private or sectarian schools. Isn't that correct? Isn't that the issue involved here as to whether you...?

Mr. Morris That's exactly right. My attempt--I'd rather see it this way--it's an attempt to see that people receive exactly what they are receiving today, and put a cut-off date on it now so that the next thing the public treasury won't be paying heating and electricity and taxes and what have you, or whatever it might be.

Mr. Aertker Actually, Mr. Morris, doesn't this really boil down into a basic issue of whether you believe in separation of church and state? If you believe in that, then you would vote for your amendment. If you didn't, then you'd vote against it. Is that correct?

Mr. Morris Mr. Aertker, you and I see eye-to-eye on a lot of things. Some of our colleagues may not agree with your statement...with your questions.

Mr. Gauthier Mr. Aertker--Mr. Morris--were you aware in about 1970 the legislature passed an act saying, in essence, that every student in the state would have to take driver education when and if it became available to all schools in the state?

Mr. Morris Yes, sir. I'm aware of it.

Mr. Gauthier Were you also aware that at that time the Department of Public Safety, under the direction of the Department of Education, launched a long-range plan to make driver education available in every school in the state?

Mr. Morris They provide drive simulators on every campus throughout the state, I understand. I do not believe that this would be a prohibition against that.

Mr. Gauthier You do not believe that it would be a prohibition? Can you assure me...

Mr. Morris No, sir.

Mr. Gauthier ...that they could appropriate funds?

Mr. Morris No, sir. I couldn't assure you that at all.

Mr. Gauthier Well, don't you understand that it's...

Mr. Morris I understand what you're saying, I understood your point.

Mr. Gauthier Then you do understand that this amendment could curtail, if not bring to a halt, a program...a long-range program that has been launched by the State Department of Education?

Mr. Morris I would say, in answer to that, I don't...I don't believe that it would. No, sir. It might prohibit future programs, Mr. Gauthier.

Mr. Gauthier It might prohibit them from appropriating funds for offering driver education. Is that correct?

Mr. Morris Not driver education. No, I don't agree with that. I think the state will continue to provide...

Mr. Gauthier But how would they offer it in the private and parochial schools?

Mr. Morris The same way they are doing it today.

Mr. Gauthier But today, the state isn't paying for it in those schools. So, under your amendment, if, in the future, they could not appropriate these funds, they would have to drop a program that they started some three years ago.

Mr. Morris Well, I personally disagree with you about that. I would be very hopeful that it didn't do it.

Mr. Gauthier But, if you can guarantee me that this will not apply to that phase, I might reconsider.

Mr. Morris Yes, sir. I couldn't guarantee this.

Mr. Gauthier You couldn't?

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter "Section 15. Appropriations; Higher Education

Section 15. Appropriations for the institutions of higher education and post-secondary vocational-technical training and career education shall be made to their respective managing boards. The appropriations shall be administered by the managing boards and used solely for the operations of the institution for which designated in the appropriations."

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we feel that this amendment... this section certainly has to follow. All it does is state that the appropriations that would be made to these various managing boards, that it would be their responsibility, of course, to see to it that the expenditure of all the appropriations were given to the proper institutions. As a further follow-up, this section does imply that it would be the responsibility of the managing board to see that these funds were expended in the manner for which they were specified in the appropriation. That's the purpose of this entire section.

I recommend the adoption.

Questions

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Aertker, under what we've done in Section 7 dealing with the Board of Regents, do we have any conflict at all between this section and Section 7 which says, "the board shall plan, coordinate, and have budgetary responsibility for all public higher education?"

Mr. Aertker I don't believe. This section really deals with the...seeing to it that the expenditure funds are handled in a proper manner. In Section 7 when we were talking about budgetary matters, we were really having reference to the fact that all of the colleges and universities would have to submit their budget to the Board of Regents; they in turn would analyze and talk with the different institutions to see whether their requests were in order. Then, after they reviewed the matter, then their responsibility would be to go to the legislature with the budget. I would have to state...feel that this budget, as it was presented to the legislature, would have, certainly, line items for different institutions. Then, after it was approved, it would come back and they would have the responsibility for seeing that it was...

Mr. Bergeron O.K. Let's look at the picture. The money comes down from the legislature. They appropriate so much money. Where does this money go first of all?

Mr. Aertker I didn't hear the questions.

Mr. Bergeron When the legislature appropriates money, where does it go first of all? Where would it come down to? To which boards?

Mr. Aertker It would go back to the Board of Regents.

Mr. Bergeron To the Board of Regents. They, in turn, would appropriate the money to various boards?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Bergeron And you don't think just the Board of Regents, alone, could take care of this problem?

Mr. Aertker We think so. This is what the State Board does at the present time. It goes into the state legislature and gets the appropriation, and then distributes it to the sixty-six parish school systems.

Mr. Bergeron Thank you.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Aertker, if I understand this language right, the appropriation by the legislature will go to the managing board?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Rayburn How will they distribute that money, Mr. Aertker, to vocational schools, for instance. Will it be distributed on the...need basis, or on the amount of pupils, or the amount of courses, or how will that money be distributed?

Mr. Aertker Well, in the...if you will recall, in the section it stated that there would have to be developed a formula for the distribution of funds. I would have to presume that the budget that would be submitted to the legislature would be in conformance with the formula that was developed by the Board of Regents. That would include vocational education, also.

Mr. Rayburn Would that be the Board of Regents formula?

Mr. Aertker Yes, the Board of Regents.

Mr. Rayburn Supposing we could only implement it eighty, or seventy, or sixty percent. What would happen then? Their formula--which has happened in the past. You know the State Board votes for everything. They've never turned nothing down since I've been in the legislature. But they've never supplemented or had a P.S. at the bottom as how to implement their request. They just vote yes on everything. Now, how would that formula be devised, and how would it be supplemented?

Mr. Aertker If the appropriation committee submitted it back to them as a lump sum, then, of course, I would have to presume that if they just approved eighty percent, that that would mean a twenty percent reduction across the board for all institutions.

If they resubmitted it back on the basis of institutions and on...areas, then, of course, I would presume they would have to see to it that that amount was given to that institution. In other words, if they appropriated "X" number of dollars for Southwestern, or "X" number of dollars for Grambling, I would have to presume that that would have to be distributed. The intent of this section is to see that if it is distributed, that the managing board would have the authority and the responsibility of seeing that it was disbursed in the manner that the budget had been requested for.

Mr. Rayburn I'm reading here where it says "the appropriations shall be administered by the managing board and shall be used solely for the operation of the institution for which they deemed the appropriation is necessary," which means the legislature could send them "X" number of dollars and they can do what they please with it? Is that what this language reads?

Mr. Aertker If it was not in violation of the formula that required them to do certain things.

Mr. Rayburn I don't see any reference here as to the formula, Mr. Aertker.

Mr. Aertker Well, the reference to the formula is in the powers of the Board of Regents. That was a requirement in Section...I believe Section 7, that stated the Board of Regents must develop a formula for the distribution of funds--pretty close to the minimum foundation formula.

Mr. Dennery Mr. Aertker, in Section 15, the last sentence says that "the appropriations shall be used solely for the operations of the institution." Suppose that LSU in Baton Rouge, or any of the other state institutions of higher learning, determine that they wanted to have a television program for their use in their schools. Could they contract with the Louisiana television authority in order to provide such a program?

Mr. Aertker Mr. Dennery, unless they had that stipulated as part of their budget request, and that they had some fund that would take care of that, that would be the operation of any school system, unless they had something in their budget that would allow them to do that, I don't presume they could do it.

Mr. Dennery No. But, I'm suggesting that many state institutions have contractual relationships with noneducational institutions to provide this, that, and the other. I just want for the record to show that if it's...in the budget, there would be no prohibition against another state agency contracting with the institution of higher learning.

Mr. Aertker I don't see where that would be any problem as far as this is concerned.

Mr. Dennery Thank you.

Mr. Juneau Bob, I'm just trying to get an understanding. I'm really confused in the Board of Regents article, we used the word "budgetary responsibility." Now, let's first try to define that word. What does that mean--budgetary responsibility?

Mr. Aertker It means to me that all of the budgets for all of the institutions will be the responsibility of the Board of Regents to see what budgets they are going to operate under.

Mr. Juneau Now, does that mean that they have a veto power over the budget that's submitted by any board?

Mr. Aertker By any institution. They have the power to review any budget that is submitted to them and that is one of their responsibilities to see whether their requests are agreeable or in line or not. Yes.

Mr. Juneau All right. Let's assume that the Board of Trustees submits budgets for eight of the state colleges and universities and the Board of Regents determines, "Well, we don't like the budget that is submitted for Louisiana Tech." Which budget goes to the legislature as being the proposed budget of Louisiana Tech?

Mr. Aertker Whatever the Board of Regents submits for.

Mr. Juneau All right. Now, in that connection, in going to the section that we now have under discussion--this is the part that bothers me--it's very clear to me that the appropriation that's going to be made by the legislature, is made to the respective management board. That seems to me a direct channel and is a complete contravention, or obviation of the Board of Regents. That's what it says. It says "the appropriation shall be made to the management board." It doesn't say one iota about the Board of Regents.

Mr. Aertker But the Board of Regents' responsibility is the review of the budget that is submitted to the legislature before the appropriation is made. The responsibility of the Board of Trustees is to see that the expenditures are carried out in conformance with what the budget said that they were going to spend it for. To make sure that they don't--well, misappropriate--or that they don't misuse it, or they don't spend it in the direction for what they said they were going to spend it.

Mr. Juneau All right. So, purposes of intent, so we'll have this clear on the record, it is the absolute and complete authoritative control of the Board of Regents to veto the LSU system, the Southern system, and the Board of Trustees system with regard to what they submit as a budget. In other words, they have overriding responsibility with regard to the presentation of the budgets. I'm just trying to establish a record in that regard.

Mr. Aertker Yeah. I would prefer to use the word "modify" a budget request, I mean, because I believe you would recognize they'd have to...agree to some budget so...so they'd have modification--

Mr. Juneau But, the point is they would have the supreme power to modify.

Mr. Aertker That's right.

Mr. Bergeron Well, Mr. Aertker, in other words, you want under this section, you want the money to come straight from the legislature to the managing boards. Am I correct?

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Bergeron You wouldn't want it any place in between?

Mr. Aertker No.

Mr. Bergeron O.K. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, I don't know, yet, exactly what I want. I know I don't want this. I'm going to tell you why I don't want this. If you are going to fund the money from an appropriation, naturally it goes into the state treasury. If the state treasury is going to transfer it then to a superboard, the superboard to the managing board, and then the managing board to the institution, you could lose as much as two, three, four or five days' interest. That you can't afford to do.

Now, the second thing is, in the past, the legislature very wisely has line itemed this appropriation. What I mean by line-item, means that you set up "X" number of dollars to pay personnel with; you set up "X" number of dollars to pay utilities; you set up "X" number of dollars to pay insurance, repairs, maintenance, equipment, all of these categories. You may say, "Why is that so important?" It's important to this extent. If you give these people a block, lump sum amount of money, they're going to take it then and let your buildings go without paint; they'll do without repairs; they'll do...go ahead and spend enough money--and we have had them to budget themselves into a deficit--we feel like budgeted themselves into a deficit on purpose. We know that it's going to take a certain amount of money to keep all of these categories going. Any day that you don't maintain your repairs, your equipment, etc., you're going bankrupt and don't know it. So, this money has got to be line itemed. We want either one thing, either delete the section, or let's put a clause in there. I think Senator Rayburn is getting an amendment now that would do that, to go ahead and line item this money and put it, and put it...add in there to be spent and handled in accordance with the appropriation of the money. If you get that, then, I think we'll be in good shape. So, I would like for us to hold up just a minute on this until we get this amendment out. Then I think we'll have something we can go with. But, under no circumstances do I want to accept it in this category, because you are just going to lose control of it and you can't afford to.

Questions

Mr. Bergeron Mr. Womack, I had talked to you just a little while ago. You had kind of answered some of my questions dealing with the Board of Regents. There's just one question that's puzzling me. Looking at Section 7, it says "the Board"... we're speaking about the Board of Regents..."shall plan, coordinate and have budgetary responsibility." Now what are we talking about by "budgetary responsibility"?

Mr. Womack I don't know what "budgetary responsibility" to them. If "budgetary responsibility" to them means the same thing that "budgetary responsibility" has meant to the State Board of Education has meant in the past, that they have come in and stamped whatever was presented to them. The money--several years ago--and I'll answer it this way. Some six, seven or eight years ago, the money went direct to the institution and the institution had no strings on it. We woke up with one institution a million four hundred and forty thousand dollars in the red, kiting checks. We would up with other institutions that had spent their money down on personal services to where along about March or April, they didn't have enough money to pay the light bill. For that reason, you have got to budget this money, and it's got to be handled on a line item basis. The legislature has very wisely appropriated the money direct to the institutions in that manner. If you keep it along that category, then you're not going to have any trouble with it. It will go where it looks like it's needed best. By the same token, you are going to be able to maintain the full operation.

Mr. Bergeron O.K. Well, in view of the money you just said, is this why you'd want the money to go straight to the boards from the legislature?

Mr. Womack If the money is going to go to a board--and assuming that you're talking about literally going to a board--then the board would draw warrant on the state treasury. Then by the time they got the bookkeeping work done, then they would wind up turning it back into the institution, whatever it might be. If you lose as much as two or three days interest there, when you figure on the total amount of education, you've lost a many, many a thousand dollars within the period of a year. Everything we are doing now is designed to draw exactly the amount of money. The way it's operated right now--and it's very successful and very efficient--is that the actual amount of money needed to pay the exact bill that's due that month is all the money that the institution is going to draw out. They get that on their warrant directly from the state treasury. There's no loss of time, no loss of motion. They get only enough money to do the job.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The amendment would read as follows: Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Rayburn]. On page 8, line 21, after the word "solely" delete the remainder of the line. Delete line 22 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "as provided by law."

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, for the past several years we have had various formulas in the legislature. We have never been able to adopt a hundred percent formula to finance all of education's purposes. We have, in the last few years, been able to up the percentage and have come from a low of sixty percent of the formula, to roughly today in some colleges, eighty-five percent of the formula, and in some educational categories. We still have one or two educational institutions in this state that are operating at a hundred and five or a hundred and seven percent of the formula. The way I read Section 15, it would leave it to the Board of Regents. This amendment solely...only says..."as provided by law," which means that if we can appropriate eighty-five or ninety percent of their needs, and we say that in the appropriation bill, then that's what the Board of Regents will have to follow. If you leave this broad language the way I read it, we could appropriate "X" number of dollars in the legislature, and as long as the Board of Regents spent those funds for educational purposes whether it was vocational education or otherwise, they could ignore a formula, or, they could spend more under one institution than they could others. The only thing this amendment does, it says, "as provided by law", which says that if an appropriation bill, appropriates a million and a half dollars, and those funds can only be spent in accordance with law; that's the only thing I'm trying to do. If we say they shall be supplemented eighty-five or ninety percent of the formula.

Questions

Mr. Casey Senator Rayburn, I'd consider you as an expert in the area of appropriations since you are chairman of the Senate Finance Committee; do you feel that this section is necessary at all?

Mr. Rayburn I do not, but since we've got it, I'm going to try to do what I can to minimize it. I don't see the need of it. I really--it scares me. I'm not going to stay in the legislature and appropriate forty-two percent of our state monies to education and let a Board of Regents spend it the way they see fit, if I can help it. If they want to adopt a formula and spend according to the formula, that's good. But the way I read this, it gives them a free hand. I'm opposed to it. I would be for deleting the entire section.

Mr. Casey So, in other words with your amendment, the legislature...with your amendment, if it's adopted, that section would be the same whether we had the section or not. The legislature would have the authority to do whatever is necessary in the area of appropriations.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Rayburn That's true, Representative Casey. That's the way I think it should be.

Mr. Sutherland Senator Rayburn, in connection with the amendment--I don't have a copy of it--but I heard you saying that you wanted...I thought you said after the word "use solely for the operations" that that would be taken out and it would be "as provided by law." Is that correct?

Mr. Rayburn After the...on line 21, if you follow me...

Mr. Sutherland Right.

Mr. Rayburn ...where it says, starting on 20, "the appropriation shall be administered by the managing boards and used solely." My amendment takes over there: "as provided by law."

Mr. Sutherland Now, let me ask you this question. I hear you saying the Board of Regents would handle this appropriation, and the Board of Regents has a budgetary authority under Section 7. But, what we're talking about here in this Section 15, we're talking about management boards. Now, that's the Board of Supervisors for LSU...

Mr. Rayburn I'm sorry. I should have said managing boards in the place of Board of Regents, I'm sorry.

Mr. Sutherland So the Board of Regents would be setting the budgetary requirements to the legislature. The legislature would be appropriating it to the management boards. It would be up to the legislature and the Board of Regents to see that it was used the way it was budgeted. Is that correct?

Mr. Rayburn If the law so provides, yes, sir. That's why I wanted to put the language in there, "as provided by law."

Mr. Sutherland Senator, I think the reason why it's in here the way it is, "used solely for the operation of the institution for which designated in the appropriation" was to avoid the management boards from using it for other purposes. Would it be possible to have after "which designated in the appropriation by law"? Would that do it?

Mr. Rayburn It probably would. But, if you notice here, you use the word "higher education, post secondary, vocational-technical training, and career education." In my opinion, that covers a lot of them. I just want to really be safe in saying that this board can only administer those funds as provided by law.

Mr. Sutherland I would like to say...

Mr. Rayburn I would not want to sit in the legislature and appropriate ten million dollars to a managing board and not know what they were going to do with it.

Mr. Sutherland I would agree with you, Senator. That's why I say this was intended that it would go to the institution. I'm in favor of what you're trying to do. But I would think that if you said it would go to the sole institution as provided by law, we might be better off, make sure they get it.

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir. That's what I'm trying to do.

Mr. Dennery Senator, do you know I agree with your fears of what could happen if you don't appropriate by a line item. I further agree that you should take out "used solely for operations" because it's quite possible that some of that money may have to be for capital improvement and not for operation. So I agree with your amendment.

My question, though, is in Section 7 (A). It provides that "the Board of Regents shall plan, coordinate and have budgetary responsibility for all public higher education and shall have such other powers, duties and responsibilities as are provided by this section and by law." Do you not agree that the legislature should also adopt some laws telling the Board of Regents how they should prepare these budgets and that they should be line item budgets, etc.?

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Dennery, let me make an honest confession here today. I have no quarrel with the State Board. I have been chairman of the Finance Committee for many, many years. I have my first time to see the State Board deny any request from any institution under their authority that they sent to them. They approve it, and then send their request to the legislature for us to work it out the best way we can. I have my first time to see the State Board deny a request was made by a vocational school; they say, "Yes, we think you should have it." I think that in most cases they are right. But, the legislators happen to be on the other end of the train. They have got to put the coal in the caboose to make the engine run. They're not riding in a pullman car. If the engine don't run, they don't ride.

Mr. Dennery Well, Senator, I agree with you.

Mr. Rayburn That's why I think that we should have some provision "as provided by law."

Mr. Dennery I agree with you, I'm only pointing out to you, sir, that don't you think the language that I read about the Board of Regents gives you and the legislature an opportunity, for the first time, to tell this board, don't just approve everything with a free hand. Look at it carefully, etc.

Mr. Rayburn We've tried that in the past. At one time we had a member of the Senate Budget Committee, Mr. A.D. Smith, who is now deceased, who was on the Budget Committee. The first week that we met, he realized what the State Board had been doing. We attempted to have a meeting with the State Board, and with a Subcommittee of the Budget Committee. Mr. A.D. Smith had an accident, he was about to get it worked out, and he wasn't with us very long, and we never did get through what we were trying to get through. But, all I'm trying to do is say that these funds, Mr. Dennery, and I think you are exactly right, should be spent in accordance to the way the legislature appropriated the funds.

Mr. Bergeron Senator, I just want some clarification. Is this Section 15, Appropriations for Higher Education, in the present constitution?

Mr. Rayburn The way I read it, it means all educational functions. If you read...you're talking about Section 15?

Mr. Bergeron Yes, sir.

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir, it says, "for the institutions of higher education, post-secondary vocational training and career education." Pretty broad language, in my opinion.

Mr. Bergeron Mine too, sir. Thank you.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, if there's no further questions, I now move the adoption of the amendments.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment, and let me state why.

Certainly, Senator Rayburn knows far more about the appropriating process of monies for the state than I do, but let me give you the rationale behind the language now in the proposal. I think Senator Rayburn may be under the misapprehension that this money was intended to go to the Board of Regents. I think you have to read Section 15 in conjunction with Section 7(A), and the powers given to the Board of Regents for budgetary control and curriculum, etc. Now, when you put the amendment in that he has suggested, what you are doing is--and I certainly have no objection to line item appropriations, don't misunderstand me. I think that's inherent in the committee's recommendation to this convention. What it does under Senator Rayburn's amendment, when you say, "and used as provided by law," what you are doing is allowing the Board of Regents, by the power given to them in this...by this proposal, to have budgetary control and program control to tell a university that, let's say, that you've appropriated a half a million dollars by line item to L.S.U. for a sea grant program. Then, the Board of Regents comes along after that money is appropriated to that university, and the Board of Regents says, "You no longer can have a sea grant program because it could be better utilized in another facility." Okay, the legislature has appropriated the money; the Board of Regents has told L.S.U., "You can't do it," so then L.S.U. loses the money. It goes back to the general fund of the state under the budgetary process that we now have in state government because they would have generated a surplus because they can't use it for that purpose; it has to go back to the general fund. Now, if you read the language of the proposal as it is, the managing board would receive the funds, distribute it to that institution as appropriated by line item by the legislature. Now, the Board of Regents has told that institution, "You have to close a particular program." The managing board could juggle the funds, appropriate it to that institution in order to conform with the Board of Regents' instructions. They could not take one penny away from that institution's appropriations because the legislature had appropriated by line item to that institution. But, if you adopt Senator Rayburn's amendment, you take all of the budgetary authority away from the Board of Regents in changing programs, etc., within a fiscal year, within each institution. So that what you are doing is destroying the whole concept and the whole effect of the proposal that's now before the convention. I would ask you, and I'd ask Senator Rayburn to seriously consider the amendment that he has proposed. I don't think that's what he intends to do, but I think that is the net effect of his amendment. On that basis, I ask you to reject the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Womack Mr. Flory, as I see it, you're worried about the Board of Regents taking the money and spending it, finally, or not being permitted to spend it as they saw fit after the legislature has appropriated it. Is that right, primarily?

Mr. Flory No, sir, Mr. Womack. My understanding of the budgetary process at the present time, by line item, you appropriate "X" number of dollars to each university and college in this state. The State Board, then, after you appropriate that money to them, based upon a budget submitted to you, they then go back to the State Board, and they then approve--based upon the appropriation on a line item basis--each item in that budget. The only way that that budget can be changed at that time, after that, is with the approval of the Budget Committee, or with the Division of Administration.

Mr. Womack Both of them. All right, now, what you are saying, you're going to put the Board of Regents into the administration after they once get the money. What this will do will let the Board of Regents go ahead and set up the curricula, set up the fact that they need fifty thousand dollars to repair building "X", and that they need a new automobile for such and such a position and those kind of things, and it will put the Board of Regents to do their managing and help work the problems out of the institution prior to the appropriations. Then, when the legislature appropriates the money, according to Senator Rayburn's amendment, it would go direct to the college or the university, and they would take it, then, and do what was spelled out in the appropriation bill. There would be no need for the Board of Regents to come in and say, "Yes, you can buy the car," because they approve it before it comes to the Budget committee.

Mr. Flory I don't accede to what you have said that I should, Mr. Womack, at all.

[Previous question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I hate to disagree with Mr. Flory, but the law today provides before any institution can take money out of 101 category, which is personal services, to pay the wages of the people they say they need to run that institution, they've got to submit that request to the Division of Administration, and they have to approve it. Likewise, the Budget Committee has to approve it because the law so states that. Many years ago in this state, we found where our institutions would spend thirty percent of their funds the first six months, and to be sure they didn't have anything left over, seventy percent the last six months where they could come back the next year and ask for additional funds and show they'd spent them all. The only thing I'm trying to do is to say that these funds shall be spent in accordance with the law. We further found in this state where we would appropriate money to give the state employees a salary increase, and later on in the budget we'd find out where they took that money and bought automobiles, office furniture, and didn't give those workers an increase. They can't do that anymore because we won't approve it. When I say we, I'm talking about the Budget Committee nor the Division of Administration. That's the law today. All I'm trying to do and trying to say with this little simple amendment: these funds shall be spent in accordance with the law. I think that's good language, and I think it's right. I don't want to have to vote taxes and appropriate a lot of money and let a Board of Regents or no other board spend their funds--those funds--and not comply with the law. All my amendment says, "in accordance with the law." Now, if you're against the law of this state or this land, vote against my amendment. I think it's a good amendment.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate Rayburn, aren't you just saying that you want to prevent misappropriation of funds and maybe keep some people out of the penitentiary, like happened years ago in the state?

Mr. Rayburn Dr. Weiss, I don't want to talk about the penitentiary. I'm one of the best friends they've ever had. I always vote for their appropriations. The only thing I'm saying is this: if this constitution, if you delegates here today, along with myself, write something in the law, I think it should be carried out to that effect. I'm saying if the legislature appropriates funds, they should be spent in accordance with the law. That's all I'm saying; it's just that simple.

Mr. De Blieux I don't know where you get that De Blieux stuff from, Mr. Chairman.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Senator Rayburn, wouldn't this amendment also prevent the institutions from submitting budgets for one thing and then turning around and spending them for something else?

Mr. Rayburn It certainly would, Senator De Blieux, because my amendment simply says these funds shall be expended in accordance with the law. That's all I'm trying to do because I have seen the time in this state when funds that I helped provide were not spent in accordance with the method that I voted for them to be spent. I'm just trying to correct that. I think it's a good amendment, and I hope you adopt it. I move the adoption thereof.

[Motion to waive reading of the Section adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, we have a rather extensive section here that we believe that if you would just let us have about five minutes to regroup our forces, here, that we might be able to cut out about three and a half pages of this four page deal here, and come back...

Recess

[Quorum Call: 90 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Delegates Zervigon, Aertker, Roemer, Burson, and Delegate Conroy adds his name.

Amendment No. 1. On page 8, delete lines 25 through 29, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 2. On page 8, delete lines 30 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 9, delete lines 1 through 13, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 16. (A) The legislature shall appropriate funds to supply free school books and other materials of instruction prescribed by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education to the children of this state at the elementary and secondary levels."

Amendment No. 3. On page 9, delete lines 19 through 23, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 4. On page 9, delete lines 24 through 26, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 5. On page 9, delete lines 27 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

Amendment No. 12. On page 12, delete lines 4 and 5 in their entirety.

Amendment No. 13. On page 12, delete line 6 in its entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"(D) For the".

Amendment No. 14. On page 12, delete lines 13 through 17, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman and delegates, when I read Section 16, I became very concerned. It's four pages, and I really thought we could state it in a briefer manner. The reason these amendments appear to be so complicated is that when one comes before this body, one can never tell in advance what will be controversial. This is an attempt, not to be controversial, which may in itself be controversial. So, I really ask your indulgence. Let me tell you what I've attempted to do, and if any of these amendments become controversial, we can sever them and vote up or down on one amendment or another and vote the rest as a package, it seems to me. I presented this to Mr. Prescott of the School Boards Association, Mr. Porter from the New Orleans school board, and several other people interested in education; they agree to them. These also track Mr. Robinson's amendments which he had tried to present to the committee earlier when he was on the committee. The committee ran out of time at that meeting and was unable to consider it. The committee is in agreement that it needs some cleaning up, although the details of the cleaning up that I've attempted to do, of course, may not please everybody. If you will look at your yellow copy of the bill, I will tell you what I have done. I've deleted the first paragraph--that's what Amendment No. 1 does. Amendment No. 2 allows to remain on page 9, lines 6 through 9, allowing the legislature to appropriate money for school books and other materials of instructions for elementary and secondary school children. That would allow the legislature to appropriate monies for these things for private and parochial schools, as well as for public schools. I was told that this is something near and dear to the hearts of private and parochial school people. The people who operate these schools feel that they can't get along without these services. The rest of that page 9 goes down to the second to the last line, and what remains is the mandate to the legislature that they provide a minimum... sufficient funds for a program of minimum education which shall be distributed in accordance with the formula and procedure set up by the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education. We've established that board already, and this would be their primary duty, as I understand it. Then the rest of this page goes down to line 18 which begins a description of the local funding. I've left in there the authority for local school boards, except New Orleans, to levy five mills. They don't have to levy them all, but they may levy them if they need them. I've taken out the second paragraph, there, which I don't fully understand, but Mr. Prescott says is no longer necessary because of later paragraphs in this article. I've left in the authorization for Orleans to levy the millage which they presently levy--which is thirteen. I can't possibly explain to you how it's different from parish to parish, but with Orleans, it ordinarily is. For that, I apologize. It's no change in the present law. I've left in the paragraph allowing a raise of millage by a vote of the people, and the requirement that the amount, duration, and purpose of such taxes shall be in accord with any limitations imposed by the legislature. I've taken out the final section of that paragraph: "No such tax shall be levied for a period of longer than ten years," because the legislature could set that prohibition in there, if they would like. It will give more flexibility to the local school boards. I've taken out the next paragraph which says that the legislature may provide additional sources. The legislature, as I understand it, may do anything not denied them. They would be able to do that anyway. I've left in the paragraph which declares, "city school boards shall be treated as parish school boards." They feel--Mr. Prescott and the school boards of those two city systems--feel that that is very necessary to clarify their position under the law. I've taken out the provisions on Ouachita Parish. I was told that both the city of Monroe school board and the Ouachita Parish school board feel that it is not necessary.

I'll yield to any questions, although I don't promise to be able to answer them all in detail.

Questions

Mr. Shannon Mrs. Zervigon, there was two sheets of paper passed out with your amendment...

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, Mr. Shannon, that would be what would remain if all of my amendment should pass.

Mr. Shannon This would be Section 16 in its entirety?

Mrs. Zervigon That'd be it.

Mr. Shannon Thank you.

Mrs. Zervigon Only if they all pass, of course. But, it was just to give you some idea of how the section would read. I personally find it easier to follow the deletions on the yellow sheet. Apparently, that isn't so with everybody. They kind of want to know what's left after surgery is completed.

Mr. Shannon But, if your amendment passes, this would be Section 16?

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir.

Mr. Shannon Thank you.

Mr. Kean Mary, I'm looking at your sheet that you say is what it would be if we adopted all of your amendments.

Mrs. Zervigon I haven't proofread that, Mr. Kean.

Mr. Kean Under your local funding, first, I'm sure that this is designed to permit each parish school board to levy annually five mills or so much thereof, as is necessary without any kind of vote. But, it goes on to say they'll do it "in the manner prescribed by law." Then, when you get into the second, where you're talking about the same thing for the Orleans Parish School Board, it doesn't contain that same language. I'm wondering whether or not you shouldn't have a period after "city" in that first paragraph so that it simply would be with the vote of the school board. It seems to me, when you say "in a manner prescribed by law," it leaves some question as to whether or not you had to have a vote in order to carry out that particular section.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Kean, I took that language from Mr. Robinson's amendment. I hated to change it. Since he wasn't here, I couldn't ask him why he had put it in. I would support such an amendment, if you come along behind mine; I agree with you.

Mr. Lowe Mrs. Zervigon, I just wanted to make sure we understood that the features on rollback and rollup apply to this five mills that we are referring to for maintenance purposes.

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir. That's taken care of in the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Article, as I understand it. It's true of all millages presently levied across the board.

Mr. Lowe Well, that's the way I appreciated it also. But, I want it in the record that we both understood that it would apply to the five mills.

Mr. Jenkins Mrs. Zervigon, don't you really think that both your amendment and the committee proposal contains a lot of material that's really statutory? Don't we really only need to maybe establish a basic tax rate and say that the people can vote to increase it, which we could do in about one paragraph?

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Jenkins, I've tried to cut it to a great extent that I thought would be possible, without becoming terribly controversial. If you want to come behind it, and cut it further, I think that might be justified. I really don't know. But, I can't see voting against these amendments which cut it on the grounds that you think it can be cut further than these. It seems to me that supplementary amendments would be the way to do that; don't you agree?

Mr. Jenkins Could be. Let me ask you, too, that with regard to this minimum program that you have in here, both here and in the committee proposal, is it really a wise policy to say that the legislature's going to fund something, and that level of funding is going to be established by the state board? You're going to have people establishing a level of funding which they're not responsible for meeting.

Mrs. Zervigon It doesn't say that as I read it. It says that the legislature sets the level of funding, but, it is distributed in accordance with a formula set by the state board, which is the case at present.

Mr. Jenkins It says "the legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds" for the program...the minimum program will be established by the state board. So, it appears that the state board is setting the level of funding; doesn't it?

Mrs. Zervigon Well, this tracks the present law, Mr. Jenkins. If you want to change that, that's O.K., too. I think what's on the floor right now is the various deletions, not a discussion of what would remain after the various deletions. If someone wants further deletions, that would be extra amendments later on, after these would be voted upon.

Mr. Duval Mary, I certainly agree that you've done a fine job in deleting some of the bulk in the committee proposal. This really goes to something that was in the original committee proposal. But, I need to know what the interpretation is on this formula business. Would the legislature be bound by the distribution formula promulgated by the board? Or, would this formula be sacrosanct since it's constitutionally authorized?

Mrs. Zervigon To this extent, Mr. Duval, as I understand it, for the minimum program, the legislature appropriates the money, and it is distributed in accordance with this formula. Above that, of course, the legislature may do anything it likes that's not prohibited. We have not any place in this proposal prohibited the legislature from appropriating additional funds for education. If the legislature feels that that formula is faulty in some way, or if an emergency arises in some particular parish, the legislature, of course, could come in with special or general appropriations for a special program, for special problems in any one parish, and that sort of thing. Also for private or parochial schools if that should later become possible under federal court decisions, the legislature could also provide money for that because the legislature may do anything not denied it.

Mr. Dennis Mrs. Zervigon, could I ask you a question, please?

Mrs. Zervigon I'll answer you from the great fund of my knowledge about education.

Mr. Dennis Well, this question pertains to whether or not the Monroe City School situation is adequately dealt with. On page 10, line 21, where it says, "each parish school board," etc., "shall levy a tax." In order to cover the Monroe situation, and I assume the Bogalusa situation, shouldn't we say "each parish and city school board"? In other words, shouldn't we include the city or cities of Monroe and Bogalusa, or their school boards there, some way or another?

Mrs. Zervigon I think, perhaps, to be absolutely clear, you might want to come behind me with such an amendment, but, it seems to me that on page 12, lines 6 through 12, that says that city school systems are treated as parish school systems would cover that, in case you don't get a chance to bring an amendment such as that.

Mr. Dennis Well, I know that. But, it says over there that they are treated as parishes, not parish school boards.

Mrs. Zervigon I understand that, Judge, and I wasn't on that committee, and I didn't compose that part of it. My amendments are only deletions. I'm really not here to defend every word of what remains. But, I do believe you're safe under the 6 through 12 on page 12, which says you are a parish, in essence.

Mr. Dennis All right. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I had planned to ask the author of this amendment a few questions, but, since time did not allow it, I will now bring my objections, or at least the reasons that I'm not clear on what the language says under Section (B). I would ask that all delegates get the proposal and look under Section (B). It says that "the legislature shall,"--shall, if you please--"appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum program of education in all public elementary and secondary schools." Then, it further states that "the minimum program for education to be maintained in all parish and city school systems shall be established by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education." That don't bother me too much. But, the language in the first paragraph does bother me, where it says, "we shall appropriate sufficient funds." Then, it says down in the last paragraph under (B), "the board shall adopt formulas, procedures for the distribution of these funds to the several school boards." I can see where maybe the legislature might want to appropriate "X" number of dollars for adult education. If the board disagreed with them, and did not have a formula for those expenditures, then we could not carry out the program that we were willing to fund and willing to carry out, if I read this language right. If we further wanted to adopt special appropriations in some other field of education, and the board did not agree with us, then our hands would again be tied, if we did not have a formula and procedure for the distribution of those funds. Maybe I'm wrong; maybe I'm reading this language wrong. But, I do not think that this convention wants to tell the legislature that we shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum program of education. Then, maybe, we feel a minimum program is one way, maybe this board would feel it's another way, and they do not have the proper formula or the proper procedure for distribution of the funds that we appropriate. For that reason, I'm at a loss as to really know what this provision really means.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Rayburn, what you have reservations about is what would remain if my deletions passed.

Mr. Rayburn I can't hear you, lady.

Mrs. Zervigon Man, that's what they always say. You are worried about the language that would remain if my deletions pass. You are not quarreling with my amendments which delete, but only with what would remain. Is it not the case that perhaps the best course for you would be to follow me with an additional amendment?

Mr. Rayburn Well, I don't know because I'm still not really convinced what some of your other amendments is. If this is a cleaning up program, it must have been awful dirty to start with, and that scares me.

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir. Have you looked?

Mr. Rayburn Now, the committee must have presented us an awful dirty proposal if it takes two pages and fifteen paragraphs to clean it up. That's what scares me a little. I just happened to read this bill; I can't understand it, Mary. Maybe you can enlighten me.

Mrs. Zervigon You're not speaking against any one of the amendments "to delete."

Mr. Rayburn No, ma'am. I'm just trying to define what you're trying to do under (B).

Mrs. Zervigon Thank you.

Mr. Roemer Sixty, aren't what you're really saying...I mean your intent of your message is that perhaps we'd be better off without (B) altogether. Isn't that true?

Mr. Rayburn I certainly feel that way because I would hate to see the legislature placed in the position of providing money, finding additional revenue to try to do something for the schools or for the educational program of this state, and then, the state board didn't provide a formula, or didn't provide a procedure to carry it out. If I read this language, they could easily do that.

Mr. Roemer I agree with you, and I just want you...to know if you understood that the purpose of the amendment that we're on here is to try to delete as much as possible. Perhaps we didn't delete enough. I agree with you on this point.

Mr. Rayburn Maybe so.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, it is my understanding with respect to...Mrs. Zervigon, look and kind of check me and make sure I'm right...with respect to Amendment No. B, the intention of Amendment No. B was to strike out the first and second under (C); the following first and second sources. It does not go all the way. It'd be my understanding that, in addition to the one correction that's been noted, it needs to read "on page 10, delete lines 21 through 32, both inclusive, and on page 11, strike out lines 1 through 12 in their entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Am I right about that?"

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, Mr. Clerk.

Mr. Poynter O.K. Mr. Chairman, make that note.

Closing

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman, I'll make my closing remarks very brief. If you'll look at me for just a second, delegates, what you're voting on is this: a list of deletions. What would remain is this: if you think this is too much, come with your own deletions, but, we are not discussing what would remain; we are discussing only the deletions. I urge the adoption of the deletions.

Questions

Mr. Tate Mrs. Zervigon, if I understand what you have done--you and Mr. Aertker and Mr. Burson, and so on--have simply boiled down, without changing the substance, the present committee proposal. After we've finished these amendments, if we adopt them, then we can vote on the merits of the philosophy expressed. Is that my understanding?

Mrs. Zervigon Very good point, Justice Tate. This is the first time I've come to the mike without something controversial, I think.

Mr. Duval Mrs. Zervigon, do you know that the way you wave those amendments, I thought I was coming in for a landing on an aircraft carrier. Did you know, I agree with your amendments?

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Duval, I've never been on an aircraft carrier.

Mr. Burson Mrs. Zervigon, isn't the basic purpose of this amendment so that we can have something remaining that all of the delegates can read and understand in a few minutes without having to wade through the long proposals that they would have to worry about amending otherwise?

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir. That was the point, and the committee had intended to do that originally, itself. But, like some of the other committees, ran out of time.

Mr. Burson Isn't it true that even the committee proposal recommends a substantial shortening of a very voluminous section of the present constitution, which goes on and on and on about the equalization formula, and how the money is to be appropriated for elementary and secondary education.

Mrs. Zervigon Not only shortening, but a considerable modernization of the language.

Mr. Burson Finally, doesn't your amendment, pre-terminating the question of the relationship between the legislature and the state board which Senator Rayburn has raised about Section (B). Other than Section (B), doesn't the section on local funds track exactly what the present law is, as far as the alimony tax is concerned?

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, it does, and what Senator Rayburn was talking about is the only part my amendment doesn't touch. My amendment touches everything else.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Zervigon, you mentioned that this was not controversial, but, aren't you changing substance when you make these recommendations? For example, the committee has recommended dedicated funds. Now, what other changes are you making in your recommendation that are not argumentative?

Mrs. Zervigon Well, the committee has agreed to take out "dedicated funds," though, Dr. Weiss.

Mr. Weiss That's one of your deletions. What else are you deleting that is substantive?

Mrs. Zervigon Well, Dr. Weiss, that's why I gave you both the deletions and what would remain so that you could read it and judge that for yourself. One can never tell what will seem controversial to someone else. But, the committee was willing to take out the dedication, and so was Mr. Prescott of the School Board Association because they knew that it was coming up in the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Article later on, to have no dedications whatsoever. They're agreeable to that. That never was a whole lot of money to start with.

Mr. Weiss The section, then, is rewritten, as distributed by you in these two pages. Is that correct?

Mrs. Zervigon That's what would remain.

Mr. Munson Well, Mary, I'm trying to understand this. You have this sheet with all the deletions and the amendments.

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir.

Mr. Munson You have Amendment No. 2. On page 8, delete lines 30 through 32, and then you've got Section 16. Right?

Mrs. Zervigon Yes, sir, because I had deleted that...

Mr. Munson "The legislature shall appropriate funds"

Mrs. Zervigon Pardon me.
Yes, sir.

Mr. Munson But, then, on this other sheet of paper here, distributed by Delegate Zervigon, you've got another Section 16, which is these two pages.

Mrs. Zervigon The thing that says "distributed by Delegate Zervigon" is what would remain if all of the deletions passed. The paragraph you read is in the committee proposal. All I did was capitalize the "T".

[Record vote ordered. Amendments adopted: 76-42. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Motion

Mr. Gravel Mr. Chairman, this...the adoption of these amendments by Mrs. Zervigon has, in effect, rewritten this section. As a consequence, those of us who had amendments--I know, I for one--have some problem now in fitting in any concepts that we want to fit into the section, as amended. In view of this, I'd like to ask for a ten-minute recess so we can see where we stand.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as I understand this--and I'm sure I do because I've gone through her amendment and struck out and reworded and written in and placed in--and I come back with exactly what has been distributed here on this sheet where you've underlined. It says this: that the minimum program of education to be maintained in all parish and school systems, shall be established by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education. It gives no guidelines. They can set up one so rich you can't afford it. There is nothing in the world there that says what kind to set up. Then, it goes back and says also that the legislature shall appropriate enough money to carry out this program without regard to what it costs. There ain't no way for me to buy it. I don't believe that the delegates of this delegation here...I don't believe the membership of this delegation really understand what that says. What it says is that if our present system is costing four hundred million a year, and that state board decides that they want a program twice that rich, the legislature is mandated to appropriate eight hundred million dollars to carry it out. That's what it says in this proposal.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Henry Wait, now. We're not going to get into a debate on this.

Recess

[Quorum Call: 123 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to temporarily pass over Section 16 adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Section

Mr. Poynter Section 17. Tulane University
"Section 17. The Tulane University of Louisiana, located in New Orleans, is hereby recognized as created and to be developed in accordance with provisions of the Legislative Act No. 43 as approved July 5, 1884."

Explanation

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this section is included in here because the constitution has it at the present time, and it seems that there is included in this provision some tax exemption grant to Tulane University. They felt rather than get involved in it one way or the other or maybe threaten it in some way that they felt that that should be left in there and included in the present constitution.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Aertker, does this have anything to do with the legislative scholarships that are given from Tulane?

Mr. Aertker I don't believe. I believe that this actually...states actually...is that the Tulane University is recognized and created to be developed in accordance with the provisions of the Legislative Act No. 43 approved July, 1884.

Mr. Sutherland Mr. Aertker, do you recall in our committee on a subsequent proposal that this provision as regarding Tulane was taken out on the advice of several people who had contacted the Tulane administrators and decided that they did not want to be in the constitution?

Mr. Aertker I had heard something to that effect, and so I don't...I really don't know whether that was the...I know it was reported out this way, and so I'm just reporting it to the convention.

Mr. Sutherland Right. But, I think that subsequently after we reported this out, it came to our attention that it was not to be in there, and I think there is an amendment to take it out, that's...

Mr. Aertker I think there is, too, that's why I'm not speaking...

Mr. Juneau Mr. Aertker, just following up on the point of Mr. Sutherland; as I recall, I attended the committee meeting and when a subsequent proposal was brought up that same provision was in, and Mr. Dennery had checked with Tulane University, and as it developed they found out the necessity for having that provision there was because of some contracts with the state. But, those contracts have expired and there's no problem legally, and Tulane University as I understand, has no objection to that language being deleted from the constitution. That's what I recall from the meeting. I just wanted to point that out.

Mr. Aertker So, we have an amendment coming to delete, which should take care of it.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Aertker, do you know that that's Act No. 43 of 1884, it's the one that provides for the legislative scholarships to Tulane University undergraduate school? Do you know that?

Mr. Aertker No, I didn't know that.

Mr. De Blieux So, that's the only authority for that Act...for those scholarships?

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Tobias]. On page 12, delete lines 18 through 22, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this amendment purely and simply deletes Section 17. Act 43 of 1884 goes on for page after page after page. This would be the second time in the constitution where we would be adopting by reference a legislative act complete. The provision would be...the legislative act is in direct conflict with the revenue and tax exemption provisions... the Revenue and Tax Proposal. You've heard the statements which have been made that Tulane University agreed that this provision may be deleted. I move its favorable adoption.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennery Mr. Chairman and delegates, since it was mentioned that my...a statement was made by me--it was repeated at the committee meeting when this came up--I would like to clarify the situation. I have talked to the people at Tulane. They do not want formally to argue one way or the other, as far as this is concerned. They would like...they asked me to please point out to the delegates, as was mentioned by Senator De Blieux, that Act 43 of 1884 does provide for the legislative scholarships. Based upon that act, there is a contract between the State of Louisiana and Tulane University which created the Tulane University of Louisiana. It was an amalgamation at that time of the old University of Louisiana, which was a medical school in New Orleans, and the Tulane University, which had been founded by the bequest of Paul Tulane. This provision has been in the constitution since 1921. Unless there is a reason to delete it, I would see no reason to adopt the amendment proposed by Mr. Tobias. I don't know that there is a reason to delete it, but I don't think it makes a heck of a lot of difference one way or another, since we do have a situation where there is a contract between the university and the State of Louisiana. I would be glad to yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Riecke Mr. Dennery, if this omitted from the constitution, will that mean that a lot of young people will not receive scholarships from Tulane University?

Mr. Dennery I don't believe so, Mr. Riecke, because I think there is a contract in existence. This merely confirms the existence of that contract.

Mr. Riecke In other words, if we leave it out, it will not invalidate that contract--these kids will still get these scholarships?

Mr. Dennery To the best of my knowledge they will, Mr. Riecke.

Mr. Riecke I wouldn't want to do anything that would endanger that.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Dennery, in connection with your statement that this was a contract, is it not true that Act 2 of 1972, which created this convention, prohibited us from impairing the obligations of contracts?

Mr. Dennery Yes, sir. I said I didn't think it would affect the contract. But, I think this merely confirms the existence of the contract; and, therefore, I saw no objection to it.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Dennery, in the projet, which I'm reading from--a copy of which I'm reading from--it points out that to remove this from the Louisiana Constitution may be unconstitutional from the United States law, in that it's contrary...a violation of contract.

Mr. Dennery Well, there is some question about that, Dr. Weiss. Frankly, I don't think it would affect the contract. This is the reason that I suggested we leave it in, so that no question would arise on it.

Mr. Weiss In other words, it's far better...

Mr. Dennery I don't think it hurts anything being in the constitution, and it conceivably could hurt being taken out.

Mr. Weiss It would enhance the statue...the people of Louisiana to rely...to uphold their contracts, even though it's a hundred and fifty or a hundred and sixty years old, then?

Mr. Dennery I would think so.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Dennery, you indicated that prior to 19...that this has been in our laws since 1921.

Mr. Dennery It may have been in there before, Walter; I'm not sure.

Mr. Lanier If all we're doing here is ratifying a statute, is it your opinion that the ratification of a statute could be done by statutory law?

Mr. Dennery You mean by the constitution?

Mr. Lanier No, by just reenacting the statute, putting it...

Mr. Dennery Conceivably, it could be--conceivably. I don't know that there is any necessity to ratify the statute. I think the statute was the basis of a contractual arrangement, an obligation between the state and the university...

Mr. Lanier Well, that was the point I was getting to...

Mr. Dennery Thank you, Senator.

Further Discussion

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I went to Tulane on a legislative scholarship in the '20's. I enjoyed it very much. I think if you take it out, it may have some...endanger the scholarships that we're getting. I don't know whether it does or not; it don't hurt to be in there. So, as a alumnus of Tulane, I ask you all to defeat this amendment and leave it like it is.

Questions

Mr. Vesich Jasper, I've heard you speak. I've heard Moise speak. What you're trying to say is that if it's out, you're not sure; but if it's in, you're sure. Is that correct?

Mr. Smith I think it ought to stay in there. It may do away with the scholarships and it may not. But, I don't think it hurts us to recognize Tulane; it is a school, and it may eat L.S.U. week after next.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Smith, do you believe that we should incorporate by reference a statute which extends over pages and pages and pages, and over four thousand words in the new constitution?

Mr. Smith I don't think it hurts.

Mr. Planchard Mr. Smith, if this convention makes the mistake of taking this out of the constitution at this time, can't you imagine the headlines tomorrow that the L.S.U. delegates axed Tulane?

Mr. Smith What I think, Tulane is in a minority and I feel like the L.S.U. people ought to help us keep it in there.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, although I'm an L.S.U. graduate, I'm willing to recognize Tulane. I know that there are some people that don't consider that it's a great university, but yet, nevertheless, I do. I like to see them win, except whenever they play us. I don't know whether this would have any effect upon taking the scholarships out of Act 43 of 1884 or not, if we did not put this in the constitution. But, we've put a lot of other stuff in this constitution I think we should have left out. I don't feel like these few words is going to make that much difference. So, therefore, I ask you to let's recognize Tulane and reject this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Womack Senator De Blieux, hasn't one of the problems with the 1921 Constitution been the continuous need for amendments?

Mr. De Blieux That's true.

Mr. Womack Well, to your knowledge, has this section ever been amended since it was put in there?

Mr. De Blieux Not that I know of.

Mr. Womack It hadn't been a problem?

Mr. De Blieux It hadn't created any problem for me since I've been in the leg...

Mr. Womack If it's not a problem, there's no reason to mess with it; wouldn't you say?

Mr. De Blieux That's right; just let it stay.

Mr. Hayes Senator, do you consider this aid to private schools in any way?

Mr. De Blieux Well, no, I kind of feel like Tulane is a little bit kind of public. I feel like even though it is considered a private school, I think it's public property. At least, we take them over when we go down there.

Mr. Hayes Well, then, you're ruling then that it is not...Tulane is not a private school; you're saying it's kind of public.

Mr. De Blieux It's privately endowed.

Mr. Hayes So, any other school like Tulane that would...you could classify like this could get this aid, you're saying. Students could use this type scholarship to go to other schools...

Mr. De Blieux We made a little contribution to them last year in getting them to take in about seventy of our medical students.

Mr. Hayes Do you think...if you don't...I'm not really so much against this, other than you think this would cause you to lose the game. But, if you don't think it would lose the...you would lose the games, you would take this out, I would be willing to vote against it.

Mr. De Blieux No. I think they need more than this act in the legislature to win a football game.

Mr. Burns Senator, just for the sake of these three short lines--and if there is any question whatsoever about the legislative scholarship, don't you think it's worth three lines to keep it in there?

Mr. De Blieux Yes. I do.

Mr. Burns I don't want Jasper Smith to say that he's an alumnus of Tulane, and me sitting there and say, but he'd say, "Are you ashamed?" I'm not ashamed; I'm an alumnus, too.

Mr. Mauberret Senator De Blieux, what does Tulane get in return for these hundred and forty-four scholarships that they give out?

Mr. De Blieux They get some darn good students.

Mr. Mauberret Isn't it a fact that they get five million dollars of free assessments in the parish of Orleans for these hundred and forty-four scholarships, other than school properties?

Mr. De Blieux Not being an assessor down there, Dr. Mauberret, I don't know.

Mr. Schmitt Does this also apply to Xavier, Dillard, and Loyola University?

Mr. De Blieux No, only to Tulane.

Mr. Schmitt Why does it only apply to one of them?

Mr. De Blieux Well, because the legislature only passed that act and that agreement when Tulane... whenever they gave them their charter.

Mr. Schmitt So, in other words, if we can introduce an amendment, right now, and extend it to the other private universities in the state, also?

Mr. De Blieux Well, I don't know about that, Mr. Schmitt.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, this is a serious thing, like the Speaker said here--the Chairman. Apparently, most of you don't know the situation. Back in 1880, they wanted to create Tulane University. This land down there, part of it was owned by the state, which as I recall--I'm not going to answer questions, Bob, now--was the University of Louisiana. They passed these laws, and the city of New Orleans, as I recall reading in the old dark statutes, so that they would deed this land to this Board of Supervisors--some such thing created by Paul Tulane's will and that started Tulane University. Now, in consideration of doing that forever and eternally, each member of the Louisiana Legislature would receive one scholarship to Tulane. They later made that scholarship could be used at Newcomb. That's a hundred and forty-four girls and boys in Louisiana continuously can have a scholarship to Newcomb or to Tulane. Now, Dr. Weiss, you're always asking about legal opinions. Now, if I was you, I would vote against this amendment. Why take a chance? Here are a hundred and forty-four scholarships. You're only going to have four lines in this constitution to keep those hundred and forty-four. By leaving it out, it might be construed that we no longer want to hold Tulane or Newcomb to that agreement they made. Now, as to those talking about getting out of taxes, no college that's a nonprofit college--which none of them are--has to pay taxes on the land anyway. So, we got the best of that deal. When Dr. Harris was president of Tulane--I had gone to the law school there when he was dean--it looked like at that time it might be unfair to keep holding them. I asked him. Much to my surprise he said, "Well-born, we like that because it makes it possible to have students at Newcomb and Tulane from all parishes in the state, and it does cost a lot to go to Tulane and Newcomb. Those hundred and forty-four scholarships today are worth probably fifteen or sixteen hundred dollars a year. So, I say, let's defeat the amendment. If you've got a "goody", let's quit...let's put it and keep it in the constitution. I don't want this thing cut off on me today.

Mr. Brown Mr. Jack, I see this was 1884. Were you a coauthor of that bill in 1884?

Mr. Jack I was a freshman down there then.

Further Discussion

Mr. Riecke Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, what I wanted to say has been said before by some of the others; so, I won't be repetitious. I'm in favor of...against this amendment and in favor of keeping the four lines in the constitution in order to protect the two-thousand-dollar scholarships that these boys and girls have. I urge your approval. If there are no other speakers, Mr. Chairman, I move the question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Vick Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise reluctantly. I sat through, I trust with silence and indulgence, throughout the debate on this amendment. I am incredulous, absolutely incredulous. This is a private school; it has no business in this constitution. Why not leave the road map of 1930 in the constitution? The five million in assessments that Mr. Mauberret was talking about include, among others, Brennan's Restaurant--or the land that it's located on and the buildings--not to mention other vast land holdings in the city of New Orleans. I'm not aggrieved, I'm incredulous. I urge you--I don't believe, I don't believe that the scholarships are in jeopardy; vote for this amendment and take this legal anachronism out of the constitution. I move the question.

Questions

Mr. Pugh Mr. Vick, I've been trying to ask a question because it's been some time since I looked at my 1884 acts. I note that there's a reference under the Tulane University provision in the '21 act to 1845, 1852, 1864, and 1866 acts. Do you have any idea what those...I mean, constitution. What did those constitutions say, if anything. If we are now trying to put something about an 1884 act in, what was in the 1845 Constitution about Tulane; do you know?

Mr. Vick Sorry, I don't. You might check with one of the alumni.

Mr. Pugh Well, do you know whether or not Tulane is a private foundation?

Mr. Vick It's a private institution, Mr. Pugh. I think that's a matter of public record; it's not state supported.

Mr. Pugh No, sir. I had reference to a private foundation to determine whether or not we have already created a tax exemption for it; that's all.

Mr. Vick I don't know, don't know, Mr. Pugh.

Mr. Pugh I see. O.K.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Vick, if we follow the rationale of the opponents to this amendment that we've got to keep this in here in order to protect these scholarships, would it, therefore, have to follow that, if and when we write the constitution of the year 2200, we're going to have to ratify and incorporate by reference this act of 1884?

Mr. Vick In perpetuity, there's no doubt.

Mr. Lanier We could never get it out of any constitution, at any time?

Mr. Vick Never, it's indelible.

Mr. Lanier Do you really believe that's the law, Mr. Vick?

Mr. Vick Never.

Mr. Burns Mr. Vick, in this discussion...a lot of people, I think, in this delegation have got the impression that we're giving Tulane something. As a matter of fact, this is a terrific financial burden on Tulane. They are the ones that are giving a hundred and forty-four scholarships to boys and girls throughout the state in return for the original grant that they got. I'm not concerned as much about the law, the legal part of it, as I am about depriving those hundred and forty-four boys and girls throughout Louisiana.

Mr. Vick Mr. Burns...

Mr. Burns ...or, the possibility rather.

Mr. Vick Mr. Burns, I really don't think those scholarships will be in jeopardy. But, the quid pro quo is as Dr. Mauberret said: it's five million dollars in free assessments.

Mr. Flory Mr. Vick, everybody's talking about scholarships to Tulane. Isn't it true that the legislature doesn't get scholarships now to state institutions?

Mr. Vick Not that I know of, Mr. Flory.

Mr. Flory Didn't the legislature abolish the program of legislative scholarships to state colleges and universities?

Mr. Vick Yes. I think they did that some years ago.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Vick, as one of the assistant attorney generals for the state, you've defended many people in the state, I'm sure, as well as those on federal constitutional issues. I would like to read from you the projet and ask your opinion as to this concept of other renowned legal scholars, perhaps before your time. It says as follows: "The transfer has been completed, and the action of the legislature has been ratified and approved by all of the constitutions since 1888, and the act constitutes a contract, any violation of which would be contrary to the United States Constitution." Would you please interpret that for me, please, sir?

Mr. Henry I'm sorry, Dr. Weiss, but he doesn't have time to because he has exceeded his time.

Read the amendments.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up my [by] Delegates Burson, Comar, and Gravel.
Amendment No. 1. On page 8, delete lines 23 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 9, delete lines 1 through 32, both inclusive, in their entirety and on page 10, delete lines 1 through 32, in their entirety and on page 11, delete lines 1 through 32, page 12, delete lines 1 through 17, both inclusive in their entirety, and delete Floor Amendments Nos. 1 through 14, proposed by Delegate Zervigon and adopted by the convention today and inserting in lieu of all of that the following:

"Section 16. Funding; Elementary and Secondary Education; Apportionment.

[Motion to waive reading the amendment adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this amendment, although the instructions state, "delete the floor amendment of Mrs. Zervigon," actually is the floor amendment that Mrs. Zervigon was the lead author on with the exception of a change of the language of Section (B) to meet the objections raised by Senator Rayburn and Representative Womack, Munson, and others with regard to the minimum program formula. Section (A) simply constitutionalizes a mandate to the legislature to prescribe free school books and materials to the children of this state and all schools. Of course, this has a historic meaning in Louisiana of great significance. It may not be constitutional in the strictest sense of the word; but I think if you leave it out, you certainly would give anyone who wanted to oppose the constitution a big weapon to oppose it with. It also, by the language used, guarantees to children in nonpublic schools the right to receive these materials. Section (B) where we have changed the language, we did make a change as follows: The second sentence says: "Such funds as the legislature appropriates"--that is, appropriates for the minimum program of public education--"shall be equitably allocated to the parish and city school systems according to formulas adopted by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education and approved by the legislature prior to the time such appropriation is made." This makes it plain that the legislature must approve the formula which is adopted or promulgated by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education. Otherwise, you leave open the possibility that the legislature might be mandated in the first sentence to appropriate money to meet a formula for which the funds are simply not available. You also make it plain that the legislature has, as it were, an approval to insure that the funds are equitably distributed in the formula to all schools across the state. The purpose of having a minimum program at all is to insure that there are certain minimum standards in public education, met in all the school systems across the state and that the four parishes do not suffer a lack of adequate public education. Section (C), which provides a general statement regarding other funds, is again primarily...was in the original committee proposal to take care of the fact that, historically, parochial and private schools in Louisiana have received some state allocation primarily in the form, for instance, of lunch money and so on. We want to be sure that we are not precluding that in anything that we adopt here. We want to provide for the allocation of funds other than the minimum program. We would do that in Section (C), which had been a separate amendment offered to this... to the committee proposal by Delegates Comar and Gravel. It makes it plain again that the terms of the law appropriating or governing such funds would govern their allocation. Section (D) simply establishes alimony, the present constitutional alimony rates. Under the present constitution, all parish and city school boards, except Orleans, have a five mill alimony for maintenance. Now, I note in looking at the section here that we've still not meet the objection raised by Mr. Kean in a question he asked Mrs.

Zervigon. We probably should have a subsequent amendment to do that and to meet that objection. Orleans, under the present constitution has a thirteen-mill alimony authorization for public schools; that is retained. The third section under (D) gives to the parish or city school districts the right to levy other ad valorem taxes as are approved by the people living in the district. Section (E) deals with the Monroe, Ouachita Parish, and Bogalusa special situations--making it plain that they ought to receive this authorization, also. I'll answer any questions.

Questions

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Burson, I'm looking here under (B) which was supposed to be the amendment that I had agreed upon that was the language that I had prepared. I see here where you say "the legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum program of education in all public"--and I had "public elementary, and secondary schools." The word "elementary" does not appear in this amendment.

Mr. Burson This is a typographical error. It's just been pointed out to me by one of the staff, and I think we ought to ask permission to withdraw the amendment and put that missing word in there. You're correct, Senator.

Mr. Rayburn I know, because that word was in there when I agreed upon it. It was in my amendment. Now, that clarifies (B). Now, let me ask you this about (C). I really can't make my mind up exactly what this language intends to do. You say "Other Funds"; then you say "any funds for the education and benefit of the school children of Louisiana from any other source shall be distributed." Am I correct in assuming that if the legislature complied with Section (B) and they appropriated the minimum amount of money for the public elementary, and secondary schools, and then they decided to make another appropriation--where it says here that "any funds for the education for the benefit of the school children of Louisiana from any other source shall be distributed in the manner determined by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, subject, however, to the terms of the laws appropriating or governing such funds"--now, I'm of the opinion that that can mean additional state funds, federal funds, or local funds; am I correct or incorrect in my interpretation of this language?

Mr. Burson Senator, I do not think it would include local funds, because I think that Paragraph (D) deals with local funds; however, you may need some clarification there.

Mr. Rayburn What funds would it deal with then, in your opinion, and what is the purpose for that language?

Mr. Burson Senator, I'll be frank with you. That language is not mine; that was contributed by the other coauthors of this amendment, and I would prefer to let them tell you what they mean by it.

Mr. Rayburn I can understand the language as far as federal funds are concerned, but I can also interpret it in my feeble way that it would mean even state funds over and above the funds provided in Section (B), which were provided for the minimum cost of the program for public elementary and secondary schools. Then, if we wanted to come back with an additional appropriation, and spell out how it would be used--which the legislature would be the governing authority--that you could very easily do that under this language.

Mr. Burson I think so, because it says it's subject...everything you do would be subject to the terms of the laws appropriating or governing those funds. So, the only thing that the State Board would have to do is just administer it, but the conditions would all be established by the law that would appropriate the money.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Duval Jack, I'm just wondering about the mechanics of your amendment. In Section (B) where it provides "such funds as the legislature appropriates shall be equitably allocated to the parish and city school systems according to formulas adopted by the State Board of Education and Secondary Education, and approved by the legislature prior to the time such appropriation is made," now, what...how does the legislature approve the formula?

Mr. Burson Well, the way it's been done in the past, Stan, as I understand it, is that the legislature--at least on one occasion--actually included the formula in the appropriation legislation; and this, I assume, would be the way that they would customarily approach it.

Mr. Duval This would mean then, as I understand your amendment, that in the event the legislature disagreed with the formula promulgated by the State Board, then the legislature could change its formula and put it in the appropriation bill; is that correct?

Mr. Burson I don't think there's any question but what they certainly have the power then to suggest additions or deletions before they would approve it, and that's the reason it's stated this way.

Mr. Burns Mr. Burson, will you explain to me what the purpose of Section (C) is? I mean, what is it supposed to cover, because Section (A) takes care of the free school books, the transportation, and other materials to all of the children of the state; Section (B) takes care of the public schools, and secondary schools? Now, what is the purpose of Section (C)?

Mr. Burson Mr. Burns, frankly again, this is a sort of an omnibus amendment to combine amendments that we had pending to put on the floor before you in one form, a short version to work on. Section (C) was the product of Mr. Comar and Mr. Gravel, and I understand that the intent was to cover funds other than what would be provided in Section (A) which might be allocated by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, say, to all school children in the state. The only other funds I know of in that category would be something for transportation and lunches, let's say.

Mr. Burns One more question. Under Section (C), would it not be possible for...

Mr. Burson This is in the committee proposal, by the way...

Mr. Burns Well, I'm asking you about this one. Under Section (C), would it not be possible, if the money was available, to give direct financial aid to private schools?

Mr. Burson Well, I think that that would presume, first of all, that such a law would be constitutional--which, as I understand the federal law at the present time, it definitely would not be--and in the second place, I think it would assume that the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education would determine to administer that.

Mr. Burns Well, if that were not possible, what would be the purpose in having (C) in there?

Mr. Burson Again, Mr. Burns, the only reason that was given to me was to take care of the situation of other miscellaneous expenditures such as have been discussed earlier today; driver education, school bus transportation, lunches, and so on.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Burns Well, that's taken care of in Section (A).

Mr. Arnette Jack, Section (B) kind of worries me a little bit because I think some parishes have taken advantage of other constitutional provisions kind of like this, saying revenue and taxation have to do with homestead exemption, or something like that. You say that "the legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum program of education in all public elementary and secondary schools," which means if a parish chose to appropriate no money whatsoever, or a local school board gave no money whatsoever, the state would have to supply all the money for that school system; is that not true?

Mr. Burson No, I don't think that's true, Greg. I think "minimum program" means just that: a minimum...a state minimum program. A state minimum program as established by the legislature might not at all be a minimum program necessary to operate a school system. Historically, the meaning has been simply that this terminology and device has been used as a sort of equalization formula for distribution of state funds for public education. It has nothing to do with what the local people want to establish as their minimum program.

Mr. Arnette Well, I understand what you're saying, Jack, but the language doesn't say that. It says that you will do that in all public elementary and secondary schools.

Mr. Burson Greg, I will refer you to the language of Article XII, Section 14, of the present constitution, and you will find there, in that very long article, set out that one quarter of the money other than certain enumerated dedicated funds which the state has for public education shall be distributed according to a formula by the State Board of Education for a minimum program. What I'm trying to tell you there is that this has a historical meaning that I think the legislators here and the school people here know, and to go beyond that historical meaning means we would wind up here with an article just as long as what's in the present constitution, and we're trying to avoid that here.

Mr. Roemer Jack, in Paragraph (D) under the subheading "Second" it talks about the thirteen mills to be levied by the Orleans Parish School Board. Now, is that mileage--just for our information--is that subject to the same rollforward and rollback provisions under the revenue and taxation?

Mr. Burson Buddy, I think since we've defined school boards as local political subdivisions, it definitely would be; there's no question about that.

Mr. Roemer In your opinion, it will be?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir. I think we used in the rollback provision--I don't have it here--but, as I recall, we used the same terminology so as to be sure to include school boards.

Mr. Pugh Mr. Burson, there are two things that concern me about this amendment. You've addressed some of your conversation to the word "minimum." Frankly, that word disturbs me more than any other in this amendment. Who's going to decide what a minimum is? I can go with this paragraph if you'll take out the word "minimum."

Mr. Burson Well, I think, obviously, the legislature decides what the minimum program is going to be just as the legislature has always decided what the minimum program was going to be with the suggestion of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education. It's got to be a cooperative enterprise, and that is why we changed the language to make it plain that this is something that is worked out in conjunction by the legislature and the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, as historically, as I understand it, it always has been worked out together.

Mr. Pugh Perhaps you misunderstood me...the reference I had. You say "the legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum program." Now, that's the first thing they've got to do, is decide what a minimum program is. Is that it?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir.

Mr. Pugh Well, what does that mean--certain courses to be taught, or so many buildings, or what does it mean?

Mr. Burson Mr. Pugh, again, I've got to say that this is a term of art which is well defined under the present law. I believe that anybody who would have to interpret it would have plenty of law available to interpret what those words mean. But, if we go further than an interpretation of them in here, we would wind up with legislation.. I think it would be appropriate just to refer to the term of art which as plenty of legislation, plenty of history to define it up till now.

Further Discussion

Mr. Comar Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, during a rather lengthy break, I got together with Mr. Burson, Mr. Gravel, Mr. Rayburn, and others, and see whether we could put into some form which was understandable all of the various amendments that we had with regard to the section. I had Ms. Zervigon go over it after it was finished, and she agrees that it's a correct interpretation of her amendment. But, I wanted to come to the microphone to explain one position, and one only. I voted against the original amendments by Ms. Zervigon this morning only because there was confusion, I thought, of what they did. I was in agreement the language should be cut down, as most of you were as evidenced by that vote, but I did see one problem which has now been corrected. Section 16 (A) adequately protects, I believe, the free textbooks program which has been in effect in this state since 1930. However, there was nothing in here which would assure us that we were not saying, in effect, that all other aids would be cut off from nonpublic school children. Thus, we developed the language in (C) which is essentially the same as that in the committee proposal itself--in the original yellow committee proposal. So, I would ask that you support this amendment--I'm sure there will be further amendments after this, but support this amendment so we can have a working document--and to support, in particular, the position which eighty of you took this morning that we did not want to constitutionally prohibit the children from the nonpublic schools from receiving those aids which they have received, or those minimal aids which we foresee in the future. I'll answer any questions.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Mr. Comar, you answered several of my question in (C), so I'll start down at...I guess that's (D). In the third paragraph where it says "Third" you have on the second...third line "subschool districts," and on the seventh line you have "subdistricts." Would you explain that to me, please?

Mr. Comar I'm afraid you'll have to go to those people who drafted the original proposal for that explanation. You're talking in the area of the Orleans Parish School Board proposal?

Mrs. Warren I really don't know, but since you are coauthor...that language, I was trying to get it explained from anybody. It really doesn't matter; I just want to know what it's all about.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Comar Well, I'm sure that one of the other authors can do that. As a matter of fact, as I said, these are the amendments as proposed by Mrs. Zervigon, which is a restructuring of the committee proposal itself. So, I would ask, maybe, that Mr. Aertker might answer that question for you.

Point of Information

Mrs. Warren Mr. Casey, I direct this to you. I am in earnest. Would you ask, when you find out who can give me this answer, would you give me a chance to ask a question?

Mr. Casey Ms. Warren, I would suggest that you address your questions--and I think she's available--Mrs. Zervigon handled the amendment that I put this information in, and I think Mr. Comar is merely using, as a basis, that information that Ms. Zervigon has; so I would suggest that you contact her, Mrs. Warren.

Questions

Mr. Singletary Mr. Comar, can you tell me why Paragraph (B) and Paragraph (D) use the word "public schools," but Paragraph (A) and Paragraph (C) do not use the word "public"?

Mr. Comar Paragraph (A) does not use the word "public" because free school books are provided to nonpublic as well as public school children at the present time, and the present textbook law of the state reads that way. Paragraph (C) doesn't refer to it because, in that instance, I think what I've said before is very true: Unless we have some indication in this constitution that we do not want to cut off the aid which the nonpublic school children now receive, that the courts will interpret our action that way.

Mr. Singletary Under Paragraph (A), as I read it, it not only permits the legislature to supply free school books and materials, but it mandates them to do it.

Mr. Comar That's the way the private law now reads.

Mr. Singletary Is it in the constitution?

Mr. Comar It's in the statutes right now. As far as I'm concerned, my group had no real interest in placing this particular language in the constitution. This was done by the committee itself. I don't think it hurts it to be there, but we were doing well under the present statute arrangement before.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Comar, I am very, very concerned about your Section (C) here. This says "other funds," and I must read that in conjunction with (A) and (B) which refers to funds appropriated by the legislature. Now, it says "any funds from any other source," and this is for the education and benefit of school children. Would this not, in fact, refer to revenues from Sixteenth Section lands that go to local school boards?

Mr. Comar I don't think you could place that interpretation on it at all. As a matter of fact, I think in (A) and (B) you're telling the legislature that they must do something, that they shall appropriate. In Section (C) you're permitting them to do things. For example; in 1972 the legislature, from the general appropriation fund, provided the money I talked about this morning to assist in the payment of salaries of lunchroom workers in nonpublic schools who come under total control of the state.

Mr. Lanier Now, wait a minute, Mr. Comar. This thing says "any funds for the education and benefit of the school children of Louisiana from any other source." Now, how can you construe that as not applying to revenues from Sixteenth Section lands?

Mr. Comar Well, I think it would apply to any funds that the state legislature, in its wisdom, would decide should go into these programs we're now talking about.

Mr. Lanier This is not limited...would you agree that this is not limited just to legislatively appropriated funds? It says "any funds from any other source."

Further Discussion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in opposition to this amendment, and I'll be specific and to the point with my reason, and the reason is contained in the (C) Section of this proposal. It is just as obvious as anything that this opens the door to aid, grant-in-aids, to any type of aid. It's an avenue that's so broad in language that except for the basic appropriation to public education, any other type of appropriation...any type of funding could be made. In fact, as I appreciate and read this, I could even see where federal funds coming into this, which would be any other funds other than that, could actually be siphoned off into the direction of private schools. I think that the very fact that we have changed the wording on this thing from "public" to "all school children" is quite obvious. I think a word of explanation about the committee proposal: It is true, the language in the committee proposal did come out of the committee, but like many of the things that came out of the Committee on Education, it came out of there on a split vote; and when this proposal, Section 16 came out, the author of that proposal at that time...When this committee report came out with Section 16 in it, it was pointed out to the committee at that time that there would be an attempt made on this floor to eliminate much of the wording of this entire section. This was the purpose of getting together with delegates in here who had interest in the educational program and who had some knowledge about the educational problems that we had in the state. This was the reason why we did not go into the full four pages of Section 16. Our attempt was to do it by the amending process just as we've done on all the other sections. But, this Section (C)--if this is passed--just opens the door for the very thing that we are talking about trying to keep out of this constitution, trying not to be an issue involved in this so that...because if this is in the constitution, I can tell you that we have created just mass opposition to this entire document throughout this state, because the material that I got through the mails indicated that the people in parochial schools and private schools were interested in maintaining those things they presently have: textbooks, free lunches, and certain materials that they... and the bus service that they get. This we have repeatedly stated that we have no desire to take from these individuals or from these operations. We are just as adamant, though, in the other direction that we do not intend or do not wish to open the door to other types of grants other types of expenditures of public funds in the direction of private and sectarian operations; and this part (C) here definitely opens the door, and I urge you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I want to ask you to vote against this amendment, basically on the wording of Section (C). I'm in complete agreement with Mr. Lanier when he requested one of the speakers here in reference to proceeds and revenues from Section Sixteen school lands. As I understand this section, the state would consider one hundred percent of the revenue from school sections, whereas now they are taking fifty percent of it. I have an amendment which would prevent the state from considering any of the revenues from school Section Sixteen lands. I believe when you understand a little bit more about these school sections, that you'll go along with my amendment. If we adopt this whole amendment, then that will completely do away with mine; so please vote against it.

Point of Information

Mr. Riecke I rise for some information from the Chair. Is there any reason why we can't consider this amendment as we have all the others in the past by a paragraph at a time?

Mr. Casey If you're asking for a division of the question, Mr. Riecke, which I think you are, the Clerk advises--I don't have a copy of the amendment before me--but the Clerk advises that it's not divisible. It looks like it's all in one amendment, and the...

Mr. Riecke Well, now wait a minute, Mr. Chairman...

Mr. Casey Let me just finish. The Chair has consistently ruled that we are not able to divide one amendment paragraph by paragraph. Now, you could in the case of Ms. Zervigon's amendment where she had Amendment Nos. 1 and 2, etc. That's why we specifically suggested, when Mr. Avant brought up that idea before about dividing one of the paragraphs, that the gentleman--whoever it was in the Morris amendment--withdrew his amendment, redrafted it, so that the question could be divided. So I have to be consistent and say that we cannot divide the amendment.

Mr. Riecke Well, Mr. Chairman, on the original No. 16, we were going to vote on them paragraph by paragraph, and this isn't any different from that.

Mr. Casey Mr. Riecke, I'll have to take issue with you. I don't think we were going to vote on it paragraph by paragraph.

Motion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, I move for a suspension of the rules so that this amendment may be considered paragraph by paragraph.

Mr. Poynter Mr. Avant, you might want to wait. I think Mr. Burson is going to withdraw this amendment right now and make a few changes, and maybe you'll still want it after he does it. But, for the time being, I think he does want to withdraw it and make a few changes anyway.

Mr. Avant Well, I'll wait then.

Motion

Mr. Burson I'd like to move to withdraw the amendment, not with the consent at this time, as far as I know, of any of the coauthors. But, I am convinced by some of the debate here that there's one section in there that I personally do not wish to sponsor, and I would like to withdraw it for the purpose of dividing the question in the manner that's been requested.

[Motion to suspend the rules to withdraw the amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The amendment [by Mr. Burson] is resubmitted with the following changes: first, with respect to Paragraph (B), on Paragraph (B) after about the fifth word "minimum," insert the word "foundation." So, it would read: "The legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum foundation program of education in all public"--and previous correction--"elementary and secondary schools."

The second change is that Mr. Burson is submitting the amendment deleting present Paragraph (C). Just strike it out altogether--(C) comes out altogether. The only two other changes are technical in the sense that old (D), change it to (C)--change the letter in parenthesis to (C). On the second to the last line, change that one and make it (D)--the second to the last line. Those are all the changes. (C), again, has been deleted altogether. After the word "minimum" on the second line of Paragraph (B), the word "foundation" inserted. Previously noted, after the first word of the third line in (B), the word "elementary" inserted--"public elementary and secondary schools."

Explanation

Mr. Burson I think that the deletion of this section will remove the...all the question that were directed at this amendment, and questions which, frankly, aroused my interest, too, in the end. That was the reason I asked to have it resubmitted in this form.

Questions

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Burson, with regard to Section (A), don't you think that we have the same problem with (A) that we had with (B) before because isn't (A), first of all, saying that the State Board of Education has sole authority to prescribe whatever books and materials it wants without...regardless of any acts of the legislature? Second, that whatever they do prescribe without limitation, the legislature shall appropriate funds to pay for them?

Mr. Burson Well, Mr. Jenkins, I can see where, if you stretched this language to the ultimate, you might reach such a conclusion. But, frankly, I think we have to sometimes in these proceedings presume a minimum of good will and intelligence on the part of the people who will hold the offices that we are constitutionally creating. As I understand it, (A) is simply a restatement of what the present law is: that is, that the Board of Education prescribes those materials which will be taught in our schools, and the legislature provides the money to pay for them. I don't think that changes the status quo in any substantial manner.

Mr. Jenkins Now, second, isn't it true, really, that (A) and (B) are wholly statutory in nature and have no business in this constitution?

Mr. Burson Mr. Jenkins, the only answer I can give you there is that Sections (A) and (B) are in the present constitution, only in much, much lengthier form. Section (B) relates to a minimum foundation program of public education which, restated, means simply that no parish in the state will be allowed to have less than a certain minimum for public education. This is to insure some sort of equalization of educational opportunity throughout the State of Louisiana, to insure, for instance, of teacher pay. I think that this is a laudable and a worthwhile aim and deserves constitutional status for that reason. It's in another form in the present constitution.

Mr. Comar Mr. Burson, are you aware of the fact that during that last brief recess I was able to meet with a couple of attorneys and agree with you on the deletion of Section (C)? As I understand--and I'd like for you to clear this up--as I understand, the intent now of this amendment would be to specifically remain silent, as we voted this morning on the question of whether or not there shall be aid to the nonpublic school bill.

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, Mr. Comar. I think it was the overwhelming verdict of this convention that this constitution should not be either pro or con any state aid to private schools beyond what we know has traditionally been given--which is covered by the language that we have--but that we would leave the constitution in a neutral position, as it were, on this topic. I think that that's the net effect of what we do here.

Mr. Womack Mr. Burson, while...when I first read Section (A), I had some reservations about the wording--but, when you tie (A) and (B) together--that any unusual request or requirement made in Section (A) would be controlled, or Section (B) would be a deterrent toward anything happening in (A) that would be out of line, because it's all coming out of the same fund, anyhow. In view of that, don't you think that Section (B) will tend to control any unusual factor that would be in Section (A) and that both of them together would be all right?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, Mr. Womack, because you couldn't buy the books without an appropriation to buy them with. I think that's true.

Mrs. Corne Mr. Burson, I'm looking at your Section (A) which says "The legislature shall appropriate funds to supply free school books." If you would substitute the word "free" there for the word "necessary"--naturally the school books are free if it's appropriated by the legislature--and if you would have the word "necessary," you would have a limit as to the money that is spent for the textbooks. It would be necessary for a minimum program of education, would it not?

Mr. Burson Yes, ma'am; yes, ma'am. The only reason I think the term "free school books" was used is because it has a historical meaning in Louisiana; and "free school books" has meant, I think, historically, "necessary school books." If you want anything more than what's necessary, then it's up to the local boards to provide that themselves. They can, and they are free to provide more enrichment programs, if they have the means to do it.

Mrs. Corne Right, but then the appropriation would be for "necessary school books" in order to carry out the program of education?

Mr. Burson Yes, ma'am; I think that's correct.

Mr. Singletary Jack, I disagree. If I understood what you said to Mr. Comar, I disagree with you in that if you do not use--in Paragraph (A)--if you do not use the word "public schools," then you are mandating--not simply allowing, but mandating--in this constitution that the legislature provide free books to both public and private schools. Would you comment on that?

Mr. Burson Mr. Singletary, I would answer you there again by saying that, as Justice Holmes said, "A page of history is worth a volume of logic." The history of this state, the former Governor Huey Long argued the case before the United States Supreme Court--in which, as I recall, the then Chief Justice Taft said he made the most eloquent argument he had ever heard--in which the U.S. Supreme Court sanctioned the use of public funds for providing free school books to all children in the State of Louisiana. This has been the practice ever since that time. I think we've got a clearly defined historical situation that we don't need to torture by nit-picking in this constitution.

Mr. Singletary I don't think I'm nitpicking. Isn't it true--you speak of the history of this state--hasn't it been in the prior constitution in Article XII, Section 13...wasn't it prohibited...wasn't aid to private schools prohibited?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, that's correct.

Mr. Singletary Haven't we deleted that prohibition from this 1974 Constitution?

Mr. Burson The Education Committee did not see fit to report out a proposal with that in it. If I might say so, I think they exercised good judgment in that regard. Personally, I am a proponent of--I serve on a board, a public school board. But, I think that the citizenry of this state--the last poll I saw showed forty-three percent of the people in favor of aid to private schools, forty-two percent against, or vice versa; and either way you took a stand on this, you were going to come out behind. I think that the federal law, in the end, is going to govern, and what the United States Supreme Court says can be done in this area is all that can be done, no matter what we say in this constitution. I think that the approach adopted by the committee to be neutral on the issue is wise.

Mr. Singletary Let me...I don't think we're being neutral, but let me say this: if we insert the word "public schools" in Paragraph (A), but there's no prohibition against giving textbooks to private schools--if the legislature is not prohibited--then couldn't they give them free textbooks?

Mr. Burson Mr. Singletary, I suppose that would be true, but I'm satisfied with it in the form that it's in. I think that fairly represents the present law, and I don't think anybody in here wants to change that. Nobody has...

Mr. Singletary Well, I believe I do.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Burson, Representative Jenkins raised a question about the language in (A) where it said, "The legislature shall appropriate funds to supply free school books." I'm of the opinion that that does not mandate the legislature to appropriate the entire amount of funds that might be prescribed by the State Board. Do you share my views?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, absolutely.

Mr. Rayburn If it would say that we shall appropriate sufficient funds as prescribed by the board, then it might be binding. But, I'm of the opinion--and I want to know how you feel about it--if the State Board should say that we needed a million dollar figure for school books, and the legislature says we can get by with eight hundred thousand, and we appropriated eight hundred thousand, I think we'd be in compliance with this language.

Mr. Burson I don't think there's any question, Senator. The power of the purse belongs to the legislature. What this language says is simply that the "what books" and "what materials" would be prescribed by the State Board, but the amount, certainly, has got to be decided by the legislature.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted; 97-17. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter This is the LeBleu amendment which was distributed, originally; it was drawn to go to the original printed proposal. Mr. LeBleu wants to, in effect, make this a new Paragraph (E) to be added onto the end of the language contained in the Burson amendment. So it would go:

In Convention Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Burson and adopted by the Convention on today, on page 2 of said amendment, at the end of the language added thereby, add the following paragraph: (it would read)

"(E) Revenues derived from Sixteenth Section lands shall not be used in any manner in determining the apportionment of state funds for the support of public schools to parish school boards."

Explanation

Mr. LeBleu Fellow delegates, for those of you who are not familiar with the Section Sixteen lands that belong to the school boards, let me see if I can give you just a brief explanation. Somewhere around 1800 the federal government, when Congress authorized the survey of lands in the United States, they also, at the same time, gave the local school boards each Section Sixteen in each township. In some cases, they gave Section Sixteen as well as Section Thirty-six. Now, there are thirty-six sections in each township. Down through the years, some of the school boards in the state have disposed of their school sections, which they are allowed to do under the law by a vote of the people. In some other cases, the school boards were relieved of their school sections through...by the state, say, in awarding veterans land grants, etc. But, in those cases, the federal government made up to the state, in cash, the value of those school sections, and that money has stayed on deposit with the state down through the years. The school boards are authorized to collect the interest each year. Some years ago, the State Board of Education decided that they would take fifty percent of the proceeds of the revenues collected by the school boards in figuring the state equalization formula. Most of the parishes in south Louisiana have retained these school sections, since many of them are located out in the marsh and inaccessible areas. But, they have become valuable down through the years through gas and oil production, hunting leases, trapping leases, in many cases agricultural leases. In other areas of the state, the school boards still retain some of these school sections from which they derive some proceeds from the timber. Actually, the state doesn't take half of the revenues from the school sections, but when they reimburse the parish for its amount, according to the equalization formula based on per educable, the amount that is sent to the parish is discounted fifty percent--fifty percent of that revenue. So, in effect, the state is docking the school board in that amount. In Cameron Parish, in particular, the school board in the past has used what they had left for the construction of new schools. In one instance, they run a school bus up to McNeese and Sowela Tech to provide further education for some of the children in Cameron Parish. But, in no case, if we pass this amendment, would it deprive any parish of the amount that it would normally receive from the state, because the state would have to make up the difference. In some cases, it would be just as profitable for a parish to sell or dispose of its school section because they're going to get the same amount of money from the state, anyway. If we pass this amendment which would allow the school boards to retain all of the revenues from the school section lands, it would allow them to have enrichment programs, etc. In another instance in Cameron Parish, what has happened, by the state taking so much of this money, the school board now finds itself in a position--last year they had to go to the State Board of Education and borrow forty thousand dollars to complete the school year--now, they are faced with the problem of having to ask the voters to pass an ad valorem tax bond just to operate and maintain the schools. I appeal to you on this amendment strictly on the basis of being fair. It really isn't fair the way the state has done it, and that's the only reason why I'm asking you to pass this amendment.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. LeBleu, as I understand it at the present time, proceeds from the Sixteen Section lands are included in the equalization formula, are they not?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir.

Mr. Kean Therefore, if we adopt your amendment, we would completely have to revise the present equalization formula?

Mr. LeBleu Well, it would just be a simple matter of subtraction, Mr. Kean, because all they do is discount the amount that they send back to the parish on the per educable basis.

Mr. Kean But, if we kept the same equalization formula, and we didn't take into consideration the proceeds of the Sixteen Section lands, then those parishes which had the tremendous amounts of money coming from the Sixteen Section lands would be getting that money in addition to what they got from the equalization formula, wouldn't they?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir, that's right; and as I understand what we just passed, that's the way it's supposed to be.

Mr. Aertker Mr. LeBleu, you realize that if this amendment were passed that we would have to completely restructure the equalization formula that we presently have, since this is an integral part of it? It's the basic philosophy about that if you have so much money at the local level that you ought to be expected to share that, while the lesser and less fortunate areas would not have that. You recognize that?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir, I'm completely willing for Cameron Parish to share its revenues with less fortunate parishes. But, let me tell you how we share. On the severance tax, for instance, we get...the school board gets back one hundred thousand out of thirteen million dollars. Those royalty funds--they get maybe fifty or sixty thousand dollars a year. Under this equalization formula, they're taking about seven hundred thousand away from Cameron Parish. So, to me, I think charity begins at home, and if we're allowed to keep this money, we can help ourselves without going to the state to have to do it.

Mr. Aertker Do you realize, then, that what you would be doing here is the rich would be getting richer and the poorer parishes would be getting poorer under this formula?

Mr. LeBleu Well, you don't really want me to answer that, Mr. Aertker.

Mr. Hayes Mr. LeBleu, while Mr. Aertker might have asked that question, I couldn't hear what he was saying. But, I was wanting to say is that you said some of this land wasn't worth very much--some of the Sixteen Section land wasn't worth very much. Therefore, in the revenue sharing they would make up for some of this in redistributing the money. Now, when this same land starts producing oil, then that will be put back into the revenue sharing, wouldn't it?

Mr. LeBleu That's right.

Mr. Hayes So, then we could redistribute this money to the other parishes where it was needed. Isn't that correct? So, if we would adopt this amendment, we couldn't do that, could we?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir, that's right. Let me say this: during the depression, during the depression, the Cameron Parish school board paid its teachers in script--can you imagine? I.O.U.'s? But, they wouldn't sell their school sections, so we're penalizing the school boards for being good business people and looking out for the welfare of their parish. Is there anything wrong with that?

Mr. Hayes I don't know, but I was...I have been told--I'm not aware of it--but I understand they did that in quite a few places. I'm not quite old enough to understand all about the script, but I understand they used it in quite a few places.

Mr. LeBleu Well, Mr. Hayes, if you look at that schedule that I passed out yesterday, it tells on there exactly how much each parish is involved in the Section Sixteen proceeds.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Slay Mr. LeBleu, of course, did you know that I think you've got a good amendment? Now, if Cameron Parish just wanted to, they could just turn around and sell all of that land now and get the money, and the state wouldn't benefit from it anyway, after you drew that one big check--if you wanted to do the state like that--but, you haven't done that. Now, the other parishes of the state had their lands, and they traded it off to the railroads; they took the rich plum when they could. Cameron Parish and Rapides and some of the others had to hold some of this old land, didn't they? So, now, you were stuck with that land back in about 1800, and now that the benefits are coming up, you're deprived of half of what it would bring to your parish. I think you've got a good amendment. I think you know that, and I would hope it is passed.

Mr. LeBleu Thank you, Mr. Slay, and you're perfectly right because the school board had the privilege of retaining these school sections or disposing of them by a vote of the people...

Mr. Lanier Mr. LeBleu, in line with what Mr. Slay said, the way this system is set up right now, aren't the parishes that showed good land management being penalized now for their good management practices in the use of their lands?

Mr. LeBleu Not only for the good management of it, Mr. Lanier, but also for actually holding onto it.

Mr. Lanier But, really, you wouldn't mind helping out a poor little old parish like East Baton Rouge Parish that Mr. Aertker comes from, would you?

Mr. LeBleu If I look at my figures correctly, I believe East Baton Rouge comes in pretty good on this...

Mr. Winchester Conway, did you know that St. Mary Parish's amount of assessment was twenty or twenty-five percent; and, therefore, on the equalization fund, we were penalized for doing a good job? We were also penalized for doing a good job by retaining our Sixteen Section. I'm for your amendment 'cause I don't think that we should be penalized for doing a good job in assessment purposes and also a good job for having retained our Sixteen Section. I'm for your amendment all the way.

Mr. LeBleu Thank you, thank you, Mr. Winchester. Let me say this: I wanted to thank Mr. Winchester for his remarks, but we're not really considering money in this convention. We're considering what is right and what is wrong, and what we want to straighten out while we have the opportunity. That's all. Nobody should be concerned about the money, here.

Mr. Rayburn Conway, maybe I don't understand what you're attempting to do, but...in a lot of the wealthier parishes in this state where they have oil wells on Sixteen Section land, I'm of the opinion--if my memory serves me right--that they retain, I believe, the first two hundred thousand dollars, or up to two hundred thousand, of those revenues on a local level. Any amount of money over the two hundred thousand--and I could be incorrect about that figure--that goes back into the equalization fund, and it is distributed according to the amount of students in those poorer parishes. Now, am I right or am I wrong?

Mr. LeBleu No, sir, you're wrong, Mr. Rayburn. The two hundred thousand dollars is the limit that's presently set on the severance tax that's collected within a parish.

Mr. Rayburn That's right.

Mr. LeBleu That two hundred thousand dollars generally goes back to the various taxing districts within a parish. The police jury gets a portion...

Mr. Rayburn Well, now you're talking about the interest that's only received from the Sixteenth Section lands--the interest only--and has nothing to do with the oil revenues?

Mr. LeBleu No, sir. The interest that I was talking about was...came from the money that the federal government paid the state and is now on deposit in a perpetual loan in the parish in which those school sections were disposed of without the consent of the people. That parish is now eligible to draw that interest, or I believe it's fifty percent under this equalization formula.

Mr. Rayburn Well, you're talking about roughly about a hundred and sixteen thousand dollars a year? I'm looking at some figures here where the amount of interest is derived from state lands or local owned lands. Acadia Parish gets thirty-two thousand, and your parish of Cameron, I believe, Cameron Parish--I believe you get about two thousand, two hundred and forty-one dollars. Are those the figures you're talking about?

Mr. LeBleu Apparently that's the interest.

Mr. Rayburn That's what I'm talking about; that's the interest.

Mr. LeBleu If you look on one of those other pages, it will give you--under the column that's marked with an asterisk--the proceeds from the Section Sixteen lands.

Mr. Rayburn What I'm trying to find out, Conway, is what are you talking about in actual dollars and cents that if we in this constitution take away from the other parishes, what will we have to make up out of the general fund, or what...who's going to get this money--get to keep this money--and who's going to make up the difference? Where is it coming from? I'm not against your amendment; I'm just seeking information and trying to figure out what we're talking about in dollars and cents. Where are these funds, if your school board is allowed to keep these interest funds and they have been charged against your school board--which I assume I'm correct in saying? But your amendment is going to say, in the future, that your school board or any other school board that now produces these funds will be able to keep them, and they will not be charged in the money that the state provides in their distribution back to the local school boards.

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir.

Mr. Rayburn Do you follow what I'm trying to find out?

Mr. LeBleu Those school boards who still own their school sections can lease them for agricultural purposes, hunting, trapping, have oil production leases. Any of the proceeds from the school sections lands will remain in the possession of the school board that owns them. That school board will not be discounted fifty percent in the money that they receive back from the state to operate the schools.

Mr. Rayburn But, today it is; those funds are discounted, and they have to assume...

Mr. LeBleu Fifty percent.

Mr. Rayburn How much are we talking about that we're going to have to make up out of the general fund, if your amendment passes?

Mr. LeBleu We're talking about around two million dollars. But, let me say this: the state has got to do it. It's just like a question was asked while ago--Mr. Slay. What would happen if the school board would go sell these school sections? The state would take half of it, I suppose. I don't know what they would do with it, the way the states operate. But, anyway, in the future, there would be no proceeds because they would sell them to some individual who would reap the benefits of the proceeds. All I'm trying to do is let the school board who owns those school sections that were given to them by the government a hundred and fifty years ago retain the revenue that's derived from the leases, etc., on those school sections.

Mr. Rayburn I'm for you doing that, but in the past these funds or a percent of these funds has been figured in the equalization fund. Now, they will not be anymore; and then, if they're going to be able to retain these, then we'll have to supplement the amounts that are now being derived in these funds--the legislature will have to appropriate money to supplement that--if they're not going to charge the parishes for receiving those funds anymore. Am I correct?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir; yes, sir, you're right, Senator Rayburn. The closest figure that I can give you is about two million dollars, statewide.

Mr. Rayburn You know...let me just say this in closing: some of those poorer parishes had to sell that Sixteenth Section land, years ago, to survive.

Mr. LeBleu You didn't hear me say that Cameron Parish had paid their teachers and school employees in script, did you, Mr. Rayburn?

Mr. Weiss Delegate LeBleu, wouldn't you say this is a technical amendment in the real sense of the word in that we've already--in the wisdom of the convention, and I think very wisely--deleted "dedicated funds for state severance tax for educational purposes"? It's time we get it out of the equalization program and that's all it does, is take the severance tax out of the equalization formula.

Mr. LeBleu Well, I'd say in one sense you're right, Dr. Weiss, but, we're not talking about severance tax. Severance tax is something else.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 63-46. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter- Delegate Landrum sends up amendments at this time. This amendment has been previously passed out. However, the instructions of it need to be altered in light of the adoption of the amendment proposed by Delegate Burson.

Amendment...instructions would read as follows: In Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Mr. Burson and adopted by the convention on today, at the end of line 15 of the text, add the following:

"Funds appropriated under such formulas shall include monies for travel purposes related to educational and learning experiences."

Now, that line 15 is the last line of Paragraph (B).

Explanation

Mr. Landrum Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this amendment is designed to help our young people to grow up to be fine citizens of the State of Louisiana. We have dealt with the universities, and the structures of the boards. We had, also, the different incentive programs. I believe young people need an incentive today. I believe that they need an incentive to remain in school, that they may learn and become productive citizens of this state. Traveling, in my opinion, is one way of teaching young people to become good citizens. I think we could learn a great deal through traveling. Many of our people, are born, reared, and die in one area of the state, or a town or village, without ever getting to see any other part of the earth. I believe that we should be able to let our young people see something in the course of a lifetime, and no better way of doing this than through the educational process. Right in our own state, there are many things that young people can learn in Louisiana; that they could learn about Louisiana by going to different places right here in the state. I believe that the time will come when traveling will be a part of the curriculum of education. That's what I'm hoping that this would...amendment with your help...would accomplish.

If there are no other questions, I have no question: I ask for a favorable vote.

[Amendment reread. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 34-68. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Leigh]. On page 10, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Burson and others and adopted by the convention November 16, delete lines 25 through 29, both inclusive of said floor amendment in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"First: Each parish school board"--now that constitutes in Paragraph (C), after the initial language, the paragraph if you will, in its literal sense of the word designated first--"First: Each parish school board, the parish of Orleans excepted, and each municipality or municipal school board actually operating, maintaining, or supporting a separate school system of public schools, shall levy annually an ad valorem maintenance tax of five mills, or as much thereof as is necessary, on all property subject to such taxation within the parish or city, as the case may be, in the manner prescribed by law."

Explanation

Mr. Leigh Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, it may be wishful thinking, but I feel that this is a technical amendment which I hope you will adopt. In the floor amendment--in the floor amendment adopted first as submitted by Mrs. Zervigon and resubmitted by Mr. Burson and adopted by the convention--about the middle of the page there, it provides that "each parish school board, the parish of Orleans excepted, shall levy annually an ad valorem tax, etc., on property situated...on all property subject to taxation within the parish or city in the manner prescribed by law."

Now, I'm sure you are familiar with the situation which exists in Monroe and in Bogalusa where there are city schools in addition to the parish schools. I am afraid that this provision, as drawn and as adopted, does not afford authority for the levying of the tax by the city school board, or the municipal school board. So, I am adding to that, the language "each parish school board, the parish of Orleans excepted, and each municipality or municipal school board actually operating, maintaining, or supporting a separate school system, shall levy an ad valorem maintenance tax of five mills, or as much thereof as necessary, etc., on all property subject to taxation within the parish or city, as the case may be."

I think the amendment is self-explanatory. I understand that there is no objection from Mrs. Zervigon to it, or to Mr. Burson. I don't think it's controversial. I would like to urge the adoption of the amendment.

I yield to questions.

Questions

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Abraham Tom, if this amendment passes, well, wouldn't that, in effect, make it possible to delete Paragraph (D) from the Burson amendment?

Mr. Leigh I don't think so, Mr...Mack, because the Paragraph (D) gives them the authority of a parish school board. This gives them the taxing...the right to tax--a parish school board. I don't believe that the two sections are conflicting.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Tom, aren't you only attempting to clarify and include municipal school boards? You're not having anything to do with the limit of millages or nothing, are you?

Mr. Leigh Not a thing in the world...just simply to give them the right to tax--just give them the authority...

Mr. Rayburn I mean under the same provisions the parish school board has.

Mr. Leigh The same provision the parish school board has.

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennis Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I just wanted to briefly second which...that which Mr. Leigh said. We felt like that the committee and Mrs. Zervigon attempted to take care of this, but it was not absolutely certain that you were giving the cities of Monroe and Bogalusa the authority to impose this five mills within the city for their schools. Also, in Monroe, we have the peculiar problem, that the city school system runs the schools, but the city of Monroe imposes the taxes and issues the bonds. So, we...we've attempted to frame the language so that we can continue to finance and run the schools in the same manner. It does no violence to the rest of the provision, and I'd ask for your favorable report.

Questions

Mr. Stinson Jim, they, under the present law or the present constitution, have that authority now, don't they?

Mr. Dennis Yes, sir.

Mr. Stinson It's just questionable whether or not the last amendment continued the...the committee did not allow that, did it?

Mr. Dennis Sir?

Mr. Stinson The committee report did not give you that right, did it?

Mr. Dennis Yes, they did. Mrs. Zervigon's amendment has chopped out the particular language that made it absolutely clear that we could do that. We are trying to restore it in less words, in a more succinct fashion here.

Mr. De Blieux Judge Dennis, unless I misread the Zervigon amendment, in looking at it...according to this handout it's supposed to have been the provision as adopted in that amendment. If you will notice in Paragraph (C), the first paragraph, it says, "each parish school board, the parish of Orleans excepted, shall levy annually an ad valorem tax of five mills."

You turn over to Paragraph (D) of that section, you'll notice it says, "For the effects and purposes of the provisions of this entire section, the municipalities of Monroe, in Ouachita Parish, and Bogalusa in Washington Parish, and no other, shall be regarded and treated upon the same basis and shall have the same authority as if they were a separate parish..."

Mr. Dennis Separate parishes.

Mr. De Blieux ...instead of municipalities.

Mr. Dennis Separate parishes. That's the point. This provision requires a parish school board to levy a tax. Then it says that Monroe and Bogalusa are going to be treated as parishes; it doesn't say parish school boards. We don't think that that is a clear enough grant of taxing authority. Now, you had a very clear one in there that Mrs. Zervigon's amendment took out. We would like to put it back in there just as clearly as it was before. We are only adding just a few words to do it. So, I ask you, please, Senator De Blieux, let us be sure that we can continue to run the schools in the city of Monroe and Bogalusa.

Mr. De Blieux Well, let me just be sure that I understand you. Are you deleting Paragraph (D) and putting your amendment in?

Mr. Dennis No, sir. No, sir, we are simply adding some words to this paragraph marked "First" to make it clear that not only a parish school board, but any municipal school board or municipality, which runs its own school will levy a tax to support the schools. That's all we're trying to do.

Mr. Conroy Judge Dennis, as I understand the situation, both Bogalusa and Monroe had gotten specific statutory authority to levy the tax that they presently levy, isn't that correct? Isn't that specific constitution...

Mr. Dennis No. They...had constitutional authority, and Mrs. Zervigon's amendment took out some of the language that granted that authority. We are trying to restore it.

Mr. Conroy All right, they had...but they got specific constitutional authority to do what they are doing. Wouldn't your amendment open up the possibility of any city...

Mr. Dennis No, sir, they do not. They are named in one place, but in another place, they were referred to in the same manner that the committee proposal referred to them: "as any municipality actually operating, maintaining or supporting a separate school system."

Mr. Conroy You mean as of the date of this constitution, or any time? Couldn't a city later establish and maintain a school system and then it would have automatically this authority to levy the five mills?

Mr. Dennis I suppose so, Mr. Conroy. But, that's the way the constitution reads now. That's the way the committee proposal had it. You took it out in the Zervigon amendment.

Mr. Singletary Jim, would this allow the creation of new municipal school boards throughout the state?

Mr. Dennis I don't believe it would. It says each one that's operate...actually operating and maintaining support in a separate school system of public schools. There are only two of them at the present time.

Mr. Singletary So, you intended to apply to only those in present existence?

Mr. Dennis We're intending...yes, sir, we're intending to restore the committee language that was taken out by Mrs. Zervigon's amendment. I'm afraid if you don't let us do it, that you may cast some doubt upon our right to levy taxes to support these schools.

I ask for your favorable vote, please.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates,

I rise in support of this amendment for this reason. If you will get your amendment that was just adopted a few moments ago and look at the bottom of Section (B) where it says "First:", it says, "each parish school board," and we omitted city school boards. All this amendment does is just add back the language of "city school boards" where they can levy the tax just like a parish school board. If I understand the amendment correctly, and Mr. Tom has assured me that that's all it does, it just adds back like we've done in previous language, "parish or municipal school boards." I certainly don't want to have to go back home and be in a position of leaving my little school board where they can't raise any revenue. I've done enough mistakes. Please don't put no more on me.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 112-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Burson sends up an amendment which reads as follows:

On page 10, in Convention Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Leigh and adopted by the convention today, in line B of said floor amendment, place a period after the word "be" and delete the remainder of line B and delete line 9 in its entirety. That goes to the Leigh amendment just adopted.

Explanation

Mr. Burson This is really in the nature of a technical amendment, but it is a technical amendment with substantive consequences. Mr. Kean pointed out on a question on the original amendment that the words "in the manner prescribed by law" implied that you would need additional legislative authority to exercise the alimony tax. This has never been required. I don't think it was anyone's intent to require it here. I have asked Mr. Leigh if he had any objection to deleting these words. He said that he did not.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins I'll be very brief, Mr. Chairman. But, I do want to say that what we have done in this section is to start to legislate. We did that when we started putting the minimum foundation program in there. If you look at that provision, you'll see that it accomplishes nothing whatsoever. If the parishes were given one dollar per pupil, per year, it would satisfy that provision. It accomplishes nothing.

The thing that starting to legislate did accomplish, though, was the amendment that my good friend, Mr. Conway LeBleu, put...put on. I think before you vote for this section, you better find out more about what Mr. LeBleu's amendment will do to the finances of your own local school board. I understand from the figures that have been given me that it will cost the East Baton Rouge Parish School Board about two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a year; Orleans Parish, half-a-million a year. The purpose of the minimum foundation program, as I understand it, is to assure that in even poor parishes there will be a minimum program granted to people. But in determining the amount that each parish is to receive, the income of that parish is taken into consideration. The income from sixteen section lands is just as valid a portion of that income as anything else and ought to be considered when determining how much income each parish receives. It seems to me that this convention is going far beyond our scope of authority and our reasonable purpose when we start legislating in technical areas like this where we don't have fiscal notes, we don't have budgetary information or anything else because we're not talking here about basic principals, we're talking about technicalities of the law. I certainly think before this section's adopted, we ought to think twice.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I believe what Mr. Jenkins told you is incorrect. When I offered this amendment, I certainly intended to do nothing of the sort. I didn't intend to beat either Baton Rouge out of two hundred thousand dollars or Orleans out of five hundred thousand. As I understand the equalization formula, in no case--in no case--will that happen because the state bases an equalization formula on the number of students at a certain time of the year. That's how the school boards are reimbursed from the state. All my amendment would do would be to allow the school boards to keep the income that is there. There is no divvying up ad valorem tax that a school board imposes on its taxpayers within their districts--that is not considered. I can see no reason why this should be considered. I think it's only fair. It belongs to the school boards who retain their school sections. I ask you to adopt this section.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I just rise to set the record straight. I've got all the respect in the world for my good friend, Conway LeBleu; and I'm glad he was successful with the adoption of his amendment. But, the roughly two million, eight hundred thousand dollars is going to have to come out of the general fund. It's going to have to come from all the other parishes or from some other funds that we now have in the general fund. I just hope some of you people that are putting additional burdens on the legislature, when we have to pass additional taxes to do some of things you are all mandating us to do, please don't bring a rope down to the legislature and try to hang us; please don't.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Senator Rayburn, I see here you are one--including East Baton Rouge--of the ten parishes that would not benefit monetarily from the LeBleu amendment. Isn't it true?

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir, I will. I got one parish that will give five dollars and forty cents, and another one will get two hundred and thirty-four dollars. I'll benefit out of it. I'll get half of that amount. I'll get two and a quarter in one parish.

Mr. Weiss In looking to the future, though; isn't it true that we may have a reduction of twenty percent of the school children in the State of Louisiana according to the latest census figures in The State of the State of Louisiana booklet. So, we don't have to worry too much about expecting more expenses. We might even have less in education; don't you think?

Mr. Rayburn I have never seen that time come since I have been in legislation.

Mr. Weiss Well, we're looking forward to it.

Mr. Rayburn Let me say this, Dr. Weiss, if we're going to adopt a formula like this, in the next session we may have a formula to let all parishes that are now receiving severance tax--because they happen to be all well in that area--let them keep all that money. When they do, these little parishes like St. Helena and some of your smaller parishes have had it, because they have no local revenue. The equalization fund is made up today over the wealth that survived from the richer parishes. They have been in the past helping the poorer parishes. If you're going to operate on a theory of letting them keep what they produce, our school system is gone--in my opinion.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. LeBleu Senator Rayburn, in setting the record straight, do you know--just off the cuff--how much the state revenue increase from the severance tax on gas that was increased in the last session and comes primarily from the coastal parishes?

Mr. Rayburn We're having a little decrease on our rentals and royalties from our oil and our severance, Mr. LeBleu--compared to what we've been having. We are having a slight decrease every year over and above what we had the previous year.

Mr. LeBleu That's from total production. I'm talking about from the additional tax that the legislature imposed at the special session.

Mr. Rayburn I don't have it in dollars and cents, but I can tell you one thing: the school systems of this state or the educational systems are receiving thirty-seven percent today of all the revenues that are coming into this state. If we're going to let this type of formula apply, somebody help the poor parishes. The reason of the equalization fund is because it more or less distributes the wealth. We've got a lot of timber. We pay a lot of severance tax in my area. Some parishes don't have a stick of timber. But, they participate in the expenditures of those funds derived from that severance tax.

Mr. Velazquez Senator Rayburn, the way educational expenses are going these days, don't you think that even if the student population decreased twenty percent tomorrow, the expenses per student would still continue to rise and that education costs more and more each year?

Mr. Rayburn The cost of operating your schools and every other phase of state government. We were told the other day at the Budget Committee that all of our hospitals are going to face a huge deficit because of the tremendous increase in food. We are already saddled with a lot of burdens. So, I don't guess it would hurt to put a few more on us.

[Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section failed to pass: 57-53. Motion to reconsider on next Convention day adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Juneau sends up amendments as follows--copies of amendments are to be distributed at this time:

Amendment No. 1. On page 12, line 23, add the following:

"Section 18. Right to Preserve Linguistic and Cultural Heritage.

Section 18. All people have the inherent right to preserve, foster, and promote their respective historic linguistic and cultural heritage which still exists in substantial form among the people."

Explanation

Mrs. Corne Mr. Chairman, delegates, I will not take up very much time on this amendment. I think this is a nice amendment. I'm sure that it will not be controversial. In our State of Louisiana, we have a melting pot of people who come...whose heritage is linked with the various European countries. No state in our Union is richer in bilingualism and biculturalism than ours. This new section is not a mandate. So, before you ask me why I would place it in the constitution, let me answer the question. For many years, not realizing the injustice that we were doing to our people, we attempted to suppress every vestige of this rich heritage. Thank goodness we have become more sophisticated and more world conscious. Today, we notice a rekindling of interest and of respect for the different peoples who make up the population of our state. We have come to realize the advantages that our bilingual and our bicultural heritage can afford our citizens in order to enter world markets, world travel, and any other type of communication. As I said, this is not a mandate, but a permission and an encouragement. And to translate: I pray that you will give us the right to protect and encourage the beautiful heritage that is ours. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Hayes Mrs. Corne, is this right now being denied in any form in the state?

Mrs. Corne I don't think that it is. But, I know that in the past it has been.

Mr. Hayes Repeat.

Mrs. Corne I said, I don't know that it is now. But, I do know that in the past it has been.

Mr. Hayes And, the only thing you want is this would be assured? You're not trying to get it into education in any kind of way?

Mrs. Corne What I want is an encouragement to promote this bilingual and bicultural...

Mr. Hayes Do you think just putting it in the constitution is going to do that for you?

Mrs. Corne I believe so, Mr. Hayes. If you know that in our schools sometimes children who spoke a foreign language were prevented from speaking that language, instead of encouraging them to learn a little bit more about this language.

Mr. Stinson Mrs. Corne, now I was on the Bill of Rights Committee. We did everything we could to help--and Jimmy Di Maggio is a personal, wonderful friend of mine--but what I'm afraid of this: if one parish said "Well, we are going to have French taught and not English," don't you think under this that they could do that?

Mrs. Corne I don't believe they would, because we have set curriculums in English, and this would be used as an enrichment.

Mr. Stinson I know, but it says that they can...

Mrs. Corne It would not necessarily be French; it could be Spanish or German, or any other language that wants to be preserved. I think that we are sadly lacking in teaching our children the culture of other countries and in preserving the culture that we have. This is only an encouragement to the people. I would like to see it in the constitution; it's not a mandate to any parish to teach any language besides, of course, our formal English language.

Mr. Stinson Well, don't you think it should be worded that the people are urged to preserve it, instead of saying "an inherent right to have it"? You don't think that they could require that to be taught and used, instead of the English language?

Mrs. Corne My amendment is more of a nature in not preventing the people from doing...from preserving this culture, which has been done before in previous years.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 65-36. Motion to table the motion to reconsider rejected: 37-59. Motion to limit debate to ten minutes adopted: 83-10.]

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm going to make my remarks very, very brief. I'm of French descent, and I believe in the French culture as much as anybody in this chamber. But, I certainly feel like that we are putting too much into this constitution which has no business there. The legislature can take care of this particular item. I just don't see the necessity of sticking it into our constitution, because we have to go with the times and the progress of our people, and the legislature can do that. Why should we hamper the legislature one way or the other in exercising its affairs and business? So, I just ask you to reject the section.

Further Discussion

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this won't hurt anything being in the constitution; it's going to take up a few lines. I might want to see the Italian language preserved. I haven't asked you for anything. Let me tell you, I had to teach Jasper Smith something in Italian during the former legislative session. He was angry with some governor and he said, "Frank, tell me something in Italian to tell that governor." I said, "Jasper, tell that governor "Wa etta mare, Tu e tutto to paese!"

Questions

Mr. Smith Mr. Fulco, I'll answer you. Tutto bono e beneditto!

Mr. Fulco You see how well he learned.

Mr. Stinson Mr. Fulco, what did Governor Earl Long tell you in English when you told him that?

Mr. Fulco Go jump in the lake!

[Previous Question ordered. Motion to reconsider adopted: 63-36.]

Reconsideration

Mr. Kean Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the hour is late, and I have the greatest interest in seeing the French heritage protected and preserved and encouraged in southwest Louisiana. But this section, in my opinion, could have a much far-reaching...much more far-reaching effect than has been indicated by the authors of the amendment. It says that "All people shall have the inherent right to preserve, foster, and promote their respective historic linguistic and cultural heritage." I think we are giving by this section, we're giving the people a right to insist upon this, even though the school system, for example, didn't offer it. I think we are simply putting something into the constitution which is not constitutional material. We are putting something in which could create some serious problems as I see it. I sincerely suggest that you reject this, not in the interest of preventing the fostering of the cultural rights of the people in southwest Louisiana or any other part of this state, but to avoid having something in the constitution which could have some serious consequence and isn't needed in the constitution in the first place.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we won't waste time, but this is a serious issue. We have so far created a good constitution. A lot of people are trying to muddy the water now, because we have a complicated article. But, we had this issue before the Bill of Rights; it was extensively discussed. If it's a right, it ought to be in the Declaration of Rights. Now, let's not put it in here; it doesn't belong here; and it does create considerable confusion as Mr. Kean, an excellent attorney, explains to you. This is a serious problem. I don't think we ought to mess up the constitution with things that are of statutory nature. I suggest you reject this floor amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 45-50. Motion to revert to other orders. Substitute Motion for Previous Question on the Proposal.]

Point of Order

Mr. Tapper Don't we have a section that is up for reconsideration in this proposal?

Mr. Henry But, if he moves the previous question on the entire subject matter, which includes that, then that motion is in order, Mr. Tapper.

Mr. Tapper Further point of information then. If that happens and the article is adopted, then the section that is under consideration is out?

Mr. Henry Gone, that's right.

Point of Information

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, just as an inquiry. If we pass the previous question on the entire article, would that mean then that we would be forced to vote on an Education Article without a section establishing the alimony tax for public schools?

Mr. Henry If the motion on the previous question on the entire subject matter is adopted, it would mean that the Section 16, which was not adopted, would be deleted. All right.

Mr. Burson ...and, that is the section providing for alimony for public schools?

Mr. Henry Don't discuss it now, Mr....

[Record vote ordered. Quorum Call: 101 delegates present and a quorum. Substitute Motion rejected: 26-79. Motion rejected: 38-66.]

Motion

Mr. Flory I now move that we reconsider the vote by which Section 16 failed.

Mr. Henry To pass.

Mr. Flory Failed to pass.

Point of Order

Mr. LeBleu As I understood it, it was supposed to be reconsidered on the next legislative date.

Mr. Henry Mr. LeBleu, the Chair, I think, was confused on that. I think if the proposal had failed to be adopted, much as a bill in the House, that it would lie over, and would have to have a rules suspension.

Mr. Clerk, if I am correct...Mr. Clerk, you straighten me out on that, but I don't think it has to lie over.

Mr. Poynter I think that would certainly be a fair ruling of the Chair, Mr. Chairman. It...the rules say that a motion to reconsider lie over until the next legislative day. I think the context of that is, that a proposal would lie over. We have let sections lie over in the past, and I know nothing in the rules that would prohibit it. On the other hand, I would know nothing that would prohibit going ahead and reconsidering on the same legislative day with respect to a section. I think that would be open to whatever the convention has done. Twice previously, because no one has insisted on the motion, at least to my memory twice, we have let it lie over a day, and I think that's permissible, but I don't think it's mandated.

87th Days Proceedings—November 16, 1973

Mr. Henry I think we've gone both ways, quite frankly...I mean each way.

[Previous Question ordered: 74-30.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, I believe that the matter before us is so serious that we ought to reconsider now the vote by which Section 16 failed, because I believe involved in that section is the financing of the local public school systems. I think that it merits the immediate consideration of this convention. Unless we do that I would think that perhaps this whole proposal might be in jeopardy. I would ask sincerely that you consider voting to reconsider the vote by which that section failed and let's consider...reconsider that section and dispose of it in fashion which would be beneficial to the local school systems of this state. I ask for your favorable vote on this motion.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, perhaps this question should be directed to the Chair. But, what would be the effect of the convention voting to reconsider? What would be the effect to Section 16 if the convention voted not to reconsider?

Mr. Flory If the motion to reconsider is adopted, then as stated by the Chair, it will be open for discussion as any other section has been in the past, and then, will be up for final adoption by this convention. It can be...further amendments can be offered.

Mr. Lanier The other part of my question was: If we vote not to reconsider, what happens?

Mr. Henry If you vote not to consider then it can come up again today or tomorrow on reconsideration, Mr. Lanier.

[Record vote ordered.]

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, a point of information. Would I be in order in asking whether or not these amendments that are pending apply to the section or apply to the article, and what they are?

Mr. Henry Well, Mr....it would be in order, I guess. I think we've got some amendments up here that just apply to anything. I think some of them might apply to this business. So, if we don't, then we may have some and certainly if we reconsider, then we can have some in any event. But, it's just a new ball game once we vote to reconsider.

Point of Information

Mr. Thompson The amendments to this section that we have adopted that are in there now--not the ones pending--I think those are the ones...or those are the ones that I'm interested in. There's some confusion as to whether Mr. LeBleu's amendment is still in there or not.

Mr. Henry That amendment right now is a part of that section, and when we reconsider...or if we reconsider Section 16 that amendment will remain in there unless it's taken out because it's become a part of, and attached to, that section.

[Motion to reconsider adopted: 90-15.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 87 delegates present and a quorum.]

Reconsideration

Mr. Aertker Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as I previously explained to you when we presented this section, that this represented something coming out of committee that, of course, was controversial to say the least. I further explained to you that we have attempted to delete those provisions which we felt were certainly objectionable to the majority of the delegates. We presented those...we deleted those things that we felt that certainly were going to cause too many problems in too many areas. I just want to point out to you that sometimes, in opposition to some things, that we let our better judgment get...get clouded up. I'm asking you--before you decide what you're going to do on this section here--just remember that if this thing goes down, you have told every school board, every person in education, that we're going to give you something, but we're not going to give you any way to get financed, any way to get any money to operate your entire system. You, of course, will have something that--it will be impossible for those of us who are in education to give any support to. Now, if that's the game that some of you want to play in an attempt to say that you defeated something, then, all I have to say is, "you have to live with it," and all I can say is, "you will live with it" because you will see the results of it when this constitution is presented to the people--especially those people who are involved in public education, especially those people who are involved in education--and that includes everyone who has anyone in education. Now, all I'm asking you to do is just to be...give this a fair evaluation, and decide whether you want something to come out of this convention that will just completely paralyze, that will just have nothing in it, that will offer any hope for any education in this state. I just ask you to let your conscience be your guide as we deliberate the rest of the afternoon.

[Motion to recess for one and a half hours. Substitute Motion to adjourn to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Saturday, November 17, 1973. Substitute Motion adopted: 87-10. Adjournment to 9:00 o'clock a.m., Saturday, November 17, 1973.]

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 7, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare and other delegates, members of that committee.

"A proposal making provisions for education and necessary provisions with respect thereto."

The status of the proposal...the convention has adopted all the sections of the proposal with the exception of Sections 9 and 10 which were deleted and also Section 16 which failed to pass on yesterday and was reconsidered on yesterday. The motion to adjourn on yesterday occurred after the insistence on the motion to reconsider and Section 16 being brought before the convention. In addition, several amendments pend at the desk to add a proposed additional section.

Point of Information

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman, I just wondered if it would be possible if we could postpone this until Monday. I tried to get some information from the Department of Education relative to my amendment that we adopted yesterday and, of course, the state offices are closed over the weekend and I think that I could get some information that might clarify the whole matter and kind of cut...

Mr. Henry You could make such a motion to temporarily postpone the determination or for any further discussion of this proposal, if you desire. Then, return it to the calendar.

Motion

Mr. LeBleu I move that we return the section to the calendar until Monday.

Mr. Henry The section, now, or the proposal? You want to move to temporarily pass over this and let's work on the other sections, and then if we get through, you want to make a motion then to return it to the calendar, Mr. LeBleu?

Mr. LeBleu That's all right.

Further Discussion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I don't know what information Mr. LeBleu has reference to, but when we start talking about passing over this until Monday I have as many complications as he has. I happen to have an LTA convention going on in New Orleans and an LEA convention going on in Monroe and I have got to be present at both of those conventions Monday by being there in New Orleans Monday during part of the day and flying to Monroe to be at a meeting there, so I think that my problem is just as acute as his, and I would have to object to deferring this for several more days. I think we ought to make up our mind one way or the other what we are going to do about education in the state of Louisiana and quit making all of these little maneuvers that we are doing. We ought to get in the road with it, so I object to the motion.

[Previous Question ordered. Motion rejected: 28-61.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Delegate Rayburn as follows:

Amendment No. 1, on page 8, delete lines 23 through 32 both inclusive in their entirety, and delete pages 9, 10, and 11, both inclusive in their entirety, and on page 12, delete lines 1 through 17, both inclusive in their entirety and delete all floor amendments adopted thereto and insert in lieu thereof the following: "Section 16. Funding; Elementary and Secondary Education; Apportionment Section 16 (A). The legislature shall appropriate funds to supply free school books and other materials of instruction prescribed by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education to the children of this state at the elementary and secondary levels.

(B). The legislature shall appropriate sufficient funds to insure a minimum foundation program of education in all public elementary and secondary schools. Such funds as the legislature appropriates shall be equitably allocated to the parish and city school systems according to formulas adopted by the State Board..."

Picking up the second sentence in Paragraph (B). "Such funds as the legislature appropriates shall be equitably allocated to the parish and city school systems according to formulas adopted by the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education and approved by the legislature prior to the time such appropriation is made.

(C). The local funds for the support of elementary and secondary schools shall be derived from the following sources: First, each parish school board, the parish of Orleans excepted, and each municipality or municipal school board actually operating, maintaining or supporting a separate system of public schools shall levy annually an ad valorem maintenance tax of five mills or as much thereof as is necessary on all property subject to such taxation within the parish or city respectively. Second, the Orleans Parish School Board shall levy annually a tax not to exceed 13 mills on the dollar on the assessed valuation of all property within the city of New Orleans assessed for city taxation and shall certify such fact to the governing authority of the city. The governing authority shall cause said tax to be entered on the tax rolls of the city and collected in the manner and under the conditions and with the interest and penalties prescribed by law for city taxes. The money thus collected shall be paid daily to the Orleans Parish School Board. Third, for giving additional support to the public elementary and secondary schools, any parish school district or subschool district or any municipality which supports a separate city system of public schools may levy ad valorem taxes for specific purposes when authorized by a majority of the electors voting in the parish, municipality, district or subdistrict in an election called for the purpose. The amount, duration and purpose of such taxes shall be in accord with any limitations imposed by the legislature.

(D). For the effects and purposes of the provision of this entire section the municipalities of Monroe in Ouachita Parish and Bogalusa in Washington Parish and no other shall be regarded as and treated upon the same basis and shall have the same authority as parishes."

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the amendment that is now before you makes some changes in the proposal that was adopted yesterday. It maintains the amendment that was adopted yesterday relative to the municipal school boards. It does delete the word "school" and retains the words

"separate system." It also deletes some language on the bottom of the page of the amendment. It deletes the words "though they were separate systems" instead of "municipalities" and puts the words "be the same as parish systems." It also deletes the amendment that was offered by my good friend, Conway LeBleu, and let me say here and now, I'm in a rather awkward position this morning to have to come to this microphone and oppose a man that I have the respect for like Conway LeBleu. No, Conway, I'm not trying to cut your throat, and believe me, I'm not. That amendment, though, is going to take from the school systems of this state over 2 1/2 million dollars. Maybe, if the amendment stands, the money can be found from some other source, but I feel that I owe the people of this state and particularly the school system and I've always been a staunch supporter of education, because I, as one, have realized my limitation because I did not have a formal education, or do not, rather. But, I feel that it is my duty and my responsibility, particularly since I am chairman of the finance committee of the Senate to tell you exactly what that amendment does. I'm not going to stand here and tell you that that reduction will have to be made in equalization funds. I don't know. I'm not going to stand here and tell you that the legislature cannot find the money from some other place. But I can tell you this: when you go to look around for 3 or 4 million dollars, it's not easily found. I'm not standing here trying to take one thing away from anybody. I'm merely here trying to say "Leave us alone and let's keep the language that we now have and keep our finances as they are now allocated." If this amendment stays in this section it's going to mean that if the equalization formula stays the same or if the per educable stays the same that we are going to have to find some additional funds. That's my reason for asking you to adopt this amendment, and let's keep our school system in the same fashion, financially speaking, that they've been operating under and the same formula that they've been operating under for many, many years. There comes a time when we should refer back to the Scriptures where it says, "We shall be our brother's keeper." I think those words are appropriate this morning. Certainly, I understand that some of you are deeply concerned over this amendment because it does mean some financial aid to your community. On the other hand, a lot of us are likewise concerned because it could mean that we are going to lose some financial aid. For those reasons outlined, I now move the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate Rayburn, the House of Representatives of which both you and Delegate LeBleu are members passed the LeBleu resolution, however, in the previous sessions, have they not?

Mr. Rayburn I don't recall; if you say they did, I'm sure they did.

Mr. Weiss The House did; the Senate refused it, if you recall in the Appropriations Committee. That's what happened to it. It was killed in the legislature, but let me ask you this question. You claim that 2 1/2 million dollars is being taken away. I beg to...you explain to me this equalization formula, because it seems to me if the severance taxes for which that portion is subtracted from the total course cost as it sits before me here, it looks as though that those parishes that will receive more severance tax by the LeBleu formula will also receive less in their equalization formula and therefore it will balance out. So, I don't see what you mean by 2 1/2 million dollars less being given to education. I think you'd have to explain to the convention and to me the equalization formula a little more in detail, because it looks to me like it balances out pretty well.

Mr. Rayburn Dr. Weiss, let me just say this. If the amendment stands as adopted you're going to take at the present time these funds that we are talking about--amounts to $5,425,478.50. Half of those funds are used in the formula now by the respective school boards that receive those funds. They receive half of this amount. That amount is used in making up the formula. Now, if you delete that amount then the state treasurer is going to have to make it up or the formula is going to have to be reduced.

Mr. Weiss But you're not taking into consideration, are you, the equalization formula that will balance out that other two and a half million?

Mr. Rayburn The equalization formula, Dr. Weiss, is also monies that have to come from some place. So, if you increase the equalization formula, I mean if you...you're just going to have to supplement this amount of money from somewhere. You just can't reach up and find it hanging or floating. It's got to come from somewhere.

Mr. Weiss The point is that that money which is returned to the parish is included in the equalization fund and therefore the state will pay less to that parish according to these figures as I understand them.

Mr. Rayburn Well, that's what I'm telling you.

Mr. Weiss Therefore, the state will not have to come up with the 2 1/2 million to that degree.

Mr. Rayburn Well, it's either coming up to hold the thing status quo or each parish is going to lose.

Mr. Weiss Well, now you're right. The status quo will be changed and that's what we're trying to do with this constitution.

Mr. Rayburn That's right. The state has got to come up with the money or your equalization formula is going to have to be reduced. So, somewhere down the line, someone has got to give. It's got to come from somewhere if you keep the equalization formula the same as it is now. If you don't supplement this 2 1/2 million then the equalization formula is going to have to be reduced which is going to hit all the parishes in the state.

Ms. Zervigon Senator Rayburn, I just want to be certain what exactly it is we're working on. You drew our amendment from the Burson amendment; isn't that correct?

Mr. Rayburn That's true.

Ms. Zervigon And Mr. Burson had inserted the word "foundation...minimum foundation program" before it was passed; isn't that so?

Mr. Rayburn That's true.

Ms. Zervigon The only other change I find, which I don't find to be a change in substance but I just wanted you to say the same, is that at the end of your amendment you say that Monroe and Bogalusa shall be treated upon the same basis and shall have the same authority as parishes instead of saying as though they were separate parishes instead of municipalities. You don't intend that to be a change in substance do you; you just shortened that?

Mr. Rayburn No, ma'am. I just deleted that language because I thought it was unnecessary.

Ms. Zervigon And Mr. Burson had deleted his Section (C) before he passed his amendment; isn't that correct?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct; yes ma'am.

Ms. Zervigon So, the major change is to delete

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

the LeBleu amendment, the full financial effect of which we didn't understand when we passed it; isn't that so?

Mr. Rayburn That's true.

Ms. Zervigon And Senator, isn't it correct that when the Board of Education sets that formula, subject to the review of the legislature which we have in this amendment, they could take Mr. LeBleu's concerns into account on a little bit more information than we have here; isn't that right?

Mr. Rayburn That is correct; yes ma'am.

Mr. Lanier Senator, I'm noticing something in this amendment in the Burson amendment for the first time. In the last sentence of Paragraph (C), almost at the bottom there right where it comes to (D) it says, "the amount, duration and purpose of such taxes shall be in accord with any limitations imposed by the legislature." Doesn't this mean, Senator, that except for the 5 mill alimony tax, or 13 mills in Orleans, that the legislature has absolute control over all finances of school boards?

Mr. Rayburn We have to appropriate the money; yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier If the legislature wanted to, could it not pass a law saying that there shall be no other taxes?

Mr. Rayburn Well, I guess if it wanted to and had the votes, Mr. Lanier. I think you're an attorney and I think you know the answer to that question, but I'll answer it for you to try to better inform you. Certainly, if they've got the votes they can pass any bill that they can get the votes to pass.

Mr. Lanier Well, what I'm getting to, Senator, doesn't this put this section in direct conflict with Section 34 of the Local Government Article dealing with sales taxes?

Mr. Rayburn I wouldn't think so.

Mr. Lanier Well, doesn't that one say that the school boards and other units of government get up to 3% on the sales tax and this says that the legislature can impose whatever limitations it wants, doesn't it?

Mr. Rayburn Well, yes, sir. I says that, but I don't see where it would put it into conflict with the Local Government provision because it plainly states there what they can do--just what taxes they can levy.

Mr. De Blieux Senator Rayburn, actually right now isn't it true that all of the parishes actually retain all of the money they get from their sixteenth section land, but only 50% of it is charged against their minimum...

Mr. Rayburn That's correct, Senator De Blieux; in other words, the 50% of what they retain is charged against the state money that they receive out of the formulas, yes sir.

Mr. De Blieux And therefore, if none of this is charged against them under the LeBleu amendment, those parishes who receive a large sum of funds would be having a decided advantage over the others in that extra funds would have to be made up by all of the rest of the parishes or else by the legislature; isn't that right?

Mr. Rayburn That's exactly right, and that's why I'm here trying to remove the amendment, Senator De Blieux, because it's going to have to come from some place.

Mr. De Blieux And as a result of that, if these school boards are to get the minimum amount without consideration of what they get from the sixteenth section lands, it would mean that the legislature would have to come up with in excess of something over 2 1/2 million dollars for them to meet their minimum standards in excess of that; isn't that correct?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct. They would either have to come up with that amount or reduce the formula.

Mr. LeBleu Senator, I wanted to ask you about the "amount, duration and purposes of such taxes shall be in accord with any limitations imposed by the legislature" in your third paragraph. Wouldn't that mean if a school board wanted to impose a tax to hire some additional teachers that the State Board of Education requires or recommends...additional teachers say for special education or something of that sort...then they would have to get permission of the legislature to impose that tax as well as to specify what it is to be used for?

Mr. Rayburn Well, I don't know, Conway. You know this as well as I do that the board has made a lot of recommendations trying to cut down the teacher-pupil ratio and we have been able to reduce it over the past several years in the legislature by providing additional funds to cut down the pupil-teacher ratio.

Mr. LeBleu Well, that's exactly what I'm talking about. If the school board, itself, wants to impose a tax to cut down this teacher-pupil ratio, then they would have to get permission of the legislature, wouldn't they?

Mr. Rayburn No, sir. I don't think so, because you know and I know in some of the parishes in this state, [they] were paying their teachers a tremendous amount of money for eight or ten years before we finally were able to raise the teachers in all parishes. Then, when we passed the bill that allowed the parishes to impose a one cent sales tax, some parishes adopted the provision and passed the tax and others did not...it was defeated in some of the parishes, and some of them didn't submit it to the people. Then, we had a problem with our teachers; one teacher in one parish making five hundred or eight hundred dollars a year more than a teacher in an adjoining parish and only the parish line separated them. Sometimes the schools were not two miles apart. That caused a lot of confusion in the legislature, but it did happen.

Mr. LeBleu In talking about the amount of money that the legislature appropriates for schools...now, if the legislature fails to appropriate the amount that the State Board of Education recommends for each parish school board...if we fail to appropriate that amount, isn't it true that each school board in the parish is cut down proportionately and not by the amount that's listed under my section-sixteen land?

Mr. Rayburn That's true; it's divided according to the per educable formula and the equalization formula in the amount of dollars you have...the formula is applied and certainly if the appropriation is smaller next year than it was this year, they will all have to share in the reduction, Mr. LeBleu; you're right.

Mr. Velazquez Senator, the original Northwest Ordinance that started the deal on sixteenth section lands did not really specify a county or parish basis. It specified education in general, which means that all this period of time anybody who wanted to go to court to sue on the basis of equity without a parish line could have done so, but they haven't done so because of things like the equalization formula; so wouldn't you think that if this thing...if your amendment is not passed every school board and the State Board of Education is going to be in court for the next ten years?

Mr. Rayburn That's entirely possible.

Mr. Velazquez And wouldn't you think that extensive amounts of money that could be used on education will be used to fight, for legal costs?

Mr. Rayburn That could happen.

Mr. Velazquez And wouldn't that mean that the children of Louisiana would, in effect, be cheated of hundreds of thousands of dollars in lawyer fees?

Mr. Rayburn That's what I'm trying to prevent.

[Motion to limit debate to one hour adopted without objection.]

Mr. Nunez Senator, I'm trying to determine why these figures vary. I think I know why in many instances, but some instances, for instance, your parishes of St. Tammany and Washington and my parish of St. Bernard which is some of it heavily populated with oil and other things, we get nothing out of this and that's not going to determine my vote because if there's equity in it, I'm going to vote for it. Could you tell me why some of these parishes receive nothing from the sixteenth section and some receive as high as a million dollars?

Mr. Rayburn Senator Nunez, the only thing that I know that some parishes do not own sixteenth-section lands today and therefore they could not have an income. Some of them in later years have disposed of it and don't have any sixteenth section lands.

Mr. Nunez That would be the point I would like to make and ask you another question. Do you think that it's equity that because we were all given an equal sixteenth section, the way I understand it when Congress passed this act, that the school boards of this state would be equally divided into sixteenth sections amongst the school boards. Now, if my parish took advantage of that and sold it and yours did and the others didn't and they're receiving income from it, should we now take that income from those parishes? That's what I'm trying to determine in my mind, right now.

Mr. Rayburn Senator Nunez, let me just say this; Washington Parish many, many years ago was in a dire need for some additional funds and they sold their sixteenth section land. However, it's changed hands several times since then, but the only thing I'm trying to do is to keep intact what we've had intact for many, many years, and this amendment does not take any revenues away from the parishes that they are presently receiving. It keeps it intact. But it does...my amendment does prohibit from letting those parishes receive all of the revenue produced from the sixteenth-section land whereas today they are receiving half of it, and my amendment continues to operate as they have been for many, many years.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Jenkins Senator, we received this list showing various amounts of money, but this list really doesn't show us the harm done to the various parishes if we don't adopt your amendment; does it? For example, in East Baton Rouge Parish, even though they have zero here, we're talking about a different thing insofar as the amount of money that East Baton Rouge would lose. We're talking about East Baton Rouge losing two hundred and fifty, two hundred and seventy thousand dollars a year unless we adopt your amendment; aren't we?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct, Mr. Jenkins.

Mr. Jenkins Other parishes like Orleans, etc., losing comparable amounts, isn't that correct?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct, unless the legislature finds the money and makes it up from some other source.

Mr. Champagne Senator Rayburn, actually, what this does is it does give them credit for half of what they get from that, does it not?

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir. They keep all the funds now, Mr. Champagne, but they are charged with half of the amount they receive. They keep the funds today, but they are charged for half of that amount against...when the state funds are applied.

Mr. Champagne Isn't one of the reasons for the state getting into the education field is to insure that all parishes--even if you happen to be in a real poor parish--you do get at least a minimum education, or provide for an education for all of the people of the state?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct, Mr. Champagne, and I can name you a few parishes--one in particular, St. Helena Parish--the state legislature has appropriated funds out of the general fund for the last sixteen or eighteen years. The state funds now are about ninety-eight percent of the total support for those school systems. But, the reason for the equalization fund when it was created was to help the poorer parishes maintain a public school system like every other parish in the state. They can't do it on their local revenue from St. Helena. They don't have anything up there to tax but billy goats or cows--a few of them. They just...they don't...they could pass a two cent sales tax and the yield won't amount to any money, so to speak. So, that was the purpose of the equalization fund to see that each parish had a sound financial school system.

Mr. Womack Senator Rayburn, hasn't the basic philosophy of our educational system been--all through these years--that we find the money where the money is, and we distribute so that we can educate the children where the children are?

Mr. Rayburn That is correct, Mr. Womack.

Further Discussion

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think we're just approaching this whole thing with the wrong attitude. I told you yesterday that we weren't talking about the money, or trying to cut anybody's school board, or deprive any child of any education in the State of Louisiana. Then Senator Rayburn just cited you an example where the legislature has been appropriating money to St. Helena school board every year. They don't have anything over there in St. Helena that they can put a sales tax on because it's a rural community. There's no method except what he says--taxing the billy goats--to raise money over there. So, the legislature takes care of them. To me, that's fair. That's the way I think it ought to be. We're talking about the Section Sixteen lands in the equalization formula; the severance tax is also considered in the equalization formula. Let me give you this example: about thirteen or fourteen million dollars a year is now derived by the state from severance taxes in Cameron Parish. The parish gets back a maximum of two hundred thousand dollars, as set by law. In a parish from which is collected, say, three hundred thousand dollars on severance taxes, that parish still collects that two hundred thousand because the maximum amount is two hundred thousand. That's all they can collect. But, I'm not complaining about the amount over two thousand--the other thirteen million eight hundred thousand. Where does that go? That goes to the State of Louisiana to provide education for the children of St. Tammany Parish, St. Helena Parish, and every other parish. What I approached you on yesterday is what I thought was trying to correct an inequity that has been unfair--been unfair. I approached you on it rather than the legislature because I think you are a fair-minded group of people. Those parishes whose school boards were prudent enough to save their school sections through thick and thin, depression, fat years and all--and I've eaten as much black-eyed peas and cornbread as Senator Rayburn has--ought to be rewarded for what they have held onto. We're taking something that belongs to them. If they decide to sell those sections, which some parishes have done in the past, the parish school board is still going to receive the same amount of money that the legislature appropriates. In the past, the legislature--and I voted for some of these things, to give the school teachers a pay raise, but not provide the money. Our school board--when they had a little extra income from the Section Sixteen lands--supplemented every pay raise the legislature voted whether the legislature provided the money or not. They've also hired additional teachers, and when you hire more teachers or more personnel than the State Board recommends, the school board has to bear the total cost of those employees. The only thing I'm asking you to do is just be fair. We have saved our school sections; they're beginning to bring in a little revenue, and I think that we deserve to keep it. Let the legislature bear its share of the burden. I'm in there and I don't vote for anything against education.

Questions

Mrs. Miller Conway, isn't it true, you take a parish like East Baton Rouge, it has all the industry settled here; Orleans has a lot of industry; they have a broad tax base, they have a lot of things to tax in spite of the exemptions. You take a parish like Vermilion and Cameron, we have no industries or much business to tax. So, in other words, we don't have the millage; we're not going to be able to generate the school revenue with millage tax because our property values are low because they are not just loaded with big industrial areas to be taxed. So, if they take this away from us, they are, in fact, taking it. They already have all the gravy with the industry; isn't that true?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, ma'am, that's true. I don't know, I think in California didn't they...didn't the court out there rule that a school district couldn't impose additional taxes just to provide better services for the schools--for the children within that district?

Mrs. Miller Isn't it true, also, that we--down in these south parishes where most of this revenue is generated--we have a very unstable soil where we have a lot more repairs and upkeep on our school buildings, and that part of it is because of the type of conditions that generate the oil also generate the unstable conditions of the soil.

Mr. LeBleu Yes, ma'am. I'd say in Cameron Parish we have about ninety-five percent marsh and about five percent high land.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. LeBleu, isn't it a fact that the philosophy behind the equalization formula is to equalize, which means to take some from the rich parishes and give it to the poor parishes? Isn't that a fact?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, ma'am.

Mrs. Zervigon If you don't count the riches of the rich parishes and say, "I'm really a poor parish if you don't count all of my riches," then the philosophy behind the equalization formula is pretty well shot. Isn't that a fact? The Huey Long feeling that every child had a right to a free education no matter where is pretty well shot; isn't that so?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, ma'am, and I'm not arguing with that at all because I think, for instance, Orleans and Jefferson, as well, contribute a whole lot of money to the state treasury through taxes, etc. I'd say, substantially more than what they get back either in school services or other. They're looking out for the poorer parishes of the state; I'm not quarreling with that at all.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, let me ask you one more question. You keep referring to other parishes other than your own who didn't manage their lands well, but sold them, and therefore don't have these oil revenues. Isn't it a fact that there are Sixteenth Section lands in a number of parishes that never had oil under them and, therefore, produce no revenue or very little?

Mr. LeBleu I suppose so; yes, ma'am.

Mr. Nunez Mr. LeBleu, I notice one of your parishes of Cameron produces eight hundred and seventeen thousand dollars annually from a Sixteen Section. I assume that's mainly from oil, right?

Mr. LeBleu It's primarily from oil, Senator Nunez, but they do lease sections for hunting, trapping, in some areas for rice farming; and I think that farming applies to Mr. Burson's area over there in Acadia where they...

Mr. Nunez My point, Mr. LeBleu, is when you drill oil, you create a certain...you bring a certain number of people into your parish, and there's a certain destructibility that happens to that parish. Isn't that correct? You need schools for those people who do the drilling, and the pipelines, and the roughnecking, and roustabout, and the crews, etc. Isn't that correct?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir. Not only for that, but to provide all the services, too, for these...

Mr. Nunez Isn't it also correct that it is common knowledge that we are fast depleting all those oil reserves down on our coastal areas? Isn't that correct?

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir.

Mr. Nunez Isn't it true when they finish with the oil, you're going to have a lot of pipelines and a lot of destruction, and the only thing you'll have down in Cameron and some of those areas is shrimp, and crabs, and fish, and you'll be up to your knees in alligators?

Mr. LeBleu I'd say a little deeper than your knees, Senator Nunez.

Mr. Jenkins Conway, isn't it true that under Senator Rayburn's amendment none of your rents or royalties would be taken away from Cameron Parish or any of the other parishes? You would still keep every cent in rents or royalties.

Mr. LeBleu Yes, sir; that's right, Woody. But, that's only from Section Sixteen lands. Now, what about all the severance taxes that are gained from the oil and gas production on every other acre, not only in Cameron Parish, but every parish in the state from which the state gets a severance tax? We're talking about Section Sixteen lands, and in Cameron Parish, I don't know how many sections it is, maybe eight or ten, you know.

Mr. Jenkins Well, let me ask you this, Conway, too: Mrs. Miller referred to the industry in Baton Rouge and other parishes. But, isn't it true that because there's a five mill property tax built into this formula, we don't get additional monies because of our industry, we get less. The funds from the state are reduced in proportion to the industrial taxes that are paid in this parish. Isn't that correct?

Mr. LeBleu That's right, and, of course, the school board is limited to five mills. They can go one, two, three, or four, or five--whatever they want.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Further Discussion

Mr. Burson Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment to remove Mr. LeBleu's amendment of yesterday. I do so primarily because one of the parishes in the representative district that I represent--Acadia Parish--would be adversely affected by this. But, I do also because I think that the philosophy behind this offset is wrong. It reminds me very much of the fable of the little red hen. If you all recall that story, the little red hen was very careful and cautious over the winter, saved up the grain and was prepared for bad times. The other animals were not so careful, and then when the bad times came, they wanted to impose on the little red hen who had worked very hard while they were all sleeping to share with them the grain that she had saved up for the winter. I think you can draw a parallel directly to this situation. A lot of school boards across this state gave away their Sixteenth Section land to timber companies for a few cents an acre. Now, they would penalize those school boards that were farsighted enough to preserve their Sixteenth Section lands. The assumption has been engaged in most of the questioning here that Sixteenth Section income is oil income. That's not true in many cases; it's not true in the case of Acadia Parish. The primary source there of Sixteenth Section income is farm rent. The Sixteenth Section land is rice land, soybean land that the school board rents out; they get a percentage of the crop every year. I submit to you that by offsetting fifty percent of the income received from Sixteenth Section land, you are removing the initiative on the part of the school boards to develop this land to its fullest potential. Almost all the school boards still have some of this land. There's no reason why they shouldn't go out and rent it for agricultural purposes or for other purposes--recreational purposes, if those apply. But, by penalizing them for fifty percent of the income that they receive from this land, you're, in effect, removing a great deal of the incentive to do that. The minimum foundation program has been mentioned. I submit to you, the minimum foundation program is in an earlier section; it's provided for. We're providing here that all parishes should have at least a minimum educational program. But, what you're doing here, if you eliminate Mr. LeBleu's amendment, is penalizing those parishes who have had the initiative and the foresight to develop the Sixteenth Section land, that I would remind you was given to every parish in this state to begin with. When these same parishes, if they are an oil and gas producing parish, are sending millions of dollars to the State of Louisiana in severance tax which has been dedicated solely for the purpose of education. I ask you for that reason to reject this amendment and to retain the concept that Mr. LeBleu had adopted yesterday by a rather substantial vote.

Questions

Mr. Anzalone Jack, if that little red hen that you were talking about lived in Tangipahoa or St. Helena Parish, do you reckon they'd vote up or down on an amendment like this?

Mr. Burson Probably down, Mr. Anzalone.

Mr. Anzalone How?

Mr. Hayes Mr. Burson, I'm going to ask real fast, isn't this the responsibility of the state to try to make education as equal as possible throughout the state?

Mr. Burson Yes, sir, Mr. Hayes.

Mr. Hayes All right, if a parish does not have or, in fact, has gotten rid of Sixteen Section land, is that the responsibility...is that the responsibility of the kids in the state or the rest of the kids in the state? Are you going to hold them responsible for that--for something some politician did some time ago?

Mr. Burson Not at all, and we've provided for a minimum foundation program. But, I would remind you that these country parishes for the most part that have income from this Sixteenth Section land don't get a portion of the millage that East Baton Rouge Parish, for instance, collects from all the industry they've got over here, either. You might think about that if we're talking about balancing. I guess if we want to balance, let's have East Baton Rouge Parish send part of the income they get from the high millage on industry, here, and send that out to these other parishes. If we're going to offset, let's offset all the income.

Further Discussion

Mr. Morris Mr. Chairman, Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I hate to rise opposing my friend, Representative Conway LeBleu...

Mr. Casey Mr. Morris, just a minute. Delegates, please take your seats. Please keep your voices down; break up the little groups.

Mr. Morris I wish to compliment Senator Rayburn on his amendment. Certainly he has the will, the knowledge, and he's certainly looking out for the state at large. I certainly find no fault with Representative LeBleu for looking out after his people. However, the rents and leases from the Sixteenth Section are all figured in a four part formula in the state equalization program and, where you have monies that are raised from the five mill constitutional tax that is collected in the parish, reflects in that formula. You have several verities in there, and the least money is only one. Now, the Sixteenth Section, in years gone by in Claiborne Parish, other parishes in the northern part of our state produced a lot of oil monies that supported south Louisiana schools, mid Louisiana schools, and what have you. It's fortunate that parishes do have these incomes. However, many parishes have dissipated their incomes in these Sixteenth Sections, and many parishes are not fortunate enough to be...their Sixteenth Section located in an area that is a revenue producing area. When the Congress of the United States set up the Sixteenth Section, I would like to think that they were looking out after education for everybody--not just education in any one given area. If you leave the LeBleu amendment in this article, you are damaging--you are damaging education in various sections of this state. I would urge you--I would urge you--to go along with Senator Rayburn's amendment.

I would yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Nunez Jimmy, would you mind telling us what other incomes make up the equalization formula?

Mr. Morris I'd be glad to, Senator Nunez.

Mr. Nunez Would you please elaborate? Just tell us what other incomes make it up, and how much is it--the total amount that is distributed--and what incomes make it up--what revenues make it up.

Mr. Morris There are four factors in the formula: one, the number of educables in the parish times $6.5756365. You multiply the number of educables times that amount: your five mill constitutional tax, or what portion is needed of that; your severance tax; and your rent or lease monies of school lands--fifty percent only of that--fifty percent of it.

Mr. Nunez You mentioned the five mill tax and the Sixteenth Section tax or the lease money, and the severance...

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Morris I said fifty percent, and I want to make that distinction--fifty percent of the lease money.

Mr. Nunez This severance tax, I assume that the severance tax which is generally on all state lands you're talking about is what makes up the bulk of the state monies that go to the school children of this state--not this Sixteenth Section. Is that...

Mr. Morris The severance tax that goes into this distribution formula amounts--in the year '72 - '73--amounted totally in this formula--and this is the one that picks up the difference--amounted to roughly four million dollars.

Mr. Nunez How much is the entire distribution? How much money does the state distribute back to the school through the equalization formula?

Mr. Morris Total support...

Mr. Nunez Total support.

Mr. Morris Total support for all parishes amounts to 39.6 million dollars.

Mr. Nunez The majority of that comes from severance taxes.

Mr. Morris No, it does not. The bulk of it comes from the five mill constitutional tax which produces 26.2 million dollars of the total 39.6 million dollars. The bulk of it comes from the five mill ad valorem tax. I have this at my desk if anybody would like to look at it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Aertker Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, before I begin to speak in favor of this amendment, I'd like to preface my remarks by stating to you just by way of information that East Baton Rouge Parish which you see down there as with a zero, happens to have the Sixteenth Sections that were given it by the federal government. We haven't had any mismanagement; we haven't sold out anything. We just happen to have sixteen sections of land that just have some scrub timber on them and don't happen to have some black gold flowing underneath it. That's the problem with East Baton Rouge, and I would have to presume it's the problem in many other areas on this. But, this isn't what I really...why I rise in support of this amendment. I think we really need just a little bit of history of what has happened in education in the last two decades in the State of Louisiana. You know, we had a lot of inequities in education in years gone by, and fortunately for this state, many people finally came to realize that we had these inequities. They finally resolved it and came into the conclusion that every student, every child in this state, regardless of whether he lived on a farm or in a city or in any area, just so long as he lived in this State of Louisiana was entitled to a minimum education program. In order to give him that minimum education program, the state accepted the responsibility of funding that program. Through a long period of time and over many years, they have developed a formula which provides for that. The formula is just as simple as anything. In theory, it's real simple, and that is: is that we will take every child in this state and we will guarantee to him that he is going to get a certain type of education. He is going to get that education because he is a citizen and a part of the State of Louisiana--not because he is a citizen of East Baton Rouge Parish or because he's a citizen of Allen Parish or St. Bernard--because he is a part of Louisiana and, so, therefore, we are going to provide them. This formula that has been developed here is in serious jeopardy if you go ahead and let this amendment that you passed yesterday remain in this constitution because I can pursue this philosophy that has occurred here, and tell you, "All right, if we do this, why don't we just turn around and put this on the other foot, then, and say, okay, we'll let East Baton Rouge keep all of the taxes it collects on its five mill property tax, which I can tell you is substantially more than what they would get back. But, they are assessed in their equalization for every penny that we collect of that five mills. We don't get fifty percent of it back like these other parishes are getting on oil leases, etc.; we get zero. Every penny of that is credited against East Baton Rouge Parish--and East Baton Rouge Parish--with a tax base of about twenty percent, you can understand--and the properties that they have--you can understand the amounts of money that is involved there, that it does cost. Following that same tax line, I heard it mentioned here about East Baton Rouge having a broad tax base, I just would like to ask you folks where do you think all those taxes that are collected in East Baton Rouge go to? They go to the state in the helping to run this state throughout that. Our sales tax through the state sales tax and, so, well, all of this goes into this one common fund and one common pot. But, I am concerned about two things, and that is that this represents a real threat to the minimum foundation program formula as it presently exists. I think it represents a terrific strain on...and an additional demand upon the state legislature to just go out and find some more money. I think that in theory, it contradicts the thing that we have a concern for a child, whether he's in one parish or the other. This, the state provides. The state tells us that we have to pay teachers a certain amount of salary. We have to provide a certain amount of program for them. This is a provision of the foundation and the minimum foundation program. It was my thought that the purpose of this constitution was to continue those programs and to build into those programs those things that were good. I can tell you this program of equalization is good. I heard it mentioned here that they had a case in California that said you couldn't provide additional things. The problem there was that California didn't have a minimum foundation program. The fact is, in the Sarantos case, this is what was pointed out was that local areas just got everything that they had, and they weren't asked, they wouldn't share with their surrounding communities and their surrounding parishes. We either have to make up our mind in this convention whether we want a State of East Baton Rouge or a State of Cameron or State of Allen, or do we want a State of Louisiana that a constitution will fit all of them. I tell you that...

Questions

Mr. Arnette Bob, I'm asking for information on this. I would like to find out: in the middle column--in this thing that is passed out--it has the amount received. Now, does any of that money go to the state?

Mr. Aertker No, that's exactly as it says; that's what that parish gets in...

Mr. Arnette The parish keeps all of that money?

Mr. Aertker Yes, sir.

Mr. Arnette Well, what's this column on the right then?

Mr. Aertker Then, when they are given out of the equalization formula and they look at their program, they look there and say "You already have this million dollars and since you have a million dollars more than your surrounding neighbors, obviously you're in better position to support the minimum program. So, therefore, you are penalized fifty percent of that amount that you've received, and you will not receive that from the state."

Mr. Arnette So, in other words, what it is it means that you don't get as much welfare from the state if you have all the income in your parish?

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Aertker That's correct.

Mr. Arnette But, you're not losing any money are you?

Mr. Aertker No, you're still a half million ahead of the rest of the group.

Mr. Burns Mr. Aertker, what concerns me in all of this discussion and debate is all centered on the LeBleu amendment. But, by voting for or against that amendment, you are either going to vote for or against the rest of Section 16; is that right?

Mr. Aertker Well, I think that it...I should maybe might say degenerates into that, yes.

Mr. Burns But, what I mean is it looked like its gotten to be a case of the tail wagging the dog by voting on...solely on the LeBleu amendment. You might wind up by voting against Section (A) and (B) of Section 16, which provides the money for the operation of the educational system.

Mr. Aertker Well, as from what I see of the amendment present before us, that the only thing that is involved in it--as far as I appreciate it--is that this would eliminate the provision that the least money would be given a hundred percent and would not be accredited against them in equalization formula. So, that's the only issue that I see at stake.

Mr. Burns But...one more question: don't we have to adopt Section 16 that's set forth in the Rayburn amendment to provide the money for the operation of the state educational system?

Mr. Aertker Yes, sir.

Mr. Burns ...not just the LeBleu amendment.

Mr. Aertker Oh, no. This is just the amendment, then after that, we would have to go into the adoption of the section, Mr. Burns.

Mr. Pugh Sir, I'm kind of like Mr. Burns over there. Isn't the issue crystal clear? Either you want to take the sixteen lands and distribute the money throughout the state, or the benefits from them, or you don't. Really, you know, it's a crystal clear issue.

Mr. Aertker That's exactly right, Mr. Pugh.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I don't want to be too repetitious in this. But, I would like to say something with reference to the Sixteenth Section lands because that's what's involved here in Mr. LeBleu's amendments. Now, let me read to you what the amendment was because that's what is involved in the total situation. It says "revenues derived from Sixteenth Section lands shall not be used in any manner in determining the apportionment of state funds for the support of public schools to parish school boards." In other words, you don't take into consideration what they are getting from Sixteenth Section lands whatsoever. It so happens that Mr. LeBleu's in an area where they have been very fortunate with their Sixteenth Section lands. Now, what is Sixteenth Section lands? All of the territory in the whole United States belonged to the federal government and then it in turn was transferred back to the respective states. It's divided up into townships, in each township there is thirty-six sections. In each township there is one Sixteenth Section. If that Sixteenth Section falls within that particular parish, then that parish has that particular section of six hundred and forty acres for school purposes. Now, if your parish is a large parish, it has more Sixteenth Sections than a small parish does. If your parish happens to be an oil producing parish, you might get a lot more income, than you do in some parish who may have three or four more Sixteenth Section lands in a smaller parish where the oil producing, but they don't get as much money, because they don't get as much revenue from the Sixteenth Section. Or, if they are a parish who has suddenly had to sell this section in order to support the schools because there was no other use they could make the Sixteenth Section, naturally they don't have any income from it. Now, at the present time, the school boards get all of the money--not any of it is taken away from them. Under the LeBleu amendment they still get it and the others get it if we don't pass this and pass Rayburn's amendment. They still retain all, we aren't taking anything away from them but what has been done in the past, because we have the children to educate throughout the whole State of Louisiana--not just one particular section--is to take into consideration all of the funds that the school board is receiving from all sources. Then, we have the equalization fund which takes into consideration just one half of what they get from the Sixteenth Section lands--that's what's involved here. You only take in one-half of it in consideration of that together with what they get from the severance tax and the other to make up the equalization fund to be sure that each school board has enough money for a minimum educational program--that's what's involved here. So, we're not taking anything away from any school board by this fund. The only thing is, we're just taking into consideration how much they get in allocating the other funds. Therefore, I ask you to support this amendment of Senator Rayburn's, so that we can have good education for all the children--not just for the favorite few.

Questions

Mr. Lowe Senator De Blieux, this is ("did you realize question?") So, did you realize that as I appreciate this amendment, that it's trying to solve some inequity? Well, let me give you an example of the inequity that could exist if this amendment is passed. Part of the equalization formula is made up of severance taxes and, at the moment, Acadia Parish, for instance--which was alluded to by one of the delegates--receives in severance taxes one hundred and twenty thousand dollars, and they have sixteen thousand students. So, that means they receive seven hundred and fifty dollars per student. Now, in Cameron, the severance taxes that comes from statewide funds, there is seventy thousand that goes to Cameron and they have two thousand three hundred students. So, they are receiving thirty dollars per student. Now, in East Baton Rouge, they receive forty cents per student. Now, in Orleans, they receive just a little over one cent per student. Now, if this amendment is passed, then we'll do away with the income from Sixteenth Section lands which means that that money will apparently have to be made up from severance taxes. Now, if that happens, that means that this four hundred and twenty thousand dollars that will have to go to Cameron from severance taxes. Now, with two thousand students and another four hundred and twenty thousand dollars added to the seventy, that's five hundred and ten, that means Cameron would be receiving one thousand seven hundred and thirty thousand dollars per student--one thousand seven hundred and thirty thousand dollars per student from the severance taxes while Orleans would be receiving just a little over one cent per student. So, you think that adopting this amendment could possibly solve any inequities or create more inequities?

Mr. De Blieux Adopting the amendment we have here will certainly keep from creating more inequities than we have got, Mr. Lowe, because that's what's involved. We are trying to get rid of Mr. LeBleu's amendment which created, in my opinion, a lot more inequities than what we would have; that's right.

Mr. Lowe So, you agree that if we kill the amendment, we are at least staying more equitable than we are if we adopt it.

Mr. De Blieux That's right. I agree.

Mr. LeBleu Senator De Blieux, I believe you have stated from the podium that these school sections were originally given by the federal government to provide education. Is that right?

Mr. De Blieux That's right. Now, in this one...

Mr. LeBleu Now, wait a minute, wait a minute. Let me ask you a question. Were they given to the parish, to each particular parish, or were they given to the state?

Mr. De Blieux They were given to the parishes through the states because they...

Mr. LeBleu What for? What for? Why did you answer? What was the answer you gave up there awhile ago?

Mr. De Blieux They were given for educational purposes, and you...

Mr. LeBleu Were they given to the state or were they given to the parish?

Mr. De Blieux Well, you still get them. You get all the revenues from them, nobody is taking that away from you.

Mr. LeBleu Only half, that's all.

Mr. De Blieux No, we're just taking into consideration half of it, in the approachment of the other amount of money that we have, Mr. LeBleu, that's all; you don't want us to take that into consideration. This just says it all it should be taken into consideration.

Mr. Lanier Senator De Blieux, don't many school boards have a sales tax?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, they do.

Mr. Lanier Does the one here in Baton Rouge have it?

Mr. De Blieux That's right.

Mr. Lanier Don't you think that Baton Rouge probably gets an awful lot of money off the sales tax?

Mr. De Blieux They do and that's taken into consideration the allocation and equalization funds.

Mr. Lanier The sales tax?

Mr. De Blieux Oh, yes, since you have to take into consideration of all the funds and allocation of this extra money--this is the extra equalization formula.

Mrs. Warren I wanted to ask Mr. Burson this question, but I didn't get recognized. Mr. Burson made a statement about the little red hen and, of course, I'm familiar with that story "The Little Red Hen," but what connection could you see here? From listening, nobody seems to work for anything, it looked like it was a gift. Could you tell me the connection?

Mr. De Blieux Well, I can't see the connection because sometimes the Sixteenth Sections don't bring in any revenues.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in support of the Rayburn amendment. Let me preface my remarks with this statement: there is no member of the legislator or this convention that I have more respect for than I do my good friend, Conway. This is one of the few occasions that I have had to oppose a proposal that he had submitted. I voted against it yesterday. I think it was passed, because I don't think the significance...the implications were fully understood by the convention. I think there is a better understanding this morning, but let me bring just a couple of points to your attention. We are down here to draw a constitution to be submitted to the people for the State of Louisiana, not for sixty-four individual school boards. When I came to the legislature, and I am a freshman member of the legislature; and when I came here in 1972 for the first regular session; when I returned and had the opportunity to speak to several civic groups, they asked me, "What was the most important thing that I observed in the operation of the legislature?" I had no hesitancy in answering that question in this way, that the major business of the State of Louisiana has the least representation. When I said "major business," I was speaking of this State of Louisiana itself. Unfortunately, in the legislature and I'm afraid that we are doing it here--and I mean nothing personal about it. We are looking after our own individual interest. We are losing completely the statewide perspective that a convention to draft a constitution must use. We must use a statewide perspective and not a individual school board perspective. Now, several of the speakers have said that some of the school boards have given away their lands. I voted for Mr. LeBleu's motion to grant additional time so that I could secure that information. I know that in my particular parish and in several other parishes, they have not disposed of all of their Sixteenth Section of land. Our revenues in Webster Parish are some eight hundred dollars a year, I think, is about what it amounts to. But, let me bring this to your attention. As Senator Rayburn so well set forth when he presented this amendment, if this amendment is not adopted which, in effect, all it does is delete the LeBleu amendment that was adopted, and I think adopted through error yesterday. It will mean that the legislature is going to have to find somewhere two million six hundred and sixty thousand dollars to give our school boards the same amount they are receiving now. I think that the public school system is under-financed to begin with and to put the legislature and the state in the position of having to find in excess of two and a half million to maintain the present formula is unfair. As I said, please, let's look at this on a statewide perspective. Now, one of the other speakers said that what this does it removes the incentive for any school board to derive revenues from their Sixteenth Section of land, that is, a complete fallacy because those school boards do get an excess of fifty percent of whatever revenues they derive from those lands. My parish in the past and is still a fairly high producing oil and gas parish, that does not mean that we should receive any more money. The idea of this whole thing--and I'm afraid we have lost sight of it in adopting the LeBleu amendment--is to give every school child an equal advantage for an equal education. If we do not adopt this amendment, we have failed in that obligation and duty to the school children of the State of Louisiana.

In closing it says that...some of our speakers said that those who have kept them should be rewarded, many have kept them and cannot be rewarded because they are unproductive. Let me repeat one more time. Let's do something for the state school system, adopt this amendment, and I think we have put the state in a position where we can see that each child gets the education that they are entitled to. Thank you.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I'm amused at the intense interest and excitement over a little thing like money. But, I can see where Senator Rayburn is very concerned about this, because he would have to come up with some matter of equalization formula if this LeBleu amendment, as was so wisely passed yesterday, remains in effect. Here is a story in my education of this subject, I would like to pass it on to you for consideration. First of all, the equalization formula is entirely a product of the state legislature. Second, if this one sixteenth land was given by the federal government to the parishes to dispose of it as it saw fit, but for educational purposes. Many of them, I understand, during the depression preferred to sell it, even St. Mary... St. Helena, where the center of the short leaf pine industry is. If they had that land today, I'm sure they would have a nice income for their public schools if they care to...to use it for that purpose. But, in the event it was given carte blanche by the federal government for the parishes to use. Now, what really is the picture? We are talking about a very fractional amount of money which would be left within the parishes and it comes to exactly--now, listen, fellow delegates, to this figure--four-tenths of one percent of the total budget for public education in the State of Louisiana. We are speaking of one-half of that amount, two-tenths of one percent. The thing that amazes me is the intimate concern that the educators have for less than one-half of one percent of funds that would be available to them. I could only say that I wish our school board and the school districts throughout the state were as interested and as concerned in saving one-half of one percent as they are about the possible so-called loss. Now, let's evaluate the loss. First of all, there is no loss. The equalization formula sets a minimum standard--and by the way, I can only interject at this point--that the minimum standard that we have created here in Louisiana is not in California and not in Illinois where the finest educational systems in the whole country exist, according to our educators. So, it's a bit confusing as to interpret what they mean as to minimum foundation programs when other fine states in our country do not have this type of legislation or super-legislation in their constitution. But, be that as it may, the minimum program is established on an equalization formula basis--which Senator Rayburn is so concerned about--because it is his committee that must get the funds for this purpose. Frankly, I would like to see the cost of education reduced and this is one way of knocking off two-tenths of one percent on a seven hundred and eighty million dollar operation in the State of Louisiana, three quarters of a billion dollars goes to this. So in reality, and I'll have to be honest with you as Senator Rayburn and Conway LeBleu have been, I'll have to be honest, it really doesn't make a lot of difference how you vote on this as far as I'm concerned. I know how I will vote. But, let me tell you what happened for those of you that don't remember. In 1952 Cameron threatened to secede from Louisiana. Cameron Parish threatened to secede from Louisiana. This is a fact and really it's a sad situation that it had to threaten the legislature at that time. Yes, it almost seceded from Louisiana and went to Texas, fellow delegates, almost by a vote of the people and if the legislature had let them go, they would have gone. And I'll tell you why because of the fabulous amount of money that Cameron is providing to the till here in Louisiana for welfare purposes and getting not a copper cent and at that time, all they wanted was a highway to get out of that area in case they got wet. Two years later, the hurricane, Audrey, struck there and five hundred people lost their lives. Now, are we talking about education or lives, I ask you? Our mellow, meek and very potent senator from Cameron, Mr. LeBleu, has failed to mention this to you, but I would like to bring it to your attention. They almost successfully seceded and maybe they would have been wise seceding, they wouldn't have this thing come up. But, in any event, I'm voting for it. I hope you'll do...against Senator Rayburn's and for Conway LeBleu's. I think that the home rule order of the state, the home parish. Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, after so many people trooped up here and said that they were my friends and then the way the vote turns out, I certainly don't need any enemies.

[Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 95-17. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion for the Previous Question on the Proposal.]

Reading of the Pending Amendments

Mr. Poynter Mr. Juneau and Mrs. Corne have an amendment adding a proposed section: "Right to Preserve Linguistic and Cultural Heritage. Right of the people of the state to preserve, foster and promote their respective historic linguistic and cultural heritage which still exists in substantial form as recognized." Different amendment than offered on yesterday.

Mr. Conroy has an amendment which would propose to add a section relative to new appointments to boards and making new appointments to a board established by Section 7, 8, or 9 of the article: "The governor shall consider appropriate representation on that board by graduates of the respective institutions under control of that board."

Now, Mr. Aertker, you're not going with the post-section that you had? All right, so, those are the only two I have at the moment.

[Previous Question ordered: 60-49.]

Closing

Mr. Aertker Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, we have finally come to the end of our deliberations as far as this article is concerned. But, I just thought that I would just kind of point out just some of the savant features of this whole proposal just to make sure that we do understand the purpose of the article that we have presented to you for your consideration. We listened to hundreds of hours of input of people involved in public education throughout this state. We feel that with the creation of the two boards that we have--and I frankly consider it just two boards--because they do control education in this state. I do know that the Board of Education which will handle all of elementary and secondary education represents the thinking of the people in elementary and secondary education. We firmly believe that with the approval of this article, that we in elementary and secondary education have finally found a place to go, and a place to get some problems resolved, and a place to move forward in education in the elementary-secondary level. By the same token, I am firmly convinced that by the creation of the Board of Regents, we have taken a step forward in higher education that will keep in higher education two basic things. That is, that all of higher education--and I repeat--all of higher education, every college, every university in this state will be under one board. That board will have the responsibility of handling all of the budgetary matters, all of the financial matters, and all of the curriculum matters, and all of the program matters. I tell you, when a board has that type of power and that type of control, it has all of education in its hands. This board has a specified responsibility spelled out in this article that they will develop a formula and that formula will be for the equitable distribution of funds according to that formula that they will recognize and consider many factors in. But, at least, every body will come into that board together. That board will go to the legislature as a unified request. I think that the clarification that will result from all of these school systems being able to be treated as one body in their basic request to the state legislature, represents a tremendous step forward and a tremendous step toward progress. We have many things that are included in here. We have a method of funding. We have those basic principles involved in education. We feel that this proposal while it will never, it will never satisfy everyone, just as every other proposal, just as the proposal on Revenue and Taxation, just as the proposal on Local and Parochial Government, and on the Executive Branch, and on the Legislative Branch. We have proposed something that we feel marks and indicates a decided improvement in public education for the State of Louisiana. I ask that you give some serious thought to the favorable adoption of this. I point out to you, that this does place education in the area to where they will be able to provide the attention and the time to the different areas of education that deserve the consideration and the time. I think that those areas of local management have been provided for to the extent that they will be able to have a much better type of day-by-day operation at all of our state universities and colleges. I, at this time, ask for your favorable consideration.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

[Record Quorum Call: 109 delegates present and a quorum. Proposal passed: 71-42. Motion to reconsider pending.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, delegates, I resent very much the moving of the previous question in order to preclude the opponents from speaking on the proposal. By moving the previous question, you are permitting the supporters to speak, but you are silencing those who oppose. I do not feel that that is fair. Both sides should be heard. I have no objections to limiting debate. But I feel that that type of thing will kill the constitution. I, for one, resent it. I cannot accept the proposal. It is unacceptable to me, and to the people who elected me. But, had I been permitted to speak, I would have been in a better position to accept that which I oppose. Now, I cannot accept it, nor the constitution. Thank you, delegates.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Roemer Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I, too, rise on the point of personal privilege at a somewhat unhappy moment in my life. I speak not just to you, but the people that chose me to represent them in this constitution. It's my personal opinion, and perhaps I share it alone, that we have just written the most ill-conceived article possible in a new constitution--choked full of statutory material; choked full of structure that may or may not work; center around a board that it was described by the proponents of this article as the single, most powerful influence in education in this state for tomorrow. It will be that. A board that was described that had the educational system of this state in its hands--and I can tell you in whose hands that board is--a totally, completely, one hundred percent appointed board is in the hands of the people that do the appointing. Now, you can write it down, you can book it. It ain't right. Now, I will not say that I will oppose this constitution. But I have a message from my people that elected me in the first primary to do the best I can. I tell you back home, I will continue to do the best I can. But as far as I'm concerned, the deal is off. I am not committed to this new constitution. I am only committed to do the best I can. When I go home and look at it all, maybe I can support it.

[2466]

God, I hope so. But, as far as I'm concerned, I'm very, very shaken as of this moment.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman and delegates, I, too, rise to make a statement that I feel I must make. I will work from this day forward, until the day that the election day--to try to sell this constitution. I think it's far better than the one we now have. But, I say this to you, my fellow delegates, and particularly you, Mr. Huntington Odom, LSU group, Mr. Victor Bussie and your fine people, you have a job cut out for yourselves. You have won this battle. But, I'm very fearful that you are going to lose the war. I feel that particularly from the area that I hail from in South Louisiana, that this is going to set us back a great deal. However, my feelings, as I said at the outset, I will try to sell. But, I'm going to have some miserable days ahead of me. I'm going to hesitate to go out on the streets in the city of Lafayette because I know what is in... I know what is in view for me. I know what I will be looking at--some very disgruntled and unhappy people. I hope that you forces that have won the battle today will get out and fight with the diligence, and with the hard fight... fought battle that you fought here in this constitutional convention in this great day of nineteen hundred and seventy-three, because you are going to need it. You're going to need this kind of fight on your hands. I think that the LSU forces can win this battle, or win this war if they get out and fight. But, you, too, have a job. I challenge you with a job. You have won this battle. But, I challenge you to go out and work--and work with the same way you worked here--to sell this constitution. Thank you.

Mr. Henry Since none of us have heard any speeches lately, I'm sure we'll all enjoy these personal privileges.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Leithman Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I feel very badly about this proposal, the way it has been adopted. I tried my best to convey to you the thoughts and the ideas of the professional educators around the state--the people dealing with education--and apparently the arguments that I advanced to you weren't sufficient to convince you of how things are expected to go in education. I feel that we killed the constitution. This is my personal opinion in speaking to those persons in education. I don't see in any way that the majority of those persons can go with this constitution the way we turned out this proposal on education.

Personally, I'm not going to make any comment whether I'm going to go for this constitution or not at this time. I can say that I'm uncommitted. I feel that strongly about it. I feel the other legislators around this country, when they read this proposal that we turn out, certainly can look at us with laughter--with laughter--because we have been meeting routinely with those bodies that are rewriting constitutions. I know that and I've gained the philosophy that they have advanced in their constitutions. So, I feel that this is, this is really--if none of the other articles did--this drove the nail in our constitution. I feel very badly about it because I know you folks, whether you voted for it or against it, I know you worked very sincerely and very diligently. Perhaps persons assisted me, or the other side of the proposition, failed to project the argument well enough. So, I accept part of the blame. However, I just think we have a very, very, very bad article on education.

Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Juneau Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I won't take up much of your time. I've kind of been a maverick on this particular article since the start. You know, I'll tell you at the onset that I am different from the LSU system in this regard. I'm going to support this constitution because I think on balance, it's better than the one we have. I do not think that the education article on balance is better than what we have. I will, though, and I do not believe in giving up the ship because you gonna...we're going to live with this problem for another two months. Let me tell you on balance that when we consider this constitution and bring it to the people, we've got to pass it. We have compromised, and I have compromised. I believe that is the democratic system. Every article in this constitution, save and except one--and, let me tell you that if it dies--if it dies, which God help us, I hope it does not, let the day rule when you say we might have gone a little bit too far. The reason why I'm saying this is not because I'm not going to support it because I am. But I'm telling you that the mechanism I want you to examine the people that you represent--not the boards, not the alumni associations--but the people you represent, and you ask them how they feel. God help us before we end this job in January, 1974, you will want to, through some mechanism of this convention, reconsider this problem. Let me tell you, when you talk to your people, will you please tell them this, that on one day, on November 13, 1973, this convention decided for the children of this state that by a vote of 80 to 18, you're going to have eight elected public officials and three appointed. So be it. On that very same day, when we get to higher education, you voted by a vote--and listen to this carefully--a vote by 69 to 46 to do the very same thing in the field of higher education. Through the divine revelation as reflected by Mr. Duval one day, as he used the word, on the very next day, we voted by a miraculous vote of 62 to 44 to have 15 appointed by the governor. I just want you to examine that because that question is going to be put to you. I can't give the answer. I started from the beginning of this constitution with the concept I'd be willing to take it all out. That wasn't the will of this convention. We got down to the end and I said, "Gentlemen of the LSU system, we have got a problem. You have got to give when you're talking about passing a document to the people. You haven't given one inch; not one inch. You rejected the board's other schools. Well, so be it." So, we got down to the point, and much further than I thought we had to go, get it eight elected and seven appointed. Privately, some people said, "You know, that's really not too bad. But, the holy alliance has been made." Well, then, when they ask you who the holy alliance...I mean you people in East Baton Rouge, and you people in Caddo...you answer that question and then see what the response is.

So, what I'm telling you in conclusion, I do not believe in giving up. I'm going to support this constitution because on balance, I think it's better. I think this particular section is worse. So, what I'm telling you is to talk to your people. I plead with you to reconsider because remember, you don't want to kill a whole document over something that can be, in my opinion, corrected by a very, very small compromise, and not a technical amendment, but one that I think is more representative of the people.

Thank you very much.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Bergeron Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to tell you that I will support the new constitution because I respect the will of the majority of the delegates. I have the highest regard for the integrity of each and every one of you. Although I will say on the outset of the convention that we, the delegates of CC/'73 had a strong feeling for electing our officials. I'm looking over the number of appointments we have, and I list over sixty appointments in the education article. I don't see how this number can be justified. I don't see who these appointments--I don't see how these appointments can be responsive to the people. I don't see how they will be answerable to the people. I feel that the educational article which we devised is not a good education article. I think we worked very hard. I know every one of us casted our votes on our conscience. But, ladies and gentlemen, I feel that we've made a mistake today. Of course, it's only one delegate's opinion, and I was in the minority.

I will say, as I have said, though, that we are a deliberative body, and we're working under a democratic manner; that the will of the majority will exist. I will abide by that will. But, when we go home over the Thanksgiving holidays, I'd like you to talk to your neighbors and talk to your friends and just see which sentiment they have for electing over--appointing over sixty members in the education article alone.

Thank you.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Personal Privilege

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I believe this is the second time I've spoken on personal privilege. I'm sorry to have to. But, I feel it should be done. Saturdays are the days this convention says things that are wrong. I'm not going to call names, but I think it is entirely wrong to get up here and talk about at this stage, defeating this whole constitution because of a few things certain delegates don't like. Now, the things that have been printed so far that we've finalized, have been, naturally, and have to be by a majority--and a lot of them by a big majority. As a whole, this is a good constitution to date, in my opinion. It would be very unusual for anyone to like everything. You'd have to be some kind of a nut or telling a lie if you did. But, as a whole, I think if you took a ballot, nearly everybody would agree it is. Nobody is perfect. Now, let's quit bad-mouthing whether it be for publicity or otherwise, what's been done. There's a lot of difference of opinion. I'm frank enough to admit there's several things that were adopted that I spoke against. Since I learned a little more, if they came up again, I would change my position. Now, let's don't lose sight of this fact. The present constitution of 1921 as amended, is so out of date it is not workable. We cannot operate under it. So, we are getting as good a vehicle for a constitution as we can. Quit bad-mouthing it. That's no way to be a real man or a real woman. We're down here and we're using a lot of time. We're going to come up with what's the best we can, and try to get it adopted. That will be the best for the people. If there are mistakes in it after it's adopted by the people, they can correct them with another constitutional amendment as much as they hate to have constitutional amendments.

Now, let me tell you this, and I'm going to close in a minute. I talked in the last three months to over a hundred lawyers, and not a one of them has read the Constitution of 1921 as amended from cover to cover. It's too cumbersome. It's too outmoded. It's under...not understandable. Now, we are going to come up with a much, much briefer constitution--up-to-date, better worded, gone over by Styling and Drafting, and by people that know how to put things in proper order. We're going to have a constitution, if they adopt it, that people will understand. You're going to find that a law student studying it is going to read it from cover to cover. You're going to find all lawyers do it. You're going to find a layman with a little instruction will be able to understand it all. Now, let's don't bad-mouth something that's going to turn out to be good. Nothing is perfect. The 1921 one didn't have to be submitted to the people. They agreed ahead of time to swallow it. This has been above board, and the people are going to vote on it. Let's at least wait till it's through with before we start talking against this thing.

I ask that this kind of stuff stop. It's every Saturday that the bad things happen here. Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman and delegates, it says in the Bible, "What man when his son asks for bread would offer him a stone?" I've met that man in the person of the LSU Board and the LSU Alumni Association. LSU-N.O. is the adolescent son of the LSU System. LSU-N.O. asked only to be taken into the family...only to sit at the table and have one crumb, and we were refused, and rudely refused. LSU-N.O. is not out to kill the system. LSU-N.O. is part of a system. But it is a system. It is not one campus. It is a far-flung system. Let us not forget that. I rise to ask you a question. What am I to tell the people in New Orleans who are interested in LSU-N.O.? What am I to tell them about the attitude of the delegates in the majority--the seventy-one toward them? What am I to tell them about their chances of joining the family in the future? Of sitting at the table? Of participating? No one entity needs a constitution more than the city of New Orleans--no one. I would love to see a new constitution. But, how am I going to explain to the people that are interested in LSU-N.O. joining the LSU System, where they stand, and why? I beg the seventy-one of you to explain to the forty-two of us where we stand. We put a year of our lives in as you have. We want to be together on this. On other subject matters we've worked out compromises satisfactory to both sides. There is still time to do that in this instance. I beg of you to put your energies into a suitable compromise.

Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Champagne Fellow delegates, I rise to announce to you that I make no apologies for my vote on this proposal. At the outset of this convention when one of the proposals did not go as I thought it should, and I was somewhat resentful, one of my fellow delegates reminded me that what you have to do is look at the overall picture in comparison to what you have--not what, perhaps, you want. I did that, and today I suggest to you before you go off in fits of anger and disappointment--and disappointment--that you do that yourselves. You look over the entire picture and compare it. Take a walk and reflect and judge yourselves. Is what we have better than what we had before? On basis of that, I suggest you make your recommendations to your people. The people who sent me here, sent me to do what I thought best. I want you all to know that I have done what I thought best. I want you also to know that I stand ready at all times, at any place, to defend my decision for what I thought was best. Those of you who think, perhaps, you cannot explain, I offer you my assistance. I shall face anyone in defense of what I have done today. I hope that you shall have the courage to do likewise.

I thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is the first time I've ever been on personal privilege and probably will be the last. I'm not aggrieved except the fact I'm aggrieved at some of these delegates. Getting up here like Mr. Jack says and bad-mouthing, they're not going to vote for the constitution because they don't like some of the things that's in it. I don't either, but I voted for every proposal; I didn't like some of them. I've been served in the legislature, I've lost some and won some. But, I don't think we should get up here--we're having enough trouble as it is. I've spent one year of my life down here and I'm 68 years old, and I don't have many more. I have no political aspirations, but I'm trying to write a constitution which will be so much better than what we have now. I think it ill behoves these delegates to come down here to this microphone and say they're not going to support the constitution because they don't like some of the things in it, and I resent it. I feel like we all ought to get out here and try to sell the thing. I think the newspapers ought to help us. It's some things in here that we don't like, and it's going to be some more. But, gentlemen, let's get down and write...finish writing the constitution. I hate to get up here for this short time, I know we're trying to get this thing through, but I did want to say these few words, and I don't think I'll get up here any more. I thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Kelly Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, first, I think, I'd like to thank those people who fought the battle on our sides. I might add, to some of the speakers that have been up here before, I certainly respect the vote cast by every member in here. We fought battles before, and I'm sure most of you here have fought other kinds of battles than political battles. I mean you win some and lose some, and that's the way it goes. I don't begrudge anybody the right to cast their vote and reflect their thinking through the voting process, and I hope everybody feels that way. Also, concerning some of the things that have been said up at this podium earlier today, there's no question about it; it's created this article. I think it's a bad article; I can't help but feel that way. But, I think that what we're going to have to do is lay this aside, and come on back because we've got a lot of other business to take care of. The people that have gotten so excited about this article--I've been very excited about it myself--but we're going to have to lay that aside at this particular time. I'm not here to voice any opinion as to whether or not this constitution will pass or fail. I can say, and I will say, that in our particular area or in my particular area, I've now got my work cut out for me, if such is the job that I decide to do. For some of you folks that are offering all this gratuitous help I might add that up in my area we'll probably be for sure calling on you. But, at this particular time...at this particular moment--and I might add I don't ever give up--but at this particular moment let's go on and lay it aside and go on about the work of this convention.

Personal Privilege

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I was just sitting in my seat and I was attempting in my own way to analyze various remarks here on the platform. Then, what I way was a reflection of the many times of frustration, and at the same time, the many times of satisfaction that I've had in this convention. I suggest representing and I feel as though I would like to be considered representing a significant segment of the voters of this state who must also vote on here that in some of the articles I have been tremendously dissatisfied, and some of the articles I felt that I have made some accomplishment. I'm not prepared at this point to suggest to any delegate or to any voter that what we've done here today or elsewhere is fruitless. I suggest to you that I have adopted a position; a position that sometimes is very painful. My position is that I want to look at this document in terms of progress. I want to review this document in terms of what has been afforded in the past to all the people. I suggest to you that some of the positions that are taken on this document that I've taken that position on many documents, and all over in true candor and true sincerity, that I do believe, as Welborn Jack says, that I don't intend to because I have lost some tremendous battles--and most of you know I have lost battles and wars,--but I do not contend to muddy the water in order to write a document solely designed for... by Johnny Jackson, Jr.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Personal Privilege

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, for those of you that have to go home and don't know what you're going to tell the people, I wish you would tell them this for Lantz Womack, "I have been, am, and will continue to be a very, very strong supporter of L.S.U. and the L.S.U. system." For those that, in the Louisiana Tech area that don't know what to tell them, you can tell them for me that not only did I single-handedly provide something that they almost had to have to survive, and make progress, by running a bluff over some leaders in the Senate--I don't know whether I could have done what I intended or not--but at least I got by with the sandy. You can tell them, those at Northeast, I gave them something in a maneuver one time that they wouldn't have had, and it was a sizable sum. For those from Lake Charles, you can remind them that a few years ago when they had been cut out of a good many thousand dollars that they should have had, that I'm the one that asked the House not to accept the Senate amendments in the general appropriation bill, and to throw it in a stacked conference committee which we stacked, we corrected it, gave the money to McNeese it should have had. We took some away from Southwestern they shouldn't have had. Then, I went back and told the leaders from Southwestern in the House how to get their money in another manner that still gave them something that they shouldn't have had when you compare it to everybody else. For those in the New Orleans area and that you can tell them for me that I'm one that voted for every tax conceivable that's been offered in order to give them what they have today, when a number of their local people fought those taxes to give them what they had. So, I think, when you balance this thing out and look around there is enough stories that you can give everybody just a little of it. Now, we've got probably one of the best states in the nation. We have more personal benefits in this state than any place in the nation, and I don't know if our relationship to our fellow-man is not as good if not better, or cross the board, than any state in the nation. We've got room for progress, we're going to make progress. We're going to take care of every institution in this state to the best of our ability according to the money. One last thing, it seems that a lot of the confusion has come about because certain institutions didn't get their share of the appropriation for higher education. I can tell you now, if you had backed out, the high cost courses; the medical school, dental school, vet school, the doctoral degrees, and put them on the same basis--put L.S.U. on the same basis you did the average of the other state institutions in last year's budget--they would have gotten approximately one million dollars more money than they did get on a student credit hour basis. Back out also the approximately one thousand people involved in agricultural extension experiment stations, etc., we have run these figures. But, anytime you want to take a set of figures that is prone to go to one particular place they can compare them with somebody else and show a deficiency. I think that we're going to make progress that the document we have passed while it wasn't everything I wanted, I voted against some sections, in fact, about a third of the sections that we've adopted at this time; I voted against because there was things in there I didn't like. There's going to be something in the end I don't like, but keep in mind that Louisiana has more sacred cows than all the other states put together. That means that we have got to do an enormous amount of compromising in order to make progress. Thank you.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, thank you, and fellow delegates, I just wanted to get up here for one or two minutes because as Jasper Smith said about his age I'm a little his senior and you'll find as you get along in life every year becomes a little more precious. I would certainly hate to think that as precious as they are to me now that I've wasted a whole year up here on this convention. I'd like to say that I suffered some setbacks during this convention which at the time I was...in two instances resentful. But, as we go along you will find that you're going to win some and you're going to lose some. I believe you find that my record that I've never voted on any issue against an elective board or an elective official, and I intend to continue to vote that way until the end of this convention. On the other hand, the record will show that I never voted against a section or I never voted against an article when it came up for final adoption, and that's what I did in this particular case, I voted on every section in this Educational Article in favor of the election of the boards and the election of the superintendent. But, ladies and gentlemen let's get together or stay together and work together as a team and put this constitution over. People ask me what are we doing up here or what kind of constitution we're writing and my uniform answer is, "just wait until we get finished and you'll see how much superior it is to our present constitution." So, let's put aside our little differences and temporary setbacks and work together from now on as a team to put this constitution over with the people of the state. Thank you.

[Motion to revert to other orders adopted without objection. Motion to take Committee Proposal No. 14 out of its regular order adopted without objection.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Goldman Fellow delegates, would you all please, would you all please, I'm going to ask you, I don't know if this is the prerogative of the Chairman or not, I'm going to ask you to please stop moving around and listen to me, because I don't want to waste time, I hesitated asking for this personal privilege; listened to all the others, but I think it's necessary because among all the others, this was not brought out. I've attended a number of seminars before this Constitutional Convention--I had no idea I'd be a delegate to the convention, but naturally, I was interested in the new constitution--which I hope every citizen of this state will be interested in. During these seminars I learned that out of nine new constitutions presented to the people of various states in the last few years one passed, and the one that passed had some alternatives to some of the articles. Nobody up to now has brought up the idea of having an alternative to this Educational Article, and I'd like for you to think about that. In the many talks that I've made to many groups in the last few days I had no idea that there wouldn't be any alternatives at all, and I practically promised many of them that in the Educational Section of this constitution we would have an alternative. I don't know how to go about it from the parliamentary procedure, but I believe the people of this state ought to have the opportunity because there are legitimate differences of opinion, in how to govern education in this state, and I think the people ought to have a choice. I'm going to work as hard as I can possibly work, from now until the time to have this constitution adopted by the people, to try to get it adopted in every way that I know how. I'll get it adopted whether they're all...I'll try to get it adopted whether there are alternatives or not, but I think the fair thing to do for the people of this state since this is a peoples' constitution and since...an elite committee of experts are not writing this constitution to give it to the people, but the people are writing it, constituting the one hundred and thirty-two delegates here representing the people of this state are writing the constitution to allow the people to adopt it themselves. I think they ought to have at least an alternative on some of these where there are legitimate strong differences of opinion on how to best perform the educational functions of the State of Louisiana for the people of the state.

Questions

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Goldman, did you know that the Rules Committee has a special subcommittee which is operating on the alternatives which we were authorized to do by the constitution in the original act setting up the 1973 Constitutional Convention?

Mr. Goldman I didn't know what you just told me, I have read through the rules and it seems to me that the rules provide for alternatives, but nobody has mentioned this yet that I have heard. I thought it ought to be mentioned out loud because I don't know what's happening with alternatives, and I've been given to understand whether this is true or not, that there are certain...there's a certain element here that wants to eliminate alternatives and thinks that we have to give this to the people in just one solid package without alternatives.

Mr. Velazquez Did you know that we're going to give a personal invitation to every delegate in here to attend the meeting of the subcommittee that's going to deal with the alternatives sometimes during next week?

Mr. Goldman I didn't know that, but I'm glad to find it out. I probably wouldn't have found it out if I hadn't come up here and spoken on personal privilege.

Mr. Willis Did you know, Mr. Goldman, that I had asked Reverend Stovall when he was speaking in objection to an amendment on the floor as to whether or not his Rules Committee had provided a vehicle whereby we could propose alternatives, and he told me from that podium that that rule was not mature, that it had not been born yet, that it was not in the final stage whereby we could use it as such a vehicle. Did you know that I had asked him that question?

Mr. Goldman I didn't know that. You probably did it on the three days that I've been absent from this convention, and I'm glad that I brought this out here so that I could find that out and possibly the others didn't know it, I don't know.

Mr. Juneau Mr. Goldman, I wholeheartedly endorse what you're talking about, but let me just present one practical problem for you, whatever mechanism we have it would seem to be that we would at least would have to have a majority vote of this convention to put something alternate on a ballot. Now, if we can't compromise something it seems to me that we're going to have a problem getting seventy-one people to say I'm going to give you an alternate on a ballot; do you see...that's the problem that worries me.

Mr. Goldman I think you only need sixty-seven don't you?

Mr. Juneau Well, I'm saying that we just went through a vote of seventy-one...you'd need sixty-seven, but I'm just presenting a problem to you and that's what concerns me.

Mr. Goldman Well, I...in answer to your question, I believe that every one of the hundred and thirty-two delegates here are fair-minded, and I believe that they are really sincere in allowing the people to vote for a constitution, I've told this to everyone I've talked to and I really mean it, I wouldn't tell it to people if I didn't mean that, and if I didn't believe that. I think that we ought to give them a chance to show how sincere they are in offering the people an alternative when there's a real division...or real difference of opinion on how best to deal with this...with anything for the benefit of the people of the State of Louisiana.

Mr. Henry Thank you, Mr. Goldman. In connection with what you were saying let me say that the reason I think that the Rules Committee or the subcommittee has not come up with the refined rule or proposal on how we should treat alternative proposals--Mr. Goldman, if you will listen--is because if we had provided earlier the mechanics for alternative provisions I would imagine that we might still be on the Executive Article because if a man or a woman lost an amendment they might automatically argue to make it an alternative. This is the reason that I'm hopeful we'll finish our work and give every proposal a fair hearing before this body and then go back and take a long and a critical look at some of the more controversial areas, and then decide what and how many alternates we can put on the ballot, and that's the reason nothing has been done...concrete about it to this point. But, when we get back after the holidays I think we'll be in a position to adopt something in that connection.

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman, do I understand you to say then that it would be all right with you if the majority wanted alternates to put an alternate in the ballot; is that right sir?

Mr. Henry Well, it's not just that easy. I think, --if you're asking me my personal opinion--I think we're going to have to have a few alternates on the ballot when it goes to the people, but I think we would have made a ridiculous mistake had we decided how we were going to present alternates to the people back in August or September, because I can envision us having five or six alternates to each proposal that we would have adopted up to this point. That's the reason that I have discouraged Chairman Stovall and the members of his committee from coming up with anything concrete; but they have been working on it, and I think they are close to being ready to begin making some recommendations after further hearings.

Mr. Chatelain I wholeheartedly agree with you, Mr. Chairman, but I do feel a ray of light in the statement you made sir.

Reading Of The Proposal

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 14, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman, on behalf of the Committee

A proposal making provisions for human resources through a system of economic security, social welfare, unemployment compensation, and public health.

Explanation

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, Committee Proposal No. 14 though short in its verbiage, represents a considerable amount of deliberation, but what held forth was an encouragement at that time to make the constitution as short as possible, but providing for the services which needed to be rendered by the state. Article 14 in its relationship to the constitution replaces in the old constitution Article 6, Sections 11, 12, and 30, and Article 18, Section 7. I think that I should point out that Article 6 of Section 7 had to do with the Public Service Commission... I'm sorry; I'm looking in the wrong section--Section 11; I'm sorry. The boards of health, state, parochial and municipal--state health officer--Section 12 dealt with public health. Section 30 with boards of institutions, and Article 18 dealt with economic security and welfare. Last year's action on the part of the legislature in combining the various functions under health, economic security, and welfare into the Louisiana Health, Social and Rehabilitative Services encouraged us to make provisions for these operations through constitutional provisions leaving the details and the possibility of flexibility in coordination of agencies to the legislature. We, therefore, present to you the Article 14 as read by the Clerk.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Rachal, in the comments attached to this section, it says that it replaces various sections of the constitution which require the state to do such and such a thing. Now, there's a big distinction between requiring and mandating the legislature, is there not?

Mr. Rachal Requiring and mandating, I tend to take the same difference...well, maybe I shouldn't answer it that way, I should say that our article says that the legislature shall provide, we don't leave for exception to that.

Mr. O'Neill Now, let me ask you this. It's my interpretation of it and several people I've asked --different attorneys--that people, various individuals can sue the state and demand economic security or these other things under this; would you agree with that?

Mr. Rachal Well, it would be according to the provisions under...which the legislature provides for social security. Even if sued, it would be that in keeping with what is provided by the state, I don't see that...

Mr. O'Neill But, you do agree that some suits could arise out of this provision?

Mr. Rachal I suppose so, Mr. O'Neill.

Mr. O'Neill Now, another question: What is economic security?

Mr. Rachal Well, it's the expression that is used in connection with efforts in the welfare system in the country to provide for the economic security of all of the citizens to aid those who need such assistance as determined by the system which we here say that the legislature shall establish.

Mr. O'Neill Okay, now in relation to various members here I'm relatively economic insecure... I'm economically insecure. Could I sue the state and demand that I be as economically secure as other members of this...

Mr. Rachal Well, I suppose you could sue the state, but the response to your suit would be based upon what the state has decided is...qualifies one for assistance from the state.

Mr. O'Neill Now, in your opinion, does this provision need to even be in the constitution at all? Does the legislature not have the power now to authorize everyone of these things?

Mr. Rachal We think...the committee thought that we did need to have it in the constitution whereas we did not want to spell out details of how it should operate, we felt that we should mandate that the state shall establish a system of economic security, leaving the formulae and arrangements and the qualifications and that kind of thing to the legislature, and especially because we wanted to permit the state to respond to whatever developments took place outside of the state. For example, the...as you know the welfare system depends to a great extent upon federal subsidy. We were being careful not to attempt to write in a formulae that would deny the state the flexibility which the legislature at a given time would feel was necessary. On the other hand, we did not think that the constitution would be silent, we thought that it was necessary to state that the state shall provide for the economic security for social welfare, unemployment compensation, and public health.

Mr. Roemer Tony, could you address a few remarks to the first of these "shall establish" - ments, and that is...economic security? Now, I know the question immediately preceding mine dealt somewhat with economic security. Could you tell me, really, what that means, and what this system will be designed to do?

Mr. Rachal Well, to the best of my ability, I will, Mr. Roemer. I should have stated in my opening remark that we are not suggesting any change from what presently exists. What the committee did was to pull together, and with concise if not precise language, to the perpetuation of what now exists with the broad terms to allow for any changes which the legislature would see fit to make in the light of economic, social developments in the country in the years to come. We were eliminating the details, under Article XVIII for example,...let me read that to you...Article XVIII had all of its sections repealed except Section 7, as I recall, which provided for social security and public welfare. We had broadened that into saying "economic security" but it was for the establishment of age systems, the Confederate veterans and their widows, the Board of Public Health and all of these functions. What we simply did was to continue that without the detail allowing the legislature the flexibility to change as conditions dictate it.

Mr. Roemer All right. But, my point that I'm trying to get at in economic security is...will the legislature be deemed in violation of the principles of our constitution if this passes and the system that they establish fails to secure economically the people of this state? That's what I'm after.

Mr. Rachal I would think not in that we...the degree to which the legislature provides is not required in the constitution. It will say that it will provide, and I would take that to mean according to the definition which it will establish...provide in a manner which it does now. There are those today who suggest that the current system does not adequately provide, and it is not considered unconstitutional, to my knowledge.

Mr. Roemer Well, have we lost anything in this state...any of our precepts or principles or goals if we fail to state that the legislature shall establish a system of economic security?

Mr. Rachal I don't think so.

Mr. Roemer I don't think so, either, so why is it in here?

Mr. Rachal Well, the reason I'm saying it's in here was to make certain that with all that is being allowed to the legislature that the legislature would not decide that we don't need an economic system...a system of economic welfare and so forth at all.

Mr. Roemer Well, do you know that it seems to me that we waste more time in this convention choosing the paint for the exterior of the house than in construction of the house itself? This seems to be another example of window-dressing.

Mr. Rachal Well, I beg to differ with you on that, Mr. Roemer. In fact, I think that the committee has made a tremendous effort in keeping with one of the early objectives regarding the...this constitution in brevity being the guide, and whereas, we didn't want to go into all of the present details to perpetuate the system, we felt that at least it was necessary to assure that there would be a system. The quality and so forth would be more at the will of the people, through their representatives in the legislature.

Mr. Asseff Three questions, Mr. Rachal. Aren't we really telling the legislature to do what it can do?

Two, haven't we really said nothing as full discretion still lies with the legislature, and three, what constitutes compliance, please?

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Rachal Let's see, I think you answered your own first two questions, but...and the other one I thought that I had covered. We set no perimeters. The legislature...to answer more specifically... compliance would be the establishment of a system.

Mr. Asseff I think we've really set nothing, Mr. Rachal. I have no objections to general principles. I'm simply saying that from a constitutional standpoint we have not assured these programs. It is simply window-dressing.

Mr. Rachal No, we have not assured their programs to any particular formulae. Our sole objective was to assure that the state of Louisiana would have a system of economic security, welfare and health services, leaving to those in the...charged with the responsibility of conducting those services to make them adequate to the times and to the, in a sense, the wishes of the people, actually. I have to disagree with those who say that we haven't done anything. There's a difference between saying that the legislature "may" and it "shall"...we're saying that the legislature "shall" provide.

Mr. Asseff My question is, Mr. Rachal: I agree in general principle with you...how have we really assured it? I don't think we have. That's my question.

Mr. Rachal Well, the only thing that concerns me with the questions that are being raised on that, I have heard the criticisms of the fact that the constitution as we have developed it thus far has tended to go too much into detail. We were very deliberate. We've spent many hours in listening to representatives of the welfare department, the health services, the commissioner of the Louisiana health and social and rehabilitative services and in their considered opinion to allow for the providing of the services that were needed in keeping with the needs of the people of this state at the time that this flexibility should be allowed, however we did not go so far as to say that it should not be in the constitution at all. We want to make certain, as I've said before, that a system is provided and that changes in whatever system is provided would not call for constitutional amendment, but rather statutory changes.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Rachal, as I read the digest of Committee Proposal No. 14 by the research staff, it requires the legislature to provide for the interests of state medicine; it requires for protecting the public from altered drinks and things as such. It seems to me that what we're saying here by Committee Proposal No. 14 is that one, the legislature shall not at least abolish those vital services that are not only given, and I hope that people are not trying to cloud the issue when you talk about a welfare system because you're not just talking about A,B,C; you're talking about aid to the veterans, aid to the blind, aid to the needy, unemployment compensation and those sorts of services that run the gamut of a system. Is that not so?

Mr. Rachal And we expect that the services now provided...the associations now operating will continue as they continued under the consolidated concept which is in existence this year. In no way do we suggest the elimination of any of the services which are now provided.

Mr. J. Jackson When we talk about other kinds of economic security systems and we know we're talking about various retirement systems, and we're talking about various pension systems, if we follow the logic of the kinds of questions that were asked concerning the words "economic security" that maybe what we ought to do is to say that economic security for teachers and judges and all these folks ought to also not have constitutional status.

Mr. Rachal I think you're right.

Mr. Derbes Mr. Rachal, the language in the committee proposal is not self-executing, is it?

Mr. Rachal Only to the extent that it requires the legislature to establish a system. We feel that even the relegation of what is in the 1921 Constitution to the statutes, now...we...someone raised the question about alternatives to this constitution. Another point to be discussed is how those sections of the constitution, now, which we feel can serve their purposes just as well, statutorily, we've got to discuss yet how those are to be transposed. We expect that the...until... changed by the legislature that they will remain primarily as they are now.

Mr. Derbes And in fact the committee proposal does not create a substantive right on the part of anybody; it is merely a policy declaration to the legislature. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Rachal Right.

Mr. Jenkins In other words, your statement then is that it really accomplishes nothing other than to make a policy statement.

Wouldn't it be better then to leave such things out of the constitution rather than trying to put them into a constitution that is already burdened with too much verbiage?

Mr. Rachal No, I would not agree, Mr. Jenkins, that it doesn't accomplish anything. In fact, I think we're being very modern in our approach, and I think it has been more successful than in any other proposal presented thus far, in that what we have simply done is removed, as you state, unnecessary verbiage from the constitution, yet assuring that such services will be provided as deemed necessary by the legislature which gives it, as I said before, the kind of flexibility in keeping with the times and in...closer to the people for the changes that might be necessary.

Mr. Jenkins I thought you just said it did not assure these things, but now you're saying that it does assure them. To what extent does it assure them?

Mr. Rachal It does not assure them in specific terms. I don't know how much more emphatically I can say that it does assure the system than to say that the legislature shall provide.

Mr. Jenkins So, if the legislature doesn't, then in other words, the taxpayer can go and sue and force the legislature to?

Mr. Rachal Well, in the same way, Mr. Jenkins, that the constitution requires action on the part of the legislature anywhere else. It's the same thing here. I'm not certain that I know precisely how to respond to your question. My impression is that what the legislature requires, the legislature must do.

Mr. Jenkins So in other words, if we required single member districts in the Legislature Article, a court could come along and redraft single member districts and place us in those, so you think maybe under this a court could come along and devise an economic security plan; put it on the legislature, possibly even impose taxes to pay for it; is that correct?

Mr. Rachal No. Well, I don't know how far court cases can go but it provides for the...as long as the legislature complies by providing a system, I don't know that the courts could interpret the, whether the system was adequate or not. I would think that the legislature would have the wisdom to provide a system rather than have the court to insist that they do provide one.

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Rachal, I just want to get one thing straight. Wasn't it the thinking of the committee that this entire program...each one of the economic securities...social welfare, unemployment compensation...was entirely dependent on the program established by the federal government so I think what we did was just make a provision in here for the legislature to establish these programs and they could change with the federal program when it was necessary to do so. Am I correct in that?

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Rachal Right, we did not want to preclude the legislature from complying with or taking advantage of assistance from the federal government. I think, however, that I should point out, Mr. Hernandez, that the committee has changed nothing as it presently exists. The only way in which a change will take place in the provisions as required here would be at the subsequent session of the legislature when they might change it.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Dr. Weiss reads: "Amendment No. 1, on page 1, delete lines 8 through 18 both inclusive in their entirety."

Explanation

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, this is an extremely simple proposal which intends...a floor amendment rather which intends to delete the committee proposal as presented since it adds nothing to the constitution. I would like to remind you that the preamble to our constitution does spell out the intent of our legislature and our constitution and the government. If you will recall, the preamble reads "We the people of Louisiana"...and so on..."promote the health, safety, education and welfare of the people." In other words, it specifically spells out and suggests to the legislature what the intent of this constitution is meant as well of the will of the people. This proposal will create, I'm afraid, only many hours of unnecessary argument and perhaps some very powerful special interest group trying to persuade this group to do something which is not in the best interest of the people of the state of Louisiana. It is only necessary to see what has happened to education under the influence and just from this podium a moment ago or an hour or so ago some of those who spoke on special privilege congratulated not only the L.S.U. system which is one of the most powerful and greatest of the state of Louisiana but also the labor people...Mr. Bussie, Mr. Flory, and those who had special interest in this because of perhaps some union associations to affiliate themselves in making the passage as close as it was. In any event, I think that this is best kept out, and physicians certainly agree that we believe individually in a hundred percent consumerism. The consumerism being direct...one hundred percent with patient and doctor. This is as far as the medical aspect goes and there will be amendments if this floor amendment fails to bring up some other concepts as to medical care. As to social and economic care these are such vague words and big words that no one can define them adequately. I don't think there's any question amongst any of the delegates that we in Louisiana have the finest system of social welfare and unemployment compensation and public health that exists in the nation today, and that we can attribute to our citizens, to labor, to management, and to all of the special interest groups in the state who have contributed to care of both those that can afford and those that cannot afford care either medically or because of unemployment or because of social pressures of some type that do not make them equal to making a living. So, I see no reason that we should have this proposal in the constitution. I can only say that we will spend many hours debating this, and I would suggest that we accept the floor amendment to delete this proposal. It adds nothing to the constitution, and there is sufficient statutory law to see that it will be enforced hopefully as we have had by our fine legislature making its mistakes and making its fine decisions to adjust what is necessary as the years come ahead of us.

Questions

Mr. J. Jackson Dr. Weiss, can you differentiate for me in a definition of economic security between constitutional status for retirement systems of firemen, policemen, teachers, judges, assessors, sheriffs, and between...let's say aid to the blind and needy? Is there a difference of economic security?

Mr. Weiss Well, Delegate Jackson, first of all as a delegate to this convention, my experience prior to this has been limited to the field I specialize in, medicine and surgery. I am not an attorney and I would suggest you speak as I do to some of the attorneys to define these words..."economic security." I know what it means to me, but it might even need according to our chairman who in July...on the 5th of July, I remember so vividly said that many of the things that would be passed in this constitution will be really interpreted by the state Supreme Court. So, I don't know that anyone is aware of economic security and its definition that you and I can agree upon.

Mr. J. Jackson I was just basically asking your interpretation, because your amendment called for the repeal of the section, and I want to know personally what's the difference between a retirement system and aid to the needy and blind in terms of economic security, as far as you are able to define.

Mr. Weiss Yes, well as far as the present state of Louisiana defining it, they have retirement systems which are still and I hope will continue to remain in effect, the aid to the needy which is not only state but federal requirements, and I might point out that before we can accept federal aid we have to meet certain federal requirements and this is all being complied with at the present time, and you as a legislator I am certain are aware of the definition of economic security better than I and I would suggest that you, perhaps, could define it to this body.

Mr. J. Jackson But that's not my amendment to repeal it, Doctor; that's what I'm trying to say. You're asking us to vote to repeal to a section and you're not sure one way or the other if economic security means, you know, what it says, and at the same time we have as a body of delegates constitutionalized the economic security for assessors, sheriffs, judges, etc., and I'm just trying to see...don't you see there's a discrepancy?

Mr. Weiss Can you define economic security because you've asked me that question and I think that speaks in behalf of deleting this committee proposal. No one can define economic security and I can assure you that if this floor amendment fails there will be those in...presentations on other floor amendments to debate this in length. I would suggest that we save time in this convention and leave this to the wisdom of our legislature and those that have created a fine system in our state for not only economic but social welfare, unemployment retirement systems and public health.

Mr. Velazquez Dr. Weiss, do you realize that the effect of your amendment would be to delete the effect of Article VI, Section 12?

Mr. Weiss No, I do not think that will be so, because the confidentiality and communication between patient and medical practitioner of which you refer to, I hope will be substantially substantiated in our Declaration of Rights. Incidentally, you are right, Delegate Velazquez; I wanted to spell that into the constitution, but the Declaration of Rights members suggested that we make it broader and so we have it in our Declaration of Rights. Hopefully, the Supreme Court will not only stand up for confidentiality of communication but incidentally will allow for those of us who have confidential information infringed upon, whether it be doctor, attorney or your bank accounts or your credit systems to have the right to sue for infringement of this right if it's misused.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Velazquez So, you think that anything having to do with the confidentiality of a doctor and his patient is constitutional material, but protection of the people against sale, bought or gift or use of injurious or adulterated drugs, foods and drinks isn't constitutional?

Mr. Weiss That is all in statutory law, Delegate Velazquez, and it is being enforced at this time in our criminal code.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman and delegates, when I came in this morning I said to several of the delegates as I walked around, "I felt like I was at a wake." After the educational proposal, I heard many eulogies and then we turned to the section of health and the welfare of our people, and it does not deserve constitutional status. When Dr. Weiss was here speaking, he reminded me of the little boy who found a gold coin and he threw it away because he thought it was dirty money. We at P.T.A. have been fighting for a comprehensive health plan for our children across the state for a number of years. Dr. Weiss intends to kill it. Some questions were asked from the floor... "Is this going to make the legislature have to do this that and the other?" I say to you, I look at the legislature, maybe you don't look at it the same way I do, but I'm going to describe it in the way that I understand it, as the great father of all the children of the state of Louisiana and must look out for their health, education and welfare. I don't say that it would take suits, but I do think that when they go to doling out money they ought to decide that they want to have something for welfare. If you are a father in a family, you provide for your family according to your means and to the best of your ability. This is what we're going to ask. Yes, Dr. Weiss, you can ask me any questions that you would like to ask me; I might not answer it like you want me to answer it, but I'll try to answer it.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate Warren, you're from Orleans Parish and you mentioned the P.T.A.; what is the Orleans Parish Medical Society's stand on comprehensive health planning?

Mrs. Warren Dr. Weiss, I am from Orleans Parish, and may I make this clear to you; I'm not talking about Orleans Parish. I'm talking about the state of Louisiana and all of the parishes.

Mr. Weiss What parish?

Mrs. Warren I am from Orleans Parish.

Mr. Weiss What is the attitude of the Orleans Parish Medical Society in reference to your P.T.A. concept of comprehensive health planning?

Mrs. Warren I really don't know...hold it Dr. Weiss, let me say this to you. I was on HEAL. I was invited to one of their meetings, and the next time they had meetings they decided they would not invite Mrs. Warren so how do you expect for me to know their position on it. Now, I would like to know from you, you gave it to me, but I'm not trying to give you their view about it. I'm trying to give you mine. Now, if you want mine, I'll give it to you.

Mr. Weiss Are you familiar with any doctor's concept of health planning in your area?

Mrs. Warren Dr. Weiss, I just said to you, I'm not concerned about the doctors and their views on it; I'm concerned about the children of this state and the people of this state. Now, you might be able to give me what the doctors think about it, and I've had some letters from them and what they thought about this, that and the other, but you want to know something: I had my mind made up, and I'm concerned about the health and welfare of our children and I ask you to vote against this amendment.

Mr. Velazquez Mrs. Warren, do you think that doctors are the only ones who get sick...that they should have complete authority over all comprehensive medical care?

Mrs. Warren No, Mr. Velazquez, they're not the only ones to get sick, but I want to say to these people before I leave this podium, all of are going to wish that we had taken care of the health of our people because if our people get sick there are some diseases that our health is going to be endangered if we don't take care of their health conditions.

I ask you to please vote against this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment and I hope I can do so without too much emotion, but if you read the proposal carefully all it says is that the legislature shall establish a system of. It does not say for all of the people. It just says a system and that system shall be determined in the wisdom of the legislature contingent upon the resources available to the legislature to fund those systems. you know it's unfortunate that everybody can't be a physician and everybody can't charge prices and if the patient doesn't have anything to say about it and they are not as resourceful as those people but yet they have to depend somehow upon the rest of us who are fortunate enough to be able to earn a decent standard of living and they depend upon us to provide some system of economic security for them. It's unfortunate but it's true. All this does is a continuation of the present welfare program, the present unemployment compensation program, the present mental health program, etc... that's all it does. Its people and yes, Dr. Weiss, I represent a special interest; those special interest are people. I plead guilty to that. I'm proud of it, and I'm proud to have been on the committee that developed this proposal. You say we don't need it. I say that we do, because it's a firm statement of public policy of this state that we are willing to take care of those who can't take care of themselves. That's how simple it is. If you oppose that then you vote for this amendment. You vote for it. I cannot vote for it for that reason.

Questions

Mr. Nunez Mr. Flory, establishing a system of social welfare, which we already have, economic... unemployment compensation and public health...how do we establish a system of economic security?

Mr. Flory I would imagine just as they have in the past, Senator Nunez, in establishing the welfare program in this state.

Mr. Willis Mr. Flory, the proposal uses the phraseology that "the legislature shall." The staff indicates to us the "the legislature is authorized" by virtue of the old constitution. The old constitution says "the legislature may establish a system of economic security." Now, one is "shall," the other one is "may," and the other is "authorized." Now, which do you prefer-- "shall" like you got it?

Mr. Flory Yes, I do, because as I appreciate the constitution, when it was developed in 1921 many of these services did not exist at that time and the legislature was authorized to enter into these types of programs. Now that the legislature has seen fit to do that, they, I think this states, as public policy, they shall continue that.

Mr. Willis Well, my point is that...what you say that has nothing to do with the price of eggs in China. There is a difference between the...

Mr. Flory Well, I'm not buying eggs in China, anyway, Mr. Willis.

Mr. Willis Well, I'm not selling any.

Mr. Flory I sounds like it.

Mr. Willis Well, listen a while and you'll find out that I'm not.

Mr. Flory All right.

Mr. Willis Your's says "the legislature shall;" this one says "the legislature "may." Now, there is a difference between the two; isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory No question about it.

Mr. Willis Now, with that difference, don't you think that because the courts are opened as proposed by the old constitution and the new one, that we can go to court and mandamus the legislature to, because "it shall establish a system of economic security, social welfare, unemployment compensation, and public health," the definition of which, the length, the breadth, and the depth to which we don't know the definition?

Mr. Flory Mr. Willis, I have been told by many attorneys in this convention, you can't mandamus the legislature. I think you, as an attorney, know that much better than I do.

Further Discussion

Mr. O'Neill Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, my good friend, Mr. Willis, through his questions, made the points that I can only make and reiterate to you. The articles which have been deleted from the constitution and are attempting to be replaced by this article are authorizations to the legislature, and they authorize the legislature to do these things. They don't require... but they surely don't mandate the legislature. Now, there is a difference between these words, and I think that even you non-attorneys who have sat through this convention have learned that there is a difference between "may" and "shall." There is a tremendous legal distinction between these words. Now, the word "shall" in context... in the context of this article, in my humble opinion, would allow any citizen of this state to sue the state and demand economic security, and demand these other things which are neither defined nor literally expressed in this constitution. In relation to other people, I'm economically insecure; but I don't believe that I should be able to sue the state and demand that I be on par with anyone else, or that I be made economically secure. I think the subcommittee of the Education Committee that came out with this proposal should, perhaps, recheck their thinking on this, and should, perhaps, propose to us something which would not mandate the legislature to do all of these things which they can do now. I think maybe they should vote for Dr. Weiss's amendment which would delete this section. Think back to the preamble of the constitution which we adopted. We provided for the health, safety, welfare, and education of all the people of this state. I don't believe that we need mandate the legislature at this point and allow any citizen to sue the state at any time because he thinks he's economically insecure. I ask you to vote for this amendment because I think that the legislature can do all of these things, and I don't think that the legislature will ever stop doing all of these things. I cannot conceive that in the future that they would disallow any of these programs which are currently going on, or that any of us would really want them to. So, I ask you to vote for this amendment, and don't open up something that we don't know the effects of which will be.

Questions

Mr. Avant Mr. O'Neill, you're assuming, do you not, that that refers to economic security for a given individual, are you not, sir?

Mr. O'Neill I'm not sure who it means at all, Mr. Avant. If it means "people," well, individuals are people.

Mr. Avant What about of the state as a whole?

Mr. O'Neill Well, that would be even harder to provide than for even an individual, Mr. Avant.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I recognize, now, that I made a serious mistake when I introduced this committee proposal. Actually, I thought it was a perfunctory introduction of an article that was tantamount to saying that we shall continue to fly the American flag, and that it shall be posted in the state legislature. I didn't expect, by any stretch of the imagination, the kind of resistance which this article has received. It seems a little appalling to me that we can say, that first of all, this kind of article is not necessary because we're going to do it anyway. Well, if we're going to do it anyway, why be so concerned about having it? It seems to me that the concern of the health and education and welfare of the people in this state are of equal importance. I pose the question: if this is not necessary, why do we need to mandate the legislature to establish an educational system? We're going to have an educational system. Why have it in the constitution? But, we've proceeded, not only to say that the state shall provide an educational system, but to go into considerable detail as to how it shall be provided. We thought we'd modernized the approach here in stating that in keeping with the concern of the people of this state that they shall be provided with economic security, and etc. Let me just touch on that because it seems that some have...concerned about the state being sued by individuals who will demand that their security be provided. Well, it is no more than a person who could sue the state to demand that they be educated and, if they're not educated by someone's standards, that the state has some obligation to pay or something. When one sues to be educated, he is educated in accordance with the system which the state has established to afford him the opportunity to develop his potential. The same, it seems to me, applies to the system that is established by the legislature to assure the health, welfare, economic security in the other matters. This article does not purport to change any provision now in the constitution. Those who, say, ask for a definition of "economic security," it is not presently defined. Article XVIII, Section 7, states that "the system of economic security and social welfare which may provide for the following." Now, it doesn't say what it is, but it says that "it shall provide for a system of financial assistance to aged, needy individuals who are over sixty-five, a system of unemployment compensation, a system of aid and welfare of mothers and children," etc. I say, delegates, we know what we are speaking of in the provision of welfare programs, economic security, and etc. What we have simply tried to do--and I'm afraid we've given the wrong impression--that by trying to be concise and, I hope, precise in our language, it seems that we've given the suggestion that this is not important. Quite the contrary is true. We expect that even in greater keeping with the possibility of responding to needs of the time--contrary to what we've done in education--that we have provided the kind of flexibility, while assuring that the state in some moment of emotional concern, might decide that such provision for citizens is not necessary. I, therefore, urge your defeat of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Tate Dean Rachal, is it my understanding that what you're doing here is replacing a number of articles in the present constitution which authorized the legislature to create certain programs which they have created, and when you say that "they shall do it," in effect, you're ratifying what they have done?

Mr. Rachal Right.

Mr. Tate Second, is it my understanding that the probable reason--aside from a statement of general principle, with which presumably most of us must agree--is to assure old age recipients, all the people having the benefit of these programs already created, that the enactment of the new constitution will have no effect...adverse effect on them? Is that my understanding?

Mr. Rachal That is right. It is in providing that programs will continue. But, the positive side, for those who are in disagreement, Judge Tate, is that we do not mandate a specific formula, we do not mandate a degree of aid, leaving that to the kinds of programs which this country and this state will see fit to provide for the people.

Mr. Tate Is it my other understanding that do you have no intention by this to mandate anything further than it has already been done, in effect?

Mr. Rachal No. In fact, our provision really gives extreme liberality to the legislature. In fact, the sessions of the legislature following the adoption of this constitution, could, in fact, reduce what is there.

Mr. Tate So, then, the issue before us is: should this general statement of principle be contained in the constitution to allay the fears of those who might regret its absence or is it appropriate for the constitution to have the statement of principle?

Mr. Rachal That is right. We felt for the confidence of the people, and so forth, that such a provision should be in the constitution. But, a great deal of verbiage was not necessary to define it.

Mr. Kean Mr. Rachal.

Mr. Rachal Yes.

Mr. Kean You've made the statement--and I think Judge Tate sought to elaborate on it--that there was really no substantial difference between this proposal and what's in the present constitution. Did I understand that correctly?

Mr. Rachal Well, there is a difference in that the present constitution authorizes and says that "the legislature may." This article says that "it shall."

Mr. Kean In other words, the present constitution says that the legislature may establish these types of programs, doesn't it?

Mr. Rachal We are...this article purports to require to change what the legislature has in the past established.

Mr. Kean So, you are now mandating the legislature to provide these programs?

Mr. Rachal Yes.

Mr. Kean So, there is a substantial difference between this proposal and what's in the present constitution?

Mr. Rachal We're mandating that the godliness of what we say will exist without this article, that it in fact will continue to exist, but exist with even greater flexibility to the legislature than they now have. Any change in the present, as you know, would call for constitutional change. We're leaving any change now to the legislature.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Velazquez Dr. Rachal, wouldn't you say that in the Education Article we tried to provide schools for all the children of Louisiana?

Mr. Rachal Yes, that's my understanding.

Mr. Velazquez Wouldn't you think that in this particular amendment they're trying to make sure the kids don't even have shoes to get to the schools they provided them in the other article?

Mr. Rachal I didn't quite get that, Mr. Velazquez.

Further Discussion

Mr. Womack Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates--Judge Tate, in particular--Judge Tate, if I came in and filed a suit on behalf of my mother who had a two-hundred-dollar-a-month doctor bill, who needed nursing care around the clock, and when you added all the other factors to it, it took five, six or seven hundred dollars a month to provide it, and I proposed in that suit that this constitution of Louisiana guaranteed her that economic--what does it say--security, I just wonder how you would rule as to what it would take to give her economic security. Now, the next thing: If you get caught in a trap to where the court would tell you that economic security's term is much broader than we have been led to believe the intent of this article is, and it would take far more money from the state treasury to do it than is provided today, then who will you take it away from? I want to know that. You're going to take it away from education; you're going to take it away from security. Somewhere you've got to take it away. Now, the difference, then--and there's a lot of difference between giving the legislature the authority to provide it and mandating the legislature. Now, there's a lot of difference between mandating a legislative system of education because a legislative system of education is broad and covers all of the children of the state--and rightfully so. But, economic security is an individual situation, and every individual in the state is different. What is economically secure for me is certainly not economic security for some other individual. When we guarantee each individual economic security, I don't know how you can put it. I don't know how broad it is. I don't know where it would start. I don't know where it would stop. I do know this: that there's no way, if we're going to use--and Mr. Flory, you know, I'm a friend of you all's and bent over backwards to help everywhere I can, and I have enjoyed a very friendly relationship--but, if the AFL-CIO's wage scale is something that they consider necessary to provide economic security for the employees of the State of Louisiana, then what standard will we use for economic security when they are no longer employees? It's going to take just about as much for them to live then as it does now. What I want to know is, is what this kind of a figure would be, and where would we be, if we woke up one day with a suit--and don't kid yourself; you're going to have one--if we wake up one day with a suit that says we have guaranteed this individual economic security, and they have every proof in the world: medical information on top on medical information, every minister in the community signing affidavits, and all the politicians, too--which we all do--that that is absolutely needed to take care of this individual, then where is the money coming from? This is the question I raise. I'm for what they say the intent is, but I want somebody to give me a definition of this "security." As of now, I can't vote for this section with that phrase in it. If you will authorize the legislature to provide it, yes. Don't kid yourself; these programs are not going to cut down. You say that we've had the authority all these years. We've got the greatest health care programs, I would say, considering our overall economy, of any place under God's green earth, and we've done it under "may"--and the legislature's done it.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

So, I would urge you some way--I don't know that deleting the whole section's the answer; probably isn't--but, deleting that particular part where it says, "you shall provide economic security," as far as I'm concerned, will have to come out or be modified for me to vote for it. Thank you.

Questions

Mr. Rachal Yes, Mr. Womack, do you realize that I don't follow your logic? Let me ask you, the reason that I don't, you made reference to the Education Article, and in that article, we state that the...in the preamble--someone before you mentioned about the preamble...but in this one it says that they will establish a system, and that it will design to promote excellence in order that every individual may be afforded the opportunity to develop to his full potential. Now, if I followed your question to Judge Tate that...here's where I don't follow it. You say that in education, it's to all of the children, but when we talk about welfare and economic security, that's to an individual. I don't see how an individual, according to your statement, could not sue the state because the educational system has not developed him to his full potential, and he sues the state in that regard, just as a person could say they had not been economically secure by the system that is provided.

Mr. Womack Mr. Rachal, it's a lot broader term and would be a lot harder to pin down in a suit than offering an individual economic security.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Weiss Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, I would like to point out that those of you that do favor the floor amendment as proposed, in deleting Committee Proposal No. 4, will not by so voting stop motherhood, boy scouts, medical care, unemployment compensation, and the like that has been inferred--that there has been godliness in our state, and that only this type of proposal will resolve matters. Believe me, our legislature and the federal government has done a fine job in promoting economic security for those who are unable to provide for themselves. So, I point out to you, if you vote in favor of my amendment, that we will still have in this state some of the finest medical public facilities, some of the finest unemployment compensation, and we will continue to provide economic security and income maintenance as we have and are doing. I second point out to you that this is a mandated issue which says, well that is, the people of Louisiana--shall provide heaven knows what. Believe me, economic security is difficult enough to define, much less social welfare. Even unemployment compensation has been taken over the coals in all the states in the federal government today and, of course, public health. Well, Louisiana was the first state in the union to provide public health for its citizens. I must point out, as one of the speakers suggested, that he is a special interest group representing people. I, too, am a special interest group, and I represent a person. When a person comes to me, they are my primary concern, individually. As a group, it was those individual persons, over the twenty-two years in Lake Charles, that elected me to the position I now hold. These group of people that I treated as a person have been most grateful, and for that reason, I am here before you. I hope that you will continue to see that people, as individuals, will have the right to choose their own interpretation of what they consider economic security, what they consider proper medical care, what they consider their level of income maintenance.

On the other hand, the state has and, I can assure you, will continue to provide with such excellent legislators that have already spoken to you such as Delegate Womack and others--will continue to provide for the less fortunate of those among us. I ask you to adopt the floor amendment and prevent further debate, lengthy discussion on a subject that can only give us more trouble, and which is presently covered by statutory law, by federal regulations, and by a fine system of public health, unemployment compensation, social welfare and income maintenance that we have in the State of Louisiana today. Any questions, I'll be happy to answer them, Mr. Acting Chairman, if I can.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 40-53. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment sent up by Delegate Abraham as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 16, immediately after the word "legislature" and before the word "establish" delete the word "shall" and insert in lieu thereof the word "may".

Explanation

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, this puts the language right back to the same way it is in the present constitution. It's my appreciation that in the 1921 Constitution the authorization was put in Section 18 because of the limitations that were placed on the legislature in Article IV which stated that "no public expenditures may be made for private purposes." So, some people felt that it was necessary to include in Article XVIII an authorization for the legislature to be able to provide for these things. What my amendment does is this simply authorizes the legislature to provide for it; it does not mandamus them to it; it does not mandate them to do so, and I urge the adoption of this amendment. I think we can resolve this problem here. It's my personal opinion that we don't need the language at all in the constitution now because I don't think there'd be any problem under the court interpretations now or the legislature being authorized to do these things. But, if there is any question, this does authorize them to act.

Questions

Mr. Roy Mr. Abraham, don't you think we just resolved that issue by saying that we mandated it because your amendment means absolutely nothing?

Mr. Abraham Well, Mr. Roy, the authorization in the present constitution means absolutely nothing, if you want to put it that way.

Mr. Roy That's my point, so that when we just discussed this issue in terms of mandating or not mandating and voted to defeat the amendment to remove it, then obviously, the majority here felt in favor of mandating; don't you believe that?

Mr. Abraham I don't believe that. No, sir.

Mr. Mire May I move the previous question on your amendment, if you have no objection?

Mr. Abraham No objection.

Mr. Casey We have other speakers on the list, Mr. Mire, and I didn't recognize you for that purpose.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, I'd just like to say again, if you're going to put something into this constitution, let's make it mean something. If you're just going to use the word "may," we should have adopted

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Dr. Weiss's amendment and left it out altogether, because you just as well leave it out if you insert the words "maybe" because the only thing in the world you are doing is taking up space in printing. Because it doesn't mean a thing in the world. Now, if you want this type of legislation, you should say "shall", or you should tell the legislature they cannot do something. I ask you to vote down this amendment. You need many other changes bad, it will be different. But, let's don't mess it up by putting the word "may" into this constitution. The legislature can do it without it.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Senator De Blieux, if we put the word "may," it will conform it to what is basically the law right now. Is that correct, sir?

Mr. De Blieux Well...those words may be in the constitution right now. That's the trouble with our present constitution because we've got too much of that stuff in it.

Mr. O'Neill Well, Senator, you do want to mandate the legislature to do this.

Mr. De Blieux That's right. Exactly correct.

Mr. O'Neill Now, O. K. Well, you want to mandate the legislature to do this. You haven't been up here before, so let me ask you, how do you mandate economic security?

Mr. De Blieux Well, that's something the legislature will have to tussle with in that problem.

Mr. O'Neill, we're not trying to solve the problems. We're only trying to lay down the guide rules.

Mr. O'Neill Well, Mr. De Blieux, I want you to represent me as an attorney when I sue the state for economic security.

Mr. Anzalone Senator, don't we have "may" in the constitution now?

Mr. De Blieux In many places, yes...I think...we should have left that out.

Mr. Anzalone How much...is the State of Louisiana spending this year on these separate, several items that are included here with the word "may"?

Mr. De Blieux I don't know. But, I think it's unnecessary...

Mr. Anzalone Wouldn't you say it would be close to a billion dollars?

Mr. De Blieux Well, I couldn't say that much.

Mr. Anzalone Yet, they are spending this even though the word "may" is in there rather than the word "shall."

Mr. De Blieux Might...probably so.

Mr. Anzalone Do you think that if we don't change it to "shall" that they're going to quit spending this money?

Mr. De Blieux No, but I just think we ought to leave it out altogether if we're going to use the word "may." Just as well leave it out.

Mr. Tate My question is along the lines of Mr. Anzalone's, but a little more friendly. What you...what the authors of the amendment said when they said the legislature "shall" provide, they said since the legislature has already provided under the "may" authorization of the previous constitutions, they are just sort of ratifying what has been done and not intending to provide new rights. If that is the case, would it not be better as a matter of style to keep this as a meaningful thing rather than as an unnecessary authorization?

Mr. De Blieux Yes, Judge Tate, that's what I think, too. I certainly feel like that putting in there "shall" it means...it makes it mean something while on the...and also confirms what we are already doing under the permissive situation of the legislature rather than putting words that are, you might say, meaningless, by the use of the word "may."

Mr. Tate Senator De Blieux, do you think politically, it's any possibility that the very great programs of economic security, etc., of our state--unemployment compensation, old age pensions--all the things we have that have made a humane state. Do you think there's any possibility that any future legislature would change them?

Mr. De Blieux I doubt it very seriously, Judge Tate.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, delegates, I feel compelled to point out some further information. In the concern over mandating the legislature to provide for economic security, we have repeatedly stated, and I have failed to correct, that all of the services being called together under Article XIV here do not have the "may" in their language. In...Article VI, Section 11, regarding the Boards of Health, which is included in this consolidation, it states "the legislature shall create for the state and for each parish and municipality therein boards of health." Under Article VI, Section 12, again regarding public health, the present--the 1921 Constitution--states "the legislature shall provide for the interest of state medicine in all its departments, etc." The...to put into this language "may" in regards to all of the provisions which are provided for here, it is not correct to state that the language in the present constitution is...made as is being argued. The only place in which...it is stated that the legislature may, or the legislature is authorized, is under Article XVIII in regards to economic security. I think that the...that this information should be brought out. Further, under Article VI, Section 30, regarding boards of institutions which have now, for the most part, been consolidated under the Louisiana Health, Social and Rehabilitative Services, stated that "there is hereby created and established the Louisiana Board of Institutions" which includes the various kinds of boards and services which are included. So, it is not correct to state that the legislature now--I mean the constitution now only says that the legislature "may." If we are going to maintain consistency, we would need to go back and eliminate in the articles that we have--because the state has always provided education, it has always had a legislature, and executive department--and if we are to say that we have provided these and so we don't need it in the constitution, we could have finished this constitution long ago and have retired.

I urge your rejection of the...of this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Willis Mr. Rachal, I'm not afraid that the constitution and the course of Louisiana would have any trouble with either the words "shall" or "may." In view of the fact that in the Bill of Rights, you can only sue the state in contract and in tort. You understand that--the thrust?

Now, let us play with the marbles we have. The marbles we have are that we have a double system of government. We have dual citizenship, and that, if a citizen of Louisiana feels aggrieved, he can go to federal court. That's where there's a difference between "may" or "shall." He can say that the government of the State of Louisiana is not, and should, because it shall, provide him with economic security. That's the difference. He can't get into a Louisiana court. But, he can hit that federal court, don't you think?

Mr. Rachal No. Because I don't see that a person can sue--I've said that over and over again--the state to provide more in terms of economic security because this is in the constitution, any more than he... a person could sue the state and say that the state, under the article having to do with education, has not educated him properly, and he has not developed to his full potential. I...while I on the one hand admire those of you who resort to these tactics of debate, I'm not impressed by them, really.

Mr. Pugh You do see the difference between telling the legislature that they shall create a board of health, and telling the legislature that they shall provide for economic security, do you not, really?

Mr. Rachal Wait, let me ask you that again...that they shall provide a board of health, and they shall provide economic security?

Mr. Pugh Wasn't that the example that you gave a few minutes ago that you found there that they "shall" have a...board of health?

Mr. Rachal Right. I was stating that because some had said the present constitution only says that it "may."

Mr. Pugh It said "may" in reference to this economic security.

Mr. Rachal Economic security, right. That's what it does. In the same--if I might carry that further, Mr. Pugh--that in saying that the state "shall" provide a board of...a State Board of Education, it does not have any, it does not quantify, or define; in fact, it does do more than we are now doing. We are leaving the quality, the extent to which the number of branches and all of that, to the needs of the times.

Mr. Pugh But if it says they shall create a board of education, the board can consist of one or a dozen people. Once they create a board or a garner of its compensation, you have complied with it.

Mr. Rachal That's right.

Mr. Pugh But, how do you comply with economic security? I can't understand how you can conceivably do that. That's why I'm for "may" if anything.

Mr. Rachal Well, by the same way that it is presently. It seems that those who argue against the article...are arguing about its definition and the fact that it isn't needed because it is already provided. This article does not purport to change it--to suggest that there's more than is presently provided--it wants to assure that it will, in fact, continue to be divided.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you know, oftentimes, it appears to me in the debate on this particular committee proposal that there seems to be some question as to what is meant by economic security--particularly in the connotation exhibited by this proposal. I suggest to you that we're very clear what economic security means. My mind reflects upon an article that we've adopted that provided for economic security for a certain class of persons in this state. I remember an article that gives constitutional sanction regarding the pensions of a certain class of people of the state. It just seems to me when I made that kind of comparison, that those kinds of systems--and I was talking about, particularly, retirement system and pension funds--talk about economic security, but not only...not just economic security, but economic security for the future. The people who are going to be affected by this particular committee proposal, are more concerned about economic security of the present--no matter how, or in what fashion that you design it. I do not find, personally, the kinds of major objections over the word "shall" because I've heard and I respect the comments of delegates here who constantly say that, one, even if you say the word "shall," it depends upon the ability of the legislature, the financial resources of the state, to provide for such. I know presently, under the committee--if nobody raised the question about public health--I know that there is not a system of treatment of hypertension care in the State of Louisiana. I suggest to you that the mortality rate of hypertension, which is a public health matter, is higher, or probably the second number one cause of death in the State of Louisiana. But, we are not alarmed to say that, "Wow, are we mandated in the legislature to spend tremendous amounts of monies for public health." I say for those who use the rationale that we cannot define economic security--I suggest you take some of these other terminologies. O. K. I say, under the social welfare, words in here that...that would give me the opportunity to file suit against the State of Louisiana--either in the state court or the federal court--because the state did not provide me with a guarantee, or with a sufficient amount of money, to protect the welfare of my family and my friends and other citizens. Can I file under the public health thing to say that because thousands of people die a year of hypertension care, that the state is liable to suit for providing that services? I suggest to you that we ought not attempt to cloud the issue about Committee Proposal 14. What your economic security is may be very well different from those. I suggest to you that we are not talking about, as most people who get up here very violently when you talk about going into their system--their retirement system, their playpen, their medical fees, their lawyer fees--because that's economic security to them. To a large degree, that's economic security for the future. I want to suggest that the economic security, as I mentioned before, are the concerns of people who, of the present day, rather than of future life. I think that the committee proposal holds much merit and does not do tremendous violence.

If there are no more speakers, Mr. Chairman, I move the previous question and ask for favorable adoption.

Question

Mr. Nunez Mr. Jackson, if I interpret what you are saying about the various fees and compensation, etc., if this passes with the legislature, "shall provide for economic security," and we get over there and fifty-one percent of us say that economic security means at least a five thousand dollar minimum wage, or minimum income annually--everybody--that would be economic security. Is that what you are saying?

Mr. J. Jackson No, that's not what I'm saying, Senator.

I'm going to ask...I want to respond that when I present this argument, if you've got problems with economic security, that I think you ought to have problems with public health, I think you ought to have problems with social welfare, I think you ought to have problems with the other categories that are mentioned here. It just seems to me that I truly recognize the limits and abilities and capabilities of the legislature to do and not to do.

[Record Quorum Call: 90 delegates present and a quorum. Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Abraham Let me just point out two things. First of all, the Article XVII says that "the legislature may establish a system which may provide for the following". Now, I think we probably do need to say the word "may," if for no other reason, than in Committee Proposal No. 15, which deals with revenue and taxation, states that "nor shall any appropriation be made except for public purposes." So, this will be the authorization for the legislature to do this.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

In answer to Mr. Roy's question that we wanted "shall," I submit that only fifty-three people voted against the Weiss amendment. That's about forty percent of this convention. So, I don't think that's any mandamus that we have to have the word "shall" in there.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 53-38. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Jenkins]. On page 1, line 10, delete the words and punctuation "economic security." That same amendment on page 1, line 14; page 1, line 17.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory]. On page 1, delete line 18 in its entirety, and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"(portion of the word) -tion public health and comprehensive physical and mental health care."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, delegates, what the amendment does is add to the proposal the following language: "comprehensive physical and mental health care." That's simply all it does. It was the feeling of some people that we ought to, in order to maintain and continue the system that we have in the in-patient/out-patient facilities, the half-way houses, the mental health centers throughout the state, in order to be absolutely sure that what we were talking about were these facilities rather than just the words "public health" which might could be have...been construed to mean only the parish public health units, inspection departments, etc., that they would add this language in order to insure the continuation of the types of programs that the state now supports. I would ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Conroy Mr. Flory, is this amendment in any way intended to lay the groundwork for some sort of system of socialized medicine? What is it designed to do?

Mr. Flory Mr. Conroy, I thought you were a better attorney than that.

No, indeed, it does not. The thought never entered my mind. As a matter of fact, the request came from your city to include this language--from the Metropolitan New Orleans Council on the Aging. I have the letter here. The letterhead asking for this language to be put in there to be perfectly clear as to what was intended by the proposal. There's no connotations of socialized medicine whatsoever.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Flory, in your opinion, does mental health include emotional health? Or, is there a difference?

Mr. Flory I didn't understand you. I'm sorry, Mr. Goldman.

Mr. Goldman Does mental health include emotional health? Or, is there a difference between mental health or mental well-being and emotional well-being?

Mr. Flory Well, I don't think it makes a great deal of difference.

It is my understanding that the state now has programs for the emotionally disturbed children in this state. I would think that this would...in the comprehensive medical...physical and mental health care, it would be included in that language, Mr. Goldman. They have a very good program, as a matter of fact, for emotionally disturbed children. The state doesn't finance it to its fullest as perhaps they should, due to the limitation of finances available. But, it's hoped that they would continue the program and expand it.

Mrs. Warren Isn't it true that emotional health leads to mental health?

Mr. Flory Well, I'm not a qualified physician. I'm not a physician, and I really can't...

Mrs. Warren Usually, if they get emotionally disturbed, and if it's not taken care of, it goes worse. This is the way we defined it in P.T.A.

Mr. Flory That's my understanding...yes.

Further Discussion

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Vice Chairman and delegates, I rise in support of the Flory amendment. This is only an amendment to clarify what our intention was--what exactly we meant by public health when we passed...decided to leave in this Proposal No. 14 in the first place. We now have programs for the emotionally disturbed--programs trying to lead toward mental health. This would allow us to retain those programs and be an expression of philosophy that we think it's a good thing to have those available to our less fortunate citizens.

Let me point out to you that by the end of February, we may all be eligible for this sort of care. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Weiss Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I would like to take the opportunity to try and explain to you a problem which I think comes well within my domain as a physician. I can assure you that for many, many years in this country, there have been attempts in behalf of physicians to define such things as mental health. There have also been attempts to define what comprehensive health care is. At the same time, there have even been in all fairness to you, attempts to decide who is dead and who is not. This being for the purpose of donating very vital parts of the body without legal complications that could ensue if a part was removed from someone who is still alive, and yet their parts had to be used in another individual. I can assure you, as I stand here, that there are many, many definitions of mental health; there are equally many definitions of physical health; and there are tremendous numbers of individuals who are totally confused as to what comprehensive health care is. At the same time, I am proud to say that in the State of Louisiana, even before this amendment, even before this Constitutional Convention convened, there has been operating in our state--thanks to our governor now who has been very active in this regard--area planning...even health planning...which is present in all areas of this state, and I can assure you very active and very efficient. The physicians, the people who are involved with social welfare, the attorneys who are concerned with proper remuneration in economic opportunity for the deprived, have done well to provide for our people this service.

Now, we have deleted the word "shall" and have made optional the type of coverage which the legislature will provide. This has been the situation throughout the past many years as a result of our present constitution. I do not see where the words "comprehensive physical and mental health care" will either add to or encourage anyone to do anything other than reports that I have that this might be used as a foot in the door for further opportunity to seek whatever an individual elects to consider comprehensive physical and mental health care.

I regret to bring up at this time, but I can only see in all fairness to this convention, and telling you honestly, an opportunity for representative union leadership to step in and define what this term means. We have now representative government--the legislature--who will define and help us define what we mean by comprehensive physical and mental health care. This body has deliberated for over two weeks now on what good education is. I ask you, have we decided what quality education is? May the Lord help us, for you people, for legislators, and for representative union leadership to stay out of what they think is comprehensive physical and mental health care. May it rest with you and the one you select to take care of you. May you also be blessed with the type of services--medical, union, legislative--that are concerned with you as individuals, and with the people of the State of Louisiana. I think in regards to physical and mental health, you have been, and will continue to be blest. Now, it is the concern, in all fairness to this group, you must be informed that the federal government has taken many steps. They have decided, in certain areas, what they consider comprehensive physical and mental health care. This federal government is run by a group of legislators, Senators and Representatives like here, and like our state Representatives who represent us. They are politically oriented, and at one time, they may consider abortions favorable, and at another time, unfavorable. Other nations of the world have found this to be true. After five years, a legal abortion suddenly becomes an illegal abortion. After twenty-five years, legal whiskey suddenly becomes illegal whiskey. I ask you to leave these phrases out of the constitution to prevent people from being confused, to keep the wool from being pulled over their eyes, to misrepresent to people what they are not going to get no matter what you write in here. Although I think this is a well-intended floor amendment, I must ask you to vote it down. It is only dangerous and can create serious problems in the future.

[Motion to limit debate to ten minutes adopted without objection.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates, we don't need this amendment. We already have in this provision that the legislature may establish a system of public health. There's no need to go on and itemize and list every conceivable public health program. Now comprehensive health care, and comprehensive mental health care are particular terms of art. They deal with particular programs that are being established in this state. They are controversial programs--particularly among our physicians--if we start endorsing and recommending programs like that, we're going to upset a lot of people unnecessarily. We don't even need this section, much less this amendment. The legislature has this authority under this constitution, to enact these types of programs. I just don't see why we should get deeper and deeper and deeper into all this sort of thing. When you talk about comprehensive physical health care, and comprehensive mental health care, you're talking about dealing with every possible, conceivable human ailment--not just for the poor--but for every person in this state. Now, the only possible thing that can lead to is socialized medicine. So, we are endorsing a concept here that I'm sure a majority of the people of this state would disagree with. So, let's just leave this section like it is with public health, without getting more and more involved in unnecessary and controversial concepts.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

Ms. Maybuce Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, aside from being an elementary school principal, who at many times I am concerned with the mental health problems of our children and their parents. I am also a volunteer for the Baton Rouge Mental Health Association and the Louisiana Mental Health Association. I would ask those who question this amendment, if you would look at East Louisiana State Hospital for the mentally ill. Mandeville is the only place where our children who are mentally ill can go. If you have every been there, you wouldn't question this amendment, you would add the word "adequate." I rise to support this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, in closing, just let me say that I hope you adopt this amendment. You know we buy comprehensive insurance on our automobiles. If we can't provide comprehensive, physical and mental health care in this state, then I just don't believe that we have come to that point yet where the human body is not equal to the wealth and so forth of an automobile. But, let me say this to those who...it's been stated perhaps that someone has tried to mislead this convention, or that I have no right, or particular people have no right to define what is meant by comprehensive, physical and mental health care. I know what I think comprehensive means--that whatever it takes to restore the human body and the human mind to a well being, then that's what's included. If you have objections to the restoration of the human body and the human mind to its proper place that it was intended, then I suggest that you vote against the amendment. But, I would ask that you do adopt the amendment in the light of what has already been adopted so far. Then, let's go forward and adopt this section and put it into the constitution of this state. It's a people's amendment. It's a people's section. It's the people's constitution.

Questions

Mr. Weiss Delegate Flory, have you every had an automobile accident, sir?

Mr. Flory Unfortunately, I haven't had one in about twenty years, Dr. Weiss.

Mr. Weiss You mentioned comprehensive automobile insurance. Do you think the people of this state feel they always get their moneys worth from the insurance companies after they have their comprehensive policy analyzed after an accident?

Mr. Flory Under comprehensive, if my memory serves me correct, there is no deductible, at least on my policy.

Mr. Weiss Do you think they are satisfied with whatever they receive after an accident in other words?

Mr. Flory I don't think they are satisfied with their insurance in the automobile field, nor do I think they are satisfied with their insurance in the medical field.

Mr. Weiss Who makes that decision, sir?

Mr. Flory What's that?

Mr. Weiss Without their satisfy...

Mr. Flory Whether they are satisfied or not?

Mr. Weiss Yes, sir.

Mr. Flory Well, the individual makes up his mind whether he is satisfied or not. But, if you'll shut up long enough I'll answer it, Dr. Weiss. But, the individual makes up his mind whether he is satisfied or not. But, yet he doesn't have a determination as to the type of service that he bought in the first place because the dictates of that policy are spelled out by some insurance company, and he doesn't have the right a lot of times to decide whether he wants whatever type coverage; he has to take what they offer him.

Mr. Weiss If your amendment were to pass, wouldn't that be the exact situation that the individual would not be able to decide whether he had quality medical care, but only based upon the legislative, the union, or whatever decision is made for comprehensive health care be provided for the individual? He may be berserk as far as he is concerned. But, if he were told that he were sane by a union doctor or a legislative doctor so appointed, he would be healthy; is that correct, sir?

Mr. Flory Dr. Weiss, I was an operating room technician, spent four years working in hospitals. I helped treat a lot of people in emergencies and what have you. I always found that if a person didn't recuperate to his fullest extent, he was dissatisfied with the services that he got.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Flory, this is not facetious, and I hope it doesn't arouse your anger. But, I do have a question for you.

Mr. Flory You couldn't arouse my anger, Mr. Goldman.

Mr. Goldman It's conceivable to me--and I've seen it in effect--that in using the word "comprehensive health care," and the definition you gave as to your conception of what comprehensive care is or comprehensive health and mental care, that there may be some person or some individuals who can only be completely cured by the elimination of another individual. Would that be...could that be done in order to completely cure the ill of that person?

Mr. Flory I don't follow your line of questioning, Mr. Goldman.

Mr. Goldman Well, there are some people who are so emotionally disturbed because of someone else, that the only way the emotional disturbance could be taken away is by the elimination of that other person.

Mr. Flory I can't say that, because I'm not qualified to answer that. Mr. Chairman, I ask for the adoption of...

Mr. Juneau Mr. Flory, you know I've taken a look at the roll sheet that you keep, and I think your amendment is going to pass.

Mr. Flory Thank you, Mr. Juneau. I ask for a record vote, Mr. Chairman.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 49-32. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Jenkins has amendments here. Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 18, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted by the Convention on today, delete the word "comprehensive".

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, this amendment simply deletes the word "comprehensive" from Mr. Flory's amendment so that it would still say that "the legislature may establish a system of health care and mental care," but not comprehensive. He was talking about the definition of what he meant by comprehensive and as I understood it, he said that it meant whatever it took to make a person well--apparently any person in this state. I don't want to see an endorsement of the concept that the State of Louisiana ought to be treating--directly or indirectly--every possible ailment, physical or mental, by every person in this state. I think we will look foolish if we endorse that concept and put it in the constitution. We provided here that the legislature may establish a system of public health. We can, with the adoption of this amendment, say that we will establish a system of health care and mental health care. But, my goodness, that word "comprehensive" is undefined, and I think it could really cause a lot of problems. So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 43-39. Motion to reconsider tabled. Motion for the Previous Question on the Proposal rejected: 18-56.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Next set of amendments sent up by Delegate Pugh:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 18, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted by the Convention on today, line 1 of the text after the word "health" delete the comma ",", and the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof the word "including".

Point of Information

Mr. Denney Mr. Clerk, wouldn't you have to add the word "and" where it was deleted by the Flory amendment? Would you have to add the word "and" where it was deleted by the Flory amendment in order to have this make sense?

Mr. Poynter I'm not sure I follow you, Mr. Denney, why don't you come up to the desk and we can look it over.

Explanation

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, in connection with Mr. Flory's amendment, my amendment would strike the conjunction "and" and replace therefore the word "including." I suggest that for your consideration because the words "public health" are ones of common usage. The words public health appear in many, many federal and state statutes. I want there to be no doubt that if the federal government provides funds for public health and they mean those to relate to physical and mental health, I want no doubt that we would qualify for those funds under our definition of public health. If for any reason any moneys are ever available for public health, then I want them to be available for the usages under Mr. Flory's amendment. I think the words physical and mental health obviously are within the connotation "public health" which does have a common meaning and usage. I recommend to you for that reason, that we include them within that phrase and in doing so delete the conjunction "and."

Mr. Henry All right. Mr. Clerk, are you going to make some changes in that amendment?

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, Mr. Denney has indicated the need for a conjunction "and" before public health, there is no question about that.

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with correction.]

Mr. Poynter All right. It would read as follows: Still beginning

On page 1, line 18, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Flory and adopted today, in line 1 of the text of the amendment--here's the insertion--immediately after "tion," and before the word "public" insert the word "and", and after the word "health"--picking back up and--after the word "health" delete the comma ",", and the word "and" and insert in lieu thereof the word "including".

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

adopted: 75-8. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Rachal]. On page 1, line 17, after the word "security" and before the word "social" delete the comma "," and insert in lieu thereof the following: "as defined by the legislature,".

Explanation

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is an effort to salvage the work of the committee and to retain some meaning. The committee proposal as it presently stands amended really doesn't give to the legislature any more than it can already do. It seems that the difficulty with the proposal as submitted was with the definition of economic security. It is for that reason that the suggested language is made. It seems that I could not be convincing enough, that the committee took no issue with the present provisions as made by the...all of the services which are now being brought under this one article. The wishes of the committee were that the systems would, in fact, continue. There are those who propose that the individuals might sue the state and demand an economic security against the nebulous kind of definition. By the same token, with the manner in which the proposal has presently been amended, the legislature could, when it chose to do so, eliminate any of the services. The committee's concern was that although it was not concerned with tampering with the present provisions, it wanted to assure that in fact the services rendered by whatever form necessary in the future would in fact be continued and there would not be permission that they be discontinued. The present language would make that possible. The intention of the committee was that economic security would be either as the intention was--although it was not stated--that economic security would be as defined actually by the legislature or by the board, commission, or whatever was established to define that program. If this proposal is to have any meaning whatsoever, as intended by the committee, the word "shall" needs to be remained to insure the continuation. This amendment is intended to allay the anxieties that those who objected to the lack of a definition or a specific indication as to how economic security was to be provided. I urge your adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Tobias Tony, I'm reading your amendment. The provision of the proposal says that "The legislature may" provide these various things. Now, the legislature makes laws. Therefore, is it not logical that if the legislature is going to make laws, they are going to define what economic etc., security or whatever the word is in this proposal, isn't that true?

Mr. Rachal That's right.

Mr. Tobias So, why put this in, it makes no sense; it's just excess verbiage? We in Style and Drafting have a heck of a time editing it out again because you have added it as a substantive change.

Mr. Rachal I'm glad you asked that question, Mr. Tobias, because evidently I didn't explain what I was trying to say well enough. I honestly feel that the proposal, as presently amended, is excess verbiage; it has no meaning in the constitution. What I'm trying to do is to amend the proposal as submitted such that if this amendment that I have submitted is adopted, we will return to the language which states that "the legislature shall establish a system of economic security as defined by the legislature," and then proceed with the following language. There is a considerable difference between the use of the word "may" and "shall"--without "shall," it is meaningless.

Mr. Tate Dean Rachal, as circulated, it does not include that amendment of "shall" for "may"--that's what the questioning is concerned with. It only includes the amendment to add "as defined by the legislature" following "economic security".

Mr. Rachal Probably that's an error in the drafting of the amendment by not stating that it was, as amended, this was intended to apply to the committee proposal on page 1, line 17, etc. It does not state the proposal as amended. Now, if that's technically incorrect to submit it that way, I certainly would be willing to correct it. That's why I wanted to explain that mine is not an amendment to the amendment, but an amendment to the proposal as submitted.

Mr. Tate Then, Dean Rachal, perhaps what we are...some of us are confused with, is the instructions should be to do whatever you do to delete all previous amendments and go back to the original committee proposal and add these words. But, the instructions that we have here don't show that.

Mr. Rachal I regret mine...if the delegates understand my intention, than if that's what it takes to amend it, then I'm certainly not going to object to that.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Rachal, now tell us exactly what you are trying to do.

Mr. Rachal What I'm trying to do is to amend the proposal as submitted. To state it another way, I'll say that the amendment that I suggest, if adopted, would have the Section 1 to read: "the legislature shall establish a system of economic security as defined by the legislature, social welfare, unemployment compensation, and public health," and include the other amendments that were made to it.

Point of Order

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Rachal is trying to amend the committee proposal with an amendment that has no words to do quite that, as I see the amendment. I would like to find out if he can do that. I don't think he can. I think he would have try and delete all floor amendments and insert those words back in there again, and then that would be out of order.

[Amendment withdrawn and resubmitted with correction.]

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, I think the reason Mr. Rachal got confused is because his amendment was on there before anything was deleted, was out on the floor. They didn't call for his amendment in order as it was put on the table.

Mr. Henry Mrs. Warren, I beg to disagree, but I don't think you know what you are talking about there, because...well, O.K. Well, then, it might have gotten to your desk. But, I don't think the contrary is true.

[Quorum Call: 75 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to adjourn to 2:00 p.m., Sunday, November 18, 1973, rejected: 25-46. Motion to table the entire subject matter. Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 36-46.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Rachal]. On page 1, line 16, strike out the word "may" added by Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Abraham and adopted by the convention today, and insert in lieu thereof the word "shall" and on page 1, line 17, after the word "security" and before the word "social" delete the comma "," and insert in lieu thereof the following: "as defined by the legislature,"

[Motion to revert to other orders rejected: J2-49.]

Explanation

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the action is so fast on the floor that my efforts are obviously futile at this point. I think it's more fitting that I let you know that I know that you know that the action is tantamount to defeating this amendment. Let me state, however, that the recent development since I submitted it--I submitted my amendment in answer to what I figured...considered to be honest objections, and probably...I thought that the...I got the impression from the debate that the objection to the use of the word "shall" in this proposal had to do with the nebulosness of the term "economic security"--I found that since submitting this amendment that there are other reasons why there is opposition to the amendment--all of which I certainly cannot overcome. I recognize, also, that with seventy-seven delegates here, that certainly at least ten would be opposed to this amendment regardless as to what might be submitted. I thought that I should point out to you my willingness to try to find a means by which we could get together. I repeat again, that the proposal as it presently stands amended is of no consequence, and we're just taking up space in the constitution. I would urge your adoption of the amendment as submitted.

Questions

Mr. D'Neill Mr. Rachal, in effect, your amendment puts the word "shall" back into this section which has been amended by Mr. Flory--which is a substantial difference, by the way--and it deletes Mr. Abraham's amendment when he inserted "may." Now, do you know the vote by which Mr. Abraham's amendment was accepted?

Mr. Rachal I don't recall it at the moment, no.

Mr. D'Neill Well, it was a substantial majority.

Mr. Rachal Nevertheless, Mr. O'Neill, I thought it was based primarily upon the fact that economic security could not be defined. That was the understanding that I had.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Ladies and gentlemen, this amendment seeks to put back in exactly what this convention took out less than an hour ago. I therefore think it's a bad amendment to replot the same ground. Second, by Mr. Rachal's own admission, this section means absolutely nothing without "shall" in it. So, in that case, what I think we ought to do is move the previous question on the entire subject matter, and vote on this thing one way or the other, and let's get it over with and go home.

[Motion for the Previous Question on the entire subject matter rejected: 26-52.]

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I, too, like Mr. Rachal, don't believe that we have enough votes to pass the committee proposal. But, I...you know, I believe, particularly if I'm going to argue against something, that I ought to present to the delegates of this convention some sincere, legitimate--well, I'll take out the word "sincere" because I don't want to question anybody's motives--but at least some rationale that attempts to approach the word "legitimate." Mr. Rachal has said in his amendment, in effect, that the legislature shall provide for economic security as defined by the legislature. Now, I understand when I talked to some of the folks, that was the major objection because it was so broad, and that we ought to let the legislature define. But, you know the thing that concerns me about the word...about Mr. Abraham's amendment is that no matter how you feel about economic security, you're really tampering in the area of unemployment compensation. You can say that the legislature may provide for a system of unemployment compensation, and you get somebody up in there--a lobbyist--representing bid industry in here, and you're going back and tell the man who's got hurt on the job that it's a possibility that the legislature may or may not provide for some sort of unemployment compensation. So, it just seems to me, very seriously, that--and I recognize that he cannot pass the proposal--but I think Mr. Rachal's amendment at least addresses itself to the objection of defining economic security. Now, for those opponents of the proposal, I have to get some kind of explanations and justification as to, you know, what does it mean when I say that the legislature may provide for unemployment compensation, knowing the kinds of tremendous battles that are in the legislature every time we attempt to increase or decrease unemployment compensation. I think that is the dangerous aspect when you use a word like "may," 'cause the legislature--and I'm saying whatever influenced you on it could very well be influenced to the degree that they can decrease or may not... or take away from the benefits presently enjoyed by the working people of this state. So, I ask that you don't take this proposal lightly. My motions were not a tactical motion to do away with the opposition, but at least to ask us to return to the regular order of business so at least we can come up with one that would take away the concerns as people have about economic security--which I think Mr. Rachal's amendment has--particularly, my concern about using a word like "may" when we talk about unemployment compensation. I ask for your favorable adoption of the Rachal amendment.

Questions

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Jackson, you stated at the outset when you began to talk that there's a short House. Is this right, sir?

Mr. J. Jackson Right.

Mr. Chatelain All right. Do you remember the vote, sir, when we took the final vote on the passage of the Committee Proposal No. 7 that we just voted on? There was a hundred and thirteen people here, then. I don't know if you remember that number or not, but they seemingly got what they wanted and left. So, you don't fault the rest of us that stayed here, do you, sir?

Mr. J. Jackson No, sir. That's why I'm here, too. I'd like to go home; I'd like to drive the hundred miles, but I don't want to kill the proposal. I don't think the proposal can pass, but I don't want to table or kill the proposal on one issue, and I think that's another great concern embedded in the committee proposal--unemployment compensation.

Mr. Pugh Johnny, I only ask this because I think we are dealing with something very serious when we talk about whether or not unemployment compensation, social welfare and public health are in the constitution. Isn't it possible that we can resolve this problem by providing that the--and this is just a question I'm asking, you understand--the legislature shall establish a system of social welfare, unemployment compensation and public health, and then provide it as also authorized to establish a system of economic security? Can you live with that?

Mr. J. Jackson I would, but I'm suggesting to you, Mr. Pugh, that I think there are some delegates that don't even want that compromise in. For those of us who do want to go home, maybe the best thing that we can do, because it's such a complex proposal, that we ought to just go home and just return to regular orders of business.

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Tate Representative Jackson, do I understand your fear to be this: the legislature has already created unemployment compensation, welfare and public health, and there's not a chance in the world that anyone here is against it or that the legislature would repeal it. Your fear is among some of the people that you represent that appear before the Health and Education Committee that they may take it as a step backward when no one here has any intention whatsoever to repeal those great programs of this state. Is that your fear?

Mr. J. Jackson I think it's that, Justice Tate, but it's also my concern about by using the word "may" as it relates to unemployment compensation. What does that provide in terms of legal suits about whether a person is going to be protected if he's hurt on a job or not, and he ought to be compensated for it.

[Motion to withdraw the amendment.
Record vote ordered. Motion adopted:
66-20. Motion for the Previous Question on the Section. Substitute Motion to adjourn to 2:00 p.m., November 18, 1973, rejected: 37-48. Motion for the Previous Question adopted:
44-41.]

Closing

Mr. Rachal Mr. Chairman, delegates, I realize that the hour is late and nerves are frayed, but this committee proposal as it presently stands doesn't do anything. We are making a farce of the people to have them believe that taking up ten lines in the constitution at this point means anything, and as it presently stands, I am forced to urge the rejection of this committee proposal and save space in the constitution.

Questions

Mr. Flory Mr. Rachal, isn't it true that we need this section in light of the Revenue, Finance and Taxation's proposal where we stated that you could not appropriate funds except for a public purpose, and the purpose of this section is to allow the state to make payments to welfare recipients and also, when the state takes over the funds contributed for unemployment compensation, to make payments to private individuals? Isn't that the necessity of this section?

Mr. Rachal I have to honestly say I really don't know, Mr. Flory, but I'd ask for the Parliamentarian to answer that question, or the...someone who can.

Mr. Henry Go ahead, Mr. Poynter, let her rip.

Mr. Poynter I'd love to, but I think I better not.

Mr. Rachal All right, let me say I certainly don't want to jeopardize a continuation of this program, the contrary is true. My only concern is to have a "may" in the constitution is of no consequence unless what you say, Mr. Flory, is true.

Mr. Jenkins Isn't it true, Mr. Rachal, that we haven't even adopted the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Proposal regarding the use of public funds, and that anyway, the courts have held time and time again that welfare programs are public purposes, and that to spend funds in that way is not prohibited?

Mr. Rachal I think I can answer yes to that question.

Mr. Tobias Mr. Rachal, isn't it true that even if the proposal is defeated, and even assuming that the convention decided to lay that motion on the table, that you could come back and move for a suspension of the rules to call from the table the motion to reconsider and, therefore, it would be open again? Is that not true?

Mr. Rachal I think that's right. With a two-thirds vote it could be...67 votes, rather. I'd like to make one correction to Mr. Jackson's statement. He mentioned when a person is hurt on the job when he referred to unemployment compensation. It's really when he is laid off or for some reason is not employed other than because of injury.

Mr. Singletary Mr. Rachal, I believe under Committee Proposal No. 15, Section 16, which prohibits appropriating the funds, etc., of the state to any individual, I believe that we do need this proposal.

Mr. Rachal Well, I would purport to get it included in another way. If that's true, Mr. Singletary, I would propose to get such guarantee to the citizens through another means other than through what I feel has happened to this proposal.

[Section failed to pass: 44-38.
Record vote ordered. Motion to table the motion to reconsider rejected: 33-52. Motion to return the Proposal to the calendar.]

Point of Order

Mr. Nunez We just had the previous vote; we didn't reconsider it, so it automatically comes up the next day. Isn't that right?

Mr. Henry But, you can still return it to the calendar.

Mr. Nunez Well, I don't see where it makes a great difference whether it's on the calendar or it's reconsidered.

Mr. Henry It really doesn't, but the man made the motion, Senator. It's six of one and half a dozen of the other.

[Record vote ordered. Motion adopted: 67-21. Motion to take up other orders adopted without objection.]

Point of Information

Mr. Stinson Would you advise the convention as to what we have done this afternoon in furtherance of the adoption and preparation of the constitution?

Mr. Henry Well, Mr. Stinson, I'd be glad to give you the floor for about five minutes and let you...

Mr. Champagne I had something along those same lines. I was wondering if there's really any point in coming here at all tomorrow, if we're going to accomplish as much as we did this afternoon.

Mr. Henry Well, gentlemen, I'm going to recognize Mr. Avant in just a minute for the motion.

Mr. Avant, inasmuch as I'm going to exercise my prerogative now, I will give you equal time if you don't mind when you make your motion.

Mr. Avant's going to make a motion, I assume, for adjournment, which he believes in, and in all fairness to Mr. Avant he's been one who sat back there everyday as far as I can recall in this convention and has been willing to work. It's extremely exasperating now--wait just a minute, take your seats, please, and we'll get out of here in just a minute--but I've listened to all this and I'm just about like some of you all, and I appreciate you staying. Mr. Stinson, I'm sorry, I can't tell you what we've accomplished this afternoon, but I thank God that we can do it like this in a free country; it does get a little nauseating at times. But, we're worked hard and we've worked well here for about ten months, and when you look around on Saturday afternoon late you see the same faces every time. We paid one hundred and twenty-one people today fifty dollars a piece. Some people are making more money than others, and I realize that we all can't stay and we all can't come every time. But, we all have made a commitment, and I think we're going to have to start encouraging some of the other brethren to live up to that commitment more than, perhaps, we have in the past.

It's my considered opinion that we need to work. Granted we did not accomplish anything insofar as adopting a proposal this afternoon, but ladies and gentlemen we have a number of proposals that are going to have to at least be considered before it's over. Now, it's not a question of whether or not we're going to accept or reject these proposals; healthy, plausible debate is good, but there is so much nonsense that goes on, so many unnecessary remarks, so many squirly little questions like, "Did you know Mr. So and So that I like your amendment", and that's absurd. Now, it's time for us to either decide whether we want a new constitution in this state or not; I think you want one. It's not going to be like you want it when we get through and it's not going to be like I want it, but unless we're willing to shut our mouths at times, and not to talk until we've got something to say we're going to be here until the 19th of January or the 20th of January as long as the legislature will allow us to meet, and you can say what you want to about the legislature; you can say all right, if the legislature decides that they don't want to give us extra time, we'll just keep meeting, and the legislature will cooperate with us, I'm sure of that. But, you know the legislature could shut it down; I don't think that's the problem, but we acted too much like legislators here in the past few days.

We have got a number of proposals that must be considered before we get to the alternative proposals that Mr. Goldman was talking about this morning. I don't have any proposals, I've not suggested a thing to this convention insofar as what I think we should adopt, but you have and I'm insisting that we work so you can have the time to debate and discuss your proposals that I know you think are right. Now, if you want to go home--and I know you do, and I know I do--and if you think that's best and you think we can come back here after these holidays and after this session, and sit in our seats and use good common judgment in debate, and can wrap this thing up, and can give it all the time we need, then adjourn, and let's go home, because that's what we should do. But, if you don't believe that we're not going to move any faster than we've been moving, then I'm going to tell you this, we're going to go through the same thing up around Christmas. We're going to get here on the Saturday before Christmas and we're going to be behind, and everybody is going to say, "Well, it's Sunday and then Monday is Christmas Eve, and then there's Tuesday is Christmas and we can't come back Christmas night because of too much traffic so we'll come back the 27th, and then there's going to be the New Year's weekend and the football games, and we will want to be home then."

You have sacrificed, you wouldn't be here this afternoon if you hadn't sacrificed, but don't give up now for goodness sake. Mr. Avant is sincere in the motion that he's going to make as he can be; I think he believes that way. Mr. Avant, I haven't tried to stampee you in what I'm saying because you've been fair with me, and you've been long suffering with the rest of us. We have not finished a job and the real gut work is to come between now and then, and we can finish it, and it ain't nearly as bad as it might look sometime when we get here late on Saturday afternoon. But, for goodness sake, if you've given up, go ahead right now and resign so we can get somebody in here to run in your shoes for a few days, and, God knows, I don't believe any of you have given up or you wouldn't be here today. But, think about those things and think, for goodness sake, about the time we're wasting with a bunch of nonsense, and there was nothing nonsensical perhaps about the amendments this afternoon or the section; you might not have liked them, but you didn't have to get up and talk on every one of them. You didn't have to ask a lot of redundant questions. We're going to have to begin to restrain ourselves. We're going to have to begin to control ourselves, and we're going to have to begin writing the constitution that the people want and will accept. Now, I give this to you and I guess it's like the preaching in the church on Sunday nights, you all might not be the ones that need it, but that's the way I feel, and that's what I think. I recognize Mr. Avant for a motion. Wait, Mr. Avant, he's got to do one little thing then, I've got you. I'm sorry. I'm treating you like the stepchild I always treated you.

Report of the Secretary
[II Journal 855-857]

Motion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, I've been impressed by what you said and I'm with you all the way. I move that we adjourn until nine o'clock Monday morning.

[Substitute Motion to adjourn to 2:00 o'clock p.m., Sunday, November 18, 1973. Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 11-76.]

Point of Information

Mr. Smith Before we vote on this motion, Mr. Chairman, is there any way we get these members if ...I'll be here, but if we're not going to get any more than we've got today it looks like in the rules there we have that--I hate to see it carried out--but the sergeant-at-arms can go out and get these members in; I think we ought to have enough here to do business tomorrow.

Mr. Henry Mr. Smith your point is well-taken. I think there's something under the rules that will allow us to scent [send] for folks.
Read Rule No. 6, Mr. Clerk.

Mr. Poynter Rule No. 6 reads as follows: "Absent Delegates"
"At any time the convention is in session whether upon first convening of the day's session or at any time after the hour has arrived to which the convention stood adjourned, the Chairman is authorized to send the sergeant-at-arms for any or all absent delegates as a majority of such delegates present shall agree."

[Substitute motion to adjourn withdrawn.]

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, I think the application of that rule has to be done during the session in which there are absent delegates. So, the rule could not be enforced until tomorrow afternoon after two o'clock.

Mr. Henry I think your point is well-taken.

Point of Information

Mr. Ourso What you're saying is, is if I don't show up tomorrow because I have some personal business to take care of in my office or anything, you're going to send someone to come get me?

Mr. Henry No, sir. Not at all, Sheriff.

Mr. Ourso Well, good because I was going to tell you if you would, send someone to come get them when you bring them.

Point of Information

Mr. Stinson Mr. Chairman, as you know, those of us that come two hundred and seventy miles, we don't get paid any mileage, and these down here roll out of bed and walk over here don't either, but if they send for us, then the rule says that we have to pay for that sergeant-at-arms going up or do we get a free ride?

88th Days Proceedings—November 17, 1973

Mr. Henry That's correct, Mr. Stinson.

Mr. Stinson Oh, we have to pay for them.

Mr. Henry You have to pay for them.

Mr. Stinson Oh, that's bad, isn't it.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, Mr. Stinson touched on what I was thinking about. Of course, what Mr. Stagg says that it has to be during the session before you can send for them, but if the members of the convention know that they will be sent for and will have to be up here without a sufficient excuse at their expense; before the session, notification to them of that might bring them here so we won't have to send for them.

Mr. Henry I think that's the way we're going to be able to resolve it too, Senator De Blieux.

Point of Information

Mr. Landrum Mr. Chairman, in reading the rules, I believe he stated the last words, "shall agree." Am I right?

Mr. Henry That's right, sir.

Mr. Blair Mr. Chairman, I had full intentions of returning tomorrow, but when...if you vote, if this convention votes to force someone to come here tomorrow, I just sent for a day of leave of absence, and just as the sheriff said, "Somebody come after me because I ain't coming."

Mr. Henry I don't think anybody is going to have to send after anybody tomorrow or any other day, Senator, but these rules are rules that were adopted by you, as delegates to this convention, and I think that's the point that is being made, sir.

Mr. Blair The point...shouldn't you wait to see if you need to send after someone?

Mr. Henry Now, I think that's the point that's being made, Senator, is that if business doesn't pick up, yes, sir.

Mr. Derbes Mr. Chairman, enforcement of Rule No. 6 would be after the fact of our not having a quorum. I wonder if it would be in order at this time to move to suspend the rules so that the machine might be opened for us to indicate, of those present, who intends to be here tomorrow.

Mr. Henry It wouldn't require a rule suspension, but I think we're going to have enough here tomorrow now, Mr. Derbes.

[Record vote ordered. Motion to adjourn to 2:00 o'clock p.m., Sunday, November 18, 1973, adopted: 76-7. Adjournment to 2:00 o'clock p.m., Sunday, November 18, 1973.]

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Sunday, November 18, 1973

ROLL CALL

[84 delegates present and a quorum.
Quorum Call: 78 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

Mr. Willis Almighty Father and eternal God, it is right and proper that as the first order of business, especially on this Sabbath, that we should give You thanks and praise and petition Your blessings. Shower Your mercy upon us. Grant us the necessary blessings to make proper judgment on all issues requiring decision. Strike fear in our consciences to shun wrong and embrace righteousness. Grant us the grace to proceed with deliberate speed. Deepen our faith, hope and charity. Make us love what You have commanded. Keep us keenly attuned to reality. Shield us from sin and finally guide us in presenting up Your plan of government to our people. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to take Committee Proposal 18 out of its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

Mr. Poynter "Committee Proposal No. 18, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee of Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by prohibiting compulsory arbitration."

At present, the proposal contains but one section reading as follows:

"Section 1. The legislature shall pass no laws requiring compulsory arbitration."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, the present constitution had a provision, Article III, Section 36, which required the legislature to pass laws to settle disagreements with the consent of the parties by arbitration. There was some discussion in our committee as to the real necessity for having this provision, so that what we really came out with was the language "the legislature shall pass no laws requiring compulsory arbitration." Inasmuch, I personally feel that that is a quite controversial issue as to whether or not you compel arbitration I have some amendments that would put it back in a permissive nature insofar as the legislature may pass such laws as may be proper and necessary to decide differences with the consent of the parties by arbitration. Mr. Chairman, if there are no questions...

Questions

Mr. Landry Mr. Flory, don't you feel that Committee Proposal No. 18 is far superior than Committee Proposal No. 13, because under this proposal the legislature could pass laws for whenever parties would like to...

Mr. Flory You mean under...

Mr. Landry Under this particular proposal you are saying that you cannot pass laws to force compulsory arbitration. Is that right?

Mr. Flory That's correct.

Mr. Landry So, I think it would be better than Committee Proposal No. 13, because the legislature could...

Mr. Flory Number 13?

Mr. Landry Number 13, which reads "the legislature shall pass such laws as may be proper and necessary to decide differences with the consent of the parties by arbitration." Don't you feel that if we adopt 18 the legislature could still do that?

Mr. Flory No, sir. What I think...they could still do it in the area of...with the consent of the parties, however, as you well know this has been a very controversial issue on the national level, etc., and rather than get into that controversial issue I'd rather see the present constitution sustained rather than to get into that area.

Mr. Roemer Gordon, I'm trying to understand your presentation. Are you talking on behalf of Committee Proposal No. 18?

Mr. Flory Well, I said...I was explaining what the committee had done and said that I had some amendments that would put it back in a permissive nature to let the legislature to legislate in the area of settling differences between parties by the process of arbitration.

Mr. Roemer I thought that's what you said, so in other words, you're not recommending that we adopt 18 as is; you're going to present us some amendments?

Mr. Flory That's correct, but the committee did propose the language that is here.

Mr. Abraham Gordon, I'm a little bit confused. We're dealing with 18 and then Ambroise mentioned a Committee Proposal No. 13; is that an official committee proposal, or do you know?

Mr. Flory What happened was, the committee had agreed to submit it in its original form, when it was introduced back in July sometime, I guess, Mr. Abraham. When it was referred to committee it came out in the way of a substitute proposal and then took the number of Proposal No. 18.

Mr. Abraham I see. Well, let me ask you this then. If this is going to be permissive or however way we decide on it, is there any real need to have this thing in the constitution, in your estimation?

Mr. Flory In my judgment there is no need really to have it, based upon the information that I have been given by the attorneys, but there was some disagreement, I might tell you, as to the interpretation by attorneys, Mr. Abraham, but I would say that the majority of them said that they really didn't feel that there was any necessity for even having it.

Ms. Zervigon Mr. Flory, is not this one of the issues that you and Mr. Lennox discussed at great length on this committee?

Mr. Flory At two or three different occasions, Ms. Zervigon, we did discuss it. At first, we both agreed to submit the original intent of the present language of the present constitution. After that he met with some attorneys that I presume represent him and told him that they didn't need it at all. Rather than have the language, then I agreed to go with him and to report the substitute that's now before the committee of the convention out of the committee.

Ms. Zervigon He agreed with you that it was proper to submit this language? He would have agreed with this language, as you understand it, taking Committee Proposal No. 13 and substituting "may" for "shall" in Committee Proposal No. 13?

Mr. Flory I don't want to speak for Mr. Lennox, Mrs. Zervigon. I'll just tell you that originally he and I both voted to submit to the convention in the way of a Committee Proposal No. 13.

Ms. Zervigon And then on 18 you both voted together on that one as well?

Mr. Flory That's right, because he, as I said, had met with some attorneys who represented him, and I had checked with some attorneys that represented me who both said that they didn't feel there was any need at all. Rather than put it in the form of consent by the parties that at that time we were willing to say that we didn't want...he didn't believe in compulsory arbitration nor did I. But, to get into that area I agreed then to go back, without discussing with him since he left here...to put it back as it basically is in the present constitution.

Ms. Zervigon Well, since there is no representative of industry here, would you tell us what your understanding would be of the possibility of the legislature passing laws in the instance where there is no consent of the parties to arbitration?

Mr. Flory Well, as you know, the National Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers' Association, many of the industrial groups throughout the country have had program on in this country to pass laws requiring compulsory arbitration. On a national level, we have opposed those measures and the Congress has not acted in that area. Rather than get into that fight in this convention I was willing to put it back into the permissive state and let the legislature take whatever course it deemed wisest after hearing both sides, if they chose to get into it at all.

Ms. Zervigon So, it's your feeling that by and large management does like compulsory binding arbitration and labor does not?

Mr. Flory I'm sorry; I didn't hear you, Mrs. Zervigon.

Ms. Zervigon It's your feeling that by and large management does like compulsory binding arbitration...management likes it and labor does not.

Mr. Flory Well, I think management wanted compulsory arbitration as a means to stop disputes when they get to the point of work stoppage. Rather than have a stoppage they would want to force it to a compulsory arbitration and that the parties would then be bound by whatever the arbitrator said. There are some people in industry who I think do not agree with that as there are in the field that I'm in. It's a very complicated, controversial issue.

Ms. Zervigon And would you agree that any of these three proposals that we're talking about would apply to public employees as well as private employees?

Mr. Flory It could apply.

Ms. Zervigon Thank you.

Mr. Flory I think that they are employees by the very fact that they work, regardless of who their employer may be.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Flory, I gather from what you've said that this is permissive law and therefore has no basis in constitutional law since there is no reason to enforce it or any method of implementation in the proposal that you intend to substitute for this proposal, that is floor amendment...you intend to substitute for this proposal. My question is, could we not save time if we voted and called the question on this proposal and therefore delete the entire matter without going through floor amendment. Would you feel that that was in order?

Mr. Flory Dr. Weiss, I would have no objection either way, but I think if we are going to put language in the constitution that we might want to provide some procedure whereby if you could settle disputes by the process of arbitration under guidelines established by the legislature.

Mr. Arnette Gordon, what's the difference between your amendment and the committee proposal?

Mr. Flory Well, if you look at Committee Proposal No. 18, Mr. Arnette, No. 18 would mandate the legislature to the extent that they could not pass laws requiring the parties to get together, submit the issue to an impartial arbitrator and then would be bound by the decision of that arbitrator whether or not that arbitrator knew anything about either side or not.

Mr. Arnette Right, and what would your amendment do?

Mr. Flory My amendment would put it back like the present constitution and let it...the legislature decide...pass laws to regulate the settlement of differences by the process of arbitration with the consent of the parties.

Mr. Arnette Well, Gordon, the thing that disturbs me about your amendment that you are going to propose is that it doesn't forbid compulsory arbitration so therefore, the legislature can have and force compulsory arbitration under your amendment. That's what worries me about it. Do you understand that?

Mr. Flory Well, they could do it under the present constitution if they had chosen to do so.

Mr. Arnette Do you know the difference between our old constitution and the new one in that...

Mr. Flory What I have proposed is basically the old constitution by the way of amendment, Mr. Arnette.

Mr. Arnette Right, but in the old constitution it was a granting constitution whereas we're doing something just the opposite here. We're saying the legislature can do anything that is not forbidden to them, which is exactly the opposite philosophy. In other words, your amendment would allow the legislature to force compulsory arbitration on parties that didn't want it. I'm wondering if that's your intent because that's what your amendment does.

Mr. Flory Well, Mr. Arnette, as I said earlier, what my amendment does is leaves the field open to let the legislature regulate the process of settling of differences by arbitration so long as the parties agree to arbitration. As in the past, the legislature could have entered into the field and said that you would have to submit issues to arbitration and you would be bound by the arbitrator's decision, under the term "compulsory arbitration." They've had that authority since the '21 Constitution.

Mr. Henry All right, Mr. Flory. You've exceeded your time.

Now, in effect, what you apparently were doing was talking on your amendment to this rather than the proposal itself and we never have introduced and read the amendment. It appeared to me that most of your questions and answers were...as pertaining to this amendment; were they not?

All right, go ahead and read the amendment, Mr. Clerk.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory], on page 1, line 15, after the words and punctuation, "Section 1." delete the remainder of the line and delete line 16 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "the legislature may pass such laws as may be proper and necessary to decide differences with the consent of the parties by arbitration."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, the only point that I want to make, when the question was directed to me as regards industry, labor, etc., I just want to call to your attention that you're not only talking about these matters, you're talking about the differences of individuals...individuals vs. corporations...whatever differences might exist between two parties, so you're not talking, necessarily, labor-management relations; you're talking about human relations insofar as differences might exist in whatever structure and this is why I say that I wanted to put the constitution back in the framework that it was in the 1921 Constitution more or less making it permissive upon the legislature even though some attorneys, a majority of whom, have told me they don't think it's necessary to have it period.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, do you believe that the present law is that a state constitution as distinguished from the federal constitution is a document of limitation in that if there is no limitation in the state constitution that the state legislature may pass any law unless limited by the federal constitution?

Mr. Flory That was my understanding, Mr. Lanier. That's why I say a majority of the attorneys have told me that they didn't think it was necessary period, so that the legislature could act in the area of the settlement of differences in any manner it deemed wisest even if it were silent. That's why I said that they told me they didn't think the section or the article was even necessary. But, in the event...since we have come up with this and the attorneys, I might say in all fairness did not appear before the committee. It was reported what Mr. Lennox...had met with his attorneys and what I had met with my attorneys which they agreed that there was no real need, but in order to avoid the controversy as far as compulsory arbitration is concerned I was willing to put it back like the present constitution is today.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Flory, this is a technical question and I'd like to get what your intention was. The way I read this, where the commas are placed, to me it seems that the legislature couldn't pass any laws even without the consent of the parties. Was that the intention?

Mr. Flory In the process of arbitration, Mr. Goldman, as I know it, under the law today in Louisiana, if you have a disagreement with someone else you as one party agree to submit that difference to an arbitrator. The other party also has to agree to submit it to an arbitrator. Then, both have to agree before it's submitted to the arbitrator whether or not his decision will be final and binding upon both parties at that time. After he renders his decision and you have agreed then that decision becomes binding, but you can do it also in the fashion of arbitration merely being a fact-finding body.

Mr. Goldman I'm speaking of the word "laws"... in speaking of the word "laws" would that be a general law that would be a procedure for that or would a law have to be passed with each such arbitration?

Mr. Flory Well, I can only tell you off the top of my head of one particular statute whereby I believe it was in about 1936 where the legislature did act in saying that when they established the State Mediation Board that they did provide a procedure whereby labor disputes could be mediated between the two parties without...but offhand, Mr. Goldman, that's the only statute at the moment that I can recall, and since that time the legislature has seen fit to abolish the Labor Mediation Board.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Flory, I know that you've stated that this was like the old provision in the constitution, but you realize that there are some changes in it? If you may recall, the present provisions in the constitution say the legislature shall pass laws which may provide for compulsory arbitration.

Mr. Flory No, let me tell you what the present language of the constitution says, Senator DeBlieux. It says that it shall be the duty of the legislature to pass such laws as may be proper and necessary to decide differences with the consent of the parties by arbitration. That's what the present constitution says, and in my explanation I said that it's basically the same as the present constitution.

Mr. De Blieux Well, now, as you well know, the legislature can do anything it's not prohibited from doing, so if you just change your words like you have it here in this amendment, why should we have it at all? Why not just delete the whole provision out of the constitution?

Mr. Flory Senator DeBlieux, I've said three or four times that all of the attorneys that I've talked to told me they didn't see any necessity for having it, but if we were going to put something in the constitution I felt like we ought to stick with the language that was in the existing constitution.

Mr. De Blieux Well, why not word it exactly like it's in the existing constitution if you're going to have it?

Mr. Flory I have no objection to that either. I was trying to shorten it and to make it permissive as to what the legislature could and couldn't do; that's all.

Mr. De Blieux Would you support an amendment to delete the whole business?

Mr. Flory I have no objection to the deletion of the whole thing, Senator DeBlieux, but if we're going to adopt anything I think we ought to stay within the framework of what the old constitution did. That's all I'm saying.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in favor of this proposition. But, I just want to make one point and then I'm going to sit down because all the questions and answers so far have been in the area of labor and management disputes. But, that is not the only area that is involved; and, I want you to clearly understand that. This provision would apply not only to those type of cases but to other cases where the parties may agree to arbitrate their differences and where you wouldn't want to make them do it if they hadn't agreed to do it. I can point out various types of contracts, insurance policies, well, you can... anything you can think of. So, I just want to make it clear that this deals with other things than the one item that has been under discussion so far.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Avant, if we adopted the committee proposal which says that "The legislature shall pass no laws which require compulsory arbitration," that would not mean that private contracts couldn't be made with regard to compulsory arbitration, would it?

Mr. Avant But, there might not be anyway to implement those, Mr. Kean.

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Mr. Perez Mr. Avant, the thing that concerns me is that if we have no provision in the constitution--either the committee proposal or the Flory amendment--isn't it true then that the legislature could require compulsory arbitration?

Mr. Avant I think they probably could, Mr. Perez, because the legislature can, as you know, can do anything that is not prohibited by the constitution or the federal constitution.

Further Discussion

Mr. Arnette Ladies and gentlemen, I really don't know whether I'm in favor of the committee proposal or not; I don't know enough about it. But, I want to point out a couple of things to you, that I think are very, very important. I hope you listen closely. The first thing is: Whether you adopt Mr. Flory's amendment and put it in the constitution or not makes absolutely no difference because if it's in the constitution it means exactly the same thing as if it's not in the constitution. His language is totally meaningless. Now, Committee Proposal No. 1B, however, is very meaningful. It's very meaningful because it prevents compulsory arbitration. Now, I don't know whether you want it or not; I don't know whether I want it or not. But, the only thing we've got before us that means a thing to put it in the constitution or not, is Committee Proposal No. 1B. Now, decide whether you want this language or you don't want it. Like I said, I don't myself, but Mr. Flory's language means absolutely nothing because the legislature can do that anyway if it's not in the constitution. So, therefore, they don't need it to be permitted by the constitution. But, this, however, is a limitation on the legislature--the committee proposal. So, think about it, whether you want to put it in or not. That's all I have to say. I haven't made my own mind up on the matter. But, for gosh sake, we don't need Mr. Flory's language in there because it's meaningless.

Mr. Drew Greg, particularly referring to Mr. Flory's amendment, you say that there would be no difference whether it was in the constitution or out of the constitution--I mean it's silent.

Mr. Arnette That's right.

Mr. Drew Don't you really believe that the phrase "with consent of the parties," if it were silent, would not be binding on the legislature? I think that's the meat of the amendment and...

Mr. Arnette No, but the whole thing is, Mr. Drew, is that this does not forbid compulsory arbitration. So, therefore, the legislature may pass laws regarding compulsory arbitration.

Mr. Drew That's the point I'm making. If you take the phrase "with the consent of the parties" out, then, the legislature can demand compulsory arbitration whether the parties want it or, can't they?

Mr. Arnette Well, yes, Mr. Drew, they can, of course. But, even if this is not in there, they can...even if it is in there, they can still pass laws regarding compulsory arbitration. This language does not, in any way, at all, forbid compulsory arbitration. It just permits the legislature to have noncompulsory arbitration. But, it doesn't forbid compulsory arbitration, so, therefore it's meaningless. I hope you understand what I'm saying to you. Now, I don't know whether I'm in favor of compulsory arbitration or not. I just want you to know what you are voting on.

Mr. Singletary Greg, in connection with what Mr. Drew said, it seems to me that although this amendment is phrased so as to be permissive, it uses the word "may." However, it does use the words "with the consent of the parties," as opposed to compulsory. So, it would seem to me that that would mean that...

Mr. Arnette Well, Alvin, let me ask you a question. Is there anywhere in there any word in there that would forbid compulsory arbitration? It does not say "there shall not be compulsory arbitration"; it does not say "there shall not be arbitration without the consent of the parties." It just says they may pass this class of laws, but it doesn't say they cannot pass another class of laws, which they may do under this constitution.

Mr. Singletary I would imply from the use of the words "with the consent of the parties," that the legislature could pass those laws and only those kind of laws and could not pass compulsory arbitration laws, but I don't know...

Mr. Arnette Well, Alvin, are you in favor of compulsory arbitration?

Mr. Singletary I'm not taking a position one way or the other, I just...

Mr. Arnette Well, all I'm saying, is if you are in favor of not having compulsory arbitration, vote for the committee proposal. If you are in favor of having compulsory arbitration, vote against the committee proposal. I just want you to know what you are voting on. But, Mr. Flory's language, I think, is totally useless.

Mr. Weiss Delegate Arnette, in the Committee of the Declaration of Rights, I learned early that the word "may" is permissive. You pointed out that whether this is in the constitution or not, this floor amendment, it means the same thing. Can you help me to understand why we are spending all this time today and spent all day yesterday debating material of this nature--which is not of a constitutional nature--that is being presented before this group?

Mr. Arnette I really don't know, Doctor. But, I may be wrong--I don't think I am--but, I just think Mr. Flory's language, whether it's in the constitution or not, it means exactly the same thing. Now, whether you want compulsory arbitration or not, vote on the committee proposal. But, Mr. Flory's language, I don't think, means anything at all.

Mr. Weiss I think that the question is: Is this any different in or out of the constitution? You said it meant the same thing, so, why are we debating this material to be put into the constitution, if it means nothing when it's left out? Let's leave it alone and leave it to statutory law as we did all day yesterday, and go on with the business of this constitutional convention. I don't understand why men who have such advisers and legal help cannot appreciate what I think I understand to be true. If this is not so, please help me understand it.

Mr. Arnette Well, Dr. Weiss, I have to agree with you. I think it's unnecessary to put permissive language in the constitution because it might as well not be in there because it means the same thing. Now, I don't know why...I just want you to know what you are voting on.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to the Flory amendment. I rise in favor of the committee proposal. I think that the legislature should not pass any laws. I think the legislature should be prohibited from passing any laws requiring compulsory arbitration. Arbitration to me is a matter between the parties involved. If the parties involved agree and want to submit themselves to compulsory arbitration, I think that it should be their choice. But, I don't think that it's a matter for the legislature to get into, to try to make this decision as to whether these two parties--whomever they may be--must submit themselves to compulsory arbitration. Now, while I realize the Flory amendment says "may," I just feel that this whole matter is not a matter for the legislature to decide. Therefore, I am very much in favor of the committee proposal which places a flat prohibition on the legislature so that they cannot pass any laws requiring compulsory arbitration. Now, this says just that. It does not mean that people cannot submit themselves to compulsory arbitration if they so desire. But, let's leave it up to the parties involved as to whether they want to do this or not. Therefore, I ask that you reject the Flory amendment. I think it would be very wise and very good to put this Committee Proposal No. 18 into the constitution which is a prohibition against the legislature; it's definite, they are no permissives to it, and it's right to point. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, delegates, I want to concur with Mr. Arnette and Abraham. I would like to look at Mr. Flory's amendment. It says "The legislature may pass such laws as may be necessary and proper to decide differences, with the consent of the parties, by arbitration." Now, what laws might those be? You don't need any special laws to decide differences by arbitration with the consent of the parties. If the law is silent then that's just the case you want because arbitration is a voluntary thing which comes about without laws. The only pertinent law is the general law of contract which would require the parties to do whatever they agreed to do or else suffer damages of some sort. So, to say that the legislature may pass laws to decide differences by arbitration is nonsensical, there are no such special laws which should be or could be passed, only the general law of contract is pertinent. I want you to also note that the interpretation given this sentence, I think, is absolutely correct by Mr. Arnette previously. When he says "The legislature may pass such laws," certainly that doesn't say the legislature may not pass such laws. It doesn't say the legislature may not pass laws contrary to that concept. It says "The legislature may pass laws to decide differences, with the consent of the parties." But, it doesn't say they have to; it doesn't say they can't pass laws to decide differences without the consent of the parties. Now read that carefully, and I think you will see that's what it says. Compulsory arbitration is really another contradiction in terms--arbitration is a voluntary thing. Thus, if arbitration were made compulsory, it would not be arbitration, that's why laws should not be passed compelling compulsory arbitration--compelling a contradiction of terms. We should here prohibit such laws. If people want to sit down and get together and work out their disputes, that's good and fine. If they won't, or can't, they should suffer the consequences. But, to require compulsory arbitration is really to attempt a specific performance of a personal contract for personal services. When you start talking about things like that, you're getting into a...what things...questions that raise serious constitutional problems, I think, with regard to involuntary servitude. We shouldn't have laws that might attempt to enforce such contracts by a personal service. We certainly shouldn't, in the absence of contract, attempt to enforce people to perform services that they haven't agreed to perform. So, the proper approach is the committee approach, prohibiting compulsory arbitration. The approach that Mr. Flory suggests, I really think would be meaningless and would open the door to do just the opposite of what the committee proposal suggests. So, I urge the rejection of the amendment and the adoption of the proposal.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Jenkins, would you agree with me that the way the amendment is written, it's unclear as to whether the parties must consent to the legislation or consent to the arbitration?

Mr. Jenkins I think that's absolutely true and obviously even under this, the parties could be compelled to come together. Even if you took the approach that they couldn't be compelled to agree, they could be under this, obviously, compelled to come together, which I think is in derogation of their liberties as well.

Mrs. Zervigon And, would you agree with me that since the author of the amendment has said that the amendment itself is really meaningless and unnecessary, that if we want to discuss the issue on its merits, what we ought to do is kill the amendment and vote on the proposal itself which says "The legislature shall pass no laws"?

Mr. Jenkins I agree with you, Mrs. Zervigon.

Mrs. Zervigon I believe I heard you to say that you believe, as someone who has studied law, that just because this says "The legislature may pass laws to decide differences, with the consent of the parties," it does not say that it may not pass any other sorts of laws on the subject.

Mr. Jenkins Well, that's correct because under the theory of this constitution, the legislature can do whatever is not prohibited to it and nothing else in this constitution appears to me to prohibit compulsory arbitration and this certainly doesn't; so, the legislature could pass such a...laws.

Further Discussion

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I stand in strenuous opposition to this amendment. I would like to ask you to please--on this bright beautiful Sunday afternoon--to stop and think what we are voting on. This is a sleeper. This is a ringer. This is something that's entirely different from the Committee Proposal No. 18. Never kid yourself, there is a great difference between this...Committee Proposal No. 18 very strictly and strenuously opposes and forbids the legislature to do anything about arbitration, whereas the amendment is entirely different. I urge you to defeat the amendment; it's not needed and certainly not needed. I wish that you would consider it very, very strongly and vote against it.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, this is not a ringer, or a sleeper, or anything that I know of --it's been in the constitution since 1921. But, I guess it's because I offered it, that there is so much controversy. As someone said just now back there, "If you were as bad as they say you are, your wife would leave you." Not only that, my mother would probably disown me. But, really, what we are talking about is a very simple thing...when you are talking about allowing the legislature to pass laws regulating the settlement of differences by the procedure of arbitration, so long as it contains the consent of the parties--that's all we are talking about. Now, I would like to see the amendment adopted because I have been told by an attorney back there--that I have great respect for--that you need it...the language, "with the consent of the parties." I have no pride of authorship in this amendment, just to say to you that I think it represents what we ought to have in the way of settlement of differences, in allowing people to settle their differences through the procedure of arbitration so as long as they agree to submit their problems to an arbitrator--that's all, that's simply what it is. I would ask that you adopt the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Willis Mr. Flory, do you know that we have, in what is revered in this state as a Civil Code which comes from the French, that there is a chapter in our Civil Code numbered...title numbered 19, which is of arbitration, which reads in its first article, and which does exactly what you or the proposal wants, as follows: "A submission is a covenant by which persons who are in a lawsuit or difference with one another, name arbitrators to decide the matter and bind themselves reciprocally to perform what shall be arbitrated." Did you know that we have a chapter in the Civil Code on arbitration?

Mr. Flory I knew there was other reference in the revised statutes to arbitration, but I was not familiar with that, Mr. Willis. But, I was told by a number of attorneys that we did not need this provision, that we had proper authority for the resolution of dispute by arbitration in Louisiana and that--I so stated earlier--when I presented the amendment.

Mr. Willis Well, do you know that the provisions in our Civil Code were first written in French and has been translated into English and incorporated in our Civil Code since the birth of this state?

Mr. Flory No, sir. I'm not a French historian.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 43-51. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, there is a technical amendment at the desk which I asked them not to run the distribution copies--it's strictly a technical amendment sent up by Mr. Aertker to correct the title.

On page 1, delete line 14, in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:--all in caps --"ARTICLE VII. HUMAN RESOURCES"--and on a separate line--

"Section 1. Arbitration"

[Amendment adopted without objection Motion to return Committee Proposal 18 to the calendar subject to call.]

Explanation

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman and delegates, I know it seems that we are grinding around and not getting any place much. I have the same feeling that you do about that. But, let me make a point about returning this amendment...this proposal to the calendar. When the legislature drew up Act 2 setting us up, they incorporated into the bill representation from labor and from industry. This is an issue that we are discussing that affects both labor and industry. Labor is very ably represented here. The delegate on wildlife and fisheries knows a little bit about labor. But, very few of us here know a whole lot from the industry point of view. Mr. Lennox came to me some time between January and July--I don't remember when--and said "Would you believe it, Gordon Flory and I agree on one thing--compulsory arbitration? I didn't ask him at the time what they agreed on about compulsory arbitration. I wish I had, because I would know now whether it was Committee Proposal No. 13 or Committee Proposal No. 18 which are very, very different in their nature. We have just defeated an amendment which is, in essence, Committee Proposal No. 13. I would like to get more feedback from somebody who knows something from the management point of view before we vote on Committee Proposal No. 18. It's not something I know enough about to be able to vote on now. Mr. Lennox is not here to speak his point of view or to reenunciate the point of view he enunciated in the committee. I, therefore, suggest that we return this to the calendar until such time as the governor appoints someone to represent industry or until such time that some of us can speak to someone who knows something about industry. There is almost nothing that I know less about.

Questions

Mr. Avant Mrs. Zervigon, I just want to ask you: Do you realize that this subject matter affects anybody and everybody who has a dispute with another person, whether it's because of a contract or any other type of dispute? Do you realize and understand that?

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Avant, I appreciate you speaking to my motion that way. If it's even more complex than I realized it was, it's all the more reason for putting a little bit more study on it before we go forward.

Mr. Nunez Mrs. Zervigon, isn't it true that Saturday we argued practically the whole day on one committee proposal and then returned it to the calendar after...by some maneuver or another? Now, we are on this one and because someone isn't here to explain it properly--as you say--you want to return it to the calendar. As we return these things to the calendar, don't you agree we still have to dispose of them?

Mrs. Zervigon Not necessarily, Senator Nunez, because the discussion that is about to ensue on the Planchard motion--which is a motion to delete--is whether to have the thing in the constitution or not. If we return it to the calendar, we have in essence accepted the Planchard amendment unless we pull it back off the calendar. So, we have acted, and we have gone on. But, it seems to me that there was a member of my committee who kept saying "Let's do something, even if it's wrong." He was joking when he said it. But, there are a lot of people here that are saying it seriously. I don't want to do it in such a way that we can't undo it. It seems to me that the best way is to accept the Planchard amendment in spirit by putting it back on the calendar. Then, if we find we really do need it in the new constitution, pull it off the calendar, discuss it, debate it, and pass it.

Mr. Nunez But, don't you agree that if we...that we continue to put these proposals on the calendar we have not disposed of them? We'll end up in January or in the latter part of December with forty or fifty proposals on the calendar, they are subject to be heard. Anybody can bring them off and debate them, they are still active. Don't you agree that while we have these things, we should dispose of them and not keep setting a precedent every time we bog down, we send it to the calendar?

Mrs. Zervigon Senator Nunez, what I believe about the calendar--and you can correct me if I'm wrong --is that there is almost no way we can adjourn in January without some things on the calendar. Probably Committee Proposal No. 54 on Education will be on the calendar--either the committee proposal on civil service or Mr. Dennery's proposal will be on the calendar. I urge the adoption of the motion.

[Previous Question ordered. Motion rejected: 19-79.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Planchard sends up the following amendment:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 10 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety including all Floor Amendments thereto.

Explanation

Mr. Planchard Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I think this amendment is self-explanatory. We are just taking it all out of the constitution. If you do not feel it is needed, the way the committee proposal has it written, there is no sense in having it in there at all. I think that the matter of compulsory arbitration is going to be taken care of by the legislature anyway, and that's where it should be left. So, let's don't clutter up the constitution with these extra words and extra sections for compulsory arbitration; it's just not needed. I would like to ask for the machine to be opened, Mr. Chairman, and see if anyone wants to join in the amendment.

[28 coauthors added to the Amendment.]

Questions

Mr. Jenkins A.J., you said it's meaningless. Isn't it actually meaningful? Don't these nine words mean something? Don't they, in the future, prohibit and prevent the legislature from passing laws which would attempt to force people to come to a contract when they haven't actually agreed on a contract? Doesn't it do something--accomplish something? Isn't it meaningful?

Mr. Planchard It's an absolute prohibition against compulsory arbitration, but I think you said those two words are in conflict themselves.

Mr. Jenkins Right. So it prohibits a contradictory idea from being passed through the legislature.

Mr. Planchard It would. Yes.

Mr. Jenkins Well, so, then it is meaningful. It's not meaningless. It does accomplish something, doesn't it?

Mr. Planchard If you want an absolute prohibition against compulsory arbitration from ever being considered, you would have to feel that you have to have it in there. I think it's between day and night whether you want this kind of a language--complete prohibition against it in the constitution--or whether you don't think it is needed at all and just take it out.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in support of Mr. Planchard's amendment. First, let me call your attention to the exact provisions in the present constitution. This doesn't say "the legislature may." It says "the legislature shall have the right by general laws to provide for the...it shall be the duty of the legislature to pass such laws as may be proper and necessary to decide differences, with the consent of the parties, by arbitration."

Arbitration is just, you might say, a between issue of medium insofar as court procedure is concerned. Our courts are getting pretty well clogged up now with decisions. If we can provide some method by which we can take these issues away from the court and get them decided, we ought to do that. As you've heard Mr. Willis read to you and refer to a few minutes ago, we've got provisions in the Civil Code now with reference to arbitration. Now, if we pass this particular proposal as it is right now, I'm afraid that we have the effect of repealing everything we've got on the books insofar as arbitration is concerned. Those laws have worked for us in the past. I think they'll work for us in the future. The best thing to do is to go ahead and delete this particular provision. The only reason I voted for Mr. Flory's amendment a few minutes ago is because it will at least leave on the statute books what we have got now pertaining to arbitration. I certainly think that we have no need of nullifying our laws we presently have on the books for arbitration and trying to prevent the legislature... for all time in the future, with ever trying to pass something to help to settle disputes. Therefore, I ask you to support the Planchard amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 88-10. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. Poynter I have no further amendments that would propose additional sections.

Mr. Henry Now, that puts us in the most unique situation I recall us being in. We have a proposal with no sections.

[Previous Question ordered on the Proposal.]

Closing

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, since we have taken out everything that this proposal means, therefore, I ask you to vote against the proposal, and that will clear the whole board.

[Proposal failed to pass: 1-94. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 86 delegates present and a quorum.]

Reading of the Proposal

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 31 introduced by Delegate Stagg, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on the Executive Department, and other delegates, members of that committee. A substitute proposal for Committee Proposal No. 19.

A proposal making provisions in the schedule provisions of the constitution for mandatory reorganization of the executive branch of government.

The provision...the proposal contains only one section.

"Section 1. Mandatory Reorganization of State Government

Section 1. Paragraph (A). The legislature shall allocate, within more than twenty departments, the functions, powers, duties, and responsibilities of all departments, offices, agencies, and other instrumentalities within the executive branch, except those allocated by this constitution.

Such allocation, which shall not be subject to veto by the governor, shall become operative not later than December 31, 1976.

(B) Should the legislature fail to make such allocation, the governor shall prepare and submit to the legislature at its next session, regular or extraordinary, an allocation in compliance with this section. The legislature, by a majority vote of the elected members of each House, may disapprove such plan, but may not substantively amend it. In the event the legislature does not disapprove the plan prior to the sine die adjournment of the session of the legislature at which submitted, the plan shall become effective at twelve o'clock noon on the ninetieth day following sine die adjournment."

Explanation

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if you had in your desk papers the first enrollment of Committee Proposal No. 4 on the executive branch, in Section 1 (B) this language appears; "All offices, agencies, and other instrumentalities of the executive branch of state government and their respective functions, powers, duties, and responsibilities, except for the governor, offices of governor and lieutenant governor, shall be allocated according to function within not more than twenty departments."

Now, this is the language that stipulates that the executive branch of government shall be composed of only twenty departments. Those departments will include the department occupied by the secretary of state, and by the attorney general, the Department of Justice, the Department of Treasury, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of Insurance, and the Department of Elections and Registration. Having said that in the constitution in Article I of the Executive Branch, it becomes now necessary that the constitution provide for how that shall be accomplished. Because it is a onetime accomplishment--the first reorganization of the state government as required by this article in the executive branch--we have come up with a schedule provision. To refresh your memory on what the schedule provisions do, that's in the nature of a footnote to the constitution which, when accomplished, is no longer a part of the constitution itself. It will drop out after it has been accomplished as required in the reorganization under the schedule.

In Section 1 of Committee Proposal 31, the committee gave the job of reallocating, or allocating the functions, powers, and duties, and responsibilities of the branches of the executive department --the legislator is given the job of accomplishing this reorganization. When they have done so, it may not be vetoed by the governor. It is, then, the way that the executive branch will be constituted. We felt that this was--in the committee we felt that this was the job properly ascribed to the legislative branch.

In this proposal, in Number 31, the legislature is given until December 31, 1976, to accomplish the basic reorganizational structure. It would work like this. Upon the adoption of this constitution, the presiding officer of the House and the presiding officer of the Senate would form a joint legislative committee on reorganizations to undertake the study and the recommendations to the legislature as to how it shall be accomplished. They will have the balance of 1974 in which to work, 1975, and 1976--a period of some thirty months within which to deliberate and to decide how the various boards, agencies, and commissions would be allocated into departments. In the Section (B), since this is a mandatory reorganization of state government, if the legislature should, for any reason, fail by December 31, 1976, to accomplish the reorganization, then the governor shall prepare and submit to the legislature an allocation into twenty departments as required by this section of the constitution. Yet, we retain with the legislature further control. They may not amend or substantively change that submitted by the governor. But, if they dislike it and disapprove it, then the governor has to go back to the drawing board and start over again, and at the next regular session, or extraordinary session, again submit a plan of reorganization into twenty departments. Once it has been presented to the legislature and approved, then in ninety days it will become effective.

This committee proposal does carry into effect, according to a time schedule, the command of Article IV in the executive branch that there shall be no more than twenty principal departments in the executive branch of the state government.

Mr. Chairman, I'll be happy to yield to any questions.

Questions

Mr. Perez Mr. Stagg, do I understand your proposal correctly that if the legislature, by December 31, 1976, does not act, then we would turn over to the governor the authority to actually legislate by giving him the authority to completely reorganize?

Mr. Stagg The department involved is the executive branch of state government. We have built safeguards into those people who are elected to head a department. That cannot be allocated, re-allocated, or fiddled with either by the governor or by the legislature.

Mr. Perez The only way...

Mr. Stagg The governor would, then, present to the legislature a plan of reorganization, but only, Mr. Perez, if the legislature failed to do the duty carried to it by Section (A) of this article.

Mr. Perez If for some reason they haven't done it by '76, it would require both houses of the legislature to veto that which the governor's done, so to speak. Is that right?

Mr. Stagg Both houses, by a majority vote, would have to turn down what the governor proposed. Yes, sir.

Mr. Perez Again, the legislature, if they didn't like some part of it, could not substantively amend it, would have to take it just like the governor gave it to them in substance.

Mr. Stagg Again, Chalin, that only comes to pass under the circumstances that the legislature shall have not done the duty commanded of it to do by this constitution.

Mr. Perez Mr. Stagg, don't you have any faith in the legislature carrying out the mandate of this constitution?

Mr. Stagg I do, sir...but, in this bill, when the constitution says there shall be twenty departments, then if the legislature does not do it, then the governor is empowered to do it, and the legislature can...turn down what he does.

Mr. Tobias Tom, I address my question to Section (A). Assuming the legislature does enact an allocation among twenty departments, at some later date, the...supposing the legislature decides that it wants to reallocate one of these departments and, say, merge two departments, would this same thing require...would this require the vote--I beg your pardon, the signature of the governor?

Mr. Stagg We have in Section 22 of the bill of Committee Proposal No. CP4, which this convention adopted, a plan for the further reallocation of functions and powers allocated by this constitution, and then that says it shall be done as provided by statute. What we are doing now is the basic, original going-in allocation and...of department agencies and commissions into twenty departments. We did not feel that it should be frozen in that state, but that by statute it could be reallocated as years go on, needs change, times change, duties change, departments come and go, and duties of government come and go. There is, in Section 22 of CP 4, that permanent provision for regular re-allocation as the legislature might conclude to be necessary.

Mr. Roy Mr. Stagg, I don't like the loaded question you got about legislating. The fact that the governor...the fact that the legislature would not fulfill its duty for two years is not giving the governor legislative power by allowing him, then, to consolidate all these different agencies that we have voted on as being surplusage and should be under the executive branch. Don't you agree?

Mr. Stagg Yes, I do. But...and also, if you will note, in the present constitution the powers of reorganization are stated somewhat the same way.

Mr. Roy That's what I mean. We...we're not...by voting for this--which I think is good--saying that we're going to allow the governor the power to legislate, are we?

Mr. Stagg No, sir. Not at all.

Mr. Avant A couple of questions, Tom. What happens if you go through this little process here, and then the legislature disapproves the plan? Where are you--the governor's plan--where are you?

Mr. Stagg If the plan that the governor sent to the legislature, an allocation in compliance with this section, and it was turned down, he would still have the duty to prepare and submit to the legislature at its next session--regular or extraordinary--another allocation of functions and duties.

Mr. Avant In other words, it's the intent of this that he just keeps on submitting them as long as they don't do anything, until he finally gives them one that they will approve, or at least not disapprove.

Mr. Stagg That's correct. Once these twenty departments have been formed and the duties allocated among them, then in the further years down the road, the legislature by statute can do the same thing, or make such changes as are needed in the future.

Mr. Avant All right, now. The next question is: Did you consider the providing...at what point in the legislative session he must submit this thing? Because, you don't say at what point. It just says he shall submit it to the legislature and if they don't disapprove it before they adjourn, then it goes in.

Mr. Stagg Well, I think the legislature has a sure and certain defense against that, Jack.

Mr. Avant Well, tell me what it is, then.

Mr. Stagg If it comes in too late for them properly to act upon it, they vote no. Then he brings it in the very first day of the next session, or six months before the next session. The legislature is not without a defensive mechanism all of its own.

Mr. Avant I don't necessarily agree with that.

Mr. Hayes Mr. Stagg, why...I wondered why did you put an absolute deadline of December 31, 1976? That's my first question.

Mr. Stagg Let me answer your first one, then.

Mr. Hayes All right. Go ahead.

Mr. Stagg Considering that this constitution will go to the people in the early part of 1974, the legislature can begin then, say by the appointment of a joint legislative committee on reorganization, and study it all during the balance of '74; and maybe by '75 session they're not ready, they can study it for another year. Then in the '76 session they can undertake to vote on it. If they haven't got it finished by then, they can call themselves into session before December 31, '76, and form, or make the allocation and do the reorganization.

Mr. Hayes As stated, it presupposed that the constitution had already passed. That's the way it reads. That's why I asked the question.

Now, where did the magic figure of twenty come from? I don't know. In other words, I am trying to see how you arrived at twenty. I understand you have about how many departments or agencies now that you're trying to consolidate into twenty? Do you know?

Mr. Stagg At the moment, there are in the neighborhood of a hundred and ninety-nine to two-o-two, depending on whose figures you read.

Mr. Hayes All right. Good. Now, then, where the magic figure of twenty? Why would you try to put them into twenty?

Mr. Stagg Mostly that's because of a span of control, Dewey. A governor in charge of this state government, now, as it sprawls all over the landscape, has to deal with a goodly number, over-large number of agencies, boards, and commissions, or the heads of those agencies, boards, and commissions. We felt that if it was made twenty departments--and that's what this convention has voted to do--then the governor, by having contact with the heads of twenty departments, can more effectively, more efficiently, and more responsibly manage the business of the executive branch, which is what he is elected to do.

Mr. Hayes I'm in sympathy with whatever is... you're trying to do. But, what happens in case we tie this down and they need twenty-five, or they don't need but fifteen? That's my only problem at this point.

Mr. Stagg Well, on my desk I have...I can show you a plan of reorganization that only uses eleven of them. So, there is some room to grow on there.

Mr. Derbes Tom, I'm curious about the phrase, "the legislature may not substantively amend." Would you explain the wisdom of that provision to me?

Mr. Stagg Yes.

The legislature, we felt, was being given a clear, clean shot at reorganizing the state government. That's the way it will be done. In my opinion, I think that's the way it will come out. But if it didn't, then somebody ought to be in charge of doing it. The only other fellow in line to do it would be the governor. When he presents a proposal to the legislature, it, having in that instance failed to do it, then they ought not to be able to take his, turn it completely around, ball it up, and hand it back to him and say "This is it, whether you like it or not."

Mr. Derbes Well...but, by the same token, you are assuming that the legislature has the wisdom to effect the reorganization in the first instance. I don't quite understand why there can't be an interplay between the governor and the legislature, should the plan originate with the governor. It seems to me you've...effectively precluded that interplay.

Mr. Stagg Well, Jim, the basic philosophy of our committee was that this was a job for the legislature to do. It is properly a legislative function. Having properly being given to the legislature to do, we had to have a fallback position if, for any reason, the legislature did not do it. This is a fallback provision. The governor could do it by executive order under the present constitution. We felt the governor ought to present his work to the legislature, since it's got to fund it and pay for it; that they ought not, having failed to do it themselves, then turn around and fiddle with that which is presented by the governor.

Mr. Derbes But, finally, by the same token, if the legislature has a choice of either complete approval or complete disapproval of the presented plan, and the legislature can't substantively amend it, then what you've actually done is you've delayed reorganization until the next special or ordinary session of the legislature, haven't you?

Mr. Stagg That's correct--which may not be a very long delay because the legislature can call itself into session under Legislative Committee Proposal No. 3. The legislature is in charge, you see?

Amendment

Mr. Hardin[Assistant Clerk] Delegate Perez sends up the first amendment:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 22 through 32, both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this amendment is very simple, and that is to delete all of the provisions which would give the governor the authority to proceed to reorganize and just give to the legislature the veto power, so to speak. I don't believe that we have done this anywhere else in the constitution.

We have adopted provision after provision which says the legislature shall do this and the legislature shall do that. Why should we single out just this one particular situation and say the legislature shall do this, but if they don't do it, we are going to let the governor do it? I don't believe that it is wise, constitutionally, legislatively, or for the good of the people to give to one man the right to reorganize state government instead of requiring that the legislature have a hand in it. I realize you give the legislature an opportunity. But, we can always remember that there is a possibility, and a probability, that if one of the houses of the legislature does not pass the particular reorganization by 1976, then it would give the governor the absolute right to reorganize. I don't believe it's wise. I don't believe it's wise, again, to require or to provide for any other situation where we say the legislature shall, because we have so many other places in this constitution where we say the legislature shall do this and do that.

I'll yield to questions.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Perez, without this section, do you believe that the legislature and the governor will have allowance for interplay so that, between them, they can come up with a workable solution?

Mr. Perez I would hope so. But, again, again I repeat, we have many, many cases in which we are mandating the legislature to do certain things. We don't have a so-called penalty clause--which this would be--if they don't do it, in any other case that I know of.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Perez, I'm looking at the Section (B), and I'm also looking at a proposed amendment by Delegate Pugh. Suppose the governor really didn't want a reorganization? Don't you think he could annually present a real badly drafted reorganization plan--one that would not be acceptable by the legislature--and, in this means, avoid the reorganization which is contemplated?

Mr. Perez There's no question about it. That could be accomplished; or, if there was a difference between the governor and the legislature as to how it should be reorganized, we might never get the reorganization.

Mr. Stagg Chalin, I don't mean to stay up here too much today, but when you say we are giving in Paragraph (B) the absolute power to reorganize, to the governor, would you look down on line 25 where it says "the legislature, by a majority vote, may disapprove such plan." How does that bespeak of absolute power?

Mr. Perez "The legislature, by a majority vote of the elected members of each house"--it's very difficult for me to conceive or believe that both houses of the legislature would veto something that the governor came up with. I mean it in the sense that only the governor can do the proposing. Both houses of the legislature would have to veto it. So, it is virtually absolute.

Mr. Flory Mr. Perez, can you visualize a plan of reorganization being put in a concurrent resolution and dropped in the legislature at the eleventh hour, and then not having time to act on it, and then the governor's plan would automatically become the reorganization plan?

Mr. Perez That's what I'm concerned about. We never know in these sessions of the legislature how much other business the legislature may have. It may be deeply involved in the energy crisis or in something else and may not have the opportunity to adequately consider a reorganization plan any particular year.

Mr. Cannon Mr. Perez, the concept of some departments which are already included in the constitution would remain stable and in this constitution without interference by the legislature or by the governor if this entire thing were deleted?

Mr. Perez Well, if you remember the Executive Department, there are provisions with respect to the reorganization and making certain officers nonelected with the two-thirds members of the house, etc. But, they remain in effect until that particular occasion may come about, if the legislature does so.

Mr. Cannon But, by the deletion--the entire deletion of this committee proposal, this would in no way effect those that were constitutionally created?

Mr. Perez No, I think it's adequately taken care of already, and I don't see why we need Section (B).

Mr. Nunez Mr. Perez, Mr. Stagg started out by saying that this is the primary responsibility of the legislature. Wouldn't your amendment make it the primary responsibility of the legislature? Wouldn't your amendment do it, then they shall take the blame for not doing it?

Mr. Perez That's correct, and, again, we have many, many other areas where we say the legislature shall do this and shall do that. I don't see any reason why, in this one particular case, we put a sort of a penalty clause on the thing whereas we don't do it with regard to the legislature in all of the various other areas where we say the legislature shall.

Mr. Nunez Isn't it also true that because of the various methods of passing a bill, say, in committee hearings, that you could stall it, but because of the lateness of the hour, or time, etc., and just let it die there, and the other plan would become effective?

Mr. Perez Well, it all depends on the business before the legislature. Again, I say we have some serious problems confronting us like the energy shortage. That may take up virtually an entire session of the legislature. There are many very important bills which do, and those of us who know something about legislative processes realize that in many cases important bills never do get out of both houses, particularly one which would be so complicated as reorganization.

Mrs. Brien Mr. Perez, we set the time that it has to be done by the legislature--December 31, 1976. Do you think that the legislature really would not do it?

Mr. Perez Well, I have great faith in the legislature, Mrs. Brien. I'm sure they'll do it.

Mrs. Brien You have? Well, so this Section (B), maybe, don't even have to be done.

Mr. Perez That's why I don't see why we should need that provision.

Mrs. Brien If the legislature don't do it, don't you think it should be the governor what going to do it?

Mr. Perez Well, Mrs. Brien, we have many, many, many other cases where we've said to the legislature, "You shall do this, and you shall do that, and you shall do something else." If we pass this, I think maybe we ought to have that same provision where the legislature does not do these other things which we tell them to do, then we'll let the governor do it.

Further Discussion

Mr. Denney Mr. Chairman, delegates to the convention, the Committee on the Executive Department felt--and I strongly feel--that our executive branch of the government of the State of Louisiana is one of the most poorly organized from the point of view of operations of any state in the union. We've studied many states. Reorganization is an absolute must. Now, the previous speaker and some of the questions to the previous speaker, I believe, have thrown up some straw men. Let me put this in context, if I may. We have approximately two hundred departments right now in the State of Louisiana. We have looked at charts that were given us by the present governor and by previous governors. We have looked at the study on the organization of the executive branch which was made by a committee appointed some years ago composed of members of the legislature as well as previous governors and experts on government. All of them seem to agree that we can bring the executive branch down to a number of total departments that the governor can easily oversee. This is not the true cabinet form of government which we discussed when we discussed the executive department--Proposal No. 4. But, it is getting close to it. It gives the governor the power to oversee what is going on without having to have two hundred people report to him. There are many heads of departments, commissions, and agencies who never, during the four year term of a governor, get to even consult with the governor. The governor, frequently, cannot know what is going on in those agencies. Obviously, he should. The Executive Department Committee felt that it was very, very important to reorganize the executive branch of the government. That is the reason that we put in this clause that Mr. Perez objects to. We provided, first, that the legislature should have the right to reorganize for a reasonable period of time. If you think that's too short a period, it's all right to extend it if the convention wants to. Senator Rayburn has such an amendment. If by that time, though--whatever time this convention agrees upon--the legislature has not acted, reorganization is still extremely important, so we have, therefore, in this scheduled provision, provided that the governor shall present a plan of reorganization. We don't want that plan of reorganization killed immediately and just delay the question of total reorganization. We intended to have it reorganized within a reasonable period of time. We agreed that it should be reorganized within a reasonable period of time, and this is the reason we put this one in this one section where in all other sections the legislature may or the legislature shall. We haven't put a penalty on the legislature. We have said the State of Louisiana needs reorganization. If the legislature doesn't reorganize, the governor shall reorganize. Remember, though--remember--that in Section 22 of Proposal No. 4, which was adopted by this convention, further reallocation may be made at any time by the legislature. We had originally proposed that the governor should propose further reallocations. This convention, in its wisdom--I believe it was an amendment by Representative Casey, as a matter of fact--it changes to provide that the legislature should do it. The whole theory of this scheduled provision is to require a reorganization within a reasonable length of time. I ask you to defeat this amendment.

I'll be pleased to answer questions, if I have any time.

Questions

Mr. Nunez Mr. Dennery, the more I read this, the more I believe we just should have said that the governor--period--shall reallocate or reorganize state government because what you have done here, effectively, is just eliminated the legislature if they don't act immediately. Let me just point out to you: in the event the legislature does not disapprove the plan prior to sine die adjournment, which means it can be in committee--and it's very easy for a governor to stop something from being passed in the committee; I'm sure you realize that, or maybe you did not or the committee did not--if it isn't disapproved or it dies in committee, to my thinking is it becomes law--it becomes the plan.

Mr. Dennery Senator Nunez, you may be hundred percent correct, but if you will refer to the section to which I just referred, at the next session of the legislature, the legislature can reallocate at any time it wants. It always has that right to reallocate. But, somebody, somewhere--either the legislature or the executive--should reorganize our executive branch of government.

Mr. Champagne I have two or three questions. One of them is: Can you feature a private business in which the head of the government would have nothing to say about his departments--the head of the business?

Mr. Dennery No, Mr. Champagne, that was the reason our original proposal called for the governor to recommend it.

Mr. Champagne Okay, now it seems to me that if you don't accept this proposal very much as it is, you're not going to get up with any reorganization because you're mandating the legislature, but they say, "Well, we can't," or "we won't," or "we..." So, if they don't then you do have a provision whereby the people who voted unanimously to consolidate will get an opportunity to have it done. Is that right?

Mr. Dennery That's correct, Mr. Champagne.

Mr. Drew Moise, about Section (B), actually, haven't you set up the mechanism for a complete stalemate to where there may never be reorganization if one house went with the governor and one house went against the governor?

Mr. Dennery No, I think the way it reads, Mr. Drew, is that the legislature, by a majority vote of the elected members of each house...it would require both houses, in effect, by a majority to disapprove. It is true; I don't know of any way that you can avoid completely the possibility of a stalemate.

Mr. Drew Well, what would be the situation, Moise, if the Senate approved and the House disapproved?

Mr. Dennery It would go into effect.

Further Discussion

Mr. Anzalone Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, one of the many functions of the Department on the Executive, or the Committee on the Executive Department, was to review the countless agencies located within the Executive Department of state government. Now, you've had two distinguished members of our committee get up, and the question was asked them: "How many departments do we have in state government at the time?" They couldn't tell you because we never found out. We don't know where they are, where they are located, who works for them, what they do, where they get their revenues, and an awful lot of other things. It's simply just not any way to run an airline. Now, the committee came up with the proposition that this is something that most necessarily needs to be done--unquestionably. There were those of us who felt that it should be done by the legislature. The committee agreed with this, but, yet, we came to the proposition of what's going to happen when the legislature begins to tackle a problem of trying to condense, not to fire anybody--reorganization doesn't mean that somebody is going to lose their job; reorganization simply means that it's going to be a better way of doing what you're doing now with two hundred agencies: To give the legislature the authority and to give them a time limit. But, as Senator Rayburn has said a hundred times during this convention, what happens if the legislature shall don't? Well, that's just it. If "the legislature shall" don't, you continue year after year after year with the same mess that you've got now. So, we thought that it would be a good idea that in one spot in the constitution--just one, I might mention--that you do hang something over the legislature's head to give them just a slight bit of incentive to begin to reorganize government, as it should be done. This is the only reason that it's here. If you...we felt that if you don't do it this way, then you don't get it done--it's just that simple. Now, there are some safeguards built in if the legislature doesn't act. I will admit that they are not as great as maybe some of you would like, but there are safeguards. The greatest safeguard of all is that if the legislature will accept the responsibility that it has been asking for in the article on the legislature, then it will get the job done, and there will be no problems. I ask for your support.

Questions

Mr. O'Neill Joe, I'm a little worried about the mechanics of this thing. Now, what if the governor sends to the legislature his bill or what have you, but he sends it after the day for filing bills, and the legislature can take no action on it. Yet, they are going to be adjourned sine die.

Mr. Anzalone Mr. O'Neill, you are presupposing the fact--and Mr. Rayburn does have an amendment to extend the time to December 31, 1977--you are presupposing the fact that the legislature is going to sit on its haunches for a period of over two and a half years and not do one earthly thing. I don't want to take that...

Mr. O'Neill I've seen that before.

Mr. Anzalone That's right, you certainly have. But, in this particular case, they know that if they sit on their haunches, something will happen.

Mr. O'Neill What form will this reorganization take in the form in the legislature--a bill, a concurrent resolution, or what form? That's another thing that's not in this section, here, that you propose.

Mr. Anzalone Well, I really couldn't tell you all of the mechanics because I don't know how all of the departments have been set up.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Anzalone, do you recognize the fact that we have similar provisions like this in the federal law; isn't that correct?

Mr. Anzalone That's what I understand.

Mr. De Blieux It's worked fairly well in the federal government, hasn't it? That is--what I mean--it hasn't caused any problems in the federal...

Mr. Anzalone If you asked me how well the federal government has worked, you better ask me statute by statute.

Mr. De Blieux Well, what I mean, this particular procedure hasn't caused any problems in reorganizing the federal government at any time.

Mr. Anzalone Senator, I don't see any problem with it at all because the primary responsibility rests in the legislature, which is where it should be.

Mr. De Blieux Then it gives the legislature the right its duty to do it first. If they fail to do it, then the governor can do it; isn't that correct?

Mr. Anzalone If Senator Rayburn's amendment is adopted, it will give them two and a half years to make an exhaustive study, and then come up with some legislation--not that the governor feels is correct--but that the legislature would feel is correct.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Anzalone, evidently your committee keep...you keep quoting two hundred and some odd agencies. Where...where did that figure come from? Was that before the recent reorganization of our state government that we did in the past session?

Mr. Anzalone No, sir, that was after. I understand that there were two hundred and fifty-nine before that.

Mr. Nunez Did you know that...

Mr. Anzalone I sure do.

Further Discussion

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, delegates, if you read Committee Proposal No. 31 carefully, you will note that it is the only proposal by our committee which bears the name of each member of the committee--including me. This is the first time I have added my name to a proposal by that committee. Of all branches of our government, the executive branch is the most in need of reorganization and consolidation. Now, we have over two hundred agencies, boards, commissions, and departments--if we really know how many we have--in the executive branch. It results in inefficiency, overlapping, and duplication. Though the governor is responsible in law for the executive branch, this many agencies makes it impossible for him to be responsible, in fact. Let us face facts, delegates. You keep saying the legislature is going to do it. Well, they've been going to do it since 1921. The legislature has not reorganized; it has no intentions of reorganizing. More than any other issue, reorganization and consolidation of the executive branch is the key to good government and efficiency and economy, for it will make the executive branch responsive to the governor and, thus, make him accountable, in fact as in law, for the administration of the executive branch. Without (B), we might as well forget reorganization and kill the proposal. The purpose of (B) is to force the legislature to act, and I know of no other way of forcing them. I've watched them act for thirteen years--they didn't act. So, this is an alternative. The legislature still may disapprove. We have till 1976 for the legislature to act. I urge you to reject the amendment to the proposal.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, again, I just want to remind you that we have many, many, many cases where we have required the legislature, where we say "the legislature shall do this and do that." I just cannot understand why, in this one particular case, we want to mandate the legislature or say, "Well, if you boys don't do it, then we're going to penalize you by letting somebody else do it." I just don't think that's proper government, and it's certainly not proper constitutionally.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 52-41. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Rayburn]. On page 1, line 21, after the words and punctuation "December 31," delete the figure "1976" and insert in lieu thereof the figures "1977."

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, the purpose for this amendment is to grant a little more time to the legislature to carry out the provisions of this proposal. In the event that our work is submitted to the people--and if it's not submitted before May of next year--that means that there will only be one legislative session, unless we have a special session, that we'll have an opportunity to look at this. If this proposal or the proposal of this convention would be submitted in the next congressional election, which will be in August, it means that there will only be one session that the legislature will have a chance to look at it--it'll be the '75 session. Well, the '76 session, in my opinion, will be a new session. What I'm saying here, now, it's not fair to saddle a new legislature and give them only one session to do what you're telling them to do here. You could have a new governor--who knows. You're saying to them that they've got to come down here, and they've got to take the oath of office in May--and you may have a tremendous turnover, which has happened in this state--and you're telling them that the first session you're there, before you leave and go home, you've got to adopt this. If you don't, it becomes effective as of sine die--nineteen days thereafter. They will only be here one session, Mr. Stagg, and if this proposal is successful when the people vote on it, if they don't vote on it before this coming session in '74--which is highly possible, it won't be submitted to the people before May of '74 'cause we might not be through with it by then by the time we're going--then you'll only have the '75 session that we'll have a chance to do something about it and it will be what's commonly known as a "lame duck session." I can really see them and the governor fixing this thing up for their successors. I don't get too worried about whether if the legislature don't adopt a plan, the governor will. I've seen them come down pretty, sweet, and rosey, and then we'd get the word they don't smell so good. I've seen them leave there with all the flowers you could put on them out of the governor's office, and then a little word will whip around to the legislature, "This thing is not as good as I thought it was, but I was trying to satisfy the Picayune or the Morning Advocate or somebody like that." Then, we'll go ahead and kind of put it to rest. We'll lay it on the calendar or we'll leave it in the committee, and then just get busy and overlook it. I've seen all those things happen. But, I think, and we have in the legislature been trying for some time--and I served on the beam committee--we had all the executives we could find. Industry furnished us with all the personnel we needed, and we tried to consolidate in this state. There's room for consolidation, but every time we consolidate one or two or three or four agencies we get a new governor, and under these federal programs, he's got to create another agency to get new federal funds. We had about...in 1950, I believe we had about a hundred agencies, and every year they've increased, increased, increased and increased. But, there's a lot of times you have to create an agency to comply with your federal government because they see that a certain agency will have to operate or participate in the programs to be able to get the funds. I'm just trying to do what I think is best--to give the legislature a little more time. I move the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Shannon Senator, you made the statement that a new legislature would get this to fool with down there--probably, perhaps maybe a good turnover like '72 was. Weren't we caught in that same position in '72 when a lot of us created that umbrella agency that we really did not know in depth what we were doing? It turned out, according to the publicity, that it's created more problems--maybe not more problems, but a lot more expense to this state.

Mr. Rayburn I believe, Mr. Shannon, the...we created an umbrella agency and composed some sixty-seven agencies under one so-called umbrella. It was a grave economy move. The first budget they submitted to the Budget Committee, they asked for about a three million dollar increase and about three hundred additional employees. So, that umbrella had to be expanded.

Mr. Derbes Senator, in the absence of Section (B), the date really doesn't make a whole lot of difference, does it?

Mr. Rayburn Well, yes; it does in my opinion. Let me briefly tell you why. Suppose that this... that our work or the product of this convention is not submitted until...not submitted to the people until the fall of next year--I'm just surmising...

Mr. Derbes I under...I listened to your remarks, and I agree with you. I don't oppose your amendment, but just by way of bringing the discussion to a head, here, it seems to me that unless there's something to force the legislature into action, and as long as we're essentially relying on their good faith, that whatever deadline we put into the constitution is more persuasive than it is mandatory. That is, it's more advisory than it is mandatory; isn't that correct?

Mr. Rayburn You're correct; yes, sir.

Mr. Derbes And while you're up there, let me ask you one question with respect to this last sentence of Section 1 that you seek to amend. As I read the sentence, it says: "Such allocation which shall not be subject to veto by the governor shall become operative not later than December 31st," and you want to change "1976" to "1977." Does that mean that if the legislature fails to act within the deadline, and acts subsequent to the deadline, that their action would not...would be subject to veto by the governor? Do you understand what I...

Mr. Rayburn Well, this language says that it will not be subject to veto by the governor. If they act...I'm sure that if they'd waited till the last session to do it, then the governor would have no alternative; he'd have to live with it; he couldn't veto it.

Mr. Derbes But...but what I'm suggesting to you is that there's some ambiguity in the last sentence, and I was wondering if you had considered it. That is, that if the legislature fails to act within the deadline, that their action after the deadline may be subject to veto by the governor. Do you understand that question, and do you agree with this?

Mr. Rayburn No, I don't follow you. It can...

Mr. Derbes Okay, well, I'll talk to you privately.

Mr. Rayburn Yes, because it says, "Such allocations which shall not be subject to veto by the governor shall become effective," which my understanding is that the governor can't veto it.

Mr. Rayburn Of course, knowing the governors like I've known them in the past, they'll have it fixed when it gets down there; they don't have to veto it. They'll take care of that.

Mr. Abraham Sixty, is it your understanding that the primary purpose of the allocation within the twenty departments is in order to make the various agencies a more manageable type of organizations? When you brought up the point that there may be additional agencies created, that this could be done, but they would be allocated within a particular department so that there would be a department head who would oversee the activities of these various agencies?

Mr. Rayburn That's correct.

Mr. Abraham So, would it not be true, then, that the sooner you get the allocation made, the sooner that these department heads can work with the legislature on this type of...as to whether or not there's any consolidation or anything involved? That there's no intent to consolidate, as such, but more or less to allocate.

Mr. Rayburn Well, that's...you are correct in that, but the way these federal programs have been coming into this state and all other states in the last year or two, a member of the legislature, we've got a staff trying to keep up with them. They create them faster than they can tabulate them. You just can't keep up with them.

Further Discussion

Mr. Anzalone Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I would like to call your attention to--what, here it is--Section 1, Subparagraph (B), of the first enrollment of the article on the executive branch. It says, "All offices, agencies and other instrumentalities of the executive branch of state government, their respective functions, powers, duties and responsibilities, except for the office of governor and lieutenant governor, shall be allocated according to function within not more than twenty departments." That is going to be the law upon the adoption of this constitution. Now, I've heard around the floor a little bit that since we have eliminated (B), we shouldn't even have (A) at all. I choose to think that that may not be true. We have used and fought for the word "may" instead of "shall" all throughout this constitution for the simple reason that there were those of us who felt that "shall" may carry with it the possibility of having a mandamus proceeding. The "if"--and I don't say that it will, I'm just saying that a speculative "if"--the word "shall" does carry with it a mandamus, then what is going to happen if the legislature does not do this in the first year or the first two years after the adoption of this constitution? What I'm trying to say is that I'm deathly afraid of getting into a judicial reorganization of the Executive Department. It was hard enough on the Executive Committee to get legislative...get the legislature to be in a position of doing this. It was argued many, many times that the governor should do it since it was his department--ain't that right, Mac? The only thing that I'm saying is, is that, please adopt this Subsection (A). At least we are saying that the legislature does have the time to do it; the legislature does have the authority to do it, and that we are at least giving them a good two and a half years to digest the problem and come up with an answer. Now, if they don't do it by 1977, I don't know. Maybe you've got big problems, then. But, it will only be their fault after that time. I just don't want to not adopt this and preclude them from having the opportunity.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 91-3. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Gravel, et al.]. On page 1, delete lines 15 through 16, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"Section 1. (A) The legislature shall allocate, within not more than twenty departments, including the departments created by this constitution, the functions, powers, duties,"

Further Discussion

Mr. Dennery Mr. Chairman and delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to make it quite clear--and we didn't think the language within the committee proposal was completely clear--that there should not be more than twenty departments, including those created by the constitution.

We also wanted to make certain that the legislature could not reallocate any functions, powers, duties, and responsibilities which were allocated by this constitution, to any other department. The purpose--the way it was written--it...there was some confusion as to whether or not it would mean twenty-six departments. Our proposal was that there should only be twenty departments. So, in truth and in fact, this is sort of a technical amendment. But, I wanted to explain it to you first before making that statement.

I'll be glad to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

Mr. Perez Is this what might be called the Water-gate amendment?

Mr. Dennery Not even the Rivergate amendment.

Mr. Perez The reason I ask that question is because I know that we had the discussion earlier, and we agreed that the attorney general's department was not to be included within the executive branch of government...

Mr. Dennery Oh, no it is.

Mr. Perez ...and I'm trying...

Mr. Dennery You're wrong.

Mr. Perez Well, I beg your pardon, sir. That's not the way I read it. My question is: Are we trying to come in through the back door with that which was rejected earlier by the convention and to put "including the departments created by this constitution?" Now, what I want to know is what are they? Does it also include the attorney general's department?

Mr. Dennery Mr. Perez, the Executive Proposal No. 4 provides that the attorney general's office is an executive department. It doesn't...his duties are set forth in a different article. But the Executive Article by agreement at the time--I don't remember the exact section; I think it's Section 5 or 6--included it as one of the executive departments.

Mr. Perez Well, I disagree with your interpretation. But is this...then this would attempt to include the attorney general back in? Is that right?

Mr. Dennery No, it was to keep it in.

Mr. O'Neill I had a similar question. But, my other question is if you think this section need be included as an article in the constitution?

Mr. Dennery It should be in the schedule, Mr. O'Neill, because it only has one...effect on one occasion. The only purpose of it now is that it uses the word "shall." It says that "the legislature shall reorganize."

Mr. Lanier Mr. Dennery, perhaps I don't recall correctly, but, as I recall it--I've been looking for my enrolled copy of the Executive Article--but, as I recall, the attorney general was listed there as one of the statewide elected officers. Is that correct?

Mr. Dennery I believe so. Yes, sir.

Mr. Lanier But, that during the course of the debate, there was an amendment, and my understanding of the amendment was that the attorney general would actually be included under the judicial branch. Now, is that correct?

Mr. Dennery I'll have to check my article. But it was my recollection that, although the duties, powers, and functions of the attorney general are set up in the judiciary section, the attorney general's office was included as one of the executive departments. I'll try to find that for you.

Well, in other words, if you look at Section 8, it says "there shall be a Department of Justice headed by the attorney general who shall be the state's chief legal officer." That's in Committee Proposal No. 4 which is the Executive Proposal.

So, that is one of the twenty departments.

Mr. Lanier Well, it...perhaps I'm confused; but, as I understood it, when we put the attorney general in the judicial branch, did that not take that department out of the executive department? Now, is that correct or not?

Mr. Dennergy Well, my recollection of it, and I suppose the Journal would reflect it, but my recollection of it was that by agreement, by common consent--and I think Mr. Gravel handled this; he may--Mr. Gravel, check my recollection on this: It's my recollection that we took the duties, powers, and functions out of the Executive Article, but we retained in the Executive Article the Department of Justice, so that the Department of Justice, headed by the attorney general, would be one of the twenty executive departments.

Mr. Perez So that all the delegates can understand exactly what it is we're talking about, I would refer you to Section 1 (A) of the article which says, "The executive branch shall consist ...of the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance, superintendent of education, commissioner of elections, and all other executive offices, agencies, and instrumentalities of the state."

Mr. Dennergy That's correct, sir.

Mr. Perez Again, I ask you, sir, whether your amendment, now, would not try to come through the back door and try to put the attorney general back in, when we specifically took the attorney general out of Section 1 (A)?

Mr. Dennergy Well, Mr. Perez, my recollection is that--and you are quite correct; we originally had attorney general in 1 (A)--it was deleted from 1 (A); but, by common consent, it was kept in Section 8 under the executive department: "Powers and Duties of the Attorney General. There shall be a Department of Justice, headed by the attorney general, who shall be the state's chief legal officer." Now, all of these duties, powers, and functions were put in the judiciary section. But, we retained him--and my recollection is that it was clearly discussed on that occasion that he would be deleted in Section 1 (A), but would be included in Section 8.

Mr. Perez You don't...recall the very heated debate and the long discussion we had? I don't believe there was any consent on this at all. This is...it was one of the very hotly debated issues. It was decided by this convention that the attorney general would not be a part of the executive department.

Mr. Dennergy Well, Mr. Perez, all I can tell you is that our recollections differ in that regard. He was not included in 1 (A); he was included in 8.

Mr. Abraham Mr. Dennergy, would you not agree that we did delete the word out of Section 1 (A)? But, in Section 2 (B), we put the words in that "the attorney general shall be the state's chief legal officer, and shall have been admitted to the practice of law, and head the Department of Justice," etc. We put it back in in 2 (B). We also put it in in Section 3 (A), did we not? Then, we also kept it in in Section 8.

Mr. Dennergy That's correct, sir.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Dennergy, in Section 1 of the Executive Article, it lists the members of the executive branch as the governor, lieutenant governor, secretary of state, treasurer, commissioner of agriculture, commissioner of insurance, superintendent of education, commissioner of elections, and all other executive offices. We left out specifically naming the attorney general there, did we not?

Mr. Dennergy That's correct, Mr. Lanier. It's absolutely correct. I would further state to you, members and to delegates of the convention, that I somewhat resent Mr. Perez's suggestion that we are trying to come in through the back door. We are not trying to come in through the back door. We argued the point when the Executive Department Article was first argued. I will be the first to agree that everything in the Executive Department Article is not as clear and concise as I had wanted it, or as our committee had wanted it. But, we are not trying to come into the back door. It is clearly set out in the Executive Article that the Department of Justice is part of the executive branch of government, and it is one of the twenty.

Further Discussion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I hope that you heard the first question that I asked a little earlier because I think that you should think long and hard about what this amendment really means. The question I asked is: was this the Watergate amendment? We know that on a national level today, the problems, the crisis which our nation faces, because of the fact that we have an appointed attorney general, appointed by the president. When there are ever any problems with regard to the executive branch of the government, we have the very, very difficult problem of not having an independent attorney general who can move independently, wherever the needs arise, to accomplish justice and to support the law. I suggest to you very, very forcefully that we had, and debated long and hard, the questions as to whether or not the attorney general should be in the executive department; he was taken out of Section 9 (A). It is true, later on, the Department of Justice was created under the same article, but that article...but that provision does not put him under the executive branch. It's just his provisions--that is, the provisions with regard to the Department of Justice--are in that particular article. But he was not--and again I repeat--he was not made a part of the executive branch. This is strictly a back door, Watergate amendment. So, I urge you to defeat it.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Perez, since we are all in agreement that we will have an elective rather than an appointive attorney general, and that's not one of the offices that could later be made appointive by a two-thirds vote of the legislature, how, exactly, could he be subjected to the governor's will? What, exactly, is the effect of the difference of opinion between you and Mr. Dennergy?

Mr. Perez I have to reread that article. But, if he's a part of the executive branch, it's my recollection he--by a two-thirds vote of the legislature--his...position could be made appointive. That was my recollection.

Mrs. Zervigon No, sir, that's only certain named ...certain named officers. He is not one. So, exactly, what would be the effect--assuming you are right and Mr. Dennergy is wrong, and both are acting in good faith--what, exactly, would be the effect?

Mr. Perez We all know that the power of the purse string controls quite often. If there is a reorganization, just as we had a reorganization not too long ago and took just about everything but the man's desk away from him, that that effectively dilutes the position of his office.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Perez, wouldn't that have to be done by the legislature under the last amendment you passed?

Mr. Perez Yes.

Mrs. Zervigon Wouldn't it have to be done by the Legislature--giving and taking of desks? Whether he is in the executive department or he is a department unto himself, the legislature has the power of the purse strings over the attorney general?

Mr. Perez Yes.

Mrs. Zervigon Not the governor.

Mr. Perez Well, upon recommendation of the governor, Mrs. Zervigon.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, the governor may recommend one way or another about his budget, whether he is a separate department or whether he is a department of the executive department. Is that not the case?

Mr. Perez I didn't understand the intent of your question.

Mrs. Zervigon The governor may recommend a budget concerning the attorney general's office, whether or not he is considered to be one of the branches of the executive department. Is that not the case?

Mr. Perez Yes.

Mrs. Zervigon The legislature may take his advice or not, as they see fit. Is that not the case?

Mr. Perez Yes.

Mrs. Zervigon So, there's very little effect, really, of the difference that you point out between what you would like and what Mr. Dennery would like in the way of wording, whether you pay attention more to paragraph...Section 1 of the Executive Department or Section 8. There's really, in practicality, very little difference. Isn't that the case?

Mr. Perez Well, Mrs. Zervigon, one thing that bothers me--and I haven't had a chance to check to see what all the other departments are that we're talking about--it says, "including the departments created by this constitution." I'm not sure which other ones we are talking about, other than the attorney general. But, I do know the attorney general would be included here, whereas, before, he is not included as a part of the executive branch of the government.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Perez, I know this whole discussion is centered around the attorney general. But, isn't this amendment much more broad and far-reaching than that? For example: all the work we did on the Education Article. Wouldn't this allow the legislature to come back and transfer all powers over education to the Board of Regents, for example?

Mr. Perez Well, that's one of the things that bothers me. I'm not sure what he means by "including the departments created by this constitution." I would assume that the Education Department is one of those created by this constitution. I think it's called the Education Department.

Further Discussion

Mr. Cannon Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'd like to rise to strenuously oppose this amendment. I think that after long and hard deliberations and hammering out a lot of things in the...with respect to the State Superintendent of Education, who shall be the administrative head of the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, I think we've at last arrived at something which can benefit the children of this state. I think that this is our hope of having a qualified leader in the office of state superintendent, and his professional qualifications being judged by the voters of this state. I don't want to see that the legislature should be able... I don't think that the legislature should be able to change what has been mandated in the constitution. I think that if this amendment is passed, it will certainly do this. I think that it...if we should allow this, this would be an insult to the intelligence of this body. I do think that this has applications on other elected officials who head up departments created by...this constitution. I would certainly like to see the defeat of this amendment.

I'll answer one question. I'll recognize you, Mr. Lanier in the absence of a chairman.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Cannon, as I read this Committee Proposal No. 31, it says it's to make a schedule provision for mandatory reorganization of the executive branch of state government. Is that correct?

Mr. Cannon Of which the State Superintendent of Education is included.

Mr. Lanier But, to get back to this attorney general thing, if the attorney general is in the judicial branch, then, of course, he would not be affected by this reorganization--Is that correct? --in accordance with this proposal?

Mr. Cannon There's some question in my mind about that...but, I'm not as knowledgeable about the judiciary since I got in. I came back from my illness on the tail end of that. I missed the executive deliberations entirely. I have read it, and I raise...again, I think that this will create more problems than it does...

Mr. Lanier In other words, if he's in the executive branch, and they start putting all of this stuff under different department heads, they could put stuff under him that's presently not there in the Judicial Article.

Mr. Cannon I can see that. I don't necessarily think that is a good idea. If, in our deliberations, and if approved by the people of this state that it should be a certain way, I don't think that this should be tampered with. I think that's the purpose of this constitution.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Cannon, I hate to open up this kettle of fish, but you opened it up by saying that we are now, by what we passed the other day, going to be guaranteed a highly qualified superintendent of...

Mr. Cannon To be judged by the people of this state.

Mr. Goldman ...of education. There are no qualifications in what we passed the other day for a superintendent of education at all, are there?

Mr. Cannon Which the judgment must be made by the people of this state.

Mr. Goldman If I had an eighteen-year-old daughter, she could be elected state superintendent of education or even I could. I have no qualifications for that.

Mr. Cannon She might be...no, sir. Twenty-five years old, but, and she...

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Cannon, could you explain to me exactly what is meant by this amendment when it says "the legislature shall allocate within not more than twenty departments, including the departments created by this constitution"? Now, does that mean that the amount of departments that were created by this constitution will be included in the twenty figure? Or, will they be excluded from the twenty figure?

Mr. Cannon That would be included in that twenty figure.

Mr. Rayburn Well, will that mean the five boards that were adopted here, plus all the other constitutional provisions that we passed? Would they be included in that twenty?

Mr. Cannon It appears to me that way.

Mr. Rayburn They are...they were created by this constitution, then. Well, that won't leave much left for us to...

Mr. Cannon No, sir, it wouldn't.

Mr. Rayburn I'm just trying to figure exactly what are we talking about. I thought maybe you might know.

Mr. Cannon I have a lot of doubts, myself. That's one of my reasons for objection.

Mr. Rayburn Well, if it would say "which includes the departments created by this constitution," I'll know. But, it just says "including the departments." So, according to the way I read it, if we have seven or eight offices, then we've got five boards; there's not too much left.

Mr. Cannon Well, I wouldn't see any objection to deleting the entire article.

Mr. Singletary Mr. Cannon, did I understand you to say that you were afraid that under this amendment the Education Department could be reallocated?

Mr. Cannon The functions, powers, and duties of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education--this is the body that I have particular concern about because this is going to deal with the children of the people of the State of Louisiana. Their being out from under the Board of Regents, I think, is a fine thing. But, I do believe that there is enough ambiguity in the whole section--I think it creates more problems than it solves. I think I know my English language. I...I'm not satisfied that it does what the proponents of it says it will do.

Further Discussion

Mr. Lanier Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think we've got us a real problem here, which, I think, goes back to something very basic: that is, whether or not the attorney general is to be considered a part of the executive branch or a part of the judicial branch. I haven't had a chance to go back and review the Journals of the debate at the time, but my recollection, generally, is that we had a big fight over whether or not to put the attorney general in the executive branch or in the judicial branch. Part of my recollection is that under the present constitution, he's under the judicial branch.

Certainly, in the judicial branch, in Sections 26 and 27, we define the Department of Justice, composition, attorney general, elections and assistants; under Section 27, we define the attorney general, his powers and duties, and vacancy. Now, of course, if the attorney general is not in the judicial branch, then why do we have all of this stuff about him in the Judicial Article? So, to me, this is quite confusing. But it has a great deal of bearing on this proposal and on this amendment because, as I understand the proposal, in the top, if you look at lines 8 to 10, it says this is "making provisions in the schedule provisions of the constitution for mandatory reorganization of the executive branch of state government."

Now, of course, if the attorney general is not in the executive branch, then this would not affect the attorney general in any way. However, if it is determined that the attorney general is in the executive branch, then he would be subject to this reorganization; and, conceivably, some types of agencies could be put under his department, where they are not presently under the judicial branch. If he's in the judicial branch, of course, the reorganization can't touch him.

Further, the way this amendment is drafted, as I understand it, it would include "including the departments created by this constitution." That language is a lot broader to me than saying something like "the departments created in the Executive Article of this constitution." I believe when you just say "this constitution," you may well be transcending just those that exist in the executive branch.

I think we have a very confusing situation here. I believe we'd better get this thing straightened out because, otherwise, to me, we are going to have a big inconsistency right smack in the middle of our Executive and Judicial Articles.

Questions

Mr. Kilbourne Mr. Lanier, assuming that the argument that...about the way the attorney general is, assuming that he is in the executive branch, my recollection is that his powers, duties, and functions were specified in the Judicial Article. Now, wouldn't this...wouldn't this amendment allow those powers and duties and functions to be...to come under some other branch--allocated say to the executive branch?

Mr. Lanier I really don't know, Mr. Kilbourne. Quite frankly, as I recall, when I voted on this... as I recall, we had a real floor fight over where the attorney general was supposed to be. At the time that I voted, it was my intention that he would be under the judicial branch, where he is now, independent of the executive. With this amendment drafted as broadly as it is, I quite frankly don't know where he would be or what could be done to him.

Thank you, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates.

Mr. O'Neill Walter, the discussion has been centered on this judiciary question with the attorney general, but would you agree with Mr. Cannon's analysis that the whole entire structure of education could be affected by this?

Mr. Lanier Very possibly. At best, I think we would have an inconsistency between different provisions. Quite obviously, from what Mr. Denney and others say as to their interpretation of the Executive Article, we got a real inconsistency as to where the attorney general is.

Mr. Denney Walter, what are the departments within the judiciary?

Mr. Lanier Well, on Section 26 in the judicial branch, which is...I have a copy of the enrolled thing there. It says "Article V. Judicial Branch. Section 26 says "Department of Justice." That's the way I thought it was.

Mr. Denney So, there is a conflict, then, between the present Executive Article IV which has been adopted by the convention, and Article XXI which you refer to. Is that correct?

Mr. Lanier I don't recall the articles. This is..

Mr. Denney Well, Article IV...Proposal No. 4.

Mr. Lanier This is Article V...

Mr. Denney Committee Proposal 4, and Committee Proposal No. 1.

Mr. Lanier Right. Committee Proposal No. 21. That's correct.

Mr. Denney Both call for a Department of Justice.

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Mr. Lanier But my understanding...as I recall, the way this thing developed was that we were talking about statewide elected officials, and the attorney general was going to be a statewide elected official, but his powers and duties and department would be established in the judicial branch, which is exactly what we did.

Mr. Denney Well, now, Walter, where would his budget be? Isn't his budget historically within the executive budget of the state?

Mr. Lanier I really don't know, Mr. Denney. I'm unable to answer that.

Mr. Denney Well, if I were to tell you that normally and historically it comes within the executive part of the budget which is adopted by the legislature, you would not disagree, would you?

Mr. Lanier Knowing you, Mr. Denney, I'm sure you have your facts correct.

Mr. Denney Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Denney Mr. Chairman, delegates, I believe there is some confusion about this entire Committee Proposal No. 31. Let me first point out to you that, as an article for the schedule, we have already adopted an article which says that "the re-allocation of the functions, powers, and duties of all departments, offices, agencies, and other instrumentalities of the executive branch, except those functions, powers, duties, and departments allocated by this constitution, shall be as provided by statute." I don't think that there's any question in the world but that Mr. Cannon should have no fear. The legislature can't change what the constitution has allocated. As far as the Department of Education is concerned, as far as the education...educational branch is concerned, there cannot be any possibility that the legislature can change it. The same thing is set forth in the Schedule Article. The only purpose of my amendment was to clarify that there should only be twenty departments, and not twenty-six. Now, please remember that when you vote on this amendment, all you are voting on is whether there should be twenty departments within the executive branch of the government, or whether there should be twenty-six departments within the government. In Committee Proposal No. 4, we have already said there shall only be twenty. The whole purpose of this amendment was to clarify it. Now, if you want to pick up on the argument that Mr. Perez made, Mr. Lanier made, and some other gentlemen made, then argue about the committee proposal itself. But, at least before you get to that argument, adopt this amendment which merely clarifies that we are talking about twenty departments, and not twenty-six.

I ask your favorable consideration of the amendment.

[Amendment rejected: 34-58. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Pugh]. Page 1, line 21, after the word "than", delete the remainder of the line and all amendments thereto, and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"January 1, 1978."

Explanation

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to move forward Mr. Rayburn's proposal by one day. I have absolutely no experience in the legislature. I have some small experience as...in both accounting and in law. It's inconceivable to me that an agency would be created in the fashion where it started its business on the last day of a month. Frankly, I think we ought to start it on the first fiscal day of the year used by the state. But, certainly it ought to be January 1 instead of December 31. It's inconceivable to me...that a man gets paid for one day by one department, and he gets paid for fourteen days--since they get paid twice a month--by another department. I merely ask you to move it up one day, and for those rather obvious reasons.

Questions

Mr. Derbes Mr. Pugh, did you ever consider wrapping a diaper around this amendment and calling it the New Year's baby?

Mr. Pugh What is that? I didn't hear you.

Mr. Henry It wasn't worth a whole lot.

Mr. Arnette I think that you're missing the idea of that cutoff date. That cutoff date is not the date that the new agencies are formed. That's just the last day to make sure the legislature has done something by that time. It doesn't say that these things have to start on that day.

Mr. Pugh Yes, sir, but I have a little experience watching the legislature, if not being in it. I believe it will be the last day. If it's going to be the last day, let's make it the first day of the year instead of the last day of a calendar year, for the reasons I've set forth.

It says it will be operative no later than that day.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, in the event the legislature does adopt the provisions of this amendment, they are going to have to adopt them and appropriate the money while they are in session. They are going to have to start when the money is provided. Now, I cannot see and all you would have to do--you can put it January 1, or December 31, or any date that you want--but all you have to need is just add one little sentence to the General Appropriation Bill. "There funds have become available not later than midnight the thirty-first day of December or not later than midnight the fifteenth day of January" that's all you've got to do. I don't know, I doubt if we could ever get a date in here to satisfy some of these lawyers.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 39-44. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Anzalone, et al.]. On page 1, between lines 21 and 22, insert the following:

"(B) Should the legislature fail to make such allocation, the governor shall prepare and submit to the legislature at its next regular session, an allocation in compliance with this section. The legislature may disapprove such plan but may not substantively amend it. In the event the legislature does not disapprove the plan prior to the sine die adjournment of the session of the legislature at which submitted, the plan shall become effective at twelve o'clock noon on the ninetieth day following sine die adjournment."

Point of Order

Mr. Perez Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

It's my appreciation of this amendment that it's virtually verbatim with that which was previously deleted from this section by the amendment which I offered.

Mr. Anzalone Mr. Chairman, I could argue the point.

Mr. Henry Well, Mr. Perez, it appears to me--looking at the amendment--the changes are insignificant. Now, I have ruled from time to time, during this convention, that if there is any change at all, that it's a different amendment. This is a different amendment although it's got the guts just like it was. But, it gets back to what we were talking about yesterday--this dog's been whipped once. If we are going to keep on, on, and on it's going to get a little ridiculous. But, it's not the same amendment because...it's just difficult to tell. Now, we will decide this one if you like the way we have some others and let you all decide by a vote now as to whether or not this amendment is one that's already been considered.

Point of Order

Mr. Nunez Point of order, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Henry State your point.

Mr. Nunez You're right, it's not the same amendment, it's worse than the other one.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I'm not one of those who usually comes back once you are beaten. But, I discussed this amendment with a number of people on this floor. They were not aware of the significance of this amendment when it was first presented to delete Section (B). If you delete Section (B), you may as well delete the whole thing and forget about reorganization, because I don't think you can accomplish it. Now, Mr. Chairman, I guess that's about all I can say. I don't want to debate the merits of it. But, I think we deserve to hear the merits of this amendment, because I discussed it with several people on this floor and they were not aware at the time--perhaps it's Sunday, the day after Saturday--and they weren't quite as alert as they might have been. But, I do feel that we need to discuss this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Fulco Mr. Champagne, haven't we already made...taken into consideration or made provision for the consolidation of these agencies in the Executive Article?

Mr. Champagne Yes, sir. But, I think it was pointed out--I'm not familiar--but, I think it said...

Mr. Henry You are supposed to be debating, gentlemen, whether or not this is...this amendment is in order or not, Mr. Fulco.

Mr. Champagne I think it said "may" or "shall."

Mr. Fulco All right. Then, have you checked this with the proposal that we amended to delete exactly what you have got in your amendment? Have you checked it?

Mr. Champagne Yes, sir, I have. It is different, in a few words; I'll be honest with you, it's just about the same thing. The only thing--the point I'm trying to make--Mr. Fulco, is that some of the members were not aware of the significance of the amendment to delete it at the time.

Mr. Fulco But, you will admit it is the same in substance--only a few words are switched?

Mr. Champagne I never argued that point in the least. I just think that some people were not aware of the significance of the amendment to delete it at the time.

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Champagne, in a good sportsmanship, sir, why don't you withdraw it, sir?

Mr. Champagne Mr. Chatelain, after the deal on the education, this is the last time I'm going to try it. But, I really think that we should try it.

Mrs. Warren Mr. Champagne, on this beautiful Sunday afternoon, are you trying to avoid trying to pull it back from the table--get a two-thirds votes to bring it back to see if they want it--this is all you would have to do on a beautiful Sunday afternoon?

Mr. Champagne Mrs. Warren, I enjoy the afternoon, too.

[Amendment declared out of order: 44-44.
Chairman voted nay breaking the tie:
45-44. Motion to reconsider tabled.
Motion for the Previous Question on the Proposal rejected: 10-76.]

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne Thank you, ladies and gentleman. I want to suggest that the close vote--the tie vote--on the 44-44 did indicate that some people did not understand the significance of the amendment when it was presented. I rise to tell you that if you are in favor of reorganization, I would have hoped you would have done so. But, on this proposal, you have no assurance that you will ever have it. I think you are fooling the people if you vote for it. I am against it, because I will stand and tell them that I had an opportunity once to provide for it, but this proposal does not...this does not provide for reorganization because I want to point out to you that if you are in the legislature, it shall be extremely difficult for you tell a good and powerful friend at home why you should consolidate his department with another when he tells you, "Remember, Joe, I supported you for this position you now have." In all practice, it shall be impossible for them to approve reorganization and consolidation of forces...which in the last election for governor there was no opposition to it whatsoever. The people...all candidates for the position, voted unanimously, time and time again, that this state needed reorganization, that it needed consolidation. But, you have missed the boat here. I urge you to vote against this proposal because, if you do vote for it, you're not providing any. You're simply providing a last hope that maybe you might have. But, you are fooling the people, you have it in the legislative proposal. Let's go ahead and defeat this proposal as it is. I thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, with all due respect to the previous speaker at this microphone, I can understand much of the debate which went on this afternoon. But, what I don't understand is the opposition that is stated in terms quite demeaning to the members of this committee who confected this proposal some three or four months ago. It is a companion measure to the section of the Executive Department requiring that there be twenty departments in the executive branch. Somehow or other this has got to be brought to past; it's not going to happen by osmosis; it's not going to happen by having no direction in the constitution as to how and when it shall be done. I think most of the speakers at this microphone are as convinced as I am, that there has to be a companion measure. I did listen with interest to the debate that stated that maybe the governor ought not to have a shot at it even if the legislature didn't do it. But, somehow or other this reorganization has got to take place. I think that December 31, 1977, is a fair date toward which to work. I think it gives the legislature a considerable leeway in time to perfect their work, and to thereby give a meaningful reorganization to the government of Louisiana which badly needs it. I have thought, while we were debating this afternoon, of the course of this convention when the first article came to the floor--led by Senator Blair on the legislative branch. You would be amazed to go back and read your Journal to find out how well we adopted, and how well we worked before we started learning some parliamentary procedure. I think we were lucky in those days. Then, we adopted the executive branch without a great deal of ranker and without a great deal of demeaning the work of the delegates who presented it. We did well in the Judicial. Then, we started to bog down. But, at no time at this microphone did any delegate arise to speak and suggest that a delegate was doing something by the back door, or by indirection, or by any devious means. That statement was made at this microphone today. I'll be a number of days at this convention before I forget it or the man who said it. But, we do have an important problem. We must direct the work of this legislative branch of the government in achieving the reorganization of the executive branch. I think it can be done, in what is left of the Committee Proposal No. 31. I do seriously urge that it be adopted, and that we go on to the next important matter to face us the rest of this Sunday afternoon.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Stagg, it may not surprise you that I'm a little bit confused by what's happened. Would you say that the main utility of the proposal, as it stands, would be to set a date for the reorganization?

Mr. Stagg Yes, Mary, I would.

Mrs. Zervigon Which, in effect, delays it for a year from now or so--or a year from passage or so--so that it can be done in a well considered manner, rather than having to hurry up and do it in an ill-considered manner, if it becomes law on the day of passage.

Mr. Stagg That's right. I voted for the Rayburn amendment to extend the time until the end of 1977. I thought he had a good argument and that a better bill would come out of a further time for considering it by the legislature.

Mrs. Zervigon Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Drew Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in support of this proposal as amended. If you will look in the executive proposal--of which you are already familiar with--it says...it provides for the consolidation into the departments as stated in that article. It further provides that the governor which, of course, is the chief executive officer of the state. Now, this proposal gives you the very clear decision to make. Do you want the governor alone to reorganize the Executive Department, or do you want your Representatives and Senators to have a say-so in that reorganization? For that reason, I think that--as it is now written to where the legislature has some authority--that we are in better position than if we left it up to one individual. I certainly hope, as amended, you will adopt this committee proposal.

Questions

Mr. A. Landry Mr. Drew, isn't it true that the same legislators who are charged with the responsibility of reorganization would be facing the public less than a year after the deadline?

Mr. Drew That is correct.

Mr. A. Landry Don't you think if the people on reorganization they'll know what to do when they come up for reelection?

Mr. Drew I certainly think so, Mr. Landry. I'm not fearful of those who may be damaged slightly by the reorganization.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Drew, if this amendment is adopted, it then becomes, at that time, a part of the constitution; doesn't it?

Mr. Drew Right, sir.

Mr. Goldman All right. Contrary to what Mr. Champagne said then, wouldn't it be true that this is not poppycock, because if it becomes a part of the constitution then there is an element of blame on the part of the legislature because--by constitutional mandate, or whatever you want to call if they are supposed to do this. If they refuse to do it or don't do it, then the public will know that they refused to do it even though it was told them to do it in the constitution. Whereas, heretofore, these past forty years that suggestions have been made to consolidate the executive branch; there really hasn't been any mandate for them to do it; it hasn't been constitutional.

Mr. Drew Not only that, Mr. Goldman, but if this proposal is not adopted the authority to do it is more or less in limbo and it could be easily kicked back and forth between the governor and the legislature.

Mr. Goldman ...The way it's been all these years; isn't that true?

Mr. Drew Right. I move for the adoption of the proposal.

[Quorum Call: 85 delegates present and a quorum. Previous question ordered on the Section.]

Point of Information

Mr. Tobias We have to vote twice, don't we--once on the section and once on the...

Mr. Henry Yes, sir. We are going to vote on the section first; you are correct sir.

PROPOSALS ON THE CALENDAR FOR APPROVAL OF FINAL STYLING
Committee Proposal No. 3

Mr. Henry What we are going to do now, as I told you earlier, is to look and start working on this report of the Committee on Style and Drafting on the legislative proposal. Now, let me tell you why I'm suggesting that we do this. It shouldn't take a great deal of time to go over the report of the Committee on Style and Drafting, but it's time now that we find out. So, this is sort of a little trial run for us this afternoon to see how we work on this. The rules of the convention provide, of course, that we've adopted each section of this proposal heretofore, and that we have reconsidered the vote and laid the motion on the table. But, as I appreciate the rules of this convention, we also have to refer each of these proposals to the Committee on Style and Drafting--that the Committee on Style and Drafting makes its report back to us in the form of these amendments. As much as these amendments are not substantive, but are as to Style and as to Drafting, then that's the way we can consider the amendments to this...these sections to the legislative proposal. They are not substantive--supposedly substantive amendments--but they are amendments as to Style and as to Drafting. Now, we are not going to be able to accept floor amendments as to Style and Drafting because it would be in violation of the rules of the convention---unless you suspend the rules and reopen the section, or unless you call from the table the motion to reconsider. Now, I think I have tried to make myself clear. But, Mr. Clerk, you might cover up or clear up what I have said, if you will?

Mr. Poynter All right, that's probably the key thing. As you had distributed to you several days earlier on the request of Judge Tate--and he made comments to you--the amendments have been prepared and as it's going section by section, and at times paragraph by paragraph reflecting those changes. Those amendments are totally divisible and it's certainly going to be--I know from conversations with Judge Tate--his intent to totally divide the question so that you would vote amendment by amendment, rather than voting in globo on the amendments. That way, or course, it would be in order if you all wanted to speed it up and take two or three together at one time. But, they are totally divisible, so if you've got a problem with Amendment No. 12, but no problems with the others, you can vote on that separately. In addition, the committee has transmitted to you primarily--what probably will be the most useful document to you for your consideration--is this, the green and yellow copies. Now, the green and yellow copies set forth for you on alternate sides of the pages, the proposal on the left as you adopted it in the convention. On the right, you can tell what the proposal would...or the section, or paragraph--as the case may be--would look like if you accepted the proposed amendments. So, you have rather convenient source of reference there, to be able to distinguish between the two. In addition, there are a number of places the committee has exercised some self-restraint--I would say, and has several recommendations for your consideration, which they feel, in fact, may perhaps be deemed substantive, and have so indicated by caveat notes. Those notes reflect--and the various amendments reflect--some concern on behalf of the committee with particular language that has been adopted in particular effects, but realizes that the amendments might be substantive. Therefore, they have tried to make that as clear to you as possible by the notes in the formal amendments and by...also these will contain the changes and the caveats are contained on this yellow sheet. They would propose to take those amendments last; in fact, they constitute the last amendments set out in the formal amendments themselves. Those are, perhaps--could be construed at least by some of you--to be substantive and that's why they have been so done, but are all offered for various reasons which the committee feels important in keeping with a consistent constitution and trying to keep consistent in language with what they thought was the intent of the convention. Finally, as the Chairman said, the rules specifically exclude or provide for perhaps the offering, in effect, of amendments by Style and Drafting. However, individual floor amendments proposed by delegates would be out of order, unless by one of the procedures you affected the reconsideration--and for most likely a suspension of the rules--affected the reconsideration of one of the sections to be offered.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, this has come suddenly to the convention. I am a member of the Committee on Style and Drafting, so I do know what is being done. I suggest to the Chair a ten-minute recess so perhaps the members can look over the proposal. I think that was...

Mr. Henry We were going to call a recess. But, I just wanted to explain what was happening prior to taking the recess. Your point is well-taken.

Point of Information

Mr. Asseff May I ask a question, Mr. Chairman? On the vote will it require a record vote, Mr.

Chairman--on the amendments?

Mr. Henry No, it doesn't require a record vote, sir.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, as you know by the rules, the Committee on Style and Drafting was entrusted with the obligation to present in a consistent literary form all of the adoptions of this convention. We have, in each instance, worked through the staff and then through the Committee as a Whole, to provide a consistent format for all of the articles, not involving any substantive change. In each instance, the recommended amendments have been sent over to the Substantive Committee for their contemplation and study to see if there were...if they concurred in the amendments and if there was any changes of substance. Senator Blair will mention it in a minute, I'm sure, when the recess is over, of what the legislative branch has done. But, to familiarize yourself with what you have before you, the first enrollment was passed out earlier--what passed the floor. The amendments are to the first enrollment, the amendments in that package of papers you got the other day. But, for your convenience, in the green sheets on the right side is the first enrollment text; on the left side is the stylized draft according to the manual and the judgment of the committee. At the bottom of each section or subsection is an explanation of the reasons. I always get my left and right mixed up--it's on the left side, thank you, Ambrose--on the left side, on the port side. On the left side is the first enrolled version and on the right side is the stylized version in the green sheet. When you get to the yellow sheet, we will talk about that later. Those are the few questionable amendments that we thought required some reference to the body of the legislature...the convention as a whole.

Mr. Chairman, have I confused the matters enough for the recess?

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Personal Privilege

Mr. Blair Mr. Acting Chairman and fellow delegates, we think--our Committee on Legislative Powers and Functions--we think that the Committee on Style and Drafting did an excellent job after we suggested they get out of their substantive changes and they took a few of our suggestions. But, after it was all over--after we went over it--we did meet after they had finished, and we had a few suggestions. We got together; as of this time, we have no objections. We think they have done an excellent job.

Recess

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Quorum Call: 83 delegates present and a quorum.]

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, at the pleasure of you and the convention, I guess, I can read each one of the separate amendments, or not read them for that matter, if you want to, and you can move to adopt as many presumably confined to, I suppose, at least one section as you want to at a time.

Mr. Henry Well, since the rules provide we move section by section, let's take them up section by section and once we get through with the amendments to a section if anybody wants a division of the question insofar as the amendments to that section are concerned, we'll act accordingly then.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter All right. Mr. Chairman, in that light, Amendments Nos. 1, 2, and 3 affect first

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

the title to the whole proposal, changing the word "department" to "branch" and Amendments Nos. 2 and 3 affect Section 1. You want me to read them?

Point of Information

Mr. Dennergy I have a question, Mr. Chairman, if that's permissible?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir.

Mr. Dennergy ...In view of your previous statements to me I was not sure I would be permitted to ask a question. However, do you propose, Mr. Chairman, to take these up section by section and subparagraph by subparagraph in order, or do you propose to change the rule as you did earlier today?

Mr. Henry I think we'll take them up section by section, Mr. Dennergy, and take the amendments up in order in which they come in those sections.

Mr. Dennergy Thank you, sir.

Amendment No. 1

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1. On page 1, at the end of line 16, delete the word "department" and insert in lieu thereof "branch".

[Amendment No. 1 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 2

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 2. On page 1, delete lines 17 through 23, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"Section 1. Legislative Power; Composition, Continuous Body

Section 1. (A) Legislative Power of State. The legislative power of the state is vested in a legislature consisting of a Senate and a House of Representatives. The Senate shall be composed of one Senator elected from each senatorial district. The House of Representatives shall be composed of one representative elected from each representative district."

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, what I'd asked for-- can we waive the reading of all of these amendments in the interest of saving time?

Mr. Henry Why don't we do it by each section? You waive the reading of the amendments to Section 1?

[Motion to waive reading of Amendments to Section 1 adopted without objection. Amendment Nos. 2 and 3 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 4, 5, 6

Mr. Poynter All right, next amendments would be Amendments Nos. 4, 5, and 6, respectively, all dealing with Section 2, respectively, Paragraph (A), Paragraph (B) in Amendment No. 5 and Paragraph (C) in Amendment No. 6.

[Motion to waive reading of Amendments to Section 2 adopted without objection. Amendment Nos. 4, 5, 6 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 7

Mr. Poynter Next amendment will be Amendment No. 7 which affects Section No. 3 in its entirety.

[Amendment No. 7 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11

Mr. Poynter Next set of amendments would constitute Amendments Nos. 8, 9, 10, and 11, all affecting the four paragraphs of Section 4, respectively.

Questions

Mr. Dennergy Mr. Chairman, I suppose this should be asked of Judge Tate.

It's clear from this, Justice Tate, that the date of qualification is the final date at which a man can qualify...not the date of his actual qualification?

Mr. Tate Mr. Dennergy, we thought it was clear, we needed some clarification because...we thought it was clear that it meant at the time that he qualifies as a candidate for office, he meets the qualifications needed for the office.

Mr. Dennergy No. My question is, sir: do you mean at the actual date on which he personally qualifies or the last date on which he is permitted to qualify?

Mr. Tate I understand your question. We didn't think that was a problem because if he didn't have it the first day, he would qualify on the last date, Mr. Dennergy. We didn't think it was a real problem.

Mr. Abraham Justice Tate, now isn't Section 4 (D) here is where we had a substantive change?

Mr. Tate Mr. Abraham, on Section 4 (D) we have an amendment later, Amendment No. 60, which you will see will come up...will bring up a possibility that some members of one of the committees...and of both committees thought the floor might need to clarify. But, Section 4 (D), as stylized here, represents a stylized version saying exactly the same thing that the floor passed. But, there is an ambiguity that we will call to your attention by Amendment No. 60 that you may wish to clarify later.

Mr. Singletary Judge Tate, in Paragraph (A) of Section 4, you say "has been actually domiciled for the preceding year." It seems to me that that's not a clear requirement that he actually be there one year, but actually...only reside there or be domiciled there during the previous year.

Mr. Tate The...as it passed the floor, we had a little trouble with the phrase "actually domiciled." As it passed the floor in 4 (B), it says "he must have been actually domiciled in the legislative district within which...from which he seeks election for one year immediately preceding qualification for office." When you say "has been actually domiciled for the preceding year in the legislative district from which he seeks election" the feeling of both committees was that it means the same thing.

Mr. Singletary It doesn't seem to me that it's as clear as what the convention adopted.

Mr. Tate Yes. Now, I will say that there is a little problem there because actually...what does "actually domiciled" mean? You're either domiciled or you're not. But, "actually domiciled" is what passed the convention. It's a phrase that has been interpreted in some procedural statutes, and whereas strict accuracy might have been to leave "actually" out, we thought it unwise to change the convention language in that instance, even though, in the view of some, it's not...

Mr. Singletary The words "actually domiciled" don't give me any problem; it's "for the preceding year." Whereas, we said the convention adopted language, it says "actually domiciled within the legislative district from which he seeks election for one year immediately preceding qualification for office."

Mr. Tate Well,...all I can say is that I think

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

"for the preceding year" means the same...if he's been domiciled in the...been "actually domiciled for the preceding year in the legislative district," all I can say is I think it means the same thing. He's got to have been actually domiciled in that district for the year preceding his qualification.

Mr. Flory Judge Tate, do I understand you to say that if we adopt Amendment No. 60, this will clarify the hiatus between (C) and (D), when we say that "a member of the legislature shall be elected for a four year term" and I know we were talking about the original election, but then we get into (D) in the "election to fill an unexpired term because of death or vacancy for other purposes." But, you think Amendment No. 60 will clarify the (C) and (D)?

Mr. Tate No, Mr. Flory, the committee felt there's no ambiguity because it says "...vacancies will be filled for the remainder of the term" meaning for the remainder of the four year term, and that is the way it's been construed under the present constitution. The Amendment No. 60 deals with the fact that some members of the committee thought there might be a problem because it doesn't spell out that it's an election by the people, and that's what Amendment No. 60 is about.

Mr. Flory Well, then my question then to you is: that if a member is elected to the legislature... a member of the legislature is elected, his term of office under (C) would be four years.

Mr. Tate Yes, sir.

Mr. Flory All right. But, I'm asking you again, is...would 60 clarify it if he's...the Amendment No. 60 would clarify the situation regarding the number of years of the term even though it may be for an unexpired period?

Mr. Tate We thought, Mr. Flory, and as it passed the House, it uses a thing, the remainder of the term refers to the remainder of the four year term for the seat that's vacant. It did pass the floor that way, and we didn't think there was an ambiguity in that respect, sir.

Point of Information

Mr. Burns Mr. Chairman, I just wanted to ask a question: Would it be possible as we go along that the Clerk or Judge Tate would call the convention's attention to any substantial change? It might save a lot of time and make it easier to follow.

Mr. Henry I believe that's...you're going to do that, are you not, Judge Tate?
All right, sir. Thank you.

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, there are only about four or five instances where we were worried, and I will call your attention when we get to them--all of those come back on yellow amendments later.

[Amendments Nos. 8, 9, 10, 11 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 12, 13, 14

Mr. Poynter All right, next would come Amendments Nos. 12, 13, and 14, respectively, all dealing with Section 5, dealing with Legislative Reapportionment.

[Amendments Nos. 12, 13, 14 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 15, 16, 17

Mr. Poynter Next set of amendments would constitute Amendments Nos. 15, 16, and 17, dealing with the amendments to Section 6, dealing with judging qualification elections, procedural rules, discipline, and the like.

Questions

Mr. Goldman Judge Tate, in Section 6 (B) which has to do with subpoena power, is there a limitation since it reads "the production of books and papers"? Is that a limitation on just books and papers, or would they be able to subpoena other materials such as tapes, and other materials that are not described or defined as books and papers that might be pertinent to an investigation?

Mr. Tate Mr. Goldman, of course...by the way, in delayed response to Mr. Burns, so far as we know, there are no substantive changes on the green amendments. The House passed it "books and papers". In retrospect...in Watergate retrospect, perhaps, we should have called it to the attention of the convention.

Mr. Goldman Even before Watergate, I remember a dentist in Shreveport that had a lot of...there was a lot of controversy over tapes a few years ago...with our own legislature.

Mr. Tate Just shooting from the hip now, really shooting from the hip, I think that "books and papers" probably means "all records," but I just don't know, frankly.

[Amendments Nos. 15, 16, 17 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 18

Mr. Poynter Next amendment stands by itself. Amendment No. 18 affecting style and drafting of Section 7.

[Amendment No. 18 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 19

Mr. Poynter Also, Amendment No. 19 stands alone, affecting the reorganization of Section 8.

[Amendment No. 19 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 20, 21, 22

Mr. Poynter Next group of amendments are Amendments Nos. 20, 21, and 22, respectively, dealing with the three paragraphs of Section 9.

[Amendments Nos. 20, 21, 22 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 23

Mr. Poynter Next Amendment would be Amendment No. 23, which stands alone, dealing with Section 10, Mr. Chairman.

[Amendment No. 23 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 24

Mr. Poynter Next amendment would be Amendment No. 24 which deals with Section 11.

[Amendment No. 24 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 25

Mr. Poynter Next amendment is Amendment No. 25 affecting the redrafting of Section 13. Stands alone.

[Amendment No. 25 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 26, 27, 28

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Mr. Poynter All right, next amendment or group of amendments would be Amendments Nos. 26, 27, and 28, which as a group affect the three paragraphs of Section 14.

Question

Mr. Dennerly Justice Tate, is there any reason for using plural in Sections (A) and (B) about "the state, its agencies, and political subdivisions" and in (C) "for suits against the state... a state agency, or a political subdivision," etc.?

Mr. Tate We slipped. There's no reason...we slipped. I'm sorry. Maybe, we might be able to catch it on the final go-round on the thing.

Point of Information

Mr. Perez I just wanted to raise a question: The Judge says we may be able to catch it on the final go-round. It was my understanding that this is the final go-round, and I just wanted to raise that as a point of information.

Mr. Tate This is the final go-round. This is really the final go-round for Executive, but we will have to come back when all of the things are through, as I understand it, and report back to you with the connection...with perhaps--just for example today, what we had...that little dispute whether the attorney general and the Department of Justice is in the Executive or the Judicial Department--we may have to come back under another rule when all of the proposals are through and cut through a final version.

Mr. Henry Judge Tate, this is it, really, except for final organization of the entire document, as I appreciate it, under the rules.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Perez Well, Mr. Chairman...if there's something wrong, I don't believe we ought to adopt... knowingly adopt something which is not grammatically correct. I would suggest that we might pass over this amendment now and find a way to correct it a little bit later. But, if there is something wrong, I don't believe that we should knowingly adopt a provision which is not correct.

Mr. Henry You want to then...your motion will be to temporarily pass over section or Amendments Nos. 26, and 27.

Mr. Perez Yes. If there's agreement by Judge Tate that it's not grammatically correct,...I really haven't checked it, but I just want to be sure that when we proceed we know what we're doing.

Mr. Tate Now, Mr. Chairman, there is no...it's grammatically correct. It's not following the rule of the singular that we've generally followed. There's nothing exactly wrong with one place in the thing not following the rule of the singular, and that's all we're talking about.

Mr. Henry There's nothing wrong with passing over it.

Point of Information

Ms. Zervigon Mr. Chairman, could he withdraw that amendment, make the changes, and resubmit it without permission?

Mr. Henry Since it was in the form of a committee report, I think there's a way to accomplish it. But, I think Mr. Perez's motion to pass over it would allow us to go ahead and rectify the change that needs to be made, although I can't tell you the mechanics right yet, but I'm sure there's a way to do it.

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, my mind has been refreshed on this thing. It was not...it's not an inadvertent departure from the rule of the singular. In an attempt to use the singular, it got more clumsy to state the thing, and so our rules are not iron-bound rules; they're stylistic guides, and it was a considered departure from the consistent rule of the singular we usually use. I'm sorry, Mr. Dennerly, for confusing the matter. I thought I would end the discussion; instead, I created more. I'm sorry.

Mr. Henry All right. So, what you're saying is that it's done the way your committee intended to do it, Judge Tate?

Mr. Tate Yes, sir.

Mr. Perez Inasmuch as we're trying to move rapidly--and I don't want to hold anything up, but on the other hand, there seemed to be a question on Mr. Dennerly's part, and some others--with respect to it I would like to suggest that we do temporarily pass over it. If the delegates are satisfied later, then we can come back and adopt it. So, I insist on my motion.

[Motion to pass over Amendments Nos. 26, 27, 28 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 29

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 29 which affects Section 15. Stands by itself.

[Amendment No. 29 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 30

Mr. Poynter Next amendment stands by itself. Amendment No. 30 affecting Section 16.

[Amendment No. 30 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 31-37

Mr. Poynter Next set of amendments constitute Amendments Nos. 31, through 37, respectively, all affecting Section 17, Paragraph (A).

Motion

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman, I was the author of an amendment which would make it clear that both bills intended to have the effect of law and constitutional amendments had to be introduced during a session of the legislature. Unfortunately, it appears that with respect to the joint resolutions introduced during a session of the legislature would not have to be introduced during a session of the legislature under the committee proposals. Therefore, I would move that we suspend the rules in order to take from the table Section 17 for the sole purpose of considering the amendment which I would offer in order to straighten this matter out.

Mr. Henry Let me just sort of rephrase your motion for you.

The gentleman now moves to call for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of calling from the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which Section 17 was adopted for the sole purpose of considering the amendment that has just been passed out.

Judge Tate, you don't object, do you?

Mr. Tate No, Mr. Chairman, we don't object. In view of the committee, we didn't need this change, but I think it does...would solve...adding these three words--if they'll solve Mr. Perez's doubts--I personally have no objection, although this will be a terrible precedence if we do much of this.

Point of Information

Mr. Abraham If I understand Mr. Perez's amendment, it does the same thing as what we approved in the committee report, and what Style and Drafting has done has left out some of these words. So, we don't have to call anything from the table, do we?

Mr. Henry Yes, we do, because what we're doing is effectively reopening this...and it appears to be necessary at this particular point, Mr. Abraham. We're limiting it, we're tying it down to that purpose.

I don't believe...Judge Tate, your committee... you have no objection to this?

[Motion to suspend the rules to reconsider the vote by which Section 17 was passed adopted without objection.]

Reconsideration

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Technically, now we are on...if you have your first enrollment of the bill, we're on Section 17, dealing with passage of bills, and Mr. Perez at this time sends up floor amendments which read as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 7, delete lines 19 through 29, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 17. (A) Introduction; Title; Single Object; Public Meetings. The legislature shall enact no law except by a bill introduced during that session, and propose no constitutional amendment except by a joint resolution introduced during that session, which shall be processed as a bill."

I think the rest of it is the same, isn't it, Mr. Perez?

"Every bill, except the general appropriation bill and bills for the enactment, rearrangement, codification, or revision of a system of laws, shall be confined to one object. Every bill shall contain a brief title indicative of its object. Action on any matter intended to have the effect of law shall be taken only in open, public meeting."

Explanation

Mr. Perez Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you might have recalled that because of the fact that we said that the legislature was a continuing body, that it was necessary to have language which would provide that a bill be introduced in every session of the legislature--both a bill and also a joint resolution which would have the...which would become a constitutional amendment. Now, when the Committee on Style and Drafting redrafted or reprepared the provision, they did take care of the first part by saying "a legislature shall enact no law except by a bill introduced during that session." But, in the second portion where they say "and propose no constitutional amendment except by a joint resolution which shall be processed as a bill," it does not make it clear that the bill...that this joint resolution would also have to be introduced during that session. Of course, that is what we adopted, and I believe it's necessary to make it clear that no constitutional amendment could be proposed except by a joint resolution introduced during that session. It's exactly what we adopted by the convention earlier.

Questions

Ms. Zervigon The way you have drawn your amendment in the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5th line, it's not clear to me that it isn't the session that doesn't have to be processed as a bill. Would you agree to withdraw your amendment, put a period "." there, and then insert the phrase "a joint resolution shall be processed as a bill." Would that be clearer?

Mr. Perez Well, I still...I missed a couple of the words you said Ms. Zervigon, and again, I'll read to you--and it seems to be clear to me--"the legislature shall enact no law except by a bill introduced during that session, and propose no constitutional amendment except by a joint resolution introduced during that session which shall be processed as a bill." I don't quite understand what you mean.

Well, my main purpose...I can understand now, Ms. Zervigon's suggestion, and I think it's possibly something else that Style and Drafting might have been able to do, but I wanted to be sure that we included that the resolutions intending to be introduced as constitutional amendments be introduced also during the session of the legislature, which is exactly what...

Mr. Pugh Is there any reason why the word "an" does not appear between the words "in" and "open" on the last line?

Mr. Perez I had...I did not even look at the last part of this. This was Style and Drafting's business and the only thing that I was...my only objective in this particular amendment was to take care of the words "introduced during that session" to make it clear that constitutional amendments had to be introduced during a session of the legislature. I did not attempt to correct any other verbiage of the Style and Drafting Committee.

Mr. Flory Mr. Perez, isn't it really mandatory that you put that in there in light of the fact that we took...by amendments, we've already adopted from Section 1 (B), we deleted the word "automatically withdrawn from its files" and which was the intent. Under the rules, as I appreciate them, in the House and Senate, when a Senate bill gets to the House, you don't withdraw them, it's indefinitely postponed and vice versa. So, you really need what you're putting in here to clarify it that the bill has to be introduced in that session before it can be acted upon.

Mr. Perez It's not only what's needed, but it's exactly what was adopted by this convention almost unanimously.

Point of Order

Mr. Abraham I think my question is more to the Chair. Would I be in order to move that we pass over this section in order for Mr. Perez and Style and Drafting can straighten this thing out, and then we can move on to other things?

Mr. Henry We're sort of in a bad situation to pass over it right now.

Point of Information

Mr. Juneau You're going to take a recess because I can just ask you up there?
Are we in recess now?

Mr. Henry No, we're not in recess.

Questions

Mr. Juneau Chalin, maybe I don't understand either proposal. The only concern I would have in the changes we are making, would it any way affect, if we were to have a process whereby a constitutional amendment to be put on the ballot would have to go to two separate sessions of the legislature before it got on the ballot, what would this do to that?

Mr. Perez Well, all I can say to you, again, I'm not...I don't think we ought to get into the merits of that because all I'm trying to do is to put back into this proposal exactly that which the convention previously adopted.

Mr. Tate Mr. Perez, do you know...that we had the Style and Drafting staff and Vice-Chairman go over the amendment, and it is in accord with our rules? Some people would say you need another comma; I personally think it's...all right as it is. Do you know that I have no objection to it... if that...is that how you say it?

Mr. Perez Thank you, Judge.

Mr. Juneau I don't want to be too insistent about this, but we just finished saying--we're talking about finality. The concern that I have: I know there is a delegate proposal--it's not mine, but I just say it; it's Mr. Bergeron's--which relates to the specific problem I was talking about: that is, with regard to constitutional amendment. I just want to...trying to clarify it. Chalin, for either proposal. What does this language do to the kind of proposal which would say that a constitutional amendment would have to go through two separate sessions of the legislature?

Mr. Perez The only thing I can tell you is that I'm not trying to make any change. What we've adopted, we've adopted. Now, if the convention later adopts something else, it will be up to the convention at that time to straighten it out, but all I'm trying...

Mr. Henry Mr. Perez, let...what he's concerned with, I believe, is somebody, somewhere along the way, is going to recommend that before a constitutional amendment can be put on the ballot that it has to pass through successfully two sessions of the legislature, as I appreciate it. This proposal would have nothing to do with that because Joint Resolution No. 33 that passes the '74 session would come up as Joint Resolution No. 48 next year, so it wouldn't...this wouldn't affect that at all, has nothing to do with it.

Point of Information

Mr. Avant I want to ask a question of the Chair because I'm beginning to get a little confused when people start talking about the final go-around and all that business. We still have parts of this constitution, or proposed constitution, that we haven't considered. Now, in the event that later on we should adopt something that says black is red, when we've already said black is green, it seems to me that there's got to be a procedure for straightening that out. I think that was the point Mr. Juneau was trying to raise. So, I would like to know at this time: we do have a procedure to straighten out any inconsistencies that may develop between what we have adopted and what we may adopt in the future, don't we?

Mr. Henry Well, we can do just like we've done on this amendment. We can come in here, and assuming that on most days we're all reasonable and rational people, we can do just as we've done. We've already had the final go-around, for all practical purposes as you are aware, on Section 17 of this proposal. But, apparently there was some mistake, some error, that we...that somebody thought should be rectified, and so we suspended the rules to raise that from the dead. So, that, I think, is what you're looking for.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 86-1. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Point of Information

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman, it may or may not be important, but just for the record, are these record votes?

Mr. Henry The vote we just took was a record vote; but these other votes, we've been doing them by, you know, if there's no objection, we adopt them. So, there's no...but, you know, if we lost a quorum or something like that, it'd get sort of ticklish.

Point of Information

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Chairman, in line with my other question, does this section now go to Style and Drafting?

Mr. Henry No, ma'am.

Mrs. Zervigon Why is that?

Mr. Henry Because the rules don't provide it. Now, Mrs. Zervigon, there again, assuming we're reasonable people, I'm certain Judge Tate and his group will look at it, and if there's a material defect--again, there's got to be some sort of an unfinal finality in this, and if there are any problems, I'm sure that folks like you and Mr. Casey will help us resolve them. So, we just sort of have to play it by ear.

Mr. Poynter No, Mr. Chairman, we hadn't...I think Judge Tate is going to probably either need to move to either withdraw or defeat, as the case may be, Amendment No. 31.

[Amendment No. 31 withdrawn without objection. Amendments Nos. 32 through 36 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 36

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 36 sent up dealing with (F): Concurrence in Amendments.

Questions

Mr. Asseff I'm on the Committee on Style and Drafting, Mr. Chairman. I am delighted at the great confidence shown in us. However, I am wondering, sir, in view of the fact of the pre-eminence of what we are doing, whether we should move as fast as we are? I have no objections. It is a unanimous report. I just simply raise the question, Mr. Chairman. Now, if they are happy, I am too, sir.

Mr. Henry Well, it appears...

Mr. Asseff I'm just worried, Mr. Chairman; that's all.

Mr. Henry Well, there again, Judge Tate--I mean, Dr. Asseff--these were passed out for the delegates to read; and whether they read them or not, I'm not certain. Again, we're not reconsidering votes and lying...laying the motions to reconsider on the table. So, I think if we make any drastic mistakes, we're going to be able to come back and correct them.

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, I join the committee in the unanimous report. I'm not that...I simply said it, sir, for the record.

Mr. Henry I understand; I understand, sir. I guess it's just evidence that this convention has a great deal of faith in that committee, obviously, and which I think is a compliment.

Question

Mr. Dennergy Are there any members of either house who are not elected, Justice Tate? In accordance with your rule about omitting needless words, why do you need "elected members of each house"?

Mr. Tate Because it means total membership. They wanted to be sure that it meant three-fourths of the total membership instead of three-fourths of those present that day.

[Amendment No. 42 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 43

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 43 deals with Section 19, Paragraph (A): Signing and Delivery of Bills.

Questions

Mr. Dennergy No, I just have a question. You say that it should be signed by the presiding officers. Now, I believe, previously, you said that the Senate had to elect a permanent presiding officer. Is that correct? I forget what section it is.

Mr. Tate Mr. Dennergy, we took the language as it passed the floor about the presiding officers and assumed that that's what it meant.

Mr. Dennergy In other words, it must be the permanent presiding officer of the Senate?

Mr. Tate We assume that that's what it meant when it said...when the convention floor passed it.

Amendment No. 46

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 46 dealing with Paragraph (B) of Section 20: dealing with the veto.

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, on this section as you have it here, we stylized it in accord with the language of...as it passed the floor. As you will see, there--when we get to Amendment No. 56--we raised a possible ambiguity, and we'll suggest it to your consideration at that time, in the event you agree with us that it's ambiguous. But, Amendment No. 46 is a stylized version in accordance with the manual on drafting of what passed the floor. But, I want to alert you that when we do come to Amendment No. 56, we'll point out a possible ambiguity in this section.

Question

Mr. Perez Do I understand, Judge Tate, that we're going to have two versions to decide upon? Is that correct?

Mr. Tate Yes, sir. This is...this version is as it passed the convention floor, stylized. When we get to 56, you will have...we will report to you what both committees thought was an ambiguity and how it should be clarified. The committee...the convention will either stay with 46 or adopt 56.

Motion

Mr. Perez Well, then I'd move that we pass over this amendment at this time, and then consider the two at the same time. We'll decide on which one we want at that time.

Mr. Henry You want to...let me ask you this, Mr. Perez: do you want to pass over it or do you want to move to...well, I guess that would be better.

Mr. Perez I'd move that we pass over it at this time, and let's wait and get to the controversial things later.

Mr. Tate May I ask...Mr. Chairman, may I ask Mr. Perez...may I say something to Mr. Perez and ask him to ask me a question?

Mr. Henry Proceed.

Mr. Tate For the purposes of the floor consideration, we had prepared Amendment No. 56 to replace Amendment No. 46. Do you not think that it would be just as convenient to adopt this stylized version now, and then either stay with it or not when we get to 56?

Mr. Perez If the Chair rules that that's appropriate and proper procedure, I'd have no objection.

Mr. Henry I think we could do it that way because it would be...it's always the last amendment which is adopted. So, it wouldn't cause any harm, Mr. Perez.

[Motion withdrawn. Amendment No. 46 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 47

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 47 which deals with Paragraph (C): Veto Sessions.

Question

Mr. Dennery Judge Tate, I know you and I disagree sometimes on the meaning of a split infinitive, and I will not raise the question; but do you not find split infinitives throughout these amendments?

Mr. Tate You and I disagree on what an infinitive means, and you looked in the dictionary and you showed me I was wrong. But, anyway, I always thought that splitting the infinitive that people don't like is: "to infinitely go" or "to immediately do." I never thought "has immediately done" violated the rule against split infinitives. But, anyway, we'll be consistently splitting that latter type of infinitives.

[Amendment No. 47 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 48

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 48 dealing with Section 22 in its entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, this is, again, an amendment on which both committees found some ambiguity which we will, in Amendment No. 59, ask you to clarify it. The amendment before you, however, incorporates the concept as it passed the floor and is restyled in accordance with the rules of drafting.

Question

Mr. Singletary Judge Tate, I noticed that you didn't put a brief title.

Mr. Tate May I apologize to the sister and brother delegates? I'm confused, as usual. It's in another section.

Mr. Henry Well, would you tell us why you are apologizing, Judge Tate?

Mr. Tate Because I'm confused.
All right, to answer the questions that have been raised, the reason we have no subtitle on this one is that we didn't delete Section 19 in the first enrollment, so the title is still there, Mr. Singletary.

[Amendment No. 48 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 49

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 49 deals with Section 23.

[Amendment No. 49 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 50

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 50 which deals with Section 24, Paragraph (A): Persons Liable.

Question

Mr. Perez I question whether or not the language as adopted is not better than the suggested changes by Style and Drafting. I'm not sure what that last clause modifies, "during his term of office."

Mr. Tate The...this, if I may comment, Mr. Chairman...

Mr. Chairman, as soon as this passed the floor, the author of it--whoever...who was the author of it--several people came and pointed out and someone, in fact, asked on the floor if they could not change where that "during the term of office"...

"During the term of office" had to refer not only to gross misconduct, but also for conviction of a felony or malfeasance during the term of office. It was suggested to us to clarify it, to remove the "during the term of office" to refer to "commission or conviction, during the term of office, of a felony, malfeasance, or for gross misconduct" because, otherwise, it was liable impeachment for commission or conviction of a felony, malfeasance, which could have meant at any time. You know, one of us that did something bad years ago could be impeached, you see, and only for gross misconduct during his term of office. So, this was a floor amendment--I mean, this was brought out during the debate, and suggestions were made at the very time it was passed. They said, "Well, leave it to Style and Drafting," and that's why we did what we did.

Mr. Avant Judge Tate, I'm no grammarian, but when you...I read the first one, and then I read the committee suggested amendment and--of course, I'm on the committee so maybe I went to sleep or something --but it looks to me like the gross misconduct "during his term of office"...I'm kind of disturbed about the point Mr. Perez raised: what the phrase "during his term of office" modifies. It looks to me like it modifies only "commission or conviction of a felony during his term of office," and the malfeasance or gross misconduct could have happened any time. I mean...

Mr. Tate The point is halfway well taken.

Mr. Henry Why don't we pass over this one, Judge?

Mr. Poynter Well, in that light, Mr. Chairman, do you want to pass over 51 too, which is Paragraph (B) of that same section?

Mr. Henry I think that was included in the motion, there--50 and 51.

[Motion to pass over Amendments Nos. 50, 51 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 52

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 52. On page 11, delete lines 19 through 24, both inclusive in their entirety. It deals with removal by suit; officials subject thereto.

[Amendment No. 52 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 53

Mr. Poynter The next amendment is Amendment No. 53 dealing with Section 26.

[Amendment No. 53 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 54

Mr. Poynter The next, 54, deals with Section 27, Paragraph (A), Mr. Chairman--Amendment No. 54.

[Amendment No. 54 adopted without objection.]

Amendment No. 55

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 55 deals with Paragraph (B) of the same section.

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, I'm not used to talking in a microphone.

Mr. Henry You'd never know it, Judge.

Mr. Tate But, again on 54 and 55, which we just passed, you will see in the yellow amendments we have a...we have something to correct a floor mistake that we want to bring to your attention.

[Amendment No. 55 adopted without objection.]

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, the next five amendments, now, are the five amendments which bear committee notes or committee caveats, if you will. At your pleasure and the convention's pleasure we also have...we passed over, now, three, I believe, or at least two sections we've passed over. I don't know if they are ready or not. I have two or three other amendments up here by Mr. Tobias which go back to prior material.

Recess

[Quorum Call: 81 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendment No. 56

Mr. Poynter Next amendment is Amendment No. 56 which goes back...affecting the veto provision--Paragraph (B) thereof.

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, as it passed the floor, and as it was stylized, the third sentence of this article reads: "If the legislature adjourns before he--meaning the governor--vetoes or returns one or more bills, he shall return them with his veto message as provided by law."

The committee...some members of the committee felt that this might mean that if the legislature...adjourned before he had vetoed even one bill, then he should return all of them, or something, with his veto message as provided by law. To make it clear that the intent of the convention body was that if...is the following, we recommended this change:

"If the governor returns or vetoes a bill after the legislature adjourns, he shall return it, with his veto message, as provided by law." In other words, some members felt that was an ambiguity that should be--possible be clarified by the House. We...other members just think it's a stylistic amendment. But, in the excess of caution, we present it to you separately.

Mr. Chairman, I'm open to questions. If there are no questions, I...whatever I'm supposed to do. I move for its favorable adoption.

[Amendment No. 56 adopted without objection. Motion to pass over Amendment No. 57 adopted without objection.]

Amendments Nos. 58 and 59

Mr. Poynter Next amendment is Amendment No. 58, dealing with Section 27, Paragraph (A). I guess, almost, that's got to be considered in globo with 59, which is (B). Doesn't it all go together, Judge Tate?...58 and 59 really go together as a team to...on the problem raised by the original Drew amendment. Isn't that correct?

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, in connection with that, my yellow sheet just disappeared with the official extract of the...debates of the day. But what...here is what happened.

You see before you in the green sheets...what? On the green sheets we stylized 27 (A) and (B) as the Official Journal of the convention reflected. However, it was discovered that Mr. Drew had two amendments that day. Through mechanical error, the first enrollment reflects an amendment he did not present; but the yellow sheet you have here in Amendments 58 and 59 reflects the actual amendment he did present. We took the...we have an extract of the verbatim transcript of the proceedings of August 1, 1973, and it shows the following: the Clerk reads the amendment--he reads the amendment that you see now in the green sheets in the first enrolled copy. Then, Mr. Drew says, "Mr. Clerk, we are confused again on amendments. The amendment that I am offering this time reads...". Then he reads to the Clerk the exact amendment that's on your yellow...yellow copy as true...

Section 27 (A) and (B), instead of the 27 (A) and (B) as stylized and as reflected by the Journal. There is no question of this...that's a transcript, that's a recollection of the desk and it's recollection of everybody. It was thought that the quickest...most quickest, convenient way to clarify this inadvertent error and slight changes in language, was to report to you these amendments of 27 (A) and (B) to reflect the true amendment that passed...that did pass the house. I have here the transcript if anybody wants to look at it.

Questions

Mr. Pugh Justice Tate, what benefit does the Style and Drafting Committee think the phrase, "and other officials elected statewide" adds to it? What does that do for it?

It says, "The members of the legislature shall take office on the same day as the governor." What does "and other officials elected statewide" do for it?

Mr. Tate Mr. Pugh, we were, in this instance, in the peculiar position of having to recommend to you something that the Journal did not show you had passed. We did not wish to complicate it further by stylizing section...stylizing it further, as I understand our position on the thing.

Incidentally, in the final rearrangement--that's the only thing that's left--this would be moved up to Section 2. But, we wouldn't do that tonight. We'd do it at a later date.

Mr. Pugh What...would the committee be able to remove that language? Can we do that?

Mr. Tate We...need an amendment now, Mr. Pugh. I don't think we should...if you wouldn't mind. There's a lot of merit in what you say, but let's...I'm inclined to say let's take it as it left the floor. It's not very bad.

[Amendments Nos. 58, 59 adopted without objection.]

Mr. Henry All right. Now, Mr. Tobias has got an amendment that's going to have to be treated, if we treat it at all, like we did the Perez amendment. I don't know the purpose of it. So, Mr. Clerk, you or Judge Tate or Mr. Tobias better...sort of lay the ground work so that we can decide what we want to do.

Amendment No. 60

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the amendment that I am talking about is the one that reads, on page 3, deletes lines 29 through 31.

Amendment No. 60 of the Style and Drafting Committee--there are two small errors in that amendment. There should not be a comma at the end of the second line; there should not be a comma after the word "district" in the third line. In other words, all that my amendment does is, in effect, delete those two commas.

Mr. Henry These are just super technical amendments? Is that correct, Mr. Tobias?

Mr. Tobias That is correct.

Mr. Henry All right. Judge Tate.

Explanation

Mr. Tate I should report, though, first on the merits...the merits of the thing was, some members...this section 4 (D) provides that a vacancy in the legislature shall be filled for the remainder of the term only by election as provided by law.

Some members of the committee felt that we should specify that it's only by election by the electors--by the people. Other members were not sure that it was necessary. But we...because of the concern of some members of both committees, we present that to you. We're not...some of us are not sure it's necessary. But, if it's necessary, I guess Mr. Tobias' amendment without commas is...

[Amendment No. 60 adopted without objection. Motion to suspend the rules to reconsider the vote by which Section 4 of Committee Proposal No. 3 was adopted for consideration of Amendment No. 60 only.]

Reconsideration

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Tobias]. On page 3, delete lines 29 through 31, both inclusive in their entirety. Mr. Tobias, just in an abundance of saying a lot of words--maybe we don't need to again--but I'd like to say, and delete Committee Amendment No. 60.

Mr. Henry. All right. Now, all this does is eliminate those two commas in Committee Amendment No. 60. Is that right, Mr. Tobias?

Mr. Tobias That is correct.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 78-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Point of Information

Mr. Guarisco Mr. Chairman, I think maybe some time could be served, possibly, if we could...I move that we recommit these amendments to the Committee on Style and Drafting so that these changes can be made, rather than doing them on the floor.

Mr. Henry Mr. Guarisco, that's what I'm talking to Mr. Poynter about here, now. We...apparently there have been some grammatical errors, or some...errors of punctuation made that there are about four amendments here to correct. Now, I don't think--and then I'm exercising my prerogative--I don't think it's very wise for us to continue to do this by separate amendments as we are. I think it would be appropriate for us, now, to recommit the proposal to the Committee on Style and Drafting. I don't think it'll take but just about fifteen minutes of you all meeting.

Judge Tate, you might comment to that.

Mr. Tate All right, if we can get a quorum. Actually, these four little amendments--two of them are to take care of the rule of the singular that my friend, Moise Dennery, raised that I tried to sweep under the rug: one is to add two words, "prior thereto," into something; and one is to restore the floor language on gross misconduct. I don't think any of them are controversial. I think we can...either way we do it, I think we can do it right away because I don't think there is anything controversial about them...All issues have been raised.

Motion

Mr. Perez I move that we return to other orders of business, and we can, hopefully, take care of this matter tomorrow morning.

Mr. Henry Well, if...let me suggest that we do one of two things. If we can...if you all want to wrap them up, let's wrap them up, or, either, just recommit the whole thing. I hate to leave these amendments dangling like this, Mr. Perez.

Mr. Perez Are there any of these sections that we...apparently will become controversial?--Particular the Jenkins thing, I'm thinking about.

Mr. Henry I think we've resolved that. I understand that none of these are controversial. Do you think we can dispose of them in ten or fifteen minutes?

Point of Information

Mr. Blair Just a point of information or suggestion.

I wonder if Style and Drafting couldn't meet for about three minutes? I think they are together already. All they have to do is just get their amendments together.

Mr. Henry I think I misjudged the amendments here, Senator. You've got to go through the process of recommitting it, then having a committee report. So, perhaps we'll do well to go ahead... if they are just technical little amendments, let's go ahead and see what we've got here.

[Motion withdrawn.]

Amendments

Mr. Poynter All right. The next set of amendments are the Tobias amendments that go to Section 14. There are two amendments. Now, as I'd appreciate it, these would be in lieu of what...about 26 and...26 and 27. We passed over earlier...

Mr. Henry We passed over 26, 27, and 28, if I'm not in error, Mr. Clerk.

Mr. Poynter That's correct, Mr. Chairman. This would be just for 26 and 27. Right, Mr. Tobias? In effect...so that he would move to withdraw them if these were adopted.

He sends up amendments, Mr. Chairman, and again he'd have to ask for, I guess, a suspension to do that...to reconsider Section 14 like we...

Mr. Henry Well, let him say what the purpose of it is, before we make the motion here.

Explanation

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, the purpose of these two amendments is to meet the objections which Delegate Dennery had to the plural words, "its agencies" or "political subdivisions." All that these amendments do--at least Amendment No. 1 does--is singularize "agency" and "subdivision". With respect to Amendment No. 2, the word that is changed, on line 3, is...we changed the word "and" to "or" to conform to Amendment No. 28 which uses the phrase "or a political subdivision" to make it consistent throughout. That was the sole intent of those two amendments.

[Motion to suspend the rules to reconsider the vote by which Section 14 of Committee Proposal No. 3 was passed.]

Point of Information

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, are these typographical errors, or is this some disagreement among committee members? I see the people that served on the committee up here with these amendments. Are they typographical errors, or...

Mr. Henry Well, the first one that we adopted a while ago, in typing it, I understand it was a staff error of putting two commas in the wrong place.

Now, this 26--Amendments 26, 27, and 28--there was some concern between Mr. Dennery and Judge Tate as to what was what...this just gets some grammatical changes made in there.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Asseff Mr. Chairman, when changes are made in the report of the committee--and I am a member of it--I am reluctant to proceed without a committee meeting. I mean, I feel that we...following your original advice, we could have settled it in a few minutes. I mean I'm in agreement with the Senator. We are moving like this, and we are changing a committee report. We do not have the chance to look at it.

O.K. with me.

[Rules Suspended without objection.]

Reconsideration

Explanation

Mr. Tobias I think most people understand what the purpose is. It's just to singularize the words "agency", "subdivision"; in Amendment No. 2, to change the word "and" to "or".

[Amendments adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 79-0. Motion to withdraw Amendments Nos. 26, 27 of the Report of the Committee on Style and Drafting adopted without objection. Amendment No. 28 previously passed over adopted without objection.]

Point of Information

Mr. Dennerly I think the Journal might be confusing. I think we have already adopted Section 14, and now we have adopted an amendment to Section 14.

Won't you have to now readopt Section 14?

Mr. Henry Well...

No, sir, because what we did on the Tobias amendments...

Mr. Dennerly Sections...that was Paragraphs (A) and (B), and you just adopted an amendment to Paragraph (C), did you not?

Mr. Henry Well...this twenty-eight is a Style and Drafting amendment, Mr. Dennerly, as opposed to the amendments offered by Mr. Tobias which were floor amendments. It makes a difference. I know it seems confusing. But, for us to comply with the rules, that's about the way we've got to do it.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The Tobias amendment--and you may want to compare that to the green copy there--reads "Section 19 (A) Signing; Delivery.

A bill passed by both Houses shall be signed by the presiding officers and delivered to the governor within three days after passage."

Explanation

Mr. Tobias Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if you will look at Amendment No. 43 of the Style and Drafting Committee Proposal, you will note that there is a comma after the word "governor" in the third line. My amendment would delete the comma. It's unnecessary. It was an error. If you will look on the green copy with respect to that Section 19 (A), you will see that in the green copy there was no comma.

Mr. Henry Well, what this is is just a change in punctuation?

Mr. Tobias Correct. It just deletes a comma.

Mr. Henry That's in Section 19. Right?

Mr. Tobias Correct.

Motion

Mr. Henry Mr. Tobias now moves for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of reconsidering the vote by which Section 19 was adopted for the specific purpose of considering this floor amendment.

[Rules Suspended without objection.]

Reconsideration

Amendment

Mr. Poynter I'm making a change for clarity's sake again, like I did before.

Amendment No. 1. Page 9, delete lines 10 through 14, both inclusive in lieu entirety, and Committee Amendment No. 43 adopted by the convention on today, November 18. Insert in lieu thereof of the language.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 81-0. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Judge Tate has passed out an amendment, now. That amendment is in lieu of a...or he would like for it to be in lieu of Amendment No. 57, which is one of the amendments containing a note. It's found on page 11 of the white copy--or the original amendment was--and on your yellow sheets, I guess on the second page. Was it second page, Judge Tate? Yes, the second page of your yellow distribution.

In lieu of that proposed language, Judge Tate would like for a suspension of the rules to offer the proposed amendment--the floor amendment that bears his name.

Explanation

Mr. Tate All right. Mr. Chairman, as the Section 21 passed the floor, it was through amendments by Representative Jenkins. He concurs in the final revision with which we are presenting to you. It said, "all laws shall be published in the Official Journal. The statement shall take effect on the sixtieth day...thereafter shall take effect on the sixtieth day after final adjournment." In other words, it will take effect on the sixtieth day after publication.

There were two defects in this--two serious defects. One is, for instance, if the Official Journal was on strike or ceased publication, the law wouldn't become effective, or if the publisher didn't do it.

Second is, to figure the date that it came into effect, you'd have to keep a permanent record of the State Times. The laws have come on different effect according to publication. That was not Representative Jenkins' intent. So, to reflect the true intent, and the intent of the body, we are proposing that you say "all laws shall take effect on the sixtieth day after final adjournment."--that gives you a final...a definite date--"and shall be published prior thereto...shall be published prior thereto in the Official Journal of the state as provided by law." The law, of course, could provide in the event of some emergency...in the event of some emergency, it would regulate the situation we are worried with. I understand that Mr. Jenkins has no objection to this amendment. It reflects his basic intent which is that no law shall take effect unless first published...unless in dire circumstances.

There is, of course, the exception that was on the floor--passed the floor--that says, "however, any bill may specify an earlier or later effective date." That should take care of emergency bills.

Mr. Chairman, I'm open for questions. If there are no questions, I make the...

Motion

Mr. Henry You moved for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of reconsidering the vote by which on calling from the table, the motion to reconsider the vote by which Section 21 of Committee Proposal No. 3 was adopted, Judge Tate?

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Mr. Tate That's exactly the motion.

Mr. Henry For the specific purpose of considering your amendment?
Is that right?

Mr. Tate Yes, sir. That's exactly my motion.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Questions

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, and...I'd like to ask this question of Judge Tate. I'm a little bit concerned about the way...because I do think that this particular amendment, as he's redrafted here, makes a substantial change in the law--that is, in the original proposal as we had it--that the amendment, as I take it, that no law can become effective until after it has been published except those that provide for a different date.

Mr. Tate "...or except as provided by law." I would anticipate that you in the legislature--when you pass your statute on it--you will say, "they shall be published in the Official Journal, etc., etc.,"...say, "however, in the event the Official Journal of the state is on strike"--or something like that--I would anticipate you would provide for the emergency, Senator.

Mr. De Blieux Well, the thing is, if that's not provided in the law...now, let's take a situation. I'll give you an example. Suppose that the laws were passed, that ordinarily would become effective on, we'll say the thirtieth day of September--just using that date, the thirtieth day of September. Now, the laws are submitted to the Official Journal for publication. Somehow or another, they get down to around about the twentieth day of September, and they've got a strike, or something of that sort. Now, we could not anticipate that at the time we passed those laws. We'd just pass them ordinarily--relative. Now, if those laws are not published, they don't become effective on that particular date. That's why I think that you--that this particular amendment you have--that you are making a substantial change in what we originally published...or passed. Now, as I see it, the proposal that you originally proposed is much, much better than what this amendment is coming up with.

Mr. Tate Senator, I wish you would study...Oh, the one we originally proposed--yes. But, Representative Jenkins called to our attention that it was his intent that it shouldn't become effective until published. As it passed the floor, it says it will become effective only sixty days after it's published, which will be an impossible job in figuring the effective date of laws--criminal statutes and all that. Depending on which--Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, you know, Friday--which week they are published in the State-Times. We were trying...in our original proposal, we did not think he meant that. We thought he just meant that laws should be eventually published. But, he...and pursuant to his request, and in view of the fact that the...it was closer to the original meaning of the floor, we...I personally agreed to sponsor the amendment that says, "it shall not take effect prior to publication as provided by law", which, I think--it's never happened before. Up to now, they have to be published within thirty days. The new constitution gives...I mean they become effective thirty days after enactment. Now, they become effective sixty days after the session. This gives more time. I think that this gives enough flexibility, Senator, to take care of Representative Jenkins' concept that was...somewhat incorporated in the floor amendment. Also, the very practical objections of it was applied literally.

Mr. De Blieux Well, I just don't think it's--I'm not going to argue the point because I just don't think it's that important. But, I just wanted to say that I think we are making a change. I can see some time possibility there.

Mr. Tate Senator, frankly, I agree, also, with the committee thing, it reflects my concept more. However, the...as a matter of fact...Senator, Representative Jenkins said--and the literal wording does say--it shouldn't become effective until after publication, so it looks like...

Mr. Jenkins Judge Tate, let me make one correction in what you said about the thing we originally adopted.

The proposal we originally adopted said, "and thereafter shall take effect on the sixtieth day after final adjournment of the session."

Mr. Tate After publication...

Mr. Jenkins No. It doesn't say that.

Mr. Tate Well...

Mr. Jenkins It says, "on the sixtieth day after adjournment of the session." It says, "all laws shall be published in the Official Journal of the state as provided by law, and thereafter shall take effect on the sixtieth day after final adjournment of the session." So, it would have to be sixty days.

Anyway, the point that I am making is that, the original proposal by the committee did, in fact, make a substantive change which would have been prohibited. What you now have is merely a technical change clearing up any ambiguities, and thus retains the same intent and effect as the original for all purposes.

Mr. Tate Thanks, Mr. Jenkins. I accept your suggestion.

Mr. Willis Mr. Justice Tate, don't you think that the...an explanation of the distinction between promulgation and publishing would be edifying to understand what you are driving at?

Mr. Tate Yes. Would you ask it in the form of a question because...

Mr. Willis Well, let me ask you this question. Isn't it a fact that the secretary of state promulgates the laws?--and that you are talking about publishing in the State-Times, and that there is a distinction between the two?

Mr. Tate Yes, sir. That's exactly right.

Mr. Willis The promulgation required is that which the secretary of state does?

Mr. Tate The...

Mr. Pugh Judge, I appreciate the distinction as indicated by Delegate Willis. If we eliminated the words "prior thereto," do you not think that all of the problems would be resolved?

Mr. Tate Mr. Pugh, that was our original amendment. But, Mr. Jenkins pointed out--and I think, correctly--that that would be a substantive change. We thought that it was not a substantive change, or at least it was so ambiguous that it deserved the attention of the floor. But, I am more than willing, myself, to say that the amendment with the words, "prior thereto," more nearly reflects the intention of the floor than what our committee did--although I think what our committee did, and what the legislative committee did--was better. But, I think Mr. Jenkins' amendment--the amendment that I'm proposing now--with "prior thereto" is more stylistically...more stylistic and less substantive and I'm willing to go with it.

Mr. Pugh But, to get down to the law, to strike "prior thereto," then there can never be a question about the validity of the law in Louisiana. Whether or not it's ever printed, it's a valid law.

Mr. Tate Mr. Pugh, I agree with you that's what it ought to be. But it seems to me that the convention, whether it...whether after full deliberation or not, did accept the idea that it wouldn't become effective unless it was published--until after it was published. However, with the amendment "prior thereto as provided by law," I think we've given some flexibility to the thing so that we can live with it.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Tate, from what I understand of your comments, what you are trying to do is avoid the case in which the publisher sets the effective date of the law by grinding his wheels to a halt.

Mr. Tate Right.

Mrs. Zervigon You say, "shall be published prior thereto." What is the "prior thereto" referring to?

Mr. Tate The sixtieth day.

Mrs. Zervigon It's referring to the sixtieth day. It is not referring to the taking of effect of a law?

Mr. Tate Both.

Mrs. Zervigon Then the publisher can still set the effective date.

Mr. Tate No, no...well, as provided by law...

Mrs. Zervigon Well, it seems to me that the "as provided by law" means on yellow paper, in five columns, let by public bid, but that you can't make an exception to this "prior thereto" because that's a constitutional deal by statute.

Mr. Tate Mrs. Zervigon, in a minute I'll let Mr. Flory bail me out. Mrs. Zervigon, I...personally, if I were able to vote over again, I would leave out "prior thereto", but I do think that if you read what passed the floor, it said it won't take effect until after publication. Whether that's wise or not, we did not...I'm willing to accept Representative Jenkins' suggestion that we may have exceeded what we should have done when we recommended leaving that out.

Mrs. Zervigon In other words, what you are saying is while you would like to bail us out of the box of the publisher setting the effective date of laws, you see no way to do it without substantive change?

Mr. Tate Yes...although I do think that "prior by law"...if your choice is between my amendment and the floor amendment, it's even worse, because the date it becomes effective is...

Mr. Flory Judge, what we found ourselves in the position was that the convention wanted it published, but they didn't want the publisher to determine the effective date of the law. Also, what you are doing in this clarification amendment is that the law can provide for the Official Journal to be a different publisher in the event of certain extenuating circumstances is the reason it clarifies and gives the flexibility.

Mr. Tate Yes, sir. I would say it can also provide...

Amendment No. 57

Mr. Poynter Judge Tate would now, I'm sure, want to take up Committee Amendment No. 57 and move to withdraw it in light of the passage of this last one, Mr. Chairman--No. 57 on page...

[2520]

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Mr. Poynter The last thing pending at the desk: the convention, so far, has passed over Amendments Nos. 50 and 51 that affect Section 24. Mr. Avant does have an amendment to affect the Paragraph (A) of Section 24.

Motion

Mr. Henry Mr. Avant now moves for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of reconsidering... for the purpose of calling from the table the motion to reconsider the vote by which Section 24 was adopted, for the specific purpose of considering his amendment.

[Motion adopted without objection.]

Explanation

Mr. Tate Mr. Chairman, this is the Avant amendment. It's simply to clarify the objection that Mr. Perez raised--which was a good objection. As it passed the floor, it was ambiguous where only the gross misconduct had occurred in office, or also the commission or conviction of a felony had to be in office. Mr. Avant is proposing it, this amendment, to make it clear that both the commission and conviction of a--during his term of office, has to be during the term of office--also the gross misconduct has to be during the term of office, subjecting an official to impeachment. I think that's clearly the intent; it's the intent of the floor amendment as it...the floor as it passed. It was our intent to end that ambiguity that created a new ambiguity.

Questions

Mr. Champagne In other words, he is subject to impeachment only if it occurred during his term of office.

Mr. Tate Yes, sir.

Mr. Champagne Thank you, sir.

Mr. Tate Whether it's a gross misconduct or conviction or commission, yes.

Mr. Alexander I notice you corrected that, Judge Tate. But, I'm wondering it is not clear here whether the language would infer that the offense may occur other than in connection with his office or employment.

Mr. Tate Mr...Reverend Alexander, neither was the floor amendment. In other words, if a fellow had a burglary of an opposition party's offices, it might not technically be in connection with his office but, he still might be liable if he committed or is convicted of that. It doesn't have to be...he might steal...from his client if he is a lawyer and all.

Mr. Alexander That explains it; thank you.

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 78-0. Motion to reconsider tabled. Amendment No. 50 withdrawn. Amendment No. 51 adopted without objection.]

Personal Privilege

Mr. Tate Listen, really, on behalf of the Committee on Style and Drafting, we do appreciate very much your courtesy and your study and your willingness and your suffering through this hour...these hours. Thank you so very much for your help.

89th Days Proceedings—November 18, 1973

Mr. Henry Thank you, Judge Tate.

Personal Privilege

Mr. Rayburn That in the future, that if we have some technical amendments that's really not basically changing the law, that we refer the proposal back to the committee or we either suspend the rules and not require a record vote. We have spent about eight hundred dollars here tonight doing some things, in my opinion, that maybe will just clarify the technical amendment. If it is something that changes the law or basically changes it, I think we should recommit it back. We can save quite a bit of money and quite a bit of time, in my opinion. I just offer that as a suggestion because it is my understanding that each record vote costs, to print in the Journal, fifty dollars plus.

Mr. Henry Your point is well taken, Senator. The reason...

Mr. Rayburn So, what we have done here tonight with the little technical amendments, which the committee could have straightened out; we would have come back and everything would have been lovely. Every time we had to redo a little something, we spent about fifty dollars on each record vote--it had to be published in the Journal--if my figures are correct.

Mr. Henry Your point is well taken, and your figures are not quite correct--it costs about fifteen dollars, but that's still...we spent seventy-five dollars doing that. In all fairness to the committee, I think this was the first report they were making, we were having a trial run. But, your point is well taken. We're not going to do this because there are other problems like if we open up one of these sections and it doesn't get reclosed, then we've got some very serious problems.

Personal Privilege

Mr. LeBleu Judge Tate and his remarks sounded as if this was going to be the last bout with the Committee on Styling and Drafting. I just wondered if he had planned to leave us any time soon.

Personal Privilege

Mr. De Blieux I just wanted to give Senator Rayburn the correct figures on the cost of a record vote. It's eighteen dollars, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. Henry And, the correct cost is fifteen dollars, Senator De Blieux.

Point of Information

Mr. Perez Point of information. I would like to know what we will be considering tomorrow or what the Chair suggests that we should...

Mr. Henry We are going to take up first of all, Delegate Proposal No. 23 tomorrow--balanced budget, after we get through with that, Delegate Proposal No. 12, which is uniform compensation for members of all state boards. We will start with those two.

Mr. Perez And what after that?

Mr. Henry Well, there is a good chance we are going to get into these provisions...the Delegate Proposal Nos. 67, 71, and 72.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to call Delegate Proposal No. 23 from its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

Mr. Poynter Delegate Proposal No. 23, introduced by Delegate Abraham.

Which is relative to appropriations by the legislature for the state budget.

Constitutes one section, Article III, Section 8. Appropriation--in particular one paragraph of said Section 18 (F): Total appropriations for the year shall not exceed anticipated annual revenues as projected by the governor in the operating budget.

Explanation

Mr. Abraham Fellow delegates, when we went through the Executive Article--and we had provisions in the Executive Article that the...for the governor to prepare the operating budget for the state and that the governor must prepare a balanced budget--we put a provision in there in Section 5 that the governor must balance the budget; that he either had to veto line items or use other means that may be provided in the bill and/or that the total appropriations for the year would not exceed the anticipated revenues. In the article on revenue and taxation, Committee Proposal No. 15, we state that "The total appropriation made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than the anticipated revenues for the state." Well, in comparing all this, I find that we have not done anything in the Legislative Article which requires the legislature to present a balanced budget to the governor for approval or to keep the appropriations in balance with the anticipated revenues. In order to avoid having to go through various articles in the constitution, I think that we do need, in the article dealing with the legislature and appropriations, that there does need to be language in there which will require the legislature to present a balanced budget--that in making their appropriations for the year that these appropriations should be in balance with the anticipated annual revenues. Now, if you will recall, there was a discussion earlier--I think it was on the Legislative Article--as to whether or not the revenues would be those as projected by the governor or by whom, and that I will not quarrel with. This delegate proposal was submitted prior to this discussion coming up. But, I do think that it is necessary that in the Legislative Article dealing with...in the section dealing with appropriations, that there should be some limitation on the legislature so that they must present a balanced budget, rather than having to make up a budget that is out of balance and send it on to the governor and depend on the governor then to veto various items in order to bring the budget back into balance. I, therefore, ask your favorable consideration of this proposal.

[2522]

Questions

Mr. Alexander Mr. Abraham, was not a similar proposal adopted with the Executive Committee...I mean the Committee on the Executive Department before?

Mr. Abraham Yes. This report was reported favorably by the Committee on the Executive Branch.

Mr. Alexander And it was adopted, was it not?

Mr. Abraham Yes.

Mr. Alexander So, what you are trying to do is get it from both ends--both the Legislative and the Executive?

Mr. Abraham Well, we provided that the governor must veto line items in order to bring the budget back into balance. But, I think that a limitation does need to be in the Legislative Article to require the legislature to do this before it ever submits it to the governor.

Mr. Alexander I see, sir...

Mr. Abraham This is what I am trying to accomplish here.

Mr. Alexander You are trying to prevent the legislature from directing salary increases, etc. without appropriating the money. Is that correct?

Mr. Abraham Whatever it may be.

Mr. Munson Mr. Abraham, I'm all for what you are trying to do, of course, which is to have a balanced budget. But, can you give me in a little more detail how this would be accomplished?

Mr. Abraham Well, I think it provides that before the appropriation bill goes to the governor for his signature, that it must be in balance.

Mr. Munson Before it goes to the governor, it must be in balance?

Mr. Abraham Right.

Mr. Munson Well, that's my point. A majority of the legislature can vote--as you well know--on any appropriations just like any other matter, so what's the penalty? Suppose it's not? How would it actually be accomplished is what I am trying to find out.

Mr. Abraham Well, Bob, how will anything be accomplished? What's the penalty to the governor if he does not veto line items to bring it back into balance?

Mr. Munson Well, let me say this, too, that we also have a legislative auditor. Now, we get estimates of anticipated income from about six or seven difference sources. Which estimate are we going to abide by?

Mr. Abraham Bob, if you will recall, this proposal, I said, was drawn up prior to the language which came out of the Committee Proposal No. 15. I would not quarrel with who is going to project the anticipated annual revenues because in Committee Proposal No. 15...

Mr. Munson I know you wouldn't quarrel with it; but, since we have several projections, don't you think you should...in order to accomplish what you are trying to accomplish, you should say what estimate is going to be used as a basis for a balanced budget because, after all, it is an estimated income.

Mr. Abraham Well, the language that we have used in both the Executive Article and in the Committee Proposal No. 15, we just said "anticipated revenues." This is why I say I will accept an amendment to reword this that it will not exceed the anticipated revenues. The language that is in here now was what was originally proposed. Since that time the convention has agreed or has decided that we would simply say "anticipated revenues."

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Munson But my point, Mr. Abraham, is, for instance, that this last session the Division of Administration, which represents the governor and is a part of the governor's office, actually that is the figure that we were using in making--I say we, the Budget Committee and the Appropriation Committee and the Senate Finance Committee--in making appropriations. However, the legislature showed an inclination--at least some of the members did--to use an estimate that was projected by the legislative auditor, which was some six million dollars over and above what the Division of Administration has estimated. So, don't you think we should say... you should say, at least, what estimate we are going to use as anticipated income?

Mr. Abraham Bob, in Committee Proposal No. 4, we used the language that "total appropriations for the year shall not exceed anticipated revenues for the year." In Committee Proposal No. 15, which is the one on Revenue and Taxation, we state "the total appropriations made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than the anticipated revenues of the state." Now, I agree that the language ought to be consistent. I will accept amendments--in fact, I will prepare one to make this language consistent with what we have already said. The point I'm trying to make here is that rather than having to chase all through the various articles of the constitution to find this, that if this particular thing should be in the Legislative Article.

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Abraham, Representative Munson touched on what I was interested in. You make these figures absolutely subject to the governor's projections in this particular article. Now, wouldn't that, in effect, have the governor--you might say--deciding the budget himself? Then, too, if he wanted more money than the legislature thought that they had available, all he has to do is just set the budget higher so that they would have the leeway to appropriate it; isn't that correct?

Mr. Abraham No, Senator De Blieux, I'll say again that the language should be...in this proposal should be amended to agree with the language that we have proposed in Committee Proposal No. 15 and what we have already adopted in Article IV, you see.

Mr. De Blieux Well, wouldn't it be better that we just not pass this particular proposal right now, and take up that particular section in Article XV? Wouldn't that be a better procedure?

Mr. Abraham No, because I think that we need to have this particular language in the Legislative Article, since it does deal with the legislature. We should not have to chase through various articles of the constitution to find out this particular limitation that might...that's on the legislature.

Mr. De Blieux Financing the government deals with the legislature too. So, isn't that the appropriate place to put it--where the legislature is making the appropriations?

Mr. Abraham Well, we have in the Legislative Article a section dealing with appropriations. We also have an article in the...section in the Article XV...or Committee Proposal No. 15 dealing with appropriations.

Mr. De Blieux Well, isn't that the proper place for this article because that's the article that's going to be making the appropriations for the operation of the government?

Mr. Abraham Then, why would we have anything dealing with appropriations in the Legislative Article? Why should it not all be in the Revenue and Taxation Article?

Mr. De Blieux All you would need in the Legislative Article is the power of the legislature.

Mr. Lowe Mr. Abraham, what I'm concerned about is your wording. I understand what your intent is. But, do you realize what you are saying is that "total appropriations"--and you're using the terminology "total appropriations for the year shall not exceed anticipated annual revenues"? Now, when you say "anticipated annual revenues," and you identify that "as projected by the governor in the operating budget," well, now the operating budget isn't going to take care of total appropriations, because you not only have your operating budget, you have capital expenditures, and capital expenditures is part of a total appropriation, but it's not in the operating budget. You also have debt retirement; you have to service your bonds and your interest; and that's not part of your operating budget. The operating budget is identified with the year-to-year operations of the state, as I appreciate it. I think there is some problem with your wording that is going to get us in trouble, because you're saying the total appropriation that we can make is that amount that's in the operating budget. Well, how do we get into our total appropriation capital outlay and debt retirement?

Mr. Abraham Well, Bob, the money to retire the bonds comes out of the operating budget, comes out of the general revenues; does it not?

Mr. Lowe As I appreciate it, the operating budget is just the operation of the state. As I appreciate it, the capital outlays and debt retirement is separate from the operating budget. Well, that's my appreciation, Mack, and I'm a little concerned about the wording; do you realize that?

Mr. Abraham Yes, I appreciate that. As I said, I will accept amendments to this to reword this thing to bring it into conformity with what we have already agreed on in the Executive Article and what is being proposed on in the Committee Proposal No. 15.

Mr. Jenkins Mack, with regard to Monday Lowe's question, isn't it true that what you've said that the total appropriations during the year cannot exceed the total revenues anticipated in the budget, not the total spending anticipated in the budget, because the spending in the budget will probably be less than the revenues in the budget--since you have a lot of other appropriation bills--but, total appropriations could not expend total revenues in the governor's budget. That would be workable, wouldn't it?

Mr. Abraham That's correct.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this proposal because I really can't understand it. It says "anticipated annual revenues as projected by the governor"--by the governor, if you please--"in the operating budget." Now, let me briefly tell you how the Budget Committee prepares the budget now, and certainly the governor of the state has the final say: We prepare it, along with the Division of Administration and his personnel, and submit it to him for final approval to submit to the legislature. We have been for several years calling in the legislative auditor; the Division of Administration, who is the governor's right arm; the state treasurer, who is very familiar with the financial structure and the finances of this state; PAR--we bring them before our committee. We also bring the Department of Revenue; we also have L. S. U. to send someone and also L. S. U. of New Orleans; we also call in the Department of Conservation. We get their projections on how much additional revenue will be available to be used or spent in the next fiscal year. After we have heard all of these people, then we reach a happy medium.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Point of Order

Mr. Dennery I rise to a point of order, Mr. Chairman. I understood that the usual procedure was that after the proponent explained a proposal, that the Chair asked if there were any amendments to the proposal; then people spoke against it.

Mr. Henry Mr. Dennery, there are no amendments that I know of, and you're absolutely correct.

Point of Information

Mr. Rayburn It was my understanding, Mr. Chairman, that you had no amendments at the time.

Mr. Henry Beg your pardon?

Mr. Rayburn I say it was my understanding there were no amendments at the desk at the time.

Mr. Henry I was not aware that we did. If you will, let us go ahead and take care of this amendment right quick, please, sir.

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Abraham sends up a technical amendment, Mr. Chairman.

On page 1, delete line 8 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:--in caps--
"ARTICLE III. LEGISLATIVE BRANCH"

Next line: "Section 18. Appropriations"

Then, three asterisks (***) indicating that there is material to be passed over that this proposal is not affecting.

Mr. Henry All right. It's more or less a technical amendment, is it not?

Mr. Poynter Just clears up the title of it, Mr. Chairman, on line 8.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter I don't have the distribution copies, but the desk copies [are] sent up by Pugh, Stagg, and Abraham. They read:

On page 1, line 11...delete line 11 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof "legislative auditor."

Explanation

Mr. Abraham This amendment changes the word "governor" to the "legislative auditor." I think the legislature uses the legislative auditor in order to help them determine what the anticipated revenues would be; and since the legislative auditor is an arm of the legislature, then, I think that this would be more properly put in the Legislative Article.

Questions

Mr. Bollinger Mack, it was my interpretation of David's reading the amendment that it deleted all of line 11. If so, you're not just changing the word "governor" to "legislative auditor," are you?

Mr. Abraham Well, it's projected by the legislative auditor; that's right.

Mr. Bollinger But, I mean...

Mr. Abraham But, we deleted all of line 11; that's true.

Mr. Bollinger The operating budget which was a problem of Delegate Lowe's, right?

Mr. Abraham Right.

Mr. Munson Mr. Abraham, I said a few moments ago that the House had shown some inclination on using the estimates made by the legislative auditor's office. But, did you know that the legislative auditor's office actually does not have the staff or the wherewithal, and they don't live with the budget processes on a day-to-day basis at all, like the Division of Administration does? It would be very difficult for the legislative auditor's office to--without a great deal of additional staff--to make these day-to-day estimates of the economy of the country in order to determine what the anticipated revenue is going to be.

Mr. Abraham Well, Mr....

Mr. Munson Out of all of the estimates that we get from different agencies, I would say that the...I think Joe Bards would tell you himself that they are not set up to make these kind of estimates.

Mr. Abraham Well, that may be true, Mr. Munson.

Further Discussion

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment. Certainly the auditor knows considerably what's going on in this state, but after all, he just audits the expenditures. If you are going to leave it to one person, I would lot rather see it left to someone that knows more about the revenues than the auditor. The auditor just audits what is spent in this state from year to year. However, he has been very helpful in us reaching the amount of revenues that were available. I think, in Proposal No. 15, that we pretty well covered it. Revenue, Finance, and Taxation went over and over and over this, and we finally agreed that we would leave the words that "The appropriations shall not be greater than the anticipated revenue of the state." If we can continue to get the estimates from these five, six, or seven different people, it will help us to get a better estimate, in my opinion. That's why I would be opposed just to any one individual giving us that estimate--whether he be the governor, the auditor, or anybody else--when, in the past, we have had the benefit of about eight different people who were well versed on finances and revenues of this state giving us a figure that we could solve, but what we thought would be the anticipated revenue.

Questions

Mr. Pugh When you had all that information, how many times did the legislature exceed what the proposed budget was?

Mr. Rayburn They have, in some cases, exceeded it, Mr. Pugh, and then a lot of time they haven't exceeded it. A lot of times I have seen the governor tell us we had "X" number of dollars when the bill was introduced in the House. When it would get over in the Senate and they needed a few votes, you would find fifty more million--that happened not too many years ago.

Mr. Pugh Who would you recommend? What name should be here?

Mr. Rayburn Well, I don't really think that we need to tie it down by name because in the past we have been using, as I said, the auditor; the Division of Administration, who is the governor's voice in state government; the state treasurer, who is certainly knowledgeable; PAR; the Department of Revenue; L. S. U. here; L. S. U. in New Orleans; and the Department of Conservation, who is very familiar with our revenue from oil leases and bonuses. We have been bringing all of them in and getting all the estimates and then comparing them, and then reach a happy medium that we could all agree on and use that figure. I have seen it work for many years. I know of no better way to do it. I really don't. I'm not trying to cripple this article. But, we did go over it in the committee. We finally came up with the language that "the appropriations shall not be greater than the anticipated revenue." We didn't decide that any one individual should set that figure because in the past it had been reached by about eight or nine different people or different organizations.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. LeBleu Senator Rayburn, isn't it true that the governor has the privilege of either a line item cut or a percentage cut, which he generally exercises in order to...I believe it's a fifteen percent cut that he can go across the board?

Mr. Rayburn You're correct.

Mr. LeBleu ...which he generally does in order to balance the budget?

Mr. Rayburn You are correct, Representative LeBleu. When you are dealing with a two billion dollar plus budget, there is no way that none of us know exactly how much revenues are going to be available. We have, in the past several years, wrote in the general appropriation bill and give the governor authority that anytime that he and his staff feel that the revenues are not going to reach the projected figures that he will have the right to apply five or ten, or even one year we put fifteen percent cut at his discretion in order that we could have a balanced budget.

Mr. Blair Senator Rayburn, after we listen to all of these estimates by these different agencies and departments and all, how close do we usually come on the anticipated funds?

Mr. Rayburn In the past several years, we have been less than one-tenth of one percent in the projected figures that we have used.

Mr. Nunez Senator Rayburn, isn't the likelihood of us making errors, or the legislature, or the governor making errors would be to tie down the one source? Isn't the best way, from your experience and the experience of the people who have handled it in the past, would be to take the composite of all of them and average it out? Then, you have a better idea, rather than saying one source which, in many cases--you know and I know--haven't they been wrong on the one source, regardless of who it was?

Mr. Rayburn That's true, Senator Nunez. That's the reason I would be against this amendment that leaves it to one individual.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Rayburn and Mr. De Blieux]. On page 1, delete lines 8 through 11, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I offer this amendment to delete this proposal. I think we have the proper language in our proposal. I will ask that you now vote for the amendment. I'm doing this in an effort to keep us from having to reconsider and maybe take another record vote tomorrow and all. I just don't think that this particular proposal will work. That's why I'm offering an amendment to delete it.

Questions

Mr. Dennery Senator Rayburn, would you be good enough to tell me where in the Revenue Article your language is, so I can read it?

Mr. Rayburn It's in...

Mr. Dennery The one we haven't gotten to yet?

Mr. Rayburn ...in Proposal No. 15 that has not been acted upon yet, Mr. Dennery; it's on page 7...

wait a minute; it's on page 6, on line 22, says "Total appropriations made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than anticipated revenues of the state."

Mr. Dennery When do we anticipate reaching that, Senator?

Mr. Rayburn I hope we'll get it. We have it in our committee. I don't think we have any more real problems with the proposal. I think at our next meeting, we will be able to report it out, Mr. Dennery.

Mr. Dennery Thank you.

Mr. Rayburn I feel certain we will.

Further Discussion

Mr. Lowe Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise to support Senator De Blieux and Senator Rayburn's amendment which will delete this Delegate Proposal No. 23. I hope that I won't take much time to explain why I take this position. I feel that we have in Delegate Proposal No. 23 a proposition that's completely unworkable. If you run a business yourself, you know it's difficult. If you take three members of that business which is not as sophisticated as the operation of the State of Louisiana, that three individuals would come up with three different projections of what the revenues will be for that year. That just has to be, because we're not dealing with an exact science when we're dealing with revenues--anticipated revenues. There's no way that one person can come up with that one exact figure; it's just impossible. Now, we can't say that we're going to let the governor decide what that figure is going to be. I remember when I was in the legislature that we shut things down for about five hours one day because we had about six different figures. The governor had a figure, and PAR had a figure, the Appropriations Committee had a figure; Pappy Triche and I stayed up all night, and we came up with our figure. We confused things so badly that we had as many people believing us as anyone else. It's just not possible for one person to come up with the anticipated revenues for one year for the State of Louisiana that where we can hang our hat on it and say, "This is the figure we're going to pin down being used for our appropriations." We have one hundred and five Representatives and thirty-nine Senators, and I think they have a little wisdom as to what the revenues are going to be after they get around and talk to a few people. I'm opposed to trying to say that the governor can tell us--any governor, now and in the future--can tell us what the projected revenues are. So, I submit to you that the wording in the Committee Proposal No. 15, which is the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Proposal, it says: "Total appropriations made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than the anticipated revenues of the state." I think that's broad enough and specific enough with the subject matter that we're dealing with. We can't get more specific. For that reason, I ask you to support this amendment and to do away with Committee Proposal No. 23.

Questions

Mr. Munson Monday, isn't it also true that, regardless of what figure you use on anticipated income to appropriate during the legislative session, that that figure, oftentimes, has to be revised during the year...

Mr. Lowe Absolutely.

Mr. Munson ...because of such intangibles as maybe a strike or any kind of recession or, on the other hand, there could be an increase in revenue; isn't that true?

Mr. Lowe That's exactly correct.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Munson That's the reason for giving the--in the appropriations bill--for giving the governor the authority to make across-the-board cuts in case there is a change; isn't that right?

Mr. Lowe That's correct, yes, sir.

Mr. Jenkins Monday, with regard to the Revenue and Taxation Proposal where it says, "total appropriations made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than anticipated revenues of the state," isn't that intended to be a limitation on the legislature?

Mr. Lowe Yes, sir. Well, actually, the only way we're going to end up with appropriations, as I appreciate it, is those that are approved by the legislature.

Mr. Jenkins No, but I mean that statement is intended to limit the authority of the legislature, is it not?

Mr. Lowe But, isn't that where we get our appropriations from, Mr. Jenkins, is from the legislature?

Mr. Jenkins Yes, well, that's a grant of power--the right to appropriate--but, this is a limitation on their appropriation power: the right to appropriate no funds in excess of anticipated revenues. Is that not correct?

Mr. Lowe I would agree, and I think that would take care of balancing the budget. When you tell the people that are making the appropriations that they can't appropriate amounts in excess of the total anticipated revenues, well, then you end up with a balanced budget.

Mr. Jenkins But, if you intend to put a limitation in the constitution on a body such as the legislature, and then you give that same body the right to do the anticipating with regard to revenues, you are, in fact, providing no limitation whatsoever, and you might as well not have it in there. Aren't you?

Mr. Lowe Well, now, Mr. Jenkins, you're reading something into those three lines that isn't there. You said that we're going to give them the right--the legislature the right--to set the anticipated revenues, and we're not...that's not said in there.

Mr. Jenkins Well, they're going to decide which of many estimates, I suppose, they would accept, wouldn't they?

Mr. Lowe Well, if we were almighty and could decide which of the five or six people had the best estimate, well, then today we could put something in this constitution. But, we're not almighty, and we can't sit here today and say whether Joe Burris has the right figure, whether the treasurer has the right figure, whether the governor has the right figure, whether PAR has the right figure, or whether some sophisticated legislator has the right figure. There's just no way of saying that; and if there's no way of saying that, I don't see how we can sit here and say that we can say it.

Mr. Jenkins Couldn't we provide, when we get to the Revenue and Taxation Article, a system for having such an estimate: for instance, by saying that the governor, the state treasurer, say the legislative auditor, maybe one or two other persons would come up with an estimate, and those estimates would be averaged? Then, the legislature could not exceed that total. Wouldn't that be workable, you think?

Mr. Lowe That's a possibility; but you know, Woody, when you get in politics, if someone wants to inflate a figure so that the average will be affected by it, I guess that would be possible, also.

Mr. Champagne Mr. Lowe, don't you agree that it would be in the interest of the legislature not to appropriate more than revenues?

Mr. Lowe I don't know of any legislature that wants to overappropriate and put themselves in a deficit position. I don't think the type legislature or the responsible legislators we have are even thinking about that.

Mr. Champagne Because if they didn't, they'd have to face it the following year, would they not?

Mr. Lowe That's exactly correct. They're just pyramiding something that's going to catch up with them.

Mr. Champagne So, we really don't have any fear here, even though they are really, actually deciding what figures they're going to face, because if they don't do it right, they will be faced with it the following year?

Mr. Lowe That's correct, Walter. What we need is a more sophisticated method of reporting revenues for the state, and that will help us.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham I simply want to point out that we have already adopted language in the Executive Article that "the governor shall veto items in order that total appropriations shall not exceed anticipated revenues." We have language proposed in the Revenue Article saying, "total appropriations made by the legislature for any fiscal year shall not be greater than the anticipated revenues of the state." I simply think that we need to have some language in the Legislative Article directing the legislature to do this, and that is the intent of my proposal. I have an amendment coming which will read exactly the same as the language in Committee Proposal No. 15. So, if we have no quarrel with 15, then we should have no quarrel with the language in the amendment that I am proposing. I therefore ask that you...we reject the Rayburn amendment. I have one coming up, I think, that will satisfy the language that is needed. I just feel that we need to have something in the Legislative Article, where we are dealing with appropriations, to spell this out.

[Previous Question ordered on the Proposal.]

Closing

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, let me just take one minute to briefly tell you where I think we are making a mistake. We had a committee that took this subject matter up. We met for months and months and months and got all the information we could. I hate to see a delegate proposal that is being discussed and being acted on prior to the time you have an opportunity to at least read and hear the committee's proposal. I hope that in the future, where there is a delegate proposal that's in direct conflict with the committee's proposal and the committee's proposal has not been heard at that time, that we defer action on it until we at least hear the committee's proposal. Then, if a delegate wants to put his amendment or consider it, I think we could save an awful lot of time. That's what I'm trying to do with my amendment.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Senator, you're speaking of Committee Proposal No. 15?

Mr. Rayburn I was speaking of all committee proposals, Mrs. Zervigon. I feel like, where there is an individual delegate proposal in direct conflict with a committee proposal, that we should not take the delegate proposal prior to the time of hearing the committee's proposal. Then, once we hear the committee's proposal, then if the delegate wants to amend it or come forth with his proposal, good and well. But, here, we have, this morning, argued for a considerable amount of time; and, finally, Mr. Abraham has said he's agreed to come back with another amendment that says what the committee proposal says. So, I'm just mentioning that in a manner to expedite time and to save a little time.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mrs. Zervigon I don't see Committee Proposal No. 15 on the calendar.

Mr. Rayburn It's not on the calendar, but we have several others that are. I was speaking of anytime one is on the calendar that we should discuss it prior to discussing individual proposals, only where there is a direct conflict.

Mrs. Zervigon When can we expect to see it on the calendar so that we can consider it and act on it?

Mr. Rayburn As soon as we get enough time to have a committee meeting, if you please.

Mr. Alexander Senator, is your opposition to the proposal--I mean to the committee proposal--based on the fact that you oppose the concept basically or that you oppose it because you think it's premature?

Mr. Rayburn Well, I think it's premature at this time, and we do have a committee proposal that I think pretty well covers it. However, I think we should discuss the committee's proposal, who studied this proposal for a long time, before we take up an individual delegate's proposal.

Mr. Alexander The committee's proposal embraces the same concept?

Mr. Rayburn Yes, sir. There's just some difference. Well, this has changed three times since we started with it. I don't know what it will finally be, Reverend; but it was first the governor, and then there was a member for the auditor, and now I understand they are agreeable to take the same language that was in the proposal.

I now move the adoption of the amendment, Mr. Chairman.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 72-9. Motion to reconsider tabled. Proposal failed to pass: 0-80. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 73 delegates present and a quorum.]

Reading of the Proposal

Mr. Hardin [Assistant Clerk] Delegate Proposal No. 12, introduced by Delegate Dennery:

A proposal to provide uniform compensation to members of all state boards, commissions, and authorities.

"Article IV, Section 1. Compensation
Section 1. The legislature may provide that unsalaried members of any state board, commission, or authority may be compensated for each day devoted to the work of the board, commission, or authority. The amount of compensation, if any, shall be determined by the legislature and shall be the same for the members of all such boards, commissions, and authorities."

Explanation

Mr. Dennery Mr. Chairman and delegates, throughout the present constitution and throughout the present statutes, various provisions are found dealing with compensation of members of boards, commissions, and authorities on a per diem basis. There are many board and commission members who receive no compensation per diem. There are others who receive only travel; there are others who receive per diems and travel. The purpose of this amendment--this proposal--is to set forth that instead of placing this in each statute as it's adopted, that the legislature may adopt one statute which will fix the per diem compensation of any board member or commission member or authority member that the legislature chooses to authorize receiving a per diem. It excludes any members who are on a regular salary basis. In other words, the legislature, in some instances, will provide for no per diems; in other instances it may provide for per diems. The final sentence of the proposal says that all per diems shall be the same. Now, the purpose of this is in recognition of the fact that although there are some boards, commissions, or authorities which are not as important as others--the meetings of which do not last as long as others--nevertheless, if a man lives in Vivian or Shreveport or New Orleans and has to come to Baton Rouge for a meeting, whether that meeting takes fifteen minutes or eight hours, it normally means a day away from the man's earning capacity at home. It seemed to me--and the Committee on the Executive Branch agreed--that all of those per diems should be the same. Now, I have...there is no way that I can tell you exactly what it would cost the state if all per diems presently provided were lifted to the maximum. I believe that the average is somewhere slightly under fifty dollars a day. There are some boards which...members who receive twenty dollars a day; some, fifteen; some, twenty-one; some, thirty-five; some, fifty. It seems to me that the legislature could very well adopt a uniform rule so that all members of any boards or commissions of the state who receive per diems--now, mind you, the legislature has to provide that they do receiving a per diem, or the constitution must provide that--that they will all receive the same amount. Now, I discussed this with some of the members of the legislature, and they have suggested that we delete the last phrase that "the amount shall be determined by the legislature" and, in the legislature's wisdom, it may or may not be the same for the members of all such boards. I assume that an amendment will come up to that effect. Personally, I believe that an individual's time is worth the same as any other individual's time, whether he serves it on an important board or an unimportant board, whether the board meets for fifteen minutes or for eight hours. It's a day out of his life, and I think he's entitled to the same compensation as anyone else is entitled to. Now, it is quite true that some of these boards and commissions arrange to meet in Baton Rouge on Friday night or Saturday morning, when there is an important football game, and meet for ten minutes, and then the members go to the football game. The legislature, in its wisdom, could provide that they shall receive no per diems on days when there's a football game. This is left entirely up to the legislature. I don't believe we should fix per diems in the constitution. I believe that the legislature should fix the per diems, and I further believe that all of them should be the same.

I'll be pleased to answer any questions.

Questions

Mr. Hayes Mr. Dennery, would this include the dock boards? This would include the dock boards...

Mr. Dennery It would include the dock board if the dock board members are entitled to a per diem. My recollection is that the dock board members in New Orleans--and that's the only ones with which I am familiar--receive no per diem.

Mr. Hayes Well, this would then...would exclude them?

Mr. Dennery No, if the legislature were to provide that they should receive a per diem, then they will receive it. If the legislature does not, then they won't.

Mr. Hayes If the legislature does, then, they can.

Mr. Dennery And they get...my theory is that they should all get the same amount, whether they are the Baton Rouge Dock Board or the Lake Charles Dock

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Board. If they're going to spend one day, they ought to get paid the same thing.

Mr. Hayes I want to make sure that I'm clear. If the Legislature decides they can, they can. Is that correct?

Mr. Dennery Correct.

Mr. Hayes Well, then, I'm for your amendment, if that's the case.

Mr. Champagne That some of these boards are really neighborhood boards, and some of them you have to go meet in Shreveport or Baton Rouge, etc., is that right, sir?

Mr. Dennery I would assume that that's true in some instances, yes, sir, Mr. Champagne.

Mr. Champagne Well, the real part that I object is when you say "the same," because going to a board, for instance, meeting in Krotz Springs, when I live in Port Barre, for instance, is not the same consequence as attending a board meeting in Baton Rouge or a board meeting in New Orleans. I feel this "same" could only cost the state more money, and for that reason, I would be opposed to that part of it, sir.

Mr. Rayburn Mr. Dennery, I'm not quite clear, here, in the language where you say, "shall be compensated for each day devoted to work of a board, commission, or authority." Under this language, does that mean that if you devoted some time, in your office or in your home to some commission you was a member of, that you would get pay for that time you devoted?

Mr. Dennery My recollection, Senator, is that the ruling of the attorney general has provided it must be at a formal board meeting or at a time authorized by the board. In other words, if a board sends a member to attend a meeting outside of the state, he would be entitled to receive his per diem even though the board is not meeting. If the board did not authorize that attendance, he would not be entitled to receive it.

Mr. Rayburn I know, but I don't believe this language is quite clear, Mr. Dennery. It says, "for each day devoted to the work of the board or commission," which means, in my opinion, that if I devoted some time at my home, as Chairman of the Budget Committee, which I do--I receive no compensation now unless we have a meeting, and I have come to Baton Rouge to attend meetings and got here late, and I still didn't get any money if I didn't attend the meeting--but, this says, "time devoted," so I would be devoting my time if I was on the way over here.

Mr. Dennery I would think, Senator, that the provision that the legislature would adopt, because it provides that the amount shall be determined by the legislature, etc., that the statute could very well provide exactly what the legislature wanted.

Mr. Fulco Mr. Dennery, I had the same thought in mind that was expressed by Senator Rayburn, but I do know what you're...the intent of the proposal is. But, according to the verbiage it certainly is understandable as Senator Rayburn explained; that's the way I would interpret it, too. But, the question I wanted to ask, also, was this: Why didn't you include mileage in your proposal along with the per diem or the compensation?

Mr. Dennery I would have no objection to including mileage, Mr. Fulco, except that the present statutes normally don't specify mileage. In some instances they do, and there are fixed travel regulations provided by the Division of Administration which call for mileage. As you will recall, it is only because Act 11 provides that we don't get anything but fifty dollars a day that we don't get any mileage. And I would further answer you, sir, by saying that this is all "may"; there is no "shall." It provides that "the legislature may provide that unsalaried members may be compensated for each day," so that in the statute by which it is provided, the legislature could make it quite clear exactly what the compensation is, and for what period of time it must be, etc. It seems to me that to put all of this kind of thing in the constitution would be too legislative.

Mr. Fulco Well, I was thinking, if you're going to put compensation in there, that it wouldn't hurt a bit in the world to add mileage because it is terribly unjust for anyone coming a long distance to these meetings to have to provide his own transportation or his own expense for mileage. I know that we don't want anyone to have to suffer that consequence. I do believe that if we're going to give them compensation, that we ought to include mileage. My question is: Would it be difficult to...for you to just add mileage in here?

Mr. Dennery Well, I don't think I can because this proposal was prepared this way. If you choose to submit an amendment, I'm certain that it would be satisfactory.

Mr. Burns Mr. Dennery, Senator Rayburn asked one of the questions that I was a little concerned about. The other question is: Do you have any statistics as to how many boards and commissions would be affected by this proposal? It seems like it could be very, very far-reaching.

Mr. Dennery Well, Mr. Burns, my answer to that.. I can't give you any specific figures because I don't believe there are any specific figures which are in existence. Nobody has made a tabulation of this. But, this provides that the legislature has the right to decide who shall and who shall not receive a per diem, so that if the legislature feels that too many people are receiving per diems, and it's costing the state too much, it merely provides that the members of boards A, B, and C shall work without per diem. But, if it provides for a per diem, I think all per diems should be the same.

Mr. Burns The other question is...I understood you...in the first part of your remarks, I believe you referred to some boards or commissions would just, perhaps, meet for maybe an hour or a half an hour just to approve what the staff had done or something, whereas another board or commission may work all day and actually work the things out themselves at an open meeting. Now, would those two different types of boards or commissions or meetings be paid the same per diem?

Mr. Dennery I would think so, Mr. Burns, the same way as each of us is paid fifty dollars if we're here for five minutes or ten hours. If we come in here for part of the day, we get paid a per diem.

Mr. Burns Especially if you add mileage on there, it would seem a kind of an unjust situation.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Dennery, evidently a lot of our regulatory boards, which are self-generating revenues, don't pay anything; and under this proposal, my understanding of it--and evidently there are several proposals out--under this proposal it says "the same." You would make those people take the same per diem that you pay other board members and use their own funds, even though they don't have the funds.

Mr. Dennery I'm not sure I understood your question. You said that some of these boards do not pay per diems. Is that correct?

Mr. Nunez That's correct.

Mr. Dennery They don't get salaries either; is that correct?

Mr. Nunez That's correct.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Dennery Well, the legislature is not required to say that they shall receive any per diem. The proposal provides that "the amount of compensation, if any, shall be determined by the legislature."

Mr. Nunez Well, that's a different proposal than I have. It says: "The amount of compensation which shall be the same for all members."

Mr. Dennery Do you have the yellow copy of Delegate Proposal No. 12, reprinted as engrossed?

Mr. Nunez I've got a yellow copy of Delegate Proposal No. 12, yes, sir.

Mr. Dennery I mean No. 12. Well, on line 11, Senator, doesn't it say, "if any"?

Mr. Nunez Someone has brought a different one to me just now.

Mr. Dennery Well, to answer your question, I believe the way it is now before the convention, it says: "The amount of compensation, if any."

Mr. Nunez Even after reading the other proposal--the darker one--why do we need this in the constitution at all, Mr. Dennery? Why should we place something in the constitution that we can handle in the legislature?

Mr. Dennery Well, Senator, the purpose of putting this in the constitution is that there are some proposals already before this Constitutional Convention which provide for per diems. Now, I don't think that's constitutional material. I think it should be left to the legislature. I quite agree with you that it should be left to the legislature, and the whole purpose of this was to leave it to the legislature. However, there was one item that I thought belonged in the constitution, and that was that if the legislature made a provision for per diems, that that provision should be the same amount as for any other citizen of the State of Louisiana who is devoting his time to this state, whether the work of the board on which he serves is as important as others or not. His time, I believe, is just as valuable. At present, you have varying amounts of per diems, which I think is grossly unfair.

Mr. Nunez Well, that was the point I had made before, Mr. Dennery. A lot of self-generated revenue boards regulate their own industries, draw no per diem at all.

Mr. Dennery Well, I...there are many boards which don't draw per diems, Senator, whether they are self-generating boards or not. I don't believe the Board of Supervisors of L.S.U. gets paid for attending meetings. I'm not sure about that, but I know there are many boards that don't get per diems. This does not require them to get per diems. It merely says if they do get per diems, they shall be the same.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Mr. Lanier Mr. Dennery, I note that this apparently applies to all state boards. Would I be correct in saying that it does not appear that this is in any way intended to apply to boards, agencies, or commissions that are created by or through local governmental authorities?

Mr. Dennery You are quite correct, sir. It specifically says "state."

Mr. Lanier Now, with reference to your last sentence--the one that starts on line 10 and ends on line 13--as I intend...understand your intent, that if a per diem is authorized, it must be a uniform per diem for all such boards, commissions and agencies. However, if no per diem is authorized, that is still within the prerogative of the legislature. Is that correct?

Mr. Dennery Yes, the legislature has the prerogative, under this proposal to determine whether or not compensation is paid in per diem form to members of these state boards, etc.--does not require it.

Mr. Lanier This is not to be construed to mean that if a per diem is authorized for one board, that you must pay the same per diem for all boards?

Mr. Dennery No, sir. It says, "The amount of compensation, if any." In other words, it is not required that all boards receive compensation because all boards don't, at the present time.

Mr. Lanier Okay, now, my next question, then--this was brought up by one of the previous questions--is: do you have any idea what the present spread in the variation of per diems from boards to boards throughout the state are? In other words ...

Mr. Dennery My recollection is that the lowest is about twenty dollars, and I think the highest is fifty dollars. I'm not positive about that, but I think the vast majority of per diems are fixed at fifty dollars.

Mr. Lanier Well, one of the things I was thinking about: the last time I recall checking it, the Greater Lafourche Port Commission--which, I believe, is a state agency or commission--had a ten dollar per day per diem.

Mr. Dennery You may be correct, sir; I'm not sure about that.

Mr. Lanier My thought was: suppose those people don't choose to pay, or don't want to pay, any more than ten dollars per day? Would they then be required to have to go to fifty if that was set as the per diem by the legislature?

Mr. Dennery Yes, sir; I would think that would be true. That would not prevent them from making a contribution back to the levee board, though.

Mr. Lanier So that, for example, like the Greater Lafourche Port Commission is only domiciled and has jurisdiction in the Tenth Ward of Lafourche Parish; those folks would get the same per diem as, say, the Dome Stadium Commission or the Port of New Orleans or some other such agency?

Mr. Dennery Yes, sir.

Mr. LeBleu Mr. Dennery, my questions were primarily the same as Mr. Lanier's. I just wonder, when you specify "state boards, commissions," etc.--since police juries, municipalities, and everything are creatures of the legislature--whether this might not be passed on down to be construed as every port commission, whether it's created by the legislature or whether it's created constitutionally or, say, every water board, sewerage board, garbage board...

Mr. Dennery I would think that would be a purely local rather than a state board, though.

Mr. LeBleu But, in any case, say, as port commissions, some of which are created by the legislature and as I understand it, each creation considers the per diem for its members--Mr. Lanier said ten dollars; ours says no per diem...

Mr. Dennery They vary.

Mr. LeBleu It would...but the legislature would have to come back and set a per diem for all port commissions in the state?

Mr. Dennery It would just set a per diem for all boards, whether they were port commissions or other.

Mr. Blair Mr. Dennery, I'm afraid we could be opening up a Pandora's box. I'll give you a for example, and I want you to answer me would I be eligible. Today, for instance, I'm attending the convention until 11 o'clock; I have to go to a Budget Committee, at 4 o'clock this afternoon I have to attend the Legislative Council. Under your amendment--or your proposal--wouldn't I be eligible to receive all per diems?

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Dennergy Well, Senator, if the legislature adopted a statute which said that you were, yes, you would. But, if the legislature, in its wisdom, were to adopt a statute saying that no individual could receive more than one per diem per day, then I don't think you would. I think...what I've tried to do--please understand--what I've tried to do is leave this entirely in the hands of the legislature. I don't think it should be in the constitution that the members of Board A receive "X" dollars a day. I've tried to say that all board members, if they're going to receive a per diem, should receive the same amount. Your time is worth fifty dollars, or whatever it is, to you just as much as my time is worth fifty dollars to me.

Amendment

Mr. Hardin This is a technical amendment [by Mr. Dennergy] correcting the title as in the two prior proposals.

On page 1, delete line 6 in its entirety. At the beginning of line 7, delete Section 1, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Article IV. Executive Branch.

* * *

Section _____ Compensation
Section _____."

Explanation

Mr. Dennergy Well, this is the same technical amendment that we passed before. It's purely technical in nature.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

Mr. Hardin Amendment sent up by Delegate Reeves.

Delegate Proposal No. 12 by Delegate Dennergy, amend reprinted as engrossed proposal as follows: Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 6 through 13, both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Reeves As you can see, this is a very simple amendment. It simply deletes the entire section. This can be...the legislature may provide--as it is said here--anything it wants to do. The legislature can do anything it wants to do as long as we do not prohibit it by this constitution. What we are doing, if we adopt Mr. Dennergy's amendment, is cluttering up the constitution again with legislative and statutory material. I think we do not need to do this. We need to get back in the saddle of writing a constitution and quit trying to be legislators. I think this is a simple amendment; it's a good amendment, and it simply deletes Mr. Dennergy's entire section because the legislature...it doesn't...his amendment is possibly a good amendment. It has some flaws. But, his...what he's trying to do can be done by the legislature anyway, because they may do anything they want to do.

Questions

Mr. Dennergy Mr. Reeves, I would agree with you except for line...the last clause which says "and shall be the same." Now, that is mandatory, is it not, sir?

Mr. Reeves It says the amount of compensation, if any, shall be--if any--shall be determined by the legislature, and shall be the same for the members of all such boards, commissions, or authorities. Well, they can do this anyway, and I think they've pretty well done it.

Mr. Dennergy But, they are not mandated to do it. Right now, per diems are different. This was the point I was making, sir. Do you not agree that per diems are presently different?

Mr. Reeves Some per diems are different. There are reasons for them being different.

Mr. Dennergy Well, now, the purpose of this amendment, though, despite what you said, was to mandate the legislature to make them all equal. Now, if you disagree with that, that's fine. But don't say--at least, I don't think you should say, and I hope you will agree with me--that it does not mandate the legislature, at least, in one respect.

Mr. Reeves Possibly in one respect it does. But I...again, I think it's statutory material, and it could be left out of the constitution.

Mrs. Zervigon You agree that the per diem paid various boards in the state is different one from another. There's good reason for it. Can you tell me what the reason is?

Mr. Reeves The same reason, Mary, that certain individuals in different professions are paid differently. For instance, we have a watchmaking commission; we have strawberry commissions; we have etc., etc.--various and sundry commissions. Their duties are very...are different from other commissions, such as the Port of Orleans, and, I would hope that you even agree that the members of the board of the Port of Orleans, have a stronger, or a more important job than possibly the members of the board of watchmaking of the State of Louisiana.

Mrs. Zervigon The members of the Port Commission of the...of New Orleans don't get a per diem. They get none.

Mr. Reeves I agree with that.

Mrs. Zervigon You agree that they are less important than the strawberry commission?

Mr. Reeves I didn't say that either...

Mrs. Zervigon Do you think that the legislature has established a rational policy among all these boards?

Mr. Reeves Mary, what I am saying is this is statutory material, and it should not be in the constitution. I think you agree.

Mrs. Zervigon You told us that your...in addition that you are not trying to be a legislator?

Mr. Reeves This is correct.

Mrs. Zervigon Would you say that again for the record, Mr. Reeves?

Mr. Reeves I'm not trying to be a legislator on the Constitutional Convention, for the very simple...

Mrs. Zervigon Oh! I'm glad you cleared that up.

Mr. Reeves For the very simple...for the very simple reason that I am a constitutional delegate. I am not a legislator.

Mr. Roy Mr. Reeves, other than Mr. Dennergy having thought up this proposal--and obviously considered it maybe a day or so ago, or many weeks ago--have you ever seen it before, or considered this matter in any detail?

Mr. Reeves No.

Mr. Roy Do you think any of the other delegates have considered, essentially enough, to make a judgment in the constitution that we should mandate the legislature to, in the future, say that all per

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

diems must be the same?

Mr. Reeves Absolutely not.

Mr. Roy Don't you think the legislature should be able to determine that matter in its own wisdom after due deliberation, and not us make a determination that is, at best, a judgment call?

Mr. Reeves Again, as I have said many times from this mike, I trust the Louisiana Legislature, for I think if you have people that you cannot trust in the Louisiana Legislature, you can get rid of them through the election process.

Mr. Burns Mr. Reeves, Mr. Dennery called your attention to the fact that there wasn't an authority in here that the legislature, perhaps, would not be bound by in that they all shall be paid the same per diem. Do you agree that that's the most objectionable part of this proposal? That regardless of the time spent by the different commissions, or the different boards, difference in importance of their work, and the time that they have to devote to it, that they all should be paid the same, regardless?

Mr. Reeves I agree that this is probably one of the most objectionable, and I do not agree with what Mr. Dennery...

Mr. Burns Did you hear Mr. Lanier's question that he has a board that's being paid ten dollars a day? Under that, they would have to be paid fifty...

Mr. Reeves Right.

Mr. Burns ...whether they wanted it or not, if the legislature should so provide.

Mr. Reeves Right. I agree with what you say.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Reeves, don't you think that this proposal really affects seriously the flexibility of the legislature to fashion per diems to fit the agencies involved?

Mr. Reeves Absolutely.

Mr. Lanier For example, do you think that necessarily the Latt Lake Conservation Commission, which I believe is domiciled in your district, should necessarily have the same per diem as, say, the Dome Stadium Commission?

Mr. Reeves I agree that they shouldn't have the same per diem.

I think this is a good amendment. I just hope that you will come back and approve this amendment for the very simple reason that I think you know that you are constitutional delegates and you are trying to write a constitution, not statutes. We need to take extraneous material such as this out of the constitution.

Mr. Champagne In furtherance of your support of this amendment, do you...agree...and everybody, I'm sure, would agree...that you don't have to take an appointment on one of these boards, if you don't think you are adequately paid. Right?

Mr. Reeves Absolutely.

Mr. Smith Mr. Chairman, I think this is a good amendment. I think we're all ready to vote. We've argued it back and forth for about an hour. So, I now move the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 61-19. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Proposal. Proposal failed to pass: 2-77. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Mr. Casey Mr. Pugh, why do you rise?

Motion

Mr. Pugh To move to suspend the rules to provide that anytime that a delegate calls for a record vote that his name be reflected in the Journal. Also, to provide that when a proposal has one section, we can vote on it one time instead of twice.

Mr. Casey Mr. Pugh, I think those are separate matters to handle, to start with. If you wish to take up...

Mr. Pugh The first motion.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nunez Mr. Mr. Acting Chairman, if Mr. Pugh wants to amend the rules, I think he should follow the regular procedure that we usually follow and put that in the form of an amendment and send it to the Rules Committee, and then report it back to the convention.

Mr. Casey I think your...Mr. Nunez, I think your point is well taken. Normally, when we suspend the rules, it's just something temporary that we handle on a certain day. For instance, the...relative to limit debate to ten or fifteen minutes on a particular proposal, or a particular section. I think that's something of a permanent nature, and would require action by a written...proposal, referral to committee, and then action on that.

Point of Information

Mr. Bollinger Mr. Casey, being that we have a little time, I'd like a little further explanation on why the Journal cannot reflect who requests a record vote. The way I read it in the Journal, the Journal states "a record vote was requested and ordered by the convention." Why couldn't it have "a record vote was requested by so and so, and ordered by the convention"?

Mr. Casey Mr. Bollinger, your point's well taken. The parliamentarian is here. We'll let Mr. Poynter...O.K. Mr. Poynter, a request was made by one of the delegates, when a record vote was requested, that the name of the delegate requesting the record vote appear in the Journal because there is an excessive number of delegate...of record votes requested. I indicated that I thought it would require a suspension of the rules in order to reflect the name, unless there is some other way that it can be done.

Would you give your explanation on that?

Mr. Poynter Mr. Chairman, I'm sorry to come in a little cold from a committee meeting, but I know of no reason--if the majority of this convention wants to vote that the Journal be organized or styled in such a fashion to do that; it's not traditionally the way we've handled it--but, I know of no reason that the convention would so order by motion that it could not be reflected in that manner. I don't think it would take a suspension of the rules in that sense. I think it would just take a direction from this committee...convention, in essence, to me as to how they felt it should be styled.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman, I believe the rules stated that if a delegate requests a record vote, and twenty-six members join him, a record vote will be ordered. If we are going to put into the Journal whoever requests a record vote, then I suggest we also include the twenty-six names that join him.

Further Discussion

Mr. Champagne That is, in fact, exactly what I think. If you're going to start putting one, well, let's all, have all of 'em's names in there. I object to this mentioning because, frankly, I'd pay a hundred dollars for a record vote that was held yesterday if we had it.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Point of Information

Mr. Perez Point of information, again, Mr. Chairman, because this is a highly irregular procedure where we are breaking early for lunch. Would you please tell us exactly what it is that we propose to do this afternoon, and why we can't begin doing it now?

Mr. Casey Mr. Perez, I was advised by the Chairman of the convention, when he departed, that after lunch the convention would consider Committee Proposals 12 and 14--after lunch. It is my understanding that, as he announced yesterday, those Delegate Proposals 67, 71, and 72, the author of those proposals was not ready to move at this time. That's the only explanation I can give.

Further Discussion

Mr. Goldman Mr. Chairman, on this record vote and recording the name of the person who requested, and also the twenty-six delegates, I'm agreeable to that, too, because I think many times I've counted, and I haven't seen twenty-six hands go up. I'm not criticizing the Chairman. But, there have been many occasions like that. I think many, many record votes have been called for that have no reason for being. I think it not only saves money, but I think it'd be a lot faster moving, if we could adopt that.

Mr. Poynter Mr. Goldman, again, now I'm strictly going to do, and I don't think there's any departure from the rules or anything like that with respect to your comment, of Mr. Bollinger's--but, I think it'd be only fair of me to point out: if you want and would so move, and this convention adopts, a procedure by which I have to open the machine and then print the yeas and nays of who wants a record vote, you've got to record vote to get a record vote; if you get one, you're going to have a second record vote--if you follow me. Now, if that's what you want to do, there is nothing to my knowledge--and perhaps I'm incorrect--there is nothing to my knowledge that would be improper about such a procedure; there would be nothing involved that would take a suspension of the rules. I would appreciate a direction from the convention one way or the other about it. But, I would point that out to you that, in effect, if you are going to open the machine and require a record vote to get a record vote, you're going to be spending some more money there, and kind of doubling up on the process, if you will.

Point of Information

Mr. Lanier Mr. Chairman, Committee Proposal No. 14 is this proposal dealing with human resources that we took up Saturday, that's up for reconsideration. What is the reason why we can't take that up at this time?

Mr. Casey I don't believe the author is available, to tell you the truth, Mr. Lanier. If he's ready, it's fine with me.

Mr. Lanier Well, there's a whole...it's a whole bunch of authors. It's the Committee on Education and Welfare is the author. Secondly, on these delegate proposals by Delegate Abraham, he has advised me that he's ready to go except Kendall Vick has something that he apparently would like to present on it. But, I was wondering on that...

Mr. Casey I think that, Mr. Lanier, all I can tell you is, if Mr. Abraham wants to go now, that's fine with me. But, I was advised that he was waiting on some additional information.

Mr. Lanier My thought was maybe we can get started with this reconsideration. If we get through with that, then go to Mr. Abraham's, and then if we get through with Mr. Abraham's presentation, defer until Mr. Vick is here to say whatever he wants to say.

Mr. Casey Mr. Lanier, all I can tell you is that we have always yielded to the wishes of the authors of the proposals. If the convention...if the authors wish to make a motion that they take their resolutions up at this time, we'll let the convention decide. If they're not ready, we have not been in the position of forcing anybody to take a resolution up until they are ready.

[Motion to stand at ease until 12:30 p.m. Substitute motion to stand at ease until 1:00 p.m. adopted: 62-17.]

Recess

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Quorum Call: 73 delegates present and a quorum. Motion to take Committee Proposal 12 out of its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

Mr. Poynter Committee Proposal No. 12 introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by prohibiting the leasing of convicts and the employment of convicts in competition with private enterprise and by providing for reimbursement to parishes for expenses incurred resulting from crimes committed in penal institutions.

The proposal consists of one section:

"Section 1. (A) State Penal Institutions: Reimbursement of Parish Expense. In parishes in which are located penal institutions of the State of Louisiana, the expenses incurred by the parish arising from crimes committed in such institutions or by the inmates or employees thereof shall be reimbursed by the state.

(B) Convict Labor. No convict sentenced to the state penitentiary shall ever be leased, or hired to any person or persons, or corporation, private or public, or quasi-public. No convict sentenced to the state penitentiary shall ever be employed in any enterprise in competition with private enterprise."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, what the Committee Proposal No. 12 does, in Section 1 (A), retains the present constitutional provision that provides for the reimbursement of expenses incurred by a parish as a result of crimes committed in, or by the inmates or employees of the penal institutions located in that particular parish. As I appreciate the present constitutional provision, this was put in there to protect, or to make restitution to, the parish of...where Angola is located and also the other state penal institutions in the event that they sustain losses because of crimes committed by inmates escaping or something of that nature.

Section (B)...what Section (B) does, retains the present prohibition in the constitution against the leasing of convicts. It adds a prohibition against the employment of convicts in any enterprise that's in competition with free enterprise. Now, we have heard from the director of the Department of Corrections, that there was some question about the Section 1 as to whether it ought to be retained as it now exists in the constitution. All of the information that we had before the committee was that it should be retained in order to reimburse parishes or local government bodies that sustained a loss because of something committed by the employees or inmates of a penal institution. The reason for the addition in the present, or the proposed, article in Section (B) is to be sure that there will be no factories, etc., instituted or begun at Angola that would sell products on the open market in competition with free enterprise.

Mr. Chairman, that is the explanation. I'd be happy to answer any question that you might have.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Flory, why has the committee omitted...why has the committee omitted the present language that would allow employment of convicts under state supervision on public roads and other public works?

Mr. Flory Well, it was the feeling of the committee that the state ought not to get into the use of prisoners on upkeep of highways, etc.; therefore, they deleted it. Mr. Lennox and myself, who were on the committee were, and the committee was in total agreement in that regard.

Mrs. Zervigon The authorization that now exists in the constitution that the legislature may authorize such a thing. Is that in use now, or convicts that work for the government?

Mr. Flory The notes...there was a time--I might give you this explanation--that under the present language of the constitution, I believe it was in the 1952 session of the legislature where they authorized the use of patients in mental institutions and persons who were serving time at Angola and other penal institutions to do construction and repair work, the legislature has, since that time, repealed that authority. To my knowledge, no convicts work on any public projects in this state, at this time, based upon legislature authority now in existence.

Mrs. Zervigon Well, there are two additional things that trouble me about this: One is it's effect on work release programs. It says that "convicts may not be hired," which means that you couldn't have work release programs; isn't that so?

Mr. Flory No. Under the language, the question arose in the Department of Corrections, as we said, "in competition with free enterprise." Under the work release programs that I am familiar with--and I've had some contact with both parolee rehabilitation and the work release program--if, when they spend the night in the penal institution and then they work outside the penitentiary during the day, they work in the free enterprise system for private industry, which this does not prohibit nor did we want to prohibit that.

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Flory, I'm addressing myself to the first sentence of Section (B) "No convict sentenced to a state penitentiary shall ever be hired to any person or persons, or corporation, private or public." That would not affect the work release program? That would not be a person hired by a private corporation?

Mr. Flory There was some question about that in the mind of the Director of the Department of Corrections. I have an amendment, I think, would take care of that. But, I was trying to explain the proposal without getting into the amendment.

Mrs. Zervigon One more question: Would this stop any sort of rehabilitation program which would involve convicts freely within the penitentiary doing useful work and being paid therefore?

Mr. Flory It does not interfere with the rehabilitation program that now exists, whereby they work in the penitentiary on the manufacture, for example, of soap, license plates, etc.--I think they are paid two to five cents an hour--so long as they distribute those products to the state itself, or the state agencies, and they are used within those agencies.

Mrs. Zervigon That is not a person hired by a public corporation?

Mr. Flory Well, I say this is what the Department of Corrections felt like did involve itself with the work release program, etc. That was the reason that I had prepared the amendment, in hopes that it would correct, because I did not want to interfere with the rehabilitation program nor the work release program.

Mr. Munson Gordon, Mrs. Zervigon has already asked one of my questions; I was concerned about the work release program. You will offer an amendment on the first sentence of this Section (B) before we are called on to vote on this; is that correct?

Mr. Flory I have an amendment that would rewrite Section (B). But, I was trying to explain the proposal before...without getting into the language of the amendment.

Mr. Munson What about the manufacture of automobile license plates?

Mr. Flory Would not interfere, nor do we intend for it to interfere with that, Mr. Munson.

Mr. Munson Well, the way it's written now, though, it would; wouldn't it?

Mr. Flory Well, it could be interpreted to that extent by some of the people that I have talked to. They believe that it could be, it was not intended to do that.

Mr. Munson Do you intend to offer an amendment to correct that, also?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir. Yes. And, the statutes provide that they can do that, Mr. Munson, but that they cannot sell their wares or merchandise on the open market.

Mr. Mire Gordon, would this stop--like for instance, Jackson Barracks in New Orleans, from using prisoners as domestics in the homes there and to do work for individuals in the compound?

Mr. Flory Mr. Mire, I had that same question arise insofar as the cooks at the governor's mansion are concerned. I believe, with the amendment that will be clarified, was no intention to stop that at all. But, it would stop, if it existed somewhere, construction work by inmates in mental institutions which the legislature has repealed, or inmates in the penitentiary from constructing--as they did at one time--a three or four million dollar project, which the legislature subsequently repealed that authority.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, I'm concerned about this last sentence. As I understand your presentation, this would not be construed to prohibit convicts from being used to do things at the penitentiary--like say, paint buildings, or repair buildings, or things like that--is that correct?

Mr. Flory No, not so long if it's within the present public bidding statutes, so long as it doesn't, I believe, it's fifteen hundred or twenty-five hundred dollars--I forget which the figure is--in Title 39, Section 2211, I believe, which, under the public bidding--and I had it on my desk back there--is either fifteen hundred or twenty-five. If it's under that, they can do it, nor do I intend to interfere with that because when the legislature repealed that authority, it was understood that they would continue to do minor repair and maintenance.

Mr. Lanier But, if there is anything over that amount, it would have to go under the public bid law...

Mr. Flory Under the public bidding statutes.

Mr. Lanier ...and, the convicts couldn't do it?

Mr. Flory No, sir.

Mr. Giarrusso Mr. Flory, a couple of questions. Would you please define for me what a penal institution is, and how many of them do you know that there are in the state?

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Flory My understanding, and what the committee meant, they didn't want to get into the parish prisons, if that's your question; it was no intent to do that--only on state penal institutions, which was Angola, the one at DeQuincy, and the one, LTI in Scotlandville, I believe, and one in Monroe.

Mr. Giarrusso O.K. How would you determine the cost of a crime that's committed in a prison?

Mr. Flory I don't know, Mr. Giarrusso, that's been in the constitution since 1921; and, I'm sure there is jurisprudence on it.

Mr. Giarrusso Well, there might very well be. But, I was just interested in what formula that they use, whether it's on a time basis or what. The next question is: Do you believe in the rehabilitation of prisoners? Do you think prisoners should do something meaningful with their time and perhaps earn some money while they are doing it?

Mr. Flory Well, there is a program of rehabilitation, right now, that the legislature had authorized for the prisoners, and so forth, and this would, in no way, interfere with that.

Mr. Giarrusso One other question: Don't you believe that this material, if it's going to be, should be statutory rather than constitutional?

Mr. Flory No, I think there is a long history of this type of language in the constitution since 1921; and, I think we ought to retain it.

Mr. Giarrusso Well, Mr. Flory, I have seen you consistently advocate change here in many of the articles. I can't subscribe to the concept, simply because something has been in the constitution since 1921, it should be in the 1973 Constitution.

Mr. Flory No, let me clarify, Mr. Giarrusso, if I indicated just because it was in the existing constitution that it ought to be retained. I think the merit of the issue is that it's of sufficient magnitude that it ought to be retained.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Flory, would you give the convention...give the group some specifics as to why (A)--which is already in the present constitution and has been there since '21--what reasoning behind the logic that we should keep this provision in the...write it the new constitution? Is it that much of an expense to parishes that have these institutions that they are being incurred that there is such a grave financial burden on them? Is that the problem?

Mr. Flory Well, it was my understanding, Senator Nunez, that there has been some occasions in the past, whereby the state did have to reimburse parishes for this very thing, and that as recently, I think, they have had to make reimbursement on some of these...of this one provision.

Mr. Nunez And, you believe...

Mr. Flory I can't give you the specific example...

Mr. Nunez O.K. We don't need the specifics of it. Evidentially it's here and there must be a re... Do you believe that the state could not reimburse them unless it's in the constitution? Is that the logic behind putting it in the constitution? We could not statutorize this material and say that the state shall reimburse these parishes in the statutes rather than putting it in the constitution? I think that's what I'm trying to get...the validity for putting it in the constitution.

Mr. Flory Well, it was the authority, I presume, when they put it in the constitution, based upon the location of the facility at that time for problems that arose and for the repayment of damages in that particular area--Angola was the one institution mentioned at that time. I would have no objections, Senator, for taking it out. But, I thought it was something with more of a protection to local government, where state caused damages by whatever means to local government--this would, then, be the authority for repayment. That was simply the reason for the continuation of the language in this constitution.

Mr. Nunez That same authority for repayment could be gotten from the statutes though; isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory You're a member of the legislature; and, I'm sure you know what you are talking about.

Mr. Nunez Well, let me tell you...well, then, it is correct what I'm saying is true, it can be?

Mr. Flory I would think so, yes.

Mr. Roemer Gordon, will this prohibit or in any way restrict the attempts to rehabilitate these prisoners by giving them useful tasks, etc., etc., etc.? Could you address a few remarks to that?

Mr. Flory No. It would in no way affect that because the statutes specifically provide for that, Mr. Roemer. This would, in no way, interfere with that at all.

Amendments

Mr. Poynter Amendments sent up by Delegates Roy, Gauthier, and Tobias.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 18 through 23, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, delete lines 24 through 29, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Amendment No. 3. On page 1, delete lines 16 and 17, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

Mr. Roy Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentleman of the convention, we have put this particular amendment into two sections so that it can be divided in case the convention feels that one of these parts should be retained and not the other. It is my feeling, and the feeling of the coauthors, that neither of these particular sections should remain, that we ought to take them both out. Now, let me give you some background and some disagreement with Mr. Flory with respect to the argument that the present section is similarly provided for in the 1921 Constitution. If you will think back at the turn of the century and prior to the turn of the century, prisoners were some type of animals. They were to be abused, lent out, indentured, tortured, whatever have you, by certain people. As a result, I think, history found that when the Constitution of 1921 was written, the delegates there too felt that it was necessary to ensure that this would not recur. I think in this modern time there is no question but that that is not anything we have to worry about. Besides that, Section (A) is very, very ambiguous--just for instance--when it speaks of the expenses incurred by the parish arising from the crimes committed in such institutions, are we talking about the fact that the repair to the building is located in the prison? Does the parish have to make some type of reimbursement there or not? Are we talking about when it says "or such are committed by the inmates or employees thereof," are we still talking about committed in the prison compound itself or maybe committed outside? Are we talking about court costs, the pay of a D.A. for having to prosecute the prisoner to find him guilty and what have you? It's just much too ambiguous; it's archaic; it's not needed; it's not in keeping with modern penology. I think we should take the whole matter out and let the legislature deal with it since there are so many items in it that need to be clarified by more deliberation and spell out in more detail than we have here in the constitution. With respect to Section (B), I don't see that at all. I see that that's the worse type of penal provision we could have because, in my judgment, it prevents work release programs; it prevents the whole notion of rehabilitation that we have. Now, let me say this, the other day I was listening to the radio and heard Paul Harvey--who is not one of my favor commentators--but in any event, Paul Harvey was talking about that it appears to him in Congress that in this day and time when we talk about rehabilitating prisoners and/or reimbursing victims for crimes committed against them, we are imposing taxes on law-abiding citizens to help those who have been injured by criminals. Now, I'm still for that in any event. But, Harvey's comment was, "Why not make it so that the person who does the injuring may be in a position to reimburse the person who he has injured?" He pointed out that in one particular case a federal judge had, instead of sending some doctors who were guilty of income evasion to prison, he made them work for six months in a charitable institution and, thereafter, he made it mandatory that they repay the government for their income tax evasion. All I'm saying is that, we may in the future--as some states are looking now--feel that imprisonment is not the answer; that it doesn't reimburse the victim at all and that in a lot of cases what ought to be done is the particular criminal ought to be able to pay back the person who is injured. So, for those reasons, I think that we ought to take both of these out. One last comment: It just seems silly to me that in a prison system where we are supposed to be teaching prisoners some type of trade--maybe carpentry and what have you--that we would provide that even within the system itself, the prisoners will not be allowed to make repairs to the various buildings and what have you and try to learn a trade, because they may be in competition with private enterprise--which brings up the question: What the heck is competition with private enterprise? It's too broad a term, and I think we ought to take both of these particular sections out.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Questions

Mr. Roemer Chris, I have a friendly question for you. I would like you to hit a lick on the idea that some have proposed here that it's the wrong thing and it's something we should take up in this constitution: that is, the danger that Angola or some other state prison, might undertake a private enterprise--such as a paint factory, or a furniture factory, or something like that. Do you think that's something we should address in this constitution?

Mr. Roy No, I don't. In the first place, I think that it would be unconstitutional even without any provision in the constitution where Angola would get engaged with private enterprising in certain areas of private enterprise. So, we don't know what we are saying when we say "What is competition with private enterprise?" That's so nebulous it could be any number of things. I think it's up to the legislature to deal with that more succinctly than we can.

Mr. Perez Mr. Roy, in view of the fact that we have the provision in the Bill of Rights with regard to the prohibition of involuntary servitude, don't you believe that it is likely that the courts would hold that you could have no work program of any kind for convict laborers because it would, in effect, be involuntary servitude with respect to the work?

Mr. Roy No, I don't, Mr. Perez. I think this: That if the work is being done for the benefit of the prison system, the Article...Section 3 of the Bill of Rights provides "slavery and involuntary servitude are prohibited except in the latter case as punishment for a crime." So, I think they could make them work in the prison system. Now, with respect to a work release program, it may be that a prisoner would say, I don't want to go work for a particular person even though it teaches me a skill." He could probably get out of doing that, but if that's his own...if that's what he wants, if he doesn't want the benefit of getting out of Angola, well, then, let him make his choice. I don't think as a practical matter, we would find too many people who would say, "I don't want to get involved in a work release program."

Mr. Perez In other words, you believe that only those who would want to work could be made to work, and those who decided they did not want to work, those convicts could be allowed, then, to sit around do nothing?

Mr. Roy No, no. No, Chalin, you're missing my point. When you say a work release program, you are talking about outside of the system in some type of rehabilitative capacity. I think that a prisoner would have the right to say, "I don't want to engage in that." But, insofar as being incarcerated in the prison and working there, I think they can make him work because it explicitly says that they may do so.

Mr. Hunez Mr. Roy, during the past session of the legislature, we reimbursed several municipalities and parishes for work that their deputies, and their sheriffs, and etc., and even the state police had done because of the same conditions that have arisen out of either prisoners, or riots, or etc. We didn't have no constitutional authority to do it; we did in the statutes through an appropriation. Don't you believe we can do the same thing without this provision to the various parishes that have penal institutions in them?

Mr. Roy Right. I think it's good point, Sammy, in that the legislature would be in a position to adjudicate whether that parish should be reimbursed. Let's take an example where the officials of that parish are just flagrant in not doing certain... having certain safeguards, and as a result, something happens. Well, maybe that particular parish ought...police jury ought to have to pay for its own negligence and not impose that upon the rest of the citizens of the state. So, it leaves it up to you all, which is the way I think it ought to be.

Mr. Singletary Chris, if a prisoner volunteered for a work release program, that wouldn't be involuntary servitude, would it?

Mr. Roy That's right, it would not.

Mr. Singletary But, under the committee proposal he might be prohibited possibly from volunteering.

Mr. Roy In my judgment, there is no question, Alvin, but that you can't volunteer for that type work.

Further Discussion

Mr. Avant Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise to speak against this amendment--particularly, and most emphatically, Amendment No. 2. Now, I'm somewhat surprised, really, to see Mr. Roy as one of the authors of these amendments because if my memory doesn't fail me, he was the gentleman--and I mean no disrespect when I say this--who from this podium some months ago referred to what he called a law and order paranoia. Now, I don't necessarily agree that there is any law and order of paranoia. I'm certainly for law and order and all reasonable and proper steps to preserve law and order. I think we all are. But, I want to tell you that this provision that he seeks to delete, has been in the constitution of this state since 1898. I hate to get up here and tell you what my father told me, but I'm going to do it, because I think it's pertinent, because I happen to have a little first hand information about this type of situation. My father was born in 1884, and he was a sawmill man. He worked a number of years in the State of Florida where they leased convicts to the operators of sawmills--like you lease cattle, or you lease a piece of equipment. One very interesting thing it was no crime to work a man to death; the most serious crime was to let him escape. Needless to say, there were very few escapes because there was a financial penalty imposed upon the employer in those cases if that convict escaped. Now, I say to you that the only reason you put provisions in a constitution, or one of the reasons, is to keep things from happening that have happened in the past, and that you want to make sure don't happen again. I know this with respect to certain other provisions in here that Mr. Roy seeks to delete. But, I am sure that many of you have ridden about the southeastern part of the United States, and in some of our states, seen on the public highways, convicts in highway department trucks manacled together with leg irons and hand irons and transported before the eyes of the public to work on those public roads. Now, that may be in the minds of some people the way to restore law and order, but certainly not according to my judgment. I think that unless we put some provisions in this constitution to insure that those things don't happen in this state, that they may well happen in this state because they have happened in other places at other times, and they were done by people, people just you and I. That's all I have to say.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Questions

Mr. Roemer Jack, in regard to this Paragraph (B) it reads: "State penitentiary." What about other institutions in the state, for instance, at Jackson where I think they do some work on their own shop and that sort of thing?

Mr. Avant Mr. Roemer, let me say this. I'm speaking on this particular amendment--there will be other amendments, some of which I may be for, probably will be for--one, in fact, I'm pretty sure I know that I'm going to be for. There is nothing intended here to stop a bona fide work release program for the purpose of rehabilitation; nobody wants to stop that.

Mr. Roemer Well, I just want you to know that's my concern. I share many of your same fears, but I...

Mr. Avant Nobody want to stop that. What we want to do...what I want to do is stop the leasing and hiring of human beings to other human beings like you lease cattle, bulldozers, tractors, and automobiles.

Further Discussion

Mr. Kilbourne Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I address myself especially to Section (A): that is, what is in the proposal is the exact language that has been in the constitution all this time and in the Constitution of 1921, and I don't know how long before that. But, I can tell you that this is a serious problem in the parish of West Feliciana where the penitentiary is located. For instance, just a few weeks ago when the last grand jury met in West Feliciana, I believe there were twenty-one murder indictments for killing in the prison at Angola. The expense of these things is terrific and it would be no way that a parish as small as West Feliciana could take care of these expenses. Now, it's well and good to say this is a legislative matter and the legislature will take care of it. Maybe they will. But, I can tell you within my memory--not in my term of public office as district attorney--but in my memory, there was times when they wouldn't pay them. I don't know for what reason, maybe political reasons or some other reason, but they wouldn't pay them. As a consequence, the grand jury in West Feliciana wouldn't indict anybody at Angola and I certainly never want to see that happen again. But, now, nowadays, it's a much more serious problem because of course, the prisoners at Angola have to be accorded just exactly the same rights that any other person accused of crime is accorded. The expense has gone up in proportion to their rights. I feel it would be a serious mistake to take this out of the constitution. I certainly hope that you will leave it in there. If anyone...I will say this, someone asked how this matter is handled. Well, it's handled this way. When they bring an inmate from Angola down for trial, whatever expenses incurred by the parish, for instance, jurors fees, transcribing testimony--all of those things run into--witness fees, expert witnesses, all of that. Any expense in connection with their trial is paid for by the state--as it certainly should be. I will be glad to answer any question, if anyone has any.

Questions

Mr. Alexander Mr. Kilbourne, so that the other delegates who are not familiar with what goes on up there will know about some of the expense incurred, do you not--of course this is West Feliciana --I think you are familiar with West Feliciana, also--that the judge goes onto the grounds of the penitentiary and tries some felony cases. Is that not a fact?

Mr. Kilbourne I'm sorry. Would you repeat it? I didn't understand the question, Reverend Alexander.

Mr. Alexander The question is that: are you familiar with the system under which the judges sometimes go to the penitentiary and try some felony cases--not necessarily capital, or what used to be capital cases--but assaults, etc.? Is that not a fact?

Mr. Kilbourne Your question is that they are going to prison and are tried for felony cases, not necessarily capital cases?

Mr. Alexander Right.

Mr. Kilbourne Yes. They are tried for all felony cases, and such as escape--any crime--; Just like the same crimes that are committed on the outside.

Mr. Alexander Which means that whenever that happens, then the whole court moves onto the...into the penitentiary.

Mr. Kilbourne In the penitentiary?

Mr. Alexander Yes.

Mr. Kilbourne Oh, no!

Mr. Alexander No?

Mr. Kilbourne No, no. No, the grand juries...

Mr. Alexander Only the grand jury?

Mr. Kilbourne The grand jury, when they investigate them, the grand juries frequently go there because the witnesses are all there. Angola is twenty-five miles from St. Francisville, where the courthouse is. So, in order to save a lot of... sometimes they may have fifteen or twenty witnesses --or maybe twenty-five witnesses--and they have to bring them down there in a big bus--the prisoners, the inmate witnesses. They have to bring them down there in a big bus with bars on it and keep them locked up there all day while the grand jury is investigating. So, what the grand juries have done recently, more recently, they have gone to the prison and held their grand jury sessions at the penitentiary. When...if they make the return indictment, of course the trials take place at the courthouse, which is at St. Francisville.

Mr. Alexander I see.

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Kilbourne, is it not true that the people up in the areas...the different areas around the several institutions, demand that the provisions contained in Section 1 (A) be put in the constitution?

Mr. Kilbourne That's correct.

Mr. Hernandez Rightfully so?

Mr. Kilbourne Yes, sir. In my opinion.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Hernandez That had not been brought out. I just wanted to be sure that that was brought out in testimony.

Mr. Kilbourne Thank you, sir.

Mr. Gauthier Rich, I agree with you in principle, but I'm trying to distinguish. It says in the... on lines 21, 22, and 23, "in such institutions by the inmates or employees thereof." In other words, if a person employed by Angola commits a crime, they...the parish has to be...

Well, what distinguishes this employee? He is a state employee, is he not?

Mr. Kilbourne Well, that's correct. He's a state employee, and the incident would take place at the institution. Now, bear in mind that's a big place. It's twenty-five thousand acres.

Mr. Gauthier Well, what distinguishes this particular state employee, say to another employee, possibly in the welfare office, who works in my parish that would commit a crime? Would my parish be reimbursed for it?

Mr. Kilbourne No, it would not. But...

Mr. Gauthier Well, I have trouble...

Mr. Kilbourne The...point is simply this, Mr. Gauthier, that Angola is the largest prison--one of the largest prisons in the country--and it's located in a small parish. Now, we...we seldom have problems with employees, except this: that we've had quite a number where they would smuggle contraband into the penitentiary. We've had quite a few trials like that. That would be in connection with the...operation of the institution. So, I presume that's the reason. But, those expenses are reimbursed to the parish.

Mr. Gauthier But, do you not agree that it would be possible for my parish, like any other parish, to incur some expenses because of the action of state employees?

Mr. Kilbourne Oh, I certainly agree with that. But, not on the magnitude it occurs at the penitentiary.

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendments. I hope you'll give me just a moment of your time, if you will, to let me, if I can in a few words, summarize how deeply I feel about this particular subject that we're talking about now at the moment.

I can remember in the thirties when you could go to the parish farm or the penitentiary, and you could get somebody out of the penitentiary, and you could bring them to your home and keep them and work them, and do anything you wanted to them so long as you fed them. I remember as a child, during the thirties, waking up around three o'clock in the morning, and a man that had one of these prisoners at his house two doors down, had housed him in a one room about 8 x 10 in a little garage that was a frame building; the building was on fire and that man burned to death in that fire. I stood by there as a child and smelled the flesh burning from a prisoner who ought to have been in the prison, protected at the time.

Secondly, I want to tell you this: What this is all about is simply this. There has been repeated occasions--repeated occasions--when prisoners at Angola--and just the last few days ago, I am told, a man sentenced up there for aggravated rape...raising hell because he wants some factory put in Angola to build furniture where he can put him up a little nest egg when he gets out.

Now, let me tell you what that does. All the people involved in the furniture industry in this state are displaced because they can perform the services cheaper than you can do it on the outside because they only pay them what they want to pay them in Angola. Consequently, the man on the outside who's committed no crime whatsoever, who has to pay the taxes to sustain Angola and keep him in Angola, has to sit on a bench; his children have to starve; they don't have the clothes to go to school. Yet, you are worried about the prisoners in Angola? I tell you, let's worry about the people who haven't committed any crimes.

Just a few years ago, they wanted to put up a paint factory in Angola. They wanted to sell all of the paint to the Highway Department. They had a paint factory in the city of New Orleans that would have gone completely out of business. Only through the good will of the governor was it stopped. I think there's a time and a place to draw the line. I heard Mr. Roy and those people on the other committees when they talked about law and order--put them in the penitentiary, punish them for the crimes. Let me tell you something else, Mr. Roy, I've been working on parolee rehabilitation since 1956. Where have you been? How many of those people up there that are lawyers are you willing to let out and practice law during the day and go back to Angola at night? I have no objection. I'm strong for work release programs so long as they work for private enterprise, and the state don't get the money. Let them stay in the penitentiary at night, work outside for private enterprise, private industry, during the day, but let them get the money--or let their family get it. Don't let the state lease to somebody, and let the state get the money. That's what this is all about. If you've got more concern for the prisoners in Angola than you have for the honest worker on the outside, or the honest businessman, then I suggest you vote for this amendment.

I remember the furor caused in this convention because they was worried about the state going into the printing business--not talking about Angola--just talking about the Division of Administration doing the printing, and all the hell that was raised because they didn't want to get into the printing business, because they had private enterprise doing the printing for the state--printing the Journal, printing the calendar. And now, we are willing to say "it's O.K. if you do it at Angola. It's O.K. if you do it with the prisoners. But, don't take care of the private citizen." I am amazed at what I hear from this microphone in this regard--absolutely amazed.

I ask you to defeat this amendment.

Questions

Mr. Nunez Mr. Flory, I'm not going to say I'm amazed at what you said, probably you've got very good reasons for saying it. But, do you know of any instance where we are competing with private enterprise with Angola and any other prison right now? Besides all the things that people wanted to do, is there one instance that we are now competing?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir. You, as a member of the legislature, appropriated three and a half million dollars for a new facility at Angola and you let the prisoners construct it. Then you came right behind and repealed that authority. It got so fouled up, no private contractor could go in there and straighten it out. No, it's wrong, Senator Nunez, to take people off the...in the penitentiary and construct a three and a half million dollar facility when you've got people on the outside who have committed no crime, who are paying their taxes to run Angola, and who can't get a job. Yes, sir, you as a member of the legislature did that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Abraham Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in support of this amendment because I think all of this is just purely statutory material that could go in the statutes just as well. But, let me correct a couple of impressions that were given from this microphone. One is that this language in Paragraph (B) is the same as in the present constitution. Let me read what the present constitution says. It says: that "no convict sentenced to the state penitentiary shall ever be leased or hired to any person, or persons, or corporations, private or public, or quasi-public or board, save as herein authorized."

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Now, the first portion of this Article III, Section 33, states, "The legislature may authorize the employment under state supervision, and the proper officers and employees of the state, of convicts on public roads or other public works, or convict farms, or in manufacturers owned and controlled by the state. Under such provision, restrictions may be imposed by law, and shall enact laws necessary to carry these provisions into effect." So, the legislature has had the authority to employ these people on public works in the past. I ask you: have we seen any road gangs on this state, as been mentioned as occurring in the southeast portion of the United States? In my lifetime, I have never seen any in Louisiana. I just don't think that this language is necessary in the constitution. I am very much in favor of work rehabilitation for people who serve time in penal institutions. But, because it is such a complicated problem, I don't think that we are in a position to try to deal with this here in this convention. Therefore, I think it must be left up to the legislature. It needs to be flexible enough so that the legislature can change it, if it does need to be changed. For these reasons, I am in favor of this amendment.

Further Discussion

Mr. De Blieux Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I had not had any intention of saying anything about this amendment until I heard Mr. Flory. Then, he kind of got me a little bit upset about it. I thought I'd better give you my views. Mr. Flory and I have had some differences about this type of program for a long, long time. Some people feel or think that convicts ought to be sent up there to Angola to stay there and do nothing about. That has been the situation for a long time. As a result, what do we have? We have a college for crime because they are not taught how to do anything whenever they go up there. Whenever they come out, they are in a worse position than when they are sent. Yes, Mr. Flory, and other members of this convention, I am thinking about the people on the outside because those are the ones who suffer because of the fact that we haven't done anything for the inmates that we have sent to Angola. One way to do something for those inmates is to teach them how to do a job when they get out of there, so they can become self-sustaining citizens. We don't want to send them up to Angola where they will be doing the same identical thing which caused them to go there. Let's teach them a trade. You can't teach them a trade with this type of legislation in our constitution. It ought to be taken out, and the legislature ought to be given a chance to work out proper work-release programs, proper rehabilitation. If necessary, if they are engaged in something that they can have a little pride in and a little dignity for them to help the state and its cost of keeping them up there and training them, they ought to be allowed to do it. So, therefore, I ask you, let's don't put this type of legislation into our constitution. It has no place in it. Certainly, it has no place for it if we are thinking about the good, honest, law-abiding citizens on the outside that we don't want to foster those who go to Angola and learn how to commit crime because there is nothing else there for them to do. Let's put the type of programs in Angola where we can help these people. Yes, if it's competition for outside industry, let's have a little competition to that respect. It won't hurt us that much, as long as we're teaching people how to do something. You take...there's nobody hardly objects to a license plant that we have up there. Yet, I say, that's in competition with private enterprise. You have license plants throughout the United States that are not run by convict labor. But, we have ours. We do business for other people other than the State of Louisiana up there. It helps to provide some sort of an income, as well as a little rehabilitation for those who work up there. We have...do have a small amount of training, but not near enough. We need more of it. Maybe, if we keep this out of the constitution, we can get more and help ourselves help the state, and help the inmates that we send up there. I ask you to support the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Flory Senator, have you ever heard me say, as any time, as long as you've known me, that that's all I wanted them to do was to stay up there and not do anything? Have you ever heard me say that?

Mr. De Blieux Well, Mr. Flory, I can't say that's the...I heard you use those exact words. But, yet, nevertheless, if you don't let those convicts learn how to do a job, that's all we are for.

Mr. Flory You inferred that, though, didn't you? Can you show me in this language where it would prohibit them from carrying on vocational training in that institution--or any institution? Can you show me that?

Mr. De Blieux Well, let's make it worthwhile vocational rehabilitation.

Mr. Willis Senator, don't you think that as "idleness is the devil's workshop," that in order to have some program conducive to rehabilitation, that they must perform some constructive work in the rehabilitation program? If that construction is construction itself, then it's a worthy cause, isn't it?

Mr. De Blieux Certainly, Mr. Willis. If there's something that whenever the inmate gets through with it he can see it and have some pride and dignity because of the fact he has done so, yes.

Mr. Willis Satisfaction indeed.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I rise in support of this amendment. This whole matter should be subject of legislation and not in the constitution. Different people say whether they are qualified or not to talk on rehabilitation. I believe I know a little about prisoner rehabilitation. I've handled as many pardon board and parole board cases, probably, as any lawyer in the history of Louisiana. I've been handling criminal cases all of my practice. Primarily, I'd say I am a civil lawyer. But, I'm interested in anything to do with human beings, and humanity, and trying to help people. My civil practice concerns contact with people. I don't like abstracts, titles, those things. Every case I've ever handled where I've got the man on parole, if possible, I've kept up with that person. I believe, since I've practiced since August 2, 1932, I know something about prisoner rehabilitation. It's not a question of whether you are going to take prisoners, keep them for life. You're not going to do it. The question involved is not being nabby-pabby and treat them lightly. But, they've got to learn somehow to make a living, to have some pride when they get out. We've got to live with those people. If they're going to put them off like the old days of Devil's Island, keep them there forever, that's one thing. But, they're going to be back here; it behooves us to do all we can to rehabilitate them.

Now, the reason I'm against Section 1, this is a matter for the legislature. Now, we've started with local and parochial affairs and education of putting too many things in this constitution that were really statutory. I don't believe in a technical thing on those. But, where it's clearly something that's liable to change from time to time, you can be wrong about, and it can just as well be in the legislative matters, let's don't put it in the constitution. I notice in one--and somebody will probably, if they get time to ask me a question, will say, "Isn't Section 1 more or less like that in the constitution?" It's not the question. This says in..."reimburse the parish for crimes committed in the institution"--by anybody--that could be a visitor. Why should they be reimbursed for that? Certainly that's debatable. Let the legislature decide that. Inmates or employees, where they commit them. I don't know why for employees. I agree there ought to be some reimbursement on the inmates. But, this don't say what type of reimbursement. This is not clear. We don't want to load this constitution down with things just because you want it there and not willing to take your chance with the legislature, if the thing is something that's subject to change.

As to Section (B), I don't think, Mr. Flory, you have any worry about those convicts being able to outdo skilled people and good people. I don't want something in (B), that passed, to interfere with the work-release program and those type of programs. I say this is entirely a subject for the legislature--just like on juvenile jurisdiction. That thing is changed from day to day, and the same about prisoners. What's good this year might not be proper method next year. That's why this should be sustained--this committee amendment, this floor amendment--and let it be a subject for the legislature.

In conclusion to say, if it needs changing from year to year, you can do it. So, I say sustain it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

Mr. Nunez Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in support of these amendments. I don't believe that the material placed before you in Committee Proposal 12 is constitutional material. I think it can aptly be handled in the statutes. I think it has been handled in the statutes before. I believe that Section (A), when we talk about reimbursing the various penal institutions throughout the state, we can make that applicable to the various parishes. A crime is a crime whether you serve it in Angola, or serve it in parish prison, or serve it in reform school, or where you serve it. I think if the state has an obligation to take care of those crimes committed within an institution by an inmate in Angola and other state institutions, it has that same obligation to take care of those crimes committed by inmates, upon inmates or on other people in other places.

I believe in Section (B), when you talk about convict labor, I think if you'd read the last sentence, it says, "No convict sentenced to the state penitentiary shall ever be employed"--shall ever be employed in any enterprise in competition with free enterprise, or private enterprise." What does that mean, when he gets out he can never be employed in competition with free enterprise, because he's a convict? I think if you'd read it, that's what it means. I don't think it's necessary. I think that we can aptly handle it in the statutes. I believe that if the...biggest thing we can be accused of in the legislature is saving the state three million dollars--which I can't recall, Mr. Flory, I can't recall at all appropriating three million dollars to build new constructions at Angola--I think that the statute you quoted to me says "maintenance repairs and renovation." If that's all we can do for those people up there is allow them to do a little job on the side, I think we're doing them a favor. I also think we're doing this state a favor when we can save three million dollars. Let's hope we might be able to save ten, eleven, or twelve, or what have you.

So, I ask you to vote for the amendments. I think they are good amendments. I don't think this is needed in the constitution.

Questions

Mr. Avant Senator Nunez, I want to direct your attention to Amendment No. 2, I believe it is, which would delete lines 24 through 29. I want to ask you this question: Isn't it a historical fact that following the Civil War and with the end of slavery as an institution, that it became the practice in many southern states--including this state--to lease gangs of convicts, or hire them, to private individuals in saw mills, on plantations--just turn them over to those people like any other piece of equipment, and that that's why this provision was put in this...our constitution in 1896 to outlaw that practice? Isn't that a historical fact?

Mr. Nunez Mr. Avant, there are many historical facts. There were many things that we did before the Civil War and during the Civil War that are now prohibited. I think you know it.

Mr. Avant I'm talking about after the Civil War.

Mr. Nunez Well, after the Civil War. I think if we are going to write this constitution based on what was done during the Civil War, we are in bad shape. Do you know of any instances that, in the past ten years, that...or the past twenty years? I don't know any, and let me be positive about it. I don't know anywhere where we are leasing convict labor to saw mills to cut down trees, to do private enterprise. I don't know of any. The only one I know of and I think it is historical in this state, I don't think...don't even know if they are doing it any more--is to make the license plate. I don't know of any instances in recent history--in recent history--if we want to start talking about what happened fifty years ago, I think we are in the wrong place. Certainly we should base some of our facts on historical data that we have. But, I don't know of any recent history that we have had instances in this state that has been practiced is to lease convict labor out to private enterprise. Now, if you or Mr. Flory's, or anybody else know, I wish you would get up here and expose them.

Mr. Avant Didn't it continue in certain of the southern states until as late as the 1920's?

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory]. On page 1--I guess we'll just simply say--at line 18, insert the following:

"Inmate Labor." (There are some...two changes in the text) "No person (need to insert the word "while")...No person while confined in a state correctional institution shall ever be leased, or hired by the state to any person or persons, or corporation, private or public, or quasi-public. No person shall ever be employed in any enterprise in competition with private enterprise, except for the productions of goods used or consumed, or maintenance services performed, in state or parish institutions." (The words "or parish" need to be added--"in state or parish institutions.")

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, as I had indicated earlier, in the explanation of the article, that I had this amendment that I believed would correct...

Point of Order

Mr. Tobias A point of order, Mr. Chairman. Amendment No. 3 deleted the, in effect, title of this section, and, in effect, defeated the whole proposal. Is this amendment...would this...

Mr. Henry No, sir; it didn't, in effect, defeat the whole proposal because you've still got the committee proposal. So, technically speaking, you could add a bunch of sections to it and go on with it, Mr. Tobias, although it...well, anyway, you can do that.

Why...did you have a point of...

Point of Information

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Chatelain Would it take sixty-seven votes, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. Henry It will take sixty-seven votes to adopt any section to this, and then to adopt the proposal.

Explanation continued

Mr. Flory As I had stated earlier, I had no intention to do away with the rehabilitation programs nor the work release programs inasmuch as we had, for many years, worked with the Department of Corrections, with many governors that have served, with public officials in trying to help rehabilitate the prisoners at Angola, and that I had the amendment coming. I believe that this amendment does clarify it; does not interfere with those programs, nor does it interfere with the production of goods that are sold to the parish penal institutions for the maintenance of prisoners on the parish level. It was not our intention to do that. When it was brought to my attention, we attempted to correct it, and I hope that this would correct it. I do believe that this is constitutional material and would ask for you to consider its adoption.

Questions

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, when you say, "state correctional institution," could that be in any way construed to apply to parish prisons?

Mr. Flory No, sir.

Mr. Ourso Mr. Flory, now, since you put in here, "in state or parish institutions," does that mean that the sheriffs or the police juries throughout the state can still purchase their mattresses and pillows, parish uniforms, and signs, etc., and such as foods that they use in the jail from the state prison? Is that correct, sir?

Mr. Flory That's correct, and it was not our intent, at the beginning, to disturb that. It just was not brought to our attention; when it was brought to our attention, more than happy to correct it because we did not intend to disturb that.

Mr. Munson Gordon, on line 1 where it says, "No person while confined in a state correctional institution," which I agree with, but down on the second sentence, it says, "no such person." Do you think it's clear enough there that we're still talking about a person "while confined"?

Mr. Flory I think that's clear because the only person we're talking about is a person "while confined."

Mr. Munson I just wanted to clarify that point. Now, let me ask you the same question that I asked you earlier, and that is in regard to the license plates. Will this have any effect on that whatsoever?

Mr. Flory Well, it spells out specifically that that could continue because it said, "goods used or consumed, or maintenance services performed, in state or parish institutions." This is no way...there's no enterprise in this state who is in competition with them as far as making of license plates.

Mr. Goldman Mr. Flory, when you say there is no private enterprise in competition in making license plates, are there private enterprises in this state that stamp out words on metal?

Mr. Flory That do what?

Mr. Goldman That stamp out words or letters on metal. They may not be called license plates, but they make that type of product; don't they?

Mr. Flory Well, I don't know if they make license plates in competition with Angola. That was my statement.

Mr. Goldman Well, they couldn't do that because they couldn't make license plates unless they could contract with the state for the state to sell those license plates to the public. But, those license plates are sold to the public, and doesn't your last sentence prohibit the manufacture of anything that's sold to the public?

Mr. Flory Not intended that way...

Mr. Goldman I realize that.

Mr. Flory ...other than the production of goods other than the license plates, and those goods that are sold to state or penal institutions in the parish level.

Mr. Dennis Gordon, I heard you say something about work release, but I missed your explanation. How can you have a work release program under this provision? You say that "No such person shall ever be employed in any enterprise in competition with private enterprise." Don't you realize that's where they work? They go out and work for private enterprise.

Mr. Flory If they work outside for private industry, they're working for private enterprise and not in competition therewith. The only enterprise that can be in competition with private enterprise is the state enterprise--the public enterprise--and that's what you're talking about in competition.

Mr. Dennis Don't you think that this is going to be interpreted to mean that they can't work for a private employer who is in competition with another private employer who doesn't have work release labor?

Mr. Flory No, I didn't say in competition with private firms, I said, "in competition with private enterprise." They are a part of private enterprise, and that was to protect the work release program. I think it specifically protects the work release program. That's what we intend to do.

Mr. Dennis Don't you think it should be clarified, though? Don't you think there's a danger that it might be interpreted to mean that a man cannot go out and work in a job where he is competing with somebody else in private enterprise?

Mr. Flory Judge, I think it's as clear as I can make it in the language here, and certainly in the intent. If it's adopted, then certainly you can offer an amendment to correct...I wanted to finish one more statement, Mr. Chairman, just to say that the only purpose of this is to protect the private enterprise system and to stop the prisoner competition with private enterprise. That's solely what it is, and not to disturb the existing programs of rehabilitation and the work release programs that now exist.

I would ask the adoption of the amendment.

Mr. Fulco Mr. Chairman, that was the question I was going to ask, the one that was asked by Judge Dennis. But, it still isn't clear. I heard Gordon say something about inmates are...will be allowed to work for private enterprise, but then, again, when you read it in here, it says, "not in competition with private enterprise." So, it's got to be clarified...

Mr. Flory Well, Mr. Fulco, let me say this: if you read it very carefully, it says, "No person shall ever be employed in any enterprise in competition with." Now, the only enterprise that's in competition with private enterprise is the state enterprise, is the public enterprise. There is no other, to my knowledge.

Further Discussion

Mr. Jack Mr. Chairman and members, I rise in opposition to the amendment. This does not do--the wording--what, in my opinion, what Mr. Flory wants

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

it to do. Now, I personally don't want the prisoners to form a big company in competition with private enterprise, but that isn't...this amendment doesn't do that. This amendment--just like Judge Dennis asked--it's very clear. It interferes with the work release program. I don't know whether you understand it. A work release program is simply this: you can have prisoners at Angola, and they release them to stay in jails in various parishes at night. During the day, they work for different business in private enterprise. So, they would be working in competition with private enterprise. If we pass this amendment, you're going to kill the work release program which is one of the finest methods that I know of to rehabilitate prisoners. You're going to kill the halfway houses and all those other programs like those that come from DeQuincy and somewhere near Alexandria--a lot of them. They work under a program as individuals; they are paid; the state doesn't get the money. The state may have to designate how many. This is the perfect example, as I said earlier on the other amendment, why this matter should be left up to the legislature. If they make an error, they can correct it the next year. They have yearly sessions of full sixty calendar days if they need it. Now, we haven't met...since 1921. This is a new convention and none of us, probably--it may be a hundred years before this meets again. Now, we don't want to go off on a tangent and start putting a lot of these things in the constitution that clearly the subject should be dealt with by the legislature. I think Mr. Flory and I agree; I don't want them competing in the sense of a big factory or that with...in private enterprise. But, this is dangerous the way it's worded. To me, it's worse than the other material in it because this definitely provides that you would lose your work release programs. So, I say, "Let's defeat it and let the legislature legislate."

Questions

Mr. Willis Mr. Jack, I am averse to the amendment, but for a different shade because I believe that the amendment is self-destruct. Don't you think that any production of goods used, or consumed, or maintained, or performed for parish or state institutions--no matter what they are--are in competition with private enterprise? I give you this example: if you take a plumber from Angola to go repair plumbing at a school in East Baton Rouge Parish, he is competing with the plumbers in East Baton Rouge Parish, isn't he?

Mr. Jack Well, he'd probably be worth something, but I don't see how it has anything to do with this. I don't believe the churches and all those nonprofit companies should compete in things with private enterprise, and this group agreed with that. But, we are dealing, here, with a thing that's even more so. I don't think prisoners who get their food free and everything should be leased out by the state, or the state should build factories up at Angola--like a shirt factory or a suit factory, making of shoes and every kind going, forty different kind, that would have free labor. No, I don't believe in that.

Further Discussion

Mr. Stagg Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment more out of disappointment than opposition because it does not do what the proponent wants it to do, and it needs to be repaired. If you look, beginning in line 4 where it says, "No such person"--all right, that's a person who is incarcerated in Angola--"can be employed with private enterprise." But, it says, "except for the production of goods"--in place of "goods" put license plates--for the production of license plates "used or consumed in state institutions." Well, license plates aren't used or consumed in state institutions; they are used or consumed out on the highways of this state. It's quite likely that an inmate in Angola who was sick of making license plates after twenty years could bring a suit in that parish court, over there where Richard Kilbourne is from, to be kept from making license plates because it would be patently unconstitutional under the language of the Flory amendment. I think that language needs to be repaired. I hope that during the time this constitution is in effect they take Angola and plow it back into sugarcane, and that we use a more regional method of housing prisoners so they can receive the services of proper rehabilitation, proper training, proper teaching. With Angola being twenty-five miles down a little narrow road off in a remote corner of the state, nobody wants to go there much less be kept there in prison. But, that's not what this argument is about. This argument is about this amendment on this floor this afternoon, and it's not a good amendment.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The Flory amendment reads as follows: Amendment No. 1. At the beginning of line 18, insert the following: (Mr. Flory, I believe we need to strike out that (A) and insert a Section 1 there since all that's been deleted.)

"Section 1. Inmate Labor. No person while confined in a state correctional institution shall ever be leased, or hired by the state to any person, entity, or corporation, nor employed in any public enterprise in competition with private enterprise, except for the production of goods used or consumed, or maintained, or maintenance services performed in state or parish institutions. Nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting the employment of such persons in work release programs authorized by law nor in the manufacture and sale of vehicle license plates."

Explanation

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, what the amendment does is to attempt to correct some of the objections--or most of the objections, if not all of them--that I had heard. We inserted in line 4 the word, "any public enterprise in competition with private enterprise" so there'd be no quarrel as to whether or not we were talking about public enterprise versus private enterprise. We added the last sentence, and I'd like to read it to you. "Nothing herein shall be construed as prohibiting the employment of such persons in work release programs authorized by law nor in the manufacture and sale of vehicle license plates." I believe that it's clear now what the intent is, and I would ask for the adoption of the amendment.

Questions

Mr. Chatelain Delegate Flory, I see you inserted the word "state enterprise." I mean, I'm still looking at the old one; it's got the last one. Does that mean inside or outside of the penitentiary, sir?

Mr. Flory No, I inserted the word, "in any public enterprise," Mr. Chatelain.

Mr. Lanier Mr. Flory, why did the...why was the sugarcane harvesting terminated up at Angola? Do you know?

Mr. Flory Why was what?

Mr. Lanier We used to have sugarcane harvesting going on at Angola. Do you know why that was terminated?

Mr. Flory It's my understanding that it wasn't a profitable venture.

Mr. Lanier Okay. Suppose they went back to that practice at Angola. Would that be in competition with private enterprise?

Mr. Flory Not so long as they use the sugar of

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

what have you from the cane in the public institution.

Mr. Lanier Now, when a person goes to Angola, isn't he sentenced to hard labor?

Mr. Flory It depends upon what the judge gives him, I guess.

Mr. Lanier If he's not sentenced to hard labor, he doesn't go to Angola; does he?

Mr. Flory I'm not an attorney, Mr. Lanier. I can't answer that; I don't know.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Flory, are work release programs, to your knowledge, established by law or are they established by department policy?

Mr. Flory At the present time?

Mr. J. Jackson At the present time, right.

Mr. Flory I believe I know of...I have something back on my desk there in the statutes. I believe there are some provided by the statutes, but I think the legislature ought to establish a uniform work release program, whatever kind it may be, and I don't think it ought to be at the whim of whoever is the warden of the institution.

Mr. Abraham Gordon, would any of this language in any way prevent an inmate in an institution from learning a trade such as welding or pipe fitting or automobile mechanics or electrical work?

Mr. Flory No, sir; in no way.

Mr. Abraham Well, in learning this trade, would it prevent them from doing construction work within the confines of the institution?

Mr. Flory No, sir; in no way, no way. I can also say to you, Mr. Abraham, that when...because of finances, the vocational instructional classes were discontinued at Angola. We were one of those who strongly recommended to the governor that they be reinstated, and they were reinstated at our request in 1964.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Flory, you evidently changed it around considerably, the way I'm reading it, and I noticed that when you said, "or maintenance services performed," the present statutes authorize maintenance repairs and renovation which would be in line with Mr. Abraham's question about a welder if there was some renovation or some repairs to be done, evidently he couldn't do it without... with the language you have left out of here--number one. Number two, it looks to me like you're doing exactly what you don't want to do--"except for production of goods used or consumed, or maintenance services performed, in state or parish institutions." For instance, they can lease a convict out, evidently, to do this if it was consumed by parish or state institutions; is that not right?

Mr. Flory No. Mr. Nunez. What it says, if you read it carefully, is that they can continue to do maintenance work, etc., in these institutions because the prohibition...you have the prohibition and then you have the exception. It allows them to continue to do not only the vocational training, etc., but whatever maintenance work there, so long as it's done within that institution.

Mr. Nunez The exception, "except for production of goods used or consumed, or maintenance," and I would rather see repairs and renovations along with the maintenance and services performed--"maintenance services performed in state or parish"--you added "parish" to this which was not in the other constitution or in either of your other amendments; is that not correct?

Mr. Flory No, this was in the other amendment. We added it at the desk, Senator Nunez, because I am told that Angola--in the production of canned goods--sells to the parish sheriffs, for example, for the parish jails, food that they feed the prisoners in the parish jails. So, in order not to interfere with that, we included that language at the desk, and it was announced from the desk. Also, they sell, from Angola, mattresses, bed clothing, etc., and we did not want to interfere with that.

Mr. Giarrusso Mr. Flory, I'd like to preface my question by saying that I want you to know that I'm not anti-labor, and I'm pro-labor in the sense that I'm thankful for the progress that labor has contributed to the welfare of the workers in this country. So, with that in mind, I ask you this question--and I hate to repeat myself. But, don't you think that your amendment is statutory and that you are anticipating, perhaps, what a penologist might possibly do, what methods they might employ, in time to come, as to various work programs that might be brought up? You're putting them in a very inflexible position in that they can't move; whereas, if you make this statutory, the legislature, at any time, can go ahead and make the changes to fit the conditions at that particular time. In principle, I'm for what you're trying to do, but I'm not for trying to lock something in the constitution that I feel doesn't belong there.

Mr. Flory Well, bear in mind, Mr. Giarrusso, for many years in this state we've had prohibitions in the constitution as to what they could do with inmates in penal institutions. I think that is true in the majority of the other states of this nation. There still is a trend in this country not to allow the leasing and the use of convicts on private enterprises. All this does is carry forward the prohibition on the leasing of convicts to private interests, but still allow for the use so that there'd be no question--the use of work release programs as a means of rehabilitation. It's that simple.

Mr. Giarrusso Well, again I just say I repeat myself is that don't you know that there have been very many studies that have been made by various federal agencies and state agencies trying to improve our situation regarding penal institutions and that...

Mr. Flory Yes, sir; I know that we have attempted...have been many studies made on the improvement of penal institutions throughout this country. I think there are many improvements that ought to be made, both in the physical plant and the way that they are run. I also know, on the other hand, the experience that has been on the attempts that have been made in this state to put factories in penal institutions to produce goods in competition with free enterprise. That, I want to prohibit.

Mr. Giarrusso Well, I'm not against that; I'm for you along those lines.

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Flory, most of my questions have already been answered, but there's one thing that I've heard discussed quite a bit. Aren't all these work release programs covered in the laws?

Mr. Flory Well, I hesitated to answer that categorically awhile ago, Mr. Hernandez, because I'm not absolutely positive. I do know Senator O'Keefe, several years ago, handled a whole series of bills dealing with parolee and inmate rehabilitation. I know there are some--whether they are all in there or not. I further added I think that they ought to be by law, and that they ought not be at the discretion of a particular warden of a particular institution.

Mr. Hernandez Now, that, I hardly agree with on...that's the point I wanted to bring out that these work release programs...I know of no work release programs that's established up there that isn't covered by the law; do you?

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Flory I don't know of any; no, sir.

Mr. Hernandez I don't know of any. This, I believe, I just would like to comment that this, I believe, conforms to the unanimous opinion of the committee that worked this thing up, too.

Mr. Chatelain Gordon, you're coming back in this new amendment, you put the word "entity" after the word... "to any person, entity, or corporation." Now what is... why do you put that word, "entity"? What does that mean, sir?

Mr. Flory I'm told that that is the legal term used for a partnership, etc. It's a legal term, and it was put in there to shorten--we cut several words out, the quasi-public, etc.--and used the word "entity" because it had certain legal meanings as it relates to partnerships.

Mr. Chatelain Now, you also refer--down later on --"except for the production of goods used or consumed, or maintenance services performed, in state or parish institutions." When you say a "parish institution," are you referring to a parish jail?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir.

Mr. Chatelain In other words, if a...

Mr. Flory Or any parish penal institution.

Mr. Chatelain I know, but a parish jail--you say, "parish institutions." That's the reason I want to--for the record--to know if you mean a parish jail?

Mr. Flory Yes, sir.

Mr. Chatelain Do you mean that if we have inmates who are qualified journeymen in some trade, that he cannot repair the plumbing or the electrical or whatever it is in that parish jail, or do any painting or anything in there insofar as the maintenance of that jail?

Mr. Flory What it means is that an Angola inmate could go to a parish jail and do the maintenance work, under this amendment.

Mr. Chatelain Are you referring to Angola or any state...

Mr. Flory Yes, any state correctional inmate.

Mr. Chatelain The only thing I'm fearful of--I join Delegate Giarrusso--I think that you're hastily writing a constitutional amendment, here, that's got some dangers. I think it's doing some things you don't want it to do, here.

Mr. Flory No, sir; I don't believe that I am. I think what I am doing here is prohibiting the Angola Penitentiary from competing with private industry on the outside and, yet, providing for real, meaningful work release programs and rehabilitation programs as the legislature may deem, in its wisdom, to be wise.

Mr. Willis Mr. Flory, focusing upon your first independent clause, isn't it a fact that a convict could be leased to another state agency? You don't exclude state agencies, and the Highway Department is an agency. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory Well, I think it says, "in any public enterprise in competition with private enterprise," Mr. Willis, and I'm told that under that language they could not do that.

Mr. Willis Well, now, let us assume that the warehouses of the state or parish institutions are either gorged or the don't want the merchandise from the... from Angola. Don't you think that the hard labor to which those convicts are sentenced will be reducing to making small rocks out of little ones, and dehumanize the convict beyond the poor privilege of rehabilitation?

Mr. Flory No, sir.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 37-57. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment sent up by Delegate Kilbourne as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 18, insert the following:

"Section 1. (A) State Penal Institutions; Reimbursement of Parish Expense. In parishes in which are located penal institutions of the State of Louisiana, the expenses incurred by the parish arising from crimes committed in such institutions or by the inmates thereof shall be reimbursed by the state."

Explanation

Mr. Kilbourne Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is almost the same as the amendment...the proposal we've already voted on, except I have left out employees. I can only reiterate what I told you already. I think this is very necessary, and it's been pointed out to me that...under present Article IV of Section 12, without this being in the constitution, these expenses could not be reimbursed by the legislature. So, I think it...and I think that's why it was in there. It's very urgent that we put that in there because these people that commit these crimes, and believe me, it's a real serious situation in Angola. There's nowhere else you can try them except in the parish of West Feliciana, unless there's a change of venue. It's a terrific expense, and it will simply mean that the parish just simply could not carry the burden. These people could not be tried. For the protection of the inmates, themselves, it is certainly necessary that we have them tried for the crimes that they commit against one another at Angola. I certainly hope that you will see fit to pass this amendment. I believe some of the delegates may have become confused on the other matter when the other vote was taken--I hope so, and the manner in which it was voted on. I'll answer any questions that I can.

Questions

Mr. Kean Mr. Kilbourne, as I understand your explanation, the present constitution, Article IV, Section 12, prohibits the granting of public funds by the state to any person or corporation--public or private. If this provision is carried over in the new constitution and we don't have the provision that you are here presenting for reimbursement of the parish, under those circumstances, the legislature couldn't act to make reimbursement, could it?

Mr. Kilbourne That's my understanding, Mr. Kean, and I appreciate your pointing it out to me. Let me say this: West Feliciana is...I think that the population--excluding the population, the inmate population of Angola--is about between twelve and fourteen thousand people. Angola, you know occupies about twenty...between twenty-three and twenty-five thousand acres of land which isn't on the tax roll. It...it just isn't any way that these matters...that these crimes could be handled in the courts in West Feliciana without this amendment.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Kilbourne, do you have any idea what we are talking about in actual dollars and cents or cost to the Judiciary Department in that parish?

Mr. Kilbourne Well, Mr. Nunez, one trial--if it goes all the way to the Supreme Court, and most of them do now--can cost anywhere from two thousand to three thousand dollars--one trial.

Mr. Nunez I realize that, Mr. Kilbourne, but I thought you might have had some idea that in 1971 and '72 it cost the state a hundred thousand dollars to do this service for that parish because of that institution, 'cause it's presently covered. I don't recall of ever...voting for an appropriation of that sort. That's why I'm...I'm trying...and if it is justified, I'd be glad to vote for it.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Kilbourne I don't know how, Mr. Nunez...I don't have the figures here because I didn't know this was coming up today. I could have easily gotten them. But, we have had trouble in the last...with the change of administration of the new attorney general that we had an argument about the repayment of these expenses because they didn't know any authority for it. I had to go dig up this constitutional provision because I don't know just how it's taken care of, whether it was a general fund or some of it's paid for by Angola. Incidentally, Mr. Nunez, we got a bill in 1956 in the legislature to reimburse attorneys who represent these inmates, which is also a very, I think, a very progressive thing. It worked out...it worked very well indeed which, of course, had nothin to do with this particular phase of it, but I recall, one time, spending about two weeks, myself, defending inmates at Angola and didn't get a penny for it--not even in expenses.

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Kilbourne, I'm trying to...I understand you do have a problem as it relates to judicial expense. Let's say, if an inmate from a parish prison escaped from West Feliciana and commits a crime in East Baton Rouge Parish. Are those same kind of reciprocal agreements made from parish to parish, that maybe the parish of East Baton Rouge would then be subject to--I mean the parish of West Feliciana--would be subject to bear the court costs of that inmate?

Mr. Kilbourne You are asking whether...if an inmate in the parish jail in West Feliciana escapes and goes to Baton Rouge and commits a crime, well, that wouldn't...this wouldn't have anything to do with this. This only covers the state institution.

Mr. J. Jackson But, I'm trying to find out in terms of some rationale, do we have that kind of agreement or that kind of understanding on parish levels?

Mr. Kilbourne I'm not aware of that, Mr. Jackson.

Mr. Durso Mr. Kilbourne, you have the state institution for the prisoners in your parish; I have the state institution for the prisoners in my parish for women--you have it for the men. This is a friendly question. It's a question with a statement. Do you know that we had a disturbance over in St. Gabriel at the women's prison farm, and at that time, we didn't have a public defender. Three attorneys were appointed to represent these inmates, and they sent a bill to the police jury of about eighty-five hundred dollars? Out of the fund for the parish, they are still paying off that bill. That's just one disturbance that they had over there. Now, through the public defender's system, thank goodness, that they don't have that anymore. But, they are still paying a bill for what they had before. I think that that happened in a state institution that the state should pay for that.

Mr. Kilbourne I wasn't aware of it, Sheriff, but it certainly is becoming more of a problem all the time, and I believe we'd be taking a step backward if we didn't have this in the constitution.

Mr. Chatelain Mr. Kilbourne, I'm certainly sympathetic with your problem, but could not the legislature provide for this also?

Mr. Kilbourne Well,...I think I pointed out, Mr. Chatelain, it's my understanding under the present constitution, Article IV, Section 12, which...will like to be carried over into what we're working on now, they could not without this provision; and I think that's the reason it's in there.

Mr. Velazquez Delegate Kilbourne, since the people at Angola come from all over Louisiana, and since when they cause a problem at Angola the East Feliciana Parish has to bear the burden of that, shouldn't the entire state be willing to reimburse East Feliciana Parish for disturbances caused by citizens from all over Louisiana?

Mr. Kilbourne I would certainly hope so, Mr. Velazquez.

Mr. Giarrusso Mr. Kilbourne, don't you think this is discriminatory in that the parish of Orleans--where the parish prison population is about a thousand--when crimes are committed with the confines of the parish prison, and these prisoners are brought to trial wherein they are state prisoners, is that Orleans Parish is not reimbursed for the trial expense whereas, your parish is?

Mr. Kilbourne I'm sorry, sir, I didn't...I couldn't here all of your question, and I can't answer it. If you'd repeat it, I'd try to answer it.

Mr. Giarrusso Okay, I said, don't you think that your proposal is discriminatory in that East and West Feliciana...

Mr. Kilbourne This is West Feliciana...

Mr. Giarrusso ...All right. West Feliciana is reimbursed for these expenses, whereas in Orleans Parish, in parish prison where the population is about a thousand, crimes are committed there just as in Angola, they go to trial, but Orleans Parish is not reimbursed...

Mr. Kilbourne You mean...prisoners from Angola commit crimes in the prison in New Orleans, and the parish is not reimbursed.

Mr. Giarrusso No. I said state prisoners...or commit crimes.

Mr. Kilbourne Well, that's a parish prison. No, sir, I don't think any parish prison...no provision...that's not a real problem. It may be in New Orleans. Let me say this: in my experience the worst prisoners they have at Angola came from New Orleans.

Mr. Giarrusso No question about that.

Mr. Singletary Mr. Kilbourne, doesn't this amendment refer to state institutions?

Mr. Kilbourne Yes, sir. That's the intent of it, and I believe it's specifically...and it's just exactly what is in the present constitution with the omission of one word. It hasn't caused any problem in all these years; it worked very well indeed, and I certainly hope you will vote favorably on it.

Mr. Singletary Well, it's not referring to parish prisons?

Mr. Kilbourne No, sir.

Mr. Singletary All right. Well, it seems to me that it is implying that the parish has to pay other expenses of state institutions except the ones caused by crimes committed in such institutions.

Mr. Kilbourne Well...I don't quite understand that, but what you are exactly...getting at...

Further Discussion

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, I rise in support of Mr. Kilbourne's amendment, and I think there are a number of facts that haven't been brought out that the convention ought to be aware of. The main effect of this amendment does deal with West Feliciana Parish because the state prison is located there. It also, though, would deal with other state...penal institutions such as the various locations of

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Louisiana Training Institute, and the Woman's Prison in St. Gabriel. Now, I want you to take the Parish of West Feliciana Parish, as an example, to see the injustice that might occur if we don't adopt this provision. West Feliciana has a population of probably about twelve thousand people. There are, in turn, about four thousand inmates up in the upper northwest corner of the parish, very isolated from the rest of the parish. Of the people who work at the prison, the employees, most of them either live in Mississippi, in Avoyelles Parish, or on the prison grounds itself. In which case, they contribute nothing in the way of taxes--property taxes--to the parish of West Feliciana, nothing in the way of sales taxes to that parish. Only a handful of the employees live in West Feliciana Parish itself. The prison itself contributes nothing in the way of finances to West Feliciana Parish. Yet, the children of the employees who do live on the prison grounds, and those few who do live off the prison grounds, go to school in West Feliciana Parish and use the services of that parish. Now, every crime that is committed in the prison itself has to be tried in the Twentieth Judicial Court which sits for these purposes at St. Francisville. There's no rationale or justification for forcing the people of West Feliciana Parish who benefit not at all from the existence of this institution, and who are not a particularly a rich parish at all, to have to bear this expense. Now, the problem that arises if we don't have this in here, is the fact that in years past before this provision was in the constitution, occasions arose when the legislature refused to pay these expenses; and it's just and right that the legislature would. Now, Chief Giarrusso raised the question of parish jails and the fact that there is no reimbursement for those. That's not a legitimate argument, I don't think. The people in the parish jail, even though they're sent up for state offenses, are there because they committed an offense in Orleans Parish, if they're in the Orleans Jail. So, it's just that Orleans Parish would pay the expenses of trial of those prisoners, just as the people who are in the West Feliciana Jail in St. Francisville, their expenses are paid...their trials and so forth--if they committed crimes from West Feliciana Parish--are paid for by West Feliciana Parish. But, there's no justification for forcing the people of West Feliciana Parish to pay for crimes--the trials of crimes--which are committed on the grounds of a state institution by people who were sent there without their consent and without the consent of the people of West Feliciana Parish. Now, the question was raised of the fact that there were twenty capital offenses which had to be...which are now pending in West Feliciana Parish that occurred in the last six months at Angola. This represents a tremendous expense for a small parish, and it's just not right to put that expense on the people of that parish. So, I urge you to do a just...do justice here and adopt this amendment.

Questions

Mrs. Warren Mr. Chairman, somebody else might want to know what I want to know, but I was trying to save time; but I will ask him. He mentioned the fact that we had people from Mississippi that was working at the prison, and that they were not contributing anything, but their children were going to school here. Now, I would like to know...wait...I would like to know how many people are employed here in our institution from Mississippi or any other state.

Mr. Jenkins No, that isn't what I said, Mrs. Warren. I said that a large number, a majority of the people who work at the prison either live on the grounds in Mississippi or in Avoyelles Parish. I think there is a distinct minority that live in the parish itself. But, as I said, the children of the employees who live on the grounds and outside the grounds, but in West Feliciana Parish, do go to the West Feliciana Parish schools.

Mrs. Warren Well, what is the rationale for hiring people out of Mississippi in Louisiana; you can't find nobody here?

Mr. Jenkins Well, Mrs. Warren, I think that's another question entirely, I have no reason for it one way or the other; I'm just telling you the facts and the facts that...

Mrs. Warren That's the reason I didn't want to come here, but I wanted to ask you the question; and I didn't want anybody to think I had a secret.

Point of Information

Mr. Kean A question for the Chair, Mr. Chairman. I know you have ruled it twice now, but we are now offering amendments to this proposal. The amendment has to have sixty-seven votes in order to pass?

Mr. Henry Well, it says...the rules provide that to add a new section, you have to have sixty-seven votes, and to adopt a section you have to have sixty-seven votes; so that's the problem.

[Motion to reconsider adopted: 74-18. Previous Question ordered. Quorum Call: 92 delegates present and a quorum. Amendment adopted: 79-12.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Flory]. On page 1, at the beginning of line 16, and immediately before the language added by Convention Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by delegate--we have to now change that Kilbourne, and adopted by the convention on today, insert the following:
"Article VII. Human Resources, Section 1. Penal Institutions and Convict Labor"--you want to knock out the "Convict Labor" now, Mr. Kilbourne--just make it "Penal Institutions".

Point of Information

Mr. Singletary This is with regard to the technical amendment; is that correct?

Mr. Henry I can't hear you, Mr. Singletary, speak in the mike, please.

Mr. Singletary All right. This is with regard...we're on the technical amendment right now, Mr. Chairman?

Mr. Henry Yes, sir, that's right.

Mr. Singletary I was just wondering why it refers to convict labor?

Mr. Poynter We took it out. That was drawn for Mr. Flory's amendment, and I just swapped Flory's name with Kilbourne and struck out "and convict labor".

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment reads as follows by Mr. Jenkins and Mr. Roemer:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 14 through 18, both inclusive, in their entirety and all floor amendments thereto.

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, I want to withdraw that amendment because I have another one that I want to try to pass as a compromise to hopefully satisfy most people.

[Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Amendment reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1 [by Mr. Jenkins]. On page 1, delete lines 14 through 18, both inclusive, in their entirety and all floor amendments thereto, and insert the following: --Now, Mr. Jenkins, with your permission I think we need a couple of technical changes--that Article VII does not need to be at the beginning of that, and since we just adopted a Section 1 to this article, make this a Section 2.

"Section 2. Economic and Social Welfare; Unemployment Compensation; and Public Health Section 2. The legislature may establish a system of economic and social welfare, unemployment compensation, and public health."

Explanation

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Chairman, I had an amendment to delete this section. The only reason I'm not offering it is the fact that I'd like to try to have a provision that will satisfy a majority of the people without extending the debate on this subject for even longer than we've already spent on it. There's several problems that I see with this section. One deals with the word "shall" another deals with the concept of "economic security". If you look in the old constitution, you'll see that it says "the legislature may establish certain programs." It doesn't attempt in any way to put the onus on the legislature or the state government to provide any undefined or undefinable programs or concepts. Now, with the provision of "may" in our constitution we have developed into what amounts to the biggest welfare state in America. We have more in terms of social services and give-aways on a per capita basis than any other state. Now, we've done that with "may". It's been permissive, and I certainly don't think we need any stronger language than that, which might allow someone to come in and try to get more money, sue for more money, or in some way say that the state has not been giving him his due. Now, Mr. Pugh has an amendment talking about mandamus, and the fact that the legislature might not be mandamus'd to do certain things. But, there's nothing in his amendment, or in the scope of it, that would, for instance, discourage someone from going in--if we cut out a given program in this state--from going in and trying to get an injunction to prohibit an official from cutting off any funds under that program, or any other sort of system that might interfere with the elimination of that program. The idea being--and my firm belief is--that when this state undertakes a given program to help the needy, it does not do so because that person has a right or a claim on other citizens, but because the citizens of this state do it in their own goodheartedness and out of a sense of charity and brotherhood and help for their fellowmen; and not because there is a substantive right that someone might sue under in this constitution. Now, that concept of "economic security" which has been proposed in the committee proposal is not the same as that wording in the present constitution. The present constitution says "the legislature may establish a system of economic security and social welfare," and then it defines those terms. It defines those things as "unemployment compensation, old age assistance," etc; it defines what it means.

[2546]

Now, in the committee proposal, though, we have the language "economic security, social welfare, unemployment compensation and public health." Unemployment compensation which was formally part of the definition of social...of economic security is thus put on the same plane with it, as though they are different things. Thus, it seems to be that if we include that wording, "economic security," we are somehow endorsing a vague concept which I can see used as being justified to implement programs like guaranteed annual incomes, thousand-dollar-a-year-grants, all sorts of exotic schemes. Now, the legislature has all the authority in the world to enact such schemes right now, and under this amendment that I'm proposing, surely, when we say "economic and social welfare," they would certainly have such authority, as well as the authority when we say "public health," to enact with regard to programs relating to physical and mental health. But, I certainly wouldn't want us to undertake in this convention to specifically endorse any particular concepts of "economic security." That has never been the function in this state to guarantee anything to anybody unless he's in dire need, in which case we have established certain programs in that regard. I think this amendment gives all the authority that the legislature needs; it has that authority anyway; it ought to satisfy people; and it doesn't allow this convention to be used by those who have certain philosophical principles that they want this convention to go on record as endorsing. We could sit here for hours and hours and hours and debate these philosophical concepts, and proposed and potential programs that various people would like us to adopt. But, we're not going to be, by doing that, furthering the work of this constitution. That's for the legislature to do. Let's don't get involved in these philosophical discussions. Let's simply give this authorization here, and then allow the legislature to worry about these problems and enact these programs on an issue by issue and merit by merit basis. So, I urge the adoption of this amendment.

Vice Chairman Roy in the Chair

Questions

Mr. Aertker Woody, I see that you left out the word "security," and yet I see that, actually, the exact wording, "the legislature may establish a system of economic security," is in Article XVIII, Section 7, of the present constitution.

Mr. Jenkins As I said, Bob--and maybe you weren't listening at the time--it uses those words, and then if you read what follows, it defines what it means by "systems of economic security and social welfare." It defines it as "aid to dependent children, old age assistance," so forth and so on. Here, we are not--we are obviously changing that concept because we are putting economic security on par with unemployment compensation which, under the present constitution, was one of the definitions of economic security. So, it seems to me that under the committee proposal, we are undertaking to do something more--something bigger, something broader than the 1921 Constitution would do. So, that's why I don't think that we need that term "economic security". Let's put in there "economic and social welfare". That's clearly...means social services as well as financial assistance, but not "security". That's not something the state can guarantee to every citizen. We shouldn't try to raise false hopes here that somehow we are going to try to grant security, or that the legislature would ever try to grant security to every person in this state.

Mr. Aertker But, it is a fact, though, that the...present constitution follows that up and then says, "It may provide the aid to the...persons over sixty-five and the dependent mothers and welfare, etc."

Mr. Jenkins That's correct. I think that the context and meaning of that, in that context, is entirely different.

Mr. Goldman Woody, I just want to get something

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

straightened out. I am holding your amendment. I think I've got the right one up. On top it says, "Committee Proposal No. 18." You mean 14 there, don't you?

Mr. Jenkins That is fourteen. Yes, sir.

I want to urge this convention, if we don't take out either the...both the "shalls" and the "economic security". We shouldn't go along with this section. The only valid, legitimate purpose of this section is to give an authorization to the legislature--not to be involved in false hopes or false promises.

Mr. Nunez Mr. Jenkins, would you not say that the terminology or the definition of economic security was quite different when the Constitution of 1921 was drafted, than it is today? For instance, I don't think that there was any such thinking as in economic floor--such as was proposed in the last presidential election of five thousand dollars, per individual or per household--as being a minimum amount of...poverty level, so to speak. I don't think that was defined in those days of 1921. If we don't...if we leave it in there, possibly that definition would be carried forth as today, rather than spelling it out the way you have here in your amendment.

Mr. Jenkins I think you're right, Sammy. I think if you look at the results of the presidential election last year, and you look at public sentiment in this state, you will see that the people of this state overwhelmingly opposed such concepts. They wouldn't appreciate something like that being in this constitution.

Mr. O'Neill Woody, if your amendment passes, will you vote for the final section as it...as your amendment?

Further Discussion

Mr. Flory Mr. Chairman and delegates, I just rise briefly to state that, if you recall in the Revenue, Finance and Taxation proposal, there is a provision that says you can only appropriate monies for public purposes. You must have this authority in order to appropriate monies to pay old age benefits, welfare benefits, unemployment compensation, etc.

Now, you get down to the language...the argument that we had the other day--and I have no quarrel whether you say "may" or "shall", because I think the legislature does have to have the authority in some fashion. But what Mr. Jenkins is attempting to do, is to delete something from the constitution that's been there for many, many years. When it says "economic security and social welfare," it then lists the things that can be considered in that fashion as economic security and social welfare.

My quarrel with his amendment is--and I ask you to reject it--is on the basis that he has deleted the language that was adopted in the amendment on Saturday when we say, "public health, including physical and mental health care." Now, this is the language that I have objected to deleting. As I told you the other day, I had offered the amendment for the metropolitan New Orleans Council on the Aging. They felt, and still do, that in order to be absolutely sure that when you mention public health, you are not merely talking about the inspection of sanitation facilities, etc., or restaurants--that you are actually talking about physical and mental health care.

I ask you not to delete that language from the proposal as it now stands.

Questions

Mrs. Zervigon Mr. Flory, as the passage now stands, with Saturday's amendments in it, it's permissive. It says, "may", doesn't it?

Mr. Flory That's correct. That's all the authority that the legislature needs in order to make appropriations to pay welfare recipients, ADC payments, old age benefits, etc., unemployment compensation, etc.

Mrs. Zervigon So, we don't need to allow ourselves to be frightened by the spectre of five thousand dollars, per family, per year, do we? That's up to the legislature, isn't it?

Mr. Flory That's correct.

Mrs. Zervigon But, we do need something in there to give the authority to the legislature that they need, because of the prohibitions in the old Article IV, Section 12, which have been carried forward in Committee Proposal 15, Section 16. Isn't that correct?

Mr. Flory That's correct.

Mrs. Zervigon Thank you.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Flory, what distinction do you make between public health, including physical and mental health? What distinction is there? It would seem physical and mental health would be inclusive of public health.

Mr. Flory It just puts it in a positive framework, Mr. O'Neill, to say that public health does include physical and mental health care. That's all it is. Just plain layman's language.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Flory, isn't it true that the provision as it presently stands without this amendment, does include the term "economic security"?

Mr. Flory That's absolutely correct. I have no quarrel with that language.

Mr. Jenkins Now, also, do you really think it's advisable for us to state, as a concept, the idea that the legislature ought to establish a health care system for this state, apparently for all the people of the state--not just for the poor people?

Mr. Flory The proposal doesn't say that, Mr. Jenkins. It doesn't say that. It says that it may institute a system leaving to the legislature, in its wisdom, to define what the system is and to what extent it shall go.

Mr. Jenkins But, we have in there the words, "public health," and that really would include any sort of health programs that we wanted to adopt, wouldn't it?--without endorsing this particular concept of...a health care system for all of our people.

Mr. Flory As I told you, there are those who believe that inclusion of the words "including physical and mental health care," is a clarifying phrase to be absolutely sure the term "public health" does include that for the continuation of the charity hospital system, the mental retardation centers, the half-way houses, etc. That's all their interest is.

Mr. Jenkins You have some doubt that "public health" includes those things?

Mr. Flory I don't have any doubt, Mr. Jenkins, at all. I stated that. I told you that I offered the amendment in behalf of the Metropolitan Council on the Aging. It was their belief, and this convention adopted it on that basis.

Point of Information

Mr. Pugh I could easily be in error, but it was my understanding that we were going to discuss all three of them, and then vote on them one, two, three. I don't care.

Mr. Roy My understanding was that we'd discuss each one fifteen minutes and vote on it as we went.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 57-32. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Hardin [Assistant Clerk] Delegate Pugh sends up the next amendment.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete lines 16 through 18, both inclusive in their entirety, including all the floor amendments adopted, thereto, and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Section 2.--it's a technical change, Mr. Pugh --"The legislature shall establish a system of social welfare, unemployment compensation and public health, including physical and mental health care. It shall also offer...also authorize to define and provide for a system of economic security. Mandamus shall not lie for the enforcement of any of the provisions hereof."

Explanation

Mr. Pugh Fellow delegates, I suggest to you your favorable consideration of this amendment, and in that connection would like to explain to you the differentials between this, what was discussed Saturday, and what was just adopted.

I do not believe that to say "may" says anything when it comes to the legislature. Now, heretofore, the constitution used the word "may". In that connection, it did not attempt to define economic security, nor did it attempt to limit economic security to the provisions therein set forth. It said it may have those provisions. Questions were raised last Saturday relative to the word "shall"--if that would authorize or allow anyone to go to state court for the purpose of trying to sue the legislature. To resolve that question, I have provided in the last sentence that mandamus would not lie insofar as the provisions of this section are concerned. When you talk about mandating the legislature, you're talking about whether or not you in turn can bring a mandamus proceeding to require them to perform a ministerial act, that is the establishment of these programs. This eliminates that problem.

Also, as to economic security, I join with those who are concerned about its definition. I join with those who have some concern about saying they shall establish one of economic security. For that reason, I have provided that the legislature may define and provide for economic security. The reasons for that are that I believe that unless we provide in our constitutionally...constitution substantially as I suggest to you, this provision, there are those who will say that we didn't want to keep up old age and we didn't want to keep up these other programs. I don't think that's our intention. If that's not our intention, I think we ought to say so. I believe this amendment does so.

Mr. Pugh Mr. Jenkins was concerned about an injunction. Mr. Jenkins, if he doesn't know, he ought to know that you can't bring an injunction proceeding against the state.

I will now yield to questions.

Mr. Perez Mr. Pugh, you had made the statement that the word "may," that it means nothing if we say "may". But, don't you realize that the problem is that the present constitution has a provision which I will read to you in just a moment...

Mr. Pugh I have the proposal.

Mr. Perez ...Article IV, Section 12, and there also is a proposal both by Local Government and by the Revenue Committee which would read substantially as follows: "The funds, credit, etc...the funds, credit, property or things of value of the state, shall not be loaned, pledged, or granted to or for any person or persons; "and that the purpose of having a provision such as the Jenkins amendment would be to make an exception to the rule that those funds could not be granted to...and the funds of the state could not be granted to any persons. Do you realize that?"

Mr. Pugh I realize that both his amendment and [2548] mine would afford that protection.

Mr. Roemer But, Bob, in addition to affording that protection, doesn't your amendment once again change the word "may" to "shall?" Aren't we back to "shall" under you?

Mr. Pugh Yes, Buddy, there is no question about it. I think we waste our time when we tell the legislature you may do something. They have that authority anyway.

Mr. Pugh If you want them to do it, tell them they shall do it.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Pugh, if you tell them they shall do it, and then you won't let a mandamus lie--you know--what's the effect of having it at all? What proceeding can be taken against the legislature under your amendment?

Mr. Pugh I don't think you can mandamus then. I don't think you can bring a proceeding against them.

Mr. O'Neill Now, another question...

Mr. Pugh ...figure on the "may" either. Now, the "may," you might be able to bring a proceeding. Under mine you can't.

Mr. O'Neill I don't want...them to bring a proceeding. My other question is: "By saying, "mandamus shall not lie for the enforcement of any of the provisions hereof", are you implying in other places where we have said the legislature "shall", that a mandamus will lie?"

Mr. Pugh No, sir.

Mr. O'Neill I disagree.

Further Discussion

Mr. J. Jackson Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, you know I guess this appears to be the issue that we were discussing, particularly on Saturday, as it related to the human proposal article. The amendment that we recently just adopted--the Jenkins amendment--did, in effect, remove the language "economic security", I come before you to say that I don't know if this amendment is going to pass, but I rise in support of it because I think that this amendment takes care of Mr. Jenkins' reservations about mandating the state to provide an economic...provided for economic security in such a broad language. At the same time, takes care of a significant portion of the delegates who feel that we ought to continue our system of aid to the elderly, to the blind, and to the needy. As provided here, it says that, when it relates to economic security, that the legislature shall define what is "economic security." I, as a delegate, in opposition of the Jenkins amendment, feel...that that portion of the Pugh amendment does provide the latitude for the legislature to determine economic security.

In addition, let me say, that about...the question about we are mandating the legislature--as it originally appeared in the human resource proposal--that if you look at the last sentence it says that "mandamus should not lie for the enforcement of any provisions thereof," so that it attempts to address itself to the problems that was raised originally by Mr. Jenkins on Saturday. I think that the Pugh amendment, in my estimation, is the closest that we can get between persons who felt that economic security was so broad, and persons who felt that we ought to insure that those persons who receive some form of economic security--although they are not retirement system and pensions for the future, but for the present--that...you know, we can agree on the Pugh amendment.

So, therefore, I ask your serious consideration and support of the Pugh amendment. I'll answer any questions.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

Mr. Pugh Mr. Chairman, I'll only state the question was raised: Could you go to the federal court? I explained to the gentleman that the state must waive its...consent insofar as being sued in a federal court.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment rejected: 25-64. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter Mr. Hernandez, did you want your amendment, sir?

All right.

The amendment reads as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete line 9 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Relative to the".

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, delete lines 14 through 18, both inclusive, including all floor amendments thereto, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Article VII. Human Resources. Section"--again we are making that...have already made that 2... amended Section 1 to become Section 2--Economic Social Welfare; Unemployment Compensation; Public Health Section 2. Economic and social welfare, unemployment compensation and public health, including physical and mental health care are matters of public concern and the legislature shall determine and enact appropriate programs therefore."

Explanation

Mr. Hernandez Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I am a member of the subcommittee that developed this proposal. I offer this amendment as a compromise between the original proposal and the expressions that some of the people in here have made to me. I tried to cover everything that the committee wanted covered in this proposal--that is, economic and social welfare, unemployment compensation, public health, including physical and mental health care--and the statement is that they are matters of public concern. I doubt very little if there is anyone in here that would not admit that these matters are of public concern. Now this proposal authorizes the legislature and says, "the legislature shall determine"--and please read that carefully--"The legislature shall determine and enact appropriate programs therefor." The reason for that language being simply this, that the federal government designs these programs, provides most of the funds for these programs, and this will give the legislature the authority to determine our need, based on the federal programs who provides the money. Now, any time these programs are no longer needed--just a minute, please, sir--anytime these programs are no longer needed, the legislature can terminate them. Any time they need any changes to conform to the federal program--upon which all of these state programs are dependent for financial support--then it can be handled. Now, I have tried to cover those things that so many people have told me that they wanted covered here. I would like to--for the purpose of emphasis--I would like to call your attention again, to the fact that the legislature shall determine and enact appropriate programs therefor. Now, I believe that that latitude is necessary because any time that our program does not conform to federal regulations, then our program is out and over because they are not going to furnish the money. This is liberal. I will admit that. A lot of good can come for it. I think that none of us here would deny that--like this amendment points out--that it is a matter of public concern. We are going to have these programs. We might as well make the best of them.

Now, I included health--mental health care--because there is a lot of progress being made in mental health care right now. It is of utmost importance. There is a lot of progress being made.

I would certainly hate to see the...that program held back in any way. It is extremely important.

Thank you very much, ladies and gentlemen. I will be happy to answer any question that I can.

Questions

Mr. Roemer Pete, I agree with you that I don't think there is a person here who wouldn't deny that these matters are matters of public concern. So, I salute that portion of your amendment. However, isn't your amendment guilty of the same basic flaw, in my opinion, that we just voted down a minute ago, and that is it has the word "shall"--"the legislature shall", I just can't understand why you, personally, can't live with the way it is in the old constitution. We seem to have progressed under it--"the legislature may."

Mr. Hernandez Buddy, the legislature shall determine--that is the main thing. It shall determine--that's the first thing--it shall determine, and they must do that in order to conform to the federal programs. Then, after they have made their determination, then they shall enact programs to cover that.

Mr. Roemer All right. Well, this says, "shall determine and enact"--not just "shall determine".

Mr. Hernandez Well, but they must determine, they shall determine and then after they determine the program that is needed--and it will conform to the federal program--then to enact their programs accordingly. They can change it anytime it's outmoded or outdated.

Mr. O'Neill Mr. Pete, I, too, you know, agree with sort of the concept of your amendment. But, I have a problem, too. You say "economic security" again. That's a...phrase that we've all been concerned about. None of us quite knows what it means.

Mr. Hernandez Wait a minute. Before you get too worked up over that, you have the wrong one, Mr. O'Neill. It says "economic and social welfare".

Mr. O'Neill Well, I'm...I do apologize then.

Mr. Hernandez So, don't work yourself up to a frenzy over that, now. It's outmoded.

Mr. O'Neill All right. I'm sorry. I had your wrong amendment.

Mr. Jenkins Mr. Pete, when you say this language about matters of public concern, don't you think something like that would probably be taken out by Style and Drafting as being needless words? I mean is this really...isn't this really more statutory, when you say something like that, than constitutional?

Mr. Hernandez You wouldn't say that you...don't have concern about those things, Mr. Jenkins. I think everybody...

Mr. Jenkins I wouldn't say it in the constitution.

Mr. Hernandez Well, this is a constitution. It's the basic...it's to be the basic law of the land... that we are admitting that these are things of public concern. Therefore, the legislature shall determine the programs we needed and enact their programs to conform to this.

Mr. Jenkins Well, let me ask you: when it says that "the legislature shall enact appropriate programs," doesn't this leave it open for someone to go into court and say that a given program is not appropriate for providing for economic welfare or physical care, or something like that?

Mr. Hernandez It puts first, Mr. Jenkins, "that they shall determine, and enact..." but they must determine first. There is no question about their legislature has a perfect right to determine what is needed. Nobody can argue with that.

90th Days Proceedings—November 19, 1973

Mr. Fulco Pete, this is friendly.

Mr. Hernandez Oh, thank you.

Mr. Fulco You and I are not attorneys, are we?

Mr. Hernandez No, sir.

Mr. Fulco But, we do understand that if it shall be determined that it would be necessary, and it's in keeping with the government program--whatever it may be--then, after it has been determined, the legislature will then act; isn't that right?

Mr. Hernandez That is absolutely correct.

Mr. Fulco So, you and I are not attorneys, and even you and I can understand that; can't we?

Mr. Hernandez Yes, sir; I can't understand why the attorneys can't understand that, Mr. Fulco.

[Amendment rejected: 37-49. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

Mr. Poynter The technical amendment--all it needs to include reads:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1 [by Mr. Aertker], insert the following immediately before Committee Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Jenkins and just adopted; then it would simply read:
"ARTICLE VII. HUMAN RESOURCES"

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 71-21. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Proposal. Proposal passed: 82-10. Motion to take up other orders of business adopted without objection.]

ROLL CALL

[82 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. STOVALL

Let us pray.

Eternal God, we give thanks to You for the gift of this day, for the heritage that is ours, for all the blessings of life. As we come together in this Convention, we pray that we might have courage to make those decisions that will enable us to have a better Louisiana, a new future. We pray that You will give to us Your wisdom that we might make the right decisions. We are grateful for the faithfulness and the concern of each of these delegates. We pray that You will continue to be with us that we might make those decisions that will help us to have a new future in our state. For we offer our prayer in Your name as the One Who was, and is, and ever shall be. Amen.

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

Reports of Committees [II Journal 890]

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to call Delegate Proposal No. 72 from its regular order.]

Point of Information

MR. PEREZ As I would understand it, you tell me that Delegate Proposal No. 72 would delete from the Judiciary Article the authority and powers of the attorney general. My question is: as a matter of rules, ordinarily it would take 67 votes to suspend the rules to take the matter off the table in order to change what we have already done; now we can do this through another means by having a delegate proposal and just take the matter up without having to have the 67 votes?

MR. HENRY

Well, the way we'll have to treat this delegate proposal, Mr. Perez, is as a delegate proposal. It'll take 67 votes to adopt it. Then, we have, I think, momentarily discussed such situations heretofore. Then, if there is a conflict between this and what we already adopted, then we are going to have to resolve that conflict.

MR. PEREZ

I want this clarified because we may have other areas where some of us might want to reopen some of these other issues, and what you ....

MR. HENRY

I don't think we are reopening anything that we've already adopted. It's just like some of these amendments that we've discussed heretofore. This is a delegate proposal. If we adopt this delegate proposal, even in the light of what we've already adopted in another proposal, then we are going to have to make arrangements for the conflict to resolve that conflict. But, this is a separate proposal from either the Judicial or the Executive Proposal, which we have heretofore discussed.

MR. PEREZ

In other words, what you are saying, that under the rules that you can, by a delegate proposal or any other committee's proposal, reverse the action which we have previously taken....

MR. HENRY

I'm not saying that's true under the rules. But, for better or for worse, the rules of the convention allowed delegate proposals to be introduced. For better or for worse, we've got to discuss this proposal and do something with it--dispose of it or reject it or adopt it, one way or the other. If the gentleman who got it out of the committee, because the committee reported it out, and now we....we're obligated to dispose of it some way or the other.

All right, while you all are thinking about that, Mr. Aertker says he's got a school board meeting later in the afternoon. He would prefer to go with Committee Proposal No. 30 first--Committee Proposal No. 30 first. So, we'll go with Committee Proposal No. 30 to facilitate Mr. Aertker here.

[Motion to call Committee Proposal No. 30 from its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 30, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates who are members of that committee: A proposal to provide for the transition of membership on boards of education. It deals with proposed Article XIV, Section I, Board of Regents.

"Section 1. On the effective date of this constitution, the members of the Louisiana Coordinating Council for Higher Education, whose terms will not have expired, shall become members of the Board of Regents until their respective terms expire. The governor shall appoint such additional members as are required to complete the full membership of the board in accordance with and for the purposes of effectuating the provisions of Article IX, Section 7. Then there's a second section.

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as you can see by this Committee Proposal No. 30, this is providing for the transition of the members in compliance with the act of the legislature which requires that the members of these various boards have got to be transferred or taken care of so that their terms are not affected. Actually, then, of course, according to Committee Proposal No. 7, we have created four boards involving education--actually five--one, of course, since it has no members at the present time when this started, wouldn't be involved in this at all. That would, of course, be the LSU Board of Supervisors.

Technically, our Committee Proposal No. 7, as you must realize, has created two, what I consider, superboards, or major boards of education; and that, specifically, is the Board of Regents and the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, because both of them have pretty well the same power. One just has the power of financial power and budgetary problems, power in program, etc., over higher education. Of course, the other one would have it over K through 12. The first board that we are going to...that we are dealing with, of course, is the Board of Regents, as we have it proposed here; and you'll see that we are taking care of the present Coordinating Council for Higher Education in stating that that is the board that we feel should be the one that should be transferred over to the Board of Regents. Our rationale there is quite simple: that is, that this is the present board dealing with higher education. We felt that all of the people on this would be knowledgeable in that direction. I will admit that it is quite possible and quite probable that many members of the State Board of Education, as presently comprised, certainly also had that type of knowledge and background. But, you see that we have given them really the choice of going into the direction of the Board of Trustees, or actually going and retaining that position on the present State Board of Education. But, for our purposes here, and of course the LSU Board of Supervisors would--the only thing that really has happened to them would be that their terms, of course, have been shortened from fourteen years to six. By a matter of attrition, I think that, eventually, that would resolve itself.

But, the section that we are dealing with right now, Section 1, has to do strictly with the Board of Regents. The proposal that we have there is that the members of the Coordinating Council would be transferred or would become members of the Board of Regents until their term expired. Now, at the present time, we have fifteen members on the Coordinating Council; thirteen of those fifteen members are actually appointed to that board. These are the ones that we are talking about, since they are the appointed members. The other two members of that really served at the pleasure of the board--the State Board of Education had usually its president and the LSU Board of Supervisors had its president, just serving on that--but it wasn't....they weren't appointed by the governor. So, the amendment that you will have coming to you very shortly will be one in which we will state that the members of the Coordinating Council who have been appointed by the governor shall be, then, of course, relegated or moved over to the Board of Regents until the -- and so serve--until the expiration of their term.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

Now, that, basically, is what is being proposed in the first section on the...Board of Regents. This is the recommendation of the committee that the transition of this...members on this board be handled in this manner. I so recommend it to you for your favorable consideration.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Aertker, if you covered this material, I didn't hear you. How many members are on the present Coordinating Council?

MR. AERTKER

At the present time, actually appointed by the governor, there are thirteen appointed. There are one from each of the congressional districts, Mrs. Zervigon, and five at large. In addition to that, the LSU Board of Supervisors and the State Board of Education had a representative also on that commission representing--this was in the form, for instance, Mr. Bankston and Mr. Swanson are presently serving and representing LSU..the State Board of Education and the LSU Board of Supervisors respectfully--but the appointed members, really, are thirteen in number.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So, the ones you are trying to provide an orderly transition for are the thirteen.

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MRS. ZERVIGON

What are the lengths of their terms?

MR. AERTKER

Six years.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Six years. Thank you.

MR. AERTKER

They, of course, are serving staggered terms as you would expect. For instance, there's one, two, three, four, Mrs..., in '74 will have their terms expired. Then, they go '76 and '78. So, by '78 they will all have had their terms completed.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Aertker, am I correct in evaluating this proposal in not in any way limiting existing terms of office of any of these elected or appointed people?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MR. LANIER

Is it not true that under Section 4 of Act 11 of 1972 that established this convention, that theoretically we could limit the terms of these people to not later than 1976.

MR. AERTKER

Theoretically, yes. But, our proposal is not...the proposal that the committee felt...it was in fairness to all of the people who serve and that they would be allowed to serve out their terms....

MR. LANIER

But, specifically, for the face of the record here, you feel, and your committee feels, that this would not be the fair thing to do or the wise thing to do, to exercise that authority, but that all of these persons should be continued in office, and transposed into other boards in accordance with their present appointments or elected status.

MR. AERTKER

That's correct, and for two basic reasons, Mr. Lanier: one, we felt in the spirit of fairness; and second is that we felt that these people were knowledgeable and that their presence in any new board that we created as a result of this constitution would have an advantage by having them present.

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Aertker, this may just be a technical question, but based on the present posture of Section 9 of the Education Article, do you feel that it would be necessary--I noticed just a transfer of...to the respective boards--do you feel that would be necessary, somewhere in this proposal to make a technical amendment, particularly when there is no reference to presently the Board of Supervisors for Southern University.

MR. AERTKER

Well, I think that perhaps, Mr. Jackson, that if we would handle that, that perhaps, maybe--you might even handle it when we complete the proposal, if we wanted to, or right before we complete it, it would be...but it doesn't pose any problems since the proposed Board of Supervisors has no membership on it.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER Amendment No. 1.

Copies are being passed out now.

On page 1, delete line 15 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"Education appointed by the governor, whose terms have not expired, shall become. "Education appointed by the governor, whose terms have not expired, shall become."

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, I...this is almost technical in nature. It's just the inclusion of the fact that these people have been appointed by the governor so that we would clarify just the very question that I was talking with Mrs. Zervigon a little while ago about--to make sure that we are under the understanding that these are the thirteen members of the Coordinating Council who have been appointed by the governor. This is what we have reference to.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 91-9. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Aertker, you've got technical amendments.

The amendments Mr. Aertker has, these are technical amendments like we've been doing in the last few of these delegate proposals--in essence, straightening out the title.

On page 1, delete line 12 in its entirety and at the beginning of line 13, delete "Section 1." and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"ARTICLE XIV. SCHEDULE

* * *

Section 2. Board of Regents

Section 2."

I might say that the staff is trying to keep a consistent basis of this thing. The purpose of the first part of that, making it "Article XIV. Schedule," is just to stay consistent in form. The reason for making this Section 2, as opposed to Section 1, is the convention on yesterday adopted Committee Proposal No. 31 of the Executive Branch on mandatory reorganization, which provided for a Section 1 of the schedule. So there's the feeling that we ought to try to stay consistent--not keep adopting a bunch of Section 1's--and would propose to make this a Section 2, and the next section a Section 3, Mr. Aertker.

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

I'm sorry. Are you adopting the changes of all of the sections at this point?

MR. POYNTER

No....the only change on this one would be just to change Section 1, then make it Section 2, and straighten the title.

Then, I've got another one coming to make Section 2, Section 3.

Point of Information

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman, this is a typical Zervigon troublemaking question. But, wouldn't it be more logical to make this Section 2 (A), 2 (B), 2 (C), since these are all related and they are all completely unrelated to what we did yesterday?

MR. HENRY

Well, you know, we could probably do it a number of ways. I think that, probably again, Style and Drafting will have ultimately something to do with the way this is set down, Mrs. Zervigon. But, we...just don't want to have several Sections 1 and 2, etc.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 97-8. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 2. Board of Supervisors, Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College
Section 2. On the effective date of this constitution, the members of the Board of Supervisors of the Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College, whose term will not have expired, shall become members of the Board of Supervisors of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College until their respective terms expire. The governor shall appoint such additional members as are required in accordance with, and for the purpose of effectuating the provisions of Article IX, Section 9.

Section 3. State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education; Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities

Section 3. On the effective date of this constitution, each member of the State Board of Education whose term will not have expired shall have the right to elect to become a member of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education or the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities and to serve until the expiration of the term to which he was elected. The legislature shall establish procedures by which the right herein granted shall be exercised, and by which the Secretary of State..(I've gone on to Section 3. You just wanted 2. I'm sorry. I was getting a little carried away there.)

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, Section 2, of course, is ...deals specifically with the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. L.S.U. at the present time has fourteen members on the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. They have fourteen members and their term of office is fourteen years. They have a method of selecting or appointing, or they have been in the past, that every two years two members of that Board of Supervisors go out of office. So, you could see that under that setup with two of them going out on a period of every two years that the last term that some of these members would have would be the year 1986, which is the latest term... the last to be appointed would be serving. Every even year they lose two members, and so it would be starting in '74 losing two members up until '86, they would actually have lost all of their membership. The terms of the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors, of course, have been reduced to six years, and so by a method of attrition, gradually these members, if they were appointed, or as they served out, even if they were reappointed, we would recognize the fact that they would be reappointed to actually a six year term and this is the... again the thinking of the committee that these people are on the present board, and that it would be our intention to let them remain, and when their term expired, whether it be two years from now or actually twelve years from now, that at that time the then, governor would be in position to appoint the replacement or renew the person to that particular board, and I recommend the approval of that recommendation.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Aertker, that technical amendment page 1, line 21, again on line 23 change "Section 2. to Section 3."

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Personal Privilege

MS. ZERVISON

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I have great reservations about this particular section, and no other of this proposal, purely on the basis of fairness, and on the basis of trying to carry through the obvious wishes of this convention as expressed in the Education Article. When we voted on each of these boards, except for the Board of Elementary and Secondary Education, in the Education Article, we made it plain that our policy was that the governor should control these boards and express his policy there through. We turned down resoundingly an amendment that would have made ten year terms for the members of the L.S.U. Board and, therefore, isolated them from control by any one governor. I have not been a blind follower of the present governor as my voting record shows, but it seems to me grossly unfair, and in conflict with our policy as earlier stated in the votes taken on this floor, to say that every other governor may control the Board of L.S.U., but not the present governor. I don't think that the present governor has shown himself to be an enemy of L.S.U., and I just find it basically unfair, as I do the mathematics and I'm slow at it, it takes me a long time; he might by some stretch of the imagination get control in his second term the last two years or the last year of his second term. But, every other governor succeeding him in the State of Louisiana would get control of the L.S.U. Board within his first term and appoint the entire L.S.U. Board before two terms would be up. I think that's unfair to this man in showing a lack of trust that he doesn't deserve.

[Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 83-21. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of the Section

MR. POYNTER

"Section 3.--I've read about half of it, I think.

On the effective date of this constitution, each member of the State Board of Education whose term will not have expired shall have the right to elect to become a member of the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education or the Board of Trustees for State Colleges and Universities and to serve until the expiration of the term to which he was elected. The legislature shall establish procedures by which the right herein granted shall be exercised, and by which the secretary of state shall be notified as to those elections which must be held, and by which the governor shall be notified as to the appointments which must be made, to complete the full membership of the boards mentioned herein. Such elections and appointments shall be made in accordance with and for the purpose of effectuating the provisions of Article IX, Sections 4 and 8."

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, this deals with the final existing board and that is, the present State Board of Education. At the present time, the State Board of Education has a ... has eleven members on it and they also serve staggered terms into which every two years members of them go off. For instance, in 1974, three of the present members of that board will be going off. In 1976, three more go off, in 1978, three more, and in 1980, the last two will have gone and completed the present terms that they're presently serving at the present time. The difference here is that actually these people are given a choice as to whether they wish to go into the new State Board of Education dealing with K through 12, Education or whether they would, perhaps, wish to move over into the Board of Trustees for dealing with higher education. The thinking behind that was that some of these folks perhaps, felt themselves more interested and more inclined to concern themselves with the matters dealing with higher education; if that would be the case, we'd have to presume that they would wish to indicate that their preference would be to go to the Board of Trustees. Those who felt that... or feel that they would like to remain concerned with the problems dealing with Elementary and Secondary Education, and of course, would... I would have to presume would so indicate that they would wish to continue to be and become a part of the members of the new State Board of Education in that direction, and that's the recommendation on how these are handled. This is the committee recommendation, and we recommend it to you for your approval.

Questions

MR. ROY

Actually, Mr. Aertker, that's also in compliance with Act II which says that we can't knock out any officers at this time. Isn't that correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct. We have to take care of these people for the duration of their term.

MR. JENKINS

Bob, you know, thinking about the three board members that are going to be elected next year to the State Board. They would be elected on November 5, 1974, in the general election, and thus the effective date of this constitution, whatever it might be, could be very important in determining whether we held those elections or not, and whether or not the people had taken office before the effective date of this constitution. What is your viewpoint on the effect of this provision with regard to that election?

MR. AERTKER

I would have to presume or my thinking would be that if they were elected for a six year term that those three members would be... would have the same option to them when the constitution was adopted, that they would be... they would have six years ahead of them

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

MR. JENKINS

For example, suppose this constitution were voted on, say, in March of 1974, and became effective several months later then, the effective date would be before those elections so there would be no election then for State Board of Education?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MR. JENKINS

If the election then, on the other hand, were, say, in November 5, 1974 on this constitution that we're adopting--we're trying to come up with, which it could be--then, if the people who were taking office for the State Board, took office before this constitution went into effect, they would serve for six years; but if they did not take office before the effective date, then they would not be... have a right to serve, is that correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct. In fact, as I pointed out, we have three ripe at the present time who... well, who would actually have four years. These actually would have six years to go.

MR. JENKINS

So, if we do not take care then in selecting the effective date of this constitution, and the governor does not take care in calling this the date for the election for this constitution, we might have a situation arise where people could go through an election campaign, be voted on and then never actually be able to serve. Isn't that correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct, and I think that's something we're going to have to keep in mind.

MR. O'NEILL

Mr. Aertker, maybe you're more familiar with it than I am, doesn't Act II set the date that this constitution will take effect, and isn't it either December 31st, 1974 or January 1, 1975?

MR. AERTKER

Not that I'm aware of ....

MR. O'NEILL

I think there is a date in there.

MR. AERTKER

I thought that there was a date that they had to vote on it prior to sometime, but I didn't know there was a date that it went into effect.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

I had that technical amendment changing it from .... the two places from "Section 3. to Section 4."

[Amendment adopted without objection. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 96-9. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegate Conroy as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 17, add the following section: "Section 5. Boards; New Appointments Section 5. In making new appointments to a board created by Sections 7, 8 or 9 of Article IX, the governor shall consider appropriate representation on the board by graduates of the institution under the control of the board."

Explanation

MR. CONROY

This amendment had originally been prepared as an amendment to the Educational Article, but in the stampede to call the question on that article on Saturday, it didn't ever get before this body. Its purpose... its basic purpose, quite frankly, is to try to give L.S.U.-N.O. a wedge in getting representation on the L.S.U. Board. This was discussed with a number of the delegates in connection with the Educational Article. I got the impression at that time that there was no disagreement with the philosophy that this amendment represents.

Point of Information

MR. AERTKER

Point of information. I question whether this amendment is a part of a transitional matter. I don't have any objection to the amendment, David, but I just would like to get a ruling...

MR. CONROY

Well, it refers to making... the concepts that will apply in making the new appointments which I think is part of the transition. That's the way it's drawn.

MR. AERTKER

Is that the ruling, Mr. Chairman? Mr. Chairman, is that your ruling?

Explanation continued

MR. CONROY

As I said, the fact of the matter is at the present time the L.S.U. Board in our efforts to try to insure representation by L.S.U.-N.O. on a board with what was it, seventeen members or fifteen, however it wound up with it, didn't have anybody representing directly an institution that has some thirty percent of the total enrollment of the system. So, as I said, this amendment is simply designed as a statement of principle that would apply in making a new appointment so that these institutions that do not have .... presently have people on the boards would be assured that this would be considered in making the new appointments to the boards. I yield to any questions.

Questions

MR. KEAN

David, do I understand by putting this in... this particular proposal which is a transitional proposal that the new appointments that this speaks of are those that would occur by reason of the transitional proposal?

MR. CONROY

Well, I think in its present posture that's about as much effect as it could legally have. But, I would hope that the principle would apply in the future as well, but unfortunately I couldn't get it in the constitution so I'll just have to settle for trying to get it in the schedule.

MR. DUVAL

David, I'm trying to understand the intent of your amendment, and of course, applies to the Board of Regents?

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. DUVAL

Now, the Board of Regents has all institutions of higher learning under its auspices...

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. DUVAL

...and does that mean that there would at least have to be fifteen representatives.... what's the meaning?

MR. CONROY

Wouldn't change a thing, it would just be that that would definitely be a factor that would be considered in making the appointments, that it wouldn't be loaded up with all graduates of, say, one institution, that it would be... that the fact that there were other institutions would be considered.

MR. DUVAL

What would occur if there were no graduates of any institution in Louisiana on the Board? What could one do legally under your amendment?

MR. CONROY

There's .... it is not enforceable. I had attempted in discussions with others to make some sort of enforceable pattern or formula, but this was not acceptable to the people I spoke to, and I felt that a statement of principle was better than nothing at all, and I couldn't get anything better than that that was acceptable to people.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

MR. BERGERON

Dave, what this amendment simply does as you said, it's a statement of principle, correct?

MR. CONROY

That's correct.

MR. BERGERON

It's not a mandate to the governor to appoint?

MR. CONROY

No, I don't think... no, that's the thing we ran into problems with in trying to make anything mandatory. It's just a statement or principle that I think would, at least, help somewhat in some of the feelings that I think were badly hurt by the L.S.U.-N.O. people, and I think this would help somewhat in that regard.

MR. BERGERON

It's just a statement which says the governor shall consider?

MR. CONROY

That's right.

MR. BERGERON

Right. Thank you.

MR. MUNSON

Mr. Conroy, in your remarks you've only mentioned L.S.U.-N.O., there are other schools under the L.S.U. system besides New Orleans, aren't there?

MR. CONROY

Yes, there are.

MR. MUNSON

Such as L.S.U.-Alexandria?

MR. CONROY

Such as what?

MR. MUNSON

L.S.U.-Alexandria?

MR. CONROY

Yes, and it was a problem of trying to devise a formula that emphasized anything that got us into trouble in making it mandatory, that's why it was put in just... this salutatory fashion.

MR. WILLIS

Mr. Conroy, don't you think we depreciate the discretion we attribute to the governor in allowing him to appoint in the first place by setting forth these guidelines?

MR. CONROY

Mr. Willis, I'd say that if L.S.U.-N.O. had a representative on the board at the present time that I'd have to agree with you, but it doesn't. So, I think that something further is desirable to be stated.

MR. WILLIS

But, the desirability you have there I don't think is achieved by mere suggestion in a constitution.

MR. CONROY

Well, I think it would give those, when an appointment comes up, who would be in a position of trying to urge the governor to make a decision. I think that the fact that it's in this schedule would be helpful in their winning their point that it should be somebody from L.S.U.-N.O.

MR. WILLIS

That's a weapon for those who would urge the governor to use this consideration.

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. WILLIS

You think it's an appropriate place to put it, in a constitution?

MR. CONROY

Well, this isn't in the constitution, this is in the schedule--in the transitory schedule.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Conroy, if this provision is not enforceable, then, really why do we want to put it in here?

MR. CONROY

I think I just answered that in the question that Mr. Willis asked, is that I think it is helpful from those who urge the appointment of people from unrepresented institutions to have this in their hand to say to the governor, "Look we don't have anybody from this institution, you're about to make a new appointment, don't you think you ought to give consideration to what the Constitutional Convention says?"

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Conroy, do you believe that this language in the constitution even though, you put it in there--sort of window dressing--and it makes people believe that maybe if you got a chance at it would do any good, if the governor wants to do that. I think a governor would give consideration to a graduate if there was a graduate of such that would qualify to serve on a board.

MR. CONROY

Senator Nunez, I've been assured that he probably would too, but I don't see how this can hurt those circumstances. This is not a part of the body of the constitution, this is in the schedule, and I think it's an appropriate place for it to be. As to what the feelings of this convention is,.... would be with regard to new appointments, I think this is the appropriate time and place for it to be handled.

MR. NUNEZ

How many... would you answer another question? How many graduates from L.S.U. are now on the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors?

MR. CONROY

I understand that all but one of the members of the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors are graduates of L.S.U.

MR. NUNEZ

All right. Now, how long have the other institutions in this system such as, N.O. --and I'm an N. O. man as you know I'm a graduate of L.S.U., but N.O. is my base over there in that area-- like Alex, and Opelousas, how many graduates from those other institutions have we put out so far, do you think....

MR. CONROY

Well, I don't think Alex, and Eunice would qualify under any circumstances, but L.S.U.-N.O. has some rather significant graduates around now, and I think that it's time to give them a good representation.

MR. RIECKE

Mr. Conroy, isn't it true that if this is in the... in there that it's going to help pass the whole constitution in the light of so much opposition from the L.S.U.-N.O. group now, don't you think this might help us to pass the whole constitution?

MR. CONROY

Well, Mr. Riecke, I feel that it is at best a bone, but it seems to me that we at least ought to give a bare bone to the people who don't otherwise have anything to point to. Yes, I do think we could....

MR. RIECKE

I agree, I'm sorry we couldn't get it in the main roll.

MR. CONROY

Right. I think it could help.

MISS PERKINS

Mr. Conroy, if your proposal was adopted, would you support an amendment to that proposal that changed the word "graduates" to "alumni" so that L.S.U.-Alexandria and Eunice would also be included for consideration?

MR. CONROY

Well, I don't know exactly the distinction you'd make between alumni and graduates, but I felt that graduates were people who would have the greatest interest in the institution as a continuing institution.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

MISS PERKINS

Do you realize that L.S.U.-Alexandria and Eunice are two year schools and we'd like to assure representation for them as well, and we must delete "graduates" and insert the word "alumni"? Could you support such an amendment?

MR. CONROY

Well, I don't know which is the better way to do it would be. Alumni means the same thing to me, frankly, from my concern, I don't know what...

MISS PERKINS

You can go to a school for one year and be an alumnae without being a graduate.

MR. CONROY

I see.

MISS PERKINS

Could you support such an amendment?

MR. CONROY

Well, I would certainly vote for it if it would help in any way in getting greater representation into this,... the whole concept here is to spread out representation. I'm not... really not in a position to quibble about the words. I thought I'd discussed this with a number of people, and thought I had words that would satisfy everybody.

MISS PERKINS

Thank you.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

... center around L.S.U., but does not Section 8 have to do with other schools also?

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

In other words, the impression I get in this assembly is, the only concern is L.S.U. In other words, what about the University of Southwestern and all the others we're talking about them too, in this amendment.

MR. CONROY

That's right. It would be an important factor in appointing the new members of that entirely new board to be sure that they do have representation on the board, very important factor.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I'm not opposed to the principle which Mr. Conroy has stated in this amendment, but I certainly think that it is a needless amendment to be placed into our constitution. This is just like one of those amendments that says, "the legislature may" do something which everybody knows the legislature has the authority to do. This amendment just says "the governor shall consider graduates from these other... from the various institutions." There's no mandate that he has to appoint anybody. Therefore, I think it's just needless verbiage that we'd be placing into our constitution. I think it's unnecessary, and I think that if we would put something like that into an act of the state legislature that it would be a whole lot more influential upon the governor than putting it into our constitution. Therefore, I just oppose to filling up our constitution with meaningless verbiage. If we keep on doing this, we'll have a constitution as long as the one we are presently trying to rework. I ask you to defeat the amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen, you know, the other day I offered an amendment which would have made it mandatory to place at least one representative on the Board of Supervisors from L.S.U.-N.O. Well, you know, I've been going to all the L.S.U. Baton Rouge football games, and I've been sitting in the stands and cheering. It took me all this time, but I finally found out what the fans at the stadium meant when they would say, "Tiger bait, tiger bait." But, in all seriousness, this is not an attempt to open up the door which we had closed on the Education Article. This is simply a statement of principle. It's not in the... will not be in the constitution, it will be in the transition—in the schedule. This will allow all universities of the L.S.U. system to be considered. You're talking about Alexandria, Baton Rouge, Eunice, Shreveport, etc. It will also allow all the universities in the Southern system to be considered when they're making their appointments. So, what we're doing is we're simply saying that the governor shall consider the various colleges in the system of L.S.U. while making his appointments. It's not a mandate saying that he shall appoint one from each branch of L.S.U. It's simply a statement of principle which says he shall consider the various colleges in the system. I think, as Mr. Conroy has brought up, that it will be... it will make the article and things we have done in education a little bit more easier to live with in terms of speaking of other universities within the L.S.U. system. I would urge for the adoption of this amendment. Thank you.

Questions

MR. MUNSON

Mr. Bergeron, I'll ask you the same question Miss Perkins asked a moment ago. If this amendment is adopted, would you support an amendment changing the word "graduates" to "alumni"?

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Munson, I really... I believe Miss Perkins gave the definition of "alumni," and I'm not sure how... what the difference is between "graduate" and "alumnus."

MR. MUNSON

L.S.U. Alexandria is in the L.S.U. system, but they are a two year commuter college. They don't have graduates except in the nursing school.

MR. BERGERON

And they have alumni?

MR. MUNSON

They have alumni, but not graduates, except for the nursing school.

MR. BERGERON

All I can say, Mr. Munson, is if the majority of the delegates wish it, I certainly would have no objection.

MR. MUNSON

I was asking Mr. Bergeron.

MR. BERGERON

Pardon.

MR. MUNSON

I was asking you, would you support such a change?

MR. BERGERON

Yes, sir, I would, because we'd simply say that "they shall be considered." We would not be saying that they will have a representative. We're simply saying, "they shall be considered," while the appointments are being made.

MR. ROEMER

Phil, I didn't hear your answer to your support or nonsupport to amend this proposition to read "alumni" rather than "graduates." What was your position on that?

MR. BERGERON

Buddy, I simply said that if there was... Mr. Munson had brought out, and so had Miss Perkins, that alumni would enable the two year schools to have representation because they do not have graduates. Now, what I'm simply saying is that I would see no reason to object to it because we are not mandating the governor to make an appointment from that school. We are simply saying he shall consider making an appointment.

MR. ROEMER

Well, do you understand the difference between an alumnus and a graduate? An alumnus is one who just attended the university or the school. A graduate is one who matriculated therefrom. So, I don't see any objection to making the change. It's broader with "alumni" than it is with "graduates."

MR. BERGERON

Correct.

Further Discussion

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment as being eminently fair to all concerned. I think it allows the institutions under the L.S.U. Board the opportunity to receive some representation. It allows the institutions under the Board of Regents the opportunity to receive some representation. It allows . . . neither mandates nor it requires. It expresses in constitutional language--which is which will be placed in the following part--this particular right. It hurts no one, and it still allows the governor wide latitude. This will be in the schedule itself, and it will allow all the component institutions of the various systems the opportunity to receive some representation without tying the governor's hands. I urge your support for this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. CONROY

I just wanted very briefly to reiterate that this is a statement of principle. It goes in the schedule which kind of phases out after awhile, and it is not part of the permanent constitution. There should be no concern about voting for this in this regard. On the other hand, it is not proper matter for legislation because these are constitutional boards appointed by the governor, and you could not have appropriate, effective legislation in this area. This is the place to put it if you believe the principle should be enunciated at all. This is where it should be. I urge your favorable vote.

[Amendment adopted: 68-37. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER Amendment No. 1.
On page 2, line 17, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Conroy and adopted by the Convention on November 20, 1973, on line 5 of the text of the amendment, immediately after the word "by" and before the words "of the" delete the word "graduates" and insert in lieu thereof the word "alumni."

Explanation

MISS PERKINS

Ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I urge your support of this amendment. This would allow L.S.U. Alexandria and Eunice to be considered with reference to representation on the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. I won't go into detail because we argued this thoroughly. As Mr. Conroy pointed out, this is not a mandate, but if we're going to consider the other schools, let's also consider the two two year schools within the L.S.U. system. So, I strongly urge your support of the amendment of changing the word to "alumnus."

Question

MR. WILLIS

Lynn, I have. . .this is a friendly question, and it might be approaching a holy one. Don't you think that we ought to have an amendment whereby the governor would be directed to have a moment of silent prayer before he makes these appointments?

MISS PERKINS

I imagine so.

Further Discussion

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment because it widens the governor's latitude. It helps the presently existing two year institutions, and in case there are ever any other two year institutions established, it would give them some assistance in receiving representation on this board at the discretion of the governor. I urge your favorable vote on it.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 92-13. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on the Section. Section passed: 76-30. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Further Discussion

MR. LEBLEU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, possibly I'm just a little bit confused about this whole thing. I don't intend to do it myself, but I think from the publicity that the Article on Education has received in the last week or so, that there may be some attempt by one of the delegates to come back and change, maybe, the whole concept of the educational board. Now, if we go ahead and adopt this, it's my understanding that even though it's not a part of the constitution, if we did change--and we did it with the State Superintendent of Education--if we did change, we would then have to come back and possibly make some changes along these lines. Like I say, I'm kind of confused on it. Maybe Mr. Aertker can explain the whole thing when he closes, but I just wanted to throw that out for your consideration, and see what you thought about it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I'll be brief. I just want to say that I think the only criteria that should be used in choosing people for these boards are: Who are the best qualified people, and who will do the best job? That has nothing to do with what particular college or university a person attended --that's the first thing. The second thing is that you shouldn't have people appointed to the board with the idea that they're going to be lobbyists for a particular college or university, or that they're going to be representing their interests there. We should have people who are going to be above that and try to keep the interest of the whole system at heart. So, I'll have to speak against and be against this particular section.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I have no objections to Section 5. However, I am gravely concerned about the fact that we are reopening the constitution through the schedule. I would like for the Chair, during the recess, to reconsider how far we can go in this type of thing. I again repeat, I have no objections to Section 5. I do object to putting it in the schedule, and for that reason, I must vote against the proposal. Thank you.

[Previous Question ordered on the Proposal. Proposal passed: 88-21. Motion to call Delegate Proposal No. 32 from its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Delegate Proposal No. 32 by Delegate Drew:
A proposal to provide with respect to courts of appeal, circuits and districts.
Being adopted by the convention, it provides for an:
"Article V, Section 9. Courts of Appeal; Circuits and Districts. Section 9. Each circuit shall be divided into at least three districts, with at least one judge elected from each. The present circuits and districts and the number of judges as elected in each circuit are retained, subject to change by two-thirds vote of the elected members in each house of the legislature."

Explanation

MR. DREW

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, in our Judiciary Article, in Section 9, there was inserted the sentence, "After January 1, 1975, no judge shall be elected at large from within the circuit." Now, let me clarify one misunderstanding. I am violently opposed to at large judges. Let me remind you this: that in the First Circuit and in the Fourth Circuit, the judges--every judge--is elected from districts. In the Second Circuit, you have five judges, two who are elected from one of the three districts; three who are elected from a district each; two who are elected from a district at large. In the Third Circuit, you also have three districts as provided in the constitution. You have three from districts and three at large. Now, if you still have the map of the circuits of the state before you, you will notice that the Second and Third Circuits include the entire state with the exception of the boot--the toe of the boot--so to speak. The Second Circuit runs from Natchitoches Parish<sup>4</sup> to the Arkansas line. The Third Circuit runs from Natchitoches and LaSalle Parish to the Gulf of Mexico; and we are requiring three judges in the Third Circuit to run at large. We're requiring two judges in the Second Circuit to run at large, which, in the Second Circuit, particularly, although the districts are more equal in population than in any other circuit, it is an utter impossibility from any attorney from Monroe east to the Mississippi line to be elected as an at large judge. Some people have misinterpreted my amendment, and have said that I am for at large judges. I am one of the proponents of doing away with at large judges. My objection to the committee proposal--and Ruth will take the podium here, and she has agreed with us on it--is that January 1, 1975 is too short a cutoff date. This will leave the provision applying to the Court of Appeal the same as to the Supreme Court. I can assure you, when I have the adequate information, consulted with the judges, consulted with other people who can render an awful good advice to where we'll be doing the least damage to the least number of judges, I will submit a bill to where each judge will run from a district within his circuit. Ruth and I have discussed it; I had originally agreed to go with her amendment of a cutoff date of January 1, 1975, until I suddenly realized at that time that it was totally unworkable. You have five at large judges. Should this constitution not be submitted to the people in time for the '74 legislature to take action, there could be no legislation before the cutoff date. In the event of retirement or death of any of these five at large elected judges, there would be no procedure to fill their vacancies. Ruth has agreed with me that January 1, 1975 is too early a cutoff date. I have assured her that we will work out in the legislature a redistricting--not put part of one parish one district and another part in another district--and let these judges run on an equal basis, as near as possible, from districts within their circuit. I'll be glad to answer any of your questions, and I will ask your approval of the amendment.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

Questions

MR. NEWTON

Harmon, isn't the present situation that some judges run in districts and some run at large?

MR. DREW

In the Second Circuit, you have three by district, two at large. In the Third Circuit, you have three by districts, and three at large. In the First and Fourth, they all run by district.

MR. NEWTON

All right, as I appreciate the present law is that in our First Circuit, here--which includes East Baton Rouge Parish and my parish, Tangipahoa--that our . . . we have six judges now, and they've got three appointed judges serving on there, and they're getting ready to provide for some new judges. Then, we'd have six judges running in districts, and possibly three judges running at large. Would that be right?

MR. DREW

That could develop, yes.

MR. NEWTON

Now, there's another thing that I was curious about, and I'm asking you, really, what the present law is. As I appreciate it, if a vacancy occurs in the Court of Appeal judgeship, somebody has to be appointed to fill that vacancy who is not in the district. Is that correct?

MR. DREW

Autley, that applies to district judges. I don't remember, offhand, whether it applies to Court of Appeal judges or not. I'd have to check the article to see.

MR. NEWTON

Well, would you believe it if I told you it was true? So, that if there was a vacancy in one of these at large judgeships, they would have to go completely out of the circuit to get a judge to fill that vacancy, wouldn't they?

MR. DREW

That is correct.

MR. NEWTON

I really support your amendment.

MR. ANZALONE

Mr. Harmon, after this thing goes into effect, are you saying that every time that a new appellate court judge position is created that you're going to have to create at least three of them?

MR. DREW

What was the last, Joe?

MR. ANZALONE

Well, what I'm saying is, is that suppose we've got six judges, two from three districts within the circuit. Now, we come up with the idea that we want to create another Court of Appeal judge. We would have to create three at one time, wouldn't we--a completely new panel?

MR. DREW

Not necessarily, Joe, because if you would look at this--if you have this paper--you will notice in the Fourth District they elect three judges from the First--I mean, in the Fourth Circuit. They elect three from the First District, five from the Second District, and one from the Third District. So, you would not have to have three judges every time you created another judgeship.

MR. ANZALONE

You're not getting the point. We've got three districts in our circuit.

MR. DREW

That's a right.

MR. ANZALONE

All right, we've got one over where we live, Terrebonne has got one down in there somewhere, and they've got one further out west--in the never, never land. Now, if we've got . . . if the legislature has got to create another Court of Appeal judge, and he can only run within a district, which one of those three districts is going to get that Court of Appeal judge?

MR. DREW

If you leave this amendment in, your proposition is correct. There could be no such thing as at large judgeships. I am not trying to maintain the at large judgeship concept. I am trying to do away with it, but I am trying to get enough time to do it where the least number will be hurt the least. January 1, 1975 is too close a deadline on the thing. In your instance, Joe, of course, they do not have to, so far, be equal in population. In the Fourth District, you have five judges from 593,000 people. You have one judge from 149,000 people in that district. So, I think we could add by districts, if necessary.

MR. ABRAHAM

Harmon, as I understand it, the only thing you're really objecting to is the date that's in the proposal, and not with the concept that there would not be . . .

MR. DREW

I am not opposing the concept of having the right to change it. I think we need that; we had this same provision for the Supreme Court, in case it's needed in the future. We now would have this for the Court of Appeal. We do not have the at large problem on the Supreme Court, but I am very interested in creating districts--which we will be able to do under this proposal--to where you will not have a few judges running at large and others by small districts.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, as I appreciate it, though, the only difference between your proposal and what we have already adopted is the . . .

MR. DREW

...the cutoff date.

MR. ABRAHAM

...the one sentence, and say that none will be elected at large.

MR. DREW

That's the only difference. Right now, you have a cutoff date of January 1, 1975, which is too soon. There could not . . . there's a good possibility that there will not even be a legislative session before the cutoff date after the adoption of the constitution.

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, then why not leave the cutoff date in . . . leave it out--just leave the date out--and just say that "no judge shall be elected at large." Why couldn't you do it that way?

MR. DREW

That would take effect thirty days after the constitution is adopted. That would move the cutoff date up, even.

91st Days Proceedings—November 20, 1973

Further Discussion

MRS. MILLER

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, Mr. Drew and Justice Tate and I have been agonizing, really, over these at large judgeships. It seems that we're not really at odds over the philosophy of the fact that it's a very unfair situation to have judges--some judges--running to very small areas and small populations, and some judges running to very large areas geographically, and very large populations. We have this unbalance on the Supreme Court, and you all didn't see fit to change that. When we did adopt the amendment in the Judicial Article to cut out these at large judgeships, we put the cutoff date so that it would not take effect too soon after the adoption of the article. Since we've debated this thing several times, I have talked with Representative Drew, and he says he believes the legislature is very much aware, now, of the unfair problem; and that with his amendment, it still leaves a great deal of flexibility. He, for one, is prepared to do the best that he can in the legislature to effect some equitable changes. In view of this, but even if we delete that sentence, we do leave a great deal of flexibility to the legislature. We believe that their attention has now been directed to the unfair situation of at large judgeships, and that they will possibly be able to work out a better system. For that reason, I withdraw my objection to the Drew amendment. In philosophy, I think the at large judgeships are very, very bad; that the people do not have an opportunity to get to know a man when he's running in such a large territory. Plus the fact that you have the unfair situation of one judge having to raise or spend so much money to get elected and serve with judges on the same bench who, possibly, have a very easy time of it, or at least only have to advertise over one or two T.V. stations, and ten or fifteen radio stations, and maybe eight or nine major daily and weekly newspapers. But, I think this is something that Mr. Drew assures me can be taken care of in the legislature, and that the legislature will direct their attention to it. For that reason, I withdraw my opposition to Mr. Drew's amendment. Thank you.

MR. HENRY

We have an amendment, Mr. Clerk?
Who offers it?
Mr. Drew? Well, read it, please.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

A technical amendment.
On page 1, delete line 8 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"ARTICLE V.
* * *

Section 9. Courts of Appeal; Circuits and Dis--"

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

MR. DREW

I think you understand the problem, what the intent is to do away with at large judgeships, put them on an equal footing, and I ask your support of the proposition.

Point of Information

MR. KEAN

Mr. Chairman, just as a matter of information, if we approve this proposal, as I assume we will, as I appreciate it, we then have a delegate proposal we have approved which says one thing, and a committee proposal section which we've approved which says something else. How do we resolve that conflict?

MR. HENRY

I think we're going to be able to resolve that by the recommendations that will be made by the Committee on Style and Drafting as a result of the conflict, Mr. Kean. We're going to have to touch it very carefully, but we are going to have to address ourselves to that.

MR. KEAN

Well, what comes. . . how are you going to resolve it--by what gets voted last?

MR. HENRY

Well, I think in the report of Style and Drafting that in all probability when they make their report they will point out what was adopted and what has been adopted. What has been adopted at that point will be, I would assume, be offered as an amendment to that proposal, in that manner. That's. . .

Personal Privilege

MR. ASSEFF

Since there is some confusion about conflicts, I thought I would read a portion of the rules relating to it, so there would be no misunderstanding.

MR. HENRY

All right.

MR. ASSEFF

The rules say, that "where a proposal referred to the Committee on Style and Drafting is inconsistent or in conflict with a proposal already acted on favorably by the convention, the Committee shall so notify the convention of that inconsistency or conflict and await its instructions." However, Mr. Chairman, in view of the fact that I feel there may be many provisions of this sort, that I urge the delegates if they know of a conflict, to call it to the attention of a member of the committee.

MR. HENRY

Certainly, your point is well taken, Dr. Asseff. Thank you.

ROLL CALL

[89 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. STOVALL

Let us pray.

Oh, Lord, our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth. Before the heavens were made or ever Thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, Thou art God. We bless Your name for our creation and preservation and all the blessings of this life. We are grateful for our return here this day, and we would look to You for Your wisdom and Your guidance that we might make those decisions that will mean the best for our state and for our future. Bless us with Your presence and be with us in our deliberations, for we offer our prayer in Your name, as the One Who was and is and ever shall be. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

MR. HENRY

Gentlemen and ladies, in the event you don't know what took place relative to the extension of time for the convention, the legislature, last night, voted to extend the life of the session through the nineteenth of January. There is a provision in the bill--and I don't think that any of you can fault this provision--that says that the convention should not work, in effect, from the Sunday before Christmas through the Wednesday after New Year's. That was to give you folks and us some time off during the holidays. Therefore, the convention, unless we wind up before then, will be closing down on the nineteenth of January. Insofar as our work schedule this week, if I had only known that we'd be in till midnight last night, I would never have suggested that we come back this morning at nine o'clock. I just wasn't thinking. I apologize, especially to you legislators, for that. When we entered into this contract with this hotel to use these facilities here, there was one exclusion, and those were the days of, I think, Thursday and Friday and Saturday of this week. I believe that we have a sufficiency of work to do, and we can meet in the House chamber; and unless you all adjourn, that's where we will be meeting from Thursday through Saturday. It will be my suggestion that probably we work through Saturday, middle of the afternoon, and then start working a Tuesday morning through Saturday afternoon schedule, and just sort of seeing how that works. If you all have any suggestions or ideas, I'll appreciate hearing from you, but not right now, please. Let's try to have a nice quiet day.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to call Committee Proposal No. 11 from its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 11, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and Delegates Carmouche, Corne, and other delegates, members of that committee.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for retirement and survivor benefits.

As I appreciate it, Mr. Aertker, this proposal has but one section. Is that not correct? One section.

Motion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I want to move that we--and before Mr. Aertker starts explaining it--that we consider this proposal by letters, with A, B, C, since it is so long and purports to be only one section; that we consider these letters as though they were sections and vote on them accordingly.

MR. HENRY

Now, when you say "consider," do you mean to adopt them paragraph by paragraph?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, that we consider them just as though they were sections.

MR. HENRY

That would require a suspension of the rules, and you so move, Mr. Jenkins?

Mr. Jenkins moves for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of considering Committee Proposal No. 11 paragraph by paragraph. Is that correct, Mr. Jenkins? Capital-letter paragraph by capital-letter paragraph.

MR. POYNTER

Designated paragraphs.

Point of Information

MR. RACHAL

I did have a question, Mr. Chairman. When Mr. Jenkins mentioned that these would be handled as though they were sections, does he mean by that that they will also require a vote of 67 in order to pass each?

MR. HENRY

Yes, it would, sir.

Point of Information

MR. STOVALL

Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask Mr. Jenkins if he would withdraw that request until after it is presented by Mr. Aertker, and we might have a better idea concerning the content and would be able to make a better decision on this matter.

[Motion withdrawn.]

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, perhaps an explanation of why we are going into this section dealing with retirement before proceeding with the matter on civil services is in order at this time: I would like to explain to you that it is my plan, later on today, to ask you all to allow a suspension of the rules so that the Committee on Education and Civil Service and Welfare can have a meeting immediately after recess today, with the hope that we can come together with an agreement that will considerably shorten the proposed delegate...the Committee Proposal No. 9 and 10, which is ... close to fifty pages. We are hopeful that we can come back to this convention with, perhaps, maybe three or four pages that would make us and give us a little bit better idea of what we're proposing, plus saving this convention, I think, almost a day in time by having to amend some fifty pages of a proposal that we got out of committee. So, that's the reason for this. The proposal that we have...it would be my intention, after explaining this proposal to you, I think that Mr. Jenkins's point is well taken. I think that it should be broken up into those sections dealing with, specifically, the sections that we have which are four basic points in this proposal, and that deals first, of course, with the retirement system for all public school employees. The second, so-called part B, which would deal with all of the retirement system for state officers and employees; and then, the third proposal which deals with, of course, law enforcing and providing financial security for the surviving spouse and children of law enforcement officers in certain cases. Then, finally, the last one is a general statement about the retirement system itself and how it is to be handled and how amendments to the retirement system could be possibly be proposed. I think all of us would agree that those are four distinct basic issues and points and should, perhaps, be discussed by themselves. The proposal, as presented, actually...the proposal that we have to you right now actually, of course, provides for a retirement system and a proposal for handling a retirement system for both public school employees and also state officers and employees. I think the way it is presented here that it could and does, perhaps, even suggest that the possibility might be down the road one day that this state might actually operate one basic retirement system for all employees--school employees, as well as state employees. This is not the proposal in this here, but I think it does provide that that possibility could exist, since the recommendation and the matter of dealing with retirements is basically the same for the school employees as it is for the state employees. So, the suggestion is in...inherent in this proposal; and what we really are saying, I think, in this proposal, the basic issue about retirement is, is that both public school employees--and I think all of us recognize the fact that we have a varied assortment of retirement systems dealing with public school employees; we've got the school bus driver employee, the School Lunch Employees' Retirement System, the Schoolteacher Retirement System; and hopefully, as a result of this, one day again we might incorporate all of those into one retirement system, dealing with all people in this area. Just as we deal with the matter that just came before the legislature where we granted a 5.5 increase to all employees, I think that, perhaps, maybe we ought to give some consideration to dealing with retirement systems for all of the employees. But, under this proposal, we are actually stating that the retirement is a contractual agreement, and it means exactly that--that it is a basic contract between the state and that person in which the state, of course, enters into a contract, and the last part of both of the state employees and the school employees state specifically that there is a guarantee of all benefits payable to a member of the system or his beneficiary at his retirement or at his death. This is what the committee felt should be incorporated into the proposal. The other part of the proposal dealing with the financial security for surviving spouses and children of law enforcement, the basic point that we have changed there is that--under the old constitution is--this person was paid only if he suffered death while in the direct apprehension of a person during the course or the performance of his duty. This changes it to the fact that this is the public policy of this state to provide this, and while he is engaged--whether on duty, off duty, and so forth, in the certain categories--but it states "while he is engaged in the protection of life or property," not as the old constitution states "just in the direct apprehension of an individual." So, this could be, certainly, much more far-reaching and we feel, much more inclusive in that. Pretty well, the other parts of it, the only thing that we have changed some law enforcement inclusion, and excluded on some of them, and so forth. The procedure is pretty well the same way as before. The attorney general, of course, is the one who proceeds to file the suit in favor of the spouse and the children. It's a ten-thousand-dollar appropriation for the spouse, five thousand dollars for any of the children that remain after that. The fourth section deals actually with the matter of requiring the ways to amend the matters dealing with the retirement system. Basically, the main point that I can see in our proposal is that we are requiring publication in the Official Journal on two separate days, whereas at the present time we do require that the notice be published on three separate days, and at least thirty days prior to the convening of the legislature in regular session; and ours changes it to at least thirty days before the introduction of such bills in the legislature. So, it could, of course, come after the legislature actually convenes. These are the basic changes, and it is my considered judgment that these represent an improvement over the present matter of retirement; and I so recommend them at this time for your favorable consideration.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair
Questions

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Aertker, what is the purpose of including this proposal in the constitution? Why do we really need it, rather than in the statutes?

MR. AERTKER

Well, Mr. Jenkins, it was the feeling of the committee, and after listening to people talk to us, that this matter of a retirement is quite a sensitive issue and that this would provide for many people a comfortable feeling that in the constitution of this state they felt that they had a provision which stated that their retirement actually represented a contractual relationship with this state, and that they had the full faith and credit of this state back of it to make sure that they, when they got old and dottering and feeble, that they were going to get that check every month and make sure it kept coming in, and they just like to see it written down in the constitution.

MR. JENKINS

So, the justification then of Paragraph (A) and Paragraph (B) would be the fact that we are stating that this is a contractual relation--not any sort of social program or gift to teachers, but a contractual relation. But, that would not pertain then to Paragraph (C) and (D), would it?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MR. CONROY

Mr. Aertker, was any study made or any effort made to find out whether this would have any effect at all on the state's bonding ability, or whether this addition of an additional full faith and credit obligation would have any effect on that?

MR. AERTKER

I don't believe the matter really, to my knowledge... I don't remember it being represented as an issue in the committee proposal, Mr. Conroy. It certainly, of course--as I appreciate it now--it certainly, of course, could have, perhaps, have an effect on it if it meant that they, for instance, had to provide a more... a larger base than they presently are, in order to actually make the thing actuarially sound.

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Aertker, I have just a technical question. On page 3, Subparagraph (4), lines 13 and 14 refers to conditions described in Paragraph (A) above that seems... Paragraph (A) seems to be dealing with school employees. Isn't that... shouldn't that be Paragraph (C), Section 1?

MR. AERTKER

Yes, I would think so, and we'll so have to amend that as we get to it, I think.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Aertker, I call your attention to page 1, line 26, where it says that "the legislature may provide for retirement of officers and employees of the State of Louisiana, its agencies or political subdivisions." The city of New Orleans, and I imagine other cities as well, have retirement systems set up for their employees. What does this do to our employment systems... I mean, retirement systems; excuse me.

MR. AERTKER

I don't see where it does anything to it. I just say that it's my understanding here is that anyone who is not in... who is not provided for in another retirement system would have to be provided for by the state under this retirement.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Aertker, does it say that here? I thought it just said, "the legislature shall provide".

MR. AERTKER

Well, that's what I say; but if it provides for one and the person is already provided for in another system, I would have to assume that that would be allowable to them to have that excluded, since they have that.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, then, you wouldn't object to an amendment that says "not otherwise provided for by that political subdivision," or some such phrase that makes it clear, and those who have contributed to a retirement system may remain in it....

MR. AERTKER

No, we'd have no objection to that.

MS. ZERVIGON

On page 2, lines 11 and 12, it refers to "officers sustaining death or injury while on or off duty." It's my understanding that many police officers hold down second jobs as employees of private security firms. Would the state, in effect, be establishing retirement systems for those private security firms, since those off-duty police officers would be protecting life and property, but they would be off duty and in somebody else's employ at that time?

MR. AERTKER

Well, I think the statement right above it says "official duty," and so I think the interpretation would be that unless they were actually in a... officially doing something for the state or for itself that it would not apply.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Aertker, when you're off duty, how does someone establish what your official duty is?

MR. AERTKER

Well, the committee had in mind such things as, for instance, if there would be a person off duty and he would actually be trying to make an arrest, or if he were trying to, say, help in the assistance of stopping a riot or something. This was the thinking that that would ... while he was not officially on duty, that certainly he was in the performance of preserving and protecting life and property, and so, therefore, it should apply to them; and that was the inclusion of it. But, as you will notice as I say, this is a change from what it presently is, which is... which would cover your other point-- and the other point was, of course, that he actually be... had to be apprehending someone in the arrest for our process.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Aertker, let me ask you one more overarching question. I would like to have the benefit of your thinking, if you will, on why this should be in the constitution at all. We wrestled, if you'll recall, for a great deal of time over the judicial retirement system and stuck it in on the margin of one vote, if you'll remember, largely on the rationale that the judiciary was a third branch of government and ought not to be subject to the whims of one of the other two branches. These people mentioned in these retirement systems are not in a third branch of government, and as I understand it--as my attorneys informed me--the retirement systems are already a contractual arrangement which cannot be harmed. So, since we only stuck the judicial retirement system in by a one-vote margin why should these retirement systems go in?

MR. AERTKER

Well, I explained to you that they were in the constitution already and that people felt that, this being such a matter, that they just felt that we ought to have it included in there to make the people who are the employees of the state and who are in the school system have that assurance that it was a contractual agreement with the state, and that their benefits were guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the state, rather than just allow it up to the whim and fancy of the legislature. They... we felt that it ought to be included in the constitution.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, would it not be sufficient then to say that retirement systems established by the state or its political subdivisions are declared to be contractual arrangements, without going into all of this?

MR. AERTKER

Well, it ... it might be sufficient, but it just sounded better to the committee, and it was... the committee felt more comfortable with the wording that they had down here, rather than the wording that you just proposed.

MS. ZERVIGON

Did your committee take a lot out of the present constitution that was in there before, or did you largely, in your various articles, stick everything back in?

MR. AERTKER

I would have ... I would have to say that they pretty well tracked the present retirement system.

MS. ZERVIGON

Thank you.

MR. CASEY

We have other questions, Mr. Aertker, but before moving on, we'd like to point out to the delegates that Staff Report No. 30 was handed out a couple of weeks ago; it's a good digest of this proposal which may answer many of your questions in advance.

MR. ABRAHAM

Bob, the... the present constitution states that the legislature shall provide a retirement system for the... for state employees. But, it says that it shall have authority to provide it for these political subdivisions. It doesn't say that it shall provide it; it says it shall have authority to provide it. My question is: Why are we saying in here that it shall provide for the political subdivision? This is a change from the present constitution; why the change?

MR. AERTKER

Mack, I really couldn't... couldn't give you the answer to that because I really think that they had planned on certainly allowing present retirement systems to continue. So, this might be something that we might have to amend as we go on.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Aertker, this guaranteeing of the retirement by the political subdivision, is that the present law?

MR. AERTKER

I don't think. I don't believe that's ... that's the present law on it.

MR. LANIER

So, you're adding this responsibility in the new constitution on, say, the state or the local political subdivisions; is that correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MR. LANIER

Now, these retirement systems, are they supervised or administered by the local units of government?

MR. AERTKER

They are... they are supervised by--retirement systems--by... by boards of trustees.

MR. LANIER

But; does the local unit have any control or authority over this retirement system that it is going to be responsible for?

MR. AERTKER

They have the authority, of course, of seeing to it that the proper appropriation is made to make the operation of it actuarially sound, but ... I know what you're saying. No, they do not control, for instance, the investments that they make, etc. That's done as... through the board of trustees.

MR. LANIER

So, if the board of trustees made some unwise investments, the political subdivision would be responsible for it, even though they could not control the actions of the board of trustees; would that be accurate?

MR. AERTKER

I would say that presently that is the situation; however, I don't see anything in... in here that would prohibit the legislature from making certain restrictions on the operations of the board of trustees. I don't see anything that would stop them from doing that.

MR. LANIER

Well, let me ask you this: For example, say --I believe that police officers, or the chiefs of police --in municipalities recently got a retirement program set up by the legislature--how would all of the municipalities around the state be able to protect their local interests under this type of a situation?

MR. AERTKER

If it were... frankly, under this situation, I don't see how they could if -- and that was the point I think that we were talking with Ms. Zervigon on --is that, if they decided to go into that type of retirement system, I think that they actually would be forfeiting the guarantee that they would have, because I don't believe the local... that this would say that the local subdivision or political subdivision guarantees it.

MR. LANIER

Now, let me ask you, for example--like my good friend, Ambrose Landry, is a clerk of court--would LaFourche Parish Police Jury be responsible for the retirement of the clerks of court, or would that be a state... the state guaranteeing that?

MR. AERTKER

It ... would depend upon what the state actually provided for in this; it would have to be one or the other. It would have to be provided either at... if it were not provided at the local levels, my appreciation of it is that the state would have to provide for some system of retirement.

MR. LANIER

Then, we'd have the same problem with the sheriffs and the assessors?

MR. AERTKER

Yes, certainly.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Aertker, we have in the Bill of Rights a provision prohibiting impairment of the obligation of contracts. Probably, later on, we're going to include a provision similar to Article IV, Section 15, of the present constitution saying that, "Vested rights shall not be divested without the payment of just compensation." Wouldn't those two provisions really protect the people who've been under retirement systems in the past, and in the future, in our state?

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. AERTKER

It... it might, Mr. Jenkins, but I really believe the committee had in mind the provision in the Bill of Rights that the state could not impair the contract, and that's why they put the word in there "contractual relationship," with the understanding that if they put this and included it in the constitution, even in the Bill of Rights the state would not be able to impair it in any way, and that, therefore, it would be a contract that everyone understood what they were operating under.

Motion

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, after going over this proposal, as well as Committee Proposal Nos. 9 and 11... no, 9 and 10, I see that the Education Civil Service Committee has submitted proposals which do not seem to conform to the form and style being followed by the convention in that each of these three proposals is one section in length: One, forty-seven pages for one section; one, seventeen pages, one section; and one, four pages, but still one section. In order to allow us to continue in the same manner that we have in the past, I'd like to move for a suspension of the rules in order that we could consider the paragraphs which are indicated by capital letters as though they were sections, and vote on them, and can discuss them accordingly.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Jenkins now moves for a suspension of the rules for the purpose of considering Committee Proposal No. 11 by lettered Sections (A), (B), (C), and (D). Is that right, Mr. Jenkins?

Point of Information

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, I want to know if the motion is debatable?

MR. CASEY

No. A suspension of the rules is not debatable.

MR. FLORY

May I ask a question of the Chair as a point of order then? If we consider... if this motion is adopted, what vote would be required on amendments to the particular subparagraphs mentioned in Mr. Jenkins's motion?

MR. CASEY

Well, assuming, first of all, you had an amendment to Paragraph (A), we would, under our suspension, consider that, for instance, Section 1. It would require just a majority of those present and voting for the adoption of an amendment, unless it's a new lettered paragraph. Then, under the suspension we would have to rule that it would take sixty-seven votes, for instance, to adopt a new Paragraph (E).

MR. FLORY

But, if... if we have an amendment to a particular section, let's say (C), are you saying that that would only require a majority of those present and voting?

MR. CASEY

An amendment to (C). But, when we adopt (C)...

MR. FLORY

All right. What if we rewrite (C) then? Would it still take only a simple majority of those present?

MR. CASEY

That's all that it would take, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

It would take sixty-seven votes?

MR. CASEY

That's correct, unless you submit a new... new lettered section.

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Flory, it takes sixty-seven votes to adopt (C) as amended, once that you amended it, under the suspension. In other words, to be treated like a section, once all the proposed amendments were completed, and--let's say for the sake of the argument--some of them adopted, once someone moved final passage of the paragraph, Paragraph (C), it would then take sixty-seven votes to adopt the Paragraph.

MR. FLORY

So, in effect, what we're doing is changing the entire rules of the convention as far as voting is concerned?

MR. CASEY

We are changing the rules, Mr. Flory.

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, as I understand it, this is not a debatable motion; is that correct?

MR. CASEY

That's correct; suspension of the rules is not.

Motion

MR. DENNERY

Then, I would move as a substitute motion that the Chair be permitted to permit debate in order to discuss... to suspend the rules for the purpose of permitting the Chair to allow discussion on, ultimately, the motion made by Mr. Jenkins.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Dennery makes a subsidiary motion that there be an additional suspension of the rules for the purpose of debating the first motion offered by Mr. Jenkins.

Point of Information

MR. DE BLIEUX

As I understand the rules, a motion to suspend the rules is not debatable, but the ... after the rules are suspended, the motion that Mr. Jenkins made would be debatable, whether or not we'd adopt that or not. I don't think you can couple a motion with a rule suspension like that and cut off debate; it's just not right.

MR. CASEY

Well, Senator De Blieux, first of all, it is my understanding of the rules that when we suspend them, we suspend them for a particular purpose, and once that's adopted, it is a one-shot deal. However, I think we're going to achieve the same thing that you're mentioning right now through Mr. Dennery's motion, whereby he moves specifically to suspend the rules to permit argument on the first suspension. So, let's just handle it that way.

[Subsidiary motion adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, delegates, if you'll notice committee proposals Nos. 9, 10 and 11, you'll see that they are not in the same form that all other Committee Proposals have been in. If you look at Committee Proposal No. 9, you'll see that it is seventeen pages in length, and yet, it is only one section. If you look at 10, you'll see that it's forty-seven pages in length, and yet, it is only one section. In Committee Proposal No. 11, which we're on now, is four pages in length, and yet, it is only one section. Now, the subdivisions, which seem to be equivalent to sections in these proposals, correspond with the capitalized letters: the capital (A), capital (B), capital (C). Now, these are lengthy provisions, and if we're going to consider them intelligently, it just seems to me that we ought to continue the same process that we have before considering the relatively short provisions that deal with a single subject matter. Even doing it this way, some of these lettered paragraphs are going to be too long for us to consider, and they may need to be further subdivided. But, what I want to suggest is that we go ahead and do it that way. I'm asking to suspend the rules, but in effect, what I'm really doing is saying let's just keep the same rules we have. Let's consider these section by section, because these particular subdivisions are equivalent to sections. It will require sixty-seven votes to adopt one. If you want to amend it, it would require a majority of those present and voting; everything would be just like the adoption of a section. I think that's really the only reasonable way to do it, and that's why I want to start with Committee Proposal No. 11, since I think we'll sort of set a precedent on 9 and 10 with it.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, and delegates to the convention, I hesitate to rise to oppose Mr. Jenkins' motion, but I must tell you that it appears to me on the surface of the motion that what we're doing is heading in the wrong direction, insofar as the rules of this convention are concerned. It was the thought of the Committee on Education, Health, and Welfare, as I understood it, in proposing Committee Proposal No. 11, to try to condense into one proposal several subject matters: one dealing with retirement of state systems, the other of local systems, plus carrying forward the... taking forward the present constitutional provision as it relates to compensation for officers killed while in hot pursuit. Now, as I understand, the suspension of the rules is directed specifically to the consideration of paragraphs in the proposal, and if granted, then what it would take is a sixty-seven vote in order to adopt a paragraph. Now, this convention has never done that on any proposal that's come forward, even on taxation. In the homestead, for example, we didn't even agree to allow that to be done. I have no objection whatsoever to a careful consideration paragraph by paragraph, and then adopting it with the -- under the rules -- with the sixty-seven vote. I think it ought to take a simple majority in order to amend a particular paragraph. Let's consider it separately; let's amend it separately, and then go on to the next one; then vote overall with the sixty-seven votes to adopt the proposal. I think that is the normal rules of the convention, and I would ask that you not suspend the rules, and to get us into the posture of changing the voting procedures of this convention. I suggest to you that what it's directed at, perhaps, is in the consideration of the next two proposals which are somewhat detailed; and under the present constitution, this was the procedure used in the '21 Constitution, later amended to include the civil service provisions. All of it was contained in one section and lettered Paragraphs (A) through whatever it was; the same thing with fire and police. So, that what we're talking about is a vote change in the voting procedures of this convention, and not necessarily a suspension of the rules in order to consider paragraph by paragraph. If the maker of the motion would like to have consideration paragraph by paragraph, fine; I agree to that; but I do not agree to a suspension of the rules which would carry with it a change in the voting procedures of this convention. I would ask that you not agree to suspend the rules.

[Previous Question ordered. Motion to suspend the rules for the purpose of considering Committee Proposal No. 11 by lettered paragraph adopted: 62-27.]

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Would you announce that vote again, Mr. Casey?

MR. CASEY

Yes, sir.
62 yeas, 27 nays.

MR. DENNERY

Well, with 62 yeas, you can't suspend the rules, can you?

MR. POYNTER

... sixty-seven or two-thirds present and voting, whichever is lesser.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Mr. Aertker, has been distributed. Amendment No. 1. On page 1, delete line 12 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"ARTICLE VII. HUMAN RESOURCES
Section 1. Retirement and Survivor's Benefits" --technical amendment to correct the title.

[Amendment adopted without objection.]

Reading of Paragraph (A)

MR. POYNTER

Section 1. Paragraph (A). Retirement System; Public School Employees

The legislature shall provide for the retirement of teachers and other employees of the public educational system through the establishment of a retirement system or systems for employees of the public educational system. Membership in such retirement system or systems shall be a contractual relationship between the employees and employer, the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired, and the state guarantees all benefits payable to a member of the system or to his lawful beneficiary at his death or retirement.

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I think the point that was raised relative, of course, to political subdivisions, certainly has some real merit to it. I think that, perhaps, inadvertently, when we drafted this, that perhaps that we... I know that it was not the intention of the committee to change the wording of the present constitution, which, of course, states that the legislature shall have the authority to provide for the retirement of officers and employees of the state. I think that if we would continue with that type of wording, and perhaps, maybe, amend this section to that effect, that we wouldn't have the inconsistency of having these separate retirement systems being provided for at the local level, and also at the state level. I think we would provide for the proper coordination that if we would provide the legislature having this power. I have asked for an amendment to that effect to see whether we could change the wording to that effect, to where it would clarify it, that for instance, in the case of a local--for instance, in the case of the, say, the sheriffs, who might be under a retirement system in which all the tax recipient bodies of the local political subdivision are contributing toward that retirement system, that this would not then make the state liable for the full faith and credit of that retirement system. So, I think that if we would change it to that effect, and I, as I stated to you, I have an amendment coming up to that effect that I think will clarify this whole thing. This is exactly as the present constitution reads on it--that the state--the legislature shall have the authority to provide for this type of retirement system, and that this would be the type of arrangement that it would still be the contractual agreement between the state and the full faith and credit of the state would be back of the retirement system. So, I don't know, Mr. Chairman, where that leaves us right now. Whether we want to...

Questions

MR. CONROY

Mr. Aertker, do I understand your amendment would relate to (A) as well as (B)?

MR. AERTKER

Yes.

MR. CONROY

The effect of it will be to say that whoever provides the fund, in effect, guarantees the payment and puts its full faith and credit, but that the state doesn't enter into an area where it hasn't been before. Is that right?

MR. AERTKER

Well, just a minute, Mr. Conroy. I don't really believe that we have a problem in as far as Section (A) goes. I'm really getting ahead by saying,....but the problem really is in the state area. I don't believe that we need to change the wording on Section (A) dealing with public school employees, because we don't have a separate setup different than--all of these are at the state level, so, we wouldn't have that problem there.

MR. CONROY

Well, that's what I--then I'll go on with the question I started. The school retirement system is, presently, provided entirely by the state. Is that right? Is it funded entirely by state funds? It's not funded by any local funds at all?

MR. AERTKER

No, the local school--for instance the local school system--contributes a certain share. But that, of course, is required by statute that they contribute "X" number of dollars to it.

MR. CONROY

Who has control of what the benefits will be? Just the legislature?

MR. AERTKER

Just the legislature. Yes.
So, Mr. Chairman, in view of that, I think that we are ready, then, to go with Section (A), because that--the amendment I have reference to actually has reference to Section (B). Since we are dealing with these--my understanding is we did vote to deal with them by section. So, we'll just stay on Section (A) right at the present time, and we'll get to (B) later, then.

So, I have no amendment to Section (A).

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. ABRAHAM

Bob, I'm concerned about the last clause that says, "the state guarantees all benefits payable to a member of the system or to his lawful beneficiary at his time of retirement."

Now, does the state have any control over the management of the retirement funds now? Will you explain to me how these trustees work, etc.?

MR. AERTKER

These trustees, of course, are people who operate and are responsible for the investment of all of the funds, etc. But, the legislature has this control over them that they could legislate certain types of investments that they have. Let's be more specific; I think they are right now in the process of developing something that would prohibit them, for instance, from making loans on, say, properties of different kinds, as they have--as both retirement systems, as you know, have. I think that this is a matter that addresses itself to the legislature. The actual mechanics of the operation, though, is done, of course, by the Board of Trustees.

MR. ABRAHAM

All right. Now, is the Board of Trustees appointed by the legislature or by the members of the retirement fund?

MR. AERTKER

By the members of the system.

MR. ABRAHAM

Now, under the present system now, if the Board of Trustees makes a bad investment and loses money, which depletes the funds of the retirement system, is the state now obligated to make up that difference and pay those funds?

MR. AERTKER

I don't--I really don't believe that they are. I think that the state probably will feel that they have to in order to make the payments of what they guarantee. They would be obligated to it if they have agreed that pensions, or that retirements are of...on such a formula. I think the faith and credit of the state would have to guarantee that that formula be implemented when that person retires.

MR. ABRAHAM

But, now, this language right here, if I understand it correctly, does obligate the state that if this retirement fund goes busted, the state, then, will have to guarantee the retirement benefits that are being paid out to the retiree.

MR. AERTKER

Yes.

MR. ABRAHAM

Is that correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Aertker, I noticed that the language contained in Section (A) and Section (B) is very similar, except that it just pertains to different personnel. Is there any reason why that those two paragraphs could not be combined into one, and, therefore, eliminate the...what I would consider just excess verbiage in the constitution?

MR. AERTKER

Well, one of the reasons for it is, as we pointed out, is that when you get into state employees, we have included in...there that the matter of....

MR. DE BLIEUX

What is it that's contained....

MR. AERTKER

....well, we've got the matters in there--included in there--for instance, the other areas. The first one deals strictly with teachers.

MR. DE BLIEUX

What is this contained in Paragraph (B) that could not be put into Paragraph (A)?

MR. AERTKER

Well, for one thing is that we are talking about political subdivisions in Section (B). We don't have that included in (A). That's why we are amending Section (B), because it deals with it.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, the legislature has to set up both of them. Why couldn't the legislature, if it's going to be provided by the legislature, why can't you say that in Paragraph (A) that it shall provide that and just eliminate that excess verbiage?

MR. AERTKER

Well, that would imply that they would all be under one system, too, Senator De Blieux. As you know, at the present time, the formula for state employees is different from that than that is utilized for school employees. For instance, the formula has a two and a half percent clause in it as contrasted to a two percent clause for public school employees.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Even that's true. But that may be true at the present time. But isn't it also possible that the legislature, since it's going to provide it, it doesn't have to provide for them in the same act.

MR. AERTKER

Well...

MR. DE BLIEUX

Couldn't it still, under...the provision, if you just added in the necessary offices and employees, in the Paragraph (A) that's contained in Paragraph (B), couldn't the legislature still legislate and make the various retirement systems they have?

MR. AERTKER

I think they could. But, the committee felt that there was...that there were problems connected with state employees that were not... that were not problems as far as school employees were concerned; that school employees were a specific category that you could go ahead and make a retirement system on, and that, therefore, they ought to be dealt with separately, even though they might be under the same retirement system and the same benefits.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Aertker, I'm not quite sure I understood something you said about--what does "the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired", mean? What I'm getting at, sir, is, suppose we have a real recession or depression in the future. Does that mean that future contributions would not produce lesser benefits, etc., or what?

MR. AERTKER

Well, again, this is strictly my opinion of what the word "accrued" means. That means that if you have accrued benefits two ways, one of course, is that if you have made contributions into the retirement fund, that's guaranteed that you will be paid back those accrued benefits. But, I go even one step further, in my understanding of accrued benefit actually is that if you are in a retirement system that guarantees a certain formula for implementation, and you have accrued that benefit, and have paid into that system on that basis, that the state does guarantee that that formula--and your point about if something happened, I think the state does state that that type of benefit will be paid because it has accrued up to that time. They could, in case of something happening financially, or something, certainly change that. Any person then joining that system would then join under the new provisions of that. But, my appreciation of the other would be that it does guarantee that that would be the benefits paid.

MR. DENNERY

In other words, future contributions, after the legislature would change the method, let us say, future contributions would only apply to new employees. An old employee, regardless of what the contributions are, either by the state or by the employee, would retain the same right that he had then accrued as to benefits. Is that correct, sir?

MR. AERTKER

That's my understanding of it.

MRS. CORNE

Mr. Aertker, coming back to the question of the people who make up the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Retirement System, do we not have state officials on the board that are not elected by the teachers, or by the employees--school employees?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct.

MRS. CORNE

Also, isn't it a fact that in the State Teachers' Retirement System, we do not have any political subdivisions, or any kind of local government involved in the Teachers' Retirement System? Therefore, it's completely a state retirement system?

MR. AERTKER

That's a right, Mrs. Corne. That's why I was explaining to Senator De Blieux we felt we should not combine (A) and (B), even though they both might end up with the same retirement system, that we do not have that matter of political subdivisions that confuse ours. Ours is....and does include every teacher and every employee who is employed in the public school system.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MRS. CORNE

All right. Now, this is a question that I have not asked before. For many years I should have known this, and I'm sure that you would know the answer.

For instance, a state official like the Secretary of State is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Teachers' Retirement System. Is his appointment to the retirement system an act of the legislature? Do you know?

MR. AERTKER

Yes, that's how he's on there. Then there are other state officials-- I believe the treasurer is on there, too.

MRS. CORNE

I think so.

MR. AERTKER

Yes.

MRS. CORNE

Yes, sir. Thank you.

MR. LOWE

Mr. Aertker, my question has to do with the wording of "the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired". I have a difficult time trying to find out what we are trying to say here when we say "the accrued benefits shall not be diminished or impaired". What does that mean, actually, you think?

MR. AERTKER

Well, to me it means something, maybe to you, as an accountant, it might mean something else. To some of these lawyers, I'm sure it means a third thing. But to me, it actually means....accrued means to that extent that you have made contributions in there that you are guaranteed that return of that money that you've made in the contribution.

Impaired means that if you have a contractual basis that you are contributing on the basis of a salary at such and such a basis and formula, that that is, and would be an impairment if you tried to reduce that formula in some way to reduce the amount of your retirement in future years.

MR. LOWE

So, actually, then, if it reached the point that paying the current retirement to the payroll of the retirees--if you were to make that payroll, the retired funds' payroll, and it actually impaired some of the funds that some of these others that weren't retired, then they would be prohibited from paying the retirees that are now drawing a pension. Is that what this would do?

MR. AERTKER

Well, it wouldn't prohibit it. It would just tell them that they had to get this little fund up and pay it out first. But it wouldn't tell them that they couldn't go somewhere else and pick up some more money in some other sock that they might have hidden away.

MR. LOWE

No. I believe you misunderstand my question, Bob. Let's assume, and the Teachers' Retirement System, I'm not sure, hadn't reached this point, that the only funds that are left that are available are the funds that have been contributed by those teachers that are now presently working and have not yet retired. The funds that have been contributed by the state are pretty much depleted, I believe. So, what we are saying is, that we are not, we shall not diminish or impair the accrued liability--the accrued benefits. So, if the only thing we have left are the accrued benefits of those people that are working, we have no funds to pay the people that are retired, because we say, "We shall not diminish." I'm not sure that this is good. I'm afraid that writing into this constitution things about retirement systems--that we have thirty-six in the state; we don't know what kind of condition they are in, I believe we are being a little premature to try to expand too much, and end up getting ourselves in trouble. Do you know that I really believe that we could be in shape with this wording that it would be impossible to pay some of the retired teachers in the state today, because I'm afraid that the payment to those teachers may impair and diminish the accrued benefits of those people that are presently working?

MR. AERTKER

Well, I'm....not really sure that we have exhausted that amount that the...actual amount put in by the state. I'm not....I know that actuarially they have been told that they have certain deficiencies in the operation. But, my understanding of it is is that if this is involved, that the state would have to come up with some more money in order to make it that way.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Bob....when Moise Dennery asked you a question as to what "accrued" meant, I think you answered him to say that those people who were presently in the system could not have their benefits changed. It was my understanding, when we discussed this in committee, that the word "accrued" meant those benefits which had been earned up to that time. Now, that did not prevent the legislature from changing it for everybody in the future. But, those benefits which had been earned up to that time, before the change, would be accrued. Now, is this not correct?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct. I thought that's what I had stated at that time....and I thought I'd answered that to Mr. Lowe that stated the legislature would, in case of financial difficulties have the authority, then, to change it from that date on.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Wasn't the real gist of it that the committee did not want the legislature giving a lot of benefits without making sure there was sufficient money to pay those benefits?

MR. AERTKER

That's correct. Yes.

[Quorum Call: 85 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendments by Senator De Blieux as follows:

Amendment No. 1. Page 1, at the end of line 17, delete the word "membership" and delete lines 18 through 32 in their entirety. On page 2, delete lines 1 through 3 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"It also shall provide for the retirement of officers and State of Louisiana, its agencies and political subdivision" (shouldn't that be subdivisions, Senator? Shouldn't there be an "s" on the word "subdivision" there?

All right. Make that correction, if you would, please.) "political subdivisions, including persons employed jointly by state and federal agencies other than the military service, through the establishment of retirement system or systems."

Amendment No. 2. Page 1, line 13, immediately after Section 1. and before "retirement" delete Paragraph (A).

Amendment No. 3. Page 1, at the beginning of line 14, immediately after the partial word "poyees" change the period to a semi-colon and add the following:

"State Officers and Employees."

Mr. Chairman, Vice-Chairman, Senator, if you'll look with me, I believe that we are going to need some corrections to these amendments to make them conform to the rules suspension, inasmuch as the rules suspension requires us to go paragraph by paragraph. Unless I misconstrue this, this would delete more than one paragraph at a time. Am I not correct?

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, I don't....

MR. POYNTER

I think the only....thing that we could delete under this rules suspension is through line 22 on page 1, and then precluding the adoption of this amendment, you would certainly want to propose subsequent amendments, it would seem to me.

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's correct, Mr. Clerk. This new amendment was adapted before we adopted that rule.

MR. POYNTER

That's correct.
All right....

MR. DE BLIEUX

So, I'd like to just change the words....it would be to line 22 rather than line 32.

MR. POYNTER

Right.
The instructions for Amendment No. 1 should read as follows:
Amendment No. 1. On page 1 at the end of line 17, delete the word "membership" and delete lines 18 through 22 in their entirety. Scratch out everything up to "an insert in lieu thereof". It would read, On page 1, at the end of line 17, delete the word "membership", and delete lines 18 through 22 in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following. Everyone follow me on that? Thank you, Senator.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as I had previously queried Mr. Aertker about this, since Paragraph (A) and Paragraph (B) are so similar in language, except that they just apply to different retirement systems, I cannot see why we can't combine those two paragraphs and eliminate, just by the addition of the words in this amendment, to Paragraph (A); eliminate Paragraph (B) altogether. I don't think we ought to see how long a constitution we can write. We ought to just put into the constitution what is the necessary verbiage, and leave it that way. This amendment would just combine Paragraphs (A) and (B), and give the legislature the right, since it's going to do it in both sections, to set up the various retirement systems as needed. I think that's all the language we would need insofar as these two particular paragraphs are concerned. It doesn't change the rights or anything else of either one of them except that.

So, I ask that you adopt that particular language. Of course, they'd have to have an amendment later to delete Paragraph (B).

Questions

MR. FLORY

Senator De Blieux, I think I understood you to say that the only change it makes, it combines the two paragraphs together. Is that right?

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's the biggest change it makes, Mr. Flory.

Now, there's one thing that I'd like to take out, insofar as Paragraph (B) is concerned, that I don't agree with. I don't think that's contained in Paragraph (A). That's with reference to...wait I take it back; it is also in Paragraph (A). That's the right, to the state and in the event that we should have a recession, something like that, that they couldn't change these retirement benefits. I think that's up to the legislature to decide that, as to how much the retirement benefits should be. It should...it'd have to be based upon the amount of the funds that are actually paid into...otherwise, we'd be in a position of whether we couldn't operate the state government.

MR. FLORY

Senator, do I understand you to say that you believe that if a man for twenty years makes his contribution to the retirement system, and as a depression, the state ought to have the right to use that money and take it away from that employee, and that that money ought not be there when he gets ready to retire? That's what your amendment does.

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, the amount that the retiree has put into it. But, you must remember this, Mr. Flory, that most of the retirement systems of the state puts as much, if not more, than the retiree does. It's the question of whether or not the state could reduce its contribution to a retirement system.

MR. FLORY

But, under the committee's proposal, what it mandates is that the benefits earned up to the time that the legislature makes a change, which it has every right to do, you can't change those benefits earned up to that point. But, you could abolish the system after that, under this language. But, what you are doing by your amendment, is taking away the vested right that that employee has once he puts his money in that system. That's immoral.

MR. DE BLIEUX

No. What I take out of that is the guarantee that the state's going to guarantee that that retirement system will always be at that level. That may not be possible for the state to do.

MRS. WARREN

Senator De Blieux, there was a time when the state had plenty of money with the...if retirement benefits go up.

MR. DE BLIEUX

They have been doing that, Mrs. Warren.

MRS. WARREN

Whether they paid it or not, they....

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's been over...the years since I've been in the legislature. We have been increasing benefits of retirement systems practically every session of the legislature.

MRS. WARREN

So, it'd be according to the cost of living they would be paid.

MR. DE BLIEUX

That's right.

MRS. WARREN

Wonderful.

Further Discussion

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, the matter of retirement systems is a highly technical problem, particularly when you consider the number of retirement systems that we have in the State of Louisiana and some of the chaos that we have had in these retirement systems through the years. The thing that concerns me about locking into the constitution some of the things that we are getting ready to lock in, if we pass this proposal, is that we are trying in one hard fell sweep, suddenly, to cure all of the problems that have accrued over years and years and years of the operation of retirement systems. I don't think that anybody in the State of Louisiana is going to deny the fact that there is a great deal of research that needs to go into the study of retirement systems. There is a great deal of research that needs to go into the investment of funds of retirement systems. There is a great deal of research that needs to go into giving some uniformity to the type of benefits that are paid to the various people that come under the retirement systems of the State of Louisiana. Now, when you get down to the problem we are addressing ourselves to in part (A), we are talking about the funds and the accrued benefits and the accrued liability of these funds. Now, when we talk about preserving the accrued benefits, we are talking about how do we want these retirement systems funded, because that's exactly what we are talking about. When you talk to people that know retirement systems, they are not in agreement as to whether you should fund a retirement system one hundred percent, or whether you should fund it to the extent that you just have adequate funds to meet current payrolls. I would say that if we today, in the State of Louisiana tried to fund all of the retirement systems one hundred percent, it would be virtually impossible. As I mentioned to you before, the State of Florida had a survey made of their retirement systems over a period of years, and they are finally getting them in shape. They found out that they had an unfunded accrued liability of 1.8 million dollars. Now, who is going to sit here and tell us that we know best how to fund these systems today, to say that they have to be funded to the extent that if they are not funded, that we can't pay anything out of them to meet current retirement benefits because it might impair those benefits that presently accrue to some of the people that have paid in funds. Now, I can't disagree with the logic of that. The only thing that I have to disagree with is that we are trying to cure years and years and years of problems with one sentence in this constitution. It may take years and years and years of study before we know enough about the thirty some odd retirement systems in the State of Louisiana, before we can make a one statement presentation of what it's going to take to protect the citizens of the state and also to assure that the retirees are going to receive their benefits without overnight bankrupting the State of Louisiana. I say we need a general statement in this article that there will be retirement systems. I think Mr. De Blieux's amendment takes a step in that direction. You can't sit here and say that it's best for the State of Louisiana to come up with eight hundred million dollars and put in these retirement systems, and let them get invested in some five percent bonds and turn around and have that money laying idle when it could be used for other purposes in the State of Louisiana. We just can't say that right now. There is no doubt that every retiree is going to get paid. The state is going to live up to their moral obligations. The municipalities that are subdivisions of the state--those people are going to get paid because the state is going to live up to its moral obligations. Let's not make the mistake today of saying that we know what's best over some emotional feeling that some person that's put in some benefits may not get them back. It's easy for us to take that route; it's easy for us to feel that way. But, you and I know that every person that contributes to a retirement system in the State of Louisiana, their funds are not in serious jeopardy. There is some study that needs to be made so they will be handled efficiently, that we will get the most out of the investments in them, that there will be some equity in the amount of retirement that is paid to the various people from the retirement funds. But, we don't need to say today that we know what we need to do with retirement systems. I ask you to cut out the expansion that's been made on the retirement systems that would be locked into the constitution for all time and to allow some time to deal with retirement systems. So, I ask you to support Senator De Blieux's amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. CONROY

I rise in support of Senator De Blieux's amendment as did Monday Lowe—all three of us having been members of the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Committee. I think it is from that direction that the concern is most obvious. The problem of retirement plans and the state's fiscal responsibility in connection with retirement plans was discussed a great deal, particularly in the Public Finance Subcommittee and informally by members of the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Committee. There was considerable speculation and thought given to the possibility of some sort of provision in the constitution that would deal with this problem--the problem of the state's fiscal responsibility in connection with retirement plans and what effect retirement plans could possibly have at some time or another on the state's bonding capacity and the state's general ability to operate government. I think the conclusion of those of us on the committee who considered this problem was that it was not possible to deal with the problem appropriately in the constitution. For that same reason, I opposed the language in the committee proposal. It attempts to deal with the problem from a different respect, from a different viewpoint; it approaches it and ignores--I think--the state's fiscal responsibility and position in connection with retirement plans and places a guarantee on the part of the state that I think is totally unwarranted and inappropriate in connection with retirement plans. I certainly concur and agree with the desirability of retirement plans. I certainly recognize the state's moral obligation to provide the funds to pay employees for anything that they have earned. I think that trust funds and retirement funds should be administered in such a fashion as to insure the greatest possible benefits for the employees. But, when there is a problem, and when things have fallen apart, I think that this provision--as written--would place the state's retired employees in a position where they would benefit, but you may not be able to pay the state's current employees any salary; you may not be able to meet the state's bonding obligations; you may not be able to issue any more bonds. You may reach that point long before you have any problem at all--fiscally--as people who have to deal with the state and its fiscal responsibility and see a broad guarantee of the state behind retirement plans and the benefits of retirement plans, which can be increased in the future, would certainly have serious questions as to the state's fiscal responsibility to pay bonds because note what this does; it says "the state guarantees the benefits" and if the legislature, after the bonds have been issued, suddenly greatly increases retirement benefits for employees, that those increased benefits--future benefits--would be guaranteed by the State of Louisiana. I assume to the detriment or possible detriment, of bonds that would be issued or could be issued. I think that the entire subject matter is one that is remarkably inappropriate to handle in the constitution. It is a problem; it's a changing problem; it's in an area where a great deal is developing, but, I implore you to support the De Blieux amendment--to delete this sort of requirement from the constitution of this state.

I'll yield to any questions.

Further Discussion

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in bitter opposition to the De Blieux amendment. With all due respect to him, he is just completely doing away with this proposal. Now, my interest in this is purely because of the fact that I think the teachers and all of the school employees are just not being treated exactly fair at this time. Now, let's go back: The State of Louisiana has been recruiting teachers and they have had a shortage of good efficient teachers for a long time. Now, one of the inducements that these people have had to enter the teaching profession is the retirement system. They were told what they would pay, the benefits that they'd receive; and they have a right to expect just exactly that. Now, if they are assured at the time that they enter the teaching profession that they will receive these benefits, they should, by all means, receive these benefits; it is a contract, they thought it was a contract, and they have a right to expect everything that they have paid for--that's all in the world this says that it should do, that "the state shall guarantee the accrued benefits." Now, that is the benefits that they have accrued under a system that they accepted and have paid toward. If the state is not going to live up on that, then the state is in violation of their contract with that. Mr. Lowe pointed out that we were trying to establish a system. We are not trying to establish a system with this proposal. We are merely saying that if the state employs teachers under this agreement, that it is a contract and they shall be liable for it. Now, the teachers themselves do not change the payments made by themselves or by the state; they do not govern their own retirement; it is left entirely up to the legislature. If the legislature is going to control this, there is nobody else that can guarantee it except the legislature. They have that responsibility that when they see fit to change the retirement system, in any way--that is, to give greater benefits, shorter retirement, or anything else--it is their responsibility and their duty to also determine the payment into this system that will tolerate that. Now, at one time, the teachers and the State of Louisiana had the strongest retirement system in the State of Louisiana. There are so many teachers, right now, that still think they have a strong retirement system. Now, the thing that worked me up on this thing and got me started on it is the fact that I had an opportunity to read this memorandum on the funding of the Louisiana Teachers' Retirement System prepared by George B. Buck, Consulting Actuaries, Inc. of New York. Now, they pointed out clearly that something must be done with this retirement system and be done now, or else this retirement system will be defunct. Now, it is not now; it can be saved. But, the only one that can save this is the legislature. Now, I realize that Senator De Blieux has pointed out that that's the legislature's prerogative to do that. It is not only their prerogative, it is their duty to see that they do have a sound retirement system. Now, they have not done so in the past. Now, I...I know I'm about to run out of time, so I want to refer you to two paragraphs in this report prepared by George B. Buck, Consulting Actuary. Now, please listen to this, if you don't listen to anything else; say this is...I'm going to read this from this report: "The assets of the system currently amount to seven hundred and eighty-five million dollars, but perhaps five hundred and sixty million dollars is now reserved for retired teachers, leaving two hundred and twenty-five million dollars on account of active teachers. Since the accumulated contributions"--and please listen to this--"since the accumulated contributions of those active teachers now on duty amount to two hundred and sixty million dollars, no employer contributions are now being held reserved by the system on account of active teachers, and there is a deficit in the amount of assets held for retired teachers, if it is considered that the first claim on the assets is for members to receive their own contributions." In other words, ladies and gentlemen, the teachers that are now paying into the system have contributed two hundred and sixty million dollars. Now, in addition to that, the state has made its contributions and there have been earnings from investments. Yet, there is thirty-five million dollars less in there available to the active teachers now. In spite of all of these other contributions, there are thirty-five million dollars in this fund less than they themselves have contributed and that is in itself, proof that this system is going down all the time. Now, the only thing this proposal does--and it does not try to tell the legislature how to run their business--it just says that "they shall guarantee all benefits payable to a member of the system or to his lawful beneficiary at the time of his death or retirement"--that is, the accrued benefits. Now, that is not fair. They went into this system with the understanding they would pay in a certain amount, the state would pay in a certain amount, and they would get certain retirement benefits. We are not trying to tell the legislature--contrary to what my friend, Mr. Lowe, said--we are not trying to tell the legislature how to run their affairs. We are just telling them to run their affairs so that the teachers will have a sound retirement system. I urge you to please defeat this De Blieux amendment and give the teachers the protection that they are entitled to. We are not asking them to get any new benefits, just those benefits that have already accrued to them in a system that they elected to join because that was a part of their profession. They went into this teaching profession with that understanding. They have a right to expect the benefits, and all this does is guarantee those accrued benefits that they went into and they have a right to expect. There is only one group that can correct this situation--that is, the legislature--and this just tells them that they must correct this situation so that they will not lose these benefits.

Thank you very much, and I urge you....

Questions

MRS. CORNE

Pete, is it not true that the Teachers' Retirement System has been an enticement for young teachers to come into the system? But, also, that the retirement system ought to be an enticement to retain good teachers?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That is very true. I pointed out, Mrs. Corne, at the very beginning that this is an inducement for young people to go into the teaching profession. We need good, efficient teachers. This brings them in, and we hope it will keep them in the system. But, anytime this system goes bad, there are a lot of them that are going to leave then, and it's headed in that direction.

MRS. CORNE

One more question: Do you know that to contribute to the retirement system is a condition of employment?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, ma'am, that is a condition and it was explained to these young teachers at the time they joined the system, what they would pay, what the state would pay, and the benefits that they would receive. That's all we are trying to do, just let the state live up to its agreement with the teachers.

MRS. CORNE

Correct. If a teacher refuses to join the system, then she cannot be employed?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's right.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise in opposition to the amendment. Let me see if I can explain to you, as I appreciate the thinking of the committee and the development of this proposal, which--as I recall it--was either unanimous or nearly unanimous in the committee's vote. What we were attempting to do here is to protect the vested rights of the employee; when he gets ready to retire, to insure him that when he retires, whatever he is paid towards the retirement system at that time he retires, that money will be there when he gets ready to retire. This guarantees that whatever the system called for, that when he retires there would be sufficient moneys in the system to pay his benefits--that's what it means. He has vested rights in whatever he's paid towards, plus the state's contribution. Now, as you well know, there is a national problem in this country as relates to retirement systems in private industry. It's estimated that fifty percent of the employees, when they get ready to retire in this country today, the systems have either gone bankrupt, or through misuse of the funds, etc., the money's not there to pay the benefits to those fifty percent of the employees. Now, all this proposal says is--in its original form--that if you pay into the system with the understanding that the law provides, let's say, two percent per year for every year that you have served in state government, that whenever you retire, the legislature, the day before you retire, or nobody else can come in and say, "We are going to reduce that benefit to one percent and all you paid these twenty years, you paid with the understanding you were going to get two percent a year for every year of service." Nobody can depreciate what you have paid toward as far as that two percent is concerned; nobody can reduce those benefits; that's all this says: accrued benefits are guaranteed when you get ready to retire--whatever you have accrued, not what happens in the future. The legislature still under this proposal has the full authority to meet, to change the provisions of the retirement system anyway it sees fit, even to the extent of abolishing the system in the future. But, they can't tamper with it--what's in the past--that's what it means. You can't take away from those people who have paid into the system with the understanding that when they get ready to retire that money is going to be there. That's all this proposal does; it does not take any prerogatives away from the legislature. All it does is protect the system that exists and the benefits that have been accrued by the participants in the system up to the time any change might be made in that system.

I'll be happy to yield to any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. WEISS

Delegate Flory, could you help me understand why one must be guaranteed--as you point out--accrued benefits when these funds are invested? Now, if the funds are invested, there are two possibilities--they can either go up or down; of course, they may remain the same. But, if they go up then, of course, the individual who has the benefits of these funds benefit by them. But, if the funds depreciate, if they go down--such as a stock market decline at this time--then, someone has to backup that and, I believe, now you are asking the state, or this proposal asks the state, to make good any defaults in investments that go on in this situation. My question then is: How can one be accrued benefits...guaranteed accrued benefits when they are invested funds? In other words, retirement funds, therefore, should not be invested--it would seem to me--if we are to guarantee or if the constitution of this state is to guarantee benefits to people. There would be no reason to invest funds. Now, these retirement funds are invested, are they not?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir. I think it would be terribly imprudent not to invest those funds because at the present market, even in government securities, you can earn substantial interest on the funds invested.

MR. WEISS

But, what happens if the funds are lost? That's my question.

MR. FLORY

I didn't understand you.

MR. WEISS

What happens if these investment funds depreciate or are lost?

MR. FLORY

Well, I don't know of any situation, to my knowledge, Doctor, where the investments have been lost, of any consequence whatsoever, because....

MR. WEISS

Have you seen the stock market in the past month?

MR. FLORY

All I can tell you is, based upon the past, in the retirement systems they have been very prudent and under very strict regulations as to the type of investments they can make with those funds. Now, it has been liberalized, and I might say this: the legislature had a serious quarrel with one of the retirement systems in the past because it was so stringent in the method in which they invested their funds; their portfolio was only yielding about three, three and a half percent. They asked the system to make some changes in their investment portfolio. So, they did, and they are now yielding about eight percent, which means, of course, that the state doesn't have to put up near as much money to keep the system actuarially sound. Now, the whole center of this proposal is that...let's say today the legislature has agreed and passed a law to cut off all retirement benefits for any employees in the future. But, let's say that all the employees in the system decided to retire--they all could retire today--but there were not sufficient funds in the system to pay those benefits; then, the state would have to make up the difference because, somewhere in the past, the state--under its financial obligations and the law--did not meet its financial responsibility and make substantial contributions to the system to keep it actuarially sound at that time, and that's happened in the past. We are trying to prevent this from happening in the future.

MR. WEISS

How could they do that? In other words, it was not actuarially sound, then, for everyone to retire at once; is that correct?

MR. FLORY

What happens is, Dr. Weiss, it's my understanding, that of course, they depend upon an actuary to tell them whether or not the fund is actuarially sound. You can get variations of opinions from actuaries, just like you can economists, as to what is and what is not actuarially sound. So, consequently, if the state gets an actuary to say that the fund today is actuarially sound, when, in fact, it may not be, the state can reduce its contribution rate. They have done that in the past when, in fact, the system was not actuarially sound and the state should have, at that time, increased its contribution rate; but, due to financial conditions of the state, they did not do that. I can recall on one occasion, they took from their contribution rates twenty-eight million dollars in one year to one system, used it for state purposes, which should have gone to the system to make it actuarially sound.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, I have no quarrel with the desire to try to have the state guarantee what these various retirement benefits might be. This is nice to have, but I question... I do quarrel with whether or not we can actually accomplish this. Now, I don't think that this type of thing should be locked in the constitution. All of us contribute to social security, but what constitutional guarantee do we have that we are going to receive the benefits that have accrued to us through social security. Mr. Flory pointed out that he did not want the legislature to be able to tamper with things in the past that would change the amount of the retirement. What is to prevent the Congress of the United States from changing the amount we receive from social security? We have no constitutional guarantee there. We have no constitutional guarantee that federal employees--to which the federal government contributes money to their retirement system--that these federal employees are going to get what they think they are going to get, whenever the time comes for them to retire. Many of us have no constitutional or any other type of guarantee that we're going to receive our benefits from any private annuity system that we may belong to. I just don't think that it is wise to try to lock into this constitution any guarantee that the state is going to pay these benefits, particularly, and even more so, if the state really has not that much control over the investment of these funds. I think the De Blieux amendment is all right because it deletes a lot of unnecessary language... a language that I don't think that we can live up to necessarily. I think that it should be further amended to conform to something we have in the present constitution. But, I would urge the adoption of the De Blieux amendment, and let's delete the language that we have in this particular committee proposal because I just don't think that we can live with this type of language locked into the constitution.

Question

MR. J. JACKSON

Delegate Abraham, a lot of us... lot of the delegates here are concerned about maintaining a stable retirement system. But, at the same time, there are some of us who feel that one of the prerequisites for a person to even get a job as a teacher in the state is that he or she agrees to participate in the retirement system. If that's so, no matter what the stock market may do in terms of investments, one way or the other; let's say it falls. If the state makes that kind of commitment, or that kind of requirement on a teacher, is it not fair and just that that teacher ought to hold the state to provide funds no matter if there's an adverse effect in terms of investments of the stock market?

MR. ABRAHAM

No, Johnny, because I have to make a commitment to contribute to the social security system, but I have no constitutional guarantee that the federal government's going to provide for my social security benefits.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I might state at this particular time that I have no intentions of taking away something which the employees of any retirement system have already earned and has accrued to them. Therefore, if the convention will agree, I would rather withdraw this proposed amendment and resubmit it in a different form which will accomplish what I had intended to do: that is, to shorten the constitution, but yet preserve the very things which I think the committee proposed in this particular proposal. If it's all right with the convention, I would withdraw that amendment and resubmit my amendment that I have that I think that accomplishes the same, identical thing. It leaves the accrued retirement to all those who already have earned it, and it's there for them. I don't want to take away anything which the retired employees of the state have earned or those who are working for the state have already placed into the retirement system. That's not my idea whatsoever. I just don't want to get into the constitution the fact that the state has to guarantee every employee of the state that his retirement system will be the same as it is now throughout the rest of his lifetime, in the event we should get into a depression or something of that sort.

[Rules Suspended to allow withdrawal of the Amendment. Amendment withdrawn.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Conroy sends up the following amendment:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 17, after the words and punctuation "system," delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 18 through 22, both inclusive in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. CONROY

This amendment does what the first part of Amendment No. 1 of the De Blieux amendment had proposed to do. It is what those who spoke in favor of the De Blieux amendment--other than Senator De Blieux--addressed themselves to. I think that the debate... it's also what those who spoke against the De Blieux amendment, spoke against. I think all the debate has occurred. What this amendment does is delete everything after the first sentence in Paragraph (A) so that it eliminates the guarantee of the state to it. It also deletes the references to contractual relationships and accrued benefits, both of which I think are unnecessary to refer to. They are contractual; to the extent they are contractual rights; they, of course, cannot be taken away. So, I move the adoption of the amendment--and frankly, I don't see why there should be any lengthy discussion because we have already debated this issue at length already.

Questions

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Conroy, don't you agree that when a teacher enters the teaching profession, and they accept the retirement system, elect to go into it, make their contributions--they make those certain contributions, determined by the legislature, and for certain benefits, which amount to "X" number of dollars a year--don't you think they have a right to expect that when they retire?

MR. CONROY

Yes. I think they would. If it's a contractual right already, they'd have it as a contractual right.

MR. HERNANDEZ

All right. That's all this does, is expect the state...

MR. CONROY

I don't agree with you, with the particular phrases that are used here. Now, normally, when a retirement plan is set up, the rights in it says that the employee has rights attributable to a particular fund, and that the payments will be made out of a particular fund for that purpose. It does not put the employer's full faith and credit, I think is the term used, as far as the state goes, behind those things. It sets up the fund. The contributions go into the fund. The employee has a voice in the management of the fund, in this case in some form or another, so that if the fund falls apart, the employee is partly responsible for it, too. But, I don't think that the state should endanger all of its fiscal responsibility for the sake of one particular portion of what the state is obliged to do. I do think it should administer these funds properly. It should help in the proper administration of the funds, but I do not think that the guarantee of these benefits is a proper thing for the state to do in this constitution.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Isn't the legislature the only one to determine what shall be paid in by the employee, by the state, and determine the benefits that the teacher shall receive? Isn't the legislature the only one that can do that?

MR. CONROY

Well, the legislature provides it, Mr. Hernandez, but, I think, in our system of government we expect the legislature to be democratically responsive to what the teachers may want and what the people in the state may think is proper. So, yes, the legislature does, but that's saying the people determine it. I think that's the proper place for it to be determined, is by the people.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. HERNANDEZ

Wouldn't you agree that the legislature had actuarial information on this, and knew that...the trend that it was taking?

MR. CONROY

The risk of the correctness of the actuarial determination should be on the fund and those who expect to benefit from it, Mr. Hernandez. That is my very point. I think that actuarial assumptions and actuarial projections are a very dangerous thing for this state to go behind and say that it's going to guarantee the correctness, in effect, of these actuarial assumptions and decisions that are made because I know an awful lot about actuarial assumptions, and I don't think that that's any place for this state to be risking all of its fiscal responsibility behind some of these actuarial assumptions. You can get two or three actuaries together and they can sort out their different assumptions and presumptions and come up with all sorts of different figures. That's basically one of the problems we've got to deal with that I think the legislature should be given as free a hand as it can, to deal with as this area develops, and this is a developing area. The concepts are changing. The problems are just becoming more obvious now. I don't think that we should run the risk of putting the state in a position where it will be totally unable to meet its other obligations by putting this sort of guarantee in the constitution.

MR. HERNANDEZ

One final question, Mr. Conroy. Don't you believe that when a teacher enters this system they have a definite figure given by the legislature what they shall pay, the state shall pay, and they shall receive a certain amount. Isn't that, in your mind, a contract that should be lived up to by the state?

MR. CONROY

The salary, Mr. Hernandez, or what?

MR. HERNANDEZ

No...they determine the salary...but, the payments to the retirement fund, by the employee and by the state. The state, also, ...the legislature also determines the benefits to be paid from that.

MR. CONROY

Well, that's...I don't think that's the way it's set up now. That's what we're going to change it to. Right now, I think the employee understands that his benefits are payable out of a fund, which hopefully will be adequate to meet those obligations. But, the legislature certainly could, if it chose, abolish the fund, and make definite contractual commitments with employees to pay them so much out of the state's general fund in ensuing years. It could do that...the deletion of these provisions wouldn't preclude the legislature from doing what you say that you think the legislature ought to do. It would just leave it open.

MR. HERNANDEZ

They haven't done it. Thank you, sir.

MR. LOWE

Mr. Conroy, don't you think that the...some of the delegates are confusing what I said before and what you've said into feeling that we're not interested in protecting those contributions that's been made by the teachers. We're all for that. Don't you agree with that?

MR. CONROY

Yes. I think that both you and I share serious concern about protecting those contributions, future contributions, and the responsibility of the state. I think that our overall concern is one of fiscal responsibility, and fiscal responsibility of the state is what's going to mean most to the people who look to the state to pay its obligations, including those who have retirement benefits to be paid through the state.

MR. LOWE

Right. Now, let me ask you another question. The thing that concerns me probably more than the full faith and credit of the state being behind the retirement system is this sentence that says, "the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired." Now, there's not a single system in the state of the thirty some-odd we have, that's fully funded. You won't run into any actuaries that will tell you that it's wise to fully fund a system because you just tie up tremendous amount of funds that could be used for other purposes. There are formulas to determine what's reasonable and what's not reasonable. But, wouldn't you agree that anytime that a system is not fully funded that any payments from that system would, by necessity, impair and diminish the funds of the people that are left. So, what we are saying here...we have a mandate, telling the legislature, "Get these systems fully funded because if they are not fully funded, any payment that you make is going to impair and diminish the benefits of those people that are left in it." Don't you agree with that?

MR. CONROY

Mr. Lowe, I agree completely with that. I have tried in my arguments to stay away from what I considered some of the more involved explanations of how retirement plans work. I think that your point is well taken, though, and I think that some present employee of the state school system could bring a suit and say "You cannot pay out any further benefits until this plan is fully funded for my benefits in the future. You simply have to suspend the payments until the thing is fully funded." I think from... public employee's plan should really not be fully funded. I don't think it's to the best interest of the way to operate a public retirement plan, to have it fully funded. I think it would impair the state's really proper allocation of its funds if you tried to fully fund a retirement plan of this kind.

MR. LOWE

I agree with that a thousand percent. Don't you also agree that realizing the teacher system is probably seven hundred plus million short of being actuarially sound, or being fully funded, don't you agree that we probably, if we studied and got all the information in on our thirty some odd systems that we'd probably be in the same shape that Florida is in and be, maybe, 1.8 billion, not million, but 1.8 billion dollars short of being fully funded of the accrued liabilities that now exist? Wouldn't it be impossible for the State of Louisiana to fully fund the systems that are mandated by this wording?

MR. CONROY

That's certainly part of my concern, Mr. Lowe.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Mr. Conroy, are you aware of the fact that politics plays a great deal with the decisions that the legislature makes?

MR. CONROY

Well, I certainly expect them to, Mr. Sutherland.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Right, and because of that fact, isn't it a fact that in the past, the legislature has granted pay raises to teachers and has not funded those pay raises?

MR. CONROY

Yes. They have done that. They've given retirement benefits that haven't been funded either.

MR. SUTHERLAND

That's correct. Then, so, as long as the legislature is going to be a political body that's subject to the pressures of people bringing pressures on them, don't you think that they should have the fiscal responsibility of funding those benefits that they agree to?

MR. CONROY

Yes. I think they should be responsible enough to fund them themselves, as they see fit.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Now, if in the future these benefits are increased, the legislature should then have the sufficient funds, or see that there are sufficient funds to pay those benefits.

MR. CONROY

The legislature, as a responsible body, should do that... should foresee that that has to be done. That's correct.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Now, up to the point that they make that decision to increase benefits or to reduce the time for retirement, which is another way that they do it. They reduce it from thirty years to twenty-five to twenty to fifteen years of service, which increases the obligations of the system. It has nothing to do with what Dr. Weiss says, the investment of the funds. These are increased benefits that they are granting, and not funding, and this is what we're trying to accomplish, to prevent them from doing that. As the social security system of the federal government, constantly, the Congress uses this as a political football; constantly, increasing, but not caring where the money's going to come from. We want this system to be financially sound. The only one who can control it is the legislature. So, if they're going to increase the benefits, they should see that there are sufficient funds to do it. That was the purpose of the committee's recommendation.

MR. CONROY

Mr. Sutherland, if I understand that explanation of the committee's objective in this, I think they've gone about it in the wrong way because I think that in order for that objective to be properly served, you'd have to have an actuarially sound plan now, and I don't think you do. That's what gets into Mr. Lowe's question, is that given the objective you just recited about no benefits being increased unless the legislature could, at that time, fund it, if this would have that effect...if this provision, as written by the committee, would have that effect, then Mr. Lowe is absolutely correct in his suggestion that someone right now could bring a suit to prohibit any payments being made out of the retirement fund until it was made actuarially sound. I don't think you intended that, but both results would flow from the language which is used here; if the one that you said should flow, the other one would flow equally quickly.

MR. SUTHERLAND

I don't necessarily agree, David. As long as they can make the payments that are due, and have accrued, there would be no right that anyone would have to contest it.

MR. CONROY

Well, then, he could contest the payment out of that fund of any further benefits to others. I think they probably would, from what you've just said as far as what the objective of this was.

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Conroy, in your presentation, you implied that your amendment was...didn't really do very much violence to the proposal that the committee proposed. Actually, what you...

MR. CONROY

I didn't say that.

MR. AERTKER

Oh, you didn't...

MR. CONROY

No, I said it did what Senator De Blieux's...the first part of his amendment did...that he has withdrawn now, what it did. That's what it did. I just came behind the De Blieux amendment; it did the same thing as that.

MR. AERTKER

You would agree, then, that your amendment, if adopted, would completely destroy the intent and purpose of what the committee proposal was attempting to do?

MR. CONROY

Insofar as it related to a guarantee of the full faith and credit of the state behind retirement funding, yes. That's exactly what it's intended to do because I think that that's an expansion that the committee is suggesting far beyond anything that this state has at the present time, and far beyond what I think is fiscally responsible on the part of the state.

MR. AERTKER

But, you don't believe that it's right for people to expect that when they enter into an agreement with the state, that they are going to have a certain type of retirement, that that ought to be guaranteed to them?

MR. CONROY

I think that's a desirable objective of any employee for any company or for any institution or for anything else that when they set up these retirement funds that it will be forthcoming at the end of the road. But, I say that if they're not providing enough funds...let's take an assumption, Mr. Aertker. Let's say that you have a retirement plan that's set up, and it's set up on the basis that you're going to get benefits of, let's just say, five hundred dollars a month when you retire. For that purpose, you're asked, as an employee, to contribute a dollar a month and the state's going to put up a dollar a month. Then, when you get to the end of the plan, you discover that what was projected was totally erroneous...that really, you should have been contributing five dollars a month, and the state should have been contributing five dollars a month, and the actuary made a mistake, so that the amount of benefits which are available there just aren't properly produced. Well, this says "the state guarantees" the correctness of those actuarial assumptions on which your contributions were based, on which the state's contributions were based. I say no; I don't think that that's right. I don't, because the employee does contribute on certain assumptions, just as the state does. If those are wrong, I don't think the state should be obliged in the constitution to guarantee the correctness of those assumptions made by the legislature and by actuaries.

MR. AERTKER

You think, then, it's wrong for a person to expect to receive a certain benefit at the expiration of his life span, and that this is asking the state too much to provide that type of guarantee?

MR. CONROY

No, Mr. Aertker, I don't think it's wrong for him to expect it. I agree that the state has a moral obligation--and probably, one it would adhere to and follow through with. What I'm saying is I think it's a mistake to create a binding legal obligation on the part of the state in this constitution that would make that effective guarantee that you're saying is right or wrong. Morally, I agree with you. Ethically, I agree with you. But, I'm saying that legally we should not impose such an obligation on the State of Louisiana in this constitution because I think it will disparage and cause trouble with the state's other fiscal responsibilities.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Conroy, you've made a great point of fiscal responsibility--the state's fiscal responsibility. Isn't it a fact that in the retirement system that's mentioned in this proposal that the state is the one who enacted the provision or the retirement system to begin with?

MR. CONROY

Yes, I assume so. The legislature did, yes.

MR. FLORY

That's the first responsibility of the state. By law, they have enacted a retirement system.

MR. CONROY

Yes.

MR. FLORY

All right. Secondly, if you espouse fiscal responsibility, don't you think it wise, fiscally speaking, for the state to make adequate compensation to fund their legal obligation that they have enacted into law as it progresses through the years, rather than waiting at some late date? Do it on a current, fiscal basis.

MR. CONROY

No, Mr. Flory, I do not agree with that concept from the standpoint of a public employee's retirement plan. I don't think that properly speaking, that a public retirement plan can appropriately be funded the same way a private retirement plan is. I certainly think that from the standpoint of a private employer who runs a risk of going out of business and so forth, that it's desirable for it to be actuarially sound on a year-to-year basis, based on the contributions that are being made. I do not agree that that is so, with a public retirement fund. I think that most people that study in this area agree that it is not normally expected, nor necessarily desirable for a public fund to be actuarially sound, just like the social security system in the federal government level, is certainly far from actuarially sound.

MR. FLORY

Well, what you're saying, then, is it's all right to have a retirement system on paper. Just don't fund it.

MR. CONROY

No. It should be funded, and it should be expected to be paid as the funds are available, as people retire, just like our social security system is based on that basic concept, Mr. Flory. You know that. That's the concept of our social security system. If...we couldn't pay everybody right now; if we didn't take any more money into the social security system, you couldn't pay the benefits to retired people that the social security system of the federal government provides. You know that.

MR. FLORY

No, I don't know that.

MR. CONROY

Well, it's a fact. You look for further funds to come in as the economy grows; you expect and hope that there will be more money to pay for retirement benefits on a public basis.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. FLORY

My last question, Mr. Conroy: In truth, in fact, what your amendment does is take out of the proposal the provision that gives to that employee his vested rights on what he's paid for. That's what your amendment does, isn't it?

MR. CONROY

No. It doesn't refer to the term "vested rights." I would have felt a lot more comfortable if that particular phrase had been used because I'm more familiar with that phrase than I am the phrase "accrued benefits." To me, strictly speaking, as an attorney, the two things may be different. "Vested rights" is a phrase I'm used to, and I don't see how we can take away vested rights.

MRS. CORNE

Don't you think, Mr. Conroy, that a restraint should be placed on the legislature to prevent it from granting additional benefits for political expediency?

MR. CONROY

Mrs. Corne, I don't disagree with that desirable goal. As a matter of fact, as I suggested previously in my talk that I felt that those of us who worked with this problem on the Revenue, Finance, and Taxation Committee, worked very hard to try to find such a restraint, or a proper restraint to place on the legislature. Ultimately, my conclusion was that this constitution really, at this stage of development of the concepts of retirement plans couldn't come up with an appropriate restraint to place in the constitution on the legislature. But, if this is intended, if this provision is intended as a restraint on the legislature in the future, in what the legislature does in the future, then I think it's improperly worded. If this committee, or anybody else, can come up with an appropriate restraint on future acts of the legislature, I would think...

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I take the podium in support of the Conroy amendment and feel rather strongly that this is an honest, a moral--and from what I can appreciate--legally sensible approach to this retirement system. I feel very strongly because as a physician, I've been in the midst of this medicare confusion. Several years ago, the chief actuary...for thirty years, the chief actuary of the retirement system of the United States, spoke here in Baton Rouge, and has since been retired from that system voluntarily--of his own will--because the federal government has failed to adhere to an actuarially sound medicare system. At the present time, without question, there is no actuarially sound medicare system that is existing in the United States today. I feel that if such were to be promised to the people of the state, such as this committee proposal promises, that we would reach havoc just as you are seeing now in the medicare operation of the federal government. When we ran for this office, most of us delegates promised that we would prevent constitutional amendments. I can foresee that if this committee proposal is accepted as written, there will be within short order many constitutional amendments to try and bail out this system as written. It cannot be proven actuarially sound. As Delegate Flory has pointed out, there are too many opinions as to what is actuarially sound. It is a dynamic system. It is influenced by many, many factors, both within our state, outside of our state, and even internationally. It's highly important that we leave a flexibility to the legislature, and I would suggest that the Conroy amendment is a very good one, and fiscally sound. Mr. Conroy, serving on the Revenue and Finance Committee, has spent many months studying these matters, and I feel certain that the proposal that he has rendered is an excellent one. I consider it a good one, will vote for it and hope you will do the same.

Questions

MR. WINCHESTER

Dr. Weiss, are you saying that you do not have confidence in the ability of the legislature to regulate benefits by its right to dictate to the retirement funds as to how funds must be invested? It also has the right to audit these funds; the legislature also determines the amount of the benefits, and how the monies to pay these benefits shall be raised.

MR. WEISS

Dr. Winchester, I can answer that best by asking you: Is there anything in the Conroy amendment that would prevent the legislature from doing that? I see nothing, because the legislature has that power, under the Conroy amendment.

MR. WINCHESTER

Well, then if it has that power, that's why I think I'm for. . . I'm against the amendment because I think that it should be a guarantee. I've worked forty-two years, and I am now on retirement. I'm certainly think of the people who share. . . and that was how my whole retirement centered around the amount of money that I would receive from the Assessor's Retirement Fund.

MR. WEISS

I fully agree with you, and I think that the legislature, as any other body, is morally sound, although legally, it may present problems in the future. It's for that reason I would leave it to the legislature as the Conroy amendment so allows.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Dr. Weiss, don't you agree that the legislature has always had that right, and it has been their duty and their responsibility to make the laws needed to keep this retirement system sound? Isn't that true?

MR. WEISS

Yes, and I think they will try to do so.

MR. HERNANDEZ

They haven't done it, have they?

MR. WEISS

Well, now that's a problem that is not necessarily their responsibility. Sometimes, it's the administration of the laws. Sometimes, it's the nature of the investment of these funds, which I think, in many instances, could be considered unsound. This is a problem beyond the legislature.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Don't the legislature make all the laws regulating these retirement funds?

MR. WEISS

It makes the laws, but it doesn't implement them.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 37-55. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Recess

[Quorum Call: 67 delegates present and a quorum.]

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Senator De Blieux as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 13, after the word and punctuation "System;" delete the remainder of the line and on line 14, delete the partial word and punctuation "poytees." and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"State Officers and Public Employees."

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, delete lines 14 through 17, both inclusive, in their entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"The legislature shall provide a retirement system or systems for all public employees of the state and its agencies. It may authorize retirement systems for its political subdivisions. Membership"

Amendment No. 3. On page 1, at the end of line 20, change the comma "," to a period "." and delete the remainder of the line and delete lines 21 and 22 in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as I explained to you on the previous amendment that it was my only intention to combine Paragraphs (A) and (B), and I did not intend to take away anything that had already accrued to any employee. Now, it was also called to my attention that many of the political subdivisions have retirement systems which are authorized by the legislature, but which are not founded by the legislature. Therefore, I made the correction and changed in it where the legislature would have the right to authorize retirement systems for political subdivisions. This also eliminates words which I think are excess insofar as Paragraph (A) is concerned, and that is: after the words guaranteeing the accrued retirement system of the employees, we eliminate the rest of that where it says that all benefits payable to members from the system will be payable on a death or at retirement. That, to me, is automatic, and therefore, you don't need that excess verbiage in the article. I just have an amendment to eliminate that. That's the purpose of this amendment, to consolidate and reduce and make the necessary authorization for the legislature to enact legislation in regard to these retirement systems. It guarantees the accrued retirement of any employee where they have already made a contribution, the state has already the contribution. I don't intend to take away any of that, and I think that meets Mr. Sutherland's objection to my previous amendment. I ask for adoption of the amendment.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. HERNANDEZ

Senator De Blieux, if you don't object to this, why do you want to take it out of this proposal where it, after line 20, 'the state guarantees all benefits payable to a member of the system or his lawful beneficiary at his death or retirement'? If you don't object to that, why do you want to leave that out?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, it's . . . the only objection I have is just excess verbiage, Mr. Hernandez, and we don't need it. I just don't believe we ought to just stick words into the constitution which, you might say, don't mean anything.

MR. HERNANDEZ

You mean to take inalienable rights away from. . .

MR. DE BLIEUX

You're not taking any rights away from anybody by this amendment because, after all, if that benefit has accrued to them, they are entitled to it; and they owe it, but then, they're going to get it. But. . .

MR. HERNANDEZ

This is only two lines, Senator.

MR. DE BLIEUX

It's just excess verbiage which I just don't think we need. That's the only reason I suggest we take it out.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Do you think that two lines of excess verbiage is going to ruin this proposal?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, we. . . I don't think that that ruins it or helps it any. It just eliminates unnecessary verbiage; that's all it does.

MR. DENNERY

Senator De Blieux, isn't it true that when you put in. . . when you add in your Amendment No. 2 that the legislature may authorize retirement systems for its political subdivisions," if you do not delete the three lines that you just spoke of, the state would have to guarantee those benefits as well as retirement systems of state employees?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't think under the provision, Mr. Dennery, that the state, at the present time, I don't think it guarantees in the retirement system of political subdivisions. The only part that the state is absolutely responsible for is that portion which the state contributes to. But, you know, we have numerous subdivisions that have been authorized for their own retirement systems. In fact of the business, it was called to my attention by Delegate Abraham that that's the provisions of the present constitution--that they authorize political subdivisions to have retirement systems. They don't guarantee retirement systems for political subdivisions.

MR. DENNERY

Now, my point was, though, Senator, if you do not delete these lines and you add your language, this would require the state to guarantee those systems, would it not?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, in essence of the word yes, that's true if they. . . if the retirement systems are already in existence, they are entitled to that accrued leave and accrued benefit.

MR. FLORY

Senator De Blieux, in reference to what Mr. Dennery asked you, my question is: We had proposed in the committee that the local governing bodies who had established through law retirement systems, would guarantee the accrued benefits to those participants in that system. But, if I appreciate your amendment, by the deletion of the last two lines of that paragraph, you're not then guaranteeing the accrued benefits of a local system by anybody, are you?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, Mr. Flory, as I understand this, it would have the same effect insofar as the state is concerned because you guarantee the accrued--that portion which they have accrued, they get it. I don't intend to take anything away that they've already earned, and worked for, and the state has already contributed to.

MR. FLORY

I appreciate that, I appreciate that, Senator, but I think it's a matter of mechanics and combining the two paragraphs where you are willing to guarantee the accrued benefits by the state for state systems. But, by the deletion of the second paragraph, you have taken away the guarantee to the local municipal, for example, employees in a retirement system that the municipal government would guarantee the accrued benefits.

MR. DE BLIEUX

No, I don't necessarily agree with that because we leave in the words saying, "the accrued benefits which shall not be diminished or impaired," so that in essence, that's what you are doing. You are guaranteeing that.

MR. LANIER

Senator De Blieux, does your amendment, as it's presently drafted, have any effect on the (B) part of this section?

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, if my amendment passes, Mr. Lanier, I don't think (B) part would be necessary. If this passes, I have an amendment to eliminate (B) part because everything that's in (B) part will be covered in (A) part.

MR. LANIER

Now, in the (B) part, don't you think we have a very definite problem here with this last sentence of the (B) part that says that "the state or political subdivisions shall guarantee any benefits payable to a member of the system"?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't think it creates a problem because if you can't diminish it or impair it, it means that if. . . in essence, it's guaranteed.

MR. LANIER

Well, what I'm concerned about is, for example, as I understand it with clerks of court and sheriffs and assessors, that all of the taxing bodies in the parish contribute to their retirement systems. Is that not correct?

MR. DE BLIEUX

I don't know exactly how it's made up, but I do know, in essence, they do through a portion of the tax revenues that are collected. So, you might say they do, yes, in that sense, because you take a little portion of each political subdivisions revenue.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendments rejected: 34-47. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 19, immediately after "employer" delete the words "the accrued" and delete line 20 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the word "and".

Explanation

MR. LOWE

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I have very serious reservations about what this particular wording does to the retirement systems of the State of Louisiana. I firmly believe that anytime a payment is made from a retirement system to a retired employee that if that system is not fully funded, well, then the accrued benefits of all of the other people in that system--retired or otherwise--would, to some extent be diminished or impaired. Now, you just have to think with me for a moment. If we are funding a system and it takes so much funds to fully guarantee the payment of all of the employees in that system, and anytime that system is not fully funded to take care of all of the accrued liability that's accrued to that point in time, well, anytime a payment is made to any other individual and a pro rata payment is not paid to the others in the system, well, those that have remained in the system that are not paid on a pro rata basis have by necessity had their portion diminished and impaired. Now, I don't know all there is to know about retirement systems; I have been exposed to them. I can frankly say to you that we're laboring under some serious misconceptions if we're sitting here thinking that it's appropriate to fully fund governmental retirement systems. Now, I'm familiar with the Studebaker Case where the company couldn't meet the retirement of the employees, and in industry and commercially the companies can go bankrupt and leave the country and not be there when the employees retire. We don't have the same situation with government. Government isn't going anywhere. I wouldn't be a bit surprised, as I mentioned at this microphone before, that we're in the same shape that Florida is in, and maybe worse. We may be two billion dollars short of fully funding our retirement systems--the thirty-some-odd systems that we have. I think it would be ridiculous for us to feel that we should, overnight, try to solve the problems that's been created for years and years and years with the retirement systems in the State of Louisiana. Now, you saw fit not to take out the full faith and credit of the state as it applies to the retirement systems. I hope that you will go along with me and take out the words, "the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired." By taking this out, we still leave in the full faith and credit of the State of Louisiana. I don't know that we want to give much more protection than that. The wording that we have in here could place in serious jeopardy the funds of the State of Louisiana if we have to, overnight, try to fully fund the retirement systems. So, with that in mind, I ask you to go along with my amendment and the wording I think is unnecessary. Without it, we can still give full assurance to the retirees and those that will retire, that they will receive that benefit.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Lowe, what is your definition of "accrued"?

MR. LOWE

"Accrued," to me, means that that's anything that inures to the right of an individual at a specific date.

MR. AERTKER

Well, actually. . .

MR. LOWE

If something accrues to me, that means I. . . it's built-up there for me with the retirement system.

MR. AERTKER

Well, it does also mean that it's the total amount of benefit that has developed to that person's account up to that time and date. Right?

MR. LOWE

I'm not sure that that's what it means, no, sir. Accrued doesn't mean you can draw it--accrued does not mean that you can draw it. Accrued has a different connotation than payable. Payable means it's payable to you. Accrued means it's building up to your benefit, and some point in time you can draw it. We have accrued taxes when we close out a set of books. If we close out books on June 30th and the taxes are due on. . . in December, well, those taxes accrue to June 30th, but are not payable till December. If an employee is building up benefits, certain benefits accrue to him that may be payable at the time that he retires. I think your question brings out a good point. I think we're dealing with words that we don't really put in the proper context.

MR. AERTKER

But, actually, if this amendment that you have proposed passes, it would possibly, actually be possible to actually reduce the amount of retirement that a person had that was supposedly due to them as of a certain date. Isn't that correct? That would be impairing it, wouldn't it--impairing the accrued part of his retirement?

MR. LOWE

I really don't know if it would do that or not; I guess it's possible. But, the point that I'm interested in has nothing to do with what a person will draw or won't draw except that when it comes time to draw whatever has been set up by the Legislature for him to draw will be guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the State of Louisiana. Now, there's been some changes made in retirement systems because of political pressure, I would think, that have wrecked these retirement systems. Maybe the teachers, probably, now should be paying seventeen percent into the system for the benefits that they will receive, and they're only paying seven. But, that's not the issue here right now, Mr. Aertker. I believe that issue that you address yourself to can be handled better by the legislature in a flexible nature rather than locking it into this constitution.

MR. AERTKER

Well, that is the issue. I think that's the issue that the teachers would have. But, let me ask you a still further question. That is: It is a matter of interpretation as to whether the Board of Trustees would be able to use a certain amount of funds. It is a matter of interpretation as to what really "impaired" means as far as their investing funds go. It would be possible for them to invest all of the funds if another interpretation was forthcoming, right?

MR. LOWE

Mr. Aertker, I'm not an attorney, and it's difficult for me to put in legal context the meaning of words as far as how they would be interpreted by the Supreme Court. But, to me, "impaired and diminished" means that anything that you would do that would decrease what a person had before you made the payment below what they had after you made the payment would impair it or diminish it. That's what I am concerned about, that any of the payments that are made out of a system that's not fully funded would automatically impair or diminish that person's rights to what he had before the payment was made, and I think we'd end up with serious problems.

MR. AERTKER

Well, couldn't you carry your interpretation just one step further and actually say that if they made any type of investment, regardless of what condition the fund was since both the state makes its contribution and the employee makes his contribution, but both of them are of the net result of what he's going to have to expect to get in the retirement. Actually, under that interpretation, they wouldn't be able to actually invest any of it on the possibility that they might make a bad investment and impair the total picture on it.

MR. LOWE

Well, as I appreciate your question, that's why I'm against the wording, because if we don't have "diminished or impaired" in here, we don't have to worry about the flexibility with which these funds operate and make investments and make payments to the retirees. So, I agree with you that we come up with serious problems with investing. If you invest something and lose on it, you've impaired the rights of that individual. So, maybe you shouldn't have made the investment. So, we have some problems.

MR. AERTKER

But, we wouldn't have a problem if the interpretation was that impairment did not mean that that prohibited them from making investments of funds.

MR. LOWE

Well, Mr. Aertker, I'm not sure what question you're trying to ask me, but I think I'm clear about my position on how I stand as to the fact that if the funds are not fully funded--the retirement is not fully funded--and payments are made to a particular individual while no payments are made to other individuals, the individuals that do not receive payments while others receive payments--the ones that do not have had their funds diminished or impaired. That's clear, to me.

MR. AERTKER

Well, did you know that really the reason for my question was that I was really trying to show that the committee felt that the accrued portion of any individual was and should be included in the constitution, and that that word is very pertinent to the whole meaning of this whole matter on retirement? That was what the committee felt--why they thought it should be included in it.

MR. LOWE

With all due respect, Mr. Aertker, I understand what you told me; I understand you understand the meaning of "accrued"; and I know what you want in here. I just think it's a mistake for us to put it in here. I know that you want to tell every teacher and every employee in the State of Louisiana that nothing will be paid to anyone else if in any way effects what you have coming to you. If we pass this particular proposal, we just have to stop sending out retirement checks tomorrow because we won't be able to do it. It's impossible, because when we mail the retirement checks, we've impaired and diminished some of the funds of some of the people that are left in the system. I think it's wrong. That's not the way governmental retirement systems work.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. AVANT

Monday, I'm trying to understand this thing, and I hope you can help me but...a man or woman comes to the state...one of these covered agencies that we're talking about and he applies for employment, so they tell him, "O.K., we're going to pay you so much money. Out of that you're going to contribute so much to a retirement system. We're going to add so much. If you stay with us X number of years, you will be able to retire," and then aren't the benefits always based upon a certain percentage of a certain number of years, the highest years' salary... the three highest years or something like that?

MR. LOWE

That's the way I appreciate it, Mr. Avant.

MR. AVANT

Alright. Now, doesn't all this thing mean that when that day rolls around they can't--or is approaching--they can't come back...the state can't come back and say, "You know, we made a mistake way back there twenty years ago when we told you we were going to do these things for you, so we're not going to pay you that; we're going to pay you something less than that." Isn't that all these words mean?

MR. LOWE

No, sir. I think they mean a lot more than that.

MR. AVANT

Well, if you take these words out though, couldn't the state then do that? Couldn't they come back and say, "Well, we said we were going to pay you fifty percent of your average salary for the three highest years within this twenty-five year period that you've worked, but we've decided that we can't do that now, so we're going to pay you thirty percent of the three lowest years." Wouldn't they be able to do that if you don't put this guarantee in here?

MR. LOWE

Well, I don't know, Mr. Avant, but the wording to accomplish what you've just enumerated for me is done very poorly if this language is expected to do it, because it has serious side effects in the meantime.

MR. AVANT

Well, you object as I understand....I've been listening to you, and I don't really know anything about this, but it seems to me that your objection is more to the word "impaired" than it is to the word "diminished". Is that right?

MR. LOWE

You know I'm not an attorney, as I've told Mr. Aertker, and it's difficult for me to put in legal context, but I'm concerned about both words, "diminished" and "impaired". You know, Mr. Avant, if you have money in the savings and loan, the interest accrues to you as of a certain date, but you may have to leave your money in to X date before you can draw that interest, and it's the same thing with an employee in a retirement system. Certain things accrue to him, but if he leaves before the time when all of it is payable to him, he can't draw everything he accrues.

MR. AVANT

I understand that, but when I put my money in the savings and loan, and they say if you leave it here for five years, we'll pay you seven percent interest on it. If I leave it there for five years they can't at the end of that time say, "Oh, we made a mistake, we're only going to pay you four percent." If you take these words out of here then I think that's exactly what you're doing--the state can tell these people, "Even though we made a deal with you years ago and promised you certain things, we find we made a mistake, so we're not going to do what we promised."

MR. LOWE

Well, I don't agree with what you said because even in a savings and loan, as tight as they are, if you have over twenty thousand dollars--if you have a hundred thousand--it's a possible that you can't get it all if they go broke. I think we're protecting the employees by saying the full faith and credit of the State of Louisiana is behind it to pay off whatever we owe you. I think that's strong enough in this constitution, Mr. Avant.

MR. AVANT

But, Mr. Lowe, isn't it the same thing as if you buy an annuity contract with an insurance company, and you say, "O.K., I give you ten thousand dollars today, I'm thirty years old." The day I'm sixty-five they promise to pay you, say, a hundred and fifty dollars a month the rest of your life, and then when you reach sixty-five they say, "Look, we made a mistake, you're going to live longer than we thought you did, and the stock market hasn't been as good as we thought it was going to be so we're going to pay you less money." Now, they couldn't do that because they had made a contract.

MR. LOWE

That's right, they've made a contract, and I'm glad you brought up a contract, because you know what happens, Mr. Avant? We're dealing in a different framework and a different ball game. When you buy an annuity, you get exactly what you say you're going to get. The teachers that entered this system ten, fifteen, twenty, thirty years ago may have been looking for one percent of their highest income for a year's service then it goes up to two, then it goes to two and a half. When that happens, it's impossible overnight to fully fund a retirement system as a result of the fluctuations and additional benefits are added. So we're not talking about the same thing in the private sector that we're dealing with in the governmental sector.

MR. AVANT

Well, I think...don't you agree that we are, insofar as the time the original arrangement is made and the employee is told that certain things will be done?

MR. LOWE

I have no objection to saying that whatever agreement was there when they originally came in, they would be guaranteed a hundred percent.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Lowe, I hardly agree with your definition of accrued benefits. Just like accrued interest...if you loan me some money even though it's not payable because if at the end of six months, you have so much accrued, but there's nothing I can do then to keep me from owing you that money. Well, that's all we're saying about the state. Won't you agree to that?

MR. LOWE

No, sir, I don't agree. A time or two I've been able to put some money in a building and loan, and I collect the interest on December 31, and I might need it on October, so I go draw my money out, and I've had accrued interest to it, but it's not payable until December so when I draw my money out, I don't get the interest, Mr. Hernandez.

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's right. That's right, but the accrued at this time... it's not payable until they are retired or died. All we're asking for is that they get that that is accrued to them...isn't that about what it is? When you violate that, you have violated the contract. Won't you agree to that?

MR. LOWE

No, I don't agree with that. We have a problem, Mr. Hernandez, and the fact that I've explained that I think it's impossible to issue any checks out of retirement system when it's not fully funded without diminishing or impairing the people in that system who are not drawing on a pro rata basis at that time.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. LOWE

Well, Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I don't come before you often. When I come before you, I think I have a point that I want to make to you. I don't have an ax to grind with anyone. I think I understand a little bit about retirement systems, and I think I understand a little bit about the terminology that's written into this article. I'm just going to say one thing to you, and I'm going to sit down, because the biggest part of my time when I was here with you before, I finished my remarks and I let the opponents question me at will whichever they wanted. If you've been bored, you may have been bored as much by the opponents to this measure as you have been by myself. Now, I may have bored you fifty percent of the time, but they may have bored you the other fifty percent of the time, and that's one point that I rise to make with you. I'm going to say what I have to say fast and sit down, and not allow you to get bored the other fifty percent of the time in my closing. But, I can tell you that I deny anyone from getting up here and saying that they are positive, they are positive--and I'm not saying that I'm positive, but I believe that if a fund retirement system is not fully funded that you cannot make payment from that system to retired people without impairing and diminishing what is accrued to and would eventually be payable to the people that are left in the system. Now, if you are here telling me you want the legislature to find two billion, two billion dollars overnight, possibly, to fully fund every retirement system in the State of Louisiana, you vote for this, and I'm not going to be upset. I'm going to vote against it in good conscience knowing that I'm not doing violence to anyone except that we are here as a deliberative body; that some of us feel like we have expertise in some area; that we have something to offer. I've given you what I think I have. I hope I've convinced you. If I haven't, we'll live with what's here, and I doubt seriously if the state will fold up. But, it will work a hardship to implement what we're working with with this verbiage. I ask that you go along with my amendment.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted:
53-44. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Abraham sends up amendments at the present time. We've got to change the instructions in light of the passage of the Lowe amendment. It would read:

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 19, immediately after the word "employer" change the comma to a period and delete and insert the word "and" added by Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Lowe and adopted by the Convention on today. Strike out the words "the remainder of the line" and pick up with and delete lines 21 and 22 in their entirety."

If this amendment is adopted maybe this will make it a little bit clearer, but if you adopt the Abraham amendment now coupled with the Lowe amendment just adopted, on line 19, you would place a period after the word "employer" and strike out everything else...the rest of line 19 and all of lines 20 through 22 contained in Paragraph(A). That would be the net result of the adoption of both amendments.

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, what kind of people are we to think that the state, simply because it's an employer who contributes to a retirement system for its employees, must guarantee for all time that the employees are going to receive the benefits from this retirement system? If the state were to place this retirement premiums, purchase annuities through an insurance company, would we still expect the state to have to guarantee that this insurance company is going to pay off? Those of you who've been employed in the private sector of business who have contributed to a retirement plan, and had your employer contribute to a retirement plan where annuities were purchased from an insurance company, what guarantee did you have that this insurance company wasn't going to go busted, and that you were always going to be able to get this money? Those of you who are professional people, some of you have purchased your own annuities--your own retirement plans--what guarantee do you have? We have to contribute to Social Security? What guarantee do we have that we are going to receive the benefits of Social Security? I just don't see how we can expect the state to guarantee that it's going to be able to fund the retirement system in the event that the people who manage the system do a poor job of managing and aren't able to meet their obligations. That is the purpose of my amendment, is to delete this requirement. Now, I don't have any doubt in my mind whatsoever that the state is going to do everything possible to meet its obligations, any more so than I have of the federal government meeting its obligation toward social security, but I do not think that we need to lock this type of language in the constitution. I think that it's going to bring on serious problems in the future. I therefore ask that we simply delete this language, and we leave it up to the state to provide the retirement system, and then go from there.

Questions

MR. DERBES

Mac, it occurs to me that the language that you point out--and I think correctly point out in the committee proposal as being a guarantee in the committee proposal--is in conflict with work that we've already accomplished; namely, that no judgment shall be exigible, payable or paid except from funds appropriated by the state. Do you have any opinion on that? Do you understand my question?

MR. ABRAHAM

Yes, I understand what you're talking about, but I question whether or not that there is a real conflict there, or whether this would supercede the language...the point that you just brought out, because we're saying here in this constitution itself that the state is going to have to guarantee these funds.

MR. DERBES

No, my point is that what is a guarantee? If you were saying on one hand that you were guaranteeing such benefits--if the state stands behind the benefits--and then you were saying on the other hand that no judgment shall be exigible, payable or paid except from funds appropriated by the legislature, then what kind of a guarantee are you really undertaking? Aren't you just essentially fooling yourself and creating a conflict within the constitution itself?

MR. ABRAHAM

No, because the other deals with a judgment against the state, and I question whether this would be a judgment.

MR. DERBES

Ultimately, Mr. Abraham, isn't any claim for benefits--if there were a problem with appropriation--isn't any claim for benefits what a court would allow, and what a court would enforce against the state?

MR. ABRAHAM

That's true. I see your point.

MR. DERBES

You see my point?

MR. ABRAHAM

Right.

MR. DERBES

So don't you really think that the committee language is therefore unnecessary for a previously established position that we have already adopted in this constitution?

MR. ABRAHAM

That's correct. I agree with you.

MR. MUNSON

Mr. Abraham, doesn't your amendment have the same effect that Senator De Blieux's amendment would have had that he withdrew?

MR. ABRAHAM

I don't know whether it would have the same effect because his dealt with other matters also, Bob, and this only deals with this one thing right here.

MR. MUNSON

Well, do you really think that it's really right and proper that a state employee or schoolteacher should have to pay into the retirement system his money, and the state put up their money, and then that employee is not guaranteed anything?

MR. ABRAHAM

It's just as proper as it is for me to have to pay Social Security, Mr. Munson, and I'm not guaranteed anything from Social Security, nor am I guaranteed anything from any other private annuity that I may have.

MR. MUNSON

Well, don't you think if your amendment passes, we might as well take the whole thing out of the constitution? There will be no purpose in it whatsoever if this amendment passes.

MR. ABRAHAM

I don't really see the need for this language at all in the constitution. I agree with you there. But, if we're going to put some language in the constitution dealing with retirement systems, I don't think we need to have all of it in here. I think all we need to say is simply that the state shall provide for a retirement system.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. CHATELAIN

Mac, I understand what you have in mind, but I'm a little bit confused in that--as Mr. Munson just stated--we have a retirement fund with an insurance company--a big insurance company. They guarantee that we're going to get certain benefits if we put our money into this retirement situation. What real objection do you have for the state guaranteeing these people this?

MR. ABRAHAM

I beg to differ with you, Mr. Chatelain. You have no guarantee that that insurance company is going to pay off. If it files for bankruptcy tomorrow, you're out of business.

MR. CHATELAIN

But, I mean what objection though, really, do you have that the state should not guarantee this, because they could conceivably raid this retirement fund or loan it out to some people who are unable to pay it back?

MR. ABRAHAM

Well, to begin with, the state does not manage its retirement system the way that this insurance company does. Secondly, the state is not in business for itself--it's not a private enterprise--so if it has to meet these requirements or these funds...put up these funds, then it's going to have to levy additional taxes in order to raise the funds. Now, if it had to go out and sell something in order to raise money, it might be different.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, and delegates to the convention, I rise to object to the amendment on the same basis that I did this morning when Senator De Blieux offered to delete this precise language. Let me say this: one of the reasons that the state today can employ personnel is because of the retirement systems that they do have. Certainly the pay that they receive is not commensurate with their counterpart in private industry. Now, if you just want to say they are entitled to a retirement on paper, and you're not willing to fund it then I think we're being less than honest with the employees of the State of Louisiana. It's just that simple. It's immoral to tell people--and let them pay fifty percent of the cost into a retirement system--that you can have the system, but we're not going to fund it so that when you get ready to retire there's going to be sufficient funds there for you to draw your benefits. Now, I can't reconcile in my conscience, the people that say on one side, we're for retirement, and yet they say on the same time on the other side, we don't believe in funding it, and we don't believe in guaranteeing it. It's very simple to me; very simple. If a man pays into a system for certain benefits, he ought to be guaranteed if it takes the full faith and credit of the state, or whatever it takes, that when he gets ready for retirement, he meets all the conditions of the law for his retirement that the money is going to be there when he gets ready to retire. That's what this whole proposal does. Nothing more. Nothing more! I ask you to reject this amendment. This is a good proposal. It's in behalf of the people who pay into retirement systems to guarantee them their benefits are going to be there when they reach that retirement age. I think that we as employers--members of the state...citizens of this state--owe it to our employees to guarantee them that right that when they put their money in there and the state matches it, the money is going to be there when they get ready to retire. I ask you to reject the amendment.

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, if one of the systems did go bust for, say, a hundred million dollars or something like that, where would the money come from to make up this difference?

MR. FLORY

Well, I can't visualize any system going burst as you say for that amount of money, Mr. Lanier. But, let me say to you what this will do. It will force upon the legislature, whoever creates the retirement system, to exercise fiscal responsibility. In that every time a bill comes before the legislature...take for example, they want to pass a law to include one individual into the system who can't qualify under the law today. The bill doesn't carry a fiscal note. Nobody knows what it's going to cost because they don't know how many people can meet that qualification to qualify for retirement benefits where they could not qualify before. Whatever the cost is, is a drain on the system, and yet the legislature at that time does not add additional funds to compensate for that additional financial burden on the system, so that in the future, I would suggest to you that the legislature would be extremely hesitant in passing improvements and increased benefits in retirement systems whether they be for the local level, whether they be for the state or whatever retirement system it might be without a fiscal note from an actuary saying exactly what it's going to cost and at the same time providing the fund for that additional increase in benefits. I think this is going to mandate fiscal responsibility insofar as retirement systems are concerned. I want to see that. I believe in it. I believe in guaranteeing to the employees their benefits whenever they get ready to retire. I don't think anybody has the right to take away from them something they had paid into, and was a part of their work contract during their work life.

MR. WINCHESTER

Mr. Flory, presuming that you agree that when the legislature enacts a law it is a contract with the people that allows them to do something or allows them not to do something, then don't you agree that a retirement fund which is enacted by the legislature is a valid contract, also?

MR. FLORY

In my judgment it is, Mr. Winchester. Absolutely.

MR. LANIER

Is the reason that this is constitutionally set up as a contractual relationship to comply with our provision in the Legislative Article that the state does not have immunity from suit with reference to breach of contract? Is that the reason this language is used here?

MR. FLORY

It was never considered in that light, Mr. Lanier. It was never discussed before the committee as you well know. At the time this language was developed by the committee, I don't believe we had adopted at that point--we may have, but we certainly...at least I didn't and I don't recall it ever being discussed in the committee, the legislative proposal as to the part that you mention of it.

MR. LANIER

Well, would that not be true that this would be--if this is a contractual relationship--that this is one of the exceptions to the sovereign immunity of the state, and that the legislature would have no control over suits brought under these contracts to secure this money? Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

I can't answer that, Mr. Lanier. I'm not an attorney, and I can't answer that.

Further Discussion

MR. MORRIS

Mr. Acting Chairman, delegates to the convention, I listened to Mr. Lowe's explanation, and I didn't altogether agree with it and I did vote against it, but this amendment really does exactly what Senator De Blieux's amendment did this morning. This says, as I view this article, that if an employee comes to work for the State of Louisiana, and he puts up seven percent of his money over thirty, forty years, this article says that he'll get that money back plus the interest, plus the state's portion, plus the state's interest, and guarantees him a certain amount of money to live on. If you believe that's right, you should vote against this amendment. If you believe that's wrong, then you should vote for Mr. Abraham's amendment. Now, he was saying something in connection to Social Security, and something in connection with the private sector which we have no control over. We're not writing legislation or constitutional anything for Social Security or for the private sector. We are in a position to do something for public employees, and if it's wrong to say that you're entitled to a certain benefit when you retire that you preagree upon, and you have no opportunity not to join the system; you have to join the system; the state puts up a certain amount of money, you do, and the interest brought in is supposed to arrive at certain benefits then you would have to vote for this amendment. But, surely, surely, working people who work on salaries all their life have no opportunities to save much money. Most of the monie that they would save are in a retirement system or in their home, and if they can't be assured in later life when they can't earn or their earning capacity is far below what it was a few years ago, this is the only thing they have to count on. Certainly, I would hope that we would guarantee our state employees that the full faith of the state is behind their retirement system. Thank you.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Is this provision in the present constitution?

MR. MORRIS

No, ma'am. I didn't have an opportunity, at any time, to vote on that constitution or a constitutional amendment; I think it should have been, Mrs. Zervigon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Have the employees of the state been wholesale cheated out of their retirement benefits as they reach retirement age?

MR. MORRIS

No, the legislature has been very generous to them. I might say this: when I vote for this article, it's certainly, I'm not voting against the governor, the legislature, or anyone else, I'm voting to say "Yes, we think that you should be guaranteed a certain annuity when you retire," Mrs. Zervigon.

MRS. ZERVIGON

One more question: Mr. Flory said rather in passing in his remarks, that employees put up fifty percent of the fund and the state put up fifty percent of the fund. Do you know that to be a fact of the teacher's retirement fund?

MR. MORRIS

Yes, ma'am, I do know that to be a fact.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Exactly fifty percent and no more?

MR. MORRIS

No, it's not exactly fifty percent. Two years ago, the teacher was putting up more than the state was putting into the system, at that time.

MRS. ZERVIGON

So that it can be unequal in either direction?

MR. MORRIS

Yes, ma'am.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Morris, under the present...as I understand this Section (A), is that correct, that it only applies to teachers and other employees of the public educational system. Is that true?

MR. MORRIS

Very quickly, I believe Section (A), that's what it applies to. I may be wrong, but as I read it, I believe that is what it applies to.

MR. LANIER

Right. So, this particular type of protection here, as far as this section is concerned, does not cover other people outside the educational system?

MR. MORRIS

No, that's a wrong. It includes all public employees employed by the State of Louisiana.

MR. LANIER

The (A) part?

MR. MORRIS

No, I'm sorry; I'm sorry.

MR. LANIER

O.K. Now, under the present law of Louisiana--not this proposal--does any retirement system have this type of guarantee--this type of protection?

MR. MORRIS

Evidently, you didn't hear me. I just said to Mrs. Zervigon, no it didn't.

MR. LANIER

O.K. So, this is an added protection that we are talking about now?

MR. MORRIS

Yes, sir.

MR. LANIER

Would it be correct...well, let me ask you this, would... if this went into effect, would it require the state putting up some money at the present time into this system?

MR. MORRIS

Not to my knowledge, at this time. I listened with a great deal of interest to what Mr. Lowe said. He is working with the committee on retirement, looking into all retirement systems. I'm not an actuary. However, I follow the retirement systems very cloealy. With the language that was in there, the language that was taken out, there may have been a possibility. I don't know. I'm not an attorney; you, are. I don't think so now, at all; no, I wouldn't think so.

Further Discussion

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise again for the sole purpose of reminding you that this is a contract between the employee and the employer. When the State of Louisiana lays down the guidelines and tells a teacher that you shall pay a certain amount, we will pay a certain amount, then when you are ready for retirement, when you have earned your retirement, you will receive so much money per month the rest of your natural life--that is a contract. To pass this Abraham amendment in conjunction with the one that Mr. Lowe passed a few minutes ago, it gives the state the right to go ahead--like they have been doing in the past--and just completely ruin the teachers' retirement system; it is going down. The teacher's retirement system, right now, is paying out more money than is going in and everybody knows that that is not fiscal responsibility. I would like to answer Mr. Lanier's question a while ago. Mr. Lanier, there is only one motive behind this and that is to stop fiscal irresponsibility in the legislature with these retirement systems--that is the only purpose of this amendment. This will--even with Mr. Lowe's amendment--it will protect the teachers who have been paying all of these years into this retirement system looking forward to that day that they could draw it. Now, the state cannot, the state will never want to be a party to not living up to its agreement like that and there is no danger of it in the immediate future. But, if it keeps going down--as it has in the last few years, paying out more than is going in--somebody is going to have to feed the kitty or it's going broke and that's just simply all there is to it. Well, this just will prevent the legislature from awarding benefits--awarding retirement benefits--to teachers and not put something in the kitty to take care of it; and that's all in the world it is. There is no intention of doing anything other than guaranteeing these people what they have paid for, what they are entitled to and have a right to expect.

Questions

MR. CHATELAIN

Pete, a question was raised a few moments ago as to what percentage the State of Louisiana pays toward the teachers' retirement and it was mentioned it's about half now; is that correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

It is about half, Mr. Chatelain; of course, this has nothing to do with it. The legislature determines how much the teachers shall pay and how much the state shall pay. Right now, if I remember correctly, the teachers are paying seven and a half percent and the state seven percent.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, let me ask you a further question that's tied to this. What percentage of the state school teacher's salary did the state pay across the board, you know, average of the state?

MR. HERNANDEZ

It's my understanding about seven percent.

MR. CHATELAIN

No, I'm talking about the actual pay of the school teacher... the teachers themselves.

MR. HERNANDEZ

You mean the retirement?

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. CHATELAIN

No, no, not the retirement, the teacher's salary. Doesn't the state pay the majority of it?

MR. HERNANDEZ

What percentage? That I can't answer, Mr. Chatelain; I don't know.

MR. CHATELAIN

I mean it would be a great percentage of it; don't you think?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, that's what I was trying to see. So long as the employees, being the school teacher or the employee of that system, it doesn't make any difference what...it's still part of the total.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Let me ask you one other question: Does...is the State of Louisiana behind the bonds of the dome stadium? Do they have the full faith and credit of the state behind those bonds?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's my understanding, yes, sir.

MR. CHATELAIN

Thank you.

MR. STINSON

Mr. Hernandez, I wanted to ask this question of Jimmy Morris. Someone asked him if Section (A) provided to all employees? First, he said "yes," and then said then "only to school personnel." But, isn't it a fact that (B) applies to the other states, so they will all be in the same category; won't they?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir. We are dealing now entirely with Paragraph (A).

MR. STINSON

I know, but (B) says "the same for other state employees" too; doesn't it?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir, (B) says "the same thing for other employees."

MR. HERNANDEZ

Thank you very much. I would urge that--let me in closing--urge that you defeat the Abraham amendment; it would be a violation... could be a violation of the contract the state has entered into with many, many school teachers who have been looking forward to this retirement for a long time. I ask you, please, defeat the Abraham amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Acting Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise in opposition to this amendment for the following reasons: (1) when an employee pays into a system, in effect, he signs a contract. Now, this is a...this retirement system, rather, is a form of insurance and it's similar to a contract between an individual and an insurance company. Now, prior to about 1948 in the state, insurance companies could lapse a policy and subsequently paid the policy holder nothing if...no matter how long the policy holder had held that policy. Now, in effect, that's exactly what the proponents of this amendment want to do. They say to say, in effect, that you pay for thirty years and if we so desire as the other party to the contract, we will terminate the whole thing because it's convenient to us. Now, someone has alluded to the fact that suppose a system becomes actuarially unsound. Well, if the system has been established on an actuarially sound basis in the first place, then it will not become actuarially unsound at any time in the future because when an employee retires, if the system is actuarially sound, then the necessary funds to pay his pension for the natural remainder of his life--usually ten to fifteen years, if the system is sound--is invested at that time and placed in escrow, so, there is no reason for the system becoming unsound. Now, I submit to you that in this instance, as the contract says "the party of the second part and the party of the first part," the state is the party of the first part or the employer. The employee, or the teacher, or the school system employee, of course, is the party of the second part and both parties have certain responsibility. I say to you, that you will render the whole system unsound if this amendment is passed. You will say to the teachers out there--who number in the thousands in this state, something like fifteen thousand or more and their families--that this system is unsound, it is not guaranteed and the state may at its design, its convenience, terminate the whole thing and kick you out. I'm asking you not to go along with the idea which, in effect, says "we are for retirement" as one would say to an individual "I think you should live, but I must cut your head off. I must separate your head from your body, but I want to see you live---that's a contradiction, ladies and gentleman. I'm asking you to defeat this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. DERBES

Ladies and gentlemen, I won't take up much of your time. I just like to point out something to you, which I think is important and, that is, the provision that we adopted in the Legislative Article. It says in Section 14 as follows:--in pertinent part, that is that-- "the legislature shall provide for a method of procedure in the effect of the judgments which may be rendered in all cases against the state, its agencies, and political subdivisions" and finally and most importantly that "the public property and funds of the state shall not be subject to seizure and no judgment against the state, its agencies or political subdivisions shall be exigible, payable, or paid except out of funds appropriated--except out of funds appropriated--for payment by the state, its agencies or political subdivisions. That provision applies to all judgments. I suggest to you that there is no guarantee of any benefits provided in Committee Proposal No. 11 unless that guarantee is legally enforceable, but by virtue of a judgment. We have said elsewhere in our previous deliberations that such guarantees will not be enforceable by judgment, unless specifically appropriated by the legislature. So, what are we saying in Committee Proposal No. 11? We are making a promise which is not self-fulfilling. We are making a promise which, in fact, in my opinion conflicts with provisions previously adopted by this convention. If we want to make the promise and we want to put teeth in the promise, let's put a provision for automatic appropriation in the constitution. Now, maybe you don't want to do that. I don't want to do that either. But, otherwise, it seems to me to be just an empty promise--an empty promise--which is not ultimately enforceable in a court of law. A promise which is not ultimately enforceable in a court of law is merely discretionary on the part of the legislature. I move the previous question. Thank you.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Derbes, if you feel that it would more or less be an empty promise because maybe the state would be forced to raise additional money, could not the employees also be taxed? Could not the rate of taxation be raised on employees, so that the system could remain actuarially sound?

MR. DERBES

Yes. Reverend, I have no argument with the points that you made. I simply want to say that ultimately the problem rests with the legislature and the phraseology that has been suggested by the committee in Proposal No. 11 is nothing more, ultimately, than discretionary phraseology. It is not, in fact, ultimately, legally enforceable phraseology--that's my point.

MR. ALEXANDER

Your position, then, is that the language is not strong enough?

MR. DERBES

To accomplish the purpose that the proponents suggest should be the purpose, in my opinion, the language is not strong enough; the language merely represents an empty promise. I do not support that particular point of view. I express to you what I regard as a sound, legal opinion and nothing more.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. ABRAHAM

I just want to make a couple of points. First, there is no language in the present constitution which says that the state is going to guarantee these retirement benefits. Why do we need to have it in this present constitution? Secondly, if we were to go out and purchase an annuity from a private insurance company, we would contract for a certain amount--we would pay a certain amount, we would get a certain amount. All right, this is a contract we have entered into, the same as the state would enter into a contract with the teacher that they are going to have a retirement plan---but, that's as far as that contract goes. This insurance company is not going to guarantee that it's not going to go broke tomorrow. The point was made up here that the state could say "All right, we are going to collect money from you people all these years, then, thirty years from now we are going to take it away from you." Well, I disagree with that. Once the state has contributed its funds to the retirement plan, the state can't take that money away. Once the employees contributed, it can't take that money away from them. It may have to discontinue the plan or something like that, but it can't reach out and get that money back and take these benefits away. The people will not lose these benefits unless something happens to the plan--that's the only way they can lose them--the same as it would happen anywhere else in this economy. But, the point is this also, what we are doing is we are saying to the public employees that we are going to guarantee you something that we don't guarantee to any other citizen of this state. The state does not guarantee to any other citizen that if the retirement plans that they belong to are going to be backed by the faith and credit of the state. Why should we do the same thing here? We are giving these people preference over others. Now, we talk about giving the public employees something, what about the rest of the citizens of the state? Why don't we give them the same benefits? Now, if we really want to treat all citizens alike, if we want to put a stop to the finagling with the retirement system--as some of you have said has happened in the past--then, let's let the state get out of the retirement system from the standpoint of having them manage the funds or be a part, possibly, of managing the funds and let the money go to a private insurance company. Let the contract be entered into and then the employees would get their retirement benefits from that insurance company. The legislature would not be able to come in then and raise automatically or arbitrarily raise the benefits unless negotiations were held and the thing were done in a proper business like manner; then, you would get some fiscal responsibility. So, I urge you to adopt this amendment. I don't think that this language has any business in this constitution. I don't think it's enforceable. I don't think it can work in any way. I ask you to adopt this amendment.

[Amendment rejected: 32-73. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, between lines 22 and 23, insert the following: "Investment of funds of retirement systems created under the provisions of this Paragraph shall be limited to federal, state, and municipal obligations."

Explanation

MR. WEISS

Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, the tempo of the present convention is such that from the past votes it's quite apparent that the retirement system--as spelled out in this proposal--is intended to be one that is both actuarially sound and fiscally stable. For this reason, I propose this amendment for your consideration in that I feel that both of these requirements are met by this simple introduction at this time under this section concerning the retirement system. First of all, actuarial soundness, as it has been pointed out, is much in the eyes of the beholder sometimes. But, it does depend upon two things: a front and a back end. The front end being the number of people in the retirement system that will be alive at a stated date. Secondly, the amount of funds that will be available to pay these people. Both of these are unpredictable at this time and this, of course, is what creates such instability in actuarial determinations. We cannot determine who will be alive or who will not be, at a certain date--this depends upon many, many factors and is quite unpredictable--this is not controllable. On the other hand, we can in great manner predict what funds will be available and by estimating two, to four, to eight, to ten percent, or whatever the investment may be, we can be assured of what this income will be in the retirement system rather than turning it over sometimes to faulty investments by pension fund representatives. Occasionally, someone has made the suggestion that it would be wise for the State of Louisiana to purchase a seat on the New York Stock Exchange. One member's fee would probably take up enough commissions to save hundreds of thousands of dollars that are being spent on commissions otherwise or even, currently, to help state employees that retire before their time to collect interest--which they are not currently collecting--if they retire before their retirement date is established. I'm sure you realize that people retiring today before their retirement date are allowed to collect the amount of funds they put into the system, but do not collect any interest on those funds that they have put in over the many years. If this amendment was to be adopted, then only federal, state, or municipal obligations would be allowed in the retirement system fund investments. In this way, a predictable amount of income could be made available from the most secure source of investments at this time. The most stable, and secure, and monetary, and fiscal investments are state, federal, and municipal funds. I ask that this amendment be adopted to Section 1, Article VII.

Questions

MR. ALEXANDER

Dr. Weiss, under the provisions of your amendment you would limit investments to federal, state, and municipal government bonds. Now, suppose I was involved in a system where I took the highest bidder, if I could get four and a half percent and these municipal or state bonds would only yield three, then I took the private bonds or whatever I could buy. Now, supposed the system can purchase or invest at a higher rate of interest, you would still prohibit them from getting the higher rate of interest?

MR. WEISS

The highest rate of interest...of course, are you interested first in security or investments? The retirement system, as I say, I present this to this body because it is my feeling from the votes that have occurred that you--and you are one of the ones who spoke in this regard--are more concerned with security than investment. Now, which are you speaking of at this time?

MR. ABRAHAM [Alexander]

I'm speaking about..well, both security and investments, of course.

MR. WEISS

Well, as you know, it's difficult to obtain both security and investments. As your security increases, the investment income declines. As your security decreases, then your investment income increases--so, it's a reverse proportion. I think that would answer your question.

MR. ABRAHAM [Alexander]

Of course, Dr. Weiss, as you are speaking about a ten or fifteen year period then you may....I think you would tie the hands of any board or commission that would be handling this when you prohibit them from....

MR. WEISS

No.

MR. ABRAHAM [Alexander]

....don't you think so?

MR. WEISS

I don't think so at all. I think it would enhance the position of any board that makes these decisions by providing for them the finest type of security and investment and fiscal responsibility that any board could provide in any system.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Dr. Weiss, since we are asking the legislature to guarantee the benefits that are accrued to the school teachers and employees; don't you think that we should give the legislature the right to rule as to how these funds should be invested?

MR. WEISS

I asked you that same question, Delegate Hernandez, and whether we should not allow the legislature to determine the retirement system benefits, and you are the one who opposed it. You thought it should be constitutional. I feel for the same reason that this, too, should be constitutional matter.

MR. HERNANDEZ

I was not in favor of leaving it to the legislature because the... but, we are asking them to guarantee it. If we are asking them to guarantee it, don't you think that we should let them write the rules as to how the money will be invested since they do....

MR. WEISS

This is the most secure method of investment that anyone could be offered today--investment in government securities.

MR. HERNANDEZ

Thank you, sir.

MR. AERTKER

Dr. Weiss, you will agree that certainly this is the type of material that really is completely statutory; wouldn't you?

MR. WEISS

No. I feel that the entire retirement system is statutory. I find that this body feels otherwise. So, I think then this, too, should be in the constitution.

MR. AERTKER

Do you realize that if we, in the retirement system, had been operating under the provisions of this amendment as you propose that right now, this retirement system would either be practically bankrupt or else the employer and employees' contribution would be about doubled what it presently is in order to make up the income that we would have lost all of this time on investments that this retirement system has made?

MR. WEISS

I do not believe that to be a true statement. I think that, at the present time, if the economy goes in the direction it is now, many of these retirement funds themselves will be economically bankrupt. If they were funded in government, and state, and municipal securities, they would be far better off than in private investments at this time. For that reason, the people of the State of Louisiana would have less to pay back to these funds than if they were left in the hands of federal government and state municipal securities.

MR. AERTKER

Well, I, Dr. Weiss, I really would suggest that you check the history of the investments to verify the remarks that I made to you.

MR. WEISS

Are you speaking of the past twenty or thirty years of history of inflation?

MR. AERTKER

Yes, yes.

MR. WEISS

Have you considered all the history of depression and the loss of funds which may be in the offing at any time in the future?

MR. AERTKER

Well, of course, we haven't experienced too much of a depression in the last twenty years.

MR. WEISS

There were no retirement funds in the '30's, I believe, though, of any consequence.

MR. AERTKER

That's what I'm saying, I'm talking....

MR. WEISS

Well, this is a new problem. I would suggest that this be a new solution.

MR. AERTKER

.....I said the last twenty years. Yes.

MR. GOLDMAN

Dr. Weiss, I hope you can hear me... wouldn't your amendment prohibit the investment of these funds and certificates of deposit in banks up to the amount insured by the United States Government?

MR. WEISS

No, for see these are obligations of the U.S. Government. If they're obligations secured by the U.S. Government they would be.. obligations.

MR. GOLDMAN

I've spoken to several people and they think that this would prohibit that unless the wording of your amendment was changed, or that added to it.

MR. WEISS

I'd be glad to accept an amendment in that regard, if you think the CD's are that significant, sir.

MR. MORRIS

Dr. Weiss, I had written down here U.S. Treasury notes and time certificates that I was going to ask what Mr. Goldman did. The language is very ambiguous, and I just wanted some clarification as to what you were really talking about.

MR. WEISS

The research staff has worded this, and it's my understanding the federal obligations would certainly include federal bills, federal bonds, federal notes, and the like.

MRS. CORNE

Dr. Weiss, do you know that investments have not heretofore caused the problems in the Teachers' Retirement System, but that fiscal irresponsibility in the granting of benefits, for which no contribution has been made, and no funding has been provided by the legislature has caused these problems?

MR. WEISS

I don't see how you can say that, Mrs. Corne, if that was the law, then the legislature would have acted according to the law. I think what you're saying aren't you, is that the legislature has not done what the retirement systems wanted them to do; is that not so?

MRS. CORNE

Correct. The legislature has, heretofore, granted benefits to certain persons in this state who have not contributed to the retirement system to the extent that they are collecting from the retirement system today, and that is what has caused the problem. As far back as I can remember, we have had no problems with investment... up until this period.

MR. WEISS

The retirement system for teachers is matched by these state funds at this time, is it not?

MRS. CORNE

Correct.

MR. WEISS

I think it would be wise to see that these funds are properly invested, fiscally, don't you think?

MRS. CORNE

Oh, yes, of course, I....

MR. CASEY

You've exceeded your time Dr. Weiss,

Further Discussion

MR. MIRE

Mr. Acting Chairman, fellow delegates, I hate to rise in opposition to Dr. Weiss' amendment. I know his intentions are very well intended here. However, when... in managing a retirement system today--and I can only say for the assessors' retirement system-- you need daily investments; you need to be able to invest this money practically on a daily basis, and to get your best possible revenue for your monies you cannot invest on a daily basis in government bonds and come out with a best possible return for the monies that you have to invest. Many times, your government bonds, or your municipal estate bonds are selling at a very low rate of interest. You can maybe contract with a bank for a... a ninety day or for a... six month certificate of deposits up to a hundred thousand dollars. Right now, banks are paying us nine percent, and they are also giving us... guaranteeing these deposits with municipal bonds, or state bonds, or federal bonds. In our... particular... laws governing our retirement system we can't invest in anything if it's not guaranteed by the federal government, one way or the other. So, we make them give us a letter guaranteeing our investments, even in banks, but, presently we're getting as much as nine percent on something like this. I don't know of any government bonds right now that you can buy for even six percent, and these are the kind of things ... unless at specific times, sometimes you can buy them, but you may have to wait six months. You may have to wait a year for a specific issue, for, say a ten, or fifteen or twenty year duration or maybe a forty year duration; this is a highly, highly, complicated .... system of investment. I don't think you can constitutionally... or put it in the constitution; I think you should leave it to the statutes. We can't do anything with our system without getting permission from the legislature; they have to first give us permission to do it. I would urge you to vote against this amendment, and leave it to the legislature to govern these retirement systems as a state. Should they ever go on a one system basis, then, they can do it on a one system basis. I'm not saying what stand I take on that, but I think it's their responsibility.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. WEISS

Delegate Mire, isn't it true that there are daily issues on treasury bills that could be bought on any given day?

MR. MIRE

Yes, sir, they... you can buy fed funds everyday, a bank can do this you see, but you're not... you're not setting out that that retirement system has that authority here. You're saying the only thing we can invest in is in federal, state, and municipal obligations, and this doesn't give us the permission to, you've got to be an association organized under the banking laws to be able to do what you want to do.

MR. WEISS

Do I understand then, that in the retirement system programs that they are more interested in the investment income than anything else?

MR. MIRE

Well, this is exactly what we're interested in, and this would not give us maximum income.

MR. WEISS

Well, wouldn't that conflict with the degree of security that is, in concern with retirement system?

MR. MIRE

All real... all retirement systems that look to have a good security to their funds demand that every nickel of it is secured by federal, or state, or municipal bonds, and this can be gotten from any state agency, from any bank, anybody who has money to loan, if you look for it.

MR. CASEY

Have you concluded....

MR. MIRE

Thank you very much, and I urge the defeat of this amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 8-88. Motion to reconsider tabled. Previous Question ordered on Paragraph (A).]

Point of Order

MR. PEREZ

It's my understanding that we adopt a section, not a paragraph.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Perez, earlier this morning the convention suspended the rules to consider these paragraph letters by paragraph.

MR. PEREZ

I apologize, I wasn't here this morning.

[Paragraph (A) adopted: 87-14. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Reading of Paragraph (B)

MR. POYNTER

Paragraph (B)
"(B) Retirement System; State Officers and Employees.
The legislature shall provide for the retirement of officers and employees of the state, its agencies and political subdivisions, including persons employed jointly by state and federal agencies other than the military service, through the establishment of a retirement system or systems. Membership in any retirement system of the state or of a political subdivision thereof shall be a contractual relationship between the employee and the employer, the accrued benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired, and the state or political subdivision shall guarantee any benefits payable to a member of the system or to his lawful beneficiary at his death or retirement."

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, as I explained to you this morning, this Paragraph (B) actually deals... does the same thing for the state employees as what we just approved for the school employees. We recognize that both of them do operate under different provisions and different formulas for retirement, and so, therefore, we felt that they should be kept a part and at the same time, we felt that by the introduction of this with the same statement, and the same guarantees, and the same benefits that we feel should be guarantees to them, that this would allow in the future for a one system of retirement if the... if in the judgment of the legislature and the various groups that this would be the proper thing. So, in view of the fact that we have discussed at some length the teacher retirement and all of the points related to that, I'm not going to take any more time of this convention to go into that. So, I would ask for the favorable consideration, and I would have to presume that we will have similar amendments, such as, Mr. Lowe made to ours which would pertain to this one that would make it consistent, and be the ... be the same as far as the reading of this goes. I ask for your favorable consideration of this Section (B).

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Aertker, you and I have been discussing this little problem that I notice in the (B) part here. Why did the committee on line 32 of the first page, and line one of the second page, require that the police juries and municipalities guarantee the retirement systems along with the state, and with reference to education, the guarantee is only by the state and not by the school boards.

MR. AERTKER

Well, I ... really would think that they ... they just felt that the state employees would probably be more ... well, really more under the jurisdiction of... or ... have more responsibility for at the local level in many instances. I think the very fact that we talk about various other employees... other retirement systems that we have in operation might have had something to do with that. That was one of the things that was brought up this morning on it, the fact that teachers just have one retirement system and that is at the state level and they have no other choice of other retirement systems that that was the reason why they did not include and make the provision that the local school board had to guarantee this. I presume, that that might have been some of the rationale back of it.

MR. LANIER

Well, do you feel that with reference to these other systems that if they had the guarantee and protection of the state as the teachers do, that that would be adequate protection?

MR. AERTKER

Would you state that again, Mr. Lanier?

MR. LANIER

I said if we treated these people in Paragraph (B) the same way that we're treating the teachers, i.e., give them state protection for their retirement system, do you think that that would be fair treatment and adequate?

MR. AERTKER

I think that that would be consistent with what we did with the other, yes.

MR. LANIER

Now, did your committee do any type of a study with local governmental units as to what effect this requirement of a guarantee by the local governmental unit on the retirement system have on their capacity to secure bonded indebtednesses?

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

MR. AERTKER

I don't believe any local groups appeared before our committee to call this to their attention, and so, therefore, I don't believe that they did give very much deliberation to that point.

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Aertker sends up amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 24, after the word "shall" and before the word "for" delete the word "provide" and insert in lieu thereof the following: "enact laws providing".

Explanation

MR. AERTKER

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, actually I think this is kind of technical in nature and that is, instead of just saying "the legislature shall provide" all we're doing is just adding the words "shall enact laws providing" for the retirement of officers. I don't believe that we've destroyed any meaning there except that we just gave a clarification of what we did mean on it. I don't believe that we would have too much objection to the changing of the wording of this, and so I recommend its approval to you.

Question

MR. PEREZ

Under the present Parochial Employees' Retirement System no parish or municipality is required to participate in that system. My question with respect to your particular amendment-- which by the way, I'm in favor of-- is whether or not you would be opposed after this amendment to another amendment which would make it clear that the laws passed by the legislature could not mandate any parish to participate in these particular systems.

MR. AERTKER

I would have no objection to it, Mr. Perez.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted without objection.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Lowe sends up amendments at this time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 31, after the word and punctuation "employer," delete the remainder of the line and delete line 32 in its entirety and insert in lieu thereof the following: "and the state or".

Explanation

MR. LOWE

Mr. Vice-Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I hope that we can dispose of this amendment without any objection. Even, if you objected to it originally, I think you'd probably go along with it now for the sake of consistency, so that we would make the same application in the state employees that we made to the teachers. So, I'm not going to belabor the point; this merely is a consistent amendment and does the same thing in this section it did in Section A. I ask you to go along with it, without any objection either because you agree, or for the sake of consistency.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Next set of amendments to be sent up by Mr. Abraham.

Set of three amendments.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 25, after the word "Louisiana" and before the word "its" delete the comma "," and insert in lieu thereof the word "and".

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, at the end of line 25, delete the word "and" and at the beginning of line 26, delete the words "political subdivisions".

Amendment No. 3. On page 1, at the end of line 28, add the following: "It may also provide for the retirement of officers and employees of any political subdivision of the state, including persons employed jointly by the state and any political subdivision thereof."

Explanation

MR. ABRAHAM

Ladies and gentlemen, Paragraph (B) of the article proposed by the committee states that "the legislature shall provide for the retirement for employees of the state, its agencies and political subdivisions." The present constitution now provides that the..... in section... Article XVIII, Section 9, that "the legislature shall provide for a retirement system for the employees of the state." Section 9.1 provides that it shall have authority to provide for this... for the employees of the political subdivisions. It is a permissive thing in the present constitution as far as the employees of political subdivisions are concerned; it does not require the legislature to provide for this. My language here simply intends to correct the proposed language, so that it is in conformity with the present constitution, where the legislature shall provide for the retirement, for the officers and employees of the state and its agencies, but that it may provide for the retirement of these various people who are employees of the political subdivisions, so that the requirement will not be mandatory. I ask your adoption of the amendment.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment rejected: 38-61. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Mr. Lanier sends up amendments at the present time.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, at the end of line 32, after the word "state" delete the word "or" and on page 2, at the beginning of line 1, delete the words "political subdivision".

Explanation

MR. LANIER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I think the convention has pretty well spoken that you wish to shape the (B) part substantially the same as the (A) part with reference to what would be covered and what types of guarantee should be given. I would like to point out to you that in the (A) part there is no provision that school boards guarantee the retirement systems, the guarantee is the guarantee of the state. However, in the (B) part, on line 32, in the top of line 1, on page 2, you will note that the political subdivisions, which would include your municipalities, police juries-- and I might add, under the definition in local and parochial government also includes school boards, drainage districts, lighting districts, ports and all types of other political subdivisions-- would be included in the term "political subdivision." I asked Mr. Aertker the question when he was presenting this article as to whether or not the protection of the state would be adequate for these people as it is for the teachers and I believe, he agreed with that proposition. If the state guarantees it, then it should be safe. If we leave "political subdivisions" in there we're going to get into all kinds of problems for several reasons: first of all, if you will recall under Section 16 of the Local Government Article, the local governmental subdivisions have a right to approve legislative increases in pension and retirement benefits with the exception of firemen and policemen. Now, I think that local governmental subdivisions would be more reluctant to support those types of increases, if they were required to guarantee the systems. If the state is required to guarantee it, there is substantial protection and this would not be an inhibition to the local governmental units who would have to also share this protection to veto the increase in retirement benefits. You have another problem here, as I see it, with reference to securing of selling bonds. If the local governmental subdivision is required to guarantee the system, then, if the system was to default, how would you pay that which was required to be paid? The way this would be done, I assume, would be that the local governmental unit or the political subdivision would have to float a tax to make up the difference. Now, I believe this would be in the nature of a lien on all of the taxable property in the district to protect these retirement systems. But, if you go to sell bonds ... a bonding attorney would have to take cognizance of this provision and advise anyone who was a prospective purchaser of the bonds that the taxable property in the district would be subject to this requirement that the local governmental subdivision, or the political subdivision guarantee these bonds. Now, quite frankly, I don't know what effect that would have on the interest rate, and that was why I asked Mr. Aertker whether or not any research had been done on that point, as to what effect such a guarantee or hold harmless would have on interest rates on the bond market. But, I think it is certainly a factor that would have to be considered by any bonding attorney in certifying the bonds for sale. So, for this reason, I believe that these people who are covered in the (B) part should be given the same protection as the people in the (A) part, i.e., the protection of a state guarantee. I think we're courting a lot of problems if we try to extend the guarantee to the local governmental subdivisions themselves. If we're going to remain consistent between (A) and (B), then I would suggest that since we haven't required the school boards to guarantee the teachers' retirement systems, that we not require the political subdivisions to guarantee their retirement systems. The guarantee of the state is adequate, and I would move the adoption of the amendment. I'll be happy to answer any questions.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. HAYES

Mr. Lanier, could you clarify this distinction between the school boards being the political subdivision of the state?

MR. LANIER

I believe, Mr. Hayes, we had an amendment to the Local Government Article that included school boards under our definition that we had in Local Government that they would be a political subdivision under our Local Government definition. That's my recollection.

MR. HAYES

So, this would not affect the school boards in no ways?

MR. LANIER

I don't see how it could affect the school boards because the school boards are covered. The teaching people, and the people in education are covered in (A). The school boards are not required to guarantee these systems. All I'm asking for is that the other units be treated the same way.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Walt, do you make in reference, in the statement to the fact that the school boards do not have to guarantee a retirement system, do you know of any school board that has its own retirement system, other than the state retirement system?

MR. LANIER

I have no idea. In other words, I have no personal knowledge, but, as I understand it from the debate, that there is only one retirement system for schools, and that's the state retirement system for all education.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Do you know that it's a fact that other political subdivisions may have retirement systems that are not state retirement systems?

MR. LANIER

I'm sure that's possible, but another problem here--and I discussed this with you on this particular point--about the sheriffs and the clerks of courts and the assessor. They are constitutional state officers under the present constitution, and will remain so under our new constitution. We say in this (B) part that "the members....that there shall be a contractual relationship between the employer and the employee." I think that raises first a question as to whether these sheriffs and clerks and the assessors, who are they an employee of? They are constitutionally sanctioned officers who are elected by the people. Further, these people's retirement benefits, as I understand it, are paid for as a percentage from all of the taxable bodies in the parish that they are domiciled in, which could lead to the conclusion that every taxable district in the parish would have to guarantee the retirement systems of the sheriff, the clerk of court and the assessor. For example, Lafourche Drainage District Number 12 in Lafourche Parish, or the city of Thibodaux, or the Lafourche Parish Police Jury, I think this would lead to a very unusual situation if we try to do this. Now, as I understand it from my conversation with you, it was the intent, when this was written, that the unit that had the retirement system, would be the one to guarantee it. But, quite frankly, my feeling, Mr. Sutherland, is that the way this thing is written, it does not accomplish that. I think the best way to cure the problem would be to treat the (B) people like the (A) people, and just take out "political subdivision," and let everybody be protected by the state.

MR. SUTHERLAND

I would agree with you, Walt, except for the fact that the state may not want to enact laws providing for a system that they don't have control over it, and they don't want to guarantee it.

MR. LANIER

I believe they are now mandated to do so by the language of this thing, as it's presently written.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Well, again, how do you mandate them to do something? Do you go in there and say, "You've got to pass a law"?

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Lanier, I think you said something about that the school boards have been placed in the Local Government Committee as a political subdivision. Is that correct?

MR. LANIER

That's my understanding. I think Jack Burson was the one that had the amendment. I'm not sure, but my recollection is that they were classified as a political subdivision under our definition. That was by floor amendment, I believe.

MR. A. LANDRY

Is it also true that the percentage of taxes which goes to the retirement system of the clerks, the sheriffs and the assessors also comes out of the school board taxes?

MR. LANIER

I'm not personally aware of that, but Sheriff Martin advised me of that. Knowing Sheriff Martin, I'm sure that that's accurate since he collects them.

MR. A. LANDRY

Well, I can assure you that it is, and therefore, if we insert "political subdivision" wouldn't it also make the school board responsible for guaranteeing our systems?

MR. LANIER

I hadn't thought of that, Mr. Landry, but it may well be doing that by the back door.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Lanier, I'm assuming that you have equated "school boards" with municipalities and police juries. But, isn't there a distinct difference in that police juries and municipalities may tax; they may sell bonds unlimited. Unlike school boards, which may not legislate the tax, there are many things that they may not do without the direct authorization of the legislature. I think it's a distinct difference--is it not true--that a municipality, which is more or less independent...school boards, for example, get most of their or much of their revenue from the state, whereas municipalities do not. So, isn't that a distinct difference, and municipalities should be made to guarantee that system?

MR. LANIER

There is this distinction, Reverend. Between municipalities and parish governments, police juries in that under the Local Government Article, the municipality and the parish government is classified as the local governmental authority which has substantially more powers than single purpose districts. But, I believe that under the term "political subdivision," as defined in the Local Government Article and which I am seeking to take out of this provision, in that definition you would have drainage districts, lighting districts, sewerage districts, port commissions, levee districts, which are single-purpose districts, like school boards, and like school boards would be covered by this provision.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. ALEXANDER

Of course, the distinction I'm trying to make is that a teacher in Union Parish is guaranteed a minimum wage by the state, whereas the mayor or councilman from Farmerville or from Rayville may not guaranteed a salary other than by the municipality itself, or by the parish. That is the distinction I wish you would take into consideration.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 83-17. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Delegate Perez as follows: Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 30, between the word "be" and the word "a" insert the words "optional and".

Explanation

MR. PEREZ

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, if you will recall a little earlier, I asked the question with respect to whether or not under (B) it was intended that all political subdivisions of the state would have to get into these retirement systems because under the present law, the political subdivisions have the option as to whether they get in or get out. Under the present system, there are many, many political subdivisions, police juries and so forth that are not members of the parochial employees retirement system. Therefore, all I have done--and there shouldn't be any objection--on line 30 added "optional and" so that the retirement system of a political subdivision would be optional.

Questions

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Perez, you recognize the fact that each one of these retirement systems would have to be provided for by legislative act. Isn't that true?

MR. PEREZ

Yes.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Couldn't the legislative act provide whether or not it's optional or not?

MR. PEREZ

Well, I don't know from the reading of this. That's what bothers me, Senator, because it makes it appear as if it's mandatory that everybody get in the system, and as the system is now organized, it is not mandatory with regard to political subdivisions, with regard to parishes; they get into the retirement system, if they want to, or they don't if they don't want to. But, I'm concerned about the wording as to whether this would require everybody to get in.

MR. DE BLIEUX

Well, if the legislature doesn't provide for the retirement system, you wouldn't have any. Isn't that correct?

MR. PEREZ

Well, if you'll read from line 24, it says "the legislature shall enact laws providing for the retirement of officers and employees of the state, and its agencies and political subdivisions." So, in my judgment, that could be construed to mean that every political subdivision of the state would have to get into the parochial employees' retirement system. That's what I wanted... just wanted to be sure that it would conform with the present situation which provides that you get in if you want to get in, if you elect to get in.

MR. A. LANDRY

Mr. Perez, in an attempt to protect the political subdivisions, maybe you are doing something a little different as we already have in retirement system for clerks, sheriffs and assessors. Membership in those systems are mandatory. They have to belong. I'm just wondering, when you read the sentence, "membership in any retirement system of the state, or other political subdivisions, thereof, shall be optional." Then, wouldn't you automatically do away with the mandatory provision that we now have in our retirement system?

MR. PEREZ

Well, with regard to...I don't believe that you are a political subdivision as such. I wouldn't think it would apply to you.

MR. A. LANDRY

We're not a political subdivision, but it says, "Membership in any retirement system of the state, or of a political subdivision thereof, shall be optional" if we adopt your amendment.

MR. PEREZ

Well, I'll tell you, sir, as a member of Style and Drafting, if there's any question about this, I'll be glad to clear it up when we get in Style and Drafting and get it straightened out so that it applies only to the parochial system.

Further Discussion

MR. WINCHESTER

Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates, I am opposed to this amendment. I spoke to the research staff, and they agreed that this amendment would adversely affect the assessors' retirement, the sheriffs' retirement, and the clerks' retirement fund. I, therefore, ask for the defeat of this amendment.

Further Discussion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, I ask that you reject this amendment and pay very close attention to it because what it does is to say that the employees of the state who now belong to the state employees' retirement system. For example, it's optional as to whether or not they are going to participate in a retirement system. It is now mandatory that they participate in the retirement system. Let me tell you something: I've had some thirty years of experience in the negotiation of retirement systems. As a young man when I first started, I could never see the wisdom of a retirement system. In order to make it actuarially sound, you almost have to make it mandatory that if you're going to have a system, that you have to have it mandatory that everybody participate in that system. As the people grow older, as they belong to the system, they then begin to realize the value of the system. But, that first step is an extremely hard step to make so that if you make it optional, the only people that are going to participate are those who approach the age of retirement. Now, what he says is that he wants to make it optional for those employees on the local level. I submit to you that make it optional as to whether or not they have a system, but if they have a system, then it's mandatory and that the benefits provided in the system are guaranteed to the recipient at the time he gets able to retire. I ask you reject this amendment. This is a very serious amendment. I don't believe that Mr. Perez intended it to be this way. I hope not. But, that's what it does. I ask you to reject the amendment.

Reading of Paragraph (C)

MR. POYNTER

(C) Financial Security for Surviving Spouses and Children of Law Enforcement Officers in Certain Cases.

[Motion to waive reading of Paragraph (C) adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, Mr. Aertker had to go to an important meeting at the school board office and asked me if I'd explain Paragraph (C). Those of you that recall several years ago there was a number or several police officers killed in this state in the performance of their duties in the apprehension of of criminals. The legislature in its wisdom saw fit to submit to the people a constitutional amendment to appropriate funds or set up a procedure whereby the survivors could be compensated by the state in these instances. What this Paragraph (C) does is to carry that forward in the same atmosphere with these changes. It adds to the law enforcement officers the capitol security police, the guards at the state-owned hospitals, the security officers on the campuses of state-owned colleges and universities, guards at state penal institutions, law enforcement personnel of dock boards and levee boards, and persons on the payroll of the state or of any political subdivision of the state in training to become a law-enforcement officer, as defined in this subsection, and other state employees whose primary responsibility is the fulltime protection of state property. Those are the people that have been added to the existing constitutional provisions in the constitution today. The requirement in the past constitutional provision was that they had to be killed while in hot pursuit or the apprehension of a criminal. What this does is to change that requirement to say that if he's killed in the course of the performance of official duties or activities, while on or off duty, undertaking in the protection of life or property. That's the changes that are in the present constitution as proposed by Paragraph (C) of Proposal No. 11. There was some discussion in the committee as to whether or not this should be put into the statutes. I think the final conclusion was we needed some authority to appropriate funds through the legislature to private citizens in these particular instances. I think that basically at that time, also, we didn't have the vehicle by which to put it in the schedule, and to carry it forward in that fashion. That's the reason that it appears in Committee Proposal No. 11 in the fashion in which it does. Mr. Chairman, I'll be happy to answer any questions.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. NEWTON

Mr. Flory, there are presently constitutional provisions similar to this?

MR. FLORY

Almost identical with the additions that I've mentioned, Mr. Newton.

MR. NEWTON

Now, you say it was the committee's feeling that it was necessary to have some, sort of, authorization in the constitution?

MR. FLORY

Well, if you remember, the language, I believe, we have already adopted, that the legislature can only appropriate funds for public purposes, so that the authority to appropriate to private individuals is necessary somewhere in the constitution, in my judgment.

MR. NEWTON

Well, did you know, I would disagree with you on that, but even if that were true, do you think it's wise to put dollar amounts in a constitution? Isn't that the sort of thing that leads to constant amendments to the constitution?

MR. FLORY

This is one of the things that we considered: recommending that it be put in a statute. But, this was the dollar amounts contained in the present constitution. There was a great hue and cry in the state at the time this was adopted by the people by an overwhelming majority, and we chose to carry it forward in this fashion.

MR. PEREZ

I'd like to know why in lines 28 and 29 you take out, as one of those type officers who covered, probation and parole officers including juvenile probation and parole officers because isn't it true that many times, they are subjected to the same dangers of enforcement of the law that an ordinary policeman would?

MR. FLORY

I can only tell you that the committee followed the present constitutional language, I believe, Mr. Perez--and I don't have the present constitution before me--but, I believe that's in the present constitution, that they wanted to exempt, honorary... these some parishes... some places have honorary law officers, and they chose not to include those people, and as to the juvenile probation and parole officers, I can't answer that.

MR. PEREZ

Well, I had no objection, of course, to the honorary law enforcement officers. But, my question to you was that didn't you know that state probation and parole officers, including juvenile probation and parole officers, many times are called upon to enforce the law and are put in just as much danger to their life as might be a regular policeman or sheriff's deputy?

MR. FLORY

I wouldn't argue that point at all, Mr. Perez.

MR. PEREZ

But, would you have any objection to the deletion, so that if in the event they were killed in enforcing the law, that they, too, ...that their widows would also have the benefits?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. I wouldn't have any objection because what we're trying to do is to protect those people who are charged with the responsibility of law enforcement, and if they are killed, their survivors suffer the same hardships as any other law officer's, in my judgment.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Flory, I probably should say "do you know," but the fact is that I am in complete agreement with doing something for these people's families. The only thing I disagree with is that by listing individually which what, I would rather "leave, provide, and mandate" the legislature to do so, and by doing so and not stipulating a dollar figure, then we don't have to change it every time we might get a new type of individual that would be something in the next ten years, we might have some other people who deserve to be in there. Simply mandating the legislature to do this in this instance, and provide for it, would probably take care of it rather than have it listed and itemized in the constitution. Do you have any objection?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Champagne, as I recall the present constitutional provision and the jurisprudence on those provisions, there has been some question in the minds of the court and the attorney general of this state in certain cases where law enforcement personnel were killed, as to whether or not they were actually in hot pursuit, etc. and who was and who was not covered by the broad terminology used in the present constitutional provision so that the committee chose to, more or less, enumerate those situations, those personnel who we knew were charged with fulltime responsibility of law enforcement.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Yea, sir. But, you understand that the...I'm not in objection to all law enforcements, whether they're in hot pursuit or not. I think they ought to get it. But, the point is when you started enumerating it, you may run into the possibility of leaving somebody out or having somebody that shouldn't be in there. That's the question I have.

MR. FLORY

I agree. We considered that, and that's one of the reasons for the very numerous additions of categories that we list in the proposal.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, did I understand you correctly to say that there was a constitutional problem with not explicitly covering police officers like this?

MR. FLORY

No, I said, as I recall the present constitutional provision, the language in the constitution, I believe there's some jurisprudence on whether... who was covered, who was not covered, and whether or not that a person killed was actually in the hot pursuit of the apprehension of a criminal at that time. For example, let's say that a motorcycle officer chasing someone speeding, and his motorcycle slipped out from under him and he was killed. There's been some question as to whether or not he was actually in pursuit of a criminal because the person had not been convicted of speeding, etc.

MR. LANIER

But, that's under the present law. That's not necessarily true under our new constitution.

MR. FLORY

No, sir.

MR. LANIER

As a matter of fact, this article is entitled "Retirement and Survivor's Benefits," isn't it?

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. FLORY
Yes, sir.

MR. LANIER
Why wouldn't these police officers be covered under the (B) part dealing with state officers and employees?

MR. FLORY
I don't recall any specific reason, Mr. Lanier, other than the committee considered this in a separate fashion. Actually, it was a separate proposal, and we incorporated this in order to present to the convention a more concise proposal.

MR. WINCHESTER
Mr. Flory, do the words "Financial Security for Surviving Spouses and Children," do they carry any obligation other than the ten thousand and the five thousand in this?

MR. FLORY
No, sir.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Amendments

MR. POYNTER
The first set of amendments sent up by Delegate Jenkins. One change in it.
Amendment No. 1. On page 2, delete lines 4 through 32, and insert in lieu thereof the following:
"(C) Compensation for Surviving Spouses and Children of Law Enforcement Officers. The legislature (and here's the change--change "may" to "shall") shall establish a system for compensating the surviving spouses and dependent children of law enforcement officers and personnel, as may be defined by law, who suffer death as a result of injury sustained in the performance of official duties or while engaged in the protection of life or property while on or off duty."
Amendment No. 2. On page 3, delete lines 1 through 29, both inclusive, in their entirety.

Explanation

MR. JENKINS
Mr. Chairman, delegates, the purpose of this amendment is to take out the lengthy detail which is itemized in (C) on these pages 2 and 3. Really, the only purpose of (C), I think, is to provide an exception to the section in the Revenue, Finance and Taxation Article which prohibits the use of public funds for private purposes. It appears that this compensation to surviving spouses and dependent children might be considered a gratuity and, thus, perhaps, some constitutional authority is needed. But, certainly, the authority that would be needed would not extend to the detail of defining law enforcement officers and defining specifically how their remedies are going to be enforced, etc. So, what this attempts to do is simply to establish the authority for such a system without going into great detail. It leaves the definition of law enforcement officers and personnel up to the legislature. I think it leaves, really, all of the details--particularly as regard to, say, off duty personnel and things like that--up to the legislature because it will be up to the legislature to define with precision what sort of system would exist under this provision. This is a good program under our law for compensating these survivors. It's worked very well in the past, and just in order to insure it and in order, particularly, to reduce this length, I'm offering this amendment.

Questions

MR. PEREZ
Mr. Jenkins, the only question I have is that when you say, "The legislature may establish a system for compensating surviving spouses," I'm concerned as to whether or not public funds could be used unless it's more specifically stated. So, my question is whether or not you would be agreeable to an amendment after the word "system" which would say, "including the use of public funds"?

MR. JENKINS
I wouldn't object to that, Mr. Perez. I think that it's implicit in this. I don't know that it's necessary, but I wouldn't object to that.

MR. ABRAHAM
Woody, your . . . the last line there says, "or while engaged in the protection of life or property while on or off duty." Now, would this include officials or a patrolman or someone who may be working, say, for a private agency, or may be working for . . . directing traffic after a football game, or something like that, that are protecting life and property? I mean that. . . I don't think that's the intent of your amendment.

MR. JENKINS
The intent of it, Mack, is to allow the legislature to define and explain under what circumstances law enforcement officers would be entitled to such protection on or off duty when engaged in protecting life and property. It's not to say that in every circumstance involving protection of life or property on or off duty they would be covered, but to allow the legislature to establish a system, which system would provide that under certain circumstances they would be covered.

MR. ABRAHAM
Well, would not your intent be served, then, by simply saying, "or injuries sustained in the performance of official duties"--period--and leave that last part of the sentence out? Then the legislature can decide whether the official was on or off duty, or however it may be.

MR. JENKINS
I think the legislature could do that, yes, by defining official duty; I think the same purpose could be served--either way.

MR. ALEXANDER
Mr. Jenkins, am I assuming that the legislature may unify the system unlike the way it is now where it may favor one and, you know, not favor the other? Is it possible?

MR. JENKINS
Well, as I understand the system now, Reverend, it works so that the attorney general sues the legislative auditor to get these funds on behalf of the surviving spouse and any dependent children. I think that that is the system--that method of initiation of suits by the attorney general. I think that would continue. Now, if it has worked in some sort of arbitrary fashion in the past, I'm not aware of it. But I think that the attorney general, probably, is going to be looking out for these law enforcement personnel fairly well.

MR. ALEXANDER
Well, may I inform you that sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't? There's some cases now. But, would it not also be better if the system could be underwritten by an insurance company?

MR. JENKINS
I think that would be a very reasonable thing to do, and this allows the flexibility for that, as I appreciate it. So, I urge the adoption of the amendments.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 93-1. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER
I have one amendment. I don't have the copies. This has just been previously discussed. Mr. Perez sends up an amendment to the Jenkins amendment.
Amendment No. 1. On page 2, in Floor Amendment No. 1, proposed by Delegate Jenkins, and adopted by the Convention on December 5, on line 3, after the word "system" and before the word "for" insert the following:
", including the expenditure of public funds,"

Explanation

MR. PEREZ
Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, if you were listening a little earlier when I asked a question with respect to the use of public funds for the establishment of a system for compensating these people; in my judgment, the words, "The legislature may establish a system for compensating" is not sufficiently clear in light of the fact that we will have the absolute prohibition against the expenditure of public funds for private purposes under what is now Article IV, Section 12, of the constitution. To make it abundantly clear and to be sure that the public funds could be expended in this system, after the word "system" in the Jenkins amendment we'll just add the words, "including the expenditure of public funds," to make it clear that public funds could be used in such a system that was developed by the legislature.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

Questions

MR. CONROY

Mr. Perez, I agree with your objective, but don't you really confuse the situation as a result of 1 (A) and (B), each of which dictates that the legislature shall establish retirement systems and say nothing about funds? Don't you create a cloud on what we've done in (A) and (B) if you insert this language with regard to funds here, because we don't say anything about funds in (A) and (B)?

MR. PEREZ

Well, those are quasi-public bodies, and I believe that this is possibly in a little different category. But, I do believe that we should make this abundantly clear, and if we feel there's a necessity to make the other ones clear, we might do it also. But, I'm concerned when you say that you're going to establish—this is a system for a direct payment which is much different than a retirement system. This is a payment to one particular surviving spouse or a group of people which is a little different than a general system of retirement benefits. I just believe it's necessary to make it perfectly clear.

MR. CONROY

Well, I believe that you'll find that under (A) and (B) they both contemplate, in addition, payments to widows. It says, "lawful. . . payments to lawful beneficiary at his death or retirement," and I just didn't see the distinction.

MR. PEREZ

Well, I just believe that because of Article IV, Section 12, or its counterpart, that it should be made clear that these words should be in there.

[Previous Question ordered. Amendment adopted: 82-10. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. POYNTER

Amendment sent up by Mr. Velazquez, Jack, Warren, Miller, Maybuce, Martin, Johnny Jackson and Ourso.

The instructions have to be changed. It was passed out with just Mr. Velazquez' name on it; a number of other people have joined. The instructions need to be changed. I think it would work basically like this:

In Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Mr. Jenkins and adopted by the Convention on today, on line 6 of the text of said amendment, immediately after the word "death" and before the words "as a" insert the following:

"or who suffered death before the effective date of this constitution, but not earlier than July 1, 1972," (that's inserted, now).

Explanation

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, this is a relatively simple amendment that attempts to correct several injustices that are prevalent right now in the state. At the time of the Howard Johnson incident in New Orleans, a young man was killed who was a police cadet. He was not a law enforcement officer as defined by the 1921 Constitution, so the statutes written pursuant to that constitution did not apply to him. At this date, his widow and his children have not yet collected the amount stipulated in the 1921 Constitution. Now, when State Representative Connor introduced. . . attempted to introduce special legislation to extend the benefits specified in the 1921 Constitution to this particular individual, he was told it would require a constitutional amendment and a statewide vote. Since constitutional amendments were catching hell, he decided the best thing to do would be to wait until C.C./'73 and attempt to do it this way. As it is written, it extends. . . it makes retroactive the period of time which this money could be collected under. . . as defined in our present proposed constitution to July 1, 1972. By this means, it would include from three to ten individuals. The persons would still have to go through administrative or judicial treatment to be declared eligible for this thing. I had a letter from the attorney general which I didn't bring, unfortunately, because I didn't think we'd cover this particular committee proposal today. But, he said it appeared that three people would definitely be covered, perhaps five, but no more than ten persons. The overall effect is to allow these individuals to get justice if a court of competent jurisdiction or proper administrative procedure supports it. I urge your favorable adoption of this amendment.

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Velazquez, I would just like to understand as nearly as I can exactly what the intent of your amendment is. The intent of your amendment is to include in the coverage that we are specifying cadets and other police personnel. Is that correct?

MR. VELAZQUEZ

Yes, ma'am, who died retroactively to July 1, 1972, which is the only date which I can find relatively reliable figures. Beyond that date, the figures become somewhat garbled as we've left the fiscal year.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, you said you didn't bring the attorney general's letter with you, and I sympathize with that because it's tough to have things brought up at the last minute. But, let me ask you a little something about the phrasing of that letter. As I understood Cadet Harrel's widow's position, she was disqualified under two parts of the old constitution. Number one, Cadet Harrel was not an officer, and it specified that they be an officer. But, in addition to that, Cadet Harrel was not in hot pursuit. He was shot from an alley as he just kind of stood there. He wasn't pursuing anybody and didn't really know there was anybody out there, as I understand it. Did you, in your letter, ask the attorney general how many people would be covered by the two changes that you are making, or did you only refer to the change in the status of the police personnel?

MR. VELAZQUEZ

I made as specific a statement as I could. But, I feel this way: this man is a policeman; he's just as dead whether he was standing in an alley or whether he was in hot pursuit. His wife is a widow, his children are orphans no matter whether he was in hot pursuit or whether he was scratching his head at the time.

MRS. ZERVIGON

I understand that, Mr. Velazquez, but the question is: the three to ten people that you are talking about, I was just wondering the figure that you got three to ten people is in response to what question?

MR. VELAZQUEZ

It was in response to a question directed toward this particular incident, but wanting to be broad enough to get specific coverage; in this case it is July 1 date which gave some specific data. If I tried to go beyond that date, as I felt I should have, the data became very confused as to numbers. With this date, I have a relative idea of numbers. I thought it would be unfair to come before the convention with a date and not be able even in relative terms to give you a number.

MRS. ZERVIGON

It mentioned that we were changing the concept from hot pursuit to scratching your head?

MR. VELAZQUEZ

That would be taken care of, I'm quite sure, by the legislature, if they wish to handle it that way. But, I feel that if we don't have the specific retroactive act, then these. . . this gentleman in particular, who died, his widow will get nothing and his children will get nothing. I feel this is unfair; it's also unfair to similar officers in the state. I think the number is approximately ten, but if there are more, I think that ten thousand dollars for losing your father is only a nominal and token amount.

Further Discussion

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen, as much as I regret, I think that I have to oppose this particular amendment. I understand what Mr. Velazquez is trying to do. He's trying to take care of a situation and give benefits to a person who did not have any benefits at the present time, under the present constitution, or even at the time that this particular constitution would be adopted. This is retroactive legislation is what it amounts to. If we're going to give benefits to this particular person, why not go back to some of those other people who were killed earlier than before this was enacted into law? I certainly would feel like that those people that were in this particular category which could not receive benefits at the time that he was. . . actually suffered death should be taken care of in the future. We should correct our laws for the future. But, I don't feel like we can afford to go back. This would be setting a very bad precedent going back and trying to pick up somebody who didn't have any benefits at the time. I just feel like that this is bad. It's in the form of legislation, and we should not do it. It's a matter of principle of what we can do with public funds. Now, this is payment out of the public treasury, taxpayers' money or public funds. I just don't feel like the taxpayers would meet this with approval.

Further Discussion

MR. JACK

Mr. Chairman and members, I arise in support of this amendment of which I am a coauthor. I first want to answer Senator De Blieux's argument in which he's against it. If you will note, the coverage for this cadet or any others goes back to July 1, 1972. Now, bear that in mind for this simple reason: this is not going way back to like a net catching a lot in the past. Ordinarily, any death action, there's a lawsuit; you got a year from when it happens. As I understand from listening to Mr. Velazquez and talking to him before I became a coauthor on this, action was taken in the legislature. Nothing could be accomplished because of him being a cadet. That carried on for the others that may be in it, as high, I believe, the. . . Mr. Velazquez said of maybe up to eight or ten. Now, ladies and gentlemen, that's a small amount to pay--ten thousand dollars--to widows and children of officers or cadets -- law enforcement people who lose their life. It's in Jenkins' amendment, "who suffered death as a result of injury sustained in the performance of official duties or while engaged in the protection of life or property while on or off duty." Now, that is not like the remark made of while scratching their head. That's while protecting your life and protecting your property. I'm surprised somebody hasn't objected to it being when they're off duty. Let me tell you, if somebody is after me to shoot me, I sure want that off duty policeman to intervene and protect my life. Now, this is a good amendment, and I hope you'll pass it. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. J. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I join Mr. Velazquez in authoring the amendment. I don't know--and I would like for someone to explain to us as a coauthor, does the Jenkins amendment really allow the legislature to provide a statute whereby the kinds of coverage that we are seeking would be available? I understand an objection. . . to one objection raised by Senator De Blieux that we cannot as a constitutional body do anything retroactively, as such. I wanted to ask him the question. I understand in terms of retroactive legislation, that refers to the legislature or any body such as this not being able to take away a right, retroactive, and it's limited to that rather than affording a right because I would assume that if that was possible, that some of the legislation, particularly on a national level that we have existing today, would not exist. Now, if. . . I believe and I've said constantly that I do have some problems with the administration of the criminal justice system. But, I do believe in fairness to everybody; if you're going to allow a cadet in training to be placed in a posture whereby he's going to perform certain duties--he's going to ride in patrol cars, he's going to, in most cases, be used for undercover work--and if he's married or if he has heirs, then you ought to afford to his family and his heirs those same rights given to law enforcement officers. I remember the bill well because I coauthored with Mr. Connor, and I do understand that there was a constitutional limitation that prevented us from introducing the statute. I would have no objection, and I guess Mr. Velazquez would have to as lead author, you know, give his point, but if we can get some sort of assurance that the Jenkins amendment does provide or enable the legislature to do it, then I say. But the question I raised in opposition to that, or I raised as a question, if we can constitutionalize the surviving. . . the benefits of members of law enforcement--so called legally defined law enforcement officers--if we can constitutionalize that, then I just wonder if we run into some problems legislatively, if we don't provide within this constitution. Those are my concerns. But, I just wanted to clear up an understanding that you can, and the legislature can pass retroactive laws provided that they don't take away a right. But, they can extend a benefit.

[Previous Question ordered. Record vote ordered. Amendment adopted: 87-10. Motion to reconsider tabled.]

Amendment

MR. FOYNTER

Mr. Flory sends up amendments as follows:

Amendment No. 1. On page 2, line 4, in Floor Amendment No. 1 proposed by Delegate Jenkins and adopted by the Convention on December 5, on line 2 of the language added by that amendment after the word "Enforcement" delete the word and punctuation "Officers." and insert in lieu thereof the words and punctuation "Officers and Firemen." and on line 5 of the language added by that amendment after the word "enforcement" delete the word "officers" and insert in lieu thereof the words and punctuation "officers, firemen,"

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, this amendment merely adds the word "firemen" wherever you have the words "law enforcement personnel and firemen." The firemen now enjoy a similar provision, but it's in the statutes so that they were satisfied to leave the details of their benefits in the statutes of the state. However, if there is a question--as I believe that there is--upon the authority of the legislature to appropriate funds to the payment of private individuals, all this then does is give to the legislature the right to continue those payments that had been made under the statutes as now prescribed in the law--all it does is add the word "firemen."

Questions

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, some of what we are doing troubles me. We are applying it to these people on and off-duty protecting. . . in the protection of property. It doesn't say "it necessarily when you are off duty it has to be an official action" it just says "protecting life and property." Isn't it the case that some of these people when they are off duty are in other people's employ?

MR. FLORY

That's correct and would not be covered.

MRS. ZERVIGON

It doesn't say they wouldn't be covered if when they are in other people's employ, they are doing something to protect property.

MR. FLORY

It says "while in the performance of official duties."

MRS. ZERVIGON

Or. . . .

MR. FLORY

Or. . . .

MRS. ZERVIGON

Or, is disjunctive.

MR. FLORY

Or while engaged in a protection of life or property.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Or is disjunctive, it doesn't say "and" it says "or."

MR. FLORY

It says "or in the performance. . . . let me read it.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, the official duty doesn't. . . .

MR. FLORY

"Injury sustained in the performance of official duties or while engaged in the protection of life or property while on or off duty." I presume in the legislature--and I know in the firemen's statute now--provides that. I'm sure that the legislature would provide that same....carry forward that same provision. The problem coming, Mrs. Zervigon, is that if a person--let's take a law enforcement officer who is off duty and who....a uniformed officer is in the process of apprehending a criminal and he calls on help and the off-duty officer joins with him and is killed in the process, then he likewise would qualify. The same thing would affect the fireman who is....who goes in in the protection of property in the fire or in a riot situation, even though he may be off duty, he would then qualify for the same provisions as he does now.

92nd Days Proceedings--December 5, 1973

MRS. ZERVIGON

I have no objection to that, Mr. Flory, so long as it's your opinion when you say "the legislature shall provide a system" that the guidelines and rules within that system could say that it doesn't apply to people who are, at the time, in someone else's employ.

MR. FLORY

I would not think that....and the reason for the latitude given to the legislature in defining the system, on or off duty, is to take into consideration the questions that you raised. I would not think that the legislature would allow payment or appropriate funds to survivors who were--let's say a person was killed while in the employ of a private individual--let's take a grocery store, for example, who hires a guy off duty to protect his private property--and I'm sure that the legislature would not allow that to...would not appropriate funds to compensate those survivors. So, this is within the latitude of the legislature to prescribe the limitations under which these people could qualify for the appropriations.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Well, is it also your opinion that with regard to off-duty officers and firemen, the legislature could say that if they are being negligent in some kind of way, their survivors are not taken care of?

MR. FLORY

I looked at your amendment and the thought that struck me was a case that happened in your city, and I would have to object to it on the basis that I don't know who would determine in the case of a motorcycle officer chasing someone could qualify to say at the point that the motorcycle slipped out from under him and he was killed, whether he was negligent in the operation of that vehicle--in that motorcycle.

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, I'm talking about off-duty officers.

MR. FLORY

Well, I'm talking about on or off. Let's say he's got a motorcycle he owns privately, and he rides in it and joins in it, theoretically. Then, the question comes in to determine whether or not he was negligent in the operation of the vehicle. Now, this is the only question that it raises in my mind. I agree in concept with what you are attempting to do; I don't know how to phrase it.

MRS. ZERVIGON

But, it's your opinion that the legislature could set guidelines like that if they weren't susceptible to proper interpretation, and they could change them over the years. But, they could say that you don't have to be reimbursed if it's clearly through your own negligence that you were injured.

MR. FLORY

Well, I think the legislature could do that without question and would without question.

MRS. ZERVIGON

....because isn't it true that the various insurance companies have guidelines that say the same thing and manage to enforce them?

MR. FLORY

Absolutely correct, there are limitations in practically all life insurance policies to my knowledge.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, in LaFourche Parish, we do not have any public firemen--every firemen in Lafourche Parish is a volunteer firemen. Does your amendment propert to include volunteer firemen?

MR. FLORY

To be honest with you, Mr. Lanier, I did not....the question didn't come into my mind at that time. There are two major systems in the state to my knowledge that are volunteers---your area and in the Gretna area, I believe. Under the language as it's drawn, yes, I think they could if defined by the legislature. It was my intent that it be paid firemen as the law now says under the supplemental pay, etc.

MR. LANIER

So, it's not your intent to include volunteer firemen?

MR. FLORY

It was not my original intention, although, I think if the man was killed in the performance of his duty that would then be a question of the legislature to define whether or not they wanted to appropriate funds in that manner.

MR. LANIER

Now, my second question is: As I understand your amendment to the Jenkins amendment, line 5 would then mean or say "enforcement officers, firemen and personnel." Since enforcement would no longer include per...define personnel, who would be the personnel that we are talking about if you stick firemen between "enforcement officers and personnel"?

MR. FLORY

I can't visualize at the moment, I'm thinking of the radio alarm people, etc., but they would not be called out or be subjected under normal circumstances to fighting fires or in a riot situation unless it were in extreme cases where, however, it's possible that they could be. I'm talking about those people who operate the alarm systems.

MR. LANIER

Don't you think that maybe this might more properly be written as "law enforcement officers and personnel and firemen," rather than "law enforcement officers, firemen and personnel, because that leaves personnel unmodified?

MR. FLORY

Well, I think we are really quarreling over words; I don't think it makes a great deal of difference because if you look at the intent of it, it's to let the legislature set the guidelines. I think in the definition established by the legislature, they could easily define the situation which you are talking about. I don't see any problems.

MR. LANIER

Under your amendment, as drawn, could the legislature direct local units of government to pay these benefits?

MR. FLORY

No, sir---this is state appropriations.

MR. LANIER

These are intended to be state appropriations....

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir.

MR. LANIER

....and, not financial burdens upon local government?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, it was never intended. The program now in existence in the constitution and in the statutes as relates to firemen and policemen are state appropriations.

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Flory, I know that you have good intentions here. But, let me cite you a situation in Lafayette Parish. We have six incorporated cities. Of those six, there is only one city that has a paid fire department and that's the city of Lafayette. The five other cities have all volunteer fire departments. I can see a problem, as Mr. Lanier sees, in our volunteer fire department because when a fire comes about, any public spirited citizen--whether he is employed or not by the city--will jump to the cause of the volunteer fire department. What is your intention, insofar, as these volunteer firemen are concerned?

MR. FLORY

Let the legislature define as to whether or not, in their wisdom, they want to cover them or not. Let me give you one of the problems as it relates to the volunteer firemen that I'm aware of--there are some in this parish. One of the problems is that there has been a legal question as to how you go about providing workmen's compensation even in the event that the man is killed, although he may be a fireman in the performance of his official duties as a fireman fighting a fire, killed or injured while performing that service. Now, the question has come up legally as to how do you go about providing workmen's compensation benefits for him and his survivors of that? I think under this the legislature could, perhaps, I don't know I haven't really given any study to it and haven't discussed it with my attorneys. But, I think they could in those particular situations make statutory provisions for these types of coverage. I think it's something that the legislature, in its wisdom, ought to go into and make an intelligent study on whether or not they, with state funds, want to appropriate these funds for volunteer firemen.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, I understand that the Jenkins amendment--just passed by this convention--is, in fact, a permissive provision, not a mandatory provisions, is that correct, sir?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. He changed the word "may" to "shall."

MR. CHATELAIN

In other words, then you...the legislature shall provide for a system then?

MR. FLORY

A system...and let the legislature, in its wisdom, determine what kind of system and to what extent and to who shall be covered under that system in the broad category of "law enforcement officers, personnel and firemen."

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, really, if you are going to maintain the intent of the amendment that I put in there, you are going to have to take that "firemen" and put it after "personnel" because the intent was to say "law enforcement officers and law enforcement personnel." By putting that "firemen" in between them, you make the word "personnel" ambiguous. It just seems to me if you are going... I know this is a pretty bunged up section as it is with these amendments. But, I think to be logical and consistent you need to do that.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, I have no objections to doing what you're saying. But, the amendment really places "firemen" in two places in the amendment and in order to pursue it, I would have no objections to withdrawing it and doing it in that fashion, other than, the problem you run into as far as the withdrawing and resubmitting the amendment. But, I don't think it makes a great deal of difference because what you have done here is to give to the legislature the authority to make the definition as to the boundaries of the system and who shall participate in the system. So, I don't really see any problem where you put it before or after--that's why I would have no objection if you come later, change it from where it is in my amendment to put it after the word "personnel," because I know what we are talking about when we talk about firemen, even those people in the radio alarm system wear uniforms and are firemen as such; so, I would have no problem in that area. I think what you are talking about, perhaps, is secretaries, etc., which you do not want to cover--nor do I--nor would they be subjected to these types of situations we are talking about, in my judgment.

Reading of Paragraph (D)

MR. POYNTER

"Paragraph (D) Retirement Systems; Notice of Intent to Propose Amendments or Change; Publication. No proposal to amend or effect any change in existing laws or provisions of the constitution relating to any retirement system in this state shall be introduced into the legislature unless notice of intention to introduce such proposal shall have been published, without cost to the state, in the Official Journal on two separate days, the last day of which is at least thirty days prior to the introduction of such bill into the legislature. The notice shall state the substance of the contemplated law or proposal to amend the constitution. Every such bill shall contain a recital that the notice has been given."

Explanation

MR. MORRIS

Mr. Chairman, members of the convention, this section has to do with intent to change the retirement system and the procedure which you should follow in making the changes. The proposed constitution says that "you must advertise twice in the Official Journal on two separate days, the last day which would be thirty days prior to the introduction of this bill." It retains the requirement that "such notice states the substance of the contemplated law or proposal contained in the notice that shall be given." The constitution today provides that "any change in the constitution must be advertised on three successive days, thirty days prior to the regular session." This just changes it to twice, thirty days prior to the introduction of bills for intent to change the retirement system. It's a very simple thing and it is contained in the present constitution.

I will be glad to answer any questions.

Questions

MR. GOLDMAN

How can you publish it in the Official Journal without cost to the state? Isn't the Official Journal the State Times and Morning Advocate or something like that?

MR. MORRIS

Anybody, Mr. Goldman, that wishes to make a change they do so--the advertisement--at their own expense, rather than the state's expense.

MR. GOLDMAN

Oh, I see---it's done by the person that proposes the change?

MR. MORRIS

Yes, sir.

MR. WINCHESTER

Why do you think that this publication is necessary? I'm not objecting. I'm just trying to find out the reason.

MR. MORRIS

Mr. Winchester, someone asked me that a while ago. Someone in my office, prior to the legislative session, collects these things so that we will have some idea of what is contemplated change wise with the retirement system--particularly in the teacher retirement system, which I know best--so, we have some understanding, some knowledge of what is contemplated in changing the retirement system. I think it puts people on notice. Particularly, the public on notice that there is a change contemplated and what section they are contemplating changing.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Morris, what we did in this particular provision was to make it coincide with the legislature session, I believe it was, where you have to give notice of publication for passage of local and special laws. This really, in effect, is to put on notice local governments who have retirement systems that you are going to introduce into the legislature, changes that might affect the actuarial soundness of the funds or make it increase the benefits so they will know ahead of time what is going to be proposed and this ties in with the other provisions that we have already adopted.

MR. MORRIS

Yea, sir.

MR. BROWN

Mr. Morris, why does this have to be in the constitution, it just seems to be just a statutory as it can be, and why.... what is the importance of putting this in the constitution? Why are you so locked in on that?

MR. MORRIS

Senator Brown, I hate to say just because it's in the previous constitution. But, we do think that it is a good safeguard that at least it gives people who watch this sort of thing the opportunity to be on guard for it and it could be, probably, handled by statute. But, we felt like it should be in the constitution.

92nd Days Proceedings—December 5, 1973

MR. J. JACKSON

That provision would allow not only for persons who want to adversely effect a retirement system, but also those persons who may want to—let's say a legislator—who may just want to on the spur of the moment, increase one which would ultimately result in really throwing the retirement system out of balance... further out of balance. Right?

MR. MORRIS

It very easily could be, Representative Jackson.

MR. J. JACKSON

Right.

ROLL CALL

[93 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. LANDRUM

Our Father, we thank Thee once again for all Thy blessings. Being so good and kind, enable us to rise once again to come and to work on what is supposed to be a document for our people. We pray that Thou would give us understanding--not only understanding, but give us the will to do what is pleasing in Thy sight. Look on the families of each and every delegate here--not only delegates, but everyone connected with this convention. Bless our state as a whole and our nation. In the name of Christ we pray. Amen.

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

Personal Privilege

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, since I was caught gambling by winning two hundred dollars on the football pot, I'm giving a birthday party this afternoon around 3:15 for the sixteen delegates of the convention who admit they have a December birthday, and for the staff of the convention. We'll have a birthday cake, homemade nut cakes and date rolls made just for you, toasted pecans and sandwiches. If you want anything else, you better tell me before this afternoon. Thank you.

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

[Motion to call Committee Proposal No. 9 from its regular order adopted without objection.]

Reading of the Proposal

MR. POYNTER

Committee Proposal No. 9, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare, and other delegates, members of that committee:

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state and city civil service.

The proposal has, as I appreciate it, but one section. I presume you all want to waive reading that for the time being.

[Motion to waive reading of Section 1 adopted without objection.]

Explanation

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Chairman and members. . . delegates to the constitutional convention, I consider it an honor and a privilege to have this assignment this morning and to discuss with you the workings of the committee which led to the proposal which is before you. While the details of the various sections will be discussed as the sections and subsections are considered, an overview of the committee's proposal and a background of the events and the considerations which went into the development of this proposal seems to me to be necessary. Let me begin by stating that few individuals are neutral on civil service. Either you are for it or against it, and then the differences begin. Of course, if you are against a civil service or a merit system, of course, you see no need for its inclusion in the constitution. If you are for a civil service system, then the disagreement comes as to what extent should detail be outlined in a constitution to guarantee its continuance. The development of the civil service system in Louisiana has great similarity to the establishment of the federal civil service system. By that, I mean that the federal system was formally and permanently established by the Civil Service Act of 1883. That act's passage followed several attempts on limited basis by various agencies and authorities. However, the passage of the Civil Service Act of 1883 was enhanced by the increasing disgust with the "spoils system." While I'm not as familiar with the details of the development of the formal civil service system in Louisiana, Louisiana, too, had made several attempts at merit systems with port authorities, police systems in New Orleans and several others. She experienced terminations by the legislature, all of which preceded the establishment of the civil service by constitutional amendment in 1952. In spite of the fact that the civil service and the merit system are common words, there are many different concepts regarding what they, in fact, mean. While it may be generally agreed that either the combination of words mean employment based on merit, and that it should be a guarantee against the mass firings that comes along with the motion with changes of administration, actually, the operation of a civil service system and the problems caused by inept operations lead to the basis of attacks for the system and not actually the principle of a civil service system itself. Making a differentiation has been the challenge of the subcommittee which considered the civil service system for the Constitutional Convention '73. In our subcommittee's deliberations we heard from many. We heard from individuals representing the present. . . the operation of the present system, individuals representing personnel organizations, personnel associations and personnel councils. Individuals appeared before us who were responsible for the setting and monitoring of the policies of civil service as it now exists in the states. Those were the commissioners of the present system. Individuals who are responsible for carrying out the policies, the personnel directors--the state personnel directors, the personnel directors for the city civil service in New Orleans, personnel directors for the Jefferson Parish system--and we heard from individuals representing employees. Without a doubt, and as they stated, all wanted a continuation of the guarantee of a civil service system in the State of Louisiana. While they differed on the amount of details, that is the verbiage that would be in the new constitution, they nevertheless felt that constitutional guarantee was necessary to avoid the undesirable past practices. A study of the testimony that was presented to our committee identifies several rather common pertinent issues in regards to civil service system. They are as follows: the concerns dealt primarily with the membership of the commission--the number of members and the representation of that commission of the citizenry of the state and of the city where city civil service existed. There were expressed concerns about the nomination of the commissioners to the commission, the autonomy of the commission--its rule-making powers. The differences came on the degree to which the commission should have absolute rule-making power. Another issue mentioned to us several times had to do with the rule of three in regards to the certification of persons for consideration for the filling of vacancies. Tremendous criticism was made of the testing and certification procedure, but primarily testing and the means of identifying the person allegedly to be the best qualified to fill a vacancy. There were concerns about the relevancy of the tests to the jobs, and the validity of the tests in predicting the success of individuals on the job. The other of the more pertinent issues had to do with the appellate system. A study of the testimony and the discussion with those appearing before us indicates that as a minimum, or to some degree a maximum, constitutional coverage should be a creation and establishment of the system and the commission; that these factors should be in the constitution; that the constitution should not only guarantee the continued existence of a civil service system, but that it should point out the commission, the nonpolitical appointment of commissioners, the protection of commissioners from arbitrary removal, the powers of the commission--that is the degree and the absoluteness or like thereof of the commission--and a uniform pay plan, and an appeals procedure as well as the guarantee of funds for the administration of a merit system. There were strong opinions on several issues by many, and although not volunteered in, statements by others were concurred in such as the necessity for the expansion of the commission, or at least make commissioners more representative of the citizenry. Another issue had to do with the administrative officer--making the administrative officer of the commission qualify under the classified service. It was against that background, fellow delegates, that Committee Proposal No. 9 was developed. I would like to, for the sake of enhancing discussions, hopefully, on the proposal, it seems imperative that we point out the. . . what in totality the committee's proposal does. In answer to the discussions and the pleas of the persons appearing before us in our own deliberation, Committee Proposal No. 9 establishes, or in another way guarantees the continuation of a civil service system in the state. It defines its intent for both the state and city civil service systems. It establisha or continues state and city civil service commissions, but changes the composition of those commissions and the nominating authorities. It provides for the compensation of the commissioners and the filling of vacancies and the removal of the commissioners. It changes the name of the chief administrative officer and places him in the classified service. It provides for classified and unclassified positions with listed exceptions. It provides for the appointment and promotion, continuing veterans preference. Provides for layoffs and for disciplinary action for the violation of regulations, with the rulings of the commission subject to the review of the court of appeal in which the commission is located, and it continues the rule-making power of the commission along with the restriction against political activity. It provides for the acquisition of permanent status by employees, the continuation of all existing laws which are not inconsistent with those changed in this proposal. It further guarantees the appropriation for the operation of the system, and it provides enabling rights for cities and parishes to establish civil service systems of their own. I must point out that this proposal finally cleared the Committee on Education and Welfare after most of the items escaped the subcommittee with votes of four to three, with some being broken by the vote of the chairman. Subsequently, this proposal passed the committee by a vote on individual subsections of ten to nine. I suggest to you that in the discussion of this proposal, that we attempt to differentiate between what is necessary to be in the constitution to guarantee a civil service system in the state and of that which it is felt must be in the constitution, to what extent must it be spelled out in detail. Against that background, Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, we are prepared to discuss the Committee Proposal No. 9 on human resources having to do with civil service. I would like to suggest, Mr. Chairman, that we discuss the proposal by subsections beginning with Section 1, Subsection (A).

MR. HENRY

You want to suggest that we discuss it or handle it like. . . Are you suggesting we handle it like we did the retirement proposition, yesterday, or you just want to discuss it?

MR. RACHAL

I would like the differentiation from the retirement one of yesterday, since that required sixty-seven votes.

MR. HENRY

So, you want to discuss Paragraph (A) of Section 1 at this time?

MR. RACHAL

Right.

Explanation

MR. RACHAL

Under Section 1, Subsection (A), the committee's proposal, for the most part, retains the definition that appears in the present constitution--the 1921 Constitution. It retains the service. . .it defines the state civil service and the intent and the agencies to be included, and the positions therein. That is: under Section 1, Subsection (A), number (1) having to do with state civil service. I don't think, Mr. Chairman, that I need to read that particular subsection.

Amendments

MR. POYNTER

Amendments sent up by Delegates Flory, Rachal, Toca, Haynes, Wisham, and many other coauthors.

Amendment No. 1. On page 1, line 14, following the word "Service" and before the period "." insert the word "Commission" and delete the remainder of line 14 and delete lines 15 through 28 of page 1 and in lieu thereof substitute the following:

"There is hereby created and established a State Civil Service Commission to be composed of seven members who are citizens and qualified voters of the State of Louisiana. Five members of the Commission shall constitute a quorum. The seven commissioners shall be appointed by the governor for a term of four years as follows:

The presidents of Louisiana State University and Agricultural and Mechanical College at Baton Rouge, Louisiana; Centenary College at Shreveport, Louisiana; Louisiana College at Pineville, Louisiana; Southern University at Scotlandville, Louisiana; and Xavier University at New Orleans, Louisiana, shall each nominate three persons, and one member of the commission shall be appointed by the governor from the three persons nominated by each such president. Two members of the commission shall be appointed by the governor by his own selection. Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governor from nominations made in like manner by the president (or his successor) of that institution . . .

who nominated the member whose place is being filled or by the governor on his own selection in cases of a gubernatorial appointee. It shall be the duty of the presidents of Xavier University and Southern University to, within thirty days after the effective date of this constitution, make such nominations, and thereafter within thirty days after any vacancy occurs, it shall be the duty of the presidents of each of said institutions to make such nominations. Within thirty days of the expiration of the terms of the members of said commission previously nominated by the presidents of Loyola University and Tulane University and serving at the effective date of this constitution, it shall be the duty of the governor to fill such vacancy by his own selection.

All appointments as hereinabove provided shall be made by the governor without confirmation by the Senate."

Amendment No. 2. On page 1, line 29, following the word "Service and before the punctuation period "." insert the word "Commission" and delete the remainder of line 29 and on page 1 delete lines 30 through 32 and on page 2, delete line 1 and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"There is hereby created and established a city civil service commission for each city having a population in excess of 400,000 according to the latest decennial census of the United States. Each such city civil service commission shall be composed of five citizens who are qualified voters of the city in which they serve, three of whom shall constitute a quorum. One member of each city civil service commission shall be appointed by the governing authority of the city by its own selection and one member of such commission shall be elected by the employees of the city in the classified service from their membership. In the city of New Orleans, the presidents of Tulane University, Loyola University of the South and Dillard University shall each nominate three persons and one member of the commission shall be appointed by the governing authority of the city of New Orleans from the three persons nominated by each president. In other cities subject to the provisions of this section, three members of the commission shall be nominated from any of the three universities named in Section 1 in accordance with the procedure therein provided. The terms of the members of the city civil service commission shall be four years. Within thirty days of the effective date of this constitution, it shall be the duty of the president of Dillard University to make such nominations to the governing body of the city of New Orleans. Within thirty days from the effective date of this constitution an election shall be held within the classified service of the city of New Orleans for the purpose of naming a member of said commission. Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governing body, or by election, or by nomination as herein provided in the same manner as the original appointments were made, and it shall be the duty of the governing body to make such appointments or conduct such election of the said presidents to make such nominations within thirty days after the occurrence of any vacancy.

(3) Coverage, Exclusions, Amendments. Except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this article, all of the provisions of Article 14, Section 15, of the Constitution of 1921 providing for a system of classified civil service for the state and for cities are hereby retained and continued in force and effect. The legislature upon the favorable vote of two-thirds of the elected membership of each house may amend, repeal or otherwise modify any of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution of 1921, which are continued by this article or amend, repeal or otherwise modify any provision of this article except that the legislature may not abolish the system of classified civil service in the state and in the cities of over 400,000 population according to the latest decennial census of the United States nor may it include in the classified civil service system of such cities employees of the fire and police departments, who are expressly excluded from said classified service.

Amendment No. 3. On page 2, delete lines 2 through 32 and delete in their entirety pages 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17.

Recess

Vice Chairman Casey in the Chair

[Quorum Call: 98 delegates present and a quorum.]

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, we've come now to a point in the convention that I consider to be, perhaps, one of the most grave matters of concern for some sixty-thousand state employees in this state, as well as the thousands of employees of the city of New Orleans, and the thousands of firemen and policemen throughout this state who have enjoyed for a number of years the constitutional protection of civil service. At the present time, under the state civil service, the Civil Service Commission is composed of five members, appointed by the governor from a list of nominees...At the present time, the Civil Service Commission is composed of five members, appointed from a list of three names submitted by the following five colleges and universities in the state: Centenary College, Louisiana College in Alexandria, Louisiana State University in Baton Rouge, Tulane University in New Orleans and Loyola. The amendment that is before you at this time changes that composition of the commission to be as follows: instead of a five-member commission, it should be a seven-member commission. The three colleges and universities, Centenary College, Louisiana College and Louisiana State University are retained as three of the nominating organizations. In place of Tulane and Loyola, I submit the Southern University in Baton Rouge and Xavier University in the city of New Orleans to be the five nominating colleges and universities for appointment to the commission, with the addition that the governor can appoint from throughout the state, two persons to compose the seven-member commission. In the...and that's the change it makes in the present civil service commission. The second change that the amendment makes is in the composition of the commission and those municipalities over four hundred thousand in population. At the present time, there is a three-member commission: two appointed by lists from colleges and universities in the city, over four hundred thousand; one by the city council. The amendment before you proposes to make that, instead of a three-member commission, five-member commission. What, then, would constitute the commission would be: Tulane University would make a nomination; Loyola University would make nominations; Dillard University; the city council would continue to make an appointment from whom-ever they chose in that area; and, the employees in the municipality over four hundred thousand--which is New Orleans--would elect a member of the Civil Service Commission. That is the change within the City Civil Service System in the city of New Orleans, with one exception, that's the only change that it makes in the City Civil Service System governing all municipalities over four hundred thousand. The other change is that it excepts those employees in the fire and police department from the coverage of the City Civil Service System, which is now covered under the City Civil Service System. In the proposal, Committee Proposal No. 10, I have amendments prepared--which is a forty-eight page document--the amendment is one paragraph long, which brings into the State fire and municipal police civil service, the employees in the fire and police department in the city of New Orleans into the rest of the state service of the municipal fire and police civil service throughout the state. Lastly, what the amendment does: it says that the legislature, by two-thirds vote, can change any provision of civil service, including the composition of these commissions by a two-thirds vote, with the only prohibition being that the commission...that civil service, both in the state and in municipalities over four hundred thousand, cannot be abolished. I call to your attention the fact that there are thirteen states that have civil service system in their constitution, Louisiana being one of those thirteen states. Most of them--eight states--there's just simply a definition of a state merit system and an authorization for the legislature to implement such a system. Only Louisiana, California, Colorado, Georgia and Michigan specify the establishment of the organization of a state commission to administer the program. Now, California has a five-member commission, and the governor appoints these members with the advice and consent of each house of the legislature. Colorado, the governor appoints three persons, with a known devotion to the merit system, to the state commission. A recent amendment to that constitution permits the classified employees to elect two additional members. Georgia has a personnel board of three citizens of known interest in the improvement of public administration, appointed by the governor and confirmed by the legislature. Michigan has four members of the commission, appointed by the governor. Among the fifty states that have the civil service commission range normally in size from three to eight, most of whom are all appointed by the governor. Some states do require confirmation by the Senate or the House or both, most of which just require the governor to make the appointment, and some specify that the commissioner of labor, for example, as well as the president of the board of education, etc. might serve as members of the commission. I suggest to you that what is proposed in this amendment is, in the interest of brevity, it would substitute for the entire seventeen page document that's before you in the way of Committee Proposal No. 9. It guarantees to the people of this state and to the employees of this state that there shall always be a merit system in this state, but that the legislature in its wisdom by a two-thirds vote, can change the provisions of civil service as the times dictate, and as personnel policies throughout this country change, in the way of public employment. I do not believe, in my judgment, in any way, that this is...or could be considered, as detrimental to those who believe in the civil service system of this state. If you'll notice in the comments that Public Affairs Research Council made, in their booklet distributed to you yesterday, their basic conclusion was on civil service, that the entire matter be turned over to the legislature, with a two-thirds vote, allowing them to change the provisions of civil service as the legislature deemed wise. Let me suggest to you one of the things that I believe that the legislature...one of the reasons the legislature ought to have, at least, some method, some procedure whereby they might have some voice, both in the Legislative and Executive branches over the personnel affairs of their employees. I don't believe any prudent businessman in this convention would submit to the theory that they would hire an outside consulting firm...management firm to handle their entire personnel relations. Yet, that's what the state does as it relates to their sixty thousand employees by the appointment of five people who can only be removed after formal charges and public hearings. They are the only five people that have any final voice over the personnel policies of the sixty thousand public employees in this state. Most of you read just recently of the just-adjourned special session of the legislature. The legislature was called upon to vote to pass additional taxes. Subsequent to that, which was adopted, they appropriated some fifteen million dollars for pay raises for the state employees. Yet, when all was said and done, the taxes were voted, the appropriations were made, the legislature could not say how that money was to actually be applied. It was left in the hands of five people, and I do not want to, in any way, question the integrity or the motives of the members of the commission. I don't mean that. But, there is a basic disagreement, sometimes, between human beings as to philosophically what's right and wrong, and where money should be applied, whether at the lower level, the higher level, across the board, or whatever it may be. The point that I make to you is that although the legislature's required to appropriate the money, vote, if necessary, to raise taxes, yet they have no voice in how that money is to be spent to their employees...given to their employees. I believe that what's before you in the way of this amendment is honest, just and in the best interest of this state, and is certainly in the best interest of the public employees of this state. I ask for the adoption of the amendment. I'll be happy to answer any questions?

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Gordon, could you explain to us in terms of the composition of the board...the state board...the State Civil Service Commission, what exactly, now, is the change from the present board that you're recommending?

MR. FLORY

Presently, the Civil Service Commission now...

MR. ROEMER

And why.

MR. FLORY

...has five members. The amendment proposes to make it seven. The nominating colleges under the present system are: Centenary, Louisiana College, Louisiana State University, Tulane and Loyola. The amendment says: Centenary College, Louisiana College, Louisiana State University would continue to be nominating organizations. But, in place of Tulane and Loyola, on the state system, we submit Southern University and Xavier University... then, let the governor appoint two additional members, which makes a total of seven members on the commission. The commission now is five.

MR. ROEMER

So, you expand the commission by two...

MR. FLORY

By two members.

MR. ROEMER

...make both of those new members appointed by the governor.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. FLORY

Both of them appointed by the governor.

MR. ROEMER

You make two substitutions in the present appointments. You take away Tulane and Loyola, and add Xavier and Southern. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

That's correct.

MR. ROEMER

Now, Gordon, would you agree with the proposition, then, that what is left is a seven-man board: two appointed directly by the governor and two from universities, the boards of which are completely appointed by the governor. That is, LSU and Southern. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

Southern, at this time, doesn't have a board, but in the future, under the article that has been adopted, that would be true.

MR. ROEMER

But, under...if this new constitution...

MR. FLORY

However, I'll point out to you that LSU, since the inception of civil service, to my knowledge, has been one of the nominating organizations. Remember, now, that the president of the university makes that appointment, and if the three names that he submits, the governor does not appoint one of those three names, then at the end of thirty days, the top name on that list automatically becomes a member of the Civil Service Commission.

MR. ROEMER

Well, but, perhaps, you choose to ignore my point. I hope not. But, is it not true that what we have left is the potential four of the seven--a majority--controlled by the governor. Is that not right, or am I just looking at ghosts.

MR. FLORY

If you hold to the theory, Mr. Roemer--which I do not hold to--that the presidents of the universities at Southern and LSU would be submitted to the dictation of the governor, you would be correct. That has not been the history of the appointments made by...nominations made by Louisiana State University in the past. I can only tell you what the history has been.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I appreciate that. I don't know the history, and I appreciate learning it. But, you will have to admit that before this provision can become law, the constitution has to pass. When that constitution passes, all these other provisions pass, also, wherein, for example, Southern University will be run by a board appointed completely by the governor. Number 2, LSU will be run by a board appointed completely by the governor for terms much less than fourteen years. So, that board will now be more embroiled in politics, not less. So, I submit to you that the danger here is that four of the seven of the Civil Service Board will be directly controlled and appointed by the governor. Now, that's my fear. You and I probably disagree on that. Another question: why do all appointments, as here and above provided shall be made by the governor, without confirmation of the Senate. I know that's the present law. You didn't want to change that, or does that bother you any?

MR. FLORY

No, that doesn't really bother me. But, that was the present law, and I think that's the same...in the majority of the states that have civil service, that's the procedure used by those states that the governor makes the appointment. I've read to you some of those states which do require confirmation, but not a majority of them require that.

MR. ROEMER

I have one final question. Why was it necessary to change the board from its present composition? Why the expansion, why the substitution?

MR. FLORY

One of the reasons for the change in the composition of the board: many of the problems that have existed over the years is a result of the attitude and actions of the board in that the commission is given the authority to establish rules which have the effect of law. No recourse is given to the members of the commission or to the public-at-large on the actions of the commission. Consequently, the testing procedures, the policies, the rules of the commission are not what many people throughout this state believe that they ought to be. In order to establish some semblance of a more responsive commission to the people of this state, a change in the composition of the board was proposed in this amendment, with the full realization that the people will vote upon it, and if they adopt it, then they, of course... the legislature even thereafter, may by a two-thirds vote change any portion of this amendment or the present provisions of the constitution. But, it was to give to the people of this state at least a choice to make of whether or not they wanted to expand the commission in the future because many of the problems I say to you that have existed in the state civil service is believed to have resulted from the policies set by, and the rules adopted by the Civil Service Commission. The only way to change those rules is by a change in the composition of the commission.

MR. ROEMER

Well, you think that by changing the composition, we're going...I didn't understand your answer. I'm just sorry. But, let me see if I can pick it out. By expanding this board, and by making it dominated by the appointments of the governor, we're going to make it more responsive to the people. Is that it?

MR. FLORY

Well, let me say this, Mr. Roemer, and I don't subscribe to your statement--and I let it go a moment ago--that this was going to be under the dictation of the governor. I've got more faith in the presidents of the LSU system, the Southern system, and as a matter of fact, in the governor of this state, that whatever he does in the way of appointments is going to be in the best interest of this state. I do not believe that there should ever be a return to the Spoils System in this state. I don't believe that there'll ever be a time that you and I'll live to see, with the modern media the way it is, that civil service would be tampered with to the extent and detriment of the state employees of this state. I do not share your view that the commission, as proposed in this amendment, would be dictated by the governor in no way.

MR. ROEMER

Well, do you know the old axiom that "power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely"?

MR. FLORY

I don't see the power in this amendment that you see, Mr. Roemer. I'm sorry.

MR. CASEY

Mr. Lanier has a question. Then, Mr. Chatelain, Roy and O'Neill.

MR. LANIER

Mr. Flory, you and I discussed previously this little problem of the part 3 of your amendment dealing with the transposition of the present provisions in the constitution into statutory law. When you used the word "retained," it says here that all of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15 of the Constitution of 1921, providing for a system of classified civil service for the state and for cities are hereby retained and continued in force and effect. Would it be accurate to say that it is your intention that these provisions would be retained as statutes rather than be incorporated into the new constitution by reference?

MR. FLORY

What my intent was, Mr. Lanier--and you and I, I think, are in agreement upon this point--was to be absolutely certain that between the time that this document was adopted by the people and the legislature might take action, that the provisions of the '21 Constitution plus this amendment, would be carried forward in effect. There would be no void whatsoever during that period of time that we would not have civil service. That's my intent in this amendment.

MR. LANIER

But, specifically, your intent is not to incorporate all this language...

MR. FLORY

Not incorporate it in detail in the new constitution. No, sir.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. LANIER

It is to transpose it as a statute, subject to a two-thirds vote of the legislature.

MR. FLORY

That's correct; but to retain the provisions guaranteeing the procedure whereby the legislature can amend it, and that the legislature cannot abolish it.

MR. LANIER

Isn't there an amendment being drafted right now to add the language "retained as a statute"?

MR. FLORY

It's being drawn, but I have not seen it as yet. That's my understanding, that the staff is working on it. But, I want to see it when it's completed. I have not looked at it yet.

MR. LANIER

Now, the second thing: up here in this "2" part, it says, "in other cities subject to the provision of this section, three members of the commission shall be nominated from any of the three universities named in Section 1 in accordance with the procedure therein provided." These cities that you're referring to would be other cities over four hundred thousand. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

That is correct.

MR. LANIER

This would not apply, say, to a city like Thibodaux that has a little over fifteen thousand.

MR. FLORY

No, sir. That civil service is statutory, and this in no way affects municipal civil service throughout the state, other than those municipalities who have a population in excess of four hundred thousand.

MR. LANIER

Now, one other question for the record: we have just recently adopted in Thibodaux a statutory civil service system. Am I correct in saying that your amendment, if adopted in our constitution, would in no way affect the present system of civil service as it exists in the city of Thibodaux?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, in no way.

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Flory, just for the record, to get the record straight, on your second page of your proposed amendment, this first part 2 really and truly deals with the city of Orleans only at the present time. Is that correct, sir?

MR. FLORY

At the present time, but it was worded whereas it would not name specifically the city of New Orleans being the only one because in the present constitution it's classified by population, in those municipalities over two hundred and fifty thousand, believing that some of the municipalities in the state might in the future reach three hundred...two hundred and fifty thousand, I believe it was, in the present constitution. It was changed to four hundred thousand because some of those municipalities that are approaching that point now have their own city civil service systems. They have it by statute and we did not want to disturb what they now have.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, that's one of my problems. I wanted it to be clear on this. For instance, if the city of Lafayette, which is one of the fastest growing cities in the South, should in the next ten or fifteen years reach a population of four hundred thousand, then, the recommendations for our civil service would then, of course, come from the universities in New Orleans and Pineville and Shreveport. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

We said, I believe, from three of the universities listed in Section 1. That's correct. It was not anticipated in the drafting of this amendment that there was any municipality in the state approaching the four hundred thousand figure in the immediate future.

MR. CHATELAIN

All right, sir. In Section 3, I'm concerned also with the word "retain." As I understand it, the city of Lafayette and many other cities in the South Louisiana are now operating on the statutory civil service. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

Yes, they have statutory, and I recall specifically when the legislature adopted the system of civil service for the city of Lafayette, this provision in no way affects that whatsoever.

MR. CHATELAIN

In other words, the word "retained," then, means retain... that what we now have, we'll keep, and will be no violence done to what we now have. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

No, sir. No, sir. No, sir. It does not mean what you now have will be retained because it has no reference to what you now have. The provision that you're reading is the state civil service and in cities over four hundred thousand are retained and continued in force and effect so that my amendment in no way affects pro or con the civil service that you might have on a local basis in the city of Lafayette.

MR. CHATELAIN

In other words...that's fine...in other words, we're not changing what we now have except the legislature, of course, in the future could come do what they want.

MR. FLORY

Well, in the city of Lafayette, for example, the legislature, by a simple majority vote, can change your civil service system, or abolish it. This could not change that one way or the other.

MR. CHATELAIN

Would you have any objection to considering the fact that one-third of the population of Louisiana is in what is known as Acadiana--those thirteen parishes in and around Lafayette? Would you have any objection to perhaps putting in USL or McNeese or some of the other universities there as one of the nominating universities for this?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chatelain, let me say this--and I certainly gave consideration to that point--there was a division among some of our committee. There is a division in this convention as to philosophy as to whether or not all of the nominating organization ought to be a private college with no public supported funds. There was some thought that the colleges ought to be more geographically located throughout the state. At the present time, there are four private colleges and one public-supported university making nominations in the Civil Service Commission. In order to give some geographic consideration to the nominating colleges and universities, some to the racial balance in this state as far as appointing...the appointive process is concerned, and all of the private college versus public-supported colleges, it was my considered opinion that the geographic and other factors taken into consideration, these nominating organizations were better than expanding into the area in which you mentioned. Certainly, I have nothing against USL. But, it was just thought that this was the better approach from the factors that we considered in the drafting of this amendment.

MR. CHATELAIN

Well, I appreciate your statement on that...

MR. FLORY

I would oppose such an amendment in short.

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Flory, Number 1, I want to state to you that I believe conceptually that you're shooting in the right direction with a shorter document, and I'm in accord with that. The only thing I'm trying to get some...I represent South Louisiana, and my parish, and I'm trying to get some justification. You have three privately endowed universities: Centenary, Louisiana College, and one other one...

MR. FLORY

Xavier.

MR. CHATELAIN

Xavier, yes. You have two black universities, or predominately black universities: Xavier and Southern. I don't see any French universities or any Acadiana universities involved, and that's one of my concerns.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. FLORY

One of the factors, of course, considered in that, Mr. Chatelain, was that, if I remember correctly, in the adoption of the Civil Service System for the city of Lafayette, Southwestern does, in fact, make more if not one, at least, ...more than one nomination to the Civil Service Commission in the city of Lafayette.

MR. CHATELAIN

Thank you. I see the Judge here said that you don't even have one for red necks in North Louisiana.

MR. FLORY

I think those in Shreveport with Centenary College would disagree.

MR. ROY

Mr. Flory, if I understand your explanation, the fact of the matter is, that by a two-thirds vote of the legislature in the future to take care of all these little parochial questions you're being asked about my city and this and that that we seem to be getting down in the constitution every time, Lafayette could be given, or U.S.L., and Natchitoches, and everybody else could be given the right to make the three appointments to the governor; isn't that true?

MR. FLORY

That's correct, they could amend and change it any way that the legislature saw fit by a two-thirds vote, but they could not abolish the system.

MR. ROY

Now, don't you think with people like Mr. Chatelain complaining and you know, representing that area as he is here, that the legislature would probably see to it that in Acadiana that the local schools get to have something to say with respect to the appointments?

MR. FLORY

I would... I have heard it said, that those in Acadiana have very much influence in those places where the appointments are made.

MR. ROY

You understand that there are some Acadianas who live other than in Acadianas; don't you?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir, and there's more graduated from U.S.L. than just in the city of Lafayette.

MR. ROY

Now, getting to something which I think is serious, and that the rest of the convention ought to appreciate, if they'll look at page 359 of the book we have on the present constitution, in essence all of the provisions from page 359 to page 376 with respect to causes for termination, layoffs, methods of making the list and what have you, that will all be retained, subject a two-thirds vote of the legislature to change it; isn't that true?

MR. FLORY

That's absolutely correct.

MR. ROY

So, that what we have done, if we pass your amendment, is to reduce a proposed document of some seventeen pages to two, and reduce about twenty pages from the present constitution; isn't that true?

MR. FLORY

That's correct, yes, sir.

MR. ROY

Thank you.

MR. O'NEILL

Gordon, I'm curious why, all of a sudden, these people who were on the committee proposal which have these five colleges in it all now seem to have changed their mind, and are on this amendment. Could you explain why this change has been made from the committee proposal which you originally had your name on?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir. Let me point out something to you that Mr. O'Neill brings out what I think is a very pertinent point at this time. In the consideration of the proposal on civil service by our committee, we felt like that there ought to be constitutional protection of civil service retained. There was a short division among our subcommittee as to how much detail that ought to be continued in the new constitution, so that the committee finally recommended to the overall committee and the overall committee adopted it pretty much the same detail with four or five changes in the present constitutional provision guaranteeing civil service. When the committee met at that time to consider for final adoption a proposal on civil service, I suggested at that time that perhaps, we ought to shorten our state civil service system drastically, and that if the convention adopted a shortened version, I would then submit a much shorter version of the provision of the municipal fire and police civil service. So, that yesterday, after I had been given the privilege of reading the preliminary report that Public Affairs Research Council made some weeks ago, I determined then that there was sentiments in this state and in this convention after talking to a number of you who really wanted a shortened version of civil service. So, we had this amendment drafted and I met with the Committee on Education yesterday; gave them copies, explained to them what the amendments did, and then said to them that if they agreed with these amendments, I would appreciate it if they would act as coauthors with me on these amendments. You will notice by the amendments that there is a majority of the total committee on Education who are coauthors of this amendment. That's how the change from the present proposal on Committee Proposal No. 9 comes about now with a majority vote of that committee supporting the amendments before you at this time. There are others whose names do not appear here, but who are in support of this amendment on that committee.

MR. O'NEILL

I think we all applaud your efforts toward shortening this article, but let me direct you to the point of why was the composition of the State Board changed from the committee proposal to your amendment, specifically on that point?

MR. FLORY

Mr. O'Neill, I think you have to understand the controversy and the makeup of the Committee on Education at the time that this matter was considered, that on both the subcommittee and the overall committee the votes were on many occasions tied, with the Chairman breaking the tie--one time the Board was of a different size and different composition-- so that in the final analysis, by a one vote margin the... it was decided to leave the commission as it was in the present constitution. But, after having discussed it with many of the delegates here, then the change came about in the makeup of the commission. But, at one time in the committee's proposal if you recall--I believe it's in the original introduction of committee proposal--and I forget the number of it, but there was one to be elected by the employees or appointed by the governor from the employees of the state that so long as he remained as an employee of the state, but if he left the employee of the state in that position, was automatically vacated.

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Flory, as you're aware of, I've sat and listened to some of the committee deliberations on the idea of civil service and one of the things you said at that time, was that you thought employee representation on the Civil Service Commission was very important in cities over four hundred thousand because you said there was an appointment by the city council which was management. As you're aware, --I've argued with you at that time--saying the city council was the representatives of the people, not management, that the mayor and the chief administrator officer were management. But, in any case, you stuck a... in your recommendation stuck an employee representation ... representative on the Civil Service Commission in cities over four hundred thousand. Would you explain to me--that being your argument-- why in state civil service you give the governor who is clearly management two representatives directly appointed on the board and none elected by the employees?

MR. FLORY

Well, first: it was hoped that at ... in the appointive process, that the governor would take into consideration both, employer oriented representatives to serve on the commission; secondly, employee oriented representatives to serve on the commission selected from somewhere throughout the state. Secondly, the point that you make as it relates to city civil service, there are many municipalities--and I can't recall a figure--but I know just day before yesterday in the city of Baton Rouge they held the election to elect the employee representative on the city system of civil service. So, that in some municipalities there is a precedence for employee representative on the city civil service commission, as well as, in the municipal fire and police civil service throughout the state, except for the city of New Orleans. It is a constitutional and statutory provision requirement that in the firemen elect one member and the policemen elect one member on municipal fire and police civil service so that there is ample precedence for the change from a state civil service to the city civil service.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Flory, if you argue it that way, you can say there is ample precedence for representatives of employees on civil service commissions, and then, therefore, you could put them on the state civil service commission; isn't that correct?

MR. FLORY

As far as that goes, Ms. Zervigon, there is ample precedent to have named the commissioner of labor in here as one of the members. But, I didn't do that, I chose to leave it open to allow the governor the discretion to select from throughout this state citizens devoted to the public civil service system to serve on that commission.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, would you consider withdrawing your amendment and changing "cities over four hundred thousand" to allow the mayor to have two appointments on that board rather than the city council and the employees, and give them that same discretion you trust the governor to have.

MR. FLORY

No, ma'am, I would not.

MS. ZERVIGON

Why not?

MR. FLORY

Because there is ample precedent throughout this state for the employees and municipalities to elect their own representative on the civil service commission in the municipalities.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, Mr. Flory, would you admit that there is ample precedence for a whole lot of things that may or may not be a good idea, like acts, murders and rape and stuff like that and then that isn't the only way in which we decide things. Would you admit that if it's good for the governor, it's good for other administrative officials?

MR. FLORY

While you say there may be ample precedent for rape, etc., I've never chosen to go that route, nor did I choose to go that route here. I chose to go the route in which I've gone because I believe it's the proper route in which to go.

MS. ZERVIGON

Well, would you consider withdrawing your amendment and putting two people on the State Civil Service Board one appointed by the legislature, and one elected from the employees.

MR. FLORY

No, ma'am, I would prefer to go with it as it is.

MS. ZERVIGON

Can you explain to me exactly why you don't want the employees to have a representative on the Civil Service Commission of the state?

MR. FLORY

I said, I believe that I have enough faith in the appointive process in this state that whoever the governor may appoint, they would take into consideration the employees' viewpoint on the Civil Service Commission.

MS. ZERVIGON

You don't see any conflict there?

MR. FLORY

... I would take it... I'm willing to stand upon that with the thought in mind that the legislature, if they disagree with that in the future, can by a two-thirds vote change. If they want to make it in the future the legislature shall appoint one they certainly have that prerogative under this amendment.

MR. JACKSON

Mr. Flory,

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir.

MR. JACKSON

... I just want to make it clear in my mind that on the last page... on page 2, I guess with the last sentence that firemen and policemen are being exempt from the city civil service as we know it today in the city of New Orleans.

MR. FLORY

That is correct, and I so stated.

MR. PLANCHARD

Gordon, I hope you consider this as a friendly question, because you know I believe in civil service being directly connected for years in the city of Sulphur, but I want to ask you a question: There seems to be some problem with the last sentence in that first amendment on the first page where the governor does have the authority now to appoint two people, and that the... this will be without the consent or the confirmation of the senate. Now, I think in the old constitution the wording is exactly the way it is here....

MR. FLORY

Correct.

MR. PLANCHARD

... but, I don't think that the governor had the two appointments at that time, and I believe that the reason for the wording...

MR. FLORY

Technically, he made the appointments, but he was limited as to the names that he could consider for appointments.

MR. PLANCHARD

Right. It seems to me to quell some of the objection that may be an amendment might be in order for these two appointments to be by the consent of the Senate and not the rest of them.

MR. FLORY

Mr. Planchard, I certainly... as I said, have full faith in the legislature, however, if you want to come with an amendment after that that will require a confirmation by the Senate as we do in the other articles, I certainly have no objection to that.

MR. PLANCHARD

Thank you.

MR. FLORY

To only to those two appointees because the provision relating to appointment otherwise state that if the governor doesn't make appointments from the list submitted to him by the nominating organizations, the top name on that list at the end of thirty days automatically is appointed to the commission.

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Acting Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the delegates, I rise in opposition to Mr. Flory's amendment. I would first give you a little of the history of Louisiana Civil Service, because although I don't think we should be bound completely by history, I think history does teach us lessons, and from these lessons we can learn and should learn. The first statewide civil service system in Louisiana was adopted by statute in 1940, the first effective one. At the same time, a constitutional amendment was proposed which was adopted later that year which provide... which confirmed, ratified and approved the state civil service statute and a city civil service statute which governed only New Orleans at the time, and it provided that any bill or bills amending or repealing either of these laws directly or by implication may be passed, and become laws only when adopted by a two-thirds vote of the members elected in each house of the Legislature of the state. At that time, everyone felt that the two-thirds vote would be sufficient to protect civil service which was by virtue of its very terms an a political organization, not nonpolitical, but completely removed from politics as far as it could be removed. In 1948, however, the legislature adopted a bill which effectively killed the civil service system which was then in effect, it did not repeal it, but it amended it so that it was no longer a true merit civil service system. Now, I don't... I hope ...

I sincerely believe and I certainly hope and pray that we will never again be in the position that we were in 1948. Nevertheless, I am constrained to say that as far as civil service is concerned, and I speak unfortunately with some experience in this field because I served on the state commission for six years... for ten years was its Chairman for six years, and I learned that there are many things that are done by civil service commissions both in the city of New Orleans and in the state with which the legislators do not always agree. But, the legislature and the city council are political bodies and they should be political bodies. Civil service on the other hand, in my opinion should be completely removed from politics. For this reason, I could not conceivably support a constitutional provision which would permit the legislature to amend or in effect repeal—even though Mr. Flory's amendment says it cannot repeal--effectively repeal a true merit system of public employment. I would urge you to go back in history and remember what has happened, let us avoid the possibility of that happening again as far as civil service is concerned. Now, with regard to Mr. Flory's specific amendment, I would point out to you that in the beginning of it in his first amendment --as pointed out by Mr. Roemer-- he has provided the possibility, mind you I say only the possibility, of a civil service commission controlled by the governor. The civil service commissions over the years have never been controlled either by the governor or by the legislature, they have been completely independent bodies and they should remain such. The present terms of commissioners are six years--and I notice Mr. Flory has reduced them to four, I don't know the exact reason for this--but I do not believe a six-year term is too long. Now, when we get to the second amendment of Mr. Flory's we are speaking primarily of the city of New Orleans. The present constitution provides that when a city reaches a population of two hundred and fifty thousand then the present city civil service provisions of the constitution will apply. It was the belief of those who drafted the original constitutional amendment in 1952, that until a city reached two hundred and fifty thousand, it did not have the need nor the resources to support a full-fledged merit system. However, upon reaching two hundred and fifty thousand it certainly would. By changing this to four hundred thousand we would effectively prevent the constitutional civil service which offers two things mind you; two things: a merit system of public employment and protection of the employee. It would prevent those cities from getting the benefit of this type of merit system and political protection for the employees. One member of the city...

One member of this commission, of course, would be named by the mayor or rather by the council and one member would be elected by the classified employees. It seems to me that this would permit an appeal from Caesar to Caesar in effect.

The idea of an elected employee sitting on a commission which rules on his fellow employees I think is an unsound idea. I believe we should not permit that. I do not believe that the voice of labor should be prohibited from being heard or being members of the commission, but I do not believe an elected employee should serve on a civil service commission which will rule on his fellow employees in appeals. Now, the other thing in the Amendment No. 2 which is included, which would affect the city of New Orleans directly, is the last sentence which says that it "shall not include in the classified civil service system the employees of the fire and police departments." Now, in New Orleans, the employees of the fire and police department are one-third of the total employees of the city of New Orleans. We have a merit system. In other words, if a person deserves it, he can be promoted regardless of questions of seniority. Under the municipal fire and police system the primary basis for a promotion is seniority. It seems to me that we are thereby depriving the city of New Orleans, and any other cities who would later come under this provision, of the right to promote people in the fire and police departments who deserve promotion; who would benefit the city by that promotion; who could become top-ranking officers in both the fire and police departments other than by pure seniority. We, in New Orleans, do not think that that is a sound idea. We believe our merit system has served us well over the last thirty odd years now, because we've had it since 1940. Now, one point that Mr. Flory made I believe in answer to a question, was the problem of listening to the legislature when it came to pay raises. The whole theory of a civil service system is to have equal pay for equal work. The whole theory behind the present civil service system, and I believe it should be behind any future civil service system should be based on the same thing. It is true that the state by virtue of having a civil service commission and department does put the burden of determining how these funds which are appropriated by the legislature should be spent upon the commission. Nevertheless, I think it better there where you have a non or... noncompletely nonpolitical body than to leave it in the hands of the legislature who would be under certain circumstances subject to lobbying to benefit certain groups or classes of employees. Mr.

Flory stated that the rules of the civil service commission are not subject to amendment by the legislature, that is true. But, if the rules are improper, they are subject to appeals of the court and this has happened on a number of occasions when rules were improper, the courts have corrected the rules. By and large it seems to me, and I urge this belief upon you, that a self-executing provision for civil service should be in the constitution. It should not be subject to legislative amendment even by a two-thirds vote. I, therefore, urge you to defeat the Flory amendment. As you know, I have an amendment which I believe is completely self-contained, which will cover it.

Questions

MR. AVANT

Mr. Dennery, there's just one thing that you said, that I wanted to ask you about and that was the four hundred thousand provision as opposed to the two hundred and fifty thousand provision which is in the present constitution and which I think is also in your proposal. Now, the city of Baton Rouge has a civil service or merit system of employment. I believe its source is the plan of government of the parish in the city of Baton Rouge. To the best of my knowledge it's working reasonably well. In other words, I know that as anything, some people are going to complain, but overall presumably it's satisfactory because nobody tried to get rid of it. It's different from your system, it's different from the one that's in the constitution, but it is another such system. Now, a special census was just made, completed last week in this city that shows that our present population is a hundred and eighty-two thousand people; seventeen thousand people more than it was in the decennial census in 1970. Presumably, within approximately five or maybe six years we're going to hit that magic figure of two hundred and fifty thousand. Now, then, we're just going to have to junk our system no matter how well it's working, no matter how satisfactory it is, and just go in under some other system; is that... isn't that what's going to happen?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, Mr. Avant, that's exactly what would happen, and if you had no civil service system you would automatically have one, that is the reason for putting a figure in. Now, whether it should be two fifty, three hundred, three fifty, or four hundred is a matter for this convention to determine. It maybe that two fifty is too low. It seems to me, however, that it is a fair figure because at that time most communities would have the resources and the required number of employees to support the type of civil service system that we have presently in the constitution, or will... hopefully will have in the constitution.

MR. AVANT

Well, my question then is this: that we have the resources now and we have a system and it is working, and it seems to be satisfactory to everybody concerned. Now, why should we just arbitrarily junk all that and move under some other system in the next few years just to satisfy somebody?

MR. DENNERY

Well, I don't think it's a question of satisfying somebody, Mr. Avant, and I don't think there would be much junking required. I think certain changes probably would have to be made, but basically, the two systems are similar in many respects, if not in all.

MR. ROY

Moise, I don't understand your harum-scarum argument on returning to the spoils system by adopting Gordon Flory's amendment. I wish you would explain how requiring a two-thirds vote of the legislature to implement some changes which I think are necessary, I have dealt in civil service cases, is a return to the spoils system when there was no civil service system whatsoever.

MR. DENNERY

When there was no what, Mr. Roy?

MR. ROY

When there was no civil service systems, you know, days when the governor would come in and fire everybody who's in office--that's a spoils system.

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Roy, let me point out to you, sir, fortunately, for you, you're younger than I am. But, in 1940 we had a very complete civil service system almost as...if not as complete as the one we have now and that is what was gutted in 1948

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

by a two-thirds vote of the legislature--that is exactly what happened.

MR. ROY

Was it in the constitution?

MR. DENNERY

There was a provision very similar to the one that Mr. Flory has, it could only be changed, amended, or repealed by a two-thirds vote of the legislature--yes, sir--that was in the constitution, that phrase.

MR. ROY

...and, in 1940, they emasculated the whole constitutional provision you say?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir. It's not the amendment, Mr. Roy, the law was a legislative enactment. The amendment to the constitution in 1940 ratified, approved, and affirmed those two laws--one for the state and one for the city and provided in the constitution that these two laws could only be amended or repealed by a two-thirds vote of each House of the legislature. So, in view of that, it required a two-thirds vote to amend the civil service law--a constitutional provision required it. But, the two-thirds vote did--as you point out--emasculate civil service.

MR. ROY

Well, don't you think, though, that if the governor or if the civil service folks in 1948 couldn't get fourteen senators to block some type of provision that obviously the people of Louisiana must have wanted some type of change?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir, I don't believe that. I think that was proven by 1952 when the state civil service amendment, which was adopted, was adopted by an overwhelming majority of the people of the state--an overwhelming majority.

MR. ROY

Would you tell me what's your authority for your statement that the '40 amendment provides that "the legislature by a two-thirds vote" could go back and do all of these things?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir. If you will turn to page 110 of the West Publishing Company volume of the constitution dealing with Article XIV, Section 15, you will see there the following amendment. If you would like me to quote it, I will be pleased to....

MR. ROY

No, there are other people who want to ask questions; I'm going to go look it up.

MR. DENNERY

I'll give you a copy of it.

MR. WEISS

Delegate Dennery, not only is the appointment at the will of the government, but as the Flory amendment reads, isn't it also possible that there can be removal of these civil servants at the will of the government? According to the reading: "Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governor" and so on. Is it not true, then, he could remove these appointees as well as appoint them at will?

MR. DENNERY

Dr. Weisa, I would think that's probably true, an argument could be made that by virtue of Section 3 or of Amendment No. 2--I don't know exactly what they means--but it's on the second page it says "except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this article, all of the present provisions remain in effect." I would image, however, that a court might well hold that it is inconsistent to the extent that it does not mention this.

MR. SHANNON

Mr. Dennery, did I understand you to say your main objection to this amendment was the fact that it gave the legislature authority to overrule things by a two-thirds vote?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir, that's my principle objection to it, Mr. Shannon.

I believe it should be a completely self-executing provision in the constitution which could only be changed by the voice of the people.

MR. SHANNON

Well, let me ask you this: Where does the money come from to support all of these activities?

MR. DENNERY

It comes from the people of the State of Louisiana and is appropriated by the legislature of the State of Louisiana.

MR. SHANNON

It's appropriated by the legislature?

MR. DENNERY

Yes, sir.

MR. SHANNON

But, yet, you do not want to have the legislature to have any say whatsoever in what it should be?

MR. DENNERY

Well, that's not completely true, Mr. Shannon. As you know, the budget must be submitted--the civil service budget is submitted--and the legislature has the perfect right to control that budget. When it comes to pay increases, I would say you are correct that it must be...the pay increases, the pay scales of the employees of the State of Louisiana are recommended by the Civil Service Commission--after public hearing--they do not become effective until after the governor approves them and that is never done until after the legislature has appropriated the money--so, that the legislature normally knows exactly where those raises are going.

MR. SHANNON

Do you recall several years ago when the legislature voted a pay raise for the state police?

MR. DENNERY

You're speaking about the overtime provision?

MR. SHANNON

Yes.

MR. DENNERY

Yes, I recall that quite well. As a matter of fact....

MR. SHANNON

They were overruled by the czar commission?

MR. DENNERY

No, sir, they were not overruled by the Civil Service Commission at all, at that time.

MR. SHANNON

Well, they went....

MR. DENNERY

As a matter of fact, the Civil Service Commission amended its rules in accordance with the recommendation made by the legislature. But, the department of the State of Louisiana did not pay that money to the state police. I was involved in the lawsuit, which was very recently settled, which permitted that pay...or rather required that pay to be paid by the State of Louisiana through the department--and it was not the Civil Service Commission.

MR. SHANNON

But, what you--in your proposal or your amendment--you are proposing to retain the commission as is now with the authority that they have at this time?

MR. DENNERY

Basically, yes, sir, Mr. Shannon. Of course, I'm not discuss....I haven't discussed my amendment yet, I've only....

MR. SHANNON

You did discuss it, you discussed that part of it.

MR. DENNERY

No. I merely said, I had one. I said I had one.

MR. SHANNON

Yes, but you said....

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. DENNERY

Well, go ahead, I'll be glad to answer any questions on it, Mr. Shannon.

MR. SHANNON

Well, for your information, it was the Civil Service Commission that stopped the pay raise to the highway police.

MR. DENNERY

Are you speaking about pay raises, or are you speaking about overtime, that's the question I'm asking?

MR. SHANNON

I'm speaking of pay raises.

MR. DENNERY

You are quite correct, sir, because pay raises could only be done on a uniform pay plan which was approved by the governor and the money, therefore, appropriated by the legislature. When the legislature attempted to appropriate additional salary raises for one class of employees, the Civil Service Commission--and in my opinion it was quite correct--refused to agree to this because they felt it was unfair to the other state employees. In that regard, you are a hundred percent correct, Mr. Shannon. I think the Civil Service Commission was also a hundred percent correct.

MR. SHANNON

In other words, you lean toward the czar commission?

MR. DENNERY

If that's what you choose to call it, rather than the czar legislature. Yes, sir.

Thank you, sir.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

Further Discussion

MR. REEVES

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, we are faced once again with the decision as to what we are going to place in the 1974 Constitution for the State of Louisiana. We are faced on a decision, whether we are going to conceptualize again what we have had in the 1921 Constitution--a constitution that does not trust the Louisiana Legislature; a constitution that does not want to give to the Louisiana Legislature--even by a two-thirds vote--the power of reforming and restructuring. Ladies and gentlemen, I have looked at the legislature. Even though I am only twenty-seven years of age, I have watched the legislature all of my life--since I was a little kid. I watched the Louisiana Legislature grow, just as I grew. I have watched the Louisiana Legislature in the past two days of the last ten day session. I watched them conduct business as businessmen, even with the small amount of frivolity, but frivolity is necessary in a long extemporaneous debate by individuals. I watched this legislature under the helm of a governor that I respect and a speaker of the house, and a lieutenant governor that I respect. Put together, an organized group of individuals that I feel are doing a great job for the State of Louisiana. Now, what we are faced with now is three concepts essentially. We have the Committee Proposal--Proposal No. 9--in reference to civil service. We have Mr. Flory's proposal, and we have the concept that Mr. Dennery proposes. The concept that we are presently debating is the Flory amendment. Again, it is not perfect-- I will admit that; I think Mr. Flory will admit that because he's not a perfect individual. I don't think any of you delegates are, and I, definitely, am not. But, what we are faced with is looking at a committee proposal that is depth in detail, does not leave anything to the Louisiana Legislature to take care of and reform in the later years. We are also faced with the Dennery proposal, which is nine pages long, and still does not trust the Louisiana Legislature and holds them down. The day that the State of Louisiana in the future will depart from civil service is...I happen to agree, is in your imagination. We will never--in the State of Louisiana--get rid of Louisiana Civil Service System. I hope, to God, that we are going to reform it somewhat. We are going to reform it somewhat to the Louisiana Legislature can implement pay raises to groups of individuals, because they put up the money, because this money belongs to the people of the State of Louisiana, and they should be able to decide where they spend this money. Also, we are faced with a situation on the present Civil Service Commission--and let's admit the facts--in which black people sometimes are mistreated and held down in position. This proposal by Mr. Flory will eliminate this--this problem that we have had in the past--because the great State of Louisiana is growing up. You should grow up; the legislature is growing up and we've got to realize this. Please, realize that we have a new state. We are not back in the days of Huey Long, and Earl Long, and the days that were...happened across the history and pages of this state. We are in a new era. The Louisiana Legislature can be trusted. I'll assert one other thing to you: If they cannot, you have the power--the greatest power--that anyone has ever given you, the power of the ballot box to correct this. Let the civil service system remain within the State of Louisiana. But, at the same time, let's let the Louisiana Legislature be able to reform this system. Mr. Flory has told you--and I agree--that these individuals on the Civil Service Commission should and may be confirmed by the Senate--I believe he will agree to this amendment. Please vote for this amendment for the betterment of the State of Louisiana and the civil service system that these individuals--your friends and neighbors--have to serve under.

Further Discussion

MR. HERNANDEZ

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I rise in opposition to the Flory amendment for a number of reasons. The first place, I came down here to this convention dedicated to the support of a strong and a permanent civil service. I think that Mr. Flory's amendment makes it possible that civil service will be of short duration. I'm not saying it will be, but it certainly makes it possible and even probable that it will be. You know I lived back...and I worked for the state before civil service was ever enacted. There are very few of you in here, I imagine, knows anything about this, but, I paid these deducts. We worked on a small salary and it was pretty hard to pay deducts out of your small pay. But, we had to do it or else we didn't have any pay coming in from the state because it would be cut off shortly. I also sold a Louisiana Progress. I wonder if there is any of you ever saw a Louisiana Progress, but I sold them. I had to sell them at night because I wasn't making enough money to pay for these Louisiana Progress like some of the higher paid ones. So, I got out and sold my Louisiana Progress papers at night--certainly with not with any degree of pride and let's get that straight. Now, I just can't imagine Louisiana going back to such days as that when you had no civil service to protect the state employees and to protect the State of Louisiana too because civil service has proven that it is good for the state because you get dedicated and trained employees--they can stay there and learn to do their jobs much better than when they started. It gives these employees protection and an incentive to try to stay on state jobs, because they have...their jobs are protected and they can look forward to a retirement and enjoy those days of their declining years. So, civil service is good and it's good for everybody. The whole State of Louisiana profits by it and certainly the employees profit by it. Now, at the beginning of these committee hearings back in January of this year, we started hearings on civil service. Now, Mr. Flory and I were both on the subcommittee that heard all these presentations. We heard a lot of them. I never knew of anybody being turned down when they made a request to appear before the committee or the subcommittee on civil service--that was just unheard of. We listened to many, many hours of presentations--that is something that very few of this convention, other than the members of the committee, had an opportunity to hear. Now, we had every chance in the world to learn everything that we possibly could about civil service. Most of us on that committee took advantage of this, and I do think that we did learn a lot about civil service. We learned what the people of the State of Louisiana wanted in civil service. Now, yesterday at noon, a committee meeting was called of the Health, Education and Welfare by Chairman Aertker, we meet right back here at noon for a few minutes. We were presented with this long amendment that you have on your desk today by Mr. Flory and a number of cosponsors. Now, we have no way of having seen this amendment before...had no opportunity to read it and actually while this amendment was being handed to us and discussed for a very few minutes, one of the members of the committee offered a motion to approve this by the committee. Now, it was just that absurd. We had not even had an opportunity to read this amendment. Now, as all of you can see if you read this amendment, that it's going to take some time because if you will look at the last paragraph, Paragraph 3, under Coverage, Exclusions, Amendments: "Except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this Article, all of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution of 1921 providing for a system of classified civil service for the state and for cities are hereby retained and continued in force and effect." Now, you are going to have to take these amendments and take time to see which of these... just what part of the original constitutional amendment on civil service is in effect and which one has been changed by this amendment; it's going to take a little time in which to do that. Now, it just can't be done in a few minutes, there is no way to do that. I'll tell you another peculiar thing is, I had hoped we would take the Committee Proposal No. 9--which you have had for some time--and that we could take this and take it up paragraph by paragraph, just as we have done everything else--and you had the right to amend, delete, change, do anything you wanted to with it. But, we should go through it paragraph by paragraph. Well, now, if the Flory amendment is adopted that will stop all that; you can just write it all off. All these many months of hearings and arguments about this will be just tossed out the window. If it can be done that way, I don't know why we spent six months attending committee meetings--it just simply doesn't make sense. I want to point out one thing....

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

As Mr. Dennery has so aptly pointed out, we had civil service put in the constitution in 1940 with this same provision that Mr. Flory has in his amendment---it can be amended by a two-thirds vote of the legislature. Well, in 1948, it was rendered absolutely effective--as Mr. Dennery pointed out--and in the subsequent special session of the legislature it was completely abolished. Now, we only say that we can judge the future by the past--that is the only way we can judge the future or you can say history repeats itself either one. But, you can see that there is a strong possibility that civil service may be of short duration in the event that this amendment is adopted. So, there's a lot of thing that I could point out, but...two-thirds of the same...that was a downfall of the constitution. Now, in 1952, it was put back in the constitution; it has worked well regardless of what you hear, civil service has worked well for the employees; it's worked well for all of the State of Louisiana; it has reduced a cost of operation; it's stopped a lot of deadheads--not all of them and I don't think any of us are going to see all the deadheads cutoff from the State of Louisiana--but it has greatly reduced it. Now, it has been said here that the Flory amendment will greatly reduce the length of a civil service provision, that is, not necessarily true. I think you are going to have to see what this will effect, see what's left over, because he winds up that if it's not in conflict with this then it will still be in effect. So, I'm not sure that it's going to be any shorter at all, it does not necessarily...will not necessarily be any shorter. Besides that, let's go back.... brevity is not necessarily virtuous. How many people are interested in whether there is ten pages in a provision or whether there is eleven pages? There is not one person out of every ten thousand in the State of Louisiana that will know and will care whether it's that short or not. So, I think this has been greatly exaggerated is the importance brevity. Now, the only thing that I can ask you to do--and I do appeal to you--and please understand that in fairness to the committee and to everybody concerned, I ask you to defeat these amendments. Let's go back to Committee Proposal No. 9 that was completed after a long hearings and lots of study were given to it. We had input from everybody that wanted to put anything into the constitution. Let's go back and defeat these amendments and take this Committee Proposal No. 9 paragraph by paragraph. If you want to delete something, you can amend it; you can change it; you can add things to it, do anything you want to with it. But, let's give it a fair shake--it deserves that. Thank you very much.

Questions

MR. FLORY

Mr. Hernandez, you said that it was absurd that this long amendment was presented to the committee yesterday and then a motion was made. To set the record straight: Didn't I say at that time, that I was not asking for a vote? That I thought I owed it to the committee as a courtesy to present them with the amendment to let them know what I proposed to do on this and that I did not ask for a vote? Isn't that correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir, that is absolutely correct. But, there was a motion, Mr. Flory, to adopt this by resolution.

MR. FLORY

Wasn't that motion withdrawn when I made that statement?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir.

MR. FULCO

Pete, you speak as though Flory's amendment will abolish the civil service plan. Is there anywhere in the Flory amendment a provision that will provide that possibility?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir. Mr. Fulco, you will find that it says that "it can be amended by two-thirds vote of both the Houses." That is the same way that this same civil service provision was actually rendered ineffective in 1948. Now, it also says "it cannot be abolished," but it could be rendered so ineffective and be so worthless that the cats wouldn't have it after it got through with those amendments.

MR. FULCO

But, that would still depend upon the action of the legislature, would it not?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Yes, sir, and let's all admit this: That the action of the legislature, especially that first session after a new governor goes in, that's a honeymoon session. Now, another thing--let me add this--under Mr. Flory's amendment here--I'm trying to cut these shorter--but the governor can easily gain control of civil service under Mr. Flory's amendment--remember the terms are for four years--he will appoint two and that is not to be confirmed by the Senate. He will have two and then there will be two by state supported institutions, which we all agree, are greatly influenced by the governor--I'm not talking about the present governor, but any governor. Now, they only serve for four years, so it would be very easy for a governor to control the Civil Service Commission and when that happens, you are going to have politics back in that has killed every civil service system that we have any record of.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Hernandez, you said when you began speaking, that you came here to write a permanent civil service proposal. Now, would you tell me what you call permanent? How long is permanent?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Well, let's put it this way, I don't believe anybody can... would say that a civil service that's permanent can be forever but that's what the name would imply. I said that I came here dedicated to support a sound civil service system on a permanent basis. Yes, ma'am.

MRS. WARREN

All right, since it can't be permanent then who is supposed to make the changes--by a constitutional amendment or by the legislature?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Under this Committee Proposal No. 9, it would take a constitutional amendment.

MRS. WARREN

How hard is it to get a constitutional amendment today?

MR. HERNANDEZ

It depends....

MRS. WARREN

...and just change in this still changing world?

MR. HERNANDEZ

It depends on the people. In the last four years, a constitutional amendment has been hard to get through. Before that time, for many, many years, you couldn't defeat a constitutional...a proposed constitutional amendment--it depends on the way the people feel at the time. But, if the people want to change or alter civil service, they have that prerogative if the need arises for a change.

MRS. WARREN

So, in other words, everything should be by a constitutional amendment instead of by the legislature?

MR. HERNANDEZ

I didn't understand that.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MRS. WARREN

So, in essence, everything should be by a constitutional amendment instead of the legislature. Then, we will have a permanent constitution, unless we call another one; am I right?

MR. HERNANDEZ

Let me say this: That's the way it's intended. The members of the legislature would do well--and I've been in the legislature--and it's mighty easy to see when you have an influence group come to you that you...want you to do something that you don't think you should do. Instead of having to yield to their pressure, you can say "We have civil service in the constitution, and I cannot do it." It would take a lot of pressure off of the members of the legislature.

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Hernandez, one more question: Do you believe that if all the amendments had of passed, we would have been writing a constitution today?

MR. HERNANDEZ

I'm sorry; I didn't understand that. You are speaking too close to the mike.

Do you believe that if every amendment that had been on the ballots had passed, that we would be here today writing a new constitution? If you could have gotten all passed, do you think we would be here now?

MR. HERNANDEZ

I don't know, I guess I have been here too long, but I cannot understand you.

MRS. WARREN

I would really like for you to get this. Do you believe that if all the amendments to the constitution had of passed, do you believe we would be writing a new constitution today? Do you think it would be necessary, because I have seen that is what hamstrung the legislature--they couldn't get nothing through--so, we are here now trying to write a new constitution. Now, what do you think--this is what I am trying to say--I wanted to put it in the form of a question.

MR. HERNANDEZ

This constitution has lasted over fifty-two years, so you can't say that it wasn't a pretty durable constitution. I would say one thing additional: There is nothing in this present constitution that we, the people of the State of Louisiana, didn't want in there--nothing in there that we, the people of the State of Louisiana, didn't want.

MR. SUTHERLAND

Delegate Hernandez, Mr. Flory's amendment does more than just shorten the committee proposal. It puts in certain things, and then has a broad paragraph at the end incorporating everything that went before. Now, if the convention is only interested in shortening this provision, Delegate De Blieux has a proposal which will adopt everything in the present constitution and allow two-thirds of the legislature to change it. So, if they're only interested in the shortness, Delegate De Blieux's proposal is a lot shorter than Delegate Flory's proposal. Is that not correct?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That's correct, sir. I tell you, in Delegate Flory's, he's going to incorporate everything in this new one that's in the old one not affected by this amendment here. It's going to take just a little time to see what's affected and what's not affected, and I'm not sure, when you get through with that, it's going to be any shorter. There's no indication that it's going to be shorter, but if it did shorten it, that still doesn't add anything to the value.

Thank you very much. I would urge you, please defeat these amendments, and let's give the committee proposal the chance it deserves. Thank you very much.

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I rise in support of this amendment. I do so because I believe that if we are going to make significant progress in the area of providing jobs by state agencies for all of the people, that we have got to make some changes in the structure of the Civil Service Commission. Now, I've heard arguments that this amendment is designed to return politics to civil service. I see no such intention included in the words of this amendment. I think what this amendment will do is to provide an opportunity for all of the people to be represented. At the present, the Civil Service Commission has made rules and has used devices by way of standardized tests that will do one thing: that will exclude people from the opportunity to serve in state government. Now, I do not believe that simply because you're going to have some public educational enterprises making appointments from which the governor can select an individual to be a representative on the Civil Service Commission, that you're going to bring politics into the matters of the Civil Service Commission. I believe that what is going to happen is that people are going to believe that this commission is serving all of the people. At the moment, black people in this state do not believe that civil service represents them. They do not believe that civil service is acting in their interests, and I do not believe that civil service is acting in the interests of black people. My reason for saying that is that when I walk over to the State Capitol and I look at all of the people pouring out of there at about four-thirty every afternoon, I see very few black people. When I go across this state and I look at the state agencies and I look at the upper echelon, I look at management, I look at the people at the decision level--policymaking level--I do not see black people. They all tell me it's because civil service is making the decisions. Now, I know of all of the reasons and all of the arguments that can come forth about why black people aren't hired. But, I tell you that I believe that if we are going to restore confidence in the Civil Service Commission, that there must be some sort of guarantee to ensure that there is significant black representation on the Civil Service Commission. So, I believe that the changes by way of the composition of the Civil Service Commission is in the interest of this state because it's going to democratize that structure. Now, some individuals are saying that "Well, what you're going to do is going to make changes that are going to destroy the Civil Service Commission." I stand here to tell you that significant changes ought to be made, that significant changes must be made. I stand here also to tell you that you have nothing to fear from the legislature of this state because the legislature of this state is going to guard very carefully and very jealously those policies and those procedures that are in the interest of maintaining an independent body and an independent commission. A few months ago, a significant change was tried by some individuals interested in trying to do something that I thought was in the interest of this state, and that was to change the selection procedures from three to five; and the legislature turned that down. I didn't think that that was too much of a change, but they turned it down because people were saying that they didn't want to interfere with the Civil Service Commission. So, I don't think that anybody can make the argument that the legislature is going to hasten to make changes to destroy the Civil Service Commission. It simply is not true. Now, I heard people stand here and said that civil service has worked well, and therefore, we ought not to make any changes in it. I do not at all subscribe to the notion that civil service has worked well because if civil service had worked well, we would have representation at all levels of state government. We would have job opportunities in greater numbers for all people in this state. The truth of the matter is that civil service has not acted well because it has not acted in the interests of all of the people, and it has not acted in the interests of all of the people because you have not had representation from all of the people included on the Civil Service Commission. I think that this commission is a significant step forward, and I would ask your support for it. It does not make any changes, but it will, I believe, democratize the Civil Service Commission in a manner that will redound to the benefit of this state. I urge the adoption of this amendment.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, you know, I think we've made a lot of mistakes so far in this convention, but I still think we have a basically good document. But, if I wanted to devise a way to kill this constitution, I couldn't think of a better one. The public sentiment, today, is for more honesty, less favoritism, less politics in government. They're concerned at the national level, at the state level, at the local level about these things. The people are not going to tolerate any tendency in the opposite direction. Now, what would it be like if we went to the people of this state with a system of civil service that could allow a return to the old spoils system? That'll be the final nail in the coffin--the last nail in the coffin. Now, how does this do that? It does it in several ways. First, it packs the Civil Service Commission. It's basically a nonpolitical body right now, a very independent body; but it would be a seven-member commission controlled by gubernatorial appointees--two outright by the governor, and one from the president of LSU and another from the president of Southern University--who more and more are going to be political animals, I think, by virtue of the Education Article that we adopted, since the boards for those institutions would be appointed by the governor for short periods of time. So, you can see that, starting out, a majority of the commission--four out of the seven--are likely to be much more political than in the past. Then, this two-thirds vote in the legislature to change any aspect of civil service, that's no protection at all. You might as well not have a civil service system because I honestly don't believe that the legislature is sensitive to the delicacies of the civil service system. How could they be? State employees represent a big voting bloc. The legislature is not in a management position. They're subject to too many political influences. The Civil Service Commission serves as a buffer to those political influences; it has in the past. It's worked very well in that respect. It has represented the public fisc, protected the taxpayer, in a way that the legislature, because of its political makeup, simply cannot do. It's impossible. Now, I'll tell you what's going to happen if we adopt this provision and somehow the constitution were adopted--which I don't think it would be--every time we had a new governor coming in who was not a reform governor, we'd have a return to the spoils system, because the legislature by a two-thirds vote could allow any amount of political activity: deductions of salary for political purposes, campaigning by civil service employees. They could completely do away with the merit system, for all practical purposes; could do away with the rule of three, make it the rule of twenty or the rule of anything. Appointments could be completely at the whim of the local legislator or the local political power, whoever he might be. That won't fly. Now, I'm not one that's come up here every week and said that this or that is going to kill this constitution. I haven't done that, but I'm telling you this will--this will. Civil service is on a pedestal in the public's mind right now; it is sacred. The public will not tamper with it, and they're not going to by means of this constitution. I guarantee it; I don't have any doubt in my mind about that. Now, certainly the committee report is longer than I'd like to see it--seventeen pages--but for us to work through it would be preferable to adopting this amendment. But, I think the best approach is Mr. Dennery's amendment. It works out to about nine pages--eight or nine pages. It includes most of the real constitutional, gutsy material of civil service and leaves the rest to the legislature, as it ought to be, but it would maintain the basic principles and concepts of the civil service system. Now, Mr. Dennery has served on this commission. He understands the problems; he understands what we're confronted with, and I think he has a good proposal if you would give it some consideration. We can't take the chance of returning to the spoils system. If we tried to, it would be a fruitless endeavor because the people aren't going to let us. So, I urge you, let's reject this amendment and consider either Mr. Dennery's or the original committee proposal.

MR. ALEXANDER

Mr. Chairman, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, I rise to support this amendment, but with modifications or with some reservations. First, I want to say that for those who are saying that civil service is a sacred cow, to those who say that it must not be altered or changed, I say to you that any system devised by man is subject to change. Any system that any group of individuals may write should be changed from time to time. Let me give you this example. Since 1950, every mayor of the city of New Orleans has told me personally that blacks could not be hired on a large scale because of civil service. With the exception of one, every governor of this state since 1956 has said to me that the reason there are so few blacks in the civil service system of this state is because of civil service. Now, I say to you civil service people that somebody is lying, and I say to you that we would like to get to the bottom of this issue and find out where the problem is. Now, let me say specifically that in the city of New Orleans the mayor had to go to a white university and ask them to appoint a black to the Civil Service Commission, or name a black, in order that we would have one. Now, I say to you that that's a bad system. I'm asking you to do this. The Dennery amendment which, in my opinion, solves the problem better than any one of the three propositions before us--I would ask the sponsors of the Flory amendment to withdraw it in favor of the Dennery amendment because the Dennery amendment includes all the provisions that are in the Flory amendment. It also safeguards the civil service system in the state, and I am for civil service. It prevents the exclusion of any of the appointing institutions, as are indicated in Section 9 of the provision. It includes the provision that smaller cities may have civil service systems. It reduces the number, or the size of the population of a city to qualify, from 400,000 as indicated in the Flory amendment to 250,000. I'm asking those of you who are for civil service to vote for the Flory amendment, and if it fails, then please vote for the Dennery amendment.

Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. STINSON

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, due to past experience in the legislature, I'd have to say "amen" to those statements that were made by Mr. Hernandez and someone else. It was before 1940--we thought we had a new... In 1940 we thought we had a new era in Louisiana; it never would go back to what it was before. We put in the civil service thinking that the legislature, certainly by a two-thirds vote, would protect the people. But, in 1948 Governor Long controlled the legislature. The legislature from my parish, when our group for good government would go see him, he says, "Well, Governor Long hasn't told me what to do yet." Well, Governor Long told him, and the people told him in '52, and he didn't come back. Anybody that thinks in public office that you're going to be politically strong by firing everybody and hiring everybody, you're making a very foolish mistake and decision. If that controls your vote, and you think you're going to be a candidate for office and you want to kick everybody out and put your friends in, you're making a mistake. In 1952 I was again in the legislature, and we put in the present provision, and I think it should be continued. I don't think any governor should be given the power to appoint and control the board. That makes good men bad men when they have power. Power goes to people's heads. That's the reason so many kings had their heads chopped off because that's how they got rid of them--power crazy. This is going to create it under this. Please, do not give this control to any governor. I'm not criticizing Governor Edwards; anybody knows he doesn't control the legislature. We have just had a special session. He didn't control it; they did what they wanted to--by two-thirds votes too. If they don't look out, the people might remember that someday. Now, I have faith in the civil service. If you don't like civil service, well say so and vote it out. Don't put a lot of window-dressing like you're trying to do with this amendment. If you do, you're wasting your time. Now, I'd like to read from an article that was in the State Times. It shows through the ages what our founding fathers thought of the constitution and why things of great importance was placed in the constitution. Now, I'm quoting from Daniel Webster. It says "The American Constitution was not written to limit the people--not to limit the people. The people are always free to change it by their vote. It was written to limit the lawmakers, those people who love the government. They love the government because they want to govern." And he concluded, saying "The constitution was made to guard the people against dangers of good intentions. Good intentions will always be pleaded for every assumption of power." Any time anyone assumes power--look at Cuba, the liberator--he liberated them. The only ones he liberated there were those that he executed. There are men in all ages who mean to govern well, but they mean to govern. They promise to be good masters, but they mean to be masters. Let's put this in the constitution. Protect the people that have those jobs. I'm not trying to protect anyone. I don't have one member of my family on any state payroll under civil service, or any federal payroll. But, let's protect them. In 1940 when I was first elected State Representative, they tried to fire everybody. I think our was one of the few parishes that they didn't do it. They fired them...and whenever you don't have civil service, that's the danger that you have. It will haunt you, if you think it's going to help you politically to get rid of the civil service. We've got to protect those people. Someone said, "Well, they're not dedicated. They may abuse it." Well, if it's abused, try to strengthen it;

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

don't try to destroy and get rid of it. I ask you to please vote down this amendment, and let's vote for the committee and make it an independent. Pressure's been tried to be put on the civil service a lot of times. My thought and my belief--it's been a good commission and certainly should not be torn down as this amendment will do. Please vote it down, and let's accept the committee report. Thank you.

MR. STAGG

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, if I can have your attention, I'll try not to spend five minutes in speaking on this amendment. I think that the length of the material in CP 9 and CP 10 as it came from the committee is absolutely appalling. The total number of pages of material in the Executive, the Legislative, the Judicial, Local-Parochial, Bill of Rights, Revenue, Finance and Taxation--everything we have done in this hall since July the fifth total eighty-three pages. The total on civil service as it is presently before this house totals sixty-three pages. Is the civil service tail going to wag the whole damn dog? I am for a system of civil service. When Mr. Flory stood at this microphone to explain his amendment, he said he was speaking on behalf of sixty thousand state employees, of thousands of employees of the city of New Orleans, and thousands of fire and policemen across this state. If those dedicated public employees could but read the Flory amendment and, having read it, understand it, I doubt you would find that his remarks were on their behalf in their opinion. It would be nice in some departments, I think, that when an employee was felt by his employer not to be doing all that he wanted him to do, to just say "Carry your frame, buddy; you're fired." But, it doesn't happen that way because the employees of our government at all levels are protected in their employment against that kind of supervisor or that kind of official. Mr. Flory said "Business wouldn't let an outside consultant hire all your employees." Well, Mr. Flory, I can say to you the employees of this state are not employed on the basis of that nature, and you darn well know it, and it should not be. When Representative Jackson was at the microphone, I could tell from his remarks that he was solely concerned that the system as it presently exists has resulted in fewer black employees than he thought was proper. Well, I say to Representative Jackson, "Don't burn down the whole house in order to cure those deficiencies which can and will be cured." I don't even like the two-thirds amendment by the legislature, or the two-thirds provision by the legislature; maybe three-fourths would be better. I don't often talk on the same side of the question as my friend from East Baton Rouge, Mr. Jenkins, but I certainly agree with what he said today. And being so fully in agreement with it, I ask that my name be placed on the list so I could urge this convention, with all the strength in my command, that you do defeat the Flory amendment. Do not turn over the system of civil service to control by the governor, by his influence on four of the seven members of that commission, and that you preserve and protect the system of civil service by which this state government has prospered in the past. I do urge its defeat; and if you have not made up your mind, for goodness sakes, think what you're doing before you do it.

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I appreciate this break because I think maybe we'll pay a little more attention. I don't have a whole lot to say. I don't get up here very often; the only time I do is when I think it's something worthwhile. I am for good government. I'm a hundred percent for civil service. In 1952, when I was in the legislature, I voted for this civil service; we put it in the constitution; it's now in there and I think it's worked good.

I don't think we should tamper with the civil service. I feel, though, we may shorten it. I think Mr. Denney has an amendment that will probably keep all the essentials and maybe cut it down, but still keep in the civil service what we need in there. However, this particular amendment we have now, I think, will have the effect of gutting the bill. The legislature by two-thirds vote can... may not be able to repeal civil service, but they'll make it so ineffective that it will not be worthwhile. But, I say, I feel like we ought to go ahead and vote this amendment down, shorten the present law perhaps, but let's keep civil service, gentlemen. You know how it was before we got it. We don't need to try to do anything to hamper civil service, so let's go ahead and defeat this amendment, and go on and adopt maybe a shorter version--Mr. Denney's amendment--and go on and have a good civil service. I thank you.

MR. ROY

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I really thought that I had gotten off on the right foot when Tom Stagg got up to talk because I thought he was going to talk in the direction I am; and, low and behold, after making the greatest argument for saying that sixty-three pages is too long to have for civil service, he comes out and is against the amendment and suggests nothing better--not that he probably doesn't have anything better, he just is against the amendment. I rise in support of this amendment. For all you people who get up and talk about return to the spoils systems and some of the younger fellows who have talked, unless you have represented a bunch of these civil service employees, you don't realize that the Civil Service Commission, as it presently is constituted, is just not cutting the mustard; it's not adequate. I have a late opinion here that Moise happened to give me to read something else in it: what happened was this person was terminated because she didn't... she procrastinated and a few other things like that; ultimately the commission put her back on. But, let's get to the issues of what has been raised with respect to the control of the governor. Some of you fellows who are a little older than I am, or my age, will remember some of these things. Back there when Governor Long was at the height of his power, he attempted to make Lether Frazier, who was either president or vice-president of McNeese, president of L.S.U., and he failed. Governor McKeithen who had appointed a bunch of people on the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors--I don't say that he was definitely interested; I don't say that he went out and really tried to get it--but the word was he was wanting to be president of L.S.U., and he failed. Now, where is all of this rhetoric we hear then; where is the proof of the fact that the governor controls the autonomous body of the Board of Supervisors of L.S.U.? Where is it? I dare say that neither Woody nor Buddy can tell me in the last twenty years whom L.S.U. has recommended for appointment to the Civil Service Commission and who the governor appointed. I bet you that a bunch of you all can't even say who really was appointed by L.S.U. and, more than that, whether that person was a friend of the governor or not. We're just talking in general vague terms when we say, all of a sudden, the governor is going to control the appointment of the L.S.U. Board of... of the L.S.U. president nomination because the governor will somehow or another get complete control of the fourteen-man board of the L.S.U. Board of Supervisors. Well, that's just hard for me to swallow. I can't swallow either that the governor is going to control the president of Southern University with respect to the appointment he will make, particularly when these appointments are going to be on a staggered basis. Now, let's talk about some of the other things with respect to the protection that is afforded by Mr. Flory's amendment, and particularly the two-thirds vote required in the House and Senate to change anything. Recently, there was an attempt, a move made, to make the burden of proof on the appointing authority with respect to the firing of a state employee: that is, that the poor little guy who is fired doesn't have to prove that he was not incompetent--that's always hard to prove--but that the appointing authority who fired him would have to prove, in fact, that he was. The burden of proof is on the employer at this time. The House and Senate thought that that was wrong--that's a civil service rule--so, they tried to get a two-thirds vote of the House and Senate to submit to the people of this state a change with respect to the burden of proof. They failed miserably. Now, you want to tell me that all of a sudden, a good legislature is going to do a flip-flop and destroy the merit system and destroy the civil service system, and that the Civil Service Commission and the people who are supporting it will not be able to get at least fourteen senators to prevent that? I just don't buy that. I am for shortening this particular proposal. If you don't like some of the things in it, if you think that the appointees should be appointed for a term of six years rather than four--that's six of one, a half dozen of the other--change that. But, let's not argue the old harem-scarem tactics of the spoils system. Let's get down to the meat of the coconut and pass this amendment, and then dress it up a little more if you choose too.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

Further Discussion

MR. JUNEAU

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'll make my remarks very brief. You know, at the commencement of this Constitutional Convention, I guess that most of us who ran for this office ran on certain platforms. I don't recall anyone, to my knowledge, in this entire convention who had a mandate to change civil service. Now, I'm not talking about changing the language, or the detailed, meticulous language in this convention; I'm talking about changing the basic principle of civil service. Again, I say, I defy anyone to say that they had a mandate from the people of this state to change civil service. Secondly, I don't recall anybody giving a mandate to anybody in this convention to give the governor of this state more power. I find it a little interesting when we come up here and say let's don't talk about the spoils system when three weeks ago we were saying, you better not fool with this because you're talking about the spoils system. If we're going to adopt that philosophy, let's be true. Civil service unquestionably is needed in this state. We went through a tumultuous time in the earlier years of this state which we do not want to relive. I tell you, and in my sincere opinion, if you tamper with civil service--the basic philosophy of civil service as it's known to the people in this state--I tell you we are tampering with something that can materially affect this constitution. To me, that's just a fact. Before we got involved in this convention, we could tell there were four or five items that we were going to fool with that were very touchy: Civil service--everybody says you better watch that one; you go tampering with that one, you're going to really mess up; property tax--you better be careful; and education was another one. I'm telling you--and I hesitate to talk on this subject--but it just got to me that it looked like we were lulling ourselves into a sense of false security. So, in summary, I'll implead with you, and I will not go over in detail what other speakers have told you, but I tell you in all honesty that the changes that are made by this amendment are not mandated by the people; it's not necessary; and it's certainly not consistent with what I think we're trying to do in rewriting this constitution. I implore you and implead with you to reject this amendment.

Questions

MS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Juneau, since the convention, in its wisdom, didn't allow me to ask this question of Mr. Roy, I'll ask of it you. He was referring to the very independent L.S.U. Board of Supervisors who has appointed a very independent member to the Civil Service Commission all these years. Didn't we change that Board of Supervisors to some extent, maybe shortened their terms or something, right before we went on recess?

MR. JUNEAU

In my recollection, the terms are shorter, yes ma'am.

MS. ZERVIGON

They are like less than half as long as they are now, which may mean then they are not quite as independent as they used to be--or at least, that's a possibility?

MR. JUNEAU

That's correct.

MS. ZERVIGON

Thank you.

MR. CHAMPAGNE

Mr. Juneau, did you know, since you and I both represent a portion of the same parish, that I spoke about the spoils system and was concerned the other day, and I am still am now; so I'm not one of those who flipped over. I just wanted you to know that.

MR. JUNEAU

I'm glad you're not one of those, Mr. Champagne.

MR. A. JACKSON

Delegate Juneau, are you aware that in House District No. 2 in Caddo Parish there is a great clamoring to change civil service?

MR. JUNEAU

As I said, Mr. Jackson, to my knowledge, I don't... I think if you were to take a poll in this entire state-- I can't speak for that district, Mr. Jackson in response to your question-- but I think if you would take a poll in this state, my own personal opinion is that the overwhelming majority of this state would reject any substantial change in civil service, which I think this proposal does.

MR. A. JACKSON

Yes, but you made an emphatic statement that no one ran as a candidate to change civil service. That was incorrect. I did.

MR. JUNEAU

I said I didn't know of anyone, Mr. Jackson. If you did, maybe you're one. I'd like to know how ever many did on that same platform.

Further Discussion

MR. RACHAL

Mr. Acting Chairman and delegates, this is a very difficult time to rise. I realize the hour is growing late, and I had thought of not rising until I was surprised by Mr. Juneau's remarks. It's rather interesting, and I wonder if he was trying to say something to us when he said if there were three things that the people did not want us to tamper with or mess with, it was civil service, property tax, and education. Well, we've already messed with property tax and education, and I suppose he's suggesting that now we're on civil service. So, if two out or three isn't much different from one hundred percent. Let me add also that I sincerely admire the members of the Civil Service League and other persons who are so vehemently in defense of the civil service system as it is. I believe that many of them are genuinely sincere. What discourages me so much is that in speaking with many of these people, I cannot seem to get across the idea that nothing is really perfect, and that there are times when there must be consideration for change in keeping with the times in which the present... in which we exist. I cannot support the fact that the statements that are made many times that Louisiana has the best civil service system in the world, or in the country, but I don't know what there is to back it up. I hear just as many who say that civil service is... operates no better in terms of the results than it does in others. I feel that we do need to make some changes. In suggesting that we need to make changes, I do not mean to suggest that I want to gut the Civil Service Commission-- I would like to make provisions whereby the system can be responsive to the needs, not only of the people, but to the managers who must run the federal agencies efficiently, as well as for the employees we say we're trying to protect. I wonder sometimes just what are we trying to protect. In the testimony that I've heard, I heard many managers in this government who complained about the inflexibility of the system to make some of the selections which they chose to make to better run their operations. I have also observed these are times when some of the flexibilities were made to operate when it was convenient, and yet, at other times it could not operate. Now, as I listen to the testimony today, I hear those who, like myself, support this amendment be admonished to have confidence in the system as it presently exists because it's going to change. I've heard those same people say, too, let's have confidence in the legislature, and then now we say can't trust the legislature. If there is anyone who should mistrust the legislature, I think I should head the list. I'm not as knowledgeable as many of you, nor as experienced as you in having observed the workings of the legislature, but I have known enough not to be interested for many years because the operations of that legislature meant no good to me. But, I have noticed a change, and I am willing to stake some of the future and the principles for which I stand upon that legislature; and to relegate provisions whereby we can be flexible to provide a civil service in keeping with the late seventies and the eighties, I'm willing to give some of that confidence to the legislature, as you have asked me to do in other instances. Civil service is a personnel operation. In addition to protecting employees, as I've said, it is--and supporting good government--it also must promote the efficiency of governmental operations. No one with managerial experience, who come into positions of government, is going to arbitrarily remove all people if he expects to continue to run an efficient operation. It just doesn't make sense. I think that the caliber of persons we have in the legislature--and I certainly hope that in the governors we'll have in the future-- that such irresponsible behavior will not take place. I would say that for those of you who have concerns about appointments of two persons by the governor, it has been admitted by the proposer of this amendment that a certification by the Senate would be accepted as an amendment. If that's the only objection, why not amend the nominations so that we may move forward. The objections by appointments by the governor, I take issue with. There have been those before me who have referred to their experiences in the past. I've had some experiences too. I have noted in the federal civil service example... for example, where the commissioner of the federal civil service are appointed by the presidents, that such a procedure whereby some influence could have been brought to bear has called for some progress having been made in the federal government, in terms of the civil service --because of the pressures brought to bear, if you will--but which changes and flexibilities have not been in violation of a merit system. A merit system which calls for seeking ways by which individuals chosen for employment are those supposedly best qualified.

Mr. Chairman, I'll end by asking the delegates to support the Flory amendment, and I call for the previous question.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates to the convention, we now approach the time we're about to vote for something that's extremely crucial to the employees of this state and some of its political subdivisions. I want to clarify the record if I can, for the benefit of some of those who stated from this microphone one or two things, and I recognize that the... they perhaps may not have heard exactly what I said, and I hope they didn't deliberately try to misconstrue something that I might have said in my explanation of this amendment. Specifically, I did not say--nor do I propose--that I speak for the sixty thousand state employees of this state, nor all of the thousands of firemen and policemen in this state. My remarks were--and I repeat again-- nothing that you could do in this convention will aid that sixty thousand employees of the state, or the firemen and policemen throughout this state, and the employees of the city of New Orleans more than by the adoption of this amendment. That's what I said. I honestly and conscientiously believe that, but at no time did I try to convey that I spoke for those people. I can say to you without any reservation whatsoever that I do speak for many, many thousands of those that I mentioned, but never would I say that I spoke for the total amount. Now then, I do not believe that the Public Affairs Research Council, who is financed, I presume, primarily from management sources, would come to the conclusion that they trusted the legislature by a two-thirds vote to amend or change civil service, if they thought for one second that it was going to be detrimental to the civil service system, or to the security of the state employees, or those covered by civil service in this constitution. I don't believe that. You know, the whole process of negotiation hinges on one point, and that's good faith-- good faith between the two parties. If you have no faith in the legislature, if you have no concern for the sixty thousand employees in state civil service and the other thousands of firemen and policemen, then you ought to vote against this amendment. Another remark was made that in relation to the fire and police civil service, that it was purely by seniority. I suggest to you that that's not the case. You first have to pass a qualifying examination and make a passing grade on that, and then you have... the senior man gets it. That's the way we pick the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of this state, solely and purely by seniority, adopted by this convention. I urge you to search your conscience in the best interest of the thousands of public servants of this state and adopt this amendment. I beg of you that. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a record quorum call and a record vote on the amendment.

Chairman Henry in the Chair

[Record Quorum Call: 111 delegates present and a quorum. Record vote ordered. Division of the Question ordered. Amendment No. 1 adopted: 57-55. Motion to table reconsideration rejected: 51-59.]

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, I think we need a little soul-searching. I move to reconsider.

MR. HENRY

Well, now, Mr. Flory had moved to reconsider. Mr. Flory, do you insist on the motion...on reconsidering at this time? All right.

Now, here's the position we find ourselves in. The fact that the previous question has been ordered on the three amendments. I think we are going to have to, under the rules, go ahead and take a vote on the remaining two amendments unless we otherwise suspend the rules. You could insist on reconsidering, as I appreciate it--as we appreciate it right now--but, I don't think you can go further than doing anything until we vote on the other two amendments, Mr. Jenkins.

[Record vote ordered. Amendment No. 2 adopted: 60-54. Motion to reconsider Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 55-58. Record vote ordered. Amendment No. 3 adopted: 64-49. Motion to reconsider. Record vote ordered. Motion rejected: 57-58.]

MR. HENRY

Now... alright, Mr. Flory. Do you want to reconsider all at this at once, or you want to reconsider them one at a time?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, I think in fairness to the convention, in light of the way they just voted, that they ought to be considered separately, as they were voted upon separately....

MR. HENRY

All right. Do you want to begin discussing Amendment No. 1, then?

We've got to vote to reconsider first, that's right. So, you want to take the vote on Amendment No. 1 first, and then 2 and 3, or do you want to vote on them all at once?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, I had wanted originally, to vote on all of them at one time because I think what's involved is the entire civil service system. So that....but my appreciation, when the delegate asked for a division of the question, under the rules, there was a question in my mind whether I had a right to object at that time to a division of the question because I think they are all intermingled with each other. Really, it....

MR. HENRY

Well, Mr. Flory, the gentleman had come up here earlier and had asked both the Clerk and myself if the amendments were divisible. Of course, looking at them, it appeared to me--it appeared to Mr. Poynter--that they were. When, under the rules, a gentleman requests a division of the question, if, in the opinion of the Chair, the question is divisible, then the gentleman or the lady who makes the request automatically has a right to have the question divided.

MR. FLORY

Well, under that, Mr. Chairman, if the delegate has the right to request that, and you've ruled that the question is divisible, then I think I would proceed to discuss them one at a time.

MR. HENRY

You want to talk on your motion to reconsider? All right, sir. Mr. Smith, why do you rise, sir?

Substitute Motion

MR. SMITH

I was going to make a motion that we consider this tomorrow. I don't see what good it would do to go over all of this again today. I'd like to make a motion that this be postponed until tomorrow morning.

MR. HENRY

Well, we haven't even voted yet to reconsider, Mr. Smith. There's just a motion to reconsider, don't you see?

MR. SMITH

All right.

Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, we're in a parliamentary procedure at this point where, under the rules, the motion to reconsider and lay on the table, was a mere formality as far as the rules of the convention in laying something on the table to say that we have decided the issue, and go on from that. So, that, the position that we are now in, that if you want to sustain the vote that we just took on an adoption of this amendment, then we have to vote because the objection was raised and carried on the issue. I think if there is that concern among the delegates, in not wanting to lay it on the table, it's of such magnitude that we ought to further debate the issue. But, I, personally, of course, would have liked to have seen the vote laid on the table because I think we could have then gone on with this proposal and adopted a proposal and gone into Proposal No. 10 because the people would have decided the issue insofar as civil service is concerned—that is, basically speaking. So, I would ask that you vote...Mr. Chairman, if we reject...if we vote no to reconsider at this time, what's the parliamentary status?

MR. HENRY

If you vote against reconsidering, then, all three sets of amendments are adopted, sir.

Explanation continued

MR. FLORY

So, I would ask that you reject the motion to reconsider at this time, so that the amendments that have been adopted would stay adopted. Let's then go on about the work of the convention. So, I ask you that when the vote comes, to vote no.

Questions

MR. DESHOTELS

Mr. Chairman, I listened to what Mr. Flory...Mr. Flory you've still got the chair. Would you please—I mean the podium—would you please explain again what your opinion is of our position right now? In other words, what happens if we vote yes, and what happens if we vote no?

MR. FLORY

My position, as I appreciate it, and I hope the chair will listen carefully to correct me if I'm wrong, the three amendments have been adopted. Is that correct, Mr. Chairman?

MR. HENRY

That's correct, Mr. Flory.

MR. FLORY

All right. If we vote to reconsider at this time, then that undoes the adoption of the amendments so that the position that we want to take at this time is to vote no on reconsideration to let the adoption of those amendments stand.

I ask you to vote no.

Substitute Motion

MR. SMITH

Mr. Chairman, I'd like to make a substitute motion that we consider this on the next succeeding day, and not take it up now.

MR. HENRY

The gentleman now moves as a substitute, that we reconsider the vote on Amendment No. 2...on Amendment No. 1, tomorrow.

Personal Privilege

MR. NUNEZ

I guess in confusion, just like a lot of other people are, and just like a lot of other people are trying to do the right thing, and pass this, in what we believe is the best interest of the public at this time; I think we've made a number of mistakes, and we don't have many left. I think it must be indicative, if we read that vote, fifty-fifty right on down the line. Maybe a lot of us would like to look a little closer and come up with the right decision. I think that's what, maybe, somebody is trying to tell us in this convention.

MR. HENRY

Well, Senator, if you want to speak on it, come down front, but you're making a statement, now.

Point of Information

MR. SINGLETARY

Mr. Chairman, if we vote not to reconsider, does that mean that we could reconsider it at a later time?

MR. HENRY

All right, I'm going to explain that.

But, gentlemen, now Mr. Singletary has asked a very interesting question, which is indicative of the fact that some people are not paying any attention at all to what's going on in here.

The motion before the delegates now is whether or not we're going to pass over this until tomorrow or not. Mr. Flory had moved to reconsider the vote and lay the motion on the table. You refused to table the motion to reconsider.

Therefore, the discussion was taking place on the reconsideration of the vote, on Amendment No. 1, to which motion Mr. Smith has made a substitute motion that we defer any action on Amendment No. 1 until tomorrow. What was before us right now is whether or not we are going to reconsider the vote on Amendment No. 1 now, or tomorrow. That's what we should address ourselves to right now.

Point of Information

MRS. ZERVIGON

Mr. Chairman, maybe we ought not to take this into consideration trying to write the best constitution we can, and all that kind of stuff. But, if we pass over this until tomorrow, what will we do the remainder of the afternoon?

MR. HENRY

We could, if the delegates were of a mind to, I would assume begin debate on Committee Proposal No. 10. We could adjourn. If we did, hopefully, some of those committees that need to meet could meet. Or we could just adjourn. So, we don't have...we are in an awkward position with respect to the fact that I question the wisdom of leaving this proposal and going to another one until we have resolved it.

Point of Information

MR. TATE

Mr. Chairman, if I understand it, if we don't reconsider the amendment, then it's before us, and then it's open to further amendment and further discussion. Do I understand that correctly?

MR. HENRY

If we don't reconsider it?

MR. TATE

Yes, sir.

MR. HENRY

If we...well, of course, we are not to that point yet. We were to it a minute ago. If this body votes to reconsider, then it opens the whole business to discussion again.

MR. TATE

All right.

MR. HENRY

If this body votes not to reconsider, then the amendments are adopted.

MR. TATE

All right. Then, once the amendments are adopted, are they not open to further amendment?

MR. HENRY

If they're not...you've got to ask me your question again.

MR. TATE

All right. Let's say we had voted...we had tabled the motion to reconsider. So now, we've adopted the amendment. Then, we can have further amendments to the amendment...

MR. HENRY

That's correct, Judge Tate.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

Point of Information

MR. DENNIS

Mr. Chairman, if Mr. Smith's motion to reconsider the amendments on tomorrow is adopted, will that mean we pass over the section, or just the amendment? Won't we still have the section before us, and can't we continue to work on the section?

MR. HENRY

We're still going to have to determine the section. There's not but one section to the proposal, as I appreciate it. Consequently, it would be somewhat, I think, unnecessary for us to begin considering other amendments before we determine what we are going to do with the amendments that are before this body, Judge Dennis.

[Motion for Previous Question on the substitute motion.]

Point of Order

MR. ASSEFF

Point, too.

For ten minutes, Mr. Chairman, I have sought recognition from the chair to speak. I don't know what to do. I want to speak, please, sir.

MR. HENRY

Dr. Asseff, I apologize for not seeing you. With everybody standing up like Mr. Duval, and Mr. Anzalone, and Mr. Roemer, and Reeves, it's hard to tell who wants to do what. I apologize. I'll put you on the list if we ever get to that point.

[Record vote ordered. Motion for the Previous Question rejected: 19-93.]

MR. HENRY

Mr. Roemer is recognized on the motion, to speak on the motion to defer action until tomorrow.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I just have a few comments. I don't know all that much about civil service. I've learned something today. But I did observe just a few commonsensical things as I walked about the floor during the debate today. That is that most of you weren't either interested, or didn't give a damn because you were not listening. It was obvious. I talked to some people about football; I talked to some people about the cotton crop; I talked to some people about how long this convention lasted; I talked to some people about the pressure it put on us; I talked to some people about what we are going to do this weekend; I talked to some people about how bad the weather's been. The point is, it seems that on a question of this importance, that we could have listened more--perhaps myself included. I think that Senator Nunez hit this convention right between the eyes, and right on the head, when he said we have made enough mistakes. We can ill afford to continue what has to be considered a blotchy performance up to now in many, many respects. It seems that when the pressure is put on, we seem to do our worse. We seem to backtrack--get bogged down in petty arguments and, most of us seem to turn our minds off in the hopes that by not listening to the facts and just listening to a few pressure groups, we won't have to think about it. We won't have to make up our mind. Somebody else can make up our mind for us. That's what it comes down to.

I have a simple point to make. I think we ought to reconsider the vote. To be honest with you, I was not in favor of the adoption of these amendments. I don't think it's in the civil service best interest. I think we ought to reconsider. Not just because I voted what turned out to be by a narrow majority the wrong way, but because most of you didn't hear the argument. I just have enough faith in the facts, as I understand them, that if you heard them, and if you digested them, and if you can believe in them, then we won't adopt amendments like this.

One final comment. There are those who want to wait until tomorrow. Twice before in this convention, I've waited until tomorrow. I was amazed at the mandate, at the consensus that was pulled together overnight, after a tomorrow. I don't think we can afford another tomorrow on something this important. Because, if you think the pressure is on this afternoon in the security and safety of this building, can you imagine how it's going to be tonight? Can you imagine what consensus will be pulled together and by whom? I think we ought to reconsider--and today.

Further Discussion

MR. CHATELAIN

Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I'd just like to rise and point out a few points that I'm sure that all of you know. But, I think it's time for us to stop for a moment, pause, and reflect on some of the things that's happened since July 5 this year, when I attempt to try to write a better constitution for the State of Louisiana. One of the three gut issues is now before us. The Number 1 gut issue was property tax. In the property tax proposal when it was finally adopted by this convention by a very narrow margin, New Orleans, Shreveport, and north Louisiana supposedly were hurt by the final adoption of the exemptions, etc., that we adopted. So, some of those people already are disgruntled in these areas because of what happened in property taxes.

Education was the second very vital gut issue that we had to debate. On final passage of the education proposal, which was adopted by this convention by seventy-two votes, you must have sixty-seven votes, by a narrow margin of five votes, this convention adopted the education proposal.

In the area of Louisiana that I live in, that's all I hear when I walk in the streets of south Louisiana, is that, "What in the world else are you going to do to us?" We are being bombarded by a very narrow vote on the outcome of the education proposal. I ask you to stop and think awhile. I don't care if you reconsider this afternoon, or tomorrow morning. But, I think that you ought to reconsider this, and reconsider it well. Civil service is the last gut issue that we have to debate. I submit to you that we better not make too many mistakes. I pointed out to you that New Orleans was hurt in the property tax proposal. It seems to me that New Orleans is going to be hurt in this proposal--in the civil service amendment before us now. I would suggest to you fellow delegates, that you reconsider this, and reconsider it well. Thank you.

Questions

MR. STINSON

Mr. Chatelain, I think you've already asked, but I'd like to reemphasize: Don't you agree that of the three, that this is the most important issue insofar as the future successful operation of our state and municipal government--this question of civil service, to have a strong civil service to protect employees?

MR. CHATELAIN

I certainly do, Mr. Stinson. I'll put it in the same category with property tax, education because it is vitally important to many, many working people in this state.

MR. STINSON

Would you estimate in your area, and I'm sure that that it would be the same in ours what...in the more than fifty percent of the people in favor of civil service that will protect the dedicated state employees?

MR. CHATELAIN

What percentage, sir?

MR. STINSON

Over fifty percent.

MR. CHATELAIN

Yes, sir. Definitely.

MR. STINSON

In this constitution to be passed, has to be passed by over fifty percent.

MR. CHATELAIN

That's right. I don't know of any group that's going to be more vocal than those people who have been on civil service, and are... have to look forward to working for the rest of their lives on a state job, or a teaching profession, or some other profession that's so vitally interested to the welfare of this state.

MR. FULCO

Mr. Chatelain, who told you that our section of the state was hurt by the tax formula, or the property tax ...

MR. CHATELAIN

The farmers in north Louisiana, sir.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. FULCO
I say, who told you?

MR. CHATELAIN
The farmers did, sir--the delegates here.

MR. FULCO
The delegates? I'm from Shreveport; I didn't tell you.

MR. CHATELAIN
Yes, sir.

MR. FULCO
Well, let me tell you--Tom Stagg's the only one that might have told you--but, our police jury, our city commissioners, our tax assessor, and our school board said "no; we are satisfied; vote for it." I don't care what Tom Stagg told you.

MR. CHATELAIN
Mr. Fulco, I can only state what was publicly stated in the Shreveport Journal--and the mayor of the city of Bossier City and the mayor of Shreveport, which I think is a duly elected officer in your area who are very vocal on this---I'm using it as a reference.

MR. GOLDMAN
Mr. Chatelain, I'm going to ask the same kind of question that Mr. Fulco asked. You mentioned north Louisiana was hurt. I just came back from there, spent two weeks there, and I've been called and given a lot of compliments by a number of public officials on the property tax. I couldn't find anybody that thought we were hurt. I think even Mr. McDaniel, on our television station in an interview that I saw him on, said that although at first he thought that this was very bad, after thinking about it a while and deliberating on it, he thought the property tax article was a pretty good article now.

MR. CHATELAIN
Well, Mr. Goldman, I'm sure glad to see there's some rays of hope yet for this constitution. I'm certainly hoping that it continues to be those bright rays.

Further Discussion

MR. LANIER
Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates---Mr. Chairman, in particular, I consider this a very important issue that we're on right now, and the reason for it is that in the city of Thibodaux we have just started a civil service system. This was done by Act No. 97 of 1972. Now, when I came here this morning, I had a Committee Proposal No. 9 and a Committee Proposal No. 10 and a Delegate Proposal No. 27. But, after the debate started, I'm suddenly presented with a floor amendment signed by many of the people from the Education Committee, that I understand was discussed only yesterday, that I didn't even see a copy of until this morning. I've also been, through the courtesy of Mr. Flory, given a copy of an amendment that would apply to the parish and fire protection districts and the fire and policemen municipal civil service that I didn't have an opportunity to see until today. Since we're just getting started in the field of civil service where I come from, naturally we're very concerned about what impact and what effect the actions of this convention will have on the system that we have created. I've spent all of today talking to people who I consider knowledgeable in the field of civil service, like Mr. Flory, Mr. Dennery, Tony Rachal, trying to figure out what in the world is going to happen to my town where I was born and raised, and went to school, and married, and am raising my children right now. Now, I favor reconsideration. But, I also wish to have some time to, at least, have an opportunity to consult with the people on my Civil Service Board and as many people at home that know something about this, so I'll know where I stand when I vote on this issue. I think this is very important. That's why I think we need to have some time to consolidate our thoughts. That's why I concur in Mr. Smith's motion that we defer action on the reconsideration until tomorrow. I've stayed on the telephone half the day trying to talk to different people. I have a young attorney right now, who's on our Civil Service Board, doing some research for me so that I'll know and be able to cast an intelligent vote. Now, for those of you that have had long experience with civil service, that are familiar with it, perhaps this is a much easier decision for you than it is for me. I know that this request is for personal reasons. But, I felt compelled to come up here and tell you how I felt about this. I would like to be given an opportunity--and I believe the people from Lafourche Parish, Mr. Ambroise Landry and Boysie Bollinger, feel the same way--if we're going to cast a vote that's going to affect somebody close to home, we want to, at least, be given an opportunity to know what we're doing when we do it. That's why I ask that you vote for the substitute motion of Mr. Smith. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. ASSEFF
Mr. Chairman, delegates, I wasn't going to comment on CP 26 and CP 7 until some of the delegates did. I, too, represent Caddo, and I want to take Mr. Stagg off of a spot, and Mr. Chatelain. I, too, say that CP 26 and CP 7 are unacceptable to my area as they now stand. I did not wish to say that, but I will, though I should be talking about reconsideration. Everybody else did. In my opinion, what we decide on civil service will determine the fate of the proposed constitution. There is little hope of ratification now. We cannot make another mistake. We must consider carefully before we decide. I urge you not to make a quick decision. If we do, we might as well adjourn and go home. Let us wait until Friday. Let us think about it. It is that important. At the moment, no one can obtain sixty-seven votes, anyhow. We might as well wait until tomorrow, contact people, think about it, and then decide because, in my opinion, if we get civil service, I am through with the proposed constitution. It was in my platform---I don't know about anybody else's--that I would support the civil service provision basically as it now stands. Thank you, delegates.

[Previous Question ordered on the substitute motion.]

Closing

MR. SMITH
Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I didn't make this motion facetiously. I feel like we've talked on this thing today. Some of us want to talk to some of our people back home and others that are interested in this civil service, because this will gut the whole bill, as I think---I may be wrong--but I feel like it won't hurt anything to put it off till tomorrow morning. We've put everything else off from time to time, and I think this is a very serious thing, and I don't see any reason for going ahead and trying to pass it. It will probably be the same vote; I don't know. But, I ask that you all go ahead, and let's defer this thing. I think we would be doing a great thing for the people of our state.

[Record vote ordered. Substitute motion rejected: 32-82.]

MR. HENRY
Mr. Jenkins had insisted on the motion for reconsideration at this time.

Further Discussion

MR. JENKINS
Mr. Chairman and delegates, I want to urge you to vote in favor of reconsidering this question and reopen it to debate. I want to reemphasize how important and how serious this issue is. Not once during our election campaigns to this convention, not once since then have I heard from the public any dissatisfaction of a substantial nature with our civil service system. It has been a system that has worked well in comparison with other systems that are available to us. If there's anything we need to do, it's to strengthen that system, to take out what political influences are in it, not to do anything that could weaken it. Now, the only thing that I can see that could come about by packing this board with more gubernatorial appointees, or people subject to gubernatorial influence, and the only thing that I could see by leaving these questions to the legislature, by two-thirds vote, would be the possibility that civil service employees would be able to go out and run for election, campaign for office, take part in political clubs, have deductions taken out of their salary to go to the political hack who got them in office. The only thing that I can see would be things like that or things where political influence was the sole measure for getting promotions or where the whole merit system were changed to one of seniority—that's the sort of thing that can happen. Or where the rule of three becomes not the rule of three for hiring purposes, but the rule of five or the rule of twenty, whereby a department head can reach down the list and get the twentieth person, ahead of nineteen others who scored better on examinations and on the basis of ability than those ahead. Those are the things that can happen. Why don't we learn from history? History tells us that the two-thirds vote provision was tried before—1948. What happened? We did away with civil service for all practical purposes. It took a new administration, a reform administration, to give it back to the people. You know what's going to happen if we leave this up to a two-thirds vote of the legislature? We're going to have a system where the nonreformers come in; they politicize state employment; then the people are going to get outraged. A reform governor's going to be elected. They're going to have to restore it—probably put it back in the constitution. That's if the people would adopt such a system, and I say again, I don't see why they would. You haven't had people, I don't suppose, in any number, coming and suggesting we change civil service. That hasn't even been a bone of contention. It's been one of the few things in state government that's worked fairly well. I urge you to keep it in substantially the same form, not water it down or leave it subject to a reversion to the spoils system. So, I urge you to vote in favor of reconsideration, and when we reconsider it, I urge you to defeat Mr. Flory's amendments.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

Questions

MR. STINSON

Woody, you heard some reference to the fact that the governor couldn't control the LSU board. But, isn't it a fact that that was a fourteen year board and not a six year that's provided for in the future, maybe?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, sir. But, that was Mr. Chris Roy who had made that statement, Mr. Stinson.

MR. STINSON

Well, for once, he told the truth, though, about saying they couldn't control it, and that was because it was a fourteen year board, wasn't it?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, sir. That's right, and it'd be only a six year term under the present proposal we're talking about.

MR. SHANNON

Woody, you made reference to 1948 that they did away with civil service; how was that done?

MR. JENKINS

It was done by vote of the legislature.

MR. SHANNON

What kind of vote?

MR. JENKINS

I believe it was a two-thirds.

MR. SHANNON

It was a majority vote, for your information.

MR. JENKINS

Well, I'm mistaken, but I'm sure that a two-thirds in those circumstances would have been just as easily attainable.

[Previous Question ordered.]

Closing

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I rise to ask you to vote no on the motion before this convention at this time. I ask you to consider, if you will, how hard it is for me to believe and to understand a member of the legislature who's not willing to trust that august body with the decisions affecting its own employees. I can understand losing and wanting to come back and try and try again. I can understand that. I don't believe in using scare tactics, bringing in irrelevant issues. I have presented to this convention today the issues in this amendment, versus the present constitutional provisions, to the best of my ability, as honestly as I know how and as truthfully as I know how. I haven't in no way tried to pressure anybody into voting one way or the other. I have discussed it—intelligently. I hope—in attempting to convince some of the delegates the wisdom of this amendment. That I have done. I thought that was the democratic process. I hope that it remains as such. I ask this convention now to stand by its decision that we made earlier, even though it was by a slight majority, and vote no on this motion, to let these amendments stand adopted as the convention by a majority vote has voted. I ask you to vote no on the motion before you. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a record vote.

Questions

MR. STINSON

Mr. Flory, how do you think by reducing the terms will better the civil service system?

MR. FLORY

Just as I believe that it would better the judiciary as we reduced the term of chief justices or justices of the Supreme Court; we reduced the terms of the court of appeal; we reduced the terms of the Board of Supervisors, and I might say here, Mr. Stinson, that you talk about...someone talked about giving to the governor additional powers. I remind you that we have stripped from the governor many of the powers of appointment that he had—particularly in the filling of vacancies on local levels or in public office—in prior articles, so that by the mere...giving him merely two appointments does not increase his powers. Overall, we have taken from him many of the powers the governor of this state has enjoyed since 1921.

MR. STINSON

Only local appointments, not state appointments. We haven't stripped one from him. In fact, we've given him more, haven't we?

MR. FLORY

No, sir, because, I believe, under the law for statewide officials elected, where there was a vacancy, the governor could appoint to fill those vacancies. We have provided in this constitution that the first assistant shall take and fill that vacancy in case of a vacancy in those statewide elected offices. So, we have taken that away from him on a statewide basis that I can recall.

MR. STINSON

One more question, let me ask: Why do you think it will better the act or the civil service system by changing...by giving two appointments to the governor, and also by changing the people who will recommend...or the colleges?

MR. FLORY

I believe, as I said earlier in my remarks, Mr. Stinson, that the commission that I have proposed in this amendment is by far better able to represent the broad community of this state, and all of the interests of this state, rather than have five private colleges making nominations governing the full sixty thousand people employed in this state. I just believe sincerely that the state ought to have some voice in its own personnel relations. I just believe that. If they are going to have to finance it, then I think they ought to have some voice in its personnel relations. I ask you to vote no on the proposal.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Flory, in your amendment, I'm somewhat puzzled on Amendment No. 2. You have a Section 3. There appears to be no Section 1 or 2, unless it's in the original, and that original talks about city civil service. Yet, when you talk about, in your amendment that's numbered "3"—although it's not Amendment No. 3; it's part of Amendment No. 2—you give the legislature the right to change in a two-thirds vote, and you also add the problem about fire and police in cities over four hundred thousand. Was there any specific reason for including it in that manner?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir, there was, because if we transfer to the statutes the present constitutional provision on state and city civil service, there is a provision, as you well know, in state and city civil service--whereas in cities or municipalities over two hundred and fifty thousand, all of the employees come under that one system--so that I had to take that from the present constitutional provision to carry it forward to exclude the fire and police officers in the city of New Orleans or in municipalities over four hundred thousand.

MR. DENNERY

Well, what I'm getting at is: is it your intention to provide that the two-thirds vote could only amend or repeal... rather, amend but not repeal...no, it says "including repeal" the city civil service provisions?

MR. FLORY

No, sir...nor does it say that. It says that they can amend any...or change any provision of state or city civil service...the only thing, they cannot abolish it. It's my intent that the legislature, by a two-thirds vote, can change anything in the present constitution that relates to civil service, plus what this convention adopts, but they cannot abolish it.

MR. DENNERY

Except the provisions about fire and police in the city of New Orleans.

MR. FLORY

That's correct. There will be two systems: one for the state and city, and one for municipal fire and police over thirteen thousand--for those municipalities that have in excess of thirteen thousand population.

MR. DENNERY

Thank you.

Point of Information

MR. DUVAL

Yes, Mr. Chairman, there's some confusion as to whether we vote to reconsider. Are we voting to reconsider each amendment separately, or...

MR. HENRY

That's the way we voted on them, and that's the way the motion was made...

[Record vote ordered. Motion to reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 1 was adopted, adopted: 60-53. Motion to reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 2 was adopted. Previous Question ordered on the motion. Motion adopted: 57-56. Motion to reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 3 was adopted. Previous Question ordered on the motion. Motion rejected: 54-61.]

Reconsideration
Explanation

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman and delegates, I know the hour is late, and I know that in the deliberations here today that a great deal of thought has been given to the amendments that I have proposed. I want to tell you I sincerely appreciate that consideration. I think that the amendments that I have proposed--and I want to speak now on Amendment No. 1--is the changing of the Commission of Civil Service. I believe that--and I have said earlier--there were some who objected to not having the appointees--all of them, or at least two of them--confirmed by the Senate. I said then, I would have no objections to the confirmation by the Senate, when, in fact, I would have no objection under the articles that we've already adopted, as far as confirmation, having them all confirmed by the legislature--by the Senate--as is the practice. If this would give to those who object to and who believe that by the appointive process it gives to the commission appointees some extraordinary power that they would not have if they were nominated by some college or university--even though, under that procedure, the governor would continue to appoint them from a list. I don't know of a great deal more that I could say in support of the amendment that I have proposed in Amendment No. 1, only to tell you that in the last years that the civil service system has been in existence--since 1952--there's never been, to my knowledge, a person that served on the Civil Service Commission that I could consider as employee oriented, knowledgeable about the problems of the state employee, or the average employee, working in public service. I don't say by that that those people that were serving in the position as a commissioner deliberately set out to do things that were detrimental to the employees. I don't mean to infer that at all. I just mean that by experience in their field that they were not attuned to the many problems of the public employee as the problems existed then, and do today. I believe there are many things that ought to be changed in civil service. There are many things that ought to be changed to improve the system. I thought that by transferring to the legislature the authority to make these changes, with a two-thirds vote required, that that was a proper forum in order that everybody could come before a legislative committee and be heard in regard to whatever changes might be proposed, in a calm, deliberative atmosphere. It's been said that the decisions made today--and one of the problems that we have with the commission is that even though they hold public hearings and vote in public on the development of a pay plan, or upon the adoption of rules, that in truth and in fact, the decisions are made behind closed doors, and that the public hearing is mere formality. I have no way of knowing whether that be true or not. I can only suggest to you that incorporated in Amendment No. 1 was a vehicle whereby, I believe, that the state employees could have some input into the affairs of the commission, in the development of a pay plan, in the development of rules, and even in the development of a disciplinary action and ruling upon that. I might say, here and now, that in those systems that have employee representatives elected by the employees--so that I might put to rest the fear that exists in somebody's mind--that automatically, if a man is elected by his peers, he's going to rule with that employee if disciplinary action is taken against that employee. I can only tell you from history, throughout this state, in a majority of the cases, it's just been to the contrary--been to the contrary--and that member has voted against the employee and upheld the administrative action taken, based upon a case that was presented. I know there are those of you, here, that sincerely feel that the governor ought not have the appointive power. I know of no one else to trust in this state, except the chief executive, in the making of appointments. I look back over the years when the appointments have been made by the many governors of the state from recommendations by the private colleges and L.S.U., and again say to you, to my knowledge, no one has ever served on that commission who, I think or I believe, was employee oriented in their views and philosophy. I ask you to reconsider your vote in light of Amendment No. 1 in that it does not--it does not--destroy, disturb, or take away from the statute of civil service in this state. It does give 60,000 state employees--and the many thousands of others--some input into the final decisions made by the Civil Service Commission. I just believe that a man ought to have some voice, however small, in his own destiny. I really don't care, myself, as an individual, how large the commission is. I would not object if there were fifty members on the commission; but if there were only one, small voice behind those closed doors who could represent, philosophically, the employee viewpoint. That's how serious I consider the question of civil service in this state. Yes, I think civil service is sacred, because I think the protection given to employees who work for this state and the political subdivisions, their security is sacred. But, I happen to have that faith that it takes to trust people to do what they believe, honestly, is the best in the interest of the employees of the public bodies of this state. I trust the legislature; I trust the governor, in their wisdom to do what they think is right. I don't mean to tell you that I've always agreed with either--I haven't. But, it's the democratic process, and I know of no better way. I ask you to, once again, vote for this amendment, and let's move a step forward in the treatment of our public employees in this state. I'll be happy to answer any questions, Mr. Chairman.

Questions

MR. CONROY

Mr. Flory, I'm trying to make sure I understand the effect of these amendments. The first amendment sets up a commission and says how it's to be selected. Is that right?

MR. FLORY

For the state.

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. CONROY

For the state. The second amendment contains a similar provision with regard to the city system. Then, this Paragraph (3), as I read it, coming down into the second sentence says that "the legislature may repeal or modify any of the provisions of old Article XIV, Section 15." Then, it goes on to say, "or amend, repeal or otherwise modify any provision of this article." Now, does that mean that the legislature, by two-thirds vote, could decide to totally change the composition of the State Civil Service Commission?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir.

MR. CONROY

That's your intention, is that the legislature could decide that all members were to be appointed by the governor without any nomination; that the legislature could do that?

MR. FLORY

That could happen, or it could require that Tulane University make all the nominations.

MR. DUVAL

Gordon, I think some of us are at cross purposes, and there's varying reasons for the objection to your amendment. I think that the civil service. . . I agree that the civil service law does need some changes, but I think some of the basic objection is that the board you have composed, here, seems to lose a great deal of its autonomy, possibly, in that you have appointments by the . . . two appointments by the governor, and no employee, for instance, is elected from the employees--state employees. Don't you think that this board, maybe, would have less autonomy that it could have by the way it's composed?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Duval, I, from a personal viewpoint, would prefer, and had proposed in committee, that the additional representative be elected by the employees, and require that they maintain their status as employees of the state in order to serve on the commission, or vice versa. If they chose to leave the employ of the state, the office would automatically be vacated. I met with some strenuous objection in the committee on that, who did not believe that the employees ought to serve on civil service commission. But, yet, I tell you in all fairness that from a viewpoint of sixty thousand employees, they want a voice of some kind, which they've never had.

MR. DUVAL

Mr. Flory, isn't it so that employees serve on city. . . on your municipal civil service commissions?

MR. FLORY

Oh, yes, indeed, almost throughout the state in the municipal civil service.

MR. DUVAL

Well, I'm just suggesting to you that perhaps your amendment might have more success in the event that the composition of the board was slightly changed.

MR. NUNEZ

Mr. Flory, I'm trying to find in your amendment--in Amendment No. 1--a provision that would allow an employee to be represented on the board. I assume, that you're assuming that the governor or one of the new universities you are placing in here to appoint someone, would appoint an employee orientated board member. Is that correct?

MR. FLORY

I stated earlier, Mr. Nunez. . .

MR. NUNEZ

I didn't know what you stated. . . I didn't hear you earlier, but was that. . .

MR. FLORY

I said that it was my hope, and I had the faith in whoever made the appointment--whoever the governor may be--that he would take into consideration in his two appointments, at least, someone that was employee oriented and, perhaps, even someone who was totally management oriented; and that I was willing to trust, whoever the governor may be, to make that appointment in that fashion, without requiring him to do it in that fashion.

MR. NUNEZ

Would you not believe that the most direct approach would be to put it in here that this is what you want, and this is what ought to be done? If this is what you're saying that you want to do, then maybe that should be the way it is. I. . . . to put an employee representative on the board. But, it's not in here, and I don't think you guarantee that you're going to get it that way.

MR. FLORY

Well, no, sir; I don't have any guarantee that I would get it, nor have I discussed it with him--the governor--whether or not I would get it, or anything about this. But, I can only say to you, I had the faith, in order that he might have the opportunity that he would take that into consideration--the governor, whoever he may be.

I, personally, would rather write it into the constitution and leave it that way where nobody could change it--that the employees would have a right to representation. I thought, in the preparation of this amendment, that it was a compromise between those who believe one way, who believed another way; it was some sort of medium ground that we could get a consensus of this convention on. That's why I took this approach.

MR. ROY

Mr. Flory, do you agree that the board hardly meets enough or represents a broad enough spectrum of the people of this state to represent all the problems and views of sixty thousand state employees--the board, as presently constituted?

MR. FLORY

I don't want to be critical of the commission as it is constituted, Mr. Roy. If I were serving as a member of the commission, I'm sure I would do some things different than the way they do it. I've never been privileged to sit behind the closed doors that. . . with them, so that I don't really understand fully, the problems that can come before them to determine--in order to answer your question--whether the time that they spend is adequate in the solving of the solutions and the problems confronting the state employees, who they are charged with representing. I cannot give you a yes or no.

MR. ROY

But, nobody can find out, and nobody can--not even the legislature--can do anything about it, if, in fact, they're not spending the time, and if this autonomy that we are talking about is really amounting to aloofness, can we?

MR. FLORY

I don't think there's any requirement in the present constitution requiring them to meet any number of times, and if they chose not to meet at all, I think they would have that authority; I don't know. I'd have to check the writing. . . the actual constitution.

MR. JENKINS

Gordon, in discussing this point, you keep saying the civil service commission is supposed to be representing employees, or. . . I seem to get that from your remarks. Actually, they're not supposed to be representing state employees, are they? Aren't they supposed to be representing the state government in administering the employees of the states? Aren't they, really, in a sense, the boss of many of our state employees, aren't they?

MR. FLORY

Mr. Jenkins, it's my appreciation of the civil service system, has two functions: One, is to protect the interests of the employee; the other is to protect the interests of the public at large, in this state. I say to you that in the consideration of past history in civil service, in my judgment, I don't believe that the commission has given adequate consideration to the many problems of the employee. I think they are charged dual, with two responsibilities. One, protecting the rights of the employee; second--and I don't know which order you put them in--but, it's protecting the overall interests of the public.

MR. JENKINS

But, they are supposed to be, then, impartial, not favoring one group or another. They're supposed to sit there. I mean, after all, there is no interest in favoring management in this case because management is state government. These people don't have any benefit from helping shareholders or anything else, like they would in management. Aren't they supposed to be sort of impartial arbiters in this situation?

93rd Days Proceedings—December 6, 1973

MR. FLORY

My point, Mr. Jenkins, is that some of those who have served on the commission, perhaps attorneys representing corporations only, philosophically get to believing the corporate philosophy and, therefore, can't understand the many problems of the employees. I don't fault them for that; I don't mean to say that. I only say to you that the employee viewpoint--the employee viewpoint--has not been considered because the employees have never had the right, behind the closed doors, to express that viewpoint. So that, if you served as an attorney representing only corporations, it would be very difficult for you to serve in my best interests as an employee. That's my point.

MR. HENRY

Are there any other questions?
Mr. Juneau.

MR. JUNEAU

Gordon, I'll apologize if this is somewhat repetitious, but I might have missed it in the original presentation of this thing. What was the philosophy for changing the universities that we had in the present law to this list that you have here? Some were deleted, you know, and some added, obviously.

MR. FLORY

As I told the convention, earlier, there was a division of opinion within our committee and within the delegates here, some who believed that all of the nominating colleges and universities ought to be from the private sector, and that even L.S.U. ought to be taken out as a nominating organization. There were those who thought it ought to be more or all of the colleges of the state system--whether it be L.S.U. or the state college and university system making the nomination. There were some who believed that there ought to be a completely, entirely different method of nominating. So, as a means of compromise in trying to draw together a consensus, after talking for months with many of the delegates here and on our committee, I chose to go with the three private organizations--Centenary, Louisiana College, and Xavier--and take Tulane and Loyola off and let them be the nominating universities in the state. . . in the city civil service system in the city of New Orleans, by name in the constitution or in the statutes. In their place, then, put Xavier and Southern University to give some sort of racial balance in the appointive process in this state. All of these factors, though, were taken into consideration: geography, and all of the other factors that I mentioned; and realizing that the state colleges make appointive recommendations on the municipal level in their area, generally speaking.

MR. JUNEAU

Now, pursuing a little further one of the questions that was asked you by Mr. Conroy: What was the philosophy. . . or what is the philosophy of your amendment with regard to the composition of the board? Do you think it is such that it not be changed? Do you think that's important enough not to be changed, or that it ought to be subject to change?

MR. FLORY

I think that it ought to be subject to change, and I say that for this reason: when this provision was put into the constitution, the personnel policies throughout this country were entirely different than they are today. I don't know what the public personnel policies will be thirty years from today. Some of those here may know what it will be thirty years from now. I don't know. So, that what I'm saying is--and I refer you to some of the comments that PAR made in their booklet--that in order to adapt the changes necessary, that we ought to have some vehicle for that change without having to go the route of a constitutional amendment. Let some deliberative body--which would be the legislature-- have that authority to make that change based upon what was required from the public consensus at that time.

MR. JUNEAU

But, you would have that change go so far as to completely change the philosophy or structure of the very board that you're talking about; is that right?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir. Again, I don't want to say. . . I didn't want to infer even by saying that they couldn't change that, that I didn't trust the legislature. I think that if I'm willing to trust the legislature in this whole provision, on one part, I ought to be willing to allow them to trust it in the other. The only prohibition I put in there on the legislature was: they could not abolish the system of civil service in the state and in the municipalities over 400,000. That's the only prohibition, and that. . . the reason for that, of course, being I do not believe that you'd ever get two-thirds vote of the legislature to tamper with the security of the individual employees of this state. There were many, many delegates who told me, though, they did not want to jeopardize that possibility in allowing that possibility that it could be abolished.

Motion

MR. GRAHAM

In view of the hour, and in view of the fact that this will probably go on for several hours, I believe there are a number of delegates who would like to research some of the local effects of the amendments. I would like to move that we revert to other orders.

ROLL CALL

[84 delegates present and a quorum.]

PRAYER

MR. SMITH

Let us pray. Oh gracious, heavenly and merciful Father, we worship Thee as a giver of light and life and as the revealer of a saving and upbuilding truth, and as the giver of every good and perfect gift. We thank Thee for Thy love and Thy mercy in Thy manifold blessings. Be with each of us here today. Guide and direct us in our decisions in this convention. Be with those that are not here for whatever their reason. Help us in all that we do, or say, or think. May the words of our mouths and the meditations of our hearts be accepted in Thy sight, Oh Lord, our strength and our Redeemer. Amen.

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

READING AND ADOPTION OF THE JOURNAL

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

PROPOSALS ON THIRD READING FINAL PASSAGE

MR. POYNTER

All unfinished business is Committee Proposal No. 9, introduced by Delegate Aertker, Chairman on behalf of the Committee on Education and Welfare.

A proposal making provisions for human resources by providing for state and city civil service.

One section presently under consideration: Section 1 of the proposal. The status at the present time is the convention has adopted a set of three amendments proposed on yesterday by Delegate Flory and thereafter voted to reconsider the vote by which Amendment No. 1 and Amendment No. 2 were adopted, which are presently before the convention at this time.

Personal Privilege

MR. GUARISCO

Some time ago, I asked several...went around and asked the delegates if they would like to visit the only persons in the state, so far, who have not had the opportunity to visit or see the Constitutional Convention--that is, the prisoners at Angola. I had some fifty names on the list--that was about a month ago--anyway, since that time, arrangements have been made with the warden and the timetable would be this way. Next Wednesday the convention, hopefully, would try to break around 2:30 or 3:00. We have made arrangements to have a bus out in front of the White House Inn and those of you who would like to go, I'll pass a tablet around, just sign your name and pass it to your neighbor. The cost will be about... it's eighty-nine dollars per bus--one bus holds forty-six people--so, it will be from two to four dollars at the most--five dollars per person--round trip. So, if you would like to go, the convention will be in adjournment. We will have an opportunity to see something, maybe, that a lot of us haven't seen. Thank you.

Reconsideration

MR. HENRY

All right. We are in the midst of the reconsideration on the Flory amendments to Committee Proposal No. 9.

Further Discussion

MR. WEISS

Mr. Chairman, fellow delegates, I appreciate that we are discussing the floor amendment by Mr. Flory and other delegates to the human resource proposal, civil service system. I, like other delegates, am not too familiar with constitution law until we became involved in this. After a hundred odd sessions of committee hearings and convention meetings, I've learned a little something about these type of amendments. I think that yesterday many of us who sat and listened were a bit confused yet with the wisdom of the convention, we've reconsidered this very important amendment. I must confess to you at the onset, being from Lake Charles and Calcasieu Parish, that I am definitely committed to the people in that area and to the former governor of Louisiana, Governor Jones, who was responsible for the introduction of the Civil Service Article and the civil service operation in the State of Louisiana from the '40's on. There is no question in my mind; I don't think there is any question in most of yours that the civil service system must perpetuate itself. However, in reading this amendment and listening to the discussion, I find that in close analysis--and I would ask you to bear with me or to help me understand if you feel otherwise--why this is an extremely poor floor amendment. I hope that the convention will definitely vote it down for the following three reasons in close analysis: First of all, it has been discussed that the spoils system is a very dangerous one and has been in the State of Louisiana. There is no need to elaborate on that, I'm sure you all are well aware of the history of Louisiana--the Long Regime and others who have usurped the power of the governorship. "Vacancies"--according to the central portion of the Amendment No. 1--"by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governor from nominees" and so on. This expression "or otherwise," I've learned what one or two words can mean "the vacancies otherwise created" to me suggest that there may be removal, at will, by the governor. There may be resignation enforced upon those people who have been appointed to this commission. I can see no other possibility but a strong governor usurping this power by creating a vacancy and reappointing to this position. I think that this alone is sufficient to kill this entire floor amendment. I see no good point, whatsoever, and I do see many good points in this. For example, the sugar-coating on this bitter pill is the five members for four years; the dispersion of the seven-member creation as it is outlined. There are many good points in this floor amendment. I'm sure Mr. Flory and his staff, who spent many, many days and hours and weeks on it, have done well in many respects. But, there are things in here that disturb me a great deal and those of you that feel that you want to perpetuate civil service without the influence of the governor, I think by voting for this will be doing a disservice to the people of the state, and perhaps Mr. Flory and his staff have overlooked this one or two words. If the other objection, which I bring to you attention, is true, then certainly it is possible to completely eliminate the civil service in the State of Louisiana by an act of the legislature. The two-thirds vote argued one way or the other, I don't think is too significant at this time; it's simply stated in words at the end of the third section on Amendment No. 2 that "which are continued by this article or amend, repeal or otherwise modify any provision of this article" and so on--amend, repeal or otherwise modify--repeal is the key word in here. Obviously, the entire Civil Service Act, as we can appreciate it, could be completely removed from the people of the State of Louisiana by repeal of the vote of the legislature by a two-thirds vote. I consider this, too, something that I cannot vote for, and I hope you will appreciate the significance of these one or two words as they present themselves and as I have had the experience now of sitting with outstanding attorneys on my committee in the Declaration of Rights as attorney Guarisco, Roy, Jenkins, Vick, and the like who point out the significance of one or two words. In the wisdom of this convention, it was also pointed out that this has shortened tremendously--and I think this was the desire of all of us--that we shorten these articles and make them simple and allow some leeway for some consideration by the members of the board and others to adjust to a situation over the years. But, this has not shortened one bit--not shortened one bit--the Civil Service Act and article as we appreciate it. It has simply incorporated the entire Civil Service Article in this article and it reads as follows: "all of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15, of the Constitution of '21 providing"--and so on--"hereby retained and continued in force and effect." This does not shorten the article one iota; this has incorporated another forty, sixty pages in these two pages; this is not shortening the article one iota. I have to object to this floor amendment on these three bases. Those that can point out to me otherwise, I would be happy to listen. But, I consider this in the terms of many who have come to this microphone before, a bad, bad amendment. I hope I have convinced two of you, at least, to vote against this and let's go on with the consideration of a good civil service amendment in the future.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

Questions

MR. AVANT

Dr. Weiss, in your critical analysis of this provision that you made, the sentence, "Vacancies by expiration of the term of office or otherwise shall be filled by appointment of the governor from nominations made in like manner by the president or his successor of that institution who nominated the member whose place is being filled." Did you bother to check and find the source of that particular statement--where it came from?

MR. WEISS

I did not investigate it, but I did question other attorneys as to what vacancies otherwise are created. I asked this at the microphone yesterday, if you were listening. Mr. Dennery said it was in conflict with the other portions of the articles that might be retained, so this is....

MR. AVANT

Would you believe that that is the exact language of Article XIV, Section 15 of the Louisiana Constitution of 1921 that famous Civil Service Amendment we have been talking about?

MR. WEISS

Well, we have been asked to rewrite a constitution that we understand. There are many things in the 1921 Constitution which I don't think anyone understands.

MR. ROY

Dr. Weiss, do you understand that the schedule will not incorporate the present constitutional provisions and that will not go into the new constitution but will simply be some other, like statutory material?

MR. WEISS

Yes.

MR. ROY

Well, don't you realize that then it will cut down the length of the constitution by some forty or fifty pages?

MR. WEISS

But, this is part of the constitution, as I appreciate it. This is not the....

Point of Information

MR. FLORY

I have some amendments that I would like to propose that I believe that could take much of the objections from what is before this convention at this time. With the permission of the convention, I would like to withdraw Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 at this time and have it redrafted to incorporate the changes that I propose to make, which I believe will satisfy many of the objections and would, thereby, save much of the time and debate of this convention. If I would be allowed to withdraw them at this time and have it retyped to incorporate the changes for redistribution to the delegates.

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Flory, if you've got something that will improve the quality of the work and also speed up the process, I certainly wouldn't object to it, but you are going to have to make that in the form of a motion.

MR. FLORY

I so move, Mr. Chairman.

MR. HENRY

You move to withdraw Amendments Nos. 1 and 2?
Mrs. Zervigon, you object?

Point of Information

MRS. ZERVIGON

No, Mr. Chairman, I'm just trying to figure out what's going on; I thought we had adopted these amendments.

MR. HENRY

We adopted them, and then we turned right around--and for all practical purposes--adopted them because we are further considering the Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 that this body decided to reconsider on yesterday. So, it's in a posture of not necessarily being adopted and susceptible to being withdrawn--Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 are, Mrs. Zervigon, as I appreciate it.

Point of Information

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, will we be given an opportunity to study the changes before the convention considers them? If so, I have no objection.

MR. HENRY

I'm certain that....

MR. ASSEFF

I'm not saying we won't, I'm just asking for a....

MR. HENRY

No, well, I would certainly think that this convention would not adopt any amendments that it hadn't looked at and thoroughly discussed. I would assume that's what you would consider.

MR. ASSEFF

I would like fifteen or twenty minutes to look them over before we consider them, Mr. Chairman, if he is going to make substantial changes.

MR. HENRY

I think your point is well taken, sir.

Motion

MR. FLORY

Mr. Chairman, the purpose in the motion to withdraw the amendments, I then would propose to stand in recess to have the amendments incorporated and changes incorporated in the amendment that I submitted yesterday, so that they would have it before them for the consideration under debate.

MR. HENRY

All right. Mr. Flory now moves to withdraw Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 for the purpose of redrafting and resubmitting them.

Is there objection?

You object, Mr. Dennery?

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Mr. Chairman, I don't object at all. I think it's fine that Mr. Flory wants to withdraw those amendments. I assume, therefore, that when they are withdrawn, my amendments will come before this body.

MR. HENRY

Well, as I appreciate what Mr. Flory is moving to do, Mr. Dennery, is to redraft those amendments with some changes. Now, it's my appreciation if this motion is adopted, that you are incorrect, that we would wait and consider those changes to his amendments.

Point of Information

MR. DENNERY

Well, Mr. Chairman, as you will recall on yesterday, we had a meeting with you--Mr. Flory and I did--at which time I agreed to let Mr. Flory proceed. It seems to me that under these circumstances, Mr. Flory--not deliberately--is taking somewhat an unfair advantage of me. I have not seen his new amendments. I do not know what they contain. My amendments have been filed, and I do not think it would be quite proper to delay the proceedings of this convention in order for Mr. Flory to make these changes without at least the opportunity to consider the ones I have filed.

Point of Information

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. KELLY

Mr. Chairman, hasn't it been the normal practice of this convention--like when we want to draw an amendment down just to make a few changes in it--that we submit that amendment right back and continue with the arguments?

MR. HENRY

Well, Mr. Kelly, while that's been the case insofar as technical amendments are concerned, I assume that the amendments that Mr. Flory is discussing are not technical amendments, as such. I don't think we have run into a particular situation as we have right here before us.

Motion

MR. WILLIS

I want to express my agreement with what Mr. Dennery said, Mr. Chairman, that is, to say that to allow Mr. Flory to embellish his amendment to attract sufficient votes is quite an unfair advantage to be taken of Mr. Dennery's proposal which is well thought out--in my opinion.

Substitute Motion

MR. WEISS

If I'm in order, I would like to make a substitute motion at this time that to prevent delay of this convention, that we go on with the Dennery motion...now.

MR. HENRY

Until we decide what we are going to do with reference to the Flory amendments, unless there was....

MR. WEISS

This is an amended motion.

MR. HENRY

Sir?

MR. WEISS

This is a substitute motion.

MR. HENRY

Well, Dr. Weiss, you....

MR. WEISS

This is not in order? A substitute motion, I believe, is in order.

MR. HENRY

What we have now is the Flory amendments up on final passage, if you will.

MR. WEISS

Isn't he...he has made a motion. I would like to make a substitute motion.

MR. HENRY

He is moving to withdraw the amendments and, quite frankly, I don't think your motion to....then as a substitute to his motion is to consider the Dennery amendments is actually proper, quite frankly.

Point of Information

MR. GRAHAM

Mr. Chairman, hasn't Mr. Flory made a motion to withdraw Amendments Nos. 1 and 2 of his amendment --but, that still leaves Amendment No. 3? Wouldn't it be quite complicated if suddenly we jumped to another amendment to this same proposal after having adopted Amendment No. 3 of the Flory amendments?

MR. HENRY

Well, it would appear to me that the delegates are going to have to decide one of two things--whether they want to proceed to the adoption of the Flory amendments or whether they don't--and that's it because we are going to have to stay to do something to clean up with we did yesterday afternoon before we go to another different set of amendments that won't blend into what we presently have before us.

Senator De Blieux.

Personal Privilege

MR. DE BLIEUX

Mr. Chairman and delegates, if Mr. Flory will just accept my amendment that I have proposed, I think it would clear up everything, because the only thing Amendment No. 3, is just repeal what's included in mine--we could all get it straight.

MR. HENRY

Well, gentlemen, rather than trying to complicate this, let's decide what we want to do---now, this body can decide.

Point of Information

MR. BERGERON

Mr. Chairman, would not it be a good idea if we took a short recess and got copies of the proposed changes and looked them over before we voted on Mr. Flory's motion?

MR. HENRY

Well, I think perhaps the delegates would be able to vote more wisely if they knew what was going to be in the amendments. But, we are going to have to decide here in just a minute. Do you have copies of those changes that you propose to make, Mr. Flory?

MR. FLORY

Yes, sir, I have. The staff has prepared them in the form of five amendments to the amendments that were adopted yesterday. My purpose was not to take unfair advantage of Mr. Dennery, but more in trying to give to the delegates the amendments as they would be incorporated in the one that we adopted yesterday so that they would have the total document before them, so they could consider it in that light. But, if there is objections to the withdrawing of my amendments, I will proceed with the five amendments and try to get those adopted into my amendment that I was considering yesterday rather than yield my amendments at this time for consideration of Mr. Dennery's. I was merely trying to expedite the work of the convention.

MR. HENRY

I understand, sir.

I'm going to ask that...Mr. Hardin says those amendments are available. I'm going to ask that the sergeant-at-arms or the Clerk pass those amendments out. We will stand at ease just for a few minutes to let you look over the amendments.

Point of Information

MR. ARNETTE

Mr. Chairman, in other words, we are letting Mr. Flory withdraw his amendments.

MR. HENRY

No, sir, we haven't done that at all. There is a motion to allow him to withdraw the amendments which will have to be acted upon.

MR. ARNETTE

So, in other words, what we are going to do is we are going to read these new sets of amendments; then, we are going to vote on it to see whether we want to hear these before Mr. Dennery's; is that what we are talking about?

MR. HENRY

We are going to pass these amendments out so that the delegates will have an opportunity to look at the amendments, so they can more properly determine how they want to vote on the motion to withdraw the present Flory amendments that we are considering. There have been several suggestions that the delegates would like to know before they vote, and I don't know of any other way to accomplish it. So, I will ask the pages....

MR. ARNETTE

Well, the reason I was just kind of...the reason I was objecting to this procedure is Mr. Dennery has had his amendments filed for days and he told us, even before we came upon this proposal, that he was going to propose those amendments. We had copies of them; we knew what they were....

MR. HENRY

Mr. Arnette, all I'm trying to do is assure that we proceed

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

in an orderly fashion, as logically as possible, and as smoothly as possible. It seems that there's a great deal of confusion before this body right now and if taking a five-minute recess to let folks read these amendments will expedite our proceedings, I don't see any reason not to do it. So, we will stand at ease for five minutes.

Recess

[Motion withdrawn.]

Further Discussion

MR. DENNERY

Delegates to the convention, I appear before you for the purpose of opposing the adoption of Mr. Flory's Amendments Nos. 1 and 2, which are before the house at this time. I will not repeat all of the arguments I made yesterday. But, I would point out to you several things. In the arguments that were made in support of Mr. Flory, much was said about the flexibility of civil service in Louisiana. Much was said about the advantages of permitting the legislature by a two-thirds vote to bring this state up to date as far as personnel practices were concerned. Now, I feel much in the same light--and I hope you don't think I'm blowing my own horn--as did Mr. Monday Lowe the other day when he told you that he considered himself to have some expertise when it came to accounting and to pension problems. I feel the same way with regard to civil service. I would point out to you that the flexibility of personnel practices has never been determined by the law as set forth in the 1952 amendment to the constitution. But, the flexibility of personnel practices is based solely upon the ability of the commission, the respective commissions, to amend their rules which have the force and effect of law. It is a lot simpler and a lot more flexible to permit a commission which meets regularly every month, and can meet much more often, if necessary, to amend its rules, than it would be to await a session of the legislature, which is held normally only for two months during every year. Furthermore, certainly, the commission has developed a little more expertise in personnel practices than the members of the legislature as a whole. Now, it will be argued that this has not been proven true in practice. Nevertheless, my amendment which will come up later provides for a change in commissions; provides for a seven-man state commission, just as Mr. Flory's amendment does. It provides for two of the members of that commission to be appointed by the two private universities in this state which are predominately black. It provides for one to be appointed by the only private university in the state which is predominately female, so that we have a complete input from those fields into a new commission. Therefore, it seems to me that flexibility as an argument in favor of Mr. Flory's amendment is a false argument, a fallacious argument. The two prime factors, the two prime features of the system which we have had in Louisiana since 1952--which have established it as one of the better if not the best state civil service system in the United States--are the independence to the commission and a very strong prohibition in the constitution against political activities. Now, the prohibitions against political activities and the prevention of use of political pressures on employees have been the bill of rights for the classified employees in the state and in the city. As you were so well told by the members of the Bill of Rights Committee, those are things which should not be left to the legislature. Now, if you will glance at Mr. Flory's set of second amendments which have now been circulated, you will notice that he has provided for a strong political activities prohibition--very similar; I didn't check it word for word, but I believe very similar to the present one. However, you should also look at his original amendment, and his original amendment permits the amendment, repeal or other modification of any provision of this article, not only of the portions of the constitution which he is making statutory, but any provisions of the Constitutional Article. He can say that the legislature can, therefore, change the whole composition of each of these commissions which are mentioned in here. It can completely change the political activities prohibition. It seems to me that it is foolish to assume that a political body is not going to be apt to look at questions of political prohibitions when it strikes home. The political activities prohibition must be retained in the constitution, not subject to change by legislative action. The little Hatch Act was the state employee's and the city employee's bill of rights. It is the act which protected and freed these employees from the political pressures which they underwent in years gone by. For those of us who are old enough to remember those times, will remember this well. I cannot emphasize too much to you that the two prime important factors in a true civil service merit system of public employment are an independent commission, completely independent, and a strong political activities prohibition. I urge you to vote against Mr. Flory's amendments.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Dennery, something that I have been wanting to know for quite a long time; I had some experience with this a few years ago: the merit system. A young lady took a test. She didn't pass it. She got the job. It caused a lot of confusion. She wrote a note and she said, "You've got to know where the grease is." If I had known this was coming up, I could have brought it and let everybody see a copy of it. I would like to know under that merit system, how did she get a job when she didn't pass it, when she only said she knew where to get the grease from?

MR. DENNERY

Mrs. Warren, without knowing all the facts involved in that case, it's impossible for me to answer it to you. However, I can assure you that the best constitution we write will do no good if you have people elected under it and appointed under it who do not follow it. I don't care what you put in the constitution, it's only as good as the people we elect to office, and the people that those people appoint to office. It's up to us as citizens of this state, to elect the proper people.

Mr. Chairman, I do not often ask for additional time. I've overlooked one item, and I would appreciate about thirty seconds.

I very strongly commend to you the Projet' of the Constitution, Volume 3, which all of you have. On page 500 and following, is a statement by Mr. Charles E. Dunbar, Jr., who is recognized as the father of civil service in Louisiana. As to the reasons for the adoption of a merit system of constitutional civil service, I could not improve on Mr. Dunbar's language. He is revered in the United States as one of the great civil service leaders of all times. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

Further Discussion

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of this convention, I rise in support of Amendments No. 1 and 2, and I do so very mindful of the fact that we need a strong, independent Civil Service Commission in this state. I rise in the full knowledge that men who have served on this commission have made valuable contributions. But, I do not believe that any person in this room can deny that there is great need for change on the part of this Civil Service Commission. I do not believe that any man or woman in this room can overlook the fact that personnel policies are changing all over this country, and that the central question before us today is not whether or not the governor is going to make appointees to this commission because I believe that that rather simple question can be solved by way of the amendments offered. I do not believe that the question is whether or not the new structure, as suggested by this amendment, is going to return the civil service structure to the old Spoils System because I don't believe that anyone in this room can believe that that can ever happen in Louisiana again. I think the central question before us and one that I would ask that you would consider at this time is: what kind of civil service structure can we provide that will be responsive to the needs of civil service in this state? What kind of structure will respond to the needs of the people who are working for state agencies all over this great state in which we live? I stand here today to tell you that people all over this state are saying, people who work at civil service are saying to me as I talk to them that the present Civil Service Commission is not responsive to their needs. I'm not talking about dismissals; I'm talking about the day-to-day decisions that this commission makes that affects the life, the bread and butter and the future of these people who work for state agencies. That's what I'm talking about. Mr. Dennery's correct when he says that it is impossible for the legislature or for any court to make the decisions so needed, that it is necessary and important that the commission is able to make the decision. He is correct. The decisions must be made on a day-to-day basis by the Civil Service Commission. That's why the structure that we include in this constitution is so important. That's why I am supporting this amendment; because I believe that the structure that is provided by this amendment will allow us to make the kind of day-to-day decisions that will redound to the benefit of this state in terms of the people having greater faith and having some belief that the Civil Service Commission is going to act in their interest. Now, I'm not suggesting at all that the men who have served are not honorable because they are. But, I am suggesting to you that oftentimes, many times, people who are civil servants believe that...or fail to understand the rulings and the rules and the policies and the procedures of the Civil Service Commission. So, I believe that it's necessary that we change the structure, that we change it in the light of the new personnel practices and policies that are so prevalent across this country. Yesterday, I heard someone suggest that people aren't concerned, that people aren't asking about civil service, that they aren't concerned about changes, that they aren't really clamoring that we make changes. I would ask that those of us who serve in this Constitutional Convention would turn your most sensitive ear to the thousands of people who have been denied the opportunity for jobs in state agencies. I would ask that you turn your most sensitive ear to those dedicated civil servants who feel--maybe not rightly so, but who deep in their heart feel--that the Civil Service Commission has not acted in their best interest. I ask you to turn your most sensitive ear to the fact that as long as a large segment of people in this state feel that they are not a part and parcel of a powerful structure like the Civil Service Commission, that this state is not going to move ahead. I ask you to listen to the voices that cry out today for representation, for someone to be there to at least interpret to them... to the people who make the decisions, their hopes and their aspirations. That's not happening today. As long as we have a large segment of our population not believing in a powerful structure such as the Civil Service Commission, this state is not going to move ahead, and it's not going to serve well all of the people. It is important that we make a change. It is important that we move ahead. It is important that we have representation on the Civil Service Commission--representation for all people, representation that people can believe in. That's why it's necessary to have representation from some of the public colleges. I had no argument--and I am a strong supporter of private education; try to make some contributions to it every day. But, most of the private colleges in this state...

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

Most of the private colleges in this state and in this nation are restrictive, and are desiring to exclude. While they serve a great and noble purpose, I think we are talking about the people of this state receiving representation from a structure that they will have some input in...that they will have some voice in; that they will have some power over--power in terms of making some determination about their destinies. Ladies and gentlemen, this is a crucial decision. It's a crucial decision for this state. It's a crucial decision for this convention. More importantly, it's a crucial decision for the future. It's a crucial decision for democracy. Whether or not we're going to democratize this structure, rests heavily with your decision. I would ask that you would vote in favor of these amendments because I believe that these amendment democratizes this commission in a manner that it's not had before. I believe that this amendment will restore the integrity to this commission that is so vitally needed. I believe that these amendments will restore our confidence and belief and faith on the part of civil servants all over this state in order that their morale can be lifted, and they can better serve the people of this state, and we can get the full benefit of the tax dollars expended by way of salaries. I would urge your support of these amendments.

Questions

MR. ROEMER

Alphonse, I listened as carefully as I could to your speech, and you made some statements that I'd like you to explain. They sound good, but I don't understand them. For example, you said, "We will never return in this state to the Spoils System." On what do you base that feeling?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I base it, Mr. Roemer, on the simple fact that I do not believe that the media will allow this state to return to the yesteryears. I do not believe that the people of this state will stand idly by and allow us to misuse civil servants. I think that the past events, that the whole inertia that we have in terms of public life now, is so intent that no one can escape the scrutiny of the people. So, therefore, I do not believe that it is possible for the Spoils System to return to this state.

MR. ROEMER

Well, maybe you and I disagree on what the Spoils System is. Would you agree that the Spoils System is any system for the selection of people based on anything other than their merit, that is, friendship, color, location, anything else?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I think that that's part of a Spoils System, and I do not believe that this amendment would permit that.

MR. ROEMER

It looks like to me it institutionalizes that. The second question is...

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, we disagree.

MR. ROEMER

...you say there are new personnel practices in America that we have to be cognizant of. What are those new personnel practices?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, I think that we could stand here for hours, Mr. Roemer, and talk about them. But, I think that, for example, the whole business of how we select individuals...the whole testing procedures ought to be reevaluated as it relates to civil service. I think that the whole business...of seniority, while I know it's sacred to some individuals in this room, I think that we need to take a new look at it in some cases and in some of the categories. I think that the oral devices used by the civil service commission are not related and not relevant, and ought to be placed under some new scrutiny. I can go on and on, but that's the kind of vein in which I was addressing myself.

MR. ROEMER

Well, I have one final question. I don't want to be argumentative, and I won't. My final question is: what is the job of civil service? Is it not...it's not to appoint people; isn't it just to test and certify them?

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, as I appreciate the function, Mr. Roemer, it is to administer the personnel policies for civil servants. It's certainly...that's certainly a part of it--testing, but I don't think that that's the full extent, as I appreciate it... the extent of the responsibility of the Civil Service Commission.

MR. ROY

Mr. Jackson, do you realize and do you know that the Civil Service Commission not only makes its own rules, but also interprets its own rules, and that the Supreme Court of Louisiana, nor the legislature, can by any vote...excuse me...the legislature cannot tamper with any rule that it makes?

MR. A. JACKSON

I'm very much aware of that, and that was the basis of my statement when I said that it is so important that we have a Civil Service Commission that reflects the interests of the people because this commission makes day-to-day decisions.

MR. ROY

Do you also realize, though, that the legislature, by a simple majority vote, can reverse or change a ruling of the Supreme Court of Louisiana as long as it was not based on a constitutional interpretation of the Louisiana Constitution?

MR. A. JACKSON

Yes.

MR. ROY

Can you rationalize in your own mind how the legislature may change the decision of a body of seven lawyers and judges who are the Supreme Court of this state, and yet, is not by any vote, allowed to change the ruling or the decision of a body of five people which is appointed by a closed set of institutions?

MR. A. JACKSON

Oh, I think it's unfortunate, but as I indicated earlier, this is a very powerful, powerful structure in this state. As I indicated to someone last evening, if I had my choice, and somebody wanted to give me something, I would ask for civil service.

MR. ASSEFF

Mr. Chairman, delegates, I am in complete agreement with Mr. Dennery, and in complete disagreement with Representative Jackson. In my opinion, the purpose of this amendment is to correct inequities which are said to exist. I realize that there are inequities and that we should correct them. But, to jeopardize our civil service system is not the answer. There are two basic criticisms: one, the state police do not receive the same supplementary pay as sheriffs and their deputies, and municipal police; and two, black universities are not listed among those to recommend names for the Civil Service Commission. I cannot agree that a complete change is going to bring a new light to Louisiana, or improve anything. Of course, it may. It equally may bring the faster. As you know, I introduced Delegate Proposal No. 1, to correct the first, and will offer an amendment at the proper time to assure fair treatment for the state police. I certainly think the black universities should be added to the list of colleges to recommend names for the commission. However, I am unwilling to jeopardize civil service to accomplish the above purposes, or to vest control in one area of this state, or to give control to the governor. It is said that we should trust the legislature. If we really trust the legislature, will someone be so kind as to tell me why the proposed constitution is so long, and so much detail is included? CP26, CP7, the Bill of Rights, Local and Parochial Governments and others--it is apparent that we trust them when it serves our purpose, and don't when it does not. Check the voting records, delegates. I don't trust the legislature in this area. I'm frank about it, and I intend being a member in 1976. The Civil Service Commission--yes, I'm brazen--the Civil Service Commission, as set up in the Flory amendment, gives control to the governor. If the governor cannot control LSU or Southern, then he certainly cannot control Southeastern and Nicholls. We should let those colleges recommend. South Louisiana is ignored. Again, it is argued that we are reducing the length of the constitution. Who's kidding who? We have reduced nothing, for the amendment incorporates by reference Article XIV, Section 15 of the constitution by stating this: "Except as may be inconsistent with the provisions of this article, all of the provisions of Article XIV, Section 15 of the Constitution of 1921, providing for a system of classified civil service for the state and for cities are hereby retained and continued in force, and effect." Constitutional status is, therefore, given to that provision. We have not reduced the length or pages.

But, we will be adopting one of the chief defects of the '21 Constitution--incorporation by reference. Also, it is contended that the two-thirds vote will be difficult to obtain.

It is apparent that we have forgotten the lessons of history. By a little sugar, the governor has obtained a two-thirds vote for taxes. Earl K. Long and Jimmy Davis obtained the two-thirds easily to remove able officials from office because they differed from them. Two members removed by a two-thirds vote, sit in this convention, delegates. I watched legislatures and governors from behind the scenes for over twelve years, and we kid only ourselves if we do not accept facts. There is argument about the attitude of sixty thousand state employees. All are guessing. I add mine. I say the state employees would defeat this amendment three to one, and if it weren't for a possible pay raise for the state police, they'd defeat it by three to one. Are you willing to jeopardize your security, state employees, for a possible salary increase? The political history of this state indicates it would be most unwise. It is said that the Shreveport Times and the Shreveport Journal are unfair to us. The Journal stated that we would need three conventions to draft an acceptable constitution. I'm beginning to believe them. I have no reason to love the press, delegates, for they endorsed my opponent and actively fought me, and they will do it again. I never have received fair treatment from the press, and do not expect it. However, ...and the press can't beat me, incidentally. However, the press is influential on the issues. All the press will need in this amendment, with a coalition of interest groups passing it, to have a field day. I can justify my "no" vote. I hope, delegates, that you can defend your "yes" vote, if you have a political future because your opponents will call your record to the attention of the people, as I have every intention of calling the vote of my legislative opponents in 1975. I beat every interest group represented in this convention, the governor, and the press, and three defeated candidates; and I'll do it again in 1975. I urge you to reject the amendment, and let us correct the inequities. Of course, they exist. I want to correct them, as we consider the committee proposal on civil service. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

MR. JENKINS

Mr. Chairman, there was some discussion yesterday about what happened in 1948, and whether or not civil service could have been changed by a two-thirds vote or a majority vote. I've since checked, and found that at that time, it took a two-thirds vote to change it. Of course, you know what happened; the two-thirds vote was easily gotten by Earl Long in his first session there, and civil service was gutted. Let me give you a good example of what we're going to face if this convention ignores history, ignores politics and goes along and returns to that system, just like happened in 1948 when the legislature could have changed it by a two-thirds vote. I want to call your attention to this morning's Times Picayune, the news article on the front page: "Civil service's fate undecided." Now, this is a news article, and I want you to consider the first paragraph. "Baton Rouge, Louisiana. CG73 trembled on the brink, Thursday night of leaving the fate of civil service to the whim of the legislature, which a quarter of a century ago destroyed it." Now, that's what the news articles say. You wait till the editorial writers get a hold to it. You just wait for that. Ladies and gentlemen, we can't go back, when you talk about basic reforms in this state, the reasons that held true then are just as true today. The political tendencies of politicians to want jobs and influence over public employees is just as true today as they ever were, and they always will be. Now, look at the appointments in this amendment: one from Southern, one from LSU, as well as the two from the governor, or two elected--whatever it may be. Will the governor control that appointment from LSU and Southern? Well, already, there is considerable influence. You may remember that when the last vacancy occurred on the Civil Service Commission, Governor Edwards demanded that the president of LSU submit the name of a black as one of his three nominees. A black was indeed named. Now, I don't know whether that was coincidence, or not. But, it could have been bowing to pressure. Now, that's what the LSU Board of Supervisors does. It has fourteen-year terms now. Perhaps, there is some control and influence over the LSU president right now. What will happen when you have six-year terms or four-year terms for members of the LSU Board? I don't know. Now, not that we shouldn't have qualified blacks on this commission; certainly, we should. We should have qualified people on this commission at all points. That's why I think that we should go along with Mr. Dennery, and have the president of Dillard University, and the president of Xavier submit nominations. But, I don't want to see any system whereby the governor can put pressure on presidents of public colleges and universities to choose the sort of appointees that he might want.

MR. HENRY

Would you yield to a question?

MR. JENKINS

No, I've got some other things to say. Now, you notice the civil service provision in the present constitution is long. That's true. So what? Has it been the focus of a lot of amendments? Had there been countless amendments on the ballot amending the civil service provisions in our 1921 constitution? No. It hasn't been tampered with at all. The amendments have been in other areas. There's been no demand on the part of the legislature or the public to change the civil service system. The only time there was an amendment was last year to add Dillard and Xavier, and that was defeated. I think it should be done, anyway. But, I think clearly there's no need to change our basic system. Now, look at the politics, if you would, for just a minute. I think this convention has done a pretty good job so far--writing a basic document and accommodating the interests of all the people of this state. Think how many votes this constitution is going to gain for it if we emasculate civil service, or leave it up to the legislature to do that. How many will we gain? I submit, not one, not one, not one. If we do this, though, we have an opportunity to lose thousands and thousands of votes for what would otherwise be a pretty good document. Let me read you some things. We got a memo back in March of this year. A little pamphlet said, "Civil service must be protected." It was from the chairman of the Louisiana State Personnel Council, the president of the Louisiana Chapter of the International Personnel Management Association, and the chairman of the Civil Service Liason Committee. It said this: "The greatest safeguard for the preservation of the merit system is, of course, its perpetuation through embodiment in the state's constitution. Experience has bitterly demonstrated that where a merit system is established in the form of a legislative act, it continuously deteriorates from weakening amendments which are often adopted during times of political tensions, and for reasons not clearly logical or pertinent to the achievement of good government. On the other hand, a system whose basic and vital provisions are firmly entrenched in the constitution, will survive the periodic attempts to frustrate the principle of merit in public employment through the hurried adoption of unsound and ill-fostered, disabling and crippling legislative amendments. Likewise, when the civil service system, as provided for in the constitution, it can better be defended and protected by the courts, and of course, by the people themselves, for it is the people who decide whether or not they want such a system, in the first place. Of course, even the author of this amendment, I think, should recognize the dangers in it. I quote for you, The Spokesman, a newsletter from the Society of Louisiana Public Employees, of August, 1973, it quoted Delegate Gordon Flory. It said this:

On April 11, Delegate Gordon Flory an AFL-CIO official and member of the subcommittee, stated that "We'll be making a real serious mistake if we were to radically change civil service as it now is contained in the present constitution. We would run the chance of defeating the whole constitution."

I think one of the arguments being raised by a number of our black delegates here is a fallacious one, and I want to talk about it.

Many politicians have used civil service as a scapegoat to deny jobs to our black citizens. They have said, "Civil service won't allow you to be hired," when it wasn't civil service at all. Civil service only tests and certifies the qualifications of people. The appointments are done by other authorities, agency heads, etc. All civil service does, insofar as appointments of people is concerned, is test and certify the top three; that's all it does. Now, earlier this year Governor Edwards requested that the Civil Service Commission allow selective certification of certain black applicants for certain civil service jobs, and what he meant by that was that he wanted the Department of Education to go out and hire scores of people based primarily on race, not on the fact of whether or not they had scored in the top three on the test. He requested this, appeared before the Civil Service Commission. Now, the Civil Service Commission rejected his request, and Harry A. Johnson, Jr., the Chairman of the Commission, sent him a letter. I want to read a little bit from that letter about what he said. He said--and this was to Governor Edwards-- "The problem faced by Superintendent Michot is one which is neither new or unique. In response to the problem the Department of Civil Service recommended and the Civil Service Commission adopted the following rule"--which he spelled out. He said, "You have suggested in your letter, as you did in your appearance before the Commission on February 7, that we might direct the suspension or elimination of some of the test requirements for specific positions and the substitutions of more appropriate requirements for these positions. Your letter of March 8 and your statement on February 7 suggested that the Commission should examine the tests being administered by the Department of Civil Service to determine whether they are adequately job oriented. On that occasion you posed the rhetorical question, 'What difference does it make if a clerk typist knows the names of the first five presidents of the United States?' And the implication fairly to be drawn from that question is that the test for clerk-typist qualification contained such a question." Now, Mr. Johnson in his letter said, "No such question nor any similar question appears on that or any other examination administered by the Department of Civil Service. Rather, we have carefully reviewed a substantial number of the examinations which are administered by the Department of Civil Service, and we declare emphatically that we are satisfied that these examinations are job oriented and professionally constructed fairly to test the qualifications of persons seeking employment in the state service. These examinations have repeatedly met the criteria of federal agencies, which inquire into such matters. The examinations are under continuous review, and where needed, revision. These examinations are not theoretical. Their content is determined in large measure by what the supervisory personnel in the various state agencies outline to the Department of Civil Service as the requirements of knowledge and skill in persons who are to perform a specific needed function." He goes on; he says, "The criticism that these examinations reflect, cultural or racial bias, is a broad and sweeping charge completely lacking in specification. Our review of those examinations searched for any such bias, and in this the Commission had the assistance and counsel of the most capable black member appointed by you, W. S. Finister, Jr. This review did not reveal any such bias, and if anyone will specify in what way any examination does reflect such bias, you can be assured that further review will be made, and if deemed to be justifiable, appropriate action taken." Then he discusses the rule of three which is also coming under attack. He said, "The State Civil Service Commission has on other occasions been urged to alter or do away with the rule of three, and so far, they have rejected that." He says, "The Commission adheres to the view that the State of Louisiana is entitled to have each opening in the state service filled by the most capable person available. Even with the rule of three, opportunities exist for an appointing authority to make some selection based on factors other than the test, such as interviews, etc.," as he points out. The submission of an entire list of eligibles...

Well, I don't want to bear on the convention. Just let me conclude by saying this: that he points out that if there has been discrimination in the hiring of blacks, it has...

Now, let me go on with what the commissioner of civil service said. He said, "A great many black persons are presently employed in the state service. A substantial number of them hold responsible and well-paying jobs. To be sure, there are not as many blacks employed as there are whites, and there are not as many employed in the higher paying jobs, as many would like to see. This situation has improved in recent years, and hopefully, it will continue to improve. But, the best interests of the State of Louisiana will not be served by putting less qualified persons in the service in lieu of better qualified ones, be they black or white. The public is entitled to the best value that it can get for the tax dollar spent for salaries." Now, then he points out, "The number of black persons employed in the state service is not governed entirely by the scores made on tests given by the Department of Civil Service. Then, he points out that when civil service gave lists to an appointing authority in which at least one black was included on the list, forty percent of those instances resulted in a black being appointed. Now, the average would be thirty-three and a third percent, but when a black was included on the list, the average was forty percent--instead of thirty-three and a third percent--were being appointed by the appointing authorities. Now, he pointed out further--and I'm going to paraphrase it a little bit--that the problem, if it existed, has been essentially on the appointing authorities, not on civil service, and altering the makeup of civil service will not change that. But, he adds this--and after some lengthy, statistical information--"We do not consider that this whole problem is a mere matter of statistics, but we feel that you should be made aware that many eligible blacks, certified by the Department of Civil Service as qualified to hold certain jobs, are not being appointed by the appointing authorities. These statistics should be a clear indication that the limitations on the employment of more blacks in the state service are not being imposed by the action of civil service, but by the appointing authorities." He emphasizes "Appointment is outside the province of civil service. It can only test and certify." Now, what are the new personnel practices that Mr. Jackson referred to earlier? He said, "There are many new personnel practices around the nation." The only one I can think of would be the imposition of quotas, which is exactly what I've been talking about--selective certification. I don't know. But, I certainly don't want to see any system like that. I think our system has worked well in the past in regard to civil service--maybe not the appointing authorities--but civil service has worked well in the past. There have been no complaints. You look around the state. Ninety-eight percent, I'd bet you, of our civil service employees are quite well satisfied with the general makeup of the civil service system. It will be our civil service employees, as well as the good government groups around this state, that get up in arms if we tamper with civil service in this constitution and leave it to the whim of the legislature.

So, I'll try to answer some questions.

Vice Chairman Miller in the Chair

Questions

MR. HAYNES

Delegate Jenkins, you refer to quotas. You've had a hundred percent quotas all the time, and this is what you want to retain. Am I correct in that?

MR. JENKINS

No, I don't think we've had quotas in the past, Mr. Haynes, but I'm concerned, as you have been, about past discriminations, most of it legal in fact....

MR. HAYNES

Could I ask you to look at the state police, and haven't you had a hundred percent quota there?

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. JENKINS

I don't know of any legal quota, Mr. Haynes, but I certainly think that as long as we have fair testing procedures, that test those people who come and apply--and we can't make anybody come and apply who doesn't want to--I think that that's the fairest, best way to get qualified people for these state positions.

MR. HAYNES

You refer to letters from the governor. Isn't it true that Governor McKeithen wrote a letter to the employing agencies and to civil service some several years ago during his administration asking that people be employed without regards to race and other superficial factors that are barriers to maintaining a system that keeps people from having life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, he did, Mr. Haynes. In fact this letter is very critical of Governor McKeithen for making such requests and then having department heads, in some cases, that did not do that. But, that's the fault of the appointed department heads, not civil service. Civil service doesn't make the appointments.

MR. HAYNES

It so happens that President Woodin and the black appointee, to whom you referred, are from the same section of the state--from Sicily Island, as I appreciate it. Was your resentment of the letter from the governor asking that somehow we get some representation on this committee, or was your objection to the fact that the governor appointed Mr. Finister, who happens to be a black man.

MR. JENKINS

No, my objection was--and certainly not to Mr. Finister because so far as I know he's done a fine job and has a good background. My objection was that the governor would put, as a prerequisite to appointing someone, a racial qualification-- the fact that he would come and say that the first thing I want is somebody of a particular race. I think that's wrong.

MR. HAYNES

Would you say that up until that...time of that appointment that....

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Jenkins, do you believe that there is any way to keep politics out of civil service, or anything else today?

MR. JENKINS

No, I don't think there is, but I think that we can minimize it.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you. I want to save your time, now, 'cause I asked a question. I want you to answer it.

MR. JENKINS

Well, let me answer it. Let me answer it to my satisfaction, just as you asked the question to your satisfaction. I don't think there is any way to keep it out completely, but I certainly think we can minimize it. I think that in the past twenty-one years, under the new constitutional provision, we have minimized it insofar as we could, constitutionally. I don't want to see any revision and reversion to former practices, which, leaving it up to the legislature, I don't see how it can strengthen it. The only thing it can do is deteriorate it. That's the only thing I can see because it's about as strong as you could make a civil service system right now.

MRS. WARREN

Number two: What would you suggest that they be, appointed or run for it?

MR. JENKINS

I think that Mr. Dennery's proposal....You talking about commission members?

MRS. WARREN

I'm not talking about Mr. Dennery's proposal. I have already read it. I'm asking you a question, Mr. Jenkins, and I don't want you to discuss Mr. Dennery's proposal. I'm going to get to it when he comes to the floor. I want to know from you: how do you suggest that we get these commissioners for civil service--let them run for it or let them be appointed--period?

MR. JENKINS

I think the best way is to allow presidents of certain selected private colleges to make nominations of three. I think that the proposal that Mr. Dennery will make does just that. It allows for some of the colleges that have been on there in the past, plus St. Mary's Dominican College which is a predominately or all woman's college, plus Dillard and Xavier which are predominately, if not all, black colleges. I think that that will give fair representation to everyone. It will be a seven member committee, and yet there won't be any racial quotas or stigmas. I think a commission like that could do a good job and be substantially above gubernatorial influence or legislative influence. I think that's the best way.

MRS. WARREN

Number three: How often does a Civil Service Commission meet now?

MR. JENKINS

How is it made up now?

MRS. WARREN

No, I said how often does it meet?

MR. JENKINS

I'm not sure about their meeting schedule, Mrs. Warren. I'm just not sure about that.

MRS. WARREN

Is it open to the public?

MR. JENKINS

Yes, it is open to the public.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you.

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Jenkins, are you aware of the fact that the testing companies themselves have declared that all tests--all tests--are culturally biased?

MR. JENKINS

Well, I'm not sure what testing companies you're talking about, and I'm not sure....

MR. A. JACKSON

I don't care. Any that you think about or any that you're aware of--that there is a voluminous amount of research to substantiate....are you aware that there is a....

MR. JENKINS

No, I'm not aware of that, but if they were, I don't know what that would prove. We live in this culture; we have to be able to function in this culture, and we certainly want our civil service employees to be able to function in this culture.

MR. A. JACKSON

It proves, Mr. Jenkins, that your statement, that the tests used by civil service are not culturally biased, is not true. That's what it proves.

My second question is are you aware of the fact that in the constitutional amendment offered that the university.... Southern University and Grambling College were included, and that this constitutional amendment received more than forty thousand votes? Therefore, your statement, that the changes that included these state colleges would not get the constitution a single vote, is not true.

MR. JENKINS

No, I don't see that, Alphonse, how it's going to get any additional votes other than what it's going to get already.

MR. A. JACKSON

You said that it wouldn't get it a single vote, and we had such a proposition and it received over forty thousand votes.

MR. JENKINS

Well, I don't understand what difference that makes. I think that this constitution is--if you're talking about black people, for example--I think this constitution is acceptable to black people right now because it's a very liberal, progressive document.

MR. A. JACKSON

I'm not talking about black people. I'm talking about this state. Are you aware, Mr. Jenkins, that the courts have already declared in several cases that the tests ought to be job oriented?

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

MR. JENKINS

Well, that's exactly the way these civil service tests are; is job oriented.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, why is it that they have declared that many of the tests used by employing agencies aren't valid instruments?

MR. JENKINS

Testing companies have so declared, in general, about all tests, you said? Is that what you're talking about?

MR. A. JACKSON

I said the courts have declared.

MR. JENKINS

Well, I don't know what court decision you're talking about, and how that pertains to Louisiana Civil Service.

MR. A. JACKSON

Well, you must be aware of the chicken-plucking case?

MR. WEISS

Delegate Jenkins, would you not say that there is considerable confusion in the minds of some delegates as to the definition of the civil service system, which is a merit system--not a quota system. Would you elaborate on the difference between a quota system and a merit system as it pertains to the Civil Service Act?

MR. JENKINS

Well, I think any system, other than one based on merit, would be a return to the spoils system because it would be a means of rewarding people for past political support or hoping that they will support you in the future. I think that that's what the great reform of the civil service system in this state amounted to, and I think any retreat from the concept of a merit system would be definitely a reversion to the spoils system, whatever current guise it may be under.

Further Discussion

MR. HERNANDEZ

Madam Chairman and ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I spoke at length yesterday, and I'm going to try not to repeat myself. But, I am so thoroughly convinced, firmly and honestly convinced that this amendment will do more harm to more people and to this proposed constitution than any other amendment presented to this convention by destroying the very foundation on which our present merit system is founded. Any true merit system must of necessity be based on competitive examinations, ability to perform, fairly and impartially administered, removed as far as possible from political influence and any outside pressure. This amendment does not adhere to this basic philosophy. You will no doubt recall at about the time this convention started practically every major newspaper in this state vigorously and staunchly supported our present merit system editorially. There were a lot of editorials. Unfortunately, I went off and left some of these editorials that I would like to present to you today, but they were good ones, and they staunchly supported our present merit system. Every state--now, Mr. Jackson, I'm going to direct this remark primarily to you--every state civil service employee, without exception, that I have talked to, has asked me to support the present provision that they know provides the protection they desire, they deserve and need to assure them of their rights. These people that took these state jobs have applied themselves--they have paid into the retirement system--have a right to expect to draw their retirement pay when they have earned it and to live in comfort. They do not want to take....they, when I say...I don't claim to represent every employee in this state; don't misunderstand me. But every single one that has talked to me wants to keep this present merit system that we have to assure them of this retirement that they have earned. That is without exception. Now, Mr. Jackson made the statement earlier--and I don't question his integrity--but he says we will never return to the spoils system. I truly and honestly feel that this is the first step, that this amendment will provide the first step for this return. We can only judge the future by the past, and it's often been said that history repeats itself. Now, in 1940 they pressed...almost the same provision that's in the present constitution was put in the constitution at that time, and they had practically the same provision that Mr. Flory has in his amendment--that by two-thirds of the vote that it could be amended or changed. In 1948 they did just exactly that thing. They did not repeal it, but they butchered it up so bad the cats wouldn't have it, and at a subsequent special session, it was abolished. Mr. Dunbar, the father of civil service in this state, didn't even object to it because it had been so badly butchered up by this same two-thirds vote of the legislature. Please keep that in mind. We have no assurance, Mr. Jackson, that that can't happen again, and I do believe that this amendment clearly provides the vehicle by which it can be done. Now, ladies and gentlemen, if you listen to nothing else that I say today, I want you to hear this. Each time the people of this state have had an opportunity to express themselves about our merit system, they have voted overwhelmingly in favor of it--each time overwhelmingly in favor of it. I believe that today they would give it even a stronger vote, for civil service has proven that it is successful. It's good for the employees of the state--all the employees of the state that are under civil service--and it's good for the State of Louisiana as a whole. It saves the state money. It is not, as I said yesterday, going to do away with all the deadhead jobs. I don't believe we'll ever... those of us in here will ever see the time that there will not be some. But, it has greatly reduced the number of dead-head jobs.

Finally, I'm going to ask you to remember this--and the reason I point this out, and the only reason--I despise any politician's effort to capitalize on the racial issue for political achievement. Now, I still am bitterly opposed to any attempt to do that. I just want to call your attention to the fact that we came here to write one constitution for all of the people of this state--not for blacks, not for whites, but for all the people of this state. Please, keep that in mind.

Yes, ma'am. I'm ready to answer questions.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

It's a quick question, too. How many civil service employees does the news media have?

MR. HERNANDEZ

That I have no way of knowing, Mrs. Warren. I have no way of knowing.

MRS. WARREN

Thank you. Well, I mean, they put to you what they want you to know. That's the reason I want to know how many do they have in their employment. They have a way of getting over to the people, the vehicle for which to get over to the people what they want to sell--period. So, I would like to know how many do they have? Now, I'm going to ask some of them. You see, I'm not worried about any political career of mine. It's already made from the beginning.

MR. HERNANDEZ

I have no idea--no way of knowing.

Thank you very much. I urge you: please, defeat this proposed amendment. It is not good for the people of this state.

Further Discussion

MR. STAGG

Madam Chairman, fellow delegates, I will not repeat myself from yesterday, nor will I take the full five minutes. There are a number of delegates who seek changes in the civil service system of Louisiana for reasons to them that are absolutely valid. Some of their reasons address themselves to the procedures and the rules of the commission, which they feel to be unfair to state employees. Their changes do not necessarily address themselves to the makeup or the appointment of the members. Some of those objections are to the methods of testing, as Representative Jackson has so eloquently stated. I'd like to repeat for emphasis that when the Health, Education and Welfare Department of the federal government had occasion to judge those tests--and the makeup of HEW is well known to all of you--their findings as to those tests were not...were that they were not unfairly drawn nor unfairly administered, and that point needs, repeatedly, to be made. I only want to make two other very important points. Yesterday, a number of delegates alluded to the power of the governor and what this convention may have done to limit those powers. Mr. Flory's amendment grants to him an important addition to the powers of the office of governor. The press did adequately report that the governor sent a letter to the president of LSU.

94th Days Proceedings—December 7, 1973

To refresh your memory, that letter "suggested" I think, to the president of LSU that in his list of three for a new appointment to the commission that a black be named. A list was produced by the president of LSU. A black was included on the list; a black was appointed to the commission, and let me say, parenthetically, it was high time. His name was Watson Finister, and he's the Director of Financial Aid at Southern University, and from all I hear, a gentleman of exceptional quality. The point is not the qualities of Mr. Finister. The point is the power of the governor to make the suggestion to an appointing authority, which was instantly complied with, and you tell me--those of you who support Mr. Flory's position--that the governor has no power to influence the makeup of the commission. The point is absolutely otherwise. He has the power; he will have further powers under the Flory amendment, and I don't believe those powers ought to be given to any governor. The second point I wish to make has to do with the power of the legislature--that power in the Flory amendment which states that "(E). They can amend, repeal or otherwise modify any ... provision of Article XIV, Section 15," or "amend or repeal or modify any provision" of this new constitution by a two-thirds vote. I think that if each of you would reflect on your knowledge of the history of Louisiana for the past forty years, you will know that the adage that says "those who do not remember the lessons of history are condemned to repeat them." The repetition of history of that nature in Louisiana is not desirable to this convention or to the people of this state. My preference would be to eliminate all of the matter in the Flory amendment under the (3) on the second page. As an alternative, perhaps, we might suggest to the delegates that maybe sixty-seven members of this body would vote to make that three-fourths of the vote of the legislature so that they can act, but they can act only when there is a powerfully good and adequate reason to act, and a three-fourths vote would be required. It has been said from this microphone or the one in Independence Hall, that if it is not necessary to change, then it is necessary not to change. Let us, therefore, address ourselves in this debate only to those remedial changes that the passage of time has shown positively to be needed. The Flory amendments are not the answer. The Dennery amendments, with some further changes of a minor nature, will well serve all of the people of Louisiana and all of the employees of the people of Louisiana. Madam Chairman, whatever time I have, I yield back to the next speaker.

Questions

MR. AVANT

Mr. Stagg, I wanted to ask this to Mr. Jenkins, and then to Mr. Hernandez. But, I address my sole question to the so-called extreme satisfaction of the employees in the classified service with the system. I ask you this question. How can an employee in the classified service publicly express his dissatisfaction with the system, and publicly suggest changes in it, when that, in itself, under the terms of the civil service amendment is prohibited political activity?

MR. STAGG

Mr. Avant, I have not, at this microphone, acclaimed the satisfaction of the classified employees with the system, so that question is not properly directed to me. But, in asking your question, you raised the point that the dissatisfaction of the employees expressed in a public manner would be a violation of the political activity clause of the present constitution. That's why this convention is here, Mr. Avant. A number of civil service employees can contact the delegates that represent them. I don't believe that that's a prohibited activity for one citizen to suggest to another who happens to be a delegate to this convention that there are needed changes here.

I believe the state employees who have a difference with the way civil service is being carried on in this state have adequate representatives in this chamber at these desks. I wouldn't want an adequate--more adequate chairman, or champion, than Mr. Jackson who's on his seat with his microphone in his hand speaking on behalf of the public employees of this state--be they black or white. Chris Roy, who handles civil service cases before the commission is an adequate speaker on behalf of the people that are in this classified service.

Neither of those gentlemen would be violating the civil service law by so speaking.

MR. A. JACKSON

Mr. Stagg, did the appointment of Mr. Finister in any way diminish or jeopardize the Civil Service Commission?

MR. STAGG

In no way.

MR. A. JACKSON

Thank you, sir.

MR. STAGG

In no way. I'm going to further answer it to say, in case you missed what I said a while ago, it was high time that a black was a member of the Civil Service Commission. My point was that the governor used the power of his office to put him there. That was what I thought was an inadequate circumstance, not Mr. Finister. He is totally qualified from all I can understand.

MR. A. JACKSON

Was there any other vehicle for a black to get appointed at that time?

MR. STAGG

I should have hoped that one of the appointing authorities, whether it were Dr. Woodin, or any of the other appointing authorities, would be as sensitive to that problem as you have caused this convention to be, and would have acted in a responsible manner on his own motion without having to be kicked in the tail to do it by the governor.

MR. A. JACKSON

It's unfortunate that I haven't had the opportunity to work on them to the extent that I have on some of these.

Further Discussion

MR. FULCO

Madam Chairman and fellow delegates, I only want to briefly comment on some of the comments that have been made before this mike this morning. I may touch on a variety of things very briefly, if you will just be patient.

Now, I've been a strong supporter of civil service throughout my many years, not only in the legislature, but also in government. That goes back, perhaps, forty years. Civil service should be a strong vehicle for the good of the employees of the state. It should be strong for the good of the state. I know something about the spoils system. I saw it work. I was old enough to see it in action. Surely it was chaotic. It was tragic. But, I'll tell you one thing. I don't think that will ever come about again in the future. The people of today--the minds of today, the influence of today, the press, the media--will not permit it to come. The good government, the good people of the state will not permit it to come about. Just like we have not permitted a lot of things to come about that are not in keeping...that are in keeping with the spoils system.

Now, the two-thirds vote is good for taxes, but, it's not good for civil service. If, in principle, I can't see any difference. I think if it's good for...as an anti-tax measure, I think it's good as anti-violence to the civil service program. Now, if it still isn't satisfactory, I would favor, personally, anyone submitting an amendment to make it three-fourths, or even, submitting, or making changes by a constitutional amendment. I would go for either of those amendments, or for both.

Now, I wanted to comment, we've heard so...many delegates--and not so many--some delegates get before this microphone and tell you about what's going to happen to the constitution when it's presented to the people for a vote because of what they are displeased about in certain articles that we have already adopted. We've found that when we were discussing the Bill of Rights that the sections of the Bill of Rights--certain sections--would definitely kill the convention. If there were--if certain sections were adopted, some of the speakers made the statement that they would definitely fight the constitution. Some of those same people have made the same remarks concerning other articles of this constitution. So, I only wanted to say that they're not...because they feel themselves as experts, or the authorities, they can anticipate the outcome of the constitution. Now, if anyone will kill the constitution--which, in my judgment, will be better than what we've got, and should be passed by the people and recommended that it be passed by the people--then, they are the delegates themselves.

I just wanted to make these few brief comments, but let you know, too, that as far as the matter before the House is concerned, I will vote my own conviction as I see it...not because of being influenced by anyone. Thank you.

Questions

MR. LANIER

Mr. Fulco, I'm concerned about your logic on the issue of the press and the people not allowing the gutting of the Civil Service System. Would you agree that under the Flory amendment, this is a possibility, because there's no prohibition against many of the protections that should be there?

MR. FULCO

As far as the opinion of the press, or as far as the opinion of the individual is concerned, I respect that person's opinion. I respect the opinion of the press. But still, I have a right to my own. In my judgment, I will determine that when the time comes. I don't know whether we'll gut it or not. My observation of certain sections of the amendments, of certain paragraphs of the amendments right now, is that some are good, and some are bad. I will vote for the one that I think is good, and not vote for the ones that I think are bad. But, it will be, in my opinion, in my vote, as to whether or not I would consider it gutted or not.

MR. LANIER

The point I'm getting to, Mr. Fulco, is why should we take a chance on a possibility when there is absolutely no possibility of this happening under Mr. Dennery's proposal.

MR. FULCO

Well, that's your opinion, Walter. I respect your opinion. But, I have a right to my own, too.

MR. SMITH

Mr. Fulco, why do you think the legislature, by two-thirds vote should have a right to do away with this civil service...in fact, that's what they would do, don't you think, if.....?

MR. FULCO

No, I definitely do not think, Jasper, that it would do away with civil service. I don't think anything anybody will do will do away with civil service. I think there are enough good people left who appreciate the value of civil service, who will always protect that.

MR. SMITH

Don't you think if we came up with a good civil service--Mr. Dennery's amendment, say--and put it in the constitution, why should it need any changing? Why should...don't you think...let legislature having the right to two-thirds vote to change it would probably gut the whole thing?

MR. FULCO

No more than I think it's going to pass. And speaking of the two-thirds vote, the only way we've ever...the legislature will ever get a two-thirds vote against a good and honorable and just issue, will be at the cost--financial cost--of the state government. It will be trading projects for a vote. That's the only way. Of course, it can happen even in a three-fourth vote.

MR. SMITH

Well, don't you think it's easy to get a two-thirds vote. It's been done in taxes in this administration, and the last administration, if we get enough power behind it, it can be done.

MR. FULCO

Well, if we are going to judge the future by the past, then yes, it can be done. But, I don't think you can necessarily judge the future any longer by the past. This is a new world--a new day, a new era--we're living in.

MR. SMITH

Well, why should we leave it to the legislature to change it? Why shouldn't we pass a good one here, put it in the constitution, and get the....let the legislature go on to other matters....not civil service?

MR. FULCO

Because, Jeff, I rather trust the representatives of the people, the legislature, than five men who could really create catastrophe in the rules of the civil service.

MR. ROY

Mr. Fulco, I don't know if Mr. Lanier or Mr. Smith have bothered to read the latest Amendment No. 7 by Mr. Flory, but it says unequivocally, that the legislature may not change any provision herein set forth with respect to the state or any city civil service commission covered by this section. Now, doesn't that mean that to make any changes of anything we do here today in this article, that we do, that it will take a constitutional amendment to do it?

MR. FULCO

As I understand the amendment, it will not permit the abolishment of the Civil Service Commission. But, of course, two-thirds votes can change your rules.

Further Discussion

MR. WILLIS

Madam Chairman--Chairperson--and fellow delegates, I hope that time has made more converts to reason, and that time can bring about today what reasoning could not yesterday. Reasoning is useless where all is a dream. The amendments we have under consideration supplant a committee proposal by a member of that committee and some others after the proposal is submitted. What must that indicate? The skill to propose what will not happen does not give me sufficient assurance when it could happen under these amendments. It's tantamount to promising me a bridge where there is no river. General Science teaches us that a lot of charcoal and a most precious diamond are made of the same thing--carbon. The only difference between them is the arrangement of their atoms. Political Science teaches us that we must have civil service in our constitution--experience does likewise. But, it most certainly cannot be rewarding if the service is uncivil, and because of disservice--and becomes disservice because it is political and partial--we must never forget that we must never say never unless we say never. What we are partially told by this amendment is not the full explanation of its length, breadth, and depth. As we courageously fight this battle of time, our purpose must be pure. This amendment establishes seven members, four of whom you know what, and four of whom is a majority--fight to arithmetically say. What is not so trite to say is that no man is sagacious or good enough to be trusted with unlimited power. The goat of the power, the more dangerous the abuse, only founded on folly, the folly of this amendment, can this power come to be. I tell you that I am not for one for the money, two for the show, three to get ready, and four to go. I am for defeat of this amendment, and deliberation on either the Dennery or De Bliex amendments because this amendment allows termination of civil service by a cattle-like vehicle towards the spoils system by other than the people who are going to establish this constitution.

Thank you, Madam Chairman.

Questions

MRS. WARREN

Mr. Willis, you mentioned in your opening remarks about building a bridge where there was not any water.

MR. WILLIS

No....where there was no river, madam, you didn't....

MRS. WARREN

No river. No river....that's what I'm trying to say. Thank you for helping me out.

Don't you think that if the people in the time of Noah had of built a bridge, or a boat where there was no river, some of them would have been saved?

MR. WILLIS

Madam, in the time of Noah, as I am apprised in the Bible, there would have been no shores upon which to rest either end of that bridge.

MR. STAGG

....in your remarks you said that charcoal and diamonds are made of the same substance.

MR. WILLIS

Carbon. Yes. General Science tells us that. I can't prove it.

MR. STAGG

Is it not heat and pressure that changes carbons to diamonds? Isn't that some of what's happening on this floor today?

MR. WILLIS

How so eloquent you put it, and scientifically so--and political scientifically so.

MR. FLORY

Following Mr. Stagg's question and your answer about the pressure upon the carbon in making the expensive gem of a diamond, isn't it true that after that pressure's applied, it's far more valuable?

MR. WILLIS

Well, the value very well may be there. I'm not conversant with the value of the one vis-a-vis the other. However, it takes a considerable amount of time to convert carbon to a diamond. It takes a lot of pressure and a lot of heat--ages. It ain't done by revolution--evolution.

MR. ROY

Mr. Willis, I'm really enjoying all of this...these hyperboles that Mr. Stagg and you have been getting into. But, I really think that one of the issues you made is very serious. You said that---where you have absolute power that that, you know, that corrupts almost absolutely. Then one person should run the show. Right?

MR. WILLIS

No, I didn't say that. I can repeat what I said, if you want me to.

MR. ROY

Well, let me, then, say, what I thought you said. In other words. . .

MR. WILLIS

I can't think for you....

MR. ROY

I'm glad you don't. In other words, your point I thought you were making was that you felt that a five man commission would be better if it's completely disassociated from any pressure or heat from the governor.

MR. WILLIS

No, my point is that--and I say it with...try to arithmetically say--is that four is the majority of seven, and that I made no mention about my preference with respect to seven or five. It makes no difference to me. There can be nine.

MR. ROY

Well, then, what you are saying, is that you'd rather have seven people rule on something, maybe, than two-thirds of a hundred and five, or two-thirds of a hundred and thirty-nine. You think that that's a better--that just because you have four of seven, that we should accept their judgment better than, maybe, two-thirds of a hundred and thirty-nine--a hundred and forty-four, rather?

MR. WILLIS

Where is the hundred forty-four?

MR. ROY

One hundred and five members in the House, and thirty-nine in the Senate is one hundred and forty-four. I would think that a hundred and forty-four minds a lot of times is better than four out of seven minds.

MR. WILLIS

I understand that. But, then, if you project your principle, let me say that three million is much better than a hundred forty-four. The first three words of the constitution are "We, the people", and that's what I like.

Further Discussion

MR. ROEMER

I might say at the onset that on the question of coal versus diamonds, it depends on the time as to what the value are; and today's energy crisis, I think coal is worth more than diamonds. I think the whole principle that we are talking about here is that times change and needs change. But some things remain true. I think that the one thing that should remain true in the system of government that we have in this state is the importance, the power, and the necessity of an independent, efficient Civil Service System. I hope this is what we are putting our cerebral matter to today--how best to insure that in the stormy months and years and decades that face us, we will continue to have a Civil Service System that works. One that is free from the heat of the moment, of the power of a single man. The question that I pose in my mind the last two days of debate--and I ask here in the few minutes that remain of this morning--what is the purpose of civil service, and why or how has our system failed as we have it today? I submit for your consideration that the system has not failed in Louisiana, but quite the contrary, has been an outstanding success. Not in all respects, it is not perfect. It was devised and designed by men and women and run by the same. Although we are made from God, He made us with the foresight to allow us error. We have done that in civil service. But, by and large, and day in and day out, civil service is a source of pride to every citizen of Louisiana.

I once again quote from Marlborough, as I did some months back, "When it's not necessary to change, it's a necessary not to change. I don't see, and I have not heard from this podium or any other this week, any necessity for change. So, I submit to you it's a necessary not to change our Civil Service System in Louisiana. Some say it's failed. Why, I ask? Why do you say it's failed? Has it failed because there are only twenty-five percent black people in the civil service system? Well, I ask you, would you say it was a failure if it was seventy-five percent black? I say you wouldn't, because the percentage of black is not important in civil service. It is the percentage of people who deserve their job and do their job well regardless of whether they be black or white, short or tall, or from Bossier Parish or Calcasieu. You know that's the problem--not what their color is, or not what school they went to, or not how they earned their living, or not who their parents were. Has the system failed because it's beyond the control of the governor? I say no. I say that's the mark of its success. Has it failed because the legislature cannot willy-nilly change the rule of three to that of five? Do not forget what the purpose of civil service is. The most deserving person gets the job. I would rather have the top three be considered, and the best chosen, than the top ten of the top twenty. The system works. It works to the disadvantage of those who are not qualified. Don't forget that; and so it ought to. It works to the advantage of those who are qualified; and so it should. Some people have gotten to this microphone and said we will never return to the spoils system in Louisiana. Poppycock. What is the spoils system? I submit to you that it's any system that selects men and women for employment on reasons other than their service or their ability to serve. That includes their geographical location; that includes their friendship with the governor, or the commissioner of administration; or anybody else in the administration. That includes any quality, whether it be physical, or of their brain, or of their spiritual matter that does not relate to the job to which they are applying. Now, that is the spoils system. We can go back to it in Louisiana. You know how? Not with one job leak, but with baby steps. Like cat feet, we creep in the fog and we wake up on a sunny day and we have in 1980 what we had in 1940--a system that will not work--a system that does not meet the needs of civil service.

An additional point was made from this mike, that is that there are new practices of personnel in America. Well, you know what those new practices are? They are the quota system. I submit to you that it's no more freedom to exclude people on a basis of race, than it is to include people on the basis of race. Now, perhaps I'm wrong, but that's my personal opinion, and that's why I will have to vote against amendments like this which tamper with the overriding principle of civil service; and that is that it takes the best people--the best people--regardless of any other consideration.

Thank you.

Recess

Personal Privilege

MR. ROY

Madam Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention, I just want to explain that I was in error when I thought that the amendments that Mr. Flory has put on the desk were before the convention. I just don't want to be misinterpreted and Matt Sutherland came up and said, "Man, you're misleading." I didn't mean to. I was not paying attention. I was upstairs talking to these kids and didn't realize that Mr. Flory had withdrawn his motion to withdraw his amendment. So, to the extent that I said that Mr. Flory's amendment would provide that you could not tamper with what we do in this article--even by a two-thirds vote--and it would take a constitutional amendment, that is....incorrect. The amendments on my desk...that we are not at that point, yet. Mr. Bollinger showed me my error, and I just wanted to tell you that I was not trying to mislead anybody in my questioning Mr. Fulco. Thank you.

Further Discussion

MR. NUNEZ

I was deliberating whether to sit in my chair and be a pressurized diamond and remain so, or get up here and allow myself to be cracked, tarnished, or what have you. But, after ten days of the special session, let me assure you, if pressure makes diamonds, we all became one.

It is a difficult problem. But I think because it is difficult, I've decided that I should say what I believe and in hopes that it would help some of you in making a decision which....I think a decision is imminent that we make in this particular difficult problem; and especially in lieu of the fact that there are many friends of all.... from the firemen and police who want consideration--which I think they should have--a number of the state police are back here looking for consideration, and I think that they should have. Certainly I believe that the civil service, as we have known it in this state over the past years, has worked. I believe it has worked well. Let me tell you from a personal standpoint, and I would venture to say that any legislator that got before you today, or had the opportunity to get before you, would say the same thing. If there is one agency in this state that I, as a senator, and this is my twelfth year--or going on twelfth year--has not been able to tamper with, has not been able to interfere with, has not been able to get one bit of consideration, that's civil service as we know it today. I've called, and I stand here guilty before you, and tried to find out--we get calls, and I guess by the very nature of our political being, you try to help people whenever you can, and when someone calls me and wants to know can I help them?--I try to help. I have never, at one time, been given consideration in helping a person, either--and I'm not saying I try to move them up or down the list--but I've tried to find out where they were, and why they were there. The best answer I can get is they are seventh, they're eighth, they're ninth, or tenth, and they're not the top three or they won't be considered. Now, if this is bad, if this is wrong, we ought to change it. But, if you want to get the best qualified people, if you want to get people that have been tested properly, if you want to get people that can do the job, I think we should not tamper with it. The many tests that I've taken and come out on the lower end of it, I was dissatisfied with the test and said there was probably something wrong with the testing procedure. But there were people higher than me on there, and I had a right to complain, I thought. I think that's probably what we're hearing from. I believe that the selection process that goes on in civil service is a good one. I should not--it would have been very easy for me to sit in my chair and vote the way I possibly could have made a lot of friends--but I just could not sit there and see a system that I believe that has worked for this state, that has done this state a tremendous service, be destroyed or tampered with, without saying what I feel. There were times--and I understand this in recent history--where to get a promotion in this state, you had to have political recommendation. I can tell you I haven't had that experience in the past eight or nine or ten or twelve years. I don't think it's going on today. Whether we change it, and it goes back, I think it's speculative. I think only history will tell. But, whether you want to take that chance or not, I think it's going to be incumbent upon you and I to make that decision here today. Pardon?

So, I would ask you. I don't know what the solution is. I'm sure there are some things in the civil service proposal that we should change. I, personally, believe that is the firemen and policemen from the New Orleans area, or any area, want to be under State Civil Service, we should give them that opportunity. I mentioned the State Police. We vote, the legislature voted a raise for State Police several years ago. We found the money. Civil service turned those people down. The courts upheld civil service and said we were going to abide by the court's decision. Now, maybe we should allow the legislature to raise certain groups of people in civil service without the civil service board concurring. I did it. I'd do it again. We ought to consider those type of things. But, I just don't believe we should radically depart from civil service as we know it in this state today, and take a chance....and take a chance. I think we have to compromise all of our positions. I heard your chairman make a speech before my Chamber of Commerce the other night, and I was amazed to find out, to discover that out of two hundred and fifty people, there were only about ten and they were going to vote for the constitution. I was just amazed. It was in my district. Maybe I was at fault. I was waiting until we finish to try to sell it. We have made some errors. I think we can correct them. I don't think we are going to be allowed too many more errors. I think this is one place....one place where we are again, are tampering with the basic grassroots feeling of the people of this state. I hope we can come up with a solution to our problem that will be acceptable to the various groups that are involved in it--the various segments of our society--and something that would be acceptable for the people because I don't think we are going to be allowed too many more....

Further Discussion

MR. HAYES

Ladies and gentlemen, I've heard a lot about the civil service of the state, and sometimes I don't know whether it's the civil service system or whether this is a civil war. It appears that somewhere back in the '40's or sometime or another there was one spoils system that caused some political problems, and that we have substituted for that spoils system another spoils system that's guaranteed by the constitution of the State of Louisiana--that is the civil service system that we have now. I've heard a lot of speakers speak on this: if you are on a pretty fair end of it, you can't find anything wrong with it. I've studied the civil service system; I've gone down to the civil service system, and I've found, and I looked it over for every parish in the state. I found one black person making eight hundred dollars--I should have his name; I don't have it--in the entire civil service system. About the average salary you'll find is around four hundred dollars. It appears that this guaranteed system of spoils is a social club that discriminates based on academic excellence. That is: some test or something that's prepared by somebody because, number one, you don't have enough jobs. Now, simply because you don't have enough jobs, now, suppose, let's say, this was picking cotton. You wouldn't have a test for that because almost anybody could pick cotton, and then you wouldn't have to discriminate. This whole thing of jobs is based on survival. Now, had a . . . it will show itself up if come to the question of rationing gas. You will see its true picture. You'll find out, then, exactly who will get gas; it will be just like jobs when you don't have enough. You'll find some way to keep people from getting these jobs, and you're going to eliminate them based on something you've done to them at some other time. Now, predating the constitution of the State of Louisiana, black people were prohibited from being educated. At the same time, our good civil service system, in its wisdom, decides that you're going to now have to take a test that's equal to everybody else. So, this is supposed to be a good system, so everybody defends it on that basis. You can't have a fair testing system starting now based on an entirely unequal educational system up until two or three days ago. So, now, we have one amendment after another. I don't know if I had to vote on either one of these just which one would be the best one. What we need is a slice of the pie--the same thing we'll need when the gas is rationed, you'll need some gas in the tank. I would like to see some jobs for everybody in the State of Louisiana, and whatever method we can come up with that will guarantee that, that is what I would like to see. Thank you.
